This is the First Edition, edited and reviewed. If you have any suggestions, please do not hesitate to share them with us so that we can work together in this mission. Let us pray for one another so that experienced writers in the Swahili-speaking world may provide life-giving counsel, making many resources available for free or at affordable prices, reaching thousands of Swahili readers worldwide. Please pray for this ministry as we consider writing children's books and finding dedicated individuals with the fear of God to assist in translation and editing into Swahili.

Acknowledgments:
We cannot claim this book as solely our own—far from it—because we have received much from others beyond ourselves, including me, my husband, our editors, and our children. I have been blessed by our editors—Brethren Bunga Dettu, Daniel Matekere, Emmanuel Mogenge, Stephen Letta, Kwandu Kasiri, Mbusi Mpagalushu, Bettie Magesa-Muasya, Innocent Wayoga, Gerard Nyafanga, Faustin Mkama, Obadiah Murimi, Charles Muraguri, Tabitha William, Bariki Milinje Momadi, and Benard Chikowir—who has recorded the book in audio form available on YouTube under Kesha la Asubuhi (Children & Youth) through the Kijito cha Uvuvio ministry.

I have also had conversations with laypeople, pastors, and various believers who have expressed interest in the concept of this book. It is our hope that this book will be a blessing to all. Our goal is to make it available online for free and to print physical copies as funds become available. Swahili is now recognized as the third most widely spoken language in the Christian world and the tenth globally. It is our prayer to obtain Bible commentaries and lexicons/concordances in Swahili as well. Efforts to translate and publish these resources are ongoing! Please pray for these Gospel efforts in Swahili—online, at home, and abroad!

How can we direct our intentions and overcome temptations?
First, by choosing God—just as Joshua said, "Choose this day whom you will serve." Second, by reading and living according to the Scriptures so that we do not sin (Psalm 119:10). Third, by obeying God and resisting the devil, who will then flee from us (James 4:7). Fourth, by reflecting on Philippians 4:8, which is a filter for our thoughts and actions. Finally, 2 Corinthians 5:10 says, "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, so that each one may receive what is due for what he has done in the body, whether good or evil." We are called to take every thought captive to obey Christ and to cast down everything that exalts itself against the knowledge of God.

Therefore, the Word of God is not just a book for information—it is a book for transformation, changing our character to reflect that of God, enabling us to give ourselves wholly to Him.

May the Spirit of God help us to consecrate ourselves fully. When we fully dedicate ourselves, we will be able to reach the three billion people who have not yet heard the message of the Remnant—of the living God in heaven. He is our Creator, who died for us on the cross and is coming again to take us to live with Him forever. Life is very short—Scripture says that a thousand years are like a single day to God. This means that Adam, who lived over 900 years, only lived about 20 hours in God's time! Someone who lives 80 years today would only have lived about two hours. This reality compels us to seek the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, keeping His Word before us day and night. The Scriptures reveal God's love and promises, even granting us eternal life.

Character and the people we love are the only things we will take with us to heaven! JESUS is coming soon! The Spirit and the Bride say, "Come!" Let everyone who hears this say, "Come!" Whoever is thirsty, let them come and take the water of life freely. Amen. Come, Lord Jesus! May the grace of the Lord Jesus be with you all. MARANATHA, beloved of the LORD! Amen.

Bible Teachings for Children
Simplified Bible – 365 Devotions for Children and Youth

Seven Key Principles as We Continue to Study the Bible:

1. Believe in God and confess our sins.

2. Read the Scriptures daily.

3. Pray every day.

4. Attend a fellowship that adheres to the Scriptures.

5. Engage in community service.

6. Share the Good News with others.

7. Live a lifestyle consistent with the Scriptures we read.

INTRODUCTION

When we visited many parts of East Africa, we did not find a children's Bible or Bible stories written in a language that is both simple, goes with the african culture and profound enough for children to understand. This deeply saddened us, and we began to ask a few people to help us write a book that could meet this need. Many of those we approached gave excuses, just as we did initially, until we realized it was best for us to write it ourselves. We prayed and asked God to pour out His Spirit and guide us in writing. We also requested many others to continue praying for us.

We thank God for His power and how He enables and blesses us. There is no other book that provides comfort and brings joy to humanity like the Bible! We live in a world filled with troubles, anxiety, distress, fear, and even deep sorrow, and people are longing to hear the Good News. God has given us the Good News and a message of hope. The Good News is that Jesus was born, lived on earth, died, and rose again so that we may receive salvation. In many ways, God encourages us not to be dismayed or afraid because He loves us more than we love ourselves. He loves those we love even more than we do. Friends, money, entertainment, movies, sports, toys, and even family cannot give you the lasting joy that comes from Almighty God.

Psalm 121:1 says, "I lift up my eyes to the mountains—where does my help come from?" Only God's way can help you and give you peace in your heart, contentment in your soul, and meaningful purpose in life. If you are facing problems, sorrow, anxiety, illness, or any other hardship, the Word of God is the only Good News! It is the answer to all your problems. Read it, and you will discover words that bring you joy and eternal purpose. Proverbs 22:6 says, "Train a child in the way he should go, and when he is old, he will not turn from it." Our refuge in parenting and our security is found in the Word of God. The Bible is the voice of God, as if He is speaking to us face to face.

Heaven and earth will pass away, but His Word will never pass away. The Word of God did not come by human will, but men spoke from God as they were carried along by the Holy Spirit (2 Peter 1:19-21). Scripture is God-breathed and is given to us for the purpose of making us wise for salvation through faith, teaching, rebuking, correcting, and training in righteousness so that we may be thoroughly equipped for every good work (2 Timothy 3:15-16). The Word of God is more important than the food we eat.

How do we know that the Bible is the Word of God or that it is true? Every child should know how to answer this question about the hope we have. There are many reasons, but a key reason is this: The lives of millions of people have been transformed from sin to blessings through the power of the Bible. No one has ever read a mathematics textbook and said, "After reading math, my heart has decided to choose righteousness and abandon sin." But many people have made such decisions after reading and studying the Word of God. Take some time to read Daniel 2 and Daniel 7—parallel prophecies that have been fulfilled. These chapters show that the Bible is a reliable book, and its prophecies are completely true.

The Word of God is our compass and map on earth. The Bible came to us through divine inspiration. God's inspiration guided His servants, including prophets like Moses, Daniel (who was a prime minister), Solomon and David (who were kings), Amos (who was a shepherd), Matthew (who was a tax collector), Luke (who was a physician), and many others. Inspiration was not mechanical dictation where they were told to write word for word, but rather, God inspired their thoughts, and they wrote under the guidance of the Holy Spirit. For example, some wrote in poetic form, others as prophecies, and others through stories. The Bible has been proven to be the Word of God. No other book can answer human questions as the Bible does. No other book soothes the longing and loneliness of the human heart like the Bible! The Bible provides the light of knowledge and wisdom, illuminating our minds and purifying us. It is a revelation from the Living God—He is the Light of our lives! God has preserved His Word throughout history for thousands of years. The Bible contains God's instructions, testimonies, laws, and commandments—read Psalm 119.

The Bible contains 66 books—39 in the Old Testament and 27 in the New Testament. It took over 1,700 years to write the Bible. However, all approximately 40 authors maintained a unified message and did not contradict one another because they were inspired by the same God. The Bible has 1,189 chapters. The longest chapter is Psalm 119, and the longest book is Jeremiah, followed by Genesis, Psalms, Ezekiel, and Exodus. The shortest books are 3 John, 2 John, Philemon, Obadiah, and Jude. The shortest chapter is Psalm 117, and the middle chapter of the Bible is Psalm 118.

Before the printing press was invented, over 23,000 manuscript copies of the Bible were found worldwide, and they were remarkably consistent with each other—unlike other ancient writings like those of Plato or Socrates, which only had a few copies, sometimes fewer than ten. This shows that the Bible is not a fabricated book. The books of Acts and Luke were examined through historical events, cities, and dates, and they were found to be astonishingly accurate.The Bible can be divided as follows:The first five books (Pentateuch) written by Moses.12 historical books.Five poetic books.Five major prophetic books.13 minor prophetic books.Four Gospel accounts.One book of church history (Acts).14 letters from Paul.Seven letters from other apostles.One book of prophecy (Revelation).According to the Bible, our world is approximately 6,000 years old. The Great Flood occurred around 2348 BC, and Jesus was born between 4 BC and 1 AD. Revelation 12 clearly states that there was a war in heaven, and Satan was cast down to earth, where he deceived our first parents, Adam and Eve. This is when sin entered the world. Sin is the transgression of God's law. Sin is what brought pain, sorrow, suffering, and death into the world.Sin is what brought pain, sorrow, crying, and death.

The ten longest books of the Bible account for 55% of the Old Testament. The shortest books include Obadiah, 2 John, 3 John, and Jude.

Table No. 1: List of the longest books in the Bible

God is faithful, He forgives us and makes us start a new life, a new creation. The battle between evil and good, or Satan and God, continues and will continue until the last day when Christ will come to take His saints and put an end to sin and the life of sin. This battle is the longest of all. The shortest battles of all were fought in Zanzibar, lasting for 38 minutes, and the Sultan of Oman surrendered, after which the British took control of the island.

In the end, God will wipe away the tears of His people. There will be no more crying, no more sorrow, and no more death. Those who have overcome by the grace of God, who trust in Him, obey Him, and hope in Him, will receive the gift of eternal life. This is the greatest gift beyond anything in the world. Beloved child and youth, trust in the Lord and choose Him every day in your life. Seven important things for every human being are, first, to know God and follow His ways; second, to pray every day; third, to read His Word every day; fourth, to worship with others in fellowship and meetings that follow the Scriptures; fifth, to testify of God's mighty deeds to others; sixth, to help in community service; and seventh, to live a life that reflects Christ, according to the Scriptures.

Strive to understand the difference between sin, iniquity, transgression, and errors (Sin, Iniquity, and Transgression). Sins of knowledge and ignorance, sins of action and thoughts—God forgives all of these, desiring that we begin to live a new life again. Many who have read the Word of God have said, "I have never seen beauty and sweetness like this." The Bible will continue to shine and be more precious than gold every day you continue to read it. Its sweetness will be extraordinary, and you won't want to stop reading it!

I have witnessed this myself, for I prayed for this request in 1988 when I saw my teacher from England saying that the Word has a wonderful sweetness; he said that if he didn't read it in the morning, he felt he had lost his joy! I too said, "Lord, I pray You give me the taste of the Scriptures that this teacher of mine has!" God has fulfilled this promise for me and many others in my life. The Bible has more than 8,000 promises!

Many who were poor in school have done well by reading the Word. People have learned about future things by reading it. Look at the book of Daniel 2. We do not need astrologers, witches, or any kind of fortune tellers to tell us what is coming because they will fill us with fear without reason. Read the Bible and do not skip the prophetic books of Daniel and Revelation. Trust God with all your understanding, and do not lean on your own understanding. In all your ways, acknowledge Him (The Almighty), and He will guide you in all things. One day you will be in heaven to live with Him forever, and the joy will be immense. On the day of the Lord, you will stand as a conqueror because He will defend you for having chosen Him and His ways. You will have avoided sin and much sorrow indeed. The day of the Lord is mentioned more than 22 times in the Bible, and we are told that every human should prepare for that day.

All humans have sinned and fallen short of the glory of God, and the wages of sin is death. But God has provided a way through the sacrifice of His Son, Christ. "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish but have eternal life. For the Son of Man did not come to condemn the world, but that the world might be saved through Him" (John 3:16-17). Beloved child, youth, or adult, we have hope to live forever in heaven with our heavenly Father. Let us take heart, pray that He helps us in this journey, and find good friends who do not have evil motives so that we may win this race.

Disobedience to God brings sorrow to our lives and to others. It is best to obey Him willingly because it will bless us, bless others, and also bless God. We cannot touch heaven without touching people! When we do wrong to others, we have wronged God too; He is our Father. These relationships are inseparable. And when God gives a command saying "do not," it is for our own happiness, as His creations. For example, when He says do not commit adultery, He has no wife, but He gives that command for our own happiness. All of His Ten Commandments are for our own good. Every one of His commands is for our benefit and that of others! You can study each of His commands more!

We also continue to pray for each other. About 170 years ago in Europe, people came up with the false theory of evolution—humans evolving from worms, frogs, monkeys, and then to humans. We know that no one has ever heard on the radio, "Today we welcome new citizens from the jungles of Gombe or Virunga, who have evolved from monkeys and joined us!" These are false, evil, and lies. I think we are not greatly troubled by these theories because many diminish our value as humans, and we live with these creatures in our game reserves without seeing such changes. However, we believe that we were created by God with great purpose.

Should we continue reading the Bible? Many new readers say they don't know where to start. There are many ways to read the Bible. Some have started with Genesis but stopped when they found the books uninteresting or lacking the desire to continue reading. We recommend starting with the Gospels, like Mark, Matthew, Luke, and John, then Acts, and returning to Genesis and Exodus. You can also read it by focusing on one person and learning from their life. For example, Stephen, the deacon, who loved God and lived his life for Him. He was a Greek, and he did not have a spirit of revenge, praying for those who were killing him. Others, when they are wronged even a little, react harshly, saying, "Even if I die, don't come to my funeral; you will be cursed for doing this!" These words are very serious. Those who wrong us should be prayed for, and we should ask God to forgive them and keep us from their evil.

You can also make summaries or take notes as we are doing now, which will open your eyes in ways that words cannot explain. Once you get used to it, you will be able to start from the beginning to the end with ease as others do. Read three chapters a day, and by the end of the year, you will have finished it. Or, if you read one chapter a day and reflect on it, you will finish it in three years. Talk to others about how they read it. Strive to read it joyfully and pray for the Holy Spirit to guide you before you start. And when you begin reading, pray and pray again! You will be blessed with countless benefits.

Don't set yourself to read too many pages that will make you feel it's a punishment or overwhelming. The Bible is like food. Food should be chewed and digested so you get nourishment. Reading the entire Bible takes about 80 hours. But you need time to pray and reflect on even a single verse, and you will be surprised it may take you two weeks! Don't rush as if you are being pressured or hurried. The Bible has a message for all people: old, young, rich, poor, black, white, short, tall, learned, and ordinary people.

Never fear! The Word says, "Do not fear, for I am with you; do not be dismayed, for I am your God. I will strengthen you, I will help you, I will uphold you with My righteous right hand" (Isaiah 41:10). Truly, no eye has seen, no ear has heard, and no human mind has conceived the things God has prepared for us!

Let us read His Word so we may know His promises and claim them.

The Christian faith does not allow a person to do whatever they want! A believer must submit to God and live according to the Scriptures. Before sin, God spoke to people face to face, but after the fall into sin, He spoke to them through voices, through angels, through prophets, and ultimately through the Scriptures. He started by writing Himself with His own hand and then the inspired writers of the Scriptures, eventually forming the Bible. The Bible is the Word of God. The Word of God is the final authority for God's creatures here on earth, in heaven, and it has a message for everyone. Read it, meditate on it, love it, act on it, and proclaim it. Do not stop others from spreading it or hoarding it. For our mission is to go into all the world and teach people, making them disciples of Jesus. This book is a daily devotional of the Bible for children, from Genesis to Revelation, structured for each day for 366 days.

The Bible tells the history of humanity from when God created man to the fall and rebellion in the Garden of Eden, to the time when God will dwell with His people in the new heaven and new earth. This is the Summary of the Bible- (Creation, Fall, Redemption). There is a Greek term called "Theodicy." In the book of Revelation 12, we are told that Satan lived in heaven and was the first rebel. He persuaded a third of the angels and was cast down here on earth. That became the beginning of the conflict between God and Satan, or good and evil. We are now in this battle, and the book of Job gives us a small glimpse of this conflict. There is a day when this battle will end. According to the Bible, the signs of the times in Daniel 2 and 7 are a prophetic calendar, showing that we are at the end of the world's history.

God will come to judge the world and reward those who have done good by His grace with eternal life; and for those who have done evil, their punishment will be eternal fire. Everyone should read Daniel's chapters and understand what they mean today. This is the summary of the Bible. Genesis 1 and 2 is creation, Genesis 3 is the fall of humanity into sin. The rest of the Bible is God's plan to deal with sin so it never rises again. Nahum 1:9. He sends apostles and prophets to help people prepare, but often they do not listen, and sometimes they kill the servants of God. Finally, God sends His Son, who is born, lives among people for 33 ½ years, teaches them, and eventually is killed, buried, and resurrects, ascending back to heaven, where He continues His priestly ministry, interceding for us. Soon He will come to take those who have chosen to live with Him in heaven, and the wicked will face their judgment.

You and I, whether child or adult, are part of this great battle. Even a little child struggles with denying themselves, or giving up what they want. All battles are in the mind and heart. We hear two voices in our hearts. We must wear the armor of God and stand firm, as in Ephesians 6 with the seven pieces of armor, be vigilant, and pray that we may not fall into the traps and snares of the evil one. Every day we make choices, either choosing God or Satan. We have all sinned and fallen short of the glory of God, but when we believe in Jesus and repent, God forgives us and accepts us as His children. God helps us live a new life through His grace.

Let us trust God so we may be confirmed, and trust His prophets so we may prosper. This book has changed the lives of many people. When the colonizers arrived in Papua New Guinea, they laughed at the locals who were reading the Bible and following it. The locals said, "You laugh, but when we didn't have this book, we used to eat people. If you were here, you would have been our meal!" The Lord Jesus said, "It is written, man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God" (Matthew 4:4). By the grace of God, may we one day meet in heaven by the tree of life because we have valued His Word.

Grace Momadi-Masaka – Born in Bariadi, Simiyu, Tanzania. A teacher of biology, chemistry, and nursing, with a passion for writing children's books to help them know the loving God who has great plans for their better life and eternal life in heaven. She lives in New Jersey, USA, with her two children, David and Paulo. She encourages daily family worship with children in the morning and evening and Bible reading. She prays for God's mercy and grace for us to walk in the right path and to pray for one another with many tears. This Bible for children and youth will help parents to read it together with their children. She encourages translators of hopeful advice to reach the Swahili-speaking world and connect to translate many treasures for this world with few writings. Email: masakamomadi@aol.com

Daniel Nyangaresi Masaka – Born in Kisii, Kenya. He is an industrial chemist. He encourages fathers to be actively involved in the lives of their children, to know what is going on, and to help them in this life and for eternity. The role of the father as a priest and leader is more valuable than how it is portrayed in our daily lives, especially in today's digital world, after the COVID-19 pandemic. Many of us have made mistakes and ask for God's mercy because He is the perfect Father. Westerners say that parenting is one sinner raising another sinner.

Bunga Edward Dettu – A longtime friend of ours whom I met in church when I was in Form Five, and to this day he is a good friend in many things. He has made a significant contribution to this book, which is about the teachings of the Bible. He is also a scholar who holds a Master's in Christian-Muslim relations from Andrews University. His wife is named Theopista, and they have been blessed with three children and three grandchildren. He is a pastor.

David and Paulo Masaka – Children living with their parents. They are primary school students and say, “The Word of God is not just advice or good ideas, but the very voice or breath of God and the final authority for His people on earth.” They have enjoyed learning many truths about the Bible, and it has been life-changing for them! They say this is a gift from God for every child! Mbusi Mpagalushu: He studied medicine and is from Bariadi, Tanzania. He says, we will not be saved by the Law, but by the great sacrifice that God made through His Son, Jesus Christ. However, we will be judged by the Law! Many Jews kept the Law without loving God. But today, there are people who claim to love God but do not care about His Laws. Let us avoid hypocrisy, because that is our trial as human beings. That is, being hypocrites or being people of the world. By grace, let us be people of God.

Kwandu Kasiri: Kwandu studied pharmacy and lives in Kibaha, Tanzania. He says, Do you believe in the Bible, which is the greatest book of all (the Book of books)? Do you read it and let its message speak to your heart? If you do so, you will be a different person. If you did not believe it before, start believing in it today. And if you believe but do not obey it, start obeying it today. And if you believe and obey it, continue growing and bearing fruits worthy of repentance.

Pastor Daniel Matekere: He was a Bible teacher, a physician, and also an editor of books.

Pastor Stephen Letta: He is a Bible teacher, an author, and also an editor of books.

GIVE ME THE BIBLE

HOW DID THE SWAHILI BIBLE REACH US?

Priscilla Owens

Christian Hymns No. 52: Give Me the Bible

Give me the Bible, the star of joy, that travelers may find light;
Nothing can hinder peace, for Jesus has redeemed us.
Give me the Bible, the holy Word,
Its light will guide me;
Laws, promises, and love,
Even to the end, it will continue.

Give me the Bible when I am sorrowful, filling my heart with grace;
Give me the good Word of the Lord Jesus,
To see Jesus, my Savior.

Give me the Bible so I can see the dangers of the world;
The light of His Word, Lord Jesus,
Will shine the way of Truth.

Give me the Bible, the light of life;
The comforter when we are in despair;
Show me the light of heaven,
Let me see the glory of the Lord.

There is a hymn that says even if all the seas were ink, the heavens were paper, and all the trees were pens, they would not be enough to write the good news of the Kingdom of God and His love. We say that we have not even begun to understand God's love, to understand His Word, and who He is. We have only experienced a glimpse of it, but even that small part we have received, if we take it seriously, will yield good fruit in abundance and then the wonderful promises of eternal life through knowing Him – John 17:3. The Bible is a book to be read with reverence and respect, with prayer and without haste. May God help us to enjoy this excellent and flavorful food above all that is on earth, so we may grow in faith, glorify God, and improve others through our service and words.

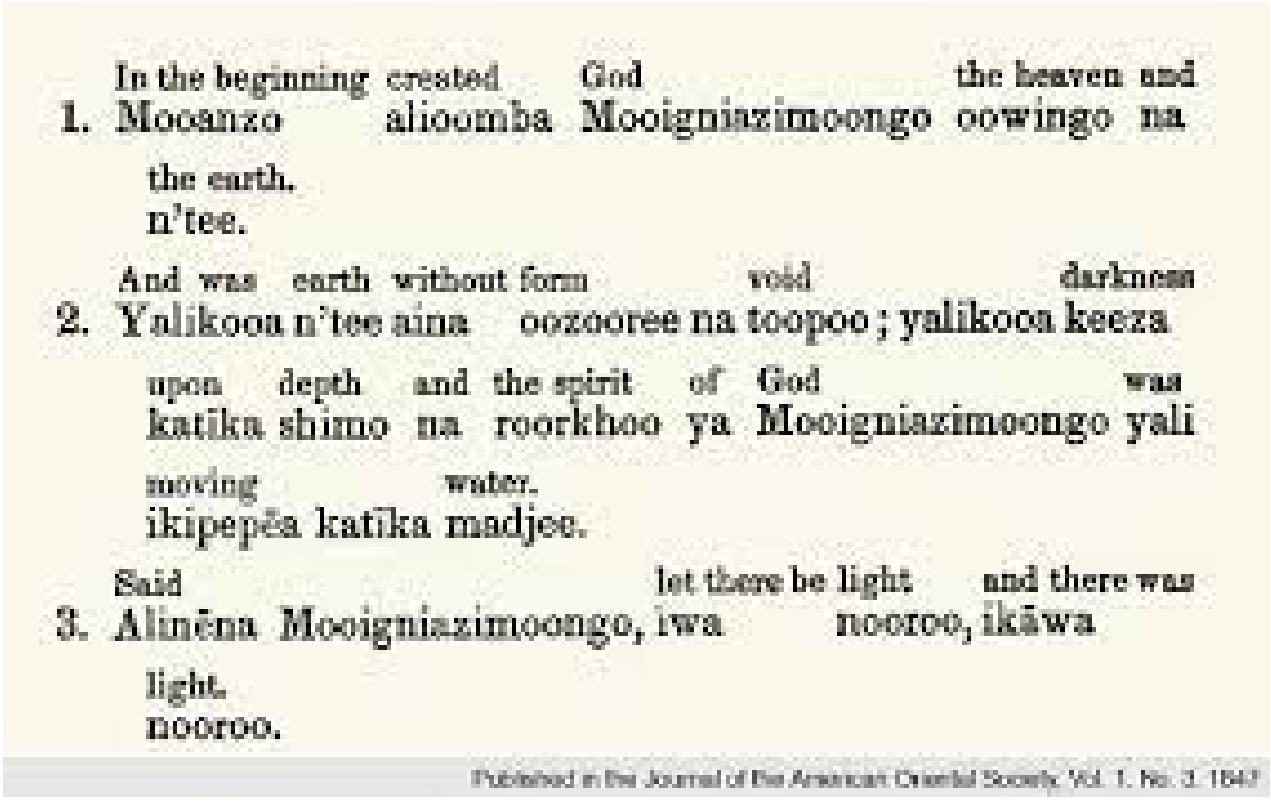
Because of many false teachings that degrade humanity, which have passed from generation to generation, no one is safe without the Word of God. All beings, including angels, were created by God. God created Man first, and gave him work in the Garden of Eden (pleasure/luxury). Adam had a relationship with God first, before other relationships. Then He created the woman, who had a relationship with God first, and then her husband was entrusted to her. The command to "be fruitful and multiply" is the first command in the Scriptures! A child is formed in the womb from a seed from the father and an egg from the mother. When these two cells meet, that is when the child becomes a girl or a boy. These cells grow, and thus a child is not simply born as a girl or boy, but is created by God as either a girl or a boy! No one can change their gender, because every cell has either male or female chromosomes. Humans were created in the image of God. Therefore, all genders have meaning before God.

Recently, many theories from various countries have emerged with ideas that have caused much distress. Where I live, for example, when a child is born, they are not allowed to be called a boy or girl; they are told to wait and choose when they grow up. Many times, I also encounter men in the restroom, who say that in their minds, they are women. Such situations cause me fear when I am alone with this man in the restroom. Wouldn't you be fearful if you were a woman? There are many stories like this where I live, but briefly, I will say, God created men and women in His grace. He alone decides who will be a man and who will be a woman, not humans. Humans cannot create. The act of creating is one of the verbs that pertains to God alone. Another verb is forgiving sins, etc.

As creatures, we do not have the choice to decide if we will be male or female, white or black, etc. God has already set all of this in our chromosomes, in every cell (DNA). We were created in a marvelous and awesome way. Therefore, we must know what God created us for because everyone will give their advice, whether true or false, but we and our children must return to God Himself first, who has the instructions for what He created (the Manual). The Bible is that Guide of instructions for men and women. They were created for different purposes, they are equal before God, but their roles are different! (equal with different function)

HOW THE SWAHILI BIBLE REACHED US

Mary Jones was born in the village of Llanfihangel y Pennant, on the island of Wales (UK) on December 16, 1784. She had a deep love for the Word of God and greatly desired to own her own Bible, though she was poor. At the age of 16, she had already saved up money to buy her own Bible. She received information that in a certain church, she could purchase a Bible, so she walked 40 km to the church where she met Pastor Thomas Charles. The pastor informed her that all the Bibles had been sold, and none were left.



Mary told Pastor Thomas her story, and this moved him so much that he decided to sell her a Bible that had already been paid for by someone else but had been delayed in picking it up. This inspired Pastor Thomas to come up with a plan so that all ordinary people could get Bibles for themselves to read, based on the saying, “This is eternal life, that they may know you, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom you have sent.”

In 1802, Pastor Thomas held a meeting with leaders of the Religious Tract Society, and during the discussions, they agreed to help Wales obtain Bibles. After these decisions, a man named Joseph Hughes questioned: “Why just Wales? What about other countries?” His concerns led to the formation of an association called the British and Foreign Bible Society, on March 7, 1804. Together, they established printing presses; from this society, many Bible societies were born worldwide, including the Kenya Bible Society, the Bible Society of Tanzania, and the American Bible Society. These societies have played a significant role in spreading the Bible widely, often subsidizing its sale and sometimes securing sponsors.

Mary Jones lived for 80 years and was able to witness and enjoy the fruits of her dream. Often, we think that a person can only make a difference in society if they have money or power. Here, we see that this is not true; a dream brings purpose, goals, and, in the end, it can move mountains in a person’s life.

Johannes Ludwig Krapf was born in Germany (1810-1881). He graduated with a degree in Theology from the University of Tübingen in 1874. He traveled to Egypt, where he married and had a child; later, he and his family moved to Rabai, Mombasa, where his wife and child died of malaria. Krapf had a talent for languages, which enabled him to understand Greek, Latin, Hebrew, French, and Italian. Krapf was a Lutheran, and in 1844, he began missionary work in East African countries. Upon arrival in 1844, he started learning Kiswahili (the coastal dialect). He wrote the first Kiswahili Dictionary and Grammar of the Kiswahili language. He also began writing the book of Genesis in the Bible, but his language was not well-organized (see the example below). Krapf realized there was a significant need to spread the Word of God to people by enabling them to read the Bible in Kiswahili. However, his attempt failed because he had only learned the basic conversational Kiswahili, not the more fluent or academic level of the language (see the following excerpts below).

In the beginning created God the heaven and Johann Krapf's 1847 translation of Genesis 1:1-3 into Swahili

Krapf worked with a Muslim judge called Ali Bin Modehin to translate the book of Genesis. In the end, he completed the New Testament during a time of war, though he did not print many copies. His work was later used in the writing of the Kiswahili Bible Southern Version, which was handled by Steer. In 1868, Steer completed the New Testament, and in 1879, the entire Bible was completed, including the Old and New Testaments. Other writers joined and assisted him in completing the Old Testament, including Johannes Rebmann, and Rabai Krapf. Other names include William Taylor, Harry Bins, Edward Steere, Francis Hodgson, and Arthur Madan. By 1895, the entire Kiswahili Bible was available. Krapf's dictionary also helped many in translation work. Krapf also translated the Bible into Kikamba and the Oromo language of Ethiopia.

Edward Steer (1928), an Anglican from England, was ordained a pastor in 1850. He arrived to work in Zanzibar in 1864, and by 1869, with Krapf's press, he had finished translating the New Testament. He worked with a Zanzibari citizen and was funded by the Bible Society. They successfully translated the Bible into Kiswahili. Steer died in 1882.

The translation initiated by Krapf continued to be improved by various people as God used them until 1950. His dictionary helped in Bible translation for Pastor Steer and his colleagues, as well as for translations into other Bantu languages like Luganda. The first official edition of the Kiswahili Bible (the one we use today) was published in 1952. However, as languages evolve, it is customary to review a book every 50 years. There were also people from Zanzibar who contributed to perfecting the language, especially poets like Mwajuma, Shaban Robert, and Mathias Mnyampala. Their contributions are a treasure for Kiswahili language users.

Therefore, this Bible, which is about 74 years old, may one day have a more detailed or paraphrased version, like the Paraphrase/Devotional Bible. We have begun writing the book of Romans in a devotional/ explanatory version. May God help us and use us to complete this work soon. We desire your prayers. We ask you to remember us in our mission.

The 1950 revisions focused on the importance of having a standardized Kiswahili Bible in East Africa, which led to the birth of the translation we have today (Swahili Union Version).

Other churches have participated in translating the Bible into other East African languages. Some examples include Psalms in Chasu (Kipare), published by Max Poenig Msabato in 1919, the New Testament in Kipare in 1912, and others followed, such as the Old and New Testament (Ilagano la Kale na Ilagano Ipya) in Kisukuma, translated by Seventh-Day Adventist missionaries in Usukuma during World War I and published in Kendu Bay (Kenya). Also, Missionary Rudolph Reider, who was Majita, and Ibrahim Maradufu translated the New Testament into Kijita, called Indagano Inyaaya, after World War I.

Here in Africa, the Bible Society reached Kenya and Ethiopia first, and at that time, Tanzania was served from Kenya until 1978 when the society was established here in Tanzania in Iringa. Between 1979-1980, it was moved to Dodoma, where it has grown and continues to serve the community with the Word of God (especially when the need became apparent).

There is a need for more Bible translations, just as other languages like English have more than 100 translations. Nowadays, we have the modern Kiswahili Bible translation that we are already familiar with! (We have questioned Bible societies as well, but human work often comes with mistakes, but our aim is to share this good news with you, so if there are any corrections, please feel free to contact us. We love to be blessed by you through prayers, advice, and corrections. Thank you).

A very serious prayer request, full of meaning, is this: Pray for yourself and live it, and you will receive revelations that will help you understand the Word, and one day, we will all be in heaven together with HIM forever.

A brief overview of the BIBLE:

The Bible contains the good news of the salvation of every man. Its summary involves the creation of man as recorded in Genesis chapters 1 and 2. The fall of man into sin (Gen 3) and the rest of the Bible beginning from Genesis three to Revelation is about God doing everything possible to save man, He sends Christ to come and save us. Since the wages of sin is death, Christ died for us that we may live forever. We do an exchange with Him, as He gives us His goodness, we give Him our sins to cleanse us completely, and make us worthy by His righteousness. This book is wonderful, for whenever anyone relates about his experience or that of his friends, the focus is on the positive aspects. Even someone has implored people to live untainted lives so that "you don't force us to offer flattering praises at your funeral." But the Bible is exceptional, the lives of men are revealed as they really are, even of the beloved of God. None is righteous, not even one, all have fallen short of the glory of God.

The Bible speaks of what the world was, is and will be. No other book contains such truth as this one. This book is different from all others for no other book does the same. "For God saith thus," or "listen to the word of the Lord." A wise man cannot say God doesn't exist but will after investigating find Him. It is a promise that is 100% true.

The first chapter of the Bible speaks of God creating man, and the last chapter of the Bible of Revelation 22 is about God inviting everyone to come and drink of the water of life freely. The Bible reveals God's deep interest in man, His understanding of man and concern for his daily life. His infinite love is revealed in the death of His Son Jesus Christ. The offering of this great sacrifice enables everyone of us to be counted righteous before God for having that simple faith in the merits of Christ. The truth is found in the Scriptures, but because there are so many pages, we have sort of taken a sattelite view to present an interesting summary to wet your appetite to read the Bible every day. God loves His people and deeply cares for them is the message of the Bible in every book. Taste and see that the Lord is good.

The Bible is meant to guide us in this life. Therefore, have an organized plan to read your Bible and you will reap much. Our personal goals or needs will guide us. Do we need comfort, or enrich our daily watch with daily study? Many Bibles have similar verses that you need to compare. Some have benefited from a monthly the study of a whole book of the Bible. The sources of studying the Bible is the Bible itself.

How do we know that the Bible is the Word of God or Truth? Every child should know how to answer this question of the hope we have. There are many reasons, but a few we can explain are as follows:

1. The life of Christ has affected history and time so that it is marked as Before Christ (BC) and After Christ (AD), and what was prophesied has occurred.

2. Archaeological discoveries fully agree with the events and history of the Bible. Historical writings from the places of events, such as the appearance of Pharaoh's chariot wheels in the Red Sea, etc.

3. Millions of lives have been changed and blessed because of this Word. No one studies geography and says, "After studying geography, my heart has chosen what is good!" No, it is only after studying the Word of God that people are transformed.

The Word of God is our map and guide on earth. It has come to us through the inspiration of God's servants like prophets such as Moses, who was raised by Pharaoh's family, Luke, the doctor, Daniel, the prime minister, Matthew, the tax collector, Solomon, and David, who were kings, Amos, who was a shepherd and a farmer. Inspiration is not like dictation, where they were told to write word for word, but their thoughts were inspired, and they wrote as they saw it—some wrote in poetry, others as stories. The Bible has proven to be the Word of God. No other book can answer human questions like this one. There is no other book that calms the longing and loneliness of people's hearts, but only the Bible! It contains things for everyone, of all ages and types. The Bible is a light of knowledge and wisdom, knowledge and understanding that enlightens our thoughts and purifies them. It is a revelation from God in heaven. The God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob is our God. God has preserved His Word throughout history for thousands of years. More than 2600 writers have written "Thus says the LORD," especially in the book of Leviticus. The Bible contains instructions, testimonies, laws, and commandments from God.

The Bible consists of 66 books, 39 from the Old Testament and 27 from the New Testament. The Old Testament was written in Hebrew and the New Testament in Greek. It took over 1500 years to write the Bible, but all the writers, estimated to be 40 in number, shared a common theme (they did not contradict each other because they were inspired by the same God). The Bible contains approximately 407 instances of children. The Bible has 1189 chapters. The longest chapter is Psalm 119, and the longest book is that Psalm. The shortest chapter is Psalm 117. Psalm 118 is the middle chapter.

Do you believe in the Bible, the book greater than all others (The Book of books)? Do you read it and let its message speak to your heart? You will be a different person if you do so. Start believing in it today if you haven't. And if you believe without obeying, start obeying today. And if you believe and obey, continue to grow and bear fruit worthy of repentance. One of our friends, John Bradshaw from New Zealand, told us that while he was driving in a certain town in Tennessee, he saw a house on fire. He wondered if the people inside knew about it. He thought to himself, "This is a foreign land, and these Western people must know their house is burning. If I go there and knock, they might think I'm crazy." However, he encouraged himself, drove his car up to the house, knocked on the door, and when no one answered, he opened the door and shouted, "Your house is on fire!" The family came out—father, mother, and children—wondering where this crazy person had come from. However, when he explained, they quickly ran out, and by that time, Bradshaw had called the fire department, who arrived and extinguished the fire. But the house was destroyed. Still, lives were saved!

People who have not heard the message of the final judgment of the Savior will also burn in the fire, and they will be gone forever. Are you ashamed to tell people the good news, or do you think you will disturb them? Tell them the good news of the kingdom and let them reject it if they wish. On that day, the books will be opened, and everyone's deeds will be fully revealed, including those deeds that have not been repented for. Do you want your sin to be read by everyone and known by all? I don't, I want to confess my sin now!

The Bible is incomplete without the Old Testament. The New Testament is a continuation of the Old Testament! The life of Christ makes sense because of the prophecies in the Old Testament. The Old Testament is a shadow of the New Testament. The ministry of Jesus would not be understood without the Old Testament. The Holy Laws of God show how Jesus, who is without sin, would be the Savior. The Old Testament is the foundation of the New Testament; without it, the New Testament would have no foundation. The New Testament is a continuation! Major teachings are found in the Old Testament. The New Testament interprets the Old Testament. It is the bread of life and food for the believer.

For us to have the Bible, many things happened. These were not the days of pens and paper! Many people died so that we could have it. Moses' books can be divided as follows—five books of Moses (5), books of history (12), books of poetry (4), major prophets (5), minor prophets (13), four Gospels (4), the book of Acts (1), letters of Paul (14), and letters of other apostles (7), and lastly, the prophetic book of Revelation (1).

Moses wrote the first five books of the Bible while in Midian, and the book of Job is the oldest, believed to have been written before the five books of the Torah. According to the Bible, our world is approximately 6000 years old. The flood occurred around 2348 B.C., and the birth of Jesus was around 4 B.C. The Bible clearly states in Revelation 12 that there was war in heaven, and Satan was cast down to earth to deceive our first parents, Adam and Eve. This is where sin entered the world. Sin is the transgression of God's laws. If we confess and truly repent, God is faithful to forgive us, and we begin a new life.

The battle between evil and good, or Satan and God, continues until that final day when Christ will return and God will wipe away every tear. There will be no more crying, sorrow, or death. Those who have overcome by God's grace, depending on Him, obeying Him, and trusting in Him, will receive the gift of eternal life in heaven (Paradise). This is the greatest gift, far beyond anything the world can offer. Beloved reader, trust in the Lord and choose Him every day in your life. The five essential things for every human being are, first, to know God and follow His way, second, to pray every day, third, to read His Word daily, fourth, to worship in fellowship with others, and fifth, to witness God's great works to others.

The Old Testament was written in Hebrew on long papyrus or woolen scrolls. Later it was translated into Greek, called the Septuagint, because 70 Jewish scholars worked on its translation around 285 A.D., except for a few chapters of Daniel which were written in Chaldean. The New Testament was written in Greek. Later, both Testaments were translated into Latin. This language was old and not spoken by many at that time, except by scholars. In 1380, John Wycliffe translated it into English. Translating the Bible at that time was dangerous because the church authorities prohibited ordinary (lay) people from having the Bible. Martin Luther of Germany, during the Reformation, translated it into German and asked, "Why should the Word of God be confined to dead languages?" Others like Tyndale helped make the Bible accessible to the people. Many faithful people were killed while working day and night to make the Bible available to ordinary people. In those days, people copied the Bible by hand, and when they touched their Bibles, tears would flow from their eyes because they knew they were touching something more precious than anything else in the world. Eventually, the time came for freedom, and Bible societies in England and America began publishing many Bibles (English and American Bible Societies). These societies have also helped translate the Bible into Swahili so that people can read the Word of God. Beloved reader, hurry and get your copy of the Bible. Pray to God, and He will help you get a copy of His Word, for He is the Almighty.

Do you have a copy of the Bible where you are? Hold it, look at it carefully. You are holding something more valuable than money, gold, diamonds, or tanzanite. For heaven and earth, and all things will pass away, but the Word of God is eternal. This is your passport to a better life and your passport to heaven, for if you read it, love it, meditate on it, and live it, you will have eternal life. Eternity is more than a trillion years; it is an endless, never-ending period.

The Bible was the first book to be printed in 1456 AD by Johannes Gutenberg's printing press in Germany. Before that, although people had said that printing and paper-making started thousands of years ago in China, people copied the Bible by hand. Gutenberg's purpose for creating the printing press was to print the German Bible. The Bible is still the best-selling book in the world. The Bible has been translated more than any other book in the world. This book has transformed the lives of many, turning evil people into good. No one has ever said, “I was a thief, and now I am a good person by studying mathematics or chemistry!” Or, “I now know the way to heaven by studying accounting or law.” Besides the fact that all the prophecies in the Bible have come true (hundreds of prophecies), there are many other things that make it the Book of God and unique.

It is only the Word of God that changes our lives and makes us better beings physically, mentally, and morally. Many who have read it say, “I have never seen such beauty and sweetness.” The Bible continues to shine and be more precious than gold every day as you keep reading it. Its sweetness will be extraordinary, and you will never want to stop reading it! Many who had limited ability in school have done well by reading this Word because it improves the mind. Nothing expands the brain like the Word of God. People have learned about the future by reading it and have prepared for events they would never have known without reading God’s Word.

All humans have sinned and fall short of the glory of God, and the wages of sin is death. But God has provided a way through the sacrifice of His Son, Christ. For God so loved the world that He gave His only Son, that whoever believes in Him shall not perish but have eternal life. For the Son of Man did not come to condemn the world, but to save it (John 3:16-17). Beloved reader, we all have hope of living forever in heaven with our Father in heaven. Let us be strong, pray for His help in this journey, and make good friends who do not have the temptations of evil, so that we can win this race.

About 170 years ago in Europe, people began to spread false theories about the origin of humans from worms, frogs, monkeys, and eventually humans. No one ever heard on the radio, “Today we welcome new citizens from the forest of Gombe or Virunga, who have transformed from gorillas or apes to join us!” These are false, evil, and deceptive theories. Evolution is not science; it is a religion because it does not follow the five criteria of science: observation, hypothesis, experiment, data, and conclusion. Darwin, the father of the religion of atheism (evolution), only studied theology, not science, and did not have a degree in science. He studied only a few lessons on plants.

Let us be cautious of people who do not care about the Creator or His creation. We were created by Almighty God with great purposes. But every culture has its own sins, every tribe or society has its own sins! And that is why we all need Jesus. We are not safe at all; there is no one righteous! We have all fallen short and are in need of help! God, in His almighty power, saw no other way to save us except by sending Jesus, and that alone should show us how serious sin is and that it required an urgent and heavy solution.

Some people have a Bible with additional books called the Apocrypha, like Maccabees, Tobit, Judith, and additions to the books of Esther or Daniel. These books are useful for history but are not inspired because they contradict the Canon of Scripture, and the principles of the Word of God are like those of Jewish traditions such as the Talmud. Other books have been lost, like the book of Iddo, Nathan's letter, the letter to Laodicea, 3 Corinthians, and others. These were written by inspired people of God and are mentioned in the Scriptures. What to remember is that the 66 books we have are enough to take us to heaven with our Father. Hallelujah, Maranatha.

The Bible is not advice or opinions but the voice of God. The saying goes, "The Bible says it, I believe it, and that settles it." That means when the Word of God speaks, we believe it, and it settles all our doubts. Read the Word of God, believe it, meditate on it, memorize it, and live it. This is our guide on this journey while we are here on earth.

How do we read it? Many new readers say they don't know where to begin. There are many ways to read it. Some have started with Genesis and got stuck when they reached Leviticus with all the sacrificial rules. Though Leviticus 16 is the core of human redemption in the Old Testament! We advise starting with the Gospels like Mark, Matthew, Luke, and John. Then the Acts of the Apostles, and then go back to Genesis and Exodus and follow that flow. You can read it by taking one person and their life. You can also take notes or make a summary, just as we are doing now, which has opened my eyes in ways I can't fully express. And yet I still have many shortcomings! You can read it by topic. Once you become familiar with it, you can easily start from the beginning to the end like many of us who read daily and move forward, asking for help to understand it.

Even if you read a few verses each day and do a thorough study of them, that's enough, more than reading many chapters and not understanding them. The goal is not just to read but to compare the verses related to what you have read throughout the Bible. Before finishing any topic, it's best to see where that topic is mentioned and how often in the Scriptures. Talk with others about how they read it, but read it with joy and pray before you begin. Don't set yourself a goal to read many pages as if it were a punishment, and then end up not understanding what you're reading.

Reading the Bible takes about 70 or 80 hours. One week has 168 hours, so you can finish reading it in a week! But you need time to reflect and meditate even on just one verse—you'll be amazed at what you find! For example, Daniel 8:14 says, "And he said to me, 'For two thousand three hundred evenings and mornings; then the sanctuary shall be cleansed.'"This can take you months to reflect on and understand, and it relates to hundreds of other verses in the Bible! If you have time, write to us and tell us what you have discovered, and we will tell you what we have discovered! Don't rush or be under pressure or forced to do it without joy! The Bible has a message for every type of person: the elderly, the young, the educated, the ordinary, the rich, the poor, the short, the tall, the black, the white. We hope you will become a follower of the Almighty God and bring many to Him. Do not get caught up in arguments with people, but tell them the scriptures with love (share). You might win an argument or battle, but lose a precious soul or fail the war. You can win the argument but lose the soul.

The Bible is here to guide us in life. Read the Bible with a plan and you will get more benefits. The purpose or needs will direct us further. Do we want comfort, or to enrich our daily reading time? Many Bibles have verses that are similar; follow those. Some have gained benefits by reading one book of the Bible in a month. The tools for reading the Bible are the Bible itself, similar verses, its notes, maps of Bible events, Geography and history (for example, maps during Abraham's time in Mesopotamia, during the Israelites' inheritance of Canaan, during Jesus' ministry, during the letters and journeys of Paul), Bible dictionaries. Know the meaning of words, know the history, know verses that relate to that subject in the Bible. The purpose of reading should be good, i.e., to communicate with God, to hear His voice, not just to gain knowledge, or to bring competition/arguments about culture, names of cities, etc.

Pray for the Holy Spirit for guidance, so He can lead us all into all Truth, read slowly, reflect, and meditate. A person does not live by bread alone, meaning the Word of God is important to eat, chew, swallow, and it will bring benefit to the body. Let's ask ourselves as we read: What is God saying to me here? Let us be obedient and ready to follow it, so that we can be transformed and become like Him. After a while, it will be our close companion, guiding us, and we will be transformed and empowered by God, and He will use us to change the world or turn it upside down, and lead many to follow His Word, bless many people, and one day be in the Kingdom of God. Let's pray for each other, the end is very near, the signs are telling us and we can see them!

THE BIBLE IS A MAP

The Bible speaks, and I believe, and the problem is solved. This book carries the thoughts of God, the condition of mankind, the way of salvation, the fate of sinners, and the joy of the righteous. Its teachings are holy, its principles last forever, its history is true, and its solution is trustworthy. Read it to gain wisdom, believe it to be safe, and test it to become holy.

It is a light to guide you, food to enable you to improve, and comfort that will fill you with joy. It is a map for travelers, a rod for pilgrims, a compass for sailors, a sword for soldiers, and a covenant for Christians. Here, Paradise is restored, Heaven is revealed, and the gates of hell are closed. Christ is the main figure: our goodness, our design, the glory of God, and the beginning and the end, Alpha and Omega. This book must fill the mind, rule the heart, and guide our paths.

Read it slowly, frequently, and with prayer. It is the treasure of wealth, the paradise of glory, and the river of joy. It is given to you in life, will be opened during judgment, and will always be remembered forever. It gives the highest level of responsibility, rewards every good worker, and judges all those who have mishandled the holy things. There is no other book that elevates the mind and increases the ability to think like the Bible.

Believe it to gain wisdom, read it to be safe, test it to become holy. The Bible is not a book to give you information, but a book to change you. It is the voice of God speaking, and it is a voice of supreme authority in Heaven, on Earth, and in all the galaxies. The Lord has exalted His Word above His Name. Heaven and Earth will pass away, but not the Bible. The Bible has overcome every challenge of all times.

Do not be afraid, for I am with you; do not be dismayed, for I am your God; yes, I will strengthen you, yes, I will help you, I will uphold you with the right hand of My righteousness (Isaiah 41:10). Truly, no eye has seen, nor ear heard what God has prepared for us! Let us read His Word so we may know His promises, over 3,500 of them. When I went to Loma Linda University in California to take medical courses, I found huge textbooks at that time in the nineties, some costing $2,000 for just one! I was amazed at how people read them and completed them and took exams.

We do not advise reading quickly, but one to three chapters a day. And if you have a Bible concordance, you can use it, but prayer and revelation from the Lord should be a priority for proper understanding. The Bible should not be read without praying. This is not an ordinary book; it is a book from heaven, and to understand it, we need the Author to help us. Kneel if you can, pray for the ability to understand and apply what you read. Claim the promises you read that day and ask God: “What do You want me to understand in what I have read today? And please help me use it in my daily life, especially today.”

The Bible is a map, a light, and a library. How can one book contain all these things? The Bible is a map because it shows us the safe way, and that if we stay on this path, we are sure to reach Jesus, who is on the undefeated side against Satan, our enemy. Jesus is the way. The Bible is the light of our path, shining brightly on the way that leads to eternity. The enemy tried to extinguish that light, but its light continues to show us the safe way.

Look at your Bible and read it. Don’t spend too much time reading books of humans, especially those who do not love God (unbelievers), it will take away the taste of the Bible. No one learns to recognize counterfeit money by studying fake notes, but by studying the real currency. Many people have spent time learning about Greek gods, Roman gods, and other deities of various cultures. Don’t waste time; spend time reading about the God of Heaven—the God of Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and Joseph, who is our God.

The Bible concerns people, places, and events that happened in the past, present, and even in the future. All its books show us the ongoing struggle between Satan and GOD. Every human chooses which side they want to be on every day. Not choosing is choosing. People, things, and places in the Bible show us this struggle, giving us warnings so that with patience and comfort, we can choose the safe side, the side of God.

The books of the Old Testament were written before Christ was born on earth, and the books of the New Testament were written after Jesus died and resurrected. All the books are important and work together to guide us to know what we should know about God and His plan of salvation. They help us a lot to become like Him. Our choice leads to our destiny!

Why should we read the Bible every day? Give your four reasons! Every reader learns to trust and depend on God, and to know that God does everything to save us from the devil’s tricks to destroy us. Psalms 119:9-11.

There are over 100 reasons to read the Bible, here are just a few!

- ☞ It gives instructions for daily life and protects me – 2 Timothy 3:16,17, Psalms 32:8
- ☞ It teaches me how to pray – Luke 11:1-4
- ☞ It explains how to obtain salvation for every human being – John 3:16
- ☞ It explains how to share the Gospel – Matthew 28:19-20
- ☞ It teaches how to trust in God – Proverbs 3:5-6

- ☞ It shows how God's will is, and renews our minds – Romans 12:1, 2
- ☞ It is full of God's promises and blessings, and therefore, it will bless you! – Deuteronomy 31:8
- ☞ It is the accurate history of humanity and everything on earth – Ephesians 4:31-32, Psalms 78:3-4
- ☞ It teaches us how to forgive – Ephesians 4:31-32
- ☞ Reading the Bible enables us to be sure of what God said. The Bible is our final authority. It is the ultimate truth – John 17:17
- ☞ It asks and answers the big questions: Where did we come from? Why are we here? Where are we going? What does it mean to be a good person? – Psalms 10:1
- ☞ It improves your culture, such as not using foul language, not hurting others, dressing modestly, keeping a clean heart, and avoiding sin – Ecclesiastes 1:9
- ☞ It reveals how God loves us – 1 John 4:7-8
- ☞ It gives us eternal life (in heaven) – John 17:3
- ☞ It helps us overcome and flee from sin and be cleansed from sin – Psalms 110:9,10,11 and John 15:3
- ☞ It relieves my mental stress – 1 Samuel 30:6-8
- ☞ It teaches us to imitate God, who is love – Ephesians 5:1
- ☞ It enables us to receive the desires of our hearts – John 5:39-40
- ☞ It helps us bear fruit – Psalms 1:2-3
- ☞ It gives us courage – Joshua 1:8-9
- ☞ It is our food – Matthew 4:4, John 6:63
- ☞ It makes me merciful and loving toward others – Mark 12:30-31
- ☞ It protects you from false teachings and helps you worship God in Spirit and in Truth – John 4:1
- ☞ It encourages you to use your time wisely – Ephesians 5:15-16
- ☞ God gives you guidance because He is the Way, the Truth, and the Life – Psalms 119:105, John 14:6
- ☞ It helps you avoid temptations, as it is a weapon and protection that keeps you from addiction – Ephesians 6:11
- ☞ It is alive! – John 7:38

- ☞ It gives you freedom – Romans 8:17
- ☞ For healing, refreshing, and sustaining in all aspects – physical, spiritual, mental, social, and economic – 1 Peter 2:24, Matthew 4:4
- ☞ It helps me solve all problems – James 1:5
- ☞ It fills me with joy and peace that surpasses understanding.

Four facts about the Bible:

1. No book is loved by people so much tha they are ready to die for it, like the Bible.

2. No book is hated like this, and many have sought to destroy it.

3. No book is owned by so many people even if they don't read it.

4. No book do people say they believe in, yet they don't know much about it.

5.Which of these groups do you belong to?

The books of the Bible are divided into ten groups:

The Five Books of Moses (Pentateuch): Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy.

Historical Books: Joshua, Judges, Ruth, 1 Samuel, 2 Samuel, 1 Kings, 2 Kings, 1 Chronicles, 2 Chronicles, Ezra, Nehemiah, Esther, and Job (possibly written by Moses).

Poetical Books: Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and Song of Solomon.

Major Prophets: Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and Daniel.

Minor Prophets: Hosea, Joel, Amos, Obadiah, Jonah, Micah, Nahum, Habakkuk, Zephaniah, Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi.

The Gospels: Matthew, Mark, Luke, John.

Acts of the Apostles.

Paul's Epistles: Romans, 1 Corinthians, 2 Corinthians, Galatians, Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, 1 Thessalonians, 2 Thessalonians, 1 Timothy, 2 Timothy, Titus, Philemon, Hebrews.

Other Letters: James, 1 Peter, 2 Peter, 1 John, 2 John, 3 John, Jude.

Prophecy: Revelation, Daniel.

Why did God give us the Bible? The purpose is to know Him, the Creator and our Savior, and to understand His ways. In the beginning, when God created, He spoke directly to Adam and Eve, but after sin, we have been distanced from Him and needed prophets (those who speak on God's behalf). Christianity does not allow people to live as they wish. A believer must submit to God and live according to the Scriptures, or the Word that comes from the mouth of the Lord. A believer must love God with all their heart, soul, strength, and mind, and love their neighbor as themselves. Love is incredibly important, a mystery, and an amazing secret! Cruelty to others or sinning against people or God is sin.

Before the fall in Eden, God spoke face to face with people, but now He uses the Scriptures to speak to us after the fall of man. The Bible is the voice of God, but it is written in human words. It was not dictated. God's people were given the message and had the freedom to write it down. The Gospels are a good example of this. All four Gospels speak of the Messiah, but each has its own focus, personality, theology, and historical background of the writer. The Bible is the Word of God. The word "Bible" is derived from the Greek word for "Library." The Bible is a library of 66 books. Humans were inspired to write it.

The Bible was written over a period of about 1500 years, by around 40 different people. From the Old to the New Testament, there are about 400 years. The Bible has 1189 chapters. It was written in Hebrew and Greek. The Bible contains more than 3500 promises for humanity, let us know them and claim them! 365 times, the Bible says "Do not be afraid!" The Word of God is the final authority on earth and in heaven, and it has a message for every kind of person. Read it, meditate on it, love it, practice it, and proclaim it.

The Bible will give you purpose in life. Never feel insignificant, because you will know your true value as bestowed by your Creator when He made you. You will live a life of purpose and meaning, and ultimately be granted eternal life, that is, everlasting life. It doesn't matter if you grow old because your old age will be filled with hope and joy as you see the things that lie ahead.

The first five books and Job were written by the prophet Moses in 1500 BC, and the last book was written by John around 100 AD. The book we have written, "Give Me the Bible," is a summary of the Bible, starting from Genesis to Revelation, as a daily devotional for 365 days. The Bible mentions approximately 182 women and 1188 men.

The Bible tells the history of humanity from creation by God to the fall and rebellion of humanity in the Garden of Eden, then to the solution. In Revelation 12, we are told that Satan lived in heaven and was the first to rebel. He convinced one-third of the angels to join him, and they were cast down to earth. This marked the beginning of the conflict between God and Satan, or good and evil. This battle is not fought with guns, missiles, or swords, because our battle is not against flesh and blood, and the Messiah told Peter to put away his sword, not to fight. We fight with the Word of God (Ephesians 6). We are currently in this battle. The books of Job, Isaiah 14, and Ezekiel 28 give us glimpses of this battle. There will be a day when this conflict will end.

According to the Bible, the signs of the times in Daniel chapters 2, 7, 8, and 9 are a sufficient prophetic calendar that shows where we are, and everyone should read them. God will come to judge the world and reward those who have done good by His grace, granting them the reward of eternal life, and those who have done evil will face punishment. Everyone should read those chapters in Daniel and understand their meaning today. Genesis 1 & 2 describe creation, Genesis 3 is the fall of humanity, and the rest of the Bible is about the redemption of sin to prevent it from rising again – Nahum 1:9, until we reach Revelation 19, where judgment will be given, and people will receive eternal life, and Revelation 22, where they will live forever with God, face to face, in eternal life.

There will be no sorrow, crying, death, or sickness. You, me, children, youth, mothers, fathers, uncles, aunts, cousins, we are all in this great struggle. Even a child of a few months experiences struggles with self-denial and desiring everything to go their way. All the battles are in the mind and heart, we hear two voices. We must put on the armor of God and stay alert, praying so that we do not fall into the trap of the evil one. Every day, we choose God or Satan (Ephesians 6, 2 Corinthians 10:5). All have sinned and fall short of the glory of God, but God forgives us when we ask for forgiveness with true repentance.

All evils, whether pride, anger, jealousy, hatred, greed, unforgiveness, impure thoughts, despising others, hypocrisy, or the lusts of the eyes and the flesh, should be left behind as time passes. We should bear the fruit of the Spirit, which helps us live a new life by God's grace. Our main prayer is that we may be filled with His Holy Spirit, to love Him with all our souls, strength, minds, and hearts, and to have deep compassion when we see others lost, striving to reach them so that we all may be in Christ and He in us, the True Vine.

The first chapters of Genesis, one to three, are mirrored by Revelation, chapters 3 to 20 (reverse). Satan wanted the image of God or the likeness of God to be lost from humanity and become like an animal or beast. But Jesus came to restore that image, and Satan rejoiced that he had made God descend and suffer. He tried hard from the beginning of His mission to thwart it. But thank God, the mission was successful, and through Him, we are reconciled and counted righteous. Since Eden, God has always tried to reach us so that we may have salvation and restore our relationship with Him until Revelation 19.

The perfection of heaven failed because Satan rebelled in heaven, and the perfection of humanity failed in Eden because we chose to do things our way. Today, we receive God's gift of grace through faith, receiving a new heart, mindset, and mind. This new life is called walking with God, being born again into God's family (believers) and then becoming disciples of Jesus, and ultimately apostles who share the good news.

The Bible has been burned or destroyed many times, starting with the prophet Jeremiah (Jeremiah 36 & 38). People have buried it, and it has resurrected. People have erased its traces and twisted it, but they have not succeeded. Tyndale, John Huss, Stefano, and many others have died for this Word, because some hate the counsel of God's Word and kill or burn the servants. The secret to eternal life is in knowing and obeying the Word of God through His grace – John 17:3, "And this is eternal life, that they may know You, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom You have sent." Eternal life is not living many years, but knowing the Almighty God!

Let us remember that millions of people have died for God's Word to be in our hands today. Read it, believe it, meditate on it, memorize it, love it, and do it. Trust in God, and we will be established. Trust His apostles, and we will succeed. There is no greater joy than the Word of God. Various people wrote the Bible: prophets like Moses, kings like David, fishermen like Peter, farmers like Jeremiah, priests like Samuel, etc. They all did not live together. The Bible is God's holy book because everything it prophesied, like the book of Daniel, chapters 2 and 7, has come true. Archaeological evidence supports the history of this book in a significant way. Above all, this book has transformed the lives of many people.

In Papua New Guinea, when colonizers went there, they laughed at the people reading the Bible and following it. Those people from Papua New Guinea said, "You laugh, but when we did not have this book, we were eating people! You would have been our meat!" No wicked person has changed and said, "I read Chemistry, and it changed my bad behavior." The Word of God is His breath with teachings that correct us so we can align with His path. Never say you know His Word and stop reading it! Christ helped the prophets write what He knew inside and out. He was called the Word, but He read and paid attention to it, saying, "It is written, man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God."

A summary of the Bible in three words is Creation, Fall, and Restoration. Let us meet in heaven by the Tree of Life through His grace one day because we have treasured His Word, and in it is life! John 17.

OLD TESTAMENT

DAY ONE (January 1)

Topic: Creation or Beginning

Genesis 1 and 2
(Genesis – Written by Moses around 1500 BC)

Have you ever wondered where everything in the world came from? Or where your parents came from? Perhaps you answered that they came from your grandparents. And where did your grandparents come from? Eventually, where did the very first ancestors come from? Or, what came first, the chicken or the egg? Maybe you've heard that plants came from seeds, and seeds came from flowers. The cycle continues like this. And what about mountains? Rivers, seas, and oceans—were they always there, or did they have a beginning? From elementary school, we learn science and marvel at how the eye, brain, leg, or computer works. These didn't just happen by chance; there was an engineer who invented and initiated them.

Our world is very old. If we calculate based on the years of people in God's Word, it is estimated to be about 6,000 years old. No one knows for sure the exact day, hour, or date the world was created. However, what's important is that God created the world, the sun, the moon, and everything in it. God existed. God has always existed. He has no beginning or end, just as we humans have a beginning and an end. This is something difficult for the human mind to understand. But God is greater than the laws of science, such as time, space, or matter because He is the One who created them. God's Word creates. When He speaks, things happen instantly! It takes no time at all! He was, He is, and He will continue to be. For a human mind, which has a beginning and an end, this is hard to comprehend. But God is eternal, the First and the Last, the Alpha and the Omega.

The Word of God clearly states that, In the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth. Genesis 1:1. It's an understandable concept. Our ancestors understood this, even if they worshipped other things, they knew they were created by Almighty God. The first chapter of the Bible resembles the one in John 1, which says, In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. Nothing was made without Him.

We are told that, In the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth. And the earth was formless and empty, and darkness was over the surface of the deep. Perhaps the waters were gushing. The Spirit of God was hovering over the waters, and God said, "Let there be light." And there was light. God saw that the light was good, and He separated the light from the darkness. God called the light "day," and the darkness He called "night." And there was evening, and there was morning—the first day. The Lord created the first day with evening and morning, then evening again, 24 hours! Thus, the days that God created began in the evening and ended in the evening. When the Romans ruled the world, they changed the way we measure the day, making it start at midnight and end at midnight.

In the Book of Genesis, the first day of the week was not explicitly mentioned. However, in the Gospels, we are told that Jesus rose on the first day of the week. Therefore, the light was created on the first day of the week, which is Sunday in our Kiswahili calendar. God created by His Word, and things came into being. It didn't take time as it does for us to create something, or to take someone else's material to create something! If we want to make a chair, we need nails and wood. He has all power, strength, and knowledge. By just speaking, things happened, as it was during creation. He created without using anything else. It is said that someone once claimed they could create. They said, “I will take the dust and begin to create man,” but were told, “No, the dust belongs to God, start with your own raw materials!”

With just a word, darkness disappeared, and light appeared, but the sky was not created until the second day. God continued to create, with great plans to make a dwelling place for man, whom He loves. God said, “Let there be a vault between the waters to separate water from water.” God made the vault and separated the water under the vault from the water above it. God called the vault “sky.” On the third day, God separated the waters and dry land appeared, and God called the dry land “earth” and the gathered waters “seas.” God said, “Let the earth produce vegetation, seed-bearing plants and trees on the land that bear fruit with seed in it, according to their various kinds.” And it was so. God saw that it was good. The sky contains the air that all living creatures, plants, and animals breathe.

On the fourth day, God created two great lights: the sun and the moon, and He also created the stars. He said, “Let there be lights in the vault of the sky to separate the day from the night, and let them serve as signs to mark sacred times, and days and years.” These lights were made to give light to the earth. The large light, the sun, became for the day, and the smaller light, the moon, became for the night. The sun is 150 million kilometers away from the earth, but it takes eight minutes for sunlight to reach us. The hydrogen in the sun helps it burn like fire. The sun is 1.3 million times larger than the earth. God created the moon to revolve around the earth in 28 days, and the earth revolves around the sun in 365 days. Many scientists now discover that some of the stars we see are actually other planets, and there are billions of them. Those who have tried to count the stars with the naked eye, on clear nights, have reached about 5,000! Truly, our God is amazing. God wasn’t in a hurry; He could have created everything in one second, but He did not. The earth began to show its magnificent beauty, with the sunset turning orange and the stars appearing at night. God created the world to be everlasting. He created it with wonderful beauty.

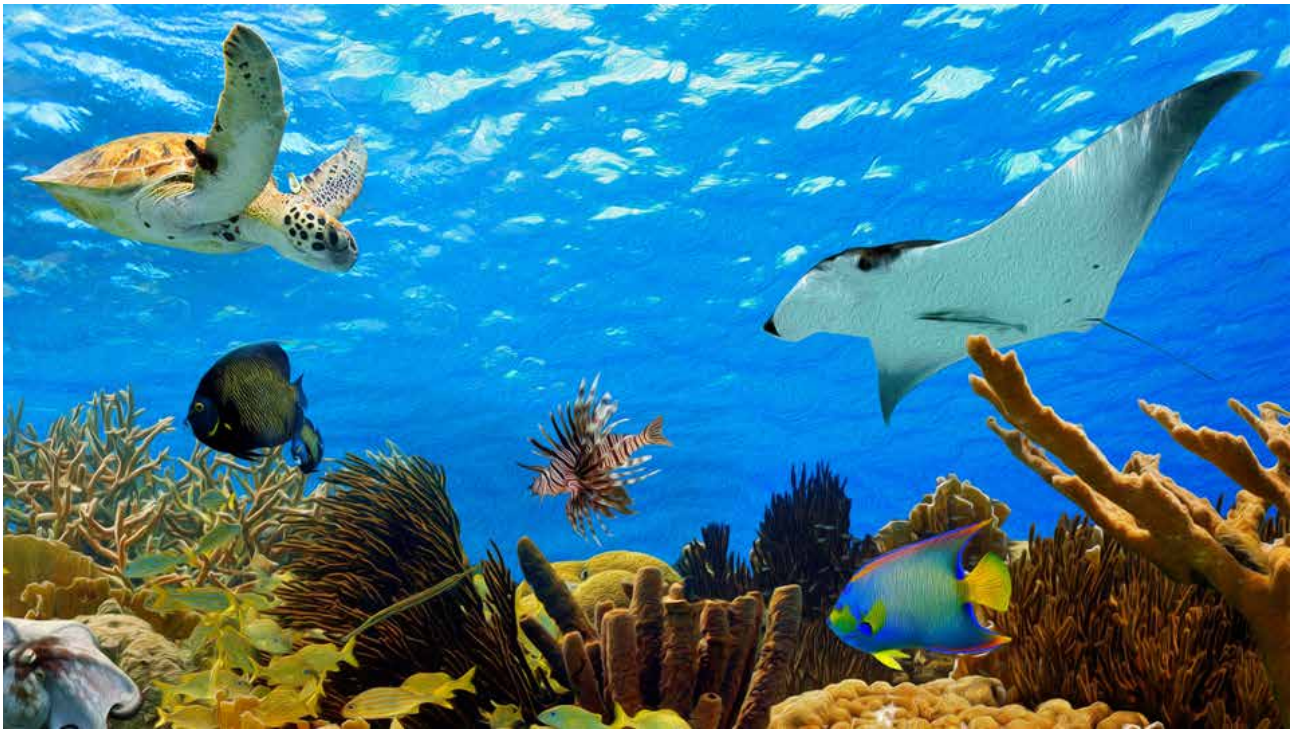
On the fifth day, there was the sound of trees swaying, but no sounds of cats or elephants crying! God said, "Let the waters teem with living creatures, and let birds fly above the earth across the vault of the sky." God created the great creatures of the sea and every living thing with which the water teems, and every winged bird according to its kind. The waters were filled with living creatures, and every bird flew above the earth. God saw that it was good. On the sixth day, God said, "Let the land produce living creatures according to their kinds: the livestock, the creatures that move along the ground, and the wild animals, each according to its kind." And it was so. The fifth and sixth days were marvelous as millions of different animals with various shapes and colors appeared. I've had the opportunity to visit a fish farm and see beautiful fish that I did not want to leave. Perhaps you've seen the colors of birds and butterflies, and even the huge animals that people come from all over the world to see. Starting with the Big Four—elephant, lion, giraffe, and rhino!



Elephants, lions, giraffes, rhinos, buffalo, hyenas, hippopotamuses, crocodiles, and others were created on the sixth day. There are even smaller creatures like mice, and others that are enormous. There are millions of different kinds of insects, not to mention other animals! Birds began to sing and praise their Creator, flying here and there. Gorillas appeared, swinging joyfully in the trees. Truly, our God is amazing. Undoubtedly, the animals looked at each other, marveling at how different their shapes were. Perhaps the giraffe looked at the tortoise and wondered, "What kind of animal is this, walking so slowly?" Animals lived together without fear, it was one community. No one hunted or ate another. Others had large ears, others had big noses or trunks, and some had horns like the rhino. God was happy to see these animals and saw that everything was good.

Picture a procession of animals walking to a certain place. We can draw animals on paper, but we cannot create them. Only God alone has the power to create, and that's why every creature has great value. Do not strike a cat, dog, donkey, or cow without reason because they are God's creations! Even destroying plants or trees without cause is not good. It is good stewardship to take care of the things we've been given by the Lord. I encourage you to read God's Word every day; it will help you develop good character and also answer all the questions you have in your heart, making you a good steward. It is hard to describe in human words the beauty of creation—its flavors, sounds, smells, sensations, etc.

🎁Everything you learn from your parents, teachers, and personal reading helps you become a better person. Decide today to study God's Word daily. During family worship, let the children participate. Let everyone bring their Bibles and each person read one or two verses. Then, sing a familiar hymn or song, followed by prayer. For this, Christ has set an example. The Lord's Prayer was not meant to be recited as a form or tradition, but as an example of how our prayers should be—simple, earnest, and deep. In a simple prayer, tell the Lord your needs and express gratitude for His mercy. By doing so, you welcome Jesus as a guest in your home and heart. In a family, long prayers about distant things should not exist. They make prayer time tiresome when it should be a delightful and blessed time. Make the season pleasant and enjoyable.

🎁 Questions: What was there before God created the world, the sun, or the stars? What was created on the third and fourth days? What did God create on the fifth and sixth days? Do the things that God created on the first to sixth days still exist today? List them according to the days they were created. What lesson do you learn from this?

God bless you, Child and Youth of Jesus 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Memory Verse: Genesis 2:4

[4] a. This is the account of the heavens and the earth when they were created.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for creating for us a beautiful place to live in. Help us to take good care of our environment. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Look outside at the environment surrounding you and draw some of the plants and animals you see. Mention the trees you know, the flowers you know, the birds you know, the animals you know, the insects you know, etc.

DAY TWO (January 2)

Before the sixth day was over, the Lord created man in His image. In His image, God created them, male and female He created them. God said, "Let us make man in our image, to rule over the fish of the sea, the birds of the sky, and the animals, and over all the creatures that move on the ground." (Genesis 1:27) God blessed them and said, "Be fruitful and increase in number; fill the earth and subdue it. Rule over the fish of the sea and the birds of the sky, and over every living thing that moves on the earth." This was the first commandment written in the Bible! God gave mankind every plant that yields seed and every tree that bears fruit with seed in it as food for them.

After the flood, things changed. All animals were in harmony, and none hunted, trapped, or preyed on another. In the new heaven and the new earth, the situation will return to how it was at first. No one will die! In other words, all creatures will revert to the diet mentioned in Genesis 1:29. No creature will kill another to eat. We will have beautiful food! From today, plan your strategy for heaven! I am planning too! Adam was given work to do even before he was given a wife. Work is very important!

After God created everything, He then created mankind. During the first five days, God was preparing gifts for man, his sustenance, and his joy. God prepared our resources before He created us. He gave mankind precious gifts like gold, silver, and iron. The gift of food, the gift of animals, and beautiful things to enjoy while walking in the Garden of Eden. God gave man amazing gifts. Some people think that God doesn't like adornments made of precious stones! Not at all! God is the Creator of beauty and all good things! The problem is that we humans use the things we've been given for the purpose of showing off or pride, to display them for our glory instead of glorifying the Creator.

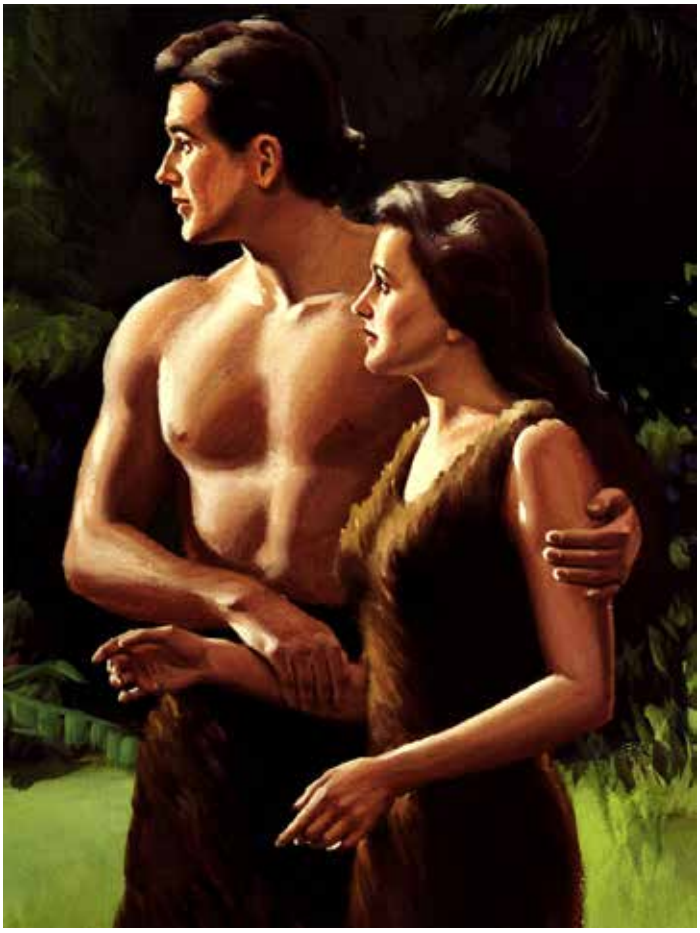
🎁In the past, there was no need for someone to build a fence, as humans did not need to create barriers to keep others out. There were no thorns, and there was no need for a house.

🎁The Garden of Eden was more beautiful than words can describe, and there was no harm in it. Eden means pleasure. There was no rain because dew provided enough water for the plants. There was no need for beds, as the surroundings that God placed man in surpassed the beauty of anything humans can make. Man lay in the garden amidst flowers. When he wanted to eat, he picked fruit and placed it on leaves as plates and ate. He didn't have to wash dishes or use soap afterward because there were no germs or viruses. Perhaps all the food simply melted into nourishment in his body. Maybe God thought, "Without a doubt, man will enjoy these wonderful dwellings I have created for him, and he will love me as I love him, and we will have pleasant fellowship."



🎁When creating, God made everything by speaking. When He spoke, things came into existence. But when He created man, the Bible says He took the dust and shaped it into man. He created the head, face, and body. He made man capable of seeing, hearing, tasting, feeling, and smelling—having a higher will than all other creatures. Then God breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul. Without the breath of life, he would just be a body without life, but after God breathed into him, he became a living being. So, man is made of dust combined with God's breath of life.

Man has done many things, but he cannot create. Only God alone is the Creator. He placed the tree of life in the middle of the Garden of Eden and the tree of knowledge of good and evil. He also placed four rivers to water the garden, called Pishon, Gihon, Tigris, and Euphrates. God gave Adam and Eve the job of cultivating the garden and keeping it. He told them they could eat the fruit from any tree except the tree of knowledge of good and evil. If they ate from it, they would surely die.

God created Adam first, but He saw that there was no one suitable to help him. This left Adam lonely and made him appreciate Eve when she was created. Indeed, all creatures were friends, and when called, they likely responded, but they couldn't speak. Perhaps they would shake their tails or fly. Then God said, "It is not good God brought animals to Adam to see and give them names. Adam gave names to all the domestic animals. Adam felt a deep sleep coming on. The hand with all power touched him and took one of Adam's ribs, and everything was restored without a wound.

When Adam woke up, he saw another being resembling him and said, "This is bone of my bones and flesh of my flesh. She shall be called woman, for she was taken out of man." Therefore, a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and they shall become one flesh. What God has joined together, let not man separate. Adam and Eve were given a special garment; they were clothed in God's glory. Our human images cannot show the true form because people have often drawn them without clothes, which is not the truth! But who can draw the garment of God's glory? God created Eve to be a helper, not taking a piece of the head to show she should rule over her husband, nor a piece of the foot to show she should be a servant to her husband.

According to the Scriptures, the husband is the one given authority over the home, and the wife is the helper. God created one man and one woman—Adam and Eve, not Adam, Eve, and Neema (meaning "peers" or others). Not Adam and Yusufu (meaning "homosexuality"). This shows that it is not God's plan for a man to have more than one partner or to have same-sex marriages. He blessed them with the blessing of marriage, showing that marriage is between a man and a woman, not a woman and a woman or a man and a man. The husband and wife complete the image of God. They are the ones who could fulfill the first command, which said, "Be fruitful and multiply." Every creature was full of joy and peace. No creature wanted to devour another; each one praised God and brought joy to the other. As a parent, God had created many things to bring joy to His creatures. Job 38:7 says that after creation, the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy.

Mankind was meant to bear the image of God, both outwardly and in character. Christ alone is the 'express image' (Hebrews 1:3) of the Father; however, mankind was created in the image of God. His nature was one of harmony with God's will. His mind had the ability to understand the things of the Lord. His will was pure, and his desires and passions were under the control of the mind. He was holy, joyful, and bore the image of God in perfect obedience to all His will. Man was created perfect and without guilt, given the choice to choose; he was not a robot or a machine forced to do everything!

The woman is to be like the church, and the man like Christ .A man is commanded by God to love his wife, and the wife is commanded to obey her husband. This is God's command, and there is no debate about it. The husband must do everything necessary to make his marriage thrive, and the wife must do everything necessary to make her marriage thrive. This will make our homes like small heavens on earth. Everyone in marriage must learn how to live in marriage and in family life! We are not born knowing what to do. Research among Baptists in America has shown that 50% of marriages end in divorce, but those who pray together, with sincere and diligent prayers (not fake), have only one divorce in 1,023 marriages!

🎁 Parents have brought children into a world where they had no voice or choice regarding their existence. You have taken on great responsibility for their future happiness and eternal well-being. The responsibility is on you, whether you feel this or not, to teach and raise these children for GOD, to care for them diligently with jealousy the moment the crafty enemy shows up and takes his first step, and then be ready to raise your standard against him. Build a fortress of prayer and faith over your children, and strive to stay vigilant in it. You are not safe at all from the attacks of Satan.

🎁Questions:

Why did God create man?

What was the name of the first man?

What was the name of the first woman?

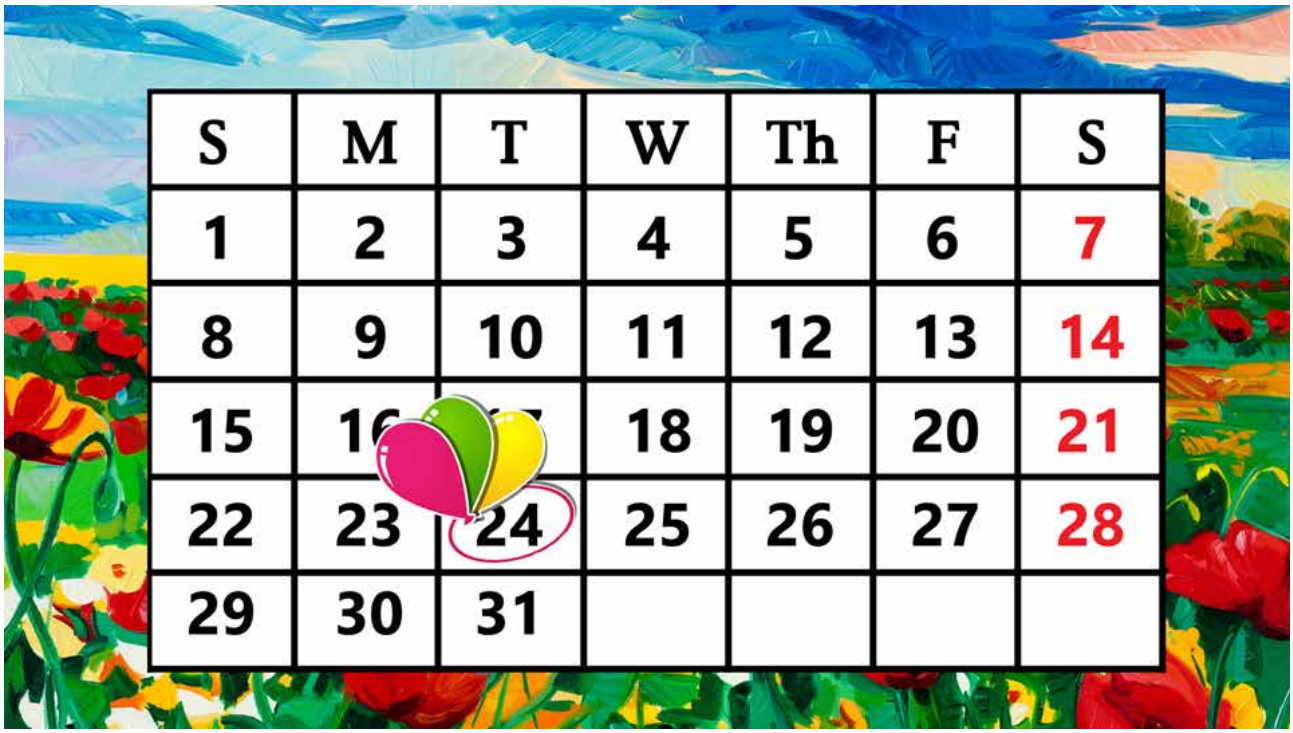
What was the name of the garden they lived in?

List ten things that make a marriage great.

God bless you abundantly, child and youth of Jesus 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦.

Memory Verse: Genesis 2:7

[7] The LORD God formed man from the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living being.



Prayer: Thank You Lord for the breath of life. Thank You for creating us in Your image. Help us today to resemble You. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: List all the parts of the body you know together with their functions.

DAY 3 (January 3)

Lesson: The Seventh Day and Rest for Man

(Genesis 2)

Parents often think about how to bring joy and peace to their children. God established rest for humans to give them joy and peace. On the seventh day, God ceased His work and rested. In Hebrew, this is called Sabbath, which means a day of rest. We get 365 days in a year from the Earth orbiting the Sun, and 28 days from the Moon orbiting the Earth. However, seven days make a week, meaning one week consists of seven days. Six days are for work, and the seventh day is for rest. The seventh day is a reminder of creation, that we are creatures and have a Creator. This helps us avoid the theory of evolution where creatures supposedly evolved from simple organisms into complex systems. On this seventh day, God rested, blessed it, and sanctified it. He would later tell Adam and Eve about this day, calling it holy (set apart).

This day was given to be a day of rest and communication with God. God does not grow tired, but it is said He rested! Adam and Eve were not tired since they had not worked yet, but He gave them this day to formally communicate with Him. He took time to speak to them. They talked with God face to face! They did not only observe the Sabbath but celebrated it. They might have discussed creation, perhaps even the science of how crocodiles breathe or how bees make honey. They learned directly from their Creator. God said He made the Sabbath for man. In the Garden of Eden, God gave Adam and Eve work to do, marriage, and rest on the seventh day, the Sabbath. Even today, after 6,000 years, people are blessed by keeping the holy Sabbath. Everything created in the six days—light, the sky, plants, stars, the sun, moon, animals, and humans—still exists. Likewise, the Sabbath still exists; God did not remove it.

When God brought the Israelites out of slavery in Egypt, He gave them the Ten Commandments, reminding them about the Sabbath in the Fourth Commandment, which says, “Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy. Six days you shall labor and do all your work, but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord your God. On it, you shall not do any work.” This commandment is unique in that it says, “Remember.” God knew that many would be so busy that they might forget the day meant for communication with Him. The Sabbath is a sign of the covenant between God and humanity. We are taught to observe the Sabbath as instructed in Isaiah 58, meaning to refrain from our pleasures and help those in need. God has given us six days to work and handle our affairs. This means we should not be lazy but diligent in our work during those six days. When Christ came to Earth, He also observed the Sabbath—Luke 4:16. Do not continue with your usual daily activities. God has given you six days, but the seventh is His, dedicated to worship and communication with Him. Even in heaven, people will celebrate this day (Isaiah 66).

God created large trees, and animals were created at the age of an adult. Adam and his wife were also created as adults. The garden was beautiful, and they walked in it, enjoying it and speaking with their Creator on the seventh day. I think they remembered their lives before the fall. It was a day to rejoice in creation. God did not build them a palace, even though Adam was the king of the Earth, and his wife was the queen. He gave them a garden, not an apartment or an electric-powered house. The walls of their house were beautiful trees, and the carpets were lovely grass. There was no need to protect themselves from falling objects, thieves, or rain. They slept outside, enjoying the sweet songs of birds. They didn't need plates to hold fruit! It was pure joy. There was no need to cook or run a kitchen factory. I eagerly await this in heaven! I know they did not eat out of greed or all day long; they set aside specific times to eat. They talked together. Perhaps Eve said, "Adam, look at this beautiful flower." Adam might have replied, "Eve, look at the lion." Perhaps they visited the two trees in the middle of the garden: the tree of life and the tree of knowledge of good and evil.

God had instructed them that they could eat from all the trees in the garden, except for the fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, and they should not touch it, lest they die. Die? Surely they wondered what that meant because they had never seen anyone die. Perhaps they wondered why God had created that tree. They continued walking and enjoying creation. God had made man in His image, and the Sabbath was for communion with Him. As the sun set, they rejoiced—creation was complete, and God had fulfilled His goal of love. Even today, set aside that day for the Lord to have communion with Him, leaving aside your usual daily tasks, for these do not end, especially in today's world! Whether cooking, cleaning shoes, sewing buttons, etc., the person wears out. Improve and restore your health on this one day of the week.

The Sabbath would have been kept as God intended after creation and in the Scriptures, such as Isaiah 58. The day would not have been forgotten by anyone, for everyone would have remembered it as a special day of relationship with God, the Creator who made them. It was a celebration of God's creation. Many have said it is for the Jews, but this is not true because the Sabbath was established 2,300 years before the Jews existed. The first Jews were the grandchildren of Abraham. The enemy does not want us to remember that we are creatures created by God. He prefers us to forget, and for many years, he has caused confusion to make people forget the Sabbath. The Sabbath is a sign between us and God, reminding us that He is the One who sanctifies us and that He is the Lord and our Creator. God later wrote His Commandments on stone, not sand. The Ten Commandments were written by His own hand, and it says, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." He knew humans would forget.

Let parents seek God for guidance in their work. When they kneel before Him, they will gain true understanding of their primary responsibility, and there they can hand over their children to the One who never errs in advice and teaching.

Questions: Why did God create a day of rest? Which day of the week was it? What did God do on that day? How do you prepare to meet your Creator on this day? Why doesn't Satan want us to remember the Sabbath? How will you know for sure which day of the week it is? Can you say you were born on Sunday when it was actually Saturday? God gave four gifts during creation; what were they?

May God greatly bless you, child, and youth of Jesus.

Gift of the Morning to Children and Youth.

Memory Verse: Genesis 2:3

[3] God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it, because on it He rested from all His work which He had created and made.

Prayer: Thank You for the Sabbath, Lord. On this day we rejoice to rest and to fellowship with others in worship. Help us to do good things today. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

DAY 4 (January 4)

LESSON: The Fall of Man – Sin Entering the World

(Genesis 3)

Genesis chapters 1 and 2 describe the creation. Genesis 3 tells of the fall, and the remaining part of the Bible talks about restoration after the fall. As a loving Father above all, surely God had clearly explained to them about obedience, eternal life, rebellion, and death. His commandments are incredibly important, especially to us! You might not like someone who breaks God's commandments. They might kill people, hit you, lie to you, and the list of evils can go on! But God gave man a choice, and this helps man mature well, to have genuine love, not to be like a robot. When a person succeeds by choosing well, they can have a very close relationship with God, as they are free to make their own choices.

Certainly, the days that Adam and his wife lived in the Garden of Eden were full of great joy. The whole kingdom was theirs. They walked like a king and queen, owning everything! They had no problems or worries. There was no sorrow, crying, pain, or death. Picture a day in your mind without toothaches, quarrels, hunger, death, or sickness. Their life was of unparalleled quality. Tending to the garden didn't tire them out, but brought joy and physical exercise. There were no thorns or weeds to weed out. But disobedience ruined all of that in just one day.

One day, while Adam and Eve were busy in the garden, Eve wanted to check out the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. This amazing tree was in the garden. She started questioning why God gave them that command. What does knowing good and evil really mean? Why couldn't they eat from it? God had given them everything else, except for that specific tree, and His instructions were clear. They were allowed to eat from the fruits of millions of trees! These trees could be compared to tithes or anything dedicated to the LORD. Things dedicated to the LORD must not be used for anything other than what He has ordered or commanded.

Looking closely, this temptation could have been avoided, because there were millions of other trees they could visit without any trouble. It seems that when Satan was thrown out of heaven, he was only allowed to walk around this tree in the garden! This was God's mercy. And even if man had chosen to go there, he shouldn't have stayed and answered questions from someone he didn't know well or who had doubts about him. Moreover, even if he spoke with Satan, he had the ability to refuse the fruit. So, even today we ask ourselves: What evils can we avoid by having wisdom and praying to God to help us avoid such temptations?

So, as Eve turned to walk, she was surprised to see that a creature was speaking to her. All creatures, except for humans, didn't speak. She looked and saw a serpent with an enticing voice and a display of friendliness that Westerners call "frenemy." Instead of running away, she stood there, more curious. Little did she know, it was Satan deceiving the whole world. He was first known as Lucifer, the angel of light, but was cast out of heaven (Revelation 12), filled with hatred and anger, wanting to get revenge by ruining the joy of God's children. Eve didn't know this, otherwise, she wouldn't have fallen into the trap, but she had the choice to believe God's Word or do her own thing.

The serpent asked Eve, "Did God really say you can't eat from any tree in the garden?" The woman began to argue with the serpent without caution. She said, “We may eat the fruit of the trees in the garden, but of the fruit of the tree which is in the middle of the garden, God has said, ‘You shall not eat it, nor shall you touch it, lest you die.’” The serpent answered, “You will not surely die, for God knows that in the day you eat of it, your eyes will be opened, and you will be like God, knowing good and evil.” Eve saw that the tree was good for food, and though she had never eaten its fruit before, her eyes were deceived, but not just her eyes—she chose to disobey God. She saw that she could do whatever she wanted without obeying the Creator and the loving God who had given them everything. She ate the fruit and then gave it to her husband Adam, who also ate it. Their eyes were both opened, and they realized they were naked. They ran and hid themselves, sewing fig leaves together to cover their nakedness. Then they heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool of the day.

God called to Adam and said, “Where are you?” And today, He calls us where we hide; it is He who seeks us, not we who seek Him! Adam answered, “I heard Your voice in the garden, and I was afraid because I was naked, and I hid myself.” God asked him, “Who told you that you were naked? Have you eaten from the tree of which I commanded you that you should not eat?” Adam blamed God and his wife, saying, “The woman whom You gave to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I ate.” When God asked the woman what she had done, she blamed the serpent, saying, “The serpent deceived me, and I ate.” It seems that Adam sinned knowingly. Perhaps he loved his wife more than God and lacked faith in realizing that God could give him another helper or remove the evil his wife had done. Sin is rebellion against the law. Adam and Eve rebelled against God’s law. Adam, who before had no fear but loved God, speaking to Him face to face, began to fear from that day onward. Their relationship with God was wounded. Their relationship as husband and wife was also damaged, and many marriages today face challenges because of this, but we must return to God to heal our families. God had warned them about the wicked enemy, the deceiver, who had been cast out of heaven, but they chose not to listen to the voice of their Creator.

Thus, the war that began in heaven has come down to earth. After coming here, Satan could no longer reside in heaven, as he was cast down here. But he is here tormenting or disturbing people in various ways. It is possible that he went on to disturb the inhabitants of every planet with living creatures, and they overcame him. We are told that the shortest war on record took place in Zanzibar, lasting just 38 minutes in 1896 between Britain and the Sultan of Oman. The Sultan of Oman surrendered, and the British took control of the island. But the longest war of all time has been between Satan and God, which has continued for about 6,000 years. You and I, along with every human being, are involved. This war is very close to ending. We are advised to put on the seven pieces of armor in Ephesians 6 to win this battle. Please read the Holy Scriptures, and if you can find a book called “The Great Controversy between God and Satan,” read it to help you win this battle, with God’s help.

Isn’t it a tragic disaster that despite everything we have gone through under Satan’s influence, people still remain in his bondage? But there is a need for us to tell them this issue. This means preaching the gospel. Every Christian is a messenger of God, blessed to hear this good news. Let us do this work quickly, as it deserves. Satan is a liar. Through his deceit, humanity was plunged into suffering and pain. God has been very merciful to us, giving us a second chance to choose life. God requires our obedience and surrender to Him; He doesn’t need our opinions! If He says that the tithe is ten percent, or that the Sabbath is to be observed, then that is what He means! If we consider the opinions of everyone, how do you think our lives would be? For God so loved the world that He gave His only Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish but have everlasting life. For God did not send His Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through Him might be saved. Through sincere and diligent prayers, parents should protect their children. They should pray with complete faith that GOD will be with them, and that His holy angels will protect them and their children from the wicked forces of Satan.

Questions: How many trees were there in the garden? What was the name of the tree they were forbidden to eat from? How was the serpent cunning and how did it deceive Eve? How did Adam know he was naked? What would have happened if they had not listened to the serpent? How do you think Adam and Eve felt? How do you think God felt? Why should humans wear proper clothing today? What does this lesson teach us about obedience today?

Memory Verse: Genesis 3:23

[23] Therefore the LORD God sent him forth from the Garden of Eden to till the ground from which he was taken.

Prayer: Holy Father, thank You for putting enmity between us and Satan. Help us to resist him so that he may flee. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Draw a picture of Adam and Eve inside the Garden of Eden. Then draw Eve speaking with the serpent and later eating the fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil.

DAY 5 (January 5)

LESSON: Satan Falls From Heaven

(Revelation 12, Ezekiel 28, Isaiah 14, John 3:14-20, and Job 1).

The Word of God tells us that Satan was an angel in heaven, his name was Lucifer before sin, or the morning star, the son of the morning. Lucifer was the originator of sin.His names changed to Iblis, the Accuser of the brethren, the Serpent, and others which you may have heard of. The book of Ezekiel compares Satan to the King of Tyre. He was in the Garden of Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was his covering: gold, diamond, sapphire, beryl, and others. The work of his timbrels and pipes was within him, and in the day he was created, they were prepared. He was the anointed cherub that covered. God placed him on the holy mountain of God. Satan appeared perfect in his ways from the day he was created until iniquity was found in him. He was filled with violence and sinned, and because of this, God cast him out with force from heaven and threw him down. His glory was humbled, and the sound of his harps was brought low.

Satan's heart was lifted up with pride because of his beauty; he said, "I will ascend to heaven, I will exalt my throne above the stars of God, I will sit on the mount of assembly, on the heights of the north. I will ascend above the heights of the clouds; I will make myself like the Most High." He wanted to be like Him Who is above, that is, God, and wanted to be worshiped, with creatures following his commands. But he was brought down. The beauty of appearance should not build pride within us, lest we sin. It also seems that he was a great singer, and all of this caused him to become proud, disregarding God's commandments and rebelling in heaven. May God help us so that when we have talents, they do not bring pride but instead, we thank God with humility, giving Him glory because He is the giver of everything. Even in adornment, we should be cautious. All precious stones were created by God for humans. But man has taken these stones and adorned himself with them to show off or bring pride. This enemy is now like a roaring lion seeking people to devour.

The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life. As humans, sin has entered into us all through our ancestors. Adam and Eve kept asking themselves the meaning of God's words: "I will put enmity between you and the woman, and between your offspring and hers; he will crush your head, and you will strike his heel." They did not know that these words were a blessing so that they would not love Satan too much and be taken directly. God gave them hope that one day they would find a redeemer. They perhaps thought their firstborn (the woman's offspring) would save them from this predicament. When God said the offspring of the woman in Eden, He meant Immanuel, or God with us, or that Christ would come to save. For God so loved the world that He gave His one and only Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish but have eternal life. For God did not send His Son into the world to condemn the world, but to save the world through Him. Wherever the world is, place your name. Even if it were just you, God would come to save you. God is love; He loves people. God did not want to discourage them by telling them it would take thousands of years.

Many people today play with Satan as Eve did. For example: by reading books on witchcraft like Harry Potter or Wicca. Others believe that Satan does not exist. If you do not know your enemy, you have lost the battle. Satan exists; the Word of God makes this clear. Some nations have days to celebrate witches, thinking it is a game, that there are good and bad witches. This is a mistake. Satan is a creature created as an angel of light, but he rebelled and has no good. He is now waiting for his punishment on the last day, but he wants to deceive humans so that they perish with him. The punishment of Hell was not meant for humans but for Satan and his angels. Let us pray to God to give us strength to escape the snares of Satan and find Paradise, that is, to go to heaven.

The important thing to understand is that we are in a fierce battle between good and evil or Satan and God. We ask ourselves, why don't we see missiles being thrown or guns firing? Ah! These battles are in the mind! Two voices are heard every minute, choose this or that. The voice of the angel of God and the voice of the angel of Satan. The Spirit of God speaks to our conscience every minute. So what should we do? Read Ephesians 6 carefully. It tells us to put on the armor of God to stand against the schemes of Satan and his armies, for our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the powers of this dark world, and against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly realms. We should fasten the belt of truth around our waist, put on the breastplate of righteousness, wear the shoes of the readiness of the gospel of peace, take the shield of faith, the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God, praying at all times with all prayer and supplication. We should meditate on God's Word day and night as Jesus overcame temptations while on earth. Read more in Matthew 4.

The book of Job gives us a picture that in the past Satan was allowed to walk in heaven representing the world, "From roaming throughout the earth, going back and forth on it." This book also tells us that bad things happen to good people. Perhaps these visits stopped when Jesus overcame and became our representative! You can look more into the internet about Theodicy of Love by John Peckham about the goodness of God, and why He allows people to continue suffering. In short, God also suffers as His children continue to do evil to each other, and that our enemy Satan wants to hurt God through His children. Therefore, all believers have been made a spectacle to the world, to angels and men. God wants to use us, and Satan wants to use us. Satan forces by power, but God gives choice.

Parents, are you working tirelessly and patiently for the sake of your children? The God of heaven sees your care, your hard work, your watchfulness at all times. He hears your prayers. Teach your children with patience and gentleness for the Lord. All heaven is pleased with your work. The angels of light will join you as you strive to guide your children to heaven. God will join you, crowning your efforts with success. Christ delights in honoring the Christian family because such a family is a reflection of the family in heaven.

Questions: Where is Satan now? Who was the first sinner? Name six names of Satan that you know. How many angels fell with Satan when he was cast down from heaven? What does the book of Job help us understand?

God Bless You, Child and Young One of Jesus

Memory Verse: Luke 10:18

[18] He said to them, "I saw Satan fall like lightning from heaven."

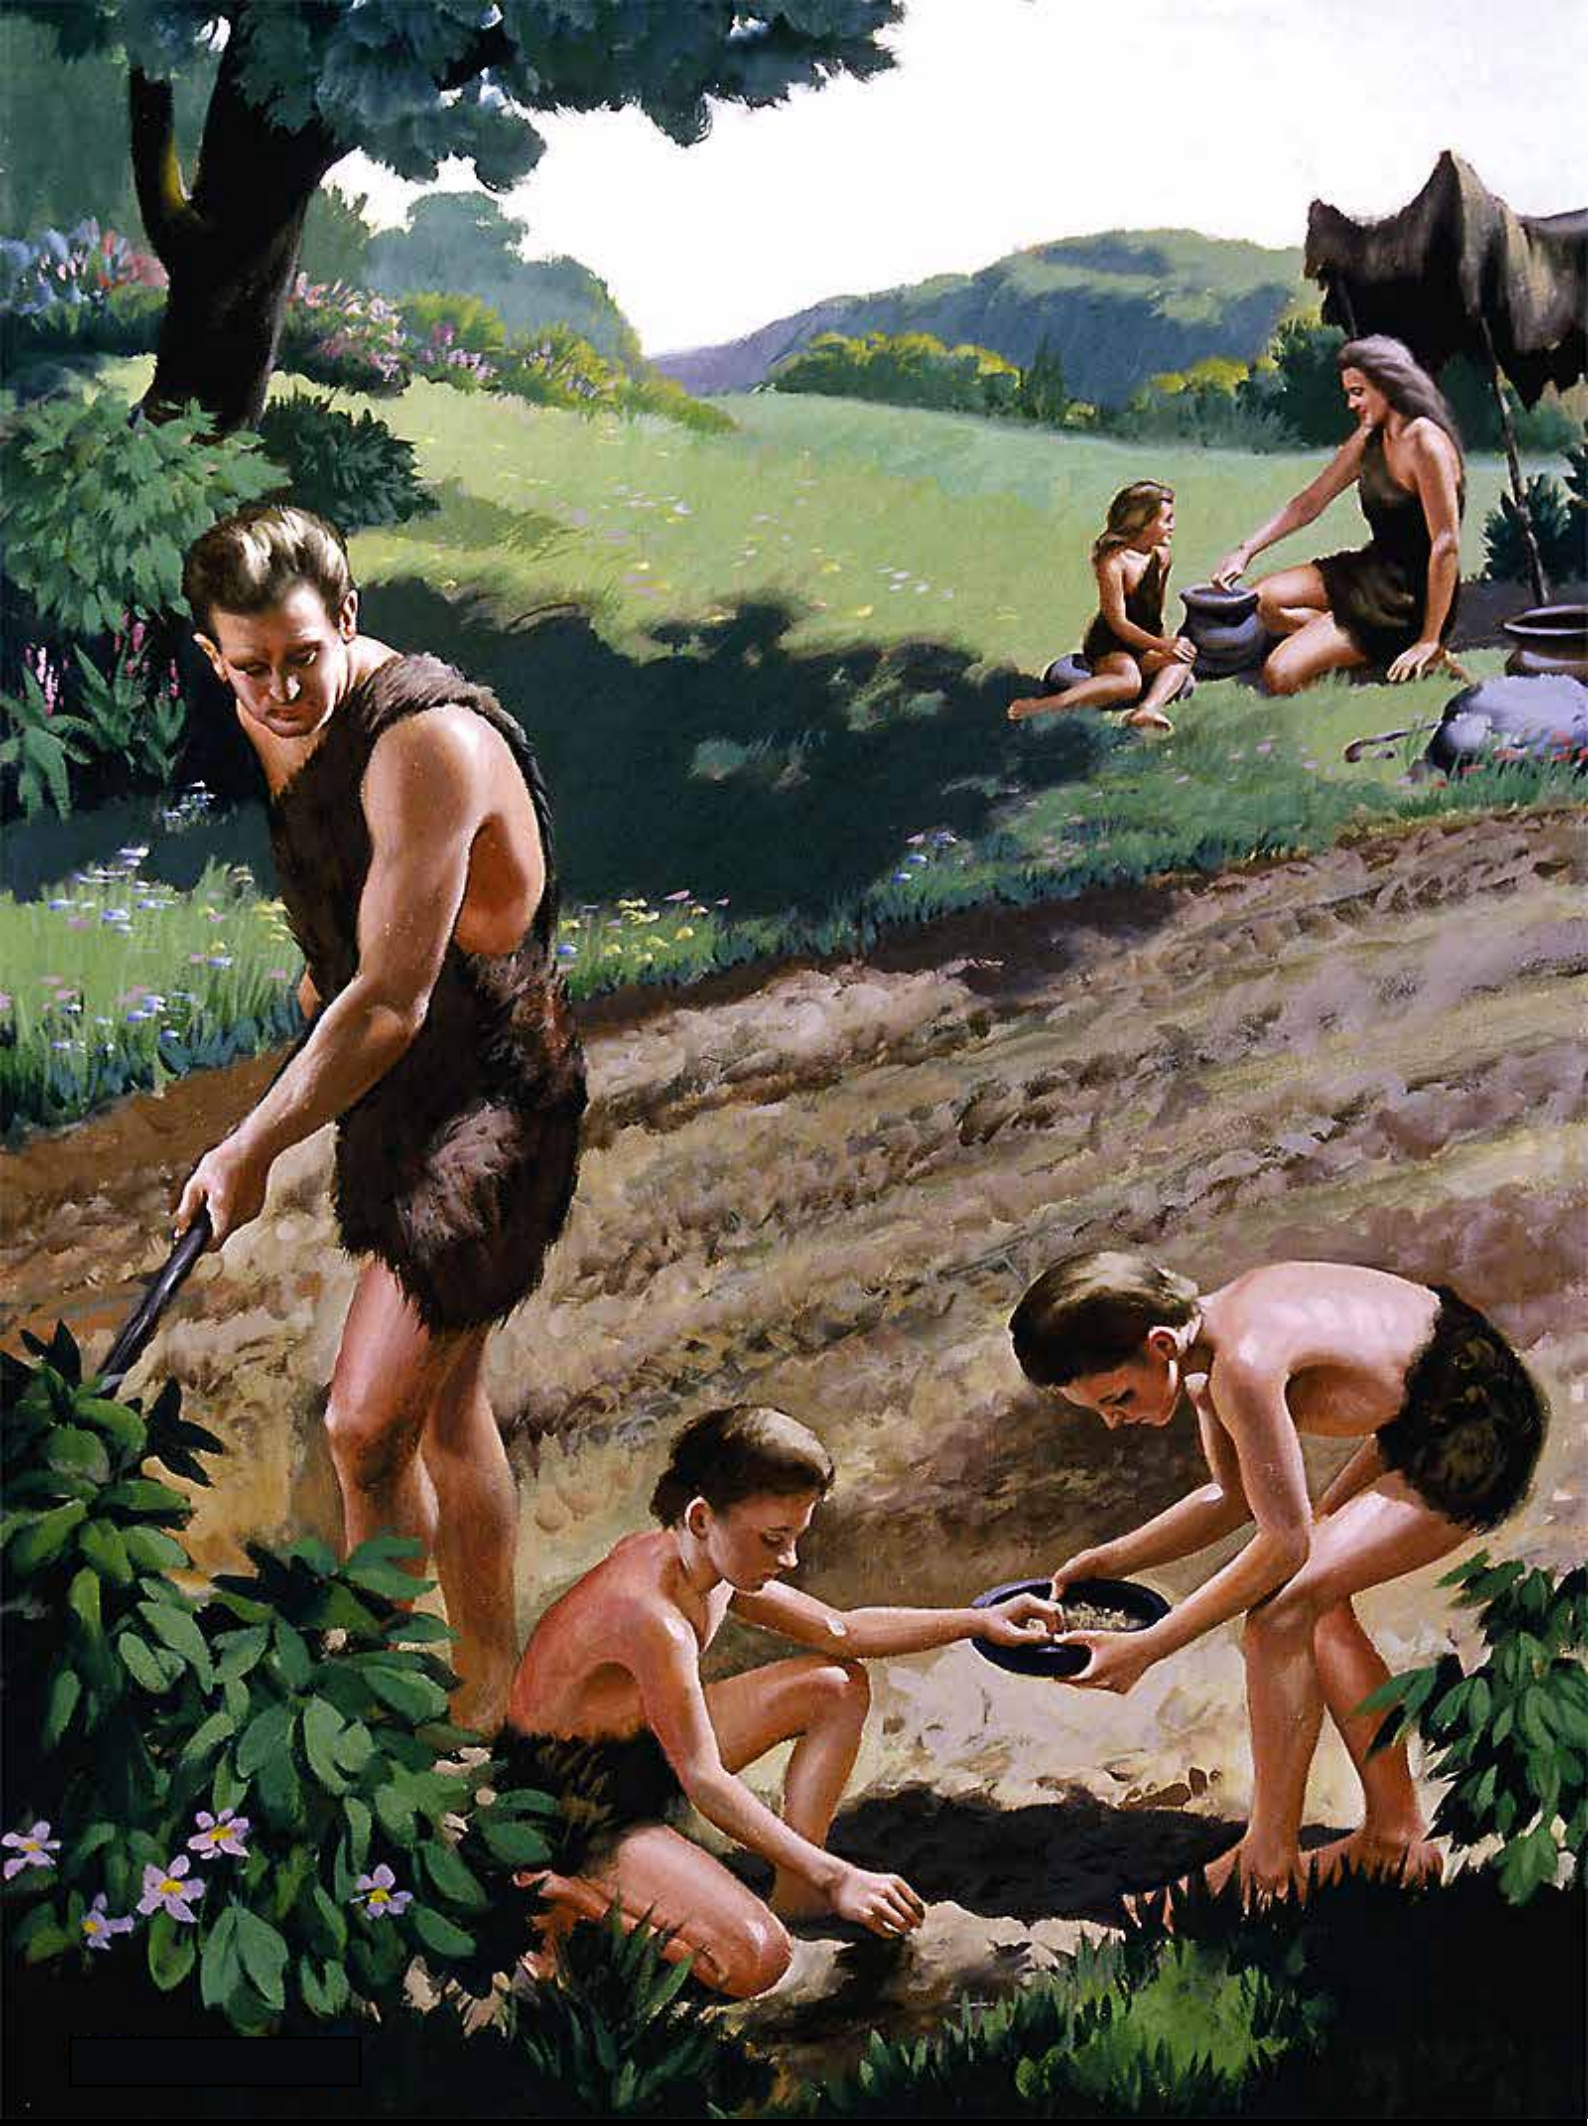
Prayer: Father, keep us from the deception of Lucifer. Create in us clean hearts, forgive our sins, and help us not to be proud. In the Name of Jesus Christ.

Activity: Discuss sins that can separate you from God, then pray and tell God to help you completely turn away from sin and bad deeds.

Day 6 (January 6)

LESSON: The consequences of rebellion

(Genesis 3)



Adam and his wife failed the test or trial. They sinned, and just like us today, we are tested every day and can either fall into sin or overcome it. We must pray to God every day to help us overcome. And when we sin, we should ask for forgiveness and, with true repentance, make amends. We must learn to adopt God's character. The enemy, Satan, comes with various temptations through hearing, acting, speaking, and thinking. It could be pride, evil desires, despair, hypocrisy, hatred, jealousy, being worldly and loving pleasures, or being an atheist who says there is no God. Was God cruel to Adam and Eve? No! Far from it. He gave them the choice to follow the law and live in peace and joy, or to rebel and live in sorrow. Can you discuss with your parents what problems arise in a lawless country? What would happen if you don't obey natural laws?

God gave them garments made of lambskin, instead of the fig leaves that only partially covered their nakedness. Perhaps this was the first sacrifice, to clothe them in God's righteousness. This also shows that it's not proper to wear clothes that are insufficient in covering, because God gave us clothes to cover ourselves properly—to shield against shame, cold, and heat. Do not be deceived by wearing half-naked clothes like fig leaves, saying they are in fashion. If God wanted us to dress like that, He wouldn't have made Adam and Eve garments of respect to cover their nakedness. Then the Lord God said to the serpent, "Because you have done this, you are cursed more than all the livestock, and more than all the beasts of the field; on your belly you shall go, and dust you shall eat all the days of your life. I will put enmity between you and the woman, and between your offspring and hers; he will crush your head, and you will strike his heel." From that day on, the serpent became the enemy of mankind. When we see it, we kill it, and when it strikes us, it bites, and it slithers on its belly, not walking. God's placing enmity between us and Satan is a good thing because it is a unique promise and a great grace; otherwise, Satan would have been our friend and would have led us astray in a very bad way.

🎁Then the Lord God said to the woman, "I will surely multiply your pain in childbearing; in pain you shall bring forth children. Your desire shall be for your husband, and he shall rule over you." Relations between husband and wife also became difficult. Thus, men who do not love their wives, and those who have been given dominion by the Creator, began to oppress and abuse their wives, children, and all those under their authority, like animals. Childbearing was not meant to be painful, but many mothers share the pain of childbirth, and some have been cut open, others have died during delivery. One mother said that in her tribe, they say when a woman is pregnant, one leg is on earth and the other in the grave. All of this is humanity's punishment for disobeying God's commands. Many say that Eve has put us into trouble, but even today, we are given the same choice. Will we choose God and His ways, or will we choose Satan? Do we doubt God and do what we want?

God said to Adam, "Because you have listened to the voice of your wife and have eaten of the tree of which I commanded you, 'You shall not eat of it,' cursed is the ground because of you; in pain, you shall eat of it all the days of your life; thorns and thistles it shall bring forth for you, and you shall eat the plants of the field. By the sweat of your face, you shall eat bread till you return to the ground, for out of it you were taken; for you are dust, and to dust you shall return." There are two kinds of wisdom, human wisdom and God's wisdom. God's wisdom has no regrets, and we find it in His Word. We may not initially see it, but later we can make big mistakes and regret the consequences. For example, human wisdom says that humans evolved, and thus good behavior is not important because we have no value; we are just like monkeys, or if a woman does not want to give birth to a child, she can terminate the pregnancy. For instance, 25% of pregnancies are terminated, which is like one million children every year. However, if this child had lived, his or her destiny could have been a help to the parent or the nation, as God had already invested in this child, but it was killed.

God is the Creator, and no one should destroy what He has created unless it harms life, such as mosquitoes or ants. Wisdom from above helps us in life more than any other wisdom, in solving our problems and those of others. We have seen this in Daniel, Joseph, and others! This wisdom is also full of mercy, compassion, and good fruits, and does not deceive others. The second wisdom is that of the enemy, the wisdom that Satan gives, and it is of man! This is the wisdom every human has claimed and used at some point, leading them to sin. This is the wisdom that Eve and Adam used to question what God had told them, and thus they brought misfortune upon themselves and their descendants to this day. Anyone lacking wisdom is encouraged to seek the Lord, and He will give it. The wisdom of the enemy is like a car without brakes, leading to great sorrow. Samson is one example; although he had the Spirit of God, he lacked the wisdom to follow it. May God always help us to seek His wisdom and live by it.

Lo! It was the saddest day that has ever been on earth. I think they were terrified and shaken with fear. Sin brings great fear. Instead of working happily and easily, work became hard, sorrowful, and sometimes without any harvest due to drought or other difficulties caused by sin. I think when they saw the leaves turning yellow, dying, and falling, they wept. They saw animals chasing and eating each other. We have all stepped on thorns, and we know the pain they cause. Sin brought sorrow in heaven, and now it brought sorrow to earth. God Himself also had great sorrow, as the darkness of sin had entered. Night was coming, and they wondered where to go. The angels also mourned because heaven had already experienced the problem of sin, and now it had entered the world. Even the animals might have felt this fear and sorrow when they saw Adam and Eve crying.

They were driven out of the Garden of Eden, and Cherubim (angels) were placed to guard the garden with a flaming sword that turned in all directions, to guard the way to the tree of life. God loved them and had mercy on them. He did not want them to eat from the tree of life and live forever in sin. Instead, they were cast out with great sorrow. They turned to look at their once joyful dwelling, but the garden was fenced, and the gate was shut. Sin has a great cost that is unmatched. Adam lived for 930 years before he died. Perhaps he walked around and showed his descendants the garden from which he had been driven. He pleaded with them to obey God, telling them about the joy they had before sin. However, many people do not learn from others' experiences. They want to experience their own punishments, so they engage in actions that lead to sorrow. It is said that this Garden of Eden was located in Iraq. It is possible that God took it before the flood, which occurred around 2348 BC.

You may ask today, how did these humans start by eating the forbidden fruit and then progress to killing others? God's laws are interconnected; they are like a glass. If one piece breaks, all of them are broken. Truly explaining sin is offering excuses for it. Sin has no reason to occur and no explanation—it is a great mystery, especially when considering that God has all the love for us. It was not only Cain who killed Abel; Lamech also killed a young man. The details of these murders have not been revealed, but they were deemed worthy of punishment, ten times more than Cain's punishment. Thus, we see subsequent generations of humanity becoming worse.These days, heavy missiles are targeting millions of people in a short time! Indeed, we are nearing home. God revealed to them the plan of salvation, and how the Garden of Eden or Paradise will be restored again through the death of His Son. Let us learn to trust and obey Jesus so that we may be in the new paradise. A 90-year-old mother, named Gloria, in my Bible class, advised me that we Africans have truly suffered greatly, from slavery, colonization, neo-colonialism, and then being discriminated against, despised, and oppressed among the nations of the world. If we don't make it to heaven, it will be a great regret and foolishness, for we will have lost here on earth and lost there in heaven as well. I have sat and tried to carefully reflect on her words.

A father, or in his absence, a mother, should lead worship, selecting a part of the Scriptures that is appealing and easy to understand. The service should be short. When long chapters are read and long prayers are made, the service becomes tedious (wearisome), and at its conclusion, a sense of relief is felt. GOD is dishonored and disrespected when the worship hour is made dry and irritating (disturbing the hearts of the family), when it becomes too heavy a task, lacking zeal, to the point where even the children fear it just thinking about it before they are called to participate. The influence of a mother who prays for the fear of GOD will last forever. She may die, but her work will endure.

Questions: What punishment did Adam, Eve, and the Serpent receive? Why did God expel them from the garden? Who guarded the garden? Why does sin bring sorrow? Why do people not listen when you warn them not to repeat a bad action?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Young One of Jesus

Memory Verse: Genesis 3:23

[23] Therefore the LORD God sent him forth from the Garden of Eden to till the ground from which he was taken.

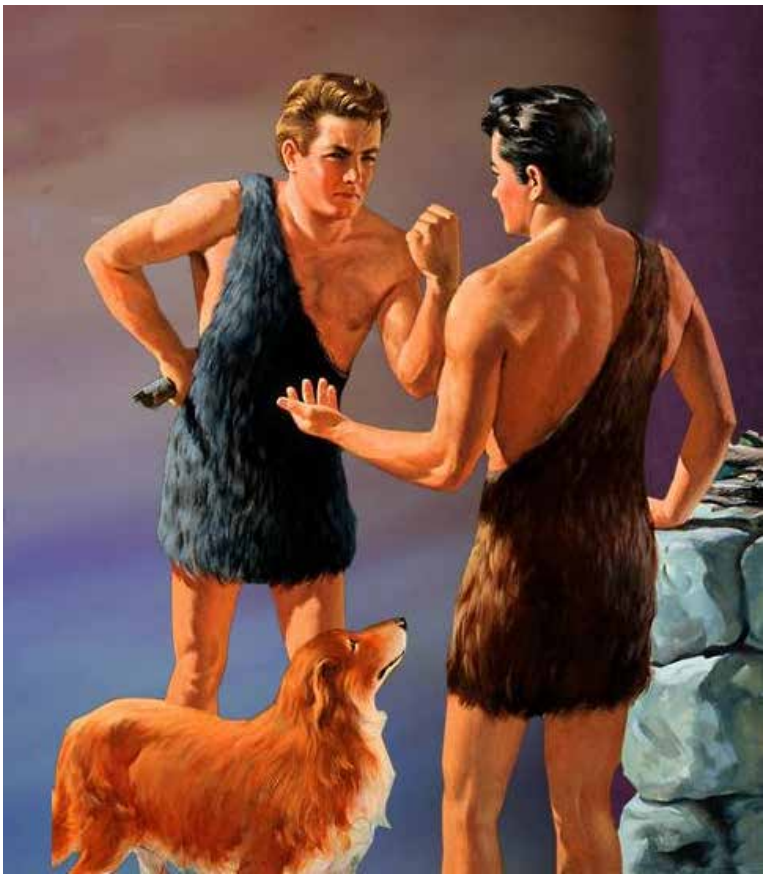
Prayer: Thank You so much our Heavenly Father. We are grateful that You have placed enmity between You and Satan so that he may not deceive us or hinder us from receiving Your blessings. Help us to one day see the Garden of Eden again in heaven. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: List some of the consequences that sin has brought into the world, especially in your community and in news reports. Draw the angels God placed to guard the Garden of Eden and the flaming sword flashing back and forth to guard the tree of life.

DAY 7 (January 7)

LESSON: The First Child and the First Death, truly, anger is a very bad thing.

(Genesis 4)



When Adam and Eve sewed themselves clothes from fig leaves, God came and gave them clothes made from lamb's skin, which cover nakedness and provide comfort. These days, some people want to walk around in small, short, or inappropriate clothes. We have all lost the glory of God and need complete clothing to cover us. Here they began to understand, to some extent, the meaning of death and how to offer a sacrifice when they sin and seek forgiveness. The sacrifice represented Christ, the Lamb of God, who would come in the future. They were instructed clearly on how to offer this sacrifice—not from farm produce but from livestock. Blood had to be shed, for without the shedding of blood, there is no forgiveness of sins (Romans 6:23). They continued to slaughter lambs and offer sacrifices for many years until Christ was born and died around 31 AD.

Adam and Eve were blessed with their first child, whom they named Cain. Perhaps they thought he would be the Redeemer. They then had a second child, whom they named Abel. God gave them complete instructions on how to offer sacrifices for their sins. The man was to offer sacrifices for his family. He would confess his sins and then slay a lamb, symbolizing the death of Jesus, the Lamb who takes away the sin of the world.

Cain was a farmer, and his younger brother, Abel, was a shepherd. Both brought their sacrifices, but Cain brought the produce of the land. He did not want to listen to God's instructions and offer the required sacrifice, whereas Abel brought the firstborn of his flock. God accepted Abel's sacrifice by consuming it with fire, but Cain's offering of produce remained on the altar. Cain was very angry, and his face was downcast. The Lord asked him why he was doing this. Even today, God sees when we become angry and filled with jealousy or hatred like Cain. He reminded him that if he did well, he would be accepted, but if not, sin is crouching at the door and must be overcome. Instead of asking his brother for a lamb to correct his mistake, Cain, in his pride, became angrier and added more evil.

Cain told his brother Abel to go with him into the field, and there, he rose up and killed him. We do not know what weapon Cain used or how their parents learned of it. The Bible is written concisely, and if it recorded everything, the paper would not suffice, ink would run out, or even people wouldn't be able to handle it! It seems Cain had some evil ways. Then they ran to the field to find their son's lifeless body. They did not understand what death meant, but when they called out to Abel, there was no answer. This was when they began to understand, even remotely, the meaning of death, and that their sin as parents had serious consequences, even for their children. They wept deeply, as David wept for Absalom, saying, "My son Abel!" It would have been better if I had died in your place, my son Abel. I realized that this was a time when there was no television or great evil. How did he get such filthy thoughts? I realized that the heart is deceitful and has the disease of death. We should always surrender to God, for if we do not, we may end up doing horrible things that surprise us. Therefore, let us fall at God's feet and humble ourselves so that He may support us with His mighty hand. God knew that Cain was angry, and He gave him a warning to repent, but he did not listen. It is possible that even Cain was shocked when he saw that Abel was not rising or breathing.

The Lord asked Cain, “Where is your brother Abel?” Cain responded arrogantly, “I don’t know; am I my brother’s keeper?” or it’s like saying, “Don’t bother me, I’m not his nanny.” God knew what he had done, and said, “What have you done? The voice of your brother’s blood cries out to me from the ground.” Cain was punished so that when he tilled the ground, it would no longer yield crops for him. He would become a wanderer with no settled place on earth. Cain begged God to lessen his punishment because he thought it was too severe. He feared saying, “I will be driven from Your presence, and I will be a wanderer and a vagabond on the earth, and anyone who finds me will kill me.”

The Lord replied, “Whoever kills Cain will suffer vengeance seven times over,” and He placed a mark on Cain so that no one who found him would kill him. Cain went out from the presence of the Lord and lived in the land of Nod, east of Eden. It was as if Adam and Eve had lost both their children. It was a day of great sorrow for Adam and Eve when they saw that their son had killed his brother. Truly, first-born children are deeply loved by their parents, but Cain became the source of their sorrow. Their good son became the first murderer. Cain had broken the sixth commandment, “You shall not murder,” and with his arrogance and anger, he broke all the other nine commandments. The mark placed on him reminded his children or wife, and they saw the bitter consequences of sin so that they would not follow his example. The parents lost both of their children because Cain rebelled against God and went to live far from them.

Cain wanted to oppose God’s Law. He did not want to offer the prescribed sacrifice to show he was a sinner. He wanted to show the work of his hands and perhaps his ability to save himself. This chapter describes the terrible consequences of uncontrolled anger. Cain’s uncontrolled emotions led him to kill his brother Abel. There are great consequences when our emotions are not under control. Cain left his home and became a wanderer and a fugitive, going from place to place. His life suddenly changed. A bad choice, uncontrolled emotions, and negative attitudes lead to bad consequences. Alcohol can also contribute to making our thoughts uncontrollable. A good choice, emotions under control, and positive feelings lead to good outcome.

Life under the control of the Holy Spirit is prepared to face any situation that arises in life with a peaceful perspective in the main purpose of God. May the Lord help us to pray for our brothers and sisters, for we are their guardians!

🎁Cain married, had a son whom he named Enoch. Enoch had a son whom he named Irad, and Irad fathered Mehujael, Mehujael fathered Methushael, and Methushael fathered Lamech. Lamech was the first person to have two wives, Ada and Zillah. They gave birth to children who were shepherds, musicians, and metalworkers. I think that when Adam and Eve remembered their life in the garden before they sinned, they wept in great sorrow, knowing that they were the ones who brought these calamities to their children and humanity. You can only imagine the sadness and tears that flowed as they remembered and told others these events. We do not need to make our own mistakes to learn; we can learn from those who went before us and live lives of dependence on and obedience to God. Even if they had not sinned, all humans would still have the choice to obey God or disobey Him.

🎁If mothers understood the importance of their mission, they would overcome in secret prayer, bringing their children to Jesus, asking for His blessings upon them, and praying for wisdom to properly carry out their sacred duties. Let the mother make the most of every opportunity to shape and build the character, habits, and personalities of her children. Let her carefully observe the growth of their character, correcting the behaviors that appear in large forms, and encouraging those who are lacking. Let her make her own life a pure and good example of valuable leadership.

🎁Questions: Why is it not good to walk naked or wear clothes that lack respect? What sin did Cain commit? Why was he given a mark? How can you live with your brothers, sisters, or parents without hatred, jealousy, or quarrels? We are not responsible for the choices of our brothers, but we are responsible for the influence we have on them, discuss this!

God Bless You So Much, the Child and Youth of Jesus👨‍👨‍👧‍👧

Memory Verse: Genesis 4:8

[8] Cain said to Abel his brother, "Let's go out to the field." And while they were in the field, Cain rose up against Abel his brother and killed him.

Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father, protect us from anger and bad choices. Give us love for people and love for You. Help us not to clothe ourselves with our own works like Adam and Eve sewed garments for themselves. Cover us Lord with Your glory. Forgive our sins. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: What is anger? Discuss. Genesis 4 speaks about the story of Cain and Abel, teaching both children and adults about uncontrolled anger, jealousy, worship, sin, and consequences. Activities may include: making drawings or boards with faces that show emotions like joy and anger. Or, do research on what the priests' garments looked like (Exodus 28:42-43). According to your gender, list clothes that cover you properly and make you look presentable. Then discuss why people dress the way they do today, and the original reason for clothing.

DAY 8 (January 8)

TOPIC: The Life of Enoch

(Genesis 5:8)

Adam had another son and named him Seth. The Bible does not mention the names of daughters, but Adam and Eve had daughters. Adam had Seth when he was 130 years old, and in those days, people gave birth at an old age and lived for many years. Adam was created by God to live forever, but because of sin, he lived only 930 years. He was created as an adult. For many years, they did not know sickness, and Adam saw his descendants up to the sixth generation before he died. Seth lived 912 years and fathered Enosh, who lived 905 years.

Genealogies may not be the most exciting to read in the Bible, but they contain much for a diligent student of the Scriptures. We see people living long lives. This reveals an important truth about God. Our Creator intended for humans to live forever. He created us with a certain power, which, even after many centuries following sin, remained. We do not know how long the women lived, but perhaps they lived longer than their husbands, as many do today. The second woman mentioned by name is Sarai, the wife of Abraham, and then Milcah, the wife of Nahor (Genesis 11:29). Then we see genealogies introduced by Lamech from the lineage of Cain. Their names are Adah—meaning to adorn oneself—and Zillah—meaning musical instruments or a famous dancer! Another thing we learn is how old this world is by reading genealogies! Our world is about 6,000 years old.

We also know that Jesus came from which genealogy by studying these genealogies! And indeed, all of us came from Adam and Eve. We are all cousins from the same ancestor! And the same Creator! This should compel us to treat one another with kindness, meaning we should avoid any form of evil.

We must follow the map of our lives, which is the Scriptures, so we do not lose our way on our journey. Even up to Noah, we pass through an unbroken chain of narrative history passed down from generation to generation. Their minds were certainly sharp because they were able to preserve information accurately even as they grew old. From all this, we can see that we have a true historical record in the Bible—a history we can trust that aligns with the history of our world, because there is no history in books before Mesopotamia.

Enosh fathered Kenan, who lived 910 years, and Kenan fathered Mahalalel, who lived 895 years. Mahalalel fathered Jared, who lived 962 years. The person who lived the longest was Methuselah, who lived 969 years. Lamech lived 777 years, and Noah lived 950 years. All this information is in Genesis

5. If you draw a chart, you will find that the nine ancestors mentioned lived at the same time as Adam, meaning Adam saw his grandchildren and great-grandchildren of many generations. Only Noah did not see Adam. This means that all these generations knew about creation from Adam and saw the Garden of Eden! They did not need books because they had good memory. Surely, Adam told them about their struggles and their fall. Undoubtedly, he told them about the hope of the Redeemer who would come. If you draw a chart of the years of these elders, you will see that one line is short—this is the line of Enoch, whose father was Jared, who lived 962 years, and his son was Methuselah, who lived 969 years. He himself lived only 365 years. This is because he was taken by God to heaven. Children are of great value to parents, and in heaven, they will no longer be our children, but our brothers and sisters!

We can ask why God took him. I believe he loved God and spoke to Him. Thus, he loved God deeply with his heart and mind. Day and night, he thought about his Heavenly Father. He was not selfish, nor was he angry or thinking evil thoughts. Evil thoughts are bad for God's children. I believe God saw someone who reflected His character. He recognized the vastness of God's love after having his first child. Many parents know the vastness of God's love when they have children. Enoch knew the joy of walking and talking with God, and he knew God's plans for the future! Enoch was shown things of the future, saying, "Behold, the Lord is coming with thousands upon thousands of His holy ones" (Jude 1:14). In Hebrews 11:5, it says he was commended as one who pleased God. This is a remarkable record for someone to leave for their children. His friendship with God continued to grow, until one day, God said, "Come, my friend, so we can sit together and have sweet conversation because you and I are so close!" Do you want to walk with God in your thoughts, actions, and words? Let the Holy Spirit live and reign in your heart. If we do this, we know that we will continue walking with Him to heaven.

The sad thing is that while Enoch walked with God, many of Adam's descendants did not. They were wicked and selfish, forgetting God. They fought and killed one another, just as Cain killed his brother. People continued to do evil, following the devil, who is like a roaring lion. Perhaps Adam and Eve warned them, but they thought the old people were annoying, and even though they themselves failed, who then could have succeeded? Adam saw the world, created well and peacefully, turn into a place of terror. This made him regret his sin. It is difficult to understand how things turned so badly so quickly after creation. Truly, humans are forgetful, and it is easy to fall into sin if we do not pay attention to God. We do not have our own goodness; rather, we must ask God to give us true goodness of heart.

All the names had meanings, for example: Adam: “man or human,” Seth: “appointed,” Enosh: “mortal” or “weak,” Kenan: “sorrow,” Mahalalel: “Blessed be God,” Jared: “shall come down,” Enoch: “beginning” or “teaching,” Methuselah: “when he dies, it will happen,” Lamech: “despair” or “mourning,” Noah: “rest” or “comfort.”

The sons of God are not angels but humans who love God. It is a tactic of Satan to bring down God’s children by making them marry unbelievers. Does Satan still use this tactic as we approach the end of the world? No! He has not stopped. God’s warning is as important today as it was in the past: “Do not be unequally yoked with unbelievers. For what fellowship has righteousness with lawlessness? And what communion has light with darkness?” (2 Corinthians 6:14).

A mother should start her work with confidence and strength, continually relying on the Lord’s help in all her efforts. She should never rest content until she sees in her children the development of an upward character that is evident, with a higher goal in life than just seeking their own pleasure.

Questions: What is the lesson from this story? What was Adam’s third son called? How many years did Enoch live? Where did he go? Who was his son? Who was his father? What does Methuselah’s name mean?

God Bless You So Much, the Child and Youth of Jesus

Memory Verse: Genesis 5:24

[24] Enoch walked with God, and then he was no more, because God took him away.

Prayer: Lord, we thank You for giving us another day. Grant us lives like Enoch’s, to walk with You always, and one day to live with You in heaven like Enoch. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Draw a chart showing three generations back from you until your birth. Mention the names of the first ten generations, from Adam to Noah.*

DAY 9 (January 9)

TOPIC: Noah, the Ark, and the Flood

(Genesis 6:8)

As human beings multiplied on the earth, evil also increased. Even though generation after generation had passed down the story of salvation, telling that one day they would return to Eden if they accepted salvation, people took wives of their choice, contrary to God's plan, eating and drinking. Perhaps they ate in gluttony, they abused wealth, they neglected the hungry, and they ate foods or drank beverages that we should not use, such as alcoholic drinks or certain foods. It seems that as people lived together in cities, they taught each other great evil. The Lord said, "My Spirit will not contend with man forever, for he is flesh." Thus, the days of man were shortened to 120 years, and even his lifespan was reduced. Every thought of man was evil continually.

The LORD regretted that He had made mankind. It is the saddest thing to think that our Creator regretted making us. The LORD said, "I will wipe mankind whom I have created from the face of the earth, along with the animals, the birds, and the creatures that move along the ground—for I regret that I have made them." But Noah found favor in the eyes of the LORD. Noah was a righteous man, blameless among the people of his time, and he walked faithfully with God. Noah had three sons: Shem, Ham, and Japheth. The earth was corrupt in God's sight and was full of violence. God saw how corrupt the earth had become, for all the people on earth had corrupted their ways. So God said to Noah, "I am going to put an end to all people, for the earth is filled with violence because of them; I am surely going to destroy both them and the earth." God told Noah to build an ark of cypress woodInstructions for Building the Ark

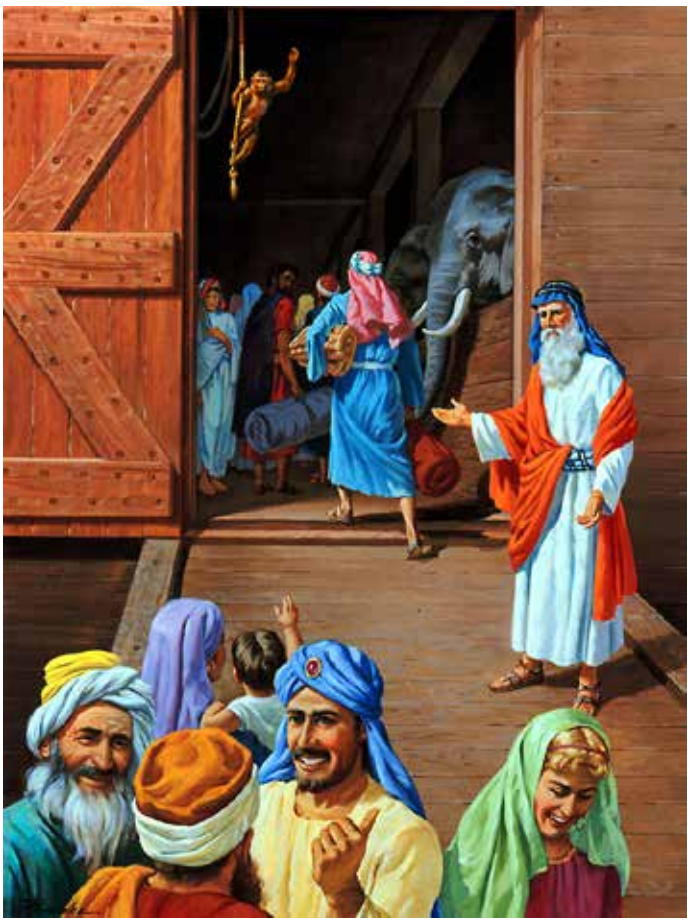
The dimensions were 600 x 100 x 60 feet. The size of this ark was similar to modern ships (for example, the USA Pride of Merchant ship is 990 x 101 x 122 feet, has 12 floors, 1,000 crew members, and can carry 14,000 soldiers).



It seems that people knew all this because Noah preached for 120 years about this, and every hammer strike during the ark's construction was a sermon. Moreover, a child was born and named Methuselah, meaning "when he dies, the flood will come," and indeed, the year Methuselah died was the year of the flood. God gave every warning, but they ignored it. However, it is possible that others who believed may have died before the flood. People helped Noah build the ark, perhaps for a reward or out of kindness; they heard this message again and again, hardening their hearts.

The LORD told Noah that He would bring a flood to destroy everything with breath and flesh on the earth. He told Noah, his sons, and their wives to enter the ark. The ark seemed to have only one window, and it was at the top of the roof, so they looked to heaven for their salvation! God told Noah to gather food for them and the animals, as they would stay in the ark nearly a year. God gave Noah instructions on which animals would enter the ark—unclean animals would enter two by two, male and female, and clean animals seven by seven. For example, pigs would enter two, and goats or chickens seven. For these 120 years, Noah witnessed much wickedness. People lacked compassion and killed each other, and there was much pain. They mocked old Noah, saying he was building a huge boat because he said water would fall from above. During this time, it had never rained, as plants grew through dew. By mocking Noah, they were also mocking God, because Noah was merely a messenger following God's instructions. When you are mocked for following God, remember Noah.

After finishing the ark, God told Noah that after seven days, He would bring rain, which would fall for 40 days and nights, and everything with life would perish.

Noah was 600 years old when he entered the ark, along with his wife, three sons, and their wives—only eight people in total. These sons and daughters-in-law fully committed themselves because their parents were left behind! When they saw the animals entering the ark two by two or seven by seven, they were undoubtedly a little shocked, but they continued their lives. I think it was sin and pride that blinded them. They mocked Noah for staying in a boat that wasn't afloat because the land was dry. Then the rain began, and the storm was fierce. People ran and begged Noah to open the door, but Noah tried and failed, telling them that it was God who had shut the door. Perhaps they climbed tall trees, but the waters continued to rise and covered the trees and mountains. All living creatures perished, and everything with breath died. The flood occurred around 2348 BC, and it changed the face of the earth, diminishing its beauty.

Another important element of this story is that God announced that "He would establish His covenant" with His people. God's covenant is His promise of faithfulness and salvation. In the midst of the storm, God prepared the ark for safety. Jesus is our refuge in times of storm, our ark of safety, our refuge in times of trouble. What wonderful good news—God's covenant is His eternal guarantee of our safety in the ark of His grace. God loves to uphold His covenant, so let us draw near to Him and seek to know His will today.

God remembered Noah and his family in the ark, sent a wind, and caused the waters to recede. The peaks of the mountains began to appear. Noah opened the ark's window and sent out a raven, which went back and forth. Then he sent out a dove, but it could find nowhere to land and returned to the ark. Noah sent the dove out again after seven days; it came back with a fresh olive leaf in its mouth. Noah knew the waters had receded, and after another seven days, he sent the dove again, and it did not return. A year passed while they were in the ark, and the waters dried up. Noah opened the ark, and God told him to come out with his animals. It was a marvelous sight to see the animals leaping or running out of the ark. Noah built an altar to God and offered a burnt offering in thanksgiving to the Lord.

God blessed Noah and commanded him to be fruitful, multiply, and fill the earth. Before the flood, humans were only permitted to eat plant food (Genesis 1:29), but now, due to scarcity, they were allowed to eat clean animals, though they were forbidden to eat blood or fat (Leviticus 11). Today, due to pollution, it is proven that eating plant-based food is safer, so it is better to cultivate food that God originally provided for humans. Isaiah 65 shows that in the new earth, the lamb and the lion will lie together, and so humans and animals will return to the diet God first gave, one that does not kill other creatures.

After blessing Noah, God said He would never again curse the earth with a flood. Indeed, it was sorrowful to see the desolation and destruction of the land, where beautiful buildings once stood. He said He was setting His rainbow in the sky as a sign of the covenant between Him and the earth, that the waters would never again become a flood. Then the Lord brought the rainbow with seven beautiful colors for the first time to give them hope.

In 1975, archaeologists discovered remnants of the ark in Turkey! Indeed, this is one of the things that strengthens our faith in the Scriptures, affirming their truth. When God's Word says something, we should believe and obey. God did not let Noah perish with the corrupt and arrogant people. He told Noah exactly what to do to be saved. Similarly, we know what is coming to the world soon, and we have been told how to prepare. These preparations also include strengthening our minds through God's Word and having a place to farm, and if possible, moving to rural areas. Many large cities will not be safe and will be full of wickedness. In addition to protecting ourselves, we should warn others about what is coming to the world.

Jesus said that just as it was in the days of Noah, so it will be in the days of the end. Therefore, let us be wise and prepare ourselves so that we do not perish. God's invitation to Noah, "Enter the ark," was an invitation to salvation, security, and redemption. It was a promise of His care for today, tomorrow, and forever. It gave Noah hope in the midst of the chaos of this world. The Lord's invitation gives us hope too. In the ark of His safety, we find salvation, security, and redemption. This is the confidence I have in Him, that if I ask anything according to His will, He hears me. And if I know that He hears me, whatever I ask, I know that I have what I have asked of Him.

It is absolutely impossible to estimate the power of the influence of a father or mother who prays. They acknowledge GOD in all their ways. They take their children before the throne of grace and commit them to Jesus, asking for His blessings upon them. The influence of such prayers is "a wellspring of life" for those children. These prayers, offered in faith, are the help and strength of a Christian mother. Neglecting the duty of praying with our children is to lose one of the greatest blessings we have close to us, one of the greatest weapons in the midst of life's struggles, anxieties, and burdens of our daily work.

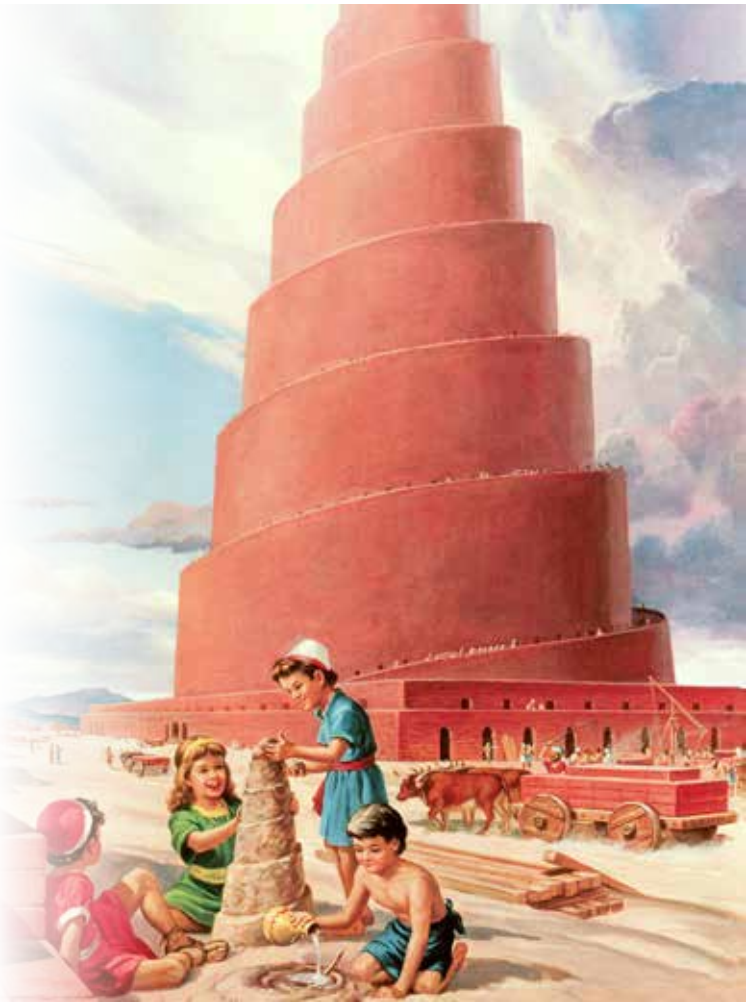
Questions:

How many days did the flood rain?
Who was the second bird sent to check the land?
When was man allowed to eat meat?
What is the meaning of the rainbow?
Why did Noah offer a sacrifice?
In a few sentences, explain how you find security in Jesus, the ark of safety?

God bless you greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus

Memory Verse: Genesis 6:6

[6] The LORD regretted that He had made human beings on the earth, and His heart was deeply troubled.



Prayer: Thank You Lord for Your patience with us human beings. Forgive our sins, and create in us new hearts of repentance. We ask to have love like Yours. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Draw a rainbow showing all the seven colors.

DAY 10 (January 10)

TOPIC: Tower of Babel

Noah's sons were Shem, Ham, and Japheth. These are the ones who gave birth to and populated the entire world we know. Noah began as a farmer, planted vineyards, and started drinking wine. He got drunk and was naked in his tent. Ham, the father of the Canaanites, saw his father naked and told his brothers. Shem and Japheth walked in backward, covering their father's nakedness, their faces turned the other way. When Noah woke from his drunkenness, he knew what his younger son had done, and he said, "Cursed be Canaan; a servant of servants shall he be to his brothers." Noah sinned by getting drunk, but we believe he repented. God's Word says that drunkards will not inherit the kingdom of heaven. Some people today think walking around without clothes is a good thing, but that is not good. It is wrong to walk without clothes or wear shameful attire.

After the flood, Noah lived for 350 years and died. His sons continued to have children, and the whole world spoke one language. Around 2242 BC, people, led by Nimrod the hunter, decided to build a tower whose top would reach to heaven, so they would not be scattered across the face of the earth as God had commanded. They also said the tower would help them in case another flood came, even though God had promised never to destroy the earth with water again, using the rainbow as a sign. But they did not listen. (All the people lived near the rivers Tigris and Euphrates).

🎁 Surely, they would not have succeeded. Scientists today say the sun is about 150 million kilometers away, and the moon is 280,000 kilometers away. Would they really have reached heaven? Our sun is one of the closest stars, but others are billions of miles away, and even rockets traveling 20,000 miles per hour would take millions of years to reach them. This was rebellion, that is, trying to challenge God's commands. The Lord came down to see, and He said, "Behold, the people are one, and they have one language, and this is only the beginning of what they will do. Now nothing that they propose to do will be impossible for them." The Lord confused their language so that they could not understand one another. When one sent another for an axe, they brought a plow, and anger rose among them, leading to confusion. The Lord scattered them across the earth, and they stopped building the city/tower.

🎁 This is when the Lord introduced different languages to the world. It was sad; children were separating, trying to say goodbye, but they found themselves speaking strange words that their companions did not understand. If you count the years, it seems that Noah experienced two significant events: the flood, from which he and his sons were saved, and the Tower of Babel, where he saw his grandchildren engaging in another rebellion. Perhaps he warned them, but they did not listen. Indeed, the thoughts of man's heart are evil from his youth (Genesis 6:11). It is only by God's grace that we are helped to avoid evil. Beloved reader, let us not rely on our own goodness. We must accept that God will give us His goodness and clothe us with His righteousness so that we can be healed.

🎁 As Shem's descendants continued over many years, Nahor was born, and Nahor fathered Terah, who lived in Haran. Terah had three sons: Abram, Nahor, and Haran.

🎁 God saw that Abram worshiped Him in truth, as Noah did. Abram married Sarai, who was his half-sister. Sarai was barren and had no children. Terah took his son Abram, his wife Sarai, and his grandson Lot, the son of Haran who had died, and they traveled from Ur of the Chaldeans to Canaan. When they arrived at Haran, Terah died at the age of 205.

🎁 The Lord appeared to Abram while he was there and said, "Go from your country, from your people, and from your father's household to the land I will show you. I will make you into a great nation, and I will bless you; I will make your name great, and you will be a blessing. I will bless those who bless you, and whoever curses you I will curse; and all peoples on earth will be blessed through you." Around 1922 BC, Abram obeyed God as He commanded, for he had learned to recognize His voice. He took his wife Sarai, his nephew Lot, and his possessions. Abram was 75 years old when he left Haran and traveled to Shechem. The distance was about 1,500 kilometers, without cars, only donkeys or camels. The Canaanites lived there, and the Lord told Abram that He would give him that land and his descendants. Abram built an altar to the Lord who appeared to him and called on the name of the Lord. He continued traveling.

🎁 There was a famine in the land, so Abram traveled to Egypt, where he stayed because the Nile River helped irrigate the land. Jews, Christians, and Muslims all regard Abram as the father of their faiths. God has plans for you today just as He did for Abram! For we are a holy nation to the Lord our God; the Lord our God has chosen us to be His people, His treasured possession, more than all the peoples on the face of the earth (Deuteronomy 7:6). These words were spoken by Christ on the cloud pillar in the wilderness, and Moses received them for the chosen people of God. The Lord has not left the world without a testimony. He has faithful people today, just like in Abram's time, who are chosen by Him. They do not make this world their home, but they are here to witness for God, and as long as His grace endures, a living testimony will be given by His faithful messengers. Would you like to enroll today in this great army?

🎁 The prayers of Christian fathers and mothers are not ignored by the Father of all, He who sent His Son into the world to redeem people for Himself. He will not reject your prayers and will not leave you and your own in the darts of Satan on that great and final day of battle. It is up to you to work diligently and faithfully, and the Lord will strengthen the work of your hands.

🎁 Questions: Why was Ham cursed? Why is drinking alcohol a sin? What does Babel mean? What promise did God give Abram when He appeared to him? The three major religions claim that Abram is the father of their faiths; which ones are they? How many languages will there be in heaven? Are you ready to move like Abraham did?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Young One of Jesus 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Memory Verse: Genesis 11:4

[4] They said, "Come, let us build ourselves a city, with a tower that reaches to the heavens, so that we may make a name for ourselves; otherwise we will be scattered over the face of the whole earth."

Prayer: Lord, help me not to be a stubborn and arrogant person, one who wants to do things my own way. Help me and my parents to be people who listen to Your voice and not selfish. Help the gospel to reach every language, tribe, and nation in the world. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: How many languages are spoken in the world today? List some of those languages. Mention the languages that already have the Bible and those that still do not. List the four tallest buildings in the world.

DAY 11 (January 11)

LESSON: Abram – Father of the Faithful

(Genesis 13-14)

Abram lived about 100 years after the Flood. People spread to many places. Abram lived in Ur, and others spread across Africa, India, Siberia, China, and Europe. People engaged in various activities, and many museums contain items used by craftsmen, jewelry, or ships.

God saw that before the world fell into another great evil, He needed to find a person to uphold His Truth, someone who would love Him and be obedient to Him, teaching their children to keep God's Laws. Abram had a significant task because his relatives worshiped foreign gods, including his father. God looked at Abram and saw that he was a young man who pleased His heart. Even today, God looks at young people who do not shame Him. He reveals His secrets to them and what will happen in the history of the world and in the end times, how He will save His people. God appeared to Abram through dreams and visions. Abram became a blessing to mankind. At that time, there was no modern transportation, and people from the same family lived together, helping each other. It was difficult to leave without knowing where you were going. Surely, neighbors asked him, and some even laughed, saying, “You’re just going without knowing where you’re going?” But Abram obeyed God. That is how we should act today. We are to obey God when He tells us something and keep His Commandments.

While in Egypt, Abram told his wife Sarai that since she was beautiful, the Egyptians would kill him and let her live. He asked her to say she was his sister, so that his life might be spared for her sake. This was half-truth and half-lie, for she was indeed his wife, although it was true that Sarai was his half-sister (same father, different mothers). He lacked faith and tried to protect himself, forgetting that God is the one who protects. When they arrived in Egypt, Pharaoh saw that Sarai was very beautiful, and took her into his palace, treating Abram well because of her. God struck Pharaoh and his household with great plagues because of Sarai, and Pharaoh called Abram to ask, “What have you done to me? Why didn’t you tell me she was your wife? You said she is your sister!” Pharaoh ordered Abram to take his wife and leave, and told his servants to escort them with all their possessions: gold, silver, livestock, tents, etc. Abram is the first person recorded as a prophet in the Holy Scriptures.

Abram went south to Bethel. It was a large caravan of many people, perhaps even thousands, with livestock and wealth. His army alone had 318 men. He built an altar and offered sacrifices, calling on the Name of the Lord. He was looking forward to the city with foundations, whose builder and maker is God (Hebrews 11:16). Lot, his nephew, had herds of cattle, sheep, and tents, and they were both very wealthy. A dispute arose between Abram’s herders and Lot’s over grazing land in the land of Canaan. Abram told Lot that it was not good for there to be strife between them or their herders since they were brothers. As the older relative, he acted as a peacemaker and a good example for God. He said, “The whole land is before you. Please separate from me. If you go to the left, I will go to the right; if you go to the right, I will go to the left.” Lot saw the plain of Jordan was well-watered, and chose it for himself, and they parted ways.

Abram settled in Canaan, while Lot moved near the city of Sodom. Over time, Lot moved closer to Sodom, and eventually lived in the city. The people of Sodom were wicked and sinners against the Lord. This is a problem we still face today: we often choose to live in cities for the benefits like good schools, water, and roads. More than fifty percent of people live in cities. Many cities are filled with evil, making it easy for children to be led astray. We must pray a lot because God still loves cities, and there is still hope for them. Lot, though a righteous man, ended up in a bad situation. Sometimes we make decisions about where to live, what work to do, and who to marry based on what we see with our eyes. What seems right to us may not be good before God. Abraham’s humble spirit led to even greater blessings. He was told to look around and was given all the land, even the area that Lot had chosen. What may seem like a loss when we choose God’s path turns out to be gain in the end. What Lot chose became a disaster for his family. After parting with Lot, God told Abram, “To your offspring, I will give this land forever, and I will make your offspring as the dust of the earth, so that if anyone can count the dust, then your offspring can also be counted.”

Being in partnership with God is never a loss! Abram settled near Mamre’s oak trees and built an altar to the Lord. The kings of neighboring countries fought and even attacked Sodom and Gomorrah, taking Lot and his possessions. A survivor escaped and informed Abram. Upon hearing that his nephew was taken captive, Abram took his army of 318 men to rescue Lot. Remember, in those days there was no police or someone to call for help. He did this operation at night, and God blessed him, helping him defeat his enemies and return Lot, his people, and all their goods. The king of Sodom thanked Abram for his help. Abram gave a tithe to Melchizedek, the king of Salem, and priest of God Most High. He said, “Blessed be Abram by God Most High, Creator of heaven and earth. And blessed be God Most High, who delivered your enemies into your hand.” Abram gave him a tenth of everything. Melchizedek had no known father or mother, and he was a type of Christ. There is no record of his birth or death, because he has no beginning or end, just as Christ does. We too should learn to give our tithe faithfully from our income, the tenth part.

The king of Sodom told Abram to take all the goods but to give him the people he had rescued. Abram said, “I will not take anything from you, not even a thread or a sandal strap, so that you will not say, ‘I made Abram rich.’” He took only the food eaten by his men and let others take their share. This spirit of generosity, without greed, is one of the qualities that made Abram the father of the faithful. Family prayers are important, but other types of prayer are also necessary. Private prayer is very important; in solitude, the soul is revealed and exposed before God's eye, and every intention is closely examined. Private prayers are extremely valuable! The soul communicates with God! Private prayers should be heard only by God, who listens to such prayers. No curious ear can receive the burden of such prayers.

🎁Questions: Why did Lot go to live in Sodom? How many people did Abram take to rescue Lot? If God told you to go without knowing where you are going, would you go? Why was Abram chosen by God? What is the importance of tithing? What made Abram prosper? Who is Melchizedek, king of Salem? Why is Abraham's example of not being bitter good for every believer? Today, there are people who are taken captive by addictions, sinful relationships, and bad friends. What are you doing to rescue them?

May God bless you, Child and Young One of Jesus👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Memory Verse: Genesis 13:15

[15] All the land that you see I will give to you and your offspring forever.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for Your gifts from generation to generation. Help me to see that partnering with You is not a loss but a gain, forgive me for the sin of fear and unbelief in Your promises. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Have you ever gone to a place where you were a stranger? Discuss with your parent/guardian how it was.*

DAY 12 (January 12)

LESSON: The Birth of Ishmael and the Promise of Isaac's Birth

(Genesis 15-17)

God appeared again to Abram in a vision and said, "I am your shield, your very great reward." Abram asked, "O Sovereign Lord, what can you give me since I remain childless, and the one who will inherit my estate is Eliezer of Damascus?" God told him, "This man will not be your heir, but a son coming from your own body will be your heir." He reiterated that Abram's descendants would be as numerous as the stars, uncountable. Even today, no child can count the stars! They say on a clear night, people can count up to 5,000 stars, but there are billions of stars, and it continues to be discovered that these stars are planets, other suns, or stars. Abram believed the Lord, and because of his faith, the Lord credited him with righteousness and reminded him that He was the God who brought him out of Ur of the Chaldeans to give him the land as an inheritance. God told him to offer a sacrifice to confirm that he would inherit the land. Abram sacrificed a calf, goat, sheep, and dove, cutting them in half and placing each half opposite the other. A fire passed between the halves, and that day, the Lord made a covenant with Abram, giving his descendants the land of Canaan, from the river of Egypt to the river Euphrates. He also told him that his descendants would be enslaved for over 400 years. This came to pass, as they were in Egypt for 430 years, but the actual period of slavery was 400 years.

Just as Abram kept watch over the sacrifices to protect them from vultures, we need to be diligent in prayer to ensure that Satan does not destroy us. Here, circumcision was commanded. Today, we look forward to a different kind of circumcision in the new covenant with God, which is the circumcision of our hearts: “Circumcise your hearts, and do not be stiff-necked any longer. For the Lord your God is God of gods and Lord of lords, the great God, mighty and awesome, who shows no partiality and accepts no bribes. He defends the cause of the fatherless and the widow, and loves the foreigner, giving him food and clothing. And you are to love those who are foreigners, for you yourselves were foreigners in Egypt. Fear the Lord your God, serve Him, hold fast to Him, and take oaths in His name. He is your praise, He is your God, who performed for you those great and awesome wonders you saw with your own eyes” (Deuteronomy 10:16-21).

When Sarai saw that she had not yet borne a child, she took her Egyptian maidservant, Hagar, and told Abram to have a child with her to build a family through her. Here, Sarai followed pagan customs, which was a mistake of unbelief. God wanted to give Abram a child through Sarai, not through anyone else. Mothers should be careful with the advice they give. Fathers should stand firm and not accept bad advice when they have heard God’s voice. Hagar was just a young girl who trusted these elders as her parents, but they made a plan that they thought was suitable, which led to her being wronged. This was a mistake, and it shows us that everyone needs God’s forgiveness, as no one is perfect, but we should repent as soon as we realize our mistakes.

Though Abram made this mistake, for every human has weaknesses, he later corrected himself, letting go of Hagar, and his overall direction in life was to love God greatly, even being called a friend of God.Abram and Lot Separated: Abram settled in Canaan and Lot settled near the city of Sodom, eventually living in Sodom itself. The people of Sodom were wicked and sinned greatly against the Lord. This is still a challenge today as many of us prefer to live in urban areas for better services like schools, water, or roads. Over fifty percent of people live in cities, many of which have a lot of evil, which can be easy for children to get involved in. We must pray earnestly because God loves cities, and there is still hope in them. Although Lot was a righteous man, he ended up in a bad situation. Ideally, people's homes should be spaced out to avoid overcrowding, allowing people to farm and work with their hands. Without something to do, evil thoughts easily enter the heart. Sometimes, we make decisions about where to live, work, and choose spouses based on our own eyes. What seems right to us may not be good in God's eyes. Abraham's humble spirit led him to a better reward. He was told to look around, and he was given all the land, including the eastern part where Lot had gone. God was even giving him the land that Lot had chosen. What might appear as loss when we follow God's way turns out to be gain in the end. What Lot chose became a disaster for his family. After separating from Lot, God spoke to Abram again, saying, "This land I will give you and your descendants forever, and I will make your descendants as numerous as the dust of the earth—your descendants will not be counted."

God's Partnership is Never a Loss! Abram lived near the oak trees of Mamre, and he built an altar to the Lord. Then kings from neighboring lands fought a battle and attacked Sodom and Gomorrah, taking Lot and his possessions. A man escaped and informed Abram. When Abram heard that his nephew was captured, he took an army of 318 men to rescue Lot. Remember, back then there were no police or phone calls. Abram carried out this operation at night, and God blessed him, defeating the enemy, rescuing Lot, and returning all his people and possessions. The king of Sodom thanked Abram for his help. Abram gave a tenth of the spoils to Melchizedek, king of Salem and priest of God Most High. Melchizedek blessed Abram, saying, "Blessed be Abram by God Most High, Creator of heaven and earth. Praise be to God Most High, who delivered your enemies into your hand." Abram gave him a tenth (tithe) of everything. Melchizedek had no known father or mother, and he was a type of Christ. There is no record of his birth or death, just like Christ, who has no beginning or end. We also learn to faithfully give tithes from our income.

Giving Tithes is Important! The king of Sodom told Abram to take all the goods, but only give back the people he rescued. Abram refused, saying, "I will not take anything from you, not even a thread or the strap of a sandal, so that you will never be able to say, 'I made Abram rich.'" He only took what his men had eaten and allowed the others to take their portion. Abram's selflessness is one of the qualities that made him the father of the faithful.

The Importance of Family Prayer: Family or public prayers are not enough; secret prayers are very important. In solitude, the soul is revealed, and every intention is examined closely by God, who searches the heart. Secret prayers are very precious as they communicate directly with God, and only He hears them.

Questions:

1. Why did Lot choose to live in Sodom?

2. How many people did Abram take to rescue Lot?

3. If God told you to go without knowing where, would you go?

4. Why was Abram chosen by God?

5. What is the significance of returning tithes?

6. What helped Abram to prosper?

7. Who is Melchizedek, king of Salem?

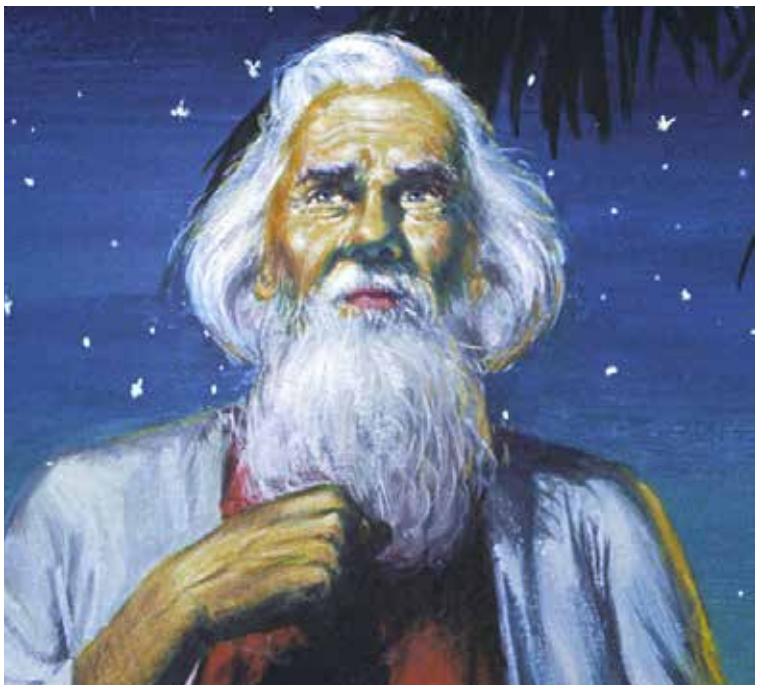
8. Why is Abram's example of forgiveness important for every believer?

9. Today, many people are taken captive by addiction, immoral relationships, and bad company. What are you doing to rescue them?

May God Bless You, the Child and Young One of Jesus.

Memory Verse: Genesis 15:6

[6] Abram believed the LORD, and He credited it to him as righteousness.



Prayer: Dear Father, help us to learn and apply this lesson in our own experiences. Grant us patience to wait upon You always, because as we wait on You we will be more blessed, and we will also have peace of mind and unity with those around us. Thank You Lord for hearing and answering our prayer, in the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ we pray. Amen.

Activity: When the night sky is clear, count the stars and see how many you can count. Do this with your parent/guardian. People have been able to count up to 5,000 stars.

DAY 13 (January 13)

LESSON: Abraham Speaks with God and the Fire of Judgment

(Genesis 18 and 19)

One day in the afternoon, Abraham was sitting at the entrance of his tent in the plains of Mamre when he saw three men approaching. Abraham ran to meet them. When he reached them, he bowed and said, "My Lord, if I have found favor in your sight, do not pass by your servant." He invited them to wash their feet, eat, and rest so they could continue on their journey. The visitors accepted his invitation. We don't know how Abraham recognized that one of the visitors was the Lord and the other two were angels, but we see a good example of generosity to strangers. Many have entertained angels without knowing it because of their hospitality.

The visitors asked Abraham, "Where is Sarah, your wife?" He replied, "She is in the tent." They told him, "This time next year, Sarah will have a son." When Sarah heard this, since both she and Abraham were old, she laughed. We can say that her laughter was a mixture of sadness and disbelief. She said, "Shall I have pleasure, my lord being old?" The Lord asked, "Why did Sarah laugh and say, 'Shall I really have a child now that I am old?'" The Lord reminded Sarah, "Is anything too hard for the Lord?" Reader, read and claim this promise. There is nothing too difficult for God. If you are facing challenges, whether it's about food, clothing, friends, or school, give your burdens to God, and He will help you. Nothing is too hard for Him. Kneel down, pray in faith, and tell Him your needs. Sarah was afraid because she realized that the visitors knew everything, and she denied laughing, but the Lord said, "You did laugh."

The visitors then turned towards Sodom, and Abraham accompanied them. The Lord said to the angels, “Shall I hide from Abraham what I am about to do? Abraham will surely become a great and powerful nation, and all nations on earth will be blessed through him. For I have chosen him, so that he will direct his children and his household after him to keep the way of the Lord.” Truly, Abraham is a model for fathers, teaching their children to obey God and honor people. The Lord told Abraham that the outcry against Sodom and Gomorrah had become so great, and their sin was so grave that He was going to see for Himself what to do. Abraham began to plead with the Lord not to destroy the city if there were fifty righteous people in it, then he asked about forty-five, then forty, and so on until he reached ten. The Lord promised that He would not destroy the city for the sake of ten righteous people. So, the Lord went to Sodom, and Abraham returned home.

As evening came, Lot was sitting at the gate of the city, and he saw two men approaching Sodom. He went to meet them. It appears that Lot learned the hospitality from his uncle Abraham. The angels said they would stay in the open square overnight, but Lot urged them to stay at his house. He prepared a meal for them. Before they could sleep, the men of Sodom surrounded Lot’s house and demanded that he bring out the visitors so they could harm them. These men were wicked and engaged in sinful acts of homosexuality. Lot tried to reason with them, saying that this was evil and offered his daughters instead. But the men rejected him, saying, “You are an outsider, and now you want to judge us?” They tried to break down the door. At that point, the angels struck the men with blindness so they could not find the door. What God despised yesterday, He still despises today, for He says, “I am the Lord; I do not change” (Malachi 3:6). Just because the world has passed laws allowing men to marry men and women to marry women, does not mean God’s Word has changed. The angels told Lot to take his wife and daughters and flee because the Lord was going to destroy the city. Lot hesitated, and the angels seized his hand and took him out of the city in mercy, possibly even lifting him up!

Lot was told to flee to the mountains and not look back, but he asked to go to Zoar, a small city. It seems he still preferred to stay in a city, even though he said it was because he was tired. The angels agreed to spare Zoar for Lot’s sake. Lot chose the city as his dwelling place, but it led to his downfall, and all his wealth and the place he had chosen were consumed by fire that day. God's judgments are a sign of the great and terrifying day to come. Let us not continue in sin, for just as Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed, so will the world be in the end.

🎁 Lot's wife looked back, possibly remembering her children or possessions, and she turned into a pillar of salt. God then rained burning sulfur on Sodom and Gomorrah and the nearby cities. God's fire descends from above, while man's fire rises from below. The sins of Sodom were not just homosexuality, but also pride, arrogance, greed, laziness, and neglect of the poor (Ezekiel 16:49, 50). We are living in the last days, and the world will be destroyed again. Are you preparing to go to heaven? Abraham rejoiced that his nephew was saved. Lot was saved along with his two daughters. The eldest daughter gave birth to a son who became the father of the Moabites, and the younger daughter gave birth to a son who became the father of the Ammonites. Peter tells us that Lot was a righteous man, but the wickedness of Sodom led him into sin. We, too, must be careful in choosing where we live, our friends, so we do not fall into wickedness.

🎁 Private prayers, family prayers, and prayers in public gatherings for worshiping God are all important, and we must live according to our prayers. We should share in Christ's work.

Questions:

Who came to speak to Abraham? What do you learn about Abraham and Sarah's hospitality? Why was the Lord going to Sodom and Gomorrah? Why did Abraham plead for Sodom not to be destroyed? Why did Lot flee to Zoar? How can greed and neglecting the poor be sins? (2 Peter 2:7, 8) What does this verse mean? Is there anything that is impossible for God? Who said these words?

God bless you abundantly, child and servant of Jesus👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Memory Verse: Genesis 18:3

[3]And said, My Lord, if now I have found favor in Thy sight, pass not away, I pray Thee, from Thy servant.

Prayer: Thank You Lord, I pray You help me to be generous, a person who welcomes guests as You have commanded this. Forgive me my sins. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Plan a Menu and invite your friends to eat, or even fruits and something small like drinking water! Or cook food and give to the needy or take it to church!

DAY 14 (January 14)

LESSON: The Birth of Isaac

(Genesis 20 and 21)

Abraham traveled through the land of King Abimelech and again told Sarah, his wife, to say that she was his sister. He did this because Sarah was very beautiful, and the king might kill him and take her as his wife. Abraham faced this test a second time! God came to Abimelech in a dream and told him that the woman he had taken was someone else's wife. Abimelech narrowly escaped death, and God forgave him because he did not know she was someone else's wife. The king was told to return Sarah to Abraham, and that Abraham, being a prophet, would pray for him so that he would live. Abimelech was also warned that if he did not return Sarah, he would die along with all his people. Kings of the past, and even wealthy or powerful people today, often have evil desires and covet other people's wives simply because of their beauty.

Abimelech woke up in the morning and was greatly afraid. He confronted Abraham, saying, "What have you done to us? You have brought great sin upon me and my kingdom!" Abraham explained that he acted out of fear. Abimelech gave Abraham land and gifts as a peace offering. Abraham prayed to God, and God healed Abimelech, his wife, and his servants, who had been barren because of taking Sarah.

This lesson teaches us not to lie and not to covet someone else's spouse. We also learn that God works even in the lives of unbelievers to save them.

We must be careful not to judge, as they are valuable in God's eyes and may sometimes be more righteous than us.

🎁 Abraham moved to Gerar near the Philistines, and there Sarah bore him a son. They named him Isaac, which means "laughter." His laughter was one of disbelief that she could have a child in her old age. Ishmael did not like Isaac and began to mock or tease him. This upset Sarah, and she told Abraham to send Hagar and her son away because the son of the servant woman would not share the inheritance with her son Isaac. Abraham did not like this, but God told him to listen to Sarah because Isaac was the child of promise. Abraham gave Hagar bread and water and sent her away. Ishmael was about 14 years old. The water ran out, and Hagar thought they were going to die, so she moved away from Ishmael and wept.

🎁 Then God heard her cries and told her not to be afraid. When she opened her eyes, she saw a well of water and gave it to Ishmael. God made Ishmael into a great nation in the wilderness, and he married an Egyptian woman. To this day, the descendants of Ishmael live in the Arabian desert. The descendants of Isaac, the Israelites, live in Israel and other parts of the world. Truly, nothing is impossible for our God.

🎁 Not everything in the Scriptures is fully explained, but we are encouraged to trust in this amazing God who has revealed many things but still leaves much for us to learn. Do I have enough faith and courage to trust in this God who claims to be my Father? Indeed, we are empowered to do so! If we had all the details, we wouldn't need to have faith or trust in God (Deuteronomy 29:29). In our worship meetings or when consecrating ourselves to God, our voices should express our prayers and praises to God, so everyone knows that we worship Him in sincerity and truth.

Questions:

How old was Abraham when he had the promised child? Why was the child named Isaac? Why do you think Ishmael mocked Isaac? Why did God allow Ishmael to leave? What happened to Ishmael and Hagar in the wilderness? Are you a descendant of Abraham? What is lying? (Writers and Prophets, p. 309) Why did God tell Abraham to pray for Abimelech?

God bless you greatly, child and servant of Jesus

Key Verse: Genesis 21:3

[3] And Abraham called the name of his son that was born unto him, whom Sarah bare to him, Isaac.

Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father for Your promises that come true every day. I thank You for answering our prayers. Help me not to mock other children. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Mention the Arab nations you know. What is the capital city of the nation of Israel called? Why do people of the Middle East still fight to this day? How does this show the authenticity of the Scriptures?

DAY 15 (January 15)

LESSON: A Great Test for Abraham

God gave Abraham a test when Isaac reached the age of youth. It was a test of obedience. God does not allow humans to offer another human as a sacrifice, but this was a test to see if Abraham loved God. Obedience is better than sacrifice, and rebellion is like witchcraft, as the prophet Samuel said. The Lord told Abraham, "Take your son, your only son, Isaac, whom you love, and go to the land of Moriah; offer him there as a burnt offering on one of the mountains which I will tell you." Abraham rose early in the morning to fulfill this command. He took a donkey, two young men, and wood for the sacrifice and went to the place he was told. He was about 115 years old.

He told his young men to wait at the foot of the mountain while he and Isaac went to worship. He took Isaac up, prepared the wood, fire, and knife. Isaac asked, "Father, look, the fire and the wood are here, but where is the lamb for the burnt offering?" His father replied, "God will provide for Himself the lamb for a burnt offering, my son." Abraham built the altar, arranged the wood, and bound his son Isaac and placed him on the altar. Abraham stretched out his hand to take the knife to sacrifice his son, but then the Angel of the Lord called to him from heaven saying, "Abraham, Abraham!" and he answered, "Here I am."

The angel said, "Do not lay your hand on the lad, or do anything to him, for now I know that you fear God, since you have not withheld your son, your only son, from Me." Abraham looked up and saw a ram caught by its horns in a thicket. He went, took the ram, and offered it as a burnt offering instead of his son. Abraham called the place "The Lord Will Provide" (Yahweh Yireh), because on the mountain of the Lord it shall be provided. God knew that Abraham had not withheld his only son from Him. God blessed Abraham further, telling him that He would multiply his descendants as the sand on the seashore, and that nations would be blessed because Abraham obeyed God's voice. Indeed, Abraham had passed the test. One person said, "If we are not changed by grace, then we are not saved by grace."

Truly, children who love to obey God's voice are blessed. Even Isaac, the child, obeyed, for he could have run away and refused to be bound by his elderly father, but he wanted to obey both God and his father. Obedience is the first important lesson we must learn in our lives. The story of Abraham and Isaac teaches us that God is the provider, and also, God's sacrifice of giving His only Son, Jesus Christ, for our sins. It was on this mountain of Moriah that Solomon's temple was built. We may not always know God's plan for us, but the most important thing is to trust and obey Him. It is always better to be obedient. The mountain of Moriah is believed by some to be the place where Solomon's temple was built.

Sarah died at the age of 127, and she is the only woman in the Bible whose age is mentioned. Abraham mourned and wept for Sarah. He bought the Cave of Machpelah to bury her, and it became the family burial place for Abraham's descendants.

After his mourning, Isaac remembered his mother. He was 40 years old, and Abraham sent his servant Eliezer 1300 kilometers to Haran (modern-day Iraq) to find a wife for Isaac from his relative, Laban. Eliezer swore an oath by placing his hand under Abraham's thigh to seek a wife for Isaac. Abraham told him not to take Isaac back to his relatives since they worshipped other gods, not the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Nevertheless, he went to Canaan, as God had promised Abraham that He would give his descendants that land.

Eliezer took ten camels and went to Mesopotamia, where he made the camels kneel by a well to drink water. Women would normally come to draw water for the animals. Eliezer prayed to God for a sign. This is the first prayer recorded in the Bible! He prayed, "O Lord, God of my master Abraham, if You will indeed prosper the way I am going, behold, I stand by the well of water, and the daughters of the men of the city are coming out to draw water. Now let it be that the young woman to whom I say, 'Please let down your pitcher that I may drink,' and she says, 'Drink, and I will also give your camels a drink,' let her be the one You have appointed for Your servant Isaac."

It is a tough job to find a good wife for someone. Nowadays, many young people try to find their own spouse without proper investigation, and they end up in many problems. It is said that half of marriages today end in divorce. So, before Eliezer finished praying, behold, a woman named Rebekah appeared, who was a relative of Abraham's brother Nahor.

Even you, when it is time to choose a life partner, entrust God to choose for you and lead your family.

Indeed, a faithful servant becomes like a child in the family! On his long journey, he could have run away with the servants and jewels, but he was faithful to his master. He went and returned, diligently fulfilling his duty. Let not our pride make us forget that even when we have wealth, everything belongs to the Lord, and we are His servants forever. Thus, one day, like Eliezer, our greatest reward will be to fulfill our mission: to reflect the character of our Lord and be obedient to Him. Before he had finished praying, he was answered! “Call to Me, and I will answer you, and show you great and mighty things which you do not know” (Jeremiah 33:3). “He who finds a wife finds a good thing, and obtains favor from the Lord” (Proverbs 18:22). “Houses and riches are an inheritance from fathers, but a prudent wife is from the Lord” (Proverbs 19:14). Counsel from experienced elders should be sought in matters of marriage; if ever the Bible is needed as counsel, it is now! If any guidance from the Lord can be sought through prayer, it is before making the decision to unite two people in marriage! One way to ensure that our children choose good Christian spouses is for them to be good Christians themselves.

🎁Prepare for eternity with a zeal and diligence that you have never shown before in your whole life. Teach your mind to love the Bible, love prayer meetings, love the time of meditation, and most of all, the time when your soul communicates with GOD. Keep heavenly thoughts, knowing that one day you will join the heavenly choir in the high mansions.

Questions: Why did God test Abraham? What did God do to stop Abraham from sacrificing Isaac? Why did Abraham not want Isaac to marry just any woman? Why did Eliezer pray? Is it good to marry anyone? Why?

God bless you so much, Child and Youth of Jesus 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Memory Verse: Genesis 22:12

[12]And He said, Lay not thine hand upon the lad, neither do thou any thing unto him: for now I know that thou fearest God, seeing thou hast not withheld thy son, thine only son from Me.

Prayer: Lord thank You for this day for You have given me all my needs. I pray You increase my faith like Abraham so that I do what You want, Help me to be obedient, for obedience is better than sacrifice. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

DAY 16 (January 16)

LESSON: A Wife for Isaac

(Genesis 24)

Eliezer hurried to meet Rebekah, and she was a beautiful young woman. Rebekah was the granddaughter of Abraham's brother Nahor. Eliezer asked her to draw some water from the well for him to drink, and when she finished giving him water, she said she would also water his camels. One camel can drink about 30 liters of water. Rebekah was hardworking, generous, and respectful to the elderly. Rebekah drew water for the camels without knowing the blessings that awaited her. Eliezer began to wonder in his heart if this was the woman God had appointed for Isaac. He gave her a gold ring and bracelets, then asked her, "Whose daughter are you?" When she told him, Eliezer realized she was a relative of Abraham. He then asked if there was room for him to stay at her home. Rebekah welcomed him, saying they had plenty of food for the animals.

Eliezer thanked God for His kindness in making his journey successful. Rebekah went to tell her brother Laban, and they welcomed Eliezer into their home, providing a place for his camels. They prepared food for him, but Eliezer refused to eat until he explained his mission. He told them that he was Abraham's servant and had been sent to find a wife for Isaac, Abraham's son. He explained how God had blessed Abraham and wanted Isaac to marry from his family.

Laban and his father agreed that Rebekah should marry Isaac, and Eliezer paid a dowry for her. The next day, Eliezer left, but Rebekah's family asked him to stay for ten days. Eliezer urged them not to delay, as everything had been made clear by God. Rebekah agreed to go with Eliezer to marry Isaac. They blessed her, saying, "May you become the mother of thousands of ten thousands." Rebekah left with her maids, riding camels to follow Eliezer.

Isaac saw them approaching while he was out in the field meditating in the evening. When Rebekah saw him, she took her veil and covered herself. Eliezer explained everything to Isaac, and Isaac took Rebekah as his wife. He loved her, and she comforted him after the death of his mother.

Marriage is God's plan, and both sides should talk and not just live together without the plans of marriage. Let us pray that we follow God's plans. This is a lesson for both young women and young men. Sometimes, our blessings come in unexpected ways like Rebekah's. She had heard about Abraham's faith and wealth, but she never expected to marry his son. If she had grumbled, rebelled, or resisted when asked to do something, how different would her story have been? Now, she is one of the women mentioned in the history of the world.

Isaac was a man of love and peace. He did not like quarrels, even though he was wealthy. He dug wells several times, and when people claimed them, he moved to dig new ones. He called for Ishmael to mourn their father without grudges. Indeed, the best way to overcome evil is with good. Finally, he dug a well at Beersheba, which was not contested. God appeared to Isaac, blessing him with many descendants and confirming the promises made to his father, Abraham.

After Sarah's death, Abraham married another woman, Keturah, who bore him six children. Isaac was the firstborn heir to Abraham. Abraham lived 175 years, dying in a good old age. Isaac and Ishmael, along with their families, came to mourn for him, and he was buried in the Cave of Machpelah. Ishmael lived 137 years and died as the father of a great nation.

The interactions between the people of the land and Abraham are interesting, especially when he bought the burial plot for his wife. They called him "Prince of God," showing great respect for him as a servant of God. Though they offered the land for free, Abraham insisted on paying for it. Death is not the end for us. Wherever we are buried, even if our ashes are scattered, it is not the end. We have the assurance of a blessed resurrection when Jesus returns in glory. (1 Thessalonians 4:13-17) We will have the opportunity to meet Abraham, Sarah, and many other people from the Bible who were saved by God's grace.

There is no need to spend a lot of money on a tomb; that is not the end of us. The new heaven and earth will be our dwelling place! Best of all, God Himself will be with us and will be our God, and He will wipe away every tear from our eyes. There will be no more death, mourning, crying, or pain! "Truly, the time is coming when the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God, and those who hear will live." "For this God is our God forever and ever; He will be our guide even to the end." "Death will be swallowed up forever." Then the Lord God will wipe away every tear from all faces."

Abraham was likely comforted by this thought, as the Bible says about him and other heroes of faith, "These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off were assured of them, embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth" (Hebrews 11:13). Let this thought continue to comfort and encourage widows and orphans

Questions: Why was Rebekah willing to go with Eliezer? What was Rebekah's brother's name? Who is Keturah? Can a child's goodness also bless the parent? How? How many years did Abraham live? What good example did Rebekah set for girls today? How did Rebekah's parents and relatives respond when Eliezer told them about the mission he was following? What example does Isaac give us about maintaining peace with our friends and neighbors?

God bless you greatly, Child and Young One of Jesus

Memory Verse: Genesis 24:58

[58]And they called Rebekah, and said unto her, Wilt thou go with this man? And she said, I will go.

Prayer: Lord God I pray You grant me to be a child and youth who is obedient, generous, and with faith that pleases You. But also I thank You for the promise that death is not the end, but I will live with You in the new world forever and ever. In the Name of Jesus I believe, Amen.

Activity: A play of Eliezer when he went to look for a wife for Isaac. What is marriage and who are involved, How should people live in this institution which God has given them. Bake a cake, decorate it, and draw a picture of the groom and the bride. Or you may choose to explain the death of Sarah using the example of John 11 of Lazarus. And explain that when a person dies he does not go to heaven immediately or receive punishment right away.

DAY 17 (January 17)

LESSON: The Struggle of the Twins and the Birthright

(Genesis 25)

Isaac prayed to God for his wife. Rebekah was barren, without children, and the Lord answered him and took her pregnancy. She had twin babies in her womb, and they struggled; she became discouraged and said, "Why is this happening to me?" When she asked God, she was told that two nations were in her womb, and two peoples would separate from her body; one nation would be stronger than the other, and the older would serve the younger. When the time for her to give birth came, the first twin came out, and he was red; he was named Esau or Edom (meaning red). His brother came out holding Esau's heel and was named Jacob. Isaac was sixty years old when the children were born. The children grew up. Esau loved to hunt wild animals in the wilderness, while Jacob was quiet and stayed among the tents. Isaac loved Esau because he ate the wild game he brought, but Rebekah loved Jacob. Favoring one child over the other is a bad thing for a parent because it causes the children to be divided. It seems that there were two kitchens: the father eating with Esau, and the mother cooking and eating with Jacob.

One day, Jacob cooked a stew of lentils. Esau came in from the wilderness exhausted and hungry, and asked Jacob to give him some of the red stew he was making, saying that he was about to die from hunger. Jacob deceitfully told him to sell his birthright as the firstborn in exchange for the food. Esau, without thinking, sold his birthright for a bowl of soup, saying, “Look, I am about to die; what good is the birthright to me?” Jacob told Esau to swear an oath, and he swore. Esau ate, drank, and then left. This is how Esau despised his birthright. He sold a great inheritance for a mere bowl of food. This is what happened to Eve; she sold everything for a piece of fruit. Similarly, many people today sell themselves or degrade themselves for passing pleasures. Let us take care not to sell our salvation, just as Esau did with his birthright.

🎁 Esau took two wives, one named Judith and the other Basemath, both Hittites. These wives brought grief to Isaac and Rebekah. Later, Esau took a third wife, a daughter of Ishmael, his father’s brother. It seems that Esau married non-believers, while his father had set an example of marrying one wife. Esau’s multiple marriages brought much strife, which was contrary to God’s plan. Why did Isaac take time to have children, but Ishmael continued to have children? Why do the righteous suffer? I must admit I do not have an answer. However, if you are a child of God and face a problem that others do not, know that you are not the first child of God to be in this situation. Whether you believe it or not, this is absolutely true: “And we know that in all things God works for the good of those who love Him, who have been called according to His purpose.” (Romans 8:28). Only in heaven will we fully understand this truth. Continue trusting God!

🎁 The presence of God makes times of prayer and public worship sacred. True worship of God is stirred by a sense of His infinite greatness and an awareness of His presence. Every child should be deeply drawn to this presence. The time and place of prayer and public worship should be seen as holy because God is there. As awe and reverence are shown in attitude and behavior, the sense of His presence will grow stronger.

🎁 Questions: How did Esau and Jacob differ? Why was the birthright important? Why did Esau not value his birthright? What advice would you give to parents who show favoritism to one child? How should we go about choosing a spouse?

God bless you greatly, Child and Young One of Jesus

Memory Verse: Genesis 25:22

[22]And the children struggled together within her; and she said, If it be so, why am I thus? And she went to enquire of the LORD.

Prayer: Our Holy God, thank You for the life and health You have given me. Teach me to value the things that please You and not to love the things of this world which pass away. In the Name of Jesus I pray, Amen.

Activity: Make a play of how Esau lost the birthright because of food or just lentil stew. The birthright relates to both physical and spiritual matters, explain these in depth.

DAY 18 (January 18)

LESSON: Jacob Takes Esau's Blessing

(Genesis 27 and 28)

When Isaac became old and his eyes were dim, he called his eldest son Esau and told him, "I am old and do not know the day of my death. Take your weapons and go out to the field to hunt me some game. Make me some delicious food, as I like, and bring it to me so that I may eat and bless you before I die." Rebekah overheard this and told Jacob, her younger son, what she had heard. She instructed him to go to the flock and bring her two young goats so that she could prepare a meal as his father liked. Then Jacob was to take the food to Isaac so that he could receive the blessing before his death.

Rebekah told Jacob, "My son, listen to my voice and do as I command. Go to the flock and bring me two choice young goats. I will make your father's favorite dish, and you will take it to him so that he may bless you before he dies." Jacob replied that his father might feel him and realize he was not Esau because he was smooth-skinned while Esau was hairy. He feared that his father would curse him instead of blessing him. Rebekah reassured him, saying, "Let the curse fall on me, my son. Just obey my voice and go bring them to me."

🎁 Jacob did as his mother instructed. He made the food the way his father liked it, and Rebekah dressed him in Esau's clothes and covered his hands and neck with goat skins to mimic Esau's hairiness. She then gave him the food to take to Isaac. Jacob went to his father and said, "My father." Isaac replied, "Here I am, who are you, my son?" Jacob lied, saying, "I am Esau, your firstborn. I have done as you told me. Please sit up and eat the game so that you may bless me." Isaac wondered how he had found the game so quickly. Jacob deceitfully said that the Lord had provided it for him. Isaac still had doubts and asked Jacob to come closer so he could touch him. When Isaac felt Jacob's hands, he said, "The voice is Jacob's, but the hands are Esau's.

Isaac discovered that it was Jacob's hands, covered with goat's hair. So, he blessed him and asked again, "Are you really my son Esau?" Jacob answered, "I am." He asked for game to be brought to him so that his soul could bless him. Jacob brought the food to his father, and he ate and drank wine. After finishing, he called Jacob and kissed him. As he drew near and smelled the scent of his clothes, he blessed him, saying, "The scent of my son is like the scent of the field that the Lord has blessed. May God give you the dew of heaven and the fatness of the earth, and plenty of grain and wine. Let nations serve you, and let peoples bow down to you. Be the master of your brothers, and let your mother's sons bow down to you. Cursed be those who curse you, and blessed be those who bless you."

🎁As soon as Jacob was blessed by his father Isaac and left his presence, Esau entered with his game, cooked the tasty food, and told his father to sit and eat so that his soul could bless him. Isaac was greatly startled and asked, "Who are you?" Esau replied, "I am your son Esau, your firstborn." Isaac trembled violently and asked, "Then who was it that brought me game and I ate it all before you came, and I blessed him?" The blessing had already been given to Jacob.

🎁When Esau heard this, he let out a loud and bitter cry and realized that his younger brother had deceived him. Esau cried and pleaded with his father, asking if there was any blessing left for him. Isaac responded that he had made Jacob his master and that all his brothers would serve him. Isaac concluded,

“Behold, the fatness of the earth will be your dwelling, and the dew of heaven from above. By your sword, you shall live, and you shall serve your brother; but when you grow restless, you shall break his yoke from your neck.”

Esau hated Jacob because of the blessing he had received, and he began to plan in his heart that when their father died, he would take revenge by killing his brother Jacob. When Rebekah heard about this, she called Jacob and told him that Esau was planning to kill him. She advised him to flee immediately to her brother Laban in Haran until Esau’s anger had passed and he had forgotten the harm Jacob had done. Rebekah said, “Why should I lose both of you in one day?” Truly, parents can bring hatred between their children. Even today, there are parents like Rebekah who cause siblings to hate each other, even to the point of murder.

Rebekah shows two different behaviors before and after marriage. One might think she was a good, godly woman when she met Abraham’s servant! As a woman, this made me reflect on how we, as women, sometimes want to take charge and feel like we know best in helping our children, even more than God does. Eve thought this way about the fruit, Sarah thought this way concerning Hagar despite God’s promise to her, and Rebekah deceived Isaac because of favoritism and wanting to hasten God’s promise to Jacob as the firstborn of the family.

These actions caused a significant impact on the behavior of future generations. Even though Jacob received the blessing he wanted, the consequences were severe, as he never saw his mother or father again, and his brother wanted to kill him. He was deceived by his uncle, and his whole family fell apart. The cost of following our own way is immense. Deception is truly destructive. One wonders why deception and lies persist in our families today! We must rely on the Lord at all times, not on our beauty or our deeds! The Bible is the only source of truth! It does not glorify those who sin or cover their transgressions. Every human in the Bible had flaws, except for JESUS. Today, we have many flaws, but let us remember Romans 5, that while we were yet sinners, the Messiah came to us as Immanuel, God with us (Matthew 1:23). The ladder Jacob saw represents Jesus (John 1:51) and the relationship between God and sinful humanity. The human family may be lonely, fearful, and tired, but God has not forsaken us. Indeed, He is the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—the God of all people struggling with troubled families. Lord, please change our hearts. Amen.

In those days, the firstborn inherited double the wealth. This continues in other places, and daughters usually do not inherit unless they marry.

Rebekah told Isaac that she was sending Jacob to Mesopotamia, where he came from, to find a wife from her brother Laban's family. Isaac called Jacob, blessed him, and told him not to marry a Canaanite woman but to go to his mother's family to take a wife. He said, "May the Lord bless you, increase you, and multiply you that you may become a company of peoples. May He give you the blessing of Abraham, to you and your offspring, that you may inherit the land in which you dwell, the land God gave to Abraham."

Instead of a grand caravan like Eliezer's when he went to find a wife for Isaac, Jacob left as a refugee. God had said the younger would rule over the elder, so Jacob would let God fulfill His plan, instead of becoming a deceiver.

Jacob fled from his brother's anger, leaving Beer-Sheba and heading toward Haran. As he traveled, he stopped at a certain place and slept there, using a stone for a pillow. He had a dream in which he saw a ladder set up on the earth, and its top reached to heaven, with angels ascending and descending on it. This dream showed that God had set up a ladder, and the angels were messengers connecting heaven and humanity. He saw the Lord standing above the ladder and saying, "I am the Lord, the God of Abraham your father and the God of Isaac. The land on which you lie, I will give to you and your descendants. Your descendants will be as the dust of the earth, and all the families of the earth will be blessed through you. Behold, I am with you and will keep you wherever you go, and will bring you back to this land; for I will not leave you until I have done what I have spoken to you."

Truly, God is merciful. If we repent and seek forgiveness for any sin, big or small, He forgives us and gives us hope. Jacob was fleeing from the deceit he had conspired in with his mother, but God loved him and continued to show him His love. When Jacob woke up from his sleep, he was afraid and said, "Surely the Lord is in this place, and I did not know it." He realized that it was a fearful place, and he called it Bethel, which means "house of God." The next morning, Jacob took the stone he had slept on and set it up as a pillar. He made a vow that if God would be with him, protect him, provide for him with food and clothing, and bring him safely back to his father's house, then the Lord would be his God, and he would give a tenth (tithe) of all that God gave him.

Essentially, Jacob was a wolf in sheep's clothing. By doing this, he disguised himself as Esau, but his voice remained that of Jacob. Isn't this what happens in the world today? People have religious feelings, but their actions are deceitful? They call themselves believers but deny the foundational teachings of the Bible. Paul, in his letter to Timothy, refers to those who have a form of godliness but deny its power. The devil doesn't care if we go to church or call ourselves Christians as long as our worship is outward and we speak deceitfully to our brethren. He loves to attack our weaknesses. We have not been abandoned. God's angels are ascending and descending to help us. Jacob, who was deceived, was reborn after going through difficult times. Esau, on the other hand, despised his birthright. We see him weeping in regret that he did not receive the blessings associated with being the firstborn. But the truth is, he was not interested in the responsibilities of the birthright, he just wanted the blessing. This is like someone who claims to be a Christian but does not want to do God's will; they just want to be blessed financially, socially, and physically. Denying oneself and building God's kingdom is not their goal.

God has given us the examples of faith heroes in the Bible, who we are sure were saved in the end, to assure us that even with our past lives, we too are saved if we repent. Because we have been forgiven by God for our past sins, let us forgive ourselves and stop questioning if God accepts us. He never rejects anyone who comes to Him (John 6:37)! God has given us today a ladder that reaches to Him, from earth to heaven. On top of this ladder is God, watching us as we climb, and when we weaken, He sends help. Let us speak words full of joy and hope, for all the examples in the Bible are teachings for us. No one who perseveres in climbing the ladder will fail to find the door to enter the heavenly city.

Millions today sell their birthright for the pleasures of the world. Health is sacrificed, mental abilities are weakened, and heaven is lost—all for a fleeting pleasure that weakens and degrades character. Just as Esau woke up and realized the foolishness of trading his birthright so hastily, it was too late for him to recover his loss. So it will be on the day of the Lord for those who have traded their heavenly inheritance for temporary enjoyment.

Whether prayers are offered in public meetings, family altars, or secretly, they always place a person directly before GOD. Through persistent prayer, young people can find firm principles that are so strong that even the most powerful temptations will not pull them away from their faith in God.

Questions: Why did Rebekah want Jacob to receive the firstborn's blessing? Did Rebekah and Jacob do what was right? Why did Isaac doubt that it was Esau? Why did Esau hate Jacob? Why was Jacob blessed even though he was deceitful? What does Bethel mean? What is a tithe?

May God bless you abundantly, Child and Young One of Jesus

Memory Verse: Genesis 27:35

[35]And he said, Thy brother came with subtlety, and hath taken away thy blessing.

Prayer: Thank You Almighty God for loving me and forgiving my sins as You did for Jacob. Help me to be a truthful child without deceit, serving You with a willing heart. In the Name of Jesus Amen.

Activity: A play of Jacob's deceit. Or Jacob's journey to his father, and when he was fleeing from his brother.

DAY 19 (January 19)

TOPIC: The Family of Jacob

(Genesis 29-31)

Jacob traveled a distance of 730 km to Haran. God assures humanity that when we travel and serve Him, He is always with us. He says, "I am with you to the end of the age." When Jacob arrived, he waited near a well, which was where Eliezer had seen his mother, Rebecca. While waiting, he saw three flocks of sheep resting, with a large stone covering the well. People would gather to roll the stone away and water their flocks. Jacob spoke to them and asked, "Brothers, where are you from?" They said, "We are from Haran." He then asked if they knew Laban, his uncle. They confirmed they knew him and showed him Rachel, Laban's daughter, who was coming to water the sheep. Upon seeing her, Jacob rolled the stone away and helped Rachel water her uncle's flocks. He introduced himself and told her he was the son of Rebecca, her relative. When Laban heard this, he went to meet Jacob and said, "You are indeed my bone and my flesh." Jacob stayed with him for a month. Laban then told him that he should be paid for his work. Laban had two daughters, the older one was Leah, and the younger one was Rachel.

Jacob loved Rachel and said, “I will serve you for seven years for Rachel, your younger daughter.” Laban agreed. After seven years, Laban held a feast, and in the evening, he gave Leah to Jacob instead of Rachel. In the morning, Jacob discovered he had been given Leah. The deception Jacob had done to Esau was now done to him. He was angry with Laban, but it didn’t help. He was told that the older sister must marry first. Jacob loved Rachel and thought Leah was not as beautiful. Laban then told him that after a week of the wedding, he could marry Rachel, and Jacob would serve him another seven years as the dowry for Rachel. Jacob, who had been a fugitive, had no wealth to pay a dowry. Thus, Jacob ended up marrying two sisters in a week, at the age of about 84. Leah came with her maidservant Zilpah, and Rachel with her maidservant Bilhah. God saw that Leah was unloved and opened her womb, but Rachel was barren. Leah gave birth to her first son, Reuben, then Simeon, Levi, and Judah. Rachel became angry and said to Jacob, “Give me children, or I will die.”

Jacob was angered and replied, “Am I in the place of God, who has withheld children from you?” The home was filled with tension. Rachel gave her maidservant Bilhah to Jacob, and she bore him two sons, Dan and Naphtali. Leah also gave Jacob her maidservant Zilpah, who bore him two more sons, Gad and Asher. The rivalry between the two sisters continued as Jacob openly favored Rachel. God blessed Leah again, and she gave birth to two more sons, Issachar and Zebulun, and a daughter, Dinah. Later, God remembered Rachel, opened her womb, and she bore Joseph, saying, “May the Lord add another son to me.” Before her death, she bore Benjamin.

Jacob served Laban for another six years to earn wealth, making it a total of 20 years. Marrying two wives is bad, and marrying two sisters is worse. The sisters continued to quarrel, but Jacob and their father could have prevented it. Jacob noticed that Laban was cheating him by changing his wages ten times. Laban saw that God was blessing Jacob, and his wealth, though modest, grew considerably under Jacob’s management. Laban was a tough man, yet Jacob was now counted as one of his sons, as both of his daughters were married to Jacob. They made an agreement that any animals born with speckled or striped coats would belong to Jacob, and the rest would belong to Laban. God blessed Jacob’s livestock, and his sheep, donkeys, camels, and even servants increased.

Laban and his sons began to say, “Jacob has taken all the wealth of our father, and from what belongs to our father, he has gained glory.” Jacob noticed that his father-in-law no longer regarded him favorably. Then God told Jacob to return to his father's house in Beer-sheba, promising to be with him. Jacob sent a message to his wives, telling them that their father no longer treated him well. "But the God of my father has been with me," he said. "You know how hard I have worked for your father. He has deceived me and changed my wages ten times, but God has not allowed him to harm me." God commanded Jacob to return to the land of his birth. Rachel and Leah agreed, saying that their father had sold them, and taken the money that belonged to them and their children. They agreed to follow God's instructions. They left without saying goodbye to Laban, their family, or their servants. Jacob took his wages in livestock with him. Rachel stole her father's idols.

Three days later, Laban was told that Jacob had fled, and he pursued him for seven days. God warned Laban in a dream, telling him, "Be careful not to speak to Jacob either good or bad." When Laban reached Jacob, he accused him of deceit, saying, "Why did you deceive me and take my daughters as captives? Why did you flee secretly and not let me kiss my daughters and grandchildren?" Jacob responded by explaining the unfair treatment he had received from Laban and how, if it weren't for God, he would have left empty-handed. Laban admitted that his daughters were his, and the animals were his, but they made an agreement to part ways and called the place Mizpah, which means "May the Lord watch between me and you when we are absent from one another." They ate a meal together and then Laban returned home. Rachel gave birth to Benjamin, but died in childbirth.

This family went through a lot of conflict, jealousy, competition, polygamy, quarrels, leadership struggles, and anger—among other issues. Jacob had deceived others, and now the tables were turned. When we trust God to meet our needs, we find the peace and joy that cannot be found by manipulating or controlling others. Our true identity and happiness come from the Lord, not from people. Jacob encountered the Angel of God, who said, “This is God’s army.”

Fearing his brother Esau, Jacob sent messengers to the land of Seir to inform Esau that he had been living with Laban and had acquired livestock, servants, and wealth. He sent these gifts in hopes of finding favor in Esau’s eyes. Upon hearing the news, Esau came to meet Jacob with 400 men. Jacob was greatly afraid, so he divided his people into two groups, hoping that if Esau attacked one, the other might escape.

Jacob prayed, acknowledging God’s promises and asking for protection from Esau. He then prepared a generous gift for Esau and sent it ahead with his servants. As night came, Jacob was left alone and wrestled with a man until daybreak. The man touched Jacob’s hip and dislocated it, but Jacob refused to let go unless he was blessed. The man renamed him Israel, saying, “You have struggled with God and with men, and have prevailed.” Jacob called the place Peniel, meaning, “I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved.” Jacob walked away limping because of the injury to his hip. From then on, the Israelites did not eat the tendon of the hip.

The next day, Jacob saw Esau approaching with his 400 men. Jacob bowed seven times before Esau. Esau embraced him, kissed him, and they wept. The two brothers reconciled. God had forgiven Jacob, and Esau forgave him as well. Jacob introduced his wives and children, and Esau inquired about the gift. Jacob begged Esau to accept it. The brothers, after 20 years of separation, were now at peace.

Esau wanted them to travel together, but Jacob declined, saying his children and livestock needed to be cared for slowly. Esau returned to Seir, while Jacob continued to Succoth and eventually reached Shechem. There, he dug a well, which later became the site where the Samaritan woman encountered Jesus. Jacob and Esau met again during the funeral of their father, Isaac. Esau continued to live in Edom. Even today, when there is strife with a brother or sister, we must ask for forgiveness and forgive, because no one is perfect; we all have weaknesses.

Two reasons made Jacob’s prayer powerful: First, he asked God for mercy. Jesus says those who come to God pleading, “Have mercy on me, a sinner!”

are justified, as opposed to those who come claiming their own righteousness (Luke 18:10-14). Secondly, Jacob based his prayer on God's promises (Genesis 32:10-12). Our prayers should be based on God's promises. The honor of God's throne is established by the fulfillment of His Word. We should not focus on the faults of others but examine our own hearts, taking our Bibles and praying sincerely to God, asking Him to reveal our weaknesses, sins, and ignorance, with eternity in mind. Let's not rest until we have a testimony of victory. God can even turn our enemies into friends, so let us not give up in prayer.

🎁 Jesus' prayer is simple, clear, and inclusive, but it is not long and dry like many public prayers that lack spiritual life. Such prayers should not be spoken, as they fail to bless or build.

Questions:

1. Who did Jacob wrestle with?

2. Why did God change Jacob's name?

3. Describe how the twins reconciled.

4. Where did Esau live?

5. Why is reconciliation after conflict important?

6. I've noticed some of these issues in my family—what should we do when we see such issues in our families?

7. What struggles are you facing today?

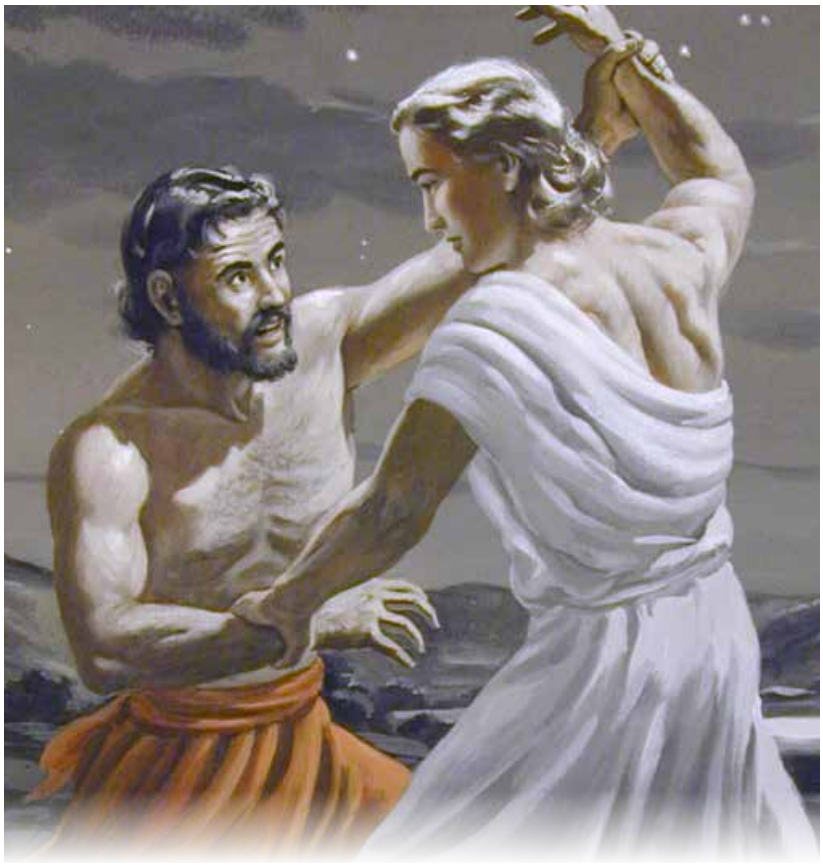
8. Can someone's struggles bring blessings?

9. If the things displayed on the shelves in a museum represent God's grace, how can this be seen in Jacob's life?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus. 👥

Key Verse: Genesis 31:42, 43.

[42,43]Except the God of my father, the God of Abraham, and the fear of Isaac, had been with me, surely thou hadst sent me away now empty. God hath seen mine affliction and the labor of my hands, and rebuked thee yesternight. And Laban answered and said unto Jacob, These daughters are my daughters, and these children are my children, and these cattle are my cattle, and all that thou seest is mine: and what can I do this day unto these my daughters, or unto their children which they have born?



Prayer: Lord thank You for Your blessings. Although many times we sin against You, You protect us from people who want to cheat or oppress us. Thank You for Your favor Lord. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Draw a picture of the 13 children eating at the table. Talk about how many siblings each of you has. And how they should relate with their siblings.

DAY 20 (January 20)

TOPIC: The Struggle of the Night

🎁 Jacob did not know that Rachel had taken her father's idols. When Laban entered Rachel's tent, she had hidden the idols in the camel's saddle and sat on them. Laban could not find them, and Rachel lied, saying she could not rise before him because she was having her period. Jacob became angry with Laban and said, "What is my sin that you have pursued me so? You have searched through all my belongings, what have you found of your household goods?" Jacob then elaborated on the deceitfulness of Laban's dealings with him over the years, stating that he had worked faithfully for Laban for 20 years, through the harsh heat and cold. He emphasized that if it weren't for the God of Abraham and Isaac, Laban would have sent him away empty-handed. Laban admitted that his daughters were his daughters and that the animals were his, and they made a covenant at Mizpah, meaning "May God watch between me and you when we are apart." He warned Jacob not to mistreat his daughters. They made a sacrifice on the mountain, shared a meal, and then Laban kissed his daughters and returned home. Rachel, who was pregnant with Benjamin, Jacob's 12th son, died during childbirth.

🎁 This family faced many struggles, including sibling rivalry, polygamy, jealousy, quarrels, and authority struggles. Jacob had deceived others, but now the tables had turned. When we trust God to meet our needs, we find peace of heart and joy that cannot be found by using or controlling others. Our true identity, which brings joy, should be rooted in God, not in human approval. Jacob continued on his journey, and the angels of God met him. He said, “This is God’s camp.” Fearing his brother Esau, Jacob sent a message to the land of Seir, the region of Edom, saying, “This is what your servant Jacob says: I have been staying with Laban and have remained there until now. I have cattle, donkeys, sheep, servants, and maids. I am sending this message to inform you and to find favor in your eyes.” Upon receiving the message, Esau came with 400 men. Jacob was very afraid and distressed. He divided the people with him into two groups, thinking if Esau attacks one group, the other will escape.

🎁 His favorite wife, Rachel, was placed last, and the others were placed in front. This indeed shows the division caused by polygamy and clear favoritism. Jacob then withdrew to pray, saying to God, “You told me to return to my country and my relatives, and you promised to do me good. I am not worthy of the least of all the mercies you have shown me, but if you protect me from my brother Esau, I will be safe.” Jacob sent ahead of him gifts for Esau: 220 goats, 220 sheep, 30 camels with their young, 50 cattle, and 30 donkeys. Jacob crossed the Jabbok River with his family and remained alone overnight. A man wrestled with him until dawn. When the man saw that he could not overpower Jacob, he touched his hip, and Jacob’s hip was dislocated. The man said, “Let me go, for it is daybreak,” but Jacob refused to let him go unless he blessed him. The man then told him, “Your name will no longer be Jacob, but Israel, because you have struggled with God and with men and have overcome.”

🎁 To win means never giving up! Jacob, now named Israel, is the father of the nation of Israel. When Jacob asked the man his name, he was told, “Why do you ask my name?” Jacob named the place Peniel, meaning “I have seen God face to face, and yet my life is spared.” As dawn broke, Jacob limped away because of his dislocated hip. From that day, the Israelites did not eat the meat around the hip joint.

🎁 Jacob looked up and saw Esau coming with his 400 men. Jacob bowed seven times before Esau, who ran to him, embraced him, kissed him, and both wept. The two brothers were reconciled. God says, “Come, let us reason together; though your sins are like scarlet, they shall be as white as snow.” Jacob had been forgiven by God and by his brother. Esau asked who the children and wives were, and Jacob replied, “These are the children God has graciously given your servant.” The family bowed before Esau. Esau asked about the gifts, and Jacob urged him to accept them. The two brothers reconciled after 20 years apart. Their mother was dead, and Jacob regretted the wrongs he had done. Despite the hardships he had faced while working for Laban, he returned home with great wealth. God is merciful and forgives sins, but we must listen to His voice, change our ways, confess our sins, and seek true repentance.

🎁 Esau wanted them to travel together, but Jacob explained that his children and livestock needed to travel slowly. Esau returned to Seir, while Jacob continued to Succoth and then to Shechem. There, he dug a well, the same one that the Samaritan woman came to draw water from in John 4. Jacob and Esau met again at the burial of their father Isaac. Esau continued to live in Edom. Even today, if you have a conflict with your sibling, ask for forgiveness and reconcile, for no one is perfect, and we all have weaknesses.

🎁 Two reasons why Jacob's prayer was powerful: He asked for God's mercy. Jesus says that those who come to God saying, "Have mercy on me, a sinner!" are justified, unlike those who come demanding "justice" because of their "good deeds" (Luke 18:10-14). The second reason is that Jacob based his prayer on God's promises (Genesis 32:10-12). Our prayers are grounded in God's promises. The glory of God's throne is upheld by the fulfillment of His Word. We have no time to dwell on the mistakes of Jacob or others; instead, we must wake up and examine our own hearts. Let us take our Bibles, come to God in sincere prayer, ask Him to help us understand our weaknesses, sins, and ignorance, and consider eternity. Let us ask Him to show us where we stand before Him. This is a personal task. Let us not rest, day or night, until we have the testimony of victory. Indeed, God can turn even our enemies into friends; let us not give up in prayer.

🎁 Jesus' prayer is simple, clear, and profound, encompassing everything without being too long to lose spiritual warmth like dry prayers often offered publicly. Prayers without spirit are better left unsaid, for they do not bless or build, and are merely empty rituals.

QUESTIONS: Who did Jacob wrestle with? Why did God change Jacob's name? Describe how the twins were reconciled. Where did Esau live? Why is reconciliation after a conflict important? I have seen some of these issues in my family, what should we do when we see such issues in our families? What struggles are you facing today? Can the struggles a person faces lead to blessings? If things displayed outside in a museum are a symbol of God's grace in the life of Jacob, can you explain this?

God bless you, Child and Youth of Jesus.👧👦

Key Verse: Genesis 32:28-32

[28-31]And He said, Thy name shall be called no more Jacob, but Israel: for as a prince hast thou power with God and with men, and hast prevailed. And Jacob asked Him, and said, Tell me, I pray Thee, Thy name. And He said, Wherefore is it that thou dost ask after My name? And He blessed him there. And Jacob called the name of the place Peniel: for I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved. And as he passed over Penuel the sun rose upon him, and he halted upon his thigh.

Prayer: |Thank You Heavenly Father for goodness, protection and favor. Help us to see You one day face to face, give us new names so that we may live new lives. Help us to continue wrestling the wrestling of prayer. We thank You for Your love toward us. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

DAY 21 (January 21)

TOPIC: Joseph and His Brothers

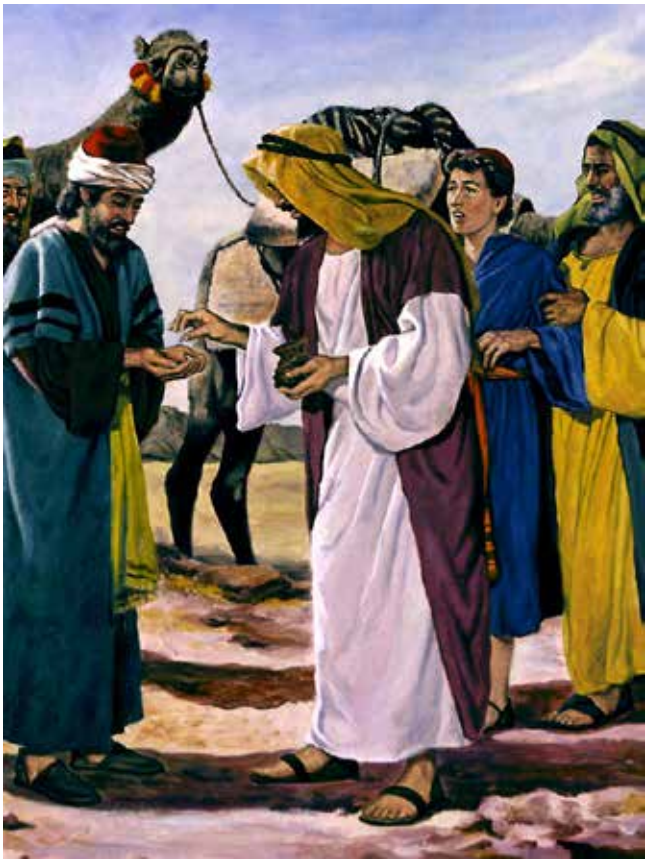
When Jacob arrived in Canaan, it was at Bethlehem that Benjamin was born, and his mother Rachel died immediately after giving birth. Jacob now had 12 sons and one daughter. This daughter, Dinah, went out to visit the women of the land of Shechem, and the son of the ruler of that land took her and slept with her (though not much is elaborated, we can say she was raped). He loved Dinah and was willing to marry her, but started with an improper step. Wanting to marry her does not justify going against the path of sin. One sin often leads to another, as many men of that city were killed. We must remember that girls and even boys are at risk when they go into cities of those who do not fear God without their parents. The prince of that city eventually told his father to give Dinah as his wife.

Jacob heard about this, and when his sons came home, they were upset and angry. Shechem said that he was willing to marry Dinah, share with them in business, and live in peace. He was even ready to pay a bride price. However, Jacob's sons deceitfully said they would only give Dinah to him if all the men of the city were circumcised. They agreed, and while they were still in pain from the circumcision, Simeon and Levi attacked them with swords, killed all the men, and took Dinah away, showing their anger over what had been done to their sister. Jacob feared the repercussions and told Simeon and Levi that they had brought trouble upon him and made him odious among the people of the land. Jacob knew the value of forgiveness after committing his own sins, but his sons had not yet learned. Jacob would later repeat this event while blessing his children. Indeed, uncontrolled anger is dangerous!

God spoke to Jacob, telling him to move to Bethel. Jacob instructed his household to remove their foreign gods and go to Bethel to make an altar to God. They gave him all their jewelry, including rings, bracelets, and earrings. God appeared to Jacob again and promised that his descendants would grow, and nations would come from him. Jacob made a sacrifice and called the place Bethel.



Joseph was one of Jacob's sons, and his father loved him greatly. Jacob showed favor to Joseph by making him a richly ornamented coat, and his brothers grew jealous. They hated him because their father loved him more than them. Joseph, being obedient, also brought a bad report about his brothers to his father, which made them even more angry. Jacob (Israel) made Joseph a richly ornamented coat, and his brothers saw that their father loved him more than them, and they hated him. They could not even speak to him peacefully.

Jacob also made a mistake by showing favoritism, just as his parents did to him. Joseph had two dreams, one where his brothers' sheaves of grain bowed down to his, and another where the sun, moon, and eleven stars bowed down to him. His brothers mocked him, saying, "Do you intend to reign over us? Will you actually rule us?" They hated him even more because of his dreams.

Jacob, who had experienced the rivalry between Rachel and Leah, now witnessed this jealousy against Joseph. His brothers went to tend sheep in Shechem, about 75 km away. Jacob sent Joseph to check on his brothers and bring back a report. He traveled around asking, and someone told him they were in Dothan, about 22 km away. When his brothers saw him approaching, they plotted to kill him and throw him into a pit, saying that a wild animal had devoured him. Reuben, the eldest, overheard their plan and suggested they not kill him but throw him into a cistern to save him later. They stripped Joseph of his coat and threw him into the dry pit.

As they ate, they saw a caravan of Ishmaelite traders on their way to Egypt. Judah suggested they sell Joseph to the Ishmaelites instead of killing him, and they agreed. They sold Joseph for 20 pieces of silver, and he was taken to Egypt. Reuben returned to the pit and found that Joseph was gone. He tore his clothes and was distressed, asking what to tell their father. They took Joseph's coat, slaughtered a goat, and smeared the blood on the coat, presenting it to their father, who immediately recognized it and thought that a wild animal had killed Joseph.

Jacob tore his clothes and mourned for his son for many days. His sons tried to comfort him, but he refused to be comforted, saying, "I will continue mourning until I join my son in the grave." Joseph, however, was sold as a slave Activity: Act out how Joseph was speaking with his brothers in special events. Or act about the life of Dinah, her friends and her brothers. Then discuss the life lessons of those people.

Or a play of Joseph and Potiphar's wife and the evil of rape—because of the child's age it is a sensitive matter but every child must be taught to recognize people who will bring harm or pain to them. We teach children to cross the road, avoid fire or deep waters. Many children are abused. And in the country I live in they say 90% of abusers are people the children know. And 23% are children themselves abusing each other, and some children are under five years old. Many do not leave their children with strangers but ask yourself, does your child go to play at the neighbor's, do you have guests who came to your home. Our children must go out and go to school or live in our homes but they must be taught something.

1. Talk to your child about body parts early. Use real names, or according to the child's understanding. Start this matter early.

2. Teach them that some body parts are private. No one should see them except mother or father or the one you have allowed to help treat them, bathe them etc.

3. Teach your child body boundaries.

4. Tell your child that secrets related to the body when someone tells them ‘don’t tell anyone’ are not right at all.

5. Tell your child that no one should take pictures of their private parts. Many people with mental illness and sin do this and put these pictures online.

6. Teach your child how to get out of scary or unpleasant situations that make them feel fear or anxiety. Teach them to say “I don’t want,” tell them to say they want to go to the toilet or somewhere they can escape.

7. Have a secret word which your children can use as a password when they feel unsafe or want to be picked up while at school or at people’s homes.

8. Tell your children they will not get punishment or trouble if they tell you a secret about the body or about these evil people.

9. Tell your child that body touches can be pleasant or ticklish, don’t just say good touch or bad touch, but focus on a touch that someone wants to keep secret or not report anywhere.

10. Tell your child that these rules apply even to people they know and even to another child. Remind the child that even if they love someone and he appears respectable, never allow him to touch them except you the parent when bathing them or helping them in health matters etc.

DAY 22 (January 22)

TOPIC: Joseph Comes Out of Prison

The Pharaoh's cupbearer and baker had been imprisoned because they had offended their master. The prison warden placed them under Joseph's supervision. One night, both of them had dreams. The next morning, Joseph noticed their troubled faces and asked them why they were sad. They told him they had dreamed but did not know the meaning. Then Joseph told them to share their dreams, explaining that only God could interpret them. He gave glory to God and did not boast about knowing the meaning himself. This is rare today, as many people assume they know everything.

The cupbearer said in his dream, he saw a vine with three branches before him. The vine budded, blossomed, and produced ripe grapes. He took the grapes, squeezed them into Pharaoh's cup, and handed it to Pharaoh. Joseph interpreted the dream, saying that in three days, Pharaoh would restore him to his position, and he would serve Pharaoh again as before. Joseph asked the cupbearer to remember him and mention him to Pharaoh so that he could be released from prison. He explained that he had been stolen from the land of the Hebrews and had done nothing to deserve imprisonment.

The baker also shared his dream. He saw three baskets of white bread on his head. The top basket contained Pharaoh's baked goods, but birds ate them. Joseph interpreted it, saying that in three days, Pharaoh would execute him, and birds would eat his flesh. Three days later, Pharaoh held a birthday feast and fulfilled Joseph's interpretations—restoring the cupbearer and executing the baker. This was the first birthday celebration recorded in the Bible! Unfortunately, the cupbearer forgot about Joseph after returning to the palace. Do you remember those who have helped you? We are told that kindness never rots; may it not rot in our hearts! Despite his own troubles, Joseph cared for others.

Two years later, Pharaoh had a dream. He saw seven fat and healthy cows come out of the river and graze. Then seven thin and ugly cows followed and stood beside the fat ones. The thin cows ate the fat cows but remained thin. Pharaoh woke up, then slept again and had another dream. He saw seven full and good ears of grain growing on a single stalk. Then, seven thin and scorched ears appeared and swallowed the good ears. Pharaoh woke up and realized it was a dream. Troubled, he called Egypt's magicians and wise men, who were mostly sorcerers, to interpret the dreams, but none could. That's when the chief cupbearer remembered Joseph and told Pharaoh about him.

Pharaoh sent for Joseph, and he was quickly brought from prison, shaved, and given clean clothes before standing before Pharaoh. Pharaoh told him about his dreams and that no one could interpret them. Joseph humbly responded, "I cannot do it, but God will give Pharaoh the answer he desires." Joseph explained that God was revealing to Pharaoh what was about to happen: the seven fat cows represented seven years of plenty, and the seven thin cows represented seven years of famine. Likewise, the full ears of grain represented abundance, while the thin ones represented scarcity.

Joseph warned that the coming famine would be severe, erasing the memory of the years of abundance. He told Pharaoh that the dream was repeated twice because God had confirmed it and would bring it to pass soon. He advised Pharaoh to appoint a wise and discerning man to collect and store a fifth of the harvest during the years of plenty for the years of famine. Pharaoh and his servants were pleased with the plan. In humility, Pharaoh asked his officials, “Can we find anyone like this man, in whom is the Spirit of God?”

Pharaoh then appointed Joseph as governor over all Egypt, saying, “I hereby put you in charge of the whole land of Egypt.” He took off his signet ring and placed it on Joseph’s hand, dressed him in fine linen, and put a gold chain around his neck. He gave Joseph his second chariot and had people shout before him in honor. Pharaoh granted Joseph authority and named him Zaphenath-Paneah, giving him Asenath, the daughter of the priest of On, as his wife. Indeed, God does not show favoritism—He can give dreams even to those who do not know Him well, like Pharaoh. When people treat others well and listen to God’s voice, they receive blessings!

Joseph was 30 years old when he became Pharaoh’s deputy. He traveled throughout Egypt, collecting vast amounts of food during the seven years of plenty. The stored food was so much that it became uncountable. During this period, Joseph had two sons: Manasseh, meaning “God has made me forget all my troubles and my father’s house,” and Ephraim, meaning “God has made me fruitful in the land of my suffering.” Truly, God is faithful and loving.

After the seven years of abundance ended, the famine began. The people cried out to Pharaoh for food, and he directed them to Joseph. The famine was widespread, affecting all known lands, so people from other nations came to Egypt to buy grain. Even today, we must store up the Word of God in our hearts because a time is coming when it will be scarce. If we prepare now, it will sustain us later.

Joseph’s patience is remarkable. He never complained about his suffering but remained faithful to God. He continued working diligently, even though he had been falsely accused. Often, when mistreated, people stop working hard for their bosses, but Joseph remained diligent. As a single man, he remained faithful to God. It is better to avoid sin entirely than to fall into it and later repent with sorrow. Whenever we face temptation, angels watch to see how we will respond. They rejoice when we resist temptation but grieve when we fall.

Many trials we face are Satan's attempts to ruin God's plan for our lives. God's plan for us can only be fulfilled if we remain faithful to Him. When troubles come, we must continue trusting and praying to God. If you are single, remain faithful to God. If you are married, stay faithful to your spouse. It is better to avoid sin than to suffer regret later.

Joseph's story is similar to Daniel's with King Nebuchadnezzar—God protects His people and reveals future events to them. Even today, we still have work to do before reaching our heavenly home. If we represent God with humility, we can have a great impact.

Our prayers and fellowship should be times of special help and encouragement. Everyone has a role to make these gatherings uplifting and meaningful. This can be achieved by seeking new experiences with God daily and by sharing His love in our assemblies. If we do not allow darkness or unbelief into our hearts, they will not manifest in our gatherings.

DAY 23 (January 23)

LESSON: The Sons of Jacob Go to Buy Grain

When Jacob saw that the famine was getting worse, he sent his sons to buy food in Egypt so they would not die. Benjamin stayed home to avoid misfortune. When the sons of Israel arrived in Egypt, Joseph, who was in charge of selling food, recognized them. He spoke harshly to them, asking, "Where have you come from?" They replied that they had come from Canaan to buy food. However, they did not recognize Joseph, who then remembered his dreams. He accused them of being spies who had come to see the vulnerability of the land. They denied it, insisting they were honest men. They explained that they were twelve brothers, sons of one man in Canaan—one was with their father, and the other was no more (referring to Joseph).

Joseph tested them, saying they would not leave until they brought their youngest brother, Benjamin. He commanded that one of them go and bring Benjamin while the others stayed in prison. On the third day, he told them to do this to live, as he feared God. They agreed, allowing one brother to be imprisoned while the others took food to their family.

The brothers spoke among themselves, feeling guilty for what they had done to Joseph. They said, "We are truly guilty concerning our brother, for we saw his distress when he begged us, but we did not listen. That is why this trouble has come upon us." Reuben reminded them that he had warned them not to harm the boy, but they did not listen, and now his blood was being required of them. When we do wrong, our conscience accuses us until we repent and change our ways. Although they had never told their father the full truth, everything was now becoming clear.

🎁 Their attitudes were changing from cruelty to repentance. God used this situation to help them. They did not know that Joseph understood everything they were saying. Joseph stepped aside and wept, then returned and took Simeon, binding him before their eyes. He instructed his workers to fill their sacks with grain and secretly return their money. As they left, one of them opened his sack to feed his donkey and found his silver in the mouth of the sack. In fear, they said, "What is this that God has done to us?"

🎁 When they reached their father, they explained everything that had happened in Egypt. They told him that the Egyptian ruler accused them of being spies, took Simeon, and demanded that they bring Benjamin to prove their honesty. When they also mentioned the silver returned in their sacks, their father was filled with fear. Jacob lamented, saying, "Joseph is gone, Simeon is gone, and now you want to take Benjamin. Everything is against me!" Reuben offered to let Jacob kill his two sons if he failed to bring Benjamin back, but this offer was meaningless, as his sons were also Jacob's grandsons. Jacob refused, saying, "If harm comes to him on the journey you are taking, you will bring my gray hair down to the grave in sorrow."

🎁 Every family faces struggles and sorrow. The solution is to seek God's help in our conflicts and challenges caused by sin. Since the famine worsened and they would all die without food, Jacob finally agreed to let them return to Egypt for more grain. Judah explained that they could not go without Benjamin, as the Egyptian ruler had insisted. Jacob sorrowfully asked why they had mentioned Benjamin in the first place. They explained that the ruler had questioned them closely, and they could not lie because they did not know he would demand to see Benjamin.

🎁 Judah took responsibility for Benjamin's safety and spoke to his father as a leader. Jacob finally agreed, instructing them to take gifts for the ruler—balm, honey, spices, myrrh, pistachios, and almonds. He also told them to take double the silver to return what had been found in their sacks. He prayed, saying, "May God Almighty grant you mercy before the man so that he releases your other brother and Benjamin."

They took their goods and returned to Egypt, standing before Joseph again. Joseph ordered his steward to bring them to his house and prepare a meal for them to dine with him at noon. The brothers were afraid, thinking they were being brought in because of the silver in their sacks, and they would be taken as slaves along with their donkeys. They explained to the steward that they had brought back the silver they had found and had come to buy more food. The steward reassured them, saying, "Peace be with you; do not be afraid. Your God, the God of your father, has given you treasure in your sacks. I received your silver." Then he brought out Simeon.

The steward gave them water to wash their feet and fed their donkeys. When Joseph arrived, they presented their gifts and bowed down to the ground before him—his dreams were coming true! He asked about their father's well-being, and they confirmed he was still alive and well. They bowed down again in respect.

Joseph looked at Benjamin, his full brother, and asked if this was their youngest brother. He blessed him, saying, "God be gracious to you, my son." The sight of Benjamin moved Joseph deeply, and he hurried into his room to weep. After composing himself, he returned and ordered the meal to be served. The Egyptians did not eat with Hebrews due to their customs. Joseph arranged his brothers from the eldest to the youngest, and they were amazed that he knew their birth order. Benjamin received five times more food than the others.

REFLECTION:
Ezra 5 showed how the Israelites risked their reputation and authority to obey God. Ezra 6 reveals the results. Instead of stopping the work, as their enemies expected, King Darius ordered the Israelites to complete the temple.

Encouraged by the prophets Haggai and Zechariah, the people finished the work successfully. Not only was the task completed, but their hearts were also right with God.

🎁 The same God we serve today was with them. When we obey His commands, He will use us to complete His work, regardless of opposition or persecution. No one can destroy God's plan for another person—not even Satan. The only one who can ruin God's plan for a child of God is the person themselves through disobedience or neglecting their spiritual growth. If God is pleased with us, no one's opinion can stop His blessings.

🎁 Joseph's story teaches that character is more valuable than anything else. Why didn't God give Pharaoh the dream a year earlier or later? Because God had a perfect timeline. Humans may forget us, but God never will. He works with both past and future knowledge, considering human forgetfulness in His divine plan.

🎁 God intended for Joseph to begin serving Pharaoh at the age of thirty—just as Jesus began His ministry at the same age. The two-year "delay" brought Joseph to that age precisely. In the end, everything worked for his good. The same applies to every child of God! Romans 8:28 says, "And we know that in all things God works for the good of those who love Him, who have been called according to His purpose."

🎁 Discussion Questions:

Why did Joseph frighten his brothers?

How did his brothers feel?

Who was left behind in Egypt?

Why didn't Jacob want Benjamin to go?

Why did Joseph want Benjamin to be brought to Egypt?

Why did Joseph give Benjamin more than the others?

Why did Jacob send gifts to the ruler of Egypt?

How should a family handle conflicts or crises?

May God bless you, Child and Youth of Jesus. 👦👧

Key Verse: Genesis 44:14-16

[14-16] Then Judah and his brothers came to Joseph's house, and he was still there; and they fell before him on the ground. And Joseph said to them, "What deed is this you have done? Did you not know that such a man as I can certainly practice divination?" Then Judah said, "What shall we say to my lord? What shall we speak? Or how shall we clear ourselves? God has found out the iniquity of your servants; here we are, my lord's slaves, both we and he also with whom the cup was found."

Prayer: Thank You Lord for showing us that Your Word is always fulfilled in the life of the person You foretold about. Help us to abandon evil, forgive our sins. Let us change and be like Judah, who humbled himself after realizing they were wrong in selling their brother. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: Drama—Speak before the one chosen as Pharaoh, King, or President, the solution which Joseph was told concerning Pharaoh's dream… Genesis 41. Or Joseph's brothers bowing before him and what they said with the sack containing the cup inside it.

DAY 24 (January 24)

Lesson: Jacob Meets Joseph – Repaying Good for Evil

(Genesis 44 and 45)

🎁 Joseph ordered his steward to fill their sacks with food, put their money back in their sacks, and place his silver cup in Benjamin's sack. At dawn, they were allowed to leave with their donkeys. As they left the city, Joseph told his steward to follow them and say, "Why have you repaid good with evil? Isn't this the cup my master drinks from?" When the steward caught up with them and accused them, they denied the theft, saying they had returned the previous money and that whoever was found with the cup should die while the rest would become Joseph's slaves. They hurriedly dismounted their donkeys and opened their sacks. The cup was found in Benjamin's sack, and in sorrow, they tore their clothes and returned to the city.

🎁 Judah and his brothers fell face down before Joseph, saying, "What shall we say? How can we prove our innocence? God has exposed the guilt of your servants. We are now my lord's slaves." Joseph insisted that only Benjamin, in whose sack the cup was found, would stay as a slave while the others could return to their father in peace. Joseph wanted to test whether they still discriminated against his mother's children. Judah stood up to defend Benjamin, explaining their father's old age and how Benjamin was dearly loved. He pleaded that if they did not return with Benjamin, their father would be heartbroken and die in sorrow.

🎁 Judah took full responsibility, offering himself as a slave in place of Benjamin. Joseph saw that his brothers had truly changed and that they deeply cared for Benjamin and their father! Unable to hold back his emotions, he cried out and ordered all Egyptians to leave the room. Then, he revealed his identity to his brothers. He wept loudly, and even Pharaoh's household heard it. He said, "I am Joseph! Is my father still alive?" His brothers were terrified and speechless. Joseph reassured them, "I am your brother Joseph, the one you sold into Egypt. Do not be distressed or angry with yourselves, because it was God who sent me ahead of you to save lives."

🎁 Joseph lovingly embraced his brothers and explained that five years of famine remained. He told them how God had granted him favor with Pharaoh and emphasized that he bore no grudge against them, "It was not you who sent me here, but God. He made me a father to Pharaoh, lord of his entire household, and ruler of all Egypt." He urged them to bring their father to Egypt quickly. He promised they would settle in Goshen, a fertile land along the Nile, where they could tend their livestock and farm.

🎁 This story is deeply moving. True love forgives. No matter how painful the betrayal, God grants wisdom to rebuild relationships—though they may not be the same as before, forgiveness is crucial. Holding onto bitterness is like drinking poison and expecting your enemy to die. Those who have wronged you don't necessarily have to become your best friends or move into your home, but God enables you to forgive and act according to His will.

🎁 The Bible contains many such astonishing stories of God's intervention and kindness. For example, Governor Tattenai ordered a search for a hidden decree, which was found. As a result, King Darius authorized the temple's construction, which had been halted for 13 years. Not only did he approve the work, but he also provided animals for sacrifices and warned that anyone who opposed his decree would be executed. This led to the temple's rapid completion with abundant resources.

🎁 Beloved brothers and sisters, if God has placed a calling in your heart, continue pursuing it. If God is for us, who can be against us? And so, the temple was rebuilt, dedicated, and daily and yearly services resumed after seventy years. Can you imagine the overwhelming emotions of that moment? Years of pain, sorrow, and loneliness were released in cries of joy. Have you ever felt such deep emotions in your life that you broke into tears? If so, crying is healthy—let out those intense feelings instead of bottling them up. Even Jesus wept at Lazarus' tomb, not because He doubted His power to resurrect him, but because He felt the sorrow of Martha and Mary.

🎁 Jesus, our loving Savior, understands our grief and pain. Joseph's brothers transformed from jealous betrayers to compassionate and caring men. When Judah offered to become a slave in place of Benjamin, it proved their repentance. The same power that changed Joseph's brothers is available to us when we seek revival and reformation. Let us continue reading our Bibles and praying, for the Bible says, "Sanctify them by the truth; Your word is truth."

🎁 Pray, then, and you will receive. Pray for humility, wisdom, courage, and increased faith. Every sincere prayer receives an answer—not always in the way or time you expect, but always in a way that best meets your needs. The prayers you whisper in solitude, in exhaustion, or in trials, God answers—not always as you wish, but always for your good.

🎁 Questions: Were Jacob's sons happy to return to Egypt with the cup? Why did they have to go back? Why did Joseph reveal his identity? How did they feel? What lessons can you learn from the lives of the eleven brothers?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Key Verse: Genesis 44:33, 34.

[33, 34] "Now therefore, please let your servant remain instead of the lad as a slave to my lord, and let the lad go up with his brothers. For how shall I go up to my father if the lad is not with me, lest perhaps I see the evil that would come upon my father?"

Prayer: Lord, I thank You today for the story of Joseph. I ask You to help me have love like Judah when he stood for his brothers. Forgive my faults where I have wanted to be selfish. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

DAY 25 (January 25)

TOPIC: Jacob's Family Goes to Egypt

(Genesis 45 and 46)

🎁 Joseph started with a great dream, but he was thrown into prison and falsely accused of assaulting his master's wife. Now, he sat on the throne as the vice president or ruler of the land. Truly, we should leave vengeance to God. Maybe you have had a lifelong dream to do something great for God, but your plans have failed, and you have reached the end of your hope. It may seem like God has abandoned you. But God has not forgotten the dream He placed in your heart, for it is His dream too. Just as He did for Joseph, God is fighting your battles, making His purpose come true in your life.

When Pharaoh learned that Joseph's brothers had arrived, he told Joseph to bring his family, and he would give them the best of Egypt and the richness of the land. He provided them with carts to bring their father, promising them the best of Egypt. They were given food for the journey, money, and ten donkeys carrying grain, bread, and provisions.

🎁 Joseph reminded them not to quarrel on the way, perhaps fearing they would be envious because Benjamin received five garments and 300 silver pieces. The journey from Egypt to Canaan, about 450 km, took approximately two weeks on foot. When they arrived, they shocked their father with the news that Joseph was alive and was a ruler over all Egypt. His heart grew numb because he did not believe them. It became a time for them to confess their wrongs, and they found freedom in their hearts! They told him all that Joseph had said, and when Jacob saw Pharaoh's carts, his spirit revived, and he said, "Enough! My son Joseph is still alive; I will go and see him before I die."

🎁 Jacob set out and, along the way, offered sacrifices to God. God spoke to Israel in a night vision, saying, "I am God, the God of your father. Do not be afraid to go to Egypt, for I will make you a great nation there. I will go down with you to Egypt." The entire family and their livestock traveled to Egypt. Jacob's family, including his grandchildren, wives, and children, totaled 70 people. Judah led the caravan to Egypt, and when they arrived in Goshen, Joseph came in his chariot to greet his father. Upon seeing him, Joseph fell on his neck and wept for a long time. Jacob said he could now die in peace, having seen his beloved son Joseph after 13 years of separation.

🎁 Joseph informed Pharaoh of his family's arrival, telling him they were shepherds. When Pharaoh asked, they confirmed they were shepherds and requested permission to settle in Goshen due to the famine. Pharaoh responded, "Egypt is before you; settle your father and brothers in the best part of the land." He even requested that capable men among them care for his livestock.

🎁 Joseph brought his father before Pharaoh. Jacob, who was 130 years old, blessed Pharaoh. It is likely that Pharaoh came to know the God of Heaven through his vice ruler, Joseph. Jacob had lived a life of suffering from his youth, and God had kept him under His shadow.

During the famine, Joseph continued to provide food for his family and the Egyptians, collecting money and storing it in Pharaoh's treasury. When the famine worsened, the Egyptians traded their horses and livestock for food, eventually offering even their land.

🎁 Thus, all of Egypt, except for the priests' land, became Pharaoh's property. Joseph provided the people with seeds to plant, and when they harvested, they gave one-fifth to Pharaoh while keeping four-fifths for themselves and their families. Jacob lived in Egypt for 17 years. Before his death, he made Joseph swear to bury him in the tomb of his fathers in Machpelah, and Joseph took the oath.

Jacob then called Joseph's sons, Manasseh and Ephraim, to bless them. He took them as his own sons, completing the twelve tribes of Israel. Often, Joseph and Dan were not mentioned, but Ephraim and Manasseh were. Jacob's eyesight had weakened with age, but he embraced and kissed his grandchildren.

🎁 He blessed the younger as if he were the firstborn, and when Joseph tried to stop him, Jacob insisted that although the older would be great, the younger would be even greater, and his descendants would become a multitude of nations. He declared that the Israelites would bless their children, saying, "May God make you like Ephraim and Manasseh." He assured Joseph that, though his life was ending, God would be with them and one day return them to the land of their fathers, Canaan.

🎁 Joseph seemed to carry a certain birthright, acting as the leader of his brothers, yet Judah was the one who was rightfully given that role. Though Judah had made mistakes and even sinned in the past, he had repented.

🎁 Joseph's story is a reflection of the Messiah in some ways. Jesus Christ was treated as we deserved so that we could be treated as He deserved. He was condemned for our sins, which He did not commit, so that we could be justified by His righteousness, which we had no part in. He suffered the death that was ours so that we could receive the life that was His. “By His wounds, we are healed.” Through His life and death, Christ gained more than restoration from the destruction brought by sin.

Satan intended to create eternal separation between God and humanity, but through Christ, we are drawn even closer to God than if we had never fallen. By taking on our nature, the Savior has bound Himself to humanity with a bond that can never be broken. 🎁 From eternity, He has been united with us. God loved the world so much that He gave His only Son—not only to bear our sins and die as our sacrifice but to be permanently part of the human family.

🎁 Long and repetitive prayers are unnecessary, especially in social gatherings. They weary both the angels and those who listen. Our prayers should be short and direct to the point. Let the Spirit of God dwell in the hearts of worshippers, removing all distractions and unnecessary traditions.

Discussion Questions:

How did Jacob feel about going to Egypt?

How did he know he should go?

How old was Jacob when he arrived in Egypt?

Why did the Israelites settle in Goshen?

Who were Joseph’s sons?

How long did Jacob live in Egypt?

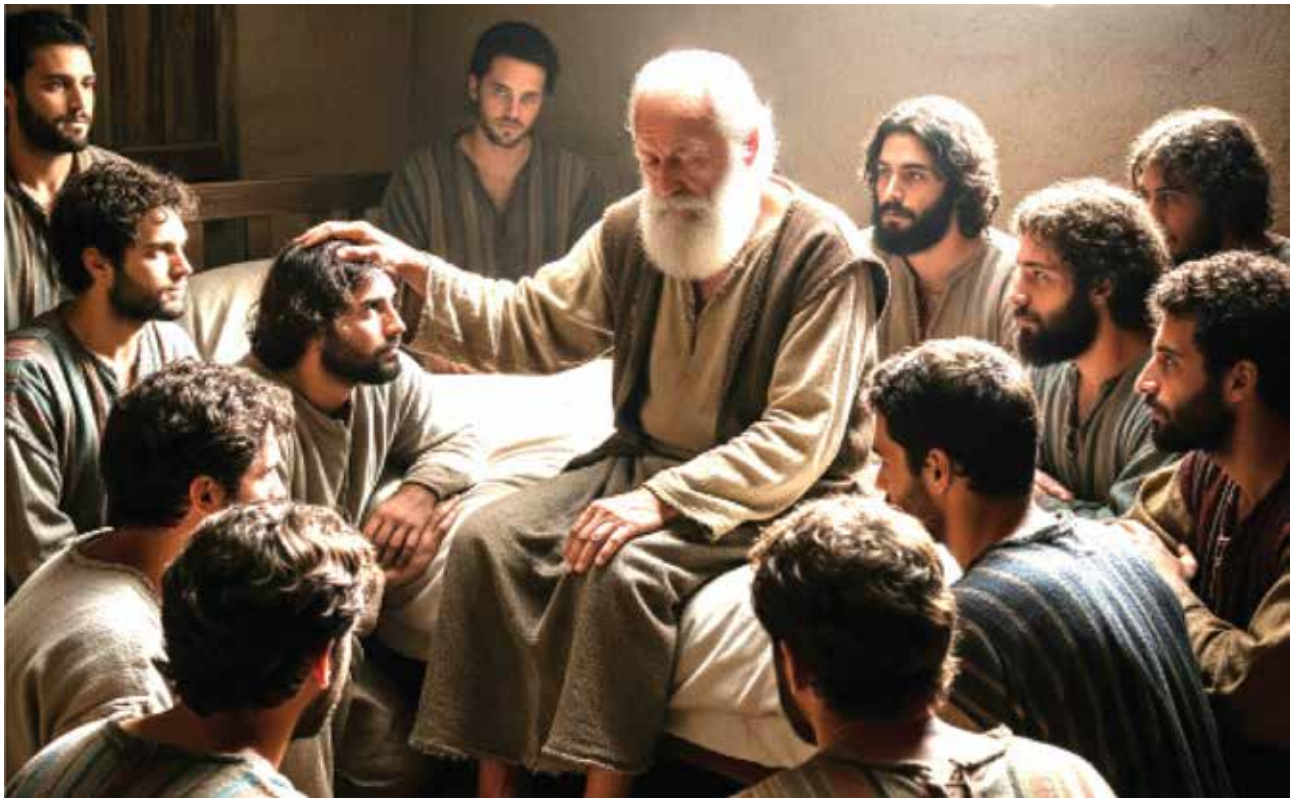
What was the distance from Canaan to Egypt?

Compare Joseph’s story with that of the Messiah.

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Key Verse: Genesis 46:2-4

[2-4] Then God spoke to Israel in the visions of the night, and said, "Jacob, Jacob!" And he said, "Here I am." So He said, "I am God, the God of your father; do not fear to go down to Egypt, for I will make of you a great nation there. I will go down with you to Egypt, and I will also surely bring you up again; and Joseph will put his hand on your eyes."



Prayer: Thank You Lord for helping us resolve family conflicts that You allow. Thank You for delivering us from many troubles. Forgive our faults, and help us to love one another. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: The journey of Jacob and his sons going to Egypt, meeting Pharaoh, and the questions Pharaoh asked them.

DAY 26 (January 26)

TOPIC: Jacob Finishes Well by Blessing His Sons

(Genesis 49 and 50)

🎁 Jacob called his sons together and began to bless them. This is something good that every parent should do daily—bless their children! Names in the Bible sometimes reveal character, and at other times, names were changed or assigned to match a person's destiny. Understanding the true meaning of names in different tribes can be insightful.

The Spirit of God revealed to this faithful old man the future history of his descendants. He said to Reuben, as the firstborn, the son of his youth and strength, that he had done wrong by sleeping with his father's concubine, Bilhah. As a result, the birthright would not belong to him. Simeon and Levi, being violent and cruel, were cursed in their anger, and they too lost the birthright.

Judah, your brothers will praise you! Your father's sons will bow down to you. The scepter will not depart from Judah, nor the ruler's staff from between his feet, until the one to whom it belongs shall come. Judah was given the great blessing of being the ancestor of Christ. Zebulun was told he would live by the seashore and harbor ships.

Issachar is a strong donkey that will bear heavy burdens. Dan will judge his people but will be a snake by the roadside. Gad will be attacked by a band of raiders, but he will attack at their heels. Asher's food will be rich, and he will provide royal delicacies. Naphtali is like a freed deer that speaks beautiful words.

Joseph received blessings of the deep waters and the womb, blessings greater than the ancient mountains and everlasting hills. These were to rest on the head of Joseph, the one set apart from his brothers. Benjamin is like a ravenous wolf; in the morning, he devours his prey, and in the evening, he divides the spoil.

After blessing his sons, Jacob told them he was going to the land of all men—the land of the dead. When he finished speaking, he gathered his feet into the bed and passed away. Joseph wept over his father, embraced him, and ordered that his body be embalmed. The Egyptians mourned him for 70 days.

The tribes of Dan and Ephraim are absent in the book of Revelation, possibly due to their transgressions. See Revelation 7. Joseph then spoke to Pharaoh, requesting permission to bury his father in the tomb he had prepared in Canaan. Pharaoh agreed, and Joseph went with his brothers, officials, and elders of Egypt, leaving only their children behind. They mourned deeply for seven days and then buried Jacob in the cave of Machpelah.

After Jacob's death, Joseph's brothers became fearful. They worried that Joseph would now take revenge for the evil they had done to him. They sent a message asking for his forgiveness, claiming that their father had commanded it. When Joseph heard their plea, he wept. His brothers threw themselves at his feet, offering to be his slaves.

But Joseph reassured them, saying, "Am I in the place of God? Do not be afraid. You intended to harm me, but God intended it for good—to save many lives." He comforted them and promised to take care of them and their children.

Joseph lived to be 110 years old and saw three generations of his descendants. As he neared death, he reminded the Israelites that God would one day lead them out of Egypt and into the land He had promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. He made them swear that when they left Egypt, they would take his bones with them.

We, too, have been promised a heavenly Canaan.

Calculating the Years Israel Spent in Egypt:
Joseph was sold into slavery at around 17 years old.
At 30, he became a ruler in Egypt.
He lived 93 years in Egypt.
Jacob moved to Egypt at 130 years old and lived there for 17 more years.
Levi lived about 42 years in Egypt and died at 137.
Kohath lived 133 years.
Amram (Moses' father) lived 137 years.
Moses, born in Egypt, killed an Egyptian at 40, then lived in the wilderness for 40 years.

When adding these figures, the total time in Egypt is approximately 372 years. However, if Kohath and Amram were enslaved their entire lives, the period of slavery could be around 270 years (since Joseph and Levi were not slaves).

The Book of Genesis spans about 2,600 years, from the creation of Adam and Eve to Joseph's death. No other book in the Bible covers as many years as this one. Moses wrote Genesis while shepherding in Midian, around 1400 BC.

The beautiful part of this story is that Jacob's family was reconciled. How many people live with regret for years because they never sought forgiveness? Many families today are divided, filled with sadness, misunderstandings, hatred, and wrongdoing. If someone has wronged us, holding onto resentment only leads to more sin.

"Be kind and compassionate to one another, forgiving each other, just as God in Christ forgave you." (Ephesians 4:32)

The Bible is our daily guide—our lamp and light. Never go a day without it!

Can you imagine the joy when Jacob's sons were reunited? It was as if Joseph had risen from the dead! Now, imagine the joy on the morning of resurrection when Jesus returns in glory.

On that day, we will weep, but not in sorrow—in joy!

Who will you look for on that glorious day?

Key Verse: Genesis 49:8-10.

[8-10] "Judah, you are he whom your brothers shall praise; your hand shall be on the neck of your enemies; your father's children shall bow down before you. Judah is a lion's whelp; from the prey, my son, you have gone up. He bows down, he lies down as a lion; and as a lion, who shall rouse him? The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, until Shiloh comes; and to Him shall be the obedience of the people."

Prayer: Thank You for the blessings You give, and help us that when we have children, we may bless them. Help us honor our parents. Thank You for the promise of the Messiah through Judah. Forgive us our sins. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: A play of Jacob giving blessings. Discuss forgiveness and its meaning as well.

Day 27 (January 27)

The Birth of Moses

Exodus 1 and 2

Forgiving oneself is an important aspect of health, as we saw with Joseph who forgave his brothers, but they still doubted him! The Israelites (descendants of Jacob) continued to increase and multiply, living in Egypt for 430 years. Many believe that for 30 of those years, they were free, and for 400 years, they were slaves. Eventually, a new Pharaoh who did not know Joseph arose to rule and told his people, "The Israelites are too many and stronger than us. Come, let us deal wisely with them so that they do not multiply further; and if war breaks out, they may join our enemies and fight against us, and escape from the land." The Egyptians set taskmasters over the Israelites to afflict them with burdens, and they built store cities for Pharaoh, such as Pithom and Raamses.

But the more they were oppressed, the more they multiplied and spread abroad. They made their lives bitter with hard labor, making bricks, working in the fields, and doing other difficult tasks. Then Pharaoh instructed the Hebrew midwives, Shiphrah and Puah, to kill every male child born to the Hebrews but allow the female children to live. Since the male child was the one who carried the family line, and the female child would marry and join another tribe, the midwives, fearing God, did not carry out the king's orders and let the male children live. Pharaoh called them and asked why they did not kill the male children. They replied, "Hebrew women are not like Egyptian women; they are vigorous and give birth before the midwife arrives.” God blessed these midwives and treated them kindly, establishing families for them. Pharaoh then ordered that every male child born should be thrown into the Nile River, but the females were to be kept alive. This was a terrible cruelty.

Although today many are not slaves, people still suffer in other ways. Let us all remember God’s promises to save us from any kind of suffering. Let us stop here and reflect on the sorrow that parents felt when their male children were taken from them and thrown into the Nile. The sad images we see today on TV of children suffering from malnutrition and hunger in war-torn countries show that children still endure great suffering. Moreover, millions of unborn children are killed every year through abortion, and the situation becomes even more terrifying. Let us not forget those who are born but are mistreated by adults. How does God feel when He sees all this? Surely, there is a fearful punishment awaiting those who harm children. Lord Jesus, please come quickly and save the children! At the same time, those who bring children into this world must provide them with the best care, for children do not ask to be born. Some children have lost both of their parents and become orphans. Who will care for them? The Good Samaritans! Let us all be Good Samaritans.

A man from the house of Levi, named Amram, married a woman named Jochebed, and they had a child whose name was hidden. He hid the child for three months until he could no longer hide him. He made a basket of papyrus reeds, coated it with tar and pitch, placed the baby inside, and set it among the reeds along the riverbank. I imagine he cried tears of sorrow as he placed the child there. Miriam, the child's older sister, who was six years old, followed the basket to see what would happen to her little brother. Pharaoh's daughter came down to bathe at the river, and her maidens were walking along the riverside. She saw the basket among the reeds and sent her maid to get it. When she opened it, she saw the baby boy and heard him crying. She felt sorry for him. Miriam, out of love for her brother, asked Pharaoh's daughter, "Shall I go and call a nurse from the Hebrew women to nurse the child for you?" Pharaoh's daughter agreed. In a wonderful turn of events, Moses' mother came, and Pharaoh's daughter paid her to nurse her own child, raising him in the ways of God. Later, she returned him to Pharaoh's daughter. "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old, he will not depart from it." This is a promise from God. Perhaps she wondered how long she would be able to care for him before he would be raised as Pharaoh's daughter. She intended to teach Moses to trust and obey God, knowing that the palace held much grandeur and temptation. She taught him to pray, to sing, and about the creation story and the fall of mankind. Parents should teach their children at home or send them to a church school in their early years if they want to make a difference in their Christian lives. To a very large extent, a mother holds her child's destiny in her hands. Aside from God Himself, no one has more influence on a child than a mother.

This mother never stopped telling Moses the story of his salvation from the river. She taught him the cleanliness of heart and God's laws. She told him about the promises given to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Jochebed was heartbroken when Moses was taken away, perhaps even Aaron, his brother, wanted to go live in the palace as well. The name Moses means "I drew him out of the water." He was given this name by Pharaoh's daughter. Moses, who was born a slave, became Pharaoh's son! Many say he left the palace after completing his childhood, that is, after 12 years, since among the Hebrews, a child of 13 was considered an adult and underwent a special ceremony called 'bar mitzvah.' Look at his videos. God has plans for your life too.

His mother must have told him the story of his rescue from the river. Moses learned all the education of Egypt as the child of Pharaoh. I believe he studied mathematics, security/military affairs, leadership, law, and perhaps even medicine. He was skilled and excelled in everything. When he grew up, he went to visit his Hebrew brothers. He did not want the pride of being called Pharaoh's son but saw it as better to suffer with the people of God than to enjoy the fleeting pleasures of Egypt. He recognized that God was of greater value than the treasures and riches of Egypt. He saw Him who is invisible. He looked at their suffering and saw an Egyptian beating a Hebrew. When he saw no one was around, he killed the Egyptian and buried him in the sand. The next day, he came and saw two Hebrews fighting, and he asked the one who was wronging the other, "Why are you striking your companion?" He answered, "Who made you a prince and a judge over us? Are you going to kill me as you killed the Egyptian?" Moses was afraid, realizing that the matter was known. When Pharaoh heard about it, he wanted to kill Moses, thinking he was bringing about a rebellion. So Moses fled to Midian.

He arrived in Midian and sat down by a well. Moses could not wait for God to deliver the Israelites. He took matters into his own hands, now a man without even a place to sleep. Let us allow God to lead our lives. God calls us for different purposes; however, we often try to solve challenges ourselves and make mistakes that seem irreparable. Nevertheless, God can use our mistakes to help us grow. God used Moses' mistake in Egypt to lead him into the wilderness to learn humility and patience as a shepherd. There, he gained the skills necessary when he later led Israel through the wilderness. Moses was not abandoned because he failed. God used Moses' failure to teach him valuable lessons to prepare him for his mission. Similarly, God has a purpose for each of us. Though we make mistakes, God can still use us and our mistakes for His glory.

Jethro, the priest of Midian, had seven daughters. They went to draw water to give drink to their father's flock, but other shepherds came and drove them away. Moses stood up and helped them water their flock. The daughters returned home, and their father asked them why they had returned so soon. They explained that an Egyptian had helped them. He asked his daughters, "Where is he? Why did you leave him? Go and invite him to eat with us." They went and invited Moses, and he agreed to stay with them. Jethro gave him his daughter Zipporah as his wife, and she bore him a son, whom he named Gershom, meaning "I have been a stranger in a foreign land." The Midianites were descendants of Keturah, Abraham's third wife.

Now, the king of Egypt died, and the Israelites groaned because of their slavery, and their cry for help went up to God. He remembered His covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Any suffering we experience should remind us that God is with us, just as He was with the Messiah. The presence of the Almighty God surrounded Christ, and nothing befell Him except what the infinite love allowed to bless the world. This is where His comfort came from, and it is the same for us. He who is filled with the Spirit of Christ dwells in Christ. Any strike directed at Him falls upon the Savior, who is surrounded by His presence. Whatever comes to Him comes from Christ. He does not need to oppose evil because Christ is His protection. Nothing can touch Him except by the will of our Lord, and "all things work together for good to those who love God" (Romans 8:28). This shows us in our own lives that whatever comes, we should surrender it to the Lord, ask Him to give us strength, remove the pain from our hearts, and forgive our persecutors!

Questions:

How many years did the Israelites live in Egypt?

Why did Pharaoh order the killing of male children?

What excuse did the midwives give for not killing the children when they were born?

What does the name Moses mean?

Who were Moses' parents?

What was Moses' sister's name?

Why did Moses flee from Egypt?

What was Jethro's role?

What was Moses' wife's name?

The Bible does not use the word 'teenager,' but when a child reaches adolescence, what should they be taught?

Key Verse: Exodus 1:15-17.

[15-17] Then the king of Egypt spoke to the Hebrew midwives, of whom the name of one was Shiphrah and the name of the other Puah; and he said, "When you do the duties of a midwife for the Hebrew women, and see them on the birthstools, if it is a son, then you shall kill him; but if it is a daughter, then she shall live." But the midwives feared God, and did not do as the king of Egypt commanded them, but saved the male children alive.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for the story of Moses, showing us that You care about children being harmed by the wicked. Help us forgive ourselves and forgive others. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: Drama: Baby Moses in a basket, with a basin of water, etc. Or the journey of Moses when he met Jethro the priest of Midian. Or discuss the trick of creating the slave Bible, the intent behind it, and how it was implemented.

DAY 28 - January 28

LESSON: Suffering Makes One Strong & Moses and the Burning Bush

God sees every tear of the brokenhearted. If it seems that God is not acting quickly, it does not mean He is unaware of our situations. Moses had been a shepherd for 40 years, tending the flock of his father-in-law, Jethro, the priest of Midian. While leading the flock near Mount Horeb, the mountain of God, Moses had become humble, patient, and gentle. Then, the Angel of the Lord appeared to him. Moses saw a flame of fire in a bush. The bush was burning but was not consumed.

God saw that His servant Moses was now ready to be used because he was humble and understood that only God could deliver the Israelites, not himself. When God calls someone, He enables them. Moses was curious and approached to see what was happening.

The Lord God called, “Moses, Moses!” and he answered, “Here I am.” Moses was 80 years old when God told him, “Do not come any closer. Take off your sandals, for the place where you are standing is holy ground.” God said, “I am the God of your father, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.” Moses hid his face, afraid to look at God.

God told Moses that He had seen the suffering of His people, the Hebrews, in Egypt and had heard their cries because of their harsh taskmasters. He had come down to rescue them and bring them to the good land of Canaan, a land flowing with milk and honey. God commanded Moses, “I am sending you to Pharaoh to bring my people, the Israelites, out of Egypt.”

Moses was now ready for service, recognizing that only God could deliver the Israelites. In the past, Moses had killed a man and sinned, trying to rescue the Israelites with his own strength instead of trusting in God. After 40 years of tending sheep and gaining wisdom, he had become humble. But he still asked, “Who am I, that I should go to Pharaoh and bring the Israelites out of Egypt?”

God reassured him, “I will be with you, and this will be the sign: When you have brought the people out of Egypt, you will worship God on this mountain.”

Moses asked, “What if they ask me, ‘What is His name?’ What shall I tell them?”

God said, “I AM WHO I AM. Tell them, ‘I AM has sent me to you.’”

God also said, “Say to the Israelites, ‘The Lord, the God of your fathers—Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—has sent me to you.’ This is my name forever, the name you shall remember for all generations.”

“I AM” means God’s eternal presence—past, present, and future. He sees beyond history and knows the future because He is all-powerful.

Moses gathered the elders of Israel and told them what God had said. But Moses feared they would not believe him.

The Lord asked Moses, “What is that in your hand?”

Moses replied, “A staff.”

God told him to throw it down, and it became a snake. Then He told Moses to grab it by the tail, and it turned back into a staff.

God gave Moses another sign: He put his hand inside his cloak, and when he took it out, it was leprous—white as snow. When he put it back and removed it again, it was restored. These signs were meant to convince Pharaoh.

🎁 But Moses still hesitated, saying, “Lord, I am not eloquent; my tongue is heavy.”

God reminded him, “Who gave humans their mouths? Who makes them deaf, mute, seeing, or blind? Is it not I, the Lord?”

🎁 God insisted that Moses go, promising to be with his mouth and teach him what to say. But Moses continued to hesitate, making God angry. God then told him, “Your brother Aaron, the Levite, can speak well. He is coming to meet you and will be glad to see you. You will speak to him, and he will speak to the people for you. Take this staff, for with it you will perform signs.”

🎁 This story teaches us that God SEES what is happening, HEARS our cries, KNOWS our struggles, CARES, and WILL ACT. This comforts and encourages us in a broken world. No matter what happens, God is in complete control. Even when filled with God’s Spirit, we may face trials that others expect to break us, but we will not be destroyed.

🎁 Someone once said, “Moses failed to bury just one Egyptian he killed, but God buried an entire army of Egyptians in the Red Sea!”

Moses returned to his father-in-law, Jethro, and asked for permission to go back to Egypt to see if his people were still alive. Jethro agreed, saying, “Go in peace.”

God told Moses that those who wanted to kill him were dead. So, Moses took his wife and two sons and set out for Egypt with God's staff in his hand. God warned him that Pharaoh would harden his heart, but He would show great signs in Egypt.

On the way, the Lord met Moses and was about to kill him because he had failed to circumcise his firstborn son. His wife, Zipporah, quickly circumcised the boy with a sharp stone and saved Moses.

Even when serving God, we must obey in both big and small matters. Moses, as the priest and leader of his family, had to obey. God was preparing him for a dangerous mission, and his life could only be protected through angelic guardianship. But if he neglected known duties, he could not be kept safe.

God told Aaron to meet his brother at Mount Horeb. After 40 years, the two brothers reunited—Moses was 80, and Aaron was 83.

Moses told Aaron all the Lord's instructions. Together, they gathered the elders of Israel, performed the signs, and the people believed that God had seen their suffering. They bowed and worshiped.

Although the Israelites had been in Egypt for over 400 years and had forgotten their family names, God still knew them by name.

The book of Exodus is the gospel of redemption and grace for the Hebrews. Like them, we, too, are saved by a Child—our Redeemer. Near the end of His life, Jesus climbed a mountain in Canaan and met Moses and Elijah (Luke 9:31-32). They discussed His departure—His "Exodus."

Discussion Questions:
What are the five books of the Torah?
Why did Pharaoh fear the Israelites?
Why did Moses go to Midian?
Did Moses find shepherding easy?
Why did God make Moses a shepherd?
What was unusual about the fire Moses saw?
Why did he remove his sandals?
Name Aaron's four sons.
What signs did God give Moses for the Israelites?
Who is "I AM"?

God bless you, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: Exodus 3:13-15

[13-15] Then Moses said to God, "Indeed, when I come to the children of Israel and say to them, 'The God of your fathers has sent me to you,' and they say to me, 'What is His name?' what shall I say to them?" And God said to Moses, "I AM WHO I AM." And He said, "Thus you shall say to the children of Israel, 'I AM has sent me to you.'" Moreover God said to Moses, "Thus you shall say to the children of Israel: 'The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, has sent me to you. This is My name forever, and this is My memorial to all generations.'"

Prayer: Thank You, I AM WHO I AM. You are the unchanging God, the eternal God, You do not need man's help to exist, You have been, You are, and You will continue to be. Teach us to know Your greatness and to worship You in the beauty of holiness. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: Drama of Moses meeting God and being told to remove his sandals, and being told God's Name. How does this story show us that God sees, God hears, and God deals with our troubles?

DAY 29 (January 29)

LESSON: Moses is Empowered to Face Pharaoh

(Exodus 5-7)

🎁 Moses' staff became God's staff. What is in your hand today? When we surrender everything to the Lord, He works in us and through us in miraculous ways!

🎁 Moses and Aaron went to Pharaoh and told him that the Lord commanded, "Let my people go, so they may hold a festival in the wilderness." Pharaoh arrogantly replied, "Who is the Lord, that I should obey Him? I do not know the Lord, and I will not let Israel go."

🎁 Instead of releasing them, Pharaoh made their work harder by stopping the supply of straw for making bricks. The Israelites suffered more, and their overseers complained to Pharaoh. He called them lazy and dismissed their plea.

🎁 The Lord reassured Moses: "Now you will see what I will do to Pharaoh." He reminded Moses of His covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. He promised to rescue the Israelites with an outstretched arm and great judgments.

🎁 Moses obeyed God and went before Pharaoh, performing miracles. Yet Pharaoh's heart was hardened. The first plague turned the Nile into blood, and Egypt suffered. Even then, Pharaoh refused to listen.

🎁 No matter what Satan does, God will fulfill His promises and take His people to the heavenly Canaan!

AFTER THIS PLAGUE, THE LORD COMMANDED MOSES TO GO TO PHARAOH AGAIN.

When God gives us a task to do, He always provides the ability to accomplish it and brings solutions to our problems. Let this give us the courage to move forward! If we are faithful to God, He will use us from childhood to old age.

God should be approached with reverence in prayer. Some people think that it is a sign of humility to pray to God in a casual or habitual manner, as they would speak to another human being. They dishonor His name by mixing sacred, awe-inspiring words with their prayers without necessity and without reverence. They should only utter the Holy and Majestic Name of God with a subdued voice and a sense of reverence, feeling His glory and holiness.

🎁 Questions:

Why did the overseers complain to Moses?

Why was Pharaoh's heart hardened?

How were the Egyptian magicians able to imitate miracles?

What was the first plague?

What is the difference between God and the gods?

May God bless you greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus! 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Key Verse: Exodus 5:1, 2.

[1, 2] Afterward Moses and Aaron went in and told Pharaoh, "Thus says the LORD God of Israel: 'Let My people go, that they may hold a feast to Me in the wilderness.'" And Pharaoh said, "Who is the LORD, that I should obey His voice to let Israel go? I do not know the LORD, nor will I let Israel go."

Prayer: Thank You Lord for Your power to deliver us from the bondage of sin. We are vessels in Your hands, use us to be a blessing to people and to Your work. Keep us from the evil one, help us not to worship other gods. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: Drama—God's conversation with Moses when he was given the rod, choose a part and act it out! Then each one should say what they have in their hand today; if they cannot see, those who know them can help.

DAY 30 (January 30)

LESSON: The Plagues of Egypt

(Exodus 8-11)

Then Moses went to Pharaoh again and said, "The LORD says: Let My people go so that they may serve Me." Moses told Pharaoh that if he refused, frogs would come upon the land. Pharaoh refused, and at the Lord's command, Moses stretched his hand over the rivers, streams, and ponds, and frogs came up and covered the land. They entered bedrooms, beds, and eating utensils. The frogs covered the land, and even the magicians could imitate bringing frogs onto the land.

Pharaoh was overwhelmed by the frogs everywhere and begged Moses to ask the LORD to remove them. Moses asked him, "When do you want this to happen?" Pharaoh replied, "Tomorrow." Moses cried out to the LORD, and the LORD did exactly as Moses had promised Pharaoh. The frogs died in the fields and houses, and people gathered them in piles, causing a foul odor to fill the land. However, when Pharaoh saw relief, he hardened his heart and refused to listen, just as the LORD had said.

Moses then stretched out his staff, struck the dust of the land, and it turned into lice. Everyone, including animals, was covered with lice. The magicians tried to imitate bringing lice but failed, and they told Pharaoh, "This is the finger of God." Yet, Pharaoh's heart remained hardened, and he would not listen.

Many people, when faced with a big problem, are willing to listen to God's voice, but once relieved, they forget. Let this open our eyes!

The next morning, they approached Pharaoh while he was by the river, asking him to let the Israelites go, but he refused, and the plague of flies was brought upon the Egyptians alone. The flies were numerous. Pharaoh told the Israelites to go and offer sacrifices to their God but not to go far. Moses explained that their sacrifices would be detestable to the Egyptians, so they needed to travel three days into the wilderness. Moses prayed, and the flies were removed, but Pharaoh hardened his heart again.

Despite all these plagues, Pharaoh refused to obey God's voice. Then, all of Pharaoh's livestock, including horses, donkeys, camels, cattle, and sheep, were struck with a plague of boils and sores after Moses threw ashes into the air before Pharaoh. However, the Israelites' animals were spared. Even the magicians could not stand before Pharaoh due to the boils.

Then came the plague of heavy hail, and Pharaoh was warned to prepare by bringing his animals into shelter. A powerful storm of thunder and hail struck, breaking trees, destroying crops, and shattering everything. Pharaoh told Moses, "I and my people have sinned; the LORD is righteous." But once the storm ceased, he again hardened his heart.

The eighth plague of locusts came, covering the land. The locusts consumed everything left by the hail. Astonishingly, even after all these plagues, Pharaoh remained stubborn. He allowed only the men to go and offer sacrifices, leaving behind the children. He pleaded for forgiveness, and Moses prayed, causing the LORD to change the wind and drive the locusts away. Yet, Pharaoh hardened his heart again.

The ninth plague was total darkness for three days over Egypt. Hardened hearts bring great suffering. The darkness was so thick that people could not see each other. Pharaoh then allowed them to go worship the LORD but without their livestock. Moses insisted that they needed their animals for sacrifices. Pharaoh became furious and expelled Moses, saying, “Go away! Do not see my face again.” Moses replied, “You have spoken correctly; I will not see your face again.” That was the last time Moses went to Pharaoh.

🎁 The final and tenth plague was the death of every firstborn in Egypt, from Pharaoh’s son to the lowest servant and even animals. The LORD told Moses that after this, Pharaoh would finally let them go completely. The Israelites were instructed to ask the Egyptians for silver and gold, and the LORD gave them favor, so they received these items easily.

At midnight, the LORD struck down the firstborn of Egypt. There was great wailing, for there was no house without someone dead. Pharaoh summoned Moses and Aaron and told them to leave with all their people and livestock, even asking them to bless him. The Egyptians urged them to leave quickly out of fear.

🎁 Every miracle Moses and Aaron performed before Pharaoh was imitated by his magicians with fake miracles. This competition in Pharaoh’s court reminds us of the Great Controversy between good and evil. Satan can use his limited power to bring suffering to our world, but he cannot compete with the Creator of heaven and earth.

A day is coming soon when every knee will bow, and every tongue will confess that Jesus Christ is LORD to the glory of God the Father. Then, the Great Controversy will be over, and the world will experience perfect peace again.

🎁 Questions:

How many plagues affected only the Egyptians?

Why couldn’t the magicians imitate some of the plagues?

What was the final plague?

Why didn’t Pharaoh want to release the Israelites?

Revelation 16 describes similar plagues coming before the end of the world. How should we prepare for them?

May God bless you greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus! 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Exodus 9:14-17

[14-17] "For at this time I will send all My plagues to your very heart, and on your servants and on your people, that you may know that there is none like Me in all the earth. Now if I had stretched out My hand and struck you and your people with pestilence, then you would have been cut off from the earth. But indeed for this purpose I have raised you up, that I may show My power in you, and that My name may be declared in all the earth. As yet you exalt yourself against My people in that you will not let them go."

Prayer: Lord, help me not to be proud like Pharaoh. Create in me a clean and tender heart, so that when I hear Your voice I will obey.

Activity: List the 10 plagues and compose a simple song about those plagues. A play of one plague on Egypt, and Pharaoh's conversation—choose a plague depending on the resources available in your class.

DAY 31 (January 31)

LESSON: The First Passover

(Exodus 12 and 13)

The LORD told Moses, "This month shall be the first month of the year for you." They were instructed to take a lamb for each household. If a family was too small, they would join with their neighbors. The lamb had to be without blemish. Children and adults rejoiced, as their time to leave slavery was near.

On the tenth day, they were to select a lamb and slaughter it in the evening. They were to take its blood and apply it to the doorposts of their houses. They were commanded to eat the roasted meat that night with unleavened bread and bitter herbs, symbolizing the bitterness of slavery.

At midnight, the LORD struck down the firstborn in Egypt. Pharaoh finally let the Israelites go. The Egyptians urged them to leave quickly, fearing for their lives. The Israelites departed, numbering about 600,000 men, excluding women and children.

That night is a great reminder of how the LORD delivered His people, just as He delivers us from the slavery of sin.

Will you let anything hold you back from fully following God?

If we accept, He will deliver us from the bondage of sin. The Egyptians who obeyed these instructions received salvation, but the Israelites who ignored them lost their firstborn sons. It does not matter what tribe, race, or language you belong to—when you choose to obey God, His blessings will follow you. That is how He works. Choose to listen to God, especially when you feel you are causing others pain.

Often, we are our own Pharaohs, so before criticizing the Pharaoh in this story, let us examine ourselves. It could be a particular scientific theory, a false philosophy, or a weakening addiction that we have embraced. Let us learn a lesson from Pharaoh. When a leader makes bad decisions, everyone under his leadership suffers. His servants pleaded with him to let the people go; otherwise, Egypt would be ruined. And indeed, it was ruined, and then they suffered the disaster of losing their firstborn children.

Is there something holding you back that you consider more important than following God fully?

🎁 At midnight, the LORD struck down all the firstborn of Pharaoh and the people of Egypt, and there was great wailing, for there was no house without someone dead. Pharaoh summoned Moses and Aaron and told them to leave with their people and livestock to worship their God. He also asked them to bless him. The Egyptians urged them to leave quickly, fearing for their lives. The Israelites took their belongings and left. The men alone numbered 600,000, excluding women and children. It was a vast multitude along with their animals. That night was a significant moment of remembrance of how the LORD delivered them from Egypt. It is also a moment for all humanity, as the LORD has delivered us from the bondage of sin.

Perhaps they did not sleep that night, rejoicing as they left for their promised land. This reminds me of when we were in boarding school at Kifungilo, Lushoto. Though a faint comparison, when we closed school, we were overjoyed to see the buses coming to take us home! We sang joyfully as we went home.

🎁 Thousands of Passover lambs were slaughtered, symbolizing Christ, the Lamb of God, who would be sacrificed for the sins of the world. Some Egyptians fled their masters that night and joined the Israelites. Others witnessed God's mighty works and joined them. However, these mixed groups later caused many problems.

🎁 Then the LORD told Moses that all firstborn males were to be consecrated to Him. He reminded them of how they left Egypt in the month of Abib and that when He brought them to the land of the Canaanites, Hittites, Amorites, Hivites, and Jebusites—a land flowing with milk and honey, as He had promised Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—they were to keep this feast. Those who disobeyed lost their children, just as it happened to the Egyptians. Obedience is crucial; when God speaks, we must listen and obey.

🎁 Thus, a new nation was born that day. It takes two weeks to travel from Egypt to Canaan. Moses looked at the massive procession and wondered how they would all reach Canaan. Led by God, he began to apply his leadership experience. Some non-Israelites also joined them, later becoming a source of much complaining. Perhaps Moses thought, "If I had known, I would have prevented them from coming." They saw the pyramids disappear from sight. They moved at a moderate pace due to the livestock and children, carrying Joseph's bones as promised. They journeyed from Rameses to Succoth and camped in Etham, at the border of the wilderness, about 400 kilometers from Canaan. A cloud led them by day, shielding them from the desert sun, and a pillar of fire led them by night, protecting them from the cold. God's presence was always with them. He directed their path, possibly avoiding the land of the Philistines to prevent war. Though many did not understand why they took that route, they had been in slavery and were not ready for battle. They reached Pihahiroth, seemingly heading towards Ethiopia, and completely left Egypt. The book of Exodus is named so because they departed from Egypt towards Canaan.

🎁 May God increase our love for Him as we walk with Him, spending an hour each day meditating on Jesus' life. Frogs, lice, and flies—Father, please remove these from my spiritual life and help my heart be humble, teachable, and surrendered to Your will. Pharaoh's repentance was fake. He said, "I will let you go to sacrifice to the LORD your God in the wilderness, but do not go too far; pray for me." These agreements were not made with a sincere heart to let the Israelites go; rather, he was planning ways to bring them back. He said, "Go, but not too far," because he knew they might miss Egypt's food and other things. Satan does not mind if we are Christians, as long as we do not forsake sin, purify our bodies, and follow God's commandments.

🎁 A believer without faith is easily tempted to return to their past life. We need complete surrender. Another thing that touched me was Pharaoh's false repentance. He admitted he had sinned, acknowledged that the LORD was righteous, and promised to let the Israelites go. But when the thunder and hail stopped, he hardened his heart again and refused to release them. How many times have I acted like Pharaoh? How often do I turn to God only when I am in trouble, instead of focusing on His goodness? His kindness is the only thing that leads us to true repentance (Romans 2:4).

🎁 Both publicly and in private worship, we have the opportunity to kneel before GOD in prayer. Jesus, our example, "knelt down and prayed" (Luke 22:41). His disciples also “knelt and prayed” (Acts 9:40). Paul declared, “I kneel before the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ” (Ephesians 3:14). Ezra knelt in confession before GOD for the sins of Israel (Ezra 9:5). Daniel “knelt down three times a day, prayed, and gave thanks before his GOD” (Daniel 6:10).

🎁 Questions:

What were the purposes of the cloud by day and the pillar of fire by night?

How was the first Passover celebrated?

What happened to those who did not put the blood on their doorposts?

How many Israelite men left Egypt?
Where did the Israelites get their possessions?

What nation was born on the day of the Exodus?

May God bless you abundantly, Child and Young Person of Jesus 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Key Verse: Exodus 12:11-14a.

[11-14] “And thus you shall eat it: with a belt on your waist, your sandals on your feet, and your staff in your hand. So you shall eat it in haste. It is the LORD’s Passover. For I will pass through the land of Egypt on that night, and will strike all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, both man and beast; and against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgment: I am the LORD. Now the blood shall be a sign for you on the houses where you are. And when I see the blood, I will pass over you; and the plague shall not be on you to destroy you when I strike the land of Egypt. So this day shall be to you a memorial…”

Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father, for delivering us from the bondage of sin. Forgive our faults, help us move forward in our journey toward the heavenly Canaan. Thank You for Your goodness. In Jesus Christ’s Name, Amen.

Activity: Lesson of obedience and sacrifice—put a red mark on the door, and continue with a drama of eating together and being ready to leave Egypt, belts fastened, etc.

DAY 32 (February 1)

LESSON: Crossing the Red Sea

(Exodus 14)

✿ While at Pihahiroth, Pharaoh's heart hardened again, and he decided to pursue the Israelites after hearing they had fled into the wilderness. His unpaid labor force was escaping! God was glorified through Pharaoh and his army so that the Egyptians would know He is the LORD. Pharaoh prepared 600 chariots and pursued the Israelites. The Israelites, seeing the Egyptians approaching, were terrified and cried out to God. They blamed Moses, saying it was better to serve the Egyptians than to die in the wilderness. Moses reassured them, saying, "Do not be afraid. Stand firm and see the salvation of the LORD today. The Egyptians you see today, you will never see again. The LORD will fight for you; you need only be still."

✿ Then God commanded Moses to stretch out his hand over the sea. That night, a strong east wind divided the waters, making a dry path. Over three million people and their livestock crossed overnight on dry ground. The Egyptians pursued them, but God caused confusion among them, and their chariots' wheels got stuck.

✿ At dawn, Moses stretched out his hand again, and the waters returned, drowning Pharaoh's army. The Israelites, safe on the other side, praised God, led by Moses and Miriam.

✿ Let us always remember to give thanks to the LORD. He is mighty to save! The Red Sea parted when the Angel of God stood behind the Israelites at the pillar of cloud. As dawn broke, Moses stretched out his hand over the sea again at God's command, and the waters rushed back with His power. The Egyptians fled, but they were swept away by the sea—soldiers, chariots, and horses alike. Not a single one survived. However, the Israelites crossed safely.

Read Psalm 136:15—what do you understand from this passage? This is how the LORD saved Israel that day from the hands of the Egyptians. When God makes a promise, He fulfills it. We have been promised to reach our destination! The Israelites saw the great work the LORD had done against the Egyptians, and they feared the LORD, believed in Him, and honored His servant Moses.

Then Moses and the Israelites sang a song to the LORD, glorifying Him:
“I will sing to the LORD, for He has triumphed gloriously; the horse and its rider He has thrown into the sea. The LORD is my strength and my song, and He has become my salvation. He is my God, and I will praise Him. He is my father’s God, and I will exalt Him. The LORD is a warrior; the LORD is His name.”

You can continue reading Moses’ song. His sister, the prophet Miriam, a singer, also responded with tambourines, leading the women of Israel:
“Sing to the LORD, for He has triumphed gloriously; the horse and its rider He has thrown into the sea.”

✿ It is a good thing to thank and praise the LORD. The LORD delights in the praises of His people. When He does great and wonderful things for us, we must not forget to show gratitude.

To allow nearly three million people to cross in just one night, along with their livestock, was a miracle. Let God be called God! The path was not just a narrow way but a wide, dry road, without a trace of water. Some people have compared this crossing to the Suez Canal, built in 1869, which is about 350 km wide and 2 km deep.

✿ A skeptic once told others that the Israelites only passed through shallow water—just two feet deep! A little child responded, “Hallelujah! That’s an even greater miracle than I thought, because if the Israelites crossed in two feet of water, how did the Egyptians drown in just two feet?” Even trembling children who saw Pharaoh’s army knew the greatness of God.

Indeed, Pharaoh, who sought revenge for his deceased son and wanted his slaves back to continue his oppression, was dealt with by God’s mighty hand. That same powerful hand is still present today to help us in our troubles. Let us remember to pray for our children in times of joy and hardship.

✿ No one could forget that night. With such a large crowd crossing in just one night, along with their livestock and belongings, there must have been a wide path for them to pass through.

Moses continued leading the Israelites through the Red Sea and into the wilderness of Shur. They traveled for three days and arrived at Marah, meaning bitter. The people were thirsty, but the water was too bitter to drink. They complained to Moses, who cried out to the LORD. The LORD showed him a tree, which he threw into the water, making it sweet.

There, the LORD gave them laws and tested them. He told them to listen carefully to His voice, obey His commands, and follow His laws. If they did, He would not bring upon them any of the diseases that afflicted the Egyptians, for He declared, “I am the LORD who heals you.”

Indeed, God carried them on His wings, just as an eagle carries its young. They arrived at Elim, where there were twelve springs of water and seventy palm trees. They camped by the water and rested after their many trials. Then they left Elim and reached the Wilderness of Sin on the fifteenth day of the second month after leaving Egypt.

✿ This song of praise will also be sung by those who are saved in Heaven (Revelation 15:3).

One might think that such an incredible miracle of deliverance at the Red Sea would strengthen the faith of the Hebrews for their entire lives. But that did not happen. Soon after, the people complained to the LORD again.

Why did this happen? Because they had not grown or nurtured their faith. Their character still reflected their past environment. They had left Egypt, but Egypt had not left their hearts.

We, too, must remove Babylon (Revelation 17:5) from within us to enter the heavenly Canaan. How do we do this? By growing the character of Jesus within us. By loving, imitating, and fully depending on Him, we will be transformed into His likeness. He alone is the Way, the Truth, and the Life (John 14:6; Isaiah 45:22).

✿ Songs are a special way to remember God’s goodness and events.
During the creation of the world, “the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy” (Job 38:7).
At the crossing of the Red Sea, there was singing.
When Jesus was born, angels sang (Luke 2).

Indeed, one of my prayers in Heaven will be to hear that song again!

And over the sea of glass, all the redeemed will sing the song of Moses and the Lamb (Revelation 15:3).

We will praise the LORD for setting our souls free from the bondage of sin. God has granted us a greater redemption than that of the Hebrews at the Red Sea.

All the enemies of righteousness will be destroyed, and the final victory of God's Israel (spiritual Israel) will be achieved.

Will you be there to join that great choir? By God's grace, I will be there!

✿ In public and private worship, it is our duty to kneel before God when we bring our prayers to Him. This act shows our dependence on the LORD.

✿ Questions:

What was found at Elim?

Who led the singing?

How did the Israelites cross the Red Sea?

What happened to Pharaoh and his army?

Who asked, "Why do you cry out to Me?"

God bless you, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Exodus 14:16,17

[16,17] And you, lift up your rod, and stretch out your hand over the sea, and divide it; and the children of Israel shall go on dry ground through the midst of the sea. And I, behold, I will harden the hearts of the Egyptians, and they shall follow them, and I will get honor over Pharaoh, and over all his army, over his chariots, and over his horsemen.

Prayer: Thank You for dividing the Red Sea of our lives when the enemy wants to oppress us. We ask that You remind us to give You the glory You deserve.

Activity: Drama; Running and being pursued by the Egyptian army, their chariot wheels coming off, etc. Sing a song about the experience of deliverance, and ask one another if each one plans to be there.

Day 33 (February 2)

TOPIC: Bitter Water and the Bread of Manna – Complaints Increase

(Exodus 16)

✿ In this wilderness of Sin, nothing thrived, and the people quickly forgot God's great works, even though they had witnessed them just days before. The pillar of cloud and fire was a clear sign that the LORD Himself was leading them. Yet, one person started complaining, and soon others followed.

Lack of faith and complaining are dangerous because they can lead many into sin. We should remember to give thanks and obey God as He leads us. When you lack faith, sometimes it's best to stay silent and pray in your heart.

It is true that they had children and livestock with them, but they forgot that in Egypt, they were slaves. They started glorifying Egypt more than trusting in the hands of the LORD. They said, "If only we had died by the LORD's hand in Egypt! There we sat by pots of meat and ate all the food we wanted, but you have brought us into this wilderness to starve this entire assembly to death!"

✿ They remembered the garlic, melons, cucumbers, and other foods but forgot the greatness of God. Leadership is a heavy responsibility; it is service to people, not a position of worldly power. God wants His leaders to be servants. Even Jesus served people when He came to earth.

We cannot touch heaven without caring for people. Since the Israelites saw Moses and Aaron, they directed their complaints and accusations toward them! Contentment and gratitude are very important.

✿ Even today, God has His servants, and we must be careful not to make their lives miserable as Moses' life was. Whether by speaking against them, mistreating them, or disobeying the authority given to them by God.

It is true that some ministers serve for personal gain, but many sincerely serve the God of heaven with honesty and truth. Let us not make their work difficult, for God has placed them for our benefit.

The LORD then promised to rain down bread from heaven and instructed the Israelites to gather just enough for each day. On the sixth day, they were to collect twice as much to prepare for the Sabbath day of rest.

God wanted to test them to see if they would follow His instructions. They were to gather only what was needed, avoiding greed, and on the Sabbath, they were not to collect anything.

✿ Moses and Aaron communicated the LORD's instructions to the people, reminding them that it was God who had delivered them from cruel slavery. Even today, we have been delivered from the slavery of sin.

Sin is a kind of Egypt, and we must listen to the voice of the LORD, abide in His Word, obey His commands, and keep His holy day.

They Continued Gathering Manna for 40 Years Until They Reached the Land to Cultivate and Harvest

They gathered manna for 40 years until they reached the land where they could farm and harvest; then the manna stopped falling. Their clothes and shoes did not wear out. Blessed be the LORD, who is the giver of all things and has great love for us. They prepared this bread in different ways. They could eat it as it was, bake it, and cook it in various styles, giving it different tastes and aromas.

They did not need to work for food; they were fed for 40 years for free. They didn't even have to pay rent or buy new clothes. When the Israelites started complaining, they perceived the food as undesirable; otherwise, it was good, and they loved it.

Some children, when given toys, quickly grow tired of them and desire new ones. Some little children cry in stores and refuse to leave until they get what they want, only to lose interest in it within a few days and start crying for something else.

It is good to talk to our Heavenly Father and tell Him, "Father, this food today does not satisfy me; please provide something different." He is a Father who understands.

✿A 12-year-old child was invited to a feast with more than 200 different types of food arranged on various tables. As he walked around, he complained, “There’s nothing here that I like!” Food plays a significant role in shaping good character because if we do not control our appetite, we can easily fall into temptation.

This is how the Garden of Eden was lost—by failing to control the desire for food. Denying the desires of the flesh and the eyes is a great victory.

Today, let us recognize the blessings we have received instead of complaining about what does not please us on our journey to the heavenly Canaan. Let us be grateful for His love and care!

Every day, manna covered the ground, speaking a message of mercy anew each morning. Without it, they would have perished. God has always been attentive to the needs of His children.

This care is perfectly shown in Jesus, who is greater than the manna given to the Israelites in the wilderness. “I am the bread of life” (John 6:48). “This is the bread that comes down from heaven so that one may eat of it and not die” (John 6:50).

✿In everything, let us remember that God is the Owner and the Giver.

The world’s greatest need is for people who cannot be bought or sold—people who are true and faithful to their core, people who are not afraid to call sin by its rightful name, people whose consciences are as steadfast in duty as the needle to the pole, people who will stand for the right though the heavens fall.

Manna was like white coriander seed, and its taste was like wafers made with honey. Moses commanded that a portion be kept as a historical record for future generations so they could see the food that had sustained them in the wilderness and glorify God for His provision. Aaron took a jar and placed an omer of manna inside it as a testimony, and it was preserved in the sanctuary.

Even today, God performs great miracles for us.

✿At one time, I met 60 people from Angola at a laymen’s meeting in Michigan. They told me that manna had been falling in their country during a famine that year! I was astonished, but they had taken pictures of people collecting it, and news reporters had interviewed them.

God still provides salvation and help.

Manna was not to be gathered on the Sabbath, signifying that even when buying and selling are impossible due to the enforcement of Sunday laws, God will feed His faithful children. Even in the wilderness, He can bring down a rain of food!

Even in the desert, we must remember and keep the holy Sabbath of the Lord.

✿We hope that our brethren will show more reverence and fear when approaching the one true and living GOD than pagans show in honoring and worshiping their idols. Otherwise, these people will be our judges on the final day of judgment.

I would speak to all those who hold the position of teachers in our schools.

Men and women, do not dishonor GOD by failing to respect Him—by boasting and displaying pride and self-importance.
Do not stand in your Pharisaism and present your prayers to GOD.
Do not trust in your own strength.
Do not rely on it.
Instead, bow your knees before GOD and worship Him frequently.

✿Questions:

What happened when they drank bitter water?

What foods did the Israelites remember from Egypt?

What is the danger of gluttony?

What is the meaning of manna?

Why were they told not to gather manna on the Sabbath?

How many years did they eat manna?

How does God provide food for us today?

Can you list the good things God has done for you?

God Bless You, Child and Young Person of Jesus 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Key Text: Exodus 16:2-4

[2-4] And the whole congregation of the children of Israel murmured against Moses and Aaron in the wilderness. And the children of Israel said to them, Would to God we had died by the hand of the Lord in the land of Egypt, when we sat by the flesh pots, and when we ate bread to the full; for you have brought us forth into this wilderness, to kill this whole assembly with hunger. Then the Lord said to Moses, Behold, I will rain bread from heaven for you; and the people shall go out and gather a certain portion every day, that I may test them, whether they will walk in My law, or not.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for protection, goodness, and mercy. We pray that You help us not to remember sin and suffering and praise them as if they were something good. Forgive our sins of forgetfulness. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: Reflect on God's provision through manna and quail. You may draw a container of "manna," foods like bread resembling chapati or popcorn, games like collecting "manna," and lessons on a 'thankful heart' by listing God's blessings.

DAY 34 (February 3)

LESSON: The Waters of Meribah and Dividing Leadership

(Exodus 17 & 18)

✿The Israelites traveled through the Wilderness of Sin and arrived at Rephidim, but there was no water there. They quarreled with Moses, demanding, "Give us water to drink." Moses replied, "Why do you quarrel with me?"

The thirsty people grumbled, saying, "Have you brought us here to die of thirst with our children and livestock?"

Moses cried out to the LORD, "What shall I do with these people? They are almost ready to stone me!"

The LORD instructed Moses to take some of the elders of Israel and the staff he had used to strike the Nile. He was to go to the rock at Horeb, where the LORD would stand before him. He was to strike the rock, and water would come out for the people to drink.

Moses did as he was commanded, and he named the place Massah and Meribah because the Israelites quarreled and tested the LORD, asking, "Is the LORD among us or not?"

The passage continues, discussing:

The battle against Amalek and Joshua's leadership

Moses' hands being held up by Aaron and Hur for victory

Jethro's wise counsel to Moses about delegating responsibility

✿Questions:

What happened at the waters of Meribah? Why was it a serious sin?

What happened when Moses lifted his hands
Who held up Moses' hands?

What advice did Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, give him?

Why did Moses ask Hobab to accompany them when they were already guided by a pillar of cloud and fire?

God Bless You, Child and Young Person of Jesus

Key Text: Exodus 17:11,12.

[11,12] And it came to pass, when Moses held up his hand, Israel prevailed; and when he let down his hand, Amalek prevailed. But Moses' hands were heavy; so they took a stone, and put it under him, and he sat on it. And Aaron and Hur stayed up his hands, one on one side, and the other on the other side; and his hands were steady until the going down of the sun.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for helping us in victory. We pray that the words of our mouths and the meditations of our hearts may be acceptable before You, oh God, our strength and our redeemer. Forgive us for speaking carelessly. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: Drama of water from the rock, or victory over the Amalekites. Materials—a place with a big stone, a rod to strike the rock, and how water would come forth, etc. Also how to celebrate when they show victory over the Amalekites by two people holding up 'Moses' hands.' Or a drama of the conversation between Moses and his father-in-law Jethro about choosing men to help in the work.

DAY 35 (February 4)

LESSON: The Ten Commandments at Mount Sinai (Horeb)

(Exodus 19 & 20)

✿Mount Sinai, also called the mountain of God, is in Egypt.

Three months after leaving Egypt, the Israelites arrived at the wilderness of Sinai and camped at the foot of the mountain. The LORD called Moses up the mountain and told him to remind the Israelites how He had delivered them from Egypt on "eagles' wings."

God instructed them to obey His voice and keep His covenant so they would be His treasured possession among all nations.

The people agreed, saying, "All that the LORD has spoken, we will do."

The LORD told Moses to consecrate the people, wash their clothes, and prepare for the third day when He would descend upon Mount Sinai.

On the third day, the mountain was covered in smoke, there was thunder and lightning, and the sound of a trumpet grew louder. The mountain trembled, and the people stood at its base in fear.

✿First Commandment:

"I am the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage."

(This reminds us of God's love and salvation before He even gave the commandments.)

❦"You shall have no other gods before Me."
This means God must be first in our lives.
Do Not Have Any Other gods Before Me

Provonsha

This commandment shows that God must be first in our lives. Whether it's how we spend our time, our resources, our talents, our bodies, or anything else, He must come first.

❦ Do not make for yourself an idol or an image of anything in heaven above, on the earth below, or in the waters under the earth. Do not bow down to them or worship them, for I, the Lord your God, am a jealous God, punishing the children for the sins of the fathers to the third and fourth generation of those who hate Me, but showing mercy to thousands who love Me and keep My commandments.

Today, there are many forms of idolatry that do not involve carved images. These include sports, entertainment, work, food, spouse, children, computers, cars, houses, beauty, opinions, thoughts, possessions, wealth, fashion, appearance, education, pleasure, influence, and more. We should ask ourselves these four questions:

1. Where do I spend most of my time?

2. Where do I spend most of my money?

3. What brings me the most joy?

4. What is constantly on my mind and in my heart?

❦ Do not take the name of the Lord your God in vain, for the Lord will not hold anyone guiltless who misuses His name.

We should not swear falsely in God's name. Our "yes" should be "yes," and our "no" should be "no." Misusing God's name also means claiming to be His follower while living in disobedience. If our actions do not honor Him, others may despise His name because of us.

❦ Remember the Sabbath day by keeping it holy. Six days you shall labor and do all your work, but the seventh day is a Sabbath to the Lord your God. On it you shall not do any work—neither you, nor your son or daughter, nor your male or female servant, nor your animals, nor any foreigner residing in your towns. For in six days the Lord made the heavens and the earth, the sea, and all that is in them, but He rested on the seventh day. Therefore, the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and made it holy.

This is the longest commandment. The Israelites had forgotten to observe the Sabbath during their time in slavery, so God reminded them again. Isaiah 58 teaches that the Sabbath should not be a day of pursuing our own pleasures but a day of delight in the Lord. It is a day for worshiping the Creator and doing good.

Some claim that Sunday is now the day of worship because Jesus rose on the first day of the week. However, the Bible clearly identifies the Sabbath as the seventh day in Mark 16:2, Luke 24:1, John 20:1, Matthew 28:1, and other verses.

❦ Honor your father and mother, so that you may live long in the land the Lord your God is giving you.

This is the only commandment with a promise. It is crucial to respect parents and elders. Even if our parents have difficult personalities, God commands us to honor them. However, if their instructions contradict God's, Acts 5:29 says, "We must obey God rather than men."

As they grow old, we should not let our parents suffer if we have the ability to care for them. Love them and never be ashamed to introduce them to your friends.

❦ Do not murder.

This is the shortest commandment, yet it holds great weight. Courts worldwide recognize this law. Jesus expanded on it, saying that even harboring hatred in our hearts is like committing murder (Matthew 5:21-22). If we have resentment, we must confess, forgive, and ask God to cleanse our hearts.

❦ Do not commit adultery.

This commandment forbids all forms of sexual immorality. A person should remain pure in thought, word, and action, engaging in sexual relations only within marriage. Avoid situations that might lead to temptation, such as secretive or inappropriate conversations with the opposite gender. Jesus said that even looking at someone with lust is committing adultery in the heart (Matthew 5:28).

❦ Do not steal.

Taking anything that does not belong to us is theft. Borrowing without returning, wasting time at work, or even taking small items like a pen without permission are all forms of stealing. Let's examine our hearts and actions.

❦ Do not give false testimony against your neighbor.

Lying takes many forms, including keeping silent when we should speak the truth, using gestures to deceive, exaggerating, slandering, or ruining someone's reputation with unfounded accusations. We must repent and live in truthfulness.

❦ Do not covet your neighbor's house. Do not covet your neighbor's wife, his male or female servant, his ox or donkey, or anything that belongs to your neighbor.

Many people struggle with jealousy without even realizing it. The heart is deceitful. Instead of envying others, we should rejoice in their success and never wish them harm.

The Commandments Summarized:

The first four commandments focus on our relationship with God.

The last six commandments focus on our relationships with others.

Jesus summarized them as:

1. "Love the Lord your God with all your heart, soul, mind, and strength."

2. "Love your neighbor as yourself."

These two commandments are interconnected. We cannot truly love God without loving others.

God's commandments are not just good advice; they are divine instructions. Sin is breaking these laws. They serve as a mirror, helping us see where we need correction. Unlike the ceremonial laws of sacrifices, which ended with Jesus' death, the Ten Commandments are eternal. Heaven and earth may pass away, but God's law remains (Matthew 5:18).

✿ Kneeling in Prayer Teaches Reverence for God and His Majesty.

May God teach His people how to pray with sincerity and devotion. Teachers in our schools and ministers in our churches should learn daily at the feet of Jesus. Then their prayers will be fervent, heard, and answered, and the Word will be preached with power.

✿Questions:

What do the first four commandments say?

What do the last six commandments say?

What are the two greatest commandments?

What is sin?

Why are the Ten Commandments more than just good advice?

Why are the commandments eternal and not just for a certain time?

Why is the law called a mirror?

What is the difference between the ceremonial laws and the Ten Commandments?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Exodus 20:1-3

[1-3] And God spoke all these words, saying, I am the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. You shall have no other gods before Me.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for Your love in saving us from sin. Help us to see that Your commandments are not prohibitions but enablement to overcome the evil one, and to prepare us to live with You forever in perfect joy. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: God brought the Israelites out of Egypt so they could come to Him— Discuss Exodus 19:3-6. Each one should recite the Ten Commandments and say them as they are and also in summary. Discuss the instructions to prepare to meet God at Mount Sinai and how that applies today. Discuss how to keep the Sabbath today, as the Bible says about how the Israelites were to keep the Sabbath.

DAY 36 (February 5)

TOPIC: The Law and Judgment

✿ When God finished speaking the Ten Commandments, the people saw lightning, thunder, and the sound of the trumpet, and the mountain was covered in smoke. The people trembled and stood at a distance. They told Moses, "Speak to us, and we will listen, but let not God speak to us, lest we die." Moses told the people not to be afraid because God had come to test them so that His fear would be before them to keep them from sinning. The people remained at a distance, but Moses approached the thick darkness where God was.

✿ The Lord told Moses to inform the Israelites that they had seen Him speak from heaven. Therefore, they should not make gods of silver or gold. He instructed Moses to make an altar of earth for sacrifices, including burnt offerings and peace offerings (sheep and goats) in every place where He would put His name. He was also told to build an altar of uncut stones. When ascending to the altar, he should not use steps so that his nakedness would not be exposed.

✿ God then gave instructions on how to live in harmony. These laws can be seen as traffic lights that guide vehicles to avoid accidents and problems. Here are a few examples:

If a Hebrew slave is bought, he will serve for six years, but in the seventh year, he must be set free. If he married while a slave and had children, the wife and children would remain with the master unless the slave chose to stay with them. If he decided to stay, his ear would be pierced at the doorpost as a sign of lifelong service.

God gave regulations on how female servants should be treated justly.

If a person killed another with intent, they would be put to death.

If someone struck their father or mother, they would be executed.

If someone kidnapped another person and sold them, they would be put to death.

If a person struck another, causing them to be bedridden, but later they recovered, the attacker would have to pay for their time lost.

The law of retribution was given: “Eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot, burn for burn, wound for wound, bruise for bruise.”

If an ox gored a person to death, the ox would be stoned, and its meat not eaten. However, if the owner knew the ox was dangerous but did not restrain it, both the ox and its owner would be put to death.

✿ Instructions were also given regarding engagements, borrowing animals, and justice for strangers and the poor. If someone borrowed an animal and it died, they had to compensate the owner. If a person engaged a woman, they had to fulfill the requirements and pay the bride price. A sorceress was to be put to death. Bestiality was strictly forbidden. Anyone who sacrificed to other gods was to be destroyed.

✿ The Israelites were reminded not to oppress strangers, as they had also been strangers in Egypt. Lending to the poor should not include charging interest. People were warned not to curse God or insult their leaders. Women were not to wear men’s clothing, and men were not to wear women’s clothing, as this was detestable to God. The firstborn of livestock and crops belonged to the Lord.

✿ False reports and bribery were condemned, and justice was to be upheld. They were instructed to cultivate their land for six years but let it rest in the seventh year for the poor to eat. They were also warned against making covenants with other nations or worshiping their gods.

✿ God promised to send an angel to guide and protect them. He instructed them to listen to the angel and not rebel against him. The Israelites were assured that God would drive out their enemies gradually so that the land would not be overrun by wild animals. They were reminded not to worship other gods or make agreements with them.

✿ In both public and private worship, it is our duty to kneel before God when we bring our prayers to Him. Jesus, our example, "knelt down and prayed." Concerning His disciples, it is written that they also "knelt and prayed." Paul declared, "I bow my knees to the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ." When confessing Israel's sins, Ezra knelt before God. Daniel "knelt three times a day, prayed, and gave thanks before his God."

✿Questions:

Why did the people tremble when they heard the thunder?
Discuss six examples of the Israelites' civil laws.
Why would God give the Israelites the land gradually?
Which modern laws are similar to the laws given to the Israelites?
May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Exodus 21:1-3

[1-3] Now these are the judgments which you shall set before them: If you buy a Hebrew servant, he shall serve six years; and in the seventh he shall go out free for nothing. If he came in by himself, he shall go out by himself; if he was married, then his wife shall go out with him.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for Your laws of love for people. There are many who are hurt, and we pray You bring healing and hope to them. Help us to be of service to make their lives better, avoiding selfishness and quarrels. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: List other laws that promote good relationships and good environment as Exodus 21 lists, and discuss.

DAY 37 (February 6)

TOPIC: "Let Them Build Me a Sanctuary"

(Exodus 24-27)

✿ After giving the laws, Moses went up the mountain, and the glory of the Lord covered Mount Sinai. The cloud covered it for six days, and on the seventh day, God called Moses from within the cloud. The sight of the Lord's glory was like a consuming fire on the mountaintop. Moses remained there for forty days and forty nights.

✿ God instructed Moses to tell the Israelites to bring offerings willingly from their hearts to build a sanctuary for Him to dwell among them. They were to bring gold, silver, bronze, blue and purple yarn, fine linen, goat hair, ram skins dyed red, acacia wood, olive oil for the lamp, spices for anointing oil and incense, and precious stones for the priestly garments.

✿ The Lord provided a detailed plan for building the Tabernacle and its furnishings, which included:

The Ark of the Covenant: It was to be made of acacia wood and overlaid with pure gold inside and out. It was to have four gold rings, with poles of acacia wood overlaid with gold to carry it. The atonement cover (mercy seat) was to be placed on top of the Ark, with two cherubim of gold facing each other, covering it with their wings.

The Table for the Bread of the Presence: It was also to be made of acacia wood and overlaid with pure gold. The bread of the Presence (showbread) was to be placed before the Lord continually.

The Golden Lampstand: Made of pure gold with seven lamps, it was to be crafted with intricate designs of almond flowers and buds. The lamps were to be kept burning continuously.

✿ God also gave instructions for making the Tabernacle itself, which was to be made of ten curtains of finely twisted linen, blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, decorated with cherubim. These curtains were to be joined together with loops and gold clasps. The tent covering was to be made of goat hair, ram skins dyed red, and sea cow hides. The frames were to be made of acacia wood, overlaid with gold, and set in silver bases.

✿ The Most Holy Place (Holy of Holies) was to house the Ark of the Covenant. A special veil, woven with blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, embroidered with cherubim, was to separate the Holy Place from the Most Holy Place. The altar of burnt offerings was to be made of acacia wood, overlaid with bronze, with horns at each corner. The courtyard was to have linen curtains and bronze pillars.

✿ The Israelites were commanded to keep the lamps burning continually in the Tabernacle, using pure olive oil. The priests were to wear sacred garments, including a breastplate, an ephod, a robe, a tunic, a turban, and a sash, all made from fine linen with gold, blue, purple, and scarlet yarn.

✿ God emphasized that everything was to be made exactly as He had shown Moses on the mountain. This Tabernacle was a representation of God's dwelling among His people, pointing forward to Jesus, who would later come to dwell among us as Emmanuel, "God with us."

✿Questions:

Why did God command the Israelites to build a sanctuary?

What materials were used to build the Tabernacle?

What was placed in the Most Holy Place?

What was the purpose of the veil in the Tabernacle?

How does the Tabernacle point to Jesus?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Exodus 24:6-8.

[6-8] And Moses took half of the blood, and put it in basins; and half of the blood he sprinkled on the altar. Then he took the Book of the Covenant, and read in the audience of the people; and they said, All that the Lord has said we will do, and be obedient. And Moses took the blood, and sprinkled it on the people, and said, Behold the blood of the covenant, which the Lord has made with you concerning all these words.

Prayer: Thank You our God and our Rock for the Covenant You have made with us. Help us to understand and love this Covenant. We pray to know the meaning of everything that is contained in it. Thank You for saving us from the originator of sin, according to Genesis 3:15. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

DAY 38 (February 7)

LESSON: The Sin of Worshiping the Golden Calf

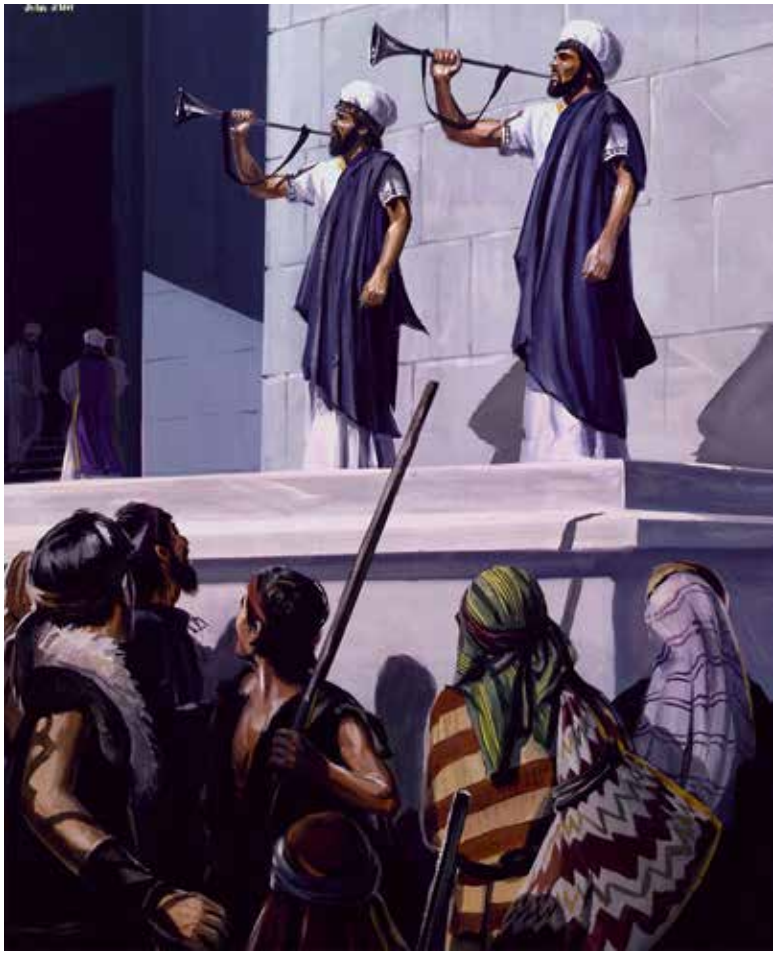
✿ Then Moses came down from the mountain. God had already warned him that the children of Israel had rebelled—"come down"—because your people, whom you brought out of Egypt, had ruined themselves, quickly straying and forsaking the way, making for themselves a calf to worship and offering sacrifices to it. Not even 40 days had passed since they heard the voice of God telling them the Ten Commandments, yet they had forgotten. This is a lesson for us: let us not forget God's commandments and let us be humble. Moses heard strange sounds like people singing, and immediately his eyes saw the golden calf. Joshua, who had been waiting for him a little below, thought the people were engaged in warfare.

✿ When the people saw that he was delayed in coming down, they went to Aaron and said, "Hey! Make for us gods that will go before us, for this Moses, who brought us out of Egypt, we do not know what has happened to him."

It appears that old Aaron had a character weakness and feared the people. So he told them to take off the gold earrings that were on their ears and those of their children and bring them to him. When they brought it to him, he fashioned a calf out of the gold by melting it down! And the people said, "This is your god who brought you out of Egypt." Creating something like this takes time, and therefore it is a sin of presumption. Aaron built altars and declared that the next day would be a feast for the LORD. Too often people want to worship visible gods, which is a great error, for faith is built by hearing God's Word.



✿ Then Moses turned and came down with the two blue stone tablets that had writing on both sides. When he saw the people dancing and giving in to the worship of the golden calf, in anger he threw down the two wooden pieces, breaking them at the foot of the mountain. Then he took the golden calf, ground it up, and scattered its powder in water, causing the Israelites to drink it. Moses said to Aaron, "What did these people do to you that you brought such a great sin upon them?" Aaron had no proper answer but pleaded for Moses' anger to subside and exonerated himself by saying, "You know these people—they have inclined themselves toward evil." He explained that what happened was because they gave him gold, and he threw it into the fire, from which the calf came out. An idol cannot come about without being crafted by man! Moses then called upon those on the side of God to come near him, and the Levites stood ready by his side. That day, 3,000 people fell by the sword because of this sin.

✿ The golden calf might have represented the gods of Egypt. The bull god Apis was worshiped in Memphis as the god of life. Hathor, the cow goddess, was worshiped in Thebes as the goddess of fertility, beauty, love, and joy. In Exodus 32, the people "rose up to dance," which carried connotations of open lust and could be compared to Hathor. Aaron, their spiritual leader, acceded to their requests and legitimized their worship by declaring the celebration of the LORD. That mixed worship caused God to disown the Hebrews and say to Moses, "Your people..." But when God rejects those who choose a calf instead of Him, Moses intercedes and pleads that His name be blotted out of the Book of Life.

✿ Moses' love for his people was so great that he was willing to give up his life for them. But there is only one acceptable substitutionary death to God, and that is the death of His Son, Jesus. Have you ever tried in your life to combine the world and its practices with your worship of God? Here we see the consequences of that action. God would have had people faithful only to Him—if only the heavens themselves would be different. Moses had no selfishness; he sacrificed himself so that others might be saved. I believe the LORD saw that Moses truly loved his people. Surely the character of Christ will be fully manifested in our hearts, and He will come to claim us as His people.

✿ That morning Moses told the people that they had committed a great sin, and that he would go to the LORD to make atonement for their sin. He also pleaded with the LORD to forgive their sin, and if not, "erase me," he implored, from your written book. Moses was an example of Jesus in that regard. Then the LORD told Moses, "The one who commits this sin will be blotted out of My book," and He told Moses to lead these people to Canaan, with His angel going before him. Even today we hear of three books: the Book of Life, the Book of Remembrance, and the Book of Judgment. The LORD struck these people for having done that thing with the calf which Aaron made. Obedience, humility, repentance, and turning from sin are essential for all mankind if we are to be delivered from sin.

✿ Here the Levites were chosen to be employed in the priestly work. The male children of Aaron—Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar—were set apart for this service. Moses spoke with God face to face, as one speaks with a friend. There has never been a prophet like Moses who knew God face to face. This does not mean that he saw God's face, but rather that he was so close to God that they conversed as dear friends do. They were so close that Moses longed greatly to see God's face. The LORD promised him, "My face will go with you; I will give you rest, for you have found favor in My sight. I know your name; I will have all My goodness pass before you, and I will proclaim the Name of the LORD before you. You cannot see My face, for a man shall not see Me and live; you shall only see My back." Moses asked how this would come about, and the LORD told him to ascend Mount Sinai, for He would appear to him. Moses went up the mountain carrying two other wooden pieces that he had hewn himself, because the first ones had been broken. When Moses saw all of this and heard the LORD speaking, he was struck with awe, and he no longer dared to look at Him but instead bowed in worship before Him, as if His face had touched the earth.

✿ Many children and many people today would love to see God face to face, and that is a good thing, but for now we cannot. Yet if we are good and love God, one day we will see His face. Face to face, indeed, with great joy! Now it is important that we know that the Almighty is full of mercy, forgiving, gentle, and abounding in grace and truth. The apostle John says, "God is love," so we can completely trust Him—even though we do not see Him, we sense Him near and speak with Him in prayer every day when we wake, when we sleep, and in the midst of the day. Our lives here on earth have meaning only when we prepare to live with Him forever, making it our foremost goal to develop the character needed so that we may live with God for eternity. Just by being near Him, holding His hand, speaking with Him, even embracing Him, all our earthly troubles will pale before the eternal blessings He has in store for us.

✿ No eye has seen, nor ear heard, what God has prepared for mankind. Our souls are roused by joy; every hardship will pass. God has prepared great and wonderful things for us—dear child or adult, do not miss being under the Tree of Life in heaven. Let your aim and your prayer, both day and night, be to love God. Start praying for Him to grant you a heavenly character, for if you love fighting, stealing, defiance, laziness, or any evil, you will trouble others. And even if you are forced to go (to judgment), you will not find pleasure, because you will be inclined to lie or hate someone, and then there will be none of that goodness. However, when God comes near only to sin, sin begins to crumble, for God is a consuming fire that burns sin—that is His nature. The wicked will begin to crumble before Him without even being touched by God. It is only character and people that we take with us into heaven, not material things.

✿ At Mount Horeb, God established a covenant with His people. God, in His love, chose Israel by an act of grace, just as in the earlier covenants made with the elders of the tribes. God had already delivered Israel from Egypt, and now His covenant at Sinai was a continuation of that deliverance. There are conditions in this covenant relationship. Now, therefore, if you obey My voice truly and hold fast to My covenant, then you will be Mine (Exodus 19:5). Up to that time, Israel had witnessed the unique acts of God's deliverance. Now Israel had to choose: go their own way or choose to be obedient to God and follow Him wherever He led. In this passage, they seemed to engage in mere lip service, for only six weeks had passed and they had already forgotten.

✿ How about us today—do we give God mere lip service like His people did, and then complain and try to go on with our lives without Him? Or will we respond as Israel did initially, saying, “Everything the LORD has spoken, we will do,” and not do as in Exodus 19:8? God here is revealed as a jealous God. It was God’s desire at Sinai—and still today—to have an even deeper, inner relationship with the people He created. We have a God who forgives and who will start the journey anew with us. No matter how great the sin, as soon as we confess and abandon it, God forgives us (1 John 1:8, 9). Therefore, let us not allow Satan to trouble us by bringing sin into our memories and telling us that we have not been forgiven. That is false, for he is an expert in this deception.

✿ Moses dearly desired the grace of seeing God face to face, and he pleaded for it. He was answered: “You have found grace in My sight, and I know you by name.” Moses said, “Show me Your glory.” No man who has fallen into sin can stand before God face to face, but Moses’ humility and purity of heart in that moment brought him together with his Creator. Do you want to feel the nearness of God in your life today? Put aside all the sins that could separate you from Him and ask Him to reveal Himself in your life. The same God who passed by Moses, hidden in the cleft of the rock, can reveal Himself to you. For He is Jesus—the gracious One who came to save you from your sins.

✿ Indeed, it would be good for both the elders and the youth to meditate on those Scriptural words that show how the place where the presence of GOD is reported should be considered sacred. “Take off your sandals,” Moses commanded on the burning bush, “for where you stand is holy ground.” Jacob, after seeing the vision of the angel, said, “The LORD is in this place; I did not know that this was not another place but the house of God, and this is the gateway to heaven.”

✿ Questions:
- Were the people faithful to God when Moses went up the mountain?
- Why did they rebel only six weeks after saying they would keep all the commandments?
- What did Moses do when he saw the rebellion taking place?
- What do we learn from this?
- How was the friendship between Moses and God?
- In what way did Aaron demonstrate his leadership?
- We must set ourselves apart from the world, yet also be reachable by people—discuss this paradox of being in the world but not of the world.

May God richly bless the child and the youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Exodus 32:31-33

[31-33] And Moses returned unto the Lord, and said, Oh, this people have sinned a great sin, and have made them gods of gold. Yet now, if You will forgive their sin—; and if not, blot me, I pray You, out of Your book which You have written. And the Lord said unto Moses, Whoever has sinned against Me, him will I blot out of My book.

Prayer: Thank You Father for writing our names in Your Book. Help us to love You and give You spotless worship. Deliver us from the evil one and from idols of wealth, possessions, knowledge, opinions, food, and all other things we put before You. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: The Book of Life. Give papers and let each one make a small booklet. Write sins on one side with pencil and after erasing write (forgiven), etc.

DAY 39 (February 8)

LESSON: Moses Goes Up the Mountain Again

(Exodus 34 and 35)

✿ Moses went up the mountain once again after the Ten Commandments had been inscribed on the tablets that he had hewn. Having spent 40 days on the mountain, his face shone so brightly that his brother Aaron was afraid to come near him. He had to conceal his face while speaking to the people. For the second time, God wrote the Ten Commandments with His own finger on stone tablets. The law that God personally recited and that was heard by the people (Exodus 20:1-2), and then written down twice on those stones, must be taken very seriously because undoubtedly He takes it very seriously. Breaking one commandment is like breaking all ten, for it is one thing (James 2:10; 2:12).

Is This How God Speaks?

The Lord, a merciful and gracious God, slow to anger, abundant in love and truth; showing mercy to thousands, forgiving iniquity, transgressions, and sin. When Moses heard this, he bowed down and pleaded with the Lord to go among them, for they were a stiff-necked people. He asked for their sins and iniquities to be forgiven and for them to be taken as His inheritance.

Moses represented Christ as he interceded for the children of Israel, asking for forgiveness for their sins. He warned the Israelites not to worship other gods, for the Lord is a jealous God. This jealousy is holy, for He is our Creator, and only He has the right to be jealous or to destroy what He has created.

Even in our daily lives, children who neglect their parents while helping others—fetching water, washing clothes, or providing for their needs—while abandoning their own parents, do they not provoke their parents to jealousy?

Giving is Better Than Receiving

When Moses came down from the mountain, the people were ready to build the tabernacle as instructed. However, they were tested to see whether they valued spiritual matters by offering contributions for its construction. They had acquired these materials while in Egyptian captivity. God did not force them to give, though He was the provider; instead, He asked for voluntary offerings from anyone whose heart was willing.

Until that point, the Israelites had been receivers, but now God wanted them to give. They gave willingly and joyfully, though perhaps a few grumbled. Giving is better than receiving—it is a heavenly virtue. Sharing with those in need and giving what little we have is a sign of love. If you eat while another child watches, hungry, or keep two pencils while another child has none, what does that say about your heart?

The people brought gold, linen threads, and silver, offering gifts to the Lord day and night until those collecting the contributions declared, “Enough! Stop bringing offerings!” Imagine if this happened in your church today—people giving so much that a call had to be made to stop donations because there was more than enough! This shows that the Israelites were neither greedy nor selfish.

If we are to entrust anyone with our wealth, should it not be the One who provides all things? Today, people are building churches and places of worship everywhere. Let’s pray that these constructions don’t take too many years to complete! Whenever possible, let’s avoid building places of worship using debt.

Giving Time and Skills for God's Work

God did not only ask for material offerings—He also wanted people to give their time and skills to help build the Tabernacle. "Everyone who is skilled among you, come and do the work the Lord has commanded," Moses said. Women with skill spun thread and brought it willingly.

Moses then told the Israelites, "The Lord has called Bezalel, son of Uri, son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah. He has filled him with the Spirit of God, with wisdom, understanding, and knowledge in all kinds of crafts—designing artistic works, working with gold, silver, and cutting precious stones."

Bezalel was also given the gift of teaching others his craftsmanship. His assistant, Oholiab, son of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan, was also filled with wisdom and skill for intricate work—engraving, carpentry, embroidery, and weaving. Moses called these young men, along with others who were willing to help in this great task.

Without a doubt, Bezalel personally handled the sacred furnishings, including the Ark of the Covenant's mercy seat, which was made of pure gold!
Bezalel and Oholiab must have been astonished when they were called by name by God Himself. For the first time in the Bible, it is explicitly stated that someone was filled with the Holy Spirit.

Today, these skills would be recognized as engineering, architecture, graphic design, and interior decoration. Many people may not have known Bezalel and Oholiab before, but this shows that God knows each person intimately, including our abilities—even better than we know ourselves!
Ask yourself: What does God know about you?

The Humility of Solomon

When Solomon began his responsibilities as king, he admitted before God, "I am only a little child" (1 Kings 3:7). His profound love for God, his reverence and humility, and his acknowledgment of his own limitations—while exalting the Creator of all things—are qualities to be emulated.

These virtues were revealed in his prayer of dedication for the temple, during which he knelt in humility as a true worshiper before God.
Today, followers of Christ must guard against losing their sense of reverence and awe for God. The Scriptures teach us how we should approach our Creator—with humility, faith, and deep respect—through Jesus Christ, our Mediator.

Reflection Questions

1. What lesson have you learned today?
2. Why is giving better than receiving?
3. How did Moses recognize Bezalel's craftsmanship and building expertise?
4. Who was Bezalel's assistant?
5. Why did Bezalel teach others?
6. Where in the Bible is it first mentioned that God filled someone with the Holy Spirit?

May God bless you, child and young servant of Jesus!

Key Text: Exodus 35:21,22.

[21,22] And they came, every one whose heart stirred him up, and every one whom his spirit made willing, and they brought the Lord's offering for the work of the tabernacle of the congregation, and for all its service, and for the holy garments. And they came, both men and women, as many as were willing-hearted, and brought bracelets, and earrings, and rings, and tablets, all jewels of gold; every man that offered, offered an offering of gold unto the Lord.

Prayer: Thank You Father for the gifts and skills You have given us. Help us to use them for Your glory and to help people. Forgive us our mistakes, help us to love Your law and obey it. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: A formal service to learn the talents that youth and children love, advising on their gifts, and praying for them in a special way about their service. Draw a picture of Bezalel and Oholiab.

DAY 40 (February 9)

TOPIC: Reasons for Having the Sanctuary

(Exodus 25, Leviticus 16 & 22)

✿ God commanded the construction of the tabernacle or temple so that He could dwell among His people. The sanctuary was also a place for confessing sins and receiving forgiveness. God provided a way to cleanse people from their sins through the altar. This tabernacle was a representation of the true sanctuary in heaven, illustrating the plan of salvation that people could physically see (a picture of salvation) (Hebrews 2, 3, 4, 8, 9, 10). We are told to approach Him with confidence through this way.

✿ This plan also helped prevent idol worship by continuously teaching the truth that God is invisible to our sinful eyes at this time. The sanctuary was a place where God dwelled with His people, and where they could meet with Him. It was positioned at the center of the Israelite camp, near Moses' dwelling. The tabernacle was built with pillars and beautiful curtains surrounding it.

✿ God's presence is everywhere, but He also has His holy city and temple in heaven. As human beings, we do not fully understand what He looks like, but we are told in John 4:24 and 1 Kings 8:27 that He is Spirit. The Bible clearly states that there is a temple in heaven, and heaven is a real place. There are many things we do not comprehend, nor can we fully grasp them with our limited minds. However, we must trust the Bible even when we do not understand everything, because in time, God will reveal more to us.

✿ In Hebrews 10:25, we are advised not to neglect attending worship services, and Jesus Himself had the habit of going to worship every week (Luke 4:16). We should make every effort not to be late for worship, nor should we arrive and make noise, chew food, or play around. The house of God is a holy place where we meet with Him.

✿ The plan of salvation is centered on sacrifice. Jesus came to live among people, died, and rose again so that we may have eternal life. Even today, God wants us to offer our bodies as living sacrifices. Dear child, obedience is a greater sacrifice than any offering. The Bible shows us that God will judge the world. Christ is both our High Priest and Judge in the heavenly temple.

✿ In Daniel 7:10, it says, "A thousand thousands served Him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before Him. The court was seated, and the books were opened." The temple was highly significant to the Jews in terms of their economy and national governance. However, over time, they forgot its true meaning, failing to realize that it was connected to God and the plan of salvation.

✿ After Christ's death on the cross (Matthew 27:50-51) and His ascension to heaven, the earthly temple was no longer the center of worship, but God still desires to dwell with His people through the Holy Spirit. Our bodies are now the temple of the Holy Spirit, and we must keep them pure—physically, mentally, and spiritually. Things like alcohol, smoking, immoral thoughts, and sinful actions defile the temple of God.

✿ Even though we are still children, we will continue to understand these things as we grow. It is true that we are saved by the death of Jesus on the cross, not by our works, but when we know Him, our actions and character are transformed to reflect Him. The most important thing about the temple is that even today, God wants to dwell within us, in our hearts. We must guard what enters our hearts—what we see, hear, touch, and think about. Psalm 77:13 says, “Your way, O God, is in the sanctuary.”

✿ The book of Leviticus mentions various feasts aside from the most significant one, the Day of Atonement.
These include:

The Sabbath,

The Feast of Passover and Unleavened Bread,

The Feast of Tabernacles (Camps),

The Feast of Trumpets,

The Feast of Weeks (later called Pentecost).

✿ Jesus does not only call us to pray in the temple or church but also to serve the needs of those around us. We cannot connect with heaven without caring for people. “For I was hungry, and you gave Me food; I was thirsty, and you gave Me drink; I was a stranger, and you took Me in; I was naked, and you clothed Me; I was sick, and you visited Me; I was in prison, and you came to Me.” (Matthew 25:35-36).

✿ We should live a balanced life—one of thoughts (reflection) and actions, as well as a life of silent prayer and diligent work. We have received immense love from our Savior, and we have the opportunity to share that love with friends, neighbors, and even strangers in need. Ask God in prayer how best to reach out to others. Prioritize personal prayers, for great wisdom is needed to understand the science of saving souls. Before speaking with people, speak with Christ. Receive guidance for serving others from the throne of divine grace.

Here are some ways you can help others:
- Buy a meal for a student in need.
- Collect clothes for the needy.
- Distribute tracts and booklets.
- Read a book to an elderly person.
- Visit an orphanage.

✿ The detailed instructions in Leviticus remind us that God values order, structure, and precision. He is also a lover of beauty and artistry! Those gifted in the arts can find great joy and inspiration in these passages. God Himself granted artistic talents to Bezalel and Oholiab. Their craftsmanship in constructing the tabernacle brought honor to the God they served. The people gave so generously to the building project that, eventually, a command was issued: “Stop bringing more!”

✿ It is rare today to hear of fundraising efforts for a ministry where so much is given that the leader says, “That’s enough! No more contributions are needed!” Indeed, giving is better than receiving. The enthusiasm, creativity, diligence, and passion that ancient Israel demonstrated in building a place of worship to honor God are still needed among His people today. Whether we are caretakers or designers, we glorify God when we serve and worship Him using our talents.

✿ Then Solomon knelt on the bronze platform, and in the presence of all the people, he offered a prayer of dedication for the temple. Lifting his hands toward heaven, while the congregation lay prostrate on the ground, the king pleaded: “O Lord, God of Israel, there is no God like You in heaven or on earth, keeping Your covenant and showing mercy to Your servants who walk before You with all their heart.”

✿ Reflection Questions:

1. Will there be a temple in heaven?

2. Since our bodies are the temple of the Holy Spirit, what should we avoid?

3. Why is it important to attend worship services or go to church?

4. What is the meaning of “holy”?

5. Why is the temple considered holy?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus! 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Key Text: Exodus 25:7,8.

[7,8] And let them make Me a sanctuary, that I may dwell among them. According to all that I show you, the pattern of the tabernacle, and the pattern of all its instruments, even so shall you make it.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for wanting to dwell among us, and we pray that we may love to dwell in Your house. Forgive us our sins, and make us able to minister to others and to pray for them too. We pray You help us to understand the message of the Sanctuary. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: Draw a picture of the Sanctuary, its three parts, and the things inside and write their names—the altar of burnt offering, the Holy Place, and the Most Holy Place.

DAY 41 (February 10)

TOPIC: Consecrating the Priests and Their Garments for God's Glory

(From Exodus 28, 27, 39, and 28)

Bezalel, Oholiab, and all the assistants who were willing to work for the Lord with their talents and time continued building. Some sorted various threads or skins, while others dyed the linen. Some watched and asked questions about what was happening, while others helped. Perhaps Moses answered many questions about the plan of salvation as the construction continued. There were no newspapers or radios, yet news about the tabernacle and its construction spread through what was happening.

✿ In such a sacred place, work had to be done with order, planning, and reverence. Making unnecessary noise, engaging in inappropriate conversations, or even having bad thoughts brought danger. Even today, when we go to church, we should avoid making noise and doing our own things. The church is a sacred vessel chosen to preach the good news of God and His soon-coming kingdom. God prioritizes His church. When we are in church, we should be silent and dress modestly. Arriving late to church and having wandering thoughts during worship is a sin. There is a book called Testimonies for the Church, Volume 5, Chapter 55, which explains well the behavior we should have in church. If you don't have this book, write to us, and we will send you a Kiswahili copy. The English version is available for free online.

✿ It took the engineer Bezalel six months to complete the work of the sanctuary. He did an excellent job, even sewing the garments for the priests. Perhaps Moses praised him for the great work he did in the wilderness for the sanctuary. The furniture was put in place, and Moses himself placed the two tablets of the Ten Commandments. Everything was arranged, and suddenly, as people watched, they saw a cloud filled with God's glory. The people rejoiced when they realized that God was with them and was pleased with their work. The joy of the Lord is our strength.

At night, the tabernacle or tent of meeting appeared to glow with the light of fire. That cloud provided warmth in the desert, while the fire reduced the cold of the wilderness. God is the provider of all His people's needs. Anyone who was sad or troubled would find comfort when they saw the cloud.

They had light and air conditioning without paying for it.

✿ After a few weeks, Aaron and his four sons were consecrated for service in the tabernacle. Everyone was invited and saw six people: Moses, Aaron, Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar entering while wearing tunics. Moses took water and washed the five men, preparing them for the sacred service before the Lord in the tabernacle. Then Moses dressed Aaron in his garments, which were beautifully designed with blue, purple, red, and gold, just like the curtains of the tabernacle. Blue represented God's Law, red represented sin, purple—a mixture of blue and red—represented grace, and gold represented righteousness.

On Aaron's chest was the ephod with twelve shining stones engraved with the names of the tribes of Israel. On his shoulders were two stones, each bearing the names of six tribes, reminding him that he carried the burdens and sins of the Israelites on his shoulders and heart. Moses placed a golden plate on Aaron's head with the words "Holy to the Lord."

✿ Aaron was to represent holiness. Without explaining every part of the garment, everything symbolized Christ. Do our clothes represent Christ? These garments were not meant to bring glory and attention to the wearer but rather to glorify God. Should religious leaders today wear luxurious garments adorned with gold and jewels like in those days? The most beautiful garment of all is the robe of Christ's righteousness.

Aaron also had two stones, one on each shoulder, called Urim and Thummim, which were the first and last letters of the Hebrew alphabet. These were used to provide answers to inquiries—if the right stone glowed, it meant the matter was approved by God; if the left stone remained shadowed, it was rejected.

Aaron's robe was also sewn with golden bells so that when he entered and exited, his sound would be heard. If he entered the tabernacle without wearing the proper garments, he would die.

✿ As this was happening, Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar stood watching. Finally, it was their turn to be dressed. Their garments were not like their father's, but they were beautiful and glorious.

✿ Then a bull was brought, and as Aaron and his sons stood, they laid their hands on its head, confessing their sins. Moses slaughtered the bull and sprinkled its blood on the altar. Then a ram was brought, and Aaron and his sons laid their hands on its head before it was slaughtered, and its blood was sprinkled on the altar. Another ram was brought for consecration, and these five priests laid their hands on it, symbolizing the transfer of their sins.

But this time, instead of sprinkling its blood on the altar, Moses placed the blood on the tip of Aaron's right ear, the thumb of his right hand, and the big toe of his right foot. Then he did the same to the four sons—on their ear, thumb, and big toe.

The blood on the right ear symbolized not listening to evil but keeping thoughts pure and dedicated to God. The blood on the thumb represented using their hands for holy work, helping the poor, orphans, and widows, and building God's kingdom. The blood on the big toe represented walking in righteousness, following God's commandments, and not straying into sin.

✿ In summary, this service was for consecration, setting them apart for God's holy work. Even today, we must be consecrated by the blood of Jesus—our ears, fingers, and feet—so that we think pure thoughts, do good deeds, and walk in God's righteous paths. Even today, God's servants and places of worship are consecrated.

God's servants should be respected because they represent Him. The tabernacle represented God's house on earth—it was not a place to sleep as if it were a hotel, nor a place for gossip and idle talk after the service. It was a place to be still and worship.

✿ Prayer: Father, help me understand that I have not yet reached my heavenly home and that I am a stranger and a pilgrim on this earth. Deliver me from the deception of walking the broad path while serving You. Consecrate me for Your work and help me have a heavenly mindset that benefits both You and humanity.

✿ You have been given intelligence to understand how to work. You have been given eyes to recognize the opportunities God has given you. Your ears should listen to God's instructions. Your knees should bow three times a day in heartfelt prayer. Your feet should walk in the path of God's commandments.

Questions:

Which sons of Aaron were consecrated?

What did the blood on the ear symbolize?

Why is it important to respect God's servants?

What things should we avoid doing during worship?

God bless you, child and young person of Jesus.

Key Text: Exodus 28:2-4.

[2-4] And you shall make holy garments for Aaron your brother, for glory and for beauty. And you shall speak to all who are wise-hearted, whom I have filled with the spirit of wisdom, that they make Aaron's garments to consecrate him, that he may minister to Me in the priest's office. And these are the garments which they shall make: a breastplate, an ephod, a robe, a broidered coat, a mitre, and a girdle. And they shall make holy garments for Aaron your brother, and his sons, that he may minister to Me in the priest's office.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for the teachings we receive from the priest, with garments of honor and beauty. Help us to have reverence before You always, and to give You glory in how we speak, how we dress, and how we interact with people. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: Make an ephod with 12 precious stones. Glue on paper or plastic, stones of different types according to their colors as the Bible says, for example. Or make a stone of Urim and Thummim.

DAY 42 (February 11)

TOPIC: The Services of the Sanctuary

(Exodus 27, 35-40; Leviticus 1 and 8; Numbers 10)

Bezalel, Oholiab, and all the skilled workers who were willing to offer their talents and time to the Lord continued with the construction. Some sorted different threads and animal skins, while others dyed linen fabrics. Some watched and asked questions about the work in progress, while others assisted. Perhaps Moses answered many questions about the plan of salvation as the construction went on. There were no newspapers or radio stations, yet news about the tabernacle and its construction spread through what was happening.

✿ In such a holy place, work had to be done with order, planning, and reverence. Shouting, idle talk, or even impure thoughts posed a danger. Even today, when we go to church, the house of worship, we should avoid making noise or engaging in personal activities. The church is a holy, chosen vessel entrusted with the mission of preaching the good news of God and His soon-coming kingdom. God prioritizes His church. When we are in church, we should remain silent and dress modestly. Arriving late and being distracted during worship is sinful. There is a book called Testimonies for the Church, Volume 5, Chapter 55, which explains the proper conduct we should maintain in church. If you do not have this book, write to us, and we will send you a Swahili copy. The English version is available for free online.

✿ It took Engineer Bezalel six months to complete the construction of the sanctuary. He did excellent work, even sewing the priests' garments. Perhaps Moses praised him for his outstanding work in the wilderness for the sanctuary. After placing the furniture, Moses personally placed the two tablets of the Ten Commandments. Everything was in order, and suddenly, as people watched, they saw a cloud filled with the glory of God. The people rejoiced, knowing that God was with them and pleased with their work. The joy of the Lord is our strength. At night, the tabernacle glowed with the fire of God's presence. This cloud provided warmth in the cold desert nights, while the fire reduced the desert's chill. God is the provider of all His people's needs. Anyone who was sorrowful or troubled found comfort when they saw the cloud. They had light and air conditioning without paying for it!

✿ A few weeks later, Aaron and his four sons were consecrated to serve in the sanctuary. Everyone was invited, and they saw six men—Moses, Aaron, Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar—entering while dressed in linen undergarments. Moses took water and washed the five men, preparing them for holy service before the Lord in the tabernacle. Then Moses dressed Aaron in his priestly garments, which were beautifully crafted with blue, purple, red, and gold colors, matching the curtains of the sanctuary. Blue symbolized God's law, red represented sin, purple (a mix of blue and red) symbolized grace, and gold represented righteousness. On Aaron's chest was a breastplate with twelve precious stones, each inscribed with the name of one of Israel's twelve tribes. On his shoulders were two stones, each engraved with the names of six tribes, reminding him that he bore the burdens and sins of the Israelites on his shoulders and heart. Moses placed a golden crown on Aaron's head with the words "Holy to the Lord."

✿ Aaron was to represent holiness. Every piece of his clothing symbolized Christ. Do our clothes today represent anyone? These garments were not meant to bring attention or glory to the wearers but to glorify God. Do religious leaders today need to wear luxurious clothing adorned with gold and jewels like in those days? The best garment of all is the robe of Christ's righteousness. Aaron also had two stones, one on each shoulder, called Urim and Thummim, which contained the first and last letters of the Hebrew alphabet. These stones were used to provide answers in decision-making—if the right stone glowed, it meant God approved; if the left stone darkened, it meant rejection. Aaron's robe also had golden bells sewn into it, so when he entered or exited the sanctuary, the sound would be heard. If he entered the tabernacle without wearing the robe, he would die.

✿ While all this was happening, Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar stood watching. Finally, it was their turn to be dressed. Their garments were not as elaborate as their father's, but they were still beautiful and glorious.

✿ Then, a bull was brought before them as Aaron and his sons stood. They placed their hands on its head, confessing their sins, and Moses slaughtered the animal, sprinkling its blood on the altar. Next, a ram was brought, and Aaron and his sons again laid their hands on its head before it was slaughtered, and its blood was sprinkled on the altar. Then, another ram, the consecration ram, was brought, and the five priests laid their hands on it, symbolizing the transfer of their sins. But this time, instead of sprinkling its blood on the altar, Moses applied it to Aaron's right earlobe, right thumb, and right big toe. He then did the same for the four sons.

The blood on the right earlobe symbolized that they should not listen to evil but keep their thoughts pure and consecrated.

The blood on the right thumb represented using their hands for holy work, helping the poor, orphans, and widows, and building God's kingdom.

The blood on the right big toe symbolized walking in the paths of righteousness, obeying God's commandments, and avoiding evil ways.

✿ In short, this ceremony set them apart for God's sacred work. Even today, we should be consecrated by the blood of Jesus—our ears, hands, and feet—so that we think pure thoughts, do good deeds, and walk in righteousness. Even today, God's servants and places of worship are consecrated. Ministers should be respected because they represent God, and the sanctuary represents God's house on earth. It is not a place to sleep as if we are in a hotel, gossip, or engage in idle talk after the service. It is a place to be still and worship.

PRAYER:

Father, help me to remember that I have not yet arrived home, and that I am a stranger and traveler in this world. Deliver me from the deception of walking the broad path while serving You. Consecrate me for Your work and help me have a heavenly mindset that benefits both You and humanity.

✿ You have been given a mind to understand how to work. You have been given eyes to be watchful and recognize the opportunities God has given you. Your ears should listen to God's instructions. Your knees should bow in prayer three times a day from the heart. Your feet should walk in the path of God's commandments.

QUESTIONS:

1. Which sons of Aaron were consecrated?

2. What did the blood on the ear symbolize?

3. Why is it important to respect God's servants?

4. What things should we avoid doing during worship?

God bless you, dear child and youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Hebrews 7:24-27.

[24-27] But He, because He continues forever, has an unchangeable priesthood. Therefore He is able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by Him, seeing He ever lives to make intercession for them. For such a High Priest became us, who is holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners, and made higher than the heavens; who does not need daily, as those high priests, to offer up sacrifice, first for His own sins, and then for the people's; for this He did once, when He offered up Himself.

Prayer: Thank You Lord because You are our High Priest, without blemish, and You are able to save us completely from all unrighteousness. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: A drama of the consecration of the sons of Aaron in Leviticus 8. Learning the priestly garments piece by piece. And how the finger, hand, and faces were involved, and why.

DAY 43 (February 12)

TOPIC: The Holiness of the Priestly Ministry

(Leviticus 1-10)

✿ They were set apart to serve God, but they did not serve for long. The priests and all those who ministered in the temple were constantly reminded and taught about Christ's work for the salvation of mankind. The ministry was conducted with the purpose of instilling love in people's hearts for God and His Law. The sacrifice of a spotless lamb was a lesson about God's love, who sent His Son to suffer and die for our sins. We should never think that God is angry with us, but rather understand that the boundaries He sets through His Law are for our safety. If we do whatever we please, we will hurt others and ultimately grieve God.

✿ The altar stood at the center of the Israelites, symbolizing that God was the King who ruled over Israel, and the Levites camped around the temple. The altar was holy, set apart, and consecrated. God is holy, and He wants us to be chosen and holy to the extent that humans can be holy. Young person and child, consider your actions, intentions, words, or thoughts—are they holy? David said, "I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever," or "I will dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the Lord in His temple." The altar represents God's beauty, righteousness, and mercy. God's way is in holiness (Psalm 77:13). The altar carries profound teachings.

✿ When Solomon spoke to God, he portrayed the altar as a place to seek forgiveness, take oaths, pray for help when defeated by enemies, ask for relief during droughts or other calamities, seek victory, and even a place for foreigners to pray.

✿ After all the sacred ceremonies of consecrating Aaron's sons—dressing them in new official garments, belts, and turbans—it didn't take long before they acted wickedly. The blood of the sacrifice was placed on their ears, thumbs, and toes (Leviticus 8:24). Their hearts were still in awe after witnessing the fire from the Lord consuming the burnt offering (Leviticus 9:24). Truly, we must ask God for the strength to do what pleases Him. These young men saw the sacred temple service daily and perhaps became too familiar with it, failing to consecrate themselves. Yet, if they ever forgot, they only needed to look at their father's forehead, where it was inscribed in bold letters: "HOLY TO THE LORD." They understood and knew because their uncle, Moses, had explained clearly that they were to be role models for other young Israelites. They were given great responsibilities, and God expected them to follow His instructions. They were spiritual leaders for other youth in Israel. But they drank alcohol after being consecrated. For anyone consecrated, this was a terrifying sin.

✿ The blood applied to their ears, hands, and feet did not help them. This shows us that alcohol should be completely avoided because it dulls the mind and makes us disrespect sacred things. Alcohol should never enter your mouth. We are told that each of them took his censer, put fire in it, added incense, and presented unauthorized fire before the Lord, which He had not commanded. Then, fire came out from the Lord's presence and consumed them, and they died before the Lord. Moses told their father, "The Lord says, 'I will be sanctified by those who draw near to Me, and I will be glorified before all the people.'" Aaron remained silent. He was struck with shock and trembling at losing two sons in a single day due to disobedience to the Lord. Moses called their relatives, the Levites, to carry them outside the camp, but they were not to mourn or lament. God had entrusted them with His work, but they treated it lightly. They made holy things seem ordinary. This was a lesson for young people, children, and even adults not to repeat such foolishness. They were close to the Mercy Seat, so their sin was great, and even mercy could not cover them.

✿ Moses told their father and relatives not to mourn them and to continue with the worship service. Then God commanded, “Do not drink wine or any intoxicating drink, neither you nor your sons, so that you will not die. This shall be a lasting ordinance for generations to come. You must distinguish between the holy and the common, between the unclean and the clean.” The temple or church of God is a sacred place, and His worship is holy. People must revere and honor Him.

✿ Even today, dear child or reader, alcohol should be completely forbidden because it leads to many sins. There are over 50 Bible verses that command us not to drink alcohol. Aaron’s sons were led astray by alcohol and failed to distinguish between sacred and ordinary things. Their younger brothers, Eleazar and Ithamar, took their places and served God with reverence. God is not honored when we enter worship without reverence. Music that lacks reverence should be avoided in worshiping a Holy God. Eating during worship should be discouraged, even for young children, and a proper schedule should be set to make worship services meaningful and not overly long and tiring. Using mobile phones during worship should also be avoided as much as possible. As we approach the end of the world’s history, we must worship God in holiness and truth.

✿ Verses 8-11 highlight how alcohol led Nadab and Abihu to make reckless decisions. After their tragic deaths, God spoke to Aaron, instructing him and his remaining sons to abstain from wine or strong drink so they could differentiate between the holy and the unholy and teach the Israelites God’s commands properly. Alcohol removes the mask of shame in the brain and makes a person do things they would never do if they were sober because they would feel ashamed or afraid.

✿ Jesus, our High Priest, represents the temple ministry. He is now in the heavenly sanctuary, carrying the names of His beloved children and interceding for repentant sinners before His Father. We have the assurance that Jesus will never forget us if we fix our eyes on Him as He ministers in the heavenly sanctuary. We must present our bodies as living sacrifices, holy and acceptable to God, through the grace of Christ, without blemish. If this seems impossible for us, we should claim this promise in Jude 1:24:

“Now to Him who is able to keep you from stumbling and to present you before His glorious presence without fault and with great joy—to the only God our Savior be glory, majesty, power, and authority, through Jesus Christ our Lord, before all ages, now and forevermore! Amen.”

✿ Ministers should kneel to pray before preaching – According to the light we have received, it would please GOD if ministers knelt as soon as they stepped onto the pulpit and sincerely sought help from GOD. What a solemn impact this would have! A deep sense of reverence for God’s glory would be felt by the people. Their minister is communicating with GOD, consecrating himself to GOD before daring to stand before the people. A sense of awe would rest upon the congregation, and GOD’s angels would be drawn closer. Ministers should fix their eyes on GOD the moment they step into the pulpit, declaring to all: “GOD is the source of my strength.”

Questions:

Why did Nadab and Abihu die on the same day?

Why is drinking alcohol a sin?

What did “HOLY TO THE LORD” signify?

Who did the priests represent in the temple?

Why does the Bible say drunkards will not inherit the kingdom of God?

We are repeatedly commanded to distinguish between the holy and the unholy, and between the unclean and the clean. What does this mean?

The Bible contains many verses prohibiting alcohol consumption—can you mention two?

May God bless you, dear child and young follower of Jesus!

Key Text: John 10:11-12.

[11,12] I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd gives His life for the sheep. But he who is a hireling, and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, sees the wolf coming, and leaves the sheep and flees; and the wolf catches them and scatters the sheep. The hireling flees, because he is a hireling, and cares not for the sheep. I am the good shepherd, and know My own, and My own know Me.

Prayer: Thank You Lord because You are the Good Shepherd, You care for us, You do not run away when we are in danger, and You know us. Forgive our sins, fill us with Your Holy Spirit. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: Discuss the sons of Aaron and the work of the priesthood. The blood applied on their ears, hands, and feet did not help them. This shows us that alcohol must be forbidden to us, for it destroys reason and makes us careless about sacred things. Never should liquor or alcohol enter your mouth. Discuss the dangers of alcohol and how to avoid it. Or discuss together Matthew 23 which says "woe to you Pharisees," meaning all evangelists, paid and unpaid.

DAY 44 (February 13)

TOPIC: The Day of Atonement

(Leviticus 16)

✿Although many have found it difficult to read the book of Leviticus, we must understand that this book contains deep truths about our salvation! Some Bible readers have referred to Leviticus, especially chapter 16, as Good News or the Gospel. The sacrificial services in Leviticus were a shadow of Christ's death on the cross. This was a day that God did not want anyone in the entire nation of Israel to forget. The focus shifted from the blood that was shed to the blood that was applied, symbolizing how our salvation comes through the blood of the Messiah.

✿While daily sacrifices were offered regularly, once a year there was a special ceremony known to the Jews as Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. Everyone was required to show reverence to God through self-denial. If they were careless or indifferent to what was happening behind the veil, they faced the death penalty. Two goats were chosen, but only one was sacrificed. This one was called "the goat for the Lord." Its blood was sprinkled on the mercy seat, symbolically cleansing the sanctuary from all the sins that had been forgiven throughout the year. The other goat was sent alive from the sanctuary into the wilderness—a desolate place—where it was left alone to die.

✿This was a great and joyful day! For those who understood its importance and kept it in mind, it was a day of cleansing and victory. And it can be the same for us today! Preparations have been made for purification, and a day is coming when sin will be no more!

✿On this great day in the nation of Israel—the Day of Atonement (Yom Kippur)—everyone ceased their work. Before this day, they were instructed to prepare by examining their sins and repenting. Only the high priest was allowed to enter the Most Holy Place, and he could do so only once a year on this appointed day. If he violated this rule, he would die immediately. The service of the Day of Atonement reminded people that all humans have sinned and fallen short of God's glory, and they must seek God's forgiveness.

✿Everyone was required to fast until the atonement service was completed. They were to show sorrow and repentance for their sins, drawing near to God for mercy. They were also required to maintain physical cleanliness, as an outward sign of spiritual readiness to meet their God. Even today, it is good practice to cleanse our bodies and wash our clothes, so that impurities do not return to our skin and bloodstream.

✿On the morning of this day, the high priest first offered a sacrifice of a bull for his own sins and those of his family. He took the blood of the bull into the Holy Place and then into the Most Holy Place, sprinkling it on the golden cover of the Ark of the Covenant. This symbolized his acknowledgment of sin and his plea for God's mercy and forgiveness. The high priest had to seek forgiveness for himself first before interceding for others.

✿Then, two goats were brought before him. These two goats represented the bearing of the people's sins. The one chosen "for the Lord" was slaughtered and offered on the altar. The high priest took its blood into the Most Holy Place and sprinkled it on the Ark of the Covenant, asking God to accept the sacrifice and forgive Israel's sins. Then, the priest returned to the altar and placed his hands on the second goat—called the scapegoat (Azazel)—symbolically transferring the people's sins onto it. This goat was led far into the wilderness, where it was released, never to return. This demonstrated that the people's sins were removed and separated from them.

✿Once this service was completed, the people believed that the Lord had forgiven and forgotten their sins. Then, the usual daily sacrifices resumed at the altar, and the people went home joyfully, breaking their fast.

✿God instituted this system to show that sin is a serious and sorrowful matter because it separates us from Him and leads to death. Sin could only be removed through the shedding of blood. If Almighty God found no other way but for His own Son to die, then sin is truly a grave issue—one we should never take lightly. The blood of animals was only a symbol of Jesus, who takes away the sin of the world. Before Christ came, God showed the way of forgiveness and peace through these sacrifices.

✿What the high priest did on the Day of Atonement is what Jesus began doing in the Heavenly Sanctuary on October 22, 1844, according to the prophecies of Daniel 8 and 9. In the Most Holy Place, He is cleansing the Heavenly Sanctuary through the investigative judgment. Even today, sins can be confessed and forgiven. But when this work is finished—very soon—grace will be closed for humanity. Then, He will declare: "Let the unjust continue to be unjust; let the filthy continue to be filthy; let the righteous continue to practice righteousness; and let the holy continue to be holy." (Revelation 22:11)

✿If there was ever a time for Christians to practice self-control, fasting, and prayer—confessing and forsaking sins so that we are sealed as God's children before grace closes—it is now! All the sacrifices pointed to the one-time sacrifice of Jesus Christ Himself.

✿I am grateful that Jesus is truly cleansing us from all sin. We must confess our sins in prayer to Him, who is faithful and just to forgive us and cleanse us from all unrighteousness (1 John 1:9). Amen!

✿This is the ministry that was symbolized in the earthly sanctuary but is now being fulfilled in the Heavenly Sanctuary. After His ascension, our Savior began His work as our High Priest, interceding for us before God the Father. Paul says: "Christ did not enter a sanctuary made with human hands, which was only a copy of the true one, but He entered heaven itself, to appear now in God's presence for us." (Hebrews 9:24)

✿Aaron had to spend many hours preparing to meet God, but we can approach Him at any time today (Hebrews 4:16). What a privilege to access God more easily than the high priests of the Old Testament! However, we must never forget God's holiness and should always approach Him with reverence.

✿God told Moses about the sanctuary services and how sacrifices should be offered. Not because He delighted in them, but so that humans could see how repulsive sin is to Him and recognize that the wages of sin is death. The sinner had to kill an innocent lamb, showing that he deserved death but that the lamb died in his place. This lamb represented Christ, who would one day die on Calvary as the Lamb of God, taking away the sin of the world.

✿Today, we have no human priests! Christ alone is our High Priest. We do not need to bring an animal to symbolize our sins being transferred because Jesus, the Lamb of God, has already borne the sins of every human being! When Jesus said "It is finished" (Tetelestai), the human priesthood ended. We have pastors, bishops, and spiritual leaders, but they are not priests. They, too, must confess their sins directly to the Savior. No human being can forgive sins—only God can!

✿Salvation is by grace. Jesus, our High Priest, is calling us to repentance, so that our sins may be removed from us forever. Let's prepare ourselves and live in obedience to Him, for the Day of Atonement is coming soon!

Questions:

How many times a year was the Day of Atonement observed?

Why did people fast?

Why did the high priest seek forgiveness for himself first?

What did the two goats represent?

Why did the people rejoice after the ceremony?

Who did the scapegoat represent?

Why are sacrifices no longer needed today?

What was the earthly sanctuary modeled after?

What do Leviticus 16 and Isaiah 53 talk about?

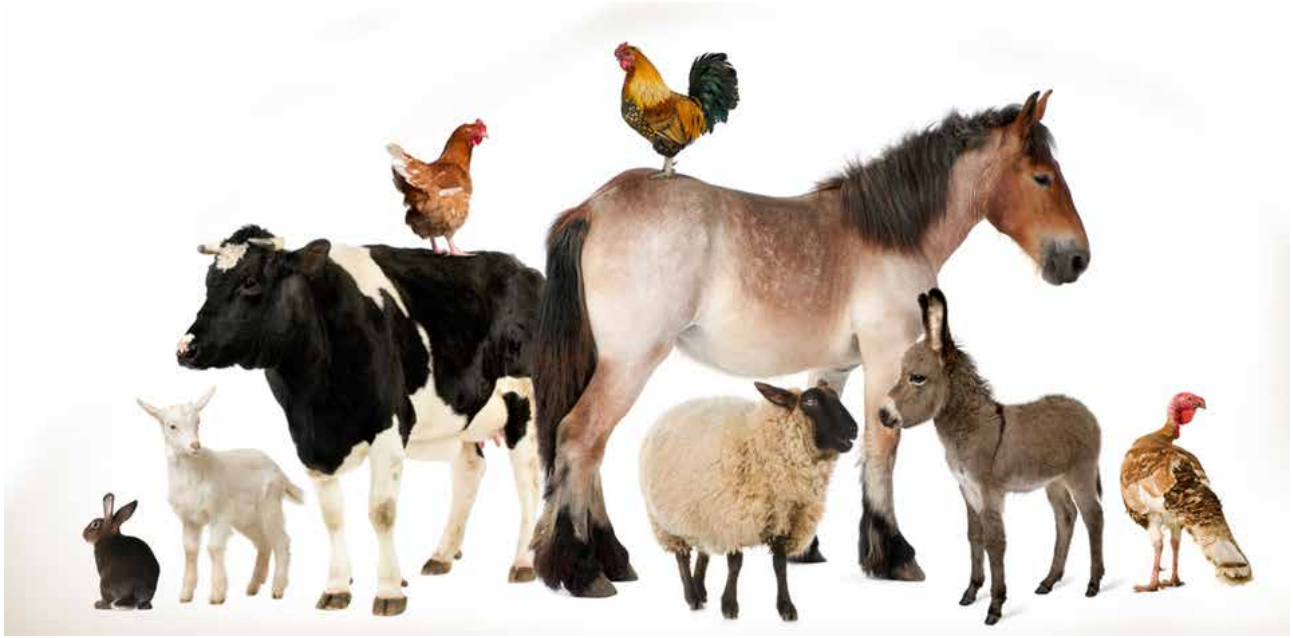
How did priests maintain excellence in their duties?

What challenges would you face if you had to sacrifice a lamb every time you sinned?

May God Bless You, Child and Young Person of Jesus!

Key Text: Leviticus 16:22.

[22] And the goat shall bear upon him all their iniquities unto a land not inhabited; and he shall let go the goat in the wilderness.



Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father for the book of Leviticus where we get a picture of the gospel, and Your voice speaks directly 48 times. Help us to read it and understand well the Day of Atonement in our lives today. Forgive our sins. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: The Day of Atonement. Discuss and dramatize what happened.

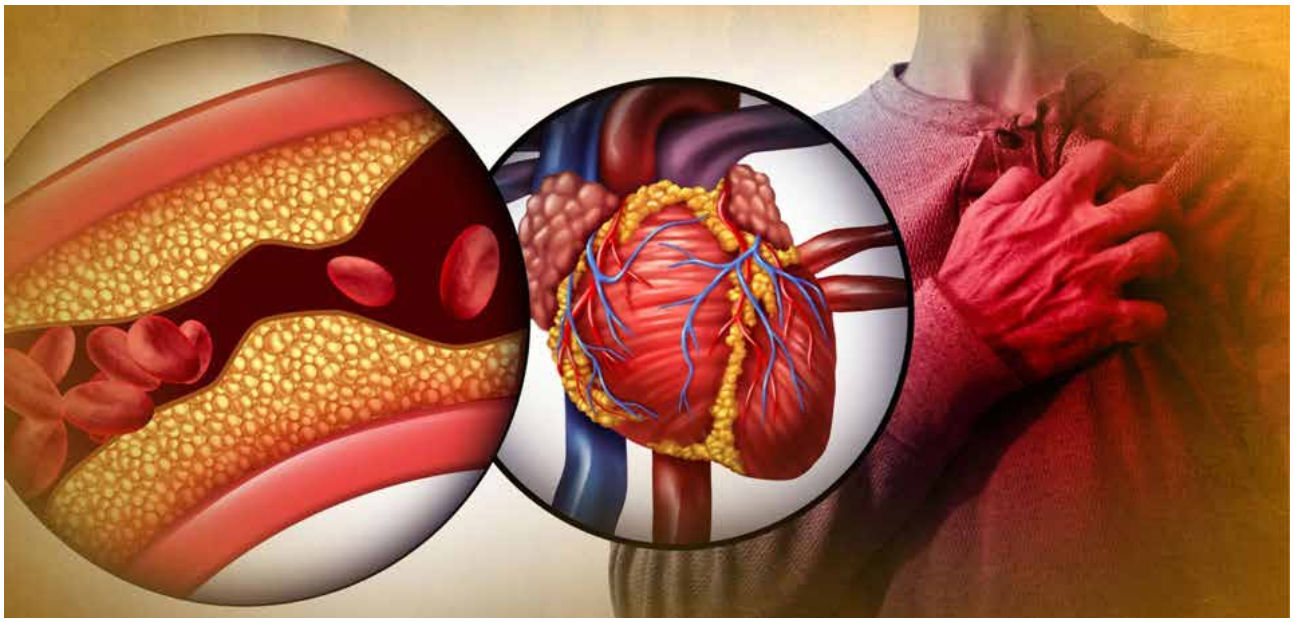
DAY 45 (February 14)

TOPIC: Clean and Unclean Things

(Leviticus 11-19)

✿ God instructed the Israelites on which animals were permissible to eat and which were not. They were told to eat animals with split hooves that also chewed the cud, such as cows, goats, sheep, and deer. However, animals like pigs, camels, lions, and elephants were prohibited because they lacked one of these two characteristics. Pigs have split hooves but do not chew the cud, while rabbits chew the cud but do not have split hooves.

Regarding fish, only those with fins and scales were allowed. This meant that creatures like octopuses, shrimp, and other shellfish were considered unclean. Birds that fed on carcasses, such as eagles, crows, vultures, owls, and hawks, were also forbidden. However, chickens, guinea fowls, and doves were permitted. Among flying insects, those with long legs for jumping, like locusts, grasshoppers, and crickets, were allowed, but termites were not.



Today, scientists have discovered that pigs carry worms in their flesh and eat anything, which can lead to diseases in those who consume them. Despite God's early warning, some people continue eating such meats, risking their health. God, who created us, knows what is best for our bodies. These instructions were given for our physical and spiritual well-being.

✿ Excessive meat consumption weakens physical, mental, and moral strength. The Lord provides wisdom for His people to prepare meals from plant-based foods suited to their environment. In the past, people had livestock but did not slaughter them daily. They ate meat occasionally, unlike today, where stores make meat readily available. Frequent meat consumption without proper control can lead to heart diseases, cholesterol issues, cancer, and other illnesses, whereas plant-based diets promote better health.

✿ As you reflect on the food you place on your table daily, do so for the glory of God (1 Corinthians 10:31). God desires us to be healthy, happy, and holy in every aspect of our lives. This is why He set boundaries on what we should consume, even from the Garden of Eden. Our diet affects our spiritual and moral inclinations. We should not indulge in gluttony or food cravings. Our eating habits should be guided by wisdom and moderation. If we discipline our appetite and eat for God's glory, our lives will be prolonged. We should eat to live, not live to eat. If we make our stomachs our gods, our digestive systems will wear out, leading to serious illnesses and a loss of joy.

✿ Though we may love meat, God, who created these creatures, knows what is best for us. Many modern diseases result from poor dietary choices. Let us return to the Edenic diet and enjoy healthy living until Jesus returns. We need good health to face the challenges coming upon the world. Meat consumption was allowed after the flood, but today, there is no such necessity. Science has confirmed that plant-based diets promote health and help prevent infectious diseases.

✿ God also gave health laws. These laws were meant to prevent diseases among the people, especially as they traveled through the wilderness. They were instructed to wash their clothes and properly dispose of waste by covering it with soil. They had to maintain cleanliness, as God is holy and required them to be clean. Otherwise, He might withhold His blessings due to their impurity.

✿ Laws were given regarding blood and fat consumption, possibly for health reasons. Those who had houses with mold (fungus) were given instructions on how to remove it, and if unsuccessful, they had to burn the house. Today, we know that mold in homes is dangerous and has caused many deaths due to inhaling contaminated air. People with infections or discharges from their bodies had to be isolated temporarily to prevent spreading diseases.

✿ Social laws were also given. They were instructed not to harvest everything from their fields but to leave some for the poor, foreigners, and strangers. They were told not to curse the deaf or put obstacles before the blind but to fear God. They were commanded to judge fairly, not to gossip, not to harbor hatred in their hearts, nor to seek revenge or hold grudges. They were also instructed not to engage in sexual immorality, such as adultery, incest, bestiality, or homosexuality. These evils existed even in ancient times. Satan remains the same and continues to torment people until he is finally destroyed.

✿ They were commanded not to consult mediums or witches. God said, “I am the LORD your God.” They were instructed to remove sorcerers and all who practiced dark powers. They were also told to respect the elderly and to honor their parents. They were commanded to treat foreigners, orphans, and widows with kindness, helping them as they would their own families, without mistreating them. This is important for us today, especially as children. We should not discriminate against new students in school or new neighbors. Many people in the Bible were foreigners who were a blessing to others. Can you name some of them?

✿ The Levites, who served in the temple, were given rules regarding attending funerals and maintaining purity. They were also required to marry only women of good moral standing. They were forbidden from making tattoos or body markings. Today, many people in Western cultures get tattoos, although in Africa, some were previously forced into it and now try to remove them. Read more about this in Leviticus 19.

✿ Priests had to be morally and physically pure, without defects, as they represented God. They were also forbidden from eating dead animals that were not properly slaughtered. Sacrificial offerings had to be perfect, without blemish.

✿ Anyone who blasphemed God's name was to be put to death. They were commanded to support their fellow Israelites. In Canaan, they were to farm the land for six years and let it rest in the seventh year so that the poor could gather food. They were forbidden from making and worshiping idols. Today, we may not create idols, but anything we prioritize over God becomes an idol—whether food, clothing, entertainment, technology, or even people.

✿ God gave laws regarding making vows and the importance of keeping them. Even today, if you make a vow to God—such as promising to give an offering or perform an act of gratitude—remember to fulfill it. Do not take God's name in vain.

✿ These laws are like traffic lights, guiding people in their relationship with God, each other, and strangers. They are detailed explanations of the Ten Commandments. If understood, they prevent people from making mistakes. These laws were meant to uphold the holiness of the Ten Commandments, which were written on stone tablets. Jesus summarized them by saying:

"Love the Lord your God with all your heart, soul, and mind. This is the greatest commandment. The second is like it: Love your neighbor as yourself. On these two commandments hang all the Law and the Prophets." (Matthew 22:38-40)

✿ It is natural for people to seek revenge when wronged, but here we are told not to retaliate. It may seem like the wrongdoer is getting away, but they will reap what they sow. The Bible says:

"Beloved, do not avenge yourselves, but leave room for God's wrath. For it is written: 'Vengeance is Mine; I will repay,' says the Lord." (Romans 12:19-20)

✿ Holiness is not achieved by force; it comes from surrendering our will to God and living by His Word. Only His grace can change our hearts. Holiness is a gift from God through Christ. Those who receive Him become God's children, transformed into His image.

✿ Develop the habit of speaking to the Savior throughout the day—in solitude, while walking, and in daily tasks. Lift your heart in silent prayer for guidance, strength, and wisdom. Let every breath be a prayer. Instead of self-reliance, we should pray more and talk less.

✿ Questions:

Why are pigs and octopuses considered unclean to eat?

Why is it important to keep our vows to God?

Why were the Israelites instructed not to farm in the seventh year?

Why are we commanded not to consult witches?

Why is it a sin to discriminate against people of other tribes or foreigners?

Why should we not get tattoos?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Memory Verse: Deuteronomy 14:2-4

[2-4] For you are a holy people unto the Lord your God, and the Lord has chosen you to be a special people unto Himself, above all the nations that are upon the face of the earth. You shall not eat any abominable thing. These are the animals which you shall eat: the ox, the sheep, and the goat…

Prayer: Blessed be the Lord for being our provider of food, clothing, and shelter. Thank You for all the plans to provide for our needs. We pray that You help us not to have the desire to eat what You forbid us to eat, to wear what You forbid us to wear, or even to live where You forbid us to live. Lord, teach us to speak with wisdom and act with integrity. Help us to honor every vow we make to You, and let our lives reflect Your faithfulness. Amen.

Activity: Although we are permitted to eat certain animals, nowadays eating meat has many risks because many animals have diseases. Eating plant foods such as vegetables, fruits, nuts, legumes, and grains is the best choice. Do research on the disadvantages of eating meat and fish.

TOPIC: God and His Complaining People (Leviticus 26, Numbers 1, 7, and 11)

✿ As the book of Numbers begins, the people are counted, and special offerings are given according to their 12 tribes, with the leaders of each tribe making the offerings. Generosity is very important. Try comparing this census with the one taken when they left Egypt. The Levites were set apart as the Lord's portion, just as the firstborn was dedicated to the Lord. Likewise, today, it is good to dedicate our children to the Lord. We have a wonderful God, full of grace! He seeks to save us in every possible way. He gives us all kinds of blessings and would love to give us even more if we could bear them. If we fall into sin and reject Him but later repent, He will accept us again with His grace and restore His blessings.

✿ I appreciate the fairness in the census process. A representative from each tribe was present during the counting, ensuring justice and accuracy. God is a God of order and planning. We must strive to follow His instructions with integrity and effort. Jesus warns us that many are called, but few are chosen (Matthew 22:14). Only those who fully surrender their lives to God without reservation will enter heaven. Let us determine to be among them.

Not long after Nadab and Abihu died, the people saw the cloud moving toward the Promised Land. They traveled for three days, and the cloud stopped. The Levites set up the altar, and the 12 tribes camped around it. The people rejoiced that they were finally moving toward the Promised Land. However, they were not ready for the many lessons God wanted them to learn. They had witnessed miracles—the Red Sea, manna, and others—but their faith was still weak.

Before long, the people started complaining about the wilderness, saying it would have been better to return to Sinai.

✿ Even today, we should avoid complaints because our Heavenly Father loves us and provides for our needs. We should tell Him our problems and have faith that He will act. God does not answer complaints, but He answers prayers.

Some people wanted livestock food or water. When the Lord heard this, His anger burned, and His fire consumed the outskirts of the camp. The people cried out to Moses, who prayed for them, and the fire stopped. This place was named Taberah because the Lord's fire burned among them.

But the complaints did not stop. The mixed crowd among them started complaining again, and the Israelites joined them. Their issue was food; they were tired of manna. They cried for the meat they ate for free in Egypt—cucumbers, melons, leeks, onions, and garlic. They said, "Now our souls are dried up; we have nothing to look forward to except this manna." Yet, manna could be prepared in different ways—ground, baked, boiled, etc.

Even today, we crave unhealthy foods or drinks and neglect the food God has provided, complaining instead of eating with gratitude.

✿ If we went to our Heavenly Father and respectfully told Him, "Father, today I am struggling with eating manna; is there something else You can provide?"—would a loving God refuse? Many earthly fathers do so much for their children; how much more would our Heavenly Father?

Moses heard the people weeping. The Lord's anger burned greatly, and Moses also became frustrated. He said, “Lord, why have You brought this trouble upon Your servant? Why have I not found favor in Your sight, that You have placed the burden of all these people on me? Did I conceive all these people? Did I give birth to them, that You should tell me, ‘Carry them in your bosom, as a father carries a nursing child,’ to the land You promised their ancestors? Where can I get meat for all these people? They cry to me, saying, ‘Give us meat to eat!’ I cannot carry all these people alone; the burden is too heavy for me. If this is how You are going to treat me, please take my life if I have found favor in Your eyes; do not let me see my misery anymore.”

Indeed, Prophet Moses was overwhelmed to the point of wishing for rest.

✿ God had already done much for them and made many promises: rain, peace, and victory. “Five of you will chase a hundred, and a hundred of you will chase ten thousand, and your enemies will fall before you by the sword. You will eat the old supply of stored grain. I will place My dwelling among you; My Spirit will not reject you. I will walk among you and be your God, and you will be My people. I am the Lord your God, who brought you out of Egypt, out of slavery.”

But He also warned that if they rejected His commands, He would bring terror. “You will plant seeds in vain, for your enemies will eat them. You will be struck down before your enemies; those who hate you will rule over you, and you will flee even when no one is pursuing you. I will break your pride in power and punish you seven times for your sins; you will eat and not be satisfied.” These were heavy warnings. God is love, but His commands must be followed—for our own good and that of others.

Have you ever thought about what would happen if everyone did only what they wanted and ignored the law? Take five minutes to reflect on that. God is merciful, but if we continuously rebel and refuse His leadership, His judgment must come. Let us not forget this.

✿ The Lord told Moses to gather 70 elders of Israel, and He would put the spirit of Moses in them so they could help carry the burden of the people. He was also told to tell the people to purify themselves, for the next day they would eat meat. Since they cried for the meat they had in Egypt, the Lord said they would eat it—not just for a few days, but for a whole month—until it would come out of their noses and they would loathe it because they rejected the Lord.

Moses wondered how they would get enough meat. Even if all the flocks and herds were slaughtered or all the fish in the sea were caught, would it be enough? The Lord replied, “Is the Lord’s arm too short?” Moses then told the people and the 70 elders. Still, the burden was heavy on him, despite Jethro's advice.

The 70 elders received the spirit of Moses and began to prophesy. However, Eldad and Medad, among the 70, were still in the camp, not at the gathering. When Joshua heard this, he urged Moses to stop them, but Moses replied, "Are you jealous for my sake? I wish that all the Lord's people were prophets and that the Lord would put His Spirit on them!" Moses was not jealous of God using others. We too should not envy others whom God uses.

✿ The Lord brought an abundance of quail, and everyone ate until they had excess. Catching quail is difficult, but the Lord brought them! While they were still chewing the meat, and while some had even preserved it, the Lord's anger burned, and they were struck with a severe plague for their complaints and gluttony. The place was named Kibroth-Hattaavah (Graves of Craving) because there they buried those who craved.

God desires us to have good health, joy, and holiness. That is why He wants us to eat as He instructed and avoid harmful foods. Many people suffer from overeating and indulgence. Behavioral changes in diet and drinking habits are necessary. However, these changes cannot happen overnight. They must be made step by step. Healthy foods must be presented in an appealing way to stimulate appetite.

✿The way to God's throne is always open. You may not always kneel to pray, but silent prayers can always ascend to God for strength and guidance. When tempted, you can run to the secret place of the Most High. His everlasting arms will be underneath you. Let these words strengthen you: "Yet you have a few people in Sardis who have not soiled their garments. They will walk with Me in white, for they are worthy." (Revelation 3:4)

✿ Questions: Why is complaining a sin? How did the fire break out? List your complaints and determine which ones are sinful. What was the role of the 70 elders? Why did Joshua feel jealous? Where did the quail come from? Why is gluttony a sin?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Numbers 6:24-26

[24-26] The Lord bless you, and keep you; The Lord make His face shine upon you, and be gracious to you; The Lord lift up His countenance upon you, and give you peace.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for You are the One who blesses us and keeps us. We pray for Your grace, and to be spared from complaints and greed. We ask for a thankful heart. Help our loved ones. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: Drama of greediness in a restaurant. Pretend you are cooking food and serving it (fruits, etc.). Take orders, and let the children eat greedily, fighting over food, making loud greedy noises while chewing, and finishing the whole plate.

DAY 47 (February 16)

TOPIC: The Siblings of Moses and Rebellion

(Numbers 12 & 16)

✿ It didn't take long before Miriam, the sister of Moses, and his brother Aaron began speaking against Moses out of jealousy. Often, when someone close to us betrays us, it hurts more than when a stranger does. Miriam was a good sister who had once called Pharaoh's daughter to ensure that Moses was raised by his mother. She had worked alongside her brother from Egypt, leading the people up to that point. But now, Miriam began showing discrimination, speaking against Moses because of the Cushite woman he had married. Some interpretations suggest it was because she was black, which, in our African context, we might say was because she was from another tribe. This kind of issue still happens today, even among in-laws, who mistreat a brother or sister-in-law just because they are from a different ethnic group. What truly matters is faith, and in any case, Zipporah's father was a priest of the God of Abraham and worshiped the true God.

✿ God intervened, telling them: "If there is a prophet among you, I, the Lord, reveal Myself to them in visions, I speak to them in dreams. But with My servant Moses, I speak face to face, clearly and not in riddles; he sees the form of the Lord. Why then were you not afraid to speak against My servant Moses?" As a result, Miriam was struck with leprosy, becoming as white as snow. Aaron pleaded with Moses to ask God for her healing, saying, "We have acted foolishly and sinned. Please forgive us." Moses interceded for her, and she was healed, but she had to stay outside the camp for seven days. The entire community had to wait for her return before they could continue their journey. One person's sin delayed everyone.

✿ Some others continued to grumble. They had spent 15 months traveling but still had not reached Canaan, even though it was only about 150 miles from Sinai—a journey that could take about six hours by car today. They were physically close to the Promised Land but spiritually far from it! They needed complete transformation to be fit to enter.

✿ After this, Korah, Dathan, and Abiram gathered 250 men and rebelled against Moses and Aaron, complaining that Moses was taking too much authority and that they, too, should have leadership roles. When Moses heard this, he fell facedown and told Korah and the assembly, "Tomorrow morning, the Lord will show who belongs to Him and who is holy." When Moses called Dathan and Abiram, they refused to come, accusing him of misleading them and claiming he wanted to make himself a ruler over them. Moses prayed to God, saying he had not taken anything from them nor wronged them.

✿ The next day, 250 men came with their incense censers. Korah had gathered the whole assembly against Moses and Aaron, and the glory of the Lord appeared. God told Moses and Aaron to separate themselves so He could destroy the wicked. But Moses fell facedown and interceded for the people, warning them to move away from the tents of the wicked men so they would not perish with them. Then, the earth opened up and swallowed Korah, his followers, and their families. The Israelites fled in terror, fearing they would also be swallowed. This was a lesson that only those chosen by God could serve as priests—in this case, only the descendants of Aaron.

✿ The next day, the people again grumbled against Moses, accusing him of killing the Lord's people. The glory of the Lord appeared again, and as Moses and Aaron fell facedown in intercession, a plague broke out, killing 14,700 people. Moses and Aaron, out of love, stood between the living and the dead, pleading with God to stop the plague.

✿ To settle the dispute over priesthood once and for all, God instructed that twelve staffs be taken—one for each tribe—with the name of each tribe's leader written on it. The staff of Levi was inscribed with Aaron's name. God said that the staff of the man He had chosen would sprout, ending the Israelites' complaints. The next day, Moses found that Aaron's staff had sprouted, blossomed, and even produced ripe almonds. Aaron's staff became a testimony of God's chosen priest and was kept in the Most Holy Place beside the Ark of the Covenant.

✿ Even today, we must be careful about desiring positions or fighting for roles that God has assigned to others. Some positions are sacred, and not everyone is called to them. Instead, we should have a spirit of contentment. Many people are never satisfied—they believe that if they get a particular job or thing, they will be happy. But even after obtaining what they desire, they find it unsatisfactory and seek something else.

✿ Those who are in error and deserve correction often crave sympathy and praise from others. The people were pleased with Korah, who pretended to care for them, and they assumed that Moses and Aaron were the bad ones. They convinced themselves that they were righteous and mistreated by Moses. If they admitted that Korah was wrong and Moses was right, they would also have to accept the judgment that they must die in the wilderness.

✿ Korah believed he was a hardworking servant of God and that God was on his side. He deceived himself into thinking he was righteous and that the congregation was holy. He saw himself as a champion of justice, ready to bring significant changes and improvements to Moses and Aaron's leadership. Yet, Moses never defended himself—he continually prayed for the people, recognizing the seriousness of their sin. We should pray for humility when we are corrected by God's leaders, accepting His discipline as He works out His salvation in us. Pride and greed lead to rebellion and downfall.

✿ Rebellion is contagious! But it is entirely possible to walk away from it! Let us not be driven by envy or dissatisfaction, trying to elevate ourselves by bringing others down. We must not twist God's Word to support our own desires but instead allow God's perfect will to shape our aspirations. Let us not seek satisfaction in authority or status. God can use us where we are now—we don't need to exalt ourselves.

✿ Everyone has influence, and as family members, we must be very careful not to bring destruction upon our families. Instead of joining our relatives in wrongdoing or remaining silent, we should, with love, gentleness, and the fear of God, correct their mistakes. If we support them or remain silent, we may share in their downfall.

✿ May God help us to never abandon His teachings and principles but instead find joy in following them, even if everyone else is against us. The people were given a choice regarding which side to stand on. Today, we also have a choice—to choose Christ and live or choose Satan and perish. The decision is ours!

✿ If all our workers were in a position to spend a few hours daily on physical labor, it would be a blessing for them; they would be more effective in their ministry. If they lack sufficient time for rest, they should plan and pray for ways to engage in manual labor so they can return to their duties refreshed in body and spirit.

Questions:
1. Why did Korah's family perish?

2. Explain the significance of Aaron's staff.

May God Bless You, Child and Young Person of Jesus

Key Text: Numbers 16:3-5.

[3-5] And they gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron, and said to them, You take too much upon you, seeing all the congregation are holy, every one of them, and the Lord is among them. Why then do you lift yourselves up above the congregation of the Lord? And when Moses heard it, he fell upon his face. And he spoke to Korah and all his company, saying, Tomorrow the Lord will show who are His, and who is holy, and will cause him to come near to Him; even him whom He has chosen will He cause to come near to Him.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for teaching us that we must honor Your servants. Help us to do so, even with those who may not deserve it. Give us wisdom to deal with them in love, redeeming the time. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: Drama of Korah and Dathan, showing how important it is to respect God's servants. Draw a picture of the pit with people falling in.

DAY 48 (February 17)

TOPIC: God Commands the Sending of 12 Spies

✿ As we have already seen, the journey from Sinai to Canaan should have taken only two weeks, a distance of less than 300 kilometers. They were close to Canaan, yet at the same time, very far—it was a dilemma. They reached the border to enter Canaan and sent spies.

✿ The LORD spoke to Moses, instructing him to send twelve men, one from each tribe, to spy out the land of Canaan that He was giving to the Israelites. These twelve men were leaders. Moses sent them from the wilderness of Paran, telling them to observe whether the people were strong or weak, few or many, whether the land was good or bad, and if it had fortified cities. Were there plenty of food and resources? Be courageous and bring back some fruit from the land. They went up and spied out the land during the season of grapes, figs, and pomegranates. A single cluster of grapes was so large that two men had to carry it on a pole.

✿ They explored the land for 40 days and returned to Moses and Aaron, confirming that it was indeed a land flowing with milk and honey. However, ten spies began to describe the size and strength of the Canaanites, saying that compared to them, they looked like grasshoppers. The entire assembly wept that night and started complaining again, saying it would have been better if they had died in Egypt or in the wilderness.

✿ Joshua from the tribe of Benjamin and Caleb from the tribe of Judah brought a good report and encouraged the people, assuring them that despite the presence of giants, the LORD's mighty hand would give them victory.

The people, however, insisted that their wives and children would become captives, so they sought to appoint a leader to take them back to Egypt. Moses and Aaron fell facedown, while Caleb and Joshua tore their clothes, emphasizing that the land was exceedingly good and filled with milk and honey. They pleaded, “Do not rebel against the LORD or fear the people of the land, for they will be like bread to us. The LORD is with us; do not fear them.” Despite their encouragement, the people picked up stones to kill them, but then the glory of the LORD appeared in the tent of meeting before all the people.

✿ The LORD asked Moses, “How long will these people treat Me with contempt? How long will they refuse to believe in Me despite all the signs I have performed among them?”

✿ God told Moses that He would destroy them and remove their inheritance, making Moses a greater and mightier nation than they were. But Moses interceded, reminding God that the Egyptians and other nations would hear of it and say that He was unable to bring His people into the land He had promised them. Moses appealed to God’s character, saying, “You are slow to anger, abounding in love, and forgiving sin. I beseech You, forgive the iniquity of this people.” And the LORD answered, “I have forgiven them as you asked.”

✿ However, the LORD declared that they would not see the land of Canaan; instead, they would wander in the wilderness for 40 years, representing the 40 days they had spied out the land. He said, “None of those who have treated Me with contempt will see it, but My servant Caleb, who has a different spirit and follows Me wholeheartedly, will enter it.” God also promised that the children, whom they feared would suffer, would inherit the land.

✿ The spies’ report was factual; they did see giants, and they did appear like grasshoppers in comparison. But their mistake was concluding that they could not conquer the land. They lacked patience and faith in God. They forgot how He had miraculously delivered them from Egypt, parted the Red Sea, and destroyed Pharaoh’s army. They left God out of their problem and acted as if they had to rely solely on their military strength. Are we any better in our faith than the ten spies?

✿ Joshua and Caleb never lost sight of their mission. They never forgot the incredible journey from slavery in Egypt to the borders of the Promised Land. It took courage to stand against the negative report of the ten spies. The temptation to conform is powerful. Unity is good, but never unity in error, nor unity that drowns out the Truth.

✿ Do I wish to die in Egypt? Or do I trust the Lord while keeping my eyes on His promises? Surrendering our hearts to unbelief means falling into the enemy's trap. Let us remember to spread the Gospel, trusting that He who began a good work in us will carry it to completion until the day of Christ Jesus.

✿ Another important lesson is about the Cities of Refuge. These cities were half a day's journey from anywhere in the land, and the roads leading to them were well-maintained. Signs were posted with bold letters reading "Refuge" to guide those fleeing for safety. Any person—whether an Israelite, a foreigner, or a resident—could seek asylum there. A fugitive's case was judged fairly, and only if found innocent of intentional murder was he granted protection. Otherwise, he was handed over for retribution. Those who sought refuge could return home only upon the death of the high priest.

✿ Life in a City of Refuge was not easy; one had to leave their family behind, waiting for the high priest to die! It was a kind of imprisonment, yet it was a mercy compared to being killed instantly by the victim's family. The community likely provided some form of sustenance. The Cities of Refuge symbolize the salvation offered in Christ. Our Savior, by shedding His blood, has provided an escape for all sinners. We can run to Him for safety from eternal death. No power can snatch us from His hands once we seek His forgiveness.

✿ While in the wilderness, a man was caught gathering wood on the Sabbath. The LORD commanded that he be stoned to death for his blatant disobedience, which others might imitate. Even today, we are called to keep the Sabbath holy, avoiding personal work or leisure activities. How are we keeping the Sabbath today? Do we sometimes forget that God cares about both big and small details and will not accept careless worship?

✿ Some people disregard the Sabbath and choose a different day. Others recognize the Sabbath but fail to honor it properly by not preparing in advance. Some talk about their own affairs or engage in their own pleasures instead of dedicating the day to God. Let us pray for pure hearts.

✿ Ways to Properly Observe the Lord's Day:

❁ The Sabbath begins at sunset and ends at sunset. Cooking, cleaning, laundry, ironing, and other chores should be completed before the Sabbath begins.

❁ It is acceptable to warm food on the Sabbath that was cooked the day before.

🌻 Avoid secular books, newspapers, social media, TV, radio, and technology-related activities until the Sabbath ends.

🌻 Business transactions, banking, paying bills, and shopping should wait until after sunset on Saturday.

🌻 Social gatherings and worldly entertainment should not take place during sacred hours.

🌻 The Sabbath is an excellent time to explore nature, learn about plants and animals, visit the sick, or support those in need—but only in a way that keeps the day sacred.

🌻 Avoid doing unnecessary work on the Sabbath. Even small tasks can show disrespect if done carelessly.

🌻 Sleeping the whole Sabbath to gain energy for personal activities afterward is not honoring God.

🌻 Honor God by gathering your family, singing worship songs, and closing the Sabbath with reverence.

✿ True prayer is not dependent on time, place, or situation. Pray in your room, at work, or wherever you are—let your heart be lifted to God constantly.

✿ Questions:

1. How long is the journey from Egypt to Canaan on foot?
2. Why did the people cry when they heard the report of the ten spies?
3. Why is it important for us to give good reports of God's goodness?
4. Why was the man gathering wood on the Sabbath put to death?
5. Do you know Shamua, Shaphat, Igal, Palti, Gaddiel, Gadi, Ammiel, Sethur, Geuel, and Nabi? If not, why do you think that is?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Key Text: Numbers 13:30-32.

[30-32] And Caleb stilled the people before Moses, and said, Let us go up at once, and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it. But the men that went up with him said, We are not able to go up against the people; for they are stronger than we. And they brought up an evil report of the land which they had searched unto the children of Israel, saying, The land, through which we have gone to search it, is a land that eats up the inhabitants thereof; and all the people that we saw in it are men of great stature.

Prayer: Father, today is another day to thank You, for You have been good to me. I pray that You keep me from bringing bad reports instead of good news, when You intend good for people. Keep me from complaints and evil. Give me a thankful heart. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: Drama of the 12 spies. Talk about what you think the ten said, and then the two. Use a small telescope to view, and take pictures of the place like fruit trees, etc.

DAY 49 (February 18)

TOPIC: The Waters of Meribah Cause Moses to Miss Entering Canaan

(Numbers 20 and 21)

✿The Israelites wandered in the wilderness for 40 years, being taught by God to trust and depend on Him. Not much is written about these 40 years, but we believe their hearts were humbled, and this difficult life was the consequence of their lack of trust in God and continued complaints. However, God did not abandon them; He continued to guide them, providing all their daily needs—whether manna, water, clothing, or shelter.

One day, while traveling in the wilderness, they arrived at Kadesh. Here, Miriam died and was buried. But there was no water. The people gathered and quarreled with Moses, saying they wished they had died where their relatives had perished. They complained, saying, “Here there are no grapes, figs, or pomegranates, and no drinking water!” Moses and Aaron, who were still mourning their sister, fell facedown, and the glory of the Lord appeared.

The Lord told Moses to take the staff and speak to the rock before the eyes of the people so that it would bring forth water.

However, Moses, in his anger, said, “Listen now, you rebels, must we bring you water out of this rock?” Instead of speaking to the rock as commanded, he struck it twice. The rock that was struck represented the Lord Himself. The Lord then told Moses and Aaron, “Because you did not trust Me enough to honor Me as holy in the sight of the Israelites, you will not enter the land of Canaan.” The water from Kadesh was called the Waters of Meribah because the Israelites quarreled with the Lord there.

✿The Israelites sent a message to the king of Edom requesting passage through his land, but he refused. Then the Lord told Moses that it was time for Aaron to die because he had rebelled against God’s command at the Waters of Meribah. Eleazar, his eldest son, was to take over his priestly duties. So Moses and Eleazar accompanied Aaron up Mount Hor, where Moses removed his brother’s priestly garments and placed them on Eleazar. The two brothers said their goodbyes, and Aaron died there at the top of Mount Hor at the age of 123. The Israelites mourned for him for a month. Though they had often opposed him, they now recognized his goodness.

✿The Israelites then traveled around Edom since they were not allowed to pass through it. Along the way, they complained again about the lack of food and water, calling the manna “miserable food.” The Lord sent fiery serpents among them, and many people died. Moses interceded for them, and the Lord instructed him to make a bronze serpent and set it on a pole so that anyone who was bitten and looked at it would live. Those who refused to look at the bronze serpent, thinking it was useless, perished.

Even today, God’s instructions matter. Even if we think we know better, obedience is more important than anything else. Jesus referenced this story when speaking to Nicodemus in the Gospel of John, saying, “Just as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, so must the Son of Man be lifted up, that whoever believes in Him may have eternal life.” Insert your name here:

✿It was not the bronze serpent that healed the people, but God, through their faith. Today, if you are bitten by Satan, look to Jesus! Whoever believes in Him will not perish but have eternal strength. There is no time or place where prayer is inappropriate. Nothing can stop us from lifting our hearts in sincere prayer. Whether in a busy street, in the middle of work or business, we can send a prayer to God, seeking His guidance, just as Nehemiah did before speaking to King Artaxerxes.

✿Questions:

Why was Moses considered to have sinned at the Waters of Meribah?

Why did he sin?

Why didn't the Israelites pass through Edom?

Who did the bronze serpent represent?

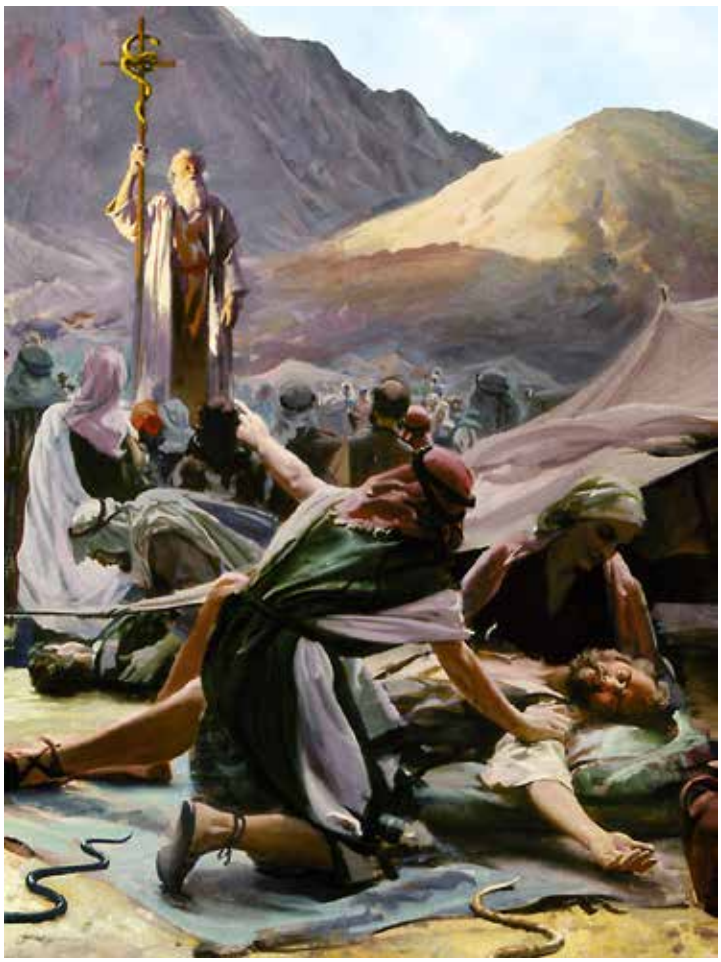
Who took over Aaron's role after his death?

How did Jesus relate the story of the serpent in the wilderness?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Numbers 10:33-36.

[33-36] And they departed from the mount of the Lord three days' journey; and the ark of the covenant of the Lord went before them in the three days' journey, to search out a resting place for them. And the cloud of the Lord was upon them by day, when they went out of the camp. And it came to pass, when the ark set forward, that Moses said, Rise up, Lord, and let Your enemies be scattered; and let those who hate You flee before You. And when it rested, he said, Return, O Lord, to the many thousands of Israel.



Prayer: Oh Lord, this morning as we continue to journey here on earth toward Canaan, keep us from anger. We see that Your faithful servant Moses sinned through this matter. Help us to bring good news to people as we journey. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: Drama of the bronze serpent. A cross tree should also be included with the serpent. If you get a plastic snake, or rope shaped like a snake, use it. After the drama, sit down and discuss.

DAY 50 (February 19)

TOPIC: Journeying On Amidst Challenges

✿As the Israelites continued their journey, they were bitten by snakes in the wilderness but received healing. We have all been bitten by a serpent called Satan. The venom is sin. Unless we look to the cross and fix our eyes upon it, we will perish. So, let us never take our eyes off the cross! To receive salvation, look to the cross. In disasters, look to the cross. In despair, look to the cross. In pain, look to the cross and see our sinless Creator suffering for us. Let us always look to the cross!

✿The Israelites, having lived in slavery in Egypt and later wandered in the wilderness, had not fought any battles. Perhaps in the wilderness, they learned to depend on God and be united so that He would fight for them. When they arrived at the land of the Amorites, they asked King Sihon for permission to pass peacefully without entering his fields or drinking from his wells. But Sihon refused and went to war against them. The Israelites defeated him and took over his cities, marking their first military victory. They then approached King Og of Bashan with the same request, but he also refused and went to battle, only to be defeated like Sihon.

✿Next, they reached the plains of Moab, near Jericho. King Balak of Moab, knowing how God had helped Israel defeat the Amorite kings, became very afraid. He sought a sorcerer to curse Israel because he knew they were led by a power greater than his own. He summoned Balaam, a prophet of God, to prophesy against Israel. But when Balaam sought the Lord, God told him not to go or curse Israel because they were blessed.

✿Balak sent more officials with great offers of wealth and honor, hoping Balaam would reconsider. Though Balaam knew it was wrong, he was tempted by the rewards. That night, God permitted him to go but commanded him to say only what He instructed. As Balaam traveled on his donkey, an angel blocked the way. The donkey saw the angel and stopped, but Balaam, unaware of the angel, beat the donkey. Finally, the Lord opened the donkey's mouth, and it spoke! Balaam then saw the angel, who warned him that his path was reckless.

✿When Balaam arrived, Balak built altars and offered sacrifices, but instead of cursing Israel, Balaam blessed them, saying, "How beautiful are your tents, O Jacob!" Enraged, Balak asked Balaam to stop both cursing and blessing Israel. Balaam replied, "I must speak only what God tells me."

✿Balaam later prophesied about the coming of the Messiah: "I see Him, but not now; I behold Him, but not near. A Star will come out of Jacob; a Scepter will rise out of Israel." This was a prophecy about Jesus.

✿However, Balaam later led Israel into sin by enticing them to worship Baal through Moabite women. Because of this, 24,000 Israelites died in a plague, stopped only when Phinehas, a priest, killed the leaders of the rebellion. Balaam, though once a prophet, met a tragic end.

✿Questions:

Name the two kings defeated by Israel.

Why is it dangerous for a servant of God to desire wealth or bribes?

What would you do if you heard a donkey speaking?

What did Balak say about the Messiah?

Why did 24,000 people die?

Why would it have been better for Balaam to stay home?

What is better: to be honored by God or by Balak?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Numbers 10:33-36.

Activity: Learning about cruelty to animals. Drama is to make an image of an animal using wood or a pillow, and make a stick to act out beating this animal. Sit down and discuss about creation—why animals suffer today, that they were created before man, etc. How to treat harmful or dangerous animals, etc.

Or

Activity: Tell the entire story of Balaam's life, from when he came to Israel as far as you can remember, until he caused the Israelites to fall into sin.

DAY 51 (February 20)

TOPIC: Offerings, Feasts, and the Census of the Israelites

✿Finally, the end came for the prophet who wanted to be used by people for wealth rather than being used by God. The Israelites were now camped east of the Jordan River, facing Jericho. At this point, they were commanded to count all men who could serve in the army, that is, those aged 20 and above. Forty years earlier, the number of men counted was 603,550, but now they were 601,730. This census shows that the population had decreased because, typically, a nation expects growth in its population over 40 years. For example, Tanzania's population was 9 million in 1969, but in 2022, it had grown to 63 million.

God records names repeatedly because people are important to Him. He who sees a sparrow fall and knows the number of hairs on your head also knows your name and everything about you, and all of it matters to Him. In heaven, there is a book called the Book of Life (Revelation 20:12). It contains the names of all who will be saved eternally. The key question to ask yourself is, "Is my name written there?" Today, why not talk to the Lord? Ask Him to forgive and save you. With joy, He will add your name to His list!

✿As they continued counting, the daughters of Zelophehad, son of Hepher from the tribe of Manasseh, the son of Joseph, planned to meet Moses. Their names were Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. They stood before Moses and the leaders at the entrance of the tent of meeting, saying that their father had died in the wilderness and had no sons. They feared their father's name would disappear from his clan because he had no male heirs. With courage, they requested, "Give us an inheritance among our father's relatives."

This was a difficult matter at that time, but these young women were brave. Perhaps they chose one to speak so they wouldn't interrupt each other. Moses brought their case before the Lord. God answered Moses, saying, "The daughters of Zelophehad are right; you must give them an inheritance among their father's relatives." Moreover, God established a new law: if a man died without a son, his inheritance would go to his daughter. If he had no daughter, it would go to his brothers. If he had no brothers, it would go to his father's relatives. This became a lasting decree for the Israelites.

✿These daughters later married within their father's tribe so that the inheritance would remain within the tribe. They made history that blessed future generations of daughters. Even today, it is good to follow this law that God gave.

God also reminded Moses of His earlier instructions, such as offerings, keeping vows to God, and His commandments. Then, God told Moses to prepare for his death on Mount Abarim. This was a hard reality to accept, all because of one sin at the waters of Meribah. What was Moses' sin? He became angry with the people. Jesus said, "Anyone who is angry with his brother will be subject to judgment."

Moses said, "Listen now, you rebels; must we bring you water out of this rock?" Only God could bring water from the rock.

✿Moses had taken God's glory and struck the rock twice instead of speaking to it. The rock symbolized Christ, who would die once and not twice. In all our ministry efforts, we must be careful not to make people believe that we have the power to act. Honor and glory should always be given to God for any good thing we do. God was the leader and provider during their journey.

Aaron, too, remained silent when he saw Moses make this mistake. God counted Aaron's silence as rebellion (Numbers 20:24). By this time, Moses was 120 years old. He had led Israel in battles and counsel. God is good, and His plans for us are always for our good, even when we don't see it.

Moses handed over leadership to Joshua (Hoshea), son of Nun. He presented Joshua before Eleazar the priest and the entire congregation. Eleazar laid his hands on Joshua and instructed him, just as the Lord had commanded through Moses.

✿When was the last time you attended a camp meeting?
Numbers 28 and 29 repeat instructions on celebrating certain feasts originally mentioned in Leviticus (Leviticus 16, 23, etc.). Three major annual feasts are described:

① The Feast of Trumpets (Numbers 29:1-6)
A one-day event on the first day of the seventh month of the Jewish calendar.
Trumpets were blown, and it was observed as a Sabbath.
Burnt offerings, grain offerings, and sin offerings were made to the Lord.
This feast prepared the Israelites for the upcoming Day of Atonement.

② The Day of Atonement (Numbers 29:7-11)
Held ten days after the Feast of Trumpets.
This was the day when the sanctuary was purified through appropriate sacrifices.

③ The Feast of Tabernacles (Numbers 29:12-40)
The last feast of the year.
A seven-day joyful celebration.
The required sacrifices for each day were specified.
These feasts helped the Israelites focus on God and draw closer to Him.

Today, the annual camp meeting serves a similar purpose. When well conducted, it can awaken and bring reformation to those who attend. If there are camp meetings in your area, do not miss this year's gathering—blessings await you there!

❦Moses wrote about the Israelites' journey as commanded by the Lord, which is why today we have a record of their wilderness journey. Our journey on earth is similar to that of the Israelites—we are in bondage to sin, and every day, God guides us. Not by cloud and fire as before, but by His Word and Spirit, leading us to heaven—the New Canaan.

Children, let us pray to hear His voice so that we do not become like the Israelites who left Egypt but perished in the wilderness. With patience, let us build our faith, trust in God, and obey His voice.

✿Let us remember the sacrifice of Jesus. Think about all the lambs that were sacrificed—what a costly system to remind worshipers that salvation comes at an infinite cost. The Lamb of God came as heaven's greatest gift, demonstrating God's immeasurable love more than ever before. We are redeemed by His matchless grace!
We are His children! I say, Hallelujah! What about you? Take time today to reflect on how Jesus' sacrifice on Calvary impacts your life. Truly, He has brought us hope and peace, restored our broken relationships with God and others, and desires to be part of our daily lives—just as necessary as the food we eat every day. He is our perfect sacrifice.

✿ Your good intentions alone will not sustain you through trials. You must be a person of prayer! Prayer should not be inconsistent, emotional, or seasonal—it should be diligent, sincere, persistent, and continuous. Even in the midst of your activities, your soul can be lifted to God, drawing strength from Him. Then, you will be people of high purpose, holiness, and righteousness who will not be swayed from truth, the right path, and justice.

Questions:

1. Who was chosen to replace Moses and Aaron?

2. Did the Israelites in the wilderness have the written Torah?

3. Why were we given the Scriptures?

4. What is the difference in the number of men counted at the beginning and later?

5. Why is it important to attend camp meetings?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory verse: Numbers 23:23

[23] There is no sorcery against Jacob, nor any divination against Israel. It will now be said of Jacob and of Israel, 'See what God has done!'

Prayer: Dear Father, we pray that You keep us safe from witchcraft. We thank You that there is no sorcery against us. Remove fear when people try to threaten us, because You protect us from the evil one. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A drama of Moses striking the rock twice and the words he spoke. Why was it a bad thing? Discuss. Or a drama of the daughters of Zelophehad, son of Hepher, of the tribe of Manasseh son of Joseph, as they came before Moses. Their names were Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah.

DAY 52 (February 21)

TOPIC: The Story is Repeated a Second Time as Moses Bids Farewell to Jeshurun

(Book of Deuteronomy)

✿Before Moses died across the Jordan River in the Arabah, he spoke words that were recorded in the book of Deuteronomy. He repeated what they had experienced in the first four books after defeating Sihon, king of the Amorites, and Og, king of Bashan. He reminded them that the LORD God had made them numerous and had set the land before them so they could enter and possess it, as He had promised their forefathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Moses said he could not lead them alone, but the LORD God could, and He had blessed them, making them a model nation among all others on earth. They were reminded not to worship carved idols, for idolatry is evil before the LORD. Even today, many people have other gods.

✿These gods may be visible or invisible. They can be our sports, our appetites, food, video games, television, charms, opinions, fashion, beauty, houses, families, friends, or anything we prioritize over God. The Lord is the only God, and there is no other in heaven or on earth. He alone deserves praise and worship. Moses told them that secret things belong to the LORD, but the revealed things belong to believers and their children so they may obey them. He told them, "Take to heart all the words I testify to you today; command your children to observe and do all the words of this law. For this is not an idle word for you—it is your life, and through it, you will live long in the land" (Deuteronomy 32:45, 47).

✿Moses explained that after the first two tablets of the Commandments were broken, God told him to carve new ones. He went up again to Mount Sinai, and God rewrote the Ten Commandments. It appears that Moses fasted for 40 days more than once, without drinking water, which was a miracle from God. Moses said that when they desired a king, and if God allowed it, the king was to read and meditate on God's laws throughout his life to remain close to Him. He emphasized that the king should not think he was above God's law but should be an example of obedience.

✿On the other side of the Jordan, six cities of refuge were designated for anyone who accidentally killed another person. For example, during work, a tree might fall and kill someone, or a person might strike another unintentionally. The accused would stay in the city until their case was judged to determine if it was an accident or premeditated. If it was an accident, they remained in the city for protection from the victim's relatives seeking revenge. They stayed in the city of refuge until the high priest died. Anyone who killed a person in the city of refuge was also to be put to death.

✿Even today, we must observe these commandments without deviating to the left or right. Moses commanded parents to teach their children and grandchildren these laws throughout their lives:
"Hear, O Israel: The LORD our God, the LORD is one. Love the LORD your God with all your heart, soul, and strength. These commandments I give you today are to be upon your hearts. Impress them on your children. Talk about them when you sit at home, when you walk along the road, when you lie down, and when you get up. Tie them as symbols on your hands and bind them on your foreheads. Write them on the doorposts of your house and on your gates" (Deuteronomy 6:6-9).

✿Satan is preparing any child who is not being prepared for heaven to become a citizen of hell, even through seemingly harmless things like games. These distractions can consume valuable time meant for household chores, schoolwork, and personal devotion. If there was ever a time to fill children with God's Word, it is now. Satan has intensified his efforts to capture young minds by bombarding them with messages and content meant to destroy them. When you see a child hiding in their room with a phone, computer, or tablet, there is a high possibility they are watching inappropriate content. Online deception has become a skill among many youths. Through the gateways of the heart—especially the eyes and ears—Satan feeds young people poison to make them his subjects.

✿The most effective way to protect our children from falling into Satan's trap is to teach them God's Word. A child whose mind is filled with God's Word daily develops a heavenly perspective, and by God's grace, they will not depart from it. The same creative power that spoke the universe into existence is in God's Word. His Word strengthens and gives life. Every command of God is a promise; when received into the soul, it brings the life of the Eternal One. It transforms character and reshapes the soul into God's image. Parents who do not have daily worship with their children give Satan an open opportunity to feed them his messages. Satan is preparing to lead to destruction any child who is not being prepared for heaven!

✿Even today, adults are commanded not to forget God, who delivered them from the bondage of sin, but to fear and serve Him without following the gods of others. Often, when we achieve success—building beautiful houses, accumulating wealth, or having large herds of livestock, gold, and silver—we forget that God is our leader. Even today, God has set before us a choice: blessings or curses. We receive blessings when we obey His commandments, and curses if we do not.

✿They were reminded not to neglect tithes and offerings from their agricultural increase and business earnings. They were warned against dishonesty, such as moving boundary markers to cheat neighbors. If you carefully listen to the LORD your God and obey all His commands, the LORD will lift you above all nations. All these blessings will come upon you:

You will be blessed in the city and in the field.
Your children and livestock will be blessed.
Your food storage and kneading bowl will be blessed.
The LORD will defeat your enemies before you; they will come in one direction and flee in seven.
You will be a holy nation, and all nations will fear you.
The LORD will open the heavens to give rain at the right time.
You will lend to many nations but borrow from none.
You will be the head and not the tail, above and not beneath.

✿But if they disobeyed, many curses would come upon them:
They would suffer plagues and diseases such as tuberculosis, fever, itching, and mildew.
There would be no rain, only dust.

Enemies would conquer them, and they would flee in seven directions.
They would experience oppression and captivity.
They would marry but not keep their spouses, build houses but not live in them.
They would plant but not harvest.
Their livestock would be taken away permanently.
Their children would be enslaved.
Foreigners among them would rise, and they would fall.
If they did not serve God with joy and gratitude, all these disasters would befall them.

✿Why did God allow them to go through so much suffering? They would be in need, naked, and thirsty. Some would even eat their children. Truly, God's thoughts are higher than ours, and He does what is best for all. One day, we will understand why!

✿These were the words of the covenant that the LORD commanded Moses to make with Israel across the Jordan. He repeated the covenant made at Mount Sinai. Moses emphasized that the secret things belong to God, but the revealed things are for us and our children so that we may follow His Law.

✿Dear child, it is important to meditate on God's instructions and obey them. They are not too difficult or far away.

✿Moses said, "Today I am 120 years old; I can no longer go out and come in, and the LORD has told me I will not cross the Jordan." But he assured Joshua that God would go before him.

✿MAY GOD BLESS YOU, CHILD AND YOUTH OF JESUS👧👦

Memory Verse: Deuteronomy 6:6-9

[6-9] These commandments that I give you today are to be on your hearts. Impress them on your children. Talk about them when you sit at home and when you walk along the road, when you lie down and when you get up. Tie them as symbols on your hands and bind them on your foreheads. Write them on the doorframes of your houses and on your gates.

Prayer: Lord, thank You for the Scriptures. I pray that they may be in my heart, and that I may teach those around me diligently, and speak of them when I sit at home, when I walk along the way, when I lie down, and when I get up. May I tie them on my hand, place them as frontlets between my eyes, and write them on the doorframes of my house and on my gates. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Sit together and read the promises of Deuteronomy 28 – they are 113. Memorize the Ten Commandments of God in Exodus 20.

DAY 53 (February 22)

TOPIC: The Song and Death of Moses

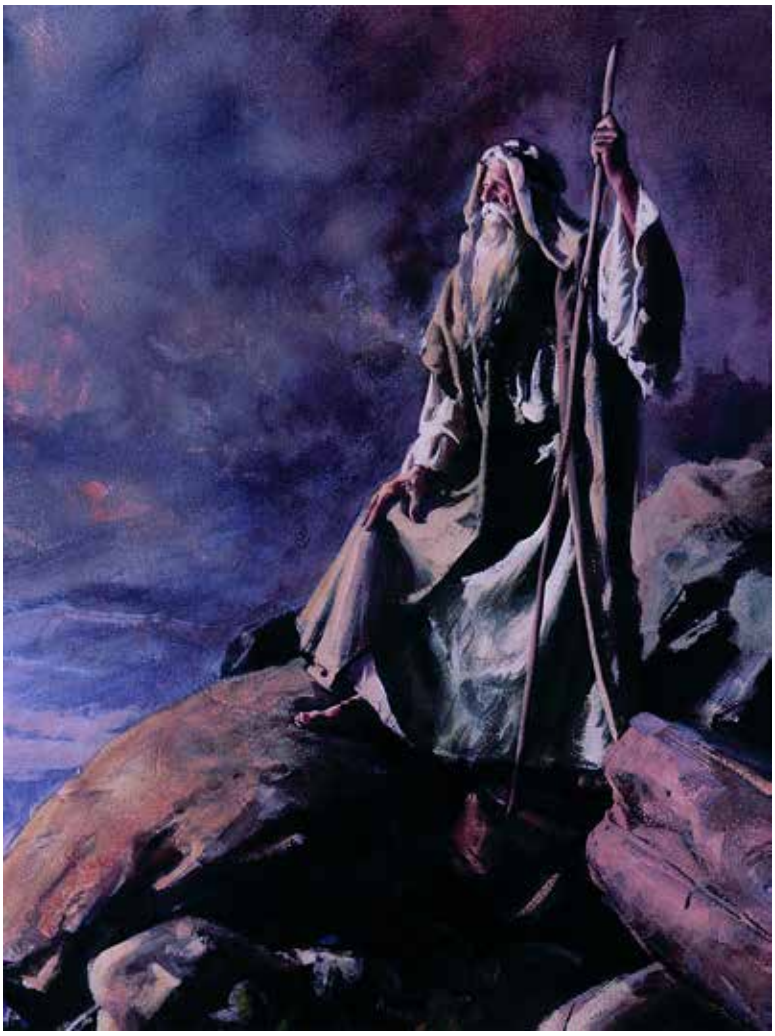
✿Throughout history, Christ has been left outside the doors of His people's hearts. But He still loves them. He promises the Laodicean church that if they allow Him into their lives, after His second coming, He will make them sit on His throne with Him (Rev. 3:21). He is the greatest lover of our world. He longs to dwell with us today and give us more than just physical blessings. He wants us to welcome Him so that He may reign in our hearts and that we may reign with Him forever. Those who welcome Him will ultimately bear God's commandments on their hands and foreheads, while others will accept Satan's counterfeit in order to buy and sell. The challenges of the world are many, and it is not easy to stay focused, but let our goal today be to join the great heavenly choir!



✿In summary, the song of Moses declares that God is good; disobedience leads to disaster. The saints will sing the song of Moses (Exodus 15) and the song of the Lamb on the sea of glass (Revelation 15). This song (Deuteronomy 32:1-43) reminds the Israelites of their covenant relationship with God. Essentially, one can analyze the song as follows: Surely, the Scriptures are useful for warning and teaching. This book is sorrowful, yet it continually reminds us that God is merciful and forgives our sins, but we will reap the consequences of those sins. Unfortunately, humanity continues to live in disobedience. One can imagine Moses looking down from heaven, wondering how we can continue to sin after reading about him and the lives of the Israelites. Let us recognize the seriousness of sin and begin to obey God's commandments and laws, as this will strengthen our relationship with Him and ensure our place in the heavenly Canaan. May God help us.

✿The LORD told Moses to climb the Abarim mountain range and view the land given to the Israelites. He said, "After you have seen it, you too will be gathered to your ancestors, just as your brother Aaron was." God reminded Moses that his and Aaron's disobedience at the waters of Meribah in the wilderness of Zin caused them to remain on this side of the land. Moses pleaded with the LORD to appoint someone to lead the people so they would not be like sheep without a shepherd. The LORD instructed Moses to take Joshua, a man filled with the Spirit, and lay hands on him. He was to give him instructions in the presence of Eleazar the priest and the congregation. God told Moses to bestow some of his honor upon Joshua. Joshua was to stand before Eleazar the priest, who would seek guidance from the LORD for him. By God's word, they would go out and come in—he, the Israelites, and the whole assembly. Moses did as God commanded.

✿Even today, God has appointed leaders for us; let us avoid tempting them to sin through our complaints and refusal to obey their guidance according to God's will. Our parents are also leaders set before us; let us honor them and not grieve them through stubbornness or sinful desires. Moses was a courageous leader who prayed, "Show me Your ways, O LORD, if I have found favor in Your sight, so I may walk in them and serve You well." God assured Moses, "My presence will go with you, and I will give you rest. You have found grace in My sight, and I know you by name." What sweet words! Even today, God knows your name. Do you desire to know His ways? He is ready to help and show you mercy.

✿Moses told the Israelites that because God loved them, He would do great things for them, but they needed to obey His commandments and walk in His ways to receive these blessings. They would be blessed in their coming and going, in their fields and homes, and even outside their land. God would open His treasury for them, and they would be the head and not the tail. He emphasized that they should remain close to God and do His will. He also warned them of the consequences of disobedience.

✿Moses climbed from the plains of Moab to Mount Nebo, the peak of Pisgah, opposite Jericho. The LORD showed him the entire land that the tribes of Israel were to enter. God told him, "This is the land I promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, saying I will give it to your descendants. I have let you see it with your eyes, but you will not cross over." Moses was given a supernatural view, seeing east, west, south, and north. He saw the Israelites entering the land and beginning new lives. Indeed, God loved Moses.

✿After giving his final instructions, Moses climbed the mountain alone. Then, Moses, the servant of God, died in the land of Moab. Moses was 120 years old when he died, yet he was still youthful! His eyesight was not dim, nor was his strength diminished. When Aaron was to be gathered to his ancestors, Moses and Hur accompanied him, but Moses climbed Pisgah alone. He looked down at the camp and saw the beautiful land given to them. Then he rested. The Israelites mourned Moses for thirty days. Moses longed to enter that good land! But God said, "No!" Oh, but God showed him the entire Promised Land in the beauty of springtime!

✿Then Moses lay down and died, and God buried him. How long did Jesus wait before returning for Moses? Jude hints that Satan wanted to keep Moses in the grave forever! But Jesus did not argue with him and instead resurrected Moses. (Satan may think he is in control, but he is not!). Fourteen centuries later, when Jesus came to earth as one of us, just before offering His life for our salvation, Moses and Elijah descended from heaven to encourage Him on the Mount of Transfiguration. At last, Moses stood in the Promised Land!

✿Joshua, son of Nun, filled with the spirit of wisdom, took Moses' place. The book of Jude reveals an extraordinary event. God resurrected Moses and took him to heaven. Satan contended for Moses' body, accusing him of sin, but God had seen Moses' repentance, patience, and suffering, and He took him. The Bible states that no one knows Moses' burial place to this day, likely to prevent idolatry.

✿We are told that in heaven, we will sing the song of Moses and the Lamb. Moses was indeed a close servant of God. You and I are now part of the spiritual people of Israel, and Christ is coming soon to take us to the promised land. What events in your life do you remember the most? Can you recount the wonders and miracles God has done for you on your life's journey? Can you reflect on times you disobeyed God and how He acted? Tell others what God has done for you as you journey towards His kingdom. Remember, God is faithful. Let us dedicate ourselves fully to Jesus so that He may use us to save the lost.

✿The Holy Spirit likely guided Joshua in writing the concluding verses of Deuteronomy. Moses showed us what we should do when facing death—reflect on our lives, confess every sin we can remember, and seek assurance in God's mercy. Just as Moses and the thief on the cross were assured of salvation, no Christian should die without this certainty while Jesus intercedes for us in the heavenly sanctuary (Heb. 4:14-16). However, waiting until the last moment to confess or repent is risky, as death can come suddenly through accidents or illness. Today, if you hear His voice, do not harden your heart.

✿Moses' last words and actions show his obedience to the LORD. Likewise, Jesus' last words were: "Father, not My will, but Yours be done" and "Father, into Your hands, I commit My spirit." This is the example to follow! Total surrender in loving obedience. That is my prayer for my life today. What about you?

✿God wants to give us eternal life freely. Let us be faithful so we can be with our Friend and Savior in eternity. Amen.

God Bless You, Child and Young Person of Jesus! 🙏

Memory Verse: Exodus 33:11-14

[11-14] The LORD would speak to Moses face to face, as one speaks to a friend. … "If You are pleased with me, teach me Your ways so I may know You and continue to find favor with You. Remember that this nation is Your people." The LORD replied, "My Presence will go with you, and I will give you rest."

Prayer: Thank You so much Lord, because we have found Your favor. Please show us Your ways, that we may know You. Remember us Lord, and may Your Presence go with us and give us rest. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Draw Moses climbing Mount Nebo, Pisgah, or Abarim, and then looking at the Promised Land.

DAY 54 (February 23)

TOPIC: Rahab and the Scarlet Cord

(Joshua 1-3)

✿ After Moses died, God appeared to Joshua and told him, "Moses, My servant, is dead; now therefore arise, cross over this Jordan River, you and all these people." Joshua took leadership, and the Lord showed him the boundaries of the land of Canaan. Then He assured him, "As I was with Moses, so I will be with you; I will not leave you nor forsake you. Be strong and courageous, for you shall lead these people to inherit the land. Be strong and very courageous; be careful to follow all the Law that My servant Moses commanded you. Do not turn from it to the right or to the left, that you may be successful wherever you go. Do not let this Book of the Law depart from your mouth, but meditate on it day and night, so that you may be careful to do everything written in it. Have I not commanded you? Be strong and courageous. Do not be afraid; do not be discouraged, for the Lord your God is with you wherever you go."

✿ Many books have been written about leadership, but the best one is the Bible, which God Himself gave Joshua. Strong and courageous leaders who apply biblical principles in their leadership succeed, even if they are not popular or well-liked. Aaron was loved, but he failed terribly because he lacked firm principles—he gave in to the people's demands and made the golden calf. Someone once said, "If you want to please everyone, don't be a leader, sell ice cream instead." A leader needs courage, fearlessness, and complete obedience to Christ. Their food, clothing, leadership style, and conduct should reflect the Lord. Any leader should read Joshua 1:7-9 whenever they feel pressured.

✿ Joshua began his leadership by secretly sending two spies to scout Jericho. They went and entered the house of a prostitute named Rahab, who welcomed them kindly. The king of Jericho was informed that Israelite spies were in the land, so he sent men, likely soldiers, to Rahab's house, demanding that she hand them over. Rahab hid the spies under flax stalks on her roof and told the king's men, "Yes, they came to me, but I did not know where they were from. They have left—chase after them quickly, and you may catch them." Once the soldiers left, Rahab brought the spies out from their hiding place and told them: "I know that the Lord has given you this land, and that fear has fallen upon us. All the inhabitants are melting in fear because of you. We have heard how the Lord dried up the Red Sea for you when you came out of Egypt and what you did to the two Amorite kings, Sihon and Og, whom you completely destroyed. When we heard this, our hearts melted, and no one had any courage left because of you, for the Lord your God is God in heaven above and on the earth below."

✿ Then Rahab pleaded with them, "Swear to me by the Lord that since I have shown you kindness, you will show kindness to my family. Give me a sign that you will spare my father, mother, brothers, sisters, and all who belong to them and that you will save us from death." The spies promised, "Our lives for your lives! If you don't tell what we are doing, when the Lord gives us the land, we will treat you kindly and faithfully."

✿ Rahab then lowered them down from her window using a scarlet cord, for her house was built into the city wall. She advised them, "Go to the hills and hide there for three days until the soldiers return; then go on your way." The spies instructed her, "Tie this scarlet cord in your window and bring your family into your house. Anyone inside will be safe, but anyone who goes outside will be responsible for their own death." Rahab agreed and tied the scarlet cord to her window. The spies then went to the hills, hid for three days, and later reported back to Joshua: "The Lord has surely given us the land; all its inhabitants are melting with fear because of us."

✿ Though Rahab did not fully know God, she was saved because she helped His people and later became a believer. Hebrews 11:31 says, “By faith, Rahab the prostitute did not perish with the disobedient, for she had welcomed the spies in peace.” Showing kindness to those in need or to strangers is important. “God is not unjust; He will not forget your work and the love you have shown Him as you have helped His people and continue to help them” (Hebrews 6:10). Even sinners outside the church can eventually become believers and be saved, while those inside the church can be lost. So never lose hope in anyone—as long as there is breath, there is hope.

✿ Furthermore, while the Israelites were commanded to completely destroy the wicked nations, they did not always do so. Some of these people later appeared in Scripture. Rahab and her family were spared from Jericho’s destruction and even found a place among God’s people. Rahab later married Salmon and became the great-grandmother of King David. She is even mentioned in Jesus’ genealogy! What an amazing story.

Questions:

1. Many people make mistakes in religious practices by praying or preaching too loudly and forcefully. How did God instruct Joshua after Moses died?
2. What did Rahab tell the spies?
3. What report did the spies bring back to the Israelites?
4. Why is Rahab considered a woman of faith?
5. Who was Boaz?
6. Why did God command Joshua to meditate on the Law day and night?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Memory Verse: Joshua 1:7-9

[7-9] Be strong and very courageous. Be careful to obey all the law My servant Moses gave you; do not turn from it to the right or to the left, that you may be successful wherever you go. Keep this Book of the Law always on your lips; meditate on it day and night, so that you may be careful to do everything written in it. Then you will be prosperous and successful. Have I not commanded you? Be strong and courageous. Do not be afraid; do not be discouraged, for the LORD your God will be with you wherever you go.
Prayer: Thank You Lord for commanding us to be strong and courageous, not afraid nor discouraged, because You are with us wherever we go. Help us to keep the Words of the Bible always on our lips day and night, and to do everything written in it. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Act out the words that the Lord spoke to Joshua in Joshua chapter one.

DAY 55 (February 24)

TOPIC: Crossing the Jordan River

(Joshua 3-5)

✿ The Israelites left Shittim and camped near the Jordan River before crossing. The river was overflowing, with strong currents and deep waters. They had no boats or ships—some may have wondered, "How will we cross?" Then the leaders announced, "When you see the Ark of the Covenant being carried by the Levite priests, follow it. But keep a distance from it." Joshua told them to consecrate themselves because the Lord would do wonders among them.

✿ God told Joshua, "Today, I will exalt you in the sight of all Israel, so they may know that I am with you as I was with Moses." He commanded the priests, "When you reach the Jordan's edge, stand still in the water." Joshua told the people, "When the priests carrying the Ark step into the river, the waters will stop flowing and stand up like a wall."

✿ When the priests stepped into the river, the waters stopped flowing, piling up in a heap. The riverbed became dry, and the entire nation crossed on dry ground. God then instructed Joshua to have 12 men, one from each tribe, collect 12 stones from the riverbed and place them in their camp as a memorial. The stones were to remind future generations of God's power.

✿ After the crossing, the river returned to normal. God had performed another miraculous water crossing, just as He had at the Red Sea. The place was named Gilgal.

✿ The Amorites, upon hearing how God dried up the Jordan, were filled with fear and lost all courage. The Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh, who had settled on the eastern side of Jordan, crossed over armed to help their fellow Israelites conquer Canaan.

Questions:

1. How did the Israelites cross the Jordan River?
2. Who went first?
3. How did God honor Joshua that day?
4. Where did the stones at Gilgal come from?
5. Why did the Amorites' hearts melt?
6. Do you remember any miracles God has done for you or your family?
7. Besides the Jordan, where else did God perform a water-crossing miracle?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Memory Verse: Joshua 3:5-7

[5-7] Joshua told the people, "Consecrate yourselves, for tomorrow the LORD will do amazing things among you." Joshua said to the priests, "Take up the Ark of the Covenant and pass on ahead of the people." So they took it up and went ahead of them. And the LORD said to Joshua, "Today I will begin to exalt you in the eyes of all Israel, so they may know that I am with you as I was with Moses."

Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father for the miracles we read today, showing that You can exalt a human being who obeys You. We pray that as we go to reach people, You may exalt us too, so that they may know that You are with us. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Act out the crossing of the waters and the taking of twelve memorial stones to set them up.

DAY 56 (February 25)

TOPIC: Joshua Encounters the Commander of the Army

(Joshua 5 and 6)

✿ Their feet had now stepped into Canaan, the Promised Land, and they thanked God for delivering them from slavery and for leading them across the Jordan River. Even today, God leads us through various challenges. Joshua was instructed that all the men should be circumcised because they had been born and traveled through the wilderness without circumcision. Circumcision at that time was a covenant between them and God. The Israelites observed the Passover, and they began to cultivate the land and eat its produce. They ate unleavened bread and roasted grain, and from that moment, manna stopped falling because they were now eating from the land's harvest. Our God is the one who provides for our needs, so it is good to pray for our daily provision.

✿ When Joshua was near the city of Jericho, he withdrew from the people to seek wisdom and guidance from the Lord because he was about to face many nations in battle to take possession of the land. He saw the walls of Jericho and many other cities with fierce giants, experienced warriors compared to his people who had been slaves. Suddenly, he looked up and saw a man standing before him with a drawn sword in his hand. Joshua approached him and asked, “Are you for us or for our enemies?” The man replied, “Neither! But as the Commander of the Lord’s Army, I have now come.” That’s when Joshua realized who he was speaking to! He was the one whom Abraham had welcomed and the one who wrestled with Jacob until morning. Joshua fell facedown and worshiped Him. Once he recognized that this was the Lord, he asked, “What does my Lord say to His servant?” God had many plans for him, but the first thing He said was to fear the Lord. Then the Lord, who is the Commander of the Army of the Lord, told Joshua what He had told Moses: “Take off your sandals, for the place where you are standing is holy.” And Joshua did so.

✿ Then the Lord gave Joshua the strategy to capture Jericho. The people of Jericho had tightly shut the gates of their city because of the Israelites. At that time, they lived in fortified cities with massive walls and large gates. They wondered why the Israelites were not attacking them, as they had prepared for war with their weapons and armor. The Lord told Joshua, “See, I have delivered Jericho, its king, and its mighty warriors into your hands.” He commanded them to march around the city once a day for six days. On the seventh day, they were to march around it seven times, but the first six times were to be in complete silence. Seven priests carrying seven trumpets made from rams' horns were to go before the Ark of the Covenant. On the seventh day, after completing the sixth round, the priests were to blow their trumpets loudly, and then all the people were to shout with a great shout, and the walls would collapse on the spot, allowing the people to enter the city. Joshua called the priests and instructed them to take the Ark of the Covenant and do as they had been commanded.

✿ Without a doubt, the people of Jericho were puzzled as they watched from the walls, perhaps asking themselves, "What is happening here? These people are just marching silently every day!" The Lord had given them the city. When the walls fell, they entered the city, defeated its inhabitants, and took it over. They destroyed everything in the city. They were told that the city and its possessions were to be dedicated to the Lord. However, Rahab and her family were spared because she had hidden the spies. The two spies went to bring out Rahab and her family along with their belongings, and then they burned the city down. The valuable items like gold, silver, and bronze were to be taken into the treasury of the Lord and kept as sacred.

✿ The Lord resolves our problems, simplifies difficult matters, and turns challenges into blessings. We should not walk around complaining, gossiping, or shouting, because the battle belongs to the Lord. However, we must fully surrender—what the English call surrender. The internet has opened up an entirely new way of communicating and sharing the gospel. When used correctly, it can help us bring down the "walls of Jericho" and enter into new territories. We must seek counsel from God through prayer and fasting. My church offers teachings on the Sabbath through Facebook and YouTube, and people from all over the world follow along. Many other ministries provide Q&A sessions, music, health guidance, counseling, evangelism, and parenting advice. Some people discover Christianity through radio, television, and websites. We need to learn how to use these tools effectively to reach the world, in addition to traditional methods like visiting people door to door.

✿ Another important point is that the land was divided among the Israelites by Joshua and Eleazar, the high priest, at Shiloh before the Lord at the entrance of the Tabernacle, which had been set up there. This showed that the true and rightful owner of the land was the Lord Himself. Even today, if we trace the ownership of the land we claim to possess, going back to the original owners, we would ultimately find that it belongs to God. We are not the true owners; we are merely tenants or stewards, and one day the Lord will ask us how we have used His resources and for what purpose.

✿ Questions:

- Do you discipline your mind to stay focused when praying?
- Daily prayer is essential for growing in grace and for spiritual life itself, just as physical food is necessary for our bodily health.
- We should train ourselves to lift our thoughts to God in prayer. If the mind wanders, we must bring it back; through sincere and persistent effort, habits will form that make prayer easier.
- Who gave victory over Jericho?
- What did He command them to do for the walls to fall?
- Who provided food for the Israelites?
- What kind of food did they cultivate?
- Who is the Commander of the Lord's Army, and what did He say to Joshua?
- Why did the two spies return to Rahab?

May God Bless You, Child and Young Person of Jesus.

Memory Verse: Joshua 5:13-15

[13-15] Now when Joshua was near Jericho, he looked up and saw a Man standing in front of him with a drawn sword in His hand. Joshua went up to Him and asked, "Are You for us or for our enemies?" "Neither," He replied, "but as Commander of the army of the LORD I have now come." Then Joshua fell facedown to the ground in reverence, and asked Him, "What message does my Lord have for His servant?" The Commander of the LORD's army replied, "Take off your sandals, for the place where you are standing is holy." And Joshua did so.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for Your provision and blessings. Forgive our sins. We ask today, what do You say to us, Your servants? In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Joshua meets the Commander of the Army of the LORD and takes off his sandals.

DAY 57 (February 26)

TOPIC: The Sin of Achan—No One Is an Island

(Joshua 7)

✿ After the Israelites saw Jericho fall, they surely believed they would quickly conquer the entire land. From Jericho, they went to fight against the small city of Ai. Joshua sent men to spy out the land. They reported back that Ai had only a few people and advised that Joshua should not trouble all the soldiers but send only 2,000 or 3,000 men. These people, at that time, had no guns or missiles.

✿ When the men went to battle, they were severely defeated; 36 of them were killed, and the rest fled. When they reached the slope, their hearts melted in fear and became like water. Seeing this, Joshua tore his clothes, overwhelmed with distress, and fell face down before the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD until evening, along with the elders of Israel. They put dust on their heads. Joshua asked the LORD, who had brought them across the Jordan River, why He had done so only to hand them over to the Amorites to be destroyed. He lamented, “If only we had been content to stay on the other side of the Jordan!” He feared that after the Israelites had fled before their enemies, the surrounding nations would hear about it, surround them, and wipe out their name from the earth. “What will You do for Your great Name?” Joshua asked.

✿ The LORD answered Joshua, “Stand up! Why have you fallen face down?” He told him that Israel had sinned, broken the covenant, stolen some of the devoted things, and hidden them among their possessions. This was why they could not stand before their enemies and had turned their backs in defeat—because they were under a curse. The LORD told them He would not be with them anymore unless they destroyed the stolen devoted things. Joshua was instructed to consecrate the people and prepare them for the next day. God told Joshua that the stolen devoted thing was among them and that they would not be able to stand against their enemies until it was removed. Perhaps Achan was hiding in his tent, thinking no one knew about his wrongdoing.

✿ The following morning, the tribes were brought forward, and the tribe of Judah was chosen. Then, clan by clan, the Zerahite clan was selected. Family by family, Achan was finally singled out. Joshua said to Achan, “My son, give glory to the LORD, the God of Israel, and confess to Him. Tell me what you have done; do not hide it from me.” Achan admitted his sin against the LORD, explaining that he had taken a beautiful Babylonian robe, 200 shekels of silver, and a gold bar weighing 50 shekels. “I coveted them and took them,” he confessed. “They are hidden in the ground inside my tent, with the silver underneath.” Joshua sent men to Achan’s tent, and they found the stolen items. They brought them before Joshua. Achan, his stolen goods, his livestock, his family, and all his possessions were taken, and Joshua declared, “Why have you brought this trouble on us? The LORD will bring trouble on you today.” Achan and his family were stoned to death, and a large pile of stones was placed over him. Today, we cannot hide our sins—God calls us to confess and forsake them.

✿ After this, the Israelites went to Ai with 30,000 soldiers and captured the city by following the LORD's instructions. They set an ambush and pretended to flee as they had before. When the people of Ai pursued them, the hidden ambush forces entered the city and set it on fire. When the people of Ai saw their city burning, they were trapped, surrounded by the Israelites. God delivered Ai into their hands. Joshua built an altar to the LORD on Mount Ebal and offered a thanksgiving sacrifice.

✿ There are many lessons in this chapter. First, it appears that Joshua did not seek God's guidance before attacking Ai; he assumed it would be easy because it was a small city. Only after the disaster did he become confused and fearful and then cry out to God. This shows that their strength was not in their military power but in God's help. Achan, on the other hand, did not take God's commands seriously, which brought destruction upon the nation and his family. Sin has severe consequences, and we need God's help every moment to take the right steps to avoid it. Lord Jesus, we need You to live sinless lives in this corrupt world. We all need to put on the full armor of God (Ephesians 6). Let us be a source of blessing to our families and not a source of trouble. Do you agree? No one is an island—our decisions affect others. Everyone should rely on God as their guide. Achan put his interests above others, and his choice caused the deaths of 36 soldiers and dishonored God's work.

✿ True revival and reformation, led by the Holy Spirit, transform our minds to reflect the mind of Christ. What once attracted our sinful nature becomes unimportant. Our main goal becomes pleasing God and blessing others who are our brothers and sisters in Christ. Let us never delay confessing our sins until things fall apart, and let us avoid coveting what belongs to others. Success cannot come if sin is in the camp. "You desire but do not have, so you kill. You covet but cannot get what you want, so you quarrel and fight. You do not have because you do not ask God. When you ask, you do not receive, because you ask with wrong motives, that you may spend what you get on your pleasures" (James 4:2-3). We must follow God's plans, not expect Him to follow ours.

✿ Let us watch and pray, asking at every step, "Lord, what should I do about this? Please show me what I am missing, and reveal Your will to me." May our prayers reach heaven and not just the roof of our house! The greatest danger in the church is not from open enemies, unbelievers, or those who mock it, but from those who claim Christ with their lips yet live contrary to His ways.

These people hinder God's blessings and bring weakness to His people. When sin is confessed, God takes human mistakes and turns them into blessings.

✿ A prayer does not need to be long, loud, or filled with groaning to be effective. Praying does not mean informing God of something He does not already know. The Lord knows the secrets of every heart. Our prayers do not need to be lengthy or shouted. God reads hidden thoughts. We can pray in secret, and the One who sees in secret will hear and reward us openly.

✿ Questions: Why did Joshua fall face down? What was Achan's sin, and who saw him commit it? What method did God tell Joshua to use to find the sinner? Why is coveting a sin? What did Joshua say to Achan? Why was Achan's family also destroyed? How many soldiers were sent to capture Ai? What does this story teach us? To whom did the possessions of Jericho belong? Why is the 10th commandment difficult to recognize when broken?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Memory Verse: Joshua 7:20-22

[20-22] Achan replied, "It is true! I have sinned against the LORD, the God of Israel. This is what I have done: When I saw in the plunder a beautiful robe from Babylon, two hundred shekels of silver and a bar of gold weighing fifty shekels, I coveted them and took them. They are hidden in the ground inside my tent, with the silver underneath." So Joshua sent messengers, and they ran to the tent, and there it was, hidden in his tent, with the silver underneath.

Prayer: Lord, keep us from greed for wealth and from lies. Thank You for Your generosity today. Forgive our sins. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A drama of Joshua falling facedown, the hidden sin of Achan, and the choice he made. Taking money and hiding it in bags, etc. Tell that everything will be exposed in the end (Luke 12:2-3).

DAY 58 (February 27)

TOPIC: Joshua Deceived by the Gibeonites and the Sun Stands Still

(Joshua 10-21)

✿ The Canaanites lived in many small kingdoms. When the Gibeonites saw how nations were falling before Israel, they devised a scheme. They gathered supplies and set out to deceive Israel. They carried worn-out sacks on their donkeys, old and patched wineskins, worn-out and mended sandals, and old clothes. They also took dry, moldy bread. When they reached the Israelites, they approached Joshua, pretending to be messengers from a distant land, and requested to make a covenant with them. At first, Joshua was suspicious, asking how they could make a treaty if they lived nearby. The Gibeonites claimed they had come as servants because they had heard of the LORD's great deeds in Egypt and against Sihon and Og.

✿ Joshua Did Not Ask the LORD for the Truth About the Gibeonites, and So He Made a Covenant With Them

Even today, this remains a problem for us—we make decisions without asking the LORD through prayer, going against His instructions, and only turn to Him when we face trouble. After three days, the Israelites discovered that the Gibeonites had lied because, after traveling for three days, they reached their cities. The Israelites did not attack the Gibeonites because they had already sworn an oath to them by the LORD, the God of Israel, that they would not harm them. The leaders decided to punish them by making them servants—water carriers and woodcutters for the entire assembly.

Joshua called them and asked, "Why did you deceive us?" They responded that they were afraid because they knew the LORD had given the land to Israel as He had commanded His servant Moses.

The Gibeonites accepted their fate, saying, "We are in your hands; do with us whatever seems good and right to you." As a result, they served by carrying water for the assembly and the altar for many years. Working at the altar was a blessing because it allowed them to see the picture of salvation firsthand. Many believe that Gentiles were never allowed into the temple, but here we see that they were given a unique opportunity to serve God, as His presence was there!

✿ The Five Kings of the Amorites Attack Gibeon

The king of Jerusalem, Adoni-Zedek, heard that Joshua had taken Ai and destroyed it completely, just like Jericho. He also heard that the Gibeonites had made peace with Israel, even though Gibeon was a great city with mighty warriors. So, he sent messages to four other kings, forming a total of five Amorite kingdoms, to attack Gibeon.

The Gibeonites sent a message to Joshua at Gilgal, saying, “Do not abandon us, your servants! Come quickly, save us, and help us!” The LORD gave Joshua permission to go, and Joshua marched with his army overnight and surprised the enemy. The LORD threw the Amorites into confusion, and the Israelites defeated them. Many more were killed by a great hailstorm from the LORD. As the battle continued, Joshua saw that darkness was approaching. He prayed to God and commanded, “Sun, stand still!” And the sun stopped, and the moon stood still until the Israelites had defeated their enemies.

How did this happen? We don’t know, but God, who created the sun, has the power to command it. The sun remained in the sky and did not set for about a whole day. The moon also stood still. There has never been another day like it, before or since, when the LORD listened to a human being in such a way. The LORD fought for Israel.

The five kings fled and hid in a cave at Makkedah. When Joshua heard this, he ordered the cave entrance to be sealed with large stones. Later, the kings were brought out and punished. Israel then continued to conquer all the cities of these five kingdoms—Jerusalem, Hebron, Lachish, Jarmuth, and Eglon—bringing them under Israelite control.

✿ Trusting in God’s Miracles

Everyone in Canaan at that time knew that the sun had stood still. God had intervened. Joshua and his army did not have the strength to win on their own. Likewise, we should not try to fight our battles with our own strength but trust in God’s supernatural intervention.

Do you believe that God still performs miracles today? If so, look to Him with faith—He is the God who acts! This great miracle shows that creation is under the control of the Creator. Satan tries to hide God’s greatness, but when humanity works with divinity, the result is a lasting victory.

Joshua did his part as a leader and fully trusted in God’s promises. He was not afraid. When we walk with the LORD in the light of His Word, we will accomplish the impossible. The LORD never fails in His promises.

Our prayer today is:
“LORD, fight our battles for us, and we will stand still and see Your salvation. Thank You for fighting for us and giving us victory. Just as You stopped the sun for an entire day so that Your people could complete the task You gave them, You are also willing to perform any miracle needed to help us complete the work of spreading the Gospel to the world. You long to see the mission accomplished. Let us cooperate with You!”

✿ The Division of the Land
After the battles, Joshua divided the land among the tribes. The Levites did not receive a land inheritance because they were dedicated to serving God. Cities of refuge were established for those who killed someone accidentally, where they could stay until the high priest died.
Joshua himself received an inheritance—a city in the mountains of Ephraim, which was once desolate. He rebuilt it and settled there. He demonstrated humility by not choosing the best land for himself.
The Levites eventually received their cities and lived there with their livestock. Joshua declared, “Not one of the LORD’s good promises to Israel has failed; every one was fulfilled!”
The Book of Jasher, which is available online, describes this event in chapter 88!

✿ Caleb’s Faith and Strength at 85
At 85 years old, Caleb still had his strength and said, “Give me this mountain” (Joshua 14:12). He had been promised this inheritance at 45 years old, and the promise was fulfilled 40 years later because he continued to love and serve God.

The lesson for us is that whatever God has promised will surely come to pass. We just need to be patient, trust Him, and obey Him. His will shall be accomplished!

✿ The Boldness of Caleb’s Daughter, Aksah
Caleb’s daughter, Aksah, boldly asked her father for land, and later she married Othniel, the future judge.
Likewise, we should not hesitate to ask our Heavenly Father for what we need. God’s plan for Israel was for every person to have land to avoid poverty and learn the value of work.
However, we must be careful not to command God in our prayers. Our prayers should not be demands but humble requests, seeking His will.

✿ Questions for Reflection:

Why was Joshua deceived?

What was the punishment of the Gibeonites?

Which nations did the five kings come from?

Why did the sun stand still?

How did Joshua say God fulfilled His promises?

What mistake did Joshua and the elders make?

How did they resolve the case of the Gibeonites?

How did the Gibeonites feel about their punishment?

Why is it important to ask God for guidance and allow Him to rule over every aspect of our lives, even in small matters?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Joshua 10:10-12

[10-12] On the day the LORD gave the Amorites over to Israel, Joshua said to the LORD in the presence of Israel: "Sun, stand still over Gibeon, and you, moon, over the Valley of Aijalon." So the sun stood still, and the moon stopped, till the nation avenged itself on its enemies. There has never been a day like it before or since, a day when the LORD listened to a human being. Surely the LORD was fighting for Israel!

Prayer: Lord, thank You for the miracles You perform for us each day. Forgive our sins, help us to know that You have all power and hear our prayers. We glorify You, our Lord. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A drama of the journey of the Gibeonites and their deception – wearing old clothes and carrying moldy bread.

DAY 59 (February 28)

TOPIC: The Last Days of Joshua

(Joshua 21-24)

Elder Caleb and Joshua were at the edge of the Jordan, ready to cross for the first time, but they had to return with the people for 40 years, even though they were not the ones who had sinned. Now, after wandering in the wilderness, they were dividing Canaan. Caleb was now 85 years old. This mighty warrior requested a mountain so he could conquer it. The mountain was Hebron, inhabited by the Anakim, and he took it. He declared that whoever would help him capture another city, Kiriath-sepher, would receive his daughter Achsah as a wife. Othniel, who became Israel's first judge, conquered the city and was given Achsah. She then asked her father for land with springs of water, and he granted it.
Joshua and Caleb did not ask for the most fertile or best places, nor were they greedy, even though they were the eldest among the Israelites.

✿ God wanted everyone to have land for farming, so there would be no poverty, and agriculture was meant to be the foundation of education. No human should ever fear farming. In heaven, people will have homes in the city of Jerusalem and also in the countryside, where each person will have a garden. This was God's original plan from Eden. Adam was a king, yet the first command he received—even before being given a wife—was to tend the garden. However, this work will not be burdensome; it will bring great joy to see things grow, with beautiful gardens full of food and flowers!

Our prayer today is that God grants us the grace to remain faithful until the end, for He who promised is faithful and will surely fulfill His word. As long as we continue in obedience, our salvation is secure. Making decisions by voting is not always necessary today, as we are not led in the same way as in biblical times. Instead, we must pray and have a committee of carefully chosen representatives to vote on behalf of others, while everyone prays earnestly that God's will be done. God will surely guide His church.

✿ Joshua ensured that cities of refuge were established, as Moses had instructed. Six cities were designated—three on one side of the Jordan and three on the other—for those who accidentally killed someone. These cities were well-known and easily accessible, about a day's journey away, and possibly located on hills so they could be seen. This law taught people patience and self-control, protecting the innocent or those who had killed unintentionally. Such cases could include accidental deaths, such as road accidents or a tree falling on someone unexpectedly.

✿ Many people ask why a loving God would destroy the Canaanites. These people were given 400 years of probation—the door of mercy was open to them—but they clung to their idolatry, which would have negatively influenced Israel and others. Joshua executed judgment upon them, which they had brought upon themselves. "Joshua took all the cities of these kings and struck them with the sword, destroying them completely, as Moses, the servant of the Lord, had commanded" (Joshua 11:12).
Why did God give these instructions to Moses? The Canaanites (also called Amorites) had a set probationary period of 400 years. At the end of this time, they were to be destroyed (Genesis 15:13-16). Indeed, there is a certain level of wickedness that, once exceeded, brings divine judgment. Just as in the time of the Flood, Sodom, or Canaan, their sins had reached extreme levels of cruelty and immorality.

✿ The Canaanites practiced child sacrifice, serpent worship, and temple prostitution of both genders. God endured these evils for 400 years! Can you imagine how many children were burned alive in those centuries? Truly, the Almighty was patient and sorrowful. Today, we hear similar atrocities in the news, such as child abductions, rape, and killings by terrorist groups like Boko Haram.
One key lesson is that God is always just and merciful. Sometimes, a few must die to prevent the death of many. A human left unchecked, armed with weapons and evil intentions, would commit unspeakable horrors without the restraint of God's Spirit. God is not unjust—let us trust Him. One day, He will explain what He was dealing with, and we, like children who do not understand our Father's challenges, will sit at His feet, knowing He always acted in the best way possible. Sin will never rise again!

✿ There is a limit to evil that this world cannot surpass—God has set that boundary. Currently, God is patiently enduring the increasing rebellion of the world. Soon, in the Great Cry, God's people will give a final warning, saying:

> "Come out of her, my people, so that you do not share in her sins or receive her plagues. For her sins have reached heaven, and God has remembered her iniquities" (Revelation 18:4-5).

After this, "the Day of the Lord will come like a thief in the night. The heavens will disappear with a great noise, the elements will melt with intense heat, and the earth and everything in it will be burned up" (2 Peter 3:10).
Let us not forget that the same God who will destroy the world is the one who came down and died a cruel death on the cross to save it. His judgment does not mean His love has diminished. He is perfect, and He is love—not just that He has love, but He is love.

✿ When Joshua grew old, he gathered the people, just as Moses did before his death. He reviewed the history of Abraham, from Ur of the Chaldeans, to Israel's enslavement, their deliverance, the crossing of the Red Sea, and all of God's miraculous victories. He then called the Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh, telling them that they had kept the Lord's commands and could now return to their cities across the Jordan. He urged them to carefully obey the laws given by Moses, to love the Lord, walk in His ways, keep His commands, and serve Him wholeheartedly. Joshua blessed them and sent them home with livestock, gold, silver, bronze, iron, and other riches to share with their brothers.

✿ These two and a half tribes later built a large altar, though there was supposed to be only one at Shiloh, where the Levites lived. When the rest of Israel heard this, they gathered at Shiloh and sent a delegation. Phinehas the priest, son of Eleazar and grandson of Aaron, along with ten leaders, confronted them:
"What is this trespass against the Lord of Israel? How could you rebel against Him by building another altar? Was the sin at Baal-Peor not enough? If you turn away from the Lord, He will be angry with all of us!"
They reminded them that Achan's sin had caused disaster for many.

✿ The Reubenites, Gadites, and half-tribe of Manasseh responded, saying:
"The Lord knows! If this is rebellion, do not spare us. This altar is not for sacrifices but a witness for us and future generations that we worship the Lord of Israel."

Phinehas acknowledged this, saying otherwise, Israel would have punished them. He and the other leaders returned in peace, and Israel continued to worship God at Shiloh during Joshua's time.

✿ Joshua called the people again, saying:
"I am now old. Be strong and obey everything written in the Law. Do not turn aside or follow the gods of these nations. The Lord has driven them out before you. One of you will chase a thousand, for the Lord fights for you. But if you turn back and mix with these nations, He will no longer drive them out. Instead, they will be snares, thorns, and whips in your sides."

He added:
"I am about to go the way of all the earth. Choose today whom you will serve—whether the gods of your ancestors or the gods of the Amorites. But as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."
The people quickly vowed to serve the Lord, but they did not remain faithful. This is our problem today—may we pray for the grace to both speak and act. Joshua made a covenant with them and set up a large stone as a witness.

✿ Pray with Faith
Align your life with your prayers so you can receive the blessings you seek. Do not let your faith weaken—blessings are received according to the faith exercised. "According to your faith, let it be done for you" (Matthew 9:29). "Whatever you ask in prayer, believe that you have received it, and it will be yours" (Matthew 21:22). Pray, believe, and rejoice!
Let the sincerity of heart, honesty, and faith be the hallmark of your prayers. The Lord is ready to do "immeasurably more than all we ask or imagine." (Ephesians 3:20) Speak it; pray for it. Do not talk about unbelief. We cannot afford to let Satan see that he has the power to darken our faces and sadden our lives.

✿ Questions:

1. What is Othniel remembered for?

2. Why were the Israelites upset when they heard that an altar had been built in Shiloh?

3. What was the purpose of the cities of refuge?

4. Why is it important to give our hearts to the Lord?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Joshua 21:44-45

[44-45] The LORD gave them rest on every side, just as He had sworn to their ancestors. Not one of their enemies withstood them; the LORD gave all their enemies into their hands. Not one of all the LORD's good promises to Israel failed; every one was fulfilled.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for giving us rest on every side. I am grateful that not one of Your good promises to us has ever failed. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A drama of Joshua bidding farewell to the Israelites and telling them: "But if serving the LORD seems undesirable to you, then choose for yourselves this day whom you will serve, whether the gods your ancestors served beyond the Euphrates, or the gods of the Amorites, in whose land you are living. But as for me and my household, we will serve the LORD."

DAY 60 (March 1)

TOPIC: Choose for Yourselves Today

(Joshua 24 & Judges 1)

✿ God made a covenant with Israel on Mount Sinai (Exodus 19:3-6 and 20:1-7), and Moses renewed this covenant with them before his death (Deuteronomy 29 & 30). In this chapter, Joshua also renews the covenant before his approaching death. He urges the Israelites to choose the Lord as their God forever. Three times, they vow to remain faithful to the Lord (24:16, 21, 24). Joshua then writes these things in the Book of the Law and sets up a stone monument as a witness to their vow (verses 26-27). The people kept their promises throughout the lifetime of all those who had witnessed the great things the Lord had done for them.

✿ Today, we must also remember the many gifts that the Lord has given us. Jesus came to live and die for us. He became our Mediator in heaven. He promised that He would return and take us to our heavenly Promised Land.

We should constantly reflect on His gifts with grateful hearts, renewing our dedication to Him. Joshua then blessed the people and later died at the age of 110, just like Joseph. He was buried in his city, Timnath Serah. The Israelites continued serving the Lord throughout Joshua's lifetime and during the lives of the elders who outlived him—those who had witnessed all the great works the Lord had done for Israel. Eleazar, the high priest, also died, and Phinehas took over as high priest.

✿ It seems that the Israelites grew weary of driving out their enemies and destroying their idols. They were supposed to make this part of Palestine a holy land of righteousness so that they would shine and reflect the glory of God in a land filled with wickedness. The tribe of Judah drove out the people of the mountains. After Joshua's death, they pursued Adoni-Bezek, the cruel king of the Canaanites, cutting off his thumbs and big toes. He admitted that he had done the same to many others and caused much suffering. The people of Judah fought and captured the mountain city, but they failed to do the same in the valley because they feared the iron chariots of their enemies. They forgot that it was God who fought for them, not their own strength or the chariots of their enemies.

The first chapter of the Book of Judges shows that the tribes of Manasseh, Ephraim, Zebulun, Asher, and Naphtali did not drive out the inhabitants of the land. The Angel of the Lord came up from Gilgal to Bochim, the place of weeping, and told them that the Lord had promised never to break His covenant, but they had broken it by failing to destroy the idols of the land. "Why have you not obeyed My voice?" the Angel asked. Then He declared that because of this, their enemies would not be driven out but would become like thorns in their sides. The people wept loudly and offered sacrifices to the Lord there.

✿ Questions:

1. What is Othniel remembered for?

2. Why were the Israelites upset when they heard that an altar had been built in Shiloh?

3. What was the purpose of the cities of refuge?

4. Why is it important to give our hearts to the Lord?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Judges 1:28

[28] When Israel became strong, they pressed the Canaanites into forced labor but never drove them out completely.

Prayer: Thank You for protecting us from the evil one. Help us to be people who do what You want and not what we ourselves desire. Forgive our sins. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Discuss the work of the Judges and the tasks they performed.

DAY 61 (March 2)

TOPIC: The First Judges and Israel's Rebellion

(Judges 3-6)

✿ The judges served as leaders of the nation under God's guidance. Israel did not have a president or a king; rather, the LORD Himself was their King. There were 15 judges mentioned in the Bible. A seemingly endless cycle is observed in the book of Judges: abandoning God, becoming captives of enemies, crying out to God for help, deliverance granted by God, and then returning to disobedience. Selfishness recurred when they stopped caring and narrating the great deeds of God's faithfulness! Moses and Joshua had died. This generation seemed to have a great opportunity since they had reached the Promised Land, flowing with milk and honey. However, they became complacent and did not continue driving out their enemies. Likewise, if we allow anything in our lives that God has commanded us to completely destroy, it will become a thorn in our flesh. If we let the enemy of selfishness and idolatry grow stronger, he will ultimately destroy us. What "Baal" in your life are you tempted to worship today? Obedience out of fear is always short-lived, but obedience driven by love is lasting. Let us fix our eyes on the cross so that we may develop love for God and people. Jesus says, “If you love me, you will keep my commandments.” (John 14:15).

✿ The first judge was Othniel, who married Caleb’s daughter, Achsah, and ruled Israel for 40 years. After he died, Israel did evil in the sight of the LORD, and He delivered them into the hands of Moab, and they served its king. When they cried out to the LORD, who is full of mercy, He raised up a judge named Ehud from the tribe of Benjamin. Ehud blew the trumpet and declared that the LORD had given their enemies into their hands. They struck down the Moabites, and Israel had peace for 80 years. After Ehud, the Israelites did evil again, and the LORD delivered them into the hands of King Jabin of Canaan, whose army commander was Sisera. When the Israelites cried out to God, He raised up Deborah, a prophetess, to be their judge. She sat under the Palm of Deborah between Ramah and Bethel in the hill country of Ephraim. Deborah called Barak and told him to go fight Sisera, assuring him that God would give him victory. Barak hesitated and asked Deborah to go with him, saying, “If you don’t go with me, I will not go.” Deborah agreed but told him that the honor would go to a woman.

✿ Deborah went to battle with Barak. She told Barak, “Get up! This is the day the LORD has given Sisera into your hands. Has not the LORD gone ahead of you?” The LORD confused Sisera and all his chariots and army before Barak. Sisera fled on foot and reached the tent of Jael. Jael welcomed him and assured him not to be afraid. He asked for water because he was thirsty, but she gave him milk. Sisera asked Jael to stand at the tent’s entrance and deny his presence if anyone asked. He then fell into a deep sleep, likely exhausted from battle and distress. Jael took a tent peg, approached him quietly, and drove it into his forehead. When Barak came searching for Sisera, Jael called him and showed him the dead Sisera with a tent peg in his head. This is how God defeated King Jabin of Canaan. Deborah and Barak sang a song of victory, glorifying God for delivering them from their enemies.

✿ Deborah judged Israel for 40 years. Again, the Israelites did evil, and the LORD handed them over to the Midianites. They fell into idol worship and wickedness, and when they were enslaved and oppressed, they cried out to God and were given a judge. But they soon forgot their mission to be a light to the nations, and the cycle repeated itself over and over. Are you feeling weak today? Has your own disobedience crushed your heart? Do not lose hope. Not only does God discipline those He loves, but He also delights in setting them free. Will you surrender your weakness to God? He has plans not only to deliver you but also to empower you to rescue others.

✿ Israel's story is our story, and the God of Israel is also our God. When we call upon Him, He hears us and comes to save us. Can you testify to this in your own life? John summarizes it by saying, "For everything in the world—the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life—comes not from the Father but from the world." (1 John 2:16). Let us clearly understand our place in the world: we are born in sin, and God knows this. He is not waiting to catch us in our guilt but is seeking a way to save us. If we do not live by God's Word, we invite disaster upon ourselves. Are you feeling weak today? Has your own disobedience crushed your heart? Do not lose hope. Not only does God discipline those He loves, but He also delights in setting them free. Will you surrender your weakness to God? He has plans not only to lift you out of the pit but also to enable you to rescue others.

✿ Like the Israelites, we often have to go through hardships before we turn back to God. This is also the story of the prodigal son. As we pray for those who are lost, God does everything He can to bring His children back, but we are free to reject His call. Ignoring messages that God sees as important for His people in these last days is self-destructive. That is why the Bible commands, "Listen to me, Judah and people of Jerusalem! Have faith in the LORD your God and you will be upheld; have faith in His prophets and you will be successful."

✿ While we should sing about what God has done in the past, we should also sing a new song about what God is doing in our lives today. Too often in my life, I fail to write down or even recognize the great works of God happening right now. And when I fail to remember how God is leading me today, I start to fear the future. Let us sing to the LORD a new song—a personal song of deep experience, testifying to how God is working in our lives today. Even God Himself sings over us: "The LORD your God is with you, the Mighty Warrior who saves. He will take great delight in you; in His love He will no longer rebuke you, but will rejoice over you with singing." (Zephaniah 3:17). The God of war fought for Israel—not because of their military skills, numbers, or weapons, but because of His divine intervention.

✿ Questions: Yes, Christ has become the mediator between man and GOD (the veil between). He is also the channel of blessing between GOD and man. He has united divinity and humanity. People should cooperate with Him for their own salvation and then make every effort, with steadfast and sincere dedication, to save those who are perishing.

What was the name of the first judge?

How many years did the second judge rule?

How can we compare a judge to a country's president?

Who was Jael?

How many years did Deborah rule?

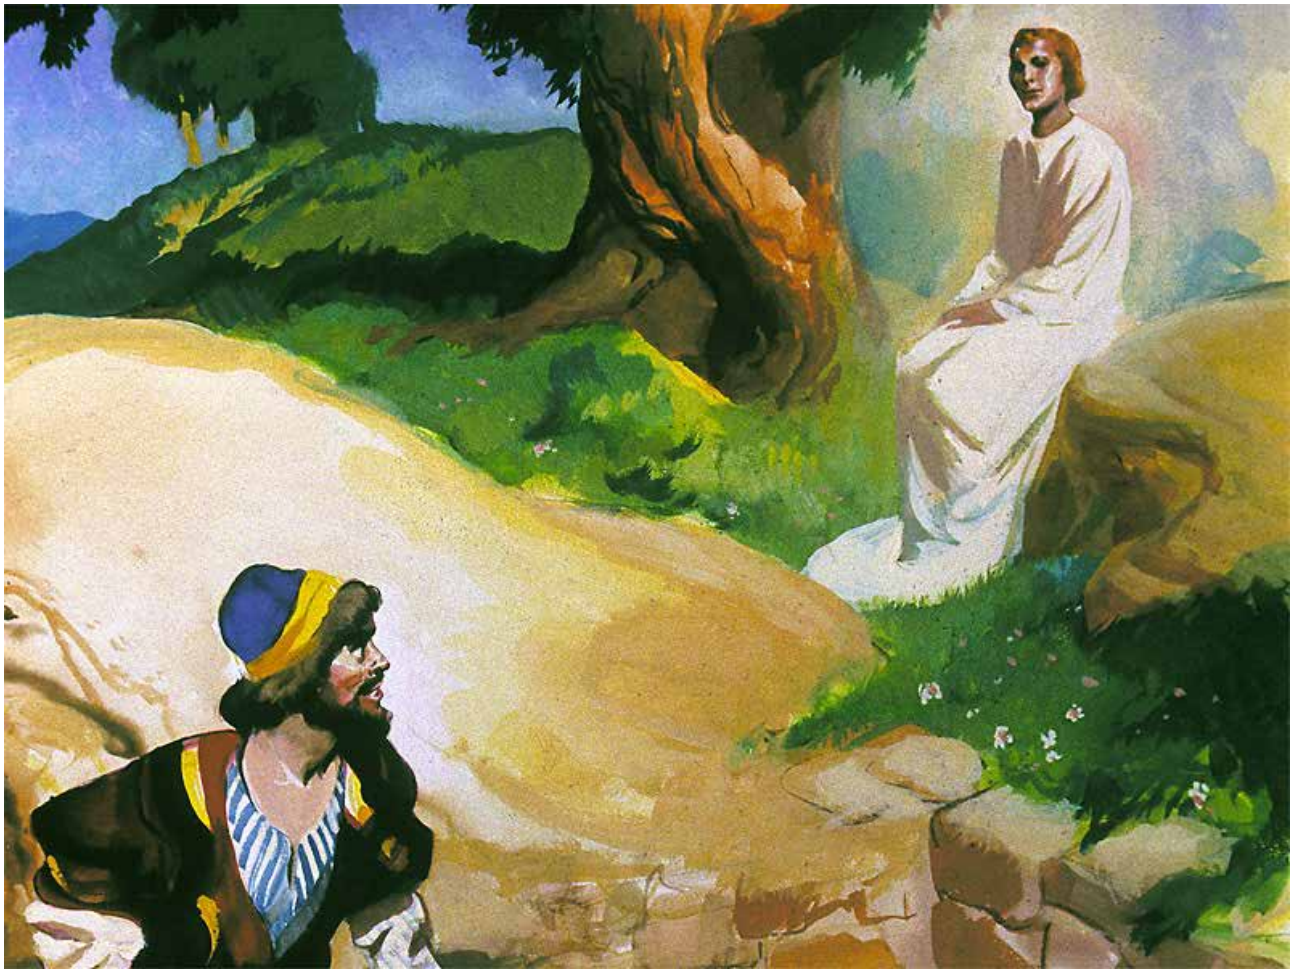
Why did Sisera get off his iron chariot?

What things, if not abandoned or destroyed, will bring us destruction?

✿ May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Judges 17:6

[6] In those days Israel had no king; everyone did as they saw fit.



Prayer: Lord, help us to seek Your face and not just do what seems right in our own eyes. Forgive our sins. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Tell the young people and children that in the Book of Judges there was a season known as "The Days of the Judges." There was no one in authority or leadership, so people did whatever they wanted, which led to bad things happening. Play a game such as soccer or another group activity. Set rules and boundaries, then let everyone play doing whatever they want – without following the rules!

DAY 62 (March 3)

Gideon – Are You Ready to Remove 31,700 Things from Your Life?

(Judges 6-9)

✿ After seven years under the oppression of the Midianites, things became so bad that people fled their homes and lived in caves or holes in the ground. Whenever the Israelites planted crops, the Midianites and Amalekites would invade, destroy their produce, and take their livestock—sheep, donkeys, and cattle. They entered their land and ruined it. Israel was greatly impoverished by the Midianites, and they cried out to the LORD. The LORD sent a prophet to remind them that He was the LORD their God, who had brought them out of slavery.

An angel of the LORD sat under the oak tree in Ophrah, where Gideon, also called Jerubbaal, was threshing wheat in secret to hide it from the Midianites. The angel greeted him, saying, “The LORD is with you, mighty warrior.” Gideon questioned why they were suffering if the LORD was truly with them. He asked, “Where are His wonders that our ancestors told us about?” The LORD turned to him and commanded him to go in His strength and save Israel from the hand of the Midianites, assuring him, “Am I not the one sending you?”

Although Gideon was called a mighty warrior, he was fearful. He made excuses, saying that his clan was the weakest and that he was the least in his father’s household. The angel assured him that the LORD would be with him and that he would strike down the Midianites as if they were a single man. The battle belongs to the LORD!

What battle are you facing today? What enemy has gathered against you? Look up, my friend! The One who helps in times of trouble is the LORD! The battle is not ours; it is the LORD’s, and He will save us.

We often count numbers: How many teachers? How many pastors? How many elders? How much money is in the bank account? Is there enough food? Are there enough volunteers? Like Gideon and Philip (when feeding the 5,000), we rely on numbers and resources. Humans see strength in numbers. But it is not by numbers but by the power of God that the work will be accomplished. We must choose to be among the few that God will use.

✿ Gideon asked the angel for a sign that he had found favor. He prepared a young goat, unleavened bread, and broth, then brought them to the angel. The angel touched the offering with the tip of his staff, and fire came from the rock, consuming the sacrifice. Then the angel disappeared. Gideon realized it was the angel of the LORD and feared he would die, but he was reassured, “Do not be afraid; you will not die.” Gideon built an altar to the LORD.
That night, the LORD told him to tear down his father’s altar to Baal and offer a bull as a sacrifice. Fearing his family and the townspeople—because his father worshipped idols—he did it at night. In the morning, the people saw Baal’s altar destroyed and the bull sacrificed. They asked, “Who did this?”

✿ The Midianites gathered in the valley to attack, but the Spirit of the LORD came upon Gideon, and he blew the trumpet to call the people. Gideon asked God for a sign to confirm that He would save Israel. He placed a fleece on the threshing floor and prayed that if the fleece was wet with dew while the ground remained dry, he would know that God would save Israel. In the morning, the fleece was soaked, and he wrung out a bowlful of water. He asked for another sign—this time, that the fleece would be dry while the ground was covered in dew. The next morning, it happened just as he had asked.

✿ People gathered under Gideon's leadership, reaching 32,000. But the LORD said the army was too large. If they won with such a large force, they might boast that they had saved themselves. So, Gideon told those who were fearful to leave—22,000 left, leaving only 10,000. Even then, the LORD said the army was still too large. He instructed Gideon to take them to the water and separate them based on how they drank. Those who lapped like dogs were kept; those who knelt to drink were sent home. Only 300 remained. The LORD gave the Midianites into their hands.

The 300 were divided into three companies, each given a trumpet and an empty jar with a torch inside. At Gideon's signal, they blew their trumpets, broke the jars, and held up their torches. The LORD caused confusion in the Midianite camp, and they turned their swords against each other and fled.
The Israelites wanted Gideon to rule over them, but he refused, saying, "I will not rule over you, nor will my son. The LORD will rule over you." The land had peace for 40 years.

✿ Sometimes, suffering is caused by sinful choices. Sometimes, it happens because we live in a broken, sinful world. Other times, there is no obvious reason. Do you want to know why suffering exists? The truth is, humans often do not have complete answers. One day, God will explain everything. But the more important question is, "How can I grow through this suffering?" This perspective transforms suffering into a treasure.

One clear lesson in this story is that God does not call the strong or the most qualified—He calls those who will bring Him glory. There is nothing in us that makes us worthy, but when we surrender to Him, He directs us. We need gentleness, patience, and kindness, but we also need courage!

Even though the Israelites repeatedly brought trouble upon themselves by doing evil, God responded with grace and delivered them when they cried out. God is merciful and compassionate. This gives us hope. Life on this planet keeps getting worse, so let us cry out to the LORD for deliverance.

✿ What we need now is the latter rain of the Holy Spirit to finish the work of the gospel. When the work is complete, Jesus will return.
Let us pray for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Our Heavenly Father is more willing to give His Holy Spirit to those who ask than earthly parents are to give good gifts to their children. But we must confess, humble ourselves, repent, and pray earnestly to meet the conditions for receiving His blessings. Revival comes in response to prayer. We have been entrusted with a mission, and we must run with it to bring restoration!

✿ The disciples still did not understand the limitless power and resources of the Savior. Jesus told them, “Until now, you have not asked for anything in My name.” (John 16:24) He explained that their success would come through praying for strength and grace in His name. He would stand before the Father and intercede for them. The humble prayer of a believer is presented by Jesus as His own desire on their behalf.

Every sincere prayer is heard in heaven. Even if it is not eloquently spoken, if it comes from the heart, it ascends to the Holy Place where Jesus ministers. He presents it to the Father in perfect words, free from offense, harshness, or stuttering.

Questions for Reflection:

How did the angel appear to Gideon?

What three signs did Gideon request?

How did the army reduce to 300? What percentage is that of 32,000?

Why was Gideon afraid of his father’s household?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Judges 6:12-14.

[12-14] The Angel of the LORD appeared to him and said to him, "The LORD is with you, mighty warrior."

Gideon said to him, "Pardon me, my lord, but if the LORD is with us, why has all this happened to us? Where are all His wonders that our ancestors told us about when they said, 'Did not the LORD bring us up out of Egypt?' But now the LORD has abandoned us and given us into the hand of Midian." The LORD turned to him and said, "Go in the strength you have and save Israel out of Midian's hand. Am I not sending you?"

Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father for helping us even when we have sinned and failed You like the people we read about in the Bible. We pray that You protect us from sin as You promised in Genesis 3:15. Thank You that You are always ready to help us and to remind us to ask for forgiveness and repent. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Drama
Materials: Use chairs for the Midianite camp, paper trumpets, and paper torches.
Instructions:

Arrange the chairs for the Midianite camp.

Tell the children that they are Gideon's army.

Lead them in quietly sneaking around the camp.

When you blow your trumpet, they blow theirs and shout, "A sword for the LORD and for Gideon! (Judges 7:20)."

Tell them to "pick up" their torches, then "drop" their jars (cups), and shout battle cries.

DAY 63 (March 4)

TOPIC: Jephthah and the Vow of Sacrifice

✿ Gideon was wise and did not like conflict. When the people of Ephraim confronted him, asking why he had not called them to fight against the Midianites, he responded humbly. He told them that their contribution was greater than his and that they had already defeated two Midianite kings. He asked, "What have I done in comparison to you?" This answer calmed their anger. Often, when someone accomplishes something great, people want to elevate them as leaders, just as they did with Gideon. We tend to glorify men and women who have done great things, expecting even more from them. This puts them at risk of pride and slows down the progress that God desires in their lives and ours.

✿ Have we put our leaders in greater trials by praising them excessively, leading them to pride? Why is it so difficult for us to make God our leader? He has proven His faithfulness, guidance, and commitment to fulfilling His covenant again and again. Let us continue to lift our leaders in prayer so that they may remain humble servants of God. May the Lord forgive any leader among us who has developed pride that ruins their testimony of God's goodness and lead them to repentance. Time is short, brothers and sisters—let our lives be a testimony of the joy of our salvation in Christ Jesus.

✿ Gideon avoided civil war with his fellow Israelites by responding to the Ephraimites wisely (Judges 8:2-3). The essence of his response was that his accomplishments were nothing compared to what they had achieved in killing the two Midianite commanders, Oreb and Zeeb. This pacified their anger. The Bible says, "A gentle answer turns away wrath, but a harsh word stirs up anger." (Proverbs 15:1). Could arguments, divorces, and conflicts among friends be avoided if someone responded gently? It is not easy to give a soft answer when someone accuses you unfairly. Our natural reaction is to retaliate, leading to explosive conflicts.

✿ However, if we pray for the grace to respond with gentleness, as Gideon did, many conflicts can be avoided. When angered, ask for the grace to calm tensions with a gentle response. "You cannot change how people perceive you or what they say about you. What you can change is how you respond." Only by God's grace can we react positively to negativity without exploding in anger. "May the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable to You, O Lord, my Rock and my Redeemer." This is my prayer today.

Although Gideon later fell into the sin of making an ephod that became an idol for Israel and had many concubines in his later years, God still used his broken humanity for His purposes and glory. This does not excuse sin, for God desires to save us from our sins and build a relationship with us step by step, helping us seek His righteousness through sanctification.

✿ When Gideon died, the Israelites turned away from God and worshipped other gods like Baal. They forgot the Lord who had saved them from their enemies. Then came Abimelech, who sought power. He hired worthless and reckless men to follow him and killed all his seventy brothers. This was evil and sinful. The youngest brother, Jotham, escaped and hid in fear of Abimelech. Abimelech later died when a woman dropped a millstone on his head from a tower. Thus, God avenged the evil Abimelech had done to his brothers and the people of Shechem.

Desiring greatness can be dangerous—it is wise to prioritize honoring God rather than seeking self-glory. Some seek positions not to serve but to dominate or for financial gain. We must understand Scripture, know God, and comprehend what it means to be a true believer on the path to heaven.

One of the judges after Gideon was Jephthah. When the Ammonites threatened Israel, the Israelites called Jephthah to help them. He reminded them that they had previously rejected and expelled him from his father's house. They pleaded with him and promised to make him their leader. Jephthah agreed and spoke all his words before the Lord at Mizpah.

✿ Jephthah then sent messengers to the king of the Ammonites, asking why they were attacking Israel. The king replied that Israel had taken their land when they came out of Egypt. Jephthah explained how God had helped Israel possess the land. He asked, "Are you better than Balak son of Zippor? Did he ever fight against Israel?" He declared, "I have not wronged you, but you are doing me wrong by waging war against me. Let the Lord, the Judge, decide the dispute between Israel and Ammon." However, the Ammonite king did not listen.

The Spirit of the Lord came upon Jephthah, and before going to battle, he made a vow: "If You give the Ammonites into my hands, whatever comes out of the door of my house to meet me when I return in triumph will be the Lord's, and I will sacrifice it as a burnt offering." This was a rash vow because God does not require human sacrifices.

✿ Jephthah had only one child, a daughter whom he loved dearly. She also loved her father. Every person is born to glorify God by fulfilling a unique purpose that no one else can accomplish. If those around you do not support what God has called you to do, continue praying about it. Many people judge God's calling through human reasoning, traditions, or experience, which can be discouraging. If you work with people who do not understand your calling, they may doubt you. However, you do not need to be overly attached to them. If God has sent you, He will bring people who understand and support you. After knowing God's will through prayer and Scripture, move forward in faith. Opposing voices do not last forever; people may be transferred or retire. When they leave, God will provide supporters. The key is to dedicate yourself to God and avoid sin, as wrongdoing attracts criticism and hinders God's work. Sometimes, those who opposed you may later confess their mistakes when the Holy Spirit convicts them. But even if they do not, keep moving forward with courage and humility, involving others as much as possible.

✿ Jephthah went to battle against the Ammonites and defeated them. Upon returning home to Mizpah, his daughter was the first to come out to greet him with tambourines and dancing. Seeing her, he tore his clothes and lamented, "Oh no, my daughter! You have brought me down and made me miserable because I have made a vow to the Lord that I cannot break." His daughter, though joyful, saw her father in sorrow. She told him, "Father, if you have made a vow to the Lord, do to me as you have promised, for the Lord has avenged your enemies." She then asked for two months to mourn her virginity with her friends. Afterward, Jephthah fulfilled his vow.

✿ The Ammonites angered God by offering their children as burnt sacrifices to their god, Molech. However, God does not require such sacrifices. Instead, we should offer our talents, time, resources, and hearts to His service. We cannot say that Jephthah was imitating the Ammonites, but this is one of the questions we will ask in heaven to understand fully. Until then, we must strive to reach heaven. The key lesson here is to seek God's guidance before making vows. God does not demand vows from us—it is we who sometimes speak hastily without thinking and later regret it.

Jephthah judged Israel for six years and then died. After him, other judges ruled, and the cycle repeated—whenever a judge died, the Israelites returned to evil, and God delivered them into the hands of their enemies, such as the Philistines.

✿ The disciples were to carry out their work in the name of Christ. Every word and action was to focus on His name, the essential power through which sinners could be saved. Their faith was to be firmly rooted in Him, the source of mercy and strength. In His name, they were to present their prayers to the Father and receive answers. They were to baptize in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. The name of Christ was to be their protection, identity, bond of unity, authority, and source of success.

✿ Questions: Who was the judge after Gideon? What good and bad things did Gideon do? Why was Jephthah's vow unusual? What led him to make it?

God bless you, child and youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Ecclesiastes 5:4, 5.

[4-5] When you make a vow to God, do not delay to fulfill it. He has no pleasure in fools; fulfill your vow. It is better not to vow than to make a vow and not fulfill it.

Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father for giving us wisdom. We ask You to protect us from making foolish vows, or those too difficult to keep, or even those that are not Your will for us to declare. Thank You for being willing to help us even when we don't make promises to repay Your goodness. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Who has the truth about this story? Divide the children into teams. Each team writes down truths about this story. The team with the most correct truths wins. Discuss with the children about making vows or promises wisely, without rushing or acting on emotions.

DAY 64 (March 5)

LESSON: The Man Who Was Once Mighty Over All

(Judges 13 and 14)

Now when the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the LORD, he delivered them into the hand of the Philistines for 40 years. There was a man named Manoah, and his wife was barren, she had no child. The angel of the LORD appeared to the woman and told her that she would conceive and bear a son, and no razor should come upon his head, for this child would be a Nazirite to God from the womb, and he would begin to deliver Israel from the Philistines. This lesson shows that the food we eat is important for both spiritual and physical life. Manoah's wife went and told her husband, "A man of God came to me, and his face was like the face of an angel of God, very awesome man, but I did not ask him where he came from."

She continued to explain the message she had said that she would conceive and bear a son. The child must not drink wine or strong drink or anything unclean, because this child will be a Nazirite to God from the womb until the day of his death. Then her husband prayed to the Lord that the man who appeared to his wife, would come again and teach them what they should do for the child who would be born. It is very important for parents to know how God wants us to care for our children. The Bible is the first book for beauty, child care and parenting. We should not parent children by chance, trial and error or by the dictates of the people of the world. The Lord listened to the voice of Manoah and the angel of God appeared to his wife, a second time while she was alone in the field. It is a great blessing, to receive instructions on how to raise the child for the second time. This mother ran to call her husband and told him to follow her because the man who appeared to her, had returned again.

So Manoah went with his wife and when he came to the man he asked him if he was the one who spoke to his wife before, and he said 'Yes, I am.' Manoah said when those words come true, what kind of child will he be, and what will his job be? The angel of the Lord told him all the prohibitions he had told his wife, and insisted that they keep them. "Your wife must do all that I have told her. She must not eat anything that comes from the grapevine, nor drink any wine or other fermented drink nor eat anything unclean. She must do everything I have commanded her." Then Manoah took a young goat, together with the grain offering, and sacrificed it on a rock to the Lord. And the Lord did an amazing thing while Manoah and his wife watched: As the flame blazed up from the altar toward heaven, the angel of the Lord ascended in the flame. Seeing this, Manoah and his wife fell with their faces to the ground. When the angel of the Lord did not show himself again to Manoah and his wife, Manoah realized that it was the angel of the Lord. Angels are servants of God, so they refuse to bow down and take the glory that only God deserves. Everyone has their own Angel. Manoah did not know that this was an Angel, so he asked him his name and the Angel said why are you asking me my name is strange for you to understand.

Even today there are parents who ask that question, that is, how will we raise a child! Manoah had an important request. When Manoah offered a kid of the goats and a grain offering to the LORD on a rock, and the Angel did a wonderful thing in their sight, for when the flame of fire ascended to heaven from the altar and the Angel ascended in the flame of fire, Manoah and his wife fell on their faces and worshiped. The angel did not return to them again, and Manoah said to his wife that they would die because they had seen God. His wife wisely said, if God wanted to kill them, why had he shown them all this and accepted their offering, for sure he would not tell them that they would have children, if they were going to die! Manoah's wife bore a son and called his name Samson, and he grew, and the LORD blessed him and the Spirit of the LORD began to come upon him. Manoah and his wife did a good job of taking care of their son. However, Samson was not faithful. When he grew up, he went down to the city of Timnah to marry a daughter of the Philistines, and she spoke to his parents to get him a wife.

When we discover our weaknesses, let us cry out to God to give us the strength to overcome the sins that easily beset us. So Samson's father and mother asked him, is there no woman from our tribe or relatives that you can marry but insist on marrying the Philistines who do not worship the God of heaven? And Samson responded by saying, "Get her for me, for she pleases me very much." It seems that Samson had peer pressure and improper concept of love that God wants us to have for marriage. If a person wants to marry, he should not look a wife that pleases him only, but the Will of God first. Many people get into trouble by marrying someone who does not believe in God because people say that lust is blind, but true love is not blind. At this time, the Philistines were ruling Israel and perhaps the LORD used this method to seek a lesson from the Philistines. Samson and his parents went down to Timnah to the vineyards and a young lion roared. The Spirit of the LORD came mightily upon him and he tore apart a young lion like a goat without any instrument in his hands. People did not know how he could have killed the lion. Samson went down and talked to the woman again another day and she became more interested in Him, which is a sin to marry an unbeliever. When he passed by the lion's carcass he saw many bees on the carcass and there was honey. He gave the honey to his father and mother, without saying where he got it from.

Here is a big problem, because the Bible says that we should not be yoked with unbelievers. This means for regular members and Spiritual leaders like Samson. But there are people who meet and marry before they are believers , or there are some who leave the faith after marriage. From Paul's advice, that person should not leave his husband or wife. For we will all be judged by God's holy law, God forgives ignorance but when we understand we are fully responsible. Before marriage it is good to know if your partner is ready to follow all the instructions of the Lord, found in the Holy Scriptures. God's instructions are aimed at loyalty to Him and not at destroying the home and family. God has said that we should not have relationships with the world in a way that does not glorify Him. Our unity with the world in our habits, lifestyle, goals or dreams, often keeps us away from God. Some people have asked when they read the book of Ezra, saying, Can we today divorce an unbelieving wife as happened in Ezra 10? Our Lord Jesus gives the answer:

The Pharisees also came to him, testing him and saying to him, Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife for every cause? He answered and said unto them, Have ye not read, that he which made them at the beginning made them male and female, and said, For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and the two shall be one flesh? So then they are no more two, but one flesh. What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder. They said unto him, Why then did Moses command to give a writing of divorcement, and to put her away? Moses did this because of the hardness of your hearts, he allowed you to divorce your wives: but from the beginning it was not so. And I say unto you, Whosoever shall put away his wife, save it be for fornication, and shall marry another, committeth adultery: and whosoever shall marry her that is put away committeth adultery (Matthew 19:3-9). Therefore let us encourage our young men to pray before entering into marriage, that they may not make mistakes, because once they have entered, there is no way out except by the cause which Jesus hath given. So “Take heed before you jump in marriage which is a holy institution,” and has to be according to God’s way. Read more in (1 Corinthians 7:12-16).

🌼Things may seem difficult and the waves may be rough in choosing a spouse, but we are called to uproot any habits or behaviors that keep us away from God. Prayer: Dear Lord, help me to be completely faithful to Your Word because I know that in all things You, the Lord God, work together for good for those who love You, whom You have called according to Your purpose. (Romans 8:28)

🌼In the Holy of Holies is the ark; its top and sides are made of pure gold. On each end of the ark are beautiful cherubim, with their wings spread out above it. The faces of the two cherubim face toward each other, and they look downward. Between the angels is a golden censer. Above the ark, where the angels stood, is a very bright glory, looking like a throne where God sits. This is called Shekina. Jesus is in the most holy place now in heaven, doing atonement for us, interceding as our High Priest, and when the prayers of the saints come up to Him, the incense in the censer goes up in smoke, and He offers their prayers with the smoke of the incense to His Father.

🌼 Questions: What was the name of Samson›s father? How did the angel appear to Samson›s mother? Is it right to marry a woman or a person just because you are interested in them, even if they are not of good character? Why is it not right to marry people who do not believe in God?

God Bless You, Child and Boy Jesus🙏🙏

Memory Verse: Judges 13:3-6.

[3-6] The Angel of the LORD appeared to the woman and said to her, “You are barren and childless, but you are going to become pregnant and give birth to a son. Now see to it that you drink no wine or other fermented drink and that you do not eat anything unclean. You will become pregnant and have a son whose head is never to be touched by a razor because the boy is to be a Nazirite, dedicated to God from the womb. He will take the lead in delivering Israel from the hands of the Philistines."

Prayer: Thank You Lord for this day, forgive us our sins. We know each of us is dedicated to You. Keep us from involving ourselves in unclean things, and help us follow Your instructions. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: Discuss marriage relationships between a man and a woman according to the guidance of the Bible. Samson was involved with three women: the first from Timnah, whom he married; the second was a prostitute from Gaza; the third was Delilah, whom he loved.

What was Samson's sin?

Is it wise to marry someone just because they please you?

Did his moral downfall begin when he joined himself to a prostitute, or when he connected with pagan/foreign women?

Did Delilah hide her plan to bring him down?

Why do you think Samson didn't run away from Delilah even though he was stronger than she was?

DAY 65 (March 6)

TOPIC: Samson's Riddle

✿Samson posed a riddle to his wife's relatives. Before revealing it, he told them there was a reward of 30 linen garments and another 30 outfits, making a total of 60. They listened attentively, and he said, "Out of the eater came something to eat; out of the strong came something sweet." Seven days passed, and no one could solve the riddle. They pressured his wife to coax the answer out of Samson, threatening to burn her and her father's house. They accused her of bringing Samson to take their wealth.

✿Samson's wife wept, saying that he hated her and did not love her because he had given her people a riddle without telling her the answer. Samson replied that he had not even told his parents. She continued to cry before him for seven days while the feast lasted. On the seventh day, she pressed him so much that he told her the answer. She then revealed it to her people. Before sunset on the seventh day, they answered the riddle: "What is sweeter than honey? What is stronger than a lion?" The honey was found in the carcass of a lion, and a lion is strong. Samson replied, "If you had not plowed with my heifer, you would not have solved my riddle," implying that his wife had given them the answer.

✿The Spirit of the Lord came upon Samson, and he went to Ashkelon, struck down 30 men, took their belongings, and gave their garments to those who had solved the riddle. He became very angry and returned to his father's house, leaving his wife behind. His wife was then given to his friend. Later, during the wheat harvest, Samson went to visit his wife, bringing a young goat. But his father-in-law refused to let him in, saying he thought Samson hated her and had given her to his friend. He offered Samson her younger sister instead. Samson declared that this time, he would be guiltless in taking revenge on the Philistines.

✿He caught 300 foxes, tied torches between their tails, set them on fire, and released them into the Philistines' fields, burning their grain. In retaliation, the Philistines burned his wife and father-in-law. Samson avenged them with a great slaughter and then went to live in the cleft of the rock at Etam.

✿The Philistines pursued him, and the men of Judah asked why they were after him. They replied that they wanted to capture Samson for what he had done to them. The men of Judah confronted Samson, asking why he had brought trouble upon them, knowing they were under Philistine rule. Samson replied that he was simply repaying them for what they had done. The men of Judah said they had come to bind him and hand him over to the Philistines. Samson agreed, asking them not to kill him themselves. They tied him with two new ropes, but as he approached the Philistines, the Spirit of the Lord came upon him powerfully. The ropes on his arms became like burnt flax and fell off.

✿He grabbed a fresh jawbone of a donkey and struck down a thousand men. He then spoke a riddle: "With a donkey's jawbone, I have made heaps upon heaps; with a donkey's jawbone, I have slain a thousand men." After throwing away the jawbone at Ramath-Lehi, he became very thirsty and cried out to God, saying, "You have given this great victory through your servant, but now must I die of thirst?" God then opened a hollow place, and water gushed out. Samson drank, regained his strength, and revived.

✿Samson lacked the experience of obeying God's laws. After striking down a thousand Philistines, they later discovered his location and surrounded his house at night, waiting to kill him. At midnight, he arose and tore off the city gate with its posts and bars, carrying it on his shoulders to the hill facing Hebron.

✿Later, he went to the Valley of Sorek and fell in love with a woman named Delilah. The Philistine rulers approached her, asking her to coax Samson into revealing the secret of his great strength so they could overpower him and bind him for torment. They promised her 1,100 silver pieces. Delilah begged Samson to tell her how he could be bound and subdued.

✿First, Samson said that if he were tied with seven fresh bowstrings that had not dried, he would become weak like any other man. The Philistines brought her the bowstrings, and she bound him. Then she shouted, “Samson, the Philistines are upon you!” But he snapped the bowstrings as easily as a string breaks when it touches fire.

✿Delilah complained that he had deceived her and asked him again how he could be bound. The second time, Samson told her to use new ropes that had never been used. Delilah tied him up with new ropes and again shouted, “Samson, the Philistines are upon you!” He broke the ropes off his arms as if they were threads.

✿Delilah accused him of lying again and pleaded with him to reveal the secret of his strength. The third time, Samson said that if the seven locks of his hair were woven into the fabric of a loom, he would become weak. Delilah did as he said and pinned it down, but when she called out, “Samson, the Philistines are upon you!” he woke up and pulled away the pin and the loom.

✿She nagged him daily, pressing him so much that he became tired to the point of death. Strangely, he did not return to Israel or run away. He loved Delilah, but she did not love him—her goal was to destroy him. Even today, many people fall into traps because of relationships with ungodly partners, leading to pain and even spiritual or physical destruction.

✿It is not that God approved of Samson's sinful choices, but as the True Counselor, He did not abandon him, even when Samson openly made mistakes. I am always amazed at God's grace. Even more astonishing is His grace toward me. Will you join me in shouting, "Hallelujah!"?

✿If you are in a wrong relationship and are not yet married, run away immediately! If you are already married, pray more than ever before, but do not abandon your faith. Ask the Holy Spirit to guide you and pour God's love into your heart to bless your spouse. Miracles still happen. Thank you, Jesus, for redeeming us from bad relationships and directing our steps on the right path! There is a saying that love is blind. This is not true. Infatuation is blind, but true love recognizes and follows God's principles rather than emotions and feelings. True love has self-control, simplicity, integrity, morality, faith, and discipline.

✿God used Samson's poor choices to fulfill His purpose, but that does not mean He approved of them. God does not break His own commandments.

✿What does it mean to pray in the name of Jesus? Praying in the name of Christ means many things. It means accepting His character, displaying His spirit, and doing His works. The Savior's promise comes with conditions. He says, "If you love Me, keep My commandments." He saves people, not in sin, but from sin; and those who love Him will show their love through obedience.

✿Questions:

Why did Samson kill 30 men?

Why did Samson carry the city gate?

If a close friend told you they wanted to kill you and revealed how they would do it, would you agree?

Do you think God wanted Samson to be with unbelieving women?

Write the qualities of a good husband or wife.

Give an example of someone who was killed by a friend, spouse, or partner.

MAY GOD BLESS YOU, CHILDREN AND YOUTH OF JESUS

Memory Verse: Judges 16:14-16.

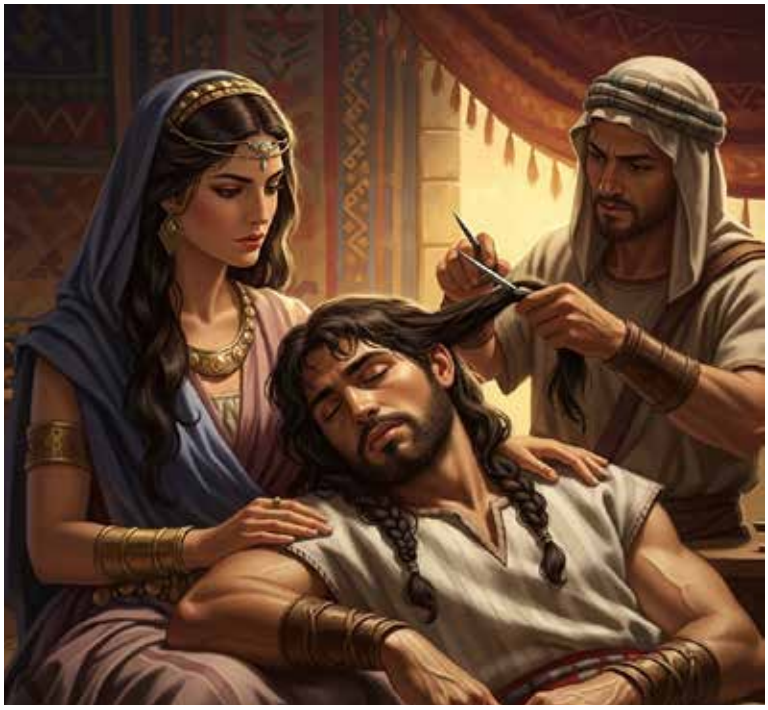
[14-16] She fastened it with a pin and said to him, "Samson, the Philistines are upon you!" But he awoke from his sleep and pulled up the pin and the loom with the fabric. Then she said to him, "How can you say, 'I love you,' when you won't confide in me? This is the third time you have made a fool of me and haven't told me the secret of your great strength." With such nagging she prodded him day after day until he was sick to death of it.

Or Proverbs 23:26-27
[26-27] My son, give me your heart and let your eyes delight in my ways, for an adulterous woman is a deep pit, and a wayward wife is a narrow well.

Prayer: Lord, we give You praise and glory today. Thank You for the life of Samson, Your Nazirite, for it shows us how not to secretly love those who are Your enemies. Lord, give us wisdom in every relationship in our lives so that we do not tie ourselves to those who will hurt us and dishonor You. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: Lessons and themes on falling into sin.

Pride and Humility: Relate Samson's loss of strength to the consequences of pride. Where did Samson's strength come from?



Listening to God: Discuss how Samson stopped listening to God, which led to his downfall.

Speaking the Truth: Highlight the message about having unwise friends and then lying to them, instead of protecting the secret given by God. Talk about being careful about whom you trust, because even if they want to harm you, you may have gone too far in the relationship to escape the trap.

DAY 66 (March 7)

TOPIC: The End of Samson

(Judges 16)

Samson Was Troubled by a Woman

Samson no longer mentioned that he was fighting for Israel; instead, it became a cat-and-mouse game of pursuit. Eventually, he revealed his secret to Delilah—a secret that even many in Israel did not know. He told Delilah, "No razor has ever touched my head, because I have been a Nazirite dedicated to God from my mother's womb. If my hair is cut, my strength will leave me, and I will become weak like any other man."

Delilah realized that this time, he had told her everything in his heart. She sent word to the Philistine leaders, who were Israel's enemies and enemies of the God of heaven. She told them to come one last time, as Samson had finally revealed all his secrets. The Philistine rulers paid Delilah for betraying her companion, Samson.

Delilah lulled Samson to sleep on her lap, deceiving him. She played the role of Eve before Satan, perhaps pretending to show him love. She called a man to shave off the seven braids of his head. Then, she began to torment him, and his strength left him. Delilah shouted, "Samson, the Philistines are upon you!" He woke up, thinking he would shake himself free as he had before, but he did not realize that the Lord had left him because he continued to love and indulge in sin.

The Philistines seized him, gouged out his eyes, and took him to Gaza, binding him with bronze shackles. He was forced to grind grain in prison. His parents must have grieved to see their son, who was once a Nazirite of God, now blind because he failed to obey God's word and his parents' advice.

But the merciful God helped him, and his hair began to grow again. As his hair grew, his strength began to return. The Philistines held a great festival to offer sacrifices to their god, Dagon, celebrating that their god had delivered their enemy, Samson, into their hands. They praised Dagon for their victory. During the celebration, they brought Samson out of prison to entertain them. The hall was filled with about 3,000 men and women watching him perform. Samson told the servant leading him, "Let me feel the pillars that support the temple, so I may lean against them." Samson then remembered God and prayed, "Sovereign Lord, remember me. Please, God, strengthen me just once more, so that I may take revenge on the Philistines for my two eyes."

God, full of mercy, heard Samson's prayer. He placed his hands on the two central pillars supporting the temple. With all his strength, he pushed them apart, saying, "Let me die with the Philistines!" The temple collapsed, killing all the Philistine rulers and the 3,000 people inside. The number of people he killed in his death was greater than those he had slain in his lifetime. His family retrieved his body and buried him in his father's tomb.

Samson repented. Suicide is a sin, breaking the sixth commandment, but he barely escaped condemnation. He had the opportunity to repent, and even today, his name is recorded among the heroes of faith in Hebrews 11, alongside other judges like Gideon, Barak, and Jephthah.

God is merciful and loving, but we must be cautious and not play with sin. Samson was a strong man physically but weak in character. He could have accomplished great things for God, but he loved foreign women and did not live a life of purity. He was a judge of Israel for 20 years. He was a leader, a warrior, and a giant of strength, yet he was brought down by a weak woman.

Meanwhile, Joseph, who was a slave and powerless, overcame the temptation of Potiphar's wife when she tried to seduce him. True warriors are not those who run toward sin, but those who resist it.

Physically, Samson was the strongest man on earth, but in self-control, integrity, and discipline, he was weak. Still, his final prayer was heard, and his name is recorded in Hebrews 11. Can the Lord save sexual addicts, thieves, or wicked people facing death? The answer is simple yet astonishing: "Everyone who calls on the name of the Lord will be saved." (Romans 10:13)

I praise the Lord for His boundless love and amazing grace today. What about you? It reminds me of the song, "The overwhelming, never-ending, reckless love of God. It chases me down, fights till I'm found..."

"Create in me a pure heart, O God, and renew a steadfast spirit within me. Do not cast me from your presence or take your Holy Spirit from me. Restore to me the joy of your salvation and grant me a willing spirit to sustain me." (Psalm 51:10-12)

No matter how great the trials or temptations, we must remain faithful to God. Only then can He fulfill His promise:
"You are mine. When you pass through the waters, I will be with you; and when you pass through the rivers, they will not sweep over you. When you walk through the fire, you will not be burned; the flames will not set you ablaze." (Isaiah 43:1-2)

Let us be faithful to Him until death (Revelation 2:10)!
Jesus said, "You will ask in my name. I am not saying that I will ask the Father on your behalf, for the Father himself loves you." (John 16:26-27)
"You did not choose me, but I chose you and appointed you so that whatever you ask in my name, the Father will give you." (John 15:16)
However, praying in Jesus' name is more than just mentioning His name at the beginning and end of a prayer. It means praying in His mind and spirit, trusting His promises, depending on His grace, and doing His work.

Questions:

Why did Samson choose to live with Delilah, even though he was not forced?

Why did Delilah want Samson to reveal his secret?

What lesson do Samson's powers teach us if we were given such strength?

How did Samson take revenge on the Philistines in the end?

How many years did Samson rule?

May God Bless You, Child and Young Servant of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Judges 16:28

[28] Then Samson prayed to the LORD, "Sovereign LORD, remember me. Please, God, strengthen me just once more, and let me with one blow get revenge on the Philistines for my two eyes." Then Samson reached toward the two central pillars on which the temple stood. Bracing himself against them, his right hand on one and his left hand on the other…

Prayer: Thank You Lord for Your mercy, even when we have gone far from Your will. Awaken us Lord to true heart reformation, and to do only Your will. Help us, when the time comes, to find life partners according to Your plan. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: Draw a picture of Samson holding the pillars of the hall, blind, and bringing down those who were on the upper floor.

Day 67 (March 8)

Topic: The Evil of One Person Spreads to the Whole Family!

(Judges 17 & 18)

During the time of the judges in Israel, there was a man named Micah who lived in the hill country of Ephraim. This man stole 1,100 pieces of silver from his mother. When she searched and inquired about it, Micah admitted, "The silver you were looking for—I have it. I took it." His mother thanked him for confessing his wrongdoing.

Micah returned the money to his mother, and she decided to dedicate it to the Lord, but in a sinful way. Instead of taking it to Shiloh, where the Lord's tabernacle was, she used it to make an idol. She said, "I am giving this silver to the Lord for my son to make a carved image and a cast idol." When Micah returned the silver, his mother took 200 pieces and gave them to a silversmith to make a carved and cast image, which was placed in Micah's house.

Micah had a shrine, and he made an ephod and household gods. He ordained one of his sons to be his priest. In those days, Israel had no king, and everyone did as they saw fit.

A man from Bethlehem in Judah, who was a Levite and living there as a foreigner, set out on a journey to find a place to stay in the hill country of Ephraim. He traveled until he reached the house of Micah. Micah asked him where he was coming from and where he was going. The man told him where he had come from and that he was seeking a place to stay as a foreigner. Micah then invited him to stay with him, offering him the position of a father and a priest in his household. He promised to pay him an annual salary of ten pieces of silver, a set of clothes, and food. The Levite agreed to stay, and Micah treated him like one of his own sons. Micah then consecrated him, and he became his priest. Micah was pleased and said, “Now I know that the Lord will do me good because I have a Levite as my priest.”

During that time, the Danites were searching for land to settle in. They sent out brave men to explore and assess the land. These men traveled and reached the hill country of Ephraim, where they stayed at Micah’s house.

✿ While there, they saw the false priest and asked him, “What are you doing here, and who brought you here?” He explained his situation, and they asked him to seek guidance from God about whether their journey to find a settlement would be successful. The false priest replied, “Go in peace; your journey is before the Lord.”

The Danite spies continued their journey and reached Laish, where they found the people living in security, careless and unsuspecting, enjoying peace and safety. There was no ruler to oppress them in any way. They were like the Sidonians, living detached from others. The spies returned home and reported what they had seen in Laish. They encouraged their fellow Danites to attack, saying, “We have seen a great land, and you are just sitting idle? Do not hesitate to go and take possession of it.”

✿ Six hundred warriors from the tribe of Dan set out to take the land. They passed through the hill country of Ephraim and stopped at Micah’s house. They asked the false priest how he was doing, then entered the house and took the carved idol, the priestly garments (ephod), the household gods, and the metal image. The priest asked them, “What are you doing?” They responded, “Be quiet, put your hand over your mouth, and come with us. Be a father and a priest to us. Isn’t it better for you to be a priest for a whole tribe rather than just one man’s household?”

✿ The false priest was delighted and took the ephod and the idols and left with them. The Danites led their children and livestock ahead of them. When Micah pursued them and complained, they warned him, “Do not let your voice be heard among us, or angry men might attack you, and you would lose your life and that of your family.” Realizing that they were too strong for him, Micah turned back home.

The Danites then went to Laish, where the people were living in peace and security. They attacked them, killing them and burning down the city. They rebuilt the city and named it Dan. The Danites set up the carved idol for themselves, and as it turns out, the grandson of Moses, Gershom’s son, became their false priest, replacing the one they had taken from Micah. Soon, the Israelites drifted further from God. This shows us that we should always rely on God to avoid falling into the traps of Satan.

✿ Even today, we see how Judges 17:13 affects our lives: "Now I know that the Lord will bless me because I have this Levite as my priest." Many people expect God's blessings while holding onto their idols—whether physical or idols of their own making—rather than following God's will. This is similar to how Balaam was hired to curse Israel and tried to buy blessings on his own terms. We cannot ignore God's commandments and expect to be blessed.

Often, when looking for jobs, we focus on good salaries rather than considering whether the income is gained honestly. Apart from physical idols, there are modern idols that are rarely condemned, such as fashion trends, alcohol, corrupt thoughts, immorality, love for wealth, uncontrolled desires, prosperity gospel, moral decay, and more.

✿ Galatians 5 contrasts the works of the flesh with the fruit of the Spirit to show the difference: "The acts of the flesh are obvious: sexual immorality, impurity, debauchery, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, discord, jealousy, fits of rage, selfish ambition, dissensions, factions, envy, drunkenness, orgies, and the like. I warn you, as I did before, that those who live like this will not inherit the kingdom of God." The root cause of chaos is when everyone does what seems right in their own eyes—just like the world today. Our God is a God of order. The dispute between God and Satan began when Satan claimed there was no need for God's law.

✿ Since our first parents, Adam and Eve, accepted Satan as their leader, life has been filled with sorrow. Without God's law, suffering, disasters, pain, and death become our portion. The universe is watching and learning from our world, realizing that without law, there can be no peace or life. Soon, this rebellious world will come to an end, and in its place will be a land where everyone perfectly obeys God's law—that is why it will be called paradise! Those who will be there are described as "the remnant of her offspring, those who keep God's commandments and hold fast their testimony about Jesus Christ" (Revelation 12:17).

✿ God is calling us to come to Him in Jesus' name.
You are invited to come, to ask, to seek, to knock; and you are assured that you will not be turned away empty-handed. Jesus says:

> "Ask, and it will be given to you; seek, and you will find; knock, and the door will be opened to you. For everyone who asks receives; the one who seeks finds; and to the one who knocks, the door will be opened" (Matthew 7:7-8).

✿ Questions:

1. From whom did Micah steal money? What did he use it for?
2. Who was the priest, and from which tribe was he?
3. Who stole the idols from Micah's shrine?
4. What kind of people were the inhabitants of Laish?
5. What are the consequences of a life of comfort and ease?

May God bless you, child and youth of Jesus.

Memory Verse: Judges 18:30-31.

[30-31] The Danites set up for themselves the idol, and Jonathan son of Gershom, the son of Moses, and his sons were priests for the tribe of Dan until the time of the captivity of the land. They continued to use the idol Micah had made, all the time the house of God was in Shiloh.

Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father for the story of the Danites, which shows us that we are not saved because our father or grandfather was a great prophet, or because we have close connections with someone. We are saved only by Your blood, by depending and trusting in You. Help us to do that. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: Make a "Record or Journal of Judges."

Remember God's good deeds, and write them down.

Remember Israel's disobedience.
Give each child drawing paper, colored pencils, or crayons.
Let them draw themselves as God's heroes on one page and write "My Journal of Judges" at the top.
Tell them to record God's mighty deeds such as:

Giving us families.
Creating us.
Sending Jesus.

Providing food.
Explain that this project should continue so they don't forget. They can keep adding more whenever God answers prayers or does something good.

DAY 68 (March 9)

TOPIC: The Evil That Burns the Ears in Israel

Judges 19-21 (Period of 1400-1000 BC)

A man from Bethlehem in Judah, who was a Levite, lived as a foreigner there. This man traveled to the hill country of Ephraim and arrived at the house of Micah. Micah asked him where he came from and where he was going. The Levite explained where he had come from and that he was seeking a place to stay. Micah invited him to stay with him, to be a father and a priest, and promised to pay him yearly wages—clothing, food, and ten pieces of silver per year. The Levite agreed to stay and became like one of Micah's sons. Micah consecrated him, and he became his priest. Micah was satisfied and said, "Now I know that the Lord will bless me because I have a Levite as my priest."

At that time, the Danites were searching for land to settle in. They sent out valiant men to explore and scout the land. These men arrived in the hill country of Ephraim and stayed at Micah's house. They saw the false priest and asked him what he was doing there and who had brought him. He explained his situation, and they asked him to seek counsel from God about whether their journey to find land would be successful. The false priest assured them, “Go in peace; your journey is under the Lord’s guidance.”

The spies went to Laish and found the people there living in safety, careless, enjoying life, and secure. There was no ruler to oppress them, and they lived like the Sidonians—isolated and without conflict with anyone. The spies returned home and reported what they had found, encouraging their fellow Danites to go and take possession of the land, saying, “We have seen that the land is very good. Will you just sit idle? Don’t hesitate to go and occupy it. You will find people living in security, and the land is spacious. God has given it into your hands—it is a place where nothing is lacking!”

Six hundred Danite warriors set out to conquer Laish. On their way, they passed through the hill country of Ephraim and came to Micah’s house. They asked the priest how he was doing and then took the carved idol, the ephod, the household gods, and the cast idol. When the priest saw them taking these items, he asked, “What are you doing?” They told him, “Be quiet! Put your hand over your mouth and come with us. Be our father and priest. Isn’t it better for you to be a priest for a whole tribe rather than just one household?”

The false priest was delighted. He took the ephod and the idols and went with them. They put their children and livestock ahead of them. When Micah realized what had happened, he pursued them and complained, but they warned him, “Don’t let your voice be heard among us, or some angry men might attack you and destroy your household.” Seeing that they were stronger, Micah turned back home.

The Danites reached Laish, attacked the unsuspecting people, and burned the city. They rebuilt it and named it Dan. They set up the carved idol and, as it turns out, a descendant of Moses, Gershom’s son, became their false priest. This shows how quickly the Israelites abandoned God. It reminds us always to trust in God so that we do not fall into Satan’s traps.

Today, we see a similar issue in Judges 17:13: “Now I know that the Lord will be good to me, since I have a Levite as my priest.” People want God to bless them while still holding onto their idols or doing what seems right in their own eyes rather than what is right in God’s sight. This is similar to how Balaam was hired to curse Israel—he wanted to buy blessings on his own terms. We cannot ignore God’s commandments and expect blessings.

When searching for jobs, many prioritize salary over righteousness. Just as there were carved idols in the past, today’s idols come in new forms that are often tolerated, such as fashion, alcohol, false beliefs, immorality, love of wealth, uncontrollable greed, prosperity gospel, lack of morality, and many other things.

Galatians 5 contrasts the works of the flesh and the fruit of the Spirit so that we can see the difference:
"The acts of the flesh are obvious: sexual immorality, impurity, debauchery, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, discord, jealousy, fits of rage, selfish ambition, dissensions, factions, envy, drunkenness, orgies, and the like. I warn you, as I did before, that those who live like this will not inherit the kingdom of God."
The root cause of chaos is when everyone does what seems right in their own eyes, and this is exactly how our world is today. Our God is a God of order.
The conflict between God and Satan began when Satan claimed that there was no need for law. Since our first parents, Adam and Eve, accepted Satan as their leader, the world has been filled with sorrow. Without law, suffering, disasters, pain, and death become our portion. The unfallen worlds have learned from our example that without law, there can be no peace or life.

Soon, this lawless world will come to an end, and a new world will be established where everyone will perfectly obey God's law—that is why it is called paradise! Those who will be there are described in Revelation 12:17 as "the remnant of her offspring, those who keep the commandments of God and hold to the testimony of Jesus Christ."

GOD INVITES US TO COME TO HIM IN THE NAME OF JESUS
You are invited to come, ask, seek, and knock, and you are assured that you will not leave empty-handed. Jesus says,

"Ask, and it will be given to you; seek, and you will find; knock, and it will be opened to you. For everyone who asks receives, and the one who seeks finds, and to the one who knocks, it will be opened." (Matthew 7:7-8)

✿ Questions:

1. From whom did Micah steal money?

2. What did he do with the stolen money?

3. Who was the priest, and from which tribe did he come?

4. Who stole the idols from Micah's temple?

5. What kind of people lived in Laish?

6. What are the dangers of a life of ease and comfort?
God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Memory Verse: Judges 19:30

[30] Everyone who saw it was saying, "Such a thing has never been seen or done, not since the day the Israelites came up out of Egypt. Just imagine! We must do something! So speak up!"

Or 1 Corinthians 6:18-19
[18-19] Flee from sexual immorality. All other sins a person commits are outside the body, but whoever sins sexually, sins against their own body. Do you not know that your bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have received from God? You are not your own.

Prayer: Lord, receive our praise and thanksgiving. We read shocking stories and realize You do not record them just for us to wonder, but so we may search our hearts and gain wisdom, so we do not commit the evil that trapped those before us in fearful deeds. Give us love like Yours mixed with wisdom. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity: The events in Judges 19 serve as a strong warning in the Bible's narrative about the time when Israel had "no king or leader," and "everyone did what was right in their own eyes." These heavy themes of moral corruption, violence, and brutality should be explained in detail in adult lessons but can be simplified for children by describing the background of wars that arose from this event.

Drama can show tribal wars and the results of division, like two armies fighting. Teachers and guardians need wisdom, because we cannot hide everything nor tell everything! Children see these things on phones, TV, and sometimes even in their homes. Let's not bury our faces in the sand like ostriches! Find ways to discuss issues of immorality, prostitution, violence, and murder in conversations with wisdom.

DAY 69 (March 10)

TOPIC: Naomi Returns Home, and the Daughter-in-law Who Loved Her Goes with Her

(Ruth 1)

✿A long time ago, during the era of the Judges—a time filled with stories of the loss of God's glory and terrifying events—there was a hopeful story about a young woman from a nation that was an enemy of Israel. There was a famine in the land, and a man named Elimelech from Bethlehem in Judah left with his wife Naomi and their two sons, Mahlon and Chilion, to live in Moab. His sons married Moabite women—one named Orpah and the other Ruth. They lived there for ten years, but Elimelech, Mahlon, and Chilion all died. Naomi then decided to return to her homeland, Bethlehem, because she had heard that God had visited His people and the famine had ended.

✿As they set out on their journey back, Naomi realized that it would be selfish to ask these young women to completely leave their homeland, as they could still remarry since they were not old. She told Orpah and Ruth to return to their homes and said, “May the LORD deal kindly with you, just as you have dealt kindly with the dead and with me. May the LORD grant that each of you find rest in the house of a new husband.” They wept aloud because they loved their mother-in-law, and she loved them. This is a great lesson even for today—how to live with in-laws, whether they are mother-in-law, daughter-in-law, siblings, or extended family members. Naomi was a good example, as her daughters-in-law said, “No! We will go back with you to your people.”

✿Naomi insisted they return home, asking why they should follow her. She explained that she had no more sons for them to marry, and even if she were to have more, they would not wait until the boys grew up. She told them her life was much harder than theirs because she had lost her husband and two sons, and she was old. All three widows cried aloud. Orpah then kissed her mother-in-law goodbye and left. Naomi looked at Ruth and said, “Your sister-in-law has returned to her people and her gods; return and go with her.”

✿But Ruth responded with words that have been echoed in wedding vows: “Do not urge me to leave you or to turn back from following you. Where you go, I will go; where you stay, I will stay. Your people shall be my people, and your God my God. Where you die, I will die, and there I will be buried. May the LORD deal with me, be it ever so severely, if anything but death separates you and me.”

✿When Naomi saw that Ruth was determined, she stopped insisting that she return home. Perhaps Ruth had recognized that the God of Israel was the true God and that He was worth following rather than the gods of Moab. They traveled until they reached Bethlehem. The people who knew Naomi were surprised and asked, “Is this Naomi?” She told them, “Do not call me Naomi, call me Mara, for the Almighty has dealt bitterly with me.” She reminded them how she had left full but returned empty.

✿They arrived in Bethlehem at the beginning of the barley harvest, which was a blessing because it meant they could find food and work to keep themselves busy. However, God had an even greater gift awaiting them in the harvest fields! Naomi had a relative of her late husband, a wealthy and influential man named Boaz. He was the grandson of Rahab, the woman who helped the Israelite spies enter Jericho. Naomi advised Ruth to go and glean leftover grain in the fields. According to Israelite law, farmers were to leave some grain behind for the poor to collect.

✿Ruth went to gather leftover grain and unknowingly found herself in Boaz's field. Boaz arrived from town and greeted the harvesters, saying, "The LORD be with you." When the workers responded, he asked about the young woman in his field. The overseer replied, "She is the Moabite woman who came back with Naomi. She asked to glean behind the harvesters, and she has worked hard from morning until now, except for a short rest at home."

✿Boaz, an older man, kindly told Ruth, "My daughter, listen to me. Do not go to another field to glean, and do not leave this one. Stay close to my servant girls." He also ensured her safety, instructing the men not to mistreat her, and allowed her to drink from their water jars. Overwhelmed with gratitude, Ruth bowed down and asked, "Why have I found such favor in your eyes that you notice me, a foreigner?" Boaz replied, "I have been told all about what you have done for your mother-in-law since the death of your husband—how you left your father and mother and your homeland to come and live with a people you did not know before."

✿Ruth had committed herself to Naomi and the God of Israel despite uncertainty and the hostility between Moab and Israel. Kindness, loyalty, and the ability to comfort one another in times of loss are crucial in all relationships. How can your kindness, loyalty, and comfort strengthen your important relationships today? Ruth did not give up. This story teaches us about God's provision even in difficult times. We may be tempted to think that God has abandoned us, but He has not. We do not see the end of our life's story as God does, and there is evidence around us of His goodness.

✿God desires that we trust Him and rejoice in Him as our loving Father who has good plans for us. Faithfulness, kindness, and encouragement during life's trials are essential in all good relationships. The story of Ruth took place during the time of the Judges—a period of chaos, cruelty, and lawlessness. It is easy to sink into despair during hardships, but God was ready to show Naomi that He still cared for her and would continue to provide for her in her old age.

✿Let us learn to trust in God's provision even in difficult times and to recognize His blessings and kindness even when we carry heavy burdens. We may be tempted to believe that God has forsaken us, but He has not. We have not yet seen the full story of our lives, so let us pray for open eyes to see His goodness. God desires that we trust Him and find joy in Him. While many Israelites worshipped idols, Ruth was introduced to the God of Heaven and chose to remain faithful to Him at all costs.

✿Jesus said, "I am the resurrection and the life. He who believes in me, though he may die, he shall live." We must be willing to die for Christ. Let us ensure that we will be among those who remain faithful to God until the very end. This is possible only if we allow Jesus to hold our hands (Isaiah 41:10).

We approach GOD in the Name of Jesus through a special invitation, and He welcomes us into His secret chamber of prayer. He accepts the humble and repentant soul in the faith of Christ, through which one is justified. Jesus wipes away their iniquity like a thick cloud, and the comforted heart lifts its voice in joy, saying, "O Lord, I will praise You; though You were angry with me, Your anger has turned away, and You have comforted me." (Isaiah 12:1)

✿ Questions:

What was the name of Naomi's husband?

Why did they go to Moab?

How many years did they live in Moab?

What was the name of the daughter-in-law who returned to Moab?

Why were people allowed to gather leftover grain in the fields?

What should people do today to help those in need, as they did in those days?

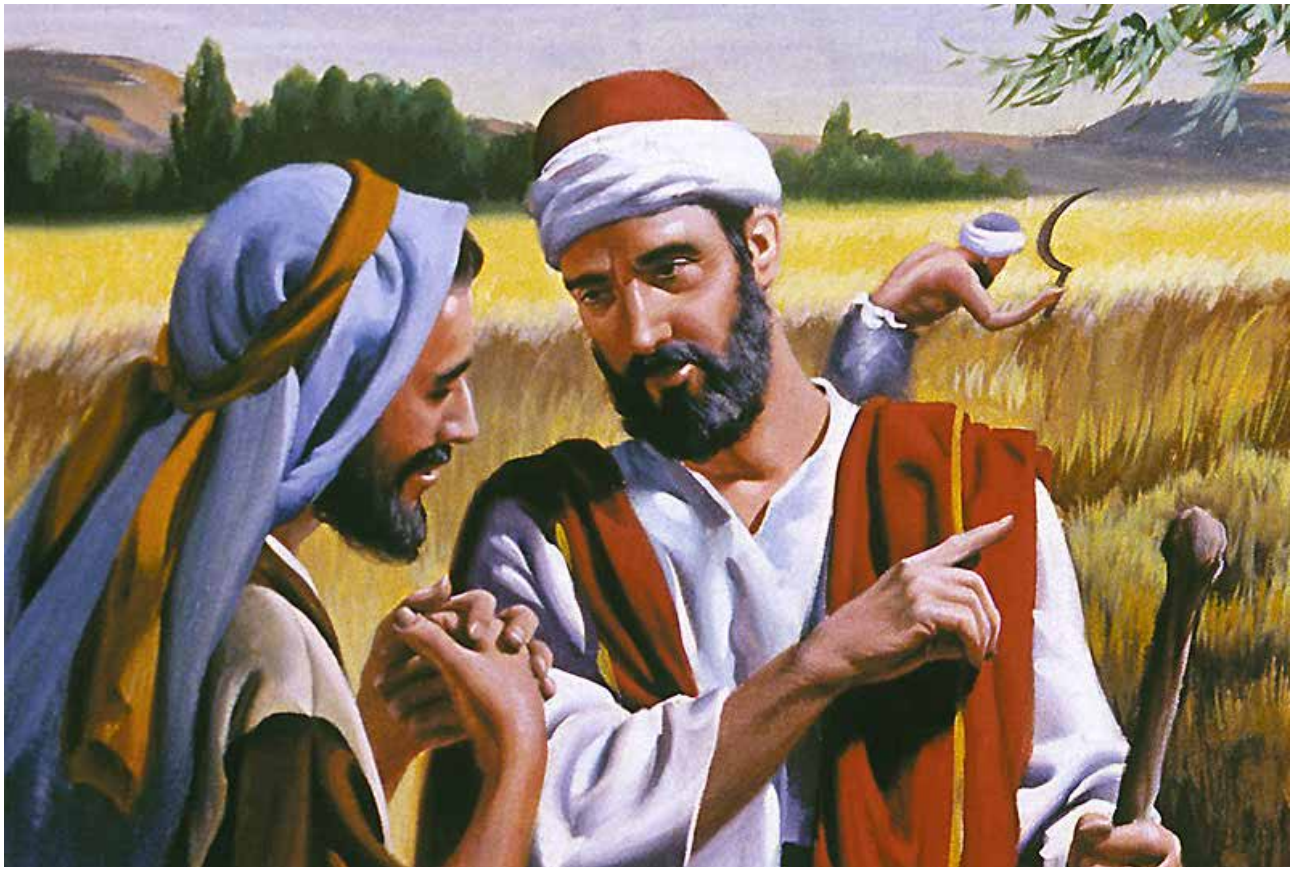
What did Naomi say when she saw the food Ruth had gathered?

How did Boaz learn about Ruth?

May God bless you greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus

Memory Verse: Ruth 1

[16,17] But Ruth replied, "Don't urge me to leave you or to turn back from you. Where you go I will go, and where you stay I will stay. Your people will be my people and your God my God. Where you die I will die, and there I will be buried. May the LORD deal with me, be it ever so severely, if even death separates you and me."



Prayer: Thank You Almighty God for the story that shows us You care. Forgive our sins and help us to do good to others, especially the elderly, widows, orphans, and those with special needs. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Gathering leftover food:
Scatter small things like groundnuts, rice, or beans on the ground and let them be collected, symbolizing Ruth gleaning in the fields to provide for herself and Naomi. Or visit a field of someone they know and help in collecting the leftover produce.

DAY 70 (March 11)

LESSON: Boaz Marries Ruth

(Ruth 2-4)

✿Boaz blessed Ruth, saying, "May the Lord repay you for your work, and may you receive a full reward from the Lord, the God of Israel, under whose wings you have come to take refuge." Ruth replied, "My lord, may I find favor in your sight, for you have comforted my heart and spoken kindly to your maidservant, though I am not like one of your maidservants."

At mealtime, Boaz invited Ruth to eat with his workers. She sat with the harvesters, and they offered her roasted grain like popcorn. She ate, was satisfied, and even had some leftover. Boaz instructed his workers to let her gather among the sheaves without reprimanding her. He also told them to leave extra grain for her to collect without hindrance. Ruth worked in the fields until evening, then threshed the barley and gathered about an ephah (approximately 22 liters or a large bucketful). She carried it back home to Naomi, who was amazed at the large quantity.

Naomi asked, “Where did you glean today? Blessed be the man who has helped you so much!” Ruth shared the name of Boaz, and Naomi praised God, saying, “This man is our close relative, our kinsman-redeemer.”

✿Naomi deeply loved Ruth and told her, “My daughter, should I not seek a place of rest for you, so that it may be well with you?” According to their tradition, when a woman became a widow, it was the duty of a close relative to provide for her, including marriage. Since Boaz was a close relative, Naomi advised Ruth to prepare herself, bathe, anoint herself, wear her best clothes, and go to the threshing floor where Boaz would be working that night. She told Ruth to wait until he finished eating and drinking, then to lie down at his feet without revealing herself to anyone. This was a customary practice in those days and had nothing to do with wrongdoing.

✿Boaz, after eating and drinking, lay down at the end of the grain pile. Ruth quietly lay at his feet. Around midnight, Boaz awoke startled and asked, “Who are you?” Ruth answered, revealing her identity and intention according to their customs. Boaz, filled with kindness, told her, “My daughter, may you be blessed by the Lord. You have shown greater kindness now than at the beginning by not chasing after young men, whether poor or rich. Do not be afraid; I will do all that you ask, for everyone in town knows that you are a virtuous woman.”

✿However, Boaz explained that although he was a close relative, there was one who was even closer. He promised Ruth that if this other man was unwilling to fulfill his duty, then he himself would do it. Boaz was a man of integrity, wisdom, and righteousness. He was respected by his workers and valued honesty over haste. Before sending Ruth home, he filled her shawl with six measures of barley and told her, “Do not go back to your mother-in-law empty-handed.” Naomi, upon hearing everything, reassured Ruth, “Boaz will not rest until he settles this matter today.”

✿Boaz went to the city gate and met the closer relative, summoning ten elders as witnesses. He explained that Naomi was selling land that had belonged to Elimelech, her late husband. The man agreed to buy the land but hesitated when Boaz informed him that acquiring the land also meant marrying Ruth to continue her late husband’s lineage. The man declined, fearing it would compromise his own inheritance.

✿In those days, confirming such agreements was done by removing a sandal and handing it over as a sign of witness. Even today, in some Middle Eastern cultures, throwing a shoe at someone is a sign of contempt. Boaz publicly declared, “You are witnesses today that I have bought everything that belonged to Elimelech, Kilion, and Mahlon from Naomi, and I have also acquired Ruth the Moabitess as my wife to preserve the name of the dead with his inheritance."

✿The elders and people blessed them, saying, "May the Lord make Ruth like Rachel and Leah, who built the house of Israel." Boaz and Ruth married, and the Lord blessed them with a son named Obed. The women praised God, telling Naomi, "Blessed be the Lord, who has not left you without a kinsman-redeemer. May his name be famous in Israel!" They also said, "Ruth loves you more than seven sons!" Naomi took Obed and raised him as her own. Obed became the father of Jesse, who was the father of David. Through David's lineage came King Solomon, and ultimately, Jesus Christ.

✿Ruth is mentioned in the genealogy of Jesus in the Gospels, alongside other remarkable women such as Rahab, Bathsheba, Tamar, and Mary. God's plans are mysterious and beyond human understanding. Even a small sparrow does not fall to the ground without His knowledge. "All things work together for good to those who love God." (Romans 8:28)

✿When we pray for the sick, no matter the outcome, we must not lose faith. Even if we must drink a bitter cup of suffering, we should remember that our Heavenly Father's hand holds it to our lips.

✿But why would a virtuous woman like Ruth endure the sorrow of widowhood before bearing a child? The answer will be revealed when we meet Christ face to face! Trials may seem unbearable, making us feel abandoned by God, but He promises, "I will never leave you nor forsake you." (Hebrews 13:5) Ruth faced a great test, yet God proved He had not abandoned her. He never forsakes any of His children!

✿How do you welcome and bless people from different backgrounds in your church, workplace, or family? What do your actions teach those around you? When we help the poor, we are serving Jesus Christ. On Judgment Day, He will say:

"I was hungry, and you gave Me food; I was thirsty, and you gave Me drink; I was a stranger, and you welcomed Me; I was naked, and you clothed Me; I was sick, and you visited Me; I was in prison, and you came to Me." (Matthew 25:35-36)

✿Pray in the Name of Jesus and with the inspiration of the Holy Spirit. God promises to hear prayers offered with sincerity and faith, saying, "Ask, and it will be given to you." Never cease praying, for God is faithful to answer.

In the Name of Jesus, we can come before the presence of GOD with the confidence of a child. No one is needed to act as a mediator. Through Jesus, we can open our hearts to GOD as to the One who knows and loves us.

✿ Questions:

Why did a man inherit his deceased brother's wife in those days?

Why did Boaz go to the city gate?

What role did Naomi play in the relationship between Ruth and Boaz?

Why did people celebrate Naomi?

Name five women mentioned in the genealogy of Jesus.

Why is a mother-in-law considered a mother?

What is the connection between Boaz, David, and Joseph, the husband of Mary?

How has God turned disasters you know into unexpected blessings?

Memory Verse: Matthew 1:5,6

[5,6] Salmon the father of Boaz, whose mother was Rahab; Boaz the father of Obed, whose mother was Ruth; Obed the father of Jesse; and Jesse the father of King David; David was the father of Solomon, whose mother had been Uriah's wife.

Prayer: Dear Heavenly Father, we praise You our King, for You are able to lift up the lowly, even to be part of the lineage of Your Son the Messiah. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Do a play of Naomi, Ruth, and Orpah focusing on the theme of loyalty and commitment. Read the story of Ruth (Ruth 1:16–17) with the children and discuss Ruth's strong statement: "Don't urge me to leave you… Where you go I will go…" Ask the children to reflect on what "being loyal" and "commitment" means for them in their own relationships.

DAY 71 (March 12)

TOPIC: The Child Samuel, A Blessing to a God-fearing Mother

(1 Samuel 1-3)

✿ There was a man in Ramah, in the hill country of Ephraim, whose name was Elkanah, and his wife was Hannah. Hannah had no children. Then Elkanah took a second wife named Peninnah. This man went to worship and offer sacrifices every year in Shiloh, where the sons of the high priest Eli, Hophni, and Phinehas, were present. Every time they went to worship, he gave offerings to his wives, and he always gave Hannah a double portion because he loved her deeply, even though she had no children. Often, Peninnah, her co-wife, mocked and provoked her for being childless.

✿ This humiliated and saddened her so much that she would weep bitterly. Mocking someone who has a problem, disability, illness, or any form of suffering is a sin. When her husband saw this, he tried to comfort Hannah, expressing his love for her and asking why she was crying, why she wasn't eating, and why her heart was troubled. "Am I not better to you than ten sons?" Those who do not have children have a tough time. We emphasize that children are not marriage itself but a gift from God. A husband and wife do not produce children; they are given by the Lord. Marriage remains marriage even without children because marriage and children are two different things, though children add joy to marriage. Therefore, leaving a spouse because of barrenness is against God's will. However, who knows whether those children would be a blessing or a source of sorrow, like Hophni and Phinehas!

✿ While in Shiloh, Hannah, deeply troubled in her heart, prayed to the LORD with great weeping. She made a vow to God, saying that if He granted her a son and looked upon her affliction, remembering her and giving her a male child, then she would dedicate him to the LORD all the days of his life, and no razor would touch his head. This meant that the child would be a Nazarite, someone consecrated to the LORD. A Nazarite is a person set apart for a special work of the LORD from birth, childhood, and into adulthood. Jeremiah was told that from his mother's womb, the LORD had chosen him. When the high priest Eli saw her praying silently, he thought she was drunk and rebuked her because he could not hear her voice.

✿ Hannah was speaking in her heart, pouring out her soul only to the LORD, for even her husband did not understand. Eli said, "How long will you remain drunk?" But Hannah explained that she was not drunk but deeply troubled and was pouring out her heart before the LORD. She pleaded with Eli, saying, "Do not think of your servant as a wicked woman, for I have been praying out of great anguish and sorrow." Eli then blessed her, telling her to go in peace and that the God of Israel would grant her request. Hannah thanked him, left, and ate, and her face was no longer sad because she believed the LORD would give her a child. In those times, having sons was crucial, as they were seen as heirs and helpers in various tasks. A daughter was considered part of the community she would marry into.

✿ The next morning, they worshiped and returned home to Ramah. Hannah conceived and gave birth to a son, naming him Samuel, meaning "I asked the LORD for him." Each year, they went up to Shiloh to offer sacrifices, but Hannah stayed home until the child was weaned so that she could take him to the LORD to remain there forever. This was a great sacrifice for a mother, as parting with a young child was not easy. Elkanah allowed Hannah to do as she wished. Hannah had an important responsibility to teach her child essential lessons before leaving him, just as Moses' mother did. She knew that Eli's sons were wicked and disobedient, and their father failed to correct them. However, Hannah did not use this as an excuse.

✿ When Samuel was weaned, his parents took him along with a sacrifice of three bulls, flour, and a flask of wine. Samuel was still a little child when they offered a burnt offering. Hannah reminded Eli that she was the woman who had been praying in anguish for a child. She said, “I prayed for this child, and the LORD has granted me what I asked of Him. So now I give him to the LORD; for his whole life, he is given to the LORD.” Then they worshiped the LORD there.

✿ Hannah then sang a song of praise: “My heart rejoices in the LORD; my horn is exalted in the LORD. My mouth boasts over my enemies, for I delight in Your salvation. There is no one holy like the LORD; there is no Rock like our God. The barren woman has borne seven children. The LORD brings poverty and gives wealth; He humbles and exalts. He raises the poor from the dust and lifts the needy from the ash heap. The foundations of the earth belong to the LORD, and He has set the world upon them. He will guard the feet of His faithful servants, but the wicked will be silenced in darkness.”

✿ We are on a journey in this world, a place of opposition against God. Let us cry out to Him like Jacob, clinging to Him and saying, “I will not let You go unless You bless me.” This is the nature of our God—He is always ready to listen to the cries of our hearts. Whether His answer to your prayer is “yes,” “no,” or “wait,” be assured that He hears.

✿ We need to learn to claim God’s promises in our prayers. No human fully understood what Hannah was going through, but God did. The One who collects our tears in His bottle understands and hears us. We should pour our hearts before Him because He cares. We do not need to respond to mockery with resentment. Elkanah disturbed the peace in his home, like Abraham, when he tried to solve childlessness by taking a second wife. Perhaps he was tired of waiting for God to answer his prayers and lost faith. Whenever we try to solve our problems in ways that are not acceptable to God because we are impatient, we create even bigger problems. Therefore, let us wait upon the Lord, no matter how long it takes.

✿ Hannah prayed for a son so that she could return him to the LORD—this was a selfless prayer. If you are in pain, read this prayer again. You will feel her deep sorrow. Maybe your prayer was not for a child like hers, but if you have been praying for something without an answer, this story shows what to do. The invitation is to keep praying. Hannah stood before the LORD in the temple, praying with all her heart, so intensely that her words were silent—her lips moved, but no words came out! She lost herself in prayer, realizing she was in the presence of the Almighty God.

✿ God understands and hears our prayers. Whether His answer is "yes," "no," or "wait," we can be assured that He hears.

✿ Questions:

What do we learn about keeping vows, as Hannah did?

Why did Hannah sing?

What was the name of the high priest?

Where did people attend worship and offer sacrifices?

If you had a five-year-old child, what would you teach them before they left home?

Why did Elkanah tell Hannah not to cry?

If you were Peninnah, what would you have done differently?

Why did Eli think Hannah was drunk?

What does the name Samuel mean?

Who later repeated Hannah's song?

At what age was Samuel taken to the temple?

Have you been blessed with a praying mother or father? Explain!

Why does polygamy bring sorrow?

May God bless you, child and youth of Jesus

Memory Verse: 1 Samuel 2:1,2

[1,2] "My heart rejoices in the LORD; in the LORD my horn is lifted high. My mouth boasts over my enemies, for I delight in your deliverance. There is no one holy like the LORD; there is no one besides you; there is no Rock like our God."

Prayer: Thank You good Father, You are our Rock. Our mouths praise You; we rejoice in You for helping us when the situation seemed impossible. You are Almighty. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

DAY 72 (March 13)

LESSON: The Boy Samuel in the Temple

(1 Samuel 2-3)

✿ Elkana and his wife Hannah returned home, and the boy Samuel served the Lord before Eli. I imagine Samuel cried when parting from his mother, and his mother also cried. However, when we make vows, we should not mock God by failing to fulfill them. This mother made a small robe for him and brought it when she visited him once a year. Eli blessed Elkana and prayed that God would give Hannah more children. Indeed, she bore three sons and two daughters. Can you picture Samuel running to greet his parents when they visited him? Samuel grew in the presence of the Lord, and God was with him.

Samuel's righteousness is contrasted with the wickedness of Eli's sons, who served as priests in the temple. These two Levite young men abused their positions by deceiving the Israelites and engaging in evil schemes. They acted this way because they did not know God personally and disregarded the holiness of their duties.

✿ Eli's sons were worthless men who neither honored the Lord nor respected others. They stole sacrificial meat brought for offerings in Shiloh and greedily ate it even before the consecration ceremony. When people tried to correct them, they responded arrogantly, saying that if they were not allowed to do as they pleased, they would take it by force. Their sin was great before the Lord because they despised His sacrifices and slept with the women who served at the temple.
Eli, being old, heard about his sons' wickedness in the temple. He asked them why they committed such evil and caused the people to sin against the Lord. He warned them, saying that if one person sins against another, God can mediate, but if someone sins against the Lord, who will intercede for them? However, they did not listen to their father's voice. It is sad when children ignore the voice of their parent and a priest of God. Parents should discipline their children when they are still young. Obeying parents is the fifth commandment of the Lord, promising a long life. God intended to punish them because He saw they had no repentance.

✿ Meanwhile, Samuel continued to grow in favor with both the Lord and people. It is essential to gain favor with God and people, as people observe you and live with you daily. They spread good news about you, bless you, and pray for you.
God spoke to Eli, reminding him that He had chosen the Levites to serve Him in the temple. He asked, "Why do you scorn My sacrifices and offerings in My dwelling place? Why do you honor your sons more than Me, fattening yourselves on the best of My offerings?" God declared, "Those who honor Me, I will honor, but those who despise Me will be disdained." If we honor God, He will honor us in return. God essentially said, "Let's honor each other!" Although we are small, He respects us when we respect Him. Isn't that amazing?
Therefore, God determined to cut off Eli's family from the priesthood. He said Eli's descendants would die, and He would raise a faithful priest who would do according to His heart and mind. He would establish a lasting house for this priest, and he would serve before His anointed one forever—ultimately referring to Christ as the eternal High Priest. God also foretold that Eli's sons, Hophni and Phinehas, would both die on the same day.

✿ Samuel continued serving the Lord under Eli. At that time, the word of the Lord was rare, and there were no frequent revelations. One night, Eli was lying down, his eyes failing due to age, and the temple lamp was still burning. Samuel was lying down in one of the temple rooms when he heard a voice calling, "Samuel, Samuel!" He responded, "Here I am!" thinking Eli had called him. He ran to Eli and said, "Here I am, for you called me." But Eli replied, "I did not call; go back and lie down." Samuel went back to bed, but he was called a second time, "Samuel, Samuel!" He again ran to Eli, sure that the voice had called him. Eli once more told him, “I did not call, my son. Go back and lie down.”

Samuel did not yet know how the Lord communicates with someone, and the word of the Lord had not yet been revealed to him.

✿ When the Lord called Samuel the third time, he once again went to Eli. This time, Eli realized that it was the Lord calling the boy. Despite being the High Priest and the highest ruler of Israel, Eli had lost his connection with God because he failed to discipline his household properly, allowing his sons to dominate him.

Eli then instructed Samuel, “Go and lie down. If you hear the voice again, say, ‘Speak, Lord, for Your servant is listening.’” Samuel went back to sleep, and when he heard the voice again, he responded as instructed. The Lord then told Samuel that He was about to do something in Israel that would make the ears of everyone who hears it tingle. He would fulfill the judgment He had declared against Eli’s house because his sons had brought a curse upon themselves, and Eli had failed to restrain them. Their sin was so great that no sacrifice or offering could atone for it.

✿ They had blasphemed against the Spirit of God, repeatedly rejecting His warnings until His voice ceased speaking to them. Someone once said that this kind of indulgent parenting is false love. Their hearts had become numb, and their consciences no longer convicted them of their evil deeds.

After receiving the Lord's message, Samuel lay down until morning, though he likely struggled to sleep because he loved Eli and did not want to bring him bad news.

✿ The next morning, Eli called Samuel and asked, "What did the Lord say to you? I urge you not to hide anything from me." Samuel told Eli everything, without concealing a word. Eli responded, "The Lord—let Him do what He sees as good."
Samuel grew, and the Lord was with him. None of his words fell to the ground unfulfilled. The people of Israel recognized that Samuel was a true prophet of the Lord. The Lord continued to appear in Shiloh and revealed His word to Israel through Samuel.
Samuel became the 15th and last judge of Israel. No one should despise your youth—God can choose to use you instead of older individuals.

✿ It is said, "Better a poor but wise youth than an old and foolish king." The important thing is to listen to God's voice and obey His will. He will speak to you, even if you are just a child. Samuel brought joy to many because he accepted God's call and served faithfully.
God has a plan for your life. Will you pray and ask Him to help you follow Him, bringing joy to yourself and others?

✿ It is possible to raise a child well at home and still have them become wayward. For example, Cain and Abel had the same parents, yet one became a murderer while the other was a godly child. However, good home training is a crucial foundation for building good character in children. Eli suffered the consequences of his failure to discipline his sons, while Hannah and Elkana's training of Samuel ensured that even the negative influence of Eli's sons could not corrupt him.
Let us remember to bring our children before God in prayer. A weak mother and father, on their knees, are a great strength. Let us pray for one another in this journey, especially in a world filled with digital distractions, social media, television, and computers.

✿ May God Honor the Name of Jesus in Our Prayers!
Every promise in God's Word gives us something to pray for, presenting Jehovah's promises as our assurance. Whatever spiritual blessing we need, we are privileged to claim it through Jesus.

May the Lord bless you, child and youth of Jesus! 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Memory Verse: Proverbs 22:6

[6] Start children off on the way they should go, and even when they are old they will not turn from it.

Prayer: O Lord, we praise Your Name. Hear the prayer of parents who want to raise us in the right way. Give them wisdom from above, and give us hearts to listen and obey the instructions they give us. Thank You for being our Salvation in all troubles. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Play-acting Samuel being called by God. Write down the best ways of upbringing you want a child to be given and discuss.

DAY 73 (March 14)

TOPIC: The Philistines Capture the Ark of the Covenant (Ichabod)

(1 Samuel 4-7)

✿The Philistines gathered to fight against Israel, and the Israelites went to battle, camping near Ebenezer. The Philistines attacked, and 4,000 Israelites were killed, while only 2,000 Philistines died. The Israelites wondered, “Why has the Lord defeated us today before the Philistines?” They decided to bring the Ark of the Covenant from Shiloh, believing it would save them from their enemies. They brought the Ark of the Lord of Hosts, who dwells between the cherubim, with Eli’s sons, Hophni and Phinehas, accompanying it. When the Ark arrived at the camp, the Israelites shouted loudly. The Philistines, upon hearing the noise, realized that the Ark of God had entered the camp and became afraid. They cried, “Woe to us! Who will deliver us from the hands of these mighty gods?” They remembered how the Lord had struck Egypt in the wilderness.

✿The Philistines encouraged themselves, fought harder, and defeated Israel. The Israelites fled to their tents, and 30,000 foot soldiers were killed. The Ark of the Lord was captured, and Hophni and Phinehas died the same day. A Benjamite ran to Shiloh with torn clothes and dust on his head to deliver the sad news to Eli, the high priest. Eli, who was 98 years old and blind, was sitting on a chair trembling in his heart. The whole city was crying. When Eli asked about the noise, the messenger told him what had happened. When Eli heard that the Ark of God had been captured, he fell backward from his chair, broke his neck, and died, for he was old and heavy. He had judged Israel for 40 years.

✿Phinehas' wife was pregnant, and upon hearing about the Ark's capture and the death of her husband and father-in-law, she went into labor and gave birth to a son. She named him Ichabod, meaning "The glory has departed from Israel," because the Ark of the Covenant had been taken.

✿The Philistines took the Ark of God to Ashdod and placed it in the temple of their god, Dagon, who had the head of a man and the tail of a fish. The next morning, they found Dagon had fallen face down before the Ark of the Lord. They set the idol back in place, but the following morning, they found Dagon fallen again, this time with his head and hands broken off, leaving only the torso. The Lord's hand was heavy upon the people of Ashdod, striking them with severe boils. They declared, "The Ark of the God of Israel must not remain with us, for His hand is heavy on us and our god!" They sent their leaders to decide what to do with the Ark. The decision was made to send it to Gath. But as soon as the Ark arrived, the Lord's hand was also heavy upon Gath, and the people, both young and old, were struck with boils. They decided to send the Ark to Ekron, but the people of Ekron cried out, saying, "They have brought the Ark of the God of Israel to kill us!" A great panic spread, and those who did not die were afflicted with boils. The cry of the city reached the heavens.

✿The Ark of the Covenant remained with the Philistines for seven months. They called their priests and diviners, asking how to send the Ark away to stop the plague. The leaders decided to return the Ark with a guilt offering. They sent five golden tumors and five golden rats, representing their five cities, and honored the God of Israel, hoping He would lift His hand from them, their gods, and their land. They were instructed to build a new cart, place the Ark on it with the gold offerings, and let two milking cows pull it without guiding them. If the cows went straight to Israel, it would confirm that the Lord had struck them. The cows took a direct path, lowing as they went, until they reached Beth-Shemesh, where Israelites were harvesting wheat in the valley. Seeing the Ark, they rejoiced greatly.

✿The cart stopped at the field of Joshua, where they broke the wood of the cart and sacrificed the cows as burnt offerings. The Levites took down the Ark and the gold objects and offered more sacrifices. The Philistine leaders watched and then returned to Ekron.

✿However, the Israelites of Beth-Shemesh made a grave mistake. They looked inside the Ark of the Lord, something only the priests were permitted to do. As a result, 50,070 people died. Even today, we must respect the house of the Lord. We should not make noise, run around, or behave disrespectfully. The people mourned and said, "Who can stand before the Lord, this holy God?" They sent messengers to Kiriath-Jearim to come and take the Ark. The men of Kiriath-Jearim brought the Ark to the house of Abinadab and consecrated his son Eleazar to guard it. The Ark remained there for 20 years as Israel mourned before the Lord.

✿Samuel then spoke to the people, saying, "If you return to the Lord with all your hearts, remove the foreign gods from among you, prepare your hearts for the Lord, and serve Him only, He will deliver you from the hands of the Philistines." The Israelites removed the Baals and Ashtoreths and served the Lord alone.

✿Although Israel was God's chosen people, their example was poor. Their neighbors would have accepted their God more easily if they had been faithful, but their sins made them captives. We also have this weakness—seeing many signs from God but struggling to believe. Let us pray for God's help. We mourn corruption in our governments, but it is even worse when corruption is in the church. We must be led by the Spirit to understand that true success is depending on, believing in, loving, and obeying God.

✿Both Joseph and John came out of prison—Joseph went to the palace, while John went to the grave. From a worldly perspective, John was not successful, but his mission as the forerunner of Christ made him victorious. True success for God's people is putting God first. The world needs people who cannot be bought or sold, who are truthful and faithful in their hearts, who fearlessly call sin by its name, and whose conscience is as firm as a compass pointing north. Even if the heavens fall, they will stand for what is right.

✿Hearing God's voice is like learning a new language; we must be attentive to distinguish His voice. The Holy Spirit is God's speaker. God speaks to us through the Holy Spirit (John 16:13). "But when He, the Spirit of truth, comes, He will guide you into all truth." God is speaking today! "Today, if you hear His voice, do not harden your hearts." (Hebrews 3:7-8). Samuel brought joy to many because he answered God's call and served faithfully. God has a plan for your life today. Will you ask Him to help you follow Him and find true joy?

✿Samuel dedicated himself to his calling and found favor with God and people. As pastors, elders, and church leaders, we may work diligently for God's work yet neglect our own families. We can run the church successfully and appear holy while our homes are in disarray. This is why Paul asks, "If anyone does not know how to manage his own household, how will he take care of God's church?" (1 Timothy 3:5). Job set an example by praying for his children in case they had sinned unknowingly (Job 1:5), but there can be no atonement for intentional sin.

✿We should not only pray in Jesus' name but also be led by the Holy Spirit. This explains what "The Spirit Himself intercedes for us with groans that words cannot express" (Romans 8:26) means. God delights in answering such prayers. When we pray earnestly in Jesus' name, God promises to answer beyond all we ask or imagine (Ephesians 3:20).

✿ Questions:

What does Ichabod mean?

What was Eli's mistake?

How did Eli die?

Why were the Philistines struck with boils?

Why did 50,070 people die?

Why is it wrong to talk or play in church?

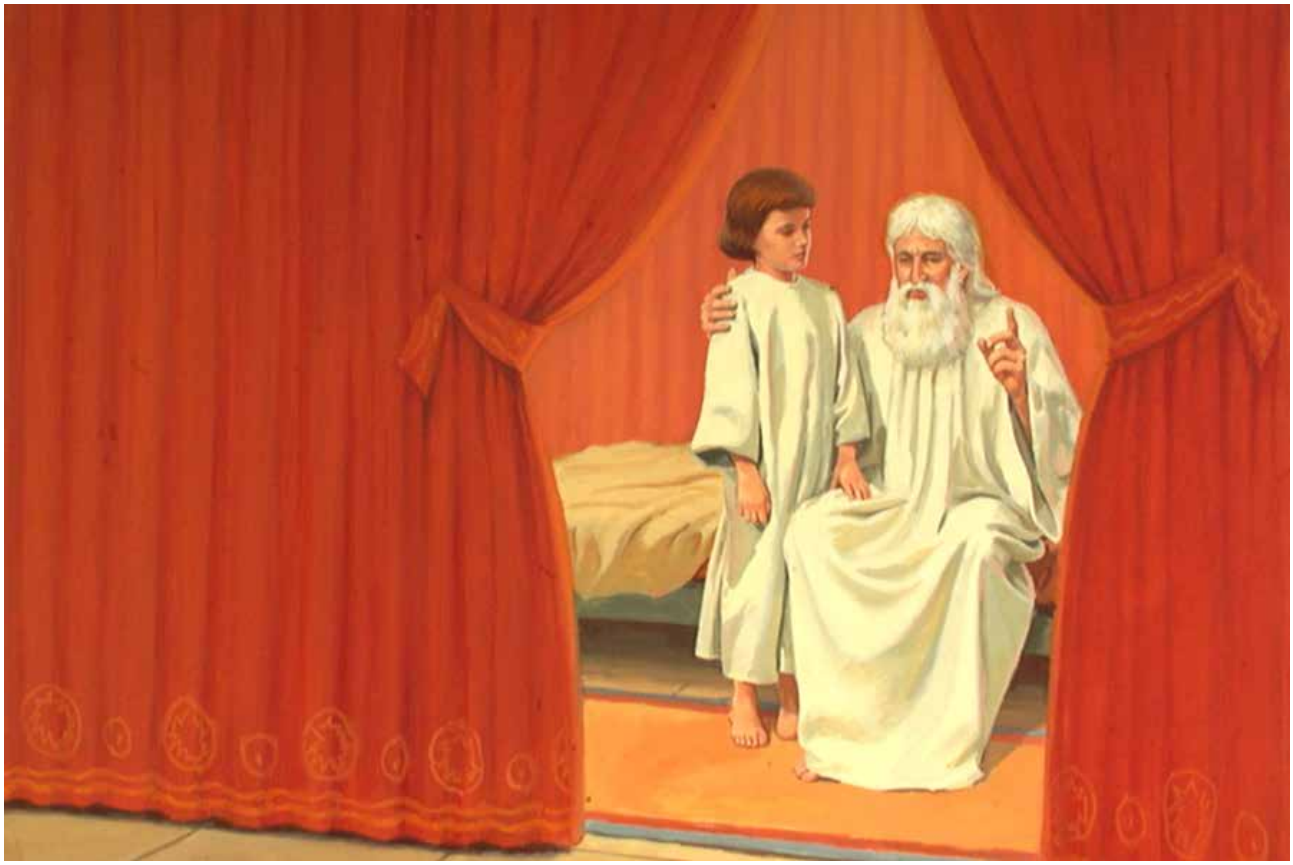
What did Samuel tell the people when they returned to the Lord?

Why is it harmful to spoil children?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: 1 Samuel 7:3.

So Samuel said to all the Israelites, "If you are returning to the LORD with all your hearts, then rid yourselves of the foreign gods and the Ashtoreths and commit yourselves to the LORD and serve him only, and he will deliver you out of the hand of the Philistines."



Prayer: We thank You, Lord, for caring for us. We ask that You help us not to have any other gods besides You. Help us to hear Your voice and obey it, and to love You with all our hearts. In the Name of Jesus, Amen.

Activity: Discuss 1 Samuel 2:24 through 1 Samuel 3, concerning the behavior of Eli's sons. Do such behaviors exist in today's churches, and if we see them, what should we do?

DAY 74 (March 15)

TOPIC: Samuel, the Last Judge of Israel

(1 Samuel 7-9)

✿ When the Ark of the Covenant was taken, Samuel was still a child. After several years, when the Israelites returned to Samuel and removed their idols, Samuel told them to gather all Israel at Mizpah so that he could pray for them before the Lord. The Israelites gathered at Mizpah, drew water, poured it out before the LORD, fasted, and confessed, “We have sinned against the Lord.” Samuel judged Israel at Mizpah.

✿ When the Philistines heard that the Israelites had gathered at Mizpah, they came up to fight against them. The Israelites, seeing this, went to Samuel and pleaded, “Do not stop crying out to the LORD our God for us, that He may save us from the hand of the Philistines.” Samuel offered a burnt offering to the LORD, and as the Philistines approached, the LORD thundered with a mighty sound, throwing them into confusion, and they were defeated before Israel. The Israelites pursued them from Mizpah and struck them down.

✿ Samuel set up a stone and named it Ebenezer, meaning “The LORD has helped us.” The Philistines were defeated and did not enter Israel’s territory again throughout Samuel’s lifetime, and there was peace. Samuel judged Israel all his life, traveling between Bethel, Gilgal, and Mizpah to judge, and returning to Ramah, where he built an altar to the LORD.

✿ When Samuel grew old, he appointed his sons as judges over Israel. His firstborn was named Joel, and his second son, Abijah. However, his sons did not walk in his ways; like the sons of Eli, they were corrupt, sought personal gain, took bribes, and perverted justice. It was a tragedy to see Samuel’s sons stray from righteousness. Let us pray for our church leaders today, that they may always walk in integrity and righteousness. By God’s grace, let us also reject corrupt practices and live in a way that honors the LORD.

✿ The elders of Israel gathered in Ramah and told Samuel, “You are old, and your sons do not follow your ways. Now appoint a king to lead us, like all the other nations.” Samuel was deeply troubled by this request because the LORD was their King, but they wanted to be like other nations. Samuel prayed to the LORD, and the LORD answered, “Listen to the people; it is not you they have rejected, but they have rejected Me as their king.” Despite all that God had done for them since Egypt, they still wanted to turn away and serve other gods. The LORD told Samuel to warn them about the consequences of having a king.

✿ Samuel warned them that the king would make them his servants:
Their sons would be taken for his chariots and horses, running before his army.
Some would become commanders, farmers, and blacksmiths to serve the king.
Their daughters would be taken as perfumers, cooks, and bakers.
The king would take the best fields, vineyards, and olive groves to give to his officials.
He would take a tenth of their grain and livestock.
They themselves would become his slaves.

✿ Samuel told them that one day they would cry out because of their king, but the LORD would not answer them. Yet the people refused to listen. They insisted, “We want a king over us! Then we will be like all the other nations, with a king to lead us and go out before us to fight our battles.” Samuel reported their words to the LORD, and the LORD said, “Give them a king.” Samuel then sent the people home.

✿ God does not abandon His children even when they make poor choices.

His love is unconditional and eternal. Even in our mistakes, God provides guidance to bring the best possible outcome. If the job you chose is not the best in God's plan, yet you listen and obey Him, He will still bring the best from that situation. Even when we do not choose God's best for us, He does not leave us. His love never lets go!

✿ In the tribe of Benjamin, there was a man named Saul, son of Kish. He was a handsome and tall young man, the tallest among the people. When his father's donkeys were lost, his father told him to seek the prophet Samuel's help. Saul took a servant and searched for the donkeys but could not find them. Eventually, Saul suggested returning home, fearing his father would worry more about them than the donkeys. However, his servant suggested visiting the prophet, a man of God whose words always came true. Saul hesitated, saying they had no gift to bring, but the servant had a quarter shekel of silver. So, they went to find the prophet.

✿ As they entered the city, they met young women fetching water and asked about the seer. The women told them to hurry because he had just arrived for a sacrifice. As Saul and his servant approached the town, Samuel met them. The LORD had revealed to Samuel the day before that He would send him a man from Benjamin to anoint as ruler over Israel, to save them from the Philistines. When Samuel saw Saul, the LORD told him, "This is the man I spoke about; he will govern My people."

✿ Saul approached Samuel and asked, "Please tell me where the seer's house is." Samuel replied, "I am the seer. Go up ahead of me to the high place, for today you shall eat with me, and tomorrow I will tell you what is on your heart. As for the donkeys lost three days ago, do not worry; they have been found. But the real treasure of Israel belongs to you and your father's house." Saul was astonished and asked, "Why do you speak to me this way? I am from Benjamin, the smallest tribe, and my family is the least of all."

✿ Lot chose the prosperous land of Sodom despite its wickedness and lost all his wealth and most of his family. Here, the Israelites demanded, "We want a king!" Many people today hesitate to do what is right because they fear:
Losing a friend
Losing a good job
Being different from the crowd
Losing wealth, power, or fame

✿ But no excuse can justify disobedience. If God has a plan for us, nothing we do will improve on His wisdom. If we insist on our own way, darkness lies ahead. We cannot be God's unique people while following worldly ways.

Our eating and dressing habits, education system, medical practices, and even judicial systems should align with God's will, not the world's customs. Sometimes, we fear being called extreme if we follow God's narrow path. But do we care more about what others think of us than about obeying God?

✿ Israel had the opportunity to showcase the greatness of God's government, but instead, they wanted to resemble the surrounding nations. We too seek security—financial stability, career growth, social respect, good health, and safe relationships. Our natural response to insecurity is to look at what others have and desire the same. We assume their possessions and status will make us secure. But what we truly need is Jesus Christ as King in our hearts. We must seek His Kingdom and righteousness first, and everything else will be added to us.

✿ Jesus said, "Whatever you ask in prayer, believe that you have received it, and it will be yours." (Mark 11:24) "If you ask anything in My name, I will do it, so that the Father may be glorified in the Son." (John 14:13) The apostle John, inspired by the Holy Spirit, assures us: "If we ask anything according to His will, He hears us. And if we know that He hears us—whatever we ask—we know that we have what we asked of Him." (1 John 5:14-15)

✿ Questions:

What cities did Samuel judge?

Why is it dangerous to misuse sacred things?

Why can't God be compared to anything?

Why did the Israelites want a king?

Why was Saul surprised by Samuel's words?

Why wasn't Samuel blamed for his sons' behavior?

What is the meaning of Ebenezer?

What were the names of Samuel's sons?

May God bless you, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: 1 Samuel 7:12.

Then Samuel took a stone and set it up between Mizpah and Shen. He named it Ebenezer, saying, "Thus far the LORD has helped us."

Prayer: Thank You Lord, for we know it is You who has helped us from birth until today. You are our King who cares for us more than anyone else. Remind us of this always. In the Name of Jesus, Amen.

Activity: Take a big stone and write on it "Ebenezer." Tell each other the story of how the name came to the Israelites. Or do a play of the Israelites going to Samuel and asking him for a king – 1 Samuel 8.

DAY 75 (March 16)

TOPIC: Saul is Anointed as King

(1 Samuel 9-12)

✿ So Samuel took Saul and his servant and seated them in a place of honor among about thirty invited guests. He then called the cook to bring the special portion of meat that had been set aside. The cook took the thigh and placed it before Saul, and Samuel said, "This has been kept for you for the appointed time." Saul ate with Samuel in amazement. Afterward, they came down from the high place to the city, where they spent the night on the rooftop. Early in the morning, Samuel called Saul and told him to rise so he could send him on his way. As they walked to the outskirts of the city, Samuel instructed Saul to send his servant ahead so he could deliver to him the word of God. Samuel then took a flask of olive oil, poured it on Saul's head, kissed him, and declared, "The LORD has anointed you as ruler over His people, Israel, to save them from the hands of their enemies, the Philistines."

✿ Samuel gave Saul several signs to confirm that his words were from the LORD. He told Saul that on his journey, he would meet two men near Rachel's tomb who would tell him that the donkeys he had been searching for had been found and that his father was now worried about him. Next, Saul would meet three men traveling to Bethel—one carrying three loaves of bread, another carrying a young goat, and the third carrying a skin of wine. They would greet him and give him two loaves of bread, which he was to accept. Then, upon reaching Gibeah, Saul would encounter a group of prophets playing harps, tambourines, flutes, and lyres while prophesying. Samuel instructed Saul to go to Gilgal to offer burnt offerings and peace offerings and to wait seven days until Samuel arrived to show him what to do.

✿ As Saul left Samuel, God changed his heart, and the signs came to pass. When he met the prophets, the Spirit of the LORD came upon him, and he prophesied among them. Those who knew Saul were amazed and asked, "What has happened to the son of Kish? Is Saul also among the prophets?"

✿ Saul's uncle later asked where he had been, and he told him everything except that he had been anointed king. Samuel then gathered the people at Mizpah and reminded them that although the LORD had rescued them from Egypt and from their enemies, they had rejected Him by asking for a king. Samuel then conducted a selection process, and the tribe of Benjamin was chosen, then the family of Matri, and finally, Saul was chosen. However, when they searched for him, he was hiding among the baggage. They brought him out, and he stood taller than anyone else. Samuel declared, "Do you see whom the LORD has chosen? There is no one like him among all the people!" The people shouted, "Long live the king!"

✿ Many admired Saul's appearance and height rather than his character and devotion to God. Samuel explained the duties of a king, wrote them in a book, and placed it before the LORD. The people were sent home, and Saul returned to Gibeah with men whose hearts God had touched. However, some worthless men despised him and refused to bring him gifts, but Saul remained silent.

✿ Later, the people of Jabesh-Gilead cried out for help when the Ammonites attacked them. The Israelites sought peace, but the Ammonites demanded to gouge out their right eyes. When Saul heard of this, the Spirit of God came upon him, and he burned with anger. He took a pair of oxen, cut them into pieces, and sent them throughout Israel, declaring that anyone who did not follow him and Samuel into battle would face the same fate as the oxen. The fear of the LORD fell on the people, and 330,000 men gathered to fight. They assured the people of Jabesh-Gilead that they would rescue them by noon the next day. Saul divided his army into three divisions, attacked the Ammonites at dawn, and completely defeated them.

✿ After the victory, the people wanted to kill those who had doubted Saul, but he refused, saying, "No one shall die today, for the LORD has granted salvation to Israel." Samuel then led the people to Gilgal to reaffirm Saul's kingship before the LORD. They sacrificed peace offerings, and Saul and all the people rejoiced greatly.

✿ Samuel reminded Israel that he had listened to their request and appointed a king over them. He asked them to testify if he had wronged or oppressed anyone, taken anyone's ox or donkey, or accepted bribes. The people confirmed that he had done no wrong. Samuel then recounted the righteous acts of the LORD, from Jacob's time to the exodus from Egypt and the era of the judges. He warned them that if they obeyed the LORD, they and their king would be blessed, but if they rebelled, the LORD's hand would be against them.

✿ To confirm his words, Samuel called upon the LORD to send thunder and rain as a sign of their wrongdoing in demanding a king. The people trembled and pleaded with Samuel to pray for them so they would not perish for their sins. Samuel reassured them, saying, "Do not be afraid. Yes, you have done evil, but do not turn away from following the LORD. Serve Him with all your heart, and do not chase after worthless things that cannot help or save you. The LORD will not abandon His people because of His great name, for it pleased Him to make you His own." Samuel also vowed, "Far be it from me to sin against the LORD by ceasing to pray for you, and I will instruct you in the right way. Fear the LORD and serve Him faithfully with all your heart, remembering the great things He has done for you. But if you continue in evil, both you and your king will be swept away."

✿ We must all prepare for what is soon to come upon the world with great surprise. This preparation requires diligent study of God's Word and aligning our lives with His principles. We need revival and reformation. A revival of true godliness is our greatest and most urgent need, and seeking it must be our first priority. The time has come for deep and thorough reformation. When this begins, a spirit of prayer will awaken among believers, and divisions in the church will be overcome. "If My people, who are called by My name, humble themselves and pray and seek My face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven, forgive their sin, and heal their land." (2 Chronicles 7:14)

✿ God is always ready to fulfill this promise if His people meet the conditions. He gave this promise to Israel, and He will honor it for the church today. Have we not suffered enough under Satan's rule? Let us confess our sins, forsake our "idols," and plead for God to deliver us from this kingdom of darkness by sending Jesus to take us home. We must not compromise our faith to fit in with the world. We are "a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people belonging to God, that we may declare His praises, who called us out of darkness into His marvelous light." (1 Peter 2:9)

✿ Worldliness is rejecting and rebelling against God. Hardness of heart is failing to love our neighbors as ourselves, which is disobedience to God. The strongest argument for Christianity is a loving and lovable Christian. Nothing damages Christianity more than accusations of worldliness and hardness of heart among those who profess faith. Every follower of Christ must be careful not to bring reproach upon their faith. Gandhi once said, "If it weren't for Christians, I would have been a Christian." While his reasoning was flawed, Jesus taught that we have a responsibility to lead others to Him by showing love (John 13:34-35).

✿ Every family should have dedicated times for morning and evening worship. Parents should gather their children before breakfast to thank God for His protection through the night and seek His guidance and care for the day. In the evening, they should gather again to thank Him for the blessings of the day.

Questions:

How were kings anointed in those days?

Why did the people want a king?

Why was Samuel saddened?

Why did the thunderstorm come?

What did Samuel say would happen if he stopped praying for Israel?

What signs was Saul given to confirm Samuel's words?May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: 1 Samuel 12:23, 24.

[23,24] "As for me, far be it from me that I should sin against the LORD by failing to pray for you. And I will teach you the way that is good and right. 24 But be sure to fear the LORD and serve him faithfully with all your heart; consider what great things he has done for you."

Prayer: Thank You Lord for Your Holy Spirit who intercedes for us with groanings too deep for words, and for doing great things for us. Help us to pray for others and not be selfish in sharing the good news with friends. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Play-acting Samuel meeting Saul and anointing him as king.

DAY 76 (March 17)

TOPIC: Sinning by Performing the Priest's Duty

(1 Samuel 13-14)

✿ Saul ruled Israel for 40 years. He took 3,000 men for war and stayed with them. After ruling for some time, the Philistines came to fight against Israel, and he sent a message for Samuel to come and offer a sacrifice. He waited seven days, but Samuel did not arrive, and the people began to scatter away from him. Losing patience, Saul sinned by instructing the people to bring him the burnt and peace offerings, which he then sacrificed to the LORD himself. Just as he finished offering the sacrifice, Samuel arrived. Saul went out to greet him, but Samuel asked, "What have you done?" Saul replied, "I saw that the people were scattering from me, and you did not come within the appointed days, while the Philistines had gathered against us."

✿ Even today, we must learn to be patient. When we pray to God and do not see immediate answers, we should have faith that He will act for our good.

Sometimes, impatience leads us to make bad decisions that are difficult to correct. Saul said he feared the Philistines would attack before he had sought the LORD's favor, so he forced himself to offer the burnt sacrifice.
Samuel told him that he had acted foolishly by not keeping the LORD's command. Because of this, the LORD would not establish Saul's kingdom forever. Instead, God had sought out a man after His own heart to be the ruler over His people. Samuel then left for Gibeah, and Saul counted his remaining men, only 600, and set out with his son Jonathan.

✿ No one in Israel had any weapons or armor except for Saul and Jonathan. Jonathan and his armor-bearer went secretly to the Philistine outpost without informing his father. Jonathan said, "Let's go over to the outpost of those uncircumcised men. Perhaps the LORD will act on our behalf. Nothing can hinder the LORD from saving, whether by many or by few." His armor-bearer agreed, saying, "Do all that you have in mind; I am with you heart and soul."

✿ They moved forward and revealed themselves to the Philistines. The Philistines mocked them, saying, "Look, the Hebrews are coming out of the holes where they were hiding!" They then told Jonathan and his armor-bearer, "Come up to us, and we will teach you a lesson!" This was the sign Jonathan was waiting for—he knew the LORD had given the Philistines into Israel's hands.

✿ So they climbed up to the outpost and attacked, killing about 20 men. Then, the LORD caused a great panic among the Philistines—there was a trembling in the camp, in the field, and among the entire army. The Israelites saw the Philistines scattering, and Saul asked, "Who has left our camp?" When they counted their men, they realized only Jonathan and his armor-bearer were missing.

✿ Saul then ordered the Ark of the Covenant to be brought, but as the chaos among the Philistines grew, he decided to go into battle immediately instead. The Israelites pursued the Philistines in a great victory. That day, the LORD saved Israel.

✿ However, Saul had made a foolish oath, saying, "Cursed is anyone who eats food before evening, until I have avenged myself on my enemies." Because of this, the people did not eat, even though they were exhausted. In the forest, there was honey dripping from the trees, but no one dared to eat it because of Saul's oath.

✿ However, Jonathan had not heard about the oath. He dipped the tip of his staff into the honeycomb and tasted it. Immediately, his eyes brightened. A soldier who saw him warned him about his father's oath, saying, "Your father made the people swear not to eat today, and now they are weak because of it."

✿ Jonathan replied, "My father has brought trouble to the land! See how my eyes brightened when I tasted a little honey? If the people had been allowed to eat freely today, we would have won a much greater victory!" The people were so hungry that they later ate meat with the blood still in it, violating God's law. Saul told them not to sin and had them slaughter the animals properly before eating.

✿ Later, Saul wanted to continue pursuing the Philistines at night, but when he inquired of the LORD, there was no answer. He then cast lots to find out who had sinned. The lot fell on Jonathan, and he admitted, "I tasted a little honey with the tip of my staff. Now I must die."

✿ Saul declared, "You shall surely die, Jonathan!" But the people intervened, saying, "Shall Jonathan die, who has brought about this great victory in Israel? Never! As surely as the LORD lives, not a hair on his head shall fall to the ground, for he has worked with God today." The people rescued Jonathan, and he was not put to death.

✿ This story teaches us that making reckless vows is unwise. Saul continued fighting against Israel's enemies, including Moab, Ammon, Edom, Amalek, and the Philistines, showing great bravery in battle. His army commander was Abner, his uncle's son. As long as Saul reigned, there was constant war, and whenever he found a strong warrior, he recruited him into his army.

✿ Jonathan teaches us that victory does not depend on the size of an army, wealth, or weapons. Instead, when we stand with the LORD, we are assured of victory. Most fathers would not want to kill their own sons, but Saul valued his pride and reputation more than his son. However, heaven's angels protected Jonathan and his servant, and they fought until the Philistines fell before them.

✿ David had many flaws, just like Saul. However, the difference between these two sinful kings was that one clung to his kingdom while the other clung to the King of Kings. Only when we acknowledge our weaknesses and accept God's true rule over our lives can we become people after God's own heart.

✿ We should not make excuses like, "I must work on the Sabbath because my employer forces me," or "I must accept a bribe because I need money urgently," or "I must lie because I was pressured to," or "I didn't return my tithe and offerings because my budget was too tight." These are all excuses without integrity. We are only safe when we fully obey God's Word.

✿ Dedicate Yourself to God Each Morning
Make it your first task every morning to commit yourself to God. Your prayer should be:

"Take me, O Lord, and make me entirely Yours. I lay all my plans at Your feet. Use me today in Your service. Be with me, and let all my work be done in You."
This should be a daily practice. Every morning, dedicate yourself to God for that day. Entrust all your plans to Him, so they can be carried out or adjusted according to His divine will. By doing this, you will be placing your life in God's hands day by day, and your character will be shaped more and more to reflect the life of Christ.

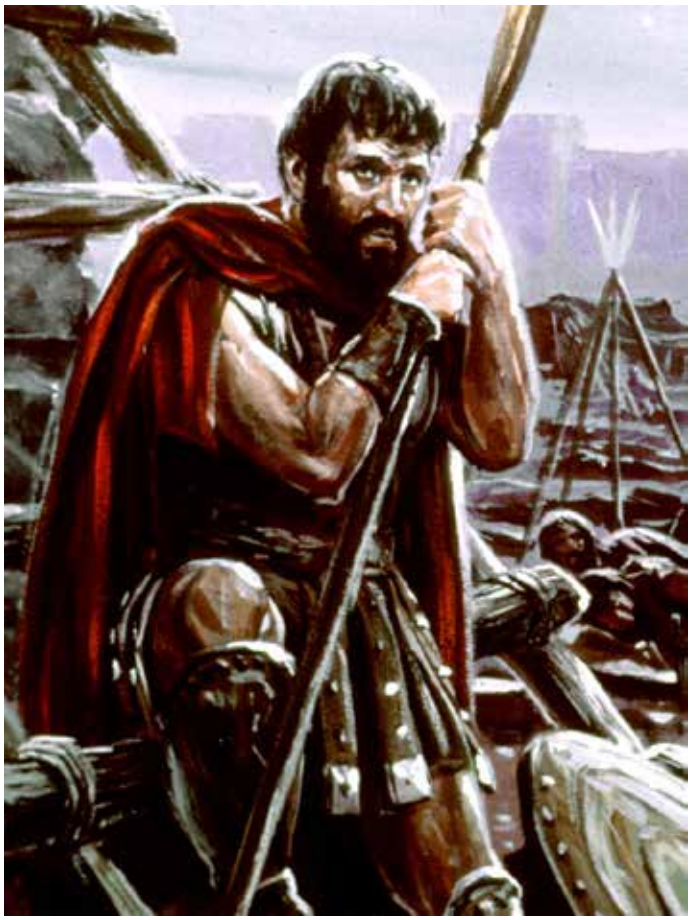
✿ Questions:

1. Why did Samuel tell Saul that his kingdom was lost?
2. How did Jonathan help Israel win the battle?
3. Why did Saul want to kill Jonathan?
4. Who saved Jonathan?
5. Who was the commander of Israel's army?
6. Why is it a sin to stop praying for a sinner?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus! 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Memory Verse: 1 Samuel 14:6.

[6] Jonathan said to his young armor-bearer, "Come, let's go over to the outpost of those uncircumcised men. Perhaps the LORD will act in our behalf. Nothing can hinder the LORD from saving, whether by many or by few."



Prayer: Thank You, Heavenly Father, that You can give us victory whether we are many or few. Thank You for salvation; forgive us our sins. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Compare the faults or sins of Saul and David.

DAY 77 (March 18)

TOPIC: God Regrets About Saul, Who Valued Traditions More Than Obedience

(1 Samuel 15-16)

✿ Samuel delivered a message from the Lord to Saul, instructing him to attack the Amalekites because they had mistreated the Israelites when they were coming out of Egypt. He was given specific instructions to completely destroy the Amalekites and all their possessions. Saul gathered and counted 210,000 men and went to war. He defeated the Amalekites, captured their king, Agag, alive, and killed his people with the sword. However, Saul spared Agag and took the best sheep, cattle, and valuable items instead of destroying everything as commanded. Only the worthless and weak things were completely destroyed.

The word of the Lord came to Samuel, saying, "I regret that I have made Saul king, for he has turned back from following Me and has not carried out My commands." Samuel was grieved and cried out to the Lord all night. Early in the morning, he went to see Saul. When Saul saw Samuel, he said, "Blessed are you of the Lord! I have obeyed the command of the Lord." But he was lying. Samuel responded, "Then why do I hear the sound of sheep and cattle?" Saul replied, "I spared these animals to offer them as sacrifices to the Lord, but everything else was destroyed."

✿ Samuel then told Saul a message from the Lord, saying, "Although you were once small in your own eyes, did I not make you the head of the tribes of Israel? The Lord anointed you as king over Israel. He then sent you on a mission, commanding you to completely destroy the sinful Amalekites and fight against them until they were exterminated. Why then did you not obey the voice of the Lord? Instead, you took the plunder and did evil in the sight of the Lord." Saul argued that he had obeyed and had only brought King Agag and the best animals to sacrifice to God.

✿ Samuel replied, "The Lord does not delight in sacrifices as much as in obedience. Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to heed is better than the fat of rams. Rebellion is as sinful as witchcraft, and stubbornness is as bad as idolatry. Because you have rejected the word of the Lord, He has also rejected you as king." At that moment, Saul realized Samuel was serious and that he had been the one to anoint him as king. Saul did not care much about his disobedience to God but was more concerned about his position as king. He admitted, "I have sinned by disobeying the Lord's command and your words. I was afraid of the people, so I listened to them instead." Saul then pleaded, "Please forgive my sin and come back with me so I may worship the Lord."

✿ Samuel refused to go with him, saying, "You have rejected the word of the Lord, and He has rejected you as king over Israel." As Samuel turned to leave, Saul grabbed the edge of his robe, and it tore. Samuel then declared, "Today, the Lord has torn the kingdom of Israel from you and has given it to someone better than you. The Strength of Israel does not lie or change His mind, for He is not a man that He should repent." Saul, still concerned about his reputation, begged Samuel to honor him before the elders and the people by returning with him to worship the Lord. Samuel agreed, and they worshiped together.

Samuel then ordered Agag to be brought before him. Agag thought his execution had been forgotten. However, Samuel told him, "Just as you have made many women widows, so shall your mother be bereaved today." Samuel then cut Agag into pieces in Gilgal. After that, Samuel went to his home in Ramah, while Saul returned to his home in Gibeah. Samuel never went to see Saul again until the day of his death, though he mourned for him. The Lord regretted making Saul king over Israel.

✿ The Lord told Samuel, "How long will you mourn for Saul, seeing that I have rejected him as king of Israel?" It is a sorrowful thing when the Creator regrets giving us His blessings. God then instructed Samuel to fill his horn with oil and go to Jesse of Bethlehem because He had chosen one of his sons to be king. Samuel was afraid, saying, "If Saul hears about this, he will kill me." The Lord told him to take a heifer and say he was going to offer a sacrifice to the Lord. He was to invite Jesse to the sacrifice. Samuel obeyed, and when he arrived in Bethlehem, the town elders trembled and asked, "Do you come in peace, man of God?" Samuel assured them it was in peace and that he had come to offer a sacrifice. He told them to sanctify themselves and join him in worship. He also sanctified Jesse and his sons and asked Jesse to bring his sons before him. Jesse had seven sons.

When Jesse brought his first son, Eliab, who was tall and handsome, Samuel thought, "Surely, this must be the one." But the Lord told him, "Do not look at his appearance or his height, for I have rejected him. The Lord does not see as man sees; man looks at the outward appearance, but the Lord looks at the heart." Jesse then presented his second son, Abinadab, but Samuel said, "The Lord has not chosen this one either." Jesse then presented his third son, Shammah, but again Samuel said, "The Lord has not chosen him."

✿ Obedience is better than sacrifice. Good deeds can never replace obedience. Many people believe that God cares more about tithes and offerings than about obedience, but that is not true! Rebellion places us in agreement with the devil. When we act according to our own opinions instead of following God's will, we worship ourselves rather than Him.

✿ Prayer: Lord, help me to love You more deeply, follow You more closely, humble myself completely before You, and hear Your voice more clearly. Amen!

✿ You must learn to see with both your mind and your eyes. Your decisions must be educated, effective, and appropriate. You must pray for guidance and commit your ways to the Lord. You must close your heart to foolishness and sin while opening it to every influence from heaven. Use your time and opportunities wisely to develop a balanced character.

✿ Questions:

1. Why did God want the Amalekites to be punished?
2. What excuse did Saul give for not destroying the Amalekites?
3. What did Samuel tell Saul when he made excuses?
4. Who was Jesse's father?
5. Why is rebellion like witchcraft, and stubbornness like idolatry?
6. What is wrong with judging someone based on their appearance rather than their character?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: 1 Samuel 15:22, 23.

[22,23] But Samuel replied: "Does the LORD delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices as much as in obeying the LORD? To obey is better than sacrifice, and to heed is better than the fat of rams. For rebellion is like the sin of divination, and arrogance like the evil of idolatry. Because you have rejected the word of the LORD, he has rejected you as king."

Prayer: Dear Heavenly Father, help us to obey You and to listen to Your voice. Help us to abandon arrogance, idolatry, witchcraft, and rebellion. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: How can a person have a heart that pleases the Lord? Focus on these verses: "Samuel said to Saul, 'You have done foolishly. You have not kept the command the LORD your God gave you; if you had, he would have established your kingdom over Israel for all time. But now your kingdom will not endure; the LORD has sought out a man after his own heart and appointed him ruler of his people, because you have not kept the LORD's command.'"

Activity: Compare the faults or sins of Saul and David.

TOPIC 78 (March 19)

LESSON: David is Chosen as King

(1 Samuel 16-17)

✿ Then Jesse made his seven sons pass before Samuel, but Samuel said to him, “The LORD has not chosen these.” Samuel then asked Jesse if all his children had been presented. Jesse replied that his youngest son was still tending the sheep. Samuel commanded someone to go and bring him, saying, “We will not sit down until he comes here.” Surely, he must have been a young man of good character and one who loved God, for if an elderly man of God refused to sit until he arrived, this young son of Jesse must have been special.

So David was brought in; he was ruddy, with beautiful eyes, and a handsome appearance. The LORD said, “Arise, anoint him, for this is the one.” Samuel took the horn of oil and anointed David, and the Spirit of the LORD came upon him powerfully from that day forward. Then Samuel returned to Ramah.

✿ David went on to become a strong king, a man after God’s own heart. Even the Messiah was later called by his name, “Son of David.” Meanwhile, the Spirit of the LORD had departed from Saul, and an evil spirit tormented him.

His servants noticed that he was being troubled by an evil spirit or demonic forces. They suggested bringing in a skilled harp player so that whenever the evil spirit from Satan tormented him, the musician could play and soothe him, bringing relief. Even today, many people are tormented by evil spirits and depression, and what helps them find healing is the name of Christ.

One of Saul's servants mentioned that he had seen David, the son of Jesse from Bethlehem, who was skilled in playing the harp, a brave and mighty warrior, wise in speech, and a handsome man with whom the LORD was present. At this time, David was not yet 18 years old, meaning he was still considered a child by today's standards. People recognized David's bravery, wisdom, and even his beauty. Indeed, even a child is known by their character.

✿ Saul sent a message to Jesse asking for David, and Jesse sent bread, a goat, and wine as a gift to the king along with his son. Interestingly, kings in those days were highly honored; today, if you are called to the palace for a musical performance, you get paid, but in those days, a king was given gifts, and his children could be taken as servants, as the LORD had foretold through the prophet Samuel. Saul sent another message to Jesse asking him to allow David to stay with him, for he had grown fond of him. Whenever the evil spirit came upon Saul, David would play the harp, and Saul would be refreshed, and the evil spirit would leave him, for the Spirit of God was with David.

Children, today, when we see people possessed by evil spirits, we must understand that they need prayers to be delivered. Those who acknowledge the God of heaven and live righteous lives have helped many people by casting out demons or jinn, which are servants of Satan—fallen angels that torment people greatly. But in the name of God or Christ, they can be cast out.

✿ At that time, the Philistines gathered for battle in Judah, and Saul and the Israelites camped in the valley to fight against them. The Philistines stood on one hill, and the Israelites on another, with a valley between them. Then a champion came out from the Philistine camp, named Goliath, from Gath, whose height was over nine feet. He would not have fit through an ordinary doorway. He wore a bronze helmet, a coat of mail weighing five thousand shekels of bronze, bronze armor on his legs, and a bronze javelin on his shoulders. The shaft of his spear was like a weaver's beam, and the iron spearhead weighed six hundred shekels.

✿ His shield-bearer went before him. Goliath stood and shouted to the ranks of Israel, mocking them: "Choose a man to come down and fight me. If he is able to fight and kill me, we will be your slaves, but if I prevail against him and kill him, you will be our slaves and serve us." The Philistine continued to defy the armies of Israel. When Saul and the Israelites heard these words, they were dismayed and greatly afraid.

David, the son of Jesse, had three older brothers in Saul's army. At this time, he was moving back and forth between Saul and tending his father's sheep in Bethlehem. For forty days, Goliath came forward, morning and evening, to challenge and intimidate the Israelites.

✿ One day, Jesse told his son David to take roasted grain, cheese, and bread to his three brothers in battle and to check on their welfare and bring back news. David rose early in the morning, left the flock with a shepherd, took the food, and set out. He arrived just as the army was going out to fight, and they were shouting the war cry. The Israelites and Philistines had drawn up their battle lines, facing each other. David left his supplies with the keeper of baggage and ran to greet his brothers—Eliab, Abinadab, and Shammah.

While he was talking to them, Goliath, the Philistine champion from Gath, stepped forward and repeated his usual defiance, and David heard it. When the Israelites saw him, they fled in great fear, discussing how this man had come to defy Israel. They said the king had promised a great reward for whoever killed him, including riches, his daughter in marriage, and freedom for his family.

✿ David asked about the reward and questioned why this uncircumcised Philistine should be allowed to defy the armies of the living God. The people told him about the king's promised rewards. However, David's eldest brother Eliab overheard him talking and became angry. He scolded David, accusing him of abandoning his responsibilities to come watch the battle or gossip. Eliab said, "I know you have left your duties just to watch the battle." But David responded, "What have I done now? Is there not a cause?"

✿ A Prayer for God's Guidance Can Be Made Anytime and Anywhere

There is no time or place where it is inappropriate to pray to God. Nothing can prevent us from lifting our hearts in sincere prayer. In the midst of crowds on the streets, in the middle of work or business, we can send a request to God for guidance, just as Nehemiah prayed before King Artaxerxes. A close fellowship with God can be found wherever we are. We should always keep the door of our hearts open, continuously inviting Christ to come and dwell within us as our heavenly Guest.

✿ Questions:

How many brothers did David have? What were their names?

Why did David dislike Goliath's words?

What did Goliath wear when he went to battle?

How can you help someone possessed by evil spirits or jinn?

Why do people focus so much on outward beauty, even to the point of buying it if possible?

May God Bless You, Child and Young Disciple of Jesus 👨‍👨‍👦

Memory Verse: 1 Samuel 16:7.

[7] But the LORD said to Samuel, "Do not consider his appearance or his height, for I have rejected him. The LORD does not look at the things people look at. People look at the outward appearance, but the LORD looks at the heart."

Prayer: Holy Father in Heaven, help us not to judge people by their outward appearance when we deal with them. Increase our faith and discernment to recognize the people You have chosen and to work together with them in Your service.

Activity: Game "Outer Appearance vs. Inner Qualities."

1. Tell the story: Read 1 Samuel 16:6–7, focusing on how Samuel looked at Jesse's sons based on appearance but God reminded him, "The LORD does not look at the things people look at. People look at the outward appearance, but the LORD looks at the heart."

2. Describe Jesse's sons: Let children take turns describing one of Jesse's sons (as a brother, friend, or even themselves).

3. Play "Who is it?" or guess who? The other children try to figure out who is being described. The main goal is to guide them to describe both outward features (height, strength, good looks) and inner qualities (kindness, faithfulness, bravery, generosity).

4. David: Emphasize that finally Samuel found David, the youngest son, who was not even considered by his family as a candidate to be anointed, but was chosen by God because of his heart.

DAY 79 (March 20)

TOPIC: The Battle Belongs to the Lord, Not to Us

(1 Samuel 17)

✿ David was shocked that not a single skilled warrior dared to defend God's Name after 40 days of Goliath's insults and boasting. Even King Saul, the tallest man in Israel, had cowered in fear. But David had a heart to defend Jehovah's Name! He didn't focus on his youth or short stature; instead, he asked God for strength. If we focus on our weaknesses, we fail to see what God sees in us—imperfect vessels that need to be filled with His power and strength so that we may glorify Him. When the devil mocks us, saying that God is not real or trustworthy, we must remember the times we have triumphed with God's help.

God calls us into impossible situations so that He may be glorified through our weaknesses. David used the skills he already knew—his slingshot. He took action without knowing the outcome, but he stepped forward in faith. God does not need military expertise to secure victory; all He requires is complete surrender. Before our enemies surrender to us, we must first surrender to God.

✿ God has gifted each of us with unique talents for His glory. Do not worry if you are young, weak, or lack technological skills. Just come to Jesus as you are and ask Him to transform you. When David's words reached King Saul, he sent for him. David assured Saul that no one should lose heart because of Goliath; he was ready to fight the Philistine. Saul doubted him, saying, "You are only a young man, and he has been a warrior since his youth." But David recounted how he had fought lions and bears while tending his father's sheep.

✿ He declared that the Philistine who defied God's army would meet the same fate as the wild beasts he had slain. "The Lord who rescued me from the paw of the lion and the bear will rescue me from the hand of this Philistine." Saul then said, "Go, and may the Lord be with you." Saul tried to dress David in his armor, but it was too heavy, like a child trying to wear his father's clothes. So, David removed them and instead took his shepherd's staff, selected five smooth stones from the stream, and placed them in his pouch.

✿ With his sling in hand, he approached Goliath. The Philistine, seeing David, despised him for being young and handsome. He mocked, "Am I a dog that you come at me with sticks?" He cursed David by his gods, threatening to feed his flesh to the birds and wild animals. But David responded with powerful words that still echo today: "You come against me with sword, spear, and javelin, but I come against you in the name of the Lord Almighty, the God of the armies of Israel, whom you have defied."

✿ David boldly declared that God would deliver Goliath into his hands so that "the whole world will know that there is a God in Israel." He emphasized that "the Lord does not save by sword or spear, for the battle is the Lord's, and He will give you into our hands."

✿ As Goliath advanced, David ran toward him. This probably shocked Goliath, as all the other Israelites had fled in fear. Perhaps he thought David was insane. But David placed a stone in his sling, swung it, and struck Goliath in the forehead. The giant fell face down. Though Goliath was well-armored, God guided the stone to the small exposed area on his forehead.

The Israelites were amazed that David, a young boy, had defeated a warrior without even using a sword. David then took Goliath's own sword and killed him. When the Philistines saw their champion fall, they fled, and the Israelites pursued them to Goliath's hometown of Gath and beyond, looting their camps.

✿ Saul then asked his commander, Abner, "Whose son is this young man?" Even though David had played the harp for Saul to drive away evil spirits, Abner did not know.

Even today, the Lord fights for His people. God can do incredible things through someone as young as David. No challenge is too big for God if we let Him lead us and obey Him. Everything we undertake will succeed if He is number one in our lives. David saw Goliath not as an unbeatable giant but as too big to miss when God was with him.

✿ The Bible says, "For our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the powers of this dark world and against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly realms." (Ephesians 6:12). When God's children are attacked for defending righteousness, it is Satan attacking them. They must ensure that God is with them and believe that He will fight for them, as He promised in Exodus 14:14. However, they must use God's way to fight their enemies.

What is God's way? "But I tell you, love your enemies, bless those who curse you, do good to those who hate you, and pray for those who mistreat and persecute you, that you may be children of your Father in heaven. He causes

His sun to rise on the evil and the good and sends rain on the righteous and the unrighteous." (Matthew 5:44-45).

✿ A prayer for God's guidance can be made anytime and anywhere. There is no time or place where prayer is inappropriate. Nothing can stop us from lifting our hearts in sincere prayer. Whether in a crowd, at work, or in the midst of business, we can send a silent plea to God, just as Nehemiah did before King Artaxerxes. A close relationship with God can be maintained wherever we are. Our hearts should always be open to Jesus, inviting Him to dwell within us.

✿ Questions:

1. Why did Saul give David his battle armor?
2. Why did Goliath think he would win?
3. Name five things that helped David win.
4. Why is it not good to despise people, even if they seem small?
5. Who did Saul ask about David?
6. How can we make God number one in our lives?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: 1 Samuel 17:45.

David said to the Philistine, "You come against me with sword and spear and javelin, but I come against you in the name of the LORD Almighty, the God of the armies of Israel, whom you have defied."

Prayer: Thank You Lord for Your goodness, protection, and favor. Help us in our deeds never to defy You, but to honor and love You. In the Name of Jesus, Amen.

Activity: Play-acting—David picking up five stones and going with his sling, aiming at a chosen target like a tree.

DAY 80 (March 21)

TOPIC: The Friendship of David and Jonathan

(1 Samuel 18-20)

✿ Jonathan and David's Friendship and King Saul's Jealousy

When David spoke with Saul, Saul's son, Jonathan, loved David as his own soul. Their spirits were bound together, and Jonathan loved David deeply. Saul took David into his service and did not allow him to return to his father's house, except for occasional visits. Jonathan removed his royal garments and gave them to David, along with his sword, bow, and belt. Wherever Saul sent David, he acted wisely, and Saul appointed him over his army. This pleased the people, including Saul's servants.

After David defeated Goliath, women came out to celebrate Saul with tambourines, joy, and musical instruments. They sang, "Saul has slain his thousands, and David his tens of thousands." This was unwise, as the victory belonged to the Lord, and their words incited conflict among the men of Israel. Saul became angry upon hearing this, as he did not want anyone to receive more praise than him. From that day on, Saul viewed David as a threat to his kingdom and became jealous of him.

✿ Saul's Jealousy and Attempts to Kill David

A harmful spirit came upon Saul, and while David played the harp to soothe him, Saul, holding a spear, tried to kill David by throwing it at him twice. David escaped both times. Saul feared David because he knew the Lord was with him. Instead of rejoicing that his son-in-law was wise and blessed, Saul became more fearful and envious.

Saul then offered his eldest daughter to David as a wife, but with the secret hope that David would be killed by the Philistines. However, when David humbly declined, saying he was unworthy, Saul gave her to another man. Later, Saul's second daughter, Michal, fell in love with David. Saul saw this as another opportunity to trap David. When David said he was too poor to provide a royal bride price, Saul demanded 100 Philistine foreskins instead. Saul hoped David would die in battle, but David completed the task, and Saul had no choice but to give Michal to him in marriage.

✿ Saul's Hatred Grows

As David continued to act wisely and gain favor, Saul's fear and jealousy increased. Instead of being grateful for a righteous and capable successor, Saul sought to kill David. Jealousy is a dangerous poison that wastes time and destroys blessings. When we feel envy, we should pray for God to remove it from our hearts and ask Him to bless those we envy.

Saul ordered his son Jonathan and his servants to kill David. However, Jonathan, who loved David, warned him of the danger and pleaded with his father to reconsider. Jonathan reminded Saul of David's loyalty and bravery in defeating Goliath. For a moment, Saul relented and swore that David would not be killed. But when war broke out again and David won another battle, Saul's evil spirit returned. Once more, he tried to kill David with a spear while David played the harp. David escaped and fled. Even when enemies continuously seek to harm us, God will protect us if our time has not yet come. No one can take us out of God's hands.

✿ Michal Helps David Escape

Saul sent men to David's house to kill him in the morning. Michal warned David and helped him escape through a window. She then placed an idol in his bed, covering it with clothes and goat hair to make it look like David was still sleeping. When Saul's men came for him, they found the decoy. Saul confronted Michal, but she lied, saying David had threatened her.

David fled to Samuel in Ramah and told him everything. Saul sent men to capture David there, but when they arrived and saw a group of prophets prophesying, they too began to prophesy. This happened three times with different groups of Saul's messengers. Finally, Saul himself went to Ramah, and even he was overcome by the Spirit of God and began to prophesy, removing his garments.

✿ David and Jonathan's Final Covenant

David then met Jonathan and asked, "What have I done? What sin have I committed against your father that he wants to kill me?" Jonathan reassured him that he would not die, as his father always informed him of his plans. However, David explained that Saul was hiding his true intentions from Jonathan because of their friendship.

Jonathan and David made a plan for David to hide during the New Moon feast and see how Saul would react to his absence. If Saul was calm, there was no danger. If he became angry, it would mean he intended to kill David. David suggested using an excuse that he had gone to Bethlehem to offer sacrifices with his family.

Jonathan and David then renewed their covenant before the Lord. No weapon formed against you shall prosper, and every tongue that rises against you in judgment, you shall condemn. This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord (Isaiah 54:17). When the Holy Spirit leaves a person, an evil spirit can take over, leading them to do terrible things.

✿ Keeping the Holy Spirit in Our Lives
We must avoid living in sin without repentance, as this drives away the Holy Spirit (Ephesians 4:30). Jealousy and envy originate from Satan and lead to destruction. Many people chase power and wealth through deceitful means. Some even claim to sell land on the moon, and millions of people have paid for it, despite the absurdity. Others dream of living in space, like Elon Musk, who offers a $55 million trip to space. But we do not need to live in such illusions.

We have God's promise that if we remain faithful, He will take us beyond the moon to explore the heavens and places beyond human reach. What a glorious promise!

✿ A Friendship Like No Other
Jonathan and David's friendship was a rare example of true loyalty. Jonathan was even willing to give up his right to the throne for David. This is similar to John the Baptist, who wanted Jesus to increase while he himself decreased. A friendship built on love for God shapes character. If we look to Christ as our example, we will become humble, loving, and peaceful. Heaven sees those who carry love and peace as its ambassadors, and they will receive their reward.

✿ Angels Are Near to Guide Us
Like Nathanael, we must study God's Word for ourselves and pray for the Holy Spirit's guidance. The same Jesus who saw Nathanael under the fig tree sees us in our secret place of prayer. Angels from the kingdom of light are near those who humbly seek God's guidance.

✿ Questions:

Why did Jonathan give David his garments?

What words did the women sing that angered King Saul?

How can you avoid causing conflicts among people?

What bride price did Saul demand from David to marry his daughter?

What was the name of David's first wife?

How did Michal help David escape from death?

Why was Saul afraid of David?

What excuse did David give for missing the New Moon feast?

Memory Verse: 1 Samuel 18:4.

[4] Jonathan made a covenant with David because he loved him as himself. Jonathan took off the robe he was wearing and gave it to David, along with his tunic, and even his sword, his bow, and his belt.

Prayer: Dear Lord, is there anything too hard for You? Please help me to have a friend whom I love and who loves me, so that together we may support one another in life, do Your work, and build each other up. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Discuss how to find good friends—for example, attending worship and spiritual events, joining small groups and Bible studies, and taking part in church-related service activities. You can also make Christian friends by joining various hobby groups. Volunteer in faith-based organizations, and attend Christian social gatherings. To build friendship, introduce yourself to people, ask open-ended questions, show interest and care, and invite others to do things with you, such as sharing a drink or meal. Focus on a lifestyle that honors the Creator, serve others, pray for guidance, and have a generous heart.

DAY 81 (March 22)

TOPIC: The Slaughter of the Priests

✿ Jonathan promised not to hide anything from David that would be of benefit or for his safety. He added, "May the Lord deal with me, Jonathan, be it ever so severely, if my father intends to harm you and I do not tell you and send you away in peace. May the Lord be with you as He has been with my father." Jonathan, knowing that God had given the kingdom to David, reminded him to show kindness to him and his descendants when the Lord had completely cut off all David's enemies from the face of the earth. Jonathan made a covenant with David again because of the love he had for him, for he loved him as his own soul. He told him that the next day, during the new moon festival, he should hide, and he would shoot three arrows as though aiming at a target. Then he would send a boy to retrieve them. If he told the boy, "The arrows are on this side of you; bring them here," then David would know it was safe. But if he said, "The arrows are beyond you," then David should flee because danger was near. Jonathan assured David, "The Lord is between you and me forever concerning this matter we have spoken."

✿ David hid and did not attend the meal. Jonathan and Abner were seated in their places, along with the other officials, but David was missing. Saul said nothing at first, thinking David might be unclean. However, on the second day, when Saul noticed David's absence, he asked Jonathan, "Why has the son of Jesse not come to eat either yesterday or today?" Jonathan explained that David had asked for permission to go home and offer a sacrifice. At this, Saul's anger burned against his son, and he said, "You son of a perverse and rebellious woman! Don't I know that you have sided with the son of Jesse to your own shame?" He told Jonathan that as long as David lived, he would never be king and ordered him to bring David so he could be killed.

✿ Jonathan asked, "Why should he be put to death? What has he done?" But Saul hurled a spear at him in a fit of rage. Jonathan, deeply grieved for David and ashamed of his father's actions, refused to eat. Saul had once been a commoner, with no royal lineage, yet he had become arrogant, wanting his kingdom to last at all costs. Even today, power and authority intoxicate many; before they attain them, they are humble, but once they do, they oppress others. Some in power desire to be worshiped and revered. Even as a child, one day, if the Lord tarries, you may have authority over your children, spouse, family, school, or even a government position. How will you use that authority? Pray for humility so that you do not oppress others.

✿ The next morning, Jonathan went out as agreed and used the arrow signal to inform David of the danger. The boy retrieving the arrows was unaware of the secret message. After sending the boy away with his weapons, Jonathan and David met. David bowed three times, and they wept together. Jonathan told David, "Go in peace, for we have sworn friendship in the name of the Lord, saying, 'The Lord is witness between you and me and between your descendants and mine forever.'" This was the last time they saw each other at the palace. Despite facing years of hardship, David found peace in God and continued to praise Him in the Psalms, knowing that God was his Father and protector. Let us also take comfort in knowing that God is our Father.

✿ David then fled to Nob and met the high priest Ahimelech, who trembled when he saw him, wondering why he was alone, perhaps expecting him to have an escort or even the king himself. David lied, claiming he was on a mission from the king, and asked for five loaves of bread. The priest told him there was no ordinary bread, only the consecrated showbread that was replaced weekly. He asked if David and his men had kept themselves pure, to which David assured him they had. That day, there was a spy of King Saul present, Doeg the Edomite, who later reported these events.

✿ David also asked the priest for a weapon, and the priest offered him the sword of Goliath, which was kept as a memorial. David took it and fled from Saul in fear, heading to King Achish of Gath in Philistine territory. However, the people of Gath recognized him and said, “Isn’t this David, the king of the land? Wasn’t it about him that people sang, ‘Saul has slain his thousands, and David his tens of thousands’?”

✿ When David heard this, he became very afraid of Achish and pretended to be insane. He scratched at the doors and let saliva run down his beard. Achish said to his servants, “Why bring this madman to me? Do I lack madmen that you have brought him to behave like this in front of me?”

✿ David then escaped to the cave of Adullam, where his family and others in distress, debt, or bitterness of soul joined him, and he became their leader—gathering about 400 men. He took his parents to the king of Moab for safety, saying, “Let them stay with you until I learn what God will do for me.” This showed his deep love and care for his parents. Moab was the homeland of his great-grandmother Ruth. Here, David set an example of honoring and protecting one’s parents in their old age. The prophet Gad later told him to move to Judah, and he went to the forest of Hereth.
✿ Meanwhile, Saul, in his paranoia, accused his own tribe of conspiring with David, saying David could not help them like he could. He lamented that no one sympathized with him or informed him that Jonathan had allied with David. Saul falsely claimed David was waiting to ambush him, even though it was the other way around. He wanted people to hate David and pity him instead.

✿ Doeg the Edomite then informed Saul about David's visit to Nob, where he received food and a weapon from the priest Ahimelech. Saul summoned Ahimelech and the other priests, accusing them of conspiring against him by helping David. Ahimelech defended himself, saying that David was a loyal servant, his son-in-law, and a man of honor. He admitted that he had consulted God for David multiple times and had done nothing wrong. Despite this, Saul ordered his men to kill the priests, but they refused. Instead, Doeg carried out the execution, killing 85 priests that day. He also attacked the entire city of Nob, slaughtering men, women, children, infants, and livestock. Only one son of Ahimelech, Abiathar, escaped.

✿ David was not perfect, though he was a man after God's own heart. Only Jesus was perfect. Jesus, unlike David, prayed for His enemies (Luke 23:34), and while David had multiple wives and concubines (2 Samuel 16:21-22), Jesus taught monogamy (Matthew 19:4-6). Among all who have ever lived, only Jesus was without sin. He is our ultimate example. Those who use David's life to justify cursing enemies or polygamy are mistaken. God did not set David as our example—Jesus is. Follow Jesus, for He is the way, the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through Him. The good examples of biblical figures should be followed only where they align with Christ.

✿ The understanding of truth depends less on intellectual power and more on purity of heart, sincerity, and faith in God. Those who humbly seek God's guidance are accompanied by His angels. The Holy Spirit reveals the treasures of truth to them.

✿ Questions:
What did Jonathan swear to David?
What words did Saul use to rebuke Jonathan?
Why did Saul kill 85 priests of the Lord?
Why was Doeg's action evil?
Why did David find a place for his parents to live?
Why was Ahimelech afraid when he saw David?
Why do people change when they gain power?
Why was Jonathan willing to risk his life?

May God Bless You, Child and Young Person of Jesus! 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Key Verse: Proverbs 18:24.

[24] A man of many companions may come to ruin, but there is a friend who sticks closer than a brother.

Prayer: Thank You Father who dwells on high in heaven. Thank You for good friends who support one another in many ways and comfort each other. Fill us with Your Holy Spirit. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Reflection:
Show how two different people can be joined together and support one another side by side, like David and Jonathan.

Important Points to Emphasize:

Faithfulness: David and Jonathan were true friends who stayed united even when times were difficult.

Loyalty: Jonathan kept his promise to David by warning him and making David's safety a priority.

God's Love: God uses friendship to protect us and sustain us, showing His love through the loyalty of other people.

Promise: Later, David, as king, showed his loyalty to Jonathan by taking care of Jonathan's son, Mephibosheth, who was lame.

DAY 82 (March 23)

LESSON: Abiathar Flees to David

(1 Samuel 22-24)

✿ When Abiathar saw that his relatives and family had been killed, he fled to David and told him what had happened. David remembered that Doeg the Edomite was there on the day he had gone to ask for food and a sword. He was deeply saddened because his actions had led to the deaths of his father's family. David told Abiathar, "Stay with me; do not be afraid, for he who seeks my life also seeks yours, but with me, you will be safe." He encouraged him.

When they heard that the Philistines were attacking Keilah and stealing grain from the fields, David inquired of the LORD whether he should go, and the LORD told him to go and rescue Keilah. His men were afraid, but David asked the LORD again, and the LORD assured him, "I will give the Philistines into your hands." They went and, through fierce attacks, plundered the enemy and saved Keilah.

✿ Abiathar had brought priestly garments with him. When Saul heard that David was in Keilah, he thought God had delivered him into his hands and went down there. David learned that Saul intended harm. He asked Abiathar the priest, who had an ephod, to inquire of the LORD whether the people of Keilah would hand him over to Saul. The LORD confirmed that they would. So David and his 600 men left, and he continued to live in the wilderness, in strongholds and mountains, fleeing from the ruthless King Saul. Though Saul searched for him daily, God did not deliver David into his hands.
David remained in the wilderness of Ziph, where Jonathan visited him and encouraged him, saying, "Do not be afraid, for my father Saul will not find you. You will be king over Israel, and I will be second to you. Even my father knows this." They renewed their covenant before the LORD, and Jonathan returned home. This friendship demonstrates remarkable loyalty—loving and defending someone because they are good, without favoritism or choosing evil simply because of family ties.

✿ The people of Ziph sought to gain favor with Saul in Gibeah by offering to betray David, saying he was hiding in their strongholds. They urged Saul to come down and promised to deliver David into his hands. Saul blessed the Ziphites for showing concern for him and sent them to gather more intelligence on David's exact location, knowing that David was cunning. The Ziphites went to spy while David remained in the wilderness of Arabah.

As Saul's men closed in on David in the mountains, David hid in fear, not wanting to kill the LORD's anointed. Just as Saul and his army were about to capture David, Saul received news that the Philistines had attacked his land. He had to abandon his pursuit of David and return to fight the Philistines. Afterward, David moved to the strongholds of En Gedi.

✿ Saul later resumed his pursuit of David in En Gedi with 3,000 men. He entered a cave to relieve himself, unaware that David and his men were hiding inside. David's men urged him to kill Saul, saying, "This is the day the LORD has delivered your enemy into your hands; do to him as you wish." Instead, David quietly cut off the corner of Saul's robe but refused to harm him. He said, "Far be it from me to lay a hand on the LORD's anointed." He rebuked his men, preventing them from attacking Saul.

After Saul left the cave, David called out to him and showed him the piece of his robe. Saul, realizing that David had spared his life, bowed down and wept.

✿ David asked Saul why he believed people who said David wanted to harm him. He explained that he could have killed Saul that very day but chose not to, saying, "I will not lift my hand against the LORD's anointed." He showed Saul the piece of his robe as proof that he had no evil intentions. Though Saul had been hunting him, David refused to retaliate.

✿ David declared, "May the LORD judge between you and me, and may He avenge me on you, but my hand will not touch you." Saul, deeply moved, admitted, "You are more righteous than I, for you have treated me well, but I have treated you badly."
✿ Saul blessed David, saying, "May the LORD reward you for the good you have done to me today." He acknowledged that David would be king and asked him to swear not to destroy his descendants or erase his family name. David swore, and Saul returned home while David stayed in his stronghold.

✿ Forgiving and Not Seeking Revenge is a Gift. People like Saul, who are filled with jealousy and hatred, may not recognize grace even when they are forgiven. We must remember that God will not forgive those who refuse to forgive others. No one is without fault—we all offend or are offended. If someone refuses to acknowledge their mistakes, it is difficult for them to receive forgiveness.

Saul knew he had disobeyed God's command, but instead of repenting humbly, he was only sad because he feared losing his position as king. Saul suffered from the "Lucifer Syndrome," twisting the truth and claiming that David sought to kill him when, in reality, he was the one trying to kill David.

If we refuse to truly repent for our sins and instead blame or accuse God's people, rather than taking responsibility, we have a serious problem. 1 John 1:9 says, "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

✿ Whatever We Need, We Can Ask for in Prayer. Every promise in God's Word provides a subject for prayer (there are over 6,000 promises in the Bible!). Each promise gives us something to pray about, presenting the Word of Jehovah as our assurance. No matter what spiritual blessing we need, we have the privilege of asking for it through Jesus.

We can tell the Lord, with the simplicity and humility of a child, exactly what we need. We can ask Him about our temporary needs, such as food and clothing, as well as eternal needs, such as the Bread of Life and the robe of Christ's righteousness. Our Heavenly Father knows what we need and invites us to ask Him for everything. It is through the name of Jesus that every grace is received. God honors that name and will supply your needs out of His abundant generosity.

✿ Questions:

Why did Jonathan come to David?

Why did Saul express words of repentance to David but not stop his evil actions?

Why did Saul bless David?

Why didn't David kill Saul?

Did people truly tell Saul that David was his enemy?

Why did Saul continue to do evil despite feeling remorse?

Some people justify wrongdoing by saying, "David did it too." How would you respond to them?

May God Bless You, Child and Young Person of Jesus 👥

Key Verse: 1 Samuel 23:16-18.

[16-18] And Saul's son Jonathan went to David at Horesh and helped him find strength in God. "Don't be afraid," he said. "My father Saul will not lay a hand on you. You will be king over Israel, and I will be second to you. Even my father Saul knows this." The two of them made a covenant before the LORD. Then Jonathan went home, but David remained at Horesh.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for the faithfulness of good friends like Jonathan.

Activity: A play of the story of David at Engedi cutting off a piece of Saul's robe. Show how David controlled himself, respected others, and even honored Saul. —1 Samuel 24.

DAY 83 (March 24)

TOPIC: David, Nabal, and Abigail

(1 Samuel 25)

✿ Samuel died, and all Israel mourned for him and buried him in Ramah. David then went to the wilderness of Maon with his army and their families. In Maon, there was a man named Nabal who was very wealthy, owning 3,000 sheep and 1,000 goats. He was shearing his sheep at the time. His wife, Abigail, was intelligent, wise, and beautiful.

✿ When David and his men ran out of food in the wilderness, he sent ten young men to Nabal to greet him and request food, saying, "Your shepherds were with us, and we did not harm them, nor did they lack anything while they were in Carmel. Ask your young men, and they will tell you. Please give whatever you can to your servants and to your son, David."

✿ When the young men delivered the message, Nabal answered harshly, "Who is David? And who is the son of Jesse? Many servants are breaking away from their masters these days. Why should I take my bread, my water, and my meat that I have slaughtered for my shearers and give it to men coming from who knows where?"

✿ The young men returned and told David what Nabal had said. David, angered, told his men, "Strap on your swords!" Four hundred men prepared for battle, while two hundred stayed behind to guard the supplies. It is wise not to act hastily or out of emotion when someone insults you. One should take time to reflect, reassess, and respond carefully. Although David was a good man who helped people, he should not have expected repayment or demanded a feast. He later appreciated Abigail's wisdom because it helped him reconsider and act in a way that pleased God.

✿ Meanwhile, one of Nabal's servants informed Abigail about the situation, explaining how David's men had been good to them, protecting them and ensuring that nothing was lost. The servant urged Abigail to act quickly because David was planning revenge against Nabal and his household. The servant also mentioned that Nabal was a foolish man who wouldn't listen to advice.

✿ Abigail quickly gathered 200 loaves of bread, two skins of wine, five prepared sheep, roasted grain, 100 clusters of raisins, and 200 cakes of pressed figs. She loaded them onto donkeys and set off to meet David, instructing her servants to go ahead of her while she followed behind. She did not inform her husband. This woman is a great example of wisdom in dealing with difficult people, especially in today's world.

✿ As she approached, David and his men were on their way to attack, saying, "I protected this man's property for nothing, and he has repaid me evil for good. May God deal with me severely if by morning I leave alive even one male of all who belong to him!"

✿ When Abigail saw David, she quickly dismounted from her donkey, bowed down before him, and said, "My lord, let the blame be on me alone. Please let your servant speak to you; listen to my words. Pay no attention to that wicked man, Nabal. He is just like his name—his name means 'Fool,' and folly goes with him. But I, your servant, did not see the men my lord sent."

✿ She pleaded with David not to shed blood in vengeance but to allow God to take care of justice. She assured David that the Lord would establish his kingdom because he fought the Lord's battles and that he should not let this act of bloodshed burden his conscience when he became king. She also asked David to remember her when God had blessed him.

✿ David thanked Abigail for her wisdom, saying, "Praise be to the Lord, the God of Israel, who has sent you to meet me today. May you be blessed for your good judgment and for keeping me from bloodshed and from avenging myself with my own hands." David accepted Abigail's gifts and listened to her advice.

✿ Abigail returned home and found Nabal feasting like a king, drunk and joyful. She wisely chose not to tell him anything that night. The next morning, when he was sober, she told him what had happened. Nabal's heart failed him, and he became paralyzed or possibly had a stroke. Ten days later, he died.

✿ When David heard of Nabal's death, he sent messengers to propose marriage to Abigail, and she accepted. She saw it as a great honor to marry a servant of God. David also married Ahinoam of Jezreel.

✿ Prayer: May the Lord give courage to all those in difficult marriages or families, helping them to endure until deliverance comes, either through the transformation of their difficult partner or by divine intervention. Those who follow God's instructions will never fail. We should always seek partnership with the One who never fails.

✿ Parents Should Seek God's Guidance:
Parents, humble your hearts before God. Begin a complete work with your children. Plead with the Lord to forgive you for neglecting His Word by failing to train your children in the way they should go. Pray for light and guidance, a tender conscience, and clear discernment to recognize your mistakes and failures. God will hear such prayers from a humble and contrite heart.

✿ Questions:

What does the name “Nabal” mean?

What did the servant tell Abigail about David?

How did Abigail use wisdom to prevent disaster in her household?

How did Nabal die?

Why is Jesus the only perfect example to follow and not David?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: 1 Samuel 25:26-28.

[26-28] “And now, my lord, as surely as the LORD your God lives and as you live, since the LORD has kept you from bloodshed and from avenging yourself with your own hands, may your enemies and all who are intent on harming my lord be like Nabal. And let this gift, which your servant has brought to my lord, be given to the men who follow you. Please forgive your servant’s presumption. The LORD your God will certainly make a lasting dynasty for my lord, because you fight the LORD’s battles, and no wrongdoing will be found in you as long as you live.”

Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father for giving us this day. Help us to have wisdom like Abigail in our speech and conduct. Keep us from being foolish like Nabal. Forgive our sins, in the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Abigail preparing a basket of food. Discuss Abigail’s virtues and the role she played as a mediator between David and Nabal. What qualities should a mediator have?

DAY 84 (March 25)

TOPIC: Saul Pursues David Again

(1 Samuel 26-28)

✿ The Ziphites went to Saul in Gibeah to please the king, even though they knew he was evil and unjust. They told him that David was hiding on the hill, so Saul set out for the wilderness of Ziph with 3,000 men. Despite being a king with power and wealth, he was consumed by jealousy and hatred. He set up camp on the hill of Hakilah, unaware that David had already sent spies to monitor his movements. David saw Saul sleeping among his troops, surrounded by his soldiers.

✿ David told Ahimelech the Hittite and Abishai, Joab's younger brother, to accompany him to Saul's camp. When they arrived, they found Saul's spear stuck into the ground near his head. Abishai whispered to David, "God has delivered your enemy into your hands today. Let me strike him with the spear—just one blow, and I won't need a second strike." But David refused, saying, "Do not destroy him, for he is the Lord's anointed. His day will come—he will die in battle or perish naturally. But I will not lift my hand against the Lord's anointed." Instead, they took Saul's spear and water jug and left without being noticed, as the Lord had caused a deep sleep to fall upon them.

✿ From a distance, David called out to Abner, Saul's commander, questioning his failure to protect the king. "You deserve death because you did not guard your master," he said. He then showed them the spear and the water jug. Saul recognized David's voice and called out, "Is that your voice, my son David?" David replied, "Yes, my lord the king." He asked why Saul was hunting him without cause and pleaded that his blood should not be shed unjustly.

✿ Saul admitted his wrongdoing, saying, "I have sinned. Come back, my son David. I will not harm you again because you considered my life precious today. I have acted foolishly and have made a terrible mistake." However, despite his words, Saul did not truly repent. We must be cautious not to repeat our mistakes even after confessing them. David returned the spear through a young man and declared that the Lord rewards righteousness and faithfulness. Saul blessed David, saying, "You will do great things and surely triumph." That was the last time they saw each other.

kill him. He thought, “The best thing I can do is escape to the Philistines, and Saul will give up searching for me.” David and his 600 men went to King Achish of Gath and stayed there. When Saul learned that David had fled to Gath, he stopped pursuing him. David asked Achish for a town to settle in rather than staying in the royal city. Achish granted him Ziklag, which later became a city of the kings of Judah. David lived there for about a year and a half, raiding the Geshurites, the Girzites, and the Amalekites. When Achish inquired about his raids, David misled him, saying he had attacked Israelite territories. Achish trusted David, believing he had completely turned against Israel and would be his servant forever.

✿ David’s situation was similar to Elijah’s when he fled to Mount Horeb because of Jezebel’s threats. Sometimes, our faith weakens, and we feel discouraged. During such moments, we should seek encouragement from others and meditate on God’s promises. “Indeed, all who desire to live a godly life in Christ Jesus will be persecuted.” (2 Timothy 3:12). When we feel hopeless, we should avoid making decisions without consulting God. We might think our choices are the best solutions, but they could be wrong if they do not align with God’s will. For example, a believer struggling to find a job might decide to migrate to a developed country. While this may not be inherently wrong, making such a decision without seeking God’s guidance can be risky. Many people who have moved abroad for financial stability have faced challenges that weakened their faith and family relationships. Therefore, no matter the situation, always consult God and be convinced of His will before taking any action. God has promised, “I will instruct you and teach you in the way you should go; I will counsel you with my loving eye on you.” (Psalm 32:8). God does not lie—He will guide you if you allow Him!

✿ The Philistines gathered their armies to fight against Israel. King Achish told David to join him in battle, and David agreed, though he was secretly troubled about fighting his own people. Meanwhile, Samuel had died, and Saul had expelled all mediums and spiritists from the land, as commanded by God. When the Philistines camped at Shunem, Saul assembled his troops at Gilboa. But when he saw the Philistine army, he was terrified. He inquired of the Lord, but God did not answer him—neither through dreams, Urim, nor prophets. In desperation, Saul asked his servants to find a woman with a familiar spirit so he could seek guidance from the dead. They found such a woman in Endor.

✿ Saul disguised himself and visited the medium at night. He said, “Consult a spirit for me and bring up the one I name.” The woman hesitated, reminding him that Saul had banned such practices, fearing it was a trap. Saul swore an oath that she would not be punished. He then requested her to summon

Samuel.

✿ It is crucial to understand that no sorcerer can bring back the dead—if they could, people would revive their loved ones. There is no such thing as a soul that exists independently outside the body. The Bible teaches that "the dust returns to the ground it came from, and the spirit returns to God who gave it." (Ecclesiastes 12:7). The body cannot function without the breath of life, and the spirit (or breath) cannot exist independently. The medium at Endor did not actually bring back Samuel. Instead, Satan's deceptive power produced a counterfeit spirit.

✿ When the woman saw the apparition, she screamed and accused Saul of deceiving her. Saul asked what she saw, and she described "a spirit coming up out of the earth" resembling an old man in a robe. Saul believed it was Samuel and bowed down in reverence. However, this was not Samuel but a demonic spirit impersonating him. The spirit rebuked Saul and declared that the kingdom had been taken from him and given to David because he had disobeyed God. Saul, already in despair, left even more confused and hopeless, realizing his relationship with God was completely broken.

✿ Many people today are deceived into believing that the dead can return as spirits. Through spiritualism, they attempt to communicate with these "souls." However, they are not speaking to their deceased loved ones but to fallen angels disguising themselves as the dead. This is how Satan continues the lie he told Eve in the Garden of Eden—that humans will not truly die (Genesis 3:1-6). Since people do die, Satan now deceives them into believing that their spirits live on in another realm. Jesus said that Satan is the father of lies (John 8:44).

✿ Those who believe in the existence of spirits that survive death are being prepared for Satan's great end-time deception. This deception will lead many astray. May God open our eyes to avoid being misled.

✿ Those Willing to Be Led Can Know God's Will
The Lord reveals His will to those who sincerely seek Him. Many people fail because they neglect the desire to know and do God's will. Instead, they remain ignorant of the truth.

✿ Questions:

Why did the Ziphites tell Saul where David was?

Why did David say Abner deserved to die?

Why did David go to Achish?

Why was Saul terrified and trembling?

Why was the “ghost of Samuel” not actually Samuel?

Why is it a sin to consult spiritists or mediums?

Why do people believe the dead visit them from hell?

What does “spiritualism” mean?

✿ May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Verse: 1 Samuel 28:7-9.

[7-9] Saul then said to his attendants, “Find me a woman who is a medium, so I may go and inquire of her.” “There is one in Endor,” they said. So Saul disguised himself, putting on other clothes, and at night he and two men went to the woman. “Consult a spirit for me,” he said, “and bring up for me the one I name.” But the woman said to him, “Surely you know what Saul has done. He has cut off the mediums and spiritists from the land. Why have you set a trap for my life to bring about my death?”

Prayer: Thank You very much for warning us about the dangers of spiritism and going to witches for help. Keep us from consulting fortune tellers who use the powers of darkness. Forgive our sins. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A play of the story of David living outside Israel. Act out how he marched with the Philistines to fight against Israel, etc. —Read 1 Samuel 27 & 28.

DAY 85 (March 26)

LESSON: The Witch of Endor

(1 Samuel 29-30)

✿ While still with the woman who had a spirit of divination in Endor, Saul was told by the spirit that appeared in the form of Samuel that the LORD would hand over Israel to the Philistines and that by the next day, he and his sons would be in the realm of the dead. Saul fell to the ground, filled with fear because of the words of the spirit and was left without strength, as he had not eaten all day and night. The woman with the spirit approached Saul, seeing that he was distressed, and urged him to eat so he could regain his strength before leaving. At first, Saul refused to eat, but his servants and the woman insisted, and he eventually listened to them. Saul got up and sat on the bed, and the woman prepared a fattened calf and baked unleavened bread, which they ate before leaving that night.

✿ It is important to understand that the one who spoke to Saul was not Samuel but Satan disguising himself as Samuel. Even today, many practice necromancy, calling upon their deceased loved ones, but it is actually Satan who appears and speaks to them. The Bible teaches that when a person dies, they are dead and await judgment. Anyone who sees or speaks with a deceased person is actually encountering a deception from Satan. Satan has the ability to perform wonders and deceive people. In some countries, such as the United States, necromancy has existed for a long time, with many priests of these practices being paid to summon spirits. If you have lost a loved one and they appear to you, know that it is a demonic deception and not your relative or friend, because the dead know nothing.

✿ Books, movies, and TV programs have perpetuated the idea that when we die, we enter a different state of consciousness. This false belief is also preached in many Christian pulpits. Even science has been involved. There are institutions in the United States working on technology they claim will allow communication with the dead, believing they are still alive in another form. Because this falsehood is so widespread, it will likely play a major role in the final events of human history. How is this lie manifested in your own culture? Why must we rely on God's Word rather than what our senses tell us?

✿ The Philistines gathered their army at Aphek while the Israelites camped by the spring in Jezreel. When the Philistine leaders passed in review, they saw David and his men marching at the rear with King Achish. The Philistine commanders questioned why the Hebrews were there. Achish responded that David, the servant of Saul, had been with him for a long time and that he had found no fault in him. However, the Philistine leaders were angry, fearing David might betray them in battle to win back Saul's favor.

✿ They reminded Achish that David was a great warrior, as people had sung that Saul had slain thousands while David had slain tens of thousands. Although Achish trusted David and saw no wrongdoing in him, he had to send him back because the Philistine leaders did not want him in battle. Achish told David he was honorable, but he had to leave early in the morning. David questioned why he could not fight against Israel's enemies, but Achish insisted that while David was trustworthy, the commanders had made their decision. So David and his men left at dawn.

✿ Like us, David made mistakes. Sometimes he won battles by trusting in God, and at other times he failed because he did not trust in Him. But the Lord is merciful to those who give their hearts to Him. God can rescue even those who have put themselves in difficult situations due to their own mistakes. No matter what troubles or trials you face, tell your concerns to the Lord, and

He will strengthen your soul. The more you acknowledge your weakness and dependence on Him, the stronger you will become in His power. The heavier your burdens, the greater the blessing when you cast them upon the Lord, who is our burden-bearer.

✿ David and his men traveled back to Ziklag, only to find that the Amalekites had raided and burned the city, taking their wives and children captive. David and his men wept until they had no strength left. Even David's two wives had been taken. The men were so bitter that they talked of stoning David. But David found strength in the LORD. He sought guidance from the priest Abiathar, asking if he should pursue the raiders. The LORD told him to go after them, promising that he would overtake them and recover everything.

✿ David set out with 600 men but left 200 behind at the Besor Ravine because they were too exhausted. They found an Egyptian man in the field who had not eaten for three days. They gave him food and water, reviving him. He revealed that he was a servant of an Amalekite who had abandoned him when he fell ill. He admitted that they had raided the Negev and burned Ziklag. When David asked if he could lead them to the raiders, the Egyptian agreed, provided that David swore not to kill him or return him to his master.

✿ The Egyptian led them to the Amalekite camp, where they found them celebrating with their plunder. David and his men attacked and fought them from dusk until the following evening, killing all except 400 young men who fled on camels. They rescued all the captives, including David's wives, and recovered all the stolen goods.

✿ When they returned, some of the 400 men did not want to share the plunder with the 200 who had stayed behind. But David insisted that everyone should share equally because the victory had come from the LORD. He established a law in Israel that those who remained behind to guard supplies would receive the same share as those who went into battle.

✿ Questions:

Many fail to make clear plans for their future. Their lives are unsettled, and they do not recognize the consequences of their actions, which often fills them with anxiety and confusion. We must remember that the lives of God's children in this world are a pilgrimage—we are travelers passing through. We do not have the wisdom to plan our own lives. It is not up to us to shape our future. By faith, Abraham obeyed when called to go to a land God promised him, even though he did not know where he was going (Hebrews 11:8).

1. Why was the spirit that appeared to Saul through the witch of Endor not truly Samuel?
2. How did God save David from fighting against Israel?
3. What did Achish say to David?
4. How did the Egyptian help David's army?
5. What law about sharing plunder was established in Israel?

May God Bless You, Child and Young Servant of Jesus

Key Verse: 1 Samuel 30:4-6.

[4-6] Then David and the men with him wept aloud until they had no strength left to weep. David's two wives had been captured—Ahinoam of Jezreel and Abigail, the widow of Nabal of Carmel. David was greatly distressed because the men were talking of stoning him; each one was bitter in spirit because of his sons and daughters. But David found strength in the LORD his God.

Prayer: Father, thank You for David's life, because we have learned many lessons from him. Help us to find strength in You, Lord, when things seem bitter and difficult. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Discuss—What is spiritism? Are there people today who practice spiritism? Why should people not go to witches? What does the Bible say about spiritism? Should we watch movies or videos about spiritism? Read the book The Great Controversy, chapter 34 on spiritualism. This book is available at MaarifaMtandaoni.com.

DAY 86 (March 27)

LESSON: Satan's Deceptions

(1 Samuel 29-30)

✿ According to the Bible, when a person dies, they cannot communicate with the living or return to their home (Job 7:8-10). Speaking to the dead is not a biblical teaching. The Bible states that the living know they will die, but the dead know nothing; they have no further reward, and their memory is forgotten (Ecclesiastes 9:5,10). When someone dies, they do not immediately go to heaven but remain in the grave until Jesus returns to resurrect them.

✿ Many believe that spirits of the dead remain conscious and can interact with the living, but this is a deception from Satan. Only Jesus and Moses have been raised to heaven, and only Enoch and Elijah were taken there without experiencing death.

✿ We must reject divination, spirit mediums, and occult practices. Instead, we should seek guidance from God directly through prayer and His Word. May God keep us safe in His truth.

✿ Questions:

1. Can we talk to the dead?
2. Where does a person go when they die?
3. Can a soul exist without a body?
4. Why will graves open when Jesus returns?

May God bless you abundantly, Child and Young Servant of Jesus

Key Verse: Deuteronomy 18:10-12.

[10-12] Let no one be found among you who sacrifices their son or daughter in the fire, who practices divination or sorcery, interprets omens, engages in witchcraft, or casts spells, or who is a medium or spiritist or who consults the dead. Anyone who does these things is detestable to the LORD; because of these same detestable practices the LORD your God will drive out those nations before you.

Prayer: Lord, thank You for this day. I pray that You protect me and my family from being involved in any works of darkness, as declared in today's key verse. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: List remedies where powers of darkness may be involved, and which we must avoid completely—examples: astrologers, fortune tellers, witches, chakras, yoga, ayurvedic, reiki, hypnotism, spiritism, New Age, Jungian psychology, mesmerism, magnetism, ouija board, and other Eastern remedies. Discuss that the spiritual foundation of remedies like Ayurvedic comes from the Hindu religion, which has many gods and idols. Ayurvedic medicine is said to be revealed by gods and expressed through meditation—not meditation on Scripture! Some practices may look spiritual but contain elements contrary to the Bible, for example "New Age." But some herbal and plant remedies may be helpful.

DAY 87 (March 28)

TOPIC: The Death of Saul

(1 Samuel 30-32, 2 Samuel 1-3, 1 Chronicles 10)

✿The Philistines fought against Israel, and the Israelites fled before them, with many falling dead on Mount Gilboa. Since Saul was a tall man, the Philistines easily spotted him, pursued him, and killed him along with his sons Jonathan, Abinadab, and Malkishua. The battle grew fierce against Saul, and archers wounded him severely. Saul, realizing his dire condition, asked his armor-bearer to kill him to avoid being mocked and tortured by the uncircumcised Philistines. However, the armor-bearer refused, fearing to kill the king or the Lord's anointed. So Saul took his sword and fell on it, committing suicide. He knew that if the Philistines captured him, they would likely torture him brutally. When the armor-bearer saw that his master was dead, he also took his sword and fell on it, dying with Saul. In those days, if you were assigned to protect the king and he died, you had to die with him, as it would be seen that you failed in your duty. Thus, Saul and his three sons died on the same day.

When the Israelites on the other side of the Jordan saw that their army had fled, they too abandoned their cities, allowing the Philistines to move in and occupy them.

✿The next day, as the Philistines were looting the bodies, they found Saul and his sons lying dead on Mount Gilboa. They cut off Saul's head, stripped him of his armor, and sent word to their people and their gods. They placed his armor in the temples of their gods and hung his body for display. This was a disgrace because birds and wild animals could come and devour the bodies.

When the people of Jabesh-Gilead heard what had been done to Saul, their brave men traveled all night, retrieved the bodies of Saul and his sons, buried them, and fasted for seven days. Truly, obedience is better than sacrifice; when we sin, we should repent and turn away from our evil ways. Saul did not do this—he cried and showed regret but continued in his wickedness. The Bible states that he died because he failed to keep the word of the Lord. So Saul was killed, and the kingdom was given to David.

At the end of time, there will be only two choices: either telling God, "Let Your will be done," or Him telling us, "Let your will be done." Which one will you choose?

✿David waited patiently, hiding in caves and enduring many dangers. After Saul's death, a man came from Saul's camp to David in Ziklag with torn clothes and dust on his head, showing signs of mourning. When he reached David, he fell to the ground and paid homage. David asked him where he had come from, and he replied that he had escaped from the battle. When David asked about the outcome, the man reported that many had fled and died, including Saul and his son Jonathan.

David asked him how he knew that Saul was dead. The young man then lied, thinking he would be rewarded. He claimed that he was on Mount Gilboa and saw Saul leaning on his spear while enemy chariots closed in on him. When Saul looked back and saw him, he called him over.

✿The man said he identified himself as an Amalekite. Saul then allegedly asked him to kill him since he was in great distress and mortally wounded. The Amalekite claimed he complied, knowing Saul could not survive, and took the crown and bracelet from Saul's body to bring to David. He thought David would praise him for killing his enemy and might even reward him with a government position. However, he did not realize that David, despite all the wrongs Saul had done to him, would never lay a hand on the Lord's anointed.

This man was lying because Saul had actually killed himself with his own sword. This teaches us that lying is never good. David tore his clothes in mourning, as did all his men, and they fasted until evening for Saul, his son Jonathan, the Lord's people, and the house of Israel.

✿David then asked the young man where he was from, and when he admitted he was an Amalekite, David questioned why he was not afraid to kill the Lord's anointed. David then ordered one of his men to strike him down, and he was executed. David told him, "Your blood is on your own head, for you testified against yourself by saying, 'I killed the Lord's anointed.'"

David mourned for Saul and Jonathan with this lament:
"How the mighty have fallen!"
"Do not announce it in Gath, lest the daughters of the Philistines rejoice."
"Saul and Jonathan—loved and admired in life—were not separated in death; they were swifter than eagles, stronger than lions."
"Daughters of Israel, weep for Saul, who clothed you in luxurious scarlet and adorned your garments with gold."
"I grieve for you, my brother Jonathan; you were very dear to me. Your love for me was wonderful, more than the love of women."
"How the mighty have fallen, and the weapons of war perished!"

✿Saul could have been a great king. He had many good qualities, but he lacked obedience to God, and jealousy ruined his life. This jealousy led to tormenting spirits that afflicted him. Since he stopped obeying God, he sought counsel from dark forces instead of divine guidance.

On the other hand, David showed kindness even to his enemies and did not rejoice over Saul's death.

✿David sought guidance from the Lord, asking whether he should go to any city of Judah. The Lord told him to go, and when he asked which city, God directed him to Hebron. So David moved there with his two wives and his followers, settling in the city. The men of Judah then anointed him as their king for seven years.

David sent a message to the people of Jabesh-Gilead, thanking them for their kindness in burying Saul. He prayed that the Lord would bless and strengthen them.

✿Meanwhile, Abner, the commander of Saul's army, took Ishbosheth, Saul's son, and made him king over the other tribes of Israel. Now there were two kings—David over Judah and Ishbosheth over the rest of Israel. Ishbosheth reigned for two years, but the tribe of Judah followed David.

Joab, David's army commander, met Abner at the pool of Gibeon. Joab suggested a contest between their young men, so twelve from each side engaged in combat. They killed each other, and a battle ensued, with David's men emerging victorious.

Violent games have existed for centuries, and even today, we must be cautious. Some sports, like football and boxing, promote aggression and a lack of concern for human life.

✿Some sports have become forms of idol worship, encouraging laziness and a reluctance to work. Entertainment that begins as innocent fun can turn into dangerous obsessions.

✿Abner fled, and Asahel, Joab's brother, pursued him. Abner warned him to turn back, but Asahel refused, so Abner killed him. Joab and Abishai then chased Abner for revenge. As the sun set, Abner pleaded for peace, and Joab sounded the trumpet, halting the pursuit.

The battle claimed 19 of Joab's men and 360 of Abner's. Asahel was buried in Hebron. War continued between Saul's house and David's, but David grew stronger while Saul's house weakened.

✿The surrounding nations recognized that God was with David. True success comes from obeying God and seeking His guidance. Many fail because they plan without God. Trust in His leadership—He never misguides His children.

✿Discussion Questions:
Who died with Saul?
What reward did David give the men of Jabesh-Gilead?
Why was Ishbosheth afraid to respond to Abner?
Why did Joab and Abishai chase Abner?
Why did the Amalekite youth lie?
How can modern sports promote selfishness, destruction, and sin?
What lessons can we learn from Saul's tragic downfall?

May God Bless You, Child and Young Person of Jesus

Key Verse: 1 Samuel 24:10.

[10] This day you have seen with your own eyes how the LORD delivered you into my hands in the cave. Some urged me to kill you, but I spared you; I said, 'I will not lay my hand on my lord, because he is the LORD's anointed.'

Prayer: Our Father in heaven, guide us with Your wisdom to respect the leaders You have appointed over us, and not to raise our hands against them. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Discuss violent games, competitive games, or games that involve cheating in order to win. Reflect on the game that Abner and his men played against Joab and his men. What games today resemble this, and which should we avoid as people living in the last days?

DAY 88 (March 29)

TOPIC: David Rules Over Hebron and All Israel

(2 Samuel 3-5)

✿ Knowing that David was loved by the people and was the Lord's chosen one, Abner sent messengers to David, saying, "My hand will be with you to bring all Israel to you." David agreed, but on the condition that his first wife, Michal, Saul's daughter, be returned to him. David then sent a message to Ishbosheth, demanding Michal, whom he had married by paying a bride price. Ishbosheth took her from Paltiel, her second husband, who followed her weeping until Abner told him to return, and he did.

✿ Abner advised the elders of Israel to make David their king, as they had previously desired. He reminded them that the Lord had said, "By the hand of my servant David, I will save my people Israel from the Philistines and all their enemies." Abner spoke to the Benjamites and the Israelites, then went to David for a feast and promised to gather all Israel under David's rule. David, showing a forgiving heart despite what Saul and Abner had done to him, made peace with Abner, who left in peace.

✿ However, Joab, David's army commander, returned from battle and heard about Abner's meeting with David. He accused Abner of deceit, claiming he only wanted to spy on David. Joab secretly lured Abner aside and stabbed him in the stomach, killing him to avenge his brother Asahel. David, shocked and unaware of Joab's plan, declared, "I and my kingdom are forever innocent before the Lord concerning the blood of Abner, son of Ner. May the guilt fall on Joab and his family."

✿ David ordered Joab and his men to mourn Abner by tearing their clothes, wearing sackcloth, and lamenting him. Abner was buried in Hebron, and David wept at his grave, saying, "Should Abner have died like a fool? Your hands were not bound, nor your feet in chains; as one falls before the wicked, so you fell." The people mourned, and David refused to eat until sunset, proving his sincerity in mourning.

✿ Ishbosheth, Saul's son and the king appointed by Abner, lost courage upon Abner's death, and his followers fled. Jonathan's son, Mephibosheth, was five years old when his father and grandfather died. His nurse fled with him, but he fell and became lame.

✿ Ishbosheth, who ruled for two years, was later murdered by Rekab and Baanah while resting at noon. They entered his house under the pretense of collecting grain and stabbed him in the stomach, then brought his head to David, expecting a reward. They said, "Here is the head of Ishbosheth, son of Saul, your enemy, who sought your life. The Lord has avenged my lord the king this day." However, David, remembering how he had executed the man who claimed to have killed Saul, condemned Rekab and Baanah, executing them for killing an innocent man in his own bed. Ishbosheth was buried in Abner's tomb in Hebron.

✿ Unlike the time of the judges, when there was no political struggle for power, the monarchy brought violence, assassinations, and power struggles.

✿ All the tribes of Israel came to David in Hebron, acknowledging that they were his flesh and blood. Even during Saul's reign, David had led Israel in battle. The elders made a covenant with David, anointed him, and made him king over all Israel. David was 30 years old when he began his reign, ruling for 40 years—7 years in Hebron and 33 years in Jerusalem. He was crowned twice.

✿ David and his men then attacked the Jebusites and captured their stronghold, which became the City of David, also known as Zion or Jerusalem. David declared that whoever struck the Jebusites first would be the army commander, and Joab, son of Zeruiah, won the position. David grew in power because the Lord of Hosts was with him.

✿ King Hiram of Tyre sent messengers, cedar wood, carpenters, and masons to build David a house. Hiram became David's ally, recognizing that the Lord had established David's rule for the sake of His people, Israel.

✿ When the Philistines came to fight against David, he inquired of the Lord, "Shall I go up against the Philistines?" The Lord answered, "Go, for I will surely deliver them into your hands." David defeated them and declared, "The Lord has burst forth against my enemies before me like a flood." The Philistines abandoned their idols, and David and his men removed them.

✿ The Philistines returned for another battle, and David again sought the Lord's guidance. This time, God told him not to attack directly but to circle behind them and strike near the mulberry trees. David obeyed and won the battle once more.

✿ In times of sorrow and confusion, David strengthened himself in the Lord. He sought divine guidance, and the Lord led him to victory. We must learn to trust in God's promises during hardships. The Lord has said, "When you pass through the waters, I will be with you; when you go through the rivers, they shall not overwhelm you. When you walk through fire, you shall not be burned, and the flames shall not consume you." We should not lose heart and forget this promise, for remembering and claiming it is the first step to finding a way out of difficulties or enduring them with courage.

✿ Christ never devised His own plans but followed the Father's will. Each day, God revealed His plans for Him. Likewise, we must depend on God so that our lives may align with His will. When we commit our ways to Him, He will direct our steps.

✿ Questions:
Why did Abner go to David?
Why was Paltiel deprived of his wife?
Why did Joab kill Abner?
What can we learn about Joab's character?
How many years did David reign?
Why do many people fail to seek God's counsel as David did?
Research about mulberry trees, a type of fig tree that grows in Africa. These healthy fruits are also used to feed silkworms for producing silk.

May God Bless You, Child and Young Person of Jesus 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Key Verse: 2 Samuel 3:33-34.

[33-34] "Should Abner have died as the lawless die? Your hands were not bound, your feet were not fettered. You fell as one falls before the wicked." And all the people wept over him again.

Prayer: Our Father in heaven, thank You for this day. We ask You to keep us from harming others, protect us from all evil, including competitive games, and give us true love for others. In Jesus' Name.

Activity: Discuss 2 Samuel 2—David's anointing. 2 Samuel 5:1-5. Jeremiah 23:5-6. If possible, do a play. Pray for leaders, the blessings of anointing, and leadership. 1 Timothy 2:1-7.

DAY 89 (March 30)

TOPIC: The Ark of the LORD Returns

(2 Samuel 6-7)

✿ David continued to grow in greatness because the LORD of Hosts was with him. He gathered 30,000 men and went with them to bring up the Ark of God, which is called by the Name—the Name of the LORD of Hosts, who dwells between the cherubim. They placed the Ark of the LORD on a new cart and took it from the house of Abinadab, which was on a hill. The Ark had stayed there for many years since the time of Eli. Uzzah and Ahio, the sons of Abinadab, guided the new cart. Ahio went ahead, and David and all the house of Israel played music before the LORD with all their might, using songs, harps, lyres, tambourines, and cymbals.

When they reached the threshing floor of Nachon, Uzzah stretched out his hand to steady the Ark because the oxen had stumbled. Then the LORD's anger burned against Uzzah, and He struck him down for his error, and he died there beside the Ark of God. Many have questioned why Uzzah was killed, but the instructions for carrying the Ark had been given and followed for over 400 years. David was distressed by God's wrath on Uzzah, and he feared the LORD that day, saying, "How can the Ark of the LORD come to me?" He refused to bring the Ark to his city and instead placed it in the house of Obed-Edom the Gittite for three months. The LORD blessed Obed-Edom and his entire household. Today, we too can be blessed like Obed-Edom if we are generous and diligent in the things of God.

✿ When David heard about the blessings Obed-Edom received because of the Ark of God, he went and brought it to the City of David with great rejoicing. He offered sacrifices and celebrated before the LORD with all his might while wearing a linen ephod. They brought the Ark with joy and the sound of the trumpet. When it entered the City of David, Michal, his first wife, looked out of the window, saw King David leaping and dancing before the LORD, and despised him in her heart.

They placed the Ark in the tent David had prepared, and he offered burnt offerings and peace offerings before the LORD. He blessed the people in the Name of the LORD of Hosts and gave each one a loaf of bread, a portion of meat, and a cake of raisins. Then everyone went home, and David returned to his household. However, Michal came out to meet him and mocked him, saying, “How distinguished the king of Israel looked today, uncovering himself before the servant girls like a common person!”

✿ David explained to his wife the joy and gratitude in his heart, saying, “It was before the LORD, who chose me over your father and his whole house, to make me ruler over the people of the LORD, over Israel; therefore, I will celebrate before the LORD. I will humble myself even more, and I will be honored by the servant girls you speak of.” Because of her attitude, Michal had no children until the day of her death. This is a lesson for those who mock or despise someone for praising or testifying before the LORD. We should never think we are too dignified to give testimony before others! David often said, “I will praise You before the people!” Praising or thanking God privately is important, but doing it publicly is also essential! The Bible says, “They overcame him by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony” (Revelation 12:11).

✿ When the king had settled in his house, free from his enemies, he told the prophet Nathan, “I live in a house of cedar, but the Ark of God remains in a tent.” He expressed his desire to build a temple, and Nathan saw no reason to stop him, telling him, “Do whatever is in your heart, for the LORD is with you.” However, that night, the LORD spoke to Nathan, saying, “Tell My servant David, ‘Thus says the LORD: Will you build Me a house to dwell in? For I have not dwelled in a house from the time I brought Israel out of Egypt until today, but I have moved in a tent and tabernacle.’”

✿ The LORD reminded David that He had never asked any of Israel’s judges or leaders to build Him a house. He said, “I took you from the pasture, from tending the flock, to be ruler over My people Israel. I have been with you wherever you went, and I have cut off all your enemies from before you. I will make your name great, like the greatest men on earth. I will give you rest from all your enemies.”

He continued, “I will establish your dynasty, and one of your descendants will build a house for My Name. I will establish his throne forever. I will be his Father, and he will be My son. If he sins, I will discipline him with the rod of men and the blows of human hands. But My mercy will not depart from him as I took it from Saul. Your house and kingdom will endure forever before Me; your throne will be established forever.” Let us believe that God is our Father, and we are His children! Rejoice in that truth!

✿ David sat before the LORD and gave thanks, saying, “Who am I, O LORD God, and what is my family, that You have brought me this far? You have spoken about the future of my house, and I am overwhelmed.” He praised the LORD, saying, “What nation on earth is like Your people Israel, whom God went out to redeem for Himself?” David often sang praises and wrote psalms, saying, “Better is one day in Your courts than a thousand elsewhere.”

David realized that because he had shed much blood and been a man of war, he would not build the temple, but his son Solomon, who would reign in peace, would do so. David then began collecting materials and drawing up plans for the temple.

✿ God kept His covenant with David, and his house was blessed forever through the Messiah. Jesus fulfilled the promise, establishing David’s kingdom forever. How wonderful it is to sit and talk with the LORD as David did! We too can have sweet conversations with Him, and He will establish our households forever. The promises made to David are also ours! We do not need a grand temple to worship, but we must prepare our hearts for worship. How do you prepare yourself?

David, Solomon’s father, asked, “Who may ascend the hill of the LORD? Who may stand in His holy place? He who has clean hands and a pure heart, who does not lift up his soul to an idol or swear deceitfully” (Psalm 24:3-4).

✿ We know the spiritual state of the world today and what God has sent us to do. We have put our hands on the plow to work for Him. We face opposition of all kinds, but we must not look back, be hindered, or be distracted. God is with us and will make us successful in His work. Saul and other enemies of our time have no part or right in the mission we have been given. Therefore, let us press on as soldiers of Christ!

✿ If you have dedicated yourself to serving God, you do not need to worry about tomorrow. He, whom you serve, knows the end from the beginning. The events of tomorrow, which are hidden from your eyes, are clear to Him, the Almighty.

✿ Questions:

1. The Ark of the Covenant stayed with two people. Who were they?
2. Why was Uzzah killed?
3. Why did Michal have no children?
4. Why did God tell David that his son would build the temple?
5. How can we talk to the LORD today?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: 2 Samuel 6:6-7.

[6-7] When they came to the threshing floor of Nakon, Uzzah reached out and took hold of the ark of God, because the oxen stumbled. The LORD's anger burned against Uzzah because of his irreverent act; therefore God struck him down, and he died there beside the ark of God.

Prayer: Our Father in heaven, thank You for Your commands about the holiness of Your possessions and the order of worship. Help us to respect what is sacred. Teach us reverence in worship. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Reflect on David's words in 2 Samuel 7:18-29 after the LORD spoke to him in 2 Samuel 7:5-17.

DAY 90 (March 31)

TOPIC: Repaying Kindness Through Mephibosheth

(2 Samuel 8-10)

✿ David continued to conquer various lands. He defeated Gath and Moab, making them his servants who brought him gifts. He captured 1,700 horsemen and 20,000 foot soldiers from the king of Zobah. David also defeated the Arameans of Damascus, placing garrisons there, and took gold and bronze spoils, dedicating them to the Lord. He conquered the Edomites, Philistines, Ammonites, Amalekites, and others. The Lord gave David victory wherever he went. Similarly, God can help us succeed and live righteous lives, overcoming sin in every situation. Isn't that something to smile about?

✿ David ruled Israel and administered justice to his people. Joab was his army commander, Ahilud was the record keeper, Zadok and Ahimelech were priests, Benaiah was his envoy, and his sons were advisors in his kingdom.

✿ David sought to know if there was anyone left in Saul's house to whom he could show kindness for Jonathan's sake. Ziba, a servant of Saul, was called, and he informed David that Jonathan had a son who was lame in both feet. David asked where he was, and Mephibosheth, Jonathan's son, who was staying with Makir, was brought before him. When Mephibosheth arrived, he fell face down and bowed before David. The king reassured him, saying, "Do not be afraid, for I will surely show you kindness for the sake of your father, Jonathan." David restored all of Saul's lands to him and invited him to dine at the royal table forever.

✿ In humility, knowing this was great mercy, especially considering his grandfather Saul's schemes, Mephibosheth responded, "Who am I, your servant, that you should notice a dead dog like me?" David then instructed Ziba to manage the land for Mephibosheth, farming and harvesting for him.

Ziba agreed, and Mephibosheth lived at the king's table as one of his own sons. He also had a son named Micah. What a wonderful thing it is not to forget kindness shown to us! Mephibosheth must have been overjoyed—wouldn't you be, if you were invited to live in the palace and dine with the king because of your father's friendship?

✿ The king of Ammon, who had good relations with David, died, and his son Hanun succeeded him. David, being a kind-hearted person, decided to send a message of comfort to Hanun over his father's death. However, some people repay good with evil. It's important to be aware of this so as not to be discouraged. When David's messengers arrived in Ammon, Hanun's advisors convinced him that they were spies sent to overthrow the city. As a result, Hanun humiliated them by shaving off half of their beards, cutting their clothes in half, and sending them away in disgrace.

✿ When David heard what had happened, he instructed the men to stay in Jericho until their beards grew back before returning home. Realizing that they had provoked David, the Ammonites hired mercenaries from the Arameans and other nations to defend themselves. David sent Joab and his mighty warriors to confront them. Joab, seeing that the enemy had surrounded him from the front and the rear, strategized with his brother Abishai: "If the Arameans are too strong for me, come and help me. If the Ammonites are too strong for you, I will come to help you. Let us be courageous for our people and for the cities of our God."

✿ The Arameans fled before Joab, and when the Ammonites saw their hired mercenaries retreat, they also ran away. Realizing their defeat, these kings made peace with Israel and became their subjects. The Arameans, having learned their lesson, never helped the Ammonites again. What foolishness it is to repay kindness with hostility, only to end up being subjugated instead of building friendship and remaining free! Sin makes us slaves to the devil and to other people.

✿ Nothing can destroy God's plans. He is all-powerful, and no force can overthrow His will. No one can ruin what God has ordained for His children. David eventually took the position God had planned for him and showed kindness to Saul's household. However, one must wait for God's appointed time for His plans to unfold. David had to wait seven and a half years after Saul's death to become king over all Israel.

✿ God is the one who avenges wrongs done to His people, as He says in Romans 12:19: "Beloved, do not avenge yourselves, but leave room for God's wrath, for it is written: 'Vengeance is mine; I will repay,' says the Lord." Our duty is to love and pray for our enemies and their descendants. Loving them does not mean having warm feelings toward their wrongdoings, but choosing to do good despite our negative emotions about them. The love that the Bible teaches is a principle, not an emotion. Let us pray for the ability to love our enemies unconditionally so that we may be children of our Father in heaven, who causes His sun to rise on the evil and the good, and sends rain on the righteous and the unrighteous (Matthew 5:45).

✿ When we take matters into our own hands, relying on our own wisdom for success, we burden ourselves with a weight God never intended for us. We assume a responsibility that belongs to God, essentially placing ourselves in His position (God Syndrome). This can lead to anxiety and worry, which can bring real harm upon us. But when we fully trust that God loves us and has a purpose for our good, we will no longer worry about the future. We will trust God like a child trusts a loving parent. Then, our struggles and suffering will fade away, as our will is surrendered to God's will.

✿ Questions for Reflection:

1. How can the Lord give us victory wherever we go, just as He did for David?
2. How did David repay kindness to Jonathan?
3. How did Hanun cause conflict?
4. How did Mephibosheth become crippled?
5. Examine your life—how does sin make you a slave?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus! 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Memory Verse: 2 Samuel 8:6 and Acts 13:22.

[22]…… And the Lord gave David victory everywhere he went. ……I have found David the son of Jesse, a man after My own heart; he will do everything I want him to do.'

Prayer: Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. I pray for victory everywhere I go in doing Your will. Make my heart delight in You. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A play of King Hanun disgracing David's messengers. Or draw a picture of Mephibosheth, add crutches by the table, and plenty of food to show David's generosity.

DAY 91 (April 1)

TOPIC: The Great Sin of David

(2 Samuel 11)

✿ David stopped going to war and instead sent Joab. They fought against the Ammonites and won. Until this point, David was known for good deeds, but when he stayed in Jerusalem, he became idle, even sleeping during the day and walking on the roof of his palace. He was loved by both the people and God, winning battles and administering justice. God had exalted him, making him ruler from Egypt to the Euphrates River.

An idle mind is the devil's workshop, keeping us occupied with his traps. Since David's palace had an upper floor, he could see the people below. One day, while walking on the roof, he saw a very beautiful woman bathing. It seems that in those days, people had open-air bathing places, which could be seen from above. David was filled with desire and inquired about her. He was told her name was Bathsheba, the wife of Uriah the Hittite, one of his loyal soldiers. Uriah was a converted Hittite who had chosen to follow the God of Israel.

Despite knowing she was married, David sent messengers to bring Bathsheba to him, and he slept with her. Then she returned home. From this, we learn the importance of guarding our hearts—what we see, hear, touch, smell, and where we go. The Israelites had morning and evening worship to help guard their hearts. If we do not have personal worship in the morning and evening and focus on God throughout the day, we may fall into temptation.

After some time, Bathsheba realized she was pregnant and sent a message to David. He then tried to cover up his sin by making it appear that the child belonged to Uriah. David summoned Uriah from the battlefield, pretending to ask about the war, and then told him to go home and rest. However, Uriah, being a loyal and disciplined soldier, slept at the palace entrance with the other servants instead of going home.

David was informed that Uriah had not gone home. When questioned, Uriah responded, “The Ark, Israel, and Judah are camping in the open fields, and my master Joab and the soldiers are at war—how can I go home to eat, drink, and sleep with my wife? As surely as you live, I will not do such a thing.”

David kept Uriah in Jerusalem for another day, giving him food and getting him drunk, hoping he would go home, but Uriah still did not. Seeing that his plan had failed, David wrote a letter to Joab instructing him to place Uriah at the front lines where the battle was fiercest and then withdraw so he would be struck down and killed. Joab followed the order, and Uriah was killed along with other soldiers.

Joab sent a report to David, saying, “Your servant Uriah the Hittite is dead.” David responded coldly, saying, “Do not let this trouble you; the sword devours one as well as another. Continue the battle and overthrow the city.”

When Bathsheba finished mourning for her husband, David brought her to the palace and made her his wife. By doing this, David acted like a king of a nation that did not know God. It is easy to become arrogant and forget that we were once poor when we gain wealth and success.

David truly loved God—he was even called “a man after God’s own heart.” The Bible tells both the good and bad about people. If we were to write about our loved ones, we would make them look good, but the Bible tells the truth to teach us lessons. Although God is merciful, sin has consequences. When we repent and forsake our sins, He forgives us completely, but discipline follows.

David thought everything was settled, but the thing he had done displeased the Lord.

The Bible records the sins of even the greatest leaders in history. Their mistakes are not hidden but written truthfully, along with the consequences that followed. These stories serve as warnings to future generations, showing that God’s Word is true, faithful, and accurate. God does not cover up people’s sins, no matter who they are, because He wants both the sinner and the reader to learn and hate sin.

These men were tempted by Satan, and their weaknesses and sins are openly recorded, along with the reproof and discipline they received. These things were written for our warning because we are living in the last days.

God did not allow the Bible to be filled with praises of people's goodness without also recording their failures. All victories and good deeds were attributed to God alone. Man was merely an instrument—weak in himself. All strength and excellence came from God.

God foresaw that people would be tempted to worship man rather than the Creator, so He made sure history told the whole truth.

✿ Questions:

Why did Joab, the commander, agree to help his cousin David kill Uriah?

Why didn't Bathsheba refuse to go to the king?

Why did Uriah refuse to go home?

List the commandments David broke.

Why is giving someone alcohol a sin?

Why does the Bible record both the good and bad things about its heroes?

Examine your own life—what hidden sins do you need to confess?

Why is the Bible the only biography that tells the whole truth?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Proverbs 4:22,23.

[22,23] Guard your heart above all else, for it is the wellspring of life. Put away perversity from your mouth; keep corrupt talk far from your lips.

Prayer: Be glorified Lord our King, we have seen that even heroes like David fall into sin. Help us to ask for forgiveness when we sin and to guard the wellsprings of life that flow from our hearts. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Consider that even heroes like David sinned and made mistakes.

Discuss the difference between making a mistake and committing sin.

Confession of Sin: Talk about how David later acknowledged his sin and prayed for forgiveness from God.

Consequences: Explain that even after asking for forgiveness, people may still face the results of their wrong actions.

God's Forgiveness: Teach that God forgives those who repent and that we can have hope in His mercy.

Important Note: explain things according to age, but do not omit them. Simplify by explaining that marriage is between one man and one woman. Remember to simplify language for younger children while keeping the main theme of good and evil, mistakes and forgiveness.

Help children understand that this story is about corrupt or wicked people.

DAY 92 (April 1)

TOPIC: David's Punishment

(2 Samuel 12)

You might think that David had everything. The Bible says that godliness with contentment is great gain because we came into the world with nothing and will leave with nothing. Often, when we are poor, we think that we would act differently if we were rich. However, a poor person can have even more greed than a rich person, but the opportunity to fulfill their desires has not yet come. We must remember that to whom much is given, much is required.

David was not only a king but also a prophet of God and His servant. However, he gave the enemies of the LORD a great opportunity to blaspheme. The Psalms contain many prophecies about the Messiah. David spoke in great detail about God's commandments in Psalm 119, yet now he had broken all of them! No one likes to tell this story, but it must be told as a lesson to us. He had brought darkness upon Israel and his household.

Then the LORD sent the prophet Nathan to David and told him a parable about two men in a city. One was rich, and the other was poor. The rich man had many cattle and sheep, while the poor man had nothing except one small lamb, which he had bought and raised. The lamb grew up with him like his own child, ate his food, drank from his cup, and even slept in his arms—it was like a daughter to him.

I can imagine how many children in Western countries sleep with their pets, such as cats, dogs, or lambs, showing love for them, just like this man did. The prophet Nathan continued: one day, the rich man received a visitor. Instead of taking one of his own sheep to prepare a meal for his guest, he took the poor man's lamb, slaughtered it, and served it.

As soon as Nathan finished the story, David, known as a man of justice, became furious and said, "As surely as the LORD lives, the man who did this deserves to die! He must pay back four times the value of the lamb because he had no pity." Then Nathan courageously pointed out David's sin, saying, "You are that man!"

Nathan reminded David that the LORD had anointed him as king, saved him from Saul, given him a kingdom, wives, Judah, and Israel. If all that had not been enough, God would have given him more if he had asked. Yet, David had despised the word of the LORD and done what was evil in His sight. He had killed Uriah the Hittite with a sword and taken his wife. Because of this, the sword would never depart from David's house, as he had despised the LORD.

The LORD also told David that calamity would arise from within his own house—others would take his wives publicly. "What you did in secret, I will do in broad daylight before all Israel." David immediately repented and admitted his sin, saying, "I have sinned against the LORD." Seeing his sincere repentance, Nathan told him, "The LORD has taken away your sin; you will not die." Had David denied his sin and refused to repent, he would have been destroyed.

Nathan left, and David mourned, fasting from morning until night, lying on the ground, because he was told that the child born from his sin with Bathsheba would die. The elders of the palace tried to comfort him, but he refused to eat or get up.

On the seventh day, the child died. The servants were afraid to tell David, thinking he would be even more distressed. But he noticed them whispering and realized the child had died. Then he got up, washed, anointed himself, changed his clothes, went into the house of the LORD, and worshiped. When they gave him food, he ate. The servants were surprised, and David explained, "While the child was alive, I fasted and wept, hoping the LORD would be merciful and let him live. But now that he is dead, why should I fast? Can I bring him back? I will go to him, but he will not return to me."

David also comforted his wife, Bathsheba. After the child died, they had another son and named him Solomon. This was the son who inherited the throne, and the LORD loved Solomon. David entrusted him to the prophet Nathan, who named him Jedidiah, meaning "Beloved of the LORD."

God wants us to repent. "Create in me a clean heart." This is the foundation of Christian character, for "out of the heart flow the issues of life." If ministers and believers alike ensured that their hearts were right with God, we would see greater results in the work of the Lord. The greater your responsibility, the more important it is to have a pure heart. The grace needed is provided, and the power of the Holy Spirit will work through every effort made in this direction.

If every child of God sought Him diligently and persistently, there would be tremendous spiritual growth. Divisions would cease, believers would be united in heart and mind, and purity and love would reign in our churches. By looking at Christ, we are transformed. The more we meditate on His character, the more we become like Him. Come to Jesus as you are, and He will receive you and put a new song in your mouth, even praise to our God.

“Do not cast me away from Your presence; do not take Your Holy Spirit from me.” (Psalm 51:11)

Repentance and forgiveness are gifts from God through Christ. It is through the influence of the Holy Spirit that we are convicted of sin and feel the need for forgiveness. No one is forgiven unless they repent, but it is only by God’s grace that our hearts are led to repentance. He understands our weaknesses and will help us. We need to open our hearts to the influence of the Spirit and experience His transforming power.

The reason we do not receive more help from God is that the channel of communication between heaven and our souls is blocked by worldliness, self-promotion, and ambition. While others conform to the customs of the world, we must shape our lives according to the example of the Lord. Our covenant-keeping God will restore the joy of His salvation and uphold us by His Spirit.

Shortly after a prayer was made, an answer came immediately. Among the women who had gathered at a well, one stood out due to her kindness. As she left the well, a traveler approached her, asking for a drink from her jar. She not only agreed but also offered to fetch water for his camels, a task common for daughters of noble households in serving guests and livestock. This was the expected sign, and it was fulfilled by Rebekah.

David’s repentance is recorded in Psalm 32 and Psalm 51.

Questions:

Why was the story of David’s sin recorded?

Explain how the rich man treated the poor man’s lamb.

Why did David eat after hearing that his child had died?

What does Jedidiah mean?

Why was David’s punishment greater than that of ordinary people?

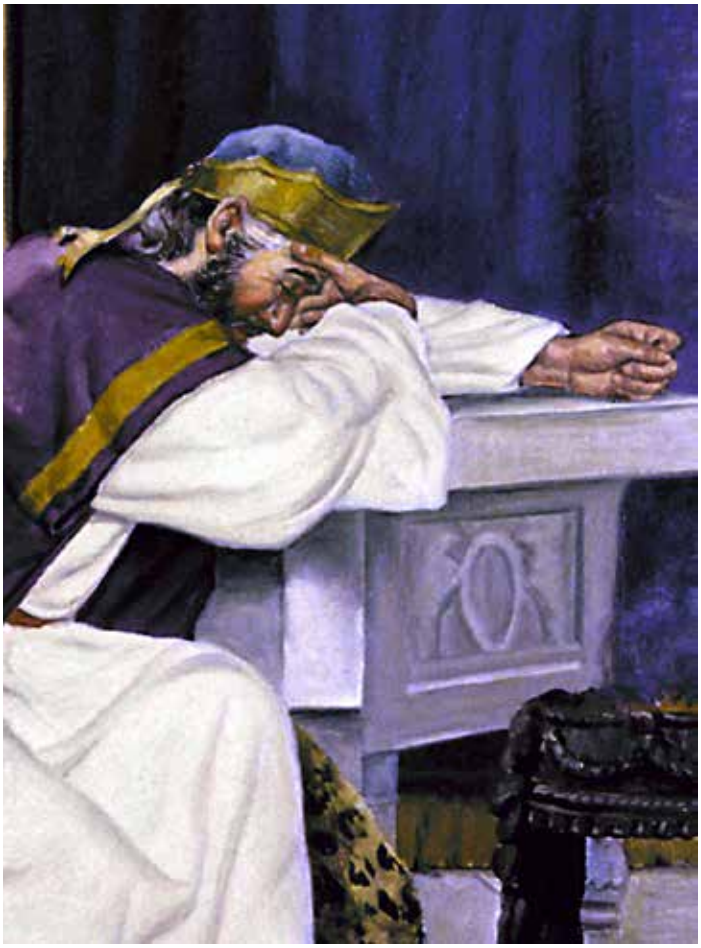
Do you remember to confess your sins daily?

May God bless you, dear child and young follower of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Proverbs 4:23.

[23] Guard your heart above all else, for it is the wellspring of life.

Prayer: Father, guard us from coveting our neighbor's possessions. Forgive our mistakes. Help us to have love. Forgive our sins. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.



Activity: List of things to be thankful for Help your children create a list of things they are grateful for. Encourage them to write down as many as possible to recognize the blessings they already have.

DAY 93 (April 2)

TOPIC: David's Repentance

(Psalms 32 and 51)

"If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." (1 John 1:9)

David repented and confessed his sin, writing Psalms about it. Repentance and confession are extremely important. We will highlight some of what he said. God says, "Come now, let us reason together; though your sins are like scarlet, they shall be as white as snow." Those who have seen Mount Kilimanjaro know how white snow is. God says, "As far as the east is from the west, so far have I removed your sins." If you keep going west, you will see that it never meets the east. God forgives our sins when we have true repentance.

When the prophet Nathan revealed David's sin, he realized the depth of his wrongdoing and wrote with tears, saying:
"Have mercy on me, O God, according to Your loving kindness; according to the multitude of Your tender mercies, blot out my transgressions. Wash me thoroughly from my iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin. For I acknowledge my transgressions, and my sin is always before me. Against You, You only, have I sinned and done this evil in Your sight—that You may be found just when You speak, and blameless when You judge. Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow. Make me hear joy and gladness, that the bones You have broken may rejoice. Hide Your face from my sins, and blot out all my iniquities. Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a steadfast spirit within me. Do not cast me away from Your presence, and do not take Your Holy Spirit from me. Restore to me the joy of Your salvation, and uphold me by Your generous Spirit. Then I will teach transgressors Your ways, and sinners shall be converted to You. O Lord, open my lips, and my mouth shall show forth Your praise. For You do not desire sacrifice, or else I would give it; You do not delight in burnt offering. The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit, a broken and contrite heart—these, O God, You will not despise."

"Blessed is the one whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered. Blessed is the one to whom the Lord does not count iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no deceit. When I kept silent, my bones wasted away through my groaning all day long. For day and night Your hand was heavy upon me; my strength was sapped as in the heat of summer. Then I acknowledged my sin to You and did not cover up my iniquity. I said, 'I will confess my transgressions to the Lord.' And You forgave the guilt of my sin. Therefore let all the faithful pray to You while You may be found; surely the rising of the mighty waters will not reach them. You are my hiding place; You will protect me from trouble and surround me with songs of deliverance. I will instruct you and teach you in the way you should go; I will counsel you with My loving eye on you. Many are the woes of the wicked, but the Lord's unfailing love surrounds the one who trusts in Him. Rejoice in the Lord and be glad, you righteous; sing, all you who are upright in heart!"

Repentance should be our immediate goal when we realize we have sinned. Dear child, nothing is hidden—God knows everything. Even if we sin in secret, alone, there is no secret before God, so it is best to tell Him and confess it. Once we have repented and confessed, we must believe we are forgiven, and all past wrongs are erased. We should also pray for strength to overcome that sin, as some sins take time to completely disappear. But God is faithful, and they will be overcome. The devil wants us to lose hope and feel trapped in sin. Don't let this happen—say, "God is faithful, and He has promised to forgive me."

We should also learn to forgive others when they wrong us, for God forgives us when we forgive others and let go of resentment. There is no sin that God cannot forgive except the one that is unconfessed or unrepented. When confessing, we should mention the specific sin we committed rather than just saying, "I have sinned." Then we should ask for strength to start a new victorious path.

We must understand that only God forgives sins, not humans, so we should confess our sins to God. However, if we have wronged a person, we should also go and ask for their forgiveness.

When David committed these sins, he became weak. People no longer respected him as before. Even his nephew Joab or his own children, when they committed wrongs, he feared confronting them. This is how sin destroys our joy and dignity, making us weak and ruining everything it touches. It also weakens our testimony.

“But because by this deed you have given great occasion to the enemies of the Lord to blaspheme, the child who is born to you shall surely die.” (2 Samuel 12:14)

The most important thing is that God forgives us and helps us start a new chapter without blemishes. However, if we keep repeating the same sin, it weakens our ability to overcome it in the future. May God help and save us from sin!

We should come to the Lord with a humble heart, ready to be taught. When the voice of our enemy tells us, “You have sinned, and you have no right to claim God’s promises,” we should respond by saying, “It is written: If anyone sins, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the Righteous.” (1 John 2:1)

The Psalmist says, “I acknowledged my sin to You and did not hide my iniquity. I said, ‘I will confess my transgressions to the Lord,’ and You forgave the guilt of my sin.” (Psalm 32:5) This is the kind of experience we should all have.

David was forgiven because he humbled his heart before God with repentance and sorrow, believing that God’s promise of forgiveness would be fulfilled. He confessed his sin, repented, and turned back to God. Rejoicing in that forgiveness, he said, “Blessed is the one whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered. Blessed is the one whose sin the Lord does not count against them and in whose spirit is no deceit.” (Psalm 32:1-2)

Blessings come from forgiveness; forgiveness comes through faith, confession, and repentance. Our sins are placed on Jesus, the great sin-bearer. All our blessings come from Christ. His death is the atoning sacrifice for our sins. He is the great Mediator through whom we receive God’s mercy and favor.

We should not carry guilt all our lives—let us confess, forgive ourselves as God forgives us, and also ask forgiveness from those we have wronged, as we saw in David’s case.

As we do the great work of advancing God’s mission, we must remember two things: God will be with us, and Satan will also be there to oppose true repentance. However, we should not be troubled by this because “Greater is He who is in us than he who is in the world.” (1 John 4:4)

OUR GOD IS WITH US, READY TO FORGIVE AND HELP US LIVE IN HIM FOREVER.

QUESTION: Am I with Him? That is the question we should ask ourselves every day!

Questions:

1. Why should we confess our sins?
2. What should we do when we wrong someone?
3. How does sin destroy our joy?
4. Who do you think David asked for forgiveness?
5. What lessons do we learn from Psalms 32 and 51?
6. Name five places in the Bible where God promises to forgive sins.

God bless you, Child and Young Person of Jesus!

Memory Verse: 1 John 1:9, 10.

[9,10] If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. If we say we have not sinned, we make Him a liar, and His word is not in us.

Prayer: Lord, if You were to count sins, who could stand before judgment? But with You there is forgiveness, that You may be feared.

Activity: A play of Nathan going to tell David his sin. And his confessions in Psalm 51 and 32.

DAY 94 (April 3)

TOPIC: Evil in the House of David

(2 Samuel 12-13)

Then David went to war. Joab called him to come and take over Rabbah, saying, “Lest I take the city and it be named after me.” So David went and took Rabbah, and the king’s crown of gold, weighing 34 kilograms and adorned with precious stones, was placed on his head. He also took many spoils of war and made the people servants, putting them to work with saws, iron picks, and brick-making.

It happened that Absalom, David’s third son, had a beautiful sister named Tamar. Amnon, David’s firstborn, fell in love with his half-sister. He became sick and troubled because of his sinful desire. Tamar was unmarried, and Amnon found it difficult to do anything to her. In those days, people were allowed to marry their half-sisters from a different mother. Amnon had a cousin and friend named Jonadab, who was very cunning. Jonadab asked Amnon, “Why, O son of the king, are you growing thinner day by day? Won’t you tell me?” When Amnon confessed his love for Tamar, Jonadab gave him a wicked plan. He advised Amnon to lie in bed pretending to be sick. Then, when his father David came to see him, he should request that Tamar come and prepare food for him in his sight so that he might eat from her hand.

Amnon followed the plan, and David sent Tamar to his son. She kneaded the dough, baked the bread, and brought it to Amnon. But when she served him, he ordered everyone to leave the room. Then he seized Tamar and told her to lie with him. She pleaded, “No, my brother, do not force me! Such a thing should not be done in Israel; do not commit this disgraceful act. And I, where will I take my shame? Please, speak to the king, for he will not withhold me from you.” But Amnon refused to listen and, being stronger, forced her into sin. Shockingly, after violating her, he hated her more than he had previously claimed to love her. He ordered her to leave. Tamar protested, saying that sending her away was worse than what he had already done, but he did not listen. He called his servant and said, “Throw this woman out and bolt the door behind her.”

Even today, some people claim to love a girl, saying, “I can’t eat, I can’t sleep, I dream about you,” yet once they get her or even marry her, they mistreat, abandon, and dishonor her. This is wickedness.

Tamar cried aloud, put ashes on her head, tore her royal robe, and placed her hands on her head in sorrow. Her full-brother, Absalom, found her and asked what had happened. When she explained, he told her, “Be quiet for now, my sister; he is your brother. Do not take this matter to heart.” This was a terrible sin, and Tamar remained desolate in Absalom’s house. When David heard of it, he was very angry. However, because he himself had committed a similar sin by taking another man’s wife by force, he lacked the moral authority to correct his son.

Absalom was furious and decided to take revenge. He hated Amnon but did not say anything, either good or bad. It is very important to resolve issues with our siblings before things escalate.

Two years later, Absalom held a feast and invited all the king’s sons. He asked his father David to attend, but David declined, saying, “We should not all go, lest we burden you.” Absalom then requested that Amnon be allowed to come. The king was surprised and asked why, but after much persuasion, he allowed Amnon to go.

Absalom commanded his servants, “When Amnon is drunk, strike and kill him.” And they did. When the other sons of the king saw this, they fled. David was informed that Absalom had killed all his sons, and he tore his clothes and lay on the ground in sorrow. Jonadab, the same deceiving friend, reassured the king that only Amnon was dead because of what he had done to Tamar. The king and his sons mourned deeply.

Absalom fled to Geshur, where his maternal grandfather lived. He stayed there for three years. Meanwhile, David longed to see him, for he had now accepted that Amnon was dead. David, like many parents, was a great leader to others but failed to lead his own household.

The lack of integrity, acts of revenge, and corruption in these stories are like what we see today on television and in families. There were many conflicts—between Abner and Ishbosheth, David and Abner, Joab and Abner, and even within David’s own household. David had many wives, including Michal, whom Saul had given to another man, even though she was legally David’s wife. A series of moral failures and conflicts like these is dangerous! We must understand that God is not glorified in such situations, but His amazing grace is always available to forgive and restore us when we surrender to Him. These events are not examples of the kind of marriages God desires for us.

We must remember that no one comes to Christ with complete knowledge of His ways—that is why we are encouraged to grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior. What matters most is that God does not judge us based on our past mistakes but patiently works with us toward righteousness.

Oh, how wonderful is God’s love! “Father, please fill my heart with this love, for only You have it, and I can only receive it from You.” Our loving Savior was willing to die for rebellious sinners so that we might have the chance to live eternally with Him. David loved his son Absalom dearly, but Absalom took that love for granted, just as we sometimes take our relationship with God for granted. Joab’s nephew, Jonadab, was a cunning strategist but also cruel. He lived by his own rules and showed little regard for God. “Father, please help us learn lessons from the lives of David and Joab, for they were weak human beings just like us.”

Those who do house-to-house ministry will have many opportunities to serve in different ways. They should pray for the sick and do all they can to relieve suffering.

Questions:

1. Why did Absalom go to Geshur?
2. Why did Absalom hate Amnon?
3. Why is it important to avoid friends like Jonadab?
4. Why did David lack the strength to rebuke others?
5. Why is alcohol dangerous?

God bless you,child and young person of jesus

Memory Verse: Jeremiah 17:9,10.

[9,10] The heart is deceitful above all things and beyond cure; who can understand it? I the Lord search the heart and examine the mind, to reward everyone according to their conduct, according to what their deeds deserve.

Prayer: Heal me, O Lord, and I will be healed; save me and I will be saved, for You are my praise and my strength. Do not be a cause of great fear to me; You are my refuge in the day of disaster. Let my persecutors be put to shame, but keep me from shame; let them be terrified, but keep me from terror. Bring on them the day of disaster; destroy them with double destruction. In the name of Jesus Christ.

Activity: Relationships between boys and girls. This is the time to teach the subject of sex in a simple way, according to the age of children. Teach your children about sex and stewardship. They have reproductive organs. They must know that sex is only for husband and wife, that is, people who are married. Teach them according to their age. Parents should not avoid teaching this subject, because otherwise youth or children will get false lessons from the enemy, due to unquenched curiosity. This subject must not be treated as taboo!

DAY 95 (April 4)

TOPIC: Absalom and Joab

(2 Samuel 14)

Joab realized that the king missed his son Absalom and longed to see him. Joab was a man of wisdom; when he sought good, he was thoughtful, but when he intended evil, he could be ruthless. This time, Joab tried to be a mediator by doing what was right. Blessed are the peacemakers, for this is a godly trait we should practice by reconciling the world with Him.

Joab sent a wise woman from Tekoa and instructed her to go to the king, wearing mourning clothes and appearing as a grieving widow. He advised her not to anoint herself with oil but to look like a woman who had been mourning for many days. He told her to present a story to the king.

When the woman of Tekoa approached King David, she fell face down and pleaded, “Help me, O king!” David, being a king and a judge in those days, asked her what was wrong. The woman explained that she was a widow whose two sons had fought, and since there was no one to intervene, one had killed the other. Now, the entire family demanded the life of the remaining son as punishment for murder.

With sorrow, she explained that if they killed her only remaining heir, they would extinguish her husband’s name and leave no descendants. The king assured her that he would take care of her case. She further pleaded that the guilt should be on her and not on the king or his throne. David then declared that anyone who tried to harm her son would have to face him, and no one would touch him again.

The woman continued to plead, asking the king to prevent the avenger of blood from causing further destruction. David reassured her that not a single hair on her son's head would fall.

Then the wise woman of Tekoa boldly asked the king why he had devised such a thing for God's people, referring to his refusal to bring back Absalom, who had killed his brother Amnon. She praised David, saying that his words were comforting, for he was like an angel of God, able to discern good and evil.

At that moment, the king realized that Joab was behind the woman's story. He confronted her, asking if Joab had sent her. The woman admitted that she could not deny it—Joab was indeed the one who had instructed her and put those words in her mouth. She also acknowledged the king's wisdom, saying he had the understanding of an angel of God, knowing everything happening in the world.

King David then commanded Joab to bring Absalom back. Joab bowed down with his face to the ground, thanking the king for his kindness. Joab went to Geshur, brought Absalom to Jerusalem, but the king ordered that Absalom should return to his house and not see his face.

David and his nephew Joab had a relationship filled with fear and dependency. Joab helped David accomplish difficult tasks, even questionable ones, but David knew Joab was a skilled warrior and an asset as a commander. However, their philosophies did not always align, as David sought to follow God's ways, while Joab often acted pragmatically.

Absalom was described as the most handsome man in Israel, from head to toe. His hair was particularly admired, and he even had a beautiful daughter named Tamar. After returning to Jerusalem, Absalom lived for two more years—five years in total—without seeing the king. Frustrated, he sent for Joab to arrange a meeting with David, but Joab refused to come.

In anger, Absalom ordered his servants to set Joab's field on fire. This finally made Joab visit him, asking why his field had been burned. Absalom explained that since Joab had brought him back from Geshur but had not helped him see the king, he felt it would have been better if he had stayed away. He demanded to see David, even if it meant facing death.

Joab then spoke to the king, and David allowed Absalom to come before him. When Absalom entered, he bowed with his face to the ground, and the king kissed him, signifying reconciliation.

After this, Absalom began to portray himself as a leader. He acquired a chariot, horses, and fifty men to run ahead of him. He would rise early and stand at the city gate, intercepting those who had cases to present to the king for judgment.

A Parent's Prayer and Pledge

Heavenly Father,
I am overwhelmed by the responsibilities of parenting. Without Your guidance, my efforts will be in vain. I praise You because You are the source of joy, victory, gratitude, and all good things in my life. Thank You for blessing me with children; they are a great gift.

Help me raise my children according to Your will, even though I am unworthy and have many weaknesses. Prevent me from speaking harshly or discouraging them with negative words. Instead, teach me to encourage their good efforts and embrace them with words that bring life. I know this is not easy due to my nature—please help me control my tongue and listen when they need me instead of constantly speaking.

Grant me wisdom to discipline them with patience, to help them develop good character, and to prepare them for their responsibilities in life. Help me not to demand from them what I do not practice myself. Do not let guilt from my busy schedule make me spoil them by giving in to their every desire.

May I always carry a smile on my face, and may our home be filled with laughter and joy. Help me know when to set work aside and enjoy time with my children. I trust that You will help me build a joyful home and create cherished memories that will last for generations.

Forgive me for any past failures and sins in raising my children. Help me to forgive them as well. Remove anger, resentment, envy, blame, and bitterness from my heart so that I can truly support and guide them. Let me show them love from childhood to adulthood so that they may know what love is, having first experienced it at home.

Help me not to compare them with other children, but rather to embrace Your promises for their lives. My children belong to You, Lord. I surrender them to Your mighty hand. May my love for You be their example, leading them to serve You and care for others in need.

Help me instill godly character in them, for that is the only thing they can take with them to heaven—not wealth, clothes, or possessions. Fill us with Your Holy Spirit so that we may not be drawn to materialism or evil. Guide our home so that we surrender our desires to Your will.

Above all, help me develop patience and self-control. Lord, I do not presume to teach You how to bless me, for You already know what I and my children need for a better future. Thank You for answering this prayer beyond what I can ask or imagine. I love You, Lord, and I am grateful that You will provide for all our needs in Your perfect timing. Amen.

Encouraging the Sick
Our Savior desires that we bring hope to the sick and those in pain or suffering, encouraging them to rely on His strength. Through faith and prayer, a hospital room can be transformed into Bethel, the house of God—just as it was for Jacob when he encountered the Lord.

Reflection Questions

1. What story did the woman of Tekoa present?
2. Who sent her to the king?
3. Why didn't David have time to properly raise his children?
4. Why did Absalom set Joab's field on fire?
5. How can physical beauty become a stumbling block in life?
6. Why do parents continue to love their children even when they make mistakes?

May God bless you greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Psalm 51:3-5.

[3-5] For I know my transgressions, and my sin is always before me. Against You, You only, have I sinned and done what is evil in Your sight; so You are right in Your verdict and justified when You judge. Surely I was sinful at birth, sinful from the time my mother conceived me.

Activity: Beauty and morals should not give anyone pride. God created men and women in His own image, and He said the work He created was very good (Genesis 1:26–27, 31).

We are called to offer our bodies as living sacrifices, holy and pleasing to God. This is a kind of worship (Romans 12:1–2).

We measure beauty not by worldly outward standards, but by inner character (1 Peter 3:3–4).

Christ will make all things new—including our bodies. Though our present bodies are affected by the fall, God Himself will give us eternal bodies one day (2 Corinthians 5:1–5).

DAY 96 (April 5)

TOPIC: Unholy Desires

(2 Samuel 15)

David was occupied with royal duties such as judging disputes, leading wars, and composing songs. Somehow, he left a gap that Absalom exploited for his own benefit.

Absalom called those who came to seek justice from his father and asked them about their city and tribe. He listened to their concerns at the city gate and told them, “Your words are good and right, but there is no one assigned by the king to hear you.” He then said, “If only I were the judge in the land, then everyone with a case would come to me, and I would give them justice.” When people approached him and bowed before him, he stretched out his hand, held them, and even kissed them. He treated all who came to seek judgment from the king this way, deceiving the people of Israel and turning their hearts toward himself instead of his father.

After four years, he asked the king for permission to fulfill a vow he had made to the Lord while in Geshur, promising to serve Him if he returned safely. The king allowed him to go in peace, and Absalom left for Hebron.

Once there, he secretly sent spies throughout Israel's tribes, instructing them that when they heard the trumpet, they should declare, "Absalom reigns in Hebron!" Two hundred men who were invited went with Absalom unknowingly, unaware of his deceitful intentions. Absalom also called Ahithophel, David's counselor and the grandfather of Bathsheba, to join him in offering sacrifices. Together, they continued conspiring to overthrow David. Perhaps Ahithophel did not approve of how Uriah was treated and decided to align himself with Absalom, despite being an older and wise man.

A messenger came to inform David that the hearts of the Israelites were now with Absalom. David realized Absalom was planning to harm him and take the throne. He instructed his servants to flee immediately, warning that if they did not escape in time, no one would survive Absalom's attack. They hurriedly left before Absalom could strike them down with the sword. His servants were ready to do as he commanded. David left with all his household, except for ten concubines who were left to take care of the palace. As they departed, they stopped briefly at Beth-Merhak.

Six hundred men who had followed him from Gath passed before him. The king then turned to Ittai the Gittite and asked why he was going with them. He urged him to stay with Absalom, the new king. "Since you just arrived yesterday, why should I make you wander with us today? I do not know where we are going. Return and stay with the king, and may mercy and truth be with you," David told him.

But Ittai replied, "As surely as the Lord lives and as my lord the king lives, wherever my lord the king is—whether in life or death—there your servant will be." So David told him to go ahead with his people, including the children.

The whole land wept loudly as everyone crossed over. The king and his people crossed the Kidron Valley, heading toward the wilderness.

Zadok the priest came with the Levites, carrying the Ark of the Covenant, to show their loyalty to David. Abiathar the priest also accompanied them until all the people had left the city.

The king then told Zadok to take the Ark of God back to the city. He said, "If I find favor in the Lord's eyes, He will bring me back and allow me to see the Ark and His dwelling place again. But if He says, 'I am not pleased with you,' then let Him do to me whatever seems good to Him."

David instructed Zadok to return to the city with his son Ahimaaz and Abiathar's son Jonathan. Through these two, he would receive news about Absalom's plans. Zadok and Abiathar took the Ark of the Lord back to Jerusalem.

David climbed the Mount of Olives, weeping as he went. His head was covered, and he was barefoot. Everyone who followed him also covered their heads and wept as they climbed.

Someone told David that Ahithophel was among those conspiring with Absalom. David prayed, "O Lord, please turn Ahithophel's counsel into foolishness."

When David reached the summit, the place of worship, he met Hushai, his friend, who came to greet him with torn clothes and dust on his head. David told Hushai that if he came with him, he would be a burden. But if he returned to the city and told Absalom, "I will be your servant, as I was your father's servant before you," then he could counter Ahithophel's advice.

David informed him that Zadok and Abiathar were in the city and could communicate with him through their sons, Ahimaaz and Jonathan. Hushai, David's friend, then returned to the city, and at the same time, Absalom entered Jerusalem.

Absalom deceived the people and stole their hearts, just as Satan did in heaven. Because of his love for his son, David fled to avoid bloodshed. Lust and pride drove Absalom to disregard the lives of others. These lessons should be imprinted in our hearts as we journey through life.

David remained courageous in his time of distress and gracious in his words, setting an example for us. If we are weak in body, we should truly trust in the Lord and pray to our God in our times of trouble. If we feel led to seek the prayers of others whom we trust to intercede for us before Jesus, our Mighty Healer, help will surely come if we pray in faith.

Questions:

1. How did Absalom turn people's hearts away from his father?
2. Why did David flee from Jerusalem?
3. Why didn't David take friends like Hushai with him?
4. Why did David refuse to take the Ark of the Covenant with him?
5. Who was Ahithophel?
6. Why do people seek advisors?
7. How do you choose your advisors?

God bless you, child and youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: 2 Samuel 15:14

[14] Then David said to all his officials who were with him in Jerusalem, "Come! We must flee, or none of us will escape from Absalom. We must leave immediately, or he will move quickly to overtake us and bring ruin on us and put the city to the sword."

Prayer: Our beloved Father, help us in our cities, families, and relatives to live peaceful lives. We hear much in the media of relatives quarreling and even killing each other. Help us to have brotherly love, to help one another, and to be ready when You come again. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Ahithophel was David's counselor. Discuss what modern counselors do today, and whether a president or a queen needs advisors, and why. How do we know which advice to take and which to reject?

DAY 97 (April 6)

TOPIC: Absalom Goes to War Against His Father

(2 Samuel 15-18)

As David passed over the mountain top, he saw Ziba, the servant of Mephibosheth, coming to meet him with two saddled donkeys carrying 200 loaves of bread, clusters of raisins, fruits, and skins of wine. David asked him, "What are these for?" Ziba replied, "The donkeys are for the king and his men to ride, and the food is for the young men who are weary in the wilderness." David then asked, "Where is your master Mephibosheth?" Ziba answered, "He stayed in Jerusalem, saying that perhaps today the Israelites will restore his father Jonathan's kingdom to him." The king saw Mephibosheth as disloyal, but Ziba as faithful, so he declared that all of Mephibosheth's possessions now belonged to Ziba. Ziba bowed down and said, "Let me find favor in your sight, my lord the king."

When King David reached Bahurim, Shimei, a relative of Saul, came out cursing him and throwing stones at him and his servants. Shimei shouted, "Go away! Go away, you man of blood! You worthless man! The Lord has repaid you for all the bloodshed in Saul's house, and now He has given the kingdom into the hands of your son Absalom. Your evil has caught up with you because you are a man of blood." Abishai, one of David's men, asked, "Why should this dead dog curse my lord the king? Let me go over and cut off his head." But David refused, saying, "Leave him alone. The Lord has told him to curse me. Who am I to question this?" Then he added, "If my own son seeks my life, how much more this Benjaminite! Perhaps the Lord will see my distress and repay me with good for this cursing today." As David and his men continued, Shimei kept cursing, throwing stones, and kicking up dust. Eventually, David and his men, exhausted, arrived at a place where they could rest.

Meanwhile, Absalom and all the people of Israel entered Jerusalem with Ahithophel, David's former counselor. When Hushai, David's friend, approached Absalom, he greeted him, saying, "Long live the king!" Absalom was suspicious and asked, "Is this how you show loyalty to your friend? Why didn't you go with him?" Hushai answered, "I will serve whomever the Lord and the people of Israel have chosen. Just as I served your father, so I will serve you."

Absalom then asked Ahithophel for advice. Ahithophel suggested that Absalom sleep with his father's concubines, showing Israel that he had completely taken over. Absalom followed this wicked counsel in public view. In those days, Ahithophel's advice was regarded as if it came from God himself.

Ahithophel then advised Absalom to send 12,000 men to attack David that very night while he was weary and weak. He said this would terrify David's followers, causing them to flee, making it easy to strike down David alone and return all the people to Absalom. This advice pleased Absalom and Israel's elders. However, Absalom also wanted to hear from Hushai. Seeing that Ahithophel's plan would destroy David, Hushai opposed it, saying, "Your father and his men are mighty warriors, like a bear robbed of her cubs. He is experienced in battle and will not be sleeping with his troops. Right now, he is probably hiding in a cave. If we attack and suffer early losses, the people will say, 'Absalom's men are losing!'" Hushai then suggested that Absalom gather all of Israel and personally lead the attack. This would ensure total victory. Absalom and his men preferred Hushai's advice, not realizing that the Lord intended to frustrate Ahithophel's good counsel to protect David.

Hushai secretly sent a message to Abiathar and Zadok, the priests, instructing them to warn David to cross the Jordan River that night to avoid destruction. Jonathan and Ahimaaz, the priests' sons, carried the message but were spotted. They hid in a well at a woman's house. When Absalom's men came searching for them, the woman misled them, saying, "They have crossed the stream." After the searchers left, the two messengers ran to David and urged him to cross the Jordan immediately. David and all his people crossed safely.

When Ahithophel saw that his advice had been ignored, he realized that David would regain his throne and punish him as a traitor. He went home, set his affairs in order, and hanged himself. Meanwhile, Absalom crossed the Jordan with all the men of Israel and appointed Amasa as his army commander. David and his followers reached Mahanaim, where the people provided them with beds, food, and supplies, as they were weary and hungry.

David divided his army into three groups under Joab, Abishai, and Ittai. Everywhere we see broken families like David's. People need healing and hope. Absalom was a rebellious and undisciplined young man, possibly because his father, occupied with royal duties, failed to correct him. This serves as a warning to parents and grandparents who love their children excessively but fail to discipline them. Unresolved grievances lead to bitterness, hatred, and destruction. Lord, help us deal with sin before it takes root and destroys us.

A parent's love can be compared to God's love for us. "But God demonstrates His own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us." (Romans 5:8). After paying for our sins, He calls us: "Come now, let us reason together, says the Lord. Though your sins are like scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they are red like crimson, they shall be as wool." (Isaiah 1:18, NKJV). No matter how great our sins are, "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us and cleanse us from all unrighteousness." (1 John 1:9).

We humbly prayed for those who are sick and suffering, even those on the brink of death. As we laid this before the Lord, we felt the assurance of God's love even in the midst of trouble.

Questions:

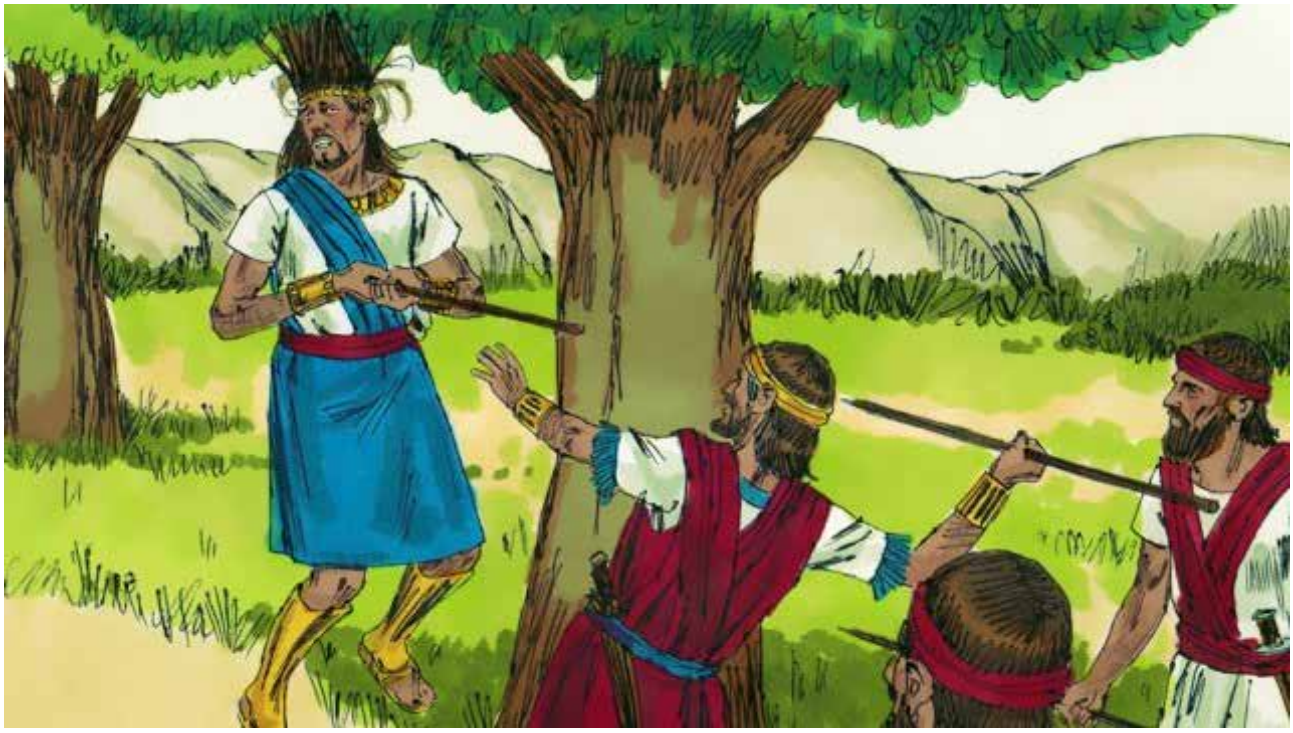
1. What advice did Ahithophel give?
2. Who were the three commanders of David's army?
3. What was the role of Ahimaaz and Jonathan?
4. Who was hidden in a well by a woman?
5. Who were the two priests?
6. What did Shimei say to David?
7. What did Absalom want from his father?
8. Why is suicide never a solution, even when life seems unbearable, considering that we do not own ourselves?

May God bless you, dear Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Psalm 71:10-12.

[10-12] For my enemies speak against me; those who wait to kill me conspire together. They say, "God has forsaken him; pursue him and seize him, for no one will rescue him." Do not be far from me, my God; come quickly, God, to help me.

Prayer: Lord, I have fled to You, be my stronghold and my dwelling place, heal me from wicked people. Thank You for being with me since birth. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.



Activity: How to honor your parents.

- Discuss, for example: helping your parents without being told.
- Goal: To develop a spirit of service and help young people meet their parents' needs in practical ways.
- Obedience: To keep the fifth commandment God gave in Exodus 20.
- Materials: A list of chores or tasks to be done.
- Instructions: Tell the youth or children to think of a list of tasks their parents do regularly. Encourage them to choose one or two from this list that they can complete without being asked. This will show genuine effort and gratitude toward their parents.

DAY 98 (April 7)

TOPIC: Absalom is Killed

2 Samuel 18-19

David was ready to go into battle with his people, but they told him not to go because if they fled, the enemy would not care much. However, if David fled, the enemy would surely pursue him. They said he was worth more than ten thousand of them, so they advised him to stay in the city and handle matters from there. The king listened and agreed to do what seemed best in their eyes. It was a good thing that the king feared God, and the prophet was also valued by his people.

As the king stood at the gate while his troops marched to war, he remembered his son, even though Absalom had no regard for him and was ready to destroy him. David commanded, “Deal gently with the young man Absalom for my sake.” This was a deep expression of a father’s love. If a human father could love this much, how much more does God love us?

The battle took place in the forest of Ephraim, where David’s army defeated the Israelites with great destruction. That day, 20,000 men died. The battle raged throughout the night, and many died in the forest. Absalom, riding a mule, encountered David’s servants. As his mule passed under thick branches of a great oak tree, his head got caught in the branches, and he was left hanging between heaven and earth.

A soldier saw him and reported it to Joab but did not harm him because of the king's command. However, Joab, who seemed to have had enough of Absalom and bore a grudge against him, rebuked the soldier for not killing him, saying he would have rewarded him with ten silver pieces and a belt. The soldier reminded Joab that he could not harm Absalom despite any reward because the king had strictly commanded that no one should harm him.

Joab, unwilling to wait for further discussion, took three javelins and pierced Absalom's heart while he was still alive, hanging from the tree. Then Joab blew the trumpet for victory, and his troops stopped pursuing the Israelites. They threw Absalom's body into a deep pit in the forest.

Ahimaaz, the son of Zadok, wanted to run and inform the king of the Lord's justice against his enemies, but Joab told him that he would not be the messenger that day. Instead, Joab sent a Cushite to deliver the news. The Cushite bowed before Joab as a sign of obedience and went on his mission.

Despite Joab's warning, Ahimaaz insisted on running, even if he would arrive second. Joab allowed him to go, and Ahimaaz, taking a shorter route or perhaps running faster, outran the Cushite.

King David was waiting at the gate when a watchman saw a man running alone and informed the king. David assumed the runner must be bringing good news. The watchman saw a second runner and identified him as Ahimaaz, the son of Zadok. Since Ahimaaz usually brought good news, the king expected his report to be positive.

When Ahimaaz arrived, he bowed before the king and praised the Lord for delivering David's enemies into his hands. However, David immediately asked about Absalom's well-being. Ahimaaz hesitated, saying he had seen commotion when Joab sent him, but he did not know what had happened. Realizing the report was incomplete, David asked him to step aside while the second messenger arrived.

The Cushite arrived and announced, "I have good news for my lord the king! The Lord has avenged you today against all who rose up against you." However, the king was more concerned about his son. When he asked about Absalom, the Cushite wisely responded, "May the enemies of my lord the king and all who rise up to harm you be like that young man."

Hearing this, David was deeply moved and went up to his chamber, weeping as he cried, “O my son Absalom! My son, my son Absalom! If only I had died instead of you! O Absalom, my son, my son!” This was a powerful expression of a father’s love, reflecting God’s great love for us, even when we sin against Him.

Joab rebuked David for mourning the son who had betrayed him and tried to kill him. Because of David’s sorrow, the victory turned into mourning, and the soldiers felt ashamed instead of celebrating. They returned quietly, as if they had fled from battle in disgrace.

Joab confronted the king, telling him he had shamed his servants who had saved his life, his sons, his wives, and his concubines. Joab accused David of loving those who hated him and hating those who loved him. He said David’s actions showed that his commanders and servants meant nothing to him, and if Absalom had lived while they all perished, it would have pleased David more. He warned David to go out and encourage his people, or else they would all abandon him that very night, leading to a disaster worse than anything David had ever faced.

David listened, took courage, and sat at the city gate, where the people came to see him. Those who had followed Absalom remained silent, uncertain of what to do. The people of Israel debated about bringing David back as their king, realizing that although he had fled from Absalom, he had always been their leader.

David sent a message to the elders of Judah, asking why they were the last to invite him back to Jerusalem. He also assured Amasa, Absalom’s commander, that he would be the new leader of his army. The people of Judah reconciled and sent for David to return.

As David crossed the Jordan River, Shimei—the man who had previously cursed him—came with the Benjamites and Ziba to meet him. Shimei fell at David’s feet and begged for forgiveness. He pleaded with David not to remember or take to heart the insults he had spoken against him.

Abishai, one of David’s men, suggested that Shimei be put to death for cursing the king, but David refused. He declared that no one in Israel would die that day because it was a day of celebration. David then swore to Shimei that he would not be put to death.

David wished he could have died instead of Absalom. Our Creator did not only wish to die for us; He actually died in our place. When did He die for us?

While we were still sinners and His enemies—just as Absalom was to David. Nothing Absalom did could stop David from loving him. Likewise, nothing we do can make God stop loving us. Even when we crucified Him, He prayed, "Father, forgive them, for they do not know what they are doing."

Even at the final judgment, when unrepentant sinners face destruction in the lake of fire (because God will respect their choices), He will mourn for them, saying, "I take no pleasure in the death of the wicked" (Ezekiel 33:11).

We dedicated a child and prayed for them, believing that the Lord would grant peace to the mother and the child. And it happened. The baby stopped crying, and we left them both doing well.

Questions for Reflection:

1. Why did the people refuse to let David go to battle?
2. What mistake did Absalom make?
3. Did his father still love him? How do you know?
4. What wrong did Shimei commit?
5. God is always merciful and offers hope—have you seen this in your life?

May God Bless You, Child and Young Disciple of Jesus!

Memory Verse: 2 Samuel 18:33

The king was shaken. He went up to the room over the gateway and wept. As he went, he said: "O my son Absalom! My son, my son Absalom! If only I had died instead of you—O Absalom, my son, my son!"

Prayer: Thank You, Lord, for You are my strong refuge, even when those closest to us hurt us deeply and bring us sorrow. My mouth will be filled with Your praises. Do not forsake me when my strength fails, nor leave me alone. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Dealing with Grief
Death confuses and troubles all of us. For children who have experienced the death of someone important, grief may bring many challenging and unfamiliar feelings such as guilt, isolation, and anger. When grief remains unaddressed, these feelings may dominate childhood and negatively affect how they respond to loss in adulthood.

It is important that bereaved children can acknowledge the death of this person as significant and that their feelings are validated. Children also watch and imitate how adults model responses; showing healthy behaviors helps them in healing. This expression activity aims to provide opportunities for adults to listen attentively and help children grieve at their own pace. Professional support, such as pastors and counselors, is also recommended.

Reading: Use literature that addresses death and grief guided by the Scriptures. This provides children with a chance to share their stories and ask questions.

Memory Box: Create a box to hold items connected with the loved one (such as photos). If unavailable, children can write or draw memories. They can return to the box to talk with God about their sorrow and their hope of reunion after resurrection.

Sentence Completion: Some children may struggle to open up. Provide sentence starters, e.g., "When I think of my brother who died, I feel…"

Letter Writing: Encourage children to write a letter expressing what they would want to say if they could meet their loved one again at the resurrection. Use Scripture to explain that death is a sleep until Jesus comes.

DAY 99 (April 8)

TOPIC: David Returns to the Kingdom

(2 Samuel 19-21)

Mephibosheth, the son of Saul, came down to meet David. He had neither trimmed his nails nor his beard, nor had he washed his clothes from the day the king left until the day he returned safely. The king asked him why he had not gone with him. Mephibosheth explained that he was crippled, and though his master the king was like an angel of God, he would accept whatever the king decided. Since his family was doomed to death before the king, but the king had loved him and given him a place at his table, he felt he had no right to ask for more. The king then said that the land should be divided between Mephibosheth and Ziba. But Mephibosheth responded that Ziba could take everything; what mattered to him was that the king had returned safely to his home.

Barzillai the Gileadite, who was 80 years old and had provided for the king, came to help him cross the Jordan. The king invited Barzillai to live with him in Jerusalem, promising to care for him. However, Barzillai declined, saying he was too old to enjoy the luxuries of the palace—he could no longer distinguish between good and bad, nor enjoy the taste of food or the sound of music. He thanked the king for his generosity but requested to return to his hometown near the graves of his ancestors. Instead, he asked the king to take his servant Chimham. The king agreed and took Chimham. The people crossed the Jordan, and the king kissed and blessed Barzillai before he returned home.

A dispute arose between the people of Judah and Israel. Sheba, a worthless man, blew a trumpet and declared that he was taking leadership over the tribe of Benjamin. Many Israelites followed him, but the people of Judah remained loyal to the king. When David returned to Jerusalem, he found the ten concubines he had left behind alive. However, they were never again considered his concubines but were taken care of for the rest of their lives.

David instructed Amasa, who had been Absalom's army commander but was now on David's side, to gather the army and pursue Sheba before he caused more trouble than Absalom. Joab also set out on the mission. When Joab met Amasa, he deceitfully greeted him, saying, "Peace, my brother," while holding Amasa's beard with his right hand as if to kiss him. Amasa did not realize Joab had a sword in his hand, and Joab stabbed him in the stomach, causing his intestines to spill out, and he died. Joab and Abishai then pursued Sheba and besieged him in the city of Abel Beth Maacah.

There, a wise woman called for Joab and negotiated with him. She declared that she was a woman of peace and faithfulness in Israel and questioned why they were attempting to destroy the city. Joab responded that they were only after Sheba, who had rebelled against the king. The woman promised to resolve the issue and advised the townspeople to throw Sheba's head over the wall. They followed her advice, beheaded Sheba, and threw his head to Joab. With that, Joab sounded the trumpet of victory, and everyone returned home while he returned to King David in Jerusalem.

Joab remained in charge of Israel's army, Benaiah was over the Kerethites and Pelethites, Adoram was in charge of forced labor, Jehoshaphat was the recorder, Sheva was the secretary, Zadok and Abiathar were priests, and Ira was David's personal priest.

There was a three-year famine during David's reign. When David sought the Lord, he was told that it was due to Saul's massacre of the Gibeonites. David called the Gibeonites and asked how he could make amends. They refused silver or gold but requested that seven of Saul's descendants be hanged because of his crimes against them. Due to his covenant with Jonathan, David spared Mephibosheth but handed over two sons of Rizpah, Saul's concubine, and five sons of Merab, Saul's daughter. They were hanged during the barley harvest.

Rizpah mourned for her sons, wearing sackcloth and staying on the mountain, protecting their bodies from birds until rain fell. Her devotion reminded David to retrieve the bones of Saul and Jonathan from Jabesh Gilead and give them a proper burial. After this, God relented, and the famine ended.

Rizpah was not personally responsible for the wrongdoing, yet her offspring suffered, causing her great sorrow. As a concubine of the former king, she had little power, and her fate seemed tragic. With her two sons dead and Saul's family nearly wiped out, she could have succumbed to despair. However, she acted with dignity, refusing to be passive in her grief. Her presence in two significant moments of David's reign makes her a nation-builder.

We can all learn something from Rizpah: Faithfulness is not dependent on circumstances or good fortune. Faithfulness is an unconditional commitment to doing what is right, regardless of the cost, while relying on God for guidance.

The Gospel is a message of peace. Christianity, if accepted and obeyed, would spread peace, harmony, and joy throughout the world. Christ's religion unites all who accept His teachings. Jesus' mission was to reconcile humanity with God and with one another.

Once again, war broke out between Israel and the Philistines at Gob. David went into battle but grew weary. Ishbi-Benob, a descendant of the giants, attempted to kill David, but Abishai came to his aid and struck down the Philistine. After this, David's men told him not to go to battle again, lest he extinguish the "lamp of Israel." The Israelites continued to fight the Philistines from Gath, the land of Goliath, and secured victory.

Patients are brought to Christ through the care of nurses who consider their needs and pray for them, asking the Great Physician to look upon the suffering with mercy and grant healing.

Questions:

How were the Gibeonites satisfied?

What do you learn from Rizpah?

Why did Abishai kill the Philistine?

Who was Barzillai?

Why did Joab kill Amasa?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Romans 15:4–5.

[4,5] For everything that was written in the past was written to teach us, so that through the endurance taught in the Scriptures and the encouragement they provide we might have hope. May the God who gives endurance and encouragement give you the same attitude of mind toward each other that Christ Jesus had.

Prayer: Thank You, Father in heaven. Some parts of the Bible we read and do not understand, but they were written to teach us so that we may have encouragement and hope. Help us in this journey of life to be patient, comforted, and united. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Children should be taught how to live with people with disabilities, so they can be a source of help, not sorrow. Since many children do not realize that disabilities are not chosen, they often laugh at or sadden those who are disabled. Show them they have many reasons to thank God for being able-bodied. Use stories of people with disabilities, then discuss together.

Plan an inclusion activity day, such as wheelchair races or blindfolded games, to help children understand challenges faced by people with disabilities. Teach children to include peers with disabilities, foster empathy, respect, and open conversations. Invite people with disabilities to share their experiences directly. Emphasize friendship, compassion, and not fearing those with mental illnesses—especially within homes, schools, and churches.

DAY 100 (April 9)

TOPIC: David's Mighty Warriors

(2 Samuel 22-23)

Then David sang a song on the day the Lord delivered him from the hands of all his enemies and from the hand of Saul:

"The Lord is my rock, my fortress, and my deliverer; yes, the God of my rock, I will trust in Him. He is my shield and the horn of my salvation, my stronghold, and my refuge; my Savior, You save me from violence. I will call upon the Lord, who is worthy to be praised, and I will be saved from my enemies.

For the waves of death surrounded me,
The floods of wickedness made me afraid.
The cords of hell encircled me;
The snares of death confronted me.
In my distress, I called upon the Lord;

I cried out to my God.
He heard my voice from His temple,
And my cry entered His ears.

He took hold of me and drew me out of many waters;
He delivered me from my strong enemy,
From those who hated me,
For they were too strong for me.

The Lord was my support.
For You are my lamp, O Lord;
The Lord shall lighten my darkness.

For by Your help, I can run against a troop;
By my God, I can leap over a wall.

For who is God except the Lord?
And who is a rock, except our God?

God is my strong fortress,
And He leads the upright in His way.
You have girded me with strength for battle.
My enemies turned their backs to me.

You have saved me from the strife of my people;
You have kept me as the head of the nations;
People I did not know shall serve me.
Strangers shall submit to me as soon as they hear of me.

Let the God of my salvation be exalted!
He is the One who gives great deliverance to His king.
He has made an everlasting covenant with me."

These were among the last songs of David, the son of Jesse, the sweet psalmist of Israel. Even today, whenever you are in distress, sing these Psalms of King David.

David's kingdom listed thirty-seven mighty warriors. Among them, three were chosen as the greatest warriors of all. The first was Josheb-Basshebeth, the chief of the officers, who raised his spear against eight hundred men and killed them in one battle.

A Philistine garrison had taken a stronghold in the Valley of Rephaim. David, feeling thirsty, longed for water, saying, “Oh, that someone would bring me water from the well of Bethlehem, near the gate!” So these three mighty warriors broke through the Philistine camp, drew water from that well, and brought it to David. But David poured it out as an offering, refusing to drink it, saying, “Far be it from me, O Lord, that I should do this! Is it not the blood of these men who risked their lives?”

Among these three warriors was Abishai, the brother of Joab, who killed three hundred men with his spear. There was also Benaiah, who struck down two lion-like warriors of Moab and killed a lion in a snowy pit. He later became David’s bodyguard. Asahel was also among the thirty warriors, along with Uriah the Hittite, the husband of Bathsheba.

The Lord is the One who makes us mighty. If we trust and rely on Him, He will accomplish great things through us and strengthen us, even in times of trouble. The true heroism of today is not in killing lions or enemies, but in having God’s character—helping those in need, reading God’s Word daily, praying, and repenting of our sins. That is the true heroism of today: fearing God and glorifying Him, for His judgment is near. It means hating sin and warning others about the soon-coming Messiah!

Even if you do not have an opportunity to accomplish great things in God’s work, but you desire to, God knows your heart and intentions to do much for His glory. Do not be discouraged if, by His will, you are unable to fulfill those noble plans for His honor. He sees your desires and pours out His blessings. He knows you. He has carried you through many things and sees your potential even before you begin planning for His glory. He is pleased with your heart alone—the heart that loves Him and is contrite. That is the only gift He desires. Then you can continue bringing your thoughts and inspirations to Him and listen to what He says. He will glorify Himself through you.

We live in a world where we need to be heroes because Satan roams like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour. Though we are weak, if we are on our knees, filled with His Word in our hearts, we will be mighty warriors and set apart.

Missionary nurses, when caring for the sick and relieving the burdens of the poor, will have many opportunities to pray with them, read God’s Word to them, and speak of the Savior. They can bring the light of hope into the lives of the weary and the hopeless.

Questions:

Read a few verses from David's Psalms in today's vigil.

What did the three mighty warriors do together?

How was David's kingdom made everlasting?

How can we be heroes today?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Psalm 104:33–35.

[33-35] I will sing to the LORD all my life; I will sing praise to my God as long as I live. May my meditation be pleasing to Him, as I rejoice in the LORD.

Prayer: Beloved Father in heaven, thank You for everything. You are my shield, my strength, my salvation, and my refuge. In my distress I called upon You, and You delivered me. Keep me away from evil, for You alone are my hope. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: In our country we have Heroes' Day. You can name five national heroes and explain what they did. The Bible also has three mighty men and thirty others. Teach about these biblical heroes and what made them courageous.

DAY 101 (April 10)

TOPIC: David Counts Israel

(2 Samuel 24 and 1 Chronicles 21)

David angered the Lord by counting the people of Israel. Satan influenced him, and he called Joab, instructing him to go and count Israel and Judah. Even Joab, who had many spiritual struggles and was known for his brutality, recognized this as a mistake. He warned David, saying, “May the Lord increase the number of His people a hundredfold before your eyes, my lord the king. But why does my lord the king desire to do this? Why should he bring guilt upon Israel?”

However, the king’s command overruled Joab and the commanders of the army. So Joab and the army leaders left the king’s presence and went to count the people of Israel.

They crossed the Jordan and conducted the census, traveling through all the tribes, even to the borders. It took nine months and twenty days. During those times, with limited technology, counting people took time, as they had to travel on foot and go house to house. The king wanted to count the people eligible for the army so he could take pride in having a large military, perhaps believing that his victories were due to his strategy, technology, or the size of his army.

Joab reported that there were 800,000 men in Israel and 500,000 in Judah who were fit for military service. However, he did not count the Levites and Benjamites because he disagreed with the king's order. In this case, Joab was right. How often do we, too, desire to have large numbers in our church or group so that we can boast about it?

After the census, David's heart was troubled, and he confessed to the Lord that he had greatly sinned. He said, "I beg You, Lord, remove the guilt of Your servant, for I have acted very foolishly." It seems he had violated a clear command from God.

The next morning, the prophet Gad, sent by God, came to David with a message. He was to choose one of three punishments:
1. Seven years of famine in the land
2. Three months of fleeing from his enemies as they pursued him
3. Three days of plague in the land

Gad told David to think carefully and give an answer to the One who sent him. David was greatly distressed and said, "Let us fall into the hands of the Lord, for His mercy is great; but do not let me fall into the hands of men."

So the Lord sent a plague from morning until evening, and 70,000 people died. But when the angel stretched out his hand toward Jerusalem to destroy it, the Lord relented from the calamity and told the angel, "It is enough; withdraw your hand."

The angel of the Lord was standing near the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite. When David saw the angel striking down the people, he fell face down and cried, "I am the one who has sinned and done wrong. But these sheep—what have they done? Let Your hand be against me and my father's house."

Then the prophet Gad told David to go and build an altar to the Lord at the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite. David obeyed the Lord's command, and when Araunah saw the king, he came and bowed before him, asking,

“Why has my lord the king come to his servant?”
David answered that he wanted to buy the threshing floor to build an altar to the Lord, so the plague would be stopped.

Araunah offered to give it freely to the king, along with oxen for burnt offerings, threshing sledges for wood, and everything needed for the sacrifice, saying, “My lord the king, I give this to you. May the Lord your God accept you.”

But King David replied, “No, I insist on paying you for it. I will not offer burnt offerings to the Lord my God that cost me nothing.”

So David bought the threshing floor and the oxen for fifty shekels of silver and six hundred shekels of gold. He built an altar there and offered burnt offerings and fellowship offerings. The Lord accepted his sacrifice, blessed the land, and the plague was stopped in Israel.

David had fallen into the worldly mindset of measuring success by the size of his army. Pride and selfish ambition led him to take this census. However, Israel’s greatness did not come from its army’s size or military strength. Their greatness came from their obedience to God. The Lord had promised them:

“If you fully obey the Lord your God and carefully follow all His commands I give you today, the Lord your God will set you high above all the nations on earth. All these blessings will come on you and accompany you if you obey the Lord your God: You will be blessed in the city and blessed in the country. The fruit of your womb will be blessed, and the crops of your land and the young of your livestock—the calves of your herds and the lambs of your flocks. Your basket and your kneading trough will be blessed.” (Deuteronomy 28)

It was through this promise that God had fought and won battles for Israel. Their victories were not because of their army’s size. Measuring success by worldly standards led David to commit a great sin.

If more prayers were offered in our hospitals and sanatoriums for the healing of the sick, the mighty power of the Great Physician would be seen. Many more would be strengthened and blessed, and many sudden illnesses would be healed.

Questions:

What did the prophet Gad tell David?

Why is it not good to boast about having a large number of members?

God values numbers so much that He has a book called Numbers. Why was He displeased with David's census?

Which punishment did David choose?

What did David say to Araunah?

When people give us offerings to sacrifice while we have our own, why is it that they are the ones who gave, and not us?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: 2 Samuel 24:24.

But the king replied to Araunah, "No, I insist on paying you for it. I will not sacrifice to the LORD my God burnt offerings that cost me nothing." So David bought the threshing floor and the oxen and paid fifty shekels of silver for them. David built an altar to the LORD there and sacrificed burnt offerings and fellowship offerings. Then the LORD answered his prayer in behalf of the land, and the plague on Israel was stopped.

Prayer: Good Lord, take away pride and boasting from the works we do. Protect us from the evil one so that we do not deceive ourselves into thinking that success comes from us. Every blessing comes from You alone. Thank You, Lord. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Discuss modern-day examples of people showing pride in their wealth, power, or achievements—just as David once took pride in counting his military strength. How can we learn humility today?

DAY 102 (April 11)

TOPIC: The Coronation of Solomon

(1 Kings 1)

In his old age, David intended to store up treasures for building the temple of God on Mount Moriah, the same mountain where Abraham went to offer his son Isaac as a sacrifice. This temple would be the most valuable building ever. David wanted to do this work, but the Lord told him that he had been a man of war and had shed blood, and that the temple would be built by a man of peace.

David became cold in his old age, and although they covered him with clothes, it did not help. So, they found Abishag, a Shunammite, to take care of him and serve him. The Bible briefly mentions this, and even though David had many attendants, Abishag was brought in. Some things recorded in the Bible were not necessarily commanded by God; rather, He allowed them or did not prevent them. They could have been human plans or His own, which we may ask about when we get to heaven. Let us pray that we may be there!

Adonijah, David's eldest surviving son after the deaths of Amnon and Absalom, assumed that he would be the next king. He prepared chariots and 50 horsemen to run ahead of him, just like Absalom had done. His father had never rebuked him at any time. He conspired with Joab and Abiathar the priest to seize the throne. However, Zadok the priest, Benaiah, Nathan, Shimei, and David's mighty men did not support Adonijah. Adonijah offered sacrifices and invited his brothers, the king's sons, and the people of Judah to a feast, but he did not invite Nathan the prophet, Benaiah, David's warriors, or his brother Solomon.

Nathan warned Bathsheba, Solomon's mother, about Adonijah's actions. He advised her to go to King David and remind him of his promise that Solomon would be king after him. She was to plead for the safety of both herself and Solomon.

Bathsheba went to the king and presented her case, explaining that Adonijah had declared himself king without David's knowledge. She pointed out that the people of Israel were waiting for David to name his successor, fearing what might happen to her and Solomon if Adonijah ruled. As soon as she finished speaking, Nathan the prophet entered, bowed before the king, and confirmed Bathsheba's words.

King David then summoned Bathsheba and reaffirmed his oath that Solomon would reign after him. Bathsheba bowed low and said, "May my lord King David live forever!"

David called for Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah. He ordered them to take Solomon, mount him on the king's mule, and lead him to Gihon, where Zadok and Nathan would anoint him as king of Israel. They were to sound the trumpet and proclaim, "Long live King Solomon!" David declared that Solomon would sit on his throne and rule over Israel and Judah. Benaiah responded, "May Solomon's throne be even greater than my lord King David's!"

Solomon was anointed at Gihon amid great rejoicing, and the people celebrated so loudly that the ground shook with their cheers.

When Adonijah and his guests heard the commotion, they were alarmed. Jonathan, son of Abiathar the priest, arrived and confirmed that Solomon had been crowned king, anointed by Zadok and Nathan, and had taken his place on David's throne. The people were celebrating, and even David rejoiced, thanking God for allowing him to see his son succeed him.

Fearful, Adonijah fled to the altar and clung to its horns for protection. Solomon declared that if Adonijah proved to be a loyal man, he would be safe, but if he was found guilty of wrongdoing, he would die. He ordered that Adonijah be brought down from the altar. Adonijah came before Solomon and bowed, and Solomon told him to go home.

The mothers of David's righteous children may have had a positive influence on them, unlike David, who was occupied with leading the entire nation. My heart goes out to men who are busy leading churches or governments. We must pray for them, their children, and ourselves and our children.

Have you asked God about the position you desire before stepping into it? Adonijah should have done so.

David gave his instructions and distributed his inheritance while he was still alive. Giving after death is not true giving—it is merely holding on to possessions selfishly, knowing that you cannot take them with you. We cannot take anything with us to the grave or to heaven. Instead, we should find ways to help the poor, orphans, and widows while we are still alive. We are merely stewards of what God has entrusted to us; He is the true owner of all things and the giver of life. By giving to God's work, we store up treasures in heaven. Everything we invest in heaven is secure and will multiply into something eternal and everlasting.

There are many benefits to giving now while we are still alive. Here are a few:
1. You will see the impact of your gifts—such as a new church building, a student in college, or a joyful orphan.
2. There will be no disputes among family or friends after your death.
3. You will set an example of generosity and love for others.
4. It demonstrates that your heart has shifted from selfishness to generosity.
5. You store up treasures in heaven.

I would bring this prayer before the Lord:
"Lord, we cannot read the heart of this sick person, but You know whether healing would be for their spiritual benefit and for the glory of Your name. In Your great mercy, grant healing and allow the necessary medical interventions to take place. May this work be entirely Yours."

Questions:

1. Why did David appoint Solomon as king before his death?

2. Why was Abishag the Shunammite brought to care for the king in his old age?

3. What advice did Nathan give to Bathsheba?

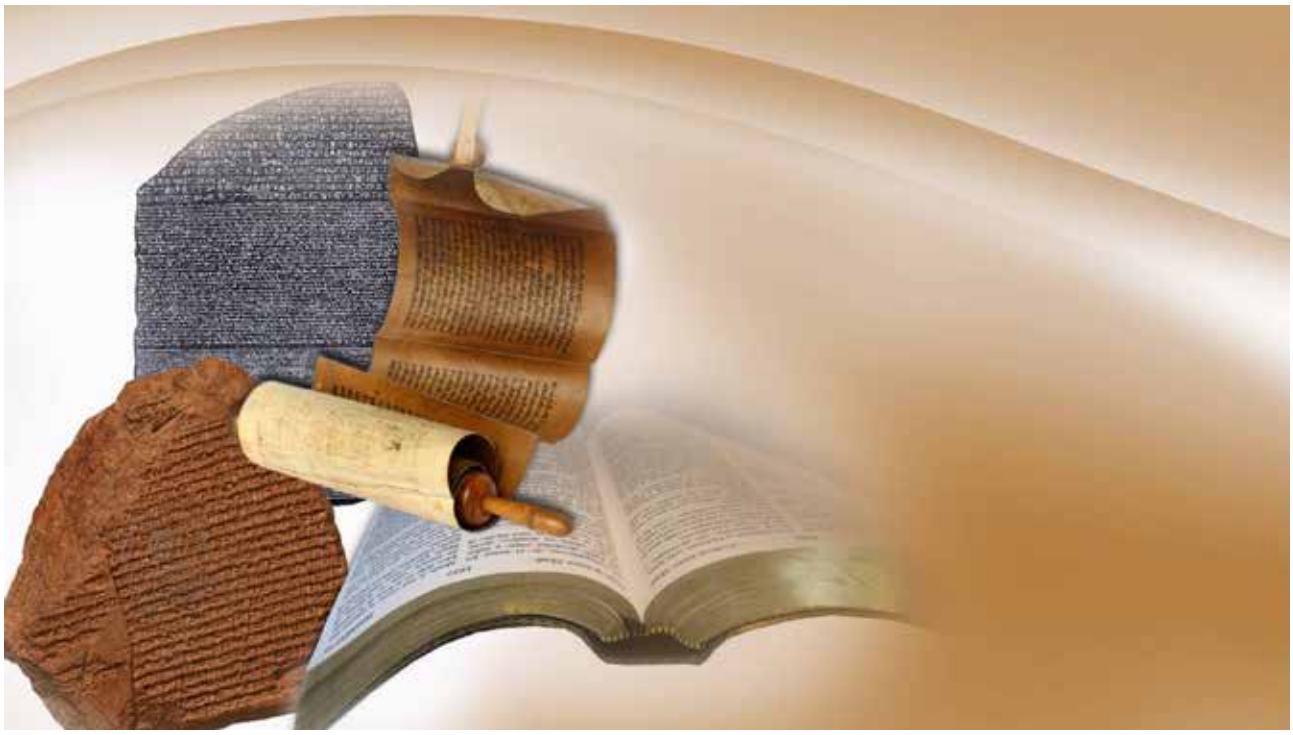
4. Who supported Adonijah's claim to the throne?

5. Why do you think David became weak or aged so much by the age of 70?

God Bless You, Child and Young Person of Jesus!

Memory Verse: 1 Kings 1:30.

[30] "I will surely carry out this very day what I swore to you by the LORD, the God of Israel: Solomon your son shall be king after me, and he will sit on my throne in my place."



Prayer: Thank You, Lord, for calling us into Your royal priesthood. We are grateful for Your blessings. Help us to love You and to love people. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Drama – The Coronation of King Solomon. Assign roles and act out the words spoken at the crowning.

DAY 103 (April 12)

TOPIC: Psalms, Songs, and Worship

(Psalms 1-150)

The Book of Psalms is the longest book in the Bible, containing 150 chapters. Psalm 119 is the longest chapter, while Psalm 118 is at the center of the Bible. Psalm 117 is the shortest chapter in the entire Bible. The Book of Psalms is a collection of songs and prayers written by various authors, including David, Asaph, Moses, and Solomon. David is the primary author, contributing the most Psalms. These songs and prayers were compiled by the Israelites for worship and are part of the Holy Scriptures.

David declared, "I will sing to the LORD as long as I live; I will praise my God while I have my being" (Psalm 104:33). The first recorded Psalm writer was Moses, who wrote Psalm 90, reminding us that human life is brief—seventy or eighty years at most. He prayed to God, asking Him to teach us to number our days wisely so that we may gain a heart of wisdom, for our days pass quickly. Therefore, we must obey and trust in God before we enter the sleep of death.

Psalms are poetic writings, and every language has its own poetry style. In Swahili, poems often have four stanzas, with the last stanza repeating, and a rhyme scheme of eight syllables per line. In English, poetry often follows a rhyme pattern without strict syllable counts. Hebrew poetry, on the other hand, is based on parallelism—where sentences are repeated and emphasized.

A good example is the contrast between the righteous and the wicked in Psalm 1:

"Blessed is the one who does not walk in step with the wicked, or stand in the way that sinners take,
or sit in the company of mockers,
but whose delight is in the law of the LORD, and who meditates on his law day and night.
That person is like a tree planted by streams of water, which yields its fruit in season, and whose leaf does not wither—whatever they do prospers."

Here, we see a progression—first walking with the wicked, then standing, then sitting, and finally being completely immersed in sin.

Types of Psalms:
The Psalms cover a variety of themes, including:
Praises to God
Prayers for guidance and deliverance
Petitions for protection and salvation
Prayers for forgiveness
Thanksgiving for God's blessings
Prayers for justice against enemies

Some Psalms are personal, while others represent the needs and emotions of the entire nation of Israel. They highlight the deep and vital relationship between God and His people.

The New Testament frequently quotes the Psalms. For example, Mary's song in Luke 1:46-55, Zechariah's prophecy in Luke 1:68-79, and Simeon's thanksgiving prayer in Luke 2:29-32 all reflect the Psalms' poetic style. Many Psalms also contain Messianic prophecies, predicting the coming of Christ. Jesus Himself quoted Psalms, and the New Testament authors frequently referenced them.

Psalms have been a rich source of worship for believers throughout history. One of the most beloved Psalms is Psalm 23, which provides great comfort:

Psalm 23
"The Lord is my shepherd; I lack nothing.
He makes me lie down in green pastures,
he leads me beside quiet waters,
he refreshes my soul.
He guides me along the right paths for his name's sake.
Even though I walk through the darkest valley,
I will fear no evil, for you are with me;
your rod and your staff, they comfort me.
You prepare a table before me in the presence of my enemies.
You anoint my head with oil; my cup overflows.
Surely your goodness and love will follow me all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever."

Psalms assure us that even though we are as fragile as flowers that fade or smoke that vanishes, God deeply cares for us. David marveled at God's greatness in Psalm 19:

"The heavens declare the glory of God;
the skies proclaim the work of his hands.
When I consider your heavens,
the work of your fingers,

the moon and the stars,
which you have set in place,
what is mankind that you are mindful of them,
human beings that you care for them?" (Psalm 19:1, 3-4)

David asked questions that still resonate today. For example, in Psalm 77, he wondered why God remained silent during times of trouble. At times, he felt as though the wicked prospered while the righteous suffered. However, when he entered the house of the Lord and understood their ultimate fate, he realized that their end would not be good. This gave him peace, knowing that God's justice prevails in the end.

Psalm 110 is the most quoted Psalm in the New Testament, appearing 33 times. One of its key verses states:

"The LORD says to my Lord:
'Sit at my right hand
until I make your enemies
a footstool for your feet.'" (Psalm 110:1)

This verse highlights that Jesus sits at the right hand of God the Father.

Psalm 139 teaches that God knows and searches our hearts. He knows all our ways, when we sit and when we rise. His knowledge is beyond comprehension. David declares:

"For you created my inmost being;
you knit me together in my mother's womb.
I praise you because I am fearfully and wonderfully made;
your works are wonderful,
I know that full well." (Psalm 139:13-14)

Psalm 150 closes the book with a call to praise God using all musical instruments:

"Praise the LORD.
Praise God in his sanctuary;
praise him in his mighty heavens.
Praise him for his acts of power;
praise him for his surpassing greatness.
Praise him with the sounding of the trumpet, praise him with the harp and lyre, praise him with timbrel and dancing,
praise him with the strings and pipe, praise him with the clash of cymbals, praise him with resounding cymbals.

Let everything that has breath praise the LORD.
Praise the LORD." (Psalm 150:1-6)

God dwells in the praises of His people. There is nothing better than worshiping Him. Since He owns everything, what can we give Him in return for His goodness? The best thing we can do is praise Him and share our testimonies with others so that they may know Him. When musical instruments are used properly, they enhance worship rather than create worldly noise.

Psalms contain great spiritual treasures. Psalm 34 states:

"I will bless the LORD at all times;
his praise will always be on my lips.
I sought the LORD, and he answered me;
he delivered me from all my fears.
The angel of the LORD encamps around those who fear him, and he delivers them.
Taste and see that the LORD is good." (Psalm 34:1-8)

Among all the Psalms, I love Psalm 119 the most. It consists of 22 sections, each with 8 verses (totaling 176 verses). Every verse, except one, speaks about God's Word—His law, commands, testimonies, and precepts. Can you find the one verse that does not?

When facing challenges or seeking inspiration, read the Psalms. They provide deep comfort and spiritual nourishment.

Questions:

1. Who wrote the Book of Psalms?
2. What poetic style was used?
3. Which Psalms contain Messianic prophecies?
4. Memorize Psalms 1, 23, and 91.
5. What do you remember about Psalm 119?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Psalm 122:1–2.

[1,2] I rejoiced with those who said to me, "Let us go to the house of the LORD." Our feet are standing in your gates, Jerusalem.

Prayer: Hallelujah, King of peace. We come before You singing, we are Your people entering Your gates with thanksgiving and praising Your Name. For You are good to us; Your mercy endures forever and Your faithfulness through all generations. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Write a song of praise to God, then sing it together with your friends.

DAY 104 (April 13)

TOPIC: Solomon and His Father's Instructions

(1 Kings 2-3)

David instructed his son Solomon, saying, "I am going the way of all the earth; be strong, and show yourself a man. Keep the commandments of the LORD your God, walk in His ways, keep His laws, His commandments, His judgments, and His testimonies, as written in the Law of Moses, so that you may prosper in all that you do and wherever you turn. That the LORD may fulfill His word spoken concerning David, saying that if his children walk in the way of the LORD with all their heart and soul, then David would never lack a man on the throne of Israel."

He reminded Solomon of the evil deeds of Joab, who killed Abner and Amasa without cause, telling him not to let Joab's gray hair go down to the grave in peace. He also instructed him to show kindness to the sons of Barzillai the Gileadite, allowing them to eat at his table because they had helped him when he fled from Absalom. However, concerning Shimei, who had cursed David, he warned Solomon to deal wisely with him and ensure that his gray hair went down to the grave with blood.

David then died, and Solomon began his reign on his father's throne, and his kingdom was firmly established. Adonijah, Solomon's older brother from another mother, approached Bathsheba, Solomon's mother, saying that the kingdom had once belonged to him because he was the eldest, but it had now turned to his brother by the LORD's will. He made one request and pleaded with Bathsheba not to deny him. When she asked what he wanted, he requested to be given Abishag the Shunammite, who had served David, as his wife.

Bathsheba saw no harm in the request and agreed to speak to her son, King Solomon, unaware that it was a trap. When Bathsheba presented Adonijah's request to Solomon, the king, seated on his throne, placed his mother at his right hand. She asked for a small favor, hoping he would not refuse. Solomon responded, "Ask, mother, for I will not refuse you," unaware of what she was about to request.

When Solomon heard that Adonijah wanted to marry Abishag, he immediately recognized the hidden motive. Since Abishag had been closely associated with King David, giving her to Adonijah was almost like granting him the throne. Solomon replied sharply, "Why do you ask for Abishag for Adonijah? You might as well ask for the kingdom for him, since he is my older brother."

Solomon then swore that Adonijah would not cause trouble in the kingdom and declared that he would be executed that very day. He sent Benaiah to put him to death.

Solomon then dealt with Abiathar, the priest who had sided with Adonijah. Instead of killing him, he sent him away to his land, reminding him that he had carried the Ark of the Covenant and shared in David's struggles when he fled from Saul. Solomon removed Abiathar from the priesthood, thus fulfilling the LORD's word that Eli's descendants would no longer serve as priests.

When Joab heard about Adonijah's fate, he fled to the altar and held onto its horns, seeking refuge. However, Solomon sent Benaiah to tell Joab to come out, but Joab refused. Solomon commanded that he be struck down there, declaring that it would remove the guilt of innocent blood that Joab had shed, having killed Abner and Amasa unjustly. Benaiah carried out the order, and Solomon appointed him as commander of the army in Joab's place, while Zadok replaced Abiathar as priest.

Solomon summoned Shimei and instructed him to build a house in Jerusalem and not to leave or cross the Kidron Valley. If he did, he would be put to death, and his blood would be on his own head. Shimei agreed and lived in Jerusalem for a long time. However, after three years, his servants ran away to Achish, and he left to retrieve them. When Solomon learned of this, he reminded Shimei of the oath he had taken before the LORD. He also recalled the evil that Shimei had done to David. As a result, Solomon ordered his execution.

Solomon made an alliance with Pharaoh, marrying his daughter and bringing her to the City of David, where he built a house for her, separate from the altar. It appears that this woman loved the God of Israel more than Solomon's other wives. She was his first wife.

We are living in the last days, where Satan is seeking whom he may devour. We must pray for one another and warn against the dangers of marrying unbelievers. Like Ezra, we must inform others about the risks of being unequally yoked with the world. Many need to understand the dangers of partnering with worldly people. We must highlight the dangers of engaging in politics that do not honor God. We must encourage our youth to choose Christian education over secular education.

Marrying an unbeliever with the hope of converting them later is a direct disregard for God's commandments. It is God who transforms a person, not their spouse. Marrying an unbeliever puts the believer at risk of losing their devotion to God. Constant conflicts arise, disrupting the relationship. Children are exposed to a negative example from the unbelieving parent. Often, the believer is forced to choose between God and their spouse. Their heart is troubled, knowing that their spouse may not enter the kingdom of heaven.

In the past, we were blessed with institutions where the sick could receive help through righteous treatments and sincere prayers of faith in God. We handled cases that seemed hopeless and found success. Today, the Lord invites those who are suffering to put their faith in Him. Man's necessity is God's opportunity.

Questions:

1. What instructions did David give to Solomon?
2. What did Adonijah request from Bathsheba? How was he answered?
3. Why were Joab and Shimei executed?
4. Why was Abiathar not executed?
5. Where did Solomon's wife come from?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: 1 Kings 2:2,3.

[2,3] Then David charged Solomon his son, saying, I go the way of all the earth; be strong therefore, and show yourself a man; and keep the charge of the LORD your God, to walk in His ways, to keep His statutes, and His commandments, and His judgments, and His testimonies, as it is written in the law of Moses, that you may prosper in all that you do, and wherever you turn yourself.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for Your instructions. We pray that You help us to walk in Your ways, Your statutes, commandments, testimonies, and judgments, as it is written in Your Book, so that we may prosper. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Open 1 Kings 2 and do this short play.

Read each part of David's counsel and tell the children to act out the gesture that matches the advice.

"Be strong and show yourself a man": Tell the children to fold their arms and show their muscles.

"Pay attention to what God wants you to do": Tell the children to fold their hands in prayer.

"Walk in obedience to God": Tell the children to move their fingers across the palm of their other hand as though walking.

"Keep His commands": Tell the children to hug themselves tightly.

"His laws and decrees as written in the Law of Moses": Pretend you are holding a pencil and writing.

"Do this so that you may prosper in all you do and wherever you go": Place your hand above your eyes as though looking into the distance where you are supposed to go.

DAY 105 (April 14)

TOPIC: The LORD Appears to Solomon

(1 Kings 3 and 2 Chronicles 1)

God was with Solomon and greatly exalted him. His kingdom was vast, ruling from Dan to Beersheba, Syria, Moab, Ammon, and up to the Euphrates River. He had many officials, including commanders, judges, and elders under his leadership.

King Solomon went to Gibeon to offer sacrifices at the high place. He presented a thousand burnt offerings on the altar built by Bezalel and Oholiab in the wilderness. That night, the LORD appeared to him in a dream at Gibeon and said, “Ask for whatever you want me to give you.”

Solomon replied, “You have shown great kindness to your servant, my father David, because he walked before you in truth, righteousness, and uprightness of heart. You have continued this kindness by allowing his son to sit on his throne today. But I am only a little child and do not know how to carry out my duties. Your servant is here among the people you have chosen, a great nation too numerous to count. Therefore, give me a discerning heart to govern your people and to distinguish between right and wrong. For who can govern this great people of yours?”

Solomon’s request pleased the LORD, for he had asked for wisdom to serve the people and God, rather than for long life, wealth, riches, glory, or the death of his enemies. So, God said to him, “Since you have asked for this and not for selfish gains, I will give you a wise and discerning heart. There will never be anyone like you before or after you. Moreover, I will also give you what you have not asked for—wealth, honor, and long life—if you walk in my ways and keep my decrees and commands as your father David did.”

Solomon awoke from his dream and went to the Ark of the Covenant in Jerusalem, where he offered burnt offerings and peace offerings and held a feast for all his servants.

Solomon became wiser than all other people. He spoke about trees, birds, fish, and animals. His wisdom was soon tested when two prostitutes came before him, seeking justice.

Each woman had a baby, but one of the babies had died during the night. The first woman said, “We lived together, and there was no one else in the house. This woman’s baby died at night because she accidentally lay on him. She got up in the middle of the night and took my baby while I was asleep, placing her dead baby beside me. When I woke up to nurse my child, I found that he was dead. But when I looked at him closely in the morning light, I realized he was not my son!”

But the other woman said, “No! The living baby is mine, and the dead one is yours!”

They argued before the king, each claiming to be the real mother.
Then King Solomon said, “One of you says, ‘The living baby is mine, and the dead one is yours.’ The other one says the same. Bring me a sword.”
When the sword was brought, the king commanded, “Cut the living child in two and give half to each woman.”

The real mother, filled with compassion for her son, pleaded, “My lord, please give her the living baby! Do not kill him!”
But the other woman said, “He shall be neither mine nor yours—cut him in half!

Solomon, using the wisdom given by God, immediately identified the real mother and declared, “Give the living baby to this woman. Do not kill him; she is the real mother.”

When the people of Israel heard about the king’s judgment, they stood in awe of him, for they saw that the wisdom of God was in him to administer justice.

Truly, it is better for a mother to give her child to another person to care for rather than allow the child to be harmed, as the second woman had suggested! A child is a gift from God, and we have no right to commit any cruel act against them or against anyone else. Whenever we face difficult situations, we should seek wise counsel from God-fearing parents, elders, or servants of God.

We are not kings or queens, but we all need wisdom in the work God has given us. Wisdom was not given to Solomon alone; even today, if you ask God for wisdom, He will grant it. As I write this story, I have prayed for wisdom.

It is God's promise that if anyone lacks wisdom, they should ask, and He will give generously without finding fault (James 1:5-8). But we must ask in faith without doubting, so we do not become like a wave tossed by the wind. I acknowledge that I lack wisdom—please pray for me, and I will also pray for you! Let us ask God for wisdom and an understanding heart.

"Lord, give us, Your servants, a discerning heart so we may judge Your people and distinguish between good and evil. For who can govern this great people of Yours?"

In other words, "You have placed me in a position of leadership over Your people. Please give me wisdom so that I may rule with justice and faithfulness."

God was pleased with Solomon's request because it was not selfish. Instead, it was something that would help him fulfill his divine calling successfully.

When praying for the sick, all we can do is sincerely and persistently plead with God on their behalf. We must trust Him completely and leave the matter in His hands. If we harbor sin in our hearts, the LORD will not hear us. But God can do whatever He wills for His people.

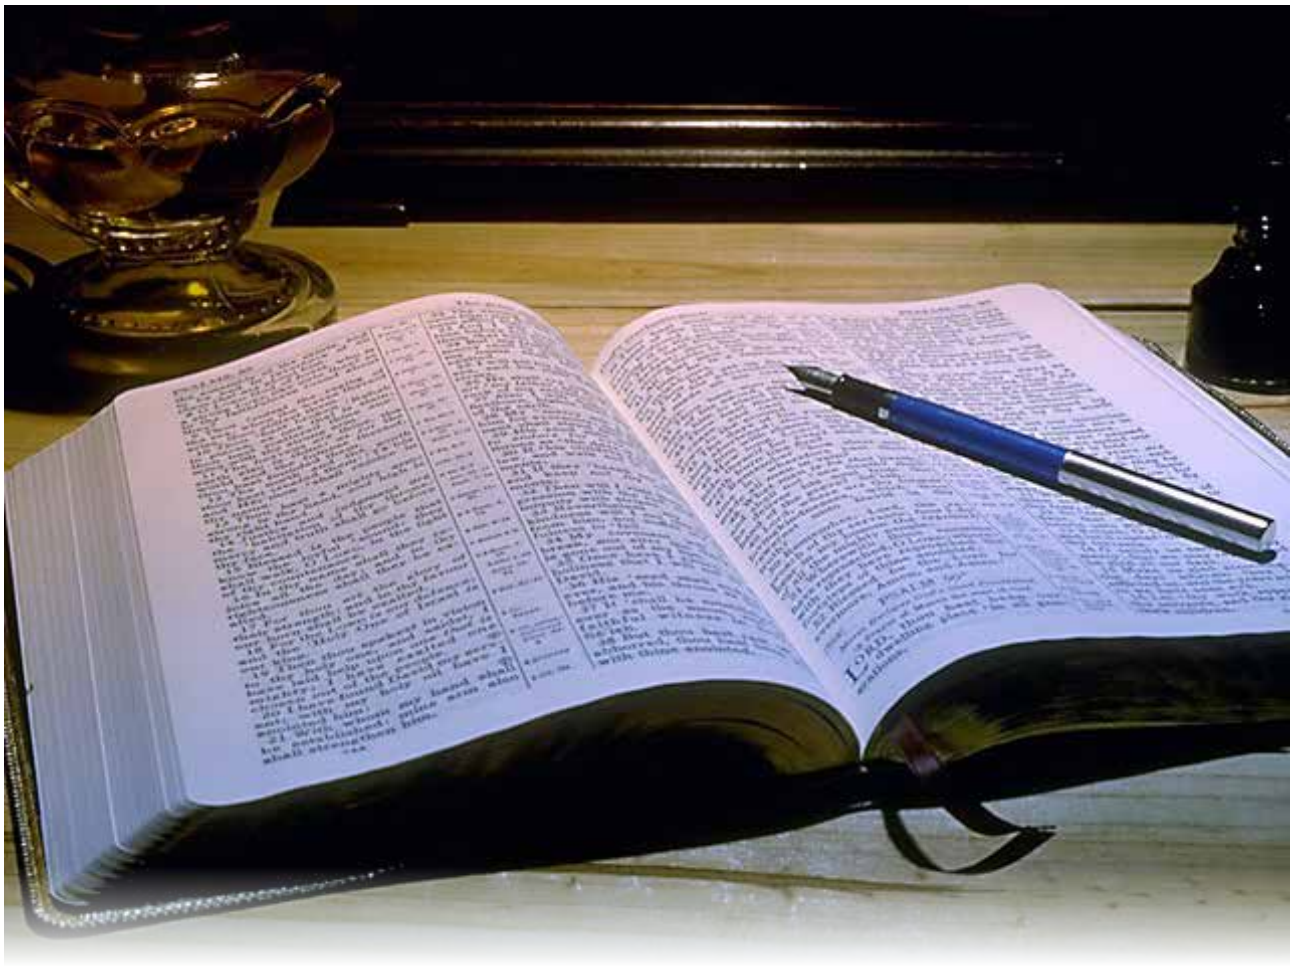
Questions:

1. If God asked you to request three things, what would you choose?
2. What dream did Solomon have?
3. Did Solomon's request please God?
4. How did Solomon demonstrate his wisdom?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse:

…….The LORD appeared to Solomon in a dream by night; and God said, Ask what I shall give you. ……And now, O LORD my God, ……. I do not know how to go out or come in. And Your servant is in the midst of Your people whom You have chosen, a great people, that cannot be numbered nor counted for multitude. Give therefore Your servant an understanding heart to judge Your people, that I may discern between good and bad; for who is able to judge this Your great people?



Prayer: Thank You, Heavenly Father, we pray that You give us wisdom to discern between good and evil. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Write down everything you would ask God for if He told you to ask for anything!

DAY 106 (April 15)

TOPIC: Words of Wisdom

(Proverbs)

Day after day, Solomon spoke words of wisdom, composing 3,000 proverbs and 1,005 songs. He had a special scribe to record his words of wisdom. Many people, even non-believers, quote Solomon's proverbs today. With the wisdom God gave him, Solomon wrote three poetic books and some Psalms. He wrote the Song of Solomon when he was young, then Proverbs, and finally Ecclesiastes when he was old.

He begins Proverbs by emphasizing that "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge, but fools despise wisdom and instruction." Wisdom teaches that when sinners entice you to do evil, flee from them, or restrain your feet from going into wrongdoing. Do not follow the crowd blindly but stand firm in your principles. Surely, every child should memorize these proverbs.

There is a difference between knowledge (or education) and wisdom. Wisdom is obtaining knowledge and using it correctly for the glory of God and the benefit of others. Read one chapter of Proverbs every day, and by the end of the month, you will have completed the book!

“My son, do not forget my teaching, but keep my commands in your heart, for they will prolong your life many years and bring you peace and prosperity. Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways submit to Him, and He will make your paths straight. Do not be wise in your own eyes; fear the Lord and shun evil. This will bring health to your body. Honor the Lord with your wealth, and then your barns will be filled with plenty. Do not despise the Lord’s discipline, for the Lord disciplines those He loves, just as a father disciplines the son he delights in.” (Proverbs 3:1-11)

I will write a few more proverbs here for you to reflect on and discuss with your parents:

“The Lord will be your confidence and will keep your foot from being caught. Do not withhold good from those to whom it is due when it is in your power to act. Do not say to your neighbor, ‘Come back tomorrow, and I will give it to you’ when you already have it with you. Do not plot harm against your neighbor who lives trustfully near you. Do not accuse anyone for no reason when they have done you no harm.” (Proverbs 3:26-30)

These are wonderful instructions if we want to have the kind of relationships that God desires us to have with others!

“The path of the righteous is like the morning sun, shining ever brighter till the full light of day.” (Proverbs 4:18)

“Hold on to instruction, do not let it go; guard it well, for it is your life.” (Proverbs 4:13)

Education is essential, and knowledge is not necessarily obtained only in a classroom. A person may attend school but still lack true wisdom. I believe the meaning here is to seek learning, investigate, and acquire knowledge that benefits humanity in dealing with their environment. Science, art, technology, or any other skill mentioned here should align with our Creator.

Thousands of inventors who contributed to the world were God-fearing, and I was even surprised to learn that many were children of pastors! For example, Orville and Wilbur Wright, who invented the airplane, were believers, and their father was a pastor. They tested their plane on the coast of North Carolina and managed to stay in the air for 8 minutes!

Many other scientists were also believers:

Eccles discovered how brain cells transmit information.

Pascal invented the calculator.

Lister introduced antiseptic surgery, reducing many deaths.

Leeuwenhoek discovered microorganisms like bacteria.

Kepler, a German scientist, discovered that the earth revolves around the sun.

Galileo invented the telescope.

Boyle from England made discoveries about natural gas and chemistry.

Faraday invented electricity-related concepts.

Mendel, a monk from Czechoslovakia, discovered genetics.

Newton discovered the laws of gravity.

Dalton introduced atomic theory, explaining that atoms make up all matter.

Carver improved agricultural practices and created peanut butter.

Nightingale improved hospital sanitation and founded modern nursing.

Volta invented the first battery.

Babbage pioneered early computers.

Steno founded geology.

Morse invented the telegraph and sent his first message using Numbers 23:23: “See what God has done!”

Beumann developed mathematical formulas that helped Einstein with his famous equation: $E = mc^2$.

“Above all else, guard your heart, for everything you do flows from it.” (Proverbs 4:23)

Solomon also learned wisdom from observing ants:

“Go to the ant, you sluggard; consider its ways and be wise! It has no commander, no overseer or ruler, yet it stores its provisions in summer and gathers its food at harvest. How long will you lie there, you sluggard? When will you get up from your sleep? A little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to rest— and poverty will come on you like a thief.” (Proverbs 6:6-11)

“A person who commits adultery has no sense; whoever does so destroys themselves.” (Proverbs 6:32)

“To fear the Lord is to hate evil; I hate pride, arrogance, evil behavior, and perverse speech.” (Proverbs 8:13)

“I love those who love me, and those who seek me diligently will find me.” (Proverbs 8:17)

“A wise son brings joy to his father, but a foolish son brings grief to his mother.” (Proverbs 10:1)

“Whoever gathers crops in summer is a prudent son, but he who sleeps during harvest is a disgraceful son.” (Proverbs 10:5)

“Whoever heeds discipline shows the way to life, but whoever ignores correction leads others astray.” (Proverbs 10:17)

“When pride comes, then comes disgrace, but with humility comes wisdom.” (Proverbs 11:2)

“A gossip betrays a confidence, but a trustworthy person keeps a secret.” (Proverbs 11:13)

“A wife of noble character is her husband’s crown, but a disgraceful wife is like decay in his bones.” (Proverbs 12:4)

“The righteous care for the needs of their animals, but the kindest acts of the wicked are cruel.” (Proverbs 12:10)

“Walk with the wise and become wise, for a companion of fools suffers harm.”

(Proverbs 13:20)

“Whoever spares the rod hates their children, but the one who loves them is careful to discipline them.” (Proverbs 13:24)

“The wise woman builds her house, but with her own hands, the foolish one tears hers down.” (Proverbs 14:1)

“There is a way that appears to be right, but in the end, it leads to death.” (Proverbs 14:12)

“A gentle answer turns away wrath, but a harsh word stirs up anger.” (Proverbs 15:1)

“Better a little with the fear of the Lord than great wealth with turmoil.” (Proverbs 15:16)

“The name of the Lord is a fortified tower; the righteous run to it and are safe.” (Proverbs 18:10)

Questions:

How can a child’s character be known?

Why do people avoid a quarrelsome and contentious person?

Who is responsible for vengeance?

Why is anger harmful?

Why should we read Proverbs?

What is the difference between skill, education, and wisdom?

May God Bless You, Child and Young Disciple of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Proverbs 3:3-6.

[3-6] Trust in the LORD with all your heart; and do not lean on your own understanding. In all your ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct your paths. Do not be wise in your own eyes; fear the LORD, and depart from evil. It shall be health to your body, and nourishment to your bones.

Prayer: Loving Lord, I thank You that You will give me wisdom to turn away from evil, and it will be health to my body. I ask You to help me not to rely on my own understanding, but in all my ways to acknowledge You, and You will direct my paths. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Compose one poem and one song that could help someone in their life!

DAY 107 (April 16)

TOPIC: Proverbs and Ecclesiastes

Solomon continued to write words of wisdom that help everyone, from children to adults.

“Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old, he will not depart from it.” – Proverbs 22:6
“Foolishness is bound up in the heart of a child, but the rod of correction will drive it far from him.” – Proverbs 22:15
“Do you see a man diligent in his work? He will stand before kings.” – Proverbs 22:29

“Listen to your father who begot you, and do not despise your mother when she is old. Buy the truth, and do not sell it; also wisdom, instruction, and understanding.” – Proverbs 23:22-23

“Wine is a mocker, strong drink is a brawler, and whoever is led astray by it is not wise.” – Proverbs 20:1

Read also Proverbs 23:29-35. Never taste alcohol.

“Let your foot be seldom in your neighbor’s house, lest he be weary of you and hate you.” – Proverbs 25:17
“If your enemy is hungry, give him bread to eat; and if he is thirsty, give him water to drink. For you will heap coals of fire on his head, and the Lord will reward you.” – Proverbs 25:21-22

“A lazy man says, ‘There is a lion in the road! A fierce lion is in the streets!’” – Proverbs 26:13
“He who passes by and meddles in a quarrel not his own is like one who takes a dog by the ears.” – Proverbs 26:17
“Do not boast about tomorrow, for you do not know what a day may bring forth.” – Proverbs 27:1
“Faithful are the wounds of a friend, but the kisses of an enemy are deceitful.” – Proverbs 27:6
“The wicked flee when no one pursues, but the righteous are as bold as a lion.” – Proverbs 28:1

“He who covers his sins will not prosper, but whoever confesses and forsakes them will have mercy.” – Proverbs 28:13
“Whoever robs his father or his mother, and says, ‘It is no transgression,’ is a companion to a destroyer.” – Proverbs 28:24
“He who is often rebuked and hardens his neck will suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy.” – Proverbs 29:1
“Do you see a man hasty in his words? There is more hope for a fool than for him.” – Proverbs 29:20

“Remove falsehood and lies far from me; give me neither poverty nor riches—feed me with the food allotted to me; lest I be full and deny You, and say, ‘Who is the Lord?’ or lest I be poor and steal, and profane the name of my God.” – Proverbs 30:8-9

If we learn and live by the instructions in Proverbs as commanded, we will have success, joy, and blessings. These writings in Proverbs are not Solomon’s wisdom but the wisdom of God Himself, who inspired Solomon to write them!

Solomon was wiser and wealthier than anyone else. He used his talents to research and understand what benefit a person gains from their labor under the sun. His conclusion was: “Vanity of vanities, all is vanity!”

This does not mean God did not create us for joy. Rather, Solomon explains in detail so that we do not make the same mistakes he did. He gives us the true answers from his investigations so that we do not fall as he did.

He says everything is repetitive and exhausting. There is nothing new; everything repeats: morning, noon, evening; morning, noon, evening. It's like chasing the wind or punching the air. It's like trying to carry water in a net. It's like pedaling a stationary bike—going nowhere. Many people who do not acknowledge God think this book supports their way of life! But no, every scripture from God is meant to guide us to live above the sun forever, not just under the sun!

A person may have wealth and work hard, but it only brings jealousy from others. Despite all his riches, Solomon's heart and soul were still troubled. He could laugh, but deep inside, he was hiding sorrow. Even though he had servants, wealth, cattle, wine, delicious food, entertainers, gardens, fountains, education, choirs, and bands, none of these satisfied him.

Modern people live in noise and constant activity to forget their inner emptiness. As Saint Augustine said, "O Lord, You have made us for Yourself, and our hearts are restless until they find rest in You."
A hymn says, "My faith has found a resting place in You."

The hunger in our souls can only be satisfied by knowing God and serving Him—not by childish or youthful pleasures. Use your strength and ability to help those in need, serve God as a missionary wherever you are, and attend church. Do not waste your time on meaningless things. Instead, invest in things above the sun.

Read Matthew 5 to understand true joy under the sun. You will see that blessed are the poor in spirit, the peacemakers, those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, and those who are pure in heart. True happiness does not come from doing whatever we want or glorifying ourselves.

Buying things, throwing them away, and buying more is just a way to distract ourselves from sadness. Possessions do not bring joy—only a relationship with our Heavenly Father does.

A day is coming when all our actions under the sun, both open and secret, will be revealed in the Book of Remembrance. Serve with love, and blessings will return to you. It is our duty to present the sick and suffering to Christ through our faith. We must hold onto His promises and pray for His power to be revealed.

The heart of the gospel is restoration, and the Savior wants us to pray for the sick, the hopeless, and the troubled, that they may experience His power.

Questions for Reflection:

1. What happens to those who hide their sins?

2. According to Proverbs 7, what are the characteristics of an immoral woman?

3. According to Proverbs 31, what are the characteristics of a virtuous woman?

4. What are the traits of an immoral boy or girl?

5. Why is diligence in work important?

6. How can someone lend to the Lord?

7. What does vanity under the sun mean?

8. What is the difference between fighting and arguing?

9. How should we treat our enemies?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Proverbs 22:22, 23.

[22,23] Listen to your father who begot you, and do not despise your mother when she is old. Buy the truth, and do not sell it; yes, also wisdom, instruction, and understanding.

Prayer: Father, thank You for loving us. I pray that I may honor my father and mother, and not sell the Truth that I know. I ask for wisdom. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Discuss together what it means to train up a child in the way he should go. How would you want your child to be raised?

DAY 108 (April 17)

TOPIC: Ecclesiastes or Koheleth

The Book of Ecclesiastes contains teachings for both children and adults. The writer says, Young person, rejoice in your youth, let your heart cheer you, but remember that everything will be brought into judgment. Youth and childhood are vanity, and so is old age. He saw life as a mystery, seemingly without satisfaction, a cycle without purpose, where people are born and die, born and die. He sought the answer to the meaning of life, which is the same question we ask today.

Having lived many years, Solomon discovered that everything has its own time—
A time to throw away and a time to gather, a time to weep and a time to laugh, a time to search and a time to lose, a time to uproot and a time to plant, a time to tear down and a time to build, a time to tear apart and a time to sew, a time to be silent and a time to speak, a time for war and a time for peace, a time to love and a time to hate.

He realized that nothing is new under the sun that a person can boast of having discovered first.

Solomon also observed that with great wisdom comes great sorrow, and increasing knowledge brings more grief—unless it is directed toward the fear of the Lord. He sought to gratify his heart with luxuries:

He built houses,
Planted fruit trees,
Kept monkeys for entertainment,
Bought servants,
Amassed wealth and large herds,
Hired musicians,
Had many women to please him,
Acquired gold and more—

He withheld nothing from himself that could bring pleasure. But after indulging without restraint, he realized that it was all vanity, like chasing the wind. None of it brought true happiness.

Eventually, he despised all the things he had worked hard for because, despite his labor and wisdom, he would die and leave everything behind. If the one who inherits it is a fool, he would ruin it all. So, Solomon concluded that it was all meaningless. He advised that one should eat and enjoy life without being consumed by endless desires.

His final resolution was this:
“Remember your Creator in the days of your youth, before the evil days come, when you will say, ‘I have no pleasure in them.’”

The summary of all things is this:
“Fear God and keep His commandments, for this is the whole duty of man. For God will bring every deed into judgment, including every hidden thing, whether good or evil.”

Children and youth, everything in this world will pass away, but fearing God and keeping His commandments is the only thing that truly matters and lasts forever.

In Ecclesiastes, Solomon reflects on the meaning of life. He analyzes the importance of human existence and its ultimate outcomes. Older people fully understand his message because they have lived through many struggles and realized that everything is temporary. Life is a journey for all people.

Through his years of experience, Solomon concluded that the essence of happiness is contentment, and the meaning of life is found in one thing—
Fear God and keep His commandments, for this is the whole duty of man.

He had tried many things to find happiness but saw that it was all vanity. He became overwhelmed by sorrow, realizing that life was empty and without true profit. The joys of the world and its possessions are temporary.

He uses the phrase “under the sun” 27 times, referring to life on earth. Though he indulged in worldly pleasures more than anyone, he still felt empty. He also repeats the words “vanity” or “chasing the wind” 38 times, emphasizing that without God, life has no true meaning or purpose.

Some people seek God only when their lives fall apart or when they face financial problems. On the other hand, in wealthy nations, people who have everything often live as if God does not exist. Even among those who are struggling today, once they become successful, selfishness arises, and they prioritize status and material wealth over caring for the needy. They may only give away what they no longer want, and eventually, they realize that possessions do not bring true happiness.

Does your life lack meaning or purpose?
I advise you to put God first in everything, to make Him the center of your life. Focus on heaven, not the temporary pleasures of this world. Seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all other things will be added to you—including joy. There is sorrow in chasing worldly things without loving and seeking God. Faith in God is the only way to find true meaning in life; everything else fades quickly.

Many people constantly chase after something new. They collect and store things—Toys, clothes, houses, cars, boats, gadgets, and more—but none of it truly satisfies, so they keep looking for the next thing, hoping it will bring happiness. But in the end, nothing fulfills them.

Some people think, “I will be happy when I finish school.”
Or, “I will be happy when I get a job.”
Or, “I will be happy when I get married.”
Or, “I will be happy when I have children.”
Or, “I will be happy when my children are grown and independent.”
Or, “I will be happy when I retire.”
Or, “I will be happy when I have grandchildren.”

Happiness keeps running ahead of them, but they never catch it.

Tomorrow is not promised to anyone. Who knows if we will even wake up from sleep? We must not let material things consume our hearts to the point where we forget why we are here on earth, where we are going, and what preparations we need to make to enter heaven.

Solomon ultimately realized that wisdom alone brings sorrow, and increasing knowledge without the fear of God brings grief. He sought to entertain his heart and had all the wealth needed to satisfy any craving. He had absolute power, so no one could stop him from doing whatever he pleased.

If he wanted 1,000 horses, he got them.
If he wanted to punish people, he did.
If he wanted to sleep all day without working, he did.
If he wanted to eat an entire pot of meat, no one could stop him.

But a life without limits is dangerous. This is why many wealthy people and rulers easily fall into great sin. Some historians say that Solomon found the kingdom eating two meals a day and added a third meal. However, eating three meals a day without physical activity leads to gluttony, poor health, and a lack of self-control.

Solomon's final conclusion:
"Remember your Creator in the days of your youth, before the evil days come, when you will say, 'I have no pleasure in them.'"
"Fear God and keep His commandments, for this is the whole duty of man. For God will bring every deed into judgment, including every hidden thing, whether good or evil."

Everything in this world will pass away, but fearing God and keeping His commandments is the only thing that will last forever.

Let us read the story of this king, his downfalls, and what he learned so that we do not repeat his mistakes. Everyone—young and old—needs wisdom. Every stage of life requires making wise decisions, as no one follows the same exact path at all times.

Prayers for the Sick Are Needed Today as in Biblical Times

The Healer from Heaven is in the sickroom. He hears every prayer offered in true faith. Christ's disciples today should pray for the sick just as His early disciples did. There will be healing, for "the prayer of faith shall save the sick."

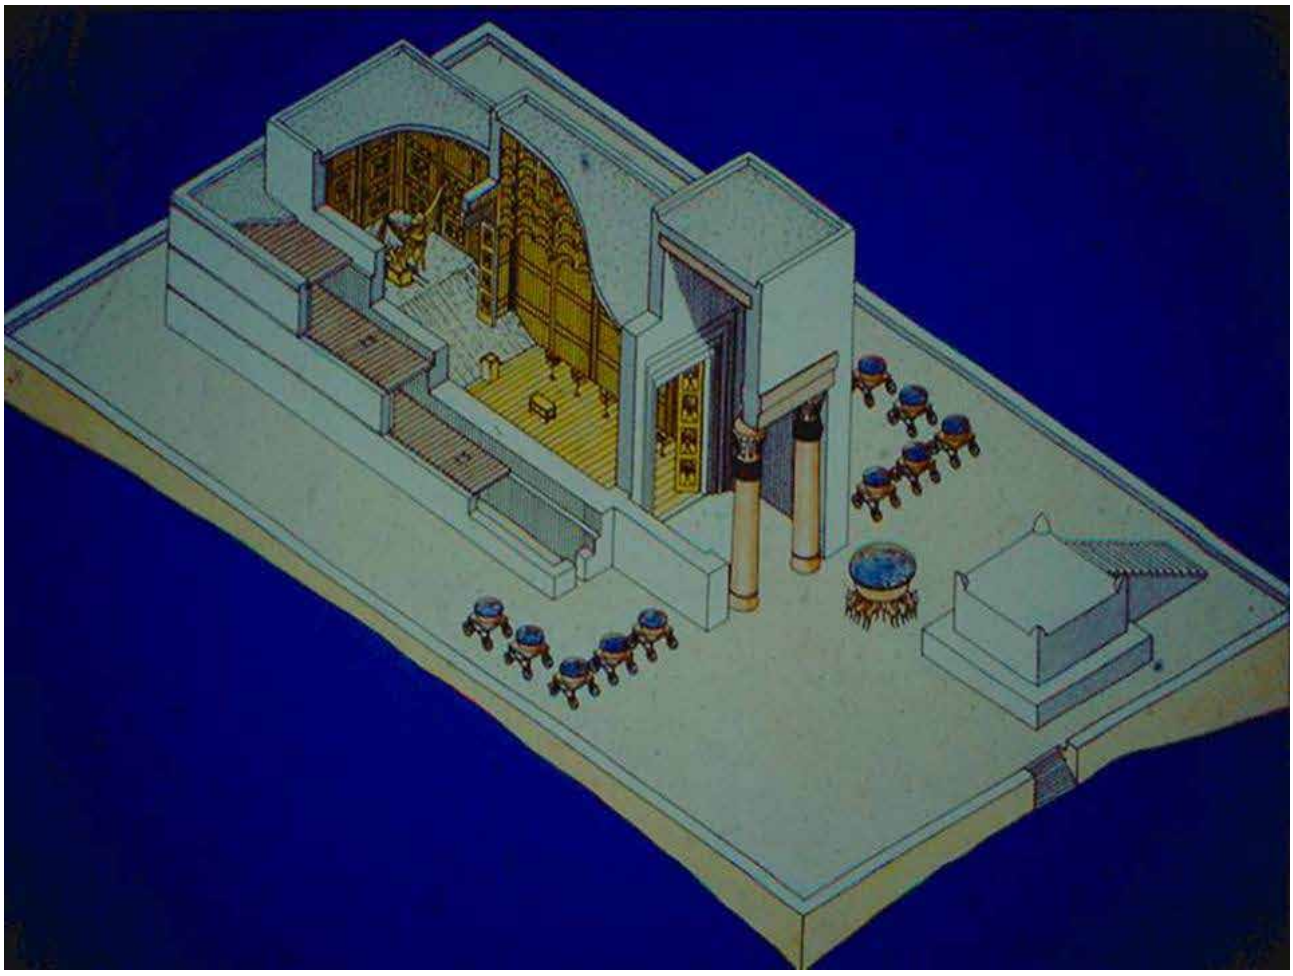
Questions for Reflection:

1. What does Koheleth mean?
2. What books did Solomon write?
3. Why don't material things bring the happiness people expect?
4. What brings true and lasting happiness?
5. Why should we remember our Creator while we are young?
6. Why do some people only turn to God when they are old and frail?
7. Why is a lack of self-control a sin?
8. Can true, lasting happiness be found in finishing school, getting married, having children, or retiring?

May God bless you, child and young person of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Ecclesiastes 1:1.

Remember your Creator in the days of your youth, before the evil days come, and the years draw near when you will say, "I have no pleasure in them."



Prayer: Loving Father in heaven, help me to remember You in the days of my youth. I ask for the wisdom to live in Your joy. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Ecclesiastes 3. Bring a large clock if you have one, or a small one. Act out "everything has its time"!

DAY 109 (April 18)

TOPIC: Building the Temple

(1 Kings 5 and 2 Chronicles 1, 3)

Under Solomon's reign, Israel experienced peace and prosperity like never before. Solomon gathered chariots and horsemen, owning 1,400 chariots and 12,000 horsemen. He made silver and gold as common as stones in Jerusalem, and cedars as plentiful as sycamore trees. Horses were imported from Egypt and sold in trade.

Hiram, the king of Tyre, was a friend of David. When he heard that David had passed away and Solomon had taken the throne, he sent a diplomatic envoy to congratulate him. He told Solomon, "Because the LORD loves His people, He has made you king over them." Solomon responded by explaining that his father had been unable to build a temple for the LORD due to war, but now, with peace in the land, he intended to build a house for the LORD's Name.

Solomon committed to constructing a temple for the LORD and a palace for himself. With peace in the land, he appointed 70,000 laborers to carry loads, 80,000 stonecutters, and 3,600 overseers. He requested Hiram's help in supplying cedar wood, just as he had for David, explaining that he was building a great temple because God is greater than all gods. He asked for skilled craftsmen in various trades, including engraving, gold, silver, bronze, iron, and dyes. Such partnerships can often bring good results, as cooperation in work and sharing the good news can progress effectively!

Solomon requested that Hiram's servants cut cedars from Lebanon and transport them by sea to Joppa. In return, he promised to provide food as payment, acknowledging that no one knew how to cut timber like the Sidonians. Hiram was pleased, praising the LORD for giving David a wise son. He agreed to supply cedar, juniper, and other materials, having them transported by sea to the specified location. He requested food supplies in return. Solomon provided grain, barley, olive oil, and other necessities, and the two kings made an alliance.

Solomon sent 30,000 men to Lebanon in shifts of 10,000 per month, allowing them to return home for two months. He commanded that large, finely cut stones be prepared for the temple's foundation. The masons from Hiram and Solomon worked together, cutting and preparing the timber and stones for construction.

Hiram also sent Huram, a skilled craftsman whose mother was from the tribe of Dan and father was from Tyre. He was full of wisdom and artistic skill, proficient in working with bronze, iron, stone, wood, and fabrics of purple, blue, fine linen, and crimson. He could design and execute any craft. His talents mirrored those of Aholiab, who assisted Bezalel in constructing the wilderness tabernacle.

One of Huram's greatest works was casting two bronze pillars for the temple entrance, each 33 feet high and 7 feet wide. Using clay from the Jordan Valley, he molded and transported them to Jerusalem. These pillars stood for centuries, symbolizing that when a person dedicates themselves to God's work, He grants them gifts and abilities. When we admire the grandeur of Solomon's temple, we must not forget the craftsmanship of this man. Huram also created a massive basin, 18 feet wide and 9 feet deep, capable of holding about 6,000 liters. He crafted 400 bronze pomegranates, bases, tongs, and other temple furnishings. Though he had his weaknesses, he used his talents for God's work.

I wonder how so many workers managed during construction. Where did they sleep? Did they have enough water for drinking and sanitation? Who prepared meals for them? Did they have a 'hospital' for the injured? Did their whole families come, or did wives and children stay behind? The list of questions goes on. I even wonder how they built toilets and baths! Truly, God's work is amazing and well-organized.

Likewise, we are called to build a temple for the Lord—our bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit. Do you know how to take care of your body according to the Bible's instructions? Do you eat a healthy diet? Do you exercise? Do you get fresh air? Do you trust in God? Do you drink 6 to 10 glasses of water daily? Do you practice moderation in all things? Do you read the Scriptures and pray every day?

All the stones for the temple were cut and prepared before being brought to the construction site. The building process was quiet—no hammer, axe, or iron tool was heard at the site. Perhaps God intended this as an example of how His Church should work under the guidance of His Spirit, without noise and disorder. Children should remember this and remain quiet and reverent during worship in church. Read more in Testimonies, Volume 5, Chapter 55: Conduct in the House of God.

Today, God is building another temple—our bodies, which are His dwelling place. Therefore, whether we eat or drink, or whatever we do, we should do it for the glory of God.

Solomon began constructing the LORD's temple on Mount Moriah. The temple occupied the entire mountain, and it was built 480 years after the Israelites left Egypt, in the fourth year of his reign. The foundation was laid in the fourth year, and the structure was completed in seven years. However, it took eleven years to fully finish all the details. His father, David, had designed the plans and made extensive preparations, collecting 3,000 talents of gold and 7,000 talents of bronze. Before his death, David encouraged the people to contribute freewill offerings for the temple's construction.

The cooperation between David and Hiram, and later between Solomon and Hiram, teaches us about partnerships between believers and non-believers in advancing God's work. However, there are precautions to consider when forming such alliances:

1. Do not enter into agreements that contradict the principles of Scripture.

2. When engaging in business with those who are not part of God's kingdom, see it as a missionary opportunity to lead them to salvation.

3. We can learn valuable skills from non-believers while also teaching them about salvation. This happened with Joseph in Egypt and with Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah in Babylon.

God is ready to restore the health of the sick today, just as He spoke through the Psalms. Jesus is still the same compassionate Healer as He was during His earthly ministry. In Him, there is healing for every disease and strength for every weakness. His disciples today should pray for the sick, just as the early apostles did, and healing will follow, for "the prayer of faith will save the sick." We have the power of the Holy Spirit and the quiet assurance of faith that claims God's promises.

The Lord's promise in Mark 16:18—"They will lay hands on the sick, and they will recover"—is just as trustworthy today as it was in the apostles' time. It reveals the privilege of God's children, and our faith should claim all that is available to us. Christ's servants are His instruments, and through them, He desires to demonstrate His healing power. It is our duty to bring the sick and suffering to God through the hands of faith. We must teach them to trust in the Great Physician.

Questions:

1. What message did Hiram send in his diplomatic delegation?

2. What did the King of Tyre provide?

3. What did King Solomon offer in return?

4. What skills did Huram the craftsman possess?

5. Why was there no sound of hammering or chiseling at the temple construction site?

6. List ways we should conduct ourselves in God's house.

7. Do you think the Gospel work can be completed today without peace and unity?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Psalm 103:1-3.

Bless the LORD, O my soul; and all that is within me, bless His holy Name. Bless the LORD, O my soul, and do not forget all His benefits; who forgives all your iniquities; who heals all your diseases; who redeems your life from the pit; who crowns you with lovingkindness and tender mercies.

Prayer: Lord, thank You for all the good things You give us every day. Forgive us our sins and help us to always remember Your goodness and blessings. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Draw chariots and soldiers and connect them to the instructions of the Bible in 1 Samuel 8:11.

DAY 110 (April 19)

TOPIC: The Completion of the Temple Construction

(1 Kings 6-8)

Stone after stone was placed, spreading and fitting perfectly. Children came to look at it, and everyone marveled because it was a magnificent sight, unlike anything ever seen before. People also observed the silence and tranquility. David had begun this work many years earlier by gathering materials. The temple had two courts: the outer court, where only Israelite men were allowed to enter—foreigners were not permitted—and in front of this court was another reserved for priests only.

The dimensions of Moses' Tabernacle were 55 feet in length, 18 feet in width, and 18 feet in height. In contrast, Solomon's Temple measured 110 feet in length, 36 feet in width, and 36 feet in height.

Solomon's Temple was also divided into two sections: the Holy Place and the Most Holy Place. The roof was made of cedarwood, and the floor of cypress wood, with no stone visible. The wooden panels were covered with gold. The doors were golden, and cherubim were carved on the walls, along with palm trees and flowers. The curtains were dyed in blue, purple, and red. The cherubim in the Most Holy Place were made of olive wood. The altar of incense was gold, as were the table for the showbread and the lampstand. The colors were extraordinarily beautiful.

Outside the temple, there was an altar for burnt offerings and a large bronze basin for washing. Everyone, from the king to the laborers, had done their part and given glory to God. Do not despise even the smallest task you are given—it is necessary for the whole work to be complete. Pray that God helps you to enjoy and faithfully perform your work.

The final step was to bring the Ark of the Covenant from the City of David and to dedicate the temple. There must have been a grand procession filled with joy as people saw the Ark, which had been with them for about 480 years, being carried with reverence by the Levites. They brought the sacred items of the former tabernacle and placed them in the new temple.

They brought in the Ark and set it inside, though it was small and contained only a few items—mainly the tablets of Moses from Mount Sinai. However, it was the most valuable object in the temple, for without God's law and the mercy seat, all the temple services would have had no meaning.

Solomon placed the treasures that his father David had dedicated—gold, silver, and sacred items—into the temple's treasury. Then, he gathered the elders of Israel from all the tribes to Jerusalem to bring up the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD from the City of David, also called Zion. They assembled for the festival, and the Levite priests carried the Ark. They brought up the Ark, along with the tabernacle of meeting and all the sacred items inside. Many sheep and cattle were sacrificed, too many to count.

The priests placed the Ark beneath the wings of the cherubim, which stretched their wings over the Ark and its poles. When the priests came out of the Holy Place, the house of the LORD was filled with a cloud. The priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud, for the glory of the LORD had filled the temple.

Then Solomon declared, "The LORD has said that He would dwell in thick darkness. Surely, I have built You an exalted house, a dwelling place for You forever." The building was magnificent, but true worship and devotion to God were far more important than the structure itself.

GOD knows the end from the beginning. He knows the hearts of all people. He sees every secret of the soul. He knows whether those we pray for would be able to withstand the trials ahead if they continue living. He knows whether their lives would be a blessing or a curse to themselves and the world. This is why, when we present our petitions earnestly, we should also say, “Nevertheless, not my will, but Yours be done.”

Questions:

1. Where was the Ark of the Covenant brought from?

2. What were the two important items inside the Ark of the Covenant?

3. What happened when the priests came out of the Holy Place?

4. How many years did it take to build the temple?

5. Solomon spent 7 years building the temple and 14 years building his own house. Why do you think his house took longer?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Memory Verse: 2 Chronicles 6:38, 39, 42.

[38, 39, 42] …When they return to You with all their heart and with all their soul in the land of their captivity, where they have been carried captive, and pray toward their land which You gave to their fathers, the city which You have chosen, and the house which I have built for Your Name; then hear from heaven, from Your dwelling place, their prayer and their supplications, and maintain their cause, and forgive Your people who have sinned against You. …O LORD God, do not turn away the face of Your anointed.

Prayer: O LORD, there is no God like You in heaven or on earth who keeps covenant of mercy with us Your children. Thank You for fulfilling Your promises given in the Bible. Thank You for helping us in the building of our churches. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity:

Drama: act out the building of the temple or a church.

Materials: paper, pens. Reflect on Solomon's prayer: Read 1 Kings 8:22-53 and talk about Solomon's dedication prayer for the temple, emphasizing his requests and God's promises.

Collect prayer requests: Each child can write their personal prayer on slips of paper, just as Solomon prayed for the people of Israel.

Link the prayers: Join the slips of paper together to form a "prayer chain" representing the connection between people and God, and hang the prayer chain in a visible place as a reminder to pray and trust God, just as Solomon did.

DAY 111 (April 20)

TOPIC: The Temple is Dedicated

(1 Kings 8-9 and 2 Chronicles 4-6)

When the work was completed, the king summoned the elders of Israel and the chiefs of the tribes to Jerusalem to bring up the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord from the City of David along with the holy articles from the tent. They then sacrificed an uncountable number of sheep and cattle because they were many. All the priests went to the holy place, for they had purified themselves and did not follow their usual divisions.

The Levite singers under Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun were dressed in fine linen, standing on the east side with harps, lyres, and cymbals, blowing trumpets and singing. They praised the Lord with a loud voice, using trumpets, cymbals, and other musical instruments, glorifying the Lord. There were many singers, even Heman, the king's seer, and his children were singers in the temple.

The priests could not stand to perform their service because the cloud of God's glory filled the house of the Lord. The temple was filled with His presence. The king turned to bless the entire congregation of Israel, and they all stood. He said, "Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel, who spoke with my father David and has fulfilled His promise with His hands through me, Solomon."

He reminded them that from the time Israel left Egypt, God had not chosen any city from the tribes of Israel to build an altar, but now He had chosen Jerusalem so that His name would be there. He recalled that it was in his father David's heart to build the temple, but God said, "You have done well in having this desire, but you will not build it; rather, your son Solomon will." And God fulfilled His promise. Solomon said, "I have now taken my father David's place, sitting on the throne and building the house of the Lord, the God of Israel. In it, I have placed the Ark of the Covenant, which contains the covenant the Lord made with the children of Israel."

Solomon then stood before the assembly, stretched out his hands on a bronze platform, lifted them toward heaven, and prayed:
"O Lord, God of Israel, there is no God like You in heaven or on earth, who keeps Your covenant and mercy with Your servants who walk before You with all their hearts."

He reiterated the promise God gave to his father, stating that Israel would never lack a ruler from David's lineage as long as they followed God's ways. He acknowledged that God had kept His promise and now the temple was built.

However, he asked, "But will God indeed dwell among men on earth? Behold, even the heavens cannot contain You, much less this house I have built!" Yet he pleaded with God to listen to his servant's prayers.

Solomon's prayer is considered one of the longest in the Bible. In summary, he prayed for:

1. The temple to be a place of forgiveness and pardon.
2. Justice to be served when oaths are taken there.
3. Deliverance for those defeated by enemies who repent and pray.
4. Relief from drought when the people repent and turn back to God.
5. Healing from plagues, famine, mildew, locusts, or pests when hands are lifted in prayer.
6. Foreigners who pray there to be heard.
7. Victory in battles and freedom for captives who seek forgiveness.

Solomon concluded his prayer by asking that God's eyes be open and His ears attentive to the prayers made in the temple. He then said, "Now arise, O Lord God, and come to Your resting place, You and the Ark of Your strength. Let Your priests, O Lord God, be clothed with salvation, and let Your saints rejoice in Your goodness. Do not turn away Your face, but remember the mercies promised to Your servant David."

When he finished praying, fire came down from heaven and consumed the sacrifices, and the glory of the Lord filled the temple. The priests could not enter because of the glory of God. The people fell on their faces and worshiped, saying, "The Lord is good, and His mercy endures forever."

The king then offered 22,000 bulls and 120,000 sheep as sacrifices, and they completed the temple dedication. They held a seven-day celebration. On the fourteenth day, the people were sent home, joyful and glad for all the goodness the Lord had shown to David, Solomon, and His people, Israel.

The temple became the center of everything in Israel. It was the heart of their worship, with the Ark of the Covenant as the primary symbol of God's presence and glory. It was called the Ark of the Covenant because it contained the Law or the Covenant.

One key observation is that Solomon did not struggle with sin while building the temple. However, when he began working on his own projects, problems arose.

Solomon established the rotation of priests and Levites for service, just as his father David had instructed. The priests had to cleanse themselves before serving in the large basin. However, when Christ died, He purified His people once and for all with His blood on the cross. We no longer need to wash with water to approach God, for Christ has cleansed our sins (Hebrews 1:3). Now we can boldly approach the throne of grace (Hebrews 4:16), knowing we are accepted because we are purified through Him, the Messiah.

Solomon built his own palace but refused to let his Egyptian wife live near the temple, saying, "My wife shall not dwell in the house of David, King of Israel, because it is holy, where the Ark of the Lord has entered" (2 Chronicles 8:11). Instead, he built an altar outside his palace.

The most important lesson today is understanding that we are God's temple under construction. Humanity is God's work, a sacred masterpiece created for a divine purpose. In every part of the human temple, God desires to inscribe His law. Every nerve, muscle, and faculty must remain pure. Our bodies are being built today so that our characters may resemble His.

God plans for our bodies to be His Spirit's dwelling place. It is a serious issue if we defile our bodies through impure thoughts, alcohol, smoking, unhealthy food, inappropriate entertainment, pride, etc.

Christ died so that God's moral image could be restored in humanity, allowing men and women to partake in His divine nature and escape worldly corruption caused by evil desires. We must not use any part of our being for selfish or self-indulgent purposes because all our strength belongs to God and should be used for His glory. We are fearfully and wonderfully made. God's work must be preserved so that both the heavenly realm and humanity may witness that we are temples of the living God.

The perfection of character that God desires is keeping our whole being as a temple for the Holy Spirit. God requires the full service of our souls, not half-hearted devotion. He desires young men and women to become all that He has enabled them to be. It is not enough for only part of the human body to be devoted to Him.

When Christ died, His people were sanctified once and for all by His blood on the cross. We no longer need ceremonial washing with water to approach God, for Christ has made the purification for sin (Hebrews 1:3). Now, we can boldly approach the throne of grace (Hebrews 4:16), confident that we are spiritually, physically, mentally, economically, and socially clean through Him.

Let us be bold and overcome every habit that defiles the temple of the Holy Spirit. Let us fully depend on God, and our faith will be strengthened as we trust in Him. Even when we do not see the purpose of His dealings with us or the results of this construction of our bodily temples, we will soon understand.

Questions:

1. What lesson have you learned from this?

2. Why was the Ark of the Covenant so important?

3. Where did the fire come from?

4. What seven things did Solomon pray for?

5. Why didn't Solomon want to bring his wife near the temple?

6. Our bodies are also God's temple today—how can we care for them?

7. Spiritual well-being is more important than a beautiful church building—can you explain this?

God bless you, child and young servant of Jesus.

Memory Verse: 2 Chronicles 6:24, 25.

[24,25] And he said, O LORD God of Israel, there is no God like You in heaven nor in earth; who keeps covenant and mercy with Your servants, who walk before You with all their hearts; You who have kept what You promised to Your servant David my father… But will God indeed dwell with men on the earth? Behold, heaven and the heaven of heavens cannot contain You; how much less this house which I have built!

Prayer: Our Father in heaven, if we have sinned against You; when we return to You, and confess Your Name, and pray and make supplication in this house, then hear from heaven, and forgive our sin. We dedicate our house to You. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Dedicate your house. People dedicate a new house, or a house they move into, to invite God in a special way to bring protection and blessing. We dedicate our house to God, and remove anything that brings darkness inside—such as unworthy pictures, witchcraft, or idols of any kind.

Walk through each room and pray, listing the needs of that room or the person who will use it—for example, asking for good conversations in the family room or blessings in the kitchen.

Some use olive oil to anoint the room that will be used for God's purposes. Then pray together and share your requests with God, including the mission or ministry you want to do.

DAY 112 (April 21)

TOPIC: The Lord's Response to Solomon

(1 Kings and 2 Chronicles 7 and 9)

The Lord appeared to Solomon at night and said to him, "I have heard your prayer and have chosen this place for myself as a temple of sacrifices. If I shut up the heavens so that there is no rain, or if I command locusts to devour the land, or if I send a plague among my people, if my people, who are called by my name, will humble themselves and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven, forgive their sin, and heal their land."

The Lord said that His eyes would be open and His ears attentive to the prayers offered in the temple. He declared that He had chosen and consecrated the temple so that His name may be there forever, and if Solomon walked before Him as his father David did, keeping His commands and laws, He would establish his throne. But if they turned away to worship other gods, He would make their land desolate, and all who passed by would be astonished and ask, "Why has the Lord done this to this land and temple?" The answer would be, "Because they abandoned the Lord, the God of their ancestors, who brought them out of Egypt, and they embraced other gods, worshiping and serving them; that is why He brought all this disaster upon them."

Even today, the Lord is ready to hear our prayers. If we repent and return to Him, He will forgive us and heal our land.

In 1 Chronicles 23, we see that God commanded the Levites, who were in charge of the old Jewish temple and its services, to stand in His presence and lift their voices in thanksgiving and praise every morning and evening. This act of worship originated from another command that God gave Moses, instructing the Israelites, "Have them make a sanctuary for me, and I will dwell among them" (Exodus 25:8). God further commanded, "One lamb you shall offer in the morning, and the other lamb you shall offer in the evening" (Exodus 29:39).

If your prayer life has lost its strength, ask God now to renew your commitment to morning and evening worship through prayer and Bible reading.

Many people heard about Solomon's greatness and wisdom, and they came to visit him, seeking counsel or witnessing his wonders. The wealth and power that God gives us should be a testimony to His greatness, not a source of pride or sin.

The Queen of Sheba also visited Solomon to test him with hard questions in Jerusalem. She came with a large entourage, bringing camels loaded with spices, gold, and precious stones. When she arrived, she shared with Solomon everything on her heart, and he answered all her questions. Nothing was hidden from Solomon that he could not explain.

When she saw Solomon's wisdom, the house he built, the food on his table, the organization of his officials, their clothing, the cupbearers, and the entrance to the temple, her spirit was overwhelmed. She told the king, "I had heard reports about you in my country, but I did not believe them until I came and saw with my own eyes. Indeed, not even half of your greatness and wisdom was told to me! You exceed what I heard." She continued, "Blessed are your men and servants who stand before you daily and hear your wisdom! Blessed be the Lord your God, who delighted in you and placed you on His throne."

She gave the king vast amounts of gold, spices, and precious stones. No one ever brought as many spices as the Queen of Sheba. In return, Solomon gave her gifts greater than what she had brought, granting all her requests. She then returned to her country with her servants.

The Queen of Sheba was more faithful to God than many Jews. Jesus said, "The Queen of the South will rise at the judgment with this generation and condemn it; for she came from the ends of the earth to listen to Solomon's wisdom, and now something greater than Solomon is here" (Matthew 12:42).

The Bible is the greatest history book of the world, and new discoveries continue to affirm it. If you do not understand something now, ask God, for one day you will see that nothing contradicts His Word.

God chose Solomon while he was still young and inexperienced for the great work he would do for Him. The people also contributed greatly to building the temple. They gave willingly because of the integrity of their hearts and rejoiced with great joy. Giving is still a source of joy and brings many blessings, especially when helping those in need and supporting God's work in the church, just as King David and Solomon did. Wealth, empowerment, honor, and blessings come from God.

David said, "Who am I, and who are my people, that we should be able to give as generously as this? Everything comes from you, and we have given you only what comes from your hand" (1 Chronicles 29:14). God tests our hearts and delights in integrity.

The Lord exalted Solomon in the eyes of Israel, granting him royal splendor greater than any king of Israel before him, including his father David.

In 1 Chronicles 4, we meet Jabez, from the tribe of Judah. His mother gave birth to him in pain, but he was more honorable than his brothers. He prayed to God, saying, "Oh, that you would bless me and enlarge my territory! Let your hand be with me and keep me from harm so that I will be free from pain." And God granted his request. Even today, God grants the desires of our hearts when we pray.

In those days, they built one temple; today, we have millions of churches worldwide. When a church project begins, even if you are unemployed, strive to contribute. It is good to ensure that the church is built without debts. Pray that God will provide something for you to give towards building His house—it is a great blessing to construct the temple of the KING OF KINGS.

Even today, let us be like Solomon, choosing God as our Father so that we may be His children and stand firm forever. Children, be diligent and courageous in doing what pleases God. Do not be afraid or discouraged, for the Lord your God is with you, and He will not fail or forsake you until He returns to take us home.

Each year, Solomon received gifts from distant lands.

When praying for the sick, we should ask that, if it is God's will, they be healed and have good health; but if not, we should pray that He grants them His grace and comfort in their suffering.

Many people who should put their houses in order neglect to do so because they hope for miraculous healing. Driven by false hope, they do not feel the need to give counsel or instructions to their children, parents, or friends, which is very unfortunate. Believing they will be healed through prayer, they avoid discussing how their wealth should be distributed, how their family should be cared for, or any wishes they might express if they thought they were near death.

As a result, families and friends face confusion because many important matters remain unspoken. Some people believe that preparing for such things is a lack of faith. They refuse to take necessary health precautions or maintain hygiene, fearing that doing so would show disbelief in God's healing power.

Questions:

1. How did God respond to Solomon's prayer?

2. What did the people and David give to build the temple?

3. Why did the Queen of Sheba visit Solomon?

4. What gifts did she bring?

5. What did Jabez ask God for?

May God Bless You, Child and Young Person of Jesus!

Memory Verse: 2 Chronicles 7:14.

[14] If My people, who are called by My Name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways; then I will hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land.

Prayer: Our Heavenly Father, forgive me, and help me to humble myself before You, to pray and seek Your face, and to turn away from all my wicked ways. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Read this verse and discuss these steps and even act them out—2 Chronicles 7:14. How can revival and reformation begin in your home or in your church? Discuss together.

DAY 113 (April 22)

TOPIC: The Song of Songs or the Song of Solomon

The Book of the Song of Songs speaks about love between a man and a woman. This love should exist within marriage and not outside of it, as it is God's command. The love of God for His church is compared to the love of a husband for his wife. Whoever finds a good wife or husband receives a blessing from the LORD and obtains something good. Great sorrow comes if a husband or wife is cruel or does not love God.

Proverbs 5, 6, and 7 talk about the immoral woman, while Proverbs 31 describes the virtuous woman before God, her husband, and her children. Every young man and woman should read Solomon's teachings to avoid repeating his mistakes. When Eve came to know good and evil, her sorrow increased, and she found herself lost and empty. Women led Solomon away from God, the source of his wisdom. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. Solomon warns against marrying ungodly spouses.

Even today, though you are still young, you can pray and ask God to help you so that when the time comes, you will marry someone who fears Him. If you marry an unbeliever or a wicked person, you will experience much pain. Many have joined bad groups of friends thinking they can leave whenever they want. However, if Solomon, who had great wisdom, failed to escape from these ungodly women because he welcomed them, talked with them, and befriended them, how can we, who lack his wisdom, expect to escape if we befriend those who worship other things?

God's love and grace are great and wonderful; they allowed Solomon to repent. Others do not get the same chance—once they are lost, that is the end for them. However, his first wife, Pharaoh's daughter, by grace, chose to worship the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. This should have been a sign for Solomon to stop marrying foreign women who worshiped other gods. Kings marrying many wives and having many children fulfilled Samuel's prophecy that kings would make their people their servants and bring sorrow to their citizens.

The Song of Solomon is one of the 1,005 songs Solomon wrote as a young man. Some people hesitate to read it, thinking it is not inspired, but that is not true. God is the one who established marriage and the relationship between a husband and wife. Just like the book of Esther does not explicitly mention the name of God but is inspired by the Holy Spirit, all Scripture is God-breathed and useful for teaching, rebuking, correcting, and training in righteousness so that the servant of God may be thoroughly equipped for every good work.

This song begins with courtship before the wedding. The Shulamite woman desires to be close to her fiancé but is advised not to rush love; she should give it time to grow naturally. She advises other young women not to awaken love until the right time. The man, King Solomon, praises the Shulamite, reducing her fears that she may not be beautiful enough. The Shulamite dreams that she has lost Solomon and searches for him throughout the city, with the guards helping her. On the wedding day, the groom praises his bride, they unite and become one.

As the marriage continues, they face challenges. In another dream, the Shulamite quarrels with her husband, and he leaves. She searches for him again in the city, but this time, the guards beat her. The dream ends with the lovers reuniting.

Love between a husband and wife should not be hidden in secrecy or darkness. Holding hands, speaking kind and encouraging words—these are expressions of love. Some people may not realize whether a couple still has chemistry or if only history remains. Affection should continue after marriage, even more than before. Love between a husband and wife is God's plan from creation. "My beloved is mine, and I am his" (Song of Solomon 2:1).

This is not an ordinary song; it is poetic and consists of conversations between a man and a woman, showing that they are still young and pure. It describes how the man praises the woman's love and character, and vice versa. "Behold, you are fair, my love! Behold, you are fair! You have doves' eyes" (Song of Solomon 4:7).

These lovers love each other openly, and their parents are informed; it is not a secret. Romance is a part of life that God desires for a husband and wife, and its safe place is only within marriage. “For this reason, a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and they shall become one flesh. What God has joined together, let no man separate.”

The song starts before the wedding, during courtship, and continues through their marriage. If we want true joy and love in marriage, we must follow God’s plan, taking the right steps instead of engaging in immorality and defiling our bodies. “I charge you, O daughters of Jerusalem, do not stir up nor awaken love until it pleases” (Song of Solomon 8:4). Solomon acknowledges that love is stronger than death; many waters cannot quench it.

We live in a time when love between people, even between husband and wife, is decreasing, and divorce is increasing. These teachings help sustain true and incomparable love in marriage. God’s love for us is unconditional (agape). A husband and wife must know each other well to build their relationship over time. They should learn to speak kind and uplifting words instead of constantly criticizing each other.

A husband should do everything within his power to make his wife happy, show care, and be responsible for her. A husband and wife should renew their vows and commitments daily. They should not see divorce as a solution to their problems. God wants them to live in peace and security. A husband and wife should learn to listen to each other, not just expect to be heard.

The Bible says, “Husbands, love your wives just as Christ also loved the church and gave Himself for her” (Ephesians 5:25). “Wives, submit to your own husbands, as to the Lord, for the husband is the head of the wife, as also Christ is the head of the church” (Ephesians 5:22-23). This book can also be used to illustrate God’s love for us or His love for His church. “You are all fair, my love, and there is no spot in you” (Song of Solomon 4:7) compared with Ephesians 5:27.

Ways to strengthen and maintain a happy marriage include:

Wishing your spouse well and not thinking evil of them

Praying together

Continuing to court each other

Remembering that God united you

Guarding your thoughts

Not going to bed angry

Making God the center of your life

Understanding that divorce is not the answer

Avoiding constant criticism

Exercising self-control

Respecting each other's rights and personal space

Maintaining cleanliness and organization

Managing finances wisely

Freely communicating and consulting each other

Respecting and loving one another

Marriage is meant to last until death separates the couple. A young person must be very careful when choosing a spouse. They should be someone who loves God, has good character, and is compatible in personality and goals. Marriage should be approached with much prayer, seeking counsel from godly elders, and studying Scripture.

No one is perfect, but certain behaviors—such as alcoholism, lying, gossiping, unfaithfulness, jealousy, and pride—can bring much sorrow to a marriage. Since a young person may not fully understand their potential spouse, they should continuously seek God's guidance, just as Eliezer did, rather than choosing someone and then asking God to bless that decision.

Biblical marriage is between a man and a woman and should be legally and religiously officiated in a place of worship. A marriage can be renewed and strengthened, like Solomon's and the Shulamite's, by doing things together: rejoicing, complimenting, writing to each other, laughing, solving problems, playing together, traveling, working together, showing kindness, and being gentle.

May God bless you, child and youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse:

The Song of Songs, of Solomon. Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth—for your love is better than wine. My beloved, you are beautiful indeed, and within you there is no blemish.

Prayer: Beloved Lord, You are the Founder of love. Thank You for the gift of the covenant of pure love, full of desire and faithfulness. Teach us to delight in the beauty of responsible love. Help us preserve our relationships with tender kindness (gentleness) and mutual respect.

Activity: Compose a song about someone you love, whether a parent, friend, or relative.

DAY 114 (April 23)

TOPIC: Solomon Forsakes God

(1 Kings 11)

Solomon was someone who loved God in a special way from childhood. He was not the firstborn heir, as Amnon was the first, and even after Amnon and Absalom died, it was expected that Daniel, the son of Abigail, or Adonijah would reign. However, God chose Solomon. His father did not hesitate to leave him the kingdom and the task of building the temple, even though he saw him as young. He said, "My son is still young and tender, and the house of the Lord that he will build must be exceedingly magnificent, famous, and glorious throughout all lands." He then stored up great wealth before his death. He blessed him to prosper and prayed that the Lord would give him wisdom and understanding so that he would keep the law of the Lord, for only then would he be successful, by observing and doing the Lord's commands and judgments as instructed by Moses.

However, King Solomon fell because of his love for many foreign women—Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Sidonians, and Hittites—nations about which the Lord had warned the Israelites not to intermarry with, lest they turn their hearts away to follow their gods. Yet Solomon clung to these women in love and had 700 wives and 300 concubines. This was astonishing, for even being with just one wife requires great wisdom. He started well, being wise and God-fearing in his youth, but when he grew old, his heart was turned away to follow other gods, and his heart was not fully devoted to the Lord his God, as his father David's heart had been. He began to follow Ashtoreth, the goddess of the Sidonians, and Milcom, the abomination of the Ammonites—a god who required people to sacrifice their children as burnt offerings. Solomon did evil in the eyes of the Lord, and he built high places for worshiping these detestable gods, including Chemosh, the abomination of Moab, and Molech, the abomination of the Ammonites. He participated in these idol worship practices with his foreign wives, burning incense and offering sacrifices to their gods.

The Lord became angry with Solomon because his heart had turned away from the Lord, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel. He rebuked him, saying he should not follow those gods, but Solomon did not heed the Lord's command. God told him that since he had not kept His commands, He would tear the kingdom away from him and give it to his servant. However, for the sake of David, God said He would not do this during Solomon's reign but during his son's time. He also said He would leave one tribe, Judah, for his son, while the rest of the tribes would be taken by another ruler.

Solomon's love for foreign women turned his heart away from God, and his wisdom diminished. His love for God, who had given him everything, started fading. As a result, the Lord raised adversaries against Solomon, including Hadad the Edomite and Rezon, as well as Jeroboam. God sent the prophet Ahijah to meet Jeroboam and gave him a message by tearing his new robe into twelve pieces, telling him to take ten pieces. The prophet explained that this symbolized the tearing of Solomon's kingdom, with ten tribes given to Jeroboam because Solomon had forsaken God and worshiped other gods.

Solomon abandoned God's ways and did what was right in his own eyes, neglecting the laws and judgments of God. Darkness entered Israel. His love for many women led him astray from the Lord. Wealth, pride, and the love of women have been causes of downfall for many who love God when they attain positions of leadership. Those being led see such evil examples, and many follow the same destructive path.

Solomon did everything in excess—whether building the temple, accumulating wealth, or marrying many wives. Imagine if someone came to church with 1,000 wives and 2,000 children! Where would they sit? How would they manage school, meals, and other expenses? His rule must have been costly for his people. He was the wisest man in the known world at the time and had everything! If he could be led astray by relationships with unbelievers, how much more vulnerable are we? We live in an era of social media, mobile phones, and more widespread corruption than in his time. We must walk with greater caution, remain in prayer, and flee from worldly temptations and influences!

We should keep the cross close. Our prayer should be: "Oh Lord, hide me under Your wings. Protect me from evil influences and distractions. Help me not to lose my first love for You."

It is incredibly difficult to comprehend how such a wise man, who spoke directly with God and received divine wisdom, could turn so drastically away from His laws. The key issue was that he "loved foreign women," meaning those who did not believe in the God of heaven. A single woman or man can lead a person astray. We have seen many young people ignore the advice of their parents and pastors and enter relationships with people who do not love the Lord. Many of these relationships have ended disastrously! God, who took great pride in Solomon and granted him immense wisdom, was grieved by his poor choices.

Later in the chapter, we see that when Solomon heard that Jeroboam was to be given part of his kingdom, he sought to kill him. Jeroboam fled to Egypt until Solomon died. Solomon ruled Israel for 40 years.

We should not try to create our own paths or attempt to fit God into our desires. If the lives of the sick can glorify Him, we should pray for their healing—but not according to our will, but His. Our faith must be firm and unwavering, trusting God completely and surrendering our desires to His wisdom. We have His promises. We know He hears us when we pray according to His will.

Questions:

1. What led to Solomon's downfall?

2. Why do we say darkness entered Israel?

3. What can we learn from Solomon about our own lives?

4. What instructions did Solomon receive from his father?

5. How did the priestly orders help?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: 1 Kings 14:4-7.

[4-7] When Solomon was old, his wives turned his heart after other gods; and his heart was not loyal to the Lord his God, as was the heart of David his father. For Solomon followed Ashtoreth the goddess of the Sidonians, and Milcom the abomination of the Ammonites. Solomon did evil in the sight of the Lord and did not fully follow the Lord, as did David his father.

Prayer: Heavenly Father, thank You for this day. Help us to be humble, and not to go astray to worship other gods such as money, wealth, beauty, education, opinions, or anything else. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: We who live in the world of social media, mobile phones, and even greater abominations and filth spreading through the media than in Solomon's time, must be more cautious. Write down these dangers and precautions—about 10 of them.

DAY 115 (April 24)

TOPIC: How to Avoid Regret

(1 Kings 12 & 2 Chronicles 9-11)

Solomon had flaws like other kings during his reign, just as God had warned that kings would. To maintain luxury and grandeur, he imposed heavy taxes on all the tribes of Israel. He had a vast workforce serving in his army, construction projects, and even in his household. If he had 1,000 wives, the estimated number of children was also high. All these people needed to be served—children were fed, meals prepared, clothes washed, houses cleaned, fields cultivated, children educated and entertained, animal parks maintained, and much more.

Before Solomon's reign ended, people began complaining about the heavy taxation, as it had become an unbearable burden on Israel, especially the less fortunate. It is possible that even the sacrifices he made to foreign gods came from tax revenues collected from the people. A ruler who honors God leads his people to do the same, while poor leadership can turn people away from God.

God sent a message to Jeroboam, Solomon's servant who helped build his royal palace, telling him that if he obeyed God's will, he would be blessed, and his descendants would rule. Solomon's kingdom was already on the verge of collapse. His weak son, Rehoboam, inherited the throne and sought to continue his father's high taxation. The people did not want him to be crowned in Jerusalem but instead in Shechem.

Before his coronation, the Israelites in Shechem told him, "Your father placed a heavy yoke on us. Now lighten the harsh labor and heavy burden he put on us, and we will serve you." Rehoboam asked them to return after three days for his response. He first sought advice from the elders, who told him that if he served the people and answered them kindly, they would always remain loyal to him. However, Rehoboam ignored the elders' advice and instead consulted young men from his generation regarding the heavy taxation imposed by his father. These young men told him to say to the people, "My little finger is thicker than my father's waist. My father laid a heavy burden on you, but I will make it even heavier. My father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with scorpions."

On the third day, when the people returned for his response, Rehoboam answered them harshly, rejecting the wise counsel of the elders. Because he refused to listen to sound advice, God fulfilled the prophecy given through Ahijah, leading to the division of Israel's kingdom.

God desires to bless us, but we often lack wisdom and stray from His ways. May He help us avoid regret. "There is a way that seems right to a man, but its end is destruction." (Proverbs 14:12). When Israel demanded a king like other nations, God warned them that relying on a monarchy would be a heavy burden. He advised them to remain a theocracy, with God as their King, but they rejected His counsel.

To understand the burden Solomon imposed, consider the daily provisions for his royal household: 5,000 liters of flour, 10,000 liters of grain, 10 fattened cattle fed with grain, 20 grass-fed cattle, 100 sheep, and various types of deer and choice poultry. Multiply these amounts by 30 days per month and then by the 40 years Solomon ruled—you get a clear picture of the burden his subjects carried. Yet, they had chosen this system themselves.

Rehoboam's refusal to reduce this burden resulted in the kingdom splitting into two: the northern kingdom (Israel) and the southern kingdom (Judah).

Israel eventually disappeared as a nation, and Judah was later conquered by Babylon, leading to 70 years of captivity.

We are advised to reject foolish advice. Both Rehoboam and Jeroboam followed poor counsel, leading to national destruction and spiritual rebellion. Many people still make this mistake today.

Here is a wonderful promise from the Lord that we should claim daily:
“I will instruct you and teach you the way you should go; I will counsel you with my loving eye on you.” (Psalm 32:8).
Let us accept His great invitation! What do you say today?

God Answers Prayers for the Sick

No human power can save the sick, but through prayers of faith, the Great Healer fulfills His promise to those who call upon His Name.

Questions:

1. What major sin did Solomon commit? What caused it?

2. What were the flaws in Solomon’s kingdom?

3. How did Rehoboam respond to the people without wisdom?

4. Do young people always lack wisdom while older people always have it?

Key Verse: 1 Corinthians 15:33-34

[33,34] Do not be deceived! Bad company corrupts good character. Wake up! Start living right, and stop sinning. Some of you do not know God at all. I say this to your shame!

Prayer: Lord, we thank You for the example of Solomon, who forgot himself and began worshiping other gods, and taxed his people heavily so that he might live a life of luxury and self-indulgence. Help us to reflect on these examples and be transformed. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: In newspapers or news reports today, what things do religious and government leaders involve themselves in that do not glorify God, just as Solomon did? How can we do differently when we are leaders?

DAY 116 (April 26)

LESSON: The Kingdom of Israel Divided

(1 Kings 12 and 1 Chronicles 10)

Rehoboam stopped listening to the wise advice of the elders, and listened to the advice of his peer group, to was to his his downfall. Even today we have good friends and bad friends, good counselors and bad counselors, so let us be careful so as to avoid the advice of people who do not care about God, and go to people who fear God. Peer pressure put Rehoboam in trouble, and the people of Israel knew that they had no inheritance or share in the son of Jesse, David. They said to each other, "Everyone go to your tent, and look after your own house." So Rehoboam reigned over the people of Israel who were in Judah, and when he sent his leader, Adoram, to Israel, they stoned him to death. When the king saw this, he quickly got into his chariot to flee to Jerusalem. Thus Israel rebelled against the house of David. Jerohoboam built oxen idol and appointed captains and food, oil and wine, and put shields and spears in Judah to make Judah very strong.

When Israel heard that Jeroboam had returned from Egypt, they called him to the assembly and made him king over all Israel, and there was no one who adhered to the house of David except the tribe of Judah and Benjamin. Rehoboam came to Jerusalem and gathered 80,000 men of Judah and Benjamin to fight against Israel and restore the kingdom to him as the son of Solomon and the grandson of David. But God sent the prophet Shemaiah to Rehoboam and to all Israel in Judah and Benjamin, saying, “You shall not go up or fight against your brothers the children of Israel; return every man to his house, for this thing is from me.” So they obeyed the word of the LORD and returned and went to their homes. Separate the two names of these two kings because they are looking somewhat similar. Solomon’s son of the tribe of Judah was named King Rehoboam; and the servant of Solomon who fled to Egypt and later became king of the 10 tribes of Israel, his name was Jeroboam. Jeroboam built Shechem in the mountains of Ephraim, and dwelt there. From there he built Penuel. Jeroboam said in his heart, perhaps his kingdom will return to the house of David, if the people continue to go up to Jerusalem to sacrifice in the house of the LORD, because there was only one place to worship, namely Jerusalem. He thought that if the people went up to worship, their hearts would turn to the son of Solomon, their lord, and then they would kill him and follow Rehoboam.

It did not take long for Jeroboam to show his inner character and wickedness. This was the mistake that Jeroboam made for himself, for he made two golden calves and said to the people, “It is too much for you to go up to Jerusalem; behold, these are your gods, O Israel, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt.” He set up one calf in Bethel and the other in Dan. And this became a sin, because the people went to worship before the idols. Leadership is indeed a great task. When you are great and God gives you leadership, every time you step on it, look, whether you are making people worship and fear God or making people worship other gods or other things. There are only two kings to serve, God and Satan, there is no middle ground. And whoever has not made a decision to fear and serve God, even if he does not say so, will be serving the enemy Satan. There are not three kingdoms, only two. Jeroboam built a place of sacrifice on the mountains and took non-Levites as priests and commanded them to keep the feasts of certain imperfect models by sacrificing the bulls to the false priests. So all the Levitical priests went to Judah, to Jerusalem. The false priests that Jeroboam appointed served, inventing the days he wanted as feasts, and he commanded the children of Israel to keep them by going to the altar and burning incense. The king of Israel followed the godly people, and all who sought the LORD.”

Even today, the nations, tribes, tongues and peoples of the world have examples of false worship that bear little resemblance to the plan that God gave to His people such as sacrifices of animals etc. They offer sacrifices, and bow down, but they are false. These worships are not true, they are contrary to the God of heaven. May God help us to know true worship as he says in Revelation 14 “Fear God, and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come: and worship him that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters.” Revelation 14:7.

The way of God is in His Altar, let us return there by reading from 25 and the book of Hebrews. Let us do as the apostles of Christ did; let us pray for the sick, for there are many who cannot benefit from our Sanitariums (simple treatment programs). The Lord will remove weakness or sickness in answer to prayer.

Questions: What lesson have you learned today? Why did Rehoboam stop listening to the advice of the elders? Why is it good to get advice from wise people? Why did Rehoboam stop fighting? What sin did Jeroboam commit? Why did he forget when God brought him out of service and made him king?

God Bless You Baby and Boy Jesus🙏🙏

Key Verse: 2 Chronicles 10:8,9.

But Rehoboam rejected the advice the elders gave him and consulted the young men who had grown up with him and were serving him... “My father put a heavy yoke on you; I will make it even heavier. My father scourged you with whips; I will scourge you with scorpions.”

Prayer: Thank You, Holy Father. I ask You to help me to have wisdom and listen to the counsel of wise elders. May Your Name be glorified, may Your will be done, help us to forgive others. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Act out the words Rehoboam said to the elders and to the young men, and the advice he was given. Youth and elders both have many good things, so it is best when they work together. What good things do young people have that most elders don’t? And what good things do elders have that young people don’t?

DAY 117 – April 26

TOPIC: The Withered Hand of Jeroboam

(1 Kings 13 & 2 Chronicles 13)

A man of God from Judah came to Bethel by the word of the LORD. He found Jeroboam standing at an altar offering incense. The man of God cried out against the altar, saying, “O altar, altar! This is what the LORD says: A child shall be born in the house of David, named Josiah. On you, he will sacrifice the priests of the high places who burn incense here, and human bones shall be burned on you.”

He gave a sign that day, saying, “This is the sign the LORD has declared: The altar shall be split apart, and the ashes on it shall be poured out.”

When King Jeroboam heard the words of the man of God, he stretched out his hand, commanding his men to seize him. But his hand became withered, and he could not pull it back. The altar was split apart, and the ashes were poured out, just as the man of God had spoken by the word of the LORD.

Terrified, the king pleaded with the man of God to pray to the LORD so that his hand could be restored. The man of God prayed, and the king's hand was healed. In gratitude, Jeroboam invited the man of God to his house for refreshment and promised him a gift. However, the man of God refused, saying, "Even if you give me half of your house, I will not go with you, nor will I eat or drink in this place. For the LORD commanded me not to eat or drink here or return by the same way I came." He then left by a different path.

Meanwhile, an old prophet living in Bethel heard about the incident from his sons. He asked which way the man of God had gone and set out to find him. He found him resting under a tree and asked if he was the man of God from Judah. When he confirmed, the old prophet invited him home for a meal. The man of God refused, repeating the LORD's command not to eat, drink, or return the same way.

The old prophet then lied, saying, "I, too, am a prophet, and an angel spoke to me by the word of the LORD, saying, 'Bring him back to your house so that he may eat and drink.'" The man of God believed the lie and went with him.

As they ate at the table, the word of the LORD came to the old prophet, who declared, "Because you disobeyed the LORD's command and returned to eat and drink in this place, your body shall not be buried in the tomb of your ancestors."

After leaving the old prophet's house, the man of God was attacked and killed by a lion. His body was left on the road, with the lion standing next to it, and his donkey unharmed. Travelers saw the unusual sight and reported it to the city where the old prophet lived.

When the old prophet heard about the incident, he admitted, "It is the man of God who disobeyed the LORD's word. That is why the LORD allowed the lion to kill him." He went, picked up the body, and buried him in his own tomb, mourning, "Oh, my brother!"

The old prophet then instructed his sons to bury him in the same tomb when he died. Meanwhile, the prophecy concerning the altar at Bethel and the destruction of the false altars in Samaria came to pass.

Let us be cautious of false prophets who lead people away from God's commands. Even when someone appears godly, we must remain faithful to what the LORD has clearly spoken. Disobedience to God's word can lead to great danger.

We need grace, and we need light from the LORD so that through the Holy Spirit, we may know how to pray for the things we truly need. When our prayers align with God's will, they will be answered.

Questions for Reflection:

1. What lesson do you learn from this story?

2. What did the man of God tell King Jeroboam?

3. Why did Jeroboam's hand wither?

4. Why did the lion kill the man of God?

5. How can a man of God avoid the deceit of Satan?

May God Bless You, Child and Young Person of Jesus!

Key Verse: 1 Kings 13:20-22.

[20-22] Now it happened, as they sat at the table, that the word of the Lord came to the prophet who had brought him back; and he cried out to the man of God who came from Judah, saying, "Thus says the Lord: 'Because you have disobeyed the word of the Lord, and have not kept the commandment which the Lord your God commanded you, but you came back, ate bread, and drank water in the place of which the Lord said to you, "Eat no bread and drink no water," your corpse shall not come to the tomb of your fathers.'"

Prayer: Lord, help me to obey Your voice, no matter if church members come and tell me a different word that does not agree with Your Word. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Explain the story of the prophet of God and the false prophet in your own words.

DAY 118 – (April 27)

TOPIC: The Kings of Judah and Israel

(1 Kings 14, 15 and 2 Chronicles 10)

Rehoboam, the king of Judah, married several wives, including the daughter of Eliab, David's brother, and the granddaughter of David, Maakah, the daughter of Absalom. He loved Maakah the most and planned to make her son, Abijah, his successor. David had won battles and conquered lands, and Solomon ruled over them, but now Rehoboam ruled only a third of the kingdom that Solomon had. However, God's purpose for Israel was not just to be a great nation but to be a people who feared Him.

Rehoboam began ruling at 41 years old and reigned for 17 years in Jerusalem. His mother was Naamah, an Ammonite. However, he and the people of Judah did evil in the eyes of the Lord, provoking Him to anger with their sins. They built high places to worship other gods and set up Asherah poles on every high hill and under every green tree. In the fifth year of Rehoboam's reign, Shishak, the king of Egypt, came and took away the treasures of the house of the Lord and the king's palace. He also took the gold shields that Solomon had made, and Rehoboam replaced them with bronze shields. When Rehoboam died, his son Abijah became king after him; this Abijah is different from Jeroboam's son who passed away.

Jeroboam, the king of Israel, did not turn away from his wicked ways or remember how his hand had withered. He continued appointing illegitimate priests from any tribe, making them burn incense at the high places. This was a great sin in the eyes of the Lord. During this time, his beloved son, Abijah, became ill. Jeroboam sent his wife to Shiloh to inquire from the prophet Ahijah, the same prophet who had told him he would become king when he was in exile in Egypt. He instructed his wife to disguise herself and take ten loaves of bread, cakes, and a jar of honey to the prophet to ask about their son's condition.

However, the Lord had already spoken to Ahijah, telling him that Jeroboam's wife was coming, pretending to be someone else. As soon as she entered his house, he addressed her, "Come in, wife of Jeroboam! Why are you pretending to be someone else? I have a heavy message for you." The prophet then told her to inform Jeroboam that God had exalted him among the people and made him king over Israel. However, Jeroboam had done more evil than those before him by making idols and worshiping them, rejecting the Lord. Therefore, God would bring disaster upon Jeroboam's household, cutting off every male in his family and sweeping away his lineage like dung. Dogs would eat those who died in the city, and birds would devour those who died in the fields.

Ahijah also prophesied that as soon as Jeroboam's wife stepped back into the city, their son Abijah would die. He would be the only one in Jeroboam's family to receive a proper burial because something pleasing to the Lord had been found in him. As predicted, the boy died the moment his mother arrived home. The Israelites mourned and buried him as the prophet had said. Jeroboam reigned for 22 years before dying, and his son Nadab succeeded him.

In the 18th year of Jeroboam's reign, Abijah, the son of Rehoboam, became the king of Judah. His mother was the daughter of Absalom, the son of David. He followed the sinful ways of his father, and his heart was not fully devoted to the Lord. However, because of God's promise to David, the kingdom of Judah was preserved. The Lord declared that David had obeyed His commands and followed Him wholeheartedly, except in the matter of Uriah the Hittite.

There were continuous battles between Jeroboam and Abijah, representing the ongoing war between the kingdoms of Judah and Israel. Eventually, Abijah died, and his son Asa became king. Asa began ruling in the 20th year of Jeroboam's reign over Israel and ruled for 41 years. He was a good king, like his ancestor David. He expelled male shrine prostitutes from the land and destroyed all the idols his fathers had made.

He even removed his grandmother Maakah from her position as queen mother because she had made a repulsive Asherah idol. Asa cut down the idol and burned it in the Kidron Valley. One day, a vast Cushite army of a million men and 300 chariots attacked Asa. He prayed to the Lord, affirming that God's help was not based on numbers. The Lord responded, and the Cushites fled.

The prophet Azariah came to Asa, telling him that as long as he sought the Lord, the Lord would be with him. Encouraged by this, Asa continued removing detestable idols from the land and dedicated himself fully to God. However, he made a mistake by bribing King Ben-Hadad of Aram with gold and silver from the temple and royal treasury to break his treaty with King Baasha of Israel. As a result, Ben-Hadad attacked Israel, causing them harm.

In his old age, Asa suffered from a severe foot disease. Instead of seeking the Lord, he relied only on physicians. Eventually, he died and was buried with his ancestors in Jerusalem. Meanwhile, Nadab, Jeroboam's son, became the king of Israel in Asa's second year as king of Judah. However, he ruled for only two years, walking in his father's wicked ways and leading Israel into sin.

LESSONS LEARNED:

1. The advice of elders is often better than that of young people because they have more experience. However, the best advice is that which is based on the Word of God because God's wisdom is limitless.

2. Jesus said, "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God" (Matthew 4:4). Living by God's Word is the surest way to avoid mistakes in life.

3. King Rehoboam had three major leadership textbooks—the lives of Saul, David, and Solomon. However, he failed to learn from their mistakes or successes. Instead, he listened to his peers and announced that he would impose heavier taxes and use harsh discipline.

4. Jesus, our King, has called us to be different leaders. He said, "Whoever wants to be great among you must be your servant" (Mark 10:43). Even the Son of Man did not come to be served but to serve and give His life as a ransom for many.

5. Sin must be put away if prayers for healing are to be answered. Those who seek restoration and healing must understand that violating God's laws—whether natural or spiritual—is sin. To receive His blessings, they must confess and turn away from their sins.

QUESTIONS:

Was Asa right to give gifts to Ben-Hadad?

Why did Abijah, the son of Jeroboam, die?

What punishment did Jeroboam's family receive?

What was Rehoboam's sin?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: Matthew 20:26-28.

[26-28] …but whoever desires to become great among you, let him be your servant; and whoever desires to be first among you, let him be your slave—just as the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give His life as a ransom for many.

Prayer: Thank You, Lord, for a good day. I ask You to help me not to exalt myself, but to be a servant when I am given a chance to lead, such as being a class monitor. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: When someone dies, it seems like a great punishment, but from 1 Kings 14:1-9 and Isaiah 57:1,2 what have you learned here?

DAY 119 (April 28)

TOPIC: Kings and Prophet Elijah the Tishbite

(1 Kings 15-17 and 2 Chronicles 16)

Baasha, the son of Ahijah from the tribe of Issachar, conspired against Nadab, killed him, and took over his reign. He struck down all the descendants of Jeroboam, leaving no one alive, just as the Lord had spoken through His servant Ahijah. Jeroboam had sinned and led the entire nation of Israel into sin. When Nadab died, Baasha became king and continued to fight against Asa, the king of Judah, throughout their reigns. This was the beginning of war among the Israelites.

Baasha ruled for 24 years, following the wicked ways of Jeroboam and causing Israel to sin. Then, the word of the Lord came to Jehu, son of Hanani, against Baasha, saying, "I lifted you up from the dust and made you ruler over my people Israel, but you have followed the ways of Jeroboam." The Lord declared that He would destroy Baasha's house as He had done with Jeroboam's house. Any member of Baasha's family who died in the city would be eaten by dogs, and those who died in the fields would be eaten by birds. Baasha died, and his son Elah became king of Israel in the 26th year of Asa, king of Judah.

Elah ruled for only two years. While he was drinking himself drunk, his servant Zimri entered and killed him. Zimri also slaughtered all the household of Baasha, fulfilling the Lord's prophecy through Jehu. However, Zimri ruled for only seven days before a rebellion arose in Israel, and Omri, the army commander, was made king. When Zimri saw what had happened, he set the king's house on fire and burned himself alive inside.
The people of Israel were divided between following two leaders: Tibni and Omri. Eventually, Omri defeated Tibni and became king in the 31st year of Asa, ruling for seven years. Omri built the city of Samaria and did more evil than all the kings before him, leading Israel further into sin like Jeroboam.

After Omri's death, his son Ahab became king in the 38th year of Asa's reign. Ahab ruled over Israel from Samaria and did more wickedness than any of the kings before him. He married Jezebel, the daughter of Ethbaal, king of the Sidonians, and began worshiping Baal. Ahab angered the Lord more than any previous king by setting up idols and worshiping Baal and Asherah. Jezebel became a symbol of a wicked woman who led people into idolatry and immorality, a reference even found in Revelation 2.

The Rise of Elijah the Prophet

After King Solomon's death, a prophet named Elijah was born east of the Jordan River. His parents had surely dedicated him to God's service. Growing up, he heard many stories of the kings of Israel and their wickedness. At that time, people were choosing between the true God of heaven and the false gods of Baal. Elijah's name means "The Lord is my God." Jesus Himself mentioned Elijah's great faith, even though he was just a human like us. John the Baptist's ministry was also compared to Elijah's.

When the time was right, this prophet of God, Elijah the Tishbite, courageously approached King Ahab and declared, "As the Lord God of Israel lives, there will be no dew or rain these years, except at my word." The people had been praying to Baal, Ashtoreth, and Molech—false gods with no power.

Then the Lord instructed Elijah to go and hide at the Brook Cherith, east of the Jordan. There, he would drink from the brook, and ravens would bring him food. Every morning when Elijah woke up, ravens brought him food. God's creation obeys Him—what about us humans? Elijah went to Cherith, and God fulfilled His promise. But after some time, the brook dried up because there was no rain.

Then, the word of the Lord came to Elijah, telling him to go to Zarephath, where God had commanded a widow to provide for him. Jesus later mentioned that there were many widows in Israel at that time, but Elijah was sent to this particular woman because she feared God and had faith.

When Elijah arrived in Zarephath, he found the widow gathering firewood. He asked her for a drink of water. As she went to fetch it, he also asked for a piece of bread. She responded, “As surely as the Lord your God lives, I have no bread—only a handful of flour in a jar and a little oil in a jug. I am gathering a few sticks to take home and prepare a meal for myself and my son, so that we may eat it—and die.”

Elijah told her not to fear but to first make a small cake for him, then prepare for herself and her son. Perhaps the widow was surprised, thinking Elijah was selfish. Sadly, some people today pretend to serve God but care more about their own needs than those they serve. But Elijah was not such a person.

This widow obeyed Elijah’s instructions. Her child may have asked about the delicious smell of bread, and she would have replied, “It’s for the guest.” But this act of faith and generosity led to a great blessing. Elijah assured her, “As surely as the Lord lives, the jar of flour will not be used up, and the jug of oil will not run dry until the day the Lord sends rain on the land.” She obeyed, and they had food for many days. The flour never ran out, and the oil never dried up, just as the Lord had promised through Elijah.

Obedience to God always bears good fruit, even if the results take time. They will surely come. “Everything that was written in the past was written to teach us, so that through endurance and the encouragement of the Scriptures, we might have hope.” (Romans 15:4).

The same God who provided for Elijah will provide for His children today, no matter how difficult the world’s conditions may be. The key principle for God’s children to have food security is: Work diligently, as it is written, “If a man will not work, he shall not eat.” (2 Thessalonians 3:10), and trust and obey God. This principle never fails because the Psalmist wrote, “I was young, and now I am old, yet I have never seen the righteous forsaken or their children begging for bread.” (Psalm 37:25).

The Bible teaches us: “Confess your sins to each other and pray for each other so that you may be healed.” (James 5:16).

For those who pray for the sick, let us keep this in mind: We cannot read hearts or know the hidden things of people’s lives. Only God knows those secrets. If someone confesses their sins, it is their duty to seek forgiveness. We must be cautious not to mistake false confidence for true faith when praying for the sick. I have seen much enthusiasm in healing prayers, but sometimes things are taken to extremes, making me feel that this area needs clear understanding. The sick need wise counsel so that they act with wisdom and avoid making harmful or embarrassing choices.

When seeking healing, people should not ignore natural remedies and laws of health. Simple remedies that work should be used. Although hospitals and medical tests (such as lab tests and X-rays) are necessary in emergencies or serious cases, we should also learn to use the eight natural remedies that God has given us.

Questions for Reflection:

1. What lesson have you learned today?
2. What was Baasha’s sin?
3. What kind of character did Jezebel have?
4. Who fed Elijah at the Brook Cherith?
5. What instruction did Elijah give to the widow of Zarephath?
6. If you were given the same instruction today, how would you respond?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: Luke 6:38.

[38] Give, and it will be given to you: good measure, pressed down, shaken together, and running over will be put into your lap. For with the same measure that you use, it will be measured back to you.

Prayer: Thank You, Lord, I ask You to help me to be generous to people, and to Your work, and to do good deeds. Thank You for answering my prayers and preparing me to be ready when You come again so that we may live in heaven, the place You have prepared for us with Your generosity. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Act out the story of Elijah, the widow, and her son.

DAY 120 (April 29)

TOPIC: The Widow's Son of Zarephath is Raised

(1 Kings 17)

The son of the widow of Zarephath became ill, and his illness worsened until he died. She approached Elijah with sorrow and said, "What do I have to do with you, O man of God? Have you come to remind me of my sin and cause my son's death?" Many people today still believe that misfortunes or disasters happen because of their sins. While this may be true in some cases, it is not always the reason. Even Job faced suffering, but not because of his wrongdoing. It is wise to pray and examine ourselves, as Psalm 139 says, "Search me, O God, and know my heart; try me, and know my thoughts. See if there is any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting."

Elijah told the widow to give him her son. He took the boy from her arms, carried him to the upper room where he was staying, and laid him on his bed. He then cried out to the Lord, saying, "O Lord my God, have You also brought tragedy on this widow with whom I lodge, by killing her son?" He stretched himself out on the child three times and prayed, "O Lord my God, let this child's soul return to him." The Lord heard Elijah's prayer, and the child's soul returned to him, and he revived. Elijah then took the boy back down to his mother and said, "See, your son lives."

God was teaching His prophet to rely on Him. The widow was not an Israelite, yet she trusted in God. She rejoiced and said, "Now I know that you are a man of God, and that the word of the Lord in your mouth is truth." Even though she had lived with Elijah for three years and had seen the miracle of food provision, she still had doubts. Let us pray that God increases our faith. The king searched for Elijah with anger but could not find him. Instead of repenting and doing what was right so that the Lord would forgive him and restore blessings to the land, he sought to blame someone else instead of examining his own sins and confessing them. Even today, we should not hate those who rebuke us for our mistakes, but instead, we should be willing to repent and confess our sins.

In the third year, the word of the Lord came to Elijah, instructing him to present himself to King Ahab and announce that rain would return. Elijah traveled about 200 kilometers to meet Ahab during a severe famine in Samaria. Ahab called Obadiah, his servant who feared God. Obadiah had hidden and fed 100 prophets of the Lord when Queen Jezebel was killing them. Ahab instructed Obadiah to search the land for springs of water to keep the horses and mules alive. They divided the land to search separately.

As Obadiah was walking, he saw Elijah, recognized him, and bowed, saying, “Is it really you, my lord Elijah?” Elijah answered, “Yes, it is me. Go tell your master, ‘Elijah is here.’” Obadiah was afraid and asked why Elijah wanted to put him in danger. He explained that Ahab had searched for Elijah in every nation and made them swear that they had not seen him. If he told Ahab that Elijah was there and then the Spirit of the Lord took Elijah away, Ahab would kill him.

Obadiah pleaded for mercy, explaining that he had feared the Lord since his youth and had hidden 100 prophets in a cave when Jezebel was killing them. He repeated his fear of being killed by Ahab. But Elijah assured him, saying, “As the Lord Almighty lives, I will surely present myself to Ahab today.” Obadiah went and informed Ahab, and Ahab came to meet Elijah.

The wicked king believed that Elijah had the power to stop the rain but was not willing to repent of his own sins or those of his wife, Jezebel, to restore blessings to the land. When Ahab saw Elijah, he angrily asked, “Is that you, O troubler of Israel?” Elijah replied, “I have not troubled Israel, but you and your father’s house have, because you have abandoned the Lord’s commandments and followed the Baals.”

Sometimes, when we face consequences for our sins, we blame others instead of taking responsibility for our actions. Elijah told Ahab to gather all Israel at Mount Carmel, including the 450 prophets of Baal and the 400 prophets of Asherah, who ate at Jezebel’s table. Ahab had no choice but to obey and call the people to Mount Carmel. The famine and drought were severe, affecting everyone, leaving no room for rebellion or stubbornness.

Job declared, “But I know that my Redeemer lives, and in the end, He will stand on the earth. And after my skin has been destroyed, yet in my flesh I will see God." (Job 19:25-26). God will resurrect His people when He returns for the second time. The resurrection gives us hope when we lose our loved ones. We will recognize our resurrected loved ones because everyone will retain their unique identity. There will be no confusion, for they will be real people, not wandering spirits.

If people believe that seeking healing through natural remedies given by God to relieve pain and assist nature in its work is a denial of faith, they are taking an incorrect stance. This is not a denial of faith; rather, it aligns with God's plan. When King Hezekiah was sick, the prophet of God brought him a message that he would die. Hezekiah cried out to the Lord, and the Lord heard him and performed a miracle, granting him 15 more years of life. God could have healed Hezekiah with just a word, but He instructed them to apply a poultice of figs to the infected area, and Hezekiah was restored to health. In all things, we must align with God's plans and purposes.

Questions:

1. How was Elijah fed at the Brook of Cherith?
2. How did the widow of Zarephath help Elijah?
3. What did the widow say when her son died?
4. What good thing did Obadiah do?
5. Who troubled Israel?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: 1 Kings 17:22,23.

[22,23] Then the Lord heard the voice of Elijah; and the soul of the child came back to him, and he revived. And Elijah took the child and brought him down from the upper room into the house, and gave him to his mother. And Elijah said, "See, your son lives!"

Prayer: Thank You, Lord, for the story of Elijah Your servant and the power You gave him even to raise a dead child. Revive everything that has died in our home, whether relationships, provision, or other things. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Act out the conversation between Elijah and Obadiah.

DAY 121 (April 30)

TOPIC: The Prophets of Baal and Asherah on Mount Carmel

(1 Kings 18)

Elijah approached all the people and said, “How long will you waver between two opinions? If the LORD is God, follow Him; but if Baal is God, follow him!” But the people remained silent. Elijah said he was the only prophet of the LORD left, while the prophets of Baal were many. He instructed them to bring two bulls—one for the prophets of Baal and one for himself. The prophets of Baal were to prepare their bull and place it on wood without lighting a fire. Elijah would do the same for the LORD’s sacrifice, but neither would set fire to their offering. Instead, they would each call upon their respective god, and the one who answered with fire would be declared the true God.

Since the prophets of Baal were many, Elijah let them go first. They prepared their bull and called on Baal from morning until evening, shouting for him to send fire. However, there was no voice, no answer. They danced around the altar they had made. At noon, Elijah mocked them, saying, “Shout louder!

Surely he is a god! Maybe he is deep in thought, busy, traveling, or sleeping and must be awakened!" The prophets of Baal shouted louder and even cut themselves with knives and spears as was their custom, but still, there was no response.

The people became weary of Baal's prophets, so Elijah called them closer. He repaired the LORD's broken altar with twelve stones, representing the tribes of Israel. He built the altar in the name of the LORD and dug a trench around it. He arranged the wood, cut the bull into pieces, and laid it on the wood. Then he ordered them to pour twelve barrels of water over the sacrifice until it was soaked, and even the trench around it was filled with water.

At the time of the evening sacrifice, Elijah prayed, "O LORD, God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, let it be known today that You are God in Israel, that I am Your servant, and that I have done all these things at Your command. Answer me, LORD, answer me, so these people will know that You, LORD, are God and that You are turning their hearts back to You."

Before Elijah could finish praying, fire from the LORD fell and consumed the burnt offering, the wood, the stones, and even the water in the trench. When the people saw it, they fell face down and cried, "The LORD is God! The LORD is God!"

This miracle was a demonstration of God's grace, showing the people whom they should follow. Elijah then commanded the people to seize the false prophets of Baal so that none could escape. They were taken to the Kishon Valley, where Elijah put them to death.

Elijah then told Ahab to rise, eat, and drink because a great rain was coming. Ahab, exhausted from the events of the day, obeyed the prophet and ate and drank. Meanwhile, Elijah climbed Mount Carmel, knelt, and bowed down in prayer, asking the LORD for rain. He sent his servant to look toward the sea for a sign of rain. The servant went and reported nothing. Elijah sent him back seven times. On the seventh time, the servant saw a small cloud rising from the sea, about the size of a man's hand.

Elijah, full of faith, knew that God had answered. He instructed his servant to tell Ahab to prepare his chariot and leave before the heavy rain stopped him. Although Ahab was wicked, Elijah still respected him as king and took care of his needs. It is important to obey leaders, except when they command us to disobey God—then we must choose to follow God rather than men.

Soon, dark clouds filled the sky, the wind blew, and heavy rain poured. Ahab rode his chariot toward Jezreel, about 30 kilometers away. The power of the LORD came upon Elijah, and he ran ahead of Ahab all the way to Jezreel, despite the darkness and the storm. After more than 1,000 days of drought, rain was finally falling. Many people turned to God that day, but Ahab and Jezebel continued in their stubborn ways.

Elijah is a living witness that when we fully trust in the LORD, we are freed from fear. Let us pray that God fills us with His Holy Spirit so that we may be free from all our fears. Are we wavering between two opinions? Do we love both God and the world? Do we go to church yet also worship worldly things? Are we saved by grace and works? Today, Jesus asks us to make a decision. Let us give Him our whole hearts and fix our eyes on Him.

God calls us to put to death our sinful desires and corruption. Does God still want to reveal Himself to an unbelieving world today? Yes! There may not be fire from heaven, but if we fully surrender to Him, He will work wonders through us as living testimonies of His presence. That is why He commands His children: “Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father in heaven.”

Human efforts must be combined with faith. We must use every resource available, taking advantage of every means God has provided. By doing so, we neither deny faith nor hinder it.

Questions:

1. Why was Ahab an evil king?

2. How did Elijah help Ahab?

3. Why didn’t the sacrifice of Baal’s prophets burn?

4. How many prophets did Baal have?

5. Why did Elijah lead Ahab into the darkness?

6. Among your friends, is there someone wavering in faith whom you can help?

May God Bless You, Child and Young Person of Jesus!

Key Verse: James 5:17.

Elijah was a man with a nature like ours. He prayed earnestly that it would not rain; and it did not rain on the land for three years and six months.

Prayer: Thank You, Heavenly Father. Lord, I ask You to increase my faith, that I may believe that what I pray for will be fulfilled, since it is Your will and I am doing Your work.

Activity: Tell the story of Mount Carmel about the two teams: Elijah's team and the prophets of Baal's team.

DAY 122 (May 1)

TOPIC: Elijah Loses Courage and Flees

(1 Kings 19)

Ahab told his wife, Jezebel, everything Elijah had done and how he had killed all the prophets of Baal with the sword. This wicked and ruthless woman, Jezebel, sent a threatening message to Prophet Elijah, saying, “May the gods deal with me, be it ever so severely, if by this time tomorrow I do not make your life like that of one of them.”

When Elijah heard this, he was suddenly overcome with fear, losing his courage. He forgot that God is all-powerful and that even Jezebel could be destroyed just like the other false prophets. This is a common human struggle—one day, we have great faith, and the next, we tremble in fear. So, Elijah ran for his life, reaching Beersheba in Judah, where he left his servant. However, he continued alone into the wilderness, walking for a whole day. He sat under a broom tree, exhausted and discouraged, and prayed to die, saying, “It is enough! Now, Lord, take my life, for I am no better than my ancestors.”

Elijah had traveled over 250 kilometers and was exhausted. He lay down under the tree and fell asleep. Suddenly, an angel touched him and said, “Get up and eat.” When he looked around, he saw a baked loaf of bread and a jug of water by his head. Simple food—this is what God provides! And it is also the healthiest! So, he ate, drank, and lay down again. His heart was filled with joy, knowing that God knew where he was and had personally prepared food for him.

The angel of the Lord came again a second time, touched him, and said, “Get up and eat, for the journey is too much for you.” Elijah got up, ate, and drank. Strengthened by that food, he traveled for forty days and forty nights without eating, reaching Mount Horeb (also known as Mount Sinai), where Moses had received the Ten Commandments. He found a cave, entered it, and slept there. Then, the word of the Lord came to him, saying, “What are you doing here, Elijah?”

Elijah replied, “I have been very zealous for the Lord God Almighty. The Israelites have rejected your covenant, torn down your altars, and put your prophets to death with the sword. I am the only one left, and now they are trying to kill me too.” Elijah had a righteous zeal, desiring that all people love and serve God—not a jealousy where one envies others’ possessions.

The Lord told Elijah to step out and stand on the mountain in His presence. A powerful wind tore through the mountains, shattering rocks, but the Lord was not in the wind. After the wind came an earthquake, but the Lord was not in the earthquake. After the earthquake, a fire appeared, but the Lord was not in the fire. Then, after the fire, there was a gentle whisper. When Elijah heard it, he wrapped his face in his cloak, stepped out, and stood at the cave’s entrance. Then, a voice came again, asking, “What are you doing here, Elijah?”

Elijah repeated his words, saying that he had been zealous for the Lord while Israel had forsaken God’s covenant, broken His altars, and killed His prophets.

The Lord commanded Elijah to go back through the desert to Damascus, anoint Hazael as king of Aram, Jehu son of Nimshi as king of Israel, and Elisha son of Shaphat as his prophetic successor.

God said that whoever escaped Hazael’s sword would be killed by Jehu, and whoever escaped Jehu’s sword would be killed by Elisha. Then, God revealed to Elijah that there were still 7,000 people in Israel who had not bowed to Baal or kissed him.

The Lord gave Elijah a new mission before taking him up to heaven. God allowed Elijah time to recover from exhaustion by providing food, engaging in conversation, giving him new work, and companionship. This period of rest and time with God healed Elijah physically, emotionally, mentally, socially, and spiritually.

Oh Lord, help us surrender everything to You! God's people will not be free from suffering, but even in hardship, they will endure, and God will not let them perish. The same God who cared for Elijah will not overlook a single one of His dedicated children. The One who numbers the hairs on our heads watches over us, and in times of famine, we will be fed.

When the wicked perish from hunger and disease, angels will protect and provide for us. To those who walk righteously, God's promise remains:

"Their bread will be given them; their water will be sure."
"The poor and needy search for water, but there is none; their tongues are parched with thirst. But I, the Lord, will answer them; I, the God of Israel, will not forsake them. I will make rivers flow on barren heights and springs within the valleys. I will turn the desert into pools of water, and the parched ground into flowing springs."

In God's Word, we find clear instructions regarding prayers for healing. However, offering such prayers is a sacred act and should not be taken lightly. In many cases where healing is sought, what is called faith is merely an assumption.

Questions:

1. What message did Jezebel send to Elijah?

2. Why did Elijah flee?

3. What lesson do we learn from Elijah being provided food?

4. How many people had not bowed to Baal?

May God Bless You, Child and Young Disciple of Jesus!

Key Verse: 1 Kings 19:9,10.

[9,10] …And the word of the Lord came to him, "What are you doing here, Elijah?" So he said, "I have been very zealous for the Lord God Almighty. The Israelites have forsaken Your covenant, torn down Your altars, and put Your prophets to death with the sword. I am the only one left, and now they are trying to kill me too."

Prayer: Beloved Lord, sometimes we desire to serve You with zeal, but we encounter wicked people like Jezebel. Thank You because You will protect us from evil ones, and You will help us Yourself to do Your work diligently. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: 1 Kings 18—Elijah praying many times and telling his servant to go and see if the rain had begun. What does praying seven times teach us about perseverance in prayer?

DAY 123 (May 2)

TOPIC: Elijah Anoints His Successor

(1 Kings 20)

So Elijah went and found Elisha, the son of Shaphat, plowing with twelve yoke of oxen. Elisha came from a wealthy family. Elijah called him and threw his cloak over him. Elisha left the oxen and ran after Elijah, saying, "Let me kiss my father and mother goodbye, then I will follow you." Elijah knew this was a call to live a life of self-denial as a prophet and to face danger from Jezebel's hatred, yet he chose to serve God. Elijah allowed him to go and return, saying, "What have I done to you?" Elisha went back, slaughtered the oxen, cooked the meat using the wood from the plow, and gave it to the people to eat. He did this so that he would not look back or hesitate in serving God. Then Elisha got up, followed Elijah, and served him.

Meanwhile, Ben-Hadad, the king of Aram, gathered his entire army. With him were thirty-two other kings, along with horses and chariots. He marched up, besieged Samaria, and attacked it. He sent messengers to Ahab, the king of Israel, with a provocative message: "Your silver, your gold, your wives, and your finest children are mine!" The wicked and weak King Ahab became afraid, trembled, and replied, "Just as you say, my lord the king. I am yours, and all that I have." A person who fails to stand firm for God is ready to fall and surrender his children, wives, and all his possessions. The messengers returned to Ben-Hadad, who then said, "Yes, you will give me your silver, gold, wives, and children. But tomorrow, I will send my officers to search your palace and the houses of your officials. They will seize everything you value and take it away."

Then the king of Israel called all the elders of the land and told them to see how Ben-Hadad was seeking trouble, for he had demanded his wives, children, silver, and gold, and he had not refused. The elders advised him not to listen or agree to Ben-Hadad's demands. So Ahab sent back a message: "Tell my lord the king, I will do all you first requested, but this last demand I cannot accept." In response, Ben-Hadad swore, "May the gods deal with me, be it ever so severely, if even the dust of Samaria will be enough to fill the hands of all my soldiers." Ahab then found courage and replied, "Let not the one who puts on his armor boast like the one who takes it off."

When Ben-Hadad heard this, he was drinking with the other kings in his tent. He commanded his officers to prepare for battle, and they did. Then a prophet came to Ahab and told him, "Have you seen this vast army? The Lord will give them into your hand today, and you will know that I am the Lord." Ahab asked, "Who will do this?" The prophet replied, "The junior officers under the provincial commanders." Ahab asked, "Who will start the battle?" The prophet answered, "You will." So Ahab assembled 232 young officers and 7,000 Israelites and went out while Ben-Hadad was still drinking. When the Arameans saw the Israelites approaching, Ben-Hadad commanded that they be captured alive. But the young officers struck down their enemies, and the Arameans fled, with Israel pursuing them. Ben-Hadad escaped on horseback, and Ahab led Israel to a great victory.

A prophet warned Ahab to strengthen his army because Ben-Hadad would return the following year. The Arameans believed Israel's God was only a god of the mountains, so they planned to fight on the plains, thinking they would win. But when they attacked again, the Lord gave Israel another victory, and the surviving Arameans fled. Ben-Hadad hid, and his servants advised him that the kings of Israel were merciful. So they dressed in sackcloth, put ropes on their heads, and approached Ahab, begging for mercy. Ben-Hadad told Ahab that he would return the cities his father had taken from Israel. Ahab, feeling proud that a great king like Ben-Hadad was bowing before him, made a treaty and let him go—an unwise decision.

God then used a parable to show Ahab his mistake. A prophet disguised himself and asked another man to strike him, but the man refused, and a lion killed him. The prophet then asked another man, who struck him and wounded him. The wounded prophet waited for the king, disguised with a headband over his eyes. He told Ahab a story: "While in battle, a man brought me a prisoner and told me to guard him. If he escaped, I would have to pay a heavy price or forfeit my life. But as I was busy with other things, he disappeared." Ahab responded, "You have pronounced your own judgment." The prophet then removed the headband, revealing his identity, and told Ahab, "Because you released the man I had determined should die, your life will be taken in place of his, and your people in place of his people." Ahab went home angry and troubled.

You may think that the success of God's work in your community depends on well-known figures like a pastor, evangelist, or church elder. But what if you are the girl or boy God is calling to do what they cannot? What if you are the son or daughter of God whom someone will listen to when they have stopped listening to everyone else? Maybe your mother, father, brother, sister, cousin, uncle, or grandmother has strayed, and you can reach them—then do it. Great things can happen when the Elijahs among us stand boldly and make a difference. Even greater things will happen when all of us play our part when God calls. No matter how bad things seem, let us not forget God's promise: "Never will I leave you; never will I forsake you." (Hebrews 13:5)

Many people bring sickness upon themselves by indulging in pleasures and self-gratification. They do not live according to natural laws or principles of pure living. Others ignore health laws in their eating, drinking, dressing, or work habits. Often, some form of wrongdoing is the cause of mental or physical weakness. If these people received healing, many would continue their careless ways, believing that if God heals them once, they are free to continue their bad habits without consequence. If God were to work a miracle to restore their health, He would be encouraging sin.

Questions:

1. What lesson do you learn from this story?

2. Why did Elisha burn his plow and slaughter his oxen?

3. How did Ahab win the battle against Aram?

4. Why did the Lord say it was wrong to let the king of Aram go?

5. If you knew Ahab's wickedness, would you continue associating with him?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: 1 Kings 20:11.

[33] The king of Israel answered, "Tell him: 'Let not the one who puts on his armor boast like the one who takes it off.'"

Prayer: Beloved Heavenly Father, help us not to be boastful, but to have love and readiness to teach those younger than us, so that when we are gone, they may continue to do Your work and fill the gap. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

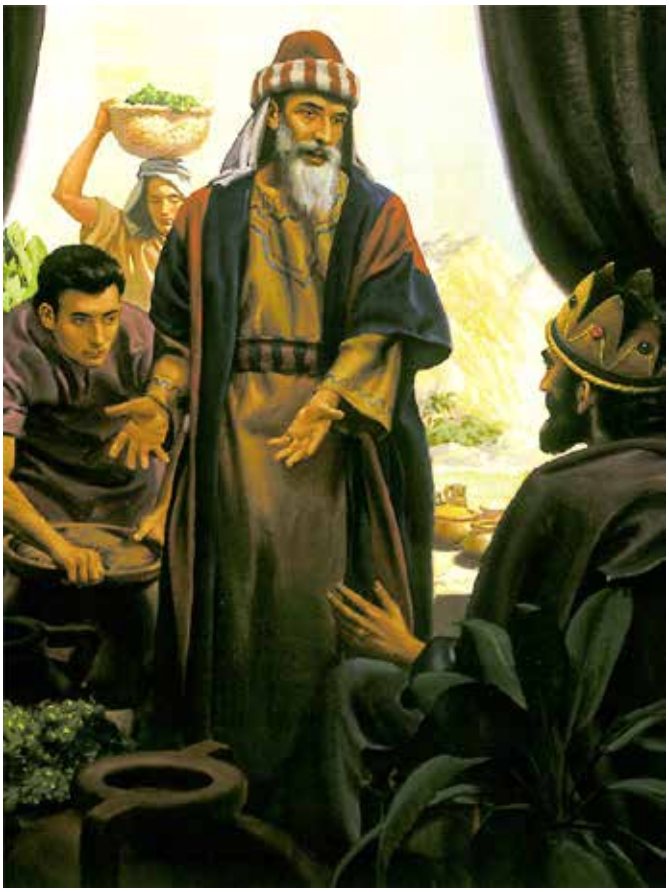
Activity: How to begin a calling that the Lord has given someone. Explain the example of Elisha here and also modern-day stories of how people began their calling to serve God.

DAY 124 (May 3)

TOPIC: Naboth's Vineyard

(1 Kings 21)

King Ahab, who ruled over all of Israel, was wealthy but extremely covetous and envious. He had two palaces, one in Samaria and another in Jezreel. One day, as he looked out of his palace window, he saw the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite. Ahab asked Naboth to give him his vineyard so that he could use it as a vegetable garden because it was near his palace. In exchange, Ahab offered him either a better vineyard or money. However, Naboth told Ahab that the vineyard was his inheritance from his ancestors and that he could not give it away.



Ahab went home feeling heavy-hearted, angry, and resentful because Naboth had refused to give him the vineyard. He lay on his bed sulking like a spoiled child, turned his face away, and refused to eat. Some people today have the habit of wanting everything to go their way, even if it is wrong. If things do not go their way, they become upset and refuse to listen to others. This is a bad attitude.

His wife, Jezebel, a well-known wicked woman who worshiped idols, found him sulking, sad, and refusing to eat. She asked him what was wrong, and he told her. Jezebel laughed mockingly and told him, “You are the king, not Naboth. Get up, eat, and be happy. I will give you Naboth’s vineyard.” Then this evil woman wrote letters in Ahab’s name, sealed them with his seal, and sent them to the elders and noblemen of the city where Naboth lived. In the letters, she instructed them:

“Proclaim a fast and seat Naboth in a prominent place among the people. Then bring two scoundrels to accuse him falsely, saying that he has cursed God and the king. After that, take him outside and stone him to death.”

The corrupt elders of the city, following their wicked leaders Ahab and Jezebel, obeyed her instructions. They proclaimed a fast, brought Naboth forward, and had false witnesses accuse him of blaspheming God and the king. Then they took him outside the city and stoned him to death. Afterward, they sent a message to Jezebel saying, “Naboth has been stoned and is dead.”

When Jezebel heard this, she told Ahab to get up and take possession of the vineyard that Naboth had refused to give him, for Naboth was now dead. Without shame or remorse, Ahab went to claim the vineyard.

Then the word of the Lord came to the prophet Elijah, instructing him to go and meet Ahab in Naboth’s vineyard in Samaria on the very day he went to seize it. Elijah confronted Ahab, saying:

“This is what the Lord says: ‘Have you murdered and taken possession?’ In the same place where dogs licked up Naboth’s blood, dogs will lick up your blood as well.”

Ahab was shocked that Elijah knew what had happened and asked, “Have you found me, my enemy?”

Elijah answered, “Yes, I have found you because you have sold yourself to do evil in the sight of the Lord."

Elijah then declared the Lord's judgment:

"I will bring disaster upon you and cut off every male descendant of your family, just as I did to the house of Jeroboam and Baasha, because of your wickedness in leading Israel to sin. Dogs will devour Jezebel in the territory of Jezreel. Any of Ahab's family members who die in the city will be eaten by dogs, and those who die in the fields will be eaten by birds."

Ahab was the most wicked king, and his wife constantly encouraged him in his evil ways.

When Ahab heard these words, he tore his clothes, put on sackcloth, and walked humbly in sorrow. Because of this, God decided to postpone the disaster until after Ahab's lifetime, allowing it to fall upon his son's days instead. However, Ahab's wickedness still affected his children, as they followed in their parents' sinful footsteps. This was a tragic outcome.

God does not let evil go unpunished. Sometimes it takes time, but in the end, sin has its consequences.

Many leaders have taken wealth from others by force, violating the rights of the weak, thinking that God will not act. But God is merciful and patient. Ahab and Jezebel were given many chances to repent, but they kept sinking deeper into sin and ignored the warnings. When Elijah confronted Ahab in Naboth's vineyard, he should have returned the land to Naboth's children and confessed his sin.

Pray that God will help you avoid the path of Ahab.

Ahab and Jezebel's relationship was a partnership in wickedness. They corrupted true worship and encouraged sin. The actions Jezebel took to please her husband were evil, filled with deception, provocation, and murder. Marriage is a gift from God, meant to encourage spouses to support one another and serve those around them. However, in Ahab and Jezebel's case, it became a source of selfishness and greed.

If you are still searching for a spouse, do not settle for someone who brings out the worst in you. Likewise, do not be a person who influences your spouse negatively. Pray that God helps you be the husband or wife you are meant to be so that your marriage will be a blessing rather than a source of pain for those around you.

It is pointless to teach people to look to God as the healer of their weaknesses if they are not also taught to abandon harmful habits that go against good health. To receive God's blessings in response to prayer, they must stop doing evil and learn to do what is right. Their environment must be clean, their lifestyle must be proper, and they must live according to both God's natural and spiritual laws.

Questions for Reflection:

What did Ahab want from Naboth?

How did the king react after Naboth refused to give him the vineyard?

What advice did his wife give him?

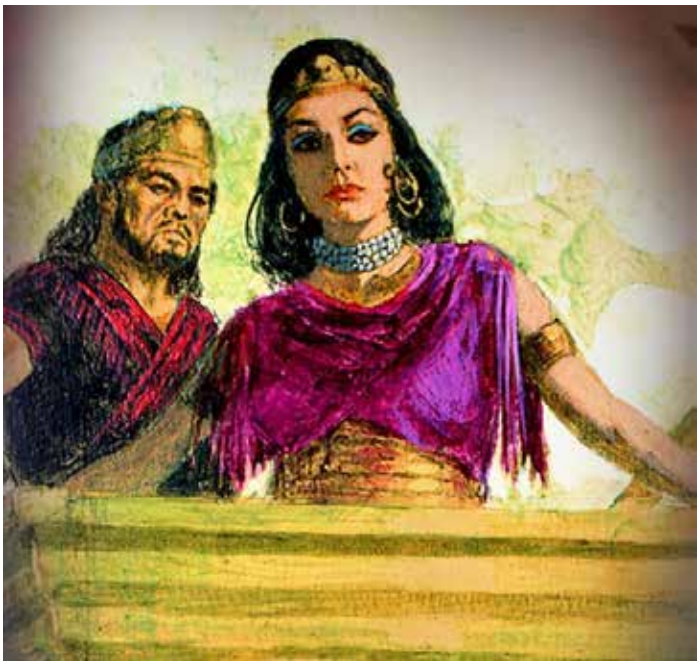
What message did Elijah bring from God?

Why did God say the punishment would come upon Ahab's children instead of Ahab himself?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: 1 Timothy 6:18,19.

[17,18] Command those who are rich in this present world not to be arrogant nor to put their hope in wealth, which is so uncertain, but to put their hope in God, who richly provides us with everything for our enjoyment. Command them to do good, to be rich in good deeds, and to be generous and willing to share.



Prayer: Beloved Heavenly Father, thank You for all the provisions You give us. This morning I ask You to help me not to be arrogant, but to trust in You, not to have greed for wealth, nor jealousy of others' possessions, nor even to rob others of their belongings. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity of contentment: How can we be content today? Learning from others, being thankful, counting all the things we have, etc.

DAY 125 (May 4)

LESSON: The Last Days of Ahab

(1 Kings 22 and 2 Chronicles 18)

There were three years of peace, and then Jehoshaphat, the king of Judah, went to visit Ahab, the king of Israel. Ahab said that the city of Ramoth-Gilead belonged to them and that they should take it back from the Arameans. He then proposed to King Jehoshaphat that they go to war together to reclaim the city. Jehoshaphat responded, "I am as you are, and my people as your people, and my horses as your horses."

King Jehoshaphat feared God, but he involved himself in a friendship with Ahab, who was an enemy of God. Ahab gathered 400 false prophets and asked them whether he should go to take Ramoth-Gilead, and they replied, "Go up, for the LORD will give it into the king's hand." However, Jehoshaphat was skeptical of these false prophets and asked Ahab, "Is there no longer a prophet of the LORD here whom we can inquire of?" Ahab admitted that there was one, Micaiah, but said, "I hate him because he never prophesies anything good about me, but only bad." Jehoshaphat responded, "The king should not say such a thing."

Ahab then sent a messenger to bring Micaiah, while both Ahab and Jehoshaphat sat on their royal thrones at the gate of Samaria, dressed in their royal robes, as the false prophets continued prophesying. One false prophet, Zedekiah, made iron horns and declared, "With these, you will gore the Arameans until they are destroyed." All the other prophets agreed, saying, "Go up and succeed!"

As the messenger went to fetch Micaiah, he urged him, "Please speak favorable words to the king, just like the other prophets." But Micaiah said that he would only speak what the LORD told him. When they entered before the kings, Ahab asked, “Micaiah, shall we go to war against Ramoth-Gilead, or should we refrain?” Micaiah sarcastically replied, “Go up and succeed!”

Ahab, sensing the sarcasm, pressed him further: “How many times must I make you swear to tell me nothing but the truth in the name of the LORD?” Micaiah then spoke the truth: “I saw all Israel scattered on the hills like sheep without a shepherd, and the LORD said, ‘These people have no master; let them go home in peace.’”

Ahab turned to Jehoshaphat and said, “Didn’t I tell you that he never prophesies anything good about me, only bad?”

Micaiah then revealed a vision of the LORD on His throne, with the heavenly hosts around Him. A voice was heard asking, “Who will entice Ahab to go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?” Different suggestions were made until a spirit came forward and said, “I will deceive him through the mouths of his prophets.”

Ahab had chosen to serve Satan, yet he blamed God’s servants when misfortune struck. Micaiah warned that a lying spirit had taken over Ahab’s prophets and that the LORD had decreed disaster for him. Zedekiah, the false prophet, trying to gain favor with the king, struck Micaiah on the cheek, asking, “Which way did the Spirit of the LORD go when he left me to speak to you?” Micaiah replied, “You will find out on the day you go to hide in an inner room.”

Ahab ordered Micaiah to be thrown into prison with only bread and water until he returned in peace. But Micaiah declared, “If you ever return in peace, the LORD has not spoken through me. Hear, all you people!”

The two kings went up to Ramoth-Gilead, but Ahab disguised himself in ordinary clothes while Jehoshaphat wore his royal robes. The king of Aram had instructed his army to ignore all soldiers and focus on killing the king of Israel. When they saw Jehoshaphat, they assumed he was Ahab and pursued him. Jehoshaphat cried out, and the commanders realized he was not Ahab and turned away.

Jehoshaphat, a righteous man, had made an alliance with a wicked man. This serves as a lesson when we consider making agreements, friendships, or business deals with those who do not honor God, or when we allow our children to marry people who openly defy the Lord.

God is full of mercy. Many times, we put ourselves in harm’s way, but He works tirelessly to save us. He sends His servants to warn us, but we prefer to hear pleasing words instead of corrections that would lead us to change.

Many church members demand that their leaders tell them what they want to hear, saying, “Speak well of us; if you rebuke us, we will not pay your salary or give you gifts.”

Then, an archer randomly shot an arrow, and it struck Ahab between the joints of his armor, where there was no protection. Ahab told his chariot driver, “Turn around and take me out of the battle, for I am wounded.”

In those days, kings were required to go into battle, unlike today. The fighting continued, and Ahab, fatally wounded, propped himself up in his chariot until evening, when he died from excessive bleeding. At sunset, a cry went through the army: “Every man to his own country and home!”

Ahab’s body was taken to Samaria, and his chariot was washed at a pool where prostitutes bathed. Dogs licked his blood, just as the LORD had declared through the prophet Elijah. Ahab was buried with his ancestors, and his son Ahaziah became king in his place.

As for Jezebel, she was thrown from a window in Jezreel by her own attendants. Her blood splattered on the wall and horses. When they went to bury her, they found only her skull, hands, and feet, for the dogs had devoured her body—exactly as the prophet Elijah had foretold.

God means what He says, and He says what He means. His prophecies and promises always come to pass. This wicked couple’s hearts were full of corruption, and they shook an entire nation with their arrogance. Though Jezebel was not Ahab’s first wife, she ruled over him and the nation. She maintained 850+ Baal prophets who were fed daily from the nation’s treasury. The people of God gave offerings that were used to sustain the servants of Baal, their enemy.

A prayer we should say today is, “Pass me not, O Savior, hear my humble cry. While on others Thou art calling, do not pass me by.” We need the Lord to dwell in our hearts so that we do not make wicked choices that please our itching ears—such as choosing a life partner with corrupt behavior, leading to a life of shame. Today, we even have a saying, “He married a Jezebel.”

Supernatural Healing Prayers Can Lead to Fanaticism (or Excessiveness)

Why do people repeatedly ask, “Why are prayers not offered for miraculous healing of the sick, but instead for the many sanitariums that have been established?” If this were done, great fanaticism would arise among us. Those who are overly self-confident would take control of the movement.

Questions:

1. Why did Ahab go to war?
2. Who did he go with?
3. Why didn't he wear his royal robes?
4. What did the false prophet tell Ahab?
5. Do you prefer to hear sweet lies or hard truths that will help you?
6. Why did Ahab imprison Micaiah?
7. What happened to Ahab in the battle?
8. Who was the true prophet?

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: 1 Corinthians 15:33, 34.

[33,34] Do not be deceived: "Bad company corrupts good character." Awake to righteousness, and do not sin; for some do not have the knowledge of God. I say this to your shame.

Prayer: Our Father in heaven, help us to choose good friends, and may we feel sorrow and shame when we sin. Thank You for the life of Ahab that is enough to teach us to avoid evil completely.

Activity: Sing together this hymn:

Do not pass me by, Savior
Do not pass me by, Savior, hear my cry;
While on others You are calling, do not pass me by.
Jesus, Jesus, hear my cry,
While on others You are calling, do not pass me by.

Your mercy seat I behold,
I kneel there, to be forgiven.
I have nothing else to trust, only You;
Your face be upon me, I worship You.

You alone are my Comforter, I have none in heaven,
Nor anywhere on earth, no other Lord.

DAY 126 (May 5)

TOPIC: Jehoshaphat, Ahaziah, and Elijah

(1 Kings 22; 2 Kings 1 and 2; 2 Chronicles 17-19)

Jehoshaphat, the son of Asa, began to reign over Judah at the age of 35, during the fourth year of King Ahab's reign in Israel. He ruled for 25 years and walked in the righteous ways of his father Asa, without turning aside. His father Asa received a message through the prophet Hanani, saying, "For the eyes of the LORD run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to show Himself strong on behalf of those whose heart is perfect toward Him." This message is for all of us today; we should not think that the LORD does not see—He knows everything. If we surrender to Him, He will reveal Himself to us. However, Asa did not like being corrected, so he imprisoned the prophet. Furthermore, he did not destroy the high places where people worshiped foreign gods.

His son Jehoshaphat made peace with the king of Israel. He also removed the male cult prostitutes, the prostitutes, and the idols where people practiced wicked worship. Jehoshaphat built ships to go to Tarshish to bring gold from Ophir, but the ships were wrecked at Ezion-Geber. When Jehoshaphat died, his son Jehoram succeeded him as king.

Ahaziah, the son of Ahab, reigned after his father and did evil in the sight of the LORD, just as his father had done. Ahaziah fell through the lattice of his upper room in Samaria and was injured. He then sent messengers to inquire of Baal-Zebub, the god of Ekron, whether he would recover from his injury. But the angel of the LORD told Elijah to meet the king's messengers and ask them, "Is it because there is no God in Israel that you are going to inquire of Baal-Zebub, the god of Ekron?" The message was that Ahaziah would not leave the bed he was lying on but would surely die. Elijah departed after delivering the message.

When the messengers returned, the king was surprised at how quickly they came back. They told him, "A man met us and told us to return to the king who sent us and to say to him, 'Is it because there is no God in Israel that you are going to inquire of Baal-Zebub, the god of Ekron? Therefore, you will not come down from the bed you have climbed into, but you will surely die.'"

The king asked them what the man who told them this looked like. They replied, "He was wearing a garment of hair and had a leather belt around his waist." The king immediately recognized that it was Elijah the Tishbite.

So, the king sent a captain with fifty soldiers to Elijah. They found him sitting on top of a hill, and the captain ordered him, "Man of God, the king says, 'Come down!'" Elijah replied, "If I am a man of God, may fire come down from heaven and consume you and your fifty men." And fire fell from heaven and consumed them.

The king sent another captain with fifty soldiers, and they suffered the same fate. Then the king sent a third captain with another fifty men. This third captain went up the hill, knelt before Elijah, and pleaded with him, saying, "Man of God, I beg you, let my life and the lives of these fifty servants of yours be precious in your sight. Fire has already come down from heaven and consumed the first two captains and their fifty men. But now, I beg you, spare my life."

God is pleased with humility. The first two captains approached Elijah with pride and authority, relying on their king's command rather than showing reverence to the man of God. But the third captain humbled himself and was spared.

The angel of the LORD told Elijah to go down with the third captain and not to be afraid. Elijah went to the king and repeated the message, saying that because he sought guidance from Baal-Zebub instead of the God of Israel, he would surely die. And so, King Ahaziah died, just as the word of the LORD had declared. His son Joram succeeded him as king.

Taking the Right Action Is Not Denying Faith in Healing Prayers

Many people who seek God's mercy for healing believe they must receive an immediate and direct answer to their prayers, or else their faith is flawed. Because of this, those weakened by illness need wise counsel so they can act with wisdom. They should not neglect their responsibility toward friends who can help them survive, nor should they ignore using natural remedies (or alternative treatments) to restore their health.

Questions:

1. What kind of clothing did Elijah wear?

2. How did the last group of fifty soldiers survive when they approached Elijah?

3. Why did King Ahaziah die?

4. What do the eyes of the LORD search for throughout the earth?

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: 2 Chronicles 16:9.

[9] For the eyes of the Lord run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to show Himself strong on behalf of those whose heart is fully committed to Him. In this you have done foolishly; therefore from now on you shall have wars.

Prayer: Lord, thank You because You care so much for us, and You look throughout the whole earth to see if we are fully committed to You. Help us not to act foolishly. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: 18, focus on "Good Counsel versus Bad Counsel," where children act out wise or foolish decisions, or draw different scenes of Ahab and Micaiah.

DAY 127 (May 6)

TOPIC: What Blessing Would You Ask for If You Were Asked?

(2 Kings 1 and 2)

The LORD desired to take Elijah to be with Him in heaven through a whirlwind. The work God had given him during a wicked generation was coming to an end. He had fought the LORD's battle with courage, and God knew He would take him. So, Elijah left Gilgal with Elisha and told him to stay behind because the LORD had sent him to Bethel. But Elisha refused, saying, "As surely as the LORD lives and as you live, I will not leave you." So, they went down to Bethel.

The sons of the prophets at Bethel asked Elisha if he knew that his master would be taken to heaven that day, and that he would no longer be his leader. Elisha replied that he knew but told them to keep quiet. Elijah again told Elisha to stay because the LORD had sent him to Jericho, and Elisha gave the same response as before. When they reached Jericho, the sons of the prophets again asked Elisha if he knew his master would be taken away, and he answered that he did.

For the third time, Elijah asked Elisha to stay because the LORD had sent him to the Jordan River. Elisha again refused to leave.

Fifty of the sons of the prophets stood watching from a distance while Elijah and Elisha stood by the Jordan. Elijah took his cloak, rolled it up, and struck the water. The water divided, and they crossed over on dry ground, just as the Israelites did when they left Egypt. After they crossed, Elijah asked Elisha what he wanted before he was taken away. Would he ask for money, a house, a high position, or other worldly things?

Elisha asked for a double portion of Elijah's spirit. Having this spirit means having a close relationship with God. Elijah told him that he had asked for a difficult thing, but if he saw him being taken away, he would receive what he had asked for.

As they were walking and talking, suddenly a chariot of fire and horses of fire appeared and separated the two of them, and Elijah went up to heaven in a whirlwind. The fiery chariot was glorious and amazing. Human language cannot describe what a heavenly chariot looks like—it is neither a Benz nor a Prado.

Elisha saw it and cried out, “My father, my father! The chariot of Israel and its horsemen!” He never saw Elijah again. He took hold of his clothes and tore them in two. Then he picked up Elijah’s cloak that had fallen and stood on the bank of the Jordan. He struck the water with Elijah’s cloak and said, “Where is the LORD, the God of Elijah?” When he struck the water, it divided, and he crossed over.

The sons of the prophets from Jericho, who were watching, said, “The spirit of Elijah rests on Elisha.” They came to meet him and bowed to the ground before him. They asked Elisha if they could send fifty strong men to search for Elijah, thinking the Spirit of the LORD might have carried him away and left him on a mountain or in a valley. Although Elisha knew God had taken Elijah, he allowed them to go after they insisted. They searched but did not find him. When they returned, Elisha said, “Did I not tell you not to go?”

When God chooses you to fill a position, He will give you the training, strength, and honor needed to fulfill the work for His glory. The question is: Will you remain faithfully in your place of service, doing humble tasks, until God sees fit to entrust you with greater responsibilities? When the baton is passed to you, or the mantle falls on you, will you receive it with faith and courage? Will you see the “Jordan River” as an opportunity or an obstacle?

God is still ready to part the Jordan, heal the waters, and defend His workers. God does not abandon His work when a great leader retires. As we dedicate ourselves to the LORD, He will help us receive the Holy Spirit, who will empower us to train other evangelists to be even better. That power is still available today. Let us ask for it, and we will receive a double portion. The double portion of the Holy Spirit will be given only to those who faithfully walk with God, as Elisha did with Elijah. May our Heavenly Father help us to hunger and thirst for His Word daily so that we may live fully in the will of His Spirit!

Prayer:
Help me to crucify self and do Your work regardless of criticism, discouragement, opposition, and tears. Remind me that You, LORD, are in charge of my work. Help me to keep my eyes on You and do what You ask me to do. Let me be as faithful as Elisha in Your service.

Parents have a great responsibility to help their children be like Elisha. Let it be the desire of their hearts that their children love and know Jesus while holding on to God's hand. Children watch examples all the time; they will imitate them sooner or later. Therefore, we should always seek to imitate Christ so that when children copy us, they are copying Christ.

Many Christians want to be part of the last generation so they will not experience death. We are told that this is not the highest honor or position God can give to His child. The highest position is "fellowship with Christ in His sufferings." Without inviting unnecessary suffering, this will come to anyone who lives the kind of life described here (2 Timothy 3:12). This is the highest honor God can bestow on any human being!

The Bible tells us that only two people have been taken to heaven without tasting death—Enoch and Elijah. They represent those who will enter heaven without dying when Jesus returns. Moses represents those who have tasted death and were taken to heaven. The promise of victory is given to all, and if we remain faithful, one day we will see Elijah and Moses in heaven.

There is often a danger of misunderstanding this. Some believe that being healed in answer to prayer means avoiding anything that might suggest a lack of faith. However, they should not neglect to put their affairs in order if they expect to be called away by death. Nor should they hesitate to give words of encouragement or counsel they would want to share if they knew their time was short.

Questions:

1. What was going to happen to Elijah?
2. How did Elisha feel?
3. Why did Elisha refuse to leave Elijah? What does this show about Elisha?
4. What did Elisha ask for? Do you think it was a good thing to ask for?
5. Did Elisha see Elijah being taken away?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Proverbs 30:7-9

[7-9] Two things I ask of You, Lord; do not refuse me before I die: Keep falsehood and lies far from me; give me neither poverty nor riches, but give me only my daily bread. Otherwise, I may have too much and disown You and say, "Who is the Lord?" Or I may become poor and steal, and so dishonor the name of my God.

Prayer:
Lord, today I thank You for the many things You have already given me, and I ask to be filled with Your Holy Spirit. Help me with love, faith, tender mercy, patience, and hope. Help me to do Your work and to walk with You all the days of my life. In the precious Name of the Messiah, Amen.

▫Activity:
What are the best choices of things to pray for when you are suddenly surprised? Write down the blessings you would ask God to give you today. Give each person a piece of paper; for anyone who cannot write, have someone write for them. Tell them to think very carefully. For everything they want, let them also explain its positive or negative outcome.

DAY 128 (May 7)

TOPIC: Disobedient Children Are Punished

(2 Kings 2-3)

Elisha returned after Elijah was taken up. The people of the city told him, “This place is pleasant, but the water is bad, and the land causes miscarriages.” He asked for a new bowl with salt in it. They brought it to him, and he went to the spring, threw the salt in it, and said, “This is what the LORD says: ‘I have healed these waters; never again will they cause death or miscarriages.’” The waters were healed.

Elisha then went up to Bethel, and some disrespectful youth mocked him, saying, “Go up, you baldhead! Go up, you baldhead!” They meant he should ascend to heaven like Elijah. The people had heard about Elijah’s ascension but did not believe it and mocked heavenly matters. Elisha realized they wanted to ridicule the great work he had received and make him a laughingstock. He was shocked that such a glorious event of his master's ascension could be mocked.

Elisha looked at the children and cursed them in the name of the LORD. Two female bears came out of the woods and mauled forty-two of the youths. Then Elisha went to Mount Carmel and returned to Samaria.

We do not know the extent of the children's injuries, but it is possible they died since they were mauled. What we do know is that their disrespect became a serious warning to other children or youth. No one dared mock another servant of God again. Even today, we must be careful not to despise those who work for God because they represent Him. Let us avoid bringing harm upon ourselves. Disrespecting people, even those your age, is a sin.

Scripture instructs us in Ephesians 4 that:
"Let no unwholesome talk come out of your mouths, but only what is helpful for building others up according to their needs, that it may benefit those who listen. And do not grieve the Holy Spirit of God, with whom you were sealed for the day of redemption. Get rid of all bitterness, rage, anger, brawling, and slander, along with every form of malice. Be kind and compassionate to one another, forgiving each other, just as in Christ God forgave you."

Joram, son of Ahab, began to reign over Samaria in the eighteenth year of King Jehoshaphat of Judah, and he reigned for twelve years. He did evil in the sight of the LORD like his father. Mesha, the king of Moab, who was a sheep breeder, used to pay the king of Israel 200,000 lambs and the wool of 200,000 rams. But after Ahab died, he rebelled.

Joram mobilized Israel in Samaria to go to war against Moab and sent a message to Jehoshaphat, asking him to join in the battle. Jehoshaphat agreed, saying, "I will go; I am as you are, my people as your people, and my horses as your horses." They marched for seven days through the desert of Edom, but there was no water for the army or the animals. Joram lamented, "Alas! The LORD has brought these three kings together to deliver us into the hands of Moab."

Jehoshaphat asked if there was a prophet of the LORD to inquire of Him. One of Joram's servants mentioned Elisha, the former servant of Elijah. So, the three kings of Israel, Judah, and Edom went down to Elisha.

Elisha told Joram, "What do I have to do with you? Go to the prophets of your father and mother!" But Joram insisted, saying, "No, because the LORD has called these three kings together to deliver us into the hands of Moab." Elisha responded, “Were it not for Jehoshaphat, the king of Judah, I would not even look at you or notice you.”

Elisha called for a musician, and as the musician played, the hand of the LORD came upon him. He said, “This is what the LORD says: ‘Dig many ditches in this valley. You will see neither wind nor rain, but this valley will be filled with water, and you, your cattle, and your animals will drink.’ This is an easy thing in the sight of the LORD. He will also deliver the Moabites into your hands.”

The next morning, at the time of the grain offering, water flowed from the direction of Edom and filled the land. When the Moabites heard that the three kings were coming to fight against them, they assembled all who could bear arms and stood at the border. As the sun rose, it reflected on the water, making it look like blood. The Moabites thought, “The kings have fought each other and killed one another! Now to the plunder!”

When they came to the Israelite camp, the Israelites rose and struck down the Moabites, pursuing them into their territory, destroying cities, blocking springs, cutting down good trees, and covering fertile fields with stones.

When the king of Moab saw he was losing, he took 700 swordsmen to break through to the king of Edom but failed. In desperation, he offered his firstborn son, the heir to his throne, as a burnt offering on the city wall. This caused such great wrath against Israel that they withdrew and returned to their own land.

Recent archaeological excavations in Moab have revealed a stone inscription about this battle. God’s Word is always true. We may have doubts, but eventually, we will find that His Word is indeed true. It is easy for God to meet our physical needs, but He delights in doing even more. He promises guidance, deliverance, and victory for those who seek Him.

When God reveals a way out, it may seem impossible by human reasoning, but He is all-powerful. The Christian life is a serious battle, not an easy journey. The victory we need cannot be achieved by human strength alone. Our hearts are the true battlefield.

Read Ephesians 6 about putting on the armor of God. The greatest battle we must fight is surrendering our hearts and wills to God. We must be born again by water and the Spirit and abandon the desires of the flesh to inherit God’s kingdom.

Those who decide to enter the spiritual kingdom will find that all natural and sinful desires, supported by the kingdom of darkness, will be aimed against them. Selfishness and pride will resist anything that exposes our sin.

We cannot overcome sinful habits by ourselves or defeat the powerful enemy who holds us captive. Only God can give us victory. He wants us to cooperate with Him through our free will. When facing troubles, what is your first response? Choose faith, which can bring water to the desert and deliver you from Satan's armies.

When we pray for the sick, what should we do next? Should we stop all efforts? No! We should work harder and pray more for God to bless the means He has provided.

Questions:

1. Where did Elisha live?

2. How did he heal the water?

3. Why were 42 youths mauled by bears?

4. Why did the three kings seek Elisha?

5. What instructions did Elisha give them?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Memory Verse: Ephesians 6:1-3.

[1-3] Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right. "Honor your father and mother"—this is the first commandment with a promise—"that it may go well with you and that you may live long in the land." Fathers, do not provoke your children, but bring them up in the discipline and instruction of the Lord. Slaves and Masters.

Prayer: Lord who dwells in heaven above, grant me the fruit of the Spirit—love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control; help me crucify my flesh with its sinful desires. Let me live by the Spirit and walk by the Spirit. May I not boast in vain, irritate, or envy anyone. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Discuss what respect for elders is. And how it is practiced. If we are with other children and they begin to be disrespectful to someone, what should we do? Include things like greeting, telling the truth, paying attention when they are speaking, politeness, respecting boundaries, helping with chores, speaking moderately, avoiding showing contempt or bullying, respecting yourself, not gossiping behind others, and keeping time. —|Ephesians 6:1-3.

DAY 129 (May 8)

TOPIC: The Widow and the Shunammite Woman

(2 Kings 4-6)

In many parts of Israel, people listened to the teachings of Elisha and the prophets and worshiped God. Elisha traveled from place to place, meeting people and teaching them to worship the true God.

One day, a woman among the wives of the sons of the prophets cried out to Elisha, saying, "Your servant, my husband, is dead. You know that your servant feared the LORD, but the creditor has come to take my two sons to be his slaves." During those days, and even today in some areas, creditors would take a person's children as collateral if a debt was not paid. This was a painful situation because the woman had lost her husband, and now her children were about to be taken as slaves.

Elisha, with compassion, asked her, "What shall I do for you?" The LORD loves to help us in our troubles. Elisha then asked her what she had in her house. She answered that she had nothing except a jar of oil. Elisha told her to go and borrow many empty vessels from her neighbors. Then he instructed her to go inside, shut the door behind her and her sons, and pour the oil into all the vessels, setting aside each one that was full.

The woman did as Elisha instructed. Her sons brought her vessels, and she poured the oil. As soon as each vessel was filled, they set it aside and continued until there were no more vessels left. The oil stopped flowing only when all the vessels were full. Imagine the surprise of the children as they saw the miracle of the oil multiplying!

The neighbors may have wondered why the woman was borrowing so many containers—perhaps they thought she was confused due to her debt. After filling the vessels, the woman went to Elisha, smiling, to tell him what had happened. Elisha instructed her to sell the oil, pay her debt, and use the remaining oil to support herself and her sons. She received as much as her faith and the number of vessels allowed.

Another day, as Elisha was traveling to Shunem, he met a prominent woman who invited him to her home for a meal. Whenever Elisha passed by that way, he would stop to eat with the woman and her husband. Eventually, the woman told her husband, “I know that this man who often comes our way is a holy man of God.” She suggested building a small room on the roof for Elisha, furnished with a bed, a table, a chair, and a lamp, so that he could stay there whenever he visited.

This was a kind gesture. Many people expand their homes for luxury or personal desires, but this family did so to show hospitality to a servant of God.

One day, during a visit, Elisha asked his servant Gehazi to call the Shunammite woman. When she came, Elisha said, “You have gone to all this trouble for us. What can be done for you? Should we speak on your behalf to the king or the commander of the army?” The woman humbly replied that she was content living among her own people and needed nothing.

Elisha then asked Gehazi if there was anything the woman lacked. Gehazi noted that the woman and her husband had no child. Elisha called the woman again and, as she stood at the doorway, he said, “About this time next year, you will hold a son in your arms.” The woman, overwhelmed with emotion, replied, “No, my lord, man of God, do not lie to your servant!” She had longed for a child but was afraid to raise her hopes only to be disappointed.

As Elisha had said, the woman conceived and gave birth to a son the following year.

The child grew, and one day, while in the fields with his father, he suddenly cried out, “My head! My head!” His father told a servant to carry him to his mother. The boy sat on his mother’s lap until noon, and then he died.

The mother took her son and laid him on Elisha’s bed, closed the door, and left. Without telling her husband the reason, she asked for a servant and a donkey to go quickly to the man of God. Her husband, puzzled, asked why she was going when it was not the New Moon or the Sabbath, but she simply said, “It is well.”

She urged the servant to drive the donkey quickly without slowing down unless she instructed. When she reached Mount Carmel, where Elisha was, Gehazi saw her from a distance and told Elisha. Elisha sent Gehazi to ask her if all was well with her, her husband, and the child. She answered, “All is well.”

When she reached Elisha, she fell at his feet. Gehazi tried to push her away, but Elisha stopped him, saying, “Leave her alone; her soul is troubled, and the LORD has hidden it from me and has not told me.”

The Shunammite woman said, “Did I ask my lord for a son? Didn’t I say, ‘Do not deceive me’?”

Elisha then told Gehazi to take his staff, go ahead quickly, and lay it on the boy’s face. He instructed him not to stop to greet anyone along the way. But the mother insisted on staying with Elisha, so he followed after Gehazi.

When Gehazi placed the staff on the boy’s face, there was no sound or response. He returned to meet Elisha and reported, “The boy has not awakened.”

When Elisha arrived, he went into the room, shut the door, and prayed to the LORD. He then lay on the boy, placing his mouth on the boy's mouth, his eyes on the boy's eyes, and his hands on the boy's hands. As Elisha stretched himself out on the boy, the child's body began to grow warm.

Elisha got up and walked back and forth, then stretched himself on the boy again. The child sneezed seven times and opened his eyes.

Elisha called Gehazi to summon the Shunammite woman. When she came, Elisha said, "Take your son." The woman fell at Elisha's feet in gratitude, then took her son and left.

God rewards those who serve His faithful servants. This woman received precious gifts because of her hospitality.

The boy learned valuable lessons through this experience. Today, many children admire actors, athletes, and fashion icons, giving them more respect than they give to God's faithful servants. This is wrong—we should value and honor those who live according to God's word.

This child learned the importance of prayer and meditating on God's word through the powerful testimony of his own life.

Trust GOD Regardless of the Outcome of Your Prayers
When we pray for the healing of the sick, we must not lose faith in GOD, no matter the outcome. If we are called to face sorrow, let us accept the bitter cup, remembering that the Father's hand holds it to our lips. If health is restored, the one who receives healing must remember their renewed responsibility to their Creator.

Questions:

1. How did Elisha help the widow?

2. How many children did the widow have?

3. Why couldn't Elisha's servant raise the child?

4. Why did Elisha want to give the Shunammite woman a gift?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Memory Verse: Psalm 103:1-4.

[1-4] Praise the Lord, my soul; all my inmost being, praise His holy name. Praise the Lord, my soul, and forget not all His benefits—who forgives all your sins and heals all your diseases, who redeems your life from the pit and crowns you with love and compassion.

Prayer: Thank You so much for healing, our heavenly Father. We praise You for Your love, compassion, forgiveness, and for healing all our diseases. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Act out the miracle of the child resurrecting and sneezing.

DAY 130 (May 9)

TOPIC: Poisonous Food and the Sunken Axe

(2 Kings 4-6)

During this time of many troubles and darkness, God revealed Himself and helped His people through many miracles. Elisha came to Gilgal again, and there was a famine in the land, and the sons of the prophets were sitting before him at the schools of the prophets. Elisha told his servants to set a large pot to cook for the sons of the prophets. One of them went out to the field to gather herbs and found a wild gourd. He picked it until his garment was full, brought it back, cut it into pieces, and put it in the pot, even though they did not know if it was edible.

Even today, there are poisonous mushrooms and inedible plants, so it is wise to consult experts to distinguish between what is safe to eat and what is not, as this knowledge may be useful during emergencies. The stew was served to the sons of the prophets, but as they began to eat, they cried out, “O man of God, there is death in the pot!” meaning the wild gourds were poisonous and inedible. They could not continue eating.

Elisha told them to bring some flour, which he threw into the pot. He then instructed them to serve the people, and the stew became safe to eat because God had removed the poison. The Lord heard the prayer of the man of God and neutralized the poison. Even today, we can pray with faith if we find ourselves in trouble, whether knowingly or unknowingly.

During the famine, a man from Baal-shalishah brought Elisha food from the first fruits—twenty barley loaves and fresh ears of grain. Elisha told his servant to give it to the people to eat. The servant questioned how so little food could feed a hundred people, but Elisha insisted, saying, “The Lord says, ‘They will eat and have some left over.’” The food was served, and they ate and had leftovers, according to the word of the Lord.

The sons of the prophets were many and eager to study and serve the Lord. This kind of school today would be called a missionary school, a service school, or a seminary. The sons of the prophets came to Elisha and said, “The place where we stay under your supervision is too small for us.” They requested permission to go to the Jordan River to cut logs to build a place to live. Elisha allowed them to go, and one student asked him to accompany them, to which Elisha agreed.

When they arrived, they began cutting down trees. However, as one of them was cutting a log, the iron axe head fell into the water. He cried out, “Alas, my master! It was borrowed!” Elisha asked where it had fallen, and when the student showed him the spot, Elisha cut a stick and threw it there, causing the iron to float. He told the student to retrieve it, and the student stretched out his hand and took it. Without a doubt, that student was grateful to have the man of God with him and to receive his help.

Even today, those studying for pastoral or evangelistic work face various challenges while at school or when beginning their ministry. This story shows that when you receive a calling to serve God by helping people, He will always be with you. Therefore, learn to live a life of contentment and godliness. Serving God is not about making money but about developing a heavenly character for yourself and others. This calling requires self-denial.

Biblical examples do not show God's servants living in luxury, being overwhelmed by debt, or begging people for money to bless them. Being rich is not just about having money but about having fewer wants. Learn to be content in all circumstances because "godliness with contentment is great gain." You can do all things through Him who gives you strength (Philippians 4:13). He has promised never to leave you.

Do not compare yourself with your neighbor who may have a bigger house, a larger farm, or a better motorcycle. Focus on the blessings you already have, not what you lack—count them and praise God. You will find joy replacing your frown. Today's culture suggests that happiness comes from possessions, but why are people still unhappy despite having many things?

One key lesson here concerns loans or debts. Scripture mentions borrowing 26 times, always in a negative light. While borrowing is sometimes necessary, we should avoid it when possible and ask God to help us live simple lives and meet our needs. Many blessings we enjoy include:

If you woke up today healthy, you are blessed—use that opportunity to bless others.

If you live without war or hunger, you are more fortunate than 500 million people living in conflict zones.

If you can worship freely without fear, you are more blessed than 3 billion people who lack religious freedom.

If you have clothes to wear, food, a home, and a bed, you are better off than 75% of the world's population.

If you have money in the bank, small savings, or spare change, you are among the world's wealthiest 8%.

If you have both parents alive, you are more fortunate than many who are orphaned or have only one parent.

If your parents have a university degree, you are more privileged than 99% of people worldwide.

Finally, if you can read this, you are more blessed than over 2 billion people who cannot read or write.

The Prayer for Forgiveness Is Always Answered Instantly

When we pray for material blessings, God's response may be delayed, or He may give us something different. However, when we ask for deliverance from sin, He is always willing to cleanse us. Christ gave Himself for our sins to rescue us from this present evil world, according to the will of God the Father (Galatians 1:4).

We have confidence that if we ask anything according to His will, He hears us. And if we know that He hears us, we know that we have what we asked of Him (1 John 5:14-15). If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us and cleanse us from all unrighteousness (1 John 1:9).

Questions:

Why were the sons of the prophets cutting trees?

How was the axe head recovered?

Why does iron not float?

Why did they cry out, "There is death in the pot"?

What lessons do we learn from this story?

Count all your blessings and write them down. Then, list the challenges or things you lack.

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Memory Verse: Mark 16:17-18.

[17-18] And these signs will accompany those who believe: in My name they will drive out demons; they will speak in new tongues; they will pick up snakes with their hands; and when they drink deadly poison, it will not hurt them at all; they will place their hands on sick people, and they will get well.

Prayer: Thank You for protecting us from harm and giving us these signs to accompany us. Thank You for giving us the authority to lay hands on the sick that they may recover. Guide us, Lord, in everything. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Act out the story of poisonous food and flour being added, people eating, and leftovers remaining.

DAY 131 (May 10)

TOPIC: Commander Naaman and the Slave Girl

(God's gifts are not for sale - 2 Kings 5)

Naaman, the commander of the army of the king of Aram (Syria), was a man of high rank and was respected by his master because through him, the LORD had given victory to Aram. He was a valiant warrior, but he had leprosy. The Arameans had gone out and taken captive a young girl from Israel who became a servant to Naaman's wife. It was cruel for this girl to be taken captive and taken far from her home, unable to see her parents or siblings. This young girl worshiped the God of heaven and had a heart full of love, despite living in slavery in Syria.

It seems that her mistress, Naaman's wife, was kind-hearted, and they talked like a mother and daughter. Sometimes, her mistress appeared sad and troubled, most likely because of her husband's leprosy. This young captive girl shared stories about Elisha, the prophet of God—how he raised the dead and made poisonous food safe to eat. Regardless of your age, you can be someone who shares good news with the sick, the poor, those in trouble, or those who are sad.

She said to Naaman's wife, "If only my master would see the prophet who is in Samaria! He would cure him of his leprosy." She was referring to the prophet Elisha. Someone who overheard this reported it to Naaman, and Naaman went to tell the king of Aram. The king was pleased, hoping his valued commander could be healed from his dreadful disease. He promised to give Naaman a letter of introduction to the king of Israel to help him get healed of his leprosy.

Naaman left for Israel, taking ten talents of silver, six thousand shekels of gold, and ten sets of clothes. He delivered the letter to the king of Israel, which read: “With this letter, I am sending my servant Naaman to you so that you may cure him of his leprosy.” When the king of Israel read the letter, he was greatly distressed. He tore his robes and said, “Am I God? Can I kill and bring back to life? Why does this man send someone to me to be cured of his leprosy? See how he is trying to pick a quarrel with me!”

When Elisha the prophet heard that the king of Israel had torn his robes, he sent a message: “Why have you torn your robes? Have the man come to me, and he will know that there is a prophet in Israel.” So Naaman went with his horses and chariots and stopped at the door of Elisha’s house.

Elisha sent a messenger to him saying, “Go, wash yourself seven times in the Jordan River, and your flesh will be restored, and you will be cleansed.” But Naaman was angry. As a high-ranking commander, he felt disrespected that Elisha did not come out personally to meet him. He thought Elisha would come out, stand, call on the name of the LORD his God, wave his hand over the spot, and cure him of leprosy. He said, “Are not Abana and Pharpar, the rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? Couldn’t I wash in them and be cleansed?” So he turned and went off in a rage.

Thankfully, Naaman had wise and caring servants. They approached him and said, “My father, if the prophet had told you to do something great, would you not have done it? How much more then, when he tells you, ‘Wash and be cleansed’!” Their wisdom softened his heart. So, Naaman went down to the Jordan River. The water was not as clean as the rivers of Damascus, but he obeyed. He dipped himself once—no change. Twice, three times—still nothing. He might have wondered if this simple act could truly heal him.

Many people today think they can do things their own way, ignoring God's instructions. For instance, in Genesis 2, God commanded that the seventh day is the Sabbath, a day of rest. Yet, many people treat it as an ordinary day—doing chores, shopping, or working. Some say it does not matter which day you keep as long as you love God in your heart. But God is a God of specific instructions.

Naaman continued dipping himself—four times, five, six—and still, nothing happened. But on the seventh time, his leprosy disappeared! His skin became as smooth and healthy as a young child's. It was a miracle.

Naaman returned to the man of God and stood before him, declaring, "Now I know that there is no God in all the world except in Israel. So, please accept a gift from your servant." But Elisha refused. He knew that the healing was a gift from God, not something to be bought. Despite Naaman urging him to accept the gifts, Elisha firmly declined.

Many people today are like the old Naaman—rejecting God's simple instructions. For example, some people spend large amounts of money on medicine when simple lifestyle changes, like drinking more water, could help prevent certain illnesses. God wants us to live simple, healthy lives—eating nutritious food and following His guidelines.

Parents have a responsibility to train their children, just like the captive girl who shared her faith. If you are not willing to teach your children the way to heaven, think carefully before bringing them into this world. There is a heaven to gain and a hell to avoid!

The moment a child of God approaches the Throne of Grace, they become a client of the greatest Advocate—Jesus Christ. With the first confession of sin and plea for forgiveness, Christ takes their case as His own and presents it to the Father.

Questions:

1. What disease did Naaman have?
2. Who helped Naaman?
3. What did the king of Aram do for Naaman?
4. Why was the king of Israel afraid?
5. Why was Elisha willing to help Naaman?
6. Why did Naaman think Elisha was not helpful?
7. Why did Naaman almost leave without being healed?
8. What happened when Naaman obeyed?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: 1 Peter 4:10.

[10] Each of you should use whatever gift you have received to serve others, as faithful stewards of God's grace in its various forms.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for freely giving us Your gifts. Help me to know and use my gifts well for Your glory. Fill me with Your Holy Spirit. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Discuss 10 simple remedies that many people reject which often bring true healing—water, fresh air, sunlight, unrefined and unprocessed food, temperance, trust in God, rest, cleanliness, diligence in work, and a positive mindset.

DAY 132 (May 11)

TOPIC: Naaman's Leprosy Transfers to Gehazi

(2 Kings 5)

When Elisha refused to accept gifts, Naaman asked to take some soil from Israel as a gift. He promised he would no longer offer sacrifices to his gods but only to the LORD, the God of Israel. However, he requested forgiveness for accompanying the king to the temple of his god Rimmon. When the king bowed there, leaning on Naaman's arm for support, Naaman would also bow to assist the king but not to worship. Elisha told him to go in peace, and Naaman began his journey back home.

Before he had gone far, he noticed a cloud of dust behind him—it was Gehazi following him. Gehazi, the servant of the man of God, Elisha, was overcome with greed when he saw his master refusing such valuable gifts. Gehazi said to himself, "Look, my master has let this Aramean Naaman go without accepting any of the gifts he brought. As surely as the LORD lives, I will run after him and get something from him."

So Gehazi hurried after Naaman. When Naaman saw him running, he got down from his chariot to meet him and asked, “Is everything all right?” Gehazi answered, “Everything is all right.” Although there was no physical war, there was a spiritual battle in Gehazi’s heart—the sin of greed. For godliness with contentment is great gain. We brought nothing into the world, and we can take nothing out of it. Since creation, God has provided for our needs—He created our food, light, and everything before creating us. This means He has plans for our provision, and we should not be greedy to the point of sinning.

Gehazi lied, saying that Elisha had sent him and that two young prophets had just come from the hills of Ephraim. He requested a talent of silver and two sets of clothing. Naaman was happy to give him the gifts since he had initially wanted to offer them all. He insisted that Gehazi take two talents of silver. Naaman even sent two of his servants to carry the gifts for Gehazi because they were heavy. When they reached a hill, Gehazi took the items from the servants and stored them in his house secretly so that Elisha would not see them. Then he sent the servants away.

When Gehazi returned to Elisha, pretending that nothing had happened, Elisha asked him, “Where have you been, Gehazi?” Gehazi replied, “Your servant didn’t go anywhere.” But Elisha said, “Was not my spirit with you when the man got down from his chariot to meet you?” In other words, God had revealed the whole event to Elisha. Elisha then asked, “Is this the time to accept money and clothes—or olive groves, vineyards, sheep, cattle, male and female servants?” There is a time to accept things and a time to refuse.

Elisha then pronounced judgment on Gehazi: “Naaman’s leprosy will cling to you and your descendants forever.” Gehazi left Elisha’s presence leprous, as white as snow.

This story teaches us not to lie, not to accept bribes, and not to be greedy. Because of two sets of clothing and some silver, Gehazi lost the opportunity to inherit Elisha’s prophetic ministry, just as Elisha had inherited Elijah’s. His sin also became a poor witness to the Arameans who needed to know the God of Abraham, who does not sell His healing. Gehazi’s actions made his master appear unreliable and showed that he was willing to lie—a serious sin.

Tell Jesus your needs with a sincere heart. You do not need to engage in long debates, arguments, or preach sermons to God. Instead, with a heart broken over your sins, simply say, “Save me, Lord, or I will perish.” There is hope for such a soul. Those who seek, ask, and knock will receive. When Jesus lifts the burden of sin from your heart, you will experience the blessing of His peace.

Questions:

1. Why did Naaman take soil from Israel?

2. Why did Naaman ask for forgiveness when he went to the temple of Rimmon?

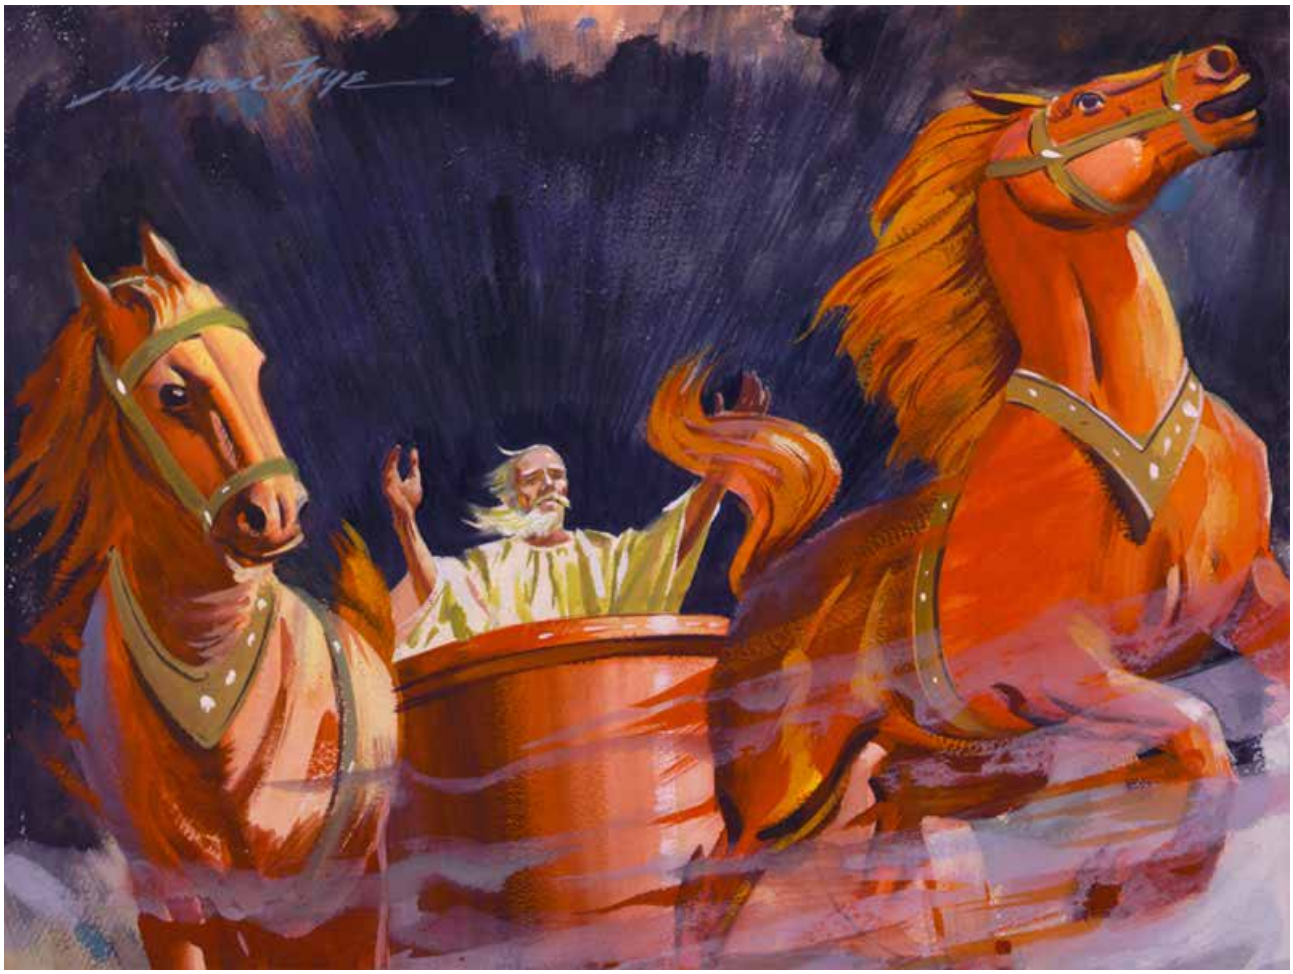
3. Why did Gehazi get leprosy?

4. What lesson do you learn from this story?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Memory Verse: Matthew 6:24-25.

[24-25] No one can serve two masters. Either you will hate the one and love the other, or you will be devoted to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve both God and money. Therefore I tell you, do not worry about your life, what you will eat or drink; or about your body, what you will wear. Is not life more than food, and the body more than clothes?



Prayer: Lord, help us not to be greedy for wealth more than Your service like Gehazi. Forgive us our sins. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Act out—Elisha refusing gifts. Naaman carrying soil and promising to leave idols. Gehazi following Naaman to obtain the gifts Elisha had refused.

DAY 133 (May 12)

TOPIC: Chariots of Fire

(2 Kings 6)

The king of Aram wanted to make war against Israel. He told his officers, "I will set up my camp at such and such a place." The man of God, Elisha, sent word to the king of Israel, saying, "Beware of passing that place because the Arameans are going down there." So, the king of Israel sent men to the place the man of God had told him about. This happened several times, and the king of Israel was kept safe.

The king of Aram was very upset about this and summoned his officers, asking them, "Tell me! Which of us is on the side of the king of Israel?" One of his servants replied, "None of us, my lord the king. Elisha, the prophet in Israel, tells the king of Israel even the words you speak in your bedroom."

The king ordered them to find out where Elisha was so he could capture him. He was told that Elisha was in Dothan. So, the king sent horses, chariots, and a strong force there. They arrived at night and surrounded the city.

The next morning, Elisha's servant got up and went outside. He saw an army with horses and chariots surrounding the city. Terrified, he asked, "Oh no, my lord! What shall we do?"

Elisha said, "Don't be afraid. Those who are with us are more than those who are with them." And Elisha prayed, "Open his eyes, LORD, so that he may see." The LORD opened the servant's eyes, and he saw the hills full of horses and chariots of fire all around Elisha.

As the enemy advanced toward him, Elisha prayed to the LORD, "Strike this army with blindness." So, He struck them with blindness as Elisha had asked. Elisha then led them to Samaria, saying, "This is not the way, and this is not the city. Follow me."

When they entered Samaria, Elisha prayed, "LORD, open their eyes so they may see." The LORD opened their eyes, and they found themselves inside Samaria. The king of Israel asked Elisha, "Shall I kill them?" Elisha replied, "No! Would you kill those you have captured? Give them food and water, and send them back to their master." The king prepared a great feast for them, and they returned home. As a result, the Arameans stopped raiding Israel's territory.

This story teaches us not to take revenge on our enemies. Even today, God's angelic army surrounds us. Those who present their requests to God through Christ will never be forsaken.

Questions:

1. How did Elisha help the king of Israel?

2. How did Elisha know the plans of the Arameans?

3. What did the king of Aram want to do to Elisha?

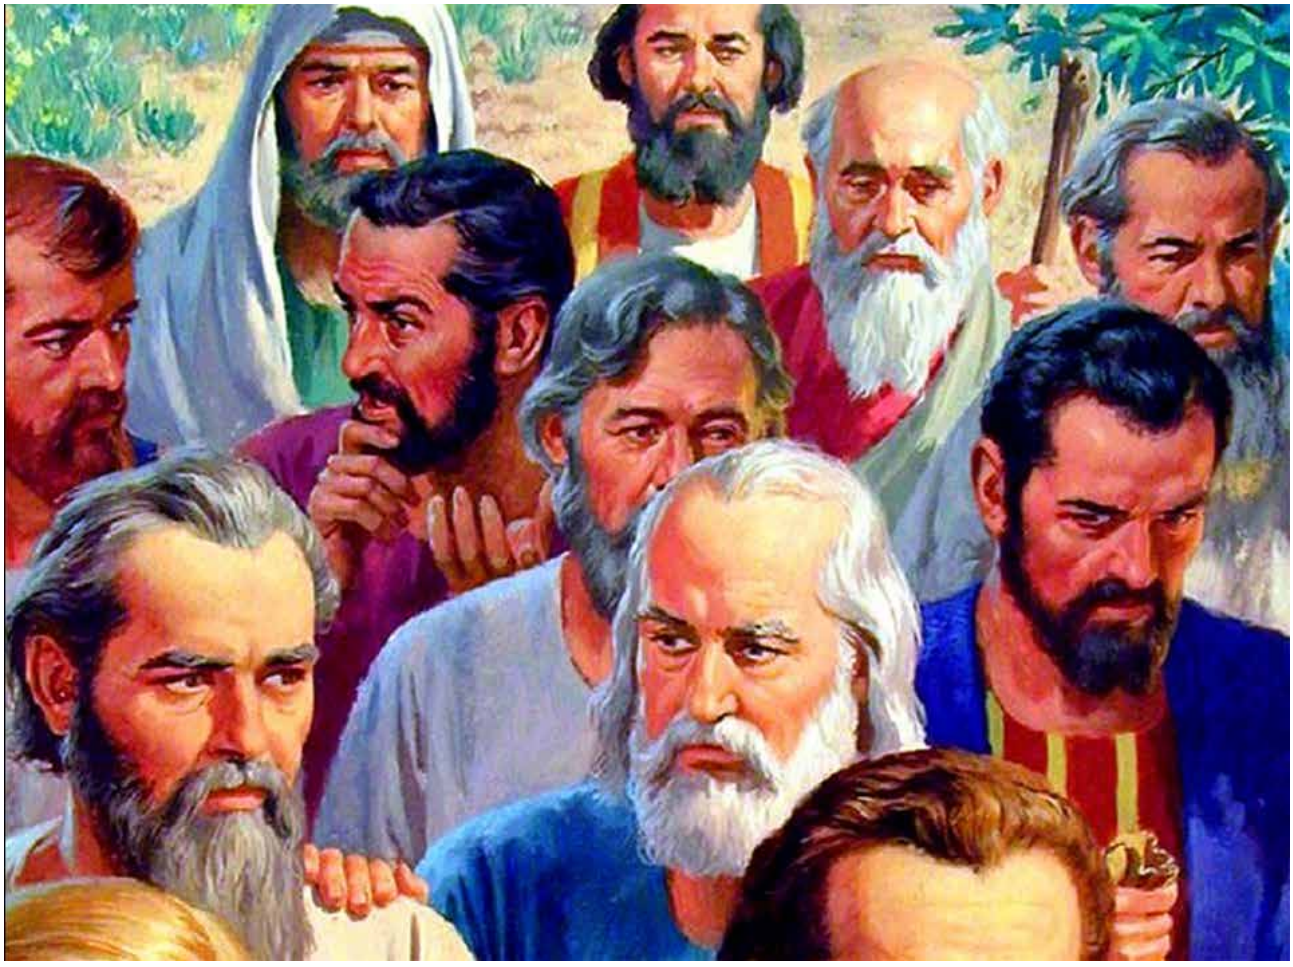
4. How did God protect Elisha?

5. How did Elisha defeat the Arameans?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Memory Verse: 2 Kings 6:16-17.

[16-17] "Don't be afraid," the prophet answered. "Those who are with us are more than those who are with them." And Elisha prayed, "Open his eyes, Lord, so that he may see." Then the Lord opened the servant's eyes, and he looked and saw the hills full of horses and chariots of fire all around Elisha.



Prayer: Lord, thank You that the angels with us are more than the angels of the enemy. Please open our eyes to see this army. Provide for our daily bread today. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Explain how information was leaking from one army or country to another. Or Naaman's leprosy.

DAY 134 (May 13)

The LORD Fights for Israel

(2 Kings 6-7)

It came to pass that Ben-Hadad, the king of Aram, gathered his entire army and went up to besiege Samaria, the capital city of Israel. There was a great famine in Samaria, so severe that a donkey's head was sold for eighty pieces of silver, and a quarter of a kab of dove's dung was sold for five pieces of silver. The situation was so desperate that even dove's dung was being sold! This famine was worse than the one during the time of Ahab.

As the king was passing by on the city wall, a woman cried out to him, seeking judgment or justice. The king asked how he could help her, and she replied, "This woman said to me, 'Give your son so we may eat him today, and tomorrow we will eat my son.'" It was no ordinary famine. The woman explained that they had eaten her son, but the other woman had hidden her child and refused to fulfill her part of the agreement.

When the king heard this, he realized how desperate things had become, and he tore his clothes while standing on the wall. In those days, city walls were broad enough for people and chariots to walk on. The people saw that the king was wearing sackcloth underneath his royal robes.

The king blamed Elisha for the situation, even though it was a punishment from God due to the king's and the people's wickedness in worshipping other gods. In his anger, the king said, "May God deal with me, be it ever so severely, if the head of Elisha son of Shaphat remains on his shoulders today."

Elisha was sitting in his house with the elders when the king sent a messenger to him. Before the messenger arrived, Elisha, having been shown by the LORD, warned the elders, "Do you see how this murderer's son is sending someone to cut off my head? When he arrives, shut the door and hold it closed against him." The messenger said, "This disaster is from the LORD. Why should I wait for the LORD any longer?"

Elisha replied, "Hear the word of the LORD. This is what the LORD says: By this time tomorrow, a seah of the finest flour will sell for a shekel, and two seahs of barley for a shekel, at the gate of Samaria."

The officer on whose arm the king leaned scoffed and said, "Look, even if the LORD should open the floodgates of heaven, could this happen?" Elisha answered, "You will see it with your own eyes, but you will not eat any of it." Because of his lack of faith and disbelief in God's word, it became a curse upon him.

Now there were four lepers sitting at the entrance of the city gate. They said to each other, "Why stay here until we die? If we say, 'We'll go into the city,' the famine is there, and we will die. If we stay here, we will die. So let's go to the camp of the Arameans and surrender. If they spare us, we live; if they kill us, then we die."

At twilight, they set out for the Aramean camp. When they reached the edge of the camp, there was no one there! For the LORD had caused the Arameans to hear the sound of chariots and horses—a great army approaching them. The Arameans said to one another, "Look! The king of Israel has hired the Hittite and Egyptian kings to attack us!" In panic, they fled during the night, abandoning their tents, horses, donkeys, and the entire camp as it was, and ran for their lives.

When the lepers arrived at the camp, they entered a tent, ate and drank, and took silver, gold, and clothes. They went off and hid them. They returned, entered another tent, and did the same thing. But then they said to each other, “What we’re doing is not right. This is a day of good news, and we are keeping it to ourselves! If we wait until daylight, punishment will overtake us. Let’s go at once and report this to the royal palace.”

So they went and called out to the city gatekeepers, saying, “We went to the Aramean camp, and no one was there—not a sound of anyone—only tethered horses and donkeys, and the tents left just as they were.” The gatekeepers shouted the news, and it was reported inside the palace.

The king got up in the night and said to his officers, “I will tell you what the Arameans have done to us. They know we are starving, so they have left the camp to hide in the countryside, thinking, ‘When they come out, we will capture them alive and get into the city.’”

One of his officers suggested, “Let some men take five of the remaining horses, and let us send them to find out what has happened.” So they selected two chariots with their horses, and the king sent them after the Aramean army. The soldiers followed the trail as far as the Jordan River, and they found the whole road strewn with clothing and equipment the Arameans had thrown away in their panic. The messengers returned and reported to the king.

Then the people went out and plundered the Aramean camp. So a seah of the finest flour sold for a shekel, and two seahs of barley sold for a shekel, as the LORD had said.

The king appointed the officer who had mocked Elisha to be in charge of the city gate, but the people trampled him in the gateway, and he died—just as the man of God had foretold when the king came down to his house. The prophecy was fulfilled exactly: “By this time tomorrow, a seah of the finest flour will sell for a shekel, and two seahs of barley for a shekel at the gate of Samaria,” but the officer, though he saw it with his own eyes, did not get to eat any of it.

Let us learn to obey the voice of God through His servants.

Nothing can be more helpless and defeated than a soul that feels its own emptiness and relies entirely on the merits of the crucified and risen Savior. God will send every angel in heaven to aid the one who puts their full trust in Christ rather than allowing them to be overcome.

Questions:

1. What did the Arameans do to Israel?

2. What did Elisha promise the king?

3. What happened to the officer who did not believe the prophet?

4. Why is it important to believe the prophets of God?

May God greatly bless you, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: 2 Kings 7:1-2.

[1-2] Elisha replied, "Hear the word of the Lord. This is what the Lord says: About this time tomorrow, a seah of the finest flour will sell for a shekel and two seahs of barley for a shekel at the gate of Samaria." The officer on whose arm the king was leaning said to the man of God, "Look, even if the Lord should open the floodgates of the heavens, could this happen?" "You will see it with your own eyes," answered Elisha, "but you will not eat any of it!"

Prayer: Lord, thank You, increase our faith to hear the words of Your prophets. Help us in these last days we are living in with wars and troubles, especially here in Congo (DRC), and even in Russia and other nations. Bring peace, and remove hatred and oppression of every kind. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Act out the story of the two women who discussed eating their children before the king.

DAY 135 (May 14)

TOPIC: Hazael Becomes King of Aram

(2 Kings 8)

After some time, the Shunammite woman, who was now a widow, left her country and went to live in a foreign land because of the famine that was coming. This famine lasted for seven years. The woman left as the man of God had instructed her and stayed in the land of the Philistines for seven years. When the seven years were over, she returned to Israel and went to the king to plead for her house and field, which had been taken.

The king was talking with Gehazi, who had been the servant of Elisha, the man of God. The king said to him, “Please tell me all the great things Elisha has done.” As Gehazi was telling the king how Elisha had restored the dead to life, the Shunammite woman came in to appeal to the king for her house and land. Gehazi said, “My lord the king, this is the woman, and this is her son whom Elisha restored to life.”

When the king asked the woman, she told him everything Elisha had done for her. This was a blessing because the king now had enough evidence, and he was eager to know about the works of Elisha, the man of God. The king assigned an official to her case and said, “Restore everything that belonged to her, including all the income from her land from the day she left the country until now.”

Later, Elisha went to Damascus, where Ben-Hadad, king of Aram, was sick. The king was told, “The man of God has come here.” The king said to his servant Hazael, “Take a gift in your hand and go meet the man of God. Ask him, ‘Will I recover from this illness?’”

Hazael went to meet Elisha, carrying forty camel-loads of the finest goods from Damascus. He stood before Elisha and said, “Your son, Ben-Hadad, king of Aram, has sent me to ask, ‘Will I recover from this illness?’” Elisha answered, “Go and tell him, ‘You will certainly recover.’ However, the LORD has shown me that he will surely die.” Then Elisha stared at Hazael until he was embarrassed, and the man of God began to weep.

Hazael was surprised and asked, “Why is my lord weeping?” Elisha answered, “Because I know the harm you will do to the Israelites. You will set fire to their fortresses, kill their young men with the sword, dash their little children to the ground, and rip open their pregnant women.”

Hazael was astonished and said, “How could your servant, a mere dog, do such a great thing?” Elisha replied, “The LORD has shown me that you will become king of Aram.”

Then Hazael left Elisha and returned to his master. When Ben-Hadad asked, “What did Elisha say to you?” Hazael replied, “He told me you would certainly recover.” But the next day, Hazael took a thick cloth, soaked it in water, spread it over the king’s face, and smothered him to death. And Hazael became king in his place.

In the fifth year of Joram, son of Ahab, king of Israel—while Jehoshaphat was king of Judah—Jehoram, son of Jehoshaphat, became king of Judah. He was thirty-two years old and followed the ways of the kings of Israel, even though his father feared God. This was because he had married the daughter of Ahab and Jezebel. It is a serious mistake for a believer to bind themselves in marriage with an unbeliever.

Jehoram did evil in the eyes of the LORD, but the LORD did not want to destroy the house of Judah because of His covenant with David.

During Jehoram's reign, Edom rebelled against Judah and established their own king. Jehoram went to Zair with all his chariots. He rose up at night and struck down the Edomites who had surrounded him and the commanders of the chariots, and his army fled to their homes. Jehoram died, and his son took over the throne.

In the twelfth year of Joram, king of Israel, Ahaziah, son of Jehoram, became king of Judah at the age of twenty-two. His mother's name was Athaliah, the daughter of Ahab and Jezebel. Ahaziah followed in the ways of his grandfather Ahab and his grandmother Jezebel.

We are told that he did not follow the ways of his paternal grandfather, Jehoshaphat, but instead followed the ways of his maternal grandfather. Evil has a strong influence—it is easier to go downhill than uphill. It is only by the grace of God that we are not destroyed, and He helps us rise again.

Ahaziah joined Joram to fight against the army of Aram and their king, Hazael, at Ramoth-Gilead. During the battle, Joram was wounded. Ahaziah went to visit Joram while he was recovering.

By this time, Elisha was old, and he sent one of the company of prophets to anoint Jehu as king of Israel in Ramoth-Gilead. The young prophet took Jehu aside, anointed him with oil, and then quickly fled.

Those Who Seek Forgiveness Must Themselves Be Forgiving
When we come to seek mercy and blessings from God, we must have a spirit of love and forgiveness in our hearts. How can we pray, "Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors," while we still hold an unforgiving spirit? (Matthew 6:12)

If we expect our prayers to be heard, we must forgive others in the same way and to the same extent that we want to be forgiven.

Questions:

1. What did Elisha tell the Shunammite woman to do?

2. What did Gehazi tell the king?

3. Who anointed Jehu as king?

4. What was the name of Ahaziah's mother?

5. Why is it difficult to follow the example of good parents and easy to follow the example of bad ones?

6. What lesson do we learn from this story?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: Jeremiah 17:9-10

[9-10] The heart is deceitful above all things and beyond cure. Who can understand it? "I the Lord search the heart and examine the mind, to reward each person according to their conduct, according to what their deeds deserve."

Prayer: Lord, our hearts are deceitful and fatally sick, just as Hazael did not know himself. Deliver us from the evil one. Help us to love You and to please You. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Act out the story of Gehazi and the Shunammite woman when she returned to her land.

DAY 136 (May 15)

TOPIC: The Reign of Jehu

(2 Kings 9-10)

Jehu received instructions from the LORD through the prophet Elisha, who sent one of the sons of the prophets to deliver God's message on what Jehu was to do to the household of Ahab, his master. This was for the LORD to avenge the blood of His servants the prophets and the blood of all the LORD's servants at the hands of Jezebel. The LORD declared that the entire house of Ahab would be destroyed, and all his male descendants would be cut off. The house of Ahab would become like the house of Jeroboam and Baasha, who worshiped other gods and faced judgment.

The messenger took Jehu into a room, anointed him as king of Israel, and delivered the message. When Jehu returned, his companions asked him, "What did that madman want from you?" Jehu tried to avoid the question, but they pressed him to reveal the message. He then told them, "He anointed me king over Israel and commanded me to destroy the house of Ahab." Immediately, his companions quickly declared, "Jehu is king!" Thus, Jehu became king and followed the LORD's instructions.

At that time, Joram (or Jehoram) was guarding Ramoth-Gilead against Hazael, the king of Aram (Syria), but he had returned to Jezreel to recover from the wounds he had received in battle against the Arameans. Jehu rode furiously in his chariot as was his reputation.

A watchman stationed on the tower in Jezreel spotted Jehu's company approaching and reported, "I see a company coming." Joram ordered a rider to be sent to meet them and ask, "Is it peace?" When the rider met Jehu and asked, "Is it peace?" Jehu replied defiantly, "What do you have to do with peace? Fall in behind me!" The watchman reported that the messenger had reached them but had not returned.

A second rider was sent, and Jehu gave the same response. The watchman reported again, "He reached them but has not returned. The driving is like that of Jehu, son of Nimshi, for he drives furiously." Joram ordered his chariot, and he and Ahaziah, the king of Judah (his brother-in-law), rode out to meet Jehu at the plot of land that had belonged to Naboth.

When Joram saw Jehu, he asked, "Is it peace, Jehu?" Jehu replied, "How can there be peace as long as your mother Jezebel's harlotries and witchcraft are so many?" Joram turned his chariot around and fled, crying to Ahaziah, "Treachery, Ahaziah!" Jehu drew his bow with full strength and shot Joram between his shoulders. The arrow pierced his heart, and he collapsed in his chariot, dead.

Jehu then ordered his officer to throw Joram's body on Naboth's field, fulfilling the word of the LORD that declared, "I will repay you in this plot of ground."

When Ahaziah saw what happened, he fled toward Beth-Haggan. Jehu pursued him and mortally wounded him near Gur, but Ahaziah escaped to Megiddo, where he died.

Jehu then turned his attention to Jezebel in Jezreel. When Jezebel heard about it, she painted her eyes, adorned her head, and looked out from a window—perhaps hoping to charm or intimidate Jehu. As Jehu entered the city gate, Jezebel mockingly asked, "Is it peace, Zimri, murderer of your master?" Jehu called out to the eunuchs serving Jezebel, asking, "Who is on my side?" When some of them looked out at him, he commanded, "Throw her down!" They threw her out of the window, and her blood splattered on the wall and the horses, and Jehu trampled her underfoot.

When they went to bury her, they found only her skull, feet, and hands, as dogs had devoured the rest of her body—fulfilling the prophecy that Jezebel's corpse would be like dung on the fields.

Jehu then sought to consolidate his reign. He challenged the people who supported him to prove their loyalty by killing the seventy sons of Ahab. They complied, sending their heads to Jehu in baskets. This fulfilled the LORD's word against the house of Ahab.

Jehu also deceived and destroyed the worshipers of Baal. He pretended to be a devout follower of Baal and called for a great assembly of Baal's prophets and servants. When they all gathered in the temple of Baal, Jehu ordered his guards to kill everyone and destroy the temple, turning it into a latrine.

Because of Jehu's obedience in executing God's judgment on Ahab's house, the LORD promised that his descendants would reign over Israel for four generations. However, Jehu did not walk in the law of the LORD with all his heart. He continued to lead Israel into sin by allowing the worship of the golden calves at Bethel and Dan, the same sin introduced by Jeroboam.

It might seem strange that ancient kings and people worshiped idols, but even today, people have modern "idols"—such as sports, food, television, computers, opinions, beauty, friends, fashion, false teachings, and more. I studied biology and evolutionary theory, yet remarkably, ancient history aligns with the biblical timeline! By God's grace, let us not be among those who worship idols or serve other gods. May the LORD be the sole ruler of our lives.

After teaching the Lord's Prayer, Jesus added these words:
"For if you forgive others their offenses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you. But if you do not forgive others, neither will your Father forgive your offenses." (Matthew 6:14-15)

Anyone who refuses to forgive blocks the very channel through which they can receive God's mercy. We should not think that if those who hurt us do not apologize, we are justified in withholding forgiveness. It is their duty to humble themselves in repentance and confession, but we must always be compassionate toward those who wrong us, whether they confess their faults or not.

Questions:

1. What good things did Jehu do?

2. What were Jehu's mistakes?

3. If you knew you had only a few hours to live, would you put on makeup first or confess your sins so that you could live with Jesus forever?

4. How did Jehu destroy Jezebel?

5. Who commanded Jehu to destroy Ahab's family?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: 2 Kings 9:8-10.

[8-10] The whole house of Ahab will perish. I will cut off from Ahab every last male in Israel—slave or free. I will make the house of Ahab like the house of Jeroboam son of Nebat and like the house of Baasha son of Ahijah. As for Jezebel, dogs will devour her on the plot of ground at Jezreel, and no one will bury her. Then he opened the door and ran.

Prayer: Lord, we pray for our parents, relatives, and ourselves that we may not be like Ahab or Jezebel. Forgive our sins, help us not to have evil desires. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Act out—Jehu driving the horses furiously. Jehu leading Israel into sin by worshiping the golden calves at Bethel and Dan. Explain how leadership affects people not worshiping God as they should, and give examples such as Aaron.

DAY 137 (May 16)

TOPIC: Joash – The Boy King

(2 Kings 11-13; 2 Chronicles 24)

When Athaliah, the mother of Ahaziah, saw that her son had been killed by Jehu, she arose and killed all the royal heirs and reigned for six years. What a terrible act! Killing her own grandchildren—the children of Ahaziah! Athaliah was the daughter of Ahab and Jezebel, living up to the proverb: "A snake's child is a snake." However, Jehosheba, the daughter of King Jehoram and sister of the slain King Ahaziah, took Joash, the son of Ahaziah, from among the royal children who were being killed. She and his nurse hid him from Athaliah so that he was not killed.

In the seventh year, Jehoiada, the high priest—who was Jehosheba's husband—summoned the captains of hundreds and the guards to crown Joash king when he was only seven years old. He appointed security guards with shields and spears that had belonged to King David. Joash, the young prince, was brought out, crowned, given the royal testimony, and anointed as king. The people clapped their hands and shouted, "Long live the king!"

When Athaliah, who was ruling, heard the sound of the guards and the people, she entered the temple of the LORD and saw King Joash standing by the pillar, with the captains blowing trumpets and the people rejoicing. She tore her clothes and cried out, "Treason! Treason!" Jehoiada the priest ordered the captains and commanders to take her out of the temple and kill her by the sword—but not inside the temple of the LORD.

King Joash made a covenant between himself, the people, and the LORD, that they would be the LORD's people. The people went to the temple of Baal, tore it down, broke its altars and images into pieces. Jehoiada appointed officers over the temple of the LORD. All the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was quiet.

Zechariah, a prophet, was the son of this priest Jehoiada, and he grew up with Joash like brothers. Since Joash was still young, the priest guided him in ruling the kingdom. Joash reigned for 40 years, doing what was right in the sight of the LORD throughout the days of Jehoiada's instruction. Indeed, we cannot repay godly parents for the sacrifices they made to raise us from birth. The best we can do is to care for and assist them in their needs.

Another way to repay their efforts is by raising our own children in the right path or helping others raise theirs.

Joash instructed the priests to collect all the dedicated money brought to the temple of the LORD for repairing the house of God—where he had been hidden for seven years. It had been 200 years since Solomon's temple was built, and it had been damaged by nations like Egypt, the Philistines, and even by Queen Athaliah, who had taken many valuable items. By the 23rd year of Joash's reign, the priests had still not repaired the damages, so Joash questioned them, asking why they had not fixed the breaches. He ordered them to stop collecting money until the repairs were completed.

Jehoiada the priest took a large chest, drilled a hole in its lid, and placed it near the altar so people could bring their voluntary offerings as the king had suggested. The priests and the king's scribe counted the money. Surely, the king himself must have given something to set a good example. Even today, when we go to church, it is good to bring an offering. It is shameful if we go before the Almighty God empty-handed while carrying full wallets to sports events or stores. A neighbor once joked that when a dollar bill was asked where it had been, it replied, "Church, church, church."

God is merciful because we receive His daily blessings, and we continue to ask Him for more. Yet, when it comes to giving, we often offer very little to help others in need. Soon, the chest was filled with gold, bronze, and other precious materials. They emptied it and replaced it regularly. The funds were used to hire carpenters, masons, stonecutters, and builders to repair the temple. The remaining funds were used to purchase vessels for temple use.

Do you or your parents have gifts meant for offering but have kept them unused for years? Even I have discovered many items I could give that have been sitting unused for years—I pray God will help me find and give them this year.

The offerings for guilt and sin were not used for temple repairs; these were for the priests themselves. Jehoiada lived to be 130 years old. After his death, the leaders of Judah came and bowed before King Joash, leading him into wickedness. They abandoned the true worship of God and served Asherah poles and idols. Despite God sending prophets to warn them, they refused to listen. God asked, "Why do you disobey the commandments of the LORD so that you cannot prosper?"

Later, Hazael, king of Syria, attacked Gath and turned toward Jerusalem, seizing the treasures that had been dedicated by Jehoshaphat, Jehoram, and Ahaziah—Joash's predecessors. As Joash grew older, he turned away from God, even to the point of ordering the stoning of Zechariah, the prophet and son of Jehoiada, in the courtyard of the temple. Joash forgot the kindness Jehoiada and his wife had shown him in his youth and repaid it by killing their son. As Zechariah died, he said, "May the LORD see this and call you to account."

The Syrian army came and severely wounded Joash. His servants conspired against him for shedding Zechariah's blood and killed him on his bed. Let us pray that we do not start well only to finish badly because of evil influences.

Joash's son, Amaziah, succeeded him. However, he was wicked, and when Israel invaded, they broke down a section of Jerusalem's wall, took all the gold and silver from the temple and the king's palace, and held people hostage.

In the 23rd year of King Joash of Judah, Jehoahaz, the son of Jehu, became king over Israel in Samaria and reigned for 17 years. He did evil in the sight of the LORD. Because of this, the LORD allowed them to fall into the hands of Hazael and Ben-Hadad of Syria. However, when Jehoahaz pleaded with the LORD, God sent a deliverer who freed them from the Syrians. Yet, they continued to follow the sins of Jeroboam and worship the Asherah in Samaria.

When Jehoahaz died, his son Jehoash reigned for 16 years, continuing in evil. Elisha, the prophet, grew old and fell ill. Even though many loved him, others despised him—just as it is with God's servants today.

As Elisha lay dying, King Jehoash of Israel visited and wept, calling out, "My father, my father! The chariots of Israel and their horsemen!" Elisha instructed him to shoot an arrow eastward, symbolizing the LORD's arrow of victory over Syria. When Elisha told him to strike the ground, the king struck it three times and stopped. Elisha was angry and said, "You should have struck it five or six times; then you would have completely defeated Syria. Now you will only strike them three times."

After Elisha's death, a dead man was revived when his body touched Elisha's bones. Even in death, Elisha fulfilled God's work.

In the Lord's Prayer, Jesus taught us to ask God to forgive us as we forgive others. We cannot sincerely pray this prayer if we refuse to forgive others. Those who understand this truth will not take these words lightly.

Questions:

1. What evil did Athaliah commit?

2. How was Joash hidden?

3. What kind of king was the son of Jehu?

4. What did the dead man touch to come back to life?

5. What was the kingdom like during Joash's reign?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: 2 Chronicles 24:20-22.

[20-22] Then the Spirit of God came on Zechariah son of Jehoiada the priest. He stood before the people and said, "This is what God says: 'Why do you disobey the Lord's commands? You will not prosper. Because you have forsaken the Lord, He has forsaken you.'" But they plotted against him, and by order of the king they stoned him to death in the courtyard of the Lord's temple. King Joash did not remember the kindness Zechariah's father Jehoiada had shown him but killed his son, who said as he lay dying, "May the Lord see this and call you to account."

Prayer: Thank You Lord, remove cruelty from us when people try to warn us that we are leaving the right path. Forgive us Father. Help us to be generous in our offerings like in the time of King Joash. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Act out the story of Joash, a seven-year-old child crowned king. His grandmother Athaliah killing the royal children, etc.

DAY 138 (May 17)

TOPIC: The Choir That Won the Battle

2 Chronicles 19-20)

It is not often that we hear of a choir leading a nation's army, but this happened during the reign of Jehoshaphat, king of Judah. One day, a messenger came and reported that the Moabites, Ammonites, and Meunites were on their way with thousands of soldiers to invade the city and were already at En-gedi. Knowing that his army was weak, King Jehoshaphat became afraid and turned his face to seek the LORD, asking for help. Although he had made mistakes in the past by forming an alliance with Ahab, he repented. He proclaimed a fast throughout Judah and called all the people to gather at the house of the LORD to pray. People from all parts came—men, women, and children.

It was a unique event because it demonstrated humility, showing that our help comes from the LORD and not from the size of the army, battle strategies, or advanced weapons. Jehoshaphat assembled the people at the house of the LORD, in front of the new courtyard, and began to praise and glorify God. This is an important aspect of our prayers—we should give God praise and glory by acknowledging His nature and mighty works.

Jehoshaphat said, “O LORD, God of our fathers, are you not the God who rules over all the kingdoms of the nations? Power and might are in your hand, and no one can withstand you. O our God, did you not drive out the inhabitants of this land before your people Israel and give it forever to the descendants of Abraham, your friend?”

He continued by reminding God that the Israelites had built a sanctuary for His name, declaring that if disaster came upon them—whether by sword, judgment, plague, or famine—they would stand in His presence and cry out to Him, and He would hear and save them. Jehoshaphat explained that the people of Moab, Ammon, and Mount Seir—whom God had forbidden Israel to attack when they came out of Egypt—were now rewarding them by coming to drive them out of the land God had given them. He asked the LORD to judge their enemies, saying, “We have no power to face this vast army that is attacking us. We do not know what to do, but our eyes are upon you.”

Then, the Spirit of the LORD came upon Jahaziel, son of Zechariah, a Levite, who prophesied: “Do not be afraid or discouraged because of this vast army, for the battle is not yours but God’s. Tomorrow, march down against them; you will find them at the end of the valley. You will not need to fight this battle. Take your positions, stand firm, and see the deliverance the LORD will give you.”

Upon hearing this, King Jehoshaphat bowed with his face to the ground, and all the people of Jerusalem worshiped the LORD. The Levites from the Kohathites and Korahites stood up and praised the LORD with a loud voice.

Early the next morning, they set out for the Desert of Tekoa. As they marched, Jehoshaphat encouraged the people, saying, “Listen to me, people of Judah and Jerusalem! Have faith in the LORD your God, and you will be upheld; have faith in His prophets, and you will be successful.” The people agreed, knowing that victory was certain. The king then consulted with the people and appointed singers to go ahead of the army, praising the LORD for His holiness. They sang, “Give thanks to the LORD, for His love endures forever.”

As they began to sing and praise, the LORD set ambushes against the Ammonites, Moabites, and the people of Mount Seir, and they were defeated. The Ammonites and Moabites rose up against the people of Mount Seir and destroyed them completely. Afterward, they turned on each other and killed one another.

When the men of Judah came to the watchtower overlooking the wilderness, they saw only dead bodies lying on the ground—no one had escaped. Jehoshaphat and his people gathered a great amount of plunder, including clothing, valuables, and precious jewels. The loot was so abundant that it took them three days to collect it all. On the fourth day, they assembled in the Valley of Berakah (which means "blessing"), where they praised and thanked the LORD.

They returned joyfully to Jerusalem, led by King Jehoshaphat, because the LORD had given them victory over their enemies. With harps, lyres, and trumpets, they entered the temple of the LORD. The surrounding kingdoms were filled with fear when they heard how the LORD had fought against the enemies of Israel. As a result, the kingdom of Jehoshaphat was at peace, for God had given him rest on every side.

There is nothing as pleasing as praising the LORD with songs—both new and old. Scripture encourages us to "speak to one another with psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs, singing and making music in your hearts to the LORD, always giving thanks to God the Father for everything, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ."

As humans, we sometimes falter. Jehoshaphat's son married Athaliah, the daughter of Ahab and Jezebel. To please his in-laws, Jehoshaphat later made a bad decision by partnering with King Ahaziah to build ships to sail to Tarshish. Because of this alliance, the LORD sent the prophet Eliezer, who declared, "Because you have allied yourself with Ahaziah, the LORD will destroy your works." The ships were wrecked and never set sail.

Even today, we must be careful when choosing friends or life partners. We should not be yoked together with unbelievers, as they can lead us away from God's will. We cannot serve two masters—God and Satan—we must choose one.

Music, when used correctly in worship, is a powerful force for good. It also helps teach Scripture. We rarely forget the songs we learned as children. Singing should not be done for emotional excitement but with beauty, order, and power. Let our voices rise in songs of praise and worship, as they are an acceptable offering to God. Singing is an essential part of worship, just like prayer. When we are in church and a hymn is sung, we should participate and sing along. Unfortunately, many young people remain silent during worship songs.

We must examine our hearts before approaching God in prayer. If we do not forgive others, our prayers for forgiveness will not be heard. Jesus taught us to pray, “Forgive us our debts, as we also forgive our debtors.” As sinners approaching the throne of grace, we cannot ask for forgiveness unless we have forgiven those who have wronged us. Jesus explained, “If you forgive others their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you; but if you do not forgive others, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses.”

Questions:

1. Which nations united to attack Judah?

2. Why did the choir sing?
3. Why is it important to rely on the LORD?

4. What mistake did King Jehoshaphat make?

5. Why is it important to remember to thank God when He helps us?

6. Can you list five benefits of singing or music for the human body?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Memory Verse: 2 Chronicles 20:21-22.

[21-22] After consulting the people, Jehoshaphat appointed men to sing to the Lord and to praise Him for the splendor of His holiness as they went out at the head of the army, saying: “Give thanks to the Lord, for His love endures forever.” As they began to sing and praise, the Lord set ambushes against the men of Ammon and Moab and Mount Seir who were invading Judah, and they were defeated.

Prayer: Thank You beloved Father, we praise You today and thank You for Your everlasting love. Create in us new hearts. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity:

1. Drama: Act out the story of King Jehoshaphat, a good king in the Bible, who faced a powerful enemy army.

2. Unusual Strategy: Explain that Jehoshaphat did not send his soldiers first, but instead he sent singers to praise God ahead of his army.

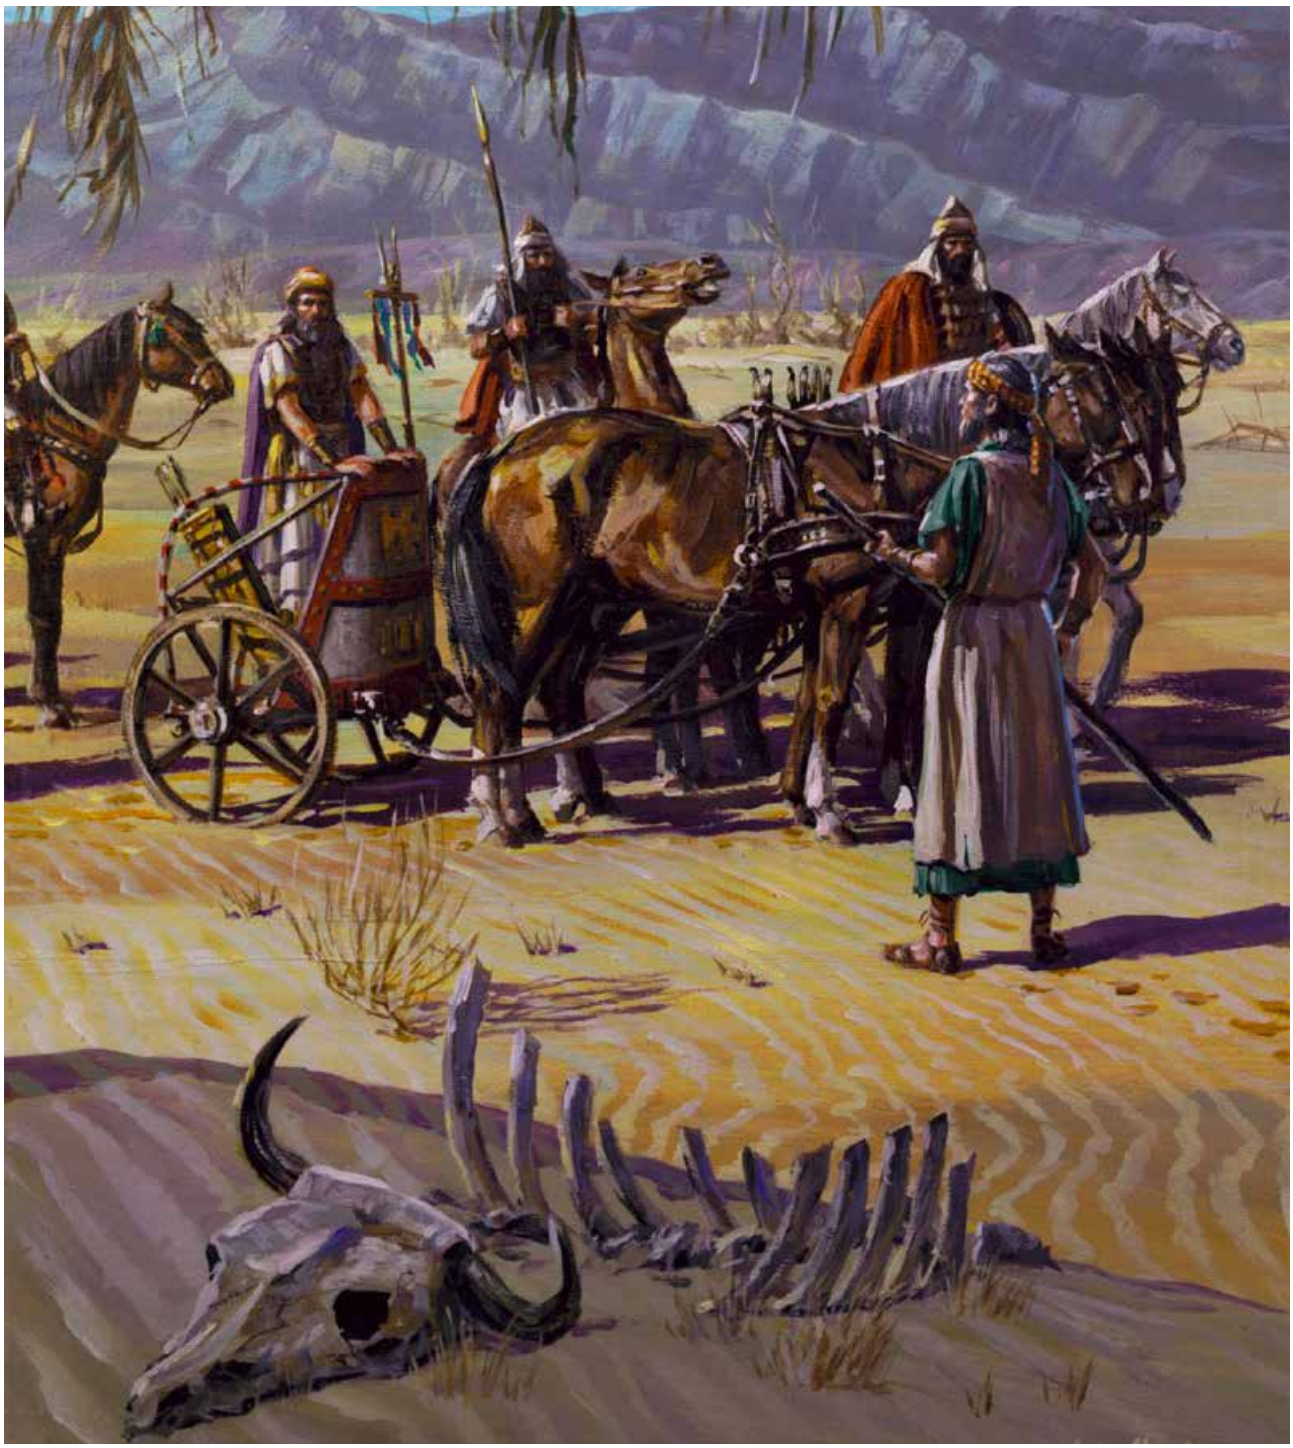
3. Choose a Song: Select a praise song that children know, such as “Give Thanks to the Lord” or “I’m in the Lord’s Army.”

4. Make a “Drama Battle”: Let the children stand and sing the chosen song as they march forward. If possible, let another group of children represent the enemy army. As the singers continue to sing, the enemy group can fall down as though defeated.

DAY 139 (May 18)

TOPIC: The Evil Years of the Kings

(2 Kings 14-15 and 2 Chronicles 25-28)



Hazael, the king of Aram, oppressed the Israelites during the days of Jehoahaz, but the LORD was gracious to them, had compassion on them, and turned to them because of His covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. He was not willing to destroy them or cast them from His presence yet. When Hazael died, his son Ben-Hadad succeeded him as king. Jehoash, the son of Jehoahaz, recaptured from Ben-Hadad the towns that had been taken in battle from his father Jehoahaz. Jehoash defeated him three times and recovered the cities of Israel.

In the second year of Jehoash, son of Jehoahaz, king of Israel, Amaziah, son of Joash, king of Judah, began to reign. He was 25 years old when he became king, and he reigned for 29 years in Jerusalem. He did what was right in the eyes of the LORD but not like David his father. He followed the example of his father Joash but did not remove the high places; the people continued to offer sacrifices and burn incense there.

When his kingdom was firmly established, he executed the officials who had murdered his father, the king. However, he did not put their children to death, in accordance with what the LORD commanded—that parents shall not be put to death for their children, nor children for their parents; each will die for their own sin. Amaziah struck down the Edomites in the Valley of Salt but made the mistake of bringing back their gods, setting them up, bowing down to them, and burning incense.

The LORD sent a prophet to him, asking, “Why do you seek the gods of these people, which could not save them from your hand?” The king replied arrogantly, “Did we appoint you as the king’s counselor? Be quiet! Why should you be struck down?” The prophet stopped speaking but warned that God would destroy him because he refused to listen.

Amaziah sent messengers to Jehoash, son of Jehoahaz, son of Jehu, king of Israel, challenging him to face him in battle. Jehoash sent back a parable saying, “A thistle in Lebanon sent a message to a cedar in Lebanon, saying, ‘Give your daughter to my son in marriage.’ But a wild beast in Lebanon came along and trampled the thistle. You have defeated Edom and your heart has become proud. Stay at home! Why ask for trouble and bring disaster on yourself and Judah?”

But Amaziah would not listen, so Jehoash king of Israel advanced, and they faced each other in battle at Beth Shemesh in Judah. Judah was defeated by Israel, and every man fled to his home. Jehoash captured Amaziah and took him to Jerusalem. He broke down 400 cubits of the wall from the Ephraim Gate to the Corner Gate. He seized all the gold, silver, and articles found in the temple of the LORD and the treasuries of the royal palace, along with hostages, and returned to Samaria.

The rest of Jehoash's deeds are recorded in the annals of the kings of Israel. Jehoash rested with his ancestors and was buried in Samaria, and Jeroboam his son succeeded him as king.

In 2 Chronicles 25:2,9, it is written that Amaziah did what was right in the sight of the LORD, but not wholeheartedly. Being half-hearted is being lukewarm—it is disobedience! When God told him to send back the hired troops, he protested, saying he had already paid them and could not let them go. God assured him that He could give him much more than that, but Amaziah doubted.

This is similar to a person deciding to fast but breaking the fast because of receiving food, or a man marrying a second wife and refusing to let her go even when God commands him to, as He commanded Abraham.

Amaziah, son of Joash, king of Judah, lived for thirteen years after the death of Jehoash, king of Israel. However, conspirators rose against him in Jerusalem, and he fled to Lachish. They pursued him there and killed him. He was brought back and buried in Jerusalem. Then the people of Judah took Uzziah, who was 16 years old, and made him king in place of his father Amaziah.

Uzziah reclaimed Elath for Judah. He sought guidance from the prophet Zechariah and did what was right in the LORD's eyes. However, when he became powerful, his heart grew proud, and he was unfaithful to the LORD. Uzziah reigned for 52 years.

He entered the temple of the LORD to burn incense on the altar, which was the priest's duty. Azariah the priest and 80 other courageous priests followed him and confronted him, warning that he was dishonoring God. Uzziah became angry, and while holding the censer, leprosy broke out on his forehead. The priests quickly escorted him out, and he hurried to leave because the LORD had afflicted him.

Uzziah lived in isolation for the rest of his life due to his leprosy. Pride is dangerous—it isolates and dishonors us. Even today, when God's servants warn us, we should not arrogantly ignore them.

In the 15th year of Amaziah, Jeroboam son of Jehoash began to reign in Samaria, ruling Israel for 41 years. He did evil in the LORD's sight but restored the boundaries of Israel according to the word of the LORD through Jonah, son of Amittai.

When Jeroboam died, his son Zechariah succeeded him. In the 27th year of Jeroboam's reign, Uzziah began to rule Judah. He reigned for 52 years but was struck with leprosy because of his disobedience.

Let us pause and reflect on Uzziah, a 16-year-old who inherited his father's throne. He sought God, and the LORD made him successful. He was intelligent, innovative, and strong. However, after becoming powerful, pride led to his downfall. He overstepped his boundaries, refused to repent, and lost the LORD's favor.

Do you know a young person who needs spiritual counsel to avoid a tragic end like Uzziah's?

Zechariah, son of Jeroboam, ruled Israel for six months. He did evil before the LORD, and Shallum conspired against him and assassinated him publicly, fulfilling the LORD's word to Jehu that his descendants would sit on the throne for four generations. Shallum reigned for one month before Menahem killed him and took over.

Confession Must Be Specific
True confession is specific, acknowledging each sin. It may be private before God, directed toward those who have been wronged, or openly shared with a congregation when necessary. All confessions should be precise and cover every wrongdoing.

Why did Jehu's descendants reign for only four generations?

Why did King Uzziah burn incense?

How long did Zechariah, son of Jeroboam, reign?

What privilege did King Uzziah unlawfully claim?

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verse: 2 Chronicles 26:15,16.

[15,16] He made devices in Jerusalem, invented by skillful men, to be set on the towers and on the corners, to shoot arrows and great stones withal. His fame spread far abroad; for he was marvelously helped, until he was strong. But when he was strong, his heart was lifted up, to his destruction; for he transgressed against the Lord his God, and went into the temple of the Lord to burn incense upon the altar of incense.

Prayer: Dear Father, I pray that when I have strength and wealth, my heart will not be lifted up in pride to do evil. Help me not to rebel against You with arrogance but to honor the workers who serve in Your house. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Introduce King Uzziah, how he came to the throne at age 16, the help he received from God, and his great achievements such as building cities, defensive walls, digging wells, and organizing a strong army. Show how he became a great and powerful king. Then discuss his downfall when pride led him to burn incense in the temple—a duty consecrated only for priests.

Explain the punishment: Tell the children that God struck Uzziah with leprosy as a judgment, showing that his pride caused his downfall.

DAY 140 (May 19)

TOPIC: More Kings

(2 Kings 15 and 2 Chronicles 28)

In the thirty-ninth year of Uzziah, king of Judah, Menahem son of Gadi began to reign over Israel, and he ruled for ten years in Samaria. He did evil in the sight of the LORD. Pul, the king of Assyria, came against the land, and Menahem gave Pul a thousand talents of silver to secure his kingdom. Menahem taxed his people to pay the king of Assyria. After Menahem died, his son Pekahiah succeeded him.

In the fiftieth year of Uzziah, king of Judah, Pekahiah began to reign in Samaria for two years. He did evil in the sight of the LORD. Pekah, one of his officers, conspired against him, assassinated him in Samaria, and took over the kingdom. Pekah began to reign in the fifty-second year of Uzziah, king of Judah. He did evil in the sight of the LORD. During his reign, Tiglath-Pileser, king of Assyria, invaded and captured several cities, including Gilead and Galilee, and deported the people to Assyria.

Hoshea, the last king of Israel, plotted against Pekah, killed him, and took his place as king. In the second year of Pekah, Jotham, son of Uzziah, king of Judah, began to reign at the age of twenty-five. He did what was right in the sight of the LORD, but the high places were not removed. After Jotham died, his son Ahaz became king.

Ahaz, son of Jotham, king of Judah, began to reign at the age of twenty and ruled for sixteen years. He did not do what was right in the sight of the LORD. He even sacrificed his son by fire, following the detestable practices of the nations the LORD had driven out before Israel. He offered incense on the high places and under every green tree.

Rezin, king of Aram, and Pekah, son of Remaliah, king of Israel, came up to Jerusalem to fight against Ahaz and besiege the city, but they could not defeat him. Ahaz sent messengers to Tiglath-Pileser, king of Assyria, saying, “I am your servant and your son; come up and rescue me from the hand of the king of Aram and the king of Israel who are attacking me.” Ahaz took the silver and gold from the house of the LORD and gave it as a gift to the king of Assyria. The king of Assyria listened to him, attacked Damascus, captured it, and killed Rezin.

Ahaz went to Damascus to meet Tiglath-Pileser and saw the altar there. He sent a model of the altar to Uriah the priest, who built a replica in Jerusalem. When the altar was completed, Ahaz offered sacrifices on it.

In the twelfth year of Ahaz, Hoshea, son of Elah, began to reign in Israel and did evil in the sight of the LORD. The Israelites took captives from Judah and killed many others. Some were made servants. The LORD, through the prophet Oded, commanded that these captives be released, as the Israelites themselves were also guilty before God. The armed men obeyed, clothed the naked, gave them shoes, fed them, and treated their wounds. The weak were put on donkeys and taken to Jericho, the city of palm trees, to be returned to their brethren.

The names of the men who performed this act of kindness are worth noting: Azariah, Berechiah, Jehizkiah, and Amasa. These conflicts caused family divisions and deep sorrow, leaving children orphaned, women widowed, and many people displaced.

It is interesting to note that most kings only mention their fathers, but a few also mention their mothers! Remarkably, when a mother or wife is mentioned, there is often a statement about whether the king did what was right or evil in the sight of the LORD. In some cases, it is even stated that the king did evil because his mother or wife encouraged him in that way! This emphasizes the significant influence a mother or wife can have, whether for good or evil.

Shalmaneser, king of Assyria, came up against Hoshea, who became his vassal and paid tribute. However, Hoshea later stopped paying tribute, prompting the king of Assyria to besiege Samaria for three years. The Israelites faced this judgment because of their sins against the LORD—they worshiped other gods and forgot the LORD who brought them out of Egypt.

They committed secret sins against the LORD, followed the customs of other nations, served idols, and practiced wicked rituals that the LORD had forbidden. They made their necks stiff and rejected God's laws and commandments. They offered their children as sacrifices, practiced divination and witchcraft, and sold themselves to do evil.

The king of Assyria brought people from Babylon and other regions to live in the cities of Samaria in place of the Israelites. The LORD sent lions among them, killing some of the new settlers. These people brought their gods and continued the wicked practices of offering their children as sacrifices to Adrammelek and Anammelek, their gods, without fearing the LORD.

As parents, we need much prayer as we reflect on the stories of these kings. When we face the final judgment, how will we account for our actions? Many children have become slaves to greed and immoral desires, leading to ruined lives. These children will face their parents who failed to guide them.

Who else but the parents should bear this serious responsibility? Did the LORD make these young people corrupt? The answer is no! Who then is responsible for this terrible outcome? Did the sins of the parents transfer to the children through indulgence in appetite and immoral desires? And did these influences come from those who neglected to raise them according to God's principles?

Indeed, all such parents will be held accountable. Satan is always ready to do his work. He does not neglect to present temptations that children cannot resist. Through his schemes, he promotes constantly changing fashions and extravagant parties, distracting mothers from their sacred duty to educate and train their children.

Our young people need mothers who will teach them from an early age to control their appetites, resist selfishness, and live by the principles of God's kingdom. Mothers should embrace the holy calling that God has given them. The world needs mothers who are not only mothers in name but also in every sense of the word.

Mothers should recognize the sacredness of their mission and fulfill their calling with dedication and reverence to God. They should train their children for success in this world and prepare them for eternal life in the heavenly kingdom that is soon to come. Even those without biological children have an opportunity to influence and guide children in need. It takes a whole village or community to raise a child.

I urge believing mothers to recognize their responsibility—not to live for their own pleasure, not to be consumed by phones, fashion, or idle talk—but to glorify God. Christ did not live to please Himself. He left the courts of heaven, took on humanity, and became a servant to teach us how to become children of the heavenly King.

Jesus Hears the Simple Prayer for Forgiveness
Not everyone can identify the exact moment their sins were forgiven. Children should be taught to bring their sins and mistakes to Jesus from an early age. Teach them to ask for His forgiveness daily for any wrongdoing, assuring them that Jesus hears the simple prayer of a repentant heart and will forgive and accept them, just as He welcomed the children brought to Him during His earthly ministry.

Questions:

1. Why did Menahem give silver to Pul?

2. Who was Adrammelek?

3. What command did the prophet Oded give from the LORD?

4. Who was Tiglath-Pileser?

5. Are there any false gods where you live today?

6. Have we also forgotten the laws and commandments given by God?

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: Proverbs 8:13.

[13] The fear of the Lord is to hate evil; Pride and arrogance, and the evil way, and the perverse mouth, do I hate.

Prayer: Lord, help me to fear You and hate evil. Forgive my sins, bless my parents and my siblings. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Who are these people—Tiglath-pileser, Pekah, Rezin, Remaliah, Ben-Hadad? Or give instructions from Oded the prophet.

DAY 141 (May 20)

TOPIC: How the Ten Tribes of Israel Were Lost

(2 Kings 15-17)

It is important to understand that the strength and peace Israel enjoyed during the reign of Jeroboam II was short-lived after his death. His kingdom began to weaken, and his son Zechariah reigned for only six months before he was killed in public by Shallum, who declared himself king. However, after just one month, Shallum was killed by Menahem, who ruled for ten years marked by great evil and the oppression of the people—bringing distress to the land and plundering the wealth of Israel. It seems that during this time, the kings of Israel seized power by assassinating others, only to be assassinated themselves. This cycle of violence weakened the nation, and their enemies grew stronger and more victorious. All these troubles came upon Israel because they and their kings abandoned the God of their fathers and worshiped other gods and idols.

Hoshea was the last king of Israel—that is, of the ten tribes—and in total, there were nineteen kings. During Hoshea's reign, Shalmaneser, the king of Assyria, came with a great army to Samaria and laid siege to the city. The siege lasted for three years and ended when Shalmaneser died. Sargon, the commander of the army, took over the throne. Sargon killed Hoshea, the last king of Israel, and carried the Israelites away to the eastern lands such as Mesopotamia, Media, and regions around the Caspian Sea. Sargon did this to weaken Israel and prevent them from rebelling against him.

The Israelites in their land had forsaken the LORD and worshiped other gods. They went even further by adopting the gods of the nations where they lived. They began to marry people from other nations, and thus, they ceased to be called Israelites. They lost the knowledge of their God, who had given them His Word and sent them prophets. This is how the ten tribes of Israel disappeared. They never returned to their land but were scattered among other nations.

In the places where these ten tribes once lived, the king of Assyria brought in other people. Because these newcomers were few, they began to suffer attacks from wild animals like lions. The people believed that the wild animals came because they did not worship the god of that land. So, they sent a message to the king of Assyria, saying, "Send us a priest to teach us the customs of the god of this land, for he has sent lions, and they are killing us." They believed that each land had its own god. The Philistines worshiped Dagon, the Moabites worshiped Chemosh, and the people of Tyre and Sidon worshiped Baal and Asherah. They did not know that there is only one God who rules heaven and earth—the Creator, who alone is to be worshiped by every creature.

The king of Assyria sent a priest from among the Israelites to try to teach the people to fear and worship the LORD. However, when they worshiped, they mixed the worship of the God of heaven with the worship of their own gods. We cannot worship God while mixing truth with error. There are only two kingdoms—the kingdom of God and the kingdom of Satan. These people became known as Samaritans, named after their capital city of Samaria, which Ahab had established as his royal city. They built their own temple on Mount Gerizim, near the city of Shechem. Even today, a small group of Samaritans still lives in that area.

Children, come to Jesus. Give God the most precious gift you can offer—your heart. He is speaking to you, saying, "My son, my daughter, give Me your heart." Though your sins may be as red as scarlet, I will make them as white as snow; for I will cleanse you with My own blood. I will make you members of My family—children of the King of heaven. Receive My forgiveness and the peace I freely give to you. I will clothe you with My righteousness—the wedding garment—and make you worthy of the marriage supper of the Lamb. As you are clothed in My righteousness, through prayer, vigilance, and diligent study of My Word, you will reach the highest standard. You will understand the Truth, and your character will be shaped by the influence of the Lord. Pray for forgiveness, for this is God's will—even your sanctification.

Questions:

What did you learn from this story?

How did the ten tribes of Israel become lost?

Why can't we worship God and other gods at the same time?

Why did the Jews and Samaritans hate each other?

Read John chapter 4.

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: Proverbs 29:1-2.

[1-2] He that being often reproved hardeneth his neck shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy. When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice; but when the wicked beareth rule, the people mourn. He that loveth wisdom rejoiceth his father; but he that keepeth company with harlots spendeth his substance.

Prayer: Lord, help me not to harden my neck; help me to be righteous so that people may rejoice. Fill me with Your Holy Spirit, forgive my sins. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Share with the children the stories about where the 10 lost tribes of Israel went. Find a map and help students understand the history and legends about those ten tribes and the other two.

DAY 142 (May 21)

TOPIC: King Hezekiah – Revival and Reformation

(2 Kings 18-19; 2 Chronicles 29-32; Isaiah 36-37)

In the third year of Hoshea, king of Israel, Hezekiah, son of Ahaz, became king of Judah. Hezekiah's mother was called Abijah, the daughter of Zechariah, the prophet who was killed by King Joash. This means Hezekiah was the grandson of Jehoiada the high priest and the great-grandson of Athaliah! Hezekiah was 25 years old when he began to reign, and he reigned for 29 years. He did what was right in the eyes of the LORD. He removed the high places, broke down the Asherah poles, and smashed the bronze snake that Moses had made in the wilderness because the people had started worshiping it by burning incense to it. He called it Nehushtan.

He trusted in the LORD despite having a wicked father and ancestors. No king of Judah was as faithful to God as Hezekiah, for he did not turn away from following the LORD. I believe his mother played a role in his conversion. Hezekiah instructed the priests and Levites to consecrate themselves and remove the defilement from the temple. He told the priests that the LORD had chosen them to stand before Him, serve Him, and be His ministers. They followed his advice, offered sacrifices to the LORD, and obeyed the laws of Moses. He cleansed the house of the LORD, and wherever he went, he prospered. He defeated the Philistines as far as Gaza and its territories.

Hezekiah restored the ministry of songs, lyres, and trumpets as commanded by the prophets Nathan and Gad. When the burnt offerings were presented, they began with a song to the LORD. Many people were willing to offer sacrifices, and even those who had fallen behind started bringing their tithes again. There was a spiritual revival and reformation. Hezekiah sent messengers throughout Judah to urge the people to return to the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Indeed, the spiritual condition of the people is often a reflection of their leaders. The people were called to celebrate the Passover, though some did not observe the law properly. Hezekiah prayed for them, asking God to forgive them because they were ignorant. They had been living in darkness for a long time, but because they sought God with all their hearts, they were forgiven, and God heard their prayers.

It is an act of love to care for others and pray for them. REMOVE DEFILEMENT FROM THE SANCTUARY.

We are grateful for young leaders who are courageous and willing to stand for the LORD. Many who led church reforms throughout history were young men and women, and when they stood boldly against corruption and apostasy, the Lord gave them victory. In the history of our Remnant Church, many leaders were under 26 years old. We also thank God for the young leaders today who are active in media evangelism and are standing firmly for the LORD. Let us pray for all our leaders, especially the young ones whom God is raising in these last days.

Here is my question for you and me today: What defilement must we remove from the sanctuary in our time? Our bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit—are there things we need to let go of to keep our bodies, the temples, pure?

Abijah, Hezekiah's mother, was the daughter of the prophet Zechariah. It is possible that she influenced the character of this king. Children are young members of God's family, entrusted to parents for education and patient discipline so that they may develop heavenly characters, bless others in this life, and enjoy the life to come.

The most sensitive relationship in the world is that between a mother and her child. A child is more easily influenced by the life and example of the mother than by the father because a stronger and more tender bond connects them. A mother's thoughts and feelings will have a profound impact on the inheritance she gives her child. If she focuses on her emotions, indulges in selfishness, or is weak and overly strict, her child's character will reflect those qualities. Many have inherited tendencies that make it difficult to overcome evil. The enemy of souls understands this better than most parents. He will bring his temptations to the mother, knowing that if she yields, he can influence the child through her.

A mother's only hope is in God. She can turn to the Lord for strength and grace, and He will not fail her. A Christian mother will be vigilant in recognizing the dangers surrounding her children. She will keep herself pure and holy, control her temper, and govern her life according to God's Word. She will faithfully perform her duties and overcome the small and great temptations that will constantly attack her.

In the 14th year of Hezekiah, Sennacherib, king of Assyria, came to fight against Judah and captured their cities. Hezekiah sent a message to the king of Assyria, saying, "I have done wrong. Leave me, and I will pay whatever you demand." The king of Assyria required three hundred talents of silver and thirty talents of gold. Hezekiah gave him all the silver and gold from the house of the LORD and the king's treasury. However, this did not help, as the king of Assyria wanted more. He sent his commander and officers to Jerusalem, where they stood by the upper pool's aqueduct. They called for the king, and Eliakim, Shebna, and Joah went out to meet them.

The Assyrian commander mocked Hezekiah's faith, asking what hope he had to resist the king of Assyria. He spoke arrogantly, saying no one could save Hezekiah—not even the LORD. When Hezekiah's officials reported these words, Hezekiah tore his clothes, put on sackcloth, and went to the house of the LORD. He sent his officials to the prophet Isaiah to seek counsel and prayer.

Isaiah sent back a message saying, "Do not be afraid. The LORD will cause Sennacherib to hear a rumor and return to his own land, where he will be killed."

That night, the angel of the LORD struck down 185,000 Assyrians. Sennacherib returned to Nineveh in disgrace, and while worshiping his god, his sons Adrammelek and Sharezer killed him. Esarhaddon, his son, succeeded him as king. Indeed, God performs wonders for His servants.

A Sincere Plea for Forgiveness Must Come from the Heart
"Do not cast me away from Your presence or take Your Holy Spirit from me." (Psalm 51:11)

Repentance and forgiveness are gifts from God through the Messiah. It is through the influence of the Holy Spirit that we are convicted of sin and recognize our need for forgiveness. Only those with a broken heart are forgiven, and it is the Lord's grace that brings the heart to repentance.

God understands our weaknesses and failures, and He will help us. He hears prayers of faith, but the sincerity of our prayers must be proven by our efforts to align ourselves with His commandments. We need to open our hearts to the Holy Spirit's influence and experience His transforming power.

Questions:

1. Why was it wrong for Hezekiah to give treasures from the house of the LORD to the king of Assyria?

2. What did Hezekiah do when he received the threatening letter?

3. What was Hezekiah's mother's name?

4. How did 185,000 Assyrians die?

5. What good things did King Hezekiah do?

6. Today, we do not celebrate Passover but the Lord's Supper—can you explain the difference between these two sacraments?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: 2 Kings 19:15,16.

[15,16] And Hezekiah prayed before the Lord and said, O Lord God of Israel, which dwellest between the cherubim, Thou art the God, even Thou alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth; Thou hast made heaven and earth. Lord, bow down thine ear, and hear; open, Lord, thine eyes, and see; and hear the words of Sennacherib, which hath sent him to reproach the living God.

Prayer: Thank You, our Father, who dwells between the cherubim, You alone are Lord of all kingdoms. Lord, bow down Your ear and hear my troubles, even the words of those who reproach You. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Write a letter of all your troubles, bad people, etc., and place it before you, praying to God for what you want Him to help you with. Or draw the shadow moving back ten steps, and when Hezekiah was healed and later boasted by showing off his possessions – 2 Kings 20:9-20.

DAY 143 (May 22)

TOPIC: Hezekiah's Illness and the Sun Standing Still

(2 Kings 20; 2 Chronicles 29-32; Isaiah 38-39)

Hezekiah became sick and was at the point of death. Isaiah, the son of Amoz, the prophet, came to him and told him to set his house in order because he would die and not recover. Hezekiah was saddened and turned his face to the wall, praying to the LORD with many tears. Hezekiah prayed, saying, "I beseech You, LORD, remember how I have walked before You in truth and with a loyal heart and have done what is good in Your sight." Before Isaiah had left the city, the word of the LORD came to him, telling him to return to Hezekiah and say, "The LORD says: I have heard your prayer and seen your tears; behold, I will heal you. On the third day, you shall go up to the house of the LORD." The LORD promised to extend Hezekiah's life by fifteen years and to deliver him and the city from the hand of the king of Assyria, protecting the city for His sake and for His servant David.

Isaiah instructed Hezekiah to take a cake of figs and apply it as a poultice on the boil, which was the source of his illness. God used a natural remedy—just as others have used items like potatoes or crushed onions to draw out poison or reduce pain from boils or swollen areas. While God has the power to heal without these, He sometimes uses natural or medical treatments. Other times, He calls us to exercise, drink water, get sunlight, or eat healthy food. When Hezekiah followed these instructions, he recovered. Isaiah then asked him to choose a sign—whether the shadow should go forward or backward. Hezekiah chose for the shadow to move backward ten steps. Isaiah prayed to the LORD, and the shadow on the sundial moved backward ten steps.

When we pray for the sick, we should not reject medical treatments, calling it "faith" when it may just be a personal belief. Sometimes, it is necessary to use remedies, as in Hezekiah's case. At other times, we must humbly accept God's will, understanding that some people, if healed, may live in sin, while if they rested, they might one day enter heaven.

If people believe that praying for healing must exclude the use of simple remedies God has provided to alleviate pain and support natural healing, they may be acting unwisely. Using natural remedies is not a denial of faith; rather, it aligns with God's plans. When Hezekiah was sick, God sent a message through the prophet that he would die. But when Hezekiah prayed,

God heard his prayer and performed a miracle, extending his life by fifteen years. Although God could have healed him instantly with just a word or a touch, He instead instructed him to use a fig poultice. We should always align ourselves with God's will in all matters.

At that time, Merodach-Baladan, king of Babylon, sent gifts to Hezekiah because he had heard of his illness and recovery. However, Hezekiah made a mistake—rather than giving glory to God before these Babylonian envoys, he showed them the treasures of his palace. He displayed his wealth—silver, gold, spices, precious ointments, his armory, and everything in his storehouses. There was nothing in his kingdom that Hezekiah did not show them.

Later, Isaiah came to Hezekiah and asked, "Where did these men come from?" Hezekiah replied, "They came from a distant country—Babylon." Isaiah continued, "What did they see in your palace?" Hezekiah answered, "They saw everything. There is nothing among my treasures that I did not show them."

Hezekiah failed to testify about the great things God had done—delivering him from the Assyrians, healing his illness, and the miraculous sign of the shadow moving backward. Instead, he boasted about his possessions. Even today, God gives us opportunities to share His love and power with our friends, neighbors, and family. But sometimes, we focus on displaying our wealth instead.

This is a mistake—we should pray for God's help to avoid this trap. When some people are healed, they give more credit to their doctor's skill or their natural treatments rather than to God. When others find a job after searching for years, they may attribute it to their education, cleverness, or connections, even though those things had not helped them before. In all things, God deserves the glory. We may show people our homes, but not to boast about ourselves.

Isaiah told Hezekiah that because of his pride, a time would come when everything in his palace would be carried off to Babylon. Even his descendants would be taken as eunuchs in the Babylonian king's court. Hezekiah accepted God's judgment but said it was good as long as there would be peace during his lifetime. Unfortunately, he did not take responsibility for his mistake, leaving the consequences for his children to bear.

Hezekiah accomplished great reforms. The Levites resumed their duties, and the priests blessed the people. Their prayers reached heaven, God's holy dwelling place. The people brought morning and evening sacrifices, Sabbath offerings, and tithes. The chief priest Azariah testified that since the people began to bring their offerings, there had been enough food with plenty left over, for the LORD had blessed His people abundantly.

Hezekiah was honored with riches, food, drink, jewels, and livestock. For reforms to succeed, people need God's grace and joy. As God's children, we must remove idols from our hearts, homes, and churches. Idols cannot be removed from our hearts until we experience joy in worship. Where there is little joy, there is little revival.

When our lives are filled with joy and satisfaction, people naturally turn away from idols such as selfishness, entertainment, food, hatred, opinions, social media, beauty, status, education, or any other beloved idol. Hezekiah assured the people that God would not turn His face from them if they returned to Him. God does not reject anyone who repents. Like the prodigal son, God welcomes every repentant heart with grace and joy.

One might wonder whether Hezekiah's extra years were truly a blessing. If he had died at the time God initially planned, he would not have fathered Manasseh. Although losing a young person is painful, the Bible says, "The righteous perish, and no one takes it to heart; the devout are taken away, and no one understands that the righteous are taken away to be spared from evil." (Isaiah 57:1).

Parents should learn from Hezekiah's example—not to desire that their children bear the consequences of their own mistakes. Hezekiah eventually died, and his son Manasseh succeeded him as king.

It is essential to pray for strength to resist the enemy's temptations. Satan constantly seeks to keep people from praying by filling their time with business, pleasures, or sin. But Jesus has opened heaven for all who come to Him, inviting children and youth to approach Him freely. He says, "Let the little children come to Me, and do not hinder them, for the kingdom of God belongs to such as these."

Jesus wants children and youth to come to Him with the same confidence they have when asking their parents for food. If your sins weigh heavily on your heart, go to God and say, "For the sake of the Messiah, forgive my sins." Every sincere prayer is heard in heaven, and every honest request for grace and strength will be answered.

Questions:

1. What remedy was Hezekiah told to use when he was sick?

2. How many additional years was he given to live?

3. What sin did Hezekiah commit?

4. If your friends visit your home today, what will you show them?

5. How can you give glory to God for the things He has done for you?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Verse: 2 Kings 19:19,20.

Now therefore, O Lord our God, I beseech Thee, save Thou us out of his hand, that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that Thou art the Lord God, even Thou only. Then Isaiah the son of Amoz sent to Hezekiah, saying, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, That which thou hast prayed to me against Sennacherib king of Assyria I have heard.

Prayer: Lord, thank You for hearing us, save us from the hand of our enemies so that the whole world may know that You are the Lord, and You alone. Help us to love people and to love You. In the name of Jesus, Amen.

Activity: Hezekiah's healing after his illness, and then how he showed his treasures when he was visited by guests.

DAY 144 (May 23)

TOPIC: King Manasseh and Josiah

(2 Kings 21; 2 Chronicles 33)

Manasseh began to reign at the age of 12 and ruled for 55 years. He reigned longer than any other king of Israel, yet he was the most wicked king ever to rule Judah. He was born during the 15 extra years his father had prayed for. Some have said that if Hezekiah had accepted to rest and not live those additional years, his son Manasseh would not have been born to bring great sorrow to many and to God as well. Many of those he led astray were lost forever, even after he returned to the Lord, showing the heavy influence of leadership.

Manasseh committed abominations by building altars for other gods, rebuilding the altars of Baal and Asherah poles that his father had torn down. He passed his son through fire, practiced divination, witchcraft, consulted spirits, and sorcerers, and provoked the Lord to anger. He placed a carved Asherah idol in the house of God. Manasseh led Judah and Jerusalem astray before God and shed much innocent blood. Historians say he even killed the prophet Isaiah by sawing him in two—a prophet who had served his father faithfully.

Let God be called God; He is merciful, slow to anger, and quick to forgive when we confess with true repentance. Being a leader is a sacred and high calling. Manasseh was drawn to idol worship. Today, there are many forms of idolatry: the love of money, gluttony, video games, social media, wasting time watching meaningless entertainment on television or online, being on the phone all the time, pride in status, obsession with fashion, education, personal opinions, and forbidden desires.

Indeed, any habit that harms our health and causes us to fail is idolatry. Let us seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness. Manasseh returned to the Lord, and the Lord accepted him because He is merciful. “If You, Lord, kept a record of sins, Lord, who could stand? But with You, there is forgiveness, so that we can, with reverence, serve You.” (Psalm 130:3-4)

Manasseh repented after facing punishment, but by then, he had already led many astray who never returned to the Lord as he did. This teaches us that our sins, even when we abandon them, leave a lasting impact by leading or stumbling others permanently. Manasseh was taken captive by the king of Assyria to Babylon, with a hook in his nose like an animal. In his distress, his pride was humbled, and he cried out to God, humbling himself to be accepted. He remembered his father, a God-fearing warrior, and confessed. God heard his prayer and restored him to Jerusalem. Then he knew that the Lord alone is God.

Manasseh removed the foreign gods, offered thanksgiving sacrifices, and instructed the people to follow the Lord. When Manasseh died, his son Amon took over the throne at the age of 22. He did evil in the sight of the Lord like his father Manasseh. Amon’s servants conspired against him and killed him in his palace. However, the people of the land executed those who conspired against Amon and made his eight-year-old son Josiah king.

Josiah reigned for thirty years. Despite his youth, Josiah did what was right, like his ancestor David, and did not turn to the right or left. In the eighteenth year of his reign, Josiah sent Shaphan the scribe to the house of the Lord to Hilkiah the high priest to count the offerings brought by the people through the gatekeepers. The money was to be used to repair the temple, including carpenters, builders, and masons, who bought timber and cut stone to restore the temple.

Hilkiah the priest told Shaphan the scribe that he had found the Book of the Law in the house of the Lord and gave it to him to read. Shaphan took the book to the king and reported that the money had been delivered to the workers managing the Lord’s house. Then Shaphan read the book to the king. Upon hearing the words, the king tore his clothes in distress. He commanded Hilkiah and other spiritual leaders to inquire of the Lord on behalf of himself and the people concerning the words of the book found in the temple, acknowledging that the Lord’s anger burned against them due to their ancestors’ disobedience.

Hilkiah and the delegation went to the prophetess Huldah to seek the Lord's counsel. Huldah declared, "This is what the Lord says: I am bringing disaster upon this place and its inhabitants according to all the words of the book the king of Judah has read, because they have forsaken Me and burned incense to other gods, provoking Me to anger by all the works of their hands. However, because the king's heart was tender, and he humbled himself before the Lord, tore his clothes, and wept when he heard these words, the Lord heard his cry."

The best sacrifice to the Lord is a broken and contrite heart, willing to confess our sins and those of others. The Lord does not despise a broken heart. Some may appear to have no major sins, but the sin of pride is significant as it hinders God's grace. Those who refuse to repent are lost, while even the worst sinners, like murderers, can be forgiven if they sincerely repent and humble themselves. Josiah was promised that he would not witness the coming disaster but would rest in peace with his ancestors.

We learn from this story the importance of the Holy Scriptures and reading them to understand God's will for us. It transforms our lives, drawing us closer to God and fostering love for others. Reading the Bible is like shaking a fruit tree. You shake the whole tree, then the branches, and finally the fruit itself! Let us begin today to shake the tree of the Holy Word to receive its sweet fruits.

The books of 1 and 2 Chronicles resemble the book of Judges in their repetitive pattern: people forsake God, face trouble, cry out to Him, and He restores them. Young people use the term "roller coaster" to describe life's ups and downs. How do we break this cycle? Young people need good parental role models. Although Manasseh returned to the Lord, how did his son, who witnessed idol worship, turn out?

God's love is unconditional. He loves even the worst sinners but hates sin. No matter how grave our sins, God is willing to forgive us if we respond positively to His commands. Sometimes the consequences we face are the natural results of our sins. The Lord means what He says: "I take no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but rather that they turn from their ways and live." (Ezekiel 33:11)

Manasseh was forgiven and saved because he sincerely humbled himself and repented. This confirms God's promise: "Come now, let us settle the matter," says the Lord. "Though your sins are like scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they are red as crimson, they shall be like wool." (Isaiah 1:18)

Questions:

1. What evil did Manasseh commit?

2. Why did he repent?

3. What kind of book did Hilkiah find?

4. What was Shaphan's role?

5. Why did Josiah weep?

6. What did prophetess Huldah tell Josiah?

7. Why is pride such a dangerous sin?

8. Why do people say, "Do not sleep with your door open, hoping for someone else's luck"?

9. Why do parents grieve when they see their children making bad decisions?

Key Verse: 2 Chronicles 33:11-13.

[11-13] …They took Manasseh with hooks, bound him with chains, and carried him to Babylon. And when he was in affliction, he besought the Lord his God, and humbled himself greatly before the God of his fathers. And he prayed unto Him; and He was intreated of him, and heard his supplication, and brought him again to Jerusalem into his kingdom. Then Manasseh knew that the Lord, He was God.

Activity: Explain the life of Manasseh and how he led people astray, his repentance, and starting afresh. Bring pencils and erasers—write and erase. Tell them the Lord has a big eraser for our sins.

DAY 145 (May 24)

TOPIC: Josiah Carries Out Reforms

(2 Kings 23; 2 Chronicles 34-35)

The king sent messengers, and all the elders of Jerusalem came. The king went up to the house of the LORD—the temple—along with the prophets, priests, and all the people, both great and small. He read in their hearing the Book of the Covenant that had been found in the house of the LORD. The king made a covenant before the LORD to follow Him and to keep His commandments, testimonies, and statutes with all his heart and soul. All the people accepted the covenant.

The king commanded the priests, including Hilkiah and the temple guards, to remove the articles used for Baal and Asherah worship, and he burned them outside Jerusalem. He dismissed the priests who had burned incense to Baal, the sun, the moon, the planets, the stars, and all the heavenly hosts. He removed the Asherah pole from the house of the LORD, burned it, crushed it to powder, and scattered the ashes on the graves of the common people.

He demolished the houses of male shrine prostitutes that were within the temple. He banned the practice of sacrificing children through fire and destroyed those altars. He burned the chariots dedicated to sun worship and removed the horses associated with these pagan rituals. Josiah destroyed the foreign altars that previous kings had made. He also demolished the altar at Bethel, which Jeroboam son of Nebat had built.

When he saw the bones in a grave, he recognized them as belonging to the man of God who had been killed by a lion, and he ordered that they be left untouched. He executed the idolatrous priests and burned their bones in accordance with the word of the LORD. After these reforms, Josiah returned to Jerusalem.

Josiah's story in the Old Testament parallels that of Timothy in the New Testament. Both were blessed because of their godly mothers and grandmothers. It is no coincidence that the mothers and grandmothers of these men—Jedidah and Adaiah for Josiah, and Eunice and Lois for Timothy—are mentioned in the scriptures. Do you have a godly mother or grandmother who has blessed your life? Give thanks to the LORD today and share your testimony!

David, as a father, also blessed his son Solomon by living a life of godliness. Indeed, having godly parents is a great blessing, and raising godly children is an even greater treasure! There can be no true reformation or revival without the Holy Scriptures.

"Every person has the power to choose righteousness when they heed God's commandments. In every life experience, God's word to us is: 'Choose this day whom you will serve.'"

When a young person dedicates their life to God, they become a powerful instrument for good in God's hands—even more so than the elderly. Satan knows this truth, which is why he has devised many ways to trap our young people. Unfortunately, he seems to be succeeding in some ways, as many young people are absent from church.

What can we, as church members, do? Some believe that loud music and entertainment will attract the youth, but these have not produced committed Christians! We should continue to pray for them and love them unconditionally—this may be the key to making a difference. What we cannot do, God can!

1 John 2:13 says, "I am writing to you, fathers, because you know Him who is from the beginning. I am writing to you, young men, because you have overcome the evil one. I am writing to you, children, because you know the Father." Let us claim these promises!

The pulpit is above the pew, meaning that if spiritual leaders fulfill their responsibilities faithfully, the spiritual condition of the nation is usually better. King Josiah set an example by publicly committing to follow all of God's commandments as written in the Book of the Law, and he remained faithful to that promise. The people followed his example, and there was a revival! Let pastors and church leaders rise up and lead, for the pulpit always stands above where the congregation sits.

Josiah continued to remove mediums, spiritists, household gods, idols, and all the detestable things found in the land to fulfill the laws written in the book Hilkiah the priest had found. There was no king before or after Josiah who turned to the LORD with all his heart, soul, and strength according to the Law of Moses.

Despite Josiah's efforts, the sins of his predecessors had gone too far, and the judgment of Babylonian captivity was inevitable.

Pharaoh Necho, the king of Egypt, went to fight the king of Assyria at the Euphrates River. King Josiah went to confront him. God had commanded Necho to fight the Assyrians, but when Necho warned Josiah not to interfere with God's plan, Josiah refused to listen. As a result, Necho's archers struck Josiah down at Megiddo. His servants took him in a chariot to Jerusalem, where he died and was buried in the tombs of his ancestors. The people mourned for him deeply.

If Josiah had heeded God's instructions, he would not have died in that way. Yet, we all struggle with stubbornness—so let us pray for God's help to surrender fully to Him.

The people of Judah took Jehoahaz, Josiah's son, who was twenty-three years old, and made him king. He reigned for three months and did evil in the eyes of the LORD. Pharaoh Necho captured him, imposed a heavy tribute on the land, and appointed Eliakim, another son of Josiah, as king. Necho changed his name to Jehoiakim. Jehoiakim was twenty-five years old when he began to reign, and he ruled for eleven years while doing evil in the eyes of the LORD.

During Jehoiakim's reign, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, came to conquer the land, and Jehoiakim became his vassal for three years before rebelling. After Jehoiakim's death, his son Jehoiachin succeeded him. The Babylonian officials besieged Jerusalem, and Jehoiachin surrendered along with his family, nobles, craftsmen, and warriors.

Nebuchadnezzar took ten thousand captives, leaving only the poorest people behind. He also carried away the treasures of the LORD's temple and the royal palace, including the golden articles Solomon had made.

Nebuchadnezzar appointed Mattaniah, Jehoiachin's uncle, as king, changing his name to Zedekiah.

At first glance, Nebuchadnezzar may seem like a ruthless king, but he was also a thoughtful strategist and a ruler who valued what was truly precious. Notably, he never defiled the sacred articles of the temple—he treated them with great respect! Eventually, when he came to know who God was, he worshipped Him appropriately.

This astonishing story is part of the dramatic narrative in the prophetic book of Daniel. It is a thrilling account that you should read again and again!

When I read Daniel chapter 2, I feel as if I am soaring above the earth, looking down at Mount Kilimanjaro, the Great Rift Valley, the Serengeti, the Nile River, the Indian Ocean, the Congo River, the Atlantic Ocean, the Sahara Desert, Lake Victoria, and other magnificent landmarks across the globe!

The same God of grace who worked in Daniel's life is still working in our lives today—Hallelujah!

The Kings of Israel in the Order of Their Reigns, They Are:

Name, Years of Reign, End of Reign, and Significant Events During Their Rule

Saul – 40 years. He was killed in battle against the Philistines and was succeeded by Ish-bosheth. He was anointed under opposition.

Ish-bosheth – 2 years. He was killed by conspirators and succeeded by David, who was declared king but was not anointed.

David – 40 years. He died and was succeeded by Solomon. He brought the Ark of the Covenant to Jerusalem.

Solomon – 40 years. He died and was succeeded by Rehoboam, who ruled Judah, while Jeroboam became king of Israel during Rehoboam's reign. He built the First Temple.

Jeroboam I – 22 years. He died and was succeeded by Nadab. He seized power during a civil war that divided the united kingdom. Judah retained the Davidic dynasty.

Nadab – 2 years. He was killed by Baasha, son of Ahijah, who took his place.

Baasha – 24 years. He died and was succeeded by Elah.

Elah – 2 years. He was killed by Zimri, who succeeded him.

Zimri – 7 days. He committed suicide by setting the royal palace on fire. A brief civil war broke out between the houses of Tibni and Omri, during which Tibni died, and Omri became king.

Omri – 12 years. He died and was succeeded by his son Ahab. He established Samaria as the capital city of Israel.

Ahab – 22 years. He was killed in battle and succeeded by his son Ahaziah.

Ahaziah – 2 years. He suffered severe injuries and was succeeded by his brother Joram (Jehoram).

Joram (Jehoram) – 12 years. He was killed by Jehu, who succeeded him.

Jehu – 28 years. He died and was succeeded by Jehoahaz. He killed both the king of Israel and the king of Judah.

Jehoahaz – 17 years. He died and was succeeded by Jehoash (Joash).

Jehoash (Joash) – 16 years. He died and was succeeded by Jeroboam II.

Jeroboam II – 41 years. He died and was succeeded by Zechariah. He was the last king from the house of Jehu.

Zechariah – 6 months. He was killed by Shallum, son of Jabesh, who took his place.

Shallum – 1 month. He was killed by Menahem, son of Gadi, who succeeded him.

Menahem – 10 years. He died and was succeeded by Pekahiah.

Pekahiah – 2 years. He was killed by Pekah, son of Remaliah, who took his place.

Pekah – 20 years. He was killed by Hoshea, son of Elah, who succeeded him.

Hoshea – 9 years. He was captured and taken to Assyria.

The Bible Fandom provides these estimates.

Pray for Others
Let us strive to walk in the light as Christ is in the light. The Lord turned Job's captivity when he prayed not only for himself but for those who opposed him. When he felt a deep desire for the souls that wronged him to receive help, he himself found deliverance. Let us pray—not just for ourselves—but for those who have hurt us and continue to do so. Pray, pray—especially in your mind. Do not give the Lord rest; for His ears are open to sincere, persistent, and humble prayers when the soul humbles itself before Him.

There are those around you who are sorrowful, who need words of compassion, love, kindness, and our humble, heartfelt prayers that express true concern.

Questions:

1. How did King Josiah die?

2. What is the reward of wickedness?

3. Who ruled Judah after Josiah?

4. Which king of Judah was taken captive to Babylon?

5. Who were the people who remained in Jerusalem without being taken into captivity?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Verse: Isaiah 57:15.

[15] For thus saith the high and lofty One that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy; I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones.

Prayer: Father, thank You for reviving our spirits when we repent. Help us to read Your Word and to experience revival and reformation in our church, our homes, and our nation. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Go through the chart of the names of kings below—step by step.

DAY 146 (May 25)

TOPIC: The Last Kingdom of Judah

(2 Kings 24-25; 2 Chronicles 35; Isaiah 45)

Zedekiah was 21 years old when he began to reign, and he ruled in Jerusalem for 11 years. He did evil in the sight of the LORD and was stubborn, mocking the messengers God sent to him. Zedekiah was the last king of Judah before the third and final exile to Babylon. Although the prophet Jeremiah advised him to follow the orders of the king of Babylon, Zedekiah refused to listen to the prophet's counsel. He was not even willing to protect Jeremiah from harm.

Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon, and Nebuchadnezzar came with his entire army to fight against Jerusalem. They set up camp around the city and built siege works all around it. The city was under siege, and there was severe famine within it. Eventually, a breach was made in the city wall. All the soldiers fled at night through a gate near the king's garden. Although the Babylonians surrounded the city, they pursued the king and captured him on the plains of Jericho, where his entire army scattered and abandoned him.

Zedekiah was taken to Nebuchadnezzar, who killed his sons before his eyes, then blinded him, put him in chains, and took him to Babylon. Nebuchadnezzar later returned to Jerusalem and burned down the temple of the LORD, the royal palace, and all the houses of the people. He demolished the walls around Jerusalem and carried into exile the remaining people in the city, along with those who had defected to him. He only left behind the poorest people to work in the vineyards and fields.

The Babylonians seized the bronze articles, such as pots, shovels, snuffers, spoons, and all other vessels of gold and silver. They also took the bronze pillars and decorative pomegranates. The high priest, Seraiah, and his deputy, Zephaniah, were also taken. Nebuzaradan, the commander of the Babylonian guard, oversaw the destruction and appointed Gedaliah as governor over those left behind.

When people came to Gedaliah to express their fears, he reassured them, saying they should not be afraid but serve the king of Babylon, and it would go well with them. However, they did not like this advice. Ishmael, one of the royal family members, went to Gedaliah, struck him down, and killed him. Afterward, they fled to Egypt, fearing the Babylonians.

In the thirty-seventh year of Jehoiachin's exile to Babylon, Evil-Merodach, the king of Babylon, in the first year of his reign, released Jehoiachin from prison. He spoke kindly to him and gave him a seat of honor above the other kings in Babylon. Jehoiachin changed his prison clothes and ate at the king's table for the rest of his life, receiving a daily allowance. Without a doubt, his stubbornness in rejecting the prophets had left him completely.

The people who were taken into exile served the kings of Babylon until the kingdom of Persia rose to power, fulfilling the word of the LORD spoken through the prophet Jeremiah—that the land would enjoy its Sabbaths while it lay desolate for seventy years.

When parents fail to raise their children in the ways of the LORD, they expose them to the danger of calamity. Whatever seeds parents plant in their children's lives will surely yield a harvest. Likewise, when leaders fail to do what is right, they allow their communities to be stripped of their best resources and left in ruins.

Some sufferings come through God's wisdom to draw us closer to His throne of grace. He softens and humbles His children through sorrow and trials. This world is God's workshop, where He shapes us for heavenly purposes. He uses the pruning knife to refine our hearts, removing sharpness and flaws, fitting us perfectly into His heavenly building. Through tribulations and distress, a Christian is purified and strengthened to develop a character that reflects Christ's example.

Often, God's punishments come upon a few so that many may be saved from similar consequences. Examples such as Uzzah, Korah, and others serve as warnings.

As parents and leaders, we must train our children in the ways of the LORD and choose to do what is right in God's eyes, so that things may go well for our families and communities.

In the first year of Cyrus, the king of Persia, the word of the LORD spoken through Jeremiah was fulfilled. The LORD stirred the spirit of Cyrus, who issued a proclamation throughout his kingdom, declaring:

"This is what Cyrus, king of Persia, says: The LORD, the God of heaven, has given me all the kingdoms of the earth and has appointed me to build a temple for Him at Jerusalem in Judah. Any of His people among you—may the LORD their God be with them, and let them go up."

King Cyrus of Persia was a servant of the LORD prophesied about 150 years earlier. God prepared him to assist in rebuilding the temple, support His people, subdue nations before him, and restore what was broken. He provided resources for the work, including gold, timber, horses, and donkeys. Although Cyrus was a Persian, he recognized the LORD as the one true God and served Him with reverence.

Try reading the story of Cyrus as a child—it is an incredible account of how he was taken in by childless parents and escaped death as an infant.

When we strive to bring others to Christ, carrying the burden of souls in our prayers, our hearts will be touched by the reviving power of God's grace. Our dedication to the Lord's work will shine more brightly, and our Christian lives will become more sincere, more zealous, and more prayerful.

Questions:

1. Who was Gedaliah?

2. What did Evil-Merodach do for Jehoiachin?

3. What punishment did Zedekiah receive for not listening?

4. How was Cyrus a servant of God?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Agape Ministry. May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Verse: Isaiah 45:1-3.

[1-3] Thus saith the Lord to His anointed, to Cyrus, whose right hand I have holden, to subdue nations before him; and I will loose the loins of kings, to open before him the two-leaved gates, and the gates shall not be shut; I will go before thee, and make the crooked places straight; I will break in pieces the gates of brass, and cut in sunder the bars of iron. And I will give thee the treasures of darkness, and hidden riches of secret places, that thou mayest know that I, the Lord, which call thee by thy name, am the God of Israel.

Prayer: Thank You because You know us and have called us by our names. Thank You, we ask to live in Your will, Lord, and to help remove the chains of the enemy. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

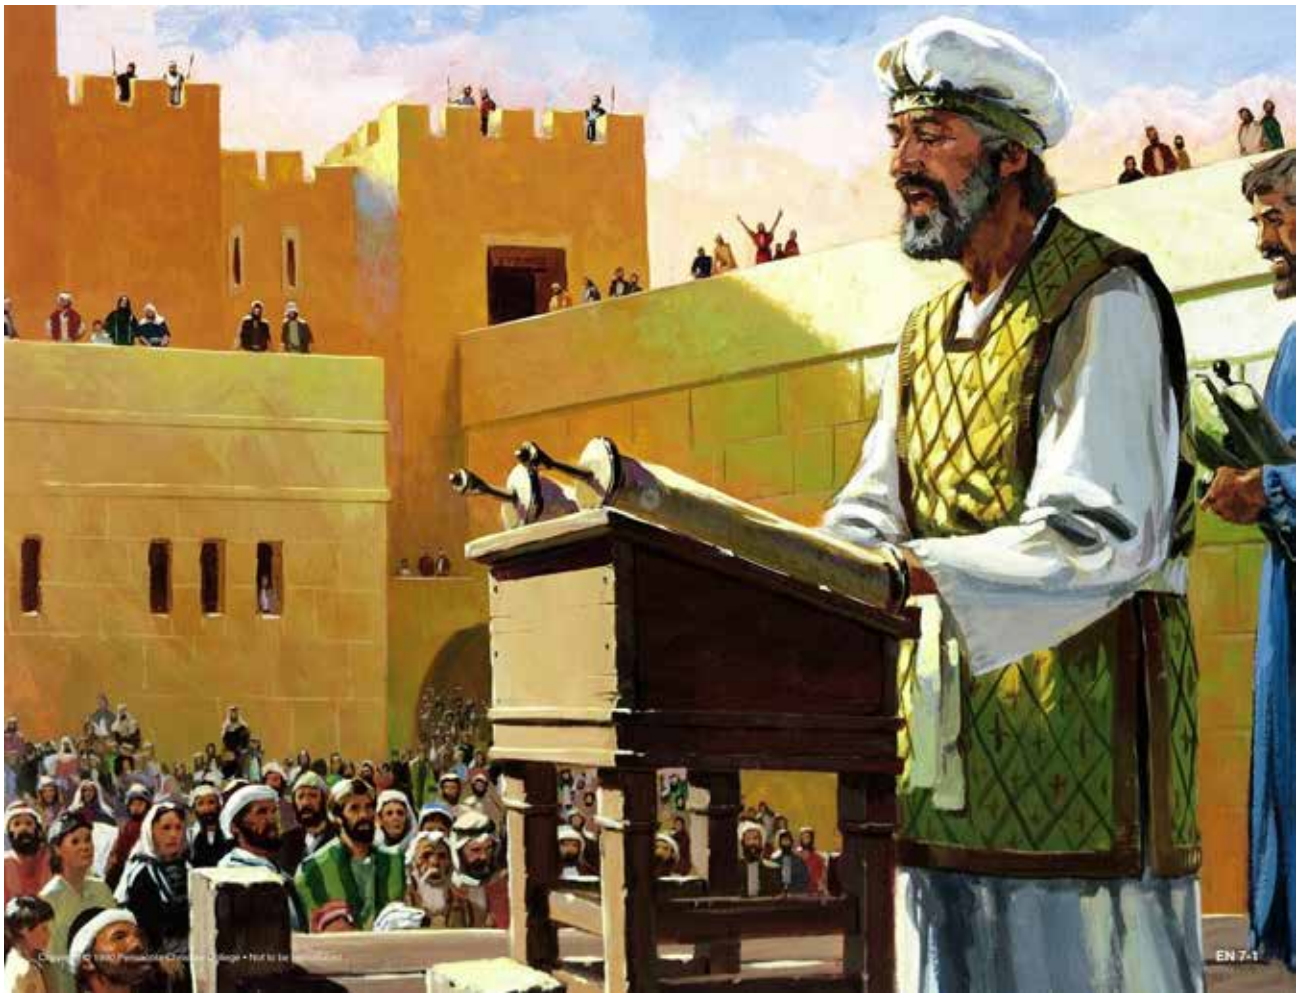
Activity: A play of King Zedekiah, his disobedience and what happened to him. Include the utensils taken away such as bronze vessels, pots, shovels, snuffers, spoons, and vessels of gold and silver.

DAY 147 (May 26)

TOPIC: The Example of Ezra the Priest

Ezra was a priest and a scribe of the Law of Moses. The Book of Ezra is a historical account and a record of genealogies. This book was written around 450 B.C. The key figures include King Cyrus, the priest Ezra, the prophet Haggai, the prophet Zechariah, King Darius, King Ahasuerus, and the leader Zerubbabel. In the Scriptures of Jeremiah and Isaiah, God promised His people that they would return from Babylonian exile after 70 years. Cyrus was the instrument God used to bring about their return (Isaiah 45:1 and 44:28). Families from the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, the priests and the Levites, and those whose hearts God had moved, returned to rebuild the house of God, the wall, and to restore spiritual services.

Ezra 1:5 shows that Ezra was willing to go; he was a leader and a teacher of the Scriptures. This verse carries a profound meaning that challenges us to do the same: "For Ezra had devoted himself to the study and observance of the Law of the LORD, and to teaching its decrees and laws in Israel" (Ezra 7:10). Zerubbabel responded to the Lord's call and went to rebuild the temple around 538 B.C., while Ezra helped revive the knowledge of the Scriptures in 457 B.C., and Nehemiah rebuilt the wall in 444 B.C. Ezra was called into service the same year that King Ahasuerus issued the decree to restore Jerusalem—a decree connected to Daniel 9:24-27. Read further about the 2300-day prophecy in Daniel chapters 8 and 9. The writings in the Book of Ezra fill in the historical gaps in the Book of Daniel, especially regarding the prophetic ministry of Christ and His work on our behalf.



The timeline includes the 70 years that began in 457 B.C., the 490 years ending in 34 A.D., the 2300 days (which symbolize 2300 years), the 490 years, the remaining 1810 years, and the significant year of 1844. Ezra, Zerubbabel, and Nehemiah were responsible for spiritual revival and reformation among the returning exiles.

After the exile, the captives were allowed to return during the reign of the Medes and Persians under King Cyrus. Zerubbabel was the first to return with 50,000 people to build a new temple. They organized themselves, gathered materials, and began construction. However, the work proceeded slowly due to opposition and threats from their enemies. Construction halted for two years but was eventually completed after twenty years. They then celebrated the Passover feast and purified themselves for seven days before dedicating the temple.

Some people, like Daniel and Ezekiel, as well as other elders or those content to live in Babylon, did not return but remained in exile. The Books of Ezra and Nehemiah do not conclude on a hopeful note. Sin is a serious issue that spreads easily and quickly. The greatest challenge does not come from external enemies but from within—when those who know God's revealed will fail to follow it. Remaining faithful to the Lord and adhering to His instructions is a significant test for God's people. Ezra understood that the only true power for change comes from diligently studying, understanding, and applying the Scriptures.

To fulfill the beginning portion of the prophecy of the 70 weeks and the 2300 evenings and mornings (both of which started in 457 B.C.), God intervened through His grace and influenced King Artaxerxes I to allow Ezra and a group of Israelites to return to Jerusalem. Ezra sought the king's protection for their journey and also secured financial and physical provisions needed for the temple services (Ezra 7:11-28). The main themes of these two books (Ezra and Nehemiah) are God's providence, His faithfulness, and His covenant. God fulfilled His promises despite the narrow-mindedness, confusion, distraction, and stubbornness of His people. Through His servants, He called them out of their spiritual lethargy into revival and reformation.

Ezra was led by the Holy Spirit and became an inspiring influence on both the young and the old. Many people in Jerusalem, having returned from exile, were willing to obey God, even to the point of ending their pagan relationships. Ezra was strengthened by these faithful people. In a great public assembly during heavy rain, Ezra read aloud the names of those involved in unlawful marriages. Many listened and chose to abandon their sinful ways.

Jesus Christ, our Creator, Savior, and the greatest leader of all, humbled Himself before a fallen world. He offered His life as the ultimate sacrifice for all generations and for eternity. Therefore, even though we are sinful and weak, we can find strength through our hope and faith in Him. My response is: Jesus, I find strength in You. I will follow You and live by trusting in You, even when faced with opposition.

The genealogies recorded in this book remind us that this is a true historical account and that God's promises are always fulfilled. It is likely that many returning exiles left friends and relatives behind in Babylon and thought of them often. Sometimes, in life, we must be willing to leave behind friends, family, or others who refuse to walk with us, so that we may accomplish greater things for ourselves and for the glory of God.

When reading these lists of names, one question arises: IS MY NAME WRITTEN THERE? This question applies to you and me! We may wonder why the Bible includes such long lists of names, but the answer is simple: it is a record of history and a testimony of the choices people made. It confirms the truth of prophecy. Indeed, God knows each of us personally and cares deeply about the smallest details of our lives. As the psalmist said about our records, even the place of our birth matters to God: "The LORD will write in the register of the peoples: 'This one was born in Zion.'" (Psalm 87:6). For instance, when He counts me, He will say, "This one was born in Bariadi, Tanzania!" This encourages me because it means God cares about every detail of my life more than I could ever comprehend. Surely, there are even greater things God will reveal to us when we reach heaven!

There is a record of names in the Lamb's Book of Life. I am deeply grateful that my name and yours were written there the moment we accepted Jesus Christ as our personal Savior and Lord. What do you say, my friend?

The once-desolate city of Jerusalem was now being inhabited again, and even choirs were organized to sing praises.

There are souls who have lost their courage—speak to them and pray for them. There are those who hunger for the Bread of Life—read God's Word to them. There are spiritual wounds that no earthly medicine can heal—pray for these people and bring them to Jesus Christ. In all your efforts, Christ will be present to influence the hearts of people.

Questions:

1. Explain the roles of Ezra, Zerubbabel, and Nehemiah.

Key Verse: Ezra 7:10,11.

[10,11] For Ezra had prepared his heart to seek the law of the Lord, and to do it, and to teach in Israel statutes and judgments. Now this is the copy of the letter that the king Artaxerxes gave unto Ezra the priest, the scribe, even a scribe of the words of the commandments of the Lord, and of His statutes to Israel.

Prayer: Thank You, Heavenly Father, set my heart to seek Your law, to do it, and to teach it to others. Fill us with the Holy Spirit, in the name of Jesus Christ.

Activity: Build the Temple

1. Story: Explain that after the Israelites returned from exile, they rebuilt the temple in Jerusalem.

2. Collect boxes or blocks and let the children build the temple and the walls around it.

3. Discussion: Talk about how the temple represents God's presence, and how, even after it was destroyed and rebuilt, God's people still needed to remember and obey His Word.

Make a scroll/book: Ezra read the Law of Moses to the people from a scroll. Tell the young people to read aloud to others, imitating how Ezra taught the people.

DAY 148 (May 27)

TOPIC: Ezra and Nehemiah – We Cannot Come Down from the Wall

The book of Nehemiah is historical. It was written by Ezra and Nehemiah themselves. Many believe Ezra was more involved, and these books were originally one but were later separated. The main characters include Nehemiah the cupbearer, Ezra the priest, Sanballat, and Tobiah. Jerusalem had a temple, but there was no wall to provide security. It took 52 days to build the walls. Nehemiah says:
"When all our enemies heard about this, all the surrounding nations were afraid and lost their self-confidence because they realized that this work had been done with the help of our God."

In the first year of the reign of King Cyrus of Persia, the word of the LORD spoken through the prophet Jeremiah was fulfilled. Cyrus issued a proclamation throughout his kingdom that God had commanded him to build a house for Him in Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Cyrus allowed the people to return and rebuild the house of the LORD and promised to assist them with resources and materials. He also helped with transportation to facilitate their journey.

Cyrus released the articles belonging to the house of the LORD, which Nebuchadnezzar had brought to Babylon. These items were handed over by the treasurer and counted, and Sheshbazzar took them back. About 50,000 people, including Zerubbabel, returned to Jerusalem. Upon arrival, the people gave generously for the rebuilding of God's house.

Some people who sought to disrupt the mission pretended to want to help, but Zerubbabel and Joshua the priest told them, "You have no part with us in building a house for our God. We alone will build it, as King Cyrus of Persia commanded." These opponents hired people to discourage the builders, such as Tattenai, but God helped them to complete the work. When they finished, they praised the LORD with trumpets and cymbals, giving thanks to Him. However, those who remembered the magnificent temple built by Solomon wept because the new structure seemed inferior, though there were also loud shouts of joy.

Another significant event is that the elders who had seen the glory of Solomon's temple mourned because the new building seemed unimpressive. Nehemiah requested permission from the king to go and rebuild Jerusalem, and after returning to his position as the king's cupbearer, he sought permission again and returned for a second time. Nehemiah was deeply distressed when he heard about the condition of Jerusalem. Ezra led the people in a renewed commitment to the LORD, teaching and explaining the law. They realized that if they wanted to be restored as a nation, they needed to obey the law.

The people gathered as one in the square before the city gate, and Ezra the scribe brought out the Book of the Law of Moses, which the LORD had commanded Israel. He read it aloud to everyone who could understand.

Nehemiah reinstated the Levites and provided them with allowances so they could continue serving in the temple. He assigned everyone their duties—whether to guard or to provide wood for the offerings. Nehemiah prayed, "Remember me for this, my God, and do not blot out what I have so faithfully done for the house of my God and its services."

Nehemiah saw people treading winepresses and doing work on the Sabbath. Others were bringing goods from the fields and loading them onto their donkeys. They brought all kinds of merchandise—fruits, fish, and other goods—into Jerusalem and sold them to the people of Judah on the Sabbath. Nehemiah rebuked the leaders, saying, “What is this wicked thing you are doing—desecrating the Sabbath day?”

He reminded them that their ancestors’ disobedience had brought disaster upon them and led to their captivity. Nehemiah commanded that the city gates be shut before sunset on Friday to prevent the entry of goods until the Sabbath was over. He also observed some merchants camping outside the wall, waiting for the Sabbath to end so they could sell their goods. Nehemiah warned them that he would arrest them if they returned, and after that, they no longer came back on the Sabbath.

Nehemiah instructed the Levites to purify themselves and guard the gates to ensure the sanctity of the Sabbath. The major reforms of the faith were handled by these two spiritual warriors—Ezra and Nehemiah.

Nehemiah also found that some Jews had married foreign women from Ashdod, Ammon, and Moab. Their children could not even speak the language of Judah. Nehemiah rebuked them severely—he beat some of them and pulled out their hair. He made the people swear an oath not to marry foreign women who did not fear God. He reminded them, “Was it not because of marriages like these that Solomon, king of Israel, sinned? Even though he was loved by God and was the wisest man, foreign women led him into sin.”

Nehemiah ordered the expulsion of a priest who had married a foreign woman. Both Ezra and Nehemiah took strong actions to enforce spiritual purity. Ezra, in grief, pulled out the hair from his head and beard and sat down in astonishment. Even today, there is a great danger in forming close relationships or yoking ourselves with people who do not honor God. This puts us in serious spiritual jeopardy.

Nehemiah prayed to God concerning those who had married foreign women. The people came near to Ezra, who was weeping and confessing, and they made a covenant with God to separate from their foreign wives in accordance with the Law. Ezra urged them to confess their sins and avoid further guilt in Israel.

Nehemiah’s prayers were marked by a firm purpose. There is a need for Nehemiahs in the church today—not just people who can pray and preach, but those whose prayers and preaching are strengthened by a resolute purpose, zeal, and deep desires.

Consider this: the all-wise and all-powerful God had no other way to save us except by coming to earth and enduring suffering and anguish. If He did that, we should recognize that the battle between good and evil is very intense. Jesus loves us more than we can comprehend—He loves us more than He loves Himself or than we love ourselves!

Perhaps the angels in heaven were the first to realize this truth. At first, some angels sided with Satan, while others remained with God but were not entirely sure of His great love. However, when they saw Jesus being humiliated, tortured, and finally killed, they were shocked and awed. Maybe they thought to themselves, "This God! How deeply He loves these human beings, even more than Himself!" This profound mystery will be told and cherished for all eternity.

After the chaos brought by Satan, the entire universe was at risk. But in His wisdom, God resolved the conflict once and for all. No one can deny that God loves us more than He loves Himself.

Let those who are spiritual reach out to these souls—pray with them and for them. Spend much time in prayer and in close study of the Word. Let everyone experience the truth of faith personally through the Holy Spirit, who will be given to those who hunger and thirst for righteousness.

Questions:

1. How did Nehemiah deal with those who conducted business on the Sabbath?

2. Why did Ezra pull out his beard?

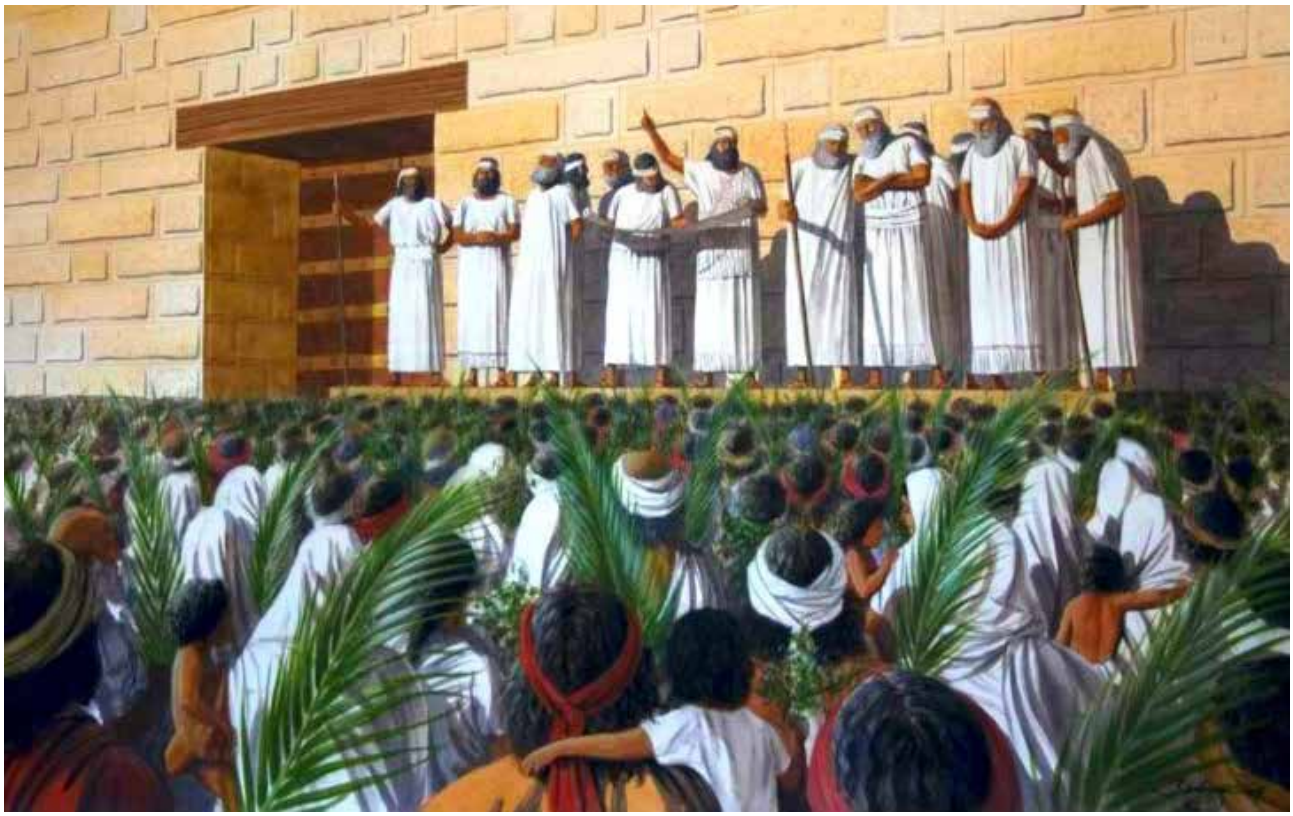
3. What sin did Solomon commit?

4. How many people returned to Jerusalem with Zerubbabel?

5. If a church leader today were to beat people and shave their heads to enforce spiritual reforms, how would the congregation react?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: Nehemiah 13:23-25.



[23,25] In those days also saw I Jews that had married wives of Ashdod, of Ammon, and of Moab; and their children spake half in the speech of Ashdod, and could not speak in the Jews' language, but according to the language of each people. And I contended with them, and cursed them, and smote certain of them, and plucked off their hair, and made them swear by God, saying, Ye shall not give your daughters unto their sons, nor take their daughters unto your sons, or for yourselves.

Prayer: Thank You Lord, help me to choose friends according to Your will and not my desires. And when the time comes to marry, help me to prepare to be a good person and find a good wife/husband so that I may remain faithful. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Discuss why Nehemiah was angry with the people who married unbelievers. Why was it important to know the Jewish language at that time? Talk about the dangers of friendship or marriage between a believer and an unbeliever.

DAY 149 (May 28)

TOPIC: Our God Will Fight for Us

As the cupbearer to the king of Persia, Nehemiah asked the people who had returned from Judah about the condition in Jerusalem. It had been 90 years since the first exiles returned to Judah. They told him that there was great distress and reproach because the wall of Jerusalem had been broken down and its gates burned with fire. Nehemiah sat down, wept, and mourned for several days, then fasted.

Indeed, prayer is a great secret to victory. He pleaded with God to listen to his prayers on behalf of His people, Israel. He said, “We have sinned, we have committed many evils against You, and we have not kept the commandments, statutes, or judgments that You commanded Your servant Moses.” He asked the LORD to incline His ear to His servants who feared Him and to grant them success. Nehemiah was a cupbearer to the king—a dangerous job because he had to taste the king’s drinks before the king did to ensure they were not poisoned.

King Art*axerxes was the ruler at that time, and Nehemiah served him wine. Nehemiah had never appeared sad before the king, but after hearing the news about Jerusalem, his heart was heavy. It was risky to show sadness before the king, as it might suggest hidden intentions or conspiracies.

The king asked Nehemiah why he was sad—was he sick? Nehemiah replied that he was not ill but had sadness of heart. He said to the king, "May the king live forever! Why should my face not be sad when the city where my ancestors are buried lies in ruins and its gates are burned with fire?" The king asked him what he wanted. Nehemiah responded, "If I have found favor in your sight, send me to Judah to rebuild the city where my ancestors are buried." The king, sitting beside the queen, asked how long the journey would take. Nehemiah gave him a time frame and also requested letters of authority for the leaders in Judah to support the work. He also asked for a letter to obtain timber and other materials. Nehemiah testified, "And the king granted my requests, because the gracious hand of my God was upon me."

Nehemiah arrived at the governors beyond the river, and the work of rebuilding began. However, when Sanballat and Tobiah the Ammonite heard that the work was progressing, they were disturbed because they opposed the work of the LORD. They mocked the builders. Tobiah said, "What they are building—even if a fox climbs on it, it will break down their stone wall." Despite their insults, Nehemiah continued to pray.

He inspected the work at night to avoid giving the opponents an opportunity to sabotage it. The people worked while also being on guard. They carried out the work with swords, spears, bows, and shields. Nehemiah stationed a trumpeter to sound the alarm if there was any danger because the workers were spread out. The builders did not remove their clothes when they slept and always carried their weapons, even when fetching water.

Nehemiah also instructed the people not to charge interest on loans to their fellow Jews or sell their brethren into slavery. Even today, it is a sin to exploit others with high-interest loans. Consult with those who fear God about what is just and fair. You may be oppressing the helpless without realizing it, but their cries reach their Father in heaven, and He will answer them.

Nehemiah believed, "Our God will fight for us," even amidst opposition. This same faith will sustain God's people during times of trouble. God is with us—but are we standing with and supporting others, or are we oppressing them?

The more God's people strive to do His will, the harder the enemy works to hinder them. Satan does not attack those who do nothing to disturb the kingdom of darkness but targets those who are doing God's work. Some may think that because Nehemiah prayed and trusted God, he and the people would not need to do anything about their difficult situation. However, it is crucial to understand that God expects His people to do everything they can on their part while fully trusting Him for protection. It is by doing both that God fights for them.

Words of encouragement from leaders carry great power during hard times. Nehemiah encouraged the people by saying, "Do not be afraid of them. Remember the Lord!"

Sanballat sent a message, inviting Nehemiah to meet in the plains, intending to harm him. But Nehemiah replied, "I am doing a great work and cannot come down. Why should the work stop while I leave it to go down to you?" Eventually, the enemies gave up, and Nehemiah finished the work.

The people gathered, and Ezra the scribe brought out the Law of Moses before the assembly. He read from dawn until noon before the people. Ezra praised the LORD, the great God, and the people responded, "Amen, Amen!" They lifted their hands and bowed down in worship.

Some of the people wept because they realized they had forgotten God's law and committed many sins. Their hearts were moved. Ezra told them to go home and celebrate, not to mourn, because they had confessed their sins and God had helped them complete the work. He said, "The joy of the LORD is your strength."

The next day, they gathered again, read the Law, and discovered the Feast of Tabernacles. They cut branches and made booths, living in them for seven days. It had been a long time since this feast was celebrated. Even today, many people still observe the Feast of Tabernacles. Does your church celebrate the Feast of Tabernacles?

Ezra praised the LORD and gave Him glory. He recounted the history of God's faithfulness, from choosing Abraham to the people's sins that led to their exile. The people made a covenant to turn away from evil so they could be free and blessed. Different family leaders sealed the covenant.

Nehemiah stayed in Jerusalem for 12 years, then returned to serve the king before coming back to oversee the community. He also addressed social issues, such as helping families without charging interest and removing unworthy individuals from temple service. The people began to faithfully give tithes and offerings again.

The Scriptures encourage us to “pray without ceasing.” This does not mean spending all our time on our knees in formal prayer. Rather, it means living with a prayerful heart in all circumstances—whether on a bus, at school, washing dishes, or in church. You do not always need to close your eyes to pray; you can lift up holy hands without anger or disputing (1 Timothy 2:8). If a police officer says, “Hands up,” you obey—why not lift your hands to God in surrender and worship? One day, every knee will bow, and every tongue will confess that Jesus Christ is Lord.

Prayer is our communication with God. He speaks to us through His Word, and we respond through prayer. God always listens to us. We cannot weary Him with our prayers.

We are living in challenging times. The events in our world require every follower of Christ to be deeply committed to their relationship with God. To strengthen this relationship and meet our emotional, social, physical, financial, and spiritual needs, we must learn the power of prayer. We should plead with the Lord, as the disciples did, saying, “Lord, teach us to pray.”

We must emphasize three key elements in our prayers: Sincerity, Diligence, and Fervency. Research these words to understand their profound meaning and share your findings with us!

Intercessory prayer is a ministry that even children and youth can participate in. God is our Father, and we can speak to Him at any time about our concerns and the needs of others. Write down your prayers so that when they are answered, you can remember to give thanks.

We must remain focused on the work God has given us. The enemy wants us to stop, but we must press on and keep praying.

Questions:

1. Why was Nehemiah sad?
2. What was the name of the king who ruled at that time?
3. What did the king give Nehemiah?
4. Why did Nehemiah and the builders carry weapons?
5. What message did Sanballat send?
6. Why did Nehemiah say he could not come down from the wall?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: Nehemiah 9:6,7.

[6,7] Let Your ear be attentive and Your eyes open, that You may hear the prayer of Your servant, which I pray before You now, day and night, for the children of Israel Your servants, and confess the sins of the children of Israel, which we have sinned against You. Both I and my father's house have sinned. We have dealt very corruptly against You, and have not kept the commandments, nor the statutes, nor the judgments, which You commanded Your servant Moses.

Prayer: Lord, we pray that You hear our prayers. We confess our sins. Yes, we have sinned against You by not keeping the laws and judgments You set in the Bible. Fill us with Your Holy Spirit so we may have enmity with sin. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Nehemiah serving as the king's cupbearer, and his conversation with the king.

DAY 150 (May 29)

TOPIC: The Lord Says, "Come, Let Us Reason Together"

The prophet Isaiah wrote around 700 B.C. Isaiah came from a royal lineage. The name Isaiah means "Salvation is of the LORD." The Book of Isaiah is called the Gospel Book of the Old Testament because of its prophecies about the Messiah. The prophets who lived during Isaiah's time included Hosea and Micah. A prophet does not only foretell the future but also speaks to the people on behalf of God. In this passage, the nation is called to return to God.

Israel had committed evil. They carved wood—some pieces were used for firewood, others for building, and others were made into idols to worship. This was a great sorrow. Israel was a wealthy and powerful nation but became poor in just 200 years because they disobeyed God's commandments and worshipped foreign gods. They broke God's laws. The LORD had sent many prophets over the years to call them back from evil ways and to keep His commandments, but they hardened their hearts and continued to worship idols. If they had remained faithful to God, these blessings would still be with them today. They would have enjoyed honor and wealth, and the LORD would have protected them from their enemies. Their cities would have been examples of beauty, success, and order. The sins they committed were serious, and the consequences were heavy.

The first half of the book of Isaiah emphasizes the need for salvation; the second half presents the prophecy of the Savior. He calls heaven and earth to witness what He says. First, we must recognize our condition, then we will be in the right state to humble ourselves before God and ask for forgiveness, cleansing, and strength to resist temptation and live pure lives. God is not pleased with religious rituals that lack sincerity of heart; He desires true worship from the heart and a living, joyful relationship with each of us.

We thank our dear Almighty God for caring so much as to reveal our sins and offer us a remedy. I must always be ready to follow where He leads. In Jesus' name, Amen.

Isaiah spoke words of warning and encouragement to his people. He lived during the reigns of Kings Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah of Judah. This means he lived during the last seven kings of Israel, from Jeroboam II to Hoshea. His prophecies were not only for Judah but also for Moab, Damascus, Egypt, Tyre, Edom, Arabia, Babylon, Philistia, and even the fall of Satan in heaven (Isaiah 14). The kings Hezekiah and Sennacherib are mentioned here, as well as how Hezekiah was healed of his illness but failed to give testimony of God's great works and instead displayed his wealth and pride.

Through Isaiah, the LORD said, "I reared children and brought them up, but they have rebelled against Me. The ox knows its owner, and the donkey its master's crib, but Israel does not know, My people do not understand." Woe to the sinful nation, a people burdened with iniquity, offspring of evildoers, children who deal corruptly! They have forsaken the LORD, they have despised the Holy One of Israel, they are utterly estranged.

Because of their disobedience, the Lord asked them, "Why do you bring so many sacrifices before Me? What are they to Me?" The LORD wanted them to wash themselves, cleanse their sins, seek justice, defend the oppressed, and plead the case of the widow and the orphan. He said to them, "Come now, let us reason together," says the LORD. "Though your sins are like scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they are red as crimson, they shall become like wool. But if you resist and rebel, you will be devoured by the sword."

In the year that King Uzziah died, Isaiah saw the Lord seated on a throne, high and exalted. He saw seraphim, each with six wings: with two wings they covered their faces, with two they covered their feet, and with two they flew. They praised God's glory, saying, "Holy, Holy, Holy is the LORD Almighty; the whole earth is full of His glory." The temple was filled with smoke from the LORD's glory. Isaiah cried out, "Woe to me! I am ruined! For I am a man of unclean lips, and I live among a people of unclean lips, and my eyes have seen the King, the LORD Almighty."

One of the seraphim flew to him with a live coal from the altar, touched his mouth, and said, "Your guilt is taken away, and your sin is atoned for." Then Isaiah heard the voice of the Lord saying, "Whom shall I send? And who will go for us?" Isaiah responded humbly, "Here am I. Send me." This vision never left Isaiah's thoughts. In times of trouble, he knew that the LORD was on the throne and in control. He spoke words of comfort to the people, telling them that one day God would send a Redeemer, and the government would be on His shoulders. He would be called "Wonderful Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace," and His reign would never end.

Isaiah encouraged the people by saying, "Though the mountains be shaken, My kindness will never depart from you." He also urged, "Seek the LORD while He may be found."

Isaiah described heaven in chapters 35, 65, and 66. The lame will leap, the blind will see, and the deaf will hear. There will be no death in heaven or the new earth. The lion will eat straw like an ox, and wolves and lambs will feed together. Isaiah reminds us to lift our voices like trumpets and speak out against wrongdoing. He says that the feet of those who bring the Good News of God's kingdom, peace, and salvation are beautiful.

Do you want to have beautiful feet? Beautiful feet are not just about appearance—they represent carrying the light of God's Word to others. Although you may be young, the LORD has given you His Spirit and called you to share the Good News, to heal the brokenhearted, comfort those who mourn, set the captives free, and proclaim that Jesus Christ is coming back.

God is willing and ready to listen and answer our heartfelt prayers in all situations, which is a great comfort. He is a loving Father who cares when things go well and when life's hardships bring sorrow, pain, and fear. When we feel like crying out, "God, where are You?" it is reassuring to know that He is near through prayer. Just as Isaiah was given a heavy message to deliver, we are entrusted with the same message of the Messiah today.

Oh, if only sincere and faith-filled prayers would arise everywhere! "Give me souls buried in the mire of sin, or else I die!" Bring them to the knowledge of the Truth as it is in Jesus.

Questions:

1. What was Isaiah's relationship with the kingdom?

2. What prophecies did Isaiah give about the Messiah?

3. What did Isaiah see the year King Uzziah died?

4. How many types of angels are mentioned?

5. If God asks, "Whom shall I send?" how will you respond?

6. Why did Israel lose its wealth?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Isaiah 35:4-6

[4-6] Say to those with fearful hearts, "Be strong, do not fear; your God will come, He will come with vengeance; with divine retribution He will come to save you." Then will the eyes of the blind be opened and the ears of the deaf unstopped. Then will the lame leap like a deer, and the mute tongue shout for joy. Water will gush forth in the wilderness and streams in the desert.

Prayer:
Thank You, Lord, because You have prepared a new heaven and a new earth, and You have told us not to be afraid. We rejoice to hear that the eyes of the blind will be opened and that all who are sick or suffering will be healed. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity:

1. Place your hands on a sheet of paper and trace around them with a pencil or pen.

2. Write the words "I have called you by name, you are Mine" from Isaiah 43 inside the outline, then above it write the message: "God has written my name in His hand."

3. Make a megaphone out of a paper plate and hold it close to your mouth as you say: "Here am I, send me, Lord" in connection with Isaiah's call to be a prophet (Isaiah 6:8).

DAY 151 – May 30

TOPIC: More Messages from Isaiah

Israel, which was the chosen nation, became proud, and Isaiah compares them to proud daughters or women who walk with outstretched necks and seductive eyes, walking with graceful steps and jingling ornaments on their feet. A warning was given that the LORD would strike them with scabs on their heads and expose their nakedness. The LORD would take away their beauty—the anklets, earrings, bracelets, headbands, sashes, perfume bottles, charms, signet rings, fine robes, purses, mirrors, linen garments, and veils. Instead of fragrance, there will be stench; instead of a sash, a rope; instead of well-set hair, baldness; instead of fine clothing, sackcloth; and branding instead of beauty. Their men will fall by the sword, and mourning will follow.

Isaiah was known as a major prophet because his book is longer than other prophetic books. The book of Isaiah is considered the Gospel of the Old Testament. The Gospel is the good news of humanity's redemption through Jesus Christ, who was prophesied in Isaiah's writings. The good news is about Jesus' birth, His life among people, His death, and resurrection. While Isaiah continued to talk about the physical captivity of the Israelites, he also emphasized the coming of the Messiah who would deliver us from spiritual bondage—a bondage far more severe and with greater consequences than physical captivity. If we do not escape this spiritual bondage, we will be lost forever.

The prophet Isaiah was shown the suffering of the Messiah and the life He would live, as described in Isaiah 53:
He was despised and rejected by men,
A man of sorrows and acquainted with grief;
And like one from whom people hide their faces,
He was despised, and we did not value Him.
Surely, He has borne our griefs and carried our sorrows;
Yet we considered Him stricken,
Smitten by God, and afflicted.
But He was pierced for our transgressions,
He was crushed for our iniquities;
The punishment that brought us peace was upon Him,
And by His wounds, we are healed.

All of us, like sheep, have gone astray;
Each of us has turned to our own way,
And the LORD has laid on Him the iniquity of us all.
He was oppressed and afflicted, yet He did not open His mouth;
By oppression and judgment, He was taken away.
Yet who of His generation considered
That He was cut off from the land of the living
For the transgression of my people He was punished.
He was assigned a grave with the wicked,
And though He had done no violence,
Nor was any deceit in His mouth,
He bore the sins of many and was numbered with the transgressors.

When people later read this prophecy, they understood the mission of the Messiah—to come and save people. Today, as we read this prophecy, let us accept Him, so He may see the results of His suffering and be satisfied, making many righteous and preparing us to one day enter heaven.

We will plant gardens and enjoy the work of our hands forever. If there is anything our families love with all our hearts, it is a garden! We will be descendants of the blessed ones, and before we even ask, we will receive answers. Won't it be joyful to touch lions and live peacefully with animals that were once fierce before sin? There will be nothing to harm us anymore.

It will be a new heaven and a new earth. We will gather for worship from one new moon to another, and from one Sabbath to another, to worship before the LORD, says the LORD.

The LORD will keep in perfect peace those whose hearts trust in Him. Let us trust and depend on the LORD. Isaiah speaks of the return from Babylonian captivity and concludes with the prophecy of a new heaven and a new earth, where there will be no more wars, no more suffering, no more violence, no more fear, no more worries, no more hunger, no more thirst, no more sorrow, no more crying, and no more death. People will live peacefully as friends everywhere. This was Isaiah's message of hope during troubled times.

Today, we live in troubled times too—let us take heart and seek the face of the LORD. Just as a mother comforts her child, so will the LORD comfort us, and our hearts will rejoice, and our bones will flourish.

Bring your needs, your joys, your sorrows, your worries, and your fears before GOD. You cannot overburden Him; you cannot exhaust Him. He who counts the hairs on your head is not indifferent to the needs of His children. The LORD is full of compassion and mercy (James 5:11). His loving heart is touched by our grief, even when we voice it. Bring to Him every matter that troubles your mind.

There is nothing too great for Him to bear because He upholds the universe. Nothing that concerns our peace is too small for Him to notice. No part of our experience is too dark for Him to read; no problem is too difficult for Him to resolve. No disaster can befall even the least of His children without His knowledge. No anxiety weighs on the heart, no joy brings delight, no sincere prayer escapes His attention. "He heals the brokenhearted and binds up their wounds" (Psalm 147:3).

The relationship between GOD and every soul is as distinct and complete as if there were no other soul on earth to share His care or as if He had given His beloved Son for that soul alone.

Begin to pray for souls; draw close to Christ, near to His side that was pierced for you. Let the spirit of gentleness and peace adorn your life. Let your sincere and humble prayers rise to Him for wisdom—not only to save your soul but also to save others.

Questions:

1. What wonderful things will be in heaven?

2. What does Isaiah 53 say about Jesus or the Messiah?

3. What are the characteristics of the daughters of Zion?

4. Why will there be no death in heaven?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Isaiah 40:28-31

[28-31] Do you not know? Have you not heard? The Lord is the everlasting God, the Creator of the ends of the earth. He will not grow tired or weary, and His understanding no one can fathom. He gives strength to the weary and increases the power of the weak. Even youths grow tired and weary, and young men stumble and fall; but those who hope in the Lord will renew their strength. They will soar on wings like eagles; they will run and not grow weary, they will walk and not be faint.

Prayer:
Thank You, Lord, because You do not grow tired or weary, and You give us new strength so that we can soar high and run without fainting or growing weary. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity:
Read Isaiah 3:16-24, 10, 11. Act it out by putting jingles on your feet, skipping around, and then reading these verses aloud.

DAY 152 (May 31)

TOPIC: The Message of the Prophet Jeremiah

(Baruch the Scribe - 625 BC)

Jeremiah warned about the destruction that was coming upon Judah and urged the nation to confess, turn away from evil, and return to God. He reminds us that "the heart is deceitful above all things and beyond cure—who can understand it?" He was given a heavy message for the people of Judah and Jerusalem. Although he loved Judah, he loved God even more. Despite the sorrowful message, he delivered it and prayed for mercy. We too must obey God, even in difficult situations, for in all things, God works for the good of those who love Him and are called according to His purpose.

The scribe of the prophet Jeremiah was called Baruch. He was willing to suffer, even though he came from a wealthy family, to assist the prophet in his work. Other main characters in this book include the kings of Judah, King Nebuchadnezzar, the Rechabites, and Ebed-Melech the Cushite. Jeremiah's father was Hilkiah the priest.

When the good King Josiah was killed by Pharaoh Neco of Egypt, there was great confusion in the kingdom of Judah. The Assyrian empire, which had dominated the region, had collapsed, and even its famous city of Nineveh had been destroyed. Egypt and Babylon were at war, fighting over the remnants of Assyria. Pharaoh Neco took King Jehoahaz, who reigned for only three months. Jeremiah began his prophetic work during the reign of Josiah, king of Judah. He also continued during the reign of Josiah's son, Jehoiakim, and later during the reign of Zedekiah.

The word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, saying, "Before I formed you in the womb, I knew you; before you were born, I set you apart; I appointed you as a prophet to the nations." Jeremiah, being a young man, said, "Ah, Sovereign Lord, I do not know how to speak; I am only a child." But the Lord told him, "Do not say, 'I am only a child.' You must go to everyone I send you to and say whatever I command you. Do not be afraid of them, for I am with you and will rescue you," declares the Lord. Then the Lord reached out His hand and touched Jeremiah's mouth, saying, "I have put My words in your mouth. See, today I appoint you over nations and kingdoms to uproot and tear down, to destroy and overthrow, to build and to plant."

Young children should know that they too are God's servants. Jeremiah was called while still a child—so if God calls you, be ready at all times. Let His hands touch your mouth, and do not be afraid.

Jeremiah lived both before and after Judah was taken captive to Babylon. He wept bitterly and is known as the "weeping prophet." He wrote the book of Lamentations, where he mourned for Jerusalem, describing how all the mighty men had been taken away, leaving the city desolate. Later, Jeremiah wrote a letter to the exiles in Babylon, telling them to build houses and live in them, plant gardens and eat their produce, and allow their children to marry. He urged them to pray for the peace of the city where they were exiled because they would remain there for seventy years before returning home.

Jeremiah also spoke about the leaders of God's people who received wages but were unwilling to shepherd God's flock. The Lord instructed Jeremiah to go to the potter's house to learn that God is the potter and we are the clay. Can the clay tell the potter how to shape it? God also told Jeremiah to break a clay jar to symbolize how He would destroy the people who worship Baal and offer their children as sacrifices. Just as the potter's broken vessel could not be repaired, so would God destroy those who disobey Him.

When Pashhur the priest heard these prophecies, he beat Jeremiah and put him in stocks at the upper gate of Benjamin. Jeremiah told Pashhur that he and his people would go into exile. Jeremiah lamented, saying, "O Lord, You deceived me, and I was deceived; You overpowered me and prevailed. I am ridiculed all day long; everyone mocks me." Whenever he spoke, he cried out about violence and destruction. At times, he wanted to remain silent because of the ridicule, but the message was like a fire burning in his bones—he could not hold it in.

Jeremiah told King Zedekiah that God wanted him to obey King Nebuchadnezzar and keep his promises; but Zedekiah refused. When the Babylonians returned, because Zedekiah failed to pay tribute and submit to them, he fled the city. Nebuzaradan captured him and brought him to Nebuchadnezzar in Babylon.

There, Zedekiah's sons were killed before his eyes, and then his own eyes were gouged out. It would have been better if he had heeded Jeremiah's words.

Babylon laid siege to the city, and there was a great famine. It had been 400 years since David ruled, and things had changed drastically. The Lord told Jeremiah to place a yoke on his neck to symbolize that the nations would be under Babylon's yoke. Hananiah broke the yoke, but the Lord declared that they would now have an iron yoke. Hananiah, the false prophet who misled the people with lies, died as a result.

When Jehudi read the scroll to King Jehoiakim, instead of repenting, the king burned the scroll despite pleas not to destroy the word of God. Jeremiah was later thrown into a cistern filled with mud. Ebed-Melech the Cushite approached the king and requested permission to rescue Jeremiah. The king allowed him to take thirty men to lift Jeremiah out of the cistern.

Gedaliah was appointed governor over the people who remained in Judah. Nebuzaradan, the commander of Babylon's army, gave Jeremiah the option to stay with Gedaliah or go to Babylon. Jeremiah warned the people not to go to Egypt or elsewhere, but they did not listen, and eventually, Gedaliah was assassinated.

God knows the plans He has for us—plans to prosper us and not to harm us, plans to give us a future and a hope. He promised, "Then you will call on Me and come and pray to Me, and I will listen to you. You will seek Me and find Me when you seek Me with all your heart."

The Rechabites were a nomadic group known for their strict adherence to their ancestral commands—they did not drink wine, build houses, sow seeds, or plant vineyards (Jeremiah 35:6-7). Their loyalty stretched for over 200 years, from the time of Jehu (2 Kings 10:15) to Jeremiah's era. God used their faithfulness to teach Israel a lesson in obedience.

The Lord instructed Jeremiah to invite the Rechabites to the temple and offer them wine (Jeremiah 35:2). They refused, remaining faithful to their father Jonadab's command. Because of their obedience, God promised that Jonadab's descendants would always serve Him (Jeremiah 35:19).

We learn much from the Rechabites. They resisted cultural pressures and remained faithful to their principles. God desires His people to live in obedience and steadfastness.

Reflection Questions:

1. What did God say to Jeremiah when he claimed he was only a child?

2. Why is Jeremiah known as the “weeping prophet”?

3. What wrong did Pashhur commit?

4. What good thing did Ebed-Melech do?

5. What does “The heart is deceitful and beyond cure” mean?

6. What remarkable thing did the Rechabites do?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Jeremiah 29:11-13

[11-13] “For I know the plans I have for you,” declares the Lord, “plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future. Then you will call on Me and come and pray to Me, and I will listen to you. You will seek Me and find Me when you seek Me with all your heart.”

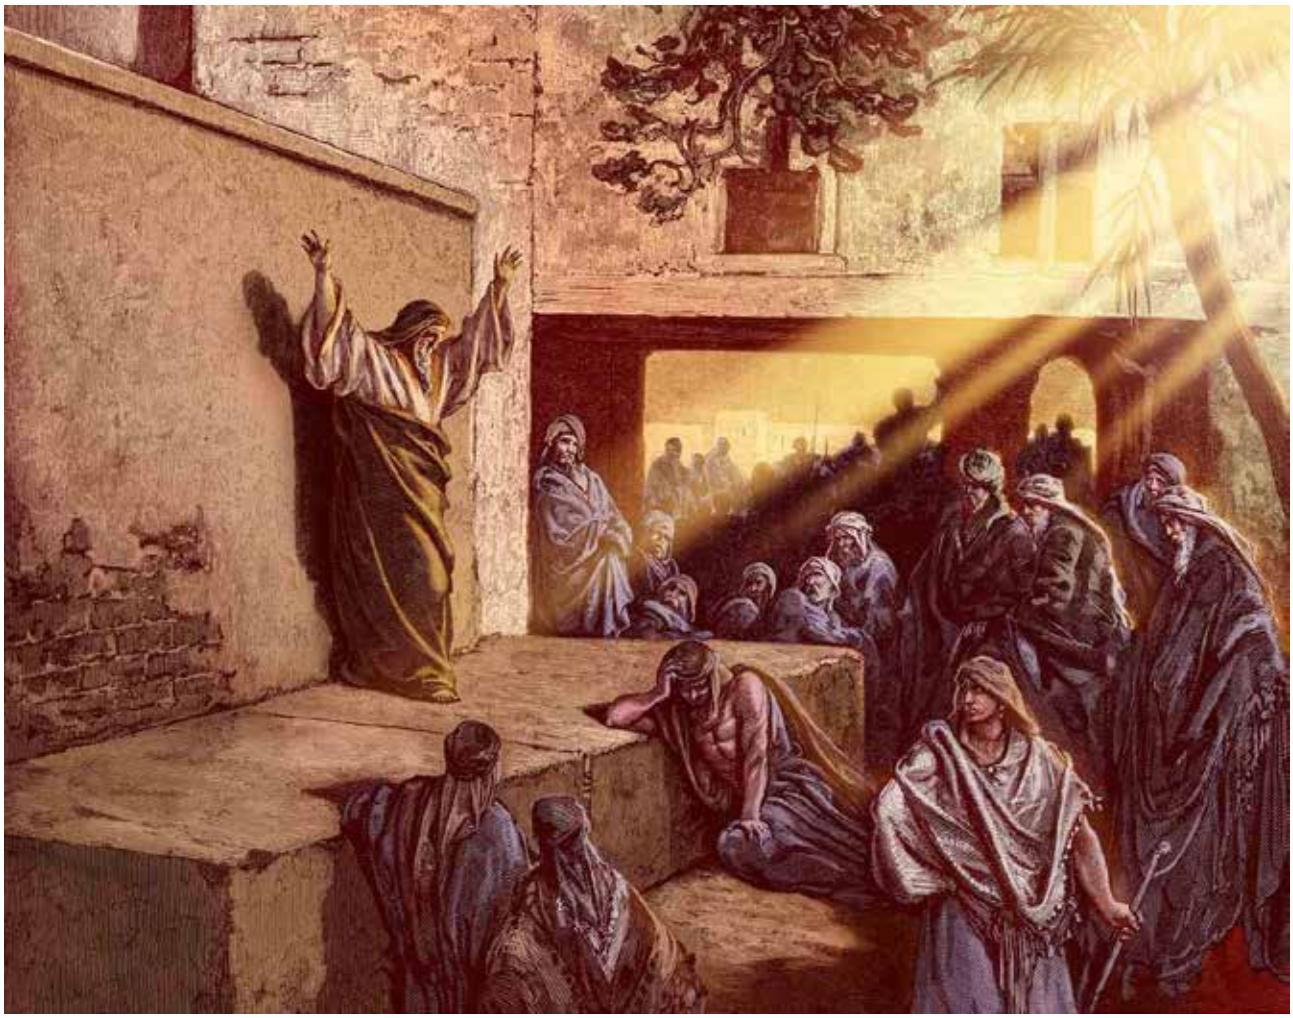
Prayer:
Lord, thank You because You think only good thoughts towards us, and I call upon You and pray. Thank You for listening to me; I seek You with all my heart and I know I will find You, my Redeemer. In Jesus Christ’s Name, Amen.

Activity:

1. What do we know about Jeremiah?

2. What is his message? Is this message important in my life today?

3. Can I see Jesus in this chapter?



4. Can I see the Great Controversy between Christ and Satan in this chapter?

5. What will my response to the message be?

6. Why is Jeremiah called a watchman prophet?

DAY 153 (June 1)

TOPIC: The Further Message of Jeremiah

Everything that Jeremiah prophesied about Jerusalem came to pass. Many people were taken into exile, including Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah. The good thing is that these individuals continued to worship God in a foreign land. Their troubles drew them closer to God, and they were even willing to die for their faith. Although many call Jeremiah the "weeping prophet," and he indeed wrote the book of Lamentations, he was not the only one crying! Our God also weeps for His children when they put themselves in suffering. Sometimes, when reading the book of Jeremiah, it is hard to tell whether it is Jeremiah crying or God Himself!

Truly, the passage in John 3:16-17 is absolutely true—both in the Old and New Testaments:
"For God so loved the world that He gave His one and only Son, that whoever believes in Him shall not perish but have eternal life. For God did not send His Son into the world to condemn the world, but to save the world through Him."

Indeed, our God sheds tears for us when we place ourselves in pain and distress. Today, as we hear His voice, let us not harden our hearts. His commandments are for our benefit and the benefit of our fellow human beings! In Zephaniah 3, God also rejoices over us with singing when we do not harm ourselves or others—when we live with true love. Today, let us pray for that true love—to love our neighbors as ourselves and to love God with all our hearts, minds, strength, and souls. In the glorious name of the Messiah, Amen! And then, the world will be like heaven on earth!

The Lord said, "Let not the wise boast of their wisdom or the strong boast of their strength or the rich boast of their riches, but let the one who boasts boast about this: that they have the understanding to know Me, that I am the Lord, who exercises kindness, justice, and righteousness on earth." (Jeremiah 9:23-24)

He also told them that even the birds of the sky know when to migrate, but His people do not understand. Jeremiah emphasizes that God's people should not rely on humans more than God. "Cursed is the one who trusts in man, who draws strength from mere flesh and whose heart turns away from the Lord. But blessed is the one who trusts in the Lord, whose confidence is in Him. They will be like a tree planted by the water." (Jeremiah 17:5-8)

The book of Lamentations is a collection of poems or songs of sorrow and mourning. The title reflects Jeremiah as a prophet who laments. He wrote it after the Babylonians (or Chaldeans) destroyed Jerusalem. He describes how the faces of the elders were no longer respected, and young men were forced into hard labor. Even compassionate women resorted to eating their own children.

Jeremiah wrote Lamentations after the fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C.. He had prophesied its downfall and witnessed it firsthand. The book reflects his deep emotional distress and teaches us that disobedience to God brings suffering and pain. Jeremiah pours out his sorrows to the Lord and prays for mercy.

"How deserted lies the city, once so full of people! How like a widow is she, who once was great among the nations!" (Lamentations 1:1)

Jeremiah knew the people had sinned, but perhaps he did not expect that God would use idol-worshiping nations to punish those who knew Him. Yet, in the midst of this sorrow, he finds hope:

“Because of the Lord’s great love we are not consumed, for His compassions never fail. They are new every morning; great is Your faithfulness. I say to myself, ‘The Lord is my portion; therefore, I will wait for Him.’ The Lord is good to those whose hope is in Him, to the one who seeks Him. It is good to wait quietly for the salvation of the Lord.” (Lamentations 3:22-26)

God sees the foolishness of many of us and says:
“My people are fools; they do not know Me. They are senseless children; they have no understanding. They are skilled in doing evil; they know not how to do good.” (Jeremiah 4:22, NKJV)

Prayer:
Dear God, I am a teacher whether I want to be or not. People learn from my words and actions. Please teach me how to be a good teacher who honors You. Let others see Your words and actions through my life, and may they be drawn to You. Amen.

This work requires you to care for souls as someone who must give an account for them. The gentleness of Christ must fill the heart of the intercessor. If you love souls, you will show genuine concern for them. You will offer humble, sincere, and heartfelt prayers for those you visit. The fragrance of Christ’s love will be evident in your work. The One who gave His life for the world will cooperate with the selfless worker to touch human hearts.

Questions:

1. What was the benefit of being exiled to Babylon?

2. What is the book of Lamentations about?

3. According to Jeremiah, what is the only reason to boast?

4. Why is the one who trusts in man cursed?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Memory Verses in this book

Jeremiah 6:16 – This is what the Lord says: “Stand at the crossroads and look; ask for the ancient paths, ask where the good way is, and walk in it, and you will find rest for your souls. But you said, ‘We will not walk in it.’”

Jeremiah 33:3 – “Call to Me and I will answer you and tell you great and unsearchable things you do not know.”

Jeremiah 1:5-7 – The word of the Lord came to me, saying, “Before I formed you in the womb I knew you, before you were born I set you apart; I appointed you as a prophet to the nations.” “Alas, Sovereign Lord,” I said, “I do not know how to speak; I am too young.” But the Lord said to me, “Do not say, ‘I am too young.’ You must go to everyone I send you to and say whatever I command you.”

Jeremiah 17:5 – This is what the Lord says: “Cursed is the one who trusts in man, who draws strength from mere flesh and whose heart turns away from the Lord.”

Prayer:
Thank You, Lord, that You knew us even before we were in our mothers’ wombs, and You set us apart to do Your work. We are ready to go where You send us; help us to obey You. We call to You and we know You will answer and show us great and unsearchable things we do not know. In Jesus Christ’s Name, Amen.

Activity:
Make clay pots or visit a potter, and then read and reflect on the lesson about what it means.

DAY 154 (June 2)

TOPIC: The Prophet Ezekiel

Ezekiel was taken captive during the second invasion of Jerusalem by the Chaldeans. He lived during the same period as Daniel. Ezekiel received visions while in exile in Babylon near the Kebar River. He emphasizes individual responsibility, while the Israelites believed they would either be saved or perish together. Often, God instructed him to perform symbolic actions as signs of his prophetic message. God refers to Ezekiel as "Son of Man," representing humanity. Jesus was also called the Son of Man. Ezekiel encouraged the people by telling them that their captivity would end, and God would bring them back home.

Nebuchadnezzar treated them kindly, giving them fertile land to cultivate, and they built homes. Some lived in cities and even became wealthy. Others worked in the king's palace or his administration and held high positions, such as ministers. Ezekiel, the son of Buzi, was 30 years old when he began his prophetic ministry, five years after being taken to Babylon, which is approximately 570 B.C. The name Ezekiel means “God strengthens.” Ezekiel ministered to people who were shameless and had hardened hearts. God promised to restore their glory after judgment so that everyone would know that He is the LORD.

One day, Ezekiel had a vision in which he saw the heavens open and four living creatures. Above them was the throne of God, which appeared like sapphire. He fell face down and heard a voice speaking to him. These four living beings had a human appearance but each had four faces and four wings. Their legs were straight and gleamed like polished bronze. Each being had the face of a human in front, a lion on the right, an ox on the left, and an eagle at the back.

These visions were beyond his understanding and left him confused due to their complexity. Yet, Ezekiel witnessed remarkable harmony, for the creatures moved with perfect accuracy and unity. The Spirit is mentioned ten times in the first three chapters of Ezekiel. It was the Spirit who directed and coordinated the various powers. The Spirit brought order to what seemed mysterious. Indeed, the Spirit is the main hero of the book of Ezekiel. Even today, the Spirit of God remains the greatest hero and Leader in our work. Let us remember that He can bring order from chaos, harmony from conflict, unity from division, and life to dry bones. “Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit,” says the LORD of Hosts (Zechariah 4:6).

Some of the symbolic actions Ezekiel performed to deliver God’s message include:

1. Lying on his left side for 390 days and on his right side for 40 days to symbolize the years of Israel and Judah’s punishment.

2. Preparing bread from mixed grains—wheat, barley, beans, lentils, and millet—and eating it for 390 days, symbolizing scarcity and famine. He was instructed to cook it over human dung to signify the defilement of the people, but after pleading with God, he was allowed to use cow dung instead.

3. Shaving his head and beard with a sharp sword, dividing the hair into three parts: burning a third in the city, striking a third with a sword, and scattering the last third to the wind. This symbolized that a third of the people would die by famine, another third by the sword, and the rest would be scattered in exile.

4. Digging through a wall during the day while people watched and carrying his belongings on his shoulders at night. This demonstrated how the people would be taken into captivity in sorrow and shame, covering their faces because they would never see their homeland again.

Ezekiel was commanded to eat his food and drink his water trembling to show how the people of Jerusalem would eat in fear as their land became desolate. Although Ezekiel faithfully conveyed these warnings, people mocked him, saying, “The days are prolonged, and every vision fails!” Indeed, a deaf ear will not listen to instruction.

God also told Ezekiel that He would kindle a fire in the Negev forest that would consume every green and dry tree, a fire that would not be quenched. Enemies would come and destroy many people. Despite these warnings, the people dismissed him, saying, “He only speaks in riddles.”

God instructed Ezekiel to demonstrate a sword striking twice or even three times, symbolizing the severity of the judgment. He was told to cry out in anguish to reflect the pain that would come upon the people through their enemies.

One day, God told Ezekiel that his beloved wife would die, but he was forbidden from mourning or weeping openly. Instead, he was to grieve silently. When asked the meaning of this, he explained that the temple—their pride and joy—along with their sons and daughters would be destroyed. The people would not publicly mourn but would grieve in silence.

God compared Israel and Judah to two sisters, Oholah and Oholibah, who were unfaithful and engaged in immoral relationships with many lovers instead of being loyal to one husband. In this metaphor, God portrays His people as a pure bride and views idolatry as spiritual adultery. Just as marital unfaithfulness brings pain and destruction, turning to other gods brings serious consequences to both individuals and the community.

Ezekiel was also instructed to take two sticks—one labeled “Judah” and the other “Joseph”—and join them together. This act symbolized that God would reunite the divided kingdoms of Israel and Judah, cleanse them, and restore them to live in peace under His rule.

Pray for Blessings to Bless Others

Our prayers should not be selfish or solely for our benefit. We should pray so that we can bless others. The principle of Christ’s life must be our guiding principle. Speaking about His disciples, Jesus said, “For their sakes, I sanctify Myself, that they also may be sanctified" (John 17:19). The same selflessness, the same dedication, and the same obedience to God's Word shown in Christ must be reflected in His servants.

Our mission to the world is not to serve ourselves or seek our own pleasure. We are called to glorify God by working with Him to save sinners. We should seek God's blessings not just for our own gain but so that we may share them with others. The capacity to receive is maintained by giving. We cannot continue to receive the treasures of heaven without sharing them with those around us.

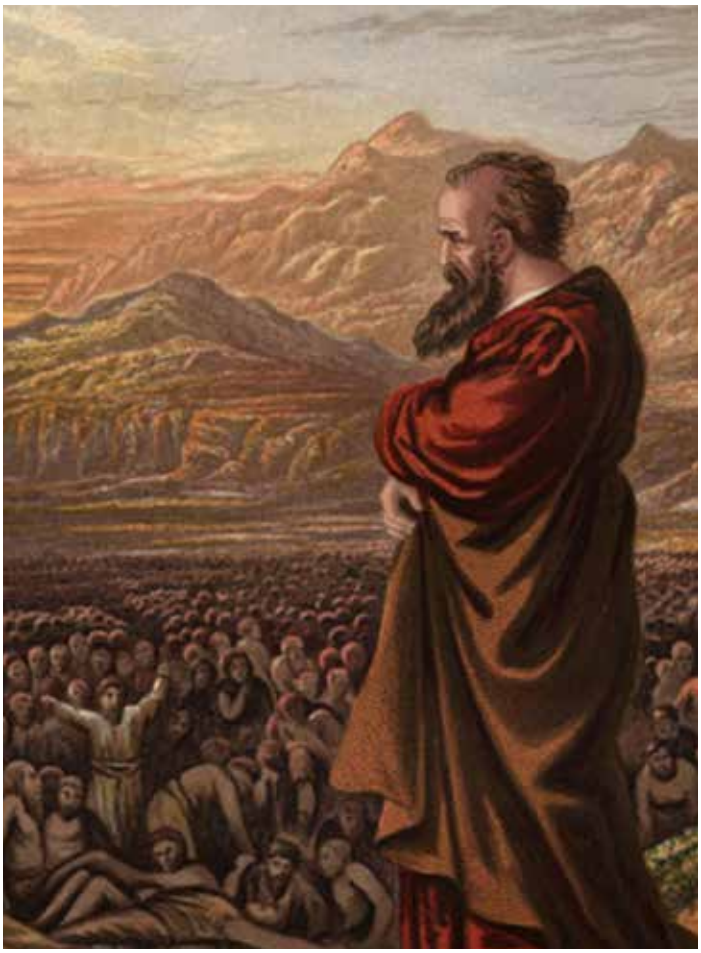
Questions:

1. Mention four symbolic actions that Ezekiel was instructed to perform to deliver God's message.

2. What were the four faces of the living creatures?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Ezekiel 18:21, 30-32



[21, 30-32] "But if a wicked person turns away from all the sins they have committed and keeps all My decrees and does what is just and right, that person will surely live; they will not die. … Therefore, you Israelites, I will judge each of you according to your own ways, declares the Sovereign Lord. Repent! Turn away from all your offenses; then sin will not be your downfall. Rid yourselves of all the offenses you have committed, and get a new heart and a new spirit. Why will you die, people of Israel? For I take no pleasure in the death of anyone, declares the Sovereign Lord. Repent and live!"

Prayer:
Thank You, Lord, because You do not delight in the death of the wicked. I return to You, repent, and turn from my sins by Your grace. I ask for a new heart and a new spirit. In the glorious Name of Your Son, Amen.

DAY 155 (June 3)

TOPIC: Ezekiel's Message Continues

Ezekiel was not called to preach to people far away, but to his own people. Preaching to your friends and family can be challenging. Indeed, his calling was difficult because those people did not listen. Effective evangelism is God's work; He is not limited by our weaknesses. This is both good news and a humbling truth. It is humbling because, even if you are the most eloquent speaker and skilled in every aspect of evangelism, without the Spirit of God, you will not succeed in reaching the lost. Our calling from God today is not very different from Ezekiel's time. Our response should also be one of obedience and complete surrender to God. Then He will come to you and make all the difference in your life.

While in Babylon, the Jews never forgot their homeland. Consider the words of Psalm 137:
"By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down, yea, we wept when we remembered Zion. We hung our harps upon the willows in the midst thereof. For there, those who carried us away captive required of us a song; and those who tormented us required joy, saying, 'Sing us one of the songs of Zion!' How shall we sing the LORD's song in a strange land? If I forget you, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her skill. Let my tongue cling to the roof of my mouth if I do not remember you, if I do not prefer Jerusalem above my chief joy."

Ezekiel prophesied that Edom would be defeated, Tyre would be invaded by other nations and never rebuilt, and Egypt would no longer rule over other nations. Then, the children of Israel would return to their land.

It was during this captivity that the exiles began to be called Jews, meaning "people of Judah." The Jewish people scattered around the world originated from here. Today, the terms "Jews" and "Israelites" are often used interchangeably.

Ezekiel was called to be a watchman for the house of Israel, to warn God's people. The LORD said, "When I say to a wicked man, 'You will surely die,' and you do not warn him, that wicked man will die in his sin, but I will hold you accountable for his blood." However, if Ezekiel warned the wicked man and he did not turn from his wickedness, Ezekiel (or we) would save his own soul.

Often, we are ashamed or afraid to warn our friends when they are doing wrong, even when the sin is obvious. Maybe we fear they will point out our own faults in return. However, it is good when someone warns us, and we should not remain silent when we see wrongdoing—we should help one another with love.

Ezekiel was told that the people would bind him with ropes, and his tongue would stick to the roof of his mouth so that he would be silent and no longer able to rebuke them because they were a rebellious people. But later, the LORD told him to open his mouth and speak—whether the people would listen or not.

He warned against dishonest and unjust scales. The LORD declared that even if Noah, Daniel, and Job—who were righteous—prayed for the people, their prayers would not save them. Only they themselves would be saved. We cannot force a stubborn person into heaven; everyone must personally believe and obey. We are saved by God's grace, but we must also have faith, and our faith must produce works, because "faith without works is dead."

The LORD called His people to honor His Sabbaths, as a sign between Him and humanity so that they would know He is the LORD their God. The Sabbath is a seal of God's creative work and a commandment given to remind us of creation.

God took Ezekiel to a valley filled with dry human bones and asked him, "Son of man, can these bones live?" Ezekiel replied, "O Sovereign LORD, You alone know." The LORD told him that these dry bones represented the whole house of Israel and instructed him to prophesy that God would breathe life into them and they would live again.

When Ezekiel prophesied as commanded, there was a great noise and a shaking, and the bones came together—bone to its bone. Then, tendons and flesh appeared on them, and skin covered them, but there was no breath in them. The LORD commanded Ezekiel to call for the wind to breathe into the slain so that they might live. Breath entered them, and they came to life, standing on their feet—a vast army.

God explained that this vision gave hope to His people, who said, "Our bones are dried up, our hope is lost, and we are cut off completely." God promised to open their graves, bring them back to life, and restore them to the land of Israel.

Therefore, let us know that our God is all-knowing and all-powerful. He is able to do whatever we ask or need because He is the LORD. He will transform our hearts of stone into hearts of flesh, so we can humble ourselves and fear Him.

When we pray, "Give us this day our daily bread," we pray not only for ourselves but also for others. And we acknowledge that whatever God gives us is not just for our benefit—He entrusts us with resources so that we may feed the hungry.

Questions to Reflect On:

1. Describe the vision of the dry bones.

2. Why couldn't Noah, Daniel, and Job save anyone else?

3. What happens if we fail to warn a wicked person of their wrongdoing?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Ezekiel 37:11-14

[11-14] Then He said to me: "Son of man, these bones are the people of Israel. They say, 'Our bones are dried up and our hope is gone; we are cut off.' Therefore prophesy and say to them: 'This is what the Sovereign Lord says: My people, I am going to open your graves and bring you up from them; I will bring you back to the land of Israel. Then you, My people, will know that I am the Lord, when I open your graves and bring you up from them. I will put My Spirit in you and you will live, and I will settle you in your own land. Then you will know that I the Lord have spoken, and I have done it, declares the Lord.'"

Prayer:
Lord, we are dry bones; put Your Spirit within us so that we may live and have both spiritual and physical strength. Forgive our backslidings. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity:
Bring bones if possible, then sing the "Dry Bones" song from Cedarmont Kids. https://youtu.be/-AhAdII3yAc

DAY 156 (June 4)

TOPIC: Esther Becomes Queen

The Book of Esther is one of the books that narrates part of the history of the Jews during their exile. Esther is one of the main characters. She assisted Ezra and Nehemiah through her position as the king's wife and their "home girl!" This book covers the era of King Ahasuerus, who ruled over regions that today are part of Europe, Africa, and Asia. His native country was called Persia. He ruled after Kings Cyrus and Darius. Susa, the citadel, was his capital city. After ruling for three years, King Ahasuerus held a grand banquet for his officials and leaders, inviting people from various provinces. He displayed his wealth, glory, and majesty for 180 days.

People drank without restrictions, as the king commanded. He allowed everyone to do as they pleased. His wife, Queen Vashti, also held a banquet for the women in the royal palace. On the seventh day, when the king was merry with wine, he sent his attendants to bring Queen Vashti before him wearing her royal crown, for she was beautiful to behold. However, Vashti refused to come with the attendants. Her reasons are not stated—perhaps she was expected to come partially dressed, or she lacked respect, or she feared being humiliated by the king's drunkenness. If so, Queen Vashti was also a wise woman like Esther. She did nothing wrong, but it seems she had no way to cover her husband's mistake, as he followed the counsel of his drunken advisors.

Wine mocks and takes away sound judgment. We should act according to our consciences, guided by the Word of God, even if it brings us suffering. This happened to Martin Luther, the German reformer, and many others. However, it is better to be persecuted by humans than to be judged by God. Take this from our Lord Jesus:

“Blessed are those who are persecuted because of righteousness, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.”

The king became very angry and asked his legal experts what should be done. They told him that Vashti had not only wronged the king but also the leaders and all the people. They claimed that when other women heard of Vashti’s defiance, they would likewise despise their husbands. Thus, they advised that Vashti should never again appear before the king and that her royal position should be given to someone better than her. An edict was issued declaring that every man should rule his household, and no wife should dominate her husband. Even today, it is wrong for a wife to rule over her husband, for the husband is the head of the wife. Both men and women need wisdom here, as being the head is a serious responsibility. However, if we make God our head, we will overcome and not be controlled by evil emotions. We will be like the Messiah.

When the king’s anger subsided, he remembered Vashti and what had happened, but perhaps because of his pride, he did not apologize. Seeing the king’s sorrow, his attendants suggested a search for a new queen. They sent out orders to gather beautiful young virgins from all the provinces. The girl who pleased the king would become queen. Hegai was in charge of these women and their beauty treatments.

This story reflects a broken family, and many of us have experienced brokenness in our families. Yet, God can work even in difficult and confusing situations. We may not understand how He does this, but God can use even the world’s evils to advance His work. For example, many faithful Christians in France were burned alive during the Reformation in the sixteenth century. It is written about these martyrs:
“Many bore witness to the truth amid the flames. Through their courage and faithfulness at the stake, these humble Christians spoke to thousands who would never have heard their testimony otherwise.” (The Great Controversy, p. 215).

Praise be to God for His wisdom and power, which can turn Satan’s evil into blessings for His work and His people. There could be nothing worse than Satan crucifying the sinless Son of God on a wooden cross. Yet, that greatest act of evil became the greatest blessing the world has ever received. One thing is sure—God will turn the tears of His children into eternal joy if they remain faithful to the end (see Romans 8:28).

In the city of Susa, there was a Jew from the tribe of Benjamin named Mordecai. He had been exiled along with King Jeconiah of Judah. Mordecai had a cousin named Hadassah (Esther), whom he had raised as his daughter because she was an orphan. Esther was beautiful in form and appearance. When the king's decree to find a new queen was issued, many young women were brought to Susa. Mordecai brought Esther to Hegai, who was in charge of the women. Hegai was pleased with Esther's demeanor and treated her favorably, providing her with beauty treatments, special food, and seven maids. The young women were placed in the best quarters of the harem.

Mordecai instructed Esther not to reveal that she was Jewish, possibly to avoid discrimination. Every day, he would check on her well-being. When a young woman's turn came to see the king, she did not return unless the king delighted in her and summoned her by name. This was a tragic fate for these women—they became concubines and were effectively cast aside if the king did not choose them.

The women underwent twelve months of beauty treatments—six months with oil of myrrh and six months with perfumes and cosmetics. They were also trained in court etiquette and how to behave as a queen. When Esther's turn came, she requested nothing beyond what Hegai recommended. She found favor with everyone who saw her.

When Esther was brought to the king, he loved her more than all the other women and made her queen in place of Vashti, placing the royal crown on her head. The king held a great banquet in her honor and declared a holiday, granting generous gifts. Mordecai continued to watch over Esther from his position at the king's gate.

One day, Mordecai overheard two royal guards, Bigthana and Teresh, plotting to assassinate the king. He informed Esther, who reported it to the king. Upon investigation, the plot was found to be true, and the conspirators were hanged. The event was recorded in the royal chronicles.

Later, the king promoted Haman the Agagite, a descendant of the Amalekite king killed by the prophet Samuel. Everyone at the king's gate bowed to Haman—except Mordecai. When asked why, Mordecai said he was a Jew. Haman, enraged by this defiance, sought to destroy all the Jews throughout the kingdom. Haman convinced the king that the Jews disobeyed his laws and should be annihilated. The king, unaware of Haman's true intentions, gave him his signet ring to seal the decree. Orders were sent to all provinces to kill the Jews and plunder their goods. The king and Haman drank wine, but the city of Susa was in turmoil. This was the sixth year of Esther's reign as queen, yet the king still did not know she was Jewish.

Beloved: “Each one of you must love his wife as he loves himself, and the wife must respect her husband” (Ephesians 5:33).

Lord, give us Christian homes—homes where fathers are true and strong, where mothers guide with wisdom and love, and where You are the honored Guest. In Jesus’ name, Amen.

Reflection Questions:

1. What did Vashti refuse to do?

2. Who planned to assassinate King Ahasuerus?

3. Why did Haman hate Mordecai?

4. Why did Ahasuerus not know his wife was Jewish?

5. What are your best qualities?

6. How did your parents, teachers, or guardians influence your life?

7. How can you share Christ-like qualities with others?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Memory Verse: Esther 2:17-18

[17-18] Now the king was attracted to Esther more than to any of the other women, and she won his favor and approval more than any of the other virgins. So he set a royal crown on her head and made her queen instead of Vashti. And the king gave a great banquet, Esther’s banquet, for all his nobles and officials. He proclaimed a holiday throughout the provinces and distributed gifts with royal liberality.

Prayer:
Lord, thank You for Your providence, even in confusing circumstances like those in Persia. Help us not to put any intoxicating drink to our lips, not even coffee. Forgive us for our mistakes, and if we have been involved with harmful drinks such as energy drinks, help us to stop. In the Name of Your dear Son, Amen.

Activity:
Discuss how Vashti lost her queenship. Where did her children go, or even she herself? Discuss the unfair world full of sorrow, and how alcohol affects the mind. Why do the Scriptures say strong drink is not for kings? Why does the Bible say drunkards will not enter heaven? Is it okay for non-kings to drink? Why?

DAY 157 (June 5)

TOPIC: Esther and the Jews Hold a Special Prayer

(Esther 4-7)

When Mordecai heard of Haman's plot to kill all the Jews, he tore his clothes, put on sackcloth, and covered himself with ashes. He went out and cried bitterly, and throughout the entire kingdom where the king's command and decree had reached, there was great mourning among the Jews—with fasting, weeping, and wailing. Many lay in sackcloth and ashes. When Esther's maids and eunuchs came and told her about it, the queen was deeply distressed. She sent clothes for Mordecai to put on instead of his sackcloth, but he refused.

Mordecai explained to Esther what had been planned against the Jews and urged her to go to the king to plead and intercede for her people. Esther responded by reminding him that no man or woman could approach the king in the inner court without being summoned. The law was clear—anyone who did so would be put to death unless the king extended the golden scepter to spare their life. Esther added that she had not been called to go to the king for thirty days.

Mordecai sent an urgent message to Esther, saying, "Do not think that because you are in the king's palace you alone will escape when all the Jews are killed. For if you remain silent at this time, relief and deliverance for the Jews will arise from another place, but you and your father's family will perish. And who knows but that you have come to your royal position for such a time as this?"

Esther sent a reply to Mordecai, asking him to gather all the Jews in Susa to fast for her, neither eating nor drinking for three days. She and her maids would fast in the same way. Then, she would go to the king, even though it was against the law, and said, "If I perish, I perish." Mordecai did everything as Esther had instructed.

On the third day, Esther put on her royal robes and stood in the inner court of the king's palace. The king was sitting on his royal throne, and when he saw Queen Esther standing there, she found favor in his sight. The king extended the golden scepter, and Esther approached and touched its tip. The king asked, "What is your request? It will be given to you—even up to half the kingdom."

Esther invited the king and Haman to a banquet she had prepared. The king agreed immediately. At the banquet, the king asked Esther again, “What is your petition? It will be granted to you.” Esther requested that the king and Haman return the following day for another banquet. The king accepted her invitation again.

Haman was overjoyed because of the honor he received, being the only one invited to accompany the king to the queen’s banquet. However, when he saw Mordecai at the king’s gate refusing to bow down to him, he was filled with rage. Controlling his anger, Haman returned home and boasted to his wife Zeresh and his friends about his wealth, many children, and the honor the king had given him by promoting him. He bragged about being the only guest invited to Esther’s banquet. Yet, he said, “All this gives me no satisfaction as long as I see Mordecai the Jew sitting at the king’s gate.”

His wife and friends advised him to set up a gallows seventy-five feet high and suggest to the king that Mordecai be hanged on it. This idea pleased Haman, and he ordered the gallows to be built.

That night, the king could not sleep, so he ordered the book of records to be brought and read to him. There, he discovered that Mordecai had once saved his life by uncovering a plot against him. The king asked, “What honor and recognition has Mordecai received for this?” The king’s attendants replied, “Nothing has been done for him.”

The king then asked, “Who is in the court?” At that moment, Haman had just entered the outer court to speak to the king about hanging Mordecai on the gallows he had prepared. The king’s servants informed him that Haman was there, and the king summoned him. Without explaining whom he was referring to, the king asked Haman, “What should be done for the man the king delights to honor?”

Thinking the king meant him, Haman suggested, “Let a royal robe the king has worn and a horse the king has ridden, one with a royal crest placed on its head, be brought. Let the robe and the horse be entrusted to one of the king’s most noble officials, and let them robe the man the king delights to honor and lead him on the horse through the city streets, proclaiming before him, ‘This is what is done for the man the king delights to honor!’”

The king commanded Haman, “Go at once and do just as you have described for Mordecai the Jew who sits at the king’s gate. Do not neglect anything you have suggested.”

Imagine Haman's humiliation as he led Mordecai through the city! Afterward, Haman rushed home, mourning, and told his wife and friends everything that had happened. His wife Zeresh wisely warned him, "If Mordecai, before whom you have begun to fall, is of Jewish descent, you cannot stand against him—you will surely come to ruin."

While they were still talking, the king's eunuchs arrived to take Haman to the second banquet Esther had prepared. At the banquet, the king asked Esther once more, "What is your petition? It will be granted to you."

Esther revealed her identity and the plot against her people, pleading for her life and the lives of the Jews. She exposed Haman as the enemy who planned their destruction. The king, furious, left the banquet to walk in the palace garden. When he returned, he found Haman pleading for his life before Esther. Seeing Haman fall on the couch where Esther was reclining, the king exclaimed, "Will he even molest the queen while she is with me in the house?"

Immediately, Haman's face was covered, a sign that he would be executed. One of the king's eunuchs informed the king about the gallows Haman had prepared for Mordecai. The king ordered, "Hang him on it!" Haman was then hanged on the very gallows he had prepared for Mordecai.

When we wish evil upon others, it can come back to us. Wishing harm on God's people is especially dangerous—even if they wrong you, leave vengeance to God.

Why should we listen to God's counsel?
"God is not human, that He should lie." (Numbers 23:19)

Esther and the Jews prayed and fasted, and we see how it changed their situation. Our Heavenly Father is waiting to pour out His blessings. It is our privilege to draw deeply from the fountain of His boundless love.

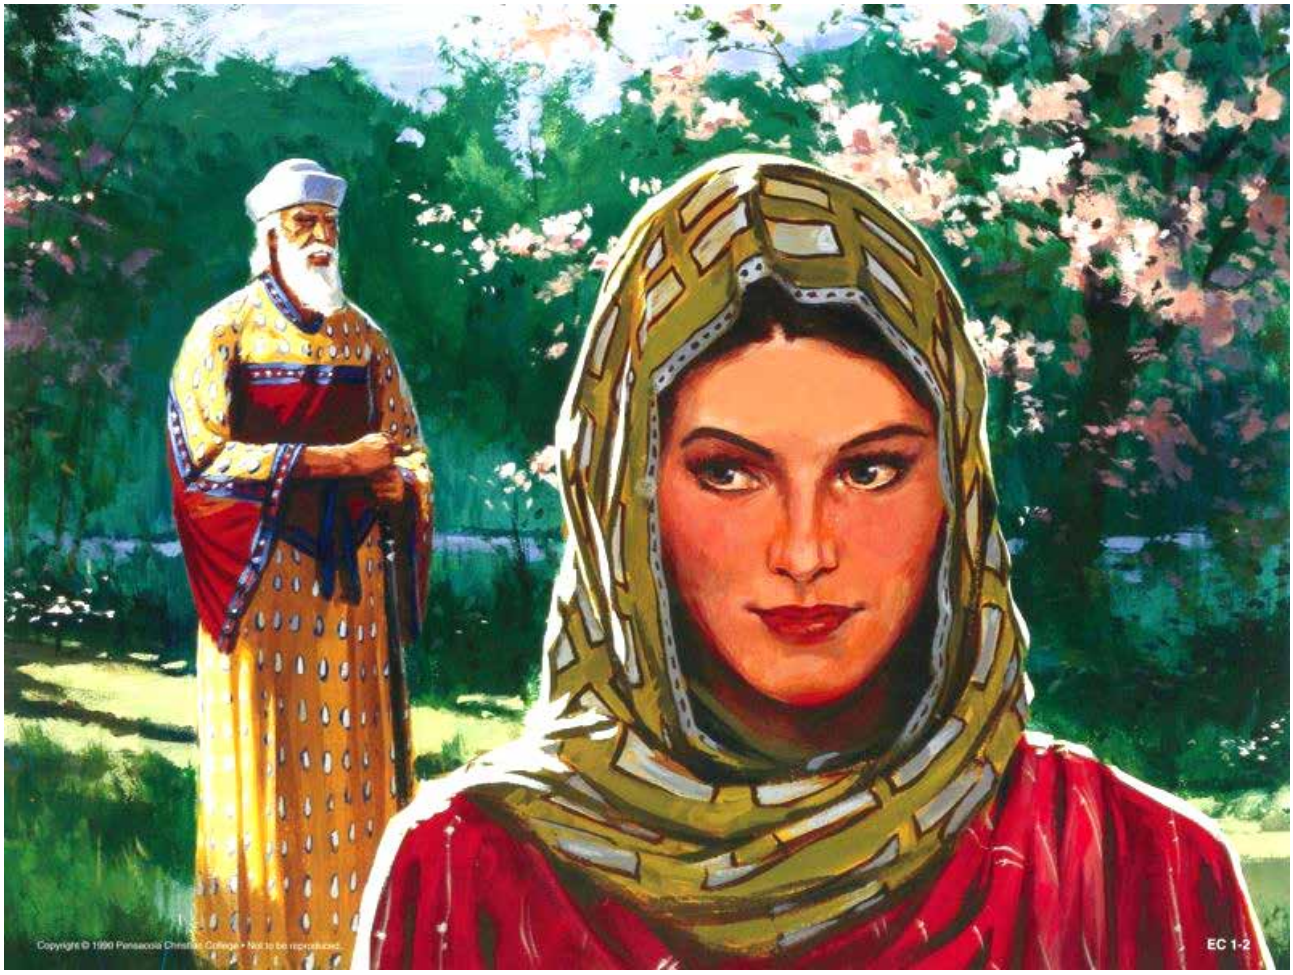
When young people go to preach the Truth, they should be surrounded by prayer. Pray that God will guide them, grant them wisdom, and protect them from the snares of the enemy. Support your pastors in prayer, just as Aaron and Hur held up Moses' hands.

How did the king reward Mordecai?
What happened to the gallows Haman built for Mordecai?
Why did Esther fast?
Why is it sinful to wish harm on others?
What did the king do when he could not sleep?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: John 14:12-16

[12-16] Very truly I tell you, whoever believes in Me will do the works I have been doing, and they will do even greater things than these, because I am going to the Father. And I will do whatever you ask in My Name, so that the Father may be glorified in the Son. You may ask Me for anything in My Name, and I will do it. If you love Me, keep My commands. And I will ask the Father, and He will give you another Advocate to help you and be with you forever.



Prayer:
Thank You, Lord, we believe in You, and that whatever we ask in Your Name, You will do it. Today we pray that You bless our families to reach others, forgive our sins, and give us love. In Jesus Christ's Name, Amen.

Activity:
Act out Mordecai mourning in sackcloth and ashes, being honored after the king reads how he uncovered a plot, and then being led on horseback with Haman clearing the way!

DAY 158 (June 6)

TOPIC: Mordecai is Promoted and the Jews Defend Themselves

(Esther 8-10)

On that day, the king gave Esther the estate of Haman. Esther told the king about her relationship with Mordecai, and he came before the king. The king took off the signet ring he had taken from Haman and gave it to Mordecai, meaning that Mordecai took Haman's position as the prime minister or the king's second-in-command. Esther fell at the king's feet, pleading and reminding him that letters had already been sent ordering the killing of the Jews. According to the laws of the Medes and Persians, once a decree was issued, it could not be revoked, meaning the Jews were still under threat of annihilation. She begged the king to revoke the letters so that harm would not come to the Jews, who were the queen's people and relatives.

The king told her that he had given her the authority to write any decree to cancel the evil planned against the Jews, and he would seal it with his ring. The king's scribes were summoned, and letters were written to all the provinces under his rule, covering Europe, Asia, and Africa. The decree allowed the Jews to gather and defend their lives and possessions so they would not be destroyed—in other words, to take revenge on their enemies. Couriers rode on fast royal horses to deliver the message to all the provinces, and the proclamation was made in the citadel of Susa. Mordecai left the king's presence wearing royal garments and a large golden crown, and the city of Susa rejoiced. For the Jews, it was a time of light, joy, happiness, and honor. Many people even became Jews out of fear, realizing that the harm they intended toward the Jews might turn against them.

When the appointed day for the Jews' destruction arrived, the king's second decree allowed them to defend themselves. Non-Jews were filled with great fear, realizing that both the queen and the prime minister were Jews. Mordecai's reputation spread because he was a God-fearing and wise man. The Jews struck down their enemies with great destruction and did as they pleased with those who hated them. In Susa alone, they killed 500 people, including Haman's ten sons. When the king received the report, he asked the Jews if they had any further requests, promising to grant them. The Jews were allowed to continue defending themselves the next day and even hanged Haman's ten sons on gallows. That day, they killed more enemies, bringing the total number slain to 75,000. However, they did not take any plunder or spoil.

It was a tragic event that the evil intentions of one selfish man could cause so much death and suffering, even to the innocent. Sometimes, when you see someone doing wrong, do not join them—instead, advise them to stop. Who knows if you were placed in your current position to prevent such harm? If you remain silent, you may end up among those who are hurt rather than those you think you are protecting.

The Jews rested and celebrated with feasts and the giving of gifts. Mordecai wrote to the Jewish people, instructing them to commemorate this day because they had experienced relief from their enemies—what was once sorrow turned into joy. They called this celebration "Purim," meaning "lots," because Haman had cast lots to determine the day to destroy the Jews. All these events occurred because Haman the Agagite, out of ignorance and without cause, chose to be an enemy of the Jews, and his wickedness ultimately turned back on him.

We must overcome evil with good. The Jews decreed that future generations should observe this festival, and Purim was never to be forgotten. King Ahasuerus imposed tribute across the empire, including the coastlands and islands. His acts of power, might, and the greatness of Mordecai were recorded in the annals of the kings of Media and Persia. Mordecai continued to do good for his people.

The name “Esther” means “star.” She was truly a star to her people by saving them. Although she was beautiful in appearance, more importantly, God chose her and made her beauty stand out to save His people—the lineage of the Messiah. Even today, God has a special plan for you to ensure you do not perish. Pray and ask Him to reveal His plans through His Word.

Esther was not impulsive or quick to anger; she approached the king with wisdom and patience. Even her maids were willing to fast with her because they loved her—if she had treated them badly, they might have wished for her death. Esther supported the work of Ezra and Nehemiah, as her husband granted many favors to the Jews for her sake.

In fact, the decree allowing the Jews to return to Jerusalem in 457 BC was issued by her husband. God blessed these Persian kings—Darius, Cyrus, and Ahasuerus—for showing kindness to the Jews after the Babylonians had treated them harshly. These kings allowed the Jews to worship and carry out their activities freely. Nehemiah and Ezra found favor with the king during this time.

It is important to remember that the Scriptures say the Babylonians were given permission by God to punish the Jews for their disobedience to His laws and for worshiping other gods. They had broken His Sabbaths—including the Jubilee Sabbath, which required releasing captives every 50 years, and the seventh-year Sabbath, during which they were to let the land rest so the poor could gather food. When we focus only on our own needs and ignore the poor and the needy, we bring great suffering upon ourselves.

Haman planned evil because he hated one man, but his hatred nearly caused the death of thousands. However, God had long prepared to save His people by ensuring Esther became queen and that Mordecai would support her.

Reflecting on Haman’s life, ask yourself: What kind of harmful seeds am I sowing in the lives of others? Do anger and pride reside in my heart? Let us pray that God removes such attitudes and plants His seeds of goodness and mutual respect in us, so we may reflect His love to others. Selfishness and pride cause harm and destruction, but kindness, generosity, and compassion bring healing and hope.

Are there relationships in your life that need healing? How can you, like Esther, face your greatest challenges with courage, supported by friends who pray for you?

A powerful force is at work in the world—in entertainment, the pursuit of wealth, the struggle for power, and the fight for survival. This force drains the body, mind, and spirit. Amid this turmoil, GOD speaks. He calls us to withdraw to a quiet place and commune with Him:

“Be still, and know that I am GOD.” —Psalm 46:10

How did the Jews defend themselves?

Why were the Jews taken into captivity?

What does “Jew” mean?

What was Esther’s other name?

What position was Mordecai given?

What was the significance of the Purim festival?

Have you experienced blessings by blessing others?

How did the king show his gratitude?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Verse: Psalm 54:1-5.

[1-5] Save me, O God, by Your name, and judge me by Your strength. Hear my prayer, O God; give ear to the words of my mouth. For strangers are risen up against me, and oppressors seek after my soul: they have not set God before them. Behold, God is my helper: the Lord is with them that uphold my soul. He shall reward evil unto mine enemies: cut them off in Your truth.

Prayer: Lord, thank You so much because You prepare a table before us in the presence of our enemies. Even those who seek after our lives, You will help us to face them. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Act out the event of Esther going to seek favor from the king. The king taking away Haman's ring and giving it to Mordecai, etc. Discuss moments when you had great difficulties and the Lord made a way.

Activity: Ask yourself, Do I have envy? Do I sow seeds of hatred? List the fruit of the Spirit and ask yourself for each one, Do I have this? Draw a fruit and write those qualities inside it. Consider other traits such as pride, selfishness, dictatorship. Also emphasize—God is faithful to His people, stopping evil plans and ensuring that those who oppose Him are defeated, often turning their own schemes against them.

CHAPTER 159 (June 7)

LESSON: The Man of God, Job

Before the time of Moses, there was a man in the land of Uz. It is believed that Moses wrote the book of Job. This book was written after the book of Genesis. This man was blameless, upright, God-fearing, and turned away from evil. He had seven sons and three daughters. He possessed 7,000 sheep, 3,000 camels, 1,000 oxen, and 500 donkeys. His household was large. Job was wealthy and highly respected by the people. He regularly offered sacrifices for his children, saying, “Perhaps my children have sinned and cursed God in their hearts.” Job did this continually.

One day, the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord, and Satan also came among them. The Lord asked Satan, “Where have you come from?” Satan answered, “From roaming through the earth and going back and forth on it.” Then the Lord asked, “Have you considered My servant Job? There is no one like him on earth—blameless and upright, fearing God and shunning evil.” Satan replied, “Is it for nothing that Job fears God? Have You not put a hedge around him, his household, and everything he has? You have blessed the work of his hands, and his possessions have increased in the land. But now, stretch out Your hand and strike all that he has, and he will surely curse You to Your face.” The Lord allowed Satan to test Job but forbade him from taking his life. So, Satan left the presence of the Lord.

One day, while Job's children were eating and drinking wine at the eldest brother's house, a messenger came to Job and said, "The oxen were plowing, and the donkeys were grazing nearby, when the Sabeans attacked and carried them off. They put the servants to the sword, and I am the only one who has escaped to tell you." While he was still speaking, another messenger arrived and said, "Fire from God fell from the heavens and burned up the sheep and the servants, and I am the only one who has escaped to tell you." While he was still speaking, another messenger came and said, "The Chaldeans formed three raiding parties and swept down on your camels and made off with them. They put the servants to the sword, and I am the only one who has escaped to tell you." While he was still speaking, yet another messenger arrived and said, "Your sons and daughters were feasting and drinking wine at the eldest brother's house when suddenly a mighty wind swept in from the desert, struck the four corners of the house, and it collapsed on them. They are dead, and I am the only one who has escaped to tell you."

At this, Job got up, tore his robe, shaved his head, and fell to the ground in worship. He said, "Naked I came from my mother's womb, and naked I will return. The Lord gave, and the Lord has taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord." In all this, Job did not sin or charge God with wrongdoing.

On another day, the sons of God again came to present themselves before the Lord, and Satan also came among them. The Lord asked Satan, "Where have you come from?" Satan replied, "From roaming through the earth and going back and forth on it." Then the Lord said, "Have you considered My servant Job? There is no one like him on earth—blameless and upright, a man who fears God and shuns evil. And still, he maintains his integrity, though you incited Me against him to ruin him without cause." Satan answered, "Skin for skin! A man will give all he has for his own life. But now, stretch out Your hand and strike his flesh and bones, and he will surely curse You to Your face." The Lord allowed Satan to afflict Job's body but forbade him from taking his life.

Satan afflicted Job with painful sores from the soles of his feet to the crown of his head. Job took a piece of broken pottery to scrape himself as he sat among the ashes. His wife said to him, "Are you still holding on to your integrity? Curse God and die!" But Job replied, "You are talking like a foolish woman. Shall we accept good from God and not trouble?" In all this, Job did not sin with his lips.

When Job's three friends—Eliphaz, Bildad, and Zophar—heard about his troubles, they came to comfort him. When they saw him from a distance, they could barely recognize him. They began to weep aloud, tore their robes, and sprinkled dust on their heads. They sat on the ground with him for seven days and nights without saying a word because they saw how great his suffering was.

Eventually, Job broke the silence and cursed the day of his birth, wishing he had never been born. At the time, people believed that suffering was a sign of God's anger and a result of one's sins. Job's friends insisted that he confess his sins, claiming his suffering was due to his wrongdoing. However, Job defended his innocence, stating he had done no wrong and did not understand why he was being afflicted.

Job did not comprehend the spiritual battle occurring between God and Satan. Despite his confusion, Job remained steadfast in his faith, declaring, "I know that my Redeemer lives, and that in the end, He will stand on the earth. After my skin has been destroyed, yet in my flesh, I will see God."

Later, a young man named Elihu spoke, acknowledging that neither Job nor his friends had fully understood God's ways. Finally, God Himself spoke out of a storm, questioning Job, "Where were you when I laid the earth's foundation? Tell Me, if you understand." (Read Job 38-42).

God rebuked Job's friends for their false accusations and instructed them to offer sacrifices and have Job pray for them. Job prayed for his friends, and God forgave them. Job also repented, recognizing that his understanding was limited. God restored Job's fortunes, giving him twice as much as before.

He was blessed with seven more sons and three daughters, named Jemimah, Keziah, and Keren-Happuch.

The book of Job reveals the cosmic conflict between good and evil, known as "Theodicy." It addresses the question: If God is all-powerful and loving, why does He allow suffering? God respects the freedom of His creation, and this freedom allows for both good and evil choices. Although God does not always intervene, His ultimate plan will bring justice and restore peace.

One day, God will end suffering forever (Nahum 1:9). Until then, the universe observes this grand conflict. Revelation 12 describes a war in heaven where Michael and His angels fought against Satan and his angels. Although we may not understand everything, God's love remains constant.

PRAYER:
Dear God, many innocent people suffer, and only You know why. We trust in Your promise of eternal blessings. Remember us in Your kingdom of grace. Amen.

When selfishness dies, a greater desire to save others will emerge. Let us pray sincerely and persistently for those who are perishing.

Questions to Reflect On:

Where did Job live?

What did God ask Satan?

How did Job respond to his suffering?

How do you think Job felt when his friends blamed him?

Why is it wrong to judge others?

May God bless you, dear child and youth of Jesus.

Key Verse: Job 19:25-29.

[25-27] For I know that my Redeemer lives, and that He shall stand at the latter day upon the earth: And though after my skin is destroyed, yet in my flesh shall I see God: Whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another; though my heart be consumed within me.

Prayer: Thank You Lord because You are my Redeemer, and You live. And one day I will surely see You face to face. Forgive my sins and give me endurance when Satan tries to discourage me. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A play of Almighty God speaking with Satan. The servants telling Job about the things that have been lost. Job sitting down and saying—Job 1:21, 22.

DAY 160 (June 8)

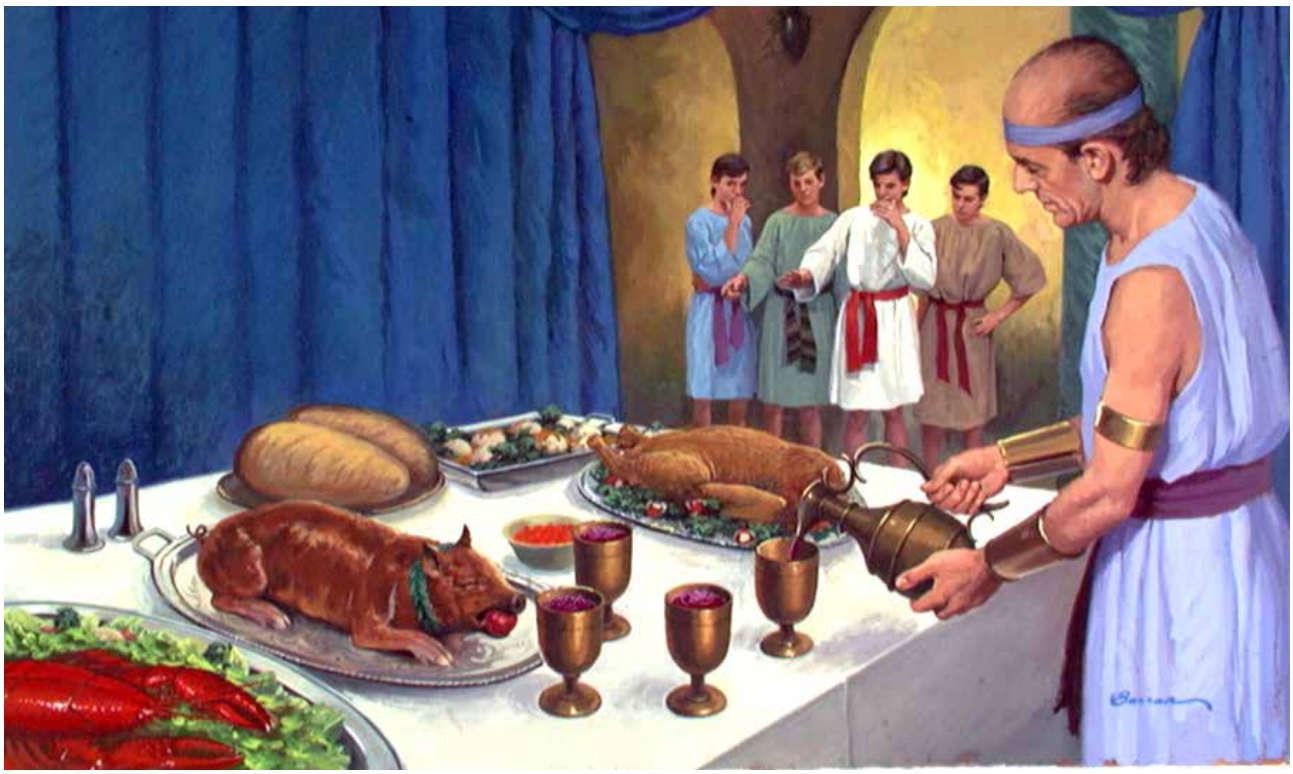
TOPIC: Daniel Goes into Exile

(Daniel 1)

The Book of Daniel contains a brief history, prophecies of his time, and future prophecies. These prophecies inform us of where we are now and when the end of the world will be. It does not reveal the day or the hour but provides us with a map of its nearness and what we should do. Daniel himself wrote it. The primary purpose of prophecy is to reveal God's promises, not to disclose future events.

When we focus on events, the prophecy of beasts, and other details, these are just highlights that reveal God's character and love—they are not the main point. The prophets examined prophecies to find promises, not mere events. Let us not teach prophecy that is meaningless, nor seek God in vain:

"Concerning this salvation, the prophets who prophesied about the grace that was to be yours searched and inquired carefully." (1 Peter 1:10).



We should not only have intellectual knowledge but also reach salvation.

As we have seen previously, Daniel was among those taken into exile in Babylon from Judah. This was around 600 B.C. The king instructed Ashpenaz, the chief of his officials, to bring some of the Israelites from the royal family and the nobility—young men without any physical defect, handsome, showing aptitude for every kind of learning, well-informed, quick to understand, and qualified to serve in the king's palace. He was to teach them the language and literature of the Babylonians.

The king assigned them a daily portion of the food and wine from his table. They were to be trained for three years, and after that, they were to enter the king's service. Even today, if we were invited to eat the king's food, we would expect it to be delicious and expensive, although it might also be harmful to our health.

Among these young men from Judah were Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah. The chief official gave them new names: Daniel became Belteshazzar, Hananiah became Shadrach, Mishael became Meshach, and Azariah became Abednego. These new names were offensive because they were associated with the Babylonian gods.

But Daniel resolved in his heart not to defile himself with the royal food and wine. He asked the chief official for permission not to defile himself this way. It is possible that this food had been offered to Babylonian idols, or that it included unclean meats such as pork, shellfish, or other forbidden foods.

God caused the official to show favor and compassion to Daniel. However, the official said, “I am afraid of my lord the king, who has assigned your food and drink. Why should he see you looking worse than the other young men your age? The king would then have my head because of you.”

Indeed, the food we eat and the health practices we follow either bless or harm our health. God gave dietary laws to His people in His Word. Even today, we should not eat recklessly out of greed, thinking that “food is just food.” Sin entered through food—the Garden of Eden was lost because of food.

Daniel then asked the guard to test them for ten days by giving them only vegetables (such as grains and legumes) and water. Then he could compare their appearance with that of the young men who ate the royal food. So, the guard agreed and tested them for ten days.

Foods that are sprouting—such as grains, legumes, nuts, and seeds—are richer in minerals and vitamins than ordinary foods. These were the kinds of foods Daniel and his friends ate, along with vegetables and water.

At the end of the ten days, they looked healthier and better nourished than the young men who ate the royal food. So, the guard took away their choice food and wine and gave them vegetables instead.

God gave these four young men knowledge and understanding of all kinds of literature and learning. And Daniel could understand visions and dreams of all kinds.

At the end of the three years of training, the chief official brought them before King Nebuchadnezzar. The king spoke with them and found none equal to Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah. In every matter of wisdom and understanding about which the king questioned them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and enchanters in his entire kingdom.

Daniel remained in the royal court until the first year of King Cyrus of Persia. This means Daniel served for over 70 years because the Babylonians ruled for 70 years before the Medes and Persians conquered the kingdom. Daniel and his friends stood before the king—meaning they served in the palace of Babylon.

There are people who have lost their courage—speak to them and pray for them. There are those who need the Bread of Life—read to them from the Word of God. There is a spiritual sickness that no balm can touch and no medicine can cure. Pray for these souls and bring them to Jesus Christ. In all your work, Christ will be present to influence the hearts of men.

Why were Daniel and his friends taken into captivity?

Which king was ruling?

What did the chief official tell them to do?

What kind of food did the young men request?

Why are some foods harmful to our bodies?

God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Verse: Daniel 1:8-9.

[8-9] But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the king's food, nor with the wine which he drank: therefore he requested of the prince of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself. Now God had brought Daniel into favor and compassion with the prince of the eunuchs.

Prayer: Lord, help us to purpose in our hearts not to defile our bodies which are Your temple. Help us to eat what You want us to eat. Remove gluttony, help us exercise, and to trust in You. Help us to be temperate, learning all that is within our ability concerning our spiritual, physical, economic, and social health. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Focus on the topic of making wise decisions, putting God first, and standing firm in faith even under pressure. Youth and children may discuss 8 health principles and show Daniel's food choice, play a memory game to learn his Hebrew name and those of his friends, or sing a song about choosing the right way. Other activities include puppets to retell the story or using a "vegetable" game to show switching places.

DAY 161 (June 9)

TOPIC: Suitable Food

(Genesis 1:29 and Daniel 1)

The following is a general summary regarding matters of food. Parents will handle most aspects for their children, but we must all understand these principles and resolve to follow them like Daniel. The four young men in Babylon show us health practices we should learn and apply. They controlled their desires and appetites, refusing to eat anything unclean. The first sin in the Garden of Eden was related to food. A person who can control their eating habits—while having access to all kinds of food—is a true hero. It is said that a large percentage of diseases can be prevented or treated through proper nutrition. According to health experts, 80% of the factors affecting human health are related to diet.

Why is it important to eat healthily? When we are healthy, we have better mental clarity to understand the Word of God and to succeed in our studies. Good health reduces medical costs and allows us to serve others effectively. We cannot assist our neighbors or family members if we are bedridden. Good health also makes us cheerful and improves our relationships with others. It helps us to be self-reliant rather than dependent on others. While some dependency may occur due to aging or disability, we should not contribute to this through poor lifestyle choices. Many people live to an old age without being afflicted by disease—look into that!

50-80% of your diet should consist of raw or unprocessed foods, such as vegetables, fruits, sprouts, and other natural items like those the four young men in Babylon consumed. The Garden of Eden had no cooking pots; do not always destroy your food's nutrients by overcooking it. Eat raw what can be consumed raw. The seeds and grains the four young men ate improved their health in just 10 days—making them ten times healthier and wiser than their peers. Let your food be your medicine, and your medicine be your food.

Avoid refined foods such as polished rice, refined wheat, and corn. Eat whole grains—unrefined wheat bread, brown rice, and whole cornmeal. Sugar and oil are also refined products; for instance, it takes about 14 corn cobs to produce one large spoonful of corn oil. God intended for you to eat five cobs and feel satisfied, but eating just five fried potato chips is equivalent to consuming 84 cobs of corn. Aim to eat at least five fruits a day. If possible, grow a garden to cultivate your fruits and vegetables, such as tomatoes. Gardening has therapeutic benefits for our mental health.

Two meals a day are ideal unless you engage in heavy manual labor, such as farm work or military service. Avoid imitating the diets you see on TV or in other cultures—many of these are unhealthy. Different communities prepare similar ingredients in diverse ways. For example, Indians make chapati from wheat, Africans prepare ugali, and Westerners bake bread. Among these, plain ugali made from unrefined flour is the healthiest since it contains no added salt or oil.

Maintain a healthy body weight appropriate for your height. Consult a healthcare provider to determine your ideal weight. Our bodies are designed by God, just like machines come with manuals for proper use.

Be cautious about eating hotel food, as it often contains excessive additives to enhance taste at the expense of health. Since we consume around 1,000 meals a year, it is crucial for parents to learn to cook healthy meals. Many people die due to poor dietary habits. Avoid refined foods, those high in salt, sugar, and unhealthy fats. Breakfast is the most important meal of the day—never skip it. Eat substantial, nourishing breakfasts and wait at least five to six hours before eating again. Have your evening meal early and allow at least four hours before going to bed. When eating an orange, do not just suck the juice—eat the pulp too, or you lose vital nutrients.

Certain items should never enter your mouth, including paraffin, soap, and other inedible substances. Likewise, avoid alcohol, drugs, tobacco, and unclean meats such as pork, shellfish (shrimp, crab), birds of prey, donkeys, dogs, crows, insects like termites, and reptiles like lizards and frogs—refer to Leviticus 11 for guidelines. Eat fish only if they have both fins and scales. Many animals today are fed unnatural diets or injected with growth hormones—avoid eating such animals. For instance, in Minnesota, a friend witnessed turkeys being injected with female hormones to enlarge their breasts for commercial demand. Many people who consumed such poultry developed health issues, including chest ruptures.

Incorporate fresh vegetables like cucumbers, carrots, beetroot, and seeds such as sesame, sunflower, peanuts, cashews, and coconut into your diet. Different plant colors provide various nutrients—diversify the colors in your meals. Learn to cook with natural seasonings like lemon, garlic, ginger, turmeric, onions, sage, oregano, and coriander seeds. These not only add flavor but also reduce the need for excess salt and oil. Avoid fried foods; if you must use oil, choose plant-based oils. Margarine is harmful because it contains hydrogenated fats that act like plastic in the body. Use stainless steel cookware instead of aluminum, which can leach harmful metals.

Avoid processed and canned foods, and if you must consume them, read the ingredients carefully. Refrain from drinking coffee, soda, and other stimulants. Do not bring unhealthy items into your home. Be mindful of food and beverage advertisements, which often prioritize profits over your well-being.

Unrefined sugar (such as molasses) is better than white sugar. Avoid chewing gum—it generates gas and harms the digestive system. Chew your food thoroughly, at least 32 times per bite. Separate vegetables and fruits in your meals, as their digestive enzymes differ. For instance, do not eat carrots with fruits. Do not eat while drinking liquids—wait at least 30 minutes after a meal before consuming water.

We eat to live, not live to eat. Avoid excessive consumption of sweets like candy and cakes—keep them as occasional treats. Do not consume improperly slaughtered meat. Avoid spicy and overly acidic condiments like mustard, vinegar, and hot peppers.

Other health practices include regular exercise, drinking at least eight glasses of water daily, ensuring adequate rest, practicing moderation, maintaining cleanliness, getting sunlight and fresh air, and trusting in God. Despite all health measures, only God can save sinners—even healthy ones.

Our most vital health goal is eternal life. We maintain our physical health to keep our minds clear and receptive to God's Word. A person who can control their appetite is equipped to overcome many temptations. Establish times for prayer and fasting—these strengthen both physical and spiritual health. While natural remedies are helpful, always seek professional medical care when needed, such as in emergencies like broken bones.

If earnest and faithful prayers were offered everywhere, many souls trapped in sin would be saved.

Questions:

1. Why is it important to eat healthy food?

2. How did sin enter the Garden of Eden?

3. What is the most important type of health?

4. Name 10 types of vegetables.

5. Name 15 types of fruits.

6. Name 10 types of grains.

7. Name 5 types of nuts.

8. Name 10 types of legumes.

9. What are refined foods?

10. Why should we avoid candy?

Key Verse: Proverbs 23:1-4.

[1-4] When you sit to eat with a ruler, consider diligently what is before you: And put a knife to your throat, if you are a man given to appetite. Do not desire his delicacies: for they are deceitful food.

Prayer: Thank You so much Father, we are grateful for the wisdom of Daniel, that You revealed to him great and difficult things he did not know because he knew how to deny himself. Help us also Lord not to be gluttonous when invited to eat somewhere, and to think of others who are in need and hungry more than us. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Discuss aspects of health such as nutritious food, fresh air, self-denial/avoiding gluttony, sunlight, exercise, farming, entrepreneurship, cleanliness, a thankful heart, attitude, trusting God, water, rest, etc.

DAY 162 (June 10)

LESSON: The King Dreams a Dream

(Daniel 2)

In the second year of his reign, Nebuchadnezzar, the king of the Chaldeans, had a dream; his spirit was troubled, and he could not sleep. Then the king commanded to call the magicians, enchanters, sorcerers, and astrologers to explain his dream. This king did not know the God of heaven well, which is why he summoned these people who used dark powers to reveal his dream. When they arrived, the king told them that he had a dream and was deeply troubled, desiring to know both the dream and its interpretation.

The Chaldeans replied in Aramaic, "O king, live forever! Tell your servants the dream, and we will show you its interpretation." Perhaps you have also had a dream before and could not remember it. This dream was significant because God was revealing future events to the king. God used Nebuchadnezzar in various ways until he eventually repented. This king had been instructed by God Himself to take the Jews captive as a punishment for their rebellion and worship of other gods. Now, God revealed to him a prophecy—one of the longest prophecies ever—stretching from Nebuchadnezzar's reign to the end of the world.

Indeed, God shows no favoritism. The king said that he had called them because the dream had escaped him, and he did not want them to waste time with lies. He warned them that if they could not tell him the dream and its interpretation, they would be cut into pieces, and their houses would be turned into heaps of rubble. But if they revealed the dream and its interpretation, they would receive gifts, rewards, and great honor. He stressed that there was only one decree for them, as they had agreed to speak lying and corrupt words before him until times changed. He urged them again to tell him the dream quickly.

The wise men answered the king, saying that no one on earth could show the king his dream—no magician, enchanter, or astrologer—except the gods who do not dwell among mortals. This angered the king, and he issued a decree to destroy all the wise men of Babylon. The order was given, and the time of execution was near. They also sought Daniel and his companions to kill them, although Daniel had not been present when these events were unfolding.

Daniel, with wisdom and discretion, asked Arioch, the captain of the king's guard, why the king's decree was so harsh. Arioch explained the matter to Daniel. Then Daniel went to the king and requested more time so that he could interpret the dream. Daniel returned to his house and informed his companions—Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah—urging them to seek mercy from the God of heaven concerning this mystery so that they would not perish with the rest of the wise men of Babylon.

That night, the mystery was revealed to Daniel in a vision. Daniel praised the God of heaven, saying:
"Blessed be the name of God forever and ever, for wisdom and power are His. He changes times and seasons; He deposes kings and raises others. He gives wisdom to the wise and knowledge to the discerning. He reveals deep and hidden things; He knows what lies in darkness, and light dwells with Him. I thank and praise You, God of my ancestors; You have given me wisdom and power, and You have made known to me what we asked of You. You have made known to us the king's matter."

Daniel thanked God and then went to Arioch, who had been commanded to execute the wise men of Babylon. He told Arioch, "Do not destroy the wise men of Babylon! Bring me before the king, and I will interpret his dream." Arioch, relieved, brought Daniel quickly before the king and said, "I have found among the exiles from Judah a man who will make known to the king the interpretation."

The king asked Daniel, "Can you tell me the dream I saw and its interpretation?" Daniel humbly answered, "No wise man, enchanter, magician, or diviner can explain to the king the mystery he has asked about. But there is a God in heaven who reveals mysteries. He has shown King Nebuchadnezzar what will happen in days to come."

The lesson we learn here is humility—to acknowledge that we cannot do things by our own power but to give glory to God. Today, many claim to predict the future by reading stars or palms—do not seek such fortune-tellers. Instead, kneel and pray to God to reveal the hidden things to you. Daniel's life was a life of prayer.

Daniel's prayer was effective, sincere, and powerful. He did not exalt himself or claim righteousness, but instead prayed:
"O Lord, listen! O Lord, forgive! O Lord, hear and act! Do not delay, for Your own sake, my God."

His prayers were earnest and diligent. In response to his prayer, Daniel received light and truth, which he and his people greatly needed, as well as insight into major future events—including the coming of the world's Redeemer.

All who love God should have a desire to study the Scriptures and wrestle with God in prayer to gain a clear understanding of the truth of the Bible and to be sanctified by it.

Start praying for souls; draw near to Christ, close to His side where the blood flows. Let a spirit of gentleness and calmness adorn your life. Let your sincere, humble, and fervent prayers rise to Him for wisdom, so you may succeed not only in saving your soul but also in saving the souls of others.

Where did Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah come from?
What did the king say would happen to the wise men?
Why was Arioch relieved?
Who alone can reveal hidden things?

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: Jeremiah 29:11-14.

[11-14] For I know the thoughts that I think toward you, says the Lord, thoughts of peace, and not of evil, to give you an expected end. Then shall you call upon Me, and you shall go and pray unto Me, and I will listen to you. And you shall seek Me, and find Me, when you shall search for Me with all your heart. And I will be found by you, says the Lord: and I will bring you back from your captivity, and I will gather you from all the nations, and from all the places where I have driven you, says the Lord; and I will bring you again into the place from which I caused you to be carried away captive.

Activity: Discuss how the prophecy of Daniel is the foundation of the Book of Revelation. That God wants even people who do not know the Bible, like Nebuchadnezzar, to read this prophecy. Give a historical outline of future kingdoms and finally the establishment of God's eternal kingdom, and how the theme continues in the visions of Revelation concerning the future (apocalyptic). Connect world history that people read in books with end-time events. Key connections include overlapping prophetic time periods, symbolic imagery such as the ten horns, and Daniel's instructions to seal the prophecy of the future which would only be revealed in the last days, as seen in Revelation.

DAY 163 (June 11)

TOPIC: The Kingdoms That Will Rule the World

Daniel 2

Daniel said, "Your dream, and the visions of your head upon your bed, are these: You, O king, as you lay on your bed, your thoughts turned to what would take place in the future, and He who reveals secrets, God, has made known to you what will happen." Daniel explained that this mystery was not revealed to him because of any wisdom he possessed more than others, but so that the king would understand the interpretation of the dream he had.

He told the king that he saw a great statue, whose brightness was extraordinary, standing before him. Its appearance was terrifying. The head of the statue was made of pure gold, its chest and arms were silver, its belly and thighs were bronze, its legs were iron, and its feet were partly iron and partly clay. Then a stone was cut out—not by human hands—and it struck the statue on its feet of iron and clay, smashing them to pieces.

Then the iron, the clay, the bronze, the silver, and the gold were broken into pieces together and became like chaff on the threshing floor in the summer. The wind swept them away without leaving a trace. But the stone that struck the statue became a great mountain and filled the whole earth. Daniel finished explaining the dream by saying, "This is the dream, and we will interpret it to the king."

It was as if the king was watching an event on television while sitting and being told about the things that would happen in the future until the end of time. Daniel told the king that he, King Nebuchadnezzar, was the king of kings, for he ruled over the entire known world of that time. He explained that it was God who had given him the kingdom, power, strength, and glory. Wherever people, wild animals, and birds lived, God had placed them under his authority, making him the head of gold.

After him, another kingdom, inferior to his, represented by silver, would arise. Then a third kingdom, of bronze, would rule over the whole earth. Finally, a fourth kingdom, as strong as iron, would come. Just as iron breaks and crushes everything, so this kingdom would shatter and crush all others. However, the feet and toes being partly clay and partly iron meant that this kingdom would be divided. While it would have some strength like iron, it would also be weak like clay.

Just as iron does not mix with clay, the people in this kingdom would not remain united. Daniel explained that during the time of these divided kings, represented by the iron and clay, the God of heaven would set up His kingdom. This kingdom would never be destroyed or conquered by another people. It would crush and bring an end to all these earthly kingdoms but itself will stand forever.

Daniel declared, “The great God has shown the king what will happen in the future. The dream is true, and the interpretation is certain.”

When King Nebuchadnezzar heard this, he bowed down before Daniel, recognizing that God was with him. The king ordered that an offering and incense be presented to Daniel. He said, “Truly, your God is the God of gods and the Lord of kings, and a revealer of mysteries, for you have been able to reveal this mystery.”

The king then promoted Daniel, giving him many great gifts and making him ruler over the entire province of Babylon and chief over all the wise men of Babylon. At Daniel’s request, the king also appointed his friends—Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah—to be in charge of the affairs of Babylon. Meanwhile, Daniel remained at the royal court.

Daniel did not forget God or his friends.

Do you want to be ten times better than your peers? Do you want to know what will happen in these last days? Read and follow His Word, and you will be ten times better and understand the mysteries of heaven.

Souls need to be sought after, prayed for, and worked on. Sincere appeals must be made. Earnest prayers must be offered. Our weak, lifeless prayers must be transformed into fervent, passionate prayers.

Why did Daniel not boast that he could interpret dreams?

What was the king’s dream?

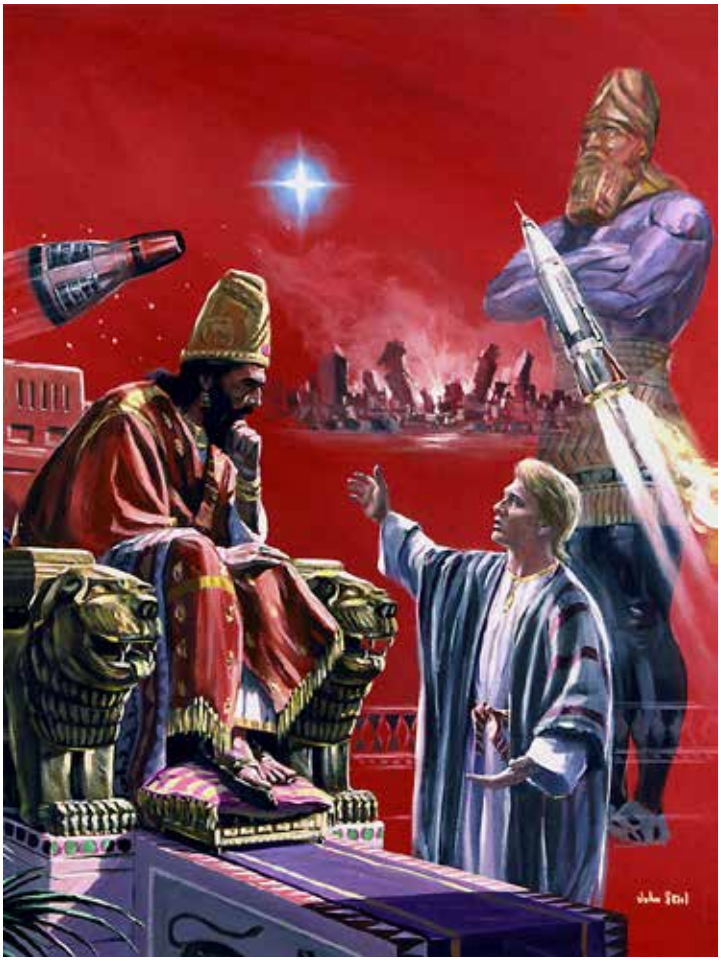
What is its interpretation?

What jobs did Daniel’s friends receive?

Why do you think the wise men of Babylon were grateful to Daniel?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Verse: Isaiah 46:9-10.



[] Remember the former things of old: for I am God, and there is no other; I am God, and there is none like Me, Declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times things that are not yet done, saying, My counsel shall stand, and I will do all My pleasure.

Prayer: Father, thank You because You are God and there is no other, for You lead in righteousness and love. We pray that Your counsel and will stand in our hearts forever.

DAY 164 (June 12)

TOPIC: The Importance of the Prophecy of Daniel 2

All the history books of the world tell us that Babylon ruled the world—represented by the head of gold—from 606 BC to 539 BC. After Babylon, Belshazzar reigned until the Medes and Persians came and overthrew the Chaldeans, taking over the kingdom under King Darius. They entered the city through the Euphrates River, finding the people feasting and drunk, unaware of the invasion.

When the Persians took over, King Cyrus issued a decree allowing the children of Judah to return to the Promised Land. Among those who returned at different times were Zerubbabel, Joshua, Nehemiah, and Ezra. It seems that Daniel and his companions chose to remain in Babylon since they are not mentioned among those who returned.

The Medo-Persian Empire lasted from 539 BC to 331 BC. After that, the Greek Empire under Alexander the Great of Macedonia rose to power. Alexander conquered many nations but died at the young age of 32 due to alcoholism. Although he had conquered vast territories, he could not control himself against drunkenness.

After Alexander's death, his kingdom was divided among his four generals—Lysimachus, Cassander, Ptolemy, and Seleucus—each ruling a portion of the empire. The Greek Empire ruled from 331 BC to 168 BC. Following Greece, the Roman Empire took over and dominated the known world from 168 BC to 476 AD.

Jesus Christ was born during the reign of Rome under Caesar Augustus, who decreed that everyone should be registered in their hometown. This led Mary and Joseph to travel to Bethlehem of Judea, where Jesus was born. The Roman Empire changed many things, such as the start of the day from evening (as it is in the Bible) to midnight. They also changed the Sabbath from the seventh day to the first day of the week (Sunday).

After the fall of the Roman Empire, it was divided into ten kingdoms, symbolized by the ten toes of the statue in Daniel's prophecy. These kingdoms were not as strong as Rome itself. The ten kingdoms of Europe included England, Germany, France, Italy, Portugal, Spain, Switzerland, and three others that no longer exist (the Vandals, the Heruli, and the Ostrogoths).

Throughout history, rulers like Charlemagne, Napoleon, and Hitler tried to unite these kingdoms but failed. At one point, the Queen of England was called "The Mother of Europe" because of her family ties to various European royal families. Many royal marriages were arranged between England, Germany, and Spain to foster unity, but the kingdoms remained divided. This division led to two World Wars, where more than 50 million people died during World War II.

Even today, Europe remains divided despite efforts to unite through the European Union. This reflects the prophecy in Daniel 2, where iron cannot mix with clay. Recently, the United Kingdom left the European Union (Brexit), fulfilling the prophecy that these kingdoms would not fully unite.

Daniel 2 concludes by saying, "In the days of these kings, the God of heaven will set up a kingdom that will never be destroyed." We are now living in that time, and Jesus said we should watch for signs of His coming. All the earthly kingdoms have had their time—the only kingdom left to come is God's eternal kingdom.

There are many signs that God's kingdom is near. The gospel is being preached worldwide, lawlessness is increasing, and natural disasters such as earthquakes are becoming more frequent. Seismologists in England report that there were only 15 major earthquakes between the 1st and 15th centuries. However, in the 17th century alone, there were 378 earthquakes, and in the last century, there were 2,119.

The Bible also says there will be wars and rumors of wars, nation rising against nation—all of which we see today. In 2 Timothy, the Bible describes the last days as perilous times when people will be lovers of themselves, lovers of money, boastful, proud, abusive, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, unholy, unloving, unforgiving, slanderous, without self-control, brutal, not lovers of good, treacherous, rash, conceited, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God—having a form of godliness but denying its power. Such people are ever learning but never able to come to the knowledge of the truth, opposing the truth and having corrupt minds.

Just as it was in the days of Noah, when people were eating, drinking, marrying, and giving in marriage, so it will be in these last days. And as in the days of Sodom, immorality is rampant today. We see these things on news outlets (radio, newspapers, and online) and even in books. People live together without marriage, engaging in immoral acts. All these are signs that the end of the world is near.

Every day, we witness alarming events—floods, deadly diseases like Ebola, and other disasters. Our only safety is in trusting God, who is our peace and eternal life.

One positive sign that God's kingdom is near is that the gospel is being preached everywhere. The Bible has been translated into many languages, and people continue to spread the good news of the kingdom through technology and personal evangelism.

Even today, God calls you to share the good news of His kingdom with others.

The dream that Nebuchadnezzar saw did not concern him alone or the people of Judah, but it also concerns us. It described the end of the conflict between Satan and God, or between good and evil. This message is encouraging because after the kingdoms of the world have ruled, God will establish His kingdom of love, peace, joy, and tranquility, which will last forever. Have you begun to prepare yourself to be part of that kingdom? This work requires you to guard souls as one who must give an account for them. The gentleness of Christ must fill the heart of the Intercessory Prayer Worker. If you have love for souls, you will show genuine concern for them. You will offer humble, sincere, and heartfelt prayers for those you visit. The fragrance of Christ's love will be evident in your work. He who gave His life for the life of the world will cooperate with the selfless worker to impress the hearts of men.

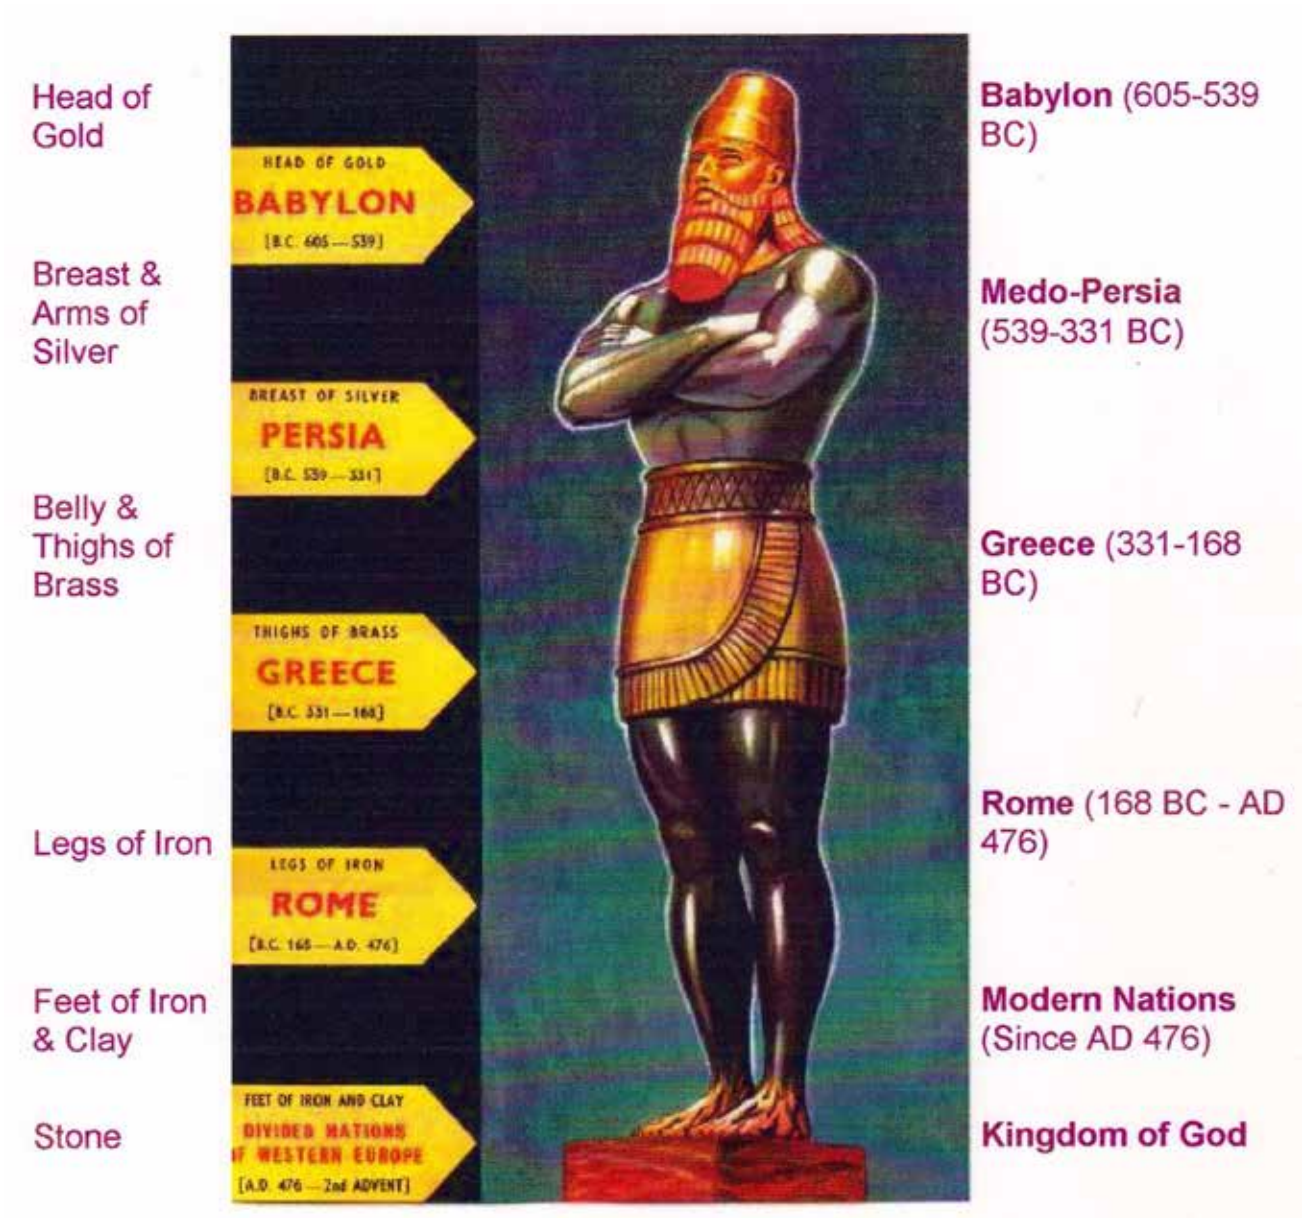
What does the head of gold represent? What do the chest and arms of silver represent? What do the belly and thighs of bronze represent? What do the legs of iron represent? What do the feet of iron and clay represent? Where are we today on this statue? What lesson do we learn from this prophecy?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Verse: Daniel 2:19-21.

[19-21] Then was the secret revealed unto Daniel in a night vision. Then Daniel blessed the God of heaven. Daniel answered and said, Blessed be the name of God forever and ever: for wisdom and might are His. And He changes the times and the seasons: He removes kings, and sets up kings: He gives wisdom to the wise, and knowledge to them that know understanding.

Prayer: And blessed be our Lord, for wisdom and might are Yours. We ask You to grant us wisdom, understanding, and knowledge to know You, to know Your Word, and to love it. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen. (Also mention your needs in prayer).



Activity: Build the statue of Daniel 2 using clay, and distinguish the kingdoms by drawing a line.

DAY 165 (June 13)

TOPIC: An In-depth Study of Daniel 2 Prophecy

A remarkable prophecy about all the kingdoms that will rule the world before the end of the world. The statue that the king dreamed of and its interpretation (read Daniel 2). Because of the times we are living in now, which are at the very edge, as you read this prophecy, we would like to revisit this prophecy in greater depth. Take time to read it yourself as well, because it does not contain many mysteries. Many things are clear. And these kingdoms are the same ones you can verify in history books and see how accurately they align.

DIAGRAM of Nebuchadnezzar's Dream Statue

WHAT GOD PREDICTS HAPPENS: Ancient Prophecy Reveals the Future .One of the oldest prophecies in the world describes that our planet is about to witness a remarkable event in human history—the end of kingdoms as we know them. This prophecy does not specify an exact date, year, decade, or even century. However, its description of human history has been so accurate that only one final stage remains to be fulfilled with absolute certainty.

The story begins with the tragic event of the exile of thousands of Jews from their homeland in Palestine. Among the captives taken to Babylon by King Nebuchadnezzar were four young royal men: Daniel, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego. In a situation that may seem strange to us but was normal at the time, Nebuchadnezzar enrolled these four young men in the University of Babylon to be trained as royal advisors.

Nebuchadnezzar's Dream

Shortly after this, the king had a dream. It was a frightening dream that deeply troubled him, but he could not remember it when he woke up the next morning. Convinced that the dream was of great importance, Nebuchadnezzar summoned his advisors and commanded them to tell him both the dream and its meaning. The wise men protested this extraordinary request. But the king declared, "Either you tell me the dream, or I will have you executed!" Despite the threat of death, the king's advisors could not provide an answer.

At that time, Daniel and his three friends had not been called to the king's court along with the other royal advisors. However, since they were still trainees in wisdom, the king's decree included them as well. When the guards came to arrest them, Daniel requested additional time. His request was granted, and that same night God revealed to Daniel the dream that Nebuchadnezzar had. (It was God who had given the king the dream in the first place.) The next morning, the guard brought Daniel before the king.

Daniel Explains the Dream

After the formal greetings, Daniel told the king the dream he had seen:

"You, O king, saw a great statue. The statue was large and exceedingly bright, and it stood before you in great splendor. The head of the statue was made of pure gold, its chest and arms were silver, its belly and thighs were bronze, its legs were iron, and its feet were partly iron and partly clay. As you watched, a stone was cut out—not by human hands—and it struck the statue on its feet of iron and clay, breaking them into pieces. Then the iron, the clay, the bronze, the silver, and the gold were shattered and became like chaff on the summer threshing floor. The wind carried them away, and no trace of them was found. But the stone that struck the statue became a great mountain and filled the whole earth." (Daniel 2:31-35)

Essentially, the king was eager to know the meaning of the dream. The beginning of Daniel's explanation likely filled the king with pride: "You, O king, are the head of gold." But the following words were not as encouraging: "After you, another kingdom will arise, inferior to yours."

Daniel explained that after Babylon, three more kingdoms would follow. Most Bible scholars agree that these represent the Medo-Persian Empire, the Greek Empire, and the Roman Empire.

However, Rome was the last of these mighty empires. After its fall, its remnants became the various nations of Europe, North Africa, and the Middle East that we know today. The destruction caused by the stone striking the statue represents the end of these earthly nations at the close of human history, after which God will establish His eternal kingdom.

What Is So Amazing?

Here is the astonishing thing about this prophecy: Daniel wrote this prophecy around 600 B.C. He was familiar with Babylon because he lived there, and he may have known about the Medo-Persian Empire during his time, although that empire did not overthrow Babylon until several years later. But humanly speaking, there is no way Daniel could have predicted the rise and fall of Greece and Rome or the breakup of the Roman Empire into separate nations. Yet, every world history textbook confirms that Nebuchadnezzar's dream unfolded exactly as Daniel revealed to the king!

Some Bible critics claim that Daniel wrote his prophecy around 150 B.C., rather than 600 B.C. as traditionally believed. They argue that there is nothing miraculous about his historical descriptions. But even if Daniel had written his prophecy in 150 B.C., there is no way he could have known about the fall of the Roman Empire and its fragmentation into separate nations, which occurred four centuries later.

Thus, we are faced with an extraordinary truth: A prophet who lived over 2,500 years ago foresaw future events in remarkable detail and accuracy.

We can reach no other conclusion than that Daniel received this information about future events from God Himself. And because everything in Daniel's prophecy about world history has been fulfilled, we can be certain that the final event—the end of the world as we know it and the establishment of God's eternal kingdom—will also come to pass. Therefore, it is wise to prepare ourselves for the coming of God's eternal kingdom, for this present life is only temporary!

Daniel chapter 2 describes this prophecy. Daniel chapter 1 provides the background to these events.

Pray for Others in Private Prayer

In private prayer, everyone has the opportunity to pray as they wish and to be as open as they desire. They can pray for their family and friends. The prayer closet is a place to share all personal struggles, exams, and trials. Public worship gatherings are not the place to reveal personal matters or heart secrets.

Why is it important to study Daniel 2? What shows us that this prophecy is nearing fulfillment today? How are you preparing yourself for the return of Jesus?

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Young Person of Jesus!

Key Verse: Daniel 2:43-44.

[43, 44] And just as you saw iron mixed with clay, they will mingle themselves with the seed of men: but they will not cling to one another, even as iron does not mix with clay. And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever.

Prayer: Lord, thank You because You are going to establish Your kingdom which will never be destroyed. A kingdom where there will be no tears, no death, nor pain. We pray we may always long to live with You forever. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

DAY 166 (June 14)

TOPIC: Forced to Worship an Idol

(Daniel 3)

After receiving an amazing and remarkable interpretation, and even the king beginning to glorify the God of heaven, King Nebuchadnezzar faced the temptation of pride. Without a doubt, he thought about the statue day and night, desiring his kingdom to last forever. He felt that the seventy years or just the head of gold were not enough—he wanted to rule forever and have people worship him. So, he decided to make an image similar to the one he had seen in his dream, but instead of using different metals, he made it entirely of gold from head to toe. This meant that his kingdom would last forever! But no human lives forever, nor does any kingdom reign forever—it is only God's kingdom that will last eternally.

The king gave an order for this statue, measuring sixty cubits high and six cubits wide, to be set up on the plain of Dura and commanded that all the officials come for its dedication. Without a doubt, people wondered what the king intended to do with the statue. Once it was completed, the king proclaimed its dedication, and the satraps, prefects, governors, treasurers, judges, magistrates, and all provincial officials gathered. The herald loudly declared: "Nations and peoples of every language, this is what you are commanded to do: As soon as you hear the sound of the horn, flute, zither, lyre, harp, pipe, and all kinds of music, you must fall down and worship the golden image that King Nebuchadnezzar has set up. Whoever does not fall down and worship will immediately be thrown into a blazing furnace." So, when all the people heard the sound of these musical instruments, they fell down and worshipped the golden image that King Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

However, some Chaldeans came forward and maliciously accused the Jews. They said to King Nebuchadnezzar, "May the king live forever! You issued a decree that everyone who hears the sound of the horn, flute, zither, lyre, harp, pipe, and all kinds of music must fall down and worship the golden image, and that whoever does not fall down and worship will be thrown into a blazing furnace. But there are some Jews whom you have set over the affairs of the province of Babylon—Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego—who pay no attention to you, Your Majesty. They neither serve your gods nor worship the image of gold you have set up."

When the king heard this, he was furious and summoned Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego. So, these men were brought before the king, and Nebuchadnezzar said to them, “Is it true, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, that you do not serve my gods or worship the golden image I have set up?”

These young men refused to break the second commandment. The king gave them another chance, saying that when they heard the sound of the music, they must fall down and worship the statue. The king had forgotten the mighty acts of the God of heaven and was now exalting himself again. He warned them that if they did not worship the statue, they would immediately be thrown into the blazing furnace, and he asked, “Then what god will be able to rescue you from my hand?”

Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego replied to the king, “We do not need to defend ourselves before you in this matter. If we are thrown into the blazing furnace, the God we serve is able to deliver us from it, and He will deliver us from Your Majesty’s hand. But even if He does not, we want you to know, Your Majesty, that we will not serve your gods or worship the image of gold you have set up.”

Nebuchadnezzar was filled with rage, and his attitude toward them changed. He ordered the furnace to be heated seven times hotter than usual and commanded some of the strongest soldiers in his army to tie up Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego and throw them into the blazing furnace. These men, wearing their robes, trousers, turbans, and other clothes, were bound and thrown into the furnace. The king's command was so urgent, and the furnace was so hot that the flames of the fire killed the soldiers who took up Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego. And these three men, firmly tied, fell into the blazing furnace.

Then King Nebuchadnezzar leaped to his feet in amazement and asked his advisers, "Weren't there three men that we tied up and threw into the fire?" They replied, "Certainly, Your Majesty." He said, "Look! I see four men walking around in the fire, unbound and unharmed, and the fourth looks like a son of the gods."

Nebuchadnezzar then approached the opening of the blazing furnace and shouted, "Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, servants of the Most High God, come out! Come here!" If you were with Jesus in the fire, would you want to come out? So, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego came out of the fire, and all the royal officials saw that the fire had not harmed their bodies, nor was a hair of their heads singed; their robes were not scorched, and there was no smell of fire on them.

This event was told and retold, and if there had been radio and television in those days, it would have been breaking news! These young men had passed another test of faith. When they were about seventeen years old, they passed the test of health by choosing better food. Now, about twenty years later, possibly in their forties, they had passed another test of faith.

Then Nebuchadnezzar said, "Praise be to the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, who has sent His angel and rescued His servants! They trusted in Him and defied the king's command and were willing to give up their lives rather than serve or worship any god except their own God." The king decreed that anyone who spoke against the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego would be cut into pieces, and their houses turned into piles of rubble, for no other god can save in this way. Then the king promoted Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego in the province of Babylon.

This was an extraordinary testimony to the whole world under the king's rule. God did not delay in rescuing His children. The ropes burned, but not a single hair was singed. Let God be called God. Let us worship, trust, and obey Him. This story gave hope to the captive youth, and even today, God can do great things for you—just trust Him.

When young people go out to preach the Truth, you must set aside time to pray for them. Pray that God will connect them to Himself and give them wisdom, grace, and knowledge. Pray for their protection from Satan's hidden traps and for their minds to be kept pure and their hearts holy.

What mistake did King Nebuchadnezzar make? Why is the sin of pride so hard to see and overcome? Why did the three young men refuse to worship the image? What was their reward for obedience? Why should we be willing to obey God, even to the point of death? How did the king recognize the fourth man in the fire as resembling a son of the gods? If you were told to come out of the fire while being with Jesus, would you?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Verse: Daniel 3:17-20.

[17-20] If it be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and He will deliver us out of your hand, O king. But if not, be it known unto you, O king, that we will not serve your gods, nor worship the golden image which you have set up. Then was Nebuchadnezzar full of fury, and the form of his visage was changed against Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego: therefore he spoke, and commanded that they should heat the furnace seven times more than it was usually heated.

Prayer: Almighty God and our King, help us not to be afraid when people want us to worship or serve their gods instead of worshiping You. Remove all evil from us and help us to love You deeply. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Draw Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego inside the fire, together with the Messiah.

DAY 167 (June 15)

TOPIC: King Nebuchadnezzar Lives in the Wild

(Daniel 4)

King Nebuchadnezzar decided to testify about what had happened to him in the book of Daniel, chapter 4. It appears that the king himself wrote this chapter. He said:

"I thought it good to declare the signs and wonders that the Most High God has done for me. How great are His signs! And how mighty are His wonders! His kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and His dominion is from generation to generation."

Nebuchadnezzar continued, saying that he was living in his luxurious palace, reigning in his kingdom, when he had a dream that frightened and disturbed him while on his bed. He commanded the wise men to be brought in, forgetting again that only God could reveal the meaning of his dream. The magicians, astrologers, Chaldeans, and soothsayers came, but none of them could interpret the dream.

Finally, Daniel came in, in whom dwelt the spirit of the holy gods, and the king told him the dream. The king said that because the spirit of the holy gods was in Daniel, no secret could be hidden from him. This time, the king remembered the dream but did not understand its meaning.

He described the dream: He saw a tree in the middle of the earth, tall and strong. Its height reached the heavens, and its sight extended to the ends of the earth. Its leaves were beautiful, its fruit was abundant, and it provided food for all. The beasts of the field found shade under it, the birds of the air dwelled in its branches, and all living creatures were fed from it.

In the dream, he saw a watcher, a holy one, coming down from heaven and proclaiming with a loud voice:

“Chop down the tree, cut off its branches, strip its leaves, and scatter its fruit. Let the beasts flee from under it and the birds from its branches. Nevertheless, leave the stump and roots in the earth, bound with a band of iron and bronze, in the tender grass of the field. Let it be wet with the dew of heaven, and let him graze with the beasts on the grass of the earth. Let his heart be changed from that of a man to that of a beast, and let seven times pass over him."

The decree was given by the watchers and the command by the holy ones so that the living may know that the Most High rules in the kingdom of men and gives it to whomever He wills and sets over it the lowest of men.

King Nebuchadnezzar then requested Daniel, whom he called Belteshazzar, to interpret the dream, as no other wise man could do it. Daniel was astonished and troubled for a while, but the king urged him not to let the dream or its meaning disturb him. Knowing that the interpretation foretold calamity for the king, Daniel wisely said:

"My lord, may the dream concern those who hate you and its interpretation concern your enemies."

The Lord gave Daniel the interpretation of the dream immediately. He told the king:

"The tree you saw, which grew and became strong, whose height reached the heavens and was visible to all the earth, whose leaves were lovely and fruit abundant, providing food for all and shelter for the beasts and birds, is you, O king! You have grown and become strong; your greatness has increased and reaches to the heavens, and your dominion extends to the ends of the earth."

The holy watcher's command to cut down the tree but leave the stump meant that the king would be driven from men to live with beasts, eating grass like oxen and being wet with the dew of heaven. This would last for seven times (years) until he recognized that the Most High rules over the kingdom of men and gives it to whomever He pleases. The stump left in the ground meant that the kingdom would be restored once the king acknowledged God's sovereignty.

Daniel urged the king to heed the warning, saying:

"O king, let my counsel be acceptable to you. Break off your sins by practicing righteousness and show mercy to the poor. Perhaps your prosperity will be prolonged."

The king may have considered obeying Daniel's advice, but his pride, power, and wealth overcame him. Twelve months later, while walking in his royal palace in Babylon, the king boasted:

“Is this not the great Babylon I have built for my royal residence, by my mighty power, and for the glory of my majesty?”

While the words were still on his lips, a voice came from heaven:

“King Nebuchadnezzar, to you it is spoken: The kingdom has departed from you. You shall be driven from men to live with the beasts of the field. You will eat grass like oxen, and seven times shall pass over you until you know that the Most High rules in the kingdom of men and gives it to whomever He wills.”

At that very moment, the prophecy was fulfilled. Nebuchadnezzar was driven from men and ate grass like an ox. His body was drenched with the dew of heaven until his hair grew like eagle’s feathers and his nails like bird’s claws.

Indeed, our God is wonderful. He gave this king many chances out of love, but Nebuchadnezzar wasted them. Likewise, we should not waste the opportunities of salvation we are given but should repent, confess, and remain on the Lord’s side.

At the end of seven years, Nebuchadnezzar looked up to heaven, and his understanding returned to him. He blessed, praised, and honored the Most High, acknowledging:

“His dominion is an everlasting dominion, and His kingdom endures from generation to generation.”

Finally, he realized that God alone reigns over heaven and earth, and no one can resist His will.

Nebuchadnezzar was restored to his throne, and his kingdom became even greater than before. He publicly testified:

“I, Nebuchadnezzar, praise, exalt, and honor the King of heaven, for all His works are truth, and His ways are justice. He is able to humble those who walk in pride.”

Pride led to Lucifer’s fall (Isaiah 14:12-15; Ezekiel 28:14-17) and caused Adam and Eve’s downfall (Genesis 3:3-7; Romans 3:23). God hates pride because it seeks to remove Him from His throne in our hearts (Proverbs 6:16-19).

Paul said, “I die daily” (1 Corinthians 15:31), meaning he fought against his selfish nature every day. This battle can only be won by allowing Christ to live in us (Galatians 2:20).

God is merciful. The ministers sought Nebuchadnezzar and restored him to his kingdom. God increased his greatness because he humbled himself and honored the Lord publicly.

Questions to Reflect On:

Who wrote this chapter of Daniel?

What dream did Nebuchadnezzar have?

What was the dream's interpretation?

How did the king appear when he lived like a beast?

Why couldn't he restrain his pride?

Why is boasting dangerous?

Why did God restore Nebuchadnezzar's kingdom?

How can someone avoid the trap of pride?

May God bless you, dear child and young person of Jesus.

Key Verse: Daniel 4:34, 37.

[34] And at the end of the days I Nebuchadnezzar lifted up mine eyes unto heaven, and mine understanding returned unto me, and I blessed the Most High, and I praised and honored Him that liveth forever, whose dominion is an everlasting dominion, and His kingdom is from generation to generation.
[37] Now I Nebuchadnezzar praise and extol and honor the King of heaven, all whose works are truth, and His ways judgment: and those that walk in pride He is able to abase.

Prayer: Lord, help us to be humble and to praise and honor You who live forever, and who have dominion and a kingdom from generation to generation. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

DAY 168 (June 16)

TOPIC: The Bloodless Hand Writes on the Wall

(Daniel 5)

When Nebuchadnezzar died, his son, who was weak and named Evil-Merodach, inherited the kingdom. However, he loved to travel to various countries and live a life of pleasure, so he left his son Belshazzar to rule the capital city. The father and son co-ruled the kingdom. King Belshazzar was wicked and did not learn from the experiences of his grandfather, Nebuchadnezzar. One day, he decided to hold a great feast for his nobles. While tasting the wine, he ordered the sacred vessels from the temple in Jerusalem, which his grandfather had taken when he besieged Jerusalem, to be brought so that he and his concubines could drink from them. The golden vessels from the house of God in Jerusalem were brought, and they drank from them, praising the gods of gold, silver, bronze, iron, wood, and stone.

At that very moment, the fingers of a human hand appeared, writing on the wall. When the king saw the floating hand writing by itself, his face changed, his thoughts troubled him, his legs gave way, and his knees knocked together in fear. The king cried out loudly and ordered the magicians, Chaldeans, and astrologers to be brought. Even today, some people, when faced with problems, turn to magicians and astrologers who use the powers of Satan to solve their problems. This is wrong—we should kneel and pray to the God of heaven, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, not to Satan or his followers.

The king promised a reward to anyone who could read the inscription and interpret it. He said that person would be clothed in royal purple, given a gold chain, and become the third ruler in the kingdom, as he and his father were co-rulers. All the king's wise men came, but none could read the writing or interpret its meaning.

While the king was troubled, trembling, and his knees knocking together, the feast turned into fear and sorrow. He thought the living and true God could be mocked. He had many cups available, but he chose to openly blaspheme God by using the consecrated vessels. His grandfather Nebuchadnezzar had respected these sacred objects.

The queen, who knew Daniel well, was summoned by the nobles. Because of the king's and nobles' words, she entered the banquet hall and said, "O king, live forever! Do not let your thoughts trouble you, nor let your face change. There is a man in your kingdom in whom is the spirit of the holy gods. In the days of your father, light, understanding, and wisdom like that of the gods were found in him. King Nebuchadnezzar, your father—yes, your father the king—made him chief of the magicians, astrologers, Chaldeans, and diviners. This man Daniel, whom the king called Belteshazzar, has an excellent spirit, knowledge, understanding, and the ability to interpret dreams, solve riddles, and explain mysteries. Let Daniel be called, and he will give the interpretation."

Daniel was summoned, now an old man, possibly over 85 years old. The king said to him, "Are you that Daniel, one of the captives from Judah whom my father brought from Jerusalem? I have heard that the spirit of the gods is in you, and that you have light, understanding, and excellent wisdom. The wise men and astrologers have been brought before me to read this writing and explain its meaning, but they could not interpret it. But I have heard that you can interpret and solve mysteries. Now, if you can read the writing and interpret it, you shall be clothed in purple, have a gold chain around your neck, and be the third ruler in the kingdom."

It is surprising that the king did not know Daniel, even though Daniel had worked marvelously with his grandfather. Daniel did not need the king's gifts. Then Daniel answered the king, "Let your gifts be for yourself, and give your rewards to another. Nevertheless, I will read the writing to the king and make known its interpretation.

O king, the Most High God gave Nebuchadnezzar, your father, a kingdom, majesty, glory, and honor. Because of the greatness He gave him, all peoples, nations, and languages trembled and feared him. He killed whom he wished, spared whom he wished, exalted whom he wished, and humbled whom he wished. But when his heart was lifted up, and his spirit became proud, he was deposed from his royal throne, and his glory was taken from him. He was driven from men, his heart was made like that of a beast, his dwelling was with wild donkeys, he ate grass like oxen, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven until he knew that the Most High God rules over the kingdom of men and appoints whomever He wills.

But you, his son, O Belshazzar, have not humbled your heart, though you knew all this. Instead, you have exalted yourself against the Lord of heaven. You brought the vessels of His house before you, and you and your nobles, wives, and concubines drank wine from them. You praised the gods of silver, gold, bronze, iron, wood, and stone, which do not see, hear, or know. But the God who holds your breath and owns all your ways, you have not glorified.

Then the fingers of the hand were sent from Him, and this writing was inscribed. This is the inscription that was written: MENE, MENE, TEKEL, and PARSIN. This is the interpretation:

MENE – God has numbered the days of your kingdom and brought it to an end.

TEKEL – You have been weighed on the scales and found wanting.

PARSIN – Your kingdom is divided and given to the Medes and Persians."

Belshazzar kept his promise, rewarding Daniel with purple robes, a gold chain, and the proclamation that he was the third ruler in the kingdom. However, that very night was the end of Babylon's kingdom. The Medes and Persians entered the city through the riverbed, as the city had high, thick walls. While people feasted wickedly, the invaders captured the city, and that night Belshazzar, the king of the Chaldeans, was slain. Darius the Mede received the kingdom at the age of 62.

This is a great lesson for us—we must be humble like Daniel, and God will lift us in His time. Let us cast aside Belshazzar's pride, which dishonored God and disrespected sacred things. May the Lord help us to respect holy things. The church is not a place to run around, destroy property, or misuse sacred items. Truly, the heart of man is full of foolishness.

"The fool says in his heart, 'There is no God.' They are corrupt and have committed abominable injustice; there is none who does good." (Psalm 53:1)

Those who love sin choose to ignore God in their thoughts, teachings, and lives. The Bible calls this foolishness because God is real, and such people will be held accountable for their evil deeds. Sadly, we often fail to learn from the mistakes of those before us, insisting on experiencing things ourselves—until it is too late.

Sabbath School Teachers, Pray for Your Class Members
As God's workers, we need to be more like Jesus and less self-centered. We must have a greater burden for souls and pray daily for wisdom and strength for the Sabbath. Teachers, meet with your classes, pray with them, and teach them how to pray. Let your heart be softened, and let your prayers be short and sincere.

Reflection Questions:

1. What sin did Belshazzar commit?

2. Who wrote on the wall?

3. Who suggested calling Daniel?

4. What lesson do you learn from this story?

5. What do "MENE, MENE, TEKEL, and PARSIN" mean?

Each day, ask yourself: If God weighed me on His scales, what would He find?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Verse: Daniel 5:24-28.

[24-28] Then was the part of the hand sent from Him; and this writing was written. And this is the writing that was written, MENE, MENE, TEKEL, UPHARSIN. This is the interpretation of the thing: MENE; God has numbered your kingdom, and finished it. TEKEL; you are weighed in the balances, and are found wanting. PERES; your kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for helping us in our lives with fresh air and the light of the sun. Help us not to be arrogant and proud like King Belshazzar, and not to use things of the church for common purposes. Keep us from the evil one, our Creator. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Write these words on paper and stick them on the wall, and explain their meaning—MENE, MENE, TEKEL, and PERES. Act out the frightened face of the king and his knees knocking together.

DAY 169 (June 17)

TOPIC: Daniel is Thrown into the Lions' Den

(Daniel 6)

It pleased Darius, the king of the Medes, to appoint 120 satraps and three administrators to oversee them. Daniel was not dismissed or killed but was taken by the new administration to be one of the three administrators, so the satraps would report to them, and the king would not suffer loss. Others were displeased that a man from the previous kingdom would hold a high position in the new one. Daniel's excellence surpassed all the satraps because the Spirit of God was in him, and the king planned to set him over the entire kingdom. This aroused jealousy among the other leaders, and they sought to find a way to accuse him without cause. They conspired, saying, "We will not find any charge against Daniel unless it is related to the law of his God."

Daniel was determined to obey God, and this is a lesson in obedience for us today. The ministers and governors gathered before the king and said, "King Darius, live forever. All the royal ministers, governors, counselors, and satraps have consulted together to establish a royal statute and to make a firm decree, that whoever petitions any god or man for thirty days, except you, O king, shall be cast into the den of lions. Now, O king, establish the decree and sign the writing, so that it may not be changed, according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which cannot be altered."

Before the king thought carefully or realized their trap, he agreed to the decree, seeking his own honor without knowing it was a trap against his beloved friend, Daniel. The king signed and sealed the decree, making it unchangeable by the law of the Medes and Persians. When Daniel learned that the decree had been signed, he went home to his upstairs room where the windows opened toward Jerusalem. He knelt down and prayed three times a day, giving thanks to his God, just as he had done before. He did not change his practices because of the new law.

The leaders gathered and found Daniel praying and seeking God. They approached the king and reminded him, "Did you not sign a decree that anyone who prays to any god or man within thirty days, except you, O king, shall be cast into the lions' den?" The king answered, "The decree stands according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which cannot be revoked." Then they said, "Daniel, one of the exiles from Judah, does not pay attention to you, O king, or to the decree you signed but prays three times a day."

Daniel was a man of integrity. He did not hide or wait for the thirty days to pass but remained faithful to the God of heaven, who deserved his worship. How else would these people, who did not know God, learn about Him?

The king was greatly distressed and tried to rescue Daniel. Until sunset, he worked to find a way to save him, but he could not change the law. The leaders insisted that the law must be enforced. So, the king gave the order, and Daniel was thrown into the lions' den. Before he was thrown in, the king said to him, "May your God, whom you serve continually, rescue you."

A stone was brought and placed over the mouth of the den, and the king sealed it with his own signet ring and the rings of his nobles so that nothing concerning Daniel could be changed. The king returned to his palace and spent the night without eating, without entertainment, and without sleeping. At the first light of dawn, the king hurried to the lions' den. When he came near, he called out in a distressed voice, "Daniel, servant of the living God, has your God, whom you serve continually, been able to rescue you from the lions?"

To his relief, he heard Daniel's voice. Daniel answered, "O king, live forever! My God sent His angel, and He shut the mouths of the lions. They have not hurt me because I was found innocent before Him. Also, I have not done any wrong before you, O king." The king was overjoyed and ordered that Daniel be lifted out of the den. No wound was found on him because he had trusted in his God.

The lions, though hungry and roaring all night, did not touch the prophet of God. The leaders who had accused Daniel were furious that their plan had failed. The king then commanded that those men, along with their wives and children, be thrown into the lions' den. Before they reached the bottom of the den, the lions overpowered them and crushed all their bones. Those who dig a pit to harm others will eventually fall into it themselves.

Then King Darius wrote to all the peoples, nations, and languages throughout his kingdom:
"May you prosper greatly! I issue a decree that in every part of my kingdom, people must fear and reverence the God of Daniel. For He is the living God, and He endures forever; His kingdom will not be destroyed, and His dominion will never end. He rescues and He saves; He performs signs and wonders in the heavens and on the earth. He has rescued Daniel from the power of the lions."

The king publicly declared the greatness of God throughout his kingdom. Even today, wherever you are, you should testify of God's mighty works. Praising God is also a form of offering.

Daniel prospered during the reign of Darius and the reign of Cyrus the Persian. We too will prosper if we honor and follow God's commandments, and He Himself will lift us up. As the saying goes, "Whoever digs a pit will fall into it."

The Bible says, "Whoever digs a pit may fall into it" (Ecclesiastes 10:8). In the days of Esther, Haman was envious of Mordecai and secretly built a tall gallows to hang him. What happened? Haman himself was hanged on the same gallows he had prepared (Esther 7:9-10).

Let us be people of love and not those who plot harm against others, lest we fall into our own traps.

Students should pray for their teachers—
Students should have regular prayer times where they can offer simple, heartfelt prayers for their teachers. They should pray for their teachers to be blessed with physical strength, sound minds, moral integrity, and spiritual insight, and that each teacher may be qualified by God's grace to perform their duties effectively.

Why did people want Daniel to be thrown into the lions' den?

Why was the king distressed?

How did God rescue Daniel?

What happened to those wicked men when they were thrown into the lions' den?

Why did Daniel prosper during the reign of Darius and Cyrus?

Praising God is an offering—do you praise Him?

Will there be persecution for God's people in the last days?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Verse: Daniel 6:26-28.

[26-28] I make a decree, that in every dominion of my kingdom men tremble and fear before the God of Daniel: for He is the living God, and steadfast forever, and His kingdom that which shall not be destroyed, and His dominion shall be even unto the end. He delivereth and rescueth, and He worketh signs and wonders in heaven and in earth, who hath delivered Daniel from the power of the lions. So this Daniel prospered in the reign of Darius, and in the reign of Cyrus the Persian.

Prayer: Thank You, Heavenly Father, because You live forever and Your kingdom will never be destroyed. Thank You for deliverance and healing. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Draw a picture of Daniel in the lions' den, the lions, and the king peeking into the pit.

DAY 170 (June 18)

TOPIC: Strange Beasts

(Daniel 7)

In the first year of King Belshazzar's reign, Daniel had a dream and visions while on his bed. He wrote them down and gave an account of all these things. In his vision at night, he saw the four winds of heaven stirring up the great sea. Then, four great beasts, each different from the other, came up from the sea.

The first was like a lion with eagle's wings. Its wings were plucked off, and it was lifted up from the ground and made to stand on two feet like a man, and a human heart was given to it. Then he saw a second beast, like a bear, raised up on one side, with three ribs in its mouth between its teeth. They said to it, "Arise, devour much flesh."

After this, he saw another beast, like a leopard, which had four wings like a bird on its back and four heads. It was given dominion. Then in his vision at night, he saw a fourth beast, dreadful, terrifying, and very strong. It had large iron teeth, devoured and broke in pieces, and trampled the residue with its feet. It was different from all the beasts before it and had ten horns. As he was considering the horns, another little horn came up among them, before which three of the first horns were plucked out by the roots. This little horn had eyes like a human and a mouth speaking great things.

As Daniel watched, thrones were set up, and the Ancient of Days took His seat. His clothing was white as snow, and the hair of His head was like pure wool. His throne was like fiery flames, and its wheels were burning fire. A river of fire flowed from before Him. Thousands upon thousands ministered to Him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before Him. The court was seated, and the books were opened.

Then Daniel saw One like the Son of Man coming with the clouds of heaven. He approached the Ancient of Days and was given dominion, glory, and a kingdom, so that all peoples, nations, and languages should serve Him. His dominion is an everlasting dominion that will not pass away, and His kingdom will never be destroyed.

Daniel was troubled by these visions and sought to understand their meaning. He was told that the explanation would be given to him. God does not want His people to be in darkness about this kingdom. Although the world currently exalts this power, it will eventually lead to the destruction of the entire world, and the earth will come to an end (Revelation 17:8-11; 6:14-17; 19:11-21).

The saints will be taken to heaven to reign with Jesus for 1,000 years (1 Thessalonians 4:16-18; Revelation 20:4). During this time, the earth will be desolate (Jeremiah 4:23-27). After the 1,000 years, the saints will return to earth with the New Jerusalem (Revelation 21:10). The wicked will then be resurrected and will try to capture the city, but fire will come down from God and destroy them (Revelation 20:7-10, 15). This is the second death or the lake of fire (Revelation 20:14).

The lake of fire is not burning now—it will burn after the 1,000 years are over. Those who are cast into it, including Satan and his angels, will be burned to ashes (Malachi 4:1-3; Ezekiel 28:14-19) and will never live again. After this, the saints will inherit the new earth (Revelation 21:1; Matthew 5:5; 2 Peter 3:10-13; Psalm 37).

Parents Should Pray for Their Children

God has promised to give wisdom to those who ask in faith, and He will fulfill His promises. He delights in faith that trusts in His Word. Augustine's mother prayed for the conversion of her son. Although she did not see any evidence that God was working in his heart, she did not lose hope. She held onto the Scriptures and persistently pleaded with God. Her earnest prayers, unwavering faith, and perseverance prevailed, and God answered her prayers. Even today, God is ready to listen to the prayers of His people.

Why was Daniel troubled?
Who is the terrifying beast?
Who is the Ancient of Days?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: Daniel 7:24-26.

[24-26] And the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise: and another shall rise after them; and he shall be diverse from the first, and he shall subdue three kings. And he shall speak great words against the Most High, and shall wear out the saints of the Most High, and think to change times and laws: and they shall be given into his hand until a time and times and the dividing of time. But the judgment shall sit, and they shall take away his dominion, to consume and to destroy it unto the end.

Prayer: Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy Name. Help us to understand this power that speaks against You so that we may avoid it. Give us strength and courage in the days of persecution, when the antichrist will oppress Your people. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Learn about the key text—the power that will speak against God. Read Daniel 2, 7, and 8, and you will find the sequence of kingdoms; this is how you will know which kingdoms are meant. These kingdoms perfectly match world history! Also read about these kingdoms in world history curricula.

DAY 171 (June 19)

TOPIC: The Interpretation of Daniel's Dream

Daniel was told that the four great beasts represent four kingdoms that will rise on the earth. This prophecy corresponds to the vision in Daniel 2 about the statue made of different metals. History confirms this prophecy. The kingdom of Babylon was in power when Daniel received this vision. Other kingdoms arose later. This prophecy is significant because it helps us understand the timeline of world history. In Daniel 2, we are now in the period represented by the toes of iron and clay. In Daniel 7, we are in the time of the ten horns representing the divided kingdoms of Europe.

Interpretation of the Dream:

1. The head of gold in Nebuchadnezzar's dream (Daniel 2) corresponds to the lion in Daniel 7, representing the Babylonian Empire (606 BC – 539 BC).

2. The chest and arms of silver correspond to the bear and represent the Medo-Persian Empire (539 BC – 331 BC). The three ribs symbolize the three kingdoms (Babylon, Lydia, and Egypt) conquered by the Medo-Persians.

3. The belly and thighs of bronze correspond to the leopard and represent the Greek Empire (331 BC – 168 BC) under Alexander the Great, who died at 32. His kingdom was divided among four generals, represented by the four heads of the leopard.

4. The legs of iron correspond to the dreadful beast and represent the Roman Empire (168 BC – 476 AD).

5. The ten toes correspond to the ten horns, symbolizing the divided kingdoms of Europe that emerged after the fall of Rome.

Among the ten horns, Daniel saw a little horn that uprooted three others. This horn persecuted the saints, changed times and laws, but its reign will eventually end. God will judge it, and the saints will receive the eternal kingdom.

Who did the lion represent?
Who did the bear represent?
Who did the leopard represent?

Who did the dreadful beast represent?
What do the horns represent?
What do the four heads of the leopard represent?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: Daniel 7:13-15.

[13-15] I saw in the night visions, and, behold, one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and they brought Him near before Him. And there was given Him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages, should serve Him: His dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and His kingdom that which shall not be destroyed. I Daniel was grieved in my spirit in the midst of my body, and the visions of my head troubled me.

Prayer: Lord, You are the One with dominion, glory, and the kingdom. Receive our praises, our Creator, Sustainer, and Redeemer. Help us to be with You forever in Your kingdom that can never be destroyed. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Draw a picture of the four great beasts and explain which kingdoms they represent, then explore further to find out the years in which these kingdoms ruled.

DAY 172 (June 20)

TOPIC: The Vision of the Ram and the Goat

(Daniel 8)

In the third year of Belshazzar's reign, the last king of Babylon, Daniel saw another vision at the citadel of Susa, near the Ulai River. As he looked up, he saw a ram standing by the river. It had two horns, and though both were long, one was longer than the other, and the longer one came up last. Daniel saw the ram charging toward the west, north, and south. No animal could stand against it, and it did as it pleased, becoming great.

As Daniel was thinking about what he was seeing, a male goat suddenly appeared from the west, crossing the whole earth without touching the ground. This goat had a large horn between its eyes. It approached the ram with the two horns, which Daniel had seen standing beside the river, and charged at it furiously. In the heat of its anger, the goat struck the ram, breaking both of its horns. The ram was powerless to stand against it, and no one could rescue the ram from the goat's power. The goat became very great, but at the height of its power, the large horn was broken off, and in its place grew four prominent horns toward the four winds of heaven.

Out of one of these horns came a small horn, which grew in power toward the south, the east, and toward the Beautiful Land. It grew until it reached the host of the heavens and threw some of the starry host down to the earth and trampled on them. It set itself up to be as great as the Prince of the host; it took away the daily sacrifice from Him, and the place of His sanctuary was brought low. Because of rebellion, the host of the saints and the daily sacrifice were given over to it. It prospered in everything it did, and truth was thrown to the ground.

Then Daniel heard a holy one speaking, and another holy one asked, "How long will it take for the vision to be fulfilled—the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, the rebellion that causes desolation, and the surrender of the sanctuary and the host to be trampled underfoot?" He was told, "It will take 2,300 evenings and mornings; then the sanctuary will be cleansed." This is the longest time prophecy in the Bible, the prophecy of 2,300 days.

Daniel sought to understand the meaning of the vision. The angel Gabriel was commanded to explain the vision to him. Gabriel said, "Understand, O son of man, that the vision concerns the time of the end." While Gabriel was speaking, Daniel was overcome with sleep, but he was awakened. Gabriel explained that the ram with two horns represents the kings of Media and Persia. This corresponds to the silver chest of Nebuchadnezzar's statue in Daniel 2, the bear in Daniel 7, and now the ram in Daniel 8—all representing the Medo-Persian Empire. Gabriel further explained that the goat represents the kingdom of Greece, and the large horn between its eyes represents its first king, Alexander the Great, who conquered the Medo-Persian Empire. After his death, his kingdom was divided among his four generals into four regions.

Gabriel then described a future king with a fierce face and mastery of intrigue. This king would become very powerful—not by his own power—and would cause astounding devastation. He would destroy mighty men and the holy people. He would exalt himself and stand against the Prince of princes, but he would be broken—not by human hands.

A year in prophecy represents 360 days. "A time" means one year (360 days), "times" means two years (720 days), and "half a time" means half a year (180 days), totaling 1,260 prophetic days. This prophecy parallels the 1,260 years mentioned in Revelation, which have already been fulfilled. The Roman system even changed the calendar, marking the beginning of a new day at midnight instead of sunset, as was the practice from creation.

Daniel was told that the vision was for the distant future, and he was left astonished and weak for several days. Even after resuming his duties for the king, he remained troubled by the vision, which no one understood. Today, many years have passed, and the kingdoms in the vision have all come and gone. What remains to be fulfilled is the coming of the Kingdom of God. The Prince of princes, Jesus Christ, will return to destroy earthly kingdoms and establish His eternal kingdom. Are you preparing for His return?

The 2,300 days in Daniel 8:14 represent 2,300 prophetic years (Ezekiel 4:6). This period began in 457 BC when the decree to restore and rebuild Jerusalem was issued and ended in 1844 AD. The cleansing of the sanctuary refers to Christ's work of judgment, purification, and reconciliation, which began in 1844 in the Most Holy Place of the heavenly sanctuary (Hebrews 9:23-26; Revelation 11:19). When this work is completed, Christ will make a final declaration that will determine the eternal destiny of every person—either for eternal life or eternal death (Revelation 22:11-12). Then He will return to gather His faithful and destroy the wicked. The sanctuary message is vast—consider reading chapters 24 and 25 of The Great Controversy for a more comprehensive understanding.

Pray for Fellow Believers
We often forget that our fellow workers in the faith need strength, joy, and encouragement. During times of burden and anxiety, be sure to express your care and compassion. Let them know you are praying for them. Share God's message with them: "Be strong and courageous."

What kingdom did the ram represent?

Why did it have one horn longer than the other?

What kingdom did the goat represent?

Why was the horn broken?

Why did Daniel faint?

Read the Bible and explain how this chapter relates to the final judgment.

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Verse: Daniel 8:13-15.

[13-15] Then I heard one saint speaking, and another saint said unto that certain saint which spoke, How long shall be the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, and the transgression of desolation, to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot? And he said unto me, Unto two thousand and three hundred days; then shall the sanctuary be cleansed. And it came to pass, when I, even I Daniel, had seen the vision, and sought for the meaning, then, behold, there stood before me as the appearance of a man.

Prayer: Thank You, Heavenly Father, help us to understand well the prophecy of Daniel 8:14. Forgive our sins and remind us that we are living in the last days, so that we may be ready and also help others to be ready. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: For the activity of Daniel 8, tell the youth and children to match the symbols from Daniel's vision with their meanings, such as the ram of Medo-Persia and the goat of Greece. Help the children to remember the greatness of God and His trustworthy plan of history. Review the prophecies that parallel this in Daniel 2 and Daniel 7.

DAY 173 (June 21)

TOPIC: Daniel Receives Further Revelation of Prophecy

(Daniel 9)

We will try to explain this simply so that every child can understand at least a little. In many Bible prophecies, a day represents a year. Read Numbers 14:34 and Ezekiel 4:6. In prophecy, the sea represents many people, while dry land represents few people. If you are eager to understand prophecy better, make an effort to study the Bible and the writings of the Spirit of Prophecy. The Bible interprets itself. Since we are living in the last days, we can look back at history and see how many of these prophecies have already been fulfilled. Ministries like Amazing Discoveries, Morning Star Radio, Mahubiri TV, and Amazing Facts help people study prophecy. You can search these names online to learn more.

In the first year of Darius the Mede, after Babylon's fall, Daniel understood from the Scriptures that the desolation of Jerusalem would last seventy years. The prophet Jeremiah had foretold these seventy years of Jerusalem's desolation. Upon realizing this, Daniel turned to the Lord in prayer and supplication, fasting, and wearing sackcloth and ashes. He confessed the sins of his people, saying:

"O Lord, the great and awesome God, who keeps His covenant of love with those who love Him and keep His commandments, we have sinned and done wrong. We have been wicked and rebelled; we have turned away from Your commands and laws. We have not listened to Your servants the prophets, who spoke in Your name to our kings, our princes, and our ancestors, and to all the people of the land."

Daniel prayed on behalf of his people, acknowledging their collective guilt. He confessed that the Lord was righteous, but the people had brought shame on themselves by disobeying Him. Daniel admitted that all Israel had transgressed the law and turned away from the Lord. Because of this, the curses written in the Law of Moses had come upon them.

Daniel pleaded for God's mercy, asking Him to turn His anger away from Jerusalem and His holy hill. "Now, our God, hear the prayers and petitions of Your servant. For Your sake, Lord, look with favor on Your desolate sanctuary. Give ear, our God, and hear; open Your eyes and see the desolation of the city that bears Your Name. We do not make requests of You because we are righteous, but because of Your great mercy. Lord, listen! Lord, forgive! Lord, hear and act! For Your sake, my God, do not delay, because Your city and Your people bear Your Name."

While Daniel was still praying, confessing his sins and the sins of his people, the angel Gabriel appeared to him again. Gabriel told Daniel: "I have come to give you insight and understanding. As soon as you began to pray, a word went out, and I have come to tell you, for you are highly esteemed. Therefore, consider the word and understand the vision."

Gabriel explained that seventy weeks had been decreed for Daniel's people and the holy city to accomplish several purposes:

1. To finish transgression

2. To put an end to sin

3. To atone for wickedness

4. To bring in everlasting righteousness

5. To seal up vision and prophecy

6. To anoint the Most Holy Place

Gabriel said: “Know and understand this: From the time the word goes out to restore and rebuild Jerusalem until the Anointed One, the ruler, comes, there will be seven ‘sevens’ and sixty-two ‘sevens.’ It will be rebuilt with streets and a trench, but in times of trouble. After the sixty-two ‘sevens,’ the Anointed One will be put to death and will have nothing.”

The angel continued: “The people of the ruler who will come will destroy the city and the sanctuary. The end will come like a flood: War will continue until the end, and desolations have been decreed. He will confirm a covenant with many for one ‘seven.’ In the middle of the ‘seven,’ he will put an end to sacrifice and offering. And at the temple, he will set up an abomination that causes desolation, until the end that is decreed is poured out on him.”

The seventy weeks are a symbolic time period in prophecy. Since a day in prophecy represents a year, seventy weeks (70 x 7 days) equals 490 prophetic days, which corresponds to 490 years. This time period began in 457 BC when the decree to rebuild Jerusalem was issued and extended to 34 AD when the gospel was opened to the Gentiles.

Jesus Christ, the Messiah, was crucified in the middle of the final week, fulfilling the prophecy that He would be “cut off” (Daniel 9:26-27). After His death, the sacrificial system ended, as Christ’s sacrifice became the ultimate atonement.

Who are spiritual Israel?
In the New Testament, the term “Israel” is no longer limited to literal descendants of Abraham. Instead, all who believe in Christ—whether Jew or Gentile—are considered spiritual Israelites (Romans 2:28-29; 9:6-8; Galatians 3:26-29). Through Christ’s death on the cross, the barrier between Jews and Gentiles was broken down. Now, all people have equal access to salvation through faith in Jesus Christ (Ephesians 2:11-22).

We should rejoice and say, “Praise the Lord!” At the foot of the cross, all people are equal. There is no longer any need for a special time to preach the gospel to the Jews—they need to hear the gospel now, just like everyone else. The day of salvation is today (2 Corinthians 6:2). When Christ returns, He will destroy the abomination of desolation and all who align themselves with it (Daniel 9:27; Revelation 19:11-21). May God help us always to be on His side.

The Power of Prayer
We need to pray more than we do. There is great power and blessing in praying together with our families, with our children, and also in private. Ask Christ to give you His helping hand to accomplish His purposes. Through prayer, you can receive the strength to make your service to your children more effective.

Why is it important to pray for others?

Why did Daniel say “we have sinned,” even though he personally had not?

Why is it important to study the prophecies of Daniel?

Can you also pray for understanding of the 2,300-year prophecy?

How many days are in seventy weeks?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Verse: Daniel 9:24, 25.

[24, 25] Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and prophecy, and to anoint the most Holy. Know therefore and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the Messiah the Prince shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks: the street shall be built again, and the wall, even in troublous times.

Prayer: Thank You, Father in heaven. Create in us clean hearts. Help us to understand well the prophecy of the seventy weeks. Keep us from making up interpretations that do not come from You. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

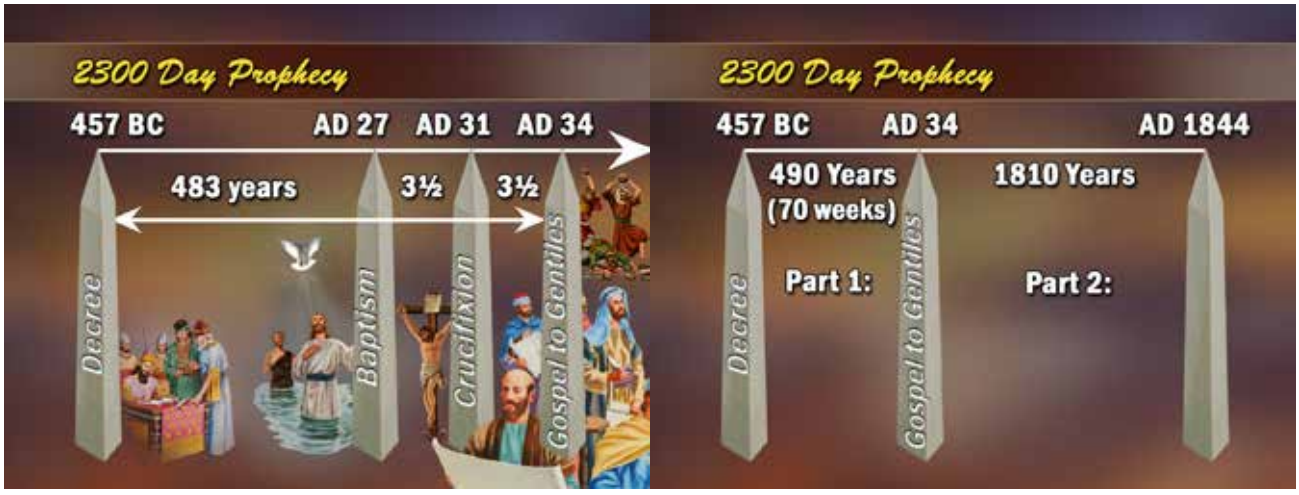
DAY 174 (June 22)



TOPIC: The Prophecy of the 2300 Days Revealed

(Daniel 9)

Three kings issued decrees to rebuild Jerusalem: Cyrus, Darius, and Artaxerxes. The final proclamation was made in 457 BC. Sixty-nine weeks equal 483 days, and in prophecy, one day represents one year. By calculating from 457 BC, this prophecy leads to 27 AD, the year Jesus was baptized—when the Messiah was anointed.

(Refer to the chart here for better understanding.)

#457 BC (-457): The beginning of the 2300 days/years and the 70 weeks, marked by the final decree to rebuild Jerusalem (Ezra 7:1-27).
27 AD: The end of the 69 weeks; the Messiah is anointed—Christ is baptized (Daniel 9:26).
31 AD: In the middle of the 70th week, Christ is crucified (Daniel 9:26-27).
34 AD: The end of the 70 weeks—Stephen is stoned (Acts 7:59).
457 BC + 2300 years = 1843 AD, but after further calculations involving the Passover and other factors, they arrived at the date October 22, 1844.

During this period, people in Europe and America who studied the Bible believed that Jesus would return that year because they concluded that the true sanctuary was now in heaven, not on earth. Although their calculations were correct, the actual event occurred in heaven, where the investigative judgment began—first for those who had died, and later for the living. This would mark the closing of the door of mercy for people to repent and seek forgiveness. Hebrews chapters 8, 9, and 10 explain further about the heavenly sanctuary, emphasizing that the earthly sanctuary in Exodus 25 was a shadow or model of the heavenly one.

The door of mercy first closes for those who have had the opportunity to know God (the household of God). We plan to write a small book on prophecy to explain further what little we understand. However, it should be known that no one knows all prophecy—God reveals certain things to His people as they happen so that they may glorify Him and recognize that He is actively involved in their lives, and He is TRUTH. To know more, read the Bible, pray to God, and follow those who study prophecy, such as Ivor Myers and James Rafferty from Salvation in Symbols and Signs (search on Google).

1844 AD: Christ entered the Most Holy Place in the heavenly sanctuary and began the investigative judgment (Daniel 8:14). These events are also documented by historians from that era and later writers like Josephus.

You did not see it as a burden if a way opened for you to care for your children and protect them from the widespread evil in today's world. Your heart's burden was to see them turn to the Lord. You prayed earnestly before God for your children with strong cries and tears, desiring their conversion deeply. At times, your heart grew weary and faint, fearing that your prayers would go unanswered. But once again, you consecrated your children to God and placed them with renewed dedication upon the altar.

Why did Christ come to Daniel at that time?
There was a message for these last days. Gabriel told Daniel:
"Now I have come to make you understand what will happen to your people [Spiritual Israel] in the latter days, for the vision refers to many days yet to come." (Daniel 10:14).

Because of Daniel's fervent prayers, he was shown what would happen to God's people in the last days. He was given the light to understand God's true words. Gabriel was prepared to reveal more from the Scriptures, saying:
"But I will tell you what is noted in the Scripture of Truth." (Daniel 10:21).

God's Word is Truth; it sanctifies us if we follow it (John 17:17; 7:17; 1 Peter 1:22-25; James 2:22).

Satan today convinces Christians not to read God's Word, claiming that they are already led by the Spirit. However, there are two guiding spirits—the Holy Spirit and the spirit of error (1 John 4:1, 6). The work of the Holy Spirit is to guide us into all Truth, which is God's Word, until we understand it fully (John 16:13-15; 14:21-26). The spirit of error discourages us from reading or hearing God's Word.

John instructs us to test the spirit within us to know whether it is from God or from the spirit of deception. Anyone who says, "I am led by the Spirit," but also claims, "I don't need to read or hear God's Word," is not led by the Holy Spirit but by the spirit of deception—also called deceiving spirits or demons (1 Timothy 4:1; Revelation 16:13-14).

God's Word strengthens us—no matter how fierce the storms of life, they will not bring us down (Matthew 7:24-27). Build your life on the Rock, which is God's Word or Christ (Revelation 19:13; John 1:1-3). The Word and Christ are one; you cannot accept Christ while rejecting His Word.

Do not be tossed back and forth by every wind of doctrine—pray for Bible verses to support every teaching, and you will be safe (Ephesians 4:11-15).

Strive to read the Bible—it will make you wise for true salvation built on God's Word, not on emotions and excitement (2 Timothy 2:15; 3:15-17).

Questions:

1. According to Daniel 8:14, in what year was the sanctuary cleansed?

2. According to the prophecy in Daniel 9, in what year was Jesus baptized?

3. Is there any human being who knows all prophecy?

4. What should we do if we read prophecy and do not understand it?

5. Why is it important to understand prophecy?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: Daniel 9:26-27.

[26, 27] And after threescore and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off, but not for Himself: and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and unto the end of the war desolations are determined. And He shall confirm the covenant with many for one week: and in the midst of the week He shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease, and for the overspreading of abominations He shall make it desolate, even until the consummation, and that determined shall be poured upon the desolate.

Prayer: Holy Father who lives in heaven, praise and glory are Yours forever. We know that even though no one understands all of Your Word, the books of Daniel and Revelation have been revealed to us who live in the last days. Help us to understand these seventy weeks. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Learn about these seventy weeks by using the chart drawn below, going step by step. Remember that the Bible interprets itself.

DAY 175 (June 23)

TOPIC: Increasing Knowledge

(Daniel 10-12)

In the third year of Cyrus, king of Persia, Daniel was mourning for three weeks, fasting in what is known as Daniel's 21-day fast. During this time, he did not eat any rich or luxurious foods that were abundant in the palace of the world's most powerful king. There are many types of fasts, and this is one of them. After turning 12 years old, you could try fasting by eating only once a day if you have no health problems like diabetes or stomach ulcers.

At the end of these 21 days, Daniel lifted his eyes and saw a man clothed in linen, with a belt of pure gold around His waist. His body was like polished beryl, His face like lightning, His eyes like flaming torches, His arms and legs like burnished bronze, and His voice like the sound of a great multitude. Daniel alone saw this vision, although others were present. The people with him felt a great trembling and fled in fear.

Daniel was greatly loved, as he was told several times, "O Daniel, greatly beloved, do not fear. From the first day that you set your heart to understand and to humble yourself before your God, your words were heard, and I have come because of your words. But the prince of the kingdom of Persia withstood me for 21 days, and behold, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to help me." The angel told Daniel that he had come to reveal what would happen to his people in the latter days. Daniel saw these visions over 2,500 years ago.

When Daniel heard these words, he became speechless until one resembling a human touched his lips, enabling him to speak. He said, "My Lord, because of this vision, sorrows have overtaken me; the vision was heavy and terrifying."

In the first year of Darius the Mede, Daniel received another vision about the kings of Persia, the king of the South, and the king of the North, and the events that would unfold until the end of time. It seems that the kings of the North and South change over time, but all of them align with the enemy—Satan. Whether it is Rome, France, Babylon, or Egypt, these northern and southern kingdoms operate under the principles of the enemy.

You can study more about these kings from researchers like Ivor Myers, James Rafferty, Doug Batchelor, and Stephen Bohr. Books like Gems from the Book of Daniel and Gems from the Book of Revelation by Patrick Jones offer excellent insights. Programs like Signs and Symbols are available online for further study. However, Daniel chapters 2, 7, and 8 are clearer because they mention specific nations, which align with world history.

Daniel was also told that Michael, the great prince who stands for God's people, will arise, and there will be a time of trouble unlike any before. But at that time, God's people will be delivered—everyone whose name is found written in the Book of Life. Michael is Jesus. God knows all our deeds, and He opens the books not for His own sake, but for us humans who are curious. Some will wonder why certain people are not in heaven, or how someone they thought was wicked made it, while others will be surprised to find themselves there.

Daniel explained that those who have died will be resurrected—some to eternal life and others to shame and everlasting contempt. Those who live righteously, following God's Word, will shine like the brightness of the sky. And those who lead others to righteousness will shine like stars forever and ever.

Daniel was instructed to seal the words of the book until the time of the end. In those days, many will run to and fro, and knowledge will increase. Imagine, Daniel saw these things even before bicycles were invented—it was still the time of horse travel!

Have you ever wondered why the Israelites didn't take buses or ships to the Promised Land? Or why David didn't kill Goliath with a gun? Or why the Wise Men didn't fly in an airplane to see baby Jesus? These things did not exist back then. But now is the time of the end—planes travel at 1,000 km/h, rockets reach the moon at 27,000 km/h. Today, the world is like a village; you can be in Australia today and China tomorrow. People are moving swiftly to share the Good News.

Phones, computers, and mass media allow communication without physical visits. Knowledge of God has also increased immensely. Compared to the past, children today understand the Scriptures better due to widespread printing and distribution of God's Word.

In 1884, the first automobile was invented in Germany. The Wright brothers flew the first airplane for 8 seconds in 1903. Humans first set foot on the moon in 1969. Many electrical appliances, machines, and even plastic materials were developed in the 1960s. Most modern technology we enjoy today is only about 150 years old.

Consider the devices in your home or school—our ancestors never saw such things. We are privileged to witness these advancements and must prepare for God's kingdom. The danger lies in knowledge increasing without wisdom. Wisdom means using knowledge wisely to live harmoniously with others and with God. Solomon asked for wisdom, not knowledge or wealth. Let us also pray for wisdom to maintain good relationships with others and with God.

According to Daniel 9, the "last days" began after the 2,300 days prophecy ended—around the 1800s. Daniel saw visions of cars, motorcycles, computers, and bicycles and was overwhelmed by these strange and fearful things. Other signs of the last days include wars, earthquakes, rebellion, disasters, and the loss of human compassion.

Dear child, pray, for God's words are simple enough for a humble child to understand. God Himself reveals His prophecies to us. The Book of Revelation explains some of Daniel's visions.

Daniel was told to seal the book until the time of the end. Many will purify themselves, while the wicked will continue doing evil. Only the wise will understand that the end is near and will prepare accordingly. Wisdom is reading God's Word, meditating on it, and applying it in life.

Without a doubt, Daniel will be in heaven. Wouldn't you like to be there too? Let us seek God earnestly so we may know Him and do His will.

The Book of Daniel directly concerns our time. Understanding future events is crucial because it determines whether we receive eternal life or eternal death. Jesus said, “When you see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place (let the reader understand),” (Matthew 24:15).

God’s people are weary of this world and long for rest in heaven for 1,000 years. Jesus says, “Behold, I am coming quickly, and My reward is with Me, to give to every one according to his work” (Revelation 22:12). Are you ready to meet the Lord?

From today, choose to enter Paradise with Christ (Luke 23:42-43; 2 Corinthians 6:2). You may never hear a call like this again—decide today!

Questions:

1. What is the difference between wisdom and knowledge?

2. What is the meaning of Daniel’s fast?

3. What does it mean that “many will purify themselves, but the wicked will continue doing evil”?

4. List some inventions from the past 150 years.

5. How many prophetic years are equivalent to 1,260 days?

6. Who will shine like the brightness of the sky? Do you want to shine?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Verse: Daniel 12:1-3.

[1-3] At that time Michael shall stand up, the great prince who stands for the children of your people; and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time. And at that time your people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book. And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt. And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever.

Prayer: Thank You, Lord, for the warning in the prophetic words of the Book of Daniel. We are grateful that You stand by our side in times of great tribulation and deliver us because we are written in Your book. Help us to be wise and shine, and as we lead many to righteousness. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Why do people fast? Read Daniel 10 about Daniel's fast, then explain what it was about. If possible, set aside 21 days to do this fast.

DAY 176 (June 24)

TOPIC: God's Love for His People (Hosea)

This is the first book of the minor prophets, meaning those with shorter books. It was written around 755 BC for Israel, not Judah. Its main purpose is to show how Israel abandoned God, like a wife who leaves her husband and goes after other men, yet God still continued to love them. Hosea had a message for the northern kingdom of Israel, whose people oppressed the poor and worshipped other gods. Israel was the first to rebel greatly before her sister Judah. The word of the LORD came to Hosea, the son of Beeri, during the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, and Jeroboam, king of Israel.

Hosea begins his book with the instructions God gave him—to marry an unfaithful woman who would go after other men, meaning a prostitute. Marriage is a covenant between a husband and wife and is symbolic of the relationship between God and His people. Hosea married a woman named Gomer and paid the bride price. She gave birth to a son, and God told him to name the child Jezreel, meaning "God will punish Israel" during the reign of Jehu. Then she bore a daughter, and God told him to name her Lo-Ruhamah, meaning "not loved" or "no mercy." Although Israel strayed far from the Lord's commands, Judah still stood firm. Later, Gomer had another son, and God told him to name him Lo-Ammi, meaning "not my people."

The concept of abandonment is discussed here—just as Hosea would leave his unfaithful wife, God would abandon Israel because of their unfaithfulness and their pursuit of other gods. Yet, He promised that one day, He would renew His covenant and take Israel back. God then instructed Hosea to seek out Gomer again, who had sold herself into slavery. Hosea paid to redeem her and brought her home as his wife once more. God said that the Israelites would live for many days without a king or a priestly function but would eventually return to seek the LORD their God with reverence in the last days. Today, we are also called to return and seek the LORD.

Hosea's painful marriage serves as an illustration of how Israel had been unfaithful to God. Just as no man wants his wife to go after other men, God does not want us to follow other gods because He is our Father and our Creator. God urged them to ask for forgiveness and to turn from their wickedness. He said, "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge." Even today, many are lost because they do not know the Word of the Lord—either by failing to read it or by refusing to obey it. Rejecting the knowledge of God's Word is rejecting His laws.

God warned that Israel would eat but not be satisfied and would act deceitfully. Ephraim, one of the tribes, is described as easily following sin. They are compared to a half-baked loaf of bread, and foreigners consumed their strength without them realizing it. Ephraim was like a silly dove, lacking understanding—calling out to Egypt and Assyria, running away from God, which would lead to their destruction. They built a calf idol in Samaria and worshipped it, sowing the wind and reaping the whirlwind by sacrificing to other gods.

This book shows us the great love of God. Since creation, humanity has shown ingratitude and sunk into sin. Yet, God has revealed His love for humankind. Would a child who receives all love, mercy, and grace still disrespect their father? Yes—just as we have done. When we reflect on this, we should see ourselves as Israel and return to the LORD. "Come, let us return to the LORD. He has torn us to pieces, but He will heal us; He has injured us, but He will bind up our wounds. After two days, He will revive us; on the third day, He will restore us, that we may live in His presence." God desires us to show kindness to others rather than offering sacrifices; knowing Him is better than giving offerings.

Ephraim is likened to a heifer that loves to thresh grain, thinking only of itself and its pleasures. As a loving parent, God called Ephraim out of Egypt, from slavery. Just as a parent teaches their child, God teaches us. His love heals and restores us. God does not seek revenge but disciplines us as His children. When we look in the mirror, we see ourselves—not someone else. Let us remember the goodness and love of God and fear Him alone. The book of Hosea reveals that we have all sinned and fallen short of God's glory. But if we return to Him with repentance and confession, He will heal our backsliding and continue to show us His endless love. The ways of the LORD are right, and He has shown us the path to walk. Let us pray for wisdom to walk in His righteous way.

If you ever wonder how much God loves you, reread the book of Hosea and see His love. Did Gomer deserve her husband's love? No! Do we deserve God's love? No! But by His grace and mercy, He wants us to return to Him because He is the LORD and Savior—there is no other in heaven or on earth but Him. With sadness, He said, "How can I give you up, Ephraim?" The Lord wants to save us and does not want anyone to perish but for all to come to repentance. Today, ask yourself—do you have other gods? Whether it be food, education, beauty, opinions, wealth, addictions, or anything else. If Israel had maintained a right relationship with God, heaven and earth would have responded, and the land would have yielded its produce (2:22). What a merciful God we serve!

Neuroscientists speak of a concept known as "neuroplasticity," which is quite new. It refers to the brain's ability to form new neural pathways and rewire itself. People struggling with addiction are encouraged to avoid, and sometimes completely cut off, people, places, and things that fuel their addiction. Through this recovery process, the brain can rewire itself and allow for the creation of new behavior patterns. Similarly, as God did with Israel, He sometimes removes things that hinder our spiritual growth. Although this process is painful at first, it eventually brings about spiritual renewal. In the end, Israel returned and sought the Lord (3:5). How is God removing obstacles in your life? And are you thanking Him for it? Let Him never say of us, "Ephraim is joined to idols—leave him alone" (4:17).

Idolatry weakens the heart over time. Such a person becomes deaf to the pleading voice of the Holy Spirit and blind as they walk the path to destruction, ignoring wise warnings. This is why Jesus later told the Pharisees that they should be left alone because they had gone too far (Matthew 15:14). How do we prevent this from happening to us? It starts by allowing Jesus to search our hearts and deliver us from the deception of sin. He will reveal the ways we may be clinging to idols that deaden our spiritual senses. Will you partner with Him to remove them?

Why did Israel and Judah fail to recognize God as their Creator and Sustainer? Do we remember God as our Creator, Savior, and Redeemer every day? Are our actions consistent with our confession of faith? Parents, pray fervently for your children because they cannot do it alone. With sincere, diligent prayer and living faith, great victories will be won.

Questions:

What is the purpose of the book of Hosea?

How does God show His love for Israel?

In what ways are we like Hosea's wife today?

Why is God merciful?

What does Jezreel mean?

How does God show His love for you today?

What does "minor prophet" mean?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Verse: Hosea 14:4-7.

[4-7] I will heal their backsliding; I will love them freely: for mine anger is turned away from him. I will be as the dew unto Israel: he shall grow as the lily, and cast forth his roots as Lebanon. His branches shall spread, and his beauty shall be as the olive tree, and his smell as Lebanon. They that dwell under his shadow shall return; they shall revive as the corn, and grow as the vine: the scent thereof shall be as the wine of Lebanon.

Prayer: Lord, thank You for the Book of Hosea. Help us not to perish through lack of knowledge of Your Word. We are grateful that You love us freely and that we shall grow and flourish like wheat and grape blossoms. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge—Hosea 4:7. What does this mean? Look at various Bible dictionaries and explain comprehensively what the main verses above, Hosea 14:4-7, teach.

DAY 177 (June 25)

TOPIC: The Message of Joel – How Can I Leave You? How Can I Save You, O Israel?

Joel means Yahweh is God. Joel wrote his book around 835 BC to the people of Judah. The people of Judah were very prosperous, and as a result, they became complacent, indulging in celebrations and excessive drinking. There is nothing wrong with enjoying God's blessings, but we must not live in vanity. Joel's message was directed to Judah, urging them to return to the LORD.

They were told, "What the locust swarm has left, the great locusts have eaten; what the great locusts have left, the young locusts have eaten; and what the young locusts have left, other locusts have eaten." The locusts devoured vineyards, grains, and all the trees, leaving the livestock without pasture. Joy and laughter ceased, seeds rotted in the soil, and the land became desolate. The priests had no offerings to present. Famine and hardship spread throughout the land. They were warned that the Day of the LORD was near—a day of destruction from the Almighty. Joel compared the locusts to an army that would come to punish Judah for their sins. There would be darkness and gloom like never before, and who could endure it? People's faces would pale with fear, and soldiers would charge through windows like thieves. The earth would tremble, and the sun and moon would turn dark. All their joy would be taken away.

Joel called on the leaders and the entire nation to proclaim a national day of prayer, to examine their ways, and to repent. Joel's instructions and promises apply to us today.

The LORD commands us, saying: "Return to Me with all your heart, with fasting, weeping, and mourning. Rend your hearts and not your garments. Return to the LORD your God, for He is gracious and compassionate, slow to anger and abounding in love, and He relents from sending calamity." Later, Joel encouraged the people of Judah to rejoice and not be afraid because the LORD would do great things. The fields would again yield their harvest, and the animals would have pasture. Joel assured them that the LORD would send the autumn and spring rains as before. The grain would be abundant, and the vats would overflow with new wine and oil. The years the locusts had devoured—the great locusts, the young locusts, and the other locusts—would be restored. They would eat and be satisfied, praising the Name of the LORD who had worked wonders for them, and they would never be ashamed again.

The LORD declared that in the last days, He would pour out His Spirit on all people. Sons and daughters would prophesy, old men would dream dreams, and young men would see visions. The LORD promised that "Everyone who calls on the Name of the LORD will be saved."

On the day of Pentecost, during the time of the apostles, the disciples were filled with the Holy Spirit. The apostle Peter quoted Joel, saying: "This is what was spoken by the prophet Joel: In the last days, God says, I will pour out My Spirit on all people. Your sons and daughters will prophesy, your young men will see visions, your old men will dream dreams. Even on My servants, both men and women, I will pour out My Spirit in those days, and they will prophesy."

Joel concluded that in the last days, multitudes would gather in the valley of decision. The sun and moon would grow dark, and the stars would stop shining. The earth would shake, but the LORD would be a refuge for His people. Our hope should not be in our possessions or ourselves but in the LORD. Therefore, let us seek the LORD while He may be found. It is time to share the Good News of the Kingdom of God and to gather the harvest, for the fields are ripe, but the laborers are few. The call is to confess and return to the LORD, for we live in times when this prophecy is being fulfilled before our eyes. Those who confess with true repentance and walk in His truth will never be put to shame. Let us return to God with all our hearts, with fasting, weeping, and mourning, and let us rend our hearts.

Doing God's work properly requires talent, skill, and careful patience. It requires humility and diligent prayer. Let every mother strive to fulfill her duties with dedication. Bring your little ones to Jesus through the hands of faith, expressing your greatest needs to Him, and asking for wisdom and grace.

Questions:

1. What does "Rend your hearts and not your garments" mean?

2. What is the promise regarding the rain?

3. What will happen to the old men, young men, and maidens in the last days?

4. What did the disciples receive on the day of Pentecost?

5. What does the Day of the LORD mean?

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: Joel 2:28-29.

[28, 29] And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions. And also upon the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out my Spirit.

Prayer: Lord, thank You for pouring out the Holy Spirit. Forgive our sins (mention them). Help us to walk in the power of the Holy Spirit as we share the good news, help people to be healed, and prepare quickly for Your coming. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: The Bible lists more than 70 works that the Holy Spirit does. List these starting from John 16.

DAY 178 (June 26)

TOPIC: The Message of the Prophet Amos

The prophet Amos was from a small town called Tekoa. He was a shepherd and a fig tree farmer. Though his home was in Judah (the southern kingdom), he was sent to deliver a message to the northern kingdom of Israel. Amos was a prophet during the reign of King Uzziah of Judah and King Jeroboam of Israel. God wanted His people to practice justice and mercy, saying, "Let justice roll on like a river, and righteousness like a never-failing stream."

The people were wealthy, living in large houses—some for summer and others for winter. But the LORD said they oppressed the poor and needy. Even today, people must be careful to show compassion toward orphans, widows, strangers, and the less fortunate. We should never undervalue anyone, as God values everyone—whether poor, widow, orphan, foreigner, or of a different background.

Amos warned the Israelites to seek the LORD and live. Israel was meant to be a light to the nations, as God had blessed them greatly. However, because of their sins, God would judge them, and they were urged to prepare to meet their God.

The LORD asked, “Do two walk together unless they have agreed to do so?” This question challenges us to reflect on our relationships. God promised He would do nothing without revealing His plan to His prophets. Even today, God continues to reveal Himself to us, so we need not walk in darkness.

The book of Amos declares God’s judgment on Israel and neighboring nations like Damascus, Gaza, Edom, and Tyre. They were called to repent and abandon false gods and self-righteousness. Amos declared that the Day of the LORD was coming—a day of reckoning.

God promised to restore David’s fallen shelter and rebuild it as in the days of old. In those days, God would plant His people in the new Jerusalem, never to be uprooted again.

The message is clear: “I will turn your religious feasts into mourning and your singing into weeping.” God warned of a famine—not for food or water, but for hearing the Word of the LORD.

Questions:

1. What was Amos’s occupation before becoming a prophet?

2. To whom did Amos deliver his message?

3. What does “Do two walk together unless they agree?” mean in our relationships?

4. What injustices were the people committing?

5. What was God’s final warning?

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: Amos 5:22-24.

[22-24] Though you offer me burnt offerings and grain offerings, I will not accept them; neither will I regard the peace offerings of your fat beasts. Take away from me the noise of your songs; for I will not hear the melody of your viols. But let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream.

Prayer: Our Father in heaven, may Your name be glorified. Help us have the wisdom to act righteously toward all people, whether poor, rich, widows, or orphans. Forgive us for treating others unjustly. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Use a Bible, pen, and paper or notebook.
Learning Objective: Students will learn that God punishes sin but forgives all who turn to Him for forgiveness. Discuss what justice is, what judgment is, and list acts or judgments that are unjust which you have seen in your community, on the radio, or in newspapers.

DAY 179 (June 27)

TOPIC: The Message of Micah

This book was written by the prophet Micah, the Morasthite, around 735 B.C., during the reigns of Kings Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah. These visions were directed at Samaria and Jerusalem, containing both judgment and hope. Amos and Hosea had also addressed these issues. Sometimes, judgment is a form of hope because it causes people to turn from their evil ways and be saved.

Who is like God, who pardons iniquity and forgives the transgression of the remnant of His inheritance? He does not stay angry forever but delights in showing mercy. The LORD will again have compassion on us; He will tread our sins underfoot and hurl all our iniquities into the depths of the sea.

Prophet Micah warns, saying, “Woe to those who plan iniquity, to those who plot evil on their beds! At morning’s light, they carry it out because it is in their power to do so. They covet fields and seize them, and houses and take them. They defraud people of their homes and rob them of their inheritance.” Therefore, the LORD says, “I am planning disaster against this people, from which you cannot save yourselves. You will no longer walk proudly, for it will be a time of calamity."

God warns the people to leave because this is not a place of rest or peace. Due to their corruption, they will face total destruction. The prophets and priests were giving false prophecies for their own gain. The LORD said to them, "You who eat the flesh of My people, strip off their skin and break their bones in pieces; who chop them up like meat for the pan, like flesh for the pot." Then they will cry out to the LORD, but He will not answer them. At that time, He will hide His face from them because of the evil they have done.

The LORD says concerning the prophets who lead His people astray: "If one feeds them, they proclaim 'peace'; if he does not, they prepare to wage war against him." Therefore, night will come over them, without visions; and darkness, without divination. The sun will set for the prophets, and the day will go dark for them. Seers will be ashamed, and diviners disgraced. They will all cover their faces because there is no answer from God.

Micah prophesied the coming of the Messiah for those who had lost hope in life. Micah 5:2 says, "But you, Bethlehem Ephrathah, though you are small among the clans of Judah, out of you will come for Me one who will be ruler over Israel, whose origins are from of old, from ancient times." He will stand and shepherd His flock in the strength of the LORD, in the majesty of the name of the LORD His God. And they will live securely, for then His greatness will reach to the ends of the earth.

Micah lived during a time of leaders and wealthy people filled with violence, lies, and false measures. People carried deceitful weights in their pockets. They believed they would receive blessings because they were Israelites, forgetting the curses of Deuteronomy 28. Whoever thinks they stand firm should be careful not to fall. Those who feared God had vanished; there was no upright person. Everyone lay in wait to shed blood and hunt their brothers with nets. Judges accepted bribes and delivered unjust decisions. A good person was considered as harmful as a thorn bush. Even within families, there was conflict: sons dishonored their fathers, daughters rose against their mothers, and daughters-in-law were against their mothers-in-law. Moral decay had overtaken society. How do you see the moral state of society today?

Micah provides a solution by stating what the LORD requires from us, which is most important above all else. People complained they were tired of God's demands. The LORD reminded them of how He had brought them out of Egypt and done good for them. He asks, "With what shall I come before the LORD and bow down before the exalted God? Shall I come before Him with burnt offerings, with calves a year old? Will the LORD be pleased with thousands of rams, with ten thousand rivers of olive oil? Shall I offer my firstborn for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?"

The answer to what God requires is clear: "He has shown you, O man, what is good. And what does the LORD require of you? To act justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with your God."

The consequence of injustice and lack of mercy is severe punishment. "You will eat but not be satisfied; your stomach will still be empty. You will store up but save nothing because what you save I will give to the sword. You will plant but not harvest; you will press olives but not use the oil; you will crush grapes but not drink the wine."

God gives us warnings today through the prophet Micah so that we may avoid the punishment of His wrath. Judgment is certain. The LORD will come down and tread on the high places of the earth. The mountains will melt beneath Him, and the valleys will split apart like wax before the fire, like water rushing down a slope.

The solution is to accept our God. Sin destroys us, but God promises to make us complete if we obey Him. Who is a God like Him, who pardons sin? Micah holds on to the hope that, "But as for me, I watch in hope for the LORD, I wait for God my Savior; my God will hear me. Do not gloat over me, my enemy! Though I have fallen, I will rise. Though I sit in darkness, the LORD will be my light."

The LORD loves us more than we love ourselves and those we cherish. Fathers and mothers, will you not hold onto your work with strength, patience, and love? Sow seeds of value daily through sincere prayers so that God may water them with the dew of grace and give you a great harvest. The Son of God died to redeem sinful humanity. Should we avoid trouble, self-sacrifice, or any offering to save our beloved children?

Questions:

1. What three things does God require of us?

2. Why is Bethlehem of Judah not insignificant?

3. What is Micah's hope?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Verse: Micah 6:6-8.

[6-8] With what shall I come before the Lord, and bow myself before the high God? Shall I come before him with burnt offerings, with calves of a year old? Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, or ten thousand rivers of oil? Shall I give my firstborn for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul? He has showed you, O man, what is good; and what does the Lord require of you, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with your God?

Prayer: Hallelujah, our good Father, help us to do justice, love mercy, and walk humbly before You. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: List the prophecies of the birth of Jesus in the Bible, such as Micah 5:2, etc.

DAY 180 (June 28)

TOPIC: Jonah – The Prophet Swallowed by a Fish

After the death of Elisha, King Jehoash of Israel went to war against Ben-Hadad II, the king of Assyria, and defeated him three times as the prophet Elisha had prophesied. The Assyrians were plunderers, cruel, and oppressive. During this period, a prophet named Jonah arose, preaching to the Israelites. The word of the LORD came to Jonah, son of Amittai: "Go to the great city of Nineveh and preach against it because its wickedness has come up before Me."

However, Jonah did not want to go. Instead, he ran away from the LORD and headed for Tarshish to flee from the presence of the LORD. The Assyrians were enemies of Israel, and Jonah wanted to see them perish in their sins without the opportunity to repent and turn to the LORD.

Tarshish was one of the farthest known regions at the time. People believed that if you reached the edge of the world, you would fall into a bottomless pit because they did not yet understand the earth's spherical shape. Jonah went down to Joppa, found a ship bound for Tarshish, paid the fare, and boarded to flee from the LORD.

But the LORD sent a great wind on the sea, and a violent storm arose that threatened to break the ship apart. The sailors were terrified, and as is often the case, people call on God in times of trouble but forget Him when all is well. Each sailor cried out to his god, and they threw the cargo into the sea to lighten the ship. However, Jonah had gone below deck, where he lay down and fell into a deep sleep.

The captain went to Jonah and said, "How can you sleep? Get up and call on your god! Maybe He will take notice of us so that we will not perish." The sailors said to each other, "Come, let us cast lots to find out who is responsible for this calamity." They cast lots, and the lot fell on Jonah.

So they asked him, "Tell us, who is responsible for making all this trouble for us? What kind of work do you do? Where do you come from? What is your country? From what people are you?" Jonah answered, "I am a Hebrew, and I worship the LORD, the God of heaven, who made the sea and the dry land." This was the key difference between the true God and false gods.

The sailors were terrified when they learned that Jonah was running away from the LORD, because he had already told them so. They asked him, “What should we do to you to make the sea calm down for us?” Jonah replied, “Pick me up and throw me into the sea, and it will become calm. I know that this storm is my fault.”

The men, however, did not want to throw Jonah overboard. Instead, they rowed hard to get back to land, but they could not because the sea grew even wilder than before. Then they cried out to the LORD, “Please, LORD, do not let us die for taking this man’s life. Do not hold us accountable for killing an innocent man, for You, LORD, have done as You pleased.”

Finally, they had no choice but to throw Jonah into the sea. As soon as they did, the raging sea grew calm. At this, the men greatly feared the LORD, and they offered a sacrifice to Him and made vows.

The LORD provided a huge fish to swallow Jonah, and Jonah was in the belly of the fish for three days and three nights. When Jesus was asked to show a sign, He said that just as Jonah was in the belly of the fish for three days and three nights, so the Son of Man would be in the heart of the earth for three days and three nights.

After doing your duty faithfully for your children, carry them to God in prayer and ask Him to help you. Tell Him that you have fulfilled your part in interceding for them, and by faith, trust that He will do His part, which you cannot do.

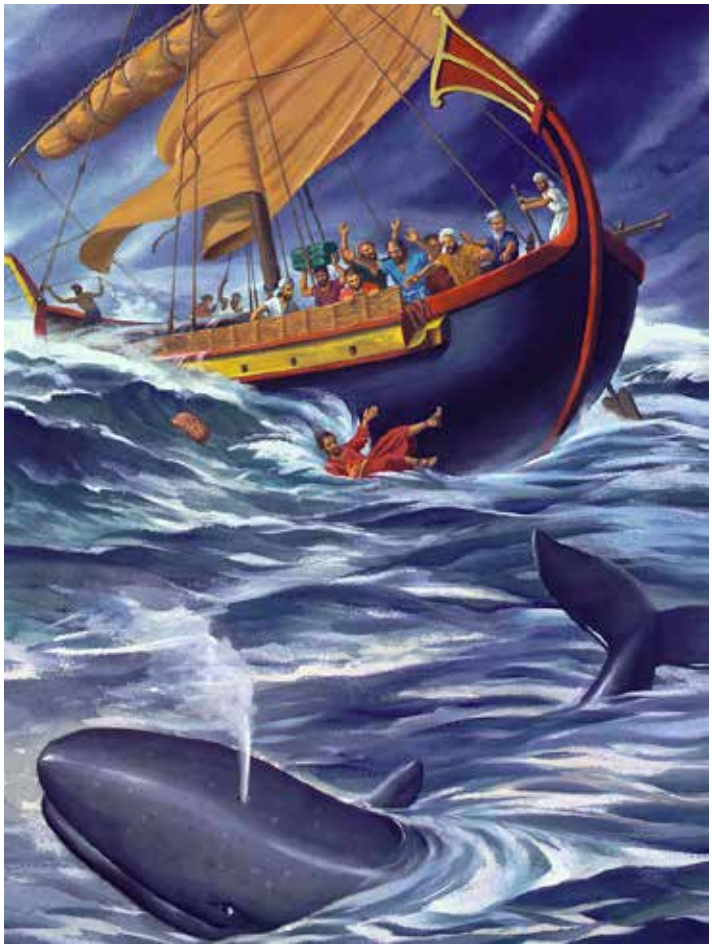
Angels Record Every Sincere Prayer
We must know God now by claiming His promises. Angels record every sincere and earnest prayer. It is better to give up self-indulgence than to neglect communion with God. The greatest poverty and self-denial, along with His favor, are better than wealth, honor, an easy life, and friendship without His favor. We must always make time to pray.

Questions:

1. How does this lesson teach us that the LORD knows all our thoughts?
2. Why did Jonah run away?
3. Why did the sailors fear and worship God?
4. Who are you running from today?
5. How many days was Jonah in the belly of the fish?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Verse: Jonah 1:1-3.



[1-3] Now the word of the Lord came unto Jonah the son of Amittai, saying, "Arise, go to Nineveh, that great city, and cry against it; for their wickedness is come up before me." But Jonah rose up to flee unto Tarshish from the presence of the Lord, and went down to Joppa; and he found a ship going to Tarshish: so he paid the fare thereof, and went down into it, to go with them unto Tarshish, from the presence of the Lord.

Prayer: Lord, help us not to run away from You, but obey Your voice at all times. Forgive our sins. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Make a fish using paper and place a small figure of a person inside it.

DAY 181 (June 29)

TOPIC: Jonah Inside the Fish

Jonah wanted to die or for the cruel Assyrians to be punished. While inside the belly of the fish, Jonah prayed to the LORD. Yet, he was not digested like food! He sang a psalm and said:

"I called out to the LORD because of my distress, and He answered me; out of the belly of Sheol I cried, and You heard my voice. For You cast me into the deep, into the heart of the seas, and the floods surrounded me; all Your waves and billows passed over me. Then I said, 'I have been cast out of Your sight; yet I will look again toward Your holy temple.' The waters encompassed me, even to my soul; the deep closed around me; weeds were wrapped around my head. I went down to the moorings of the mountains; the earth with its bars closed behind me forever; yet You have brought up my life from the pit, O LORD, my God. When my soul fainted within me, I remembered the LORD, and my prayer went up to You, into Your holy temple. Those who regard worthless idols forsake their own mercy. But I will sacrifice to You with the voice of thanksgiving; I will pay what I have vowed. Salvation is of the LORD."

The LORD Almighty, who can communicate with His creatures because He is their Creator, commanded the fish to vomit Jonah onto the shore of Nineveh—the very place Jonah did not want to go. So, instead of arriving by ship, the prophet reached Nineveh by the fish's transportation.

The word of the LORD came to Jonah a second time, saying:
"Arise, go to Nineveh, that great city, and preach to it the message that I tell you."

This time, after the extraordinary events he had experienced, Jonah was ready to go—even to his enemies. He went to Nineveh as the LORD commanded. Nineveh was a large city that would take three days to walk through. Jonah began to enter the city, proclaiming loudly:
"In forty days, Nineveh will be overthrown!"

The people of Nineveh believed God, declared a fast, and wore sackcloth to show their repentance—from the greatest to the least of them. When the news reached the king of Nineveh, he rose from his throne, took off his royal robe, covered himself with sackcloth, and sat in ashes.

He issued a proclamation throughout Nineveh by the decree of the king and his nobles, saying:
"Let neither man nor beast, herd nor flock, taste anything; do not let them eat or drink water. But let man and beast be covered with sackcloth and cry mightily to God; yes, let everyone turn from his evil way and from the violence that is in his hands."

This means even the animals fasted! This was the most powerful sermon ever preached, achieving a 100% conversion rate—120,000 people, including animals! The people cried out to God with all their might and repented from their wicked ways. The king said, "Who knows? God may turn and relent, and turn away from His fierce anger, so that we may not perish."

When God saw their actions—that they turned from their evil ways—He relented from the disaster He had threatened and did not bring it upon them. When we genuinely repent and ask for God's forgiveness, He forgives us and allows us to start a new journey.

However, Jonah was displeased and angry about this. Perhaps he feared being labeled a false prophet, or he simply did not want his enemies to receive God's mercy—he wanted it reserved only for Israel. This book reveals how limited human love is and how little compassion we often have for others. But God's love has no limits—He is full of mercy and forgiveness.

Jonah said to the LORD:
"Is this not what I said when I was still in my country? That is why I fled to Tarshish, for I knew that You are a gracious and merciful God, slow to anger, and abundant in lovingkindness, One who relents from doing harm."

Although Jonah knew these beautiful qualities of God, he wanted them for himself and his people—not for others. Jonah asked God to take his life because he would rather die than see his enemies receive mercy and be saved. He thought that because he did not worship idols, he was safe—but he was guilty of the sin of not loving others.

Love is the primary law of heaven—to love your enemies, your brothers and sisters, your spouse, your neighbors, animals, plants, and all of God's creation—but above all, to love your fellow human beings, who are made in the image of God.

The LORD asked Jonah:
"Is it right for you to be angry?"

Jonah went outside the city and built a shelter to watch what would happen to Nineveh, hoping it would still be destroyed. The LORD provided a plant to grow overnight and give Jonah shade, easing his discomfort, which made Jonah very happy. But the next morning, God sent a worm to chew the plant, and it withered. The sun blazed down on Jonah's head, making him faint and wish for death, saying, "It is better for me to die than to live."

God asked Jonah:
"Is it right for you to be angry about the plant?"

Jonah replied angrily, “Yes, it is right for me to be angry, even to death!”

The LORD responded:
“You have had pity on the plant, for which you did not labor nor make it grow, which came up in a night and perished in a night. Should I not have compassion on Nineveh, that great city, in which there are more than 120,000 persons who cannot discern between their right hand and their left—and also many animals?”

This story teaches us to share God’s message with others—no matter how wicked they may seem. Have you ever hesitated to tell people that God’s kingdom is near and judgment is coming? Read Jonah’s story again for courage.

The book of Jonah is unique—it shows God’s love beyond Israel’s borders. Even idol-worshiping Ninevites were under God’s love and care, and He was willing to hear their prayers and save them. The book emphasizes that God is the Father of all humanity—children, elders, adults, animals, the rich, the poor, the tall, the short, and people of all races. God wants everyone to be saved.

Questions:

1. What did Jonah do inside the fish?

2. Where did the fish vomit Jonah?

3. What did the king and the people of Nineveh do after hearing Jonah’s message?

4. Does God value animals?

5. How would you advise someone who mistreats harmless animals?

6. How many people were saved in Nineveh?

7. What lesson does this story teach you?

May God bless you, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Verse: Jonah 1:15-17.

[15-17] So they took up Jonah, and cast him forth into the sea; and the sea ceased from her raging. Then the men feared the Lord exceedingly, and offered a sacrifice unto the Lord, and made vows. Now the Lord had prepared a great fish to swallow up Jonah; and Jonah was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights.

Prayer: Dear Lord, thank You for today. Help us to obey wherever You send us so that we can guide people through us, and that everyone may reach salvation. Forgive and protect us. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Draw Jonah inside the belly of the fish.

DAY 182 (June 30)

TOPIC: Building the Temple – Haggai

The message of this book was delivered when many people had returned from exile in Babylon. The prophet Haggai was sent to encourage the Jews who had returned from exile to complete the task of rebuilding the temple, which had been destroyed by King Nebuchadnezzar during his siege of Jerusalem. Haggai is one of the prophets whose message was heard and acted upon. When they heard it, even though they did not have many resources, it did not take long before they completed the temple, and God dwelt among His people.

Haggai and Zechariah are known as the post-exilic prophets. They wrote their books after the return of the captives of Judah from Babylon, during the reign of the Medes and Persians. This period was discouraging for God's people. When they returned, they found their homes in ruins after seventy years. The fields had been left abandoned and needed to be cleared again. Houses had to be rebuilt, and their customs and laws needed to be retaught and observed. Haggai encouraged them to remain faithful to God and rebuild the temple, as it was the center of their worship. He reminded them to wait for the coming of the Messiah, who would establish His kingdom. He called the Messiah the "Hope of all generations." This book shows that everyone needs encouragement, and we should also encourage others.

Haggai was sent by the LORD to Zerubbabel, a descendant of the royal family, and to Joshua, the high priest. He told them, "The LORD of hosts says this: 'These people say, "The time has not come for the LORD's house to be rebuilt."'" Then the word of the LORD came through the prophet Haggai, saying, "Is it time for you to live in your paneled houses while this house lies in ruins? Now, the LORD of hosts says this: Consider your ways!"

He told them that they had planted much but harvested little, they ate but were not satisfied, they drank but were still thirsty, they wore clothes but were not warm, and those who earned wages put them into a bag with holes. This happened because they had not prioritized their Creator. The LORD instructed them, "Go up to the mountains, bring wood, and build the house so that I may take pleasure in it and be honored." They had expected much, but when they brought it home, the LORD blew it away. They were under a curse, and blessings eluded them because they had neglected the temple while living in luxurious homes. The LORD said He would withhold the rain, causing the land, livestock, and everything else to suffer.

Then Zerubbabel, Joshua, and the people heard and obeyed the voice of the LORD, their God, through the prophet Haggai. The LORD assured them that He was with them, and they began to rebuild the temple. When they finished, the glory of the new temple seemed less compared to the one Solomon had built, which was adorned with precious materials. But the LORD gave Haggai a message to tell them: "I will fill this house with glory, says the LORD of hosts. The silver is Mine, and the gold is Mine. The glory of this latter house will be greater than the former, says the LORD of hosts, and in this place, I will give peace."

This message meant that, although the temple did not look magnificent, Jesus would later be born and worship in that temple. That was a greater glory than Solomon's gold or the temple's splendor—because it meant "God with us."

The LORD also told them that unclean things cannot become clean just by touching holy things. Similarly, the temple building itself could not make a sinful person holy. Being in the temple was not a substitute for living a life of faith and holiness. Holiness comes from dedicating oneself to God and obeying His commandments.

Haggai concluded his message by telling Zerubbabel and Joshua that God had placed them in their leadership positions for a special purpose, and through them, He would bless the people. Therefore, we should seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all other things will be added to us.

Does your church reflect the quality of the home you live in? The house of worship should be as beautiful, if not more, than the home you live in. If you worship under a tree while living in a luxurious home, it is time to reflect and change that.

Angels hear the prayers and praises of faith and present them to the One who ministers in the heavenly sanctuary on behalf of His people, seeking His goodness and righteousness for them. True prayer holds on to the Almighty and gives humans victory. By kneeling in prayer, a Christian gains the strength to overcome temptation.

Questions:

1. What was Haggai's message about?
2. What happened when the people heard Haggai's message?
3. Which leaders were involved in rebuilding the temple?
4. Why is it important for the house of God to look as good as, or better than, your home?
5. What is meant by the "Hope of all generations"?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Haggai 2:7-9

[7-9] "I will shake all nations, and what is desired by all nations will come; and I will fill this house with glory," says the Lord of hosts. "Silver is Mine, and gold is Mine," declares the Lord of hosts. "The glory of this latter house shall be greater than the glory of the former," says the Lord of hosts. "And in this place I will give peace," declares the Lord of hosts.

Prayer: Glorious Father, thank You for blessing us and for sending Him, the Hope of all generations, to come and live among us to redeem us. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Read the first chapter of Haggai and observe ways to help build the church in your local area or perform a short skit.

DAY 183 (July 1)

TOPIC: The Message of the Prophet Nahum

Nahum delivered his message concerning Nineveh, the capital city of the Assyrian empire. The name "Nahum" means "comfort" or "consolation." It had been 150 years since Jonah went to Nineveh and warned them about the impending judgment. The people of Nineveh repented and abandoned their wicked ways. The king, the livestock, and all the people fasted and sought forgiveness. This time, the prophet Nahum was sent to warn Nineveh again that it would be destroyed by fire and would never rise again because of their cruelty and idol worship. This time, Nineveh did not listen (Nah. 1:7, 8, 11, 14).

Nahum tells us that the LORD is a jealous God who avenges; He is full of wrath against the wicked. Those who harm others will face His anger. God is all-powerful—He can rebuke the sea and dry it up, move mountains, and even the earth trembles before Him. He is our stronghold and refuge for all who trust in Him. What a wonderful promise! We are told that sin will never rise again in heaven. Imagine a life completely free from sin—what an amazing thought! This means that our friends, family, and even ourselves will always treat each other with kindness, 24 hours a day. I consider this the greatest miracle. I have often prayed for this to happen in my heart now—that I may stop sinning and grieving God.

The people of Nineveh, who refused to listen to God, were told they would stagger like drunkards without stability. God would destroy their children and the idols of Assyria. However, the one who brings good news and proclaims peace has beautiful feet. God promised to restore the glory of Jacob from Nineveh, because Nineveh had devastated Israel. The king's palace in Nineveh would melt away, he would be taken captive, and his maidservants would mourn and beat their breasts. People would flee without looking back, leaving desolation and destruction behind. Hearts would melt with fear, knees would tremble, and everyone's face would be filled with anguish. God would cut off their prey, and the voice of His messengers would never be heard again.

The city of Nineveh was filled with bloodshed—woe to them because of their lies and plunder. Sounds of battle, whips cracking, galloping horses, flashing swords, and glittering spears were everywhere. Many people would be killed, and corpses would be scattered due to their many acts of prostitution and witchcraft. Nineveh was told they would be exposed to other nations, and their shame would be revealed to other kingdoms. God would throw filth on Nineveh, making them despicable, and people would look at them with scorn. Anyone who saw Nineveh's destruction would flee, saying, "Nineveh is in ruins—who will mourn for them?" No one would comfort the city.

Nineveh was warned that they had no real strength. Even though they were supported by Ammon, Egypt, Cush (Ethiopia), Put, and Libya, they would still be taken into captivity. Their children would be slaughtered, their nobles cast lots for, and their leaders bound in chains. Nineveh's fortresses would be like fig trees whose fruit falls when shaken. The remaining people would be like women at the gates. Water would flood the city, fire would consume it, the sword would cut it down, and locusts would devour it. Even if they had merchants as numerous as the stars, the locusts would strip the city and fly away. Their commanders would be like locusts resting in hedges on a cold day, but when the sun rises, they would fly away, and no one would know where they had gone.

The king of Assyria's shepherds and officials would be asleep, and their people scattered with no one to gather them. The LORD said that Assyria's wounds would be fatal and incurable, and everyone who heard about their fall would clap their hands in celebration because there was no one whom Assyria had not oppressed. God is against those who ignore His call to abandon their wicked ways. He is against those who oppress others without mercy and those with hardened hearts. However, God is ready to receive those willing to be led by His Spirit and will restore them. Where do you stand today?

GOD does not abandon His wayward children who are weak in faith and prone to mistakes. The Lord listens to and hears their prayers and testimonies. Those who look to Jesus every day and every hour, watching and praying, draw closer to Him. Angels with outstretched wings wait to carry their prayers of repentance to GOD and record them in the books of heaven.

Discussion Questions:

1. To whom did Nahum deliver his message?

2. What is the difference between the outcomes of Jonah's and Nahum's missions?

3. What was the sin of the people of Nineveh?

May GOD Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Nahum 1:7-9

[7-9] The Lord is good, a stronghold in the day of trouble; and He knows those who take refuge in Him. But with an overflowing flood He will make an utter end of His adversaries, and darkness will pursue His enemies. What do you imagine about the Lord? He will make an utter end; affliction will not rise a second time.

Prayer: Lord, thank You for being a stronghold for those who take refuge in You. You will destroy affliction, and sin will not rise a second time. Forgive our sins. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: How will life be when sin is completely removed? Take elements from Revelation 21 and 22 and discuss.

DAY 184 (July 2)

TOPIC: Obadiah – The Day of the LORD

Obadiah is another short prophetic book in the Old Testament. The name "Obadiah" means "servant of God." This book describes the relationship between Israel and Edom. Edom was the brother of Israel, as they were descendants of Esau, Jacob's brother. Obadiah says Edom will fall because of their pride and false sense of security. They rejoiced when Israel was captured. God declared that the Day of the LORD is coming, and the house of Jacob will be a flame while the house of Esau will be stubble, consumed without a survivor, for the LORD has spoken. Even today, God says, "I will bless those who bless you and curse those who curse you." Our decisions can either bless or cost us.

Obadiah shows that God will judge Edom for being enemies of His people, Israel, and for their cruelty. When King Nebuchadnezzar invaded Judah, Edom assisted in capturing their cities. Edom is reminded that blood is thicker than water. The book of Obadiah emphasizes that God is the supreme Judge and will punish Edom's wickedness. Even the wise and strong of Edom will be destroyed.

Today, we must be careful not to rejoice when our enemies face hardship. Instead, we should help them with their needs—whether food, clothing, or shelter. Vengeance belongs to God, not humans. The Day of the LORD is near for all nations; as you have done, it will be done to you—your deeds will return upon your own head. Let us pray that the Day of the LORD will be a day of blessed hope for us, and that we may say, "Behold, this is our God, whom we have waited for."

When the Babylonians attacked Jerusalem, the Edomites took advantage of the situation. Obadiah 1:10-16 lists their offenses:

They rejoiced at Jerusalem's downfall.

They joined Babylon in attacking Jerusalem.

They captured and handed over those who tried to escape.

They mocked the Israelites in their distress.

Why did they do this? Perhaps they believed Israel's hope was gone and that God had abandoned them. But God eventually punished Edom and restored Israel (Obadiah 1:21).

Angels Wait to Answer Our Prayers: Often, in caring for the suffering, we focus on physical needs while forgetting the saving truths of the gospel. By neglecting to pray for the sick, we withhold a great blessing, for God's angels are ready to minister to these souls in response to our prayers.

Discussion Questions:

1. What does the name "Obadiah" mean?

2. What was Edom's problem?

3. Why are these stories recorded for us today?

4. What does the Day of the LORD mean?

May GOD Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Obadiah 1:3-4

[3-4] "The pride of your heart has deceived you, You who dwell in the clefts of the rock, whose habitation is high; you say in your heart, 'Who will bring me down to the ground?' Though you soar aloft like the eagle, though your nest is set among the stars, I will bring you down," says the Lord.

Prayer: Our good Father, help us not to be proud, for pride will not help us when we are brought down from the blessings You have planned. Forgive our mistakes. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Overcome pride. Why does pride bring a fall? Children can blindfold themselves and walk carefully without knowing the way—ensure safety! This activity teaches pride as a hindrance. Discuss with them.

DAY 185 (July 3)

TOPIC: Habakkuk Asks God Questions

Prophet Habakkuk is believed to have lived during the final years of the kingdom of Judah, before its downfall. The main characters in this book are Habakkuk and the Chaldeans, also known as the Babylonians. Although the book of Habakkuk is brief, its purpose is to explain judgment. God declares that Judah's sin is great. This book is unique because Habakkuk speaks to God about the people, unlike other prophets who speak to the people about God's message. Habakkuk wonders how powerful nations fell, and people could not believe it, while Babylon ruled everything.

His first complaint is: "How long, O Lord, must I call for help, but You do not listen?" He cries to the Lord because of violence, injustice, strife, destruction, and conflict. The law of the Lord is paralyzed, and justice never prevails because corruption distorts judgment.

God responds: "Look among the nations and watch—be utterly amazed. For I am going to do something in your days that you would not believe, even if you were told. I am raising up the Babylonians, that ruthless and impetuous people, who sweep across the whole earth to seize dwellings not their own. They are feared and dreaded; their justice and dignity proceed from themselves. Their horses are swifter than leopards, fiercer than wolves at dusk. Their cavalry gallops headlong; their horsemen come from afar; they fly like an eagle swooping to devour."

Even today, we wonder about the evil people suffer and ask why God remains silent. God was also silent while His Son was on the cross to save us, even though He had all the power.

Habakkuk's second question is: "Your eyes are too pure to look on evil; You cannot tolerate wrongdoing. Why then do You tolerate the treacherous? Why are You silent while the wicked swallow up those more righteous than themselves?"

Habakkuk decides to stand at his watch and wait to see how the Lord will answer his complaint. The Lord answers: "Write the vision and make it plain on tablets so that a herald may run with it. For the vision awaits an appointed time; it speaks of the end and will not prove false. Though it lingers, wait for it; it will certainly come and will not delay. See, the enemy is puffed up; his desires are not upright—but the righteous person will live by his faith."

When Martin Luther, the German reformer, discovered this truth, he helped many Christians find freedom.

Habakkuk was told to be patient and trust in God, even when he did not fully understand what was happening or how things would end. He pronounces woes against those who enrich themselves dishonestly, shed innocent blood, exploit others, or cause their neighbors to stumble. Habakkuk emphasizes reverence for God by saying: "The Lord is in His holy temple; let all the earth be silent before Him." He is the Almighty.

Habakkuk offers a prayer: "Lord, I have heard of Your fame; I stand in awe of Your deeds. Repeat them in our day, in our time make them known; in wrath, remember mercy."

Habakkuk realizes there is nothing better than depending on and waiting for the Lord. He concludes with hope, saying:

"Though the fig tree does not bud and there are no grapes on the vines, though the olive crop fails and the fields produce no food, though there are no sheep in the pen and no cattle in the stalls, yet I will rejoice in the Lord, I will be joyful in God my Savior. The Sovereign Lord is my strength; He makes my feet like the feet of a deer, He enables me to tread on the heights."

Habakkuk accepts that, although things may look difficult and dark, he will rely on the Lord because there is hope and deliverance in Him.

Habakkuk teaches us that we can ask God questions, but we must do so with reverence and respect. Often, we do not understand what is happening behind the scenes—whether it concerns our parents' struggles, school issues, or problems with friends. Sometimes, it may feel like the enemy is winning, but God is still in control. We must be patient, knowing that God works everything for our good. He keeps His promises and is faithful. All authority belongs to Him, so we should rest in Him and trust Him.

The book of Habakkuk ends with a psalm or song of praise, affirming that God will save His people. Habakkuk expresses frustration with arrogance and injustice but teaches us that for every concern that troubles our hearts, we should take it to God.

As we approach the end of world history, the questions Habakkuk asked are similar to those we face today. Like this prophet, we ask God to intervene and end pain, suffering, and evil. God was not idle during Habakkuk's time, and He is not idle today. Let us trust Him. Remember that God often uses unexpected means to fulfill His purposes. Although we may not always understand His ways, we must ensure that our hearts and hands remain pure. His power is eternal, and to Him, one day is like a thousand years.

At the same time, let us heed the command: "The Lord is in His holy temple; let all the earth be silent before Him." We should be grateful that we can approach Him directly and personally. Let us rejoice in His special attentiveness and be comforted by His Spirit of grace. Faith as pure and childlike as this is rare among God's children, yet here it is poured out freely.

Day by day, the battle between good and evil continues. Why do those who have received many opportunities and blessings fail to recognize the seriousness of this work? They should be thoughtful about this matter. God is the Ruler. By His great power, He governs and directs the rulers of the earth. Through His agents, He accomplishes the work He ordained before the foundation of the world.

Discussion Questions:

1. Why is the book of Habakkuk different from other prophets?

2. What is Habakkuk's first question?

3. What is his second question?

4. Why is it important for us to ask God what is happening?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Habakkuk 2:2-4

[2-4] And the Lord answered me: "Write the vision and make it plain on tablets, that he may run who reads it. For the vision is yet for an appointed time; it speaks of the end, and will not lie. Though it delays, wait for it; because it will surely come, it will not tarry. Behold, his soul is puffed up; it is not upright within him, but the righteous shall live by his faith."

Prayer: Thank You Father. Even if the vision delays, I will wait because Your Word is true. Help me to live by faith, not by sight. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Write a prayer like Habakkuk's prayer in Habakkuk 3.

DAY 186 (July 4)

TOPIC: The Message of Zephaniah

The prophet Zephaniah wrote his book around 630 BC. He was born during a time of widespread evil when the Lord seemed silent, as if He would do neither good nor harm. God raised up Zephaniah to warn the people that judgment was coming and to call them to repentance before the kingdom of Judah fell. The Lord declared that the southern kingdom of Judah was filled with wickedness. God sent Zephaniah as His messenger to raise a warning flag and urge the people to change their ways. He called them to "seek the Lord while He may be found."

Zephaniah warned that the day of the Lord was near and approaching quickly. Even the bravest warriors would cry out bitterly. It would be a day of wrath, distress, and anguish, a day of ruin and devastation, a day of darkness and gloom, a day of clouds and blackness. On that day, wealth would be worthless—people would throw their silver and gold into the streets, but it would not save them.

Zephaniah declared: "As surely as I live," declares the Lord Almighty, the God of Israel, "Moab will become like Sodom, and the Ammonites like Gomorrah—a place of weeds and salt pits, a wasteland forever. The remnant of My people will plunder them; the survivors of My nation will inherit their land." These things would happen because of their pride, for they mocked and boasted against the people of the Lord Almighty. The Lord would be terrifying to them, for He would starve all the gods of the earth, and people from every nation would bow down to Him. Even the distant Cushites would be slain by His sword. God would stretch out His hand against the north and destroy Assyria, leaving Nineveh desolate and dry like the desert.

God called the people to seek righteousness and humility while there was still time. They were warned not to delay, for waiting too long would be dangerous. The Lord would destroy false gods, and all nations would worship

Him. This is a reminder for us to repent sincerely while the door of mercy is still open. We must turn from evil, for the day of our judgment is near, and the door of mercy will soon be closed forever.

The most encouraging words in this book are found in the following promise:

"The Lord your God is with you, the Mighty Warrior who saves. He will take great delight in you; in His love, He will no longer rebuke you but will rejoice over you with singing."

The love of God is so amazing that He rejoices over us with singing! Despite the judgment described at the beginning of the book, Zephaniah ends with a message of hope and victory. Even as the Lord comes to cleanse everything in judgment, Zephaniah foresees a future when the remnant of God's people will be gathered from all over the world. He mentions there will be representatives even from beyond the rivers of Cush—a reminder that Africa is included in God's plan.

For those living near Ethiopia, there is joy in knowing that their homeland is part of this prophecy. What is the purpose of these gathered remnants? To worship God! This multicultural group will come together, and God will call them "My worshipers." What an amazing day it will be to hear God Himself singing over His people!

God makes seven powerful, personal promises to His people:

1. He will remove their sorrow.

2. He will deal with those who oppress them.

3. He will save the lame.

4. He will gather the scattered.

5. He will give them praise and honor.

6. He will bring them home.

7. He will restore their blessings before their very eyes.

Which of these seven promises speaks to your current situation? Do you feel sorrow, oppression, fear, or weakness? The Lord says, "Wait for Me to come!" He is coming to fulfill these promises for us, and we will worship Him forever.

This truth should make our hearts leap with joy!

Zephaniah reminds us that God gives sinners what they do not deserve—His mercy. He promises that better days are coming when the remnant of Israel will leave captivity under the protection of the Lord. They will be truthful, without deceit, and free from fear. On that day, the Lord will remove their judgments and defeat their enemies. Those who once oppressed them will be punished, and the weak will be restored.

Discussion Questions:

1. What is the main message of Zephaniah?

2. Who is our hope for deliverance from evil?

3. What role does wealth play on the day of judgment?

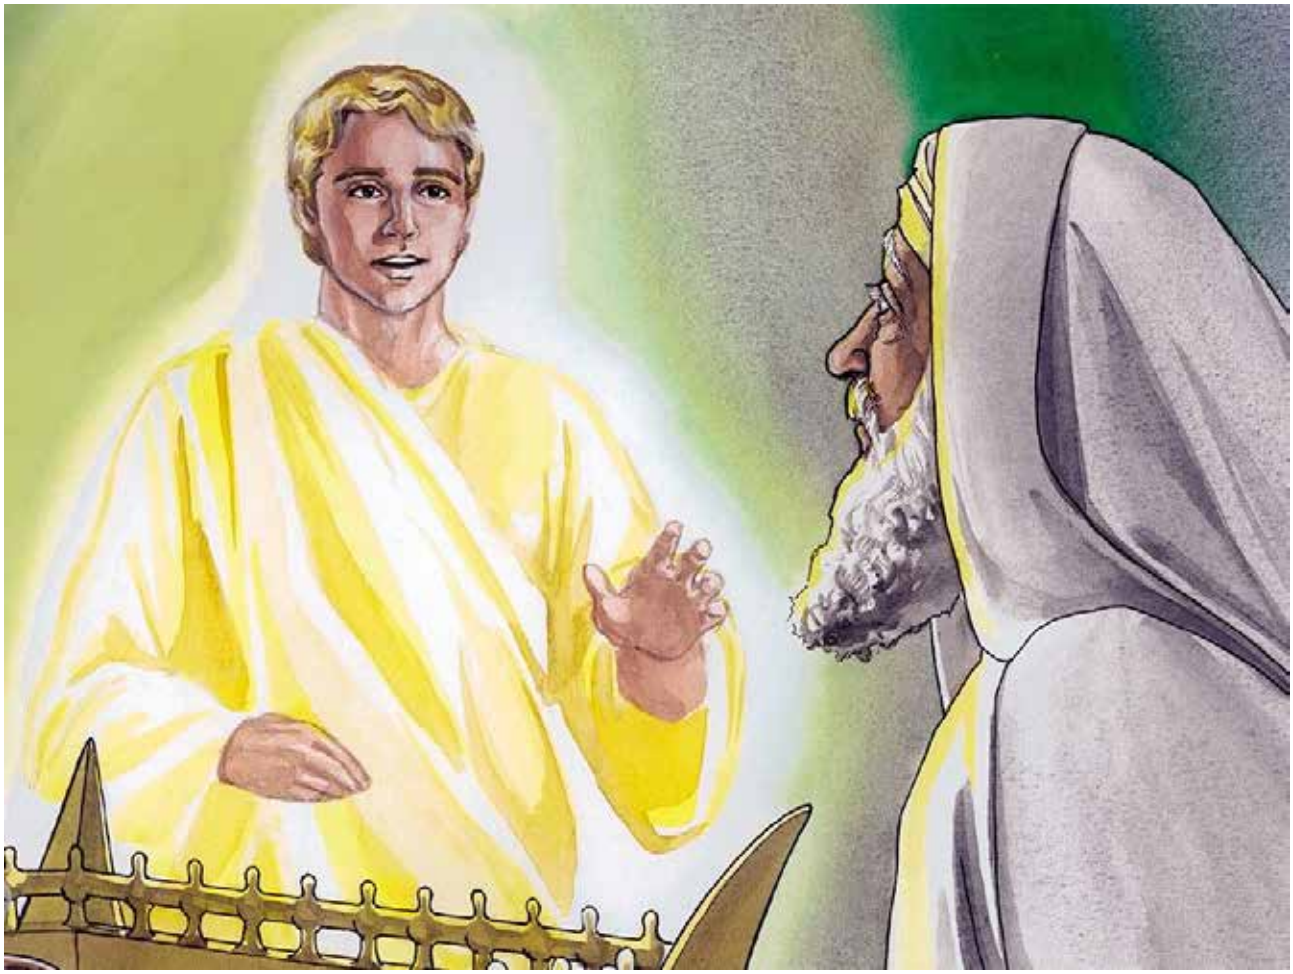
4. What did God tell His people to seek?

5. Why is it important to seek righteousness and humility?

6. Can you write a verse of the song God might sing over us?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Zephaniah 3:14-17



[14-17] "Sing, O daughter of Zion; shout, O Israel! Rejoice and be glad with all your heart, O daughter of Jerusalem! The Lord has taken away your judgments, He has cast out your enemy; the King of Israel, the Lord, is in your midst; you shall not fear evil anymore. In that day it will be said to Jerusalem: 'Fear not, O Zion; let your hands be strong.' The Lord your God is in your midst, a mighty One who will save; He will rejoice over you with gladness, He will quiet you by His love, He will exult over you with singing."

Prayer: Thank You Father in heaven for Your love. We rejoice and are glad that You have cast out the enemy. Thank You for rejoicing over us with great joy. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Make a loudspeaker and demonstrate how the Lord will rejoice over us and sing for us.

DAY 187 (July 5)

LESSON: Zechariah – A Message to the Returnees from Exile in 520 B.C.

The Lord called Zechariah to join Haggai in awakening the Jews who had returned to Jerusalem from Babylonian captivity. Sixteen years had passed since Zerubbabel had led them back to their promised land. The Feast of Tabernacles had been celebrated, and the foundation of the Temple had been laid. Then opposition arose from the surrounding people, and the work was halted. The prophet Haggai urged them to renew their efforts to complete the mission God had for them—the building of the Temple. This lesson is for us today. Our safety is in God. We must trust His Word.

The message of the man riding a red horse, stating that the world was at peace, referred to the certainty that the conflict over the Persian kingdom had ended. Darius, the new king, favored the Jews more. The Lord said,

“I am returning to Jerusalem; My house will be built.” His people were to complete the mission for which He had brought them back.

The four horns are described as the powers that worked against God’s people. The four craftsmen refer to Zerubbabel, Nehemiah, Haggai, and Zechariah. From the two olive trees, golden oil was poured through golden pipes into the bowl of the lampstand, and from there into the golden lamps that gave light to the Holy Place. In the same way, from the saints who stand in God’s presence, His Spirit is imparted to human vessels consecrated for His service. The work of these two anointed ones is to deliver light and power to God’s people. It is a blessing for us that they stand in God’s presence.

The name Zechariah means “The Lord remembers.” Zechariah’s message tells us that as long as we have breath, we should not lose hope because we still have the opportunity to choose the LORD and live forever. Although they were punished for their sins, it was a time to return to God and be faithful. Zechariah, Joshua, Zerubbabel, and Haggai lived during the same period. God told the people to serve Him now, not tomorrow. The LORD says, “Return to Me, and I will return to you.”

The people rejoiced when they returned to Jerusalem from Babylonian captivity. However, they were anxious about their safety, fearing that their enemies might attack them. They wondered if God had forgotten their past sins or if they would continue to be punished for what led them into captivity. God told them that although the Israelites had sinned, He was not pleased with how the other nations treated them cruelly. Even though He had compassion on His people, they had to listen to the prophets.

Zechariah shows that God protects Jerusalem and that Zerubbabel will complete the building of the Temple—not by his power but by the Spirit of God. Even when Tattenai came to stop the work, Zerubbabel told him that they were servants of the God of heaven and earth, building His house. When they reported this to Darius, the king ordered a search of the records, where it was confirmed that Cyrus had permitted them to rebuild the Temple. Darius then sent a decree to Tattenai, instructing him not to interfere with the construction of God’s house. The king also commanded that the Jews be provided with raw materials, food, and support to complete the work.

Joshua, the high priest, stood before the LORD while Satan sought to accuse him. But the LORD defended Joshua and commanded that his filthy garments be removed and replaced with clean clothes. The LORD rebuked Satan, saying, “The LORD rebuke you, Satan! The LORD who has chosen Jerusalem rebuke you! Is not this man a burning stick snatched from the fire?” Jerusalem is like a stick rescued from the fire, saved from destruction. God said to Joshua, “See, I have taken away your sin, and I will put rich garments on you.” Joshua was told that if he walked in the LORD’s ways, he would be given authority to govern God’s house.

Zechariah had a vision of a lampstand with seven lamps and two olive trees, and he told Zerubbabel that the work would be completed not by human might or power, but by the Spirit of God.

The prophet emphasizes doing good to orphans, widows, and strangers, but our religion should not only focus on helping those in need, like social welfare. It should also focus on loving God with all our heart, strength, soul, and mind—and loving our neighbor as ourselves. The LORD declares that although Judah was once a curse, it will now become a blessing.

The prophecy of the Messiah appears several times, for example—the king riding on a donkey, being sold for thirty pieces of silver, and being pierced. The LORD will raise up the Branch, His Servant. Even the crucifixion of Jesus is foretold—”What are these wounds in your hands?” He will answer, “The wounds I received in the house of my friends.” Jesus was wounded by His friends. The prophecy also speaks of the last days—on that day, His feet will stand on the Mount of Olives, which will split in two.

Zechariah's prophecy includes the first coming of Jesus, when He was born, and His second coming, when He will return to take us to heaven. Do you plan to be in the New Jerusalem? Close your eyes and ask God to prepare you to be there on that day. If only we could all realize how close heaven is to earth! Children born on earth do not know that they have angels of light as their guardians. Heavenly messengers are sent to minister to those who will inherit salvation. A divine witness watches over every living soul, seeking to win them to Christ. Angels never abandon those who are tempted and at risk of being destroyed by the enemy unless people reject the Holy Spirit to their eternal ruin. As long as there is hope, heavenly guardians protect humanity.

Discussion Questions:

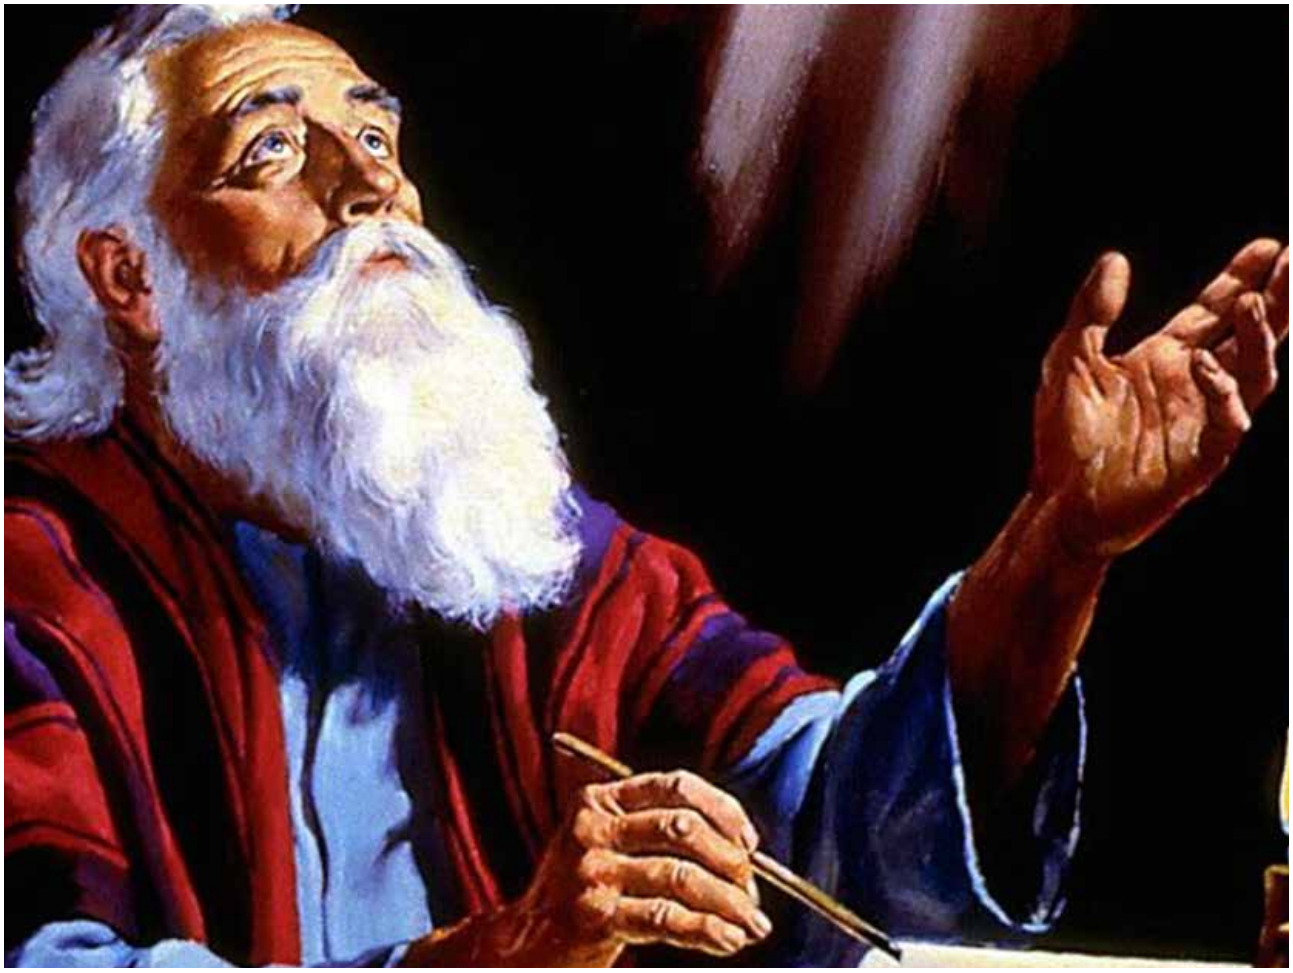
1. What call did God give to His people?

2. Who were Zerubbabel and Joshua?

3. What happened when Joshua the high priest stood before the LORD?

4. Why is it important to know that God's work is not done by our might or power, but by His Spirit?

Key Text: Zechariah 4:6



[6] Then he answered and said to me, "This is the word of the Lord to Zerubbabel: Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit," says the Lord of hosts.

Prayer: Thank You Father in heaven that it is not by our strength or ability but by Your Spirit that we can prevail, live, and exist. Forgive our sins. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Skit—Joshua with dirty clothes in chapter three, or a burning coal taken from fire to show the meaning of these symbols.

DAY 188 (July 6)

TOPIC: Malachi – The Message of Restoration, The Lord Will Open Windows and Not Doors!

The book of Malachi is the last book in the Old Testament. There was a period of 400 years between the Old and the New Testament. The name "Malachi" means "Messenger of God." God reminds His people that their duties are important. These people act as if they are accusing the LORD of falsely charging them with things they did not do. They ask God questions.

God tells them, "I have loved you," but they respond, "How have You loved us?"
God says, "You have dishonored My Name," and they ask, "How have we dishonored Your Name?"
The LORD says, "Return to Me," says the LORD of hosts, but the people ask, "How shall we return?"
"Will a man rob God?" God asks, and they reply, "How have we robbed You?"

God says, “You have wearied the LORD with your words,” and they respond, “How have we wearied Him?”

The LORD of hosts asks the priests, “You who despise My Name,” and they ask, “How have we despised Your Name?”
“You offer defiled food on My altar,” He says, and they respond, “How have we defiled You?” By saying, “The LORD’s table is contemptible.”

God says they have defiled the temple, and He declares, “I am not pleased with you. It would be better if someone shut the doors, so you would not kindle fire on My altar in vain by offering sacrifices that do not honor Me.”

From the rising of the sun to its setting, God’s Name is great among the nations. God says, “A son honors his father, and a servant honors his master. If I am your Father, where is My honor?” The LORD says the priests bring sacrifices of blind, lame, and sick animals.

It is important for us to bring perfect offerings to our God. We honor our parents and our bosses—why should we bring God leftovers or things that do not please Him? Even today, we should not bring the LORD things that are meaningless. This behavior brings curses upon us, and God will rebuke our fields so that our crops will not bear fruit.

The LORD says that the lips of His servants should preserve knowledge. They should not turn away from the path or cause ordinary believers to stumble by committing sins. If we do things that are displeasing to the LORD, we will become people who are despised before Him.

The Jews were told they had forgotten the covenant, which is why their prayers were not answered. Husbands and wives were being unfaithful to each other. God says He hates divorce because it is a betrayal of a sacred promise. Husbands and wives should stay together in joy or sorrow without separating. Marriage should be a little heaven on earth.

The LORD promises to send His messenger, who will prepare His way. But who can endure the day of His coming? For He will be like a refiner’s fire and a launderer’s soap. God says He will be a witness against those who do evil—sorcerers, adulterers, liars, those who oppress widows and orphans, and those who deprive foreigners of justice. Because God does not change, His people have not been destroyed.

God spoke to them about tithes and offerings, which they were not giving faithfully. A tithe is one-tenth of what we earn. For example, if we earn ten shillings, we give one, or if we receive twenty oranges, we give two. Offerings are what we give beyond the tithe. Tithes and offerings are used for the LORD's work in spreading the gospel. Let us learn to give without complaining. We cannot love without giving.

God promises that He will open the windows of heaven for those who are faithful, pouring out blessings until there is no room to store them. He will also protect their fields from being destroyed by pests. God Himself will ensure that they are not lacking or oppressed.

I realized that the house we live in has 26 windows and only three doors—perhaps that's why the Bible says God will open the windows of heaven and not the doors, meaning the blessings will be more abundant!

WHY SHOULD WE GIVE TITHES?

1. Because God commanded it.

2. Tithes belong to God and are holy (Leviticus 27:30).

3. To support gospel workers (Numbers 18:21 and 1 Corinthians 9:13).

4. It removes greed and selfishness (2 Corinthians 9:7).

5. It helps us trust and depend on God.

6. It brings God's promised blessings (Malachi 3:10).

7. It shows whom we serve—God or money (Luke 16:13).

In Malachi's time, some people said that serving God was useless, and that the wicked and the proud were the ones who prospered. But those who feared the LORD spoke to each other, and God listened and wrote their names in a book of remembrance.

The Bible tells us that God keeps books where He records everything we do. Surely everyone rejoices at the thought of God opening the windows of heaven because the blessings will overflow.

Would you like to have your name written in the Book of Life? Being in this book is worth more than anything else. This is wonderful news because God has extraordinary rewards for those whose names are written there.

Christ will come to cleanse the temple. He also promises that the Sun of Righteousness will rise for those who love Him—this Sun of Righteousness is Christ. The book of Malachi ends with the message that the LORD will send the prophet Elijah, who will turn the hearts of fathers to their children and the hearts of children to their fathers. Otherwise, He will strike the land with a curse.

Let us remember that if we aim for heaven, we will receive both heaven and the good things of earth. But if we only aim for earth, we will miss both. The LORD's Name will always be great among the nations—from the rising of the sun to its setting.

If you do not feel any spiritual danger, and if you are not praying for strength to resist temptation, you will surely be lost. Your neglect of duty will be recorded in God's book in heaven, and you will be found lacking on the dreadful day of judgment.

Discussion Questions:

What problems did the priests have?

What is a tithe? Why is it important to give tithes?

Why is divorce wrong?

Why is it wrong to bring imperfect offerings to God, the King of the world?

What would happen if they brought defective offerings to a ruler?

What was the purpose of the prophet Elijah?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Malachi 3:8-11

[9-11] "You are cursed with a curse, for you are robbing Me, even this whole nation. Bring the whole tithe into the storehouse, that there may be food in My house. Test Me in this, says the Lord of hosts, and see if I will not open for you the windows of heaven, and pour out for you such a blessing that there will not be room enough to receive it. And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; nor shall your vine cast its fruit before its time," says the Lord of hosts.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for blessing us with wealth and health. We pray that we may test You by being faithful in giving tithes and offerings so that curses may not come upon us, but blessings! We thank You for the promise of John the Baptist, and we ask that we may also have the character of John the Baptist, preparing people to meet You. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Practice Tithe and Offering faithfully.

NEW TESTAMENT

AFTER THE BIRTH OF JESUS OR MESSIAH IS A SON OF MARY

The Old Testament is the first section of the Bible, called the Tanakh by the Israelites. It consists of:
a) Torah – meaning “Teachings” (the Law)
b) Nevi’im – meaning “Prophets”
c) Ketuvim – meaning “Writings”

Language:
The Old Testament was written in Hebrew, though some sections, such as parts of Daniel and Ezra, were written in Aramaic. The New Testament was written in Greek.

The books of the Bible are not arranged in chronological order. Events in the New Testament occurred after those of the Old Testament. The Old Testament makes up two-thirds of the Bible, while the New Testament comprises one-third. The Old Testament has 929 chapters, and the New Testament has 260 chapters. The New Testament is a continuation of the Old Testament—both complement each other! The Bible is a love letter from God to us, containing His Word and promises.

The Old Testament focuses on animal sacrifices, while the New Testament is centered on the life, teachings, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Seven Major Covenants in the Bible

The Bible mentions seven key covenants between God and humanity:

1. The Covenant with Adam (Genesis 1-3)
2. The Covenant with Noah (Genesis 6-9)
3. The Covenant with Abraham (Genesis 12:1-3)
4. The Covenant with Moses and Israel (Sinai Covenant – Exodus 19-24)
5. The Covenant with Phinehas (Numbers 25:10-13)
6. The Covenant with David (2 Samuel 7:5-16)
7. The New Covenant (Jeremiah 31:31-34)

What Does “Everlasting Covenant” Mean?

Read these scriptures and reflect on their meaning:

Genesis 9:16 (God’s covenant with Noah)

Genesis 17:7 (God’s covenant with Abraham)

Isaiah 55:3 (The everlasting covenant of David)

Hebrews 13:20 (The eternal covenant through Christ’s blood)

The Bible is both a message and a tool from God to help us know Him better and strengthen our faith. It reveals God’s love and His eternal promises to us. Through Scripture, we also gain insights into the lives, cultures, and histories of people who lived in different eras.

Even today, there are deep mysteries that are yet to be revealed to us. As we study the Word of God, our faith grows stronger, and our relationship with Him deepens. Let us continue to seek these spiritual truths and hold fast to God’s Word.

Prayer Is Not Evidence of True Conversion If Your Life Has Not Changed

Satan deceives people into believing that having emotional experiences means they are converted. However, if their actions remain unchanged, and their lives bear no spiritual fruit, they are still deceived. Some people pray often and at length, referring to past emotional experiences, but their daily lives do not reflect true transformation.

These individuals are building their faith on shaky ground, and when trials arise, their foundation crumbles. True conversion is revealed by a changed life—where old habits are left behind, and new, godly behaviors take root.

Jesus Christ changed the course of world history. Events are divided into two main periods:

Before Christ (B.C.)

Anno Domini (A.D.) – The Year of Our Lord

Jesus' life, death, and resurrection are the central points of human history and the fulfillment of God's New Covenant.

May we continue to grow in faith and live lives that reflect true conversion, always looking to Jesus Christ, the Author and Finisher of our faith.

DAY 189 (July 7)

TOPIC: Has God Forgotten Us? People Asked Themselves

After creation and the entrance of sin, people multiplied and spread far from their families or clans. Some were not faithful in telling their children about the Almighty God of heaven, and thus God's Word was lost, and even the understanding, knowledge, and awareness of the true God who created heaven and earth faded away. People began to worship other gods—things of the earth, the heavens, or the seas. Children born during this time began to ask questions like: Who created the earth? Who made the trees, fruits, animals, and flowers? Or who created me?

God reveals Himself to everyone as He is, for He is neither selfish nor unjust. Many people have asked God to reveal Himself to them, and He has done so. This is a request God cannot fail to answer. If you pray, "Lord, I want to know You, follow You, and obey You," He will surely respond. People have discovered that there is a God who created everything. Even those without the Bible know this. God has revealed Himself through nature— the sun, the moon, the stars, animals, fish, birds, and more. God has also revealed Himself through His Word, the Bible, and, most importantly, through Jesus Christ, who left heaven and came to this world. Since His clearest revelation is through the Bible, and it is available in many religious bookstores, it is good for everyone to make an effort to obtain this special book.

A woman from Kateshi, Tanzania, shared an amazing story. She greatly desired to know the Word of God, and God showed her the way. Whenever she sought someone to teach her, people would give excuses that they were too busy. One morning, as she was going to the fields, she took the Bible and opened to the book of Matthew—the Sermon on the Mount. When she arrived at her destination, she opened the Bible and was able to read it without anyone teaching her. This was a gift from heaven. From that day on, she could read the Word of God without difficulty.

The Almighty God is all-powerful, the giver of all good things, and He answers the prayers of people, especially children! Try Him today—tell Him that you want to know and serve Him, and He will answer beyond your expectations. Not a single one of His 3,500+ promises has failed—He has fulfilled them all and even surpassed them. God has the power to awaken a lazy, weak, or sleepy child to read His Word. He has given you the choice to read His Word; He does not force you. If you have time to eat food, then you have time to "eat" His Word! If you feel you don't have time, say, "I won't eat food until I read the Word," and you will see your prayer answered immediately!

When people began to worship other gods, God revealed Himself to Noah, then to Abraham, instructing him to move to Canaan. He told Abraham that his descendants would become a special people. During a great famine, Abraham's descendants went to Egypt and lived there for 430 years. They eventually became slaves, and God delivered them through a child named Moses. God loved the Israelites, and through them, He wanted to show His power, love, justice, and mercy to the entire world. Moses obeyed, and the Israelites repeatedly saw God's greatness and help. Despite being fed, clothed, protected, and experiencing many miracles, they forgot about God again.

When God sent prophets to them repeatedly, they refused to listen. As a result, they were taken captive by the Babylonians and lived in Babylon for 70 years. Eventually, they returned to their land, and priests and scribes helped them reconnect with the Holy Scriptures and understand God's true nature. His laws are for our benefit—they are full of love, not meant to make us unhappy. Would you want to have a neighbor who disregards laws and does evil? Probably not, because you would be at risk of harm. The summary of God's law is to love the Lord your God with all your heart, mind, strength, and soul, and to love your neighbor as yourself.

Many people think it is better to trust themselves rather than trust God. They believe they know what is right and wrong better than God does. But God is the Creator—He knows what brings us true joy better than we do. He loves us more than we love ourselves and loves those we care about even more than we do. Sin brings sorrow. Although God created Adam and Eve to live forever, their disobedience brought much grief—even to the point of witnessing their firstborn kill their second-born.

All human beings have sinned and fallen short of the glory of God. God did not want His children to be lost forever, so He planned our salvation through His Son, Jesus. Jesus came to earth, lived a sinless life, and died so we could see the true character of God. In the Old Testament, His death was symbolized by the sacrifices of lambs or other animals. These animals died in place of the sinner, representing how Jesus would take away our sins. Jesus chose to die for our sins so that we would not die eternally.

Through Jesus' sacrifice, we are no longer separated from God. This was God's plan for the salvation of all humanity. Animal sacrifices pointed to Jesus. Today, because we no longer offer animal sacrifices, we might lose sight of the seriousness of sin and the cost of salvation. Yet, if we allow Him, God will give us a clearer understanding—Jesus is the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world.

Sadly, over time, the priests and the people forgot that these sacrifices were merely symbols of Jesus' ultimate sacrifice. They created many laws, thinking that obeying them would earn them eternal life. Some even turned the sacrificial system into a business for profit. They forgot that salvation is a gift from God's grace, not something we can earn through works. What matters today is believing that Jesus came, lived among us, died for our sins, rose again, and ascended to heaven.

Even today, many misunderstand God's love. They imagine God as a harsh judge watching for mistakes to punish. This is a lie planted by the devil. God is love—He wants us to experience true joy. He sent His Son to show us His love and to save us from the sorrow caused by sin. Look for a book called Steps to Christ and read the first chapter about God's love for humanity.

The world awaited the Messiah—the true Lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world—and at the right time, He came. God always keeps His promises.

Questions:

1. Have you asked God to reveal Himself to you?

2. How many promises are in the Bible?

3. How much of the Old Testament prophecy about the Messiah has been fulfilled?

4. What was the meaning of the sacrifices people offered before Jesus came?

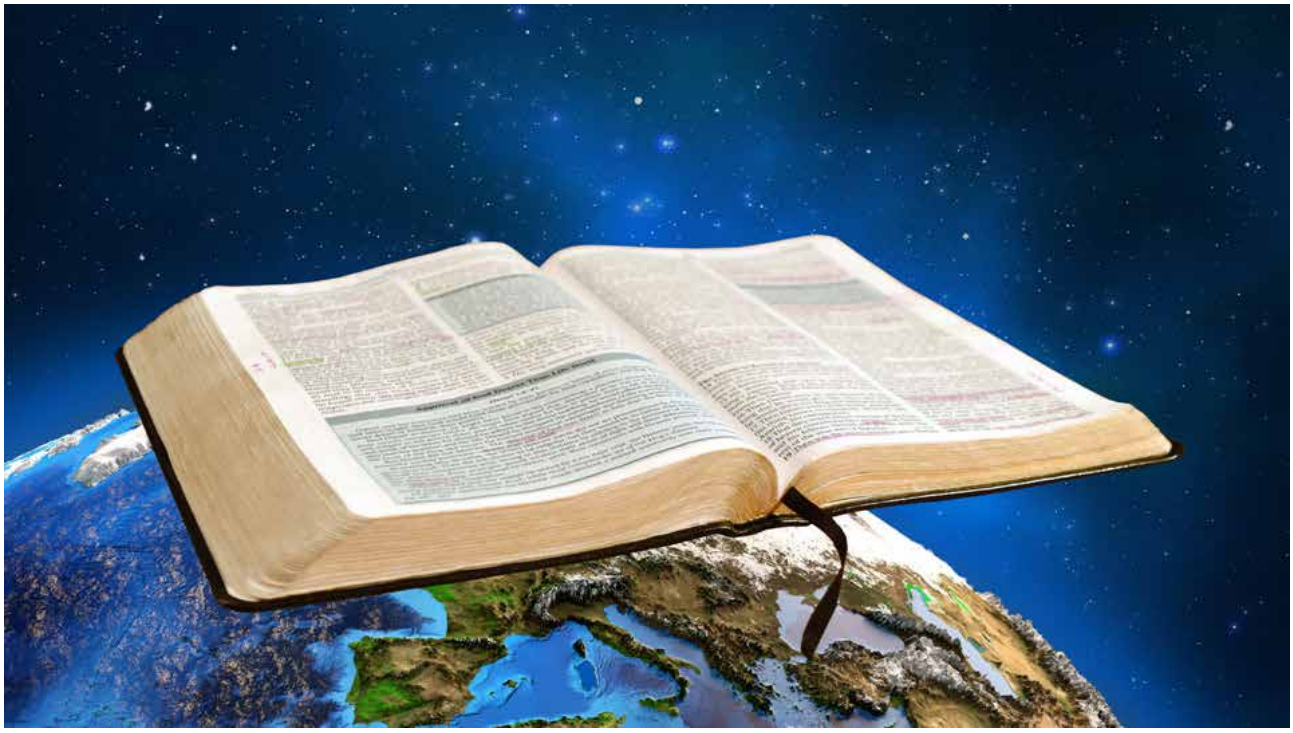
5. Why is reading important for someone who loves God?

6. Why was it necessary for Jesus to die?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Jeremiah 31:3

[3] "The Lord appeared to me from afar, saying, Yes, I have loved you with an everlasting love; therefore I have drawn you with My lovingkindness."



Prayer: Father, Thank You because we do not need to fear the future, since You love us so much. Your wisdom is unsearchable, even when we see silence, we pray that we may not lose heart. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: There are over 8,100 promises of God. Divide the class into three groups: one group take Psalm 37, another Leviticus 26, and the other Deuteronomy 28. Let them write down all the promises they can count.

DAY 190 (July 8)

TOPIC: The Harmony of the Gospel Books

(The Four Gospels: Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John)

The four books describe the life of Jesus—His death, resurrection, and ascension into heaven. These books are called the Gospels. Matthew is the first Gospel in the New Testament, but Mark was the earliest written. They cover events that occurred between 4 B.C. and 30 A.D. These books give us a complete picture of Jesus' birth, ministry, death, and resurrection. Interestingly, Paul's letters, such as Galatians and Thessalonians, were written before the Gospels.

Matthew was an apostle, one of Jesus' disciples, and his other name was Levi. Before following Jesus, he worked as a tax collector. He wrote to explain the good news of Jesus, who came at the appointed time. The Messiah was neither early nor late in being born. Matthew wanted to assure all readers, especially the Jews, that Jesus is the promised Messiah foretold in the Old Testament.

The Gospel is the good news about Jesus' birth, His life, His teachings, His death, and His resurrection. This story reveals the plan of salvation for humanity. Matthew included many teachings of Jesus, emphasizing that the Old Testament prophecies about the Messiah were fulfilled—mentioning them over 27 times. The Gospel of Matthew is the most read and quoted Gospel, which may explain why it was placed first in the New Testament.

The name "Matthew" means "gift of God." He begins his Gospel with the genealogy of Jesus Christ, tracing it from Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Judah, Boaz, Obed, Jesse, David, Solomon, Zerubbabel, Joseph (Mary's husband), and finally to Jesus. Matthew notes that there were 14 generations from Abraham to David, 14 generations from David to the exile in Babylon, and 14 generations from the exile to the birth of Christ—a total of 42 generations.

Luke, on the other hand, traces Jesus' lineage backward to Adam: Jesus was thought to be the son of Joseph, who was the son of Heli, the son of Matthat, the son of Levi, the son of Adam, who was the son of God. The genealogy of Jesus shows that God has faithful followers in every generation, nation, and family. While Jews tried to keep others out of their faith, Jesus invited people from all nations to follow Him.

Mark, also known as John Mark, wrote the first Gospel. His Gospel is brief, clear, and action-packed. He begins with Jesus' ministry as an adult, focusing on urging people to believe that Jesus is the Son of God and the Son of Man, so they may receive salvation. The title "Son of Man" appears 93 times in the New Testament. Interestingly, the prophet Ezekiel was also called "Son of Man" 93 times, as he represented God to the people in Babylon.

Mark learned about Jesus from Peter, who was one of Jesus' apostles. Mark worked under Peter's guidance and is referred to as his "son in Christ" (1 Peter 5:13). The term "Christ" comes from the Greek word meaning "Anointed One" or "Messiah." Mark was the son of Mary and a cousin of Barnabas—the "Son of Encouragement"—who was a preacher from Antioch in Syria.

Mark wrote primarily for Gentile believers, especially Romans. His Gospel emphasizes Jesus' mighty works more than His teachings, portraying Him as the Servant of God who would suffer and become a sacrifice for humanity. This is why Mark highlights 27 miracles.

The beloved physician, Luke, wrote the third Gospel for a Roman official named Theophilus. Luke was a Gentile (not a Jew) and a Greek. As a scientist, he thoroughly investigated and interviewed people who knew and served Jesus. Luke focuses on Jesus' parables—19 of the 29 recorded parables are in his Gospel. These parables are earthly stories with heavenly meanings that teach spiritual truths. Famous examples include the Prodigal Son, the Sower, and the Good Samaritan.

Luke accompanied Paul on his three missionary journeys and also wrote the Book of Acts. On their final journey, they were shipwrecked while traveling to Rome, but all 276 passengers survived. Paul testified about Jesus in the cities they visited, including Rome itself.

Luke emphasizes Jesus as the Son of Man, using the term 80 times. He wanted readers to know the truth about Jesus' life as the Savior of the world, the Healer, and the Comforter. As a physician, Luke had compassion and highlighted Jesus' ministry of healing the sick, helping the poor, and caring for the outcast. Biblical scholars, including those who believe and those who do not, regard Luke's Gospel as the most historically reliable. Researchers verified 34 places mentioned by Luke during their investigations.

The beloved disciple John wrote his Gospel with a unique approach compared to the others. He focuses more on Jesus' spiritual teachings rather than historical events. Chapters like John 1, 8, and 13-17 are rich in spiritual depth.

John starts with Jesus' existence in eternity, before creation. He describes Jesus as the eternal Word who became flesh and dwelled among us. John was the youngest disciple and lived past age 90. He also wrote three epistles (1, 2, and 3 John) and the Book of Revelation. He is often called the "apostle of love" because he emphasized love in his writings—such as the famous verse, "For God so loved the world that He gave His one and only Son."

John wrote to the Jews to convince them that Jesus is the Son of God who takes away the sin of the world, leading to salvation. Instead of starting with Jesus' genealogy, John emphasizes Jesus' divine nature:

"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. Through Him, all things were made; without Him, nothing was made that has been made. In Him was life, and that life was the light of all mankind."

Being a Christian means believing that Jesus is God. This is our core faith. The angel said He would be called "Immanuel," meaning "God with us."

The mystery of God's divine nature is beyond human comprehension. Even the angels marveled that their Creator chose to be born on a small, dark, and sinful planet to walk among humans and suffer for their sake. This is a cause for great joy—God chose our world for His redemptive mission!

Let us rejoice today in our salvation. Among all the major religions, no other leader claimed to be God or the Son of God—only Jesus did. Furthermore, even non-Christian religious texts, such as those of Islam and Judaism, acknowledge Jesus.

The reliability of the Bible is proven by the preservation of 5,664 manuscripts in Greek, Hebrew, and Aramaic, with approximately 30,000 copies of the New Testament in other languages. This abundance of consistent manuscripts confirms the truth of the Bible.

Prayer Is Not a Waste of Time
Every morning, begin your day with prayer. This is time that will echo through eternity. Prayer brings spiritual success and victory. Your body will feel the touch of the Master's hand. Seek God's blessings—no work is done well without first seeking divine guidance.

Questions:

1. What does "Gospel" mean?

2. Who are the four authors of the Gospels?

3. Can you describe the differences between their writings?

4. Who were the Gospels written for, and what were their purposes?

5. What were Matthew, Luke, and John's professions before writing?

6. How do we know that Jesus is Lord or God?

7. If someone asks why you believe in Jesus, can you explain convincingly beyond your Bible? If not, start researching now—do not be a mere imitator!

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: 2 Timothy 3:16-17.

[16, 17] All Scripture is God-breathed and is useful for teaching, rebuking, correcting, and training in righteousness, so that the man of God may be complete, thoroughly equipped for every good work.
Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father for the Gospel writers who give us the beauty of Scripture in different ways. Help us to reflect on Your life here on earth and to remain close to You. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Decorate a box, and let every student write a favorite Scripture and place it inside the box.

DAY 191 (July 9)

TOPIC: JESUS HAS ALWAYS EXISTED, AND HE LIVES FOREVER.

When we began writing the children's Bible, especially this section of the New Testament, I felt we were very inadequate. How could we tell this precious story to the poor, given that human words are insufficient, and our understanding is so limited? When writing about the life of Jesus, we struggle with where to begin. We could start in Bethlehem, but that would only cover His 33 years on earth, leaving out the eternal reality of His existence. The life of Jesus has no beginning and no end—He comes from eternity past and continues into eternity future! His story here begins with His incarnation, His ministry on earth, and His ascension to heaven to continue His eternal reign.

I use these words because the Swahili language has not yet borrowed from the ancient languages. English has borrowed a lot. In Luke 2:10-11, the angel tells the shepherds not to be afraid because he brings good news of great joy: "Today, in the town of David, a Savior has been born to you; He is Christ the Lord." As we have already seen, the most amazing thing here is that this newborn baby is called Christ the Lord. The term Lord is the word the Greeks used in place of Yahweh, the name of God used in the Old Testament. Thus, the angel clearly declared that this child was God.

The title Messiah also signifies the divinity of Jesus. The angel's good news continued, stating that He would be the Redeemer of the whole world. Let you and me rejoice and shout for joy with the angels for our salvation. I know we cannot do full justice to describing His life, but we will try, even though it is impossible for humans to fully comprehend this story because it surpasses our knowledge and human understanding.

Every father is naturally protective of his child, fearing to leave them in the hands of wicked or dangerous people. Yet God sent His only Son into a dangerous world, risking His life so that our children might one day have eternal safety.

John tells us clearly at the beginning of John 1, "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." This echoes Genesis 1:1, "In the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth." The apostle John takes us to the very beginning of Jesus' story, while the apostle Paul concludes in Colossians 1:16: "For in Him all things were created: things in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible, whether thrones or powers or rulers or authorities; all things have been created through Him and for Him."

Jesus did not begin to exist when creation started—He has existed for all eternity. Because human understanding is confined by time, matter, and space, it is difficult for us to grasp this profound mystery.

We might wish that God could be fully explained or that His ways would align with our human needs. Yet everything was created through Him, and without Him, nothing was made that has been made. Isaiah adds in Isaiah 9:6: "For unto us a child is born, to us a son is given, and He will be called Wonderful Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace." The increase of His government and peace will have no end, from now and forevermore.

Try to find Jesus in the Old Testament—He is everywhere! He is the "I AM."

The Jews were shocked when Jesus said, "Truly, truly, I tell you, before Abraham was born, I AM" (John 8:58). They could not understand how a man under 50 years old could claim to have seen Abraham thousands of years earlier—unless He was God. So, they wanted to stone Him because they recognized that "I AM" was the divine name God revealed to Moses in Exodus 3:14.

The apostle Paul and many others have declared that they are determined to know nothing except Jesus Christ and Him crucified (1 Corinthians 2:2). Let this be our desire as well—to know nothing else but Jesus, the One who was crucified.

The prophets, apostles, and founders of all religions are dead and await the resurrection. But Jesus is alive, seated at the right hand of Almighty God in heaven. Five hundred people witnessed Him ascend into heaven without the aid of any flying machine, after spending 40 days with them following His resurrection!

A hymn says:

"Turn your eyes upon Jesus,
Look full in His wonderful face,
And the things of earth will grow strangely dim,
In the light of His glory and grace."

Jesus never fades or changes. In the New Testament, we will focus on Jesus because He is the Alpha and the Omega—the Beginning and the End. What matters most is that God wants to be our friend—every one of us. He desires us to talk to Him about everything—our joys, sorrows, and everyday concerns. He loves us and wants to give us joy. This is why He sent His Son. Everything else passes away, but He is eternal, and He wants us to be with Him forever. Let us invite Him into our hearts.

The Israelites waited a long time for the Messiah. However, some forgot that their sacrifices symbolized the coming Messiah who would die for them. The sacrificial system became a mere tradition used for economic gain. Yet Jesus chose to die so that we would never be separated from God again. Eternal life is a gift. All we must do is believe—not relying on our own wisdom or strength but trusting in Him alone.

We must believe that He came to earth and died so we might have eternal life. We should confess Him with our mouths, thoughts, and hearts and then live in relationship with Him—that is eternal life. He will help us to become good people—not just to do good things. There is a significant difference between being good and doing good.

We are encouraged to have the same humble attitude as Jesus, who, though He was God, did not consider equality with God something to cling to. Instead, He made Himself nothing, taking the form of a servant and being made in human likeness (Philippians 2:6-7).

It is good for us to spend time each day meditating deeply on the life of Jesus Christ. As we carefully follow the events of His life, especially the conclusion, we will grow in understanding.

Victory Through Daily Prayer
Through daily prayer to God, you will receive wisdom and grace to handle life's challenges and emerge victorious. Integrity and peace of mind are preserved through vigilance and prayer.

Questions:

1. How old is Jesus today?

2. Why did Jesus choose to die?

3. Whose name is "I AM"?

4. What does eternity mean?

5. What does it mean to fix our eyes on Jesus?

6. Why should we always turn our eyes toward Jesus?

7. If someone asks you for proof that Jesus came and lived on earth, what human reasons would you give?

8. Why did the angels not appear to people with high-ranking jobs?

9. What is the difference between being good and doing good?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: John 1:1-3.

[1-3] In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. He was with God in the beginning. Through Him all things were made; without Him nothing was made that has been made. In Him was life, and that life was the light of men. The light shines in the darkness, but the darkness has not overcome it.

Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father for coming to dwell with us human beings. You, our Creator, help us to grow in grace and to tell others about You.

Activity: Explain about Jesus being in heaven and that all things were created through Him. Then explain His coming to earth to dwell with us as Emmanuel. Explain the plan of salvation……..Use pictures of Exodus 25 Pattern of the Sanctuary -three compartments

DAY 192 (July 10)

TOPIC: The Prophecy of the Birth of Jesus the Messiah and Our Lord.

(Luke 1)

Many people desire to have a child born in their home. They wait eagerly and with great excitement. Jesus had been awaited for thousands of years before being born as a human. God's promises said He would be a special child. Prophecies such as that of Daniel 9 revealed the approximate time of His birth—69 weeks or (483 years) from the decree to rebuild Jerusalem. However, many had not read or understood these prophecies. Some young women hoped that perhaps they would be chosen to give birth to this child. This child was promised from the Garden of Eden after the first sin entered the world. God promised that one day a male child would be born who would crush the head of the serpent, Satan. Eve thought she might give birth to this child, but when Cain was born, he was not the Redeemer—he became a murderer. This hope continued with every parent, as they passed on the promise while waiting for its fulfillment. Centuries passed. Even Moses told his people, "The Lord your God will raise up for you a prophet from among you." Balaam was also told of this promise, and he said, "A star will come out of Jacob." Isaiah, Micah, Haggai, Zechariah, and others also prophesied about Him.

As the time approached, there was excitement in heaven because God the Son, whom the angels loved and worshiped, was about to leave heaven and its glory to live on the small planet He had created—to show His love for His creatures, even though they had rebelled against Him. He was going to take on human form and live among people. We do not know if the angels fully understood this mystery, but it was a great testimony to them that God is love. The angels eagerly prepared a heavenly choir to sing on earth when He was born. Jesus was neither late nor early. When the time came, He was born.

Why Mary was chosen, we do not know, but God's eyes search everywhere and see those who are upright before Him. Even you, who are reading this today—whether you are a child or an adult—God's eyes are watching you. Mary was a young girl, just past childhood. She must have been an extraordinary girl—God knew her heart was pure and that she could be entrusted with the honor of bearing His only Son.

God knew the street, the house, and even the room where Mary lived. He sent the angel Gabriel to Mary's home in the town of Nazareth, to a virgin pledged to be married to Joseph, a descendant of David. The angel entered Mary's house and said, "Greetings, you who are highly favored! The Lord is with you." Mary was greatly troubled by his words and wondered what kind of greeting this might be. But the angel said to her, "Do not be afraid, Mary; you have found favor with God. You will conceive and give birth to a son, and you are to call Him Jesus. He will be great and will be called the Son of the Most High. The Lord God will give Him the throne of His father David, and He will reign over Jacob's descendants forever; His kingdom will never end."

Mary asked the angel, "How will this be, since I am a virgin?" The angel answered, "The Holy Spirit will come on you, and the power of the Most High will overshadow you. So the holy one to be born will be called the Son of God. Even Elizabeth, your relative, is going to have a child in her old age, and she who was said to be unable to conceive is in her sixth month. For no word from God will ever fail."

Mary responded humbly, "I am the Lord's servant. May your word to me be fulfilled." Then the angel left her.

Mary knew that childbirth was natural, but giving birth without a husband was unheard of. Instead of waiting to be served, she traveled over 100 kilometers to the hill country of Judea to help her relative Elizabeth. Despite the difference in their ages—Elizabeth could have been old enough to be her grandmother—Mary shared everything with her. Upon entering Zechariah's home, Mary greeted Elizabeth. When Elizabeth heard Mary's greeting, the baby leaped in her womb, and Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit.

In a loud voice, Elizabeth exclaimed, "Blessed are you among women, and blessed is the child you will bear! But why am I so favored, that the mother of my Lord should come to me? As soon as the sound of your greeting reached my ears, the baby in my womb leaped for joy. Blessed is she who has believed that the Lord would fulfill His promises to her!"

Mary responded with a song of praise to God, which in Latin is known as the Magnificat. Many say these words resemble those of Hannah, the mother of Samuel, and Miriam, the sister of Moses.

"My soul glorifies the Lord, and my spirit rejoices in God my Savior, for He has been mindful of the humble state of His servant. From now on, all generations will call me blessed, for the Mighty One has done great things for me—holy is His name. His mercy extends to those who fear Him, from generation to generation. He has performed mighty deeds with His arm; He has scattered those who are proud in their inmost thoughts. He has brought down rulers from their thrones but has lifted up the humble. He has filled the hungry with good things but has sent the rich away empty. He has helped His servant Israel, remembering to be merciful to Abraham and his descendants forever, just as He promised our ancestors."

Mary was a young girl who did not understand everything, but she was humble and tried to remain cheerful despite the thoughts and challenges surrounding her. A mother's joy is important for her child.

We Must Set Aside Time to Pray

We should now learn and practice knowing God by affirming His promises. Angels keep a record of every sincere prayer. It is better to give up our personal desires than to neglect communion with God. Deep humility and self-denial, when combined with His favor, are better than wealth, honor, easy living, and friends without His blessing. We must take time to pray.

Questions:

1. What did the angel tell Mary?

2. How did Mary respond?

3. How did Mary praise the Lord while visiting Elizabeth?

4. What does this lesson teach us?

5. Why do you think Mary was chosen to be the mother of Jesus?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Luke 1:37-38.

[37, 38] For with God nothing will be impossible. And Mary said, Behold, I am the servant of the Lord; let it be to me according to your word. Then the angel departed from her.

Prayer: Thank You Father for the lives of Mary and Elizabeth. Forgive us our sins and fill us with the Holy Spirit so that we may live godly lives. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Draw a picture of Mary and Elizabeth meeting. Then discuss the things they talked about.

DAY 193 (July 11)

TOPIC: The Birth of John the Baptist, the Forerunner of the Messiah

(Luke 1)

During the time of Herod, king of Judea, there was a priest named Zechariah, and his wife Elizabeth was a descendant of Aaron. They were righteous before God, obeying all the Lord's commandments and decrees blamelessly. However, they had no child because Elizabeth was barren, and both were very old. While Zechariah was serving as a priest before God, it was his turn, by lot, to burn incense in the sanctuary, and the whole assembly was outside praying.

An angel of the Lord appeared to Zechariah, and he was startled and overcome with fear. But the angel said to him, "Do not be afraid, Zechariah, for your prayer has been heard. Your wife Elizabeth will bear you a son, and you shall call his name John. You will have joy and gladness, and many will rejoice at his birth, for he will be great in the sight of the Lord.

He will not drink wine or any fermented drink, and he will be filled with the Holy Spirit even from his mother's womb. He will turn many of the people of Israel back to the Lord their God. He will go before the Lord in the spirit and power of Elijah, to turn the hearts of the fathers to their children, and the disobedient to the wisdom of the righteous—to make ready a people prepared for the Lord."

Zechariah asked the angel, "How can I be sure of this? I am an old man, and my wife is well advanced in years." The angel said, "I am Gabriel. I stand in the presence of God, and I have been sent to speak to you and bring you this good news. And now, you will be silent and unable to speak until the day these things come to pass, because you did not believe my words, which will be fulfilled in their time."

Meanwhile, the people outside were waiting for Zechariah, wondering why he was delayed in the temple. When he finally came out, he could not speak to them. They realized he had seen a vision in the temple, for he kept making signs to them but remained mute. When his time of service was completed, he returned home. After these days, his wife Elizabeth conceived and remained in seclusion for five months, saying, "The Lord has done this for me. He has looked upon me to take away my disgrace among the people." In those days, it was considered a shame for a woman to be barren.

Mary hurried to the hill country of Judea to visit her cousin Elizabeth. On the way, she might have wondered if everything the angel told her was true. Elizabeth was a godly and trustworthy friend who comforted her during difficult times. When you receive amazing and good news, who do you share it with? Find someone who will encourage you in the right way.

When Mary arrived and greeted Elizabeth, the baby leaped in Elizabeth's womb. Mary stayed with Elizabeth for about three months before returning to her home in Nazareth because they did not live close to each other. When it was time for Elizabeth to give birth, she was overjoyed to have her cousin Mary with her. They shared their joys together because Zechariah was still mute and could only communicate through writing and gestures. Everyone enjoys speaking more than writing because you don't need a pen, paper, or any tools—just your mouth.

Elizabeth gave birth to a son, and when her neighbors and relatives heard that the Lord had shown her great mercy, they rejoiced with her. On the eighth day, they came to circumcise the child and wanted to name him Zechariah after his father. But Elizabeth said, "No! He is to be called John." They said to her, "There is no one among your relatives who has that name." So they made signs to his father to find out what he wanted to name the child.

Zechariah asked for a writing tablet and wrote, "His name is John." They were all amazed, and immediately his mouth was opened, and he began to speak, praising God. Awe came upon all their neighbors, and throughout the hill country of Judea, people talked about all these things. Everyone who heard about it pondered it in their hearts, saying, "What will this child become?" For the Lord's hand was with him.

Zechariah, filled with the Holy Spirit, prophesied, saying, "Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel, because He has come to His people and redeemed them. He has raised up a horn of salvation for us in the house of His servant David, as He said through His holy prophets of long ago—to save us from our enemies and from the hand of all who hate us, to show mercy to our ancestors, and to remember His holy covenant, the oath He swore to our father Abraham."

He said that his child John would be called a prophet of the Most High, for he would go before the Lord to prepare the way for Him, to give His people the knowledge of salvation through the forgiveness of their sins, because of the tender mercy of our God. By this mercy, the rising sun will come to us from heaven to shine on those living in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet into the path of peace.

John grew and became strong in spirit, and he lived in the wilderness until the day he appeared publicly to Israel.

When we read about the birth of John, we are reminded that God has a plan for every child and adult, just as He had for John. The greatest thing in our lives should be to understand God's plan for us and live to fulfill that special purpose. Spend more time in prayer and seeking God's Word closely. Let everyone receive the true reality of faith in their hearts by believing that the Holy Spirit will be poured out on them because they have a genuine hunger and thirst for righteousness. Let there be more prayer, more faith, more receiving, and more working together with God.

Questions:

1. What did the angel say to Zechariah?

2. What excuse did Zechariah give?

3. What happened when Elizabeth saw Mary?

4. How did people know the child would be named John?

5. What does "prophet of the Most High" mean?

6. What does the name Jesus or Yeshua mean?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Luke 1:76-79.

[76-79] And you, child, will be called the prophet of the Most High; for you will go before the face of the Lord to prepare His ways; to give His people the knowledge of salvation through the forgiveness of their sins, because of the tender mercy of our God, whereby the sunrise shall visit us from on high, to give light to those who sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet into the way of peace.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for the ministry of John the Baptist, and for the ministry of intercession for us today and the forgiveness of sins. Thank You because the light has reached us who dwell in darkness. We are grateful because Your light will guide our fe et into the way of peace. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

DAY 194 (July 12)

TOPIC: The Birth of Jesus the Messiah and the Son of God.

(Luke 2 and Matthew 2)

In those days, a decree went out from Caesar Augustus of Rome, who ruled the entire world at that time, that a census should be taken of all the people in the world so that each ruler would know how many citizens were under them. This was the first census recorded at that time. The census was conducted to collect taxes or to identify people of the age eligible for military service. Everyone went to register according to their town or family of origin.

Joseph, from the lineage of King David, left Galilee from the town of Nazareth to go to Bethlehem in Judea, over 120 kilometers away, the city where King David was born, because he belonged to the house of David. He went to be registered with Mary, whom he was engaged to, and she was expecting a child. Joseph married Mary after receiving a dream from God. This journey, traveling on a donkey through valleys and hills with a pregnant woman about to give birth, was not easy.

One thing to learn here is that Jesus' parents were people who lived peacefully and obeyed the laws of the land that did not contradict their faith. Mary was pledged to be married to Joseph, but before they came together as husband and wife, she was found to be pregnant through the Holy Spirit. Joseph, her fiancé, was a righteous man and did not want to disgrace her publicly, and because he loved Mary, he decided to divorce her quietly.

Perhaps when Mary told him, he did not believe her, as such a thing had never happened before and seemed impossible. That is why the angel told Mary when she asked, "How will this be since I am a virgin?" The angel answered, "With God, all things are possible." Joseph knew Mary was a faithful girl, so he wondered what had happened—was there another man who loved her more than he did? Mary was between 14 and 17 years old.

Joseph could have taken her to court because, in those days, engagement was equivalent to marriage under their law, and legally, she could have been stoned to death according to the Law of Moses. However, he did not want to harm Mary, and at the same time, he did not want to take a girl who had been with another man. He considered giving her a quiet divorce or simply leaving her secretly.

Here, we learn wisdom—when people wrong us, there is no need to embarrass them or make a scene! While Joseph was still thinking about these things, behold, an angel of the Lord appeared to him in a dream and said, "Joseph, son of David, do not be afraid to take Mary as your wife, for what is conceived in her is from the Holy Spirit. She will give birth to a Son, and you are to give Him the name Jesus, because He will save His people from their sins."

All this happened to fulfill what the Lord had spoken through the prophet: "Behold, a virgin will conceive and give birth to a Son, and they will call Him Immanuel," which means "God with us." When Joseph woke up from sleep, he did what the angel of the Lord had commanded him and took Mary as his wife, but he did not consummate their marriage until she gave birth to the child.

It has been over 2,000 years since Mary was told these things, but these words still hold great meaning today. Jesus was born to save all humanity from sin—whether short or tall, rich or poor, African, White, or Indian. That is when Joseph married and took Mary home.

Perhaps these parents sometimes thought that Jesus would become a king and help deliver them from Roman oppression or poverty! They took on a heavy responsibility—to carry God, raise Him, and do everything that parents do for a child: feeding Him, putting Him to bed, clothing Him, and so on.

When we try to comprehend these things with our limited minds, we are left speechless by God's love. A small example to help understand: imagine you love ants so much that you choose to become an ant, live like an ant, die for the ants, and remain in ant form forever.

When Joseph and Mary realized they had been chosen and entrusted by God with the most precious thing on earth and in heaven—His Son—and that all of heaven was poured into their home, they rejoiced. Although the task was difficult and they did not fully understand it, they no longer cared about the difficulty or people's gossip.

Even today, do you worry about what people say when they mock you for loving God and obeying His commands? Joseph is not often mentioned, but as a father, he had a huge responsibility to protect and care for Mary, raise Jesus, teach Him a trade so He could work, and do all the other things our fathers do for us—it takes both parents to raise a child.

During their journey to Bethlehem, the time came for Mary to give birth. Because of the census, the town was crowded, and all the inns were full. Since they could not find a place to stay, a kind person offered them a stable. Traditional midwives or Mary's friends from Nazareth were not present.

Mary gave birth to her firstborn Son, wrapped Him in cloths, and laid Him in a manger—a feeding trough for animals, possibly made of metal or rough wooden planks. The Lamb of God was born among the animals. This shows that God values animals more than we may think!

The animals were ready to welcome Him into their home, but humans had no room for Him. Most children today are born in hospitals, but Jesus was born in a stable.

Perhaps His earthly parents wondered, "Why is this happening? Why did God choose us, poor as we are, to raise the One who owns everything?" Even poor mothers today are given better care during childbirth. Tetanus infections for newborns and mothers are serious risks! Yet God gave His all and continues to give to this day.

Joseph was a carpenter—couldn't he have made a crib for the baby? But Jesus came in humility, as described in Philippians 2. So, even those who are very poor can find comfort in this story.

When we think of all that Jesus left behind for us, we should ask ourselves: What will I give up for Him? Do you have room in your heart for Jesus today? Let's not be like Bethlehem, which had no room for the King of kings that night.

In that same region, there were shepherds living out in the fields, keeping watch over their flocks at night. Suddenly, an angel of the Lord appeared to them, and the glory of the Lord shone around them, and they were terrified. But the angel said, "Do not be afraid. I bring you good news that will cause great joy for all the people: Today, in the town of David, a Savior has been born to you; He is the Messiah, the Lord. This will be a sign to you: You will find a baby wrapped in cloths and lying in a manger."

Suddenly, a great company of heavenly hosts appeared with the angel, praising God and singing, "Glory to God in the highest heaven, and on earth, peace to those on whom His favor rests."

Questions:

1. Why did Joseph and Mary go to Bethlehem?

2. What did the angel tell the shepherds?

3. Do angels like those in Bethlehem still visit us today?

4. What song did the angelic host sing?

5. What kind of music displeases God?

6. Why did God choose poor shepherds instead of the wealthy?

7. What does the manger symbolize?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Luke 2:9-12.

[9-12] An angel of the Lord appeared to them, and the glory of the Lord shone around them, and they were terrified. But the angel said to them, Do not be afraid; for behold, I bring you good news of great joy that will be for all people. For today in the city of David a Savior has been born to you; He is Christ the Lord. This will be a sign to you: You will find a baby wrapped in cloths and lying in a manger.

Prayer: Dear Father, we praise You for removing fear from us and bringing us good news. Thank You for the hope of the Savior who came to live, die, and rise again for us. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Draw the manger and sheepfold (Nativity). Find a map and look at the journey to Bethlehem to pay taxes, by the decree of Caesar Augustus.

DAY 195 (July 13th)

TOPIC: The Wise Men from the East Visit Jesus

(Matthew 2)

When Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea during the reign of King Herod, behold, wise men—people of wisdom, status, noble character, and knowledge of astronomy, science, and medicine—came to see Him from the East. They observed the star and arrived in Jerusalem asking, "Where is He who has been born King of the Jews? For we have seen His star in the East and have come to worship Him." These wise men had studied the prophecy of Balaam from the book of Numbers, along with other prophets, and had knowledge of the stars.

The Spirit of God called them from their homeland, and they traveled by camel or horse, journeying only at night, to find Jesus. Upon seeing the star, they followed it to Jerusalem. They assumed that if they, as foreigners, had discovered the birth of the Savior, the Israelites would surely know much about it. However, many of the Israelites were spiritually backslidden and unaware of what was happening. God can bypass someone who appears religious and instead reach a humble person willing to listen, even if they seem irreligious. Nevertheless, God gave those who were asked a chance to reflect and investigate the truth of the matter.

The wise men found the news of the Savior's birth to be incredibly joyful and were surprised that it caused fear among the Jews. Their king, Herod—an elderly ruler—was disturbed when he heard of a king greater than himself who might dethrone him. Even before Jesus could walk, He was already sought after as a suspect. This shows that Jesus' life was far more difficult than ours.

Herod gathered all the chief priests and scribes and inquired where Christ was to be born. They told him, based on Scripture, that it was in Bethlehem of Judea. The prophet Micah had written: "But you, Bethlehem, in the land of Judah, are by no means least among the rulers of Judah; for out of you will come a Ruler who will shepherd My people Israel." The prophecies of Daniel 8 and 9 clearly stated the year He would be born, be baptized, and die.

The Jews had driven out the Spirit of God from advising them, making them blind to this great event. Although Bethlehem was only 12 km (about 7 miles) from Jerusalem, they neither went nor investigated the wise men's claims, continuing instead to show clear indifference. They were not ignorant of Scripture and knew the prophecies of the Messiah. A little research with an open heart would have revealed the truth to them, but the Holy Spirit was absent from their lives. Even today, we must be cautious—if the Spirit of God departs from a church, no one may notice. Church activities such as preaching, social services, or singing may continue as usual without His presence.

Thousands of angels sang in Bethlehem; it is likely that many heard those sweet songs that night. It is hard to believe the angels' singing was a secret; they must have been singing to people, not just to heaven. The Jews studied the Scriptures, but their learning led to destruction because they sought to appear righteous while their intentions and thoughts were evil.

Herod secretly called the wise men to inquire when exactly they had seen the star. They told him, and he calculated the time. Then he sent them to Bethlehem, saying, "Go and search carefully for the child. When you find Him, report to me so that I too may go and worship Him." This was a lie—his real intention was to kill Jesus, fearing that He would overthrow him.

Poor Herod did not realize that Jesus was the King of kings who humbled Himself to be born as a human to save him and all of us from our sins forever. Jesus was not a political ruler or a human government leader. While Herod thought about his small kingdom, Jesus' reign extended over billions of stars and planets. Herod was known for his cruelty, even killing his own children out of jealousy. It is said that Emperor Augustus once remarked that it was safer to be Herod's pig than his son.

After hearing the king, the wise men continued their journey, and the star they had seen in the East went before them until it stopped over the place where the child was. Upon seeing the star, they rejoiced with exceedingly great joy. When they entered the house, they saw the child with Mary His mother, and they bowed down and worshiped Him. The King of kings had no guards, soldiers, or attendants. Mary and Joseph were amazed. The wise men opened their treasures and presented gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh—valuable items in those days. Although the Bible does not specify their number, it mentions three types of gifts.

The wise men had traveled for a long time, yet they still had gifts. They feared God and prayed to see the Messiah, likely having studied the prophecy of Daniel 9. After being warned by the Holy Spirit in a dream, they did not return to Herod but went home by another route. Even today, wise people still seek Jesus and offer Him gifts. This child was the promised Messiah—Moses called Him "I AM," David called Him the "Morning Star," and other prophets called Him the "Hope of All Generations." Jesus is the hope of all humanity, regardless of denomination, for all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God. We all need a Savior.

Often, we focus on the history of Jesus and forget to speak about His mission to serve the poor, the suffering, and the afflicted. Jesus was willing to help the needy, and today, we have the same responsibility. Love is the prevailing theme of God's kingdom. The mystery of God's love in saving humanity will be discussed by angels for eternity, and we will sing about it forever as we continue learning about His life and the salvation He provided. In Jesus, we see that God's greatest joy and glory is in giving.

After the wise men departed, an angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream, instructing him to take the child and His mother and flee to Egypt, staying there until further notice because Herod sought to kill the child. Joseph, Mary, and baby Jesus traveled to Egypt—a journey of about 300 km (186 miles) by donkey. The royal gifts from the wise men likely provided financial support during their time in Egypt, where historians suggest they stayed for about three years.

When Herod realized he had been outwitted by the wise men, he became furious and ordered the massacre of all male children under two years old in Bethlehem and its surrounding areas, fulfilling the prophecy of Jeremiah: "A voice is heard in Ramah, weeping and great mourning, Rachel weeping for her children and refusing to be comforted, because they are no more."

After Herod's death, an angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph again, instructing him to return to Israel. Hearing that Herod's son Archelaus was ruling in Judea, Joseph feared going there. Warned again in a dream, he traveled to Galilee and settled in Nazareth, fulfilling the prophecy that Jesus would be called a Nazarene. Despite Satan's attempts to destroy Him, Jesus triumphed.

The story of the wise men teaches us how to respond to Jesus. There are three ways to treat Him: reject Him, worship Him, or show indifference. Being a church member is good, but it does not guarantee a right relationship with God. We each have the freedom to choose how we treat the King of the Jews, whom we now know as the King of kings, Jesus the Messiah.

Pray Always – "Pray without ceasing;" this means maintaining a spirit of prayer at all times, preparing for the return of your Lord.

Questions:

1. Who visited the child Jesus with gifts?

2. Why was Herod afraid of Jesus' birth?

3. Where did Herod seek information about the Messiah's birth?

4. What did Herod tell the wise men?

5. Why is it difficult to leave a kingdom and be born in a stable?

6. How were the wise men's gifts used?

7. If angels sang to announce the good news, should we not also sing in church when instructed?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Matthew 2:1-2.

[1, 2] Now after Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of King Herod, behold, wise men from the East came to Jerusalem, saying, Where is He who has been born King of the Jews? For we saw His star in the East and have come to worship Him.

Prayer: Be exalted, O King, in our lives today. Help us to be like the wise men, people of wisdom who worship You, for You are worthy, our Creator and Redeemer. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Act out the journey of the wise men and how they met the people of Jerusalem. Then sing a song with the message of the angels.

Song of Praise Night (Silent Night)

1. Night of praise, of peace and light,
When was born the holy and good Son,
The Son is God, the Son is God.

2. Night of praise, shepherds in the valley,
Light terrified them, angels sang,
A Son is born, a Son is born.

3. Night of praise, grace and peace,
Love and redemption have reached all,
Through Messiah Jesus, through Messiah Jesus.

DAY 196 (July 14)

TOPIC: Jesus Blessed in the Temple at 40 Days Old

(Luke 2)

Jesus' parents took Him to the temple when He was eight days old. His blessing occurred before the visit of the Wise Men because His parents would not have returned to Jerusalem to present themselves before Herod and risk being killed. The shepherds who went to see baby Jesus spread the word about what had been told to them concerning the child. Everyone who heard it was amazed at what the shepherds said, but Mary treasured all these things and pondered them in her heart. The shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all they had heard and seen, which was just as they had been told.

When eight days were completed, Jesus was circumcised, and He was given the name Jesus, the name the angel had given Him before He was conceived. After the days of their purification according to the Law of Moses were fulfilled—40 days for a male child—they went to Jerusalem to present Him to the Lord. As it is written in the Law of the Lord, every firstborn male shall be called holy to the Lord. Being poor, they offered a pair of doves as a sacrifice, as prescribed by the Law. Those who were wealthier would have offered a lamb. The priest performed his duty without realizing who this child was—he likely thought the Messiah could not come from such humble parents.

People expected the Messiah to be wealthy and powerful, capable of removing all their hardships. The tradition of offering a thanksgiving sacrifice for a child's birth or birthday remains meaningful today. Modern practices imported from Western culture—such as extravagant spending or indulging in selfish celebrations—are not spiritually uplifting for those who fear God.

In Jerusalem, there was a man named Simeon, who was righteous and devout, waiting for the consolation of Israel. The Holy Spirit was upon him, and it had been revealed to him by the Holy Spirit that he would not die before he had seen the Lord's Christ. Led by the Spirit, Simeon entered the temple. When the parents brought in the child Jesus to perform the custom of the Law, Simeon took Him in his arms and praised God, saying:

"Lord, now you are letting your servant depart in peace,
according to your word;
for my eyes have seen your salvation,
which you have prepared before the face of all peoples:
A light to bring revelation to the Gentiles, and the glory of your people Israel."

Joseph and Mary marveled at what was said about Jesus. Then Simeon blessed them and said to Mary, His mother:

"Behold, this child is appointed for the fall and rising of many in Israel, and for a sign that will be spoken against—so that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed.
And a sword will pierce your own soul also."

This prophecy meant that many would accept the Messiah while others would reject Him. Their rejection would reveal their spiritual condition, leading to their downfall. It was not God who condemned them, but their own response to Jesus determined their fate. This prophecy came true, as many religious leaders like the Pharisees rejected Jesus, while others accepted Him and rose spiritually.

When Mary heard Simeon's words about a sword piercing her soul, she did not fully understand. But as she reflected on his message over the years, she found comfort. She witnessed the fulfillment of this prophecy throughout Jesus' life—hearing people speak against Him, wondering, and even doubting at times, especially when she saw Him on the cross. Simeon's message prepared her heart for the sorrow she would face. Many in those days did not understand that the Messiah would suffer and live a life of sorrow for humanity's sake.

From birth to death on the cross, Jesus' life was selfless. Mary heard many hurtful things said about her Son. Some said, "Your child prays all night and teaches people without even eating," while others claimed, "Your Son has a demon." Even the Pharisees, who should have known better, caused her deep sorrow with their accusations. Today, we must also be careful with our words—harsh speech can deeply wound others and lead to rejection.

The hurtful words did not come from religious leaders alone—they also came from Jesus' relatives, friends, and even family members. This pain was especially sharp when those closest to Him rejected Him. Mary may have been tempted to align herself with the religious leaders to ease the pressure on herself and her Son.

Sometimes, family can become a source of pain rather than support. To relieve His mother's sorrow, Jesus often spent time with others, like Lazarus and his sisters, where He could pray freely. Even today, some children face rejection and hostility because of their faith. They can find comfort in Jesus, who is closer to us than any earthly relative. We may never fully comprehend His love, but we know it is real, and we can share that love with others.

While some in the temple thought it was just another ordinary day and continued their routines, those who opened their hearts—like Simeon and Anna—recognized the miracle before them. This still happens today. Mere knowledge of the Scriptures is not enough; we must live out the Word of God.

Also in the temple was a prophetess named Anna, the daughter of Phanuel, from the tribe of Asher. She was 84 years old. After seven years of marriage, her husband had died, and she had lived as a widow for many years. She never left the temple but worshiped night and day with fasting and prayer. At that very moment, she came forward and gave thanks to God and spoke about the child to all who were looking forward to the redemption of Jerusalem.

After completing everything required by the Law of the Lord, Joseph and Mary returned to Galilee, to their hometown of Nazareth.

Two humble and faithful elders recognized the Messiah, while the religious leaders of Israel remained blind to the miracle unfolding before them. Today, many religious leaders speak of the historical Jesus while neglecting His call to serve the poor and suffering. True followers of Christ must live selflessly and care for those in need, reflecting His mission to uplift the spiritually and physically impoverished.

Jesus grew and became strong, filled with wisdom, and the grace of God was upon Him. This indicates His growth mentally, physically, spiritually, and socially. During this time, He fled to Egypt to escape Herod's threats, becoming a refugee. Nazareth, the town where He grew up, was despised—Nathaniel even asked, “Can anything good come from Nazareth?”

Many people blame their bad behavior on their upbringing, but Jesus never did. He knew that His heavenly Father had a purpose for Him, and He lived to fulfill that purpose. The 30 years He spent with His parents shaped the fragrance of His ministry to God.

Today, do not despise your life at home—it forms the foundation of your character. We should not envy others’ wealth or status, thinking life would be better if we had been born into a different family.

The Need for Persistent Prayer
Now more than ever, there is a need for constant prayer. Christ commands us, “Pray without ceasing.” Keep your mind fixed on God, the source of all strength and success.

Questions:

1. Why did the priest who blessed Jesus not recognize Him as the Messiah?

2. Why was Jesus taken to Egypt?

3. What did Simeon say to Mary?

4. Who was the prophetess Anna?

5. What reputation did Nazareth have?

6. In what areas did Jesus grow?

7. Why did Simeon call Jesus a light for the Gentiles and not just for Israel?

8. Why did Simeon say Jesus was the consolation of Israel?

9. What does the name “Jesus” mean?

May God bless you, child and youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Luke 2:29-33.

[29-33] Now, Lord, You let Your servant depart in peace, according to Your word; for my eyes have seen Your salvation, which You have prepared before the face of all people; a light for revelation to the Gentiles, and the glory of Your people Israel. And His father and mother marveled at those things which were spoken of Him.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for Your love for all humankind. We see Your love in Simeon and Anna, in giving them the joy of seeing the Messiah with their own eyes. We also pray that we may see You in our lives. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A play about the Blessing of Jesus on the 40th day. Important points:
- Obedience of Mary and Joseph: Bringing the infant Jesus into the Temple to fulfill the Law of Moses, which required the firstborn male child to be consecrated and the mother to be purified.

- Sacrifice: Because they were poor, they offered two doves or two young pigeons, as prescribed for those who could not afford a lamb.

- Prophecy of Simeon: An elderly, devout man, guided by the Holy Spirit into the Temple. He recognized Jesus as the promised Messiah, thanked God for allowing him to see the Savior, and prophesied that Jesus would be a light for the Gentiles and cause the fall and rising of many in Israel.

- Testimony of Anna: A prophetess who constantly worshiped in the Temple. She saw Jesus, gave thanks to God, and told others about Him.

DAY 197 (July 15)

TOPIC: Jesus in the Temple at Age 12

(Luke 2)

The Bible does not say much about the childhood of Jesus, or Isa son of Mary, for reasons we do not know. God chose to tell us only a little about Jesus' childhood. However, He returned from Egypt when He was under five years old and lived at home until He was thirty. Perhaps He spoke Hebrew, Egyptian, Greek, or Latin! His father was a carpenter, so He likely helped with household work. It is likely that His mother and father taught Him to read at home and about the prophecies, and He became aware that He was the promised Messiah. Both Mary and Joseph came from royal lineage, and if it were not for the Babylonian captivity, they would have been in the kingdom, but circumstances changed, and they became ordinary people.

In those days, most people did not have a Bible, but they attended the synagogue twice a week. It must have been a remarkable life—Mary and Joseph raising the Son of God. We would love to know the children He played with and the games they played. In those days, boys memorized the entire Old Testament, which included the Torah (the books of Moses), the Prophets, and the Psalms. The Scriptures were written on long scrolls, like rolled mats, which were unrolled and rolled back again.

Every year, Jesus' parents would go to Jerusalem, as all Jews did, to celebrate the Passover, the Feast of Tabernacles, and Pentecost at the Temple on Mount Moriah, which was a few days' walk on foot. When Jesus turned twelve—the age that marked the transition from childhood to young adulthood in their culture—He also went up to Jerusalem for the Passover, as was customary. They traveled in groups for safety against robbers. As they walked, they discussed the meaning of the feast and how their ancestors were freed from Egypt by putting the blood of a lamb on their doorposts—a symbol pointing to the Messiah, the true Passover Lamb. Psalms 120 to 134 were sung as they ascended the hills toward Jerusalem. You should read and sing them too!

Jesus began to understand that He was the Lamb of God who would take away the sins of the world. He started to realize His mission more deeply. After the festival, Mary and Joseph returned home, thinking that Jesus was with the group. But Jesus had stayed behind in Jerusalem. They likely assumed He was among His peers—perhaps relatives or friends—as it was normal in their community for twelve-year-olds to walk and talk with others in the caravan.

If it were today, when people travel together on buses, it would be easier to know who is missing. The busy activities of packing luggage, feeding animals, saying goodbye, and chatting with friends prevented them from realizing Jesus was not among them. Mary and Joseph forgot Him and continued their journey home. When they realized He was missing, they spent a whole day searching for Him among their relatives and friends. Not finding Him, they decided to return to Jerusalem, searching for Him along the way. They feared He might be in danger or kidnapped by someone with bad intentions, as happens today. It was a long journey back to their camp, and they likely rested along the way. It took them three days to find Jesus.

His parents were anxious—they had lost the child entrusted to them from heaven. They may have worried that King Herod, who had once sought to kill Jesus as a baby, had succeeded through his agents.

Many parents today can relate to the distress Mary and Joseph felt when they lost their child. However, some parents abandon their children, leaving them to fend for themselves. Such parents should be cautious because children are a gift from God, and one day, God will ask, “Where is the child I gave you?” Even when parents are doing God’s work, their first missionary responsibility is to their own children.

Even today, many parents neglect their children due to being too busy, causing their children to be raised by neighbors, television, iPods, technology, or domestic workers. Worse still, people lose Jesus through bad friends, worldly distractions, gossip, social media, fashion, materialism, or other earthly worries. Parents, let us pray for one another!

Mary and Joseph finally found Jesus in the temple, sitting among the doctors of theology, the great religious teachers or rabbis, listening to them and asking questions. Everyone who heard Him was amazed at His understanding and the answers He gave. They were astonished because they knew He had not attended any prestigious schools. You too may not attend the nation's most famous schools, but if you put Jesus first, you are already in the world's best schools.

When asked questions about the Law, the Messiah, and other topics, He answered clearly and wisely. They had never seen a child like Him—and truly, there had never been one like Him!

Some Jews attended these festivals as mere tradition, without reflecting on their deeper meaning. But for Jesus, these feasts had great significance—they pointed directly to Him. As He witnessed the daily sacrifices, He gradually understood the mission ahead: to save humanity.

He answered the questions humbly, quoting the Scriptures and giving insights that amazed the teachers. They may have asked where He was born, and when He answered "Bethlehem," they might have discussed whether there was a prophecy about the Messiah being born there. Their conversations were so engaging that they may have lost track of time, spending three days with Him—perhaps sharing meals and caring for Him. We do not know if they even slept during those three days! If these religious leaders had taken His words seriously, they would have recognized Him as their Savior when He began His ministry.

When Mary and Joseph found Jesus, they were amazed to see Him surrounded by people. Mary approached Him and said, "Son, why have you treated us this way? Your father and I have been anxiously searching for you." Jesus answered, "Why were you searching for me? Didn't you know I had to be in my Father's house to learn what He wants me to do?" His parents did not understand His response. Perhaps they wondered if He would soon leave them to be with His Father in heaven. After His resurrection, they finally understood His words, although they still sometimes struggled with doubt.

Even today, the church is the house of the Lord. Jesus loved being in the temple. We should not avoid going to church or delay our arrival, and when we are there, we should be respectful and not play around. If children can learn complex subjects in school, they can also understand God's Word in church.

Some people think they can learn the Word of God better at home, but this is not true. Iron sharpens iron, and staying home often leads to spiritual laziness. Sometimes, people visit us on Sabbath, distracting us from attending church. This can lead to neglecting prayer and eventually falling into worldly habits.

A child of God should love being in the Lord's house. Studying God's Word is the most important work of our heavenly Father. Jesus' parents did not fully understand what He meant when He spoke of His Father's house. But despite being God, Jesus returned to Nazareth with His parents and obeyed them. Mary treasured all these things in her heart.
Prayer is needed to stand firm in unpopular convictions—it takes moral courage, determination, perseverance, and much prayer to stay on the right path. We thank God that we can come to Christ, just as the poor and needy did when they sought Him in the temple.

Questions:

1. What did Simeon say?

2. Who was Anna?

3. Why didn't others recognize the birth of the Messiah?

4. What did Mary say to Jesus when she found Him after three days?

5. How did Jesus respond?

6. Why did Jesus obey His parents?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Luke 2:49-51.

[49-51] When they saw Him, they were amazed, and His mother said to Him, Son, why have You treated us this way? Look, Your father and I have been anxiously searching for You. He said to them, Why were you searching for Me? Did you not know that I must be in My Father's house? But they did not understand what He said to them.

Prayer: Our Father in heaven, hallowed be Your Name. Help us to be in Your house. Thank You for our daily needs. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Teach about the Bible story of Jesus in the Temple or the concept of God's dwelling place. Loving to be in His house, and things to keep in mind.

DAY 198 (July 16)

TOPIC: The Childhood of Jesus and John the Baptist

(Luke 3, Matthew 3, and Mark 1)

The Bible is silent about the childhood of Jesus. If someone could find five pages and at least one picture of Jesus' childhood, they would sell it for millions of dollars today! In His wisdom, God decided that the details of Jesus' childhood should not be written. Many have added their own words, but the Bible remains silent. However, we are told that He obeyed His parents, helping His father with carpentry work and His mother with household chores. Like many children of that time, He inherited His father Joseph's carpentry work, and after Joseph's death, He helped His mother by providing for the family. Mary taught Jesus the Scriptures daily. They studied the prophecies about the Messiah and the work He would do. This mother took time to show her child the plants, flowers, and animals He Himself had created thousands of years before. He must have been a child that brought much joy to His parents because He was obedient and never sinned. He did not argue when His parents sent Him on errands or asked Him to do something. He was an agreeable child.

He grew spiritually, physically, socially, and intellectually, thinking of others rather than being self-centered. He was gentle and compassionate. He lived to bless others, though He faced fierce struggles against the powers of darkness, as Satan sought to trap and destroy Him.

He lived a simple, hardworking life and was never idle, which helped protect Him from the devil's temptations because an idle mind is the devil's workshop. He did not use His divine power to make life easier for Himself. He did not come down from the cross to escape suffering—no! This teaches us, as children, to be diligent workers. You do not need extraordinary talent to do good work; a child needs the discipline to love hard work.

Jesus lived among poor people all His life, and He Himself was poor, yet He cared for both the rich and the poor. A simple, quiet life is important. The noise and chaos of city life can make a child restless, fearful, anxious, or develop bad habits. Many people are amazed by the three and a half years of Jesus' public ministry, but the foundation was laid during the thirty years He spent at home. It was His childhood that shaped Him into the man He became.

He learned patience. He did not separate Himself from people or live in seclusion in a monastery. He was always ready to serve others, which annoyed many because His behavior exposed their faults. However, many people loved to be near Him because He did not fight for His rights or quarrel with others.

Jesus continued to learn about Himself both as a human and as God—a mystery beyond human understanding. He communicated with His Heavenly Father about His thoughts, knowledge, and feelings. His goal was to fulfill the work God had given Him. He avoided all forms of evil—such as drinking alcohol, laziness, lying, and the sinful behaviors mentioned in Galatians 5. He planned His time carefully—when to do carpentry work and when to begin preaching—and He did everything with excellence and joy. Work helps to shape the character of both children and adults in preparation for heaven.

Mary often reflected on His birth and everything she had witnessed, wondering in her heart whether it was a dream or reality.

In the fifteenth year of the reign of Emperor Tiberius, while Annas and Caiaphas were the high priests, the word of God came to John in the wilderness. He went throughout the Jordan region, preaching a baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sins. As the prophet Malachi had foretold, he was "a voice crying out in the wilderness: Prepare the way of the Lord, make His paths straight. Every valley shall be filled, and every mountain and hill made low; the crooked shall become straight, and the rough ways smooth; and all humanity will see the salvation of God." This is how he came to be known as John the Baptist.

John the Baptist was born for a special purpose—to prepare the way for the Messiah, calling people to repent of their sins and surrender their hearts to God to receive the salvation Jesus offered.

John lived a life of self-denial and discipline. He did not eat just anything; he was a Nazirite dedicated to God. He did not drink alcohol or any intoxicating beverages. His food was natural, unlike the processed foods people consume today. Even today, we should live simple, self-denying lives from childhood, like John the Baptist. We should avoid over-processing our food, which diminishes its value. The simple lifestyle of John the Baptist prepared him to serve people as he did.

His baptism was one of repentance, preparing people's hearts so they would be ready to receive the Messiah when He came. Even today, children and adults alike must prepare people to meet Jesus in the clouds at His second coming. John the Baptist is our example as we wait for Jesus and seek to prepare others. We must deny ourselves and live simple lives to effectively share the message with others.

Although John's father was a priest, and John could have followed the same path, the religious education of that time would not have prepared him for the work God called him to do. God took him to the wilderness to learn directly from Him. In the quietness of nature, John studied the Scriptures and learned from God's creation. City life often robs children of the quiet needed for spiritual growth and good character development.

Self-denial and temperance are essential if we want to be true followers of the Lord. God ensured that the lives of these two cousins—Jesus and John—did not intersect until the right time.

According to the prophecy of Daniel 9, the fifteenth year of Emperor Tiberius' reign marked the time for the Messiah to be anointed. This prophecy was given more than 600 years earlier—how amazing is God's plan! Check Daniel 9 to review this prophecy.

John's mother, Elizabeth, was a relative of Mary, the mother of Jesus. However, these two young men had never met because they lived far apart. John was taken to the wilderness to develop the character required for his great mission. When he arrived at the Jordan River to begin his ministry, he preached boldly and clearly, saying, "Repent, for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand."

John the Baptist was the prophet foretold by Malachi, likened to Elijah, who would prepare the way for the Messiah. Perhaps Mary and Jesus talked about their relationship with John and the message he was preaching to prepare the way for Jesus. They likely discussed baptism and how people were flocking to the Jordan River.

Prayers Needed to Enter Heaven
There is no such thing as entering the gates of heaven through self-indulgence, entertainment, foolishness, or selfishness. It requires constant vigilance and unceasing prayer. Spiritual watchfulness is the price of safety. Do not give Satan even a small foothold, or he will seize the opportunity to trap and destroy you.

Questions:

1. What does the Bible say about Jesus' childhood?

2. What work did Jesus do to support His family?

3. Why is work important for every child?

4. Why did John the Baptist live in the wilderness and eat simple foods?

5. What was the central message of John the Baptist's preaching?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Luke 3:2-6.

[2-6] … The word of God came to John… He went into all the region around the Jordan, preaching a baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sins, as it is written in the book of the words of Isaiah the prophet: The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare the way of the Lord, make His paths straight. Every valley shall be filled, every mountain and hill brought low; the crooked shall become straight, and the rough ways smooth; and all mankind shall see the salvation of God.

Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father for all good things. We know that even today You say to us, “This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.” Thank You for loving us to the very end. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.
Activity: One student preaches the words of John the Baptist, and the others respond to the call. Refer to Luke 3:6-18.

DAY 199 – (July 17)

TOPIC: Jesus is Anointed through Baptism in the Jordan River

(John 3, Mark 1, Luke 3)

One day, Jesus said goodbye to His family; they embraced each other as they parted ways, including His mother. Being a good Son, Jesus must have made arrangements to leave His mother well cared for, as it appears that Joseph had already passed away. The time had come—the time foretold since the foundation of the world. Would He abandon the mission that brought Him and avoid the cross? No! Jesus moved forward without turning back or deviating from that plan.

John was 30 years old when he began his ministry, and Jesus was also 30 years old—though John was six months older. They were cousins but had never met. During those days, people were spreading the news that a prophet had arisen and was preaching, delivering the word of God. It had been 400 years of silence without a prophet since the last prophet of the Old Testament had spoken, so people flocked to hear John. They were amazed because he did not merely read the Scriptures—he told them what God was directly revealing to him.

He warned them not to be proud of their good deeds or religious status because God had the power to raise up faithful believers from the stones and did not need Abraham's descendants. True repentance means being sorrowful for sins, confessing them to God, and making amends with those we have wronged. The people did not become angry when he spoke these truths—not even Herod.

The greatest battle is to deny oneself, stop thinking only of oneself, and prioritize others and God. To completely surrender to God and abandon evil ways or selfish desires is the secret to becoming a person of God. We should not think that others are worse sinners than we are, but rather examine and repent of our own faults.

John, the son of Zechariah, did not dress like ordinary people. Instead, he wore garments made of camel's hair with a leather belt around his waist, and his food was locusts and wild honey. People from Jerusalem, Judea, and all the regions around the Jordan went to him, confessing their sins and being baptized in the Jordan River. John preferred a place with plenty of water so he could fully immerse those he baptized—the word "baptism" comes from the Greek word meaning "to immerse."

John saw many Pharisees and Sadducees coming to be baptized. These were two religious and political groups with differing beliefs. The Pharisees believed in angels, resurrection, and the entire Scriptures, while the Sadducees did not believe in angels or the resurrection. To be a Sadducee was essentially to lack belief in the heavenly God because, without the resurrection, there is no hope or faith in the risen Jesus.

The Pharisees knew the Scriptures better than anyone but did not practice what they preached. Instead, they added burdensome rules, making the worship of God a heavy burden. When John saw these two groups, he said, "You brood of vipers! Who warned you to flee from the coming wrath? Produce fruit in keeping with repentance." In other words, they needed to confess their sins and do good works—not rely on their ancestry as descendants of Abraham. John warned them that God could raise children for Abraham from the stones if He wished.

Today, we might say that no one should boast about belonging to a particular denomination because God can raise faithful believers from anywhere. The famous preacher, who was on everyone's lips, declared, "The axe is already at the root of the trees, and every tree that does not bear good fruit will be cut down and thrown into the fire." This means that those who continue in sin and wickedness will face judgment and punishment rather than eternal life.

Some wondered if John himself might be the Messiah because his preaching was so powerful and compelling. But John told them, "I baptize you with water for repentance, but after me comes One who is more powerful than I, whose sandals I am not worthy to carry. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire." He explained that the Messiah would come with authority to gather the righteous into His kingdom while destroying the wicked like chaff burned in an unquenchable fire.

At that time, Jesus came from Galilee to the Jordan River to be baptized by John. Although they had never met, Jesus had known John from the beginning—after all, Jesus was in heaven when the angel announced John's birth to his father, Zechariah. When John saw Jesus approaching, the Holy Spirit revealed to him that this was the Messiah. Shocked, John tried to prevent Jesus, saying, "I need to be baptized by You, and do You come to me?"

But Jesus replied, "Let it be so now; it is proper for us to fulfill all righteousness." Jesus did not need baptism for repentance because He was sinless. However, He was baptized to give us an example to follow. So, John agreed and baptized Him.

Today, many people are baptized around the age of ten, which can be appropriate if they have been taught and understand salvation. Jesus affirmed that as long as people learn and understand, they should be baptized in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit.

When Jesus came up out of the water, He knelt and prayed. At that moment, the heavens opened, and the Spirit of God descended like a dove and rested on Him. Then a voice from heaven said, "This is My Son, whom I love; with Him, I am well pleased."

Jesus' baptism was His anointing to begin His ministry as the Messiah. Even today, when we are baptized, it is important to pray for the Holy Spirit. Baptism symbolizes leaving behind an old life and beginning a new life in Christ. It is a public declaration that we belong to God.

In the past, Jews observed circumcision as a sign of covenant, but now we have water baptism and the baptism of the Holy Spirit. This signifies leaving our sinful ways behind and allowing our hearts and minds to be filled with the Holy Spirit, who enables us to walk and live in fellowship with God. The Bible says that baptism represents dying to our old selves and rising to a new life in Christ.

The Lord is One, baptism is one, and the faith is one. Jesus' baptism was a public declaration that the Messiah had arrived and that His ministry had begun. Although He had no sin, He was baptized to fulfill the Scriptures and to set an example for us. He started His ministry among sinners being baptized in the Jordan River and finished it between two criminals on the cross.

John's message applies to us today—whether our sins are pride, disobedience, or breaking the law, we all need to repent, be baptized, and start a new life. Merely feeling sorry for our sins is not enough—we must repent and build a relationship with Jesus.

Jesus did not need baptism for His own sake, but He did it to fulfill the Scriptures and give us a model to follow. Prayer helps us remain faithful. Without constant prayer and vigilance, we risk becoming careless, indifferent, and straying from the right path. The enemy is always trying to block or hinder our access to the throne of grace, preventing us from receiving the mercy and strength we need to resist temptation.

Questions:

1. What happened when Jesus was baptized?
2. What did John eat and wear?
3. How many types of baptism are there?
4. What does baptism mean?
5. When should someone be baptized?
6. How did John know that Jesus was the Messiah?
7. Why did John hesitate to baptize Jesus?
8. What did the voice from heaven say?
9. Why is it important to know that God does not tempt us, but Satan does?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Mark 1:14-15.

[14,15] … Jesus went into Galilee, proclaiming the Good News of God, saying, The time has come, and the Kingdom of God is near. Repent and believe the Good News!

Prayer: Our Father in heaven, thank You for the good news to us. Help us to share this news with others, for Your kingdom is near. We repent of our sins and believe the Good News. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Emphasize to the children that even today God says to each one of them, “You are My beloved child, in whom I am well pleased.” And that He loves us. Teach from those verses, and you may also do a drama activity.

DAY 200 (July 18)

TOPIC: Jesus is Tempted by Satan in the Wilderness

(Luke 4, Matthew 4)

People were being baptized, intending to change and follow God's ways. They understood what was happening, and the message being preached touched their hearts. They asked John the Baptist, "What should we do then?" He answered them to be compassionate; "Anyone who has two tunics should share with the one who has none, and anyone who has food should do the same."

Even the tax collectors came and asked him, "Teacher, what should we do?" He told them, "Don't collect more than you are authorized to." Soldiers also came and asked, "What about us, what should we do?" He told them, "Do not extort money, do not accuse people falsely, and be content with your wages."

Even today, we await the second coming of Jesus on the clouds. We cannot remain silent. We must tell people to prepare for eternal life by helping those in need and avoiding the love of money, for the root of all evil is the love of money. Complaining when God has blessed us or being envious because someone has more than us is also a sin. Godliness with contentment is great gain.

John preached to people with many other warnings. He rebuked King Herod, who was from his lineage, for taking his brother Philip's wife, Herodias. This angered Herod, who decided to imprison John the Baptist.

After Jesus was baptized and the Holy Spirit descended on Him, He returned from the Jordan River and was led by the Spirit into the wilderness for 40 days. This was a place without people or shops, and He fasted without eating anything, day and night. He spent this time reflecting and planning the work of saving humanity.

Fasting is important, starting from a certain age and if you do not have health issues like diabetes or stomach ulcers. You can skip one or two meals a day. Many people feel very hungry when they skip even one day without eating. Children around 12 years old should not fast for more than a day but can reduce their meals.

Adults are the ones who should fast for 40 days while drinking fruit juices, vegetable juices, and water. Water is essential during fasting because it helps cleanse the body. It is recommended that people avoid eating at night while fasting because it harms the body when one sleeps with a full stomach.

Others who were empowered by the Spirit of God to fast for 40 days include Elijah, Paul, and Moses. At the end of Jesus' fasting, when He was weak and hungry, the devil appeared to tempt Him, commanding Him—just as he does to us through our thoughts every day. The difference here was that Satan appeared to Jesus physically.

Indeed, God is Love, for He allowed His Son to face the same fierce struggles that every human being encounters daily. Jesus faced the risk of failure and losing eternal life just like us if He had forgotten where He came from, His mission, and His identity. We also risk losing eternal life when we forget that we are a holy nation, a royal priesthood, a people belonging to God, called to declare His praises. If we forget these truths, we return to darkness and lose eternal life.

Jesus knew this being—originally created as Lucifer or the morning star—who had lived with Him in heaven for many years. Satan is actually beautiful in appearance, contrary to the common depiction of him with horns and a terrifying face. He was created with extraordinary beauty, and many would not follow him if he looked as frightening as the pictures we see today.

Satan opened his mouth and said, "If you are the Son of God, command these stones to become bread."

This is not a temptation for us because even if we sat on a pile of stones all day, we couldn't turn them into bread. But Jesus could easily do it without anyone knowing how. However, Jesus knew that His divine power was not for His personal benefit but for helping others. We later see Him feeding more than 5,000 people.

Moreover, Jesus was already God and did not need to prove it to anyone, especially Satan. Jesus responded, "It is written: Man shall not live on bread alone, but on every word that comes from the mouth of God."

Then Satan took Jesus to the holy city, Jerusalem, and set Him on the pinnacle of the temple. He said, "If you are the Son of God, throw yourself down. For it is written: 'He will command His angels concerning you, and they will lift you up in their hands, so that you will not strike your foot against a stone.'"

Satan knows the Scriptures and can quote them better than any human, with over 6,000 years of experience. Here, he quoted Psalm 91 but twisted its meaning to suit his agenda. Every time Jesus quoted Scripture, Satan followed with his own deceptive interpretation.

It is important to remember that knowing the Scriptures is not enough if our hearts do not change to obey Jesus. Jesus knew that what Satan wanted was not God's will. There is no need to put oneself in danger without a valid reason. Jesus came to save people through love, not through magic or stunts. Jesus responded, "It is written: Do not put the Lord your God to the test."

Finally, Satan took Jesus to a very high mountain—possibly higher than Mount Kilimanjaro—and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world, such as Tanzania, Kenya, the United States, Japan, and Australia, along with their splendor. He said, "All this I will give you if you bow down and worship me."

Jesus replied, "Away from me, Satan! For it is written: Worship the Lord your God, and serve Him only."

We learn that if we fully commit to God, we can also drive Satan away. Satan is stronger than us if we rely on our own strength, so we are advised to stand behind Jesus.

After the third temptation, Satan left Jesus temporarily, but he continued to follow Him throughout His life. Jesus remained victorious.

Pray for the Holy Spirit – If we want to know Christ better, we must pray for the Holy Spirit, just as the apostles did when the Spirit was poured out on them. We need the baptism of the Holy Spirit because we are not safe for even a single hour without obeying God's Word.

Questions:

1. Who asked John the Baptist questions?

2. How was Jesus different from other humans?

3. What were the three temptations Jesus faced?

4. How did Jesus respond to the devil's temptations?

5. What does this lesson teach you?

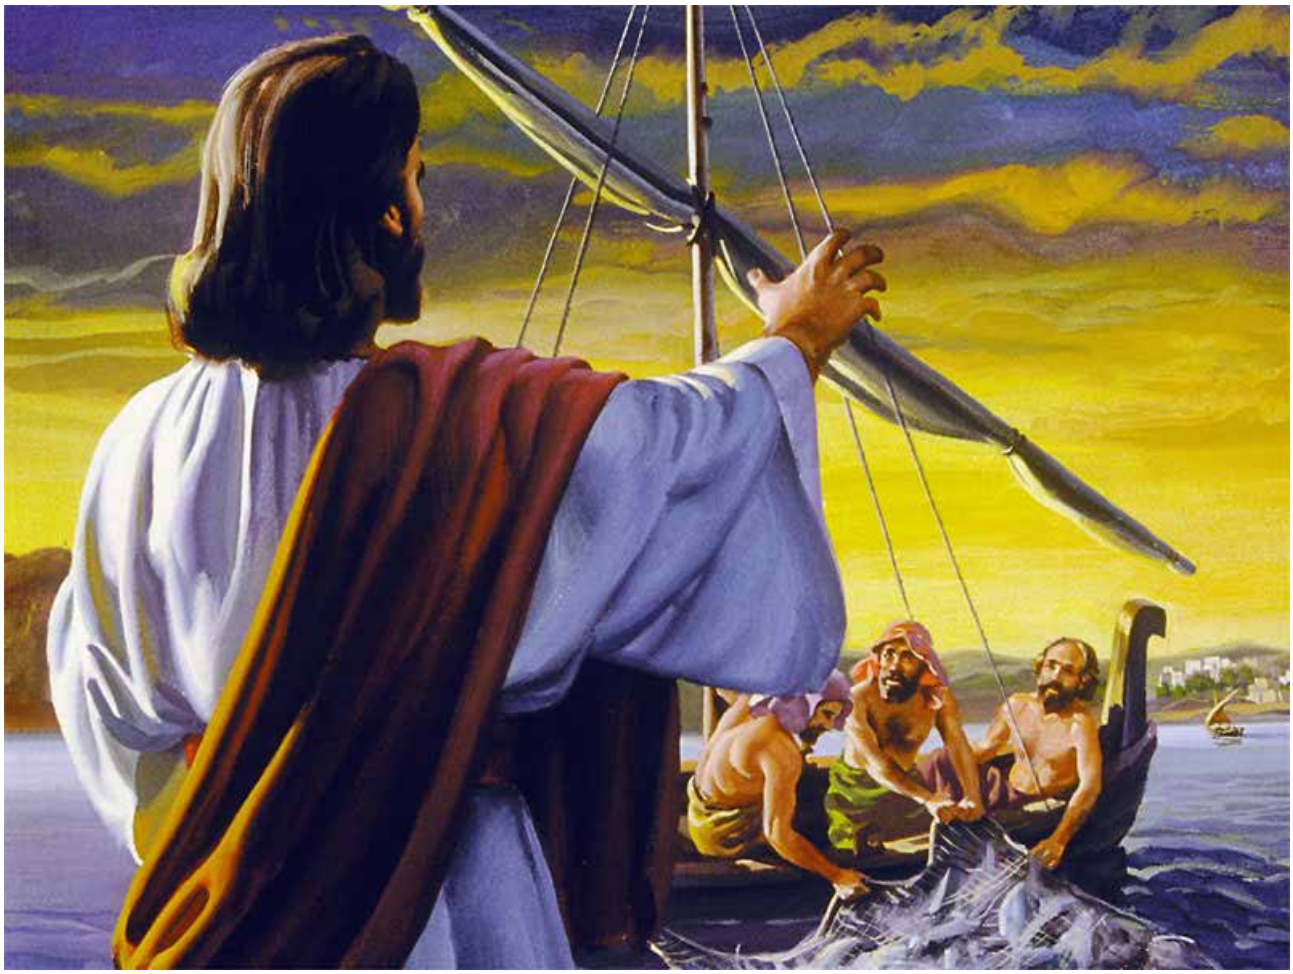
6. What should you do when tempted?

7. How did the Holy Spirit appear at Jesus' baptism?

May God bless you, child and youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Matthew 4:3-4.

[3,4] The tempter came to Him and said, If You are the Son of God, command these stones to become bread. But He answered, It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that comes from the mouth of God.



Prayer: Thank You because You are the Bread of Life. Help us to live by every Word that comes from Your mouth. Help us to be generous to those without food and not to be greedy.

Activity: Teach children not to be greedy about food. Show good manners by sharing your food with others and eating moderately. Create a consistent meal routine. Teach your children about nutrition, generosity, etc.

DAY 201 (July 19)

TOPIC: The Calling of the First Disciples

(1 John 1)

After fasting for 40 days and overcoming the devil's temptations, Jesus returned to His cousin, John the Baptist, at the Jordan River. He mingled with the people and did not perform any miracles at the Jordan. John was a prophet of God sent to testify about the Light—that is, to bear witness to Jesus so that all might believe in Him, for the world at that time did not recognize Him. Jesus came to His own, but His own did not receive Him. Yet, to all who received Him then and even today, He gave the right to become children of God. Isn't that a great blessing? By believing in His Name, we are born again—not by blood or flesh but as children of God. God sent Jesus to become flesh and dwell among us so that we could behold His glory—the glory of the One and Only Son who came from the Father, full of grace and truth.

Jesus walked around telling people that the Kingdom of God was near. He often withdrew from the crowds to pray, seeking quiet places for solitude and communication with God. He loved to pray on mountains, in gardens, and in other quiet places. He even prayed all night before choosing His disciples. The following day, as Jesus stood on the riverbank, John pointed at Him and declared loudly, “This is the One I spoke about when I said, ‘A man who comes after me has surpassed me because He was before me.’” From His fullness, we have all received grace upon grace. For the law was given through Moses, but grace and truth came through Jesus Christ. No one has ever seen God, but the One and Only Son, who is Himself God and is in the closest relationship with the Father, has made Him known.

John continued to testify when people were sent to ask him, “Who are you? Are you the Messiah? Are you Elijah?” He answered that he was “the voice of one calling in the wilderness, ‘Make straight the way for the Lord.’” People must have looked at Jesus repeatedly, moving closer to observe Him. The following day, John saw Jesus passing by again and said, “Look, the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world!” He told the people, “This is the One I meant when I said, ‘A man who comes after me has surpassed me because He was before me.’ I myself did not know Him, but the reason I came baptizing with water was that He might be revealed to Israel.”

John testified that he saw the Spirit of God come down from heaven like a dove and remain on Jesus. He explained that the One who sent him to baptize with water told him, “The man on whom you see the Spirit come down and remain is the One who will baptize with the Holy Spirit.” These were powerful words. The Jews understood them better than we might, as they were accustomed to offering lambs as sacrifices daily on the altar. They would slaughter the lambs, draining their blood, and then burn the lambs as offerings. This practice symbolized the ultimate sacrifice of Jesus, the Lamb of God. Without Jesus dying for our sins, we would still be lost in them. We thank God for the Lamb, for the wages of sin is death.

The next day, John was again with two of his disciples when he saw Jesus walking by. He said again, “Look, the Lamb of God!” Some people only saw a young man with a kind smile and a gentle nature, but they did not perceive anything beyond that. They wondered, “How can this young man take away the sins of the world?” However, John’s disciples were spiritually prepared because they had dedicated themselves to fearing and worshiping God. Today, when we hear these words, we understand how precious and life-saving they are. Upon hearing John’s words, two of his disciples left him and followed Jesus to speak with Him privately.

When Jesus turned and saw them following Him, He wanted to test whether they understood what they were doing or if they were simply following the crowd. He asked them, "What do you seek?" The disciples replied, "Rabbi, where are You staying?" ("Rabbi" means teacher.) Jesus said to them, "Come, and you will see." They went with Him and stayed with Him that day—it was around four in the afternoon. They heard extraordinary teachings—sweet, true, and life-giving words.

Andrew and John, two fishermen, had received John's baptism and were eager to learn more. That one day with Jesus was enough to open their eyes. Although Andrew is the first disciple mentioned and the first to follow Jesus, he seems to have been a quiet man. He is often described as Simon Peter's brother, even though he was the one who introduced Peter to Jesus. Everyone has unique gifts in the Lord's kingdom, and Andrew's gift was bringing people to Jesus. Have you ever asked yourself what your spiritual gifts are? There are questions you can answer to help you discover your gifts as you continue to seek the Lord! By the way, how many people fasted for 40 days in the Bible?

Jesus chose these fishermen—ordinary men by society's standards—but when they sat at Jesus' feet, they were no longer ordinary. Spending time with Jesus grants the greatest knowledge, transforming even the most humble people. Worldly knowledge, power, and authority have led many to abandon God or oppress others. The apostles entered a life of many challenges, and they often questioned whether the One they followed was truly God. They wondered why they endured hardships and lived in poverty while following Him. They even saw that their Master had no place to lay His head. But once they truly understood who He was, their doubts disappeared. After Jesus' resurrection, they did not return to school, seminaries, or business but devoted themselves fully to the mission He entrusted to them.

Education is valuable—hold on to it tightly. However, God knows that worldly education rarely leads people to salvation or obedience to Him. Higher education often fosters pride, causing many to misuse their talents and believe they are self-sufficient. Today, if you are in school, remember that the most important lesson is to know and obey Scripture. That is the foundation for elementary, secondary, and higher education.

Jesus came to accomplish the ultimate task—dying for our sins. From Adam's sin to the last sin ever committed, Jesus took it all upon Himself. He removes the sins of everyone in the world—every boy or girl who believes in Him. Beyond that, He breaks the power of sin, giving us the strength to resist temptation. Soon, sin will be defeated forever. Jesus did not hesitate, whether it was leaving His heavenly glory or continuing with the plan of salvation. Step by step, He moved forward until the day He was crucified. He did not come down from the cross because He wanted you and me to be saved.

Even today, many people have chosen to become disciples of Jesus and spread His message. Some have left good jobs, family, and friends to preach the gospel far away. Others have faced persecution at school or suffered loss because they follow Jesus. Yet, Jesus continues to call people today. He is seeking boys and girls who will become "fishers of men." God hears the prayers of all who seek Him in truth. He provides the strength we all need and fills our hearts with love, joy, peace, and holiness.

Questions:

1. Why did Jesus not need to prove to Satan that He was the Son of God?

2. What did Jesus tell His disciples about who He was?

3. Who takes away the sins of the world?

4. What answer did Jesus give when the disciples asked, "Rabbi, where are You staying?"

5. Describe the work of John the Baptist.

6. Do you know that even today, Jesus is calling you to be His disciple?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: John 1:14-15.

[14,15] The Word became flesh and dwelt among us; we beheld His glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth. John bore witness of Him and cried out, saying, This was He of whom I said, He who comes after me has surpassed me, for He was before me.

Prayer: Thank You our Father for becoming flesh, Emmanuel, God with us. We ask that Your example of prayer before doing anything may come into our daily lives. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: What is prayer? How do we pray? What does it mean to pray all night? Then let everyone pray. Let each one learn how to pray!

DAY 202 (July 20)

TOPIC: Calling the First Disciples

(John 1)

Andrew, the first disciple of Jesus, went to call his brother Simon Peter after hearing from his teacher, John, about Jesus. With excitement and joy, he told Simon, "We have found the Messiah." The Messiah means "The Anointed One" in Hebrew, which also refers to the King. In Greek, the Messiah is called Christ. Andrew brought Simon Peter to Jesus. Even today, we should bring our brothers, friends, and even our parents to Jesus. Let us not keep such joyful and life-changing news to ourselves.

When Jesus looked at Simon, He said, "You are Simon, son of John; you shall be called Cephas," which means Peter, or Rock. These two brothers, Andrew and Simon, were fishermen on the Sea of Galilee, using nets. When Jesus called them to follow Him, He said He would make them fishers of men. As they followed Jesus, they saw the sons of Zebedee—John and James—repairing their fishing nets in their father's boat. Jesus also called them, and they left their father and the boat to follow Him. Are you ready to follow Jesus today?

These disciples were very different in character, yet they were ordinary people. They did not hold university degrees or come from influential families. Jesus chose common people who were willing to learn at His feet. Even today, we should be humble and willing to learn so that we can be like our Teacher, Jesus.

We learn from the apostles that people do not need to be alike or agree on everything to work together. History shows that accepting Jesus and His Word has transformed more lives and hearts than anything else on earth or in heaven.

The next day, Jesus decided to leave for Galilee. He found Philip and said to him, "Follow Me." Philip was from Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter. Philip found Nathanael and told him, "We have found the One Moses wrote about in the Law, and the prophets also wrote about—Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph."

Nathanael, surprised and without deceit, said, "Can anything good come from Nazareth?" This question makes us wonder about the kind of place Nazareth was! Philip simply told him, "Come and see."

When Jesus saw Nathanael approaching, He said, "Here is a true Israelite in whom there is no deceit!" This is a wonderful quality we should all desire! Nathanael, astonished, asked, "How do You know me?" Jesus answered, "Before Philip called you, I saw you under the fig tree." At that moment, Nathanael realized who Jesus was and declared, "Rabbi, You are the Son of God; You are the King of Israel!"

Jesus responded, "Do you believe because I told you I saw you under the fig tree? You will see greater things than these!" Then He added, "Truly, truly, I tell you, you will see heaven open and the angels of God ascending and descending on the Son of Man."

This hopeful promise of blessing will soon be fulfilled in the clouds of glory, as we are living at the edge of history.

Later, Jesus called Matthew, also known as Levi, who was at his tax-collecting booth, and others. In total, He gathered twelve disciples who became known as apostles. Their names were Andrew, John, Simon Peter, James (son of Zebedee), Matthew, Nathanael (also called Bartholomew), Philip, Thomas, James (son of Alphaeus), Thaddeus (or Judas, son of James), Simon the Zealot, and Judas Iscariot, who betrayed Him. It seems Judas Iscariot may have come on his own, possibly seeking fame, but there is no record of Jesus directly calling him.

These disciples came to Jesus to learn, and then they were sent out as apostles to teach others. However, they continued to learn throughout their ministry. The disciples were very different in personality. You do not have to be identical or agree on everything to do God's work. Interestingly, Jesus nicknamed James and John "Sons of Thunder." Have you ever wondered what it meant to be called a "Son of Thunder" by Jesus Himself? The Bible will reveal more as we continue learning.

Jesus changed the names of some disciples when they came to Him, symbolizing a change in their character. Even today, Jesus wants us to have new names or transformed characters.

The disciples of Jesus came from all walks of life. Later, He appointed seventy others and sent them out two by two to preach. These seventy returned with great joy. Going in pairs was helpful because they could encourage and support each other. The 120 followers who received the Holy Spirit at Pentecost were also His disciples. Many people testified about the great things Jesus had done for them—things too many and too wonderful to fully describe!

In Revelation 12:11, we are told they overcame Satan by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony. Those who were healed were instructed to tell others about how Jesus had delivered them.

A disciple is someone who fully surrenders to Jesus and grows in their relationship with Him every day. A disciple strives to become like their teacher in all areas—spiritual, physical, economic, and social. With the help of the Holy Spirit, a disciple puts Jesus first in every aspect of life—at home, at work, at school, and in worship.

While a convert accepts a teacher's message, a disciple not only accepts it but also teaches others to become both converts and disciples. Being a disciple requires self-denial and a willingness to carry one's cross and follow Jesus completely.

Some people wanted to follow Jesus but were unwilling to give up everything, like the rich young ruler, the man who wanted to bury his father first, and the one who wanted to bid farewell to his family. However, others, like Nicodemus, later changed and became true disciples.

Jesus also had female disciples, such as Mary, Susanna, Martha, and Joanna, who followed and supported His ministry. Some non-Jews, like the Samaritan woman at the well and the Roman centurion, also became His followers.

Jesus traveled throughout Galilee with His disciples, teaching in synagogues, preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every disease and sickness. Some villages were left without any sick people because everyone had been healed.

Jesus came to give people eternal life. Although those He healed or raised eventually died again, He introduced them to the gift of everlasting life. Eternal life is not just living forever—it is knowing Jesus. As He said, "Now this is eternal life: that they may know You, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom You have sent."

Jesus welcomed everyone—rich or poor, young or old, male or female—offering them love, kindness, and hope.

Questions:

1. Who was the first disciple of Jesus?

2. Who else were among the first disciples of Jesus?

3. What did Nathanael say when Jesus spoke to him?

4. Which towns did Jesus visit to preach?

5. How many disciples did Jesus choose?

6. What is the opposite of eternal life?

7. Are you a convert or a disciple of Jesus?

May God bless you, child and young person of Jesus!

Key Text: John 1:1-3.

[1-3] In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. He was with God in the beginning. Through Him all things were made; without Him nothing was made that has been made. In Him was life, and that life was the light of men. The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness has not overcome it.

Prayer: Thank You our Creator for making us Your disciples. Help us also to be light and life to our fellow human beings according to Your will. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A drama about the calling of the first disciples, starting with Andrew calling his friends, etc. You may include those who wanted to be disciples but could not, or those told to witness in their villages.

DAY 203 (July 21)

TOPIC: Jesus Performs His First Miracle at the Wedding in Cana

(John 2)

After calling His disciples, Jesus attended a wedding in Cana of Galilee as an ordinary person, a neighbor, a friend, or a relative. He began His ministry by mingling with people in their joy. He wanted to break down the barriers that separated people in society so that they could understand that all human beings are one family under God. It had been 400 years without a prophet, and now people saw John the Baptist and then Jesus, both of whom were transforming their lives. These two appeared to live simple and humble lives, lacking material wealth.

Even in our modern society, which values wealth, prestige, and self-promotion, Jesus' example of humility and simplicity remains an essential model for us to follow. If Jesus had come as a King, how would He have taught us humility and the service of others with love and compassion? Furthermore, if Jesus had come as God in all His glory, what human being could have withstood the majesty and splendor of heaven without being consumed? Truly, our most powerful sermon is not what we say but how we live and act.

It was Jesus' custom to introduce His disciples to various friends, and He accompanied them to different places, including the wedding at Cana. In those days, people celebrated weddings with their neighbors over several days. Young people of His age began to hear that He had become a remarkable preacher. They started discussing how John the Baptist had identified Him as the Messiah. These conversations continued as people enjoyed the wedding festivities.

At that wedding, children and youth were not excluded as they often are today. Instead, they were part of the celebration. It is wrong to exclude children from weddings, as these are sacred events from which they should learn. Perhaps invitation cards did not exist in those days. Excluding children from weddings is inappropriate. The excuse of shielding adults to engage in inappropriate behaviors such as drinking alcohol or the claim of saving on food expenses holds no merit before God.

When the grape juice or wine ran out, His mother became concerned, fearing that the joyful celebration would turn into embarrassment. She approached Jesus and said, “They have no wine.” Even today, if you host a celebration, you would not want the food or drinks to run out midway, but instead, you would want to provide abundantly so that people would later say the event was excellent. However, be moderate and save for starting your life!

Mary knew her Son had some power to meet this need. Jesus replied, “Woman, what does your concern have to do with Me? My hour has not yet come,” referring to God’s divine plan. Despite this, Jesus loved His mother, though He prioritized obedience to God. Mary, trusting in Jesus, told the servants, “Whatever He says to you, do it.” The workers obeyed her instructions.

There were six large stone water jars used for ceremonial washing, each holding about 100 liters—totaling approximately 600 liters. Jesus instructed them to fill the jars with water, and they filled them to the brim. Then He told them to draw some out and take it to the master of the banquet (the Master of Ceremony, or MC).

The servants must have wondered whether following Jesus’ instructions would really solve the issue of providing a new drink. However, when the water was transformed into fine wine, the master of the banquet tasted it—without knowing where it had come from—and remarked, “Everyone brings out the choice wine first and then the cheaper wine after the guests have had too much to drink; but you have saved the best till now.”

What greater gift could the bride and groom have received than this? They were blessed to have the Lord Himself attend their wedding and provide them with a wonderful drink. Jesus always gives the best, bringing joy and peace to our hearts. For Jesus, we—humanity or the Christian church—are His bride, and He desires that we experience joy. He delights in us as His bride and aims to take all who accept Him to His Father’s house, where we will live with Him forever.

Considering that 40% of people who start drinking alcohol become chronic alcoholics and that the Bible states drunkards will not enter heaven (as mentioned in the book of Revelation), we do not believe that Jesus turned all that water into alcoholic wine. Instead, He made it into a pure and refreshing grape drink. The Bible says, “Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging, and whoever is deceived by it is not wise.”

About 50% of all road accidents are linked to alcohol consumption. Domestic violence and other evils, as people often say, are fueled by alcohol abuse.

Many people consider alcohol to be a form of evil or even the devil itself. Heavenly wisdom instructs us not to consume even a single drop of alcohol for pleasure.

The term “wine” used in this story had two meanings: either fermented wine (alcoholic) or unfermented grape juice. Wine also symbolizes His blood, which saves us from our sins. Since Jesus Himself was a Nazarite, it would be highly inappropriate for His saving blood to be associated with an intoxicating substance that destroys lives.

This was the first miracle Jesus performed, revealing His glory, and His disciples believed in Him, reducing their doubts. People shared this story repeatedly.

Remember, the success of a rebuke depends largely on the spirit in which it is given. Do not underestimate the power of sincere prayer. Pray to have a humble and meek spirit so that the angels of God may go before you, work on the hearts you are trying to reach, and soften them with heavenly impressions so that your efforts may be fruitful.

Questions:

1. What is the meaning of a miracle?
2. Is drinking alcohol a sin? Can you explain using Bible verses?
3. How should a wedding celebration be conducted?

God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: John 2:7-9.

[7-9] Jesus said to them, Fill the jars with water. And they filled them up to the brim. Then He said to them, Now draw some out and take it to the master of the banquet. So they did. When the master of the banquet tasted the water that had been turned into wine (not knowing where it came from, though the servants who had drawn the water knew), he called the bridegroom,

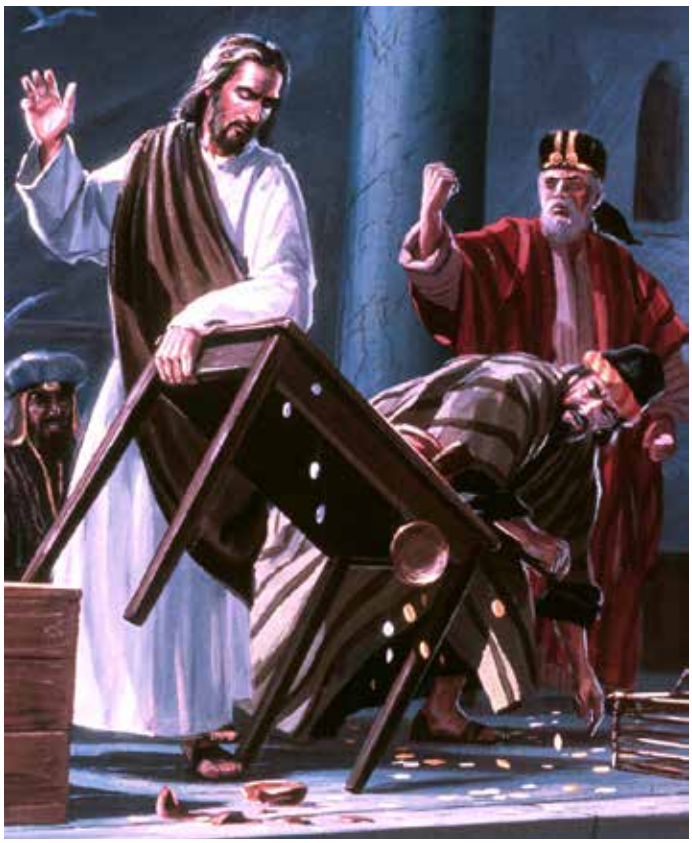
Prayer: Father, thank You for blessing marriage at the wedding in Cana and even in the Garden of Eden. Help us to honor Your house and marriage as You tell us. Bless today’s marriages, and when the time comes, help us to choose partners who will support us in this life. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A drama play. Place six jars or containers and fill them with water. Let students taste before and after thanksgiving, then show the miracle, etc.

DAY 204 (July 22)

TOPIC: Jesus Overturns the Temple Tables and Cleanses the Temple.

(John 2)



Jesus performed His first miracle at a wedding, showing that marriage is important and affirming that getting married is a priority. The best marriage is the one with three corners: God first, then the husband and wife. No one should live with a man or woman without getting married. A recognized marriage is one conducted in a place of worship, in a government office, or through traditional rites.

Another lesson we learn is that for a celebration to be honorable, it must be conducted with decency. Many children today are not invited to weddings because people have introduced much wickedness into these events. They feel ashamed to do these things during the day, so they do them in the middle of the night. Late-night parties also exhaust children because they get sleepy.

When we hold weddings, we must be mindful of our conduct during the celebrations. We must remain Christians during the celebrations, just as we are during the wedding service. We should ask ourselves: If Jesus were to come where I am now, would He be pleased or saddened by the way we are conducting this important event? Do our clothes, our words, the food we eat, and our actions reflect purity?

The masters of ceremonies should be cautious and avoid saying things that do not glorify God, even if they are humorous or entertaining. They should not just be called “MCs” (Masters of Ceremony), but should be people who speak words that bless others.
We live in times that require us to be careful with how we spend our money and to avoid hosting extravagant celebrations. The resources spent on lavish parties could help those in need by paying school fees, providing food, clothing, better housing, or supporting the gospel.

When the wedding ended, Jesus left Cana of Galilee and went to Capernaum with His mother and brothers. This was the city where Jesus performed many miracles. His first disciples, including Andrew, came from here, and they were the ones who invited Him to their home. Jesus is pleased when we invite Him. He visited this city repeatedly, performing many miracles.

Later, during the Passover feast, Jesus went to the temple in Jerusalem. There, He found people selling cattle, sheep, and doves for sacrifices. The noise from these animals and the traders turned the temple into a place of chaos and commotion. Others were exchanging money to obtain the temple shekel, known as the drachma, to pay the temple tax. The bargaining and negotiations made it difficult for worshippers to hear the temple proceedings. There was a kind of exploitation involved in obtaining this temple currency.

The priests knew there was corruption but did not care. They accepted bribes from the traders and partnered with them in this dishonesty and theft. Those who traveled long distances without animals for sacrifice had to buy them at the temple, where prices were inflated.

Jesus made a whip of cords and drove everyone out of the temple along with the animals. He scattered the coins of the money changers and overturned their tables. He told them, “Take these things away! Do not make My Father’s house a house of trade.” He declared that His house would be called a house of prayer, not a den of thieves.

When people saw His face and the glory on Him, they fled and did not dare argue with Him. The priests had lost their relationship with God to the point that they forgot the sacrifices represented the coming Messiah—Jesus. Even today, we cannot remove sin from our hearts by ourselves, but only Jesus can help us do so. However, the traders and priests did not want to lose their power or their financial gains, so they grew more resentful of Jesus’ actions.

His disciples remembered the prophecy, “Zeal for Your house will consume Me.” The Jews demanded a sign from Him to justify His actions. Jesus answered, “Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up.” They were astonished because the temple had taken 46 years to build and was still incomplete—how could He rebuild it in three days? They failed to understand that He was speaking about His body.

His disciples only understood this after He rose from the dead on the third day. However, the Lord could rebuild even a physical temple in a moment if He wished. Jesus wanted to teach us that we should not turn God's house into a place for personal profit or entertainment.

Do we whisper while in church? Do we play games, or use our phones or tablets in ways that distract us during worship? Do we wander around while the service is ongoing? Do we understand the purpose of attending worship, or do we go just because our parents bring us, or because it is a family tradition?

The devil can accompany people to church if their intention is not to worship God but to fulfill their own desires. God's house is a house of prayer—not a place for business or personal activities. It was a strange sight to see people fleeing from the temple into the streets of Jerusalem. The news spread everywhere, and people remembered John the Baptist's words: "Behold, the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world."

Many people believed in Jesus during this Passover festival because of the signs He performed. However, Jesus did not entrust Himself to them because He knew their hearts—how easily people can change and be insincere. He did not need anyone to tell Him about human thoughts because He already knew their innermost thoughts.

When people approached Him with hidden motives, trying to test Him, He knew their intentions even before they arrived. Yet, instead of exposing them, He sought ways to help them find salvation.

The same problems present in those days—pride, hypocrisy, spiritual blindness, lack of compassion, and wickedness—still exist today. Let us pray for God to change us. It is best to stay centered on the gospel: on one side is hypocrisy, on the other is worldliness, but the middle is the cross—being in Christ. Let us pray for His help!

Jesus did not perform His first miracle at the prestigious Sanhedrin council in Jerusalem but in a humble village, to bring joy to both children and adults. This reveals His deep desire to bring happiness to people's lives.

If a few people gather with one purpose, burdened for lost souls, and offer sincere, earnest prayers, the results will be remarkable.

Questions:

1. What does the phrase “Whatever He tells you, do it” mean to us today?

2. What did the master of the feast say about the wine?

3. Why do you think Jesus performed His first miracle at a wedding?

4. Why should children be invited to weddings?

5. Why should the Master of Ceremony (MC) be careful with his words instead of speaking nonsense?

6. Why is marriage important?

7. Where did the institution of marriage originate?

8. Discuss how to conduct yourself in church using Testimonies for the Church, Volume 5, Chapter 55. If you do not have it, write to us, and we will send you a copy.

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: John 2:14-16.

[14-16] And He found in the temple those who sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the money changers sitting. And when He had made a whip of cords, He drove them all out of the temple, with the sheep and the oxen, and poured out the changers’ money and overturned the tables. And He said to those who sold doves, “Take these things away! Do not make My Father’s house a house of merchandise.”

Prayer: Heavenly Father, thank You. Help us to respect Your house as You command us. Bless our churches today, and help us to do Your work. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Role-play of the whip of cords. And discussions on conduct in the house of the Lord. (See the book Testimonies for the Church, Volume 5, Chapter 54)

DAY 205 (July 23)

TOPIC: Nicodemus, a Disciple of Jesus Who Came at Night

(John 3)

After Jesus overturned the tables and people scattered in fear, they later returned and resumed their business as usual, without concern. They were urged to reflect and stop the noise in the Lord's house. Some were bewildered by the fear that had gripped them, causing them to flee. Others were embarrassed because they had been mocked for running away, while some harbored resentment against Jesus in their hearts. The priests did not like what had happened because they had personal financial gains from the temple trade. They felt their income and status were being undermined. The temple generated more revenue than any other business. The entire economy of Israel was centered on the offering of sacrifices. Sacrificial animals were expensive, which led to the loud cries of those selling them. This noise diminished the glory of the Lamb of God, who came to be the ultimate sacrifice.

To them, the temple was a place to make money, not to meditate on salvation. However, some people began to believe in Him or ponder His works. One of these individuals was Nicodemus, a Pharisee leader and a member of the Jewish ruling council, the Sanhedrin. When Israel was independent, the Sanhedrin was the highest court of the land. This council enacted and enforced religious and civil laws. However, under Roman rule, its power was somewhat limited, requiring Roman approval for major decisions like capital punishment. The Sanhedrin comprised priests, scribes, and elders, with the high priest typically serving as its leader among the 71 members. The Pharisees, who numbered about 6,000, were known as religious authorities. Other religious leaders included the Scribes and the Priests.

Nicodemus, having heard about Jesus at the temple, wanted to learn more about Him. Fearing public scrutiny, he sought Jesus at night. After inquiring about His whereabouts, he found that Jesus would retreat to certain places at night to rest and pray. Remember, it is better to seek Jesus secretly than not to seek Him at all! Nicodemus showed some courage compared to his fellow Pharisees. When he found Jesus, he began by addressing Him with respect, saying, "Rabbi, we know that you are a teacher who has come from God, for no one could perform the signs you are doing if God were not with him." Nicodemus wanted to engage Jesus in a deep conversation, but Jesus, who knows people's hearts, did not need anyone to tell Him about others because He already knew them fully.

To become a Christian, we do not need to engage in debates or arguments; instead, we need a transformed heart and mind to have the true love of Jesus. Jesus told Nicodemus that miracles alone were not enough to enter the kingdom of God. He said, "Very truly I tell you, no one can see the kingdom of God unless they are born again." Nicodemus did not need vast knowledge to understand this; rather, he needed a heart renewed by the Holy Spirit. Without being born again from above, we cannot comprehend the kingdom of heaven. Nicodemus, confused, asked how a person could be born again when they were old—how could someone enter their mother's womb a second time? Jesus answered, "Very truly I tell you, no one can enter the kingdom of God unless they are born of water and the Spirit."

Jesus compared the work of the Spirit to the wind: although unseen, its effects are clearly visible. Similarly, the work of the Spirit in a born-again person is evident through their good works and transformed life. Many today believe that God is the Father of everyone and think there is no need to belong to a particular fellowship. While it is true that God loves everyone, being born of water and the Spirit makes us His children in a special way, initiating a new life. This new birth compels believers to join a community of faith where they grow spiritually by following God's commands as outlined in the Bible. It is difficult to be a Christian without being part of a fellowship—how can others see our love if we do not gather together?

Some people are baptized by water and become church members, but they have not truly accepted Jesus as their Savior. This is also wrong. Nicodemus was puzzled, asking how these things could be. Jesus, amazed that a teacher of Israel did not understand such matters, said, “If I have spoken to you of earthly things and you do not believe, how will you believe if I speak of heavenly things?” Jesus referenced the story of Moses lifting the bronze serpent in the wilderness, saying, “Just as Moses lifted up the snake, so the Son of Man must be lifted up, that everyone who believes may have eternal life in Him.”

Jesus then spoke the most profound words ever recorded: “For God so loved the world that He gave His one and only Son, that whoever believes in Him shall not perish but have eternal life.” We can personalize this verse by inserting our names—whether David, Daniel, Paul, or Neema—affirming that anyone who believes in Him will not perish but have eternal life. God’s love is not limited to any one nation; He loves the whole world, including you and me. By believing in Jesus, we receive eternal life immediately while awaiting immortality at His second coming. Jesus did not come to condemn the world but to save it. Those who believe in Him are not condemned, but those who do not believe are already condemned.

Jesus wanted Nicodemus to understand that the Holy Spirit works in a heart open to Him, transforming thoughts and desires. This miraculous work is invisible but evident through the fruits of the Spirit—love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, and self-control. Nicodemus, like many others, thought external religious acts were enough for salvation. However, he realized that true righteousness comes from God.

Nicodemus secretly followed Jesus and even defended Him in the Sanhedrin. After Jesus’ death, he publicly brought spices for His burial, alongside Joseph of Arimathea. From that moment, we believe he emerged from secrecy to become a bold disciple of Jesus.

Jesus and His disciples continued their ministry in Judea, baptizing many people—more than John the Baptist’s disciples. John reminded his followers that his mission was to prepare the way for Jesus, not to seek his own glory. He said, “He must increase, and I must decrease.”

Praying for Others Draws Us Closer to God
When we carry the burden of others’ souls in our prayers, our Christian lives become more sincere, fervent, and prayerful.

Questions:

1. Why is it wrong to make noise in church?

2. Who was Nicodemus?

3. What did Jesus tell Nicodemus he must do to enter the kingdom of God?

4. Do you believe in Jesus?

5. Have you confessed Jesus with your mouth?

6. Have you accepted Jesus and asked for the strength to obey Him?

7. Why was there competition between John's disciples and Jesus' disciples?

8. How did John respond to his disciples?

9. How was Jesus baptized according to the Scriptures, and why should we be baptized as He was?

Take time to reflect on the meaning of being born again!

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: John 3:16, 17.

[16,17] For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish but have everlasting life. For God did not send His Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through Him might be saved.

Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father that You did not send Your Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through Him might be saved. Forgive our sins. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Help the children make a poster of John 3:15,16. Choose two students as Jesus and Nicodemus and let them have the conversation of John 3.

DAY 206 (July 24)

TOPIC: The Samaritan Woman of Sychar at the Well

(John 4)

Jesus knew that the Pharisees were envious after hearing that He had more disciples than John the Baptist. So, He left Judea and went to a city in Samaria called Sychar, near the plot of land Jacob had given to his son, where Jacob's well was located. The Jews considered themselves superior to the Samaritans, even though they had once been one people. They viewed befriending the Samaritans as a betrayal of their nation and harbored hatred against them for over 400 years.

Jesus, tired and thirsty, sat by the well at about noon, while His disciples went to town to buy food—perhaps cooked food from local eateries. This shows us that Jesus was human—He felt hunger, thirst, and fatigue.

A Samaritan woman came to the well, and Jesus intended for her to receive the gospel. Jesus had planned this journey specifically to meet her and offer her the words of salvation. He asked her for a drink of water. The woman was surprised because, from His clothing, she recognized Him as a Jew. She wondered how a Jew, their enemy, could ask a Samaritan woman for water. Jews and Samaritans avoided each other as much as possible.

Although giving water to someone—even an enemy—was a basic duty, the woman was still amazed by His request. The Samaritans only accepted the first five books of Moses and did not recognize other prophets. They had their temples but worshiped differently from the Jews.

Remember, the city of Samaria was established by Ahab and his wife Jezebel. They abandoned the worship of the true God and led the nation astray. The Samaritan woman saw Jesus as an ordinary Jewish traveler—dusty and thirsty like anyone else.

Jesus replied to the woman, "If you knew the gift of God and who it is that asks you for a drink, you would have asked Him, and He would have given you living water." The woman was puzzled—how could Jesus get water from a well over 100 feet deep without a vessel? She asked, "Where do you get that living water? Are You greater than our father Jacob, who gave us this well?"

To her, Jacob was a great patriarch, and the well had served them for over a thousand years. She could not imagine anyone being greater than Jacob. Yet, something about Jesus' face—His love and compassion—must have touched her heart, preventing her from running away despite the social norms.

In those days, gender and ethnic barriers were strong—women did not converse with men in public. Are we the kind of people who build bridges with others, regardless of their tribe or background, or do we promote divisions based on our differences?

Jesus told her, "Whoever drinks the water I give them will never thirst. Indeed, the water I give will become a spring of water welling up to eternal life." The Jews were familiar with this prophecy from Isaiah 49:10, which described God as the fountain of living water.

The woman's curiosity grew. She gazed at Jesus, realizing He was no ordinary man. The Holy Spirit worked in her heart, and she became willing to believe and follow the Scriptures. She eagerly asked for the living water so that she would not have to keep returning to the well.

She said, "Sir, give me this water so that I won't get thirsty and have to keep coming here to draw water." Jesus did not waste time in debates or arguments with the Samaritan woman. Instead, He focused on the message of salvation. He told her to call her husband, and when she replied that she had no husband, Jesus revealed her life: she had five husbands, and the man she was living with was not her husband. Shocked, she acknowledged, "Sir, I see that You are a prophet!"

The woman tried to change the subject by discussing religious differences. She said, "Our ancestors worshiped on this mountain, but you Jews claim that the place where we must worship is in Jerusalem. Which is correct?"

Jesus patiently gave her a simple Bible study. He told her that a time was coming when true worship would not be about location but about worshiping the Father in Spirit and truth. He explained that the Jews understood what they worshiped, but what mattered was having Jesus in their hearts, not where they worshiped.

The woman mentioned that she knew the Messiah would come and explain everything. Jesus declared, “I, the one speaking to you—I am He!”

At that moment, the disciples returned from town and were surprised to find Jesus talking to a Samaritan woman with a questionable moral reputation. However, they did not question Him. They offered Jesus the food they had bought, but He responded, “I have food to eat that you know nothing about.” The disciples wondered if someone had brought Him food, but Jesus explained, “My food is to do the will of Him who sent Me and to finish His work.”

Jesus knew it was time to harvest the soul of the Samaritan woman. He reminded His disciples that the harvest was ready, but the laborers were few. Even today, many people are ready to receive the gospel, but there are few willing to share it.

Both sowers—those who teach the Word—and reapers—those who lead people to accept Christ—will rejoice together. Jesus stressed the importance of reaching those who had never heard the gospel, not just nurturing those already within the church.

The woman, overwhelmed by her encounter, left her water jar behind and ran back to town. She told everyone, “Come, see a man who told me everything I ever did. Could this be the Messiah?” Many Samaritans believed in Jesus because of her testimony.

Jesus stayed with them for two days, and many more believed, declaring, “We no longer believe just because of what you said. We have heard for ourselves, and we know that this man truly is the Savior of the world.”

Jesus’ willingness to spend time with the Samaritans broke the cultural norms of the Jews, who avoided such interactions. Even today, every human being needs the good news of salvation.

Despite walking a long distance, Jesus made the journey to reach one humble Samaritan woman, who then became a missionary to her entire village.

Jesus calls each of us today—whether young or old—to be His followers and share His love with others. We should not limit our outreach to people like ourselves, but extend it to everyone. The disciples later returned to Samaria, following Jesus’ example, and preached the gospel again.

When selfishness dies in our hearts, a strong desire to save others will grow. This desire will lead to persistent prayer and sincere efforts to reach those who are lost.

Questions:

1. Jesus went to Samaria to reach one person. What does this teach you?

2. Where was Sychar?

3. What questions did the Samaritan woman ask Jesus?

4. “The harvest is plentiful, but the laborers are few”—what does this mean?

5. What does “Jesus is the living water” mean to you today?

6. How did Jesus break down ethnic barriers?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: John 4:24-26.

[24-26] God is Spirit, and those who worship Him must worship in spirit and truth. The woman said to Him, “I know that Messiah is coming” (who is called Christ). “When He comes, He will tell us all things.” Jesus said to her, “I who speak to you am He.”

Prayer: Thank You Lord for the living water that springs up within us forever. Help us to worship You in spirit and truth. Help us to tell others about the One who is the Living Water. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: John 4 is about Jesus giving “living water” to the Samaritan woman at the well, spiritual fulfillment, and God’s love for all people. Prepare a craft activity with “cups of living water” made from paper, where people write things that bring joy, and then discuss questions about joy and fulfillment in this story. Whoever drinks this water will never need other water!

DAY 207 (July 25)

TOPIC: John is Imprisoned and Killed

(John 3, Luke 3, and John 4)

John continued to preach repentance and instructed people on the true repentance they should practice. He did not refrain from telling Herod the truth. Herod Antipas, the king of Galilee, imprisoned John the Baptist because John had told him that it was unlawful to take his brother's wife, Herodias. Although Herod wanted to kill him, he feared the people because they respected and recognized John as a prophet.

John led a life of self-denial, while many people of that time lived indulgently and did not seek the kingdom of God. Herod's wife hated John and wanted to kill him, but Herod respected John as a servant of God. However, like King Ahab, Herod had the weakness of failing to uphold justice and of listening to his wife rather than God. By imprisoning John, Herod aimed to silence him and remove him to a remote prison in the mountains near the Dead Sea to appease his illegitimate wife—whom he was not lawfully married to but instead lived with as a concubine.

John the Baptist represents people who love God and will carry the message of preparation for the second coming of Jesus. These people must live a simple life of self-denial and obedience to God. For people to be saved, they must speak the truth plainly and without fear. Being great in the kingdom of heaven is not about fame, popularity, or wealth but about purity of heart and submission to God.

John the Baptist had the privilege of sharing in the sufferings of Jesus to save humanity. Anyone who follows Jesus will experience suffering. John's example has comforted many who have faced trials. God provided a way of escape for Enoch and Elijah, who were taken to heaven without experiencing death. They were not better than others who suffered, but God, in His wisdom, chose to do so. Let us strive to reach heaven so that we may understand the reasons behind these differences. In all things, we must trust Him.

When Jesus heard that John was imprisoned, He went to Samaria. Poor John did not understand why this had happened while he was serving Jesus with all his heart. Doubts crept into his mind, and he questioned whether Jesus was truly the Messiah. Remember, John was also Jesus' cousin. So, he sent two of his disciples to ask Jesus, "Are You the Messiah, or should we wait for another?"

Jesus told those sent to Him to return to John and report what they saw and heard: "The blind receive sight, the lame walk, the deaf hear, lepers are cleansed, the dead are raised, and the good news is preached to the poor." John's disciples left joyfully to deliver the hopeful message.

Then Jesus spoke to the crowd about John's role in God's work. He asked them what they had gone out to see—John was more than a prophet because he was the messenger foretold to prepare the way for the Messiah. Jesus declared that among those born of women, no one was greater than John the Baptist, yet the least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he. From the days of John the Baptist, the kingdom of heaven had been advancing forcefully.

John was famous, and even high-ranking people sought him out. Fame can easily lead to pride, but not John. He was willing to testify about Jesus in all circumstances—whether in poverty or death. Some people tried to stir jealousy in him, asking why Jesus became more famous than he was and why Jesus did not help him out of prison. But John replied that Jesus must increase while he must decrease.

John compared himself to a friend of the bridegroom who rejoices to see the bridegroom succeed. Jesus is the Bridegroom, and John is His friend who takes joy in seeing everything go well for Him. These words continued to comfort John while in prison.

Herod left John in prison for some time, hoping it would spiritually strengthen him. Although John faced discouragement, he remained faithful to God until the end. One day, during Herod's birthday feast, after much drinking, Herodias' daughter danced before the guests and pleased Herod. He rashly promised her anything she asked, even up to half his kingdom. Making such impulsive vows is dangerous because they can lead to evil consequences.

The young girl consulted her mother, who told her to request the head of John the Baptist on a platter. Herod was deeply troubled but, because of his oath and the fear of losing face before his guests, he ordered John's execution. If the guests had protested, the act would not have occurred. However, their cowardice and intoxication prevented them from taking a stand.

The gruesome request was fulfilled, and the girl presented John's head to her mother. A wise and mature person would have chosen half the kingdom over a man's head dripping with blood. Sin can lead us to horrifying acts when we stray from God's ways.

When John's disciples heard of his death, they took his body and buried it, then reported the news to Jesus. We do not fully understand why bad things happen to God's servants or why He allows them, but one day, God will reveal the reasons. For now, we trust that He is always righteous and just. Due to the cosmic conflict with Satan, God must operate within the laws of love and free will. Satan and his angels will not be destroyed until the day of judgment when humanity will judge the angels (1 Corinthians 4:9).

Although John performed no miracles, everything he said about Jesus was true. Today, whether we are children or adults, we may not have miraculous powers like Peter or Paul, but we can tell others the truth about Jesus so they can have eternal life.

After John's death, Herod lived in fear, believing that John had been resurrected when he heard of Jesus' miracles. Herod's guilty conscience robbed him of peace.

Later, Jesus traveled to Cana, where He had previously turned water into wine. A royal official whose son was seriously ill sought Jesus' help. Jesus told him, "Go, your son will live," and the man believed and went home. On his way, his servants met him and reported that his son had recovered at the exact hour Jesus spoke the words.

This miracle confirmed the royal official's faith, and he and his entire household believed in Jesus. Jesus desires us to seek a relationship with Him beyond just asking for miracles in times of trouble. He welcomes us without prejudice and wants us to trust in His promises.

John's death brought comfort to many faithful believers who suffered persecution for Jesus' name. Satan sought to discourage Jesus by killing John, but despite the sorrow, Jesus continued His mission.

Eternal life is for those who choose Jesus despite trials. Let us pray and ask God to break down the strongholds where Satan rules and to bring His truth to those who are being deceived and destroyed.

Questions:

1. What problem did the royal official have?

2. Why was John imprisoned and killed?

3. If you were a 14-year-old boy or girl, what gift would you ask for?

4. Is a 14-year-old mature enough to distinguish between their mother's wishes and God's will?

5. Why should we trust God even when we do not see signs and wonders?

6. What lessons do we learn from the life of John the Baptist?

"God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus"

Key Text: Matthew 14:12-14.

[12-14] Then John's disciples came and took away the body and buried it, and went and told Jesus. When Jesus heard it, He departed from there by boat to a deserted place by Himself. But when the multitudes heard it, they followed Him on foot from the cities. And when Jesus went out, He saw a great multitude; and He was moved with compassion for them, and healed their sick.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for grieving with us and for having compassion on us. Heal our sorrows, for You knew the sorrow of losing Your close relative, John the Baptist.

Activity: John was ready to witness for Jesus in everything, in poverty and even in death. Discuss everything you know about this servant, and write it down.

DAY 208 (July 26)

TOPIC: Jesus Begins His Ministry in His Hometown of Nazareth

(Luke 4, Matthew 4)

Jesus heard that John had been imprisoned, so He went to Galilee, to the village of Nazareth, and then to Capernaum, a town by the sea near Zebulun and Naphtali. This was to fulfill the word spoken by the prophet Isaiah, saying:

"The land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali, the way of the sea, beyond the Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles—The people who sat in darkness have seen a great light. And upon those who sat in the region and shadow of death, light has dawned."

From that time, Jesus began to preach and say, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand."

Jesus made it clear that His kingdom was not of this world or of war. He said His kingdom was one of love, and anyone could join it. He told the people not to worry about the Romans who ruled over them, for that was not humanity's greatest problem—sin was. If they repented and followed Him, they would secure for themselves a beautiful, eternal life. The matter of Roman rule was temporary, so He told them to love even their oppressors, and all would be well.

He said if they were asked to carry a burden for one mile, they should go two. If ordered to give their coat, they should also offer their shirt. Anyone with a hardened heart would be softened by seeing such love.

Jesus told them that one day, the kingdoms of this world would pass away, and God's kingdom of love would reign forever. The lost Garden of Eden would be restored as paradise. Hatred would be removed because everyone would love one another sincerely. These teachings were new to them, but they spread like wildfire. The people realized no preacher had ever risen like Him. The power of the Holy Spirit drew them to Him, and they recognized that He was the Lord. They listened to Him, asked questions, and some followed Him wherever He went, finding unparalleled joy.

Although little is said about the women and children who followed Him—because not everything was recorded—many women and children accompanied and served Him, grateful for the many wonders He performed for them. Some of their husbands worked in Herod's offices. They marveled at the wisdom and solutions He provided for every problem. There was nothing He could not resolve.

They were amazed by His profound knowledge, even though He had never attended rabbinical schools. What they loved most was His care for everyone. It did not matter who approached Him—a man, a child, an elder, or a woman—He mingled with the people, showed them love and compassion, helped them, and then invited them to follow Him.

Even today, we should follow this example—not just tell people to follow Jesus while being unwilling to help them with their needs. We should not only care for our loved ones but extend our care to everyone.

Jesus held John the Baptist in high regard as God's prophet, living in a troubled world. God hands over the torch to those working in His vineyard. When one person finishes their race, others carry the light forward. Since the days of Paul or John are gone, the responsibility is now ours.

Let us avoid envy when we see that God's workers or friends seem to live more comfortable lives than ours. Being in a prominent position now does not guarantee a higher position in the kingdom of heaven. Let us have the humility of John the Baptist, who decreased so that God's work might advance. Even the apostles did their work and passed the baton to others. Today, the torch is in your hands and mine. Let us run the race with patience and faith. If we fall asleep in death, let us ensure we pass the light to others so that one day, we may inherit the eternal hope that never fades.

Jesus reflected on the responsibilities before Him, continually learning and speaking with His Father every day, even before the roosters crowed. He wanted to give hope of eternal life to the brokenhearted, help those in trouble, and heal the sick. Above all, He wanted to show the whole world the immense love of God.

He wanted to call everyone to come to God for help and forgiveness. Even today, He will give you a new life if you believe in Him. Jesus continued to proclaim the good news, telling people that the kingdom of heaven had come.

In many places He visited, John the Baptist had already prepared the way for Him. Many who heard His voice and felt His compassion found hope, peace, and joy in their hearts. He frequently quoted the prophets, showing that the Scriptures were the final authority and the voice of the living God.

Jesus knew the bitter death on the cross awaited Him. He also knew that the very people He sought to save and bless would reject and deny His love. He knew that in the end, they would crucify Him. Despite all this, He was determined to do His Father's will and fulfill all that He had been commanded.

He continually spoke to His Father and prayed for strength and courage to accomplish His mission. Even today, God wants to live with us and give us true joy, but He will not force us to trust Him. That choice is ours. God is true, He is present, and if we want to be saved, we must choose His way. He wants to save every one of us, but He respects your choice—He will not force you to love Him.

Throughout Jesus' life and during His trials, Satan tried to make Him abandon the Father's will and disrupt the plan of salvation. Jesus refused to use His divine power for personal gain. Satan even misquoted the Scriptures and tried to tempt Jesus to destroy Himself or to gain followers through miracles.

Jesus prioritized the plan of salvation over pleasing the enemy's demands. He did not want people to follow Him just because of the miracles He performed but because they had faith that He could save them from their sins and that they wanted a relationship with Him.

When Jesus began His ministry, He preached in synagogues, and many people followed Him to listen because they had never heard such powerful preaching before. He spoke as someone with authority, wisdom, and power. Even today, if you have troubles or doubts in your heart, learn to trust Him. That way, you will always know what to do—whether in good times or bad.

Trusting in Jesus gives us peace and security that no human being can provide. People will be amazed that even as a young person without advanced education, your life is peaceful, joyful, and you can speak words of comfort to others.

Some who did not like Him wanted to create problems between Him and the Roman government. They devised many false accusations and sought to stop His ministry.

Everyone Can Pray for Souls
Not everyone is called to work personally in foreign lands, but everyone can do something—whether through their prayers or their gifts—to support the work of missions.

During the days of preparation, the disciples searched their hearts deeply. They felt their spiritual need and cried out to the Lord for the Holy Spirit to empower them to save souls. They did not ask for blessings only for themselves. They were burdened with the need to bring others to salvation.

God wants young people who are self-controlled, respectful, humble, calm, intelligent, balanced in their principles, and who can both pray and speak. Such youth will honor their elders and treat them with respect.

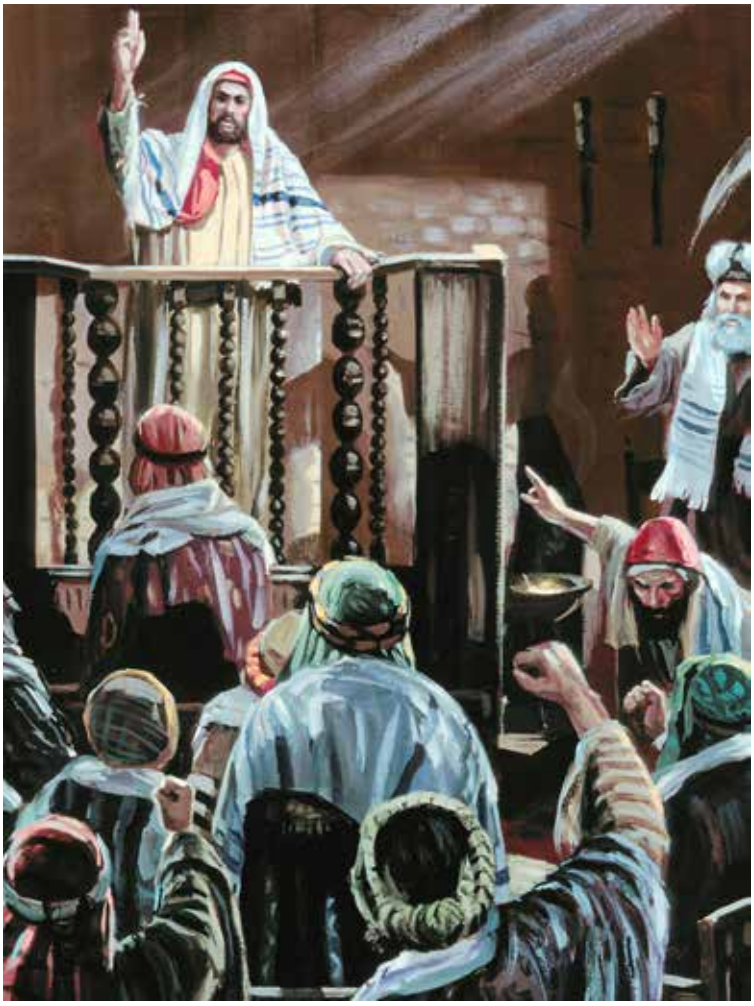
Questions:

1. Why did Jesus speak as someone with authority and power?
2. How does trusting in Jesus help us?
3. In which towns did Jesus begin His ministry?
4. Why were people amazed by His teachings?

“God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus”

Key Text: Luke 4:18-21.

[18-21] “The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me, because He has anointed Me to preach the gospel to the poor; He has sent Me to heal the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and recovery of sight to the blind, to set at liberty those who are oppressed; to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord.” Then He closed the book, gave it back to the attendant, and sat down. And the eyes of all who were in the synagogue were fixed on Him. And He began to say to them, “Today this Scripture is fulfilled in your hearing.”



Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father for proclaiming our freedom, for setting us free when we are oppressed, and for declaring the acceptable year of the Lord. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Discuss how John’s life can give comfort to people who go through suffering, and how Jesus loved John.

DAY 209 (July 27)

TOPIC: Jesus Rejected at Nazareth

(Luke 4)

When Jesus went to Nazareth after overcoming temptations and attending the wedding at Cana, He returned to Nazareth, where He was brought up. As was His custom, He went to the synagogue to worship. The people there knew Him; He had returned home, and many had heard about the miracles He had performed elsewhere. However, people often despise what is familiar to them. A Swahili proverb says, "One who knows you does not value you."

They handed Jesus the Scriptures to read, giving Him the scroll of the prophet Isaiah. When He opened it, He found the place where it is written:

"The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me, because He has anointed Me to preach the good news to the poor. He has sent Me to proclaim freedom for the prisoners and recovery of sight for the blind, to set the oppressed free, and to proclaim the year of the Lord's favor."

Jesus closed the scroll, returned it to the synagogue attendant, and all the people in the synagogue fixed their eyes on Him. He said to them, "Today this Scripture is fulfilled in your hearing." They marveled at His words, wondering what they meant.

Satan filled their hearts with doubt and pride concerning Jesus' life, despite

His life of righteousness convicting them. They asked, “Isn’t this Joseph’s son?” and questioned how the great words of the prophet Isaiah could apply to Him.
Jesus told them, “Surely you will quote this proverb to Me: ‘Physician, heal yourself!’ And you will ask Me to do here in My hometown what I did in Capernaum. But truly I tell you, no prophet is accepted in his hometown.”

He reminded them that during the famine of three and a half years, there were many widows in Israel, but Elijah was sent to a widow in Zarephath in the region of Sidon. He also mentioned that although there were many lepers in Israel, only Naaman the Syrian was cleansed.

When the people heard this, they were filled with rage. They did not allow the Spirit of God to convict them to follow the way of the Lord. They became angry when Jesus mentioned Gentiles like Naaman and the widow. They rose up, drove Him out of the city, and led Him to the edge of the hill to throw Him off the cliff. However, Jesus miraculously passed through the crowd and went on His way because His time had not yet come.

Even today, many people want to hear only what pleases them. Though they may not seek to kill preachers like the Jews did, they criticize and despise them.

Let us remember that angels protect children and adults from being destroyed by the devil. One day, heaven will reveal how we were saved from Satan’s schemes to destroy us. Jesus was ready to help them, but Satan had blinded their hearts to reject Him, and Jesus could not force them to accept Him. With sadness, He left the synagogue of His hometown and went His way.

We should remember that pride and traditions without revelation are dangerous. Our knowledge and education cannot save us—only God Himself, through His plan of salvation in the Messiah, is our hope.

From Nazareth, Jesus went down to Capernaum and taught on the Sabbath. The people were amazed at His teaching. In the synagogue, there was a man possessed by an unclean spirit who cried out in a loud voice, “What do You want with us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have You come to destroy us? I know who You are—the Holy One of God!”

Through the man’s voice, Satan’s agent confessed the truth about Jesus. Jesus rebuked the demon, saying, “Be quiet! Come out of him!” The demon threw the man down but came out without harming him. The people were amazed, saying, “With authority and power, He commands unclean spirits, and they come out!" News about Jesus spread everywhere.

Even today, millions of people worldwide are possessed by demons, but in the name of Jesus, demons are cast out. Those afflicted by demons should be brought to people of faith to be prayed for, and through the name of Jesus, the demons will be expelled.

Demons often enter people's lives through their own actions or their parents' involvement in evil practices. These spirits take control, causing distress and destruction. To be free, a person must accept Jesus into their life and turn away from their former ways. If not, the demons will return and cause even greater harm.

Jesus explained this truth by comparing it to a man who sweeps his house clean without filling it with God's presence—evil spirits return with greater force. Removing bad habits by human effort alone is insufficient without allowing Jesus to dwell in our hearts.

After leaving the synagogue, Jesus went to Simon Peter's house. Peter's mother-in-law was suffering from a high fever, and they asked Jesus to heal her. He rebuked the fever, and it left her immediately. She got up at once and began to serve them, showing her gratitude and willingness to help others.

Even today, if you recover from illness, start helping with small tasks instead of remaining idle or seeking special treatment.

At sunset, many people with various diseases came to Jesus. They waited until the Sabbath ended to avoid being judged by the Pharisees. Jesus laid His hands on each one and healed them.

Demons also came out of many people, shouting, "You are the Son of God!" but Jesus rebuked them and did not allow them to speak.

Satan knows God very well, having been created by Him and having lived in heaven. However, unlike believers, Satan has no faith and continually does evil.

It was easier for Jesus to heal those possessed by demons than to reach the proud and hypocritical Pharisees who believed they needed nothing. The Pharisees twisted the Scriptures into burdens for the people. They constantly followed Jesus, trying to trap Him. Their pride and jealousy blinded them to their need for salvation.
One person said that the sins of the ignorant and openly sinful are easier to heal than the hidden sins of the educated or the hypocrites.

Jesus left to go to a solitary place, but the crowds sought Him and tried to keep Him from leaving. He told them, “I must preach the good news of the kingdom of God to other towns also, because that is why I was sent.” So, He continued preaching in the synagogues of Galilee.

To Jesus, no human being is without value or importance. He desired the best for everyone, offering hope to the hopeless. Those who believed in Him discovered that they could entrust Him with all their problems, and He would help them.

Jesus spent much time in private prayer and meditation on the Scriptures before returning to minister to the people. Though He worked tirelessly day and night, the Bible does not mention Him ever falling sick—rather, He carried the burdens and diseases of others.

Even today, He bears our sicknesses and weaknesses. We should serve those in need, the poor, and the oppressed. We are called to pray with and for those who are weak and struggling. Consistent and dedicated efforts must be made to reach those whose hearts are ready for revival.

Questions:

1. What Scripture did Jesus read in the synagogue?

2. Why did the people want to throw Jesus off the cliff?

3. How did the demons know that Jesus was the Son of God?

4. Why did Jesus spend so much time in prayer?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Luke 4:22-24.

[22-24] So all bore witness to Him, and marveled at the gracious words which proceeded out of His mouth. And they said, “Is this not Joseph’s son?” He said to them, “You will surely say this proverb to Me, ‘Physician, heal Yourself! Whatever we have heard done in Capernaum, do also here in Your country.’” Then He said, “Assuredly, I say to you, no prophet is accepted in his own country.”

Prayer: Lord, we ask You to give us Your Holy Spirit so that we will not resist Your Word, and that we may know how to distinguish between true and false prophets. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Show the people's great anger—"they led Him to the brow of the hill that they might throw Him down headlong. But He passed through the midst of them miraculously, and went His way, because His time had not yet come."

DAY 210 (July 28)

TOPIC: The Fishermen Are Called Again to Be Disciples

(Luke 5)

The crowd pressed around Jesus at the Lake of Gennesaret. He saw two boats on the shore, but the fishermen were not in them because they were washing their nets. Jesus entered Simon Peter's boat and told him to push it a little from the shore. Sitting in the boat, He taught the crowd. When He finished speaking, He said to Peter, "Launch out into the deep and let down your nets for a catch." Peter was surprised, thinking that Jesus did not understand they had worked all night without catching anything.

Even today, many people know that daytime is not the best time to fish. As an experienced fisherman, Peter knew it was pointless. He said to Jesus, "Master, we have worked hard all night and caught nothing. But because You say so, I will let down the nets." Even today, there are many things God asks us to do that may not make sense or seem reasonable to us. However, if we obey simply because He commands us, we will be amazed. We should act because His wisdom and understanding surpass human knowledge. He can override natural laws because He is the Creator.

Peter respected Jesus, but he did not fully know who He was. He wanted to please Him because Jesus had been kind to him. So, Peter cast the nets and caught so many fish that the nets began to break. They signaled to their partners in the other boat to come and help them. They filled both boats with fish until they nearly sank. At that moment, Simon Peter realized more clearly who Jesus was. He fell on his knees before Him, recognizing Jesus as the Lord of all creation. Feeling unworthy, sinful, and small, he said, "Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, Lord." But although he said this, he held onto Jesus tightly—he did not want to let Him go! He was filled with awe, as were all those with him.

James and John, the sons of Zebedee, were partners with Peter and Andrew. Jesus told Peter with love, "Do not be afraid; from now on, you will catch people." These fishermen left everything and followed Him to become fishers of people forever. Before this, they would fish and return home, but now they knew they had a greater mission. They understood their new work was to win people to God's kingdom. Following Jesus was the greatest decision these fishermen ever made. Even today, Jesus is calling you and me to follow Him. Will you respond and open your heart so Jesus Christ can live within you?

There is no limit to what a person can do if they surrender and open their heart for the Holy Spirit to enter and dedicate their life to Jesus Christ. Jesus spoke words of hope, comfort, wisdom, and peace to these fishermen, who later changed the world after He ascended to heaven. Our weaknesses can become strengths if we rely on and trust God, just as the apostles did.

In that town, there was a man with leprosy who came to Jesus, asking to be healed and cleansed. Jesus stretched out His hand, touched him, and said, "I am willing; be cleansed." Immediately, the leprosy left him. Jesus instructed the man not to tell anyone but to go and show himself to the priests and offer the cleansing sacrifice as commanded by Moses for a testimony. However, the man did not follow the instructions. Instead, he spread the news of his healing, and the word about Jesus spread widely. Large crowds gathered to hear Him and be healed. After this, Jesus withdrew to a quiet place to pray.

Jesus spent much time in prayer, which is a lesson for all of us. We should not go a whole day—or even several hours—without praying. Personal prayer is the key to victory, though public prayers also have their place. Let us return to the altar of prayer, praying morning and evening as commanded in Exodus 29:39. Though we no longer offer animal sacrifices, we should continue this practice of regular communion with God.

On another day, Jesus was teaching at Peter's house. Among those present were Pharisees and teachers of the Law who had come from Galilee to observe Him. These religious leaders, who were older than Jesus—who was only about thirty years old—were curious about Him because everyone was talking about Him. They wondered how a poor carpenter could do the miraculous things they had heard about.

While Jesus was speaking, there was a commotion. Four friends brought a paralyzed man on a mat, hoping to place him before Jesus. Since they could not get through the crowd, they climbed to the roof, made an opening, and lowered him right in front of Jesus. These must have been very close friends who deeply wanted their companion to be healed. When Jesus saw their faith, He said to the man, “Friend, your sins are forgiven.” Even today, Jesus says these sweet words to us: “Friend, your sins are forgiven.” Many people still carry heavy burdens and live in sadness due to their sins, but Jesus offers forgiveness.

When the Pharisees heard this, they began to question in their hearts, “Who can forgive sins but God alone?” Knowing their thoughts, Jesus asked them, “Why are you reasoning in your hearts? Which is easier to say, ‘Your sins are forgiven,’ or to say, ‘Get up and walk’?” He then said, “But so that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins,” He turned to the paralyzed man and said, “Get up, take your mat, and go home.” The man immediately stood up, took his mat, and walked home, glorifying God. Everyone was amazed and praised God, saying, “We have seen incredible things today.”

Jesus brought rest to those burdened with sorrow, anxiety, and pain. He said, “Come to Me, all you who are weary and burdened, and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you and learn from Me, for I am gentle and humble in heart, and you will find rest for your souls. For My yoke is easy, and My burden is light.” Thousands came to Him, and He healed them all. He did not ask where they came from or what sins they had committed—He simply met their needs. In every village He visited, no sick person was left unhealed!

Even today, no matter what weakness you face, you can turn to Jesus for help. When we face trials, if we turn to Him, He gives us strength and wisdom to endure. If we follow Him, He will reveal His will to us. Many, like the paralyzed man, are burdened by stress and anxiety. When we try to live by human traditions, our burdens grow heavier. Today, God invites us to give Him our worries and trust Him.

If we put God first, we will discover that He has countless ways to solve our problems. His school will free us from false teachings, bad habits, and misleading traditions. Jesus always had peace in His heart, even in danger or rejection. He knew human struggles, and no one could deceive Him.

Today, many people are anxious and afraid to trust Him fully. But the world's troubles cannot overwhelm us if we surrender them to Jesus. When we submit to Him, He carries our burdens. The Kingdom of Heaven begins here on earth when we give Him everything and accept Him into our lives. Every prayer of faith from a sincere heart is heard and answered by God, often beyond our expectations. No true believer's prayer is ever lost if offered in faith from an honest heart.

Questions:

1. Why did Peter say they could not catch any fish?

2. What does "from now on you will catch people" mean?

3. Have you taken time to pray today?

4. Why does Jesus have the power to forgive sins?

5. What did Jesus tell people carrying heavy burdens?

6. Who helped the paralyzed man through the roof?

7. Why should we not seek forgiveness of sins from other human beings, even religious leaders?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Luke 5:4-6.

[4-6] When He had stopped speaking, He said to Simon, "Launch out into the deep and let down your nets for a catch." But Simon answered and said to Him, "Master, we have toiled all night and caught nothing; nevertheless at Your word I will let down the net." And when they had done this, they caught a great number of fish, and their net was breaking.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for helping us with our daily provision. Help us to obey by letting down our nets into the water. Help us to bring people to You. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Song – I Will Make You Fishers of Men – https://youtu.be/RGTjNTzXG3s

DAY 211 (July 29)

TOPIC: Matthew is called to be a disciple and hosts a farewell feast for his friends.

(Luke 5)

After this, Jesus went out and saw a tax collector named Levi sitting at his tax booth. He said to him, "Follow Me," and Levi left his work immediately and followed Jesus. He did not question who would take over the office that brought him wealth. Perhaps he was tired of living a life full of deceit and corruption. Although he knew he was making the right decision, he also understood that life would become harder. He realized he would have to walk instead of riding a camel and live in the wilderness instead of a luxurious house. He was willing to sacrifice and become a disciple of Jesus. He understood that money is not everything in life.

If you were called today, while having great wealth, to be a follower of Jesus, what would your answer be?

During that time, tax collectors were among the most hated people. They collected taxes for the Romans, who ruled the people with cruelty, and thus tax collectors were seen as traitors. Many of them were selfish and ruthless, overcharging people and keeping the excess for themselves. While some tax collectors were honest, their reputation was ruined by the dishonest ones.

Levi hosted a grand feast at his house for Jesus. This feast also served as a farewell to his fellow tax collectors, friends, and family. It provided Jesus with the opportunity to reach others with the message of eternal life. This same Levi, known as Matthew, later wrote the Gospel of Matthew. He documented the words of Jesus because he listened to Him and witnessed His works firsthand. Jesus knew that Matthew would write a book to spread the message of salvation and bring people to God.

It is said that only Judas and Matthew were the most educated among the disciples. While they were dining at Matthew's house, the Pharisees came and murmured about how Jesus' disciples were eating with tax collectors and sinners. Jesus responded to them, saying, "It is not the healthy who need a doctor, but the sick." He meant that those who recognize their sinfulness know they need God's help, while those who see themselves as righteous do not feel the need for God's assistance.

At a deeper level, Jesus' words mean that no one is truly righteous. Those who claim to be righteous by their deeds lack the righteousness that comes from heaven. Human righteousness conflicts with God's kingdom and leads to destruction.

We are all patients in a hospital suffering from the disease of sin. Saying, "I have diabetes, while someone else has high blood pressure," or "I only have a cough, while someone else has kidney failure," does not make one better than the other. We all need the healing of the Almighty God.

The disciples were not identical in character or background. You do not need to be exactly like someone else to be their friend. The beauty of our differences is that they allow us to reach diverse people and invite them to God's kingdom.

The Pharisees also pointed out that John the Baptist's disciples frequently fasted and prayed, as did the Pharisees' disciples, while Jesus' disciples were eating and drinking. Jesus responded, "Can you make the guests of the bridegroom fast while He is with them? But the days will come when the bridegroom will be taken away from them, and then they will fast."

Jesus also shared a parable, saying, "No one tears a piece from a new garment to patch an old one. If they do, they will have torn the new garment, and the patch from the new garment will not match the old. And no one pours new wine into old wineskins. Otherwise, the new wine will burst the skins, the wine will spill, and the skins will be ruined. No, new wine must be poured into new wineskins."

By saying this, Jesus meant that His teachings of eternal life were new and could not be mixed with the old traditions of the Pharisees without causing conflict.

The disciples followed Jesus, healed the sick, prayed for people, and preached the gospel. These ordinary men became great healers and preachers because of their relationship with Jesus. Today, there are people who still need these services. You are also a disciple of Jesus, regardless of your age. Let no one despise your youth or childhood. Accept Jesus into your heart and follow the example of the disciples.

Let us hear the disciples briefly introducing themselves:

Andrew: I was the first disciple. I was a fisherman. When I heard John the Baptist say that Jesus is the Lamb of God and the Redeemer, I followed Jesus. The next day, I hurried to bring my brother Simon Peter to meet Him.

Simon Peter: I was a fisherman until Jesus called me to become a fisher of men. I was rough and impulsive, which made it challenging to be His disciple. Many people said I spoke without thinking. I believe there are many people like me. Jesus was patient with me and changed me. I was the first disciple to preach after Jesus' resurrection and perform a miracle. I also preached to the Gentiles and am mentioned more times in the Gospels and Acts than any other disciple.

James: My brother John and I were fishermen working with our father Zebedee. We left our business to follow Jesus. We were known as the "Sons of Thunder" because of our fiery temper. One time, in a Samaritan village, we wanted Jesus to call down fire to destroy the people who refused to welcome us. I was one of the closest disciples to Jesus, present during His transfiguration and at Gethsemane. I was the first apostle to be martyred for Jesus' name.

John: Like my brother James said, we had a fiery nature, which earned us the name “Sons of Thunder.” Our mother Salome was related to Mary, the mother of Jesus. While Jesus was on the cross, He entrusted me to take care of His mother. I witnessed the growth of the church and wrote the Book of Revelation while exiled on Patmos. I am known as the “Apostle of Love” because I emphasized God’s love in my writings.

Matthew: People also call me Levi. I was a tax collector who overcharged people and kept the extra money. I was hated and considered a sinner. One day, Jesus came to my office and called me to follow Him. I held a feast for Jesus and invited my friends. I later wrote the Gospel of Matthew.

Thomas: I am known as “Doubting Thomas,” but I was willing to follow Jesus and even die with Him. When the other disciples saw the risen Jesus, I did not believe them until I touched His wounds. When I finally saw Him, I fell at His feet and said, “My Lord and my God!”

Judas Iscariot: I betrayed Jesus. Though I loved Him and He was kind to me, my greed for money was stronger. I hoped Jesus would establish a kingdom where I would hold a high position. I sold Him for thirty pieces of silver, but when I realized He would be crucified, I was filled with guilt and hanged myself.

If we ask God, He will answer—It is part of His plan to give us, through faith-filled prayers, what He would not provide if we did not ask.

Questions:

1. What did Matthew leave behind when he followed Jesus?

2. How can you hold a feast to reach others with the good news?

3. What words is the apostle Nathanael known for in the Bible?

4. Why didn’t Judas Iscariot change his ways?

5. Which apostle would you like to be, and why?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Matthew 4:19, 20.

[19, 20] Then He said to them, "Follow Me, and I will make you fishers of men." They immediately left their nets and followed Him.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for making me a fisher of men. Help me to love people and forgive my sins. Help my family to believe in You and obey You. Bless my neighbors and our nation so that many may receive the gospel. Bless the workers. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Place small objects that can be lifted with a hook and thus caught. Focus on explaining the meaning of fishing.

DAY 212 – (July 30)

TOPIC: Things to Do on the Sabbath

(Luke 6, Luke 13, and John 5)

One Sabbath day, Jesus and His hungry disciples were walking through grain fields, picking and rubbing heads of grain to eat. This act was allowed if someone was hungry, as long as they didn't take the food home. However, some Pharisees questioned them, saying, "Why are you doing what is not lawful on the Sabbath?" They meant that the disciples were harvesting on the Sabbath.

Jesus replied, "Have you not read what David did when he was hungry? He entered the house of God, took the consecrated bread, and ate it, even though it was only lawful for the priests." Then He told them, "The Son of Man is Lord of the Sabbath," and that the Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath.

On another Sabbath, Jesus went into a synagogue to teach. There, He found a man with a withered right hand. His hand was weak and thin due to lack of use. Because of his condition, the man could not get a job, bathe properly, or do any meaningful work. Doctors had tried to help him but failed, leaving him to beg for a living. Wherever he went, children stared at him, whispering and mocking him.

The scribes and Pharisees were watching closely to see if Jesus would heal on the Sabbath. Knowing their thoughts, Jesus asked the man to stand up. Then He asked the Pharisees, "Is it lawful on the Sabbath to do good or to do evil, to save life or to destroy it?" After looking around at them, Jesus told the man, "Stretch out your hand," and it was completely restored.

The Jewish leaders were filled with rage and began to plot how to harm Jesus. Jesus then left and went up a mountain to pray all night.

The Pharisees did not like what Jesus had done. On another occasion, while dining at someone's house, Jesus asked them, "If your sheep or livestock falls into a pit on the Sabbath, wouldn't you pull it out?" Because of their hypocrisy, they remained silent, knowing the obvious answer. Jesus explained that if they would rescue an animal, how much more valuable was a human being!

Jesus was not saying that healing should be scheduled only on the Sabbath. Instead, He meant that acts of mercy should be done when the need arises. Healing someone on the Sabbath is like releasing them from bondage. Providing relief on this holy day is a good thing because the Sabbath is a day of good news.

Even today, hospitals and essential services operate on the Sabbath, and this is acceptable. However, workers should take turns to ensure everyone has the opportunity to attend worship. Jesus saw the Jews as hypocrites who focused on outward acts while their hearts were filled with evil. Keeping the law without love for God cannot lead us to heaven. Good works should be the result of knowing God. Jesus said, “By their fruits, you will recognize them.”

As God’s children, we must show compassion to those who are suffering physically or emotionally. The Sabbath is meant to be a day of rest and fellowship with God. People should enjoy this day, reflecting on God’s creation and worshiping Him in the beauty of His holiness. The Sabbath is a good day to do good things—not for our own pleasures, as Isaiah 58 advises, but to do what pleases God. It is a time to study the Scriptures and to praise God for His creation and daily blessings.

The Sabbath is like a tithe of our time—a day set apart for our relationship with God, our Creator and Father. Although God does not need rest, He knows we do. Our bodies need rest—about eight hours of sleep each night and one day a week to pause from our work.

In California, some friends decided to spend their Sabbath afternoons building houses for people after church. Others have chosen to use the Sabbath to visit and comfort the bereaved, even if the death occurred earlier in the week. These activities reflect the true spirit of the Sabbath. We should strive to complete our regular work during the six days of the week so that the seventh day is reserved for our relationship with God—unless we are bringing worship to others.

The Jews had added many Sabbath regulations—reportedly up to 1,521 rules. For example, if the eighth day after a child’s birth fell on the Sabbath, they would still circumcise the child, even though it was a surgical procedure. Jesus wanted them to keep the Sabbath, but not as a burden that prevented people from receiving relief from pain, distress, or emergencies. Despite it being the Sabbath, the Jews were filled with anger and began plotting how to kill Jesus.

One Sabbath, while reading the Scriptures in the synagogue, Jesus saw a woman who had been bent over for 18 years because of an evil spirit. No doctor had been able to help her, and she could not straighten herself. Medical knowledge is limited, and even today, doctors cannot solve every physical problem.

Jesus saw this woman and had compassion on her. Although He knew the Pharisees were watching to see if He would heal on the Sabbath, He was not deterred from doing good. Jesus laid His hands on her and said, “Woman, you are set free from your infirmity.” Her back straightened immediately, and she praised God.

However, the synagogue leaders were angry and said, “There are six days for work, so come and be healed on those days, not on the Sabbath!” They forgot that if they were in pain, they would not want to wait another day for relief.

This woman had been unable to work, relying on others for her daily needs, and she lived in sorrow. Perhaps she had children or grandchildren she could not care for, but that Sabbath, she was set free.

God does not need to exert effort to perform miracles—He simply speaks, and it happens. Someone once told Jesus, “Just say the word, and my servant will be healed.”

GOD hears prayers.
Jesus said, “If you ask anything in My name, I will do it” (John 14:14). He also said, “If anyone serves Me, My Father will honor him” (John 12:26). When we live according to His Word, every precious promise He has given will be fulfilled in our lives. We do not deserve His mercy, but when we surrender to Him, He accepts us and works through us.

Questions:

1. What did the Pharisees say when the disciples ate the heads of grain?

2. What problem did the woman in this story suffer from for 18 years?

3. How was this woman healed?

4. How was the man with the withered hand helped?

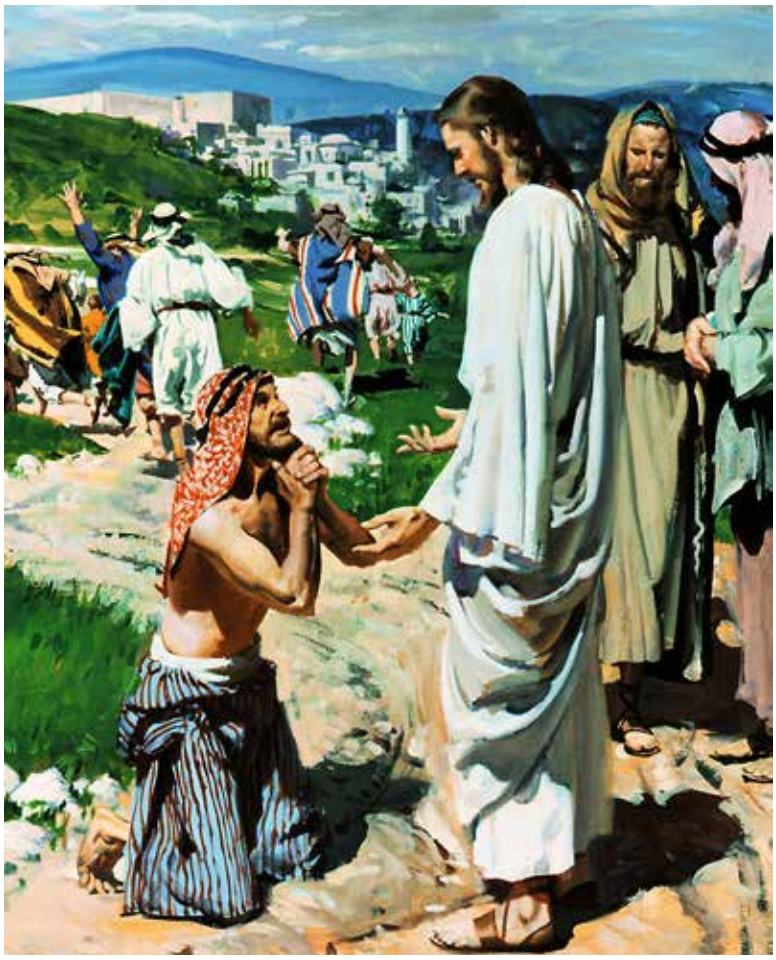
5. What things should be done or avoided on the Sabbath?

Read the book The Desire of Ages about the life of Jesus, and you will be greatly blessed.

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Isaiah 58:12-14.

[12-14] Those from among you shall build the old waste places; you shall raise up the foundations of many generations; and you shall be called the Repairer of the Breach, the Restorer of Streets to Dwell In. If you turn away your foot from the Sabbath, from doing your pleasure on My holy day, and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy day of the Lord honorable, and shall honor Him, not doing your own ways, nor finding your own pleasure, nor speaking your own words, then you shall delight yourself in the Lord; and I will cause you to ride on the high hills of the earth, and feed you with the heritage of Jacob your father. The mouth of the Lord has spoken.



Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father. Help me to raise up the foundations of many generations and to repair what is broken in Your commandments, including the Sabbath which is highlighted in this passage. Help me not to do my own pleasure or follow what pleases me. I know I will delight in You. Thank You for feeding me with the heritage of Jacob, for the mouth of the Lord has spoken. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: List all the things we should do on the Sabbath, how our thoughts should be, etc.

DAY 213 (July 31)

TOPIC: Healing on the Sabbath

(Luke 6, 13 and John 5)

One day, as Jesus was walking near the pool of Bethesda, close to the Sheep Gate in Jerusalem, He saw a paralyzed man. Many people with disabilities, such as the deaf, the blind, and the lame, came to this pool because they believed that an angel would stir the water, and whoever entered first after the stirring would be healed of their disease or affliction. Jesus saw a man who had been paralyzed for 38 years lying there. Knowing that the Pharisees were watching Him closely and that He could avoid their scrutiny, He asked the man, "Do you want to be healed?"

The man had a small glimmer of hope, thinking that this young, strong man who was asking him might help him get into the water when it was stirred. So, he looked at Jesus and said, "I have no one to help me get into the pool when the water is stirred; someone else always goes down ahead of me." Jesus said to him, "Get up, pick up your mat, and walk." The man immediately stood up, took his mat, and began to walk. This happened on the Sabbath day.

When the Jews saw him rejoicing and giving his testimony, instead of sharing in his joy, they accused him, asking why he was carrying his mat on the Sabbath. They wanted to know who had healed him, but he did not know because Jesus had slipped away into the crowd. Later, Jesus found the man in the temple and told him, "Stop sinning, or something worse may happen to you." Then the man realized it was Jesus who had healed him, and he went to tell the Jews, not knowing their evil intentions.

The Jews began to persecute Jesus and sought to kill Him because He said that God was His Father. This man who had been sick for 38 years had lived a hard life—he could not walk, earn a living, bathe himself, wash his clothes, or even go to the bathroom alone. Imagine all the things he could not do before but could now do after being healed. Wasn't that something to celebrate? Do we rejoice with those who receive a miracle or succeed in some way? If not, we should!

Jesus explained that the Son could do nothing by Himself without the Father's authority. He told them that just as His Father raises the dead, He, the Son, also does what the Father does. He added that the Father had entrusted all judgment to the Son, so anyone who does not honor the Son does not honor the Father. Satan had blinded their eyes, making them refuse to humble themselves before Jesus. They did not understand that He was the righteous and true Judge who would judge all humanity, and instead, they started judging Him!

Jesus told them that anyone who hears His Word and believes in the One who sent Him—God Almighty—has eternal life. Even today, eternal life comes from hearing and obeying God's Word. The Jews had created many laws for the people, turning the Sabbath into a burden rather than a day of joy. On the Sabbath, they could not even light a lamp or do small tasks. They relied on non-Jews to do such things for them on that day. They believed that only the Jews would be saved.

Jesus could have healed the man on any other day, but He chose to do it on the Sabbath to teach His people the proper way to honor and observe the Sabbath for God's glory. In explaining further, Jesus spoke about His divine authority, which angered the Jews, who thought He was blaspheming. It was difficult to please the people of His nation in any way.

Jesus told them, "You study the Scriptures diligently because you think that in them you have eternal life. These are the very Scriptures that testify about Me, yet you refuse to come to Me to have life." Every prophecy, sermon, page, or story of the Old Testament pointed to Christ. The Old and New Testaments complement each other—one continues where the other left off.

The works to avoid on the Sabbath are the daily activities related to earning a living or personal pleasure. The synagogue leaders were embarrassed because they knew that if they had a problem themselves, they would not want Jesus to wait until the next day to solve it. Although the religious leaders were not happy about the man's healing, others rejoiced at the miracle.

Jesus rebuked those complaining about healing on the Sabbath, saying, "You hypocrites! Don't you untie your ox in the morning to lead it to water, even on the Sabbath? Shouldn't this woman, a daughter of Abraham, who has been bound for 18 years, also be set free on the Sabbath?" The synagogue leader was ashamed, and others were amazed at the healing.

The Jews had a misguided view of the Sabbath. They thought God created the Sabbath for people to serve it. But Jesus told them, "The Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath." He declared that He was the Lord of the Sabbath, meaning He had the authority to determine how it should be observed. This statement must have shocked them because it meant, "I am the One who created the Sabbath, and I have the authority to define how it should be kept—not humans!"

Everyone should know that Jesus is the Word who created the world in six days, and on the seventh day, He established the Sabbath. He has authority over the Sabbath. Jesus did not break the Sabbath; He observed it perfectly but wanted to remove the hypocrisy surrounding it. Since He is the One who spoke the Word, He knows it completely and reflects on it—how much more should we, with our limited understanding?

No sick person who came to Jesus was left unhealed. No dead person whose family sought His help remained dead. It seems that everyone who met Him was revived! When He encountered the funeral procession of the young man of Nain, He brought him back to life! Those who came to Him with problems left filled with joy.

God did not create the Sabbath only for the Jews, as some believe. Consider that the first Jew came thousands of years after creation. Sabbath observance began in the first week of creation, right after Adam and Eve were made. So, the Sabbath existed long before the Jewish nation. Observing the Sabbath should not focus solely on what to do or avoid but on God's plan of joy and grace—being kind, doing good, and setting people free!

Jesus never denied the Sabbath but wanted to correct how it was observed. The Sabbath is not a burden; it is the joy of Jesus' grace, giving us rest from daily work and allowing us to develop a relationship with Him and find spiritual rest. Make an effort not to think about the past week's work on the Sabbath!

When Jesus said His Father works even on the Sabbath, they began to plot to kill Him. They accused Him of breaking the Sabbath and calling God His Father, without realizing that He truly was God. These people were willing to uphold the fourth commandment while breaking the sixth—"Do not kill." This accusation resurfaced when they crucified Him.

Be careful, because some false religions focus on specific laws while neglecting God's mercy and grace. Anyone who rejects Christ and refuses to listen to His words will be judged by those very words of life.

When you pray and ask the Lord for help, honor your Savior by believing that you receive His blessing. All power and wisdom are under His authority—all we need to do is ask.

Questions:

1. Why did God set aside the Sabbath after creation?
2. How can you identify which day is the Sabbath?
3. What activities should be done on the Sabbath?
4. Why were the synagogue leaders ashamed?
5. What did Jesus tell the man who had been sick for 38 years?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Exodus 20:8-11.

[8-11] "Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy. Six days you shall labor and do all your work, but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord your God. In it you shall do no work: you, nor your son, nor your daughter, nor your male servant, nor your female servant, nor your cattle, nor your stranger who is within your gates. For in six days the Lord made the heavens and the earth, the sea, and all that is in them, and rested the seventh day. Therefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it."

Prayer: Thank You Lord for healing our diseases and teaching us that healing on the Sabbath is something You always do, and that it is in harmony with Your law. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Look at the chart of all the miracles Jesus performed and discuss which ones were on the Sabbath!

Activity of Healing on the Sabbath: And how to help children not to live in hypocrisy or worldliness in their lives.

DAY 214 (August 1)

TOPIC: The Gate to Heaven is Narrow

(Luke 13)

As He traveled through towns and villages teaching on His way to Jerusalem, someone asked Him, "Lord, will only a few people be saved and enter heaven, or will there be many?" Jesus answered, "Strive to enter through the narrow gate, for I tell you, many will try to enter but will not be able to. Once the master of the house gets up and shuts the door, you will stand outside and knock, saying, 'Lord, open for us!' But He will answer, 'I do not know you or where you are from.' Then you will say, 'We ate and drank with You, and You taught in our streets.'

But He will reply, 'I tell you, I do not know where you are from. Depart from Me, all you evildoers.' There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth when you see Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, but you yourselves will be thrown out. People will come from the east and west, from the north and south, and they will take their places at the feast in the kingdom of God. Indeed, some who are last will be first, and some who are first will be last."

Many want to enter heaven, but their actions do not match their words. Anyone who is determined to go to heaven must be willing to sacrifice, overcome selfishness, and avoid doing things that please themselves while hurting others.

We must surrender completely and deny ourselves. This is what it means to enter through the narrow gate. It means doing what may be difficult, but it leads to eternal life and brings joy to us, to our Heavenly Father, and to others. Are you ready today to keep God's Word in your heart and live it out in your actions?

Regarding the question of how many will be saved and how many will be lost, Jesus told them not to worry too much about that. God does not save people simply because they are descendants of Abraham but saves those who trust and believe in Him—those who recognize their need for His help.

Later, Jesus explained that the way to heaven is narrow, not decorated like a smooth, flowery road. In contrast, the road to hell is wide, paved, and easy to follow. What kind of life do you choose? A life on the narrow road or the wide road? This is an important question we must ask ourselves every day. Every day, we face decisions about whether to follow the narrow road or the wide road.

We must be truthful, even if it means facing punishment at school or home. We must take time to help those in need, starting with our parents and siblings. These are the choices that reflect traveling on the narrow road.

The wide road leads to hell, while the narrow gate leads to eternal life. The wide road accommodates all kinds of bad behavior, including stealing, lying, wasting time, gossiping, insulting others, disrespecting parents, misusing God's name, jealousy, hatred, drinking alcohol, dancing improperly, watching immoral movies or TV programs, singing inappropriate songs, practicing witchcraft, hypocrisy, pride, sexual immorality, unforgiveness, and all other sinful behaviors.

We must be careful if we want to be saved. The Jews would easily accept someone who exalted themselves because they loved pride and recognition. However, Jesus taught about humility, helping those in need, and self-denial to remain on the narrow path.

Even today, many—including those working in churches, whether employed or volunteering—deny God by prioritizing human traditions over His Word. They live luxurious lives and forget that this is the wide road.

Helping people in need, especially in poor countries, is essential. Our assistance should begin with our relatives, our church community, and our neighbors. Let us reflect on our faith and how we know Jesus. Do we love Him because our parents do? Do we follow Him because it is a tradition? We cannot enter heaven riding on our parents' faith.

Every child is born without knowing God and must personally develop faith and a relationship with Him.

At one point, some Pharisees came to Jesus, warning Him, "Leave this place and go somewhere else. Herod wants to kill you." Jesus replied, "Go and tell that fox, 'I will keep driving out demons and healing people today and tomorrow, and on the third day, I will reach my goal.'"

Herod was known for killing people. Jesus explained that His death had to happen in Jerusalem, like the other prophets, not in Galilee.

Later, Jesus taught that when invited to a wedding feast, you should not sit in the place of honor, or the host may ask you to move for someone more important, and you will be embarrassed. Instead, sit in a humble place. Then the host may say, “Friend, move up to a better place,” and you will be honored in front of everyone.

If you exalt yourself, you will be humbled, but if you humble yourself, you will be exalted.

Jesus also said that when you prepare a feast, do not invite your friends, relatives, or wealthy neighbors who can repay you. Instead, invite the poor, the crippled, the lame, and the blind. You will be blessed because they cannot repay you, and you will be rewarded at the resurrection of the righteous.

This is very relevant today. Many people give gifts to their friends to receive something in return—a system of “give and take.”

During Christmas, for example, some people say, “I gave them a nice sweater, but they gave me a cheap plastic watch from China!” A typical family spends around $400 on gifts, causing stress about choosing the right presents and finding the money to pay for them.

We should pray to avoid falling into such customs. If we have a gift to give, we should give it cheerfully. If we do not, we should trust that God will provide in due time.

Jesus emphasized that if anyone wants to follow Him, they must count the cost. Just as someone building a tower must calculate the expense, or a king going to war must assess his strength, following Jesus requires daily commitment and seeking His strength.

God has a heaven full of blessings, which He wants to give to those who diligently seek His help—the help that only the Lord can provide.

Questions:

1. What does the narrow gate to heaven mean?

2. Do you prefer to travel the narrow road or the wide road? Why?

3. Why is it not good to sit at the back seats in church?

4. Why do many people prefer front-row seats at sports events?

5. When hosting a feast, whom should you invite?

6. How many people will be saved, and how many will be lost?

7. Who are the people who will weep and gnash their teeth?

8. How can the first become last, and the last become first?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Luke 13:3-5.

[3-5] I tell you, no; but unless you repent you will all likewise perish. Or those eighteen on whom the tower in Siloam fell and killed them, do you think that they were worse sinners than all other men who dwelt in Jerusalem? I tell you, no; but unless you repent you will all likewise perish.

Prayer: Lord, help us to walk in the narrow way. Help us not to judge others but to focus on our own salvation with fear and trembling. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Draw the narrow way and the broad way. Explain the meaning of these words and these paths.

DAY 215 (August 2)

TOPIC: The Mountain of Blessing

(Luke 6, Matthew 5-7)

When Jesus spent the whole night in prayer, by morning, He began choosing His disciples. He always wanted to be with the Heavenly Father to seek guidance for every step He took. As these disciples learned from Him, they were sent out two by two to tell others, and they were then called apostles. Later that day, He called His disciples and chose twelve from among them: Simon Peter, Andrew, James, John, Philip, Nathanael (also called Bartholomew), Matthew (also called Levi), Thomas (called the Twin), James (son of Alphaeus), Simon the Zealot (or the Canaanite), Judas (son of James, also called Thaddaeus or Lebbaeus), and Judas Iscariot, the betrayer.

He chose twelve men to walk with Him and to be taught so they could go everywhere and teach others across the whole world. Today, people call this "training the trainers." Some of these disciples had already been called before, but He called them again and added others. We know little about most of these apostles. For example, we know that Peter and John were outspoken and writers, so we understand them more than the others. Jesus came down with them and stood on a level place.

When Jesus saw the crowds, He went up the mountain. After He sat down, His disciples came to Him, and He opened His mouth and began to teach them things that touched every part of human life on the journey to heaven. Luke mentions that Jesus also healed people that day. This sermon was an introduction and a commissioning of the disciples to begin their official work and to establish His ministry. Jesus wanted to explain that the kingdom of heaven was different from what people thought—He was not there to overthrow the Romans. He wanted to clarify the purpose of His coming to the world. Without any microphone, everyone heard Him clearly.

THE CHART OF THE EIGHT BEATITUDES

CHART 8 OF BLESSINGS

Blessed are the poor in heart	For the kingdom of heaven is theirs (verse3)
Blessed are the meek	For they will inherit the earth (verse5)
Blessed are those who mourn	For they will be comforted(verse4)
Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness	For they will be filled(verse6)
Blkessed are the merciful	For they will be shown mercy (verse7)
Blessed are the pure in heart	For they will see God (verse8)
Blessed are the peacemakers	For they will be called children of God(verse9)
Blessed are those who are persecuted for righteousness sake	For theirs is the kingdom of heaven (verse10)

Jesus began His sermon by proclaiming the Eight Beatitudes, then spoke about believers being the salt and light. Salt does not remain in a heap by itself but spreads through food to bring taste and preserve it. He then spent a lot of time emphasizing the law—that He came to fulfill it, not to abolish it. Jesus kept all the laws He had given! He never broke the law.

To conclude this Sermon on the Mount, Jesus taught how to live a life as a Christian or believer. The Greek word for "blessed" is Makarios. I have heard some people being called by this name "Heri" or "Makarios." These blessings are not isolated but should be received together to bless others.

Jesus spoke of the Eight Beatitudes, or Eight Blessings, meaning happy are those who… It may be hard to understand how things like poverty can be considered blessings. However, we should remove these thoughts because we are blessed by Jesus in our spiritual poverty or sorrow. Let us seek Him earnestly, knowing He will give us the riches of joy and laughter.

Jesus saw many people who sought healing and those with various problems. This gathering required a spacious place because the available areas were not enough to hold everyone quietly as they listened to Him. His disciples surrounded Him while the crowds found places to sit, watch Him, and listen.

Jesus told the people that the secret to true happiness comes from how we live our lives before God. He began by saying:

Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. Those who are humble in heart will accept God's gift of salvation because they are ready to be taught by Him.

Blessed are those who mourn, for they will be comforted. This refers to those who grieve over their sins, recognizing that their wrongdoings bring sorrow to Jesus. They will allow the Holy Spirit to change them.

When wz are humble, we will not be troubled by people's harsh words, bad behavior, or challenging attitudes. We will have patience, and God will show us how to handle them.

Blessed are the meek, for they will inherit the earth.

Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, for they will be filled. These people are eager to be fed the Word of God, which gives them joy and helps them resist Satan's temptations.
Blessed are the merciful, for they will be shown mercy. Being merciful is more than words—it includes acts of kindness and compassion.

Blessed are the pure in heart, for they will see God. While knowing the core teachings of faith is important, people recognize a pure heart through outward actions, identifying us as true disciples of Jesus. A pure heart rejects impure thoughts.

The heart is deceitful and full of deadly diseases—no one fully understands it. Let us give our hearts to Jesus today for cleansing.

Blessed are those who are persecuted for righteousness' sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. This blessing is repeated twice because Jesus knew His followers would face persecution and hardship. If you experience troubles for choosing God, find comfort knowing there is a blessing in it.

Blessed are you when people insult you, persecute you, and falsely say all kinds of evil against you because of Me. Rejoice and be glad, because great is your reward in heaven; for in the same way, they persecuted the prophets who were before you.

If you face hardship or if people misunderstand you because of your faithfulness to God, do not fear. Do not hold grudges or seek revenge—eventually, everything will work for your good. What matters most is the love of heaven. Let us love God and others, and we will fulfill the entire law.

Many believed that those who suffered were cursed or unlucky. However, the kingdom of God is full of paradoxes—for instance, those who exalt themselves will be humbled, the weak are made strong, and the first will be last. People were amazed because they believed happiness came from wealth, fame, or power. Jesus explained that earthly honor is not necessarily related to the joy of following God.

Jesus told the people that all who love God are the salt of the earth—they bring flavor and preservation to life. But if salt loses its flavor, it becomes useless and is thrown out. For salt to be useful, it must mix with food. Similarly, believers must interact with others to draw them to Jesus. In those days, people used salt to preserve food since there were no refrigerators. Without people who love and serve God, the world would decay.

Jesus did not speak to doctors, theologians, or people with great authority—He spoke to ordinary people like us. So today, you are the salt of the earth and the light of the world. Our good lives are a light to bless others and lead them to Jesus. Jesus is the great Light, and we reflect His light like the moon reflects the sun. Once connected to Him, we must not hide our light but shine brightly for others to see our good works and glorify our Heavenly Father—not ourselves.

Jesus Presents Our Imperfect Prayers to the Father
Every sincere prayer is heard in heaven. Even if it is not eloquently spoken, if it comes from the heart, it will reach the Holy Place where Jesus ministers. He will present it to the Father in perfect and pleasing words.

Questions:

1. Name the twelve apostles.

2. Name the Eight Beatitudes.

3. Read the book The Mountain of Blessing and savor the beautiful teachings of the Eight Beatitudes!

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Matthew 5:14-16.

“You are the light of the world. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hidden. Nor do they light a lamp and put it under a basket, but on a lampstand, and it gives light to all who are in the house. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father in heaven.”

Prayer: Thank You Lord because You did not come to abolish the law but to fulfill it, and that all You have spoken will be fulfilled, not one shall pass away. Give us faith and courage to believe and live all that You have said. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: The activity of “You are the Light of the World” is a spiritual lesson to teach us that an individual can be a source of goodness and guidance to fellow human beings. This light we receive from the Lord and spread to others. Try placing candles or torches under a bed, etc. Memorize the Beatitudes.

DAY 216 (August 3)

TOPIC: The Mount of Blessing – The Law and Living a Christian Life

(Luke 6, Matthew 5-7)

A significant portion of the teachings from the Mount of Blessing focused on the law and how to live a Christian life. Some thought that Jesus came to abolish the Law or the Prophets, but He told them that God's Word is extremely important. He said that heaven and earth will pass away, but not even the smallest letter of His Word will ever disappear. God has exalted His Word above even His Name. Therefore, anyone who breaks His commandments will be called the least in His Kingdom.

Some people today claim that the Scriptures or God's laws do not matter and that only faith is important. This belief is not from the Almighty God. If God's Word is insignificant, then everything is meaningless because everything was created through the Word. The Word of God reflects His character and represents Him.

When Jesus was arrested that Thursday night, He said that He could call upon 10,000 angels to fight for Him, but He did not, so that the Scriptures would be fulfilled! Do you see how important the Scriptures are? Even when He was in danger and facing death, He moved forward to give the Word the glory it deserves.

The Pharisees had a habit of reading the Scriptures and pretending to know them well, but they did not live according to them. Jesus instructed the people to follow what the Pharisees taught but not to imitate their actions because they were hypocrites who did not practice what they preached. He told the people that unless their righteousness exceeded that of the Pharisees, they would never enter heaven.

Jesus taught that true happiness comes from accepting Him and obeying His commandments by doing good and being kind so that God may be glorified. During His time on earth, there were the Ten Commandments, the Roman laws, the laws of Moses, and the additional laws of the rabbis.

The sacrificial laws of Moses ended when Jesus died, but the Ten Commandments remain eternal, just like God's throne. We must be careful when living among hypocrites and avoid using their behavior as an excuse to do wrong. If you have a hypocritical friend or family member, you should stand firm and declare: "Even if others are hypocrites, I will do the will of God by His grace." In doing so, you will set a good example for others and counteract the bad examples of believers who bring shame to the church.

Jesus elaborated on the Ten Commandments because the Pharisees believed that sin was only about actions. However, He revealed that sin also includes thoughts, intentions, and attitudes. Actions are the final outcome of these internal processes. For instance, while the sixth commandment says, "Do not murder," Jesus said that anyone who is angry or hates another person is already guilty of murder.

He taught that if we have wronged someone, we must first seek reconciliation before offering our gifts at the altar—because we cannot touch heaven without first making things right with others. Our large offerings do not impress God; He desires our hearts to be surrendered to Him for the salvation of our souls.

It is crucial to settle disputes quickly with anyone who accuses us, or things may become worse. Regarding the seventh commandment, which forbids adultery, Jesus said that even if we lust after someone else's spouse in our hearts, we are as guilty as the one who physically commits adultery. The same principle applies to theft—if you plan to steal something but are prevented by circumstances, you are still guilty in God's eyes.

After studying Jesus' teachings, it becomes clear that no one is without sin! We cannot judge others—it would be like mocking someone in the intensive care unit (ICU) just because we are in a regular hospital ward. Critically ill patients need prayer, not ridicule.

Jesus wanted us to recognize the gravity of sin and our need for a Savior to forgive and empower us. He said that if our eyes cause us to sin through lustful desires, it would be better to lose an eye and enter heaven than to have both eyes and be cast into hell. Similarly, if any part of our body leads us to sin, it is better to cut it off than to be condemned forever. In heaven, all our physical imperfections will be restored, but there is no such hope in hell.

Jesus strongly prohibited divorce unless the spouse was unfaithful. He also forbade swearing by anything, including God's throne or our mothers. Our "yes" should simply be "yes," and our "no" should be "no." Many think that swearing is harmless, but God's Word forbids it.

We must guard our hearts and senses—what we see, hear, touch, and desire—to avoid sinning. Jesus instructed people not to retaliate against evil or seek revenge. If someone slaps your left cheek, turn the right one too. If someone demands your coat, give them your shirt as well. If someone forces you to walk one mile, walk two. Jesus emphasized loving our enemies because even sinners love those who love them. God alone will execute perfect justice at the right time.

Even criminals share their loot with one another, but a Christian should be different. Christianity does not permit hatred, violence, deceit, or revenge. We must learn to forgive and follow the will of Christ rather than our own desires.

Jesus affirmed that God's law is eternal—more enduring than the stars, the sky, the sun, or the earth. Although God has the power to change anything, His law remains the only path to health, life, and true happiness. Violating it brings destruction, chaos, and death.

God's holiness is revealed in His laws, which prohibit murder, adultery, theft, and other sins. The gospel reveals His love through the good news of salvation in Jesus Christ. Even today, we must not disregard God's commandments, as doing so leads to rebellion.

Although the ceremonial laws ended with Christ's sacrifice, the moral law—the Ten Commandments—remains eternal for all generations. Jesus, the Lamb of God, now intercedes for us in heaven as our High Priest.

Jesus warned that anyone who breaks even the least of the commandments and teaches others to do the same will be considered the least in the Kingdom of Heaven. God takes His commandments seriously because they ensure our present and eternal joy.

Jesus prayed through the night before choosing His twelve apostles (Luke 6:12-13). Despite His exhaustion, He often withdrew to quiet places for prayer. His prayers sought protection for His followers and strength for His mission.

When tempted to speak in anger, remain silent and pray. Heavenly angels will assist you and keep evil forces away.

Questions:

1. List the names of the twelve apostles.

2. Which commandments are broken by hating someone or desiring another person's spouse?

3. Why did Jesus pray all night?

4. Why should we not seek revenge?

5. Why is it a sin to take revenge?

6. Why is it important to seek forgiveness when we wrong others?

7. Did God ever say that one of the Ten Commandments no longer applies?

8. Why are God's laws and Scriptures eternal?

9. Why is it a serious mistake to disobey the Ten Commandments?

10. Which commandment do you personally find difficult to obey, and why?

God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Matthew 5:21-24.

[21-24] "You have heard that it was said to those of old, 'You shall not murder, and whoever murders will be in danger of the judgment.' But I say to you that whoever is angry with his brother without a cause shall be in danger of the judgment. And whoever says to his brother, 'Raca!' shall be in danger of the council. But whoever says, 'You fool!' shall be in danger of hell fire. Therefore if you bring your gift to the altar, and there remember that your brother has something against you, leave your gift there before the altar, and go your way. First be reconciled to your brother, and then come and offer your gift."

Prayer: Thank You Father who dwells in the high heavens. Help us to keep Your commandments in our hearts. Remove hatred, evil thoughts, and all wickedness from us. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Compare God's commandments in Matthew 5 with Exodus 20.

DAY 217 (August 4)

TOPIC: Blessed, Happy, or Fortunate

(Matthew 5)

Jesus was not only a healer but also the greatest teacher of all. As He helped people, He spoke in a simple and clear way, and people were happy and loved to listen to Him. He came from heaven to tell us about God's love. We must be His children with pure hearts, who speak the truth and are obedient. He did not discriminate against anyone because He viewed everyone as a potential citizen of the kingdom of heaven. God shows no favoritism.

When you look at the Beatitudes, they may seem contradictory or opposite to the way people usually understand things. For example, "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for the kingdom of heaven is theirs." Often, as the book of Job says, people thought that trusting in God meant always having wealth and laughter, without sorrow. But this is not true, because Job and others who feared God experienced sadness and grief.

Being poor in spirit means being humble and recognizing our need for Christ's righteousness, not our own. Those whom society rejects or disowns—such as the poor, tax collectors, or prostitutes—see themselves as having nothing to offer except the grace of God to help and cover them. They cry out to God for mercy, which leads them to repent and feel sorrow for their sins. The good thing for them is not only inheriting the kingdom of God but also being comforted by God Himself through the forgiveness and assurance of their salvation. When we receive mercy, it becomes easier for us to show mercy to others because we understand that we, too, are upheld by Almighty God.

Jesus gave an example of a Pharisee who went to the temple. This man measured himself and considered himself righteous while despising others. Jesus showed that sin can follow a person even to church because it first resides in the heart. This sin is spiritual pride.

The Pharisee stood in the temple and prayed in his heart, not to speak to God but to show off to others. In other words, he was gossiping about others to God, saying, “God, I thank you that I am not like other people—robbers, evildoers, adulterers—or even like this tax collector. I fast twice a week and give a tenth of all I get.”

But the tax collector stood at a distance and did not even dare to lift his eyes to heaven. Instead, he beat his chest in humility and sorrow, saying, “God, have mercy on me, a sinner.”

Jesus asked, “Which one went home justified before God?” The answer was the one who humbled himself. Jesus said, “For all those who exalt themselves will be humbled, and those who humble themselves will be exalted.”

When we pray, we should pray to God, not to inform Him of our goodness or to gossip about others. God sees our true selves and will reward us. God did not say, “Blessed are the most intelligent in class, the most beautiful, the wealthy, those with perfect teeth, or those with the correct religious doctrines.” Instead, He said, “Blessed are the pure in heart.”

The Sermon on the Mount teaches us not to be selfish. Our hearts and intentions must be pure—when our thoughts are pure, our words and actions will also be pure. Understanding the correct teachings of the truth is important, but having a pure heart is the true reflection of daily Christian living. Being a member of a particular church is different from being a Christian or a child of God. First, we must be people who believe in Almighty God, and then our denomination comes second!

Learn each Beatitude one by one. For example, be a peacemaker when you see others fighting, arguing, or disagreeing. Take the role of a mediator, not a troublemaker. You are God’s instrument to bring reconciliation—where there is hatred, bring love; where there are wounds, bring healing; where there is darkness, bring light and hope; where there is sorrow, bring joy.

Do not wait for others to love, comfort, or forgive you first. Be the one to love, comfort, and forgive others. It will be easy to live a holy life in heaven, but living a holy life on earth is a different challenge that we must overcome now.

Do not be a troublemaker or someone who loves conflict. Life is full of hills, steep climbs, and many twists and turns, including suffering—especially for those who know the Lord. Jesus and the apostles lived in hardship. Believing in Almighty God has brought hatred and persecution since the time of Abel, who was persecuted and killed by his brother Cain.

When you believe in God, you declare war even among your closest relatives. Emperor Nero of Rome burned Christians alive. Some believers were sewn into animal skins and thrown to wild dogs to be torn apart. Even Jesus did not escape suffering—He was crucified on the cross. These persecutions will happen again at the end of the world. You can read about these persecutions in Revelation 13.

Suffering will continue for all those who seek righteousness because it purifies them and shapes them to reflect the character of God. God's character is compared to a precious, shining gem. It is a character of selflessness and service to others. Remember, suffering that we bring upon ourselves is not beneficial—but suffering for righteousness' sake is. God's wisdom is amazing and never fails for those who choose to follow it.

All who choose to follow God must trust Him completely, bear witness to Him, and serve Him. Today, the Sermon on the Mount is considered the most beautiful teaching of Christianity, but it is also the hardest to live out. We are called to be salt and light in the world today. Read Matthew 5 again and reflect on how you can live out these teachings in your life today.

God would do amazing works through His people today if they completely surrendered to His leadership. They need to be connected to the Holy Spirit at all times. If there were more prayer in the assemblies of those in leadership, and if they humbled themselves before God, we would see greater evidence of the Lord's guidance, and our work would progress more quickly.

Questions:

1. What words did the Pharisee use in his prayer?

2. What did the tax collector say in his prayer?

3. Why do the righteous face persecution?

4. Why is self-love instead of love for God the root of all sin?

5. Why is surrendering to God important?

6. We are nearing the end of the world's history according to prophecy. How does this relate to persecution?

7. What is food like without salt?

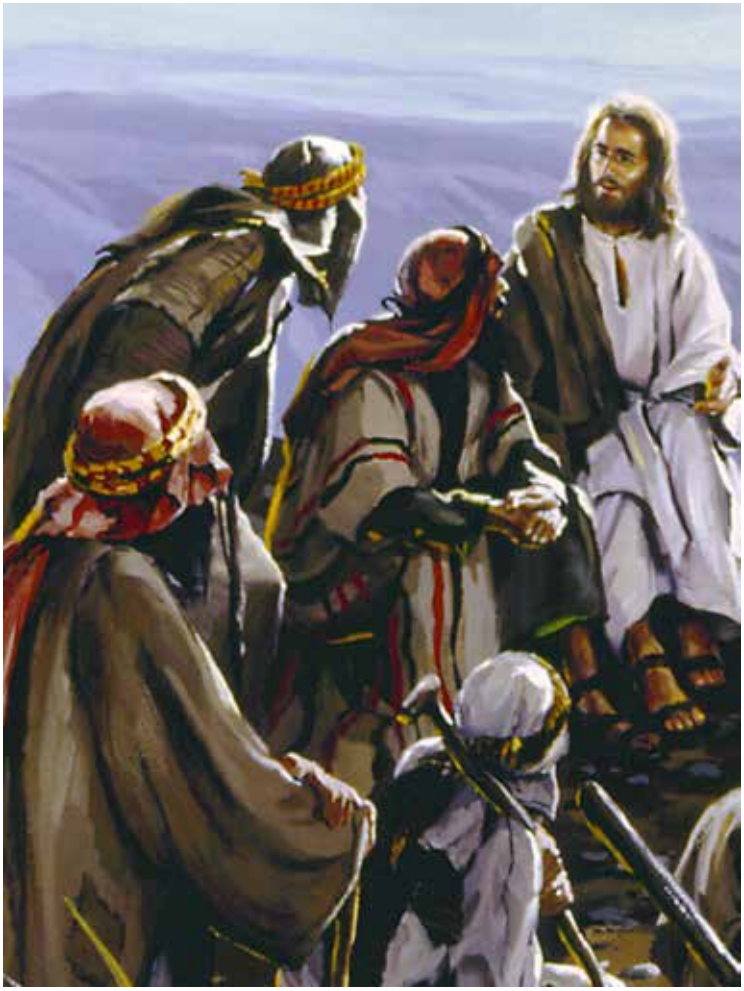
8. What is a room like without light?

9. How can we have a pure heart? Read 1 John 1:9!

God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Matthew 5:11-12.

[11-12] "Blessed are you when they revile and persecute you, and say all kinds of evil against you falsely for My sake. Rejoice and be exceedingly glad, for great is your reward in heaven, for so they persecuted the prophets who were before you."



Prayer: Thank You Lord because You care for us so much. Help us to love, not to discriminate, and not to persecute others. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Memorize all eight Beatitudes. Look at those countries with severe persecution for faith, list them, and pray for the people. Or study the prayer of the Pharisee and the prayer of the tax collector (see online Barnabas Aid).

DAY 218 (August 5)

TOPIC: The Lord's Prayer That Jesus Taught Us to Pray

(Matthew 6)

Jesus told His disciples to love their neighbors and even their enemies. They should pray for those who mistreat them because the Heavenly Father causes His sun to rise on both the good and the evil. God loves even the unlovable; for the Bible says if we only love those who love us, we are doing nothing special— even sinners love their own friends and relatives. He told them to be perfect as their Heavenly Father is perfect. This perfection is spiritual maturity— a transformation of our thoughts, intentions, and behavior through submission to Jesus, so we become like Christ.

Jesus said we should not do good deeds to be seen and praised by others because what truly matters is how God sees us, not how people do. In those days, many people gave offerings publicly to show off their generosity. Jesus said that those who give for show have already received their reward— the praise of people. He instructed that when we give, our left hand should not know what our right hand is doing. Offerings should be given secretly, known only to God. When we give in this humble and private manner, we will receive God's blessings. If we have an offering, we should not worship without bringing it because blessings are promised. And if we have nothing, God knows that giving Him our hearts is the most important thing.

Jesus also instructed that when we pray, we should not do it to be seen by others, nor should we use long, repetitive prayers to impress people. He said that when we pray, we should go into a private place, close the door, and pray to our Heavenly Father in secret, and He will reward us. Jesus Himself spent much time in prayer, and seeing this, His disciples asked Him to teach them how to pray. Even today, many people ask, "How should I pray?" Do you know how to pray? How does one speak to God? Do you find yourself running out of words when talking to God, yet you have endless words when chatting with friends? Do we need to use fancy, repetitive words like actors rehearsing a script? How should we address God when we begin to pray? Maybe you have friends who have never prayed and do not know how to start speaking to God— you can teach them how to pray.

God says we should speak to Him as our Father who loves us and desires a close relationship with us. He wants us to share our joys and sorrows with Him. Jesus always communicated with the Heavenly Father. Sometimes, He prayed all night, seeking to draw close to His Father and to receive guidance for His work on earth. The disciples told Him that John the Baptist taught his disciples how to pray, so they wanted Jesus to teach them too. Prayer is simply talking to God as a friend; we do not need to impress others while doing it. Go to your room, pray privately, and speak to God as you would to a friend. We do not need to say too much because God already knows what is in our hearts. Share your joys and sorrows with Him.

Jesus gave His disciples a model prayer called The Lord's Prayer. Prayer relieves our worries and burdens because, through prayer, we entrust our problems to God, who has the power and authority to solve them.

It is good for every child and adult to learn and memorize The Lord's Prayer. God knows our needs, so we do not need to use lengthy prayers, especially in public. We should pray thoughtfully and sincerely, not mindlessly repeating words. When we pray, we should say:

"Our Father who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one. For Thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory, forever. Amen."

Through this prayer, we learn that God is our loving Father. He is real and essential for both our daily lives and eternity. We should ask Him to teach us to obey His voice and submit to Him so that we may become citizens of His kingdom one day. He is the one who provides all our needs— food, clothing, and shelter. We must ask for forgiveness daily and forgive others as well. We should ask God to help us avoid sin and protect us from temptation and the evil ways of the world.

The key to spiritual life is surrendering ourselves to God and avoiding false teachings about the Scriptures, divinity, or miracles. We are only forgiven when we forgive others. If we do not forgive, we will not be forgiven. We should not hold grudges or seek revenge.

When we fast, we should not do it for public attention by looking sad or distressed. Instead, we should anoint our faces to appear normal because our fasting is for God, who sees what we do in secret and will reward us. Though God already knows our needs, expressing our desires through prayer allows Him to act on our behalf with His full authority and power.

Jesus promised to hear our prayers, which is why He taught us how to pray. This prayer includes praising and thanking God, asking for our needs, seeking forgiveness, and forgiving others. We should pray every day because it helps us understand God's ways and share our daily concerns with Him. Our prayers should also include the needs of others, not just our own. God desires to give us everything we need, but some things will only be given if we ask. Through prayer, we give God the authority and freedom to work in our lives.

We should not store up treasures on earth, focusing on material wealth and possessions. Instead, we should prioritize our relationship with God. We should store treasures in heaven by helping those in need and supporting God's work so that more people can hear the gospel. Our hearts will always be where our treasure is. If we love money, our hearts will be filled with it; if we love God and His work, our hearts will be centered on heavenly treasures, and one day, we will join Him.

Jesus knew people worried about life's problems, so He taught them that no one can serve two masters— God and money. We must choose to serve one. Jesus reminded us that even birds are fed by God without working for it, and we are much more valuable to Him. Flowers are beautifully dressed without effort, and God will take care of us even more. Therefore, we should not worry about tomorrow, for each day has enough trouble of its own.

God knows everything we need— our part is to trust Him. Those who trust Him will experience peace that surpasses human understanding, even when life is challenging. This peace does not come from the absence of problems but from Jesus calming the storms in our hearts and carrying our burdens.

Prayer Brings the Power to Overcome – We must put on the full armor of God and be ready to face spiritual battles. When trials and temptations come, let us turn to God in prayer. He will not leave us empty-handed but will give us grace and strength to overcome and break the power of the enemy.

Questions:

1. Why should we not worry about life like worldly people do?
2. Why can no one serve two masters?
3. What does it mean to pray?
4. How often should we pray?
5. How can we store treasures in heaven?
6. Why should we give offerings in secret?
7. Why does faith matter when saving even in earthly banks?
8. Why is it dangerous to love money?
9. Why does The Lord's Prayer say "Our Father" instead of "My Father"?
10. Recite The Lord's Prayer.

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Matthew 6:31-33.

"Therefore do not worry, saying, 'What shall we eat?' or 'What shall we drink?' or 'What shall we wear?' For after all these things the Gentiles seek. For your heavenly Father knows that you need all these things. But seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added to you."

Prayer: Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Your name. Help us not to fear what we shall eat or wear tomorrow, but to seek first Your kingdom and Your righteousness, and all other good things will be added to us. Help us to be humble. For Yours is the kingdom, the power, and the glory, forever and ever, Amen.

Activity: Act out "The Prayer of the Pharisee and the Tax Collector." Discuss the parable of the Pharisee and the Tax Collector (Luke 18:9-14), focusing on how the Pharisee prayed with pride and self-righteousness, while the Tax Collector prayed humbly for repentance and mercy. The activity can include retelling the story, puppet shows, drawing and coloring, to show the importance of a humble heart in prayer, recognizing that true righteousness comes from God and not from self-exaltation. Memorize the Lord's Prayer.

DAY 219 (August 6)

TOPIC: Ask, and it shall be given to you; seek, and you shall find; knock, and it shall be opened to you.

(Luke 11 and Matthew 7)

Jesus continued to say that we should not judge others because when we judge others, we too will be judged with the same measure we use. As human beings, we do not know why a person does what they do or what is in their heart, so we should pray for that person to be changed by Christ Himself. The life of a Christian involves their relationship with God and their fellow human beings. We must first remove the speck in our own eye before we can help remove the plank in someone else's eye. Let us not be hypocrites, pointing out the wrongs others do while we commit even greater sins. The speck is like a grain of sand in the eye, while the plank is like a large pencil in the eye.

Let us pray for wisdom to know when to correct and rebuke, especially when God's name is being blasphemed or when innocent people are being harmed. Being tempted is not an excuse to sin. Do not cast pearls or valuable things to pigs—this refers to people who do not value spiritual treasures.

Jesus gave an example of a man who had visitors at midnight and went to his friend's house to borrow three loaves of bread because his guest, who had arrived from a journey, was hungry and he had nothing to offer. The man inside, due to laziness and sleepiness, said, "Do not trouble me; the door is already locked, and my children and I are in bed. I cannot get up to give you anything." However, because the man outside kept knocking and insisting, the homeowner eventually got up and gave him the bread—not because they were friends, but because of his persistence.

Jesus said that if even a worldly person without God's love can eventually get up and help their neighbor out of persistence, how much more will God do for us? This example contrasts human nature with God's nature, not comparing them. Parables highlight specific lessons and leave out other details.

Jesus said, "Ask, and you shall receive; seek, and you shall find; knock, and it shall be opened to you." Everyone who asks receives, everyone who seeks finds, and everyone who knocks will have the door opened. God is more loving than earthly parents—talk to Him as a friend and as a loving Father through prayer. Trust Him because He loves you deeply. No parent will give their child a stone when they ask for bread, a snake when they ask for a fish, or a scorpion when they ask for an egg. So, if sinful humans know how to give good gifts to their children, how much more will your Father in heaven give to those who ask Him?

Our heavenly Father is ready to give the gift of the Holy Spirit to all who ask Him. Jesus meant that we would be given everything we ask for—things that will not hinder our eternal character. Jesus emphasized the Holy Spirit, who helps us in many ways: reminding us of what to do, assisting us in prayer, comforting us, correcting us when we are wrong, advising us in difficult decisions, strengthening us, and empowering us to share the good news of the Kingdom. Some things we receive immediately when we ask, such as forgiveness of sins, the Holy Spirit, love for others, a spirit of service, or God's grace.

The Holy Spirit is poured out on all His children who believe in Him. The Holy Spirit is God—the third person of the Trinity—just as we know God the Father and God the Son (the Holy Trinity). Another name for the Holy Spirit is the Spirit of God or the Comforter. The Holy Spirit is a gift for everyone, whether child or adult. Jesus also promised His disciples before leaving that He would give them the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit is very important and has the character of Jesus—He is our friend and companion.

Jesus went on to say that we should do good to others, for that is the fulfillment of all the Scriptures, both the Law and the Prophets. There are only two paths: one with a narrow gate and the other with a wide gate. The broad path, which appears smooth and attractive, leads to destruction, but the narrow and less appealing path leads to eternal life.

Jesus also warned, "Beware of false prophets who come in sheep's clothing but inwardly are ravenous wolves." These false prophets can tear apart and harm God's children. He said that a good tree bears good fruit, while a bad tree bears bad fruit. We must learn to distinguish between true and false prophets.

We are not to judge people but to recognize them by their fruits. Good fruits include love, peace, joy, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, and self-control. Bad fruits or works of the flesh include witchcraft, hatred, jealousy, anger, discord, sexual immorality, envy, impurity, idolatry, drunkenness, quarrels, and similar things. Only those who do the will of the Father will enter the Kingdom of Heaven—these are the ones who bear good fruits.

On the last day, many will claim they prophesied, cast out demons, and performed miracles in the Lord's name. But the Lord will say, "I never knew you; depart from Me, you who practice lawlessness." There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

Anyone who hears God's words and acts on them is like a wise man who built his house on the rock. When the rains came, the winds blew, and the floods rose, the house did not fall because its foundation was on the rock. However, those who do not follow God's words are like a foolish man who built his house on sand. When the storms came, the house collapsed with a great crash. Even today, we must build our faith and hope on the Rock—Christ.

Jesus also warned that our way of life determines our eternal destiny. Many will claim to have performed miracles, but the Lord will reject them because they did not live by His principles.

When Jesus finished speaking on the mountain, the crowds were amazed by His teachings because He taught with authority, unlike the scribes and Pharisees. Even His actions displayed divine authority—no human could do what He did. His voice reached everyone without a microphone, and everyone felt the message was personally relevant. After finishing His teaching, He came down from the mountain, and His disciples followed Him.

Jesus also mentioned how John the Baptist came to prepare the way, but people did not listen. They criticized John for not eating bread or drinking wine, calling him demon-possessed. When Jesus came, eating and drinking, they called Him a glutton and a friend of tax collectors and sinners. These people were impossible to please—they criticized every servant of God while considering themselves righteous.

We must build our lives on the teachings of Jesus, not on human ideas or selfishness.

Pray with faith. Align your lifestyle with your prayers to receive the blessings you seek. Let your faith not weaken, for the blessings you receive correspond to the faith you exercise.

“According to your faith, let it be done to you” (Matthew 9:29).

“If you believe, you will receive whatever you ask for in prayer” (Matthew 21:22).

Pray, believe, and rejoice. Praise God because He has answered your prayers. Trust in His promises, for “He who promised is faithful” (Hebrews 10:23).

God desires to do great things for us. Our duty is to pray and believe. Stay vigilant in prayer and cooperate with the God who hears prayers. Remember, “We are co-workers with God” (1 Corinthians 3:9).

Speak and act in accordance with your prayers—it will make an eternal difference.

Questions:

1. Why should we not judge others?

2. What does “Do not cast pearls or valuable things to pigs” mean?

3. In your opinion, what things will you receive when you pray, and what things will you not receive?

4. How is a person who built their house on sand described?

5. Why did the man who was asleep get up to give his neighbor bread?

6. Who is the Holy Spirit?

7. What is the work of the Holy Spirit?

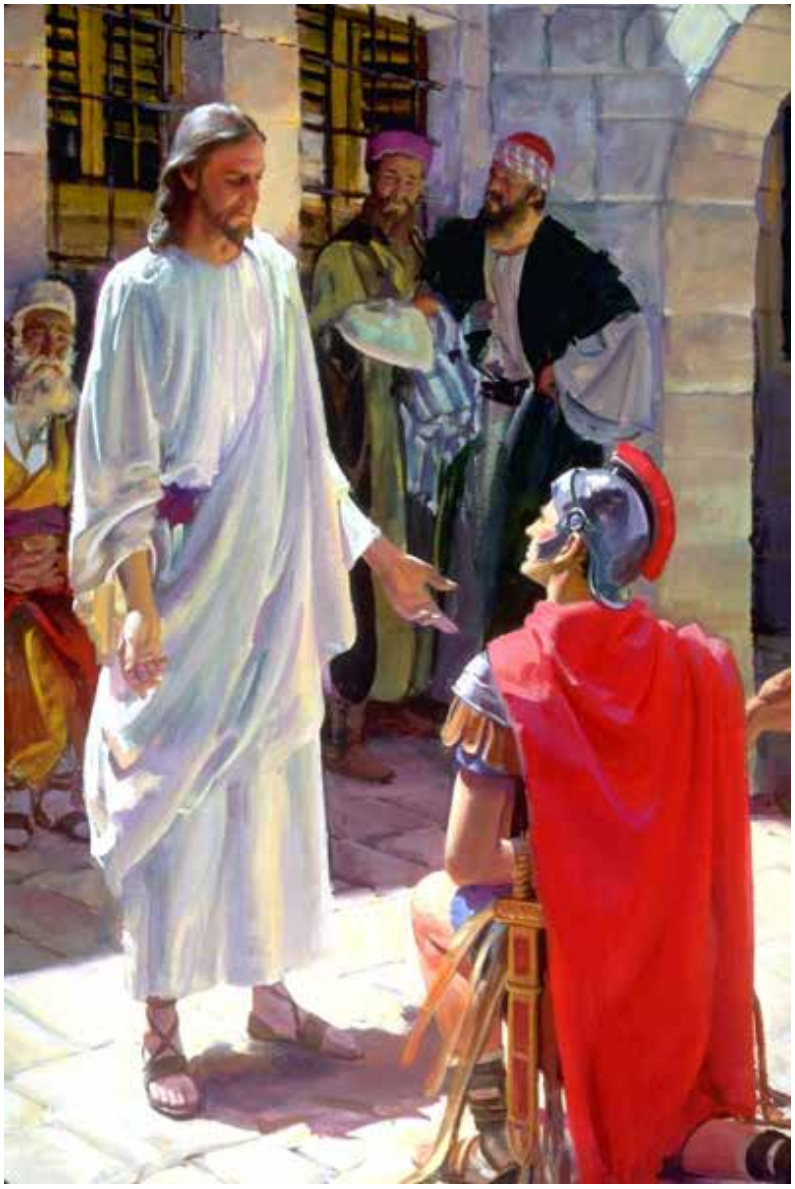
8. Mention four ways to identify a false prophet.

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Matthew 7:7-9.

“Ask, and it will be given to you; seek, and you will find; knock, and it will be opened to you. For everyone who asks receives, and he who seeks finds, and to him who knocks it will be opened. Or what man is there among you who, if his son asks for bread, will give him a stone?”

Prayer: Father, thank You for the six promises You gave in these verses, and today we ask You to help us reach people. We are knocking so that we may be changed and given the robe of righteousness, and we are seeking from You the love of Agape.



Activity: Act out asking for bread at night (Luke 11:5-13). Or carve out a speck and a plank and place them to compare. Or show a strong house and a weak house, or rotten fruits and good ones.

DAY 220 (August 7)

TOPIC: The Centurion's Servant is Healed

(Luke 7)

After finishing His teachings on the Mount of Blessings, Jesus entered Capernaum. There, a servant of a certain Roman centurion was sick and near death. When the centurion heard about Jesus, he sent some Jewish elders to ask Him to come and heal his servant. This centurion loved people, including his servants. He had moved beyond the Roman prejudice and hatred toward the other nations they had conquered. The elders told Jesus that although the centurion was a Roman, he deserved help because he loved their nation and had even built them a synagogue. He cared for their community and ensured their well-being.

The elders did a good thing because, in those days, the Jews believed that when the Messiah came, there would be a great feast, but only Jews would be invited, and the Gentiles would not share in any blessings. Although servants were considered of low value, even less than property, this centurion loved people and was kind to those who worked for him.

Jesus sought to reach everyone—people in power, the poor, the tall, the short, foreigners, locals, women, children, and men. Wealth and status never intimidated Him. His priority was always to save souls. Even today, we should not fear sharing the Good News with people in high positions—whether they are children of the rich, ministers, presidents, kings, business leaders, or military commanders. All these people need to hear the gospel. Often, such individuals are neglected because people are afraid to approach them, thinking they are too protected or too proud. We should let go of such thoughts because many people in authority are spiritually thirsty and only lack someone to tell them the truth.

Jesus went with the elders, but when He was near the house, the centurion sent someone to tell Him not to trouble Himself by coming because he felt unworthy to have Jesus enter his home. He said, “Just say the word, and my servant will be healed. For I am a man under authority, and I command soldiers to go here or do this or that.” He did not want to appear as if he were commanding Jesus, knowing that Jesus was the Lord, representing the power and authority of heaven and earth. The centurion believed that whatever Jesus said would happen. He saw himself as unworthy before the Lord. While the Jewish elders argued that he deserved help because of his kindness, the centurion recognized that Jesus was the Commander of an innumerable army of angels and the Lord of all lords.

Jesus was amazed and turned to the crowd following Him, saying, “I have not found such great faith in Israel.” Indeed, this Gentile centurion was willing to acknowledge Jesus and declare his faith publicly. Jesus says that if we are ashamed of Him, He will also be ashamed of us; but if we confess Him, He will confess us before His Father. When those sent by the centurion returned to his house, they found the servant healed at that very hour—exactly when Jesus had spoken. It was the seventh hour when Jesus gave the command. Jesus had power over location, time, and distance.

Perhaps some people were envious that a Gentile received such praise, but that was the truth! Even today, when we are tempted to favor people from our tribe, race, or family while excluding others, we should remember that God shows no favoritism. Whether someone is rich or poor, Chinese or African, large or small, salvation is for everyone. Only He can save us because He is the Father of us all.

After this, Jesus went to a town called Nain, accompanied by His disciples and a large crowd. As they approached the town gate, they met a funeral procession carrying a young man—the only son of a widow. In those days, a widow without a son faced significant hardships. She could be mistreated and left without a place to live or land to farm. Many people were accompanying her, weeping to show their compassion and support.

This young man was his mother’s only hope since children cared for their aging parents or supported them in times of trouble, especially sons. Seeing the grieving mother, Jesus was moved with compassion. He approached the coffin and touched it. The pallbearers stopped to see what He would do. Then Jesus commanded the dead man, “Young man, I say to you, arise!”

At first, the people laughed, thinking Jesus did not understand that the young man was dead. But their laughter turned to silence as they saw the dead man rise, sit up, and begin to speak. The Bible does not specify his words, but he might have said, “Mother, why are you crying?” or “Why am I being carried?” or even “Thank you, Jesus, for giving me life to help my mother.”

Indeed, Jesus is the resurrection and the life. Death cannot remain where He is present. Jesus showed mercy and compassion to those who were suffering. He returned the young man to his mother. Fear gripped the crowd, and they glorified God, recognizing that a great prophet had arisen among them and that God had come to help His people. What they did not realize was that Jesus was more than a prophet—He was the Messiah and the Son of God.

News of this miracle spread far and wide. What began as a sorrowful procession to the graveyard became a joyful return to the widow’s home, with her living son walking beside her. What incredible joy!

Anyone who has lost a loved one—a parent, child, sibling, or friend—knows the deep pain of death. When we lose someone dear to us, let us remember that Jesus has the same power today that He had when He told the young man in Nain to arise. One day, He will raise everyone from their graves when He returns in the clouds to gather His people to live forever. Those who were raised in Bible times lived for 50 or 70 more years, but those resurrected at the second coming of Christ will live for eternity.

Today, His words also bring us back to life from spiritual death. Many have abandoned their faith and been destroyed by sin. If we trust in Jesus today, He will lift us up and give us the power to walk again in righteousness. If our spiritual eyes were opened, we would see how often Jesus saves us from death and evil without us even realizing it.

When trials and hardships come, do not rely on human help. Instead, trust in God completely. Telling others about our problems often weakens us and does not provide them with any real power to help. We should seek strength from God, who never fails and has no limits.

Questions:

1. What did the Jewish elders say to Jesus about the Roman centurion?

2. What did the centurion tell Jesus?

3. Why was the widow crying?

4. What did Jesus do when He approached the coffin?

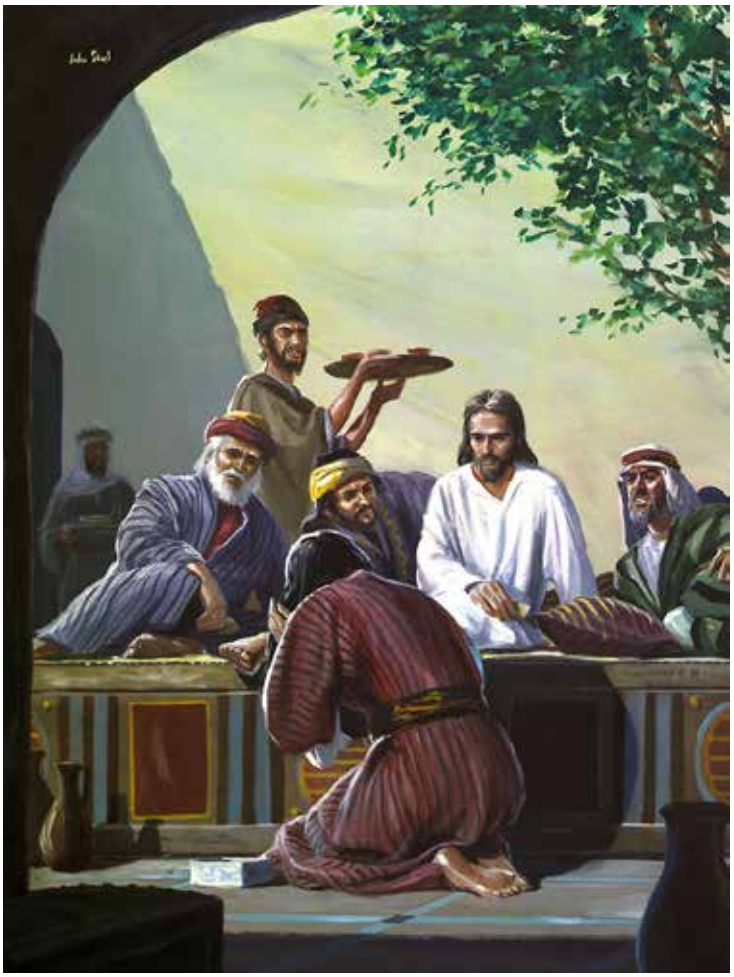
5. Why is eternal life important?

6. According to Scripture, where does a person go after death?

7. Can we say that the Pharisees and Sadducees had their issues, but Gentiles like the Romans were more open to accepting the Lord? Discuss!

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Luke 7:6-8.



[6-8] …"Lord, do not trouble Yourself, for I am not worthy that You should enter under my roof. Therefore I did not even think myself worthy to come to You. But say the word, and my servant will be healed. For I also am a man placed under authority, having soldiers under me. And I say to one, 'Go,' and he goes; and to another, 'Come,' and he comes; and to my servant, 'Do this,' and he does it."

Prayer: Lord, thank You for healing, and we are grateful that You have made us worthy to come before You through the blood of Jesus Christ. Praise be to You, our King.

DAY 221 (August 8)

TOPIC: Mary Magdalene and the Perfume of Love

(Luke 7, John 12)

A man among the Pharisees named Simon the Leper, who had been healed of leprosy by Jesus, invited Jesus to his house for a meal, and they sat together. Many people were present, hoping to see Lazarus, whom Jesus had raised from the dead, or to meet Jesus and present their problems to Him. The resurrection of Lazarus convinced many that Jesus was the Messiah. Lazarus was living proof of Jesus' greatness, and it is said that some wanted him dead to erase the evidence of Jesus' power.

Behold, a woman who was a sinner, known for her life of prostitution, learned that Jesus was in Simon's house, reclining at the table. She brought with her a jar of expensive perfume made from pure nard, worth about three years' wages, desiring to express her gratitude to Jesus.

This was the same woman from whom Jesus had cast out seven demons and had saved from being stoned to death. Because of this, she was ready to follow Jesus wherever He went and to serve Him, for she knew exactly who He was. She loved to listen to His teachings and desired to express her thankfulness to Him. She wanted to be free from Satan's power and was ready to dedicate herself fully to God. This is the same woman to whom Jesus had said, "Go and sin no more."

Even today, if God has delivered us from the grip of Satan, we must surrender to Him daily, seek to do His will, and follow His commandments to avoid falling back into Satan's grasp.
Mary Magdalene stood behind Jesus, near His feet, weeping tears of gratitude. She began to wash His feet with her tears, wipe them with her hair, kiss them, and anoint them with the perfume. Many might not have understood what was happening, but the fragrance filled the entire house.

When Simon the Pharisee saw this, he thought to himself, "If this man were a prophet, He would know who is touching Him and what kind of woman she is—that she is a sinner." Others also began to speak amongst themselves, and Mary may have felt embarrassed, thinking, If only the ground would open and swallow me. She worried about what Jesus would say—would He agree with Simon?

But Jesus, being the Lord, knew Simon's thoughts. He said to him, "Simon, I have something to say to you." Startled, Simon replied, "Say it, Teacher."

Jesus then told a parable: "A certain creditor had two debtors. One owed five hundred denarii, and the other fifty. Neither of them had the means to repay him, so he forgave both debts. Which one of them will love him more?"

Simon answered, "I suppose the one who was forgiven the larger debt."

"You have judged correctly," Jesus replied. Then, turning toward Mary, He said to Simon, "Do you see this woman? I entered your house, and you did not give Me water for My feet, but she has wet My feet with her tears and wiped them with her hair. You did not give Me a kiss, but she, from the time I entered, has not stopped kissing My feet. You did not anoint My head with oil, but she has anointed My feet with perfume."

"Therefore, I tell you, her many sins have been forgiven—as her great love has shown. But whoever has been forgiven little loves little."

Through this, Simon realized that Jesus was indeed the Lord because He could read thoughts. According to the customs of the time, Simon should have offered water to wash Jesus' feet, greeted Him with a kiss, and honored Him with oil, but he had failed to do so.

Simon thought he was honoring Jesus by inviting Him, but he realized he had not even fulfilled basic acts of hospitality. Yet, Jesus did not expose Simon's faults publicly, even though He knew them. However, Simon had hoped Jesus would expose Mary's sins.

Jesus accepts any gift we bring to Him—whether it is a simple flower picked by a child or something as valuable as gold. When Jesus finds us, He does not leave us the same; He transforms us to become better people.

Simon did not understand the depth of God's love and mercy. He believed that sinners should be immediately rebuked or avoided. But Jesus said to Mary, "Your sins are forgiven."

At this, those reclining at the table began to wonder, "Who is this who even forgives sins?" But Jesus reassured Mary, saying, "Your faith has saved you; go in peace."

Judas Iscariot, the disciple who would later betray Jesus, objected when he saw the expensive perfume. He said, "Why wasn't this perfume sold for three hundred denarii and the money given to the poor?"

Mary may have feared her family would criticize her for wasting money. However, Jesus settled the matter, knowing that Judas was not genuinely concerned for the poor—he was a thief who used to steal from the disciples' money bag. Despite his position as treasurer, Judas was ready to betray Jesus for thirty pieces of silver.

Jesus did not publicly shame Judas, even though He knew his wickedness. This teaches us not to publicly humiliate others, even when we know their faults. Instead, we should speak to them privately and pray for them.

Jesus told Judas, "Leave her alone; she has kept this perfume for the day of My burial. The poor you will always have with you, but you will not always have Me."

That night, Judas left Simon's house and went to the chief priests to arrange Jesus' betrayal, receiving thirty pieces of silver.

Even today, Satan and bad friends do not love us. After using us, they discard us like empty containers. Only God knows our true value, for He is our Creator. The value of a human being can only be measured by the death of Christ, not by human standards, no matter how powerful they may seem.

Mary Magdalene later became one of Jesus' faithful disciples. She stood by Him at the cross, witnessed His burial, and was the first to see Him after His resurrection. She also received the Holy Spirit among the 120 disciples on the day of Pentecost.

Let us, like Mary, express our love for Jesus while we and others are still alive. Do not wait until people die to show them love.

Questions:

1. Why did Simon the Leper doubt Jesus?

2. Was Judas Iscariot genuinely willing to help the poor?

3. What great act did Mary perform?

4. What gift will you give to Jesus today?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Luke 7:47.

[47] "Therefore I say to you, her sins, which are many, are forgiven, for she loved much. But to whom little is forgiven, the same loves little."

Prayer: Thank You so much Lord, forgive us our sins. We pray that we may love You as Mary loved You. Protect us from the evil one so that we may not be discouragers like Judas. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Anoint someone's feet with fragrant ointment, then share the discouraging words of Simon and Judas.

DAY 222 (August 9)

TOPIC: Martha and Mary – Two Sisters Who Served Jesus

(Luke 10)

As they continued their journey, the disciples and Jesus arrived at the home of their friends, Martha and Mary. They welcomed Him joyfully because they loved this famous Teacher. When He arrived, all their worries melted away. Mary Magdalene, her sister, and their brother named Lazarus lived in Bethany, about four kilometers from the city of Jerusalem. Jesus loved to visit this home because of their friendship and hospitality. They were also His disciples. They showed kindness to Jesus by providing Him with food and a place to stay.

They may have also taken care of His personal needs, like washing His clothes and other tasks. These siblings loved having Jesus as their guest and rejoiced every time He came. They served Him by cooking and offering other forms of hospitality we give to guests who visit or stay in our homes. Can you think of some of these acts of kindness? They believed in Jesus, and whenever He entered their home, people would gather, leading to many guests to serve.

Martha appears to be the eldest or perhaps the owner of the house. She welcomed Jesus into their home, or maybe they had invited Him to stay with them as He passed through the city. Her sister Mary, instead of helping Martha prepare food for the guests, sat with the men in the living room, eager to hear the words of hope from Jesus. Martha waited for Mary to come and help stir the fire or cook the food, but she never came. The twelve disciples and other guests remained in the living room close to Jesus, listening to His words while Mary was refreshed by His teachings.

Wouldn't you also want to sit near the greatest Teacher in the world and listen to Him? Martha signaled Mary to come, but Mary was focused on listening to Jesus. So, Martha eventually came to complain to Jesus because her signals seemed to go unnoticed. She asked why Jesus, the loving Lord and Teacher, didn't care that her lazy sister had left her to serve alone. Martha spoke openly without fear, expressing her frustration directly rather than addressing it privately. She felt that although Jesus was kind, He seemed to favor her younger sister. She said, "Lord, don't You care that my sister has left me to do the work by myself?"

If you think about it, even in today's world, Martha had a valid point. When more than thirteen men, including the Lord Himself, enter your home, you naturally rush to prepare a meal. Perhaps they had not eaten for a while, and it would not be wise or considerate to sit idly and leave the work to someone else. However, the Lord answered, "Martha, Martha, you are worried and upset about many things, but few things are needed—or indeed only one. Mary has chosen what is better, and it will not be taken away from her."

Jesus appreciated Martha's hospitality, knowing that preparing food and serving guests takes time, especially without modern conveniences like gas stoves, electricity, or today's easy-to-use cookware. However, He was also impressed by Mary's choice to prioritize seeking God's kingdom first by listening to His words—words she believed would guide her for a lifetime, unlike physical food, which satisfies only temporarily. Everything has its place; Jesus was not saying that preparing food was unimportant. Instead, He encouraged Martha to find a balance so she could also listen to the Bread of Life Himself—spiritual nourishment from heaven.

Jesus told the Jews, and He tells us today, that He is the Bread of Life. Just as He was physically present with the Jews for a short time, we should also prioritize hearing His holy words over other concerns. It is not a valid excuse to skip attending church to prepare meals for guests. Other tasks can wait for a little while. Martha fully understood this message, and she likely felt grateful because it is easy to get distracted—especially for women who are busy preparing meals.

It is wrong to let cooking or cleaning prevent you from attending worship services, no matter how many guests you have. Let us never fall into that habit. It is wise to organize our time to receive both physical food and the Word of Life because the food we eat is temporary, while God's Word is eternal. Remember, we have only a short time to receive these words before the door of grace closes.

Work and play are important. For a child to grow well, they need to play—it helps them imitate real-life situations and learn valuable lessons. However, we must not forget to seek God's kingdom first. Before going to bed, we should read God's Word. We should pray and ask for His blessings. Before eating, we should also read the Bible and pray. If you think you don't have time, try this: don't eat until you've made time to read the Word of God—you will feel hungry and find the time to nourish your soul as well!

Prayer and Faith Will Work Wonders
I fear that the critical and essential faith we need is lacking. Are we not fighting against discouragement and temptations that seek to break our spirits? God is merciful, and if we rejoice in the truth that sanctifies and enriches our lives, we can do great and lasting work for Him. Prayer and faith will accomplish amazing things. The Word must be our weapon of warfare. Miracles can be performed through the Word because it is profitable for everything.

Questions:

1. Why was Martha burdened?

2. Why did Mary seem unconcerned?

3. Why didn't Jesus criticize either Martha or Mary?

4. Why is it good to invite guests?

5. Do you read God's Word before eating?

6. How can we be like Mary in a busy, Martha-like world?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Luke 10:41-42

[41] "Martha, Martha, you are worried and troubled about many things. But one thing is needed, and Mary has chosen that good part, which will not be taken away from her."

Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father, help us not to be troubled by many things, but only to choose that good part, which is You Yourself. Help us to love and obey You. Forgive us. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A play of Martha and Mary.

DAY 223 (August 10)

TOPIC: The Sower, Jesus Teaches in Parables

(Mark 3 and 4)

Even Jesus' family struggled to understand His mission and divinity. One day, they tried to seize Him because they had heard from others that He was out of His mind. They thought He would cause problems with the authorities because He had left His carpentry work, was walking around with unusual disciples, sometimes went without eating, and did other things they considered strange. The scribes said, "Isn't this the Son of David?" Without realizing it, they were calling Him by the title He deserved and the one foretold in prophecy. They never denied that He came from the royal lineage—they knew the Messiah would be the Son of David—but their mistake was stopping there!

They were amazed when a mute man possessed by a demon could speak after Jesus cast the demon out. This man thanked Jesus because he had never spoken since childhood. He had struggled, unable even to call on Jesus for healing. Imagine living without hearing your child laugh or sing. But when he was healed, he could finally hear the sounds of birds singing, children playing, and neighbors celebrating his healing. Perhaps his first words were, "Thank you, Jesus." Being grateful is both good and essential. This man had stored thousands of unspoken words in his heart, and now his tongue was loosed to speak.

Instead of rejoicing, others accused Jesus of casting out demons by Beelzebul, the prince of demons. Jesus questioned how Satan could drive out Satan. Any kingdom divided against itself cannot stand. If Satan opposes himself, his kingdom cannot endure but must come to an end. Jesus meant that if His works were from Satan, how could He be casting out demons and causing them to tremble in His presence? The demons wanted to flee when they saw Him, begging to enter a herd of pigs to escape His presence. Their fear of Jesus showed clearly that they did not want to associate with or cooperate with Him.

Seeing that their words were blasphemous, Jesus warned them, "Truly, I tell you, people can be forgiven all their sins and every slander they utter, but whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit will never be forgiven; they are guilty of an eternal sin." He said this because they were accusing Him of being possessed by an evil spirit. The Holy Spirit is the One who convicts us of sin and leads us to repentance (John 16:8). If we harden our hearts and repeatedly ignore His voice, eventually, we will no longer hear His warnings, and our conscience will no longer convict us of wrongdoing.

If you are wondering whether you have committed the unforgivable sin, rest assured you have not! Those who have committed it no longer care about sin or their spiritual condition.

Jesus also said, “Whoever is not with Me is against Me, and whoever does not gather with Me scatters.” A good tree bears good fruit, while a bad tree bears bad fruit. In the same way, a person’s words reflect the condition of their heart. Jesus warned against careless speech, saying that everyone will give an account for every empty word they have spoken on the Day of Judgment. The scribes and Pharisees had become so self-righteous that they no longer saw themselves as sinners.

When the scribes and Pharisees demanded a sign, Jesus replied that no sign would be given to them except the sign of Jonah. He explained that the people of Nineveh would rise at the judgment and condemn that generation because they repented at Jonah’s preaching. Even the Queen of Sheba (Ethiopia) would stand in judgment against them because she traveled far to hear Solomon’s wisdom, yet someone greater than Solomon was present among them—Jesus Himself—but they rejected Him.

These two examples—Nineveh and the Queen of Sheba—show that even people from pagan nations recognized the truth and repented, while the religious leaders of Israel, despite having Jesus Himself, refused to believe.

Jesus warned that when an impure spirit is cast out of someone and the person’s heart remains unchanged, the spirit returns with seven others more wicked than itself, leaving the person worse off than before. This illustrates what happens when someone rejects the truth and refuses to listen to God’s voice.

At one point, Jesus’ mother and brothers came to see Him, but because the crowd was so large, they sent someone to call Him. Perhaps they had heard the Pharisees’ accusations and wanted to persuade Him to stop. The Bible doesn’t specify their reasons, but every family tries to offer advice to their loved ones. Jesus’ siblings did not fully understand His mission. Instead of supporting Him, they sometimes caused Him pain, making it easier for Him to stay with friends like Lazarus.

Jesus responded, “Who are My mother and My brothers?” He answered His own question, saying, “Whoever does God’s will is My brother and sister and mother.” This means that doing God’s will is what truly makes someone a member of God’s family.

Are you joyful knowing you are part of God’s family? If your family rejects you for following Jesus, take comfort in knowing that even Jesus’ own family thought He was ruining His life. However, after Jesus’ resurrection, His family came to believe in Him and even wrote some books of the Bible.

Even today, those who dedicate their lives to serving God without worldly rewards are often considered strange or even crazy. Yet, Jesus reminds us that if we leave everything for His sake, we will receive many blessings both now and in eternity.

Jesus began teaching in parables, using everyday things to explain heavenly truths. One of His most famous parables is the Parable of the Sower:

A sower went out to sow. Some seeds fell on the path, and birds ate them. Other seeds fell on rocky ground, sprouted quickly, but withered under the hot sun because they had no roots. Some seeds fell among thorns, and the thorns choked the plants, preventing them from bearing fruit. But some seeds fell on good soil and produced a bountiful harvest—thirty, sixty, and even a hundred times what was sown.

Jesus explained that the seed represents God’s Word. The different soils represent the conditions of people’s hearts. Some hear the Word, but Satan immediately takes it away. Others receive it joyfully but fall away when trouble comes. Some hear it but are distracted by life’s worries, wealth, and desires. But those with good hearts receive the Word, hold onto it, and bear much fruit.

Let us not lose heart in sowing the Word. If we faithfully sow, we will surely reap a harvest.

Questions:

1. What did the Jews accuse Jesus of when He cast out demons?

2. What does “Satan cannot drive out Satan” mean?

3. Who are Jesus’ mother and brothers? Are you His sibling today?

4. What do the seeds that produced fruit represent?

5. What does it mean to blaspheme the Holy Spirit?

6. Where did the sower’s seeds fall, and what do those places symbolize?

May God greatly bless you, child and youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Mark 4:2-4.

[2] Then He taught them many things by parables, and said to them in His teaching: “Listen! Behold, a sower went out to sow. And it happened, as he sowed, that some seed fell by the wayside; and the birds of the air came and devoured it. Some fell on stony ground, where it did not have much earth; and immediately it sprang up because it had no depth of earth. But when the sun was up it was scorched, and because it had no root it withered away…”

Prayer: Father, we thank You. Help us not to grieve Your Spirit. Help those who are persecuted by their families and others. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: The parable of the Sower. Bring seeds and small seedlings as you explain.

DAY 224 (August 11)

TOPIC: The Parables of Jesus – The Wind Obeys Him

(Mark 4, Matthew 8)

When Jesus taught in parables, He began with an agricultural example. He said that the kingdom of heaven is like a man who scatters seed on the ground. While the man sleeps, the seed sprouts and grows, though he does not know how—only God knows. However, another person came and sowed weeds among the wheat, so both the grain and the weeds grew together. When a servant asked if he should pull up the weeds, he was told no—he should wait until the harvest, when the difference between the wheat and the weeds would become clear.

When the harvest came, the man brought his sickle to gather the crop he had planted. On that day, he separated the wheat from the weeds. The wheat represents those who obey and have faith in Him, while the weeds represent the wicked. The weeds will not be in heaven, as they were burned in the fire. The weeds symbolize people who continue in their own ways without surrendering to Jesus. Do you think anyone wants to be like the weeds?

When you wonder why some people in the church behave in ways that raise questions, or why some who claim to love God lack love themselves, you may realize that these could be the "weeds." However, do not judge them—leave the judgment to God. When Jesus calls someone, He wants them to die to their old way of life.

Then Jesus gave another parable. What shall we compare the kingdom of God to? It is like a mustard seed which, when planted, is the smallest of all the seeds on earth. Yet, when it grows, it becomes larger than all garden plants and produces large branches where the birds of the air can nest in its shade.

With many such parables, Jesus—the Great Teacher—taught the people. Luke, the physician, recorded about nineteen of these parables. Jesus always spoke in parables to the crowds but explained everything privately to His disciples and to those who were humble and willing to learn. He showed how these parables related to the kingdom of heaven. All who humbly poured out their hearts to hear and obey His Word were transformed in remarkable ways by His teachings.

The greatest miracle of all is that God forgives our sins and helps us live victorious lives. These parables made His teachings easier to understand. Two-thirds of Jesus' parables focused on money or possessions. He did this to reveal where a person's heart truly lies—because a person's heart is where their treasure is, meaning what occupies their thoughts most often, such as wealth or material things.

That evening, Jesus told His disciples to cross to the other side of the lake. Leaving the crowd behind, they took Him along in the boat. Suddenly, a fierce storm arose, and waves crashed over the boat, filling it with water. Meanwhile, Jesus was at the back of the boat, asleep on a cushion—resting in perfect peace. The frightened disciples woke Him, saying, "Master, save us! Don't you care that we are perishing?" Without panic or fear, Jesus arose, rebuked the wind, and said to the sea, "Peace! Be still!" Immediately, the wind stopped, and a great calm followed. Creation recognizes the voice of its Master—whether it be the wind, demons, water, plants, or all natural forces—they obey Him.

Jesus then asked the disciples, "Why are you so afraid? Do you still have no faith?" Filled with awe, the disciples asked each other, "Who is this, that even the wind and the sea obey Him?" They began to understand that this was God with them, for only God has such absolute authority. Indeed, the disciples were in the greatest classroom ever—being taught by the greatest Teacher of all time. God Himself was instructing them face to face. I have often wondered what it would be like to have such an opportunity!

The disciples were building their character upon the foundation of Christ so that they could help others gain eternal life. They had witnessed many miracles, yet they still sometimes forgot who He was, thinking He was merely another human being. While He was fully human, He was also fully God—there has never been, and never will be, anyone else like Him.

Even today, Jesus calms the storms in our hearts. In all of life's storms, call upon Jesus from the depths of your heart, saying, "Lord, save me!" and He will bring you deliverance. Sometimes it may seem as though He is asleep and unaware while we face danger, but in every situation, He has the power and authority to save.

With sincerity of heart and a hunger for spiritual things, cry out to God. Strive earnestly in prayer until you receive victory. Commit your entire being—soul, body, and spirit—into the hands of the Lord. Decide to become His beloved servant, fully dedicated to His will, guided by His wisdom, and filled with His Spirit.

Questions:

1. What do the weeds and the good crop represent?
2. Why did the wind obey Jesus' voice?
3. What is the mustard seed compared to?
4. Why did many of Jesus' parables focus on money or possessions?
5. Why did Jesus speak in parables?
6. Why is everyone's life experience a school for building character to become like Christ?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Matthew 4:9-13.

[9-13] And He said, He who has ears to hear, let him hear. When He was alone, those around Him with the Twelve asked Him about the parable. And He said to them, To you it has been given to know the mystery of the kingdom of God; but to those who are outside, all things come in parables, so that seeing they may see and not perceive, and hearing they may hear and not understand, lest they should turn, and their sins be forgiven them. And He said to them, Do you not understand this parable? How then will you understand all the parables?

Prayer: Thank You, Father, for removing fear from us in the storms of life. Thank You for protecting us from the enemy who sows tares. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

DAY 225 (August 12)

TOPIC: The Twelve Apostles Go to Work

(Matthew 10, Luke 9)

When the time for Jesus' birth arrived, the Israelites had mingled with people who did not believe in or love the things of God. They had adopted traditions, customs, and other beliefs that made them unfaithful to God. Even the Pharisees, who had the Scriptures of Truth, became hypocritical and corrupt. Jesus began to rebuild the church, and the apostles were His first followers. When Jesus chose the apostles, He took time to organize and structure the church as an institution so that when He ascended to heaven, they would continue His work.

The apostles were the first leaders of the Christian church, and their influence extends to future generations up to the present day. We stand on the shoulders of these men, and all of us stand on the chief foundation, which is Jesus Christ. This apostolic church worked faithfully, teaching the truth. As Christians today, we must follow everything they wrote and left for us until that glorious morning when Jesus will appear in the clouds with the trumpet sound, along with angels, to take us to live with Him forever.

They did not have office buildings or church meeting places to plan their missions. They carried out their work on mountains, by the sea, and in open spaces. They saw much of creation—like the blue skies and green grass—and their hearts were comforted as they listened to their Teacher share parables.

Jesus knew the weaknesses of each disciple. Some sought positions of power, others had quick tempers, and some were dissatisfied with the Roman government. They traveled and lived with Jesus for three and a half years, learning how to save souls. John, the youngest and the one who loved to stay close to Jesus, gives us a deep picture of God's power to transform anger into love. We do not read anywhere that Jesus called Judas to join His group. Perhaps Judas joined with hopes of gaining a position in the new government he expected Jesus to establish after overthrowing the Romans. Jesus did not drive him away, and others saw him as a good man working for God, although sadly, his intentions were far from pure.

Judas was selfish and greedy, but Jesus gave him the opportunity to change if he chose to. Jesus corrected the apostles when they were wrong, but they were not offended or tempted to join another group. The closer they were to Jesus, the closer they became to one another, agreeing on what they did. Jesus did not assign angels to save humanity—this work was given to people like you and me. Despite our flawed characters, Jesus is ready to teach us to become like Him. Jesus helped the apostles understand that His kingdom was not about overthrowing Rome but was far greater than any earthly nation.

Jesus did not heal the sick and cast out demons by Himself only—He also gave the disciples the authority to do these things. All twelve cast out demons and healed the sick. The apostles became both preachers and healers. Jesus sent these twelve with instructions not to go to the Gentiles or the Samaritan towns but to start with the lost sheep of Israel. He told them to preach that the kingdom of heaven was near. They were to heal the sick, raise the dead, cleanse those with leprosy, and cast out demons. They were not to charge for these services because they had received the power freely, and they should give it freely.

He told them not to take gold, silver, copper, a bag, extra clothes, a staff, or sandals because a worker is worthy of their support. When they brought the good news to people, those people were expected to provide for their needs. He instructed them to find a trustworthy and hospitable person in any village they entered and stay with them until they left the area. Upon entering a house, they were to offer peace, and if the house was deserving, their peace would rest on it. If not, their peace would return to them.

If anyone refused to welcome or listen to them, they were to leave that house or town and shake the dust off their feet as a testimony against the rejection. Jesus warned that it would be more bearable for the wicked cities of Sodom and Gomorrah on the Day of Judgment than for towns that rejected the message of God.

The apostles were given authority and the ability to perform great works, but Jesus also warned them about the Sadducees, Pharisees, priests, and the council of elders. He told them that He was sending them out like sheep among wolves because many people love evil and do not want to hear God's message. He advised them to be as wise as serpents and as innocent as doves.

Jesus warned them to be careful of people because they would be handed over to local councils and flogged in synagogues. They would be brought before governors and kings because of Him, as a testimony to them and the nations. Even today, millions of believers face persecution, especially in countries within the "10/40 window" (latitude and longitude), like North Korea, Somalia, and many others. Look at a map to see this window! We must remember these people in our prayers. Some countries are also experiencing wars, which disrupt public worship for many believers.

These trials allow people in high positions to hear the message and prepare for God's kingdom. Jesus told the apostles not to worry about what to say when they were arrested because God's Spirit would speak through them. At that time, family members would betray one another to death—parents against children and children against parents. They would be hated by everyone because of Jesus, but those who endure to the end will be saved.

When persecuted in one town, Jesus told them to flee to another to continue sharing the good news of God's kingdom and the coming judgment. He assured them that they would not finish spreading the message to all the towns of Israel before the Son of Man comes.

A student is not above their teacher, nor is a servant above their master. It is enough for the student to be like their teacher. If people called Jesus "Beelzebul," how much more would they mistreat His followers? Jesus told them not to be afraid because nothing is hidden that will not be revealed. Whatever He told them in secret, they were to proclaim openly. They were not to fear those who could kill the body but could not kill the soul. Instead, they were to fear the one who can destroy both soul and body in hell.

The apostles went out to all the towns of the region, preaching and healing every kind of disease.

When Jesus said He had given them authority to tread on snakes and scorpions and not be harmed by poison, He did not mean they should purposely handle snakes or drink poison to test their power. It meant that if these things happened accidentally while spreading the gospel, they would be protected.

In the 1800s, some people held snakes and drank poison, claiming God would protect them. This is foolishness and a misinterpretation of Scripture. Similarly, when Jesus said, “If your eye causes you to sin, pluck it out,” He did not mean to take it literally—otherwise, the world would be full of blind people who still sin.

Tell Jesus your needs with sincerity of heart. You do not need to engage in a long debate or sermon with God. With a heart broken over your sins, simply say, “Save me, Lord, or I will perish.” There is hope for such souls—they will seek, knock, and find. When Jesus removes the burden of sin, your heart will be refreshed by the peace of Christ.

Questions:

1. Why didn’t Jesus drive Judas away, even though He knew his heart?

2. Why should we not worry about what to say if we are taken to court?

3. Why did Jesus say a student is not greater than their teacher?

4. What is the difference between the church of the priests like Annas and the apostolic church Jesus established?

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Matthew 10:1, 2.

He called His twelve disciples to Him and gave them authority to drive out impure spirits and to heal every disease and sickness.

Prayer: Thank You, Lord, we pray that we may deny ourselves and follow You. Thank You for giving us the power to cast out demons and to heal every disease and sickness. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Teach the children and youth, then send them out two by two—through role play or in real life.

DAY 226 (August 13)

TOPIC: Sending the Seventy Disciples on a Mission

(Luke 10)

The Lord Jesus gathered seventy disciples, apart from the twelve, and sent them two by two ahead of Him to every town and place He intended to go. This helped ease the work and ensured that people understood the message of God well so that they could make informed decisions about the good news. He told these seventy, "The harvest is plentiful, but the laborers are few; therefore, ask the Lord of the harvest to send laborers into His harvest." Even today, the harvest is plentiful—many people are ready to hear the news of God's coming kingdom, but both children and adults are often too busy or fail to give it attention. However, it is a command for us, even if we cannot do much, to pray fervently for the Lord to send laborers to work in His field. Every child, adult, and elder can do this.

He told them that He was sending them out like lambs among wolves. They were not to carry a purse, bag, or sandals. Some people were cunning and opposed the light because Satan used them; outwardly, they appeared to be good people, but they were the wolves. Others acted as spies among them, intending to capture and imprison them. The apostles were told that whoever received them was receiving Him, the Son of God, or the Heavenly Father. They were instructed not to greet people on the road or waste time with lengthy stories or gossip, as their mission was urgent and required focus.

Any house they entered, they were to bless it with peace, showing that they came as people of peace with a sincere desire to help others with eternal matters. If the hosts were unwilling to learn God's Word and caused trouble, they were to leave, and their peace would return to them. If they found a person willing to hear the message of God's kingdom, they were to stay in that house, eating and drinking what was provided, for the laborer is worthy of his wages. They were not to move from house to house, as this would give the impression that they were seeking personal comfort or were difficult to please. Instead, they were to reach others from that central point.

In any town where they were welcomed, they were to eat what was provided, heal the sick, and declare that the kingdom of God had come near. However, in towns where they were not welcomed, they were to leave and publicly declare, "Even the dust of your town that sticks to our feet we wipe off against you. But be sure of this: the kingdom of God has come near." It would be more bearable for Sodom on the Day of Judgment than for a town or person who rejects God's Word. Anyone who listens to God's messengers listens to God Himself, and anyone who rejects them rejects God.

The seventy disciples returned joyfully, saying, "Even the demons submit to us in Your name!" Jesus replied, "I saw Satan fall like lightning from heaven." He gave them authority to trample on snakes and scorpions and over all the power of the enemy, and nothing would harm them. However, He told them not to rejoice because the spirits submitted to them, but to rejoice because their names were written in heaven. The instructions given to the seventy disciples were very similar to those given to the twelve apostles.

These first evangelists are an example for everyone who loves God today—both children and adults. After Jesus ascended to heaven, the apostles recalled His instructions and shared His teachings with the people. Jesus spent more time healing than preaching. His voice was the first sound many deaf people heard, and His face was the first thing many blind people saw after being healed. He brought joy like a bright light. Even today, the work of evangelism should follow His example—feeding the hungry, comforting the sorrowful, and giving hope to the hopeless.

The apostles dressed like ordinary people and went into the towns to share the good news, pray with the people, and read the Scriptures. Those with problems were brought to them for help. The apostles rejoiced in their ability to heal and preach and did not focus on the suffering they faced. Jesus warned them that He was sending them among wolves, but they were to be as wise as serpents and as gentle as doves. Jesus was never arrogant or harsh without cause.

We should avoid arguing to win debates or to convert people to our denomination. Our main goal is to help souls turn to God and follow the Scriptures, not human traditions. It is the gentle words of Jesus that win hearts, not our debating skills or power. Some world leaders, like former U.S. President Bush and Iraq's Saddam Hussein, claimed to defend God, but God does not need human defense—He is all-powerful.

True Christianity is about gentleness, not competition. We may win arguments but lose the spiritual battle. Our true enemy, Satan, wants to distract us with disputes and make us lose sight of our mission. Christianity is about God seeking humanity with love, while religion is humanity seeking God, sometimes through truth and sometimes through error. Only the Messiah reveals the whole truth—He is the Way, the Truth, and the Life.

Jesus wants us not to fear persecution. If we are taken before rulers, He will give us the words to speak. However, we must study the Scriptures because the Holy Spirit will only remind us of what we have already learned. Jesus warned that even their families might reject them. He did not send them to seek suffering but to save lives and speak the truth with love.

Those who love God must prioritize His teachings over human approval. Jesus emphasized that we should not fear those who kill the body but cannot harm the soul. Witnessing about Jesus involves more than just knowing His teachings—it means loving and caring for others. We can misrepresent Jesus by lying, being harsh, selfish, or lazy.

Jesus knew that His followers would always face opposition because Satan constantly fights against God's kingdom. He promised that anyone who helps His messengers is serving Him. The Apostle John wrote that if the sea were ink, the sky were parchment, the trees were pens, and everyone a writer, it would still be impossible to record everything they learned from Jesus.

When the apostles reported their successes, Jesus took them aside to pray and rest. They had been so busy serving others that they had not taken care of their physical needs. Jesus knew they needed rest and time to reflect. Even today, rest is vital for anyone serving others to prevent exhaustion and spiritual weakness. We must spend time studying the Scriptures, praying, and reflecting to maintain a strong relationship with God.

God Answers Prayers of Faith with Power
When people devote themselves like Elijah and possess faith as he did, God reveals Himself in mighty ways. When people pray earnestly like Jacob, God's power will be seen again.

Questions:

1. What is the difference between the seventy disciples and the twelve apostles?

2. Who are the wolves and the lambs in today's world?

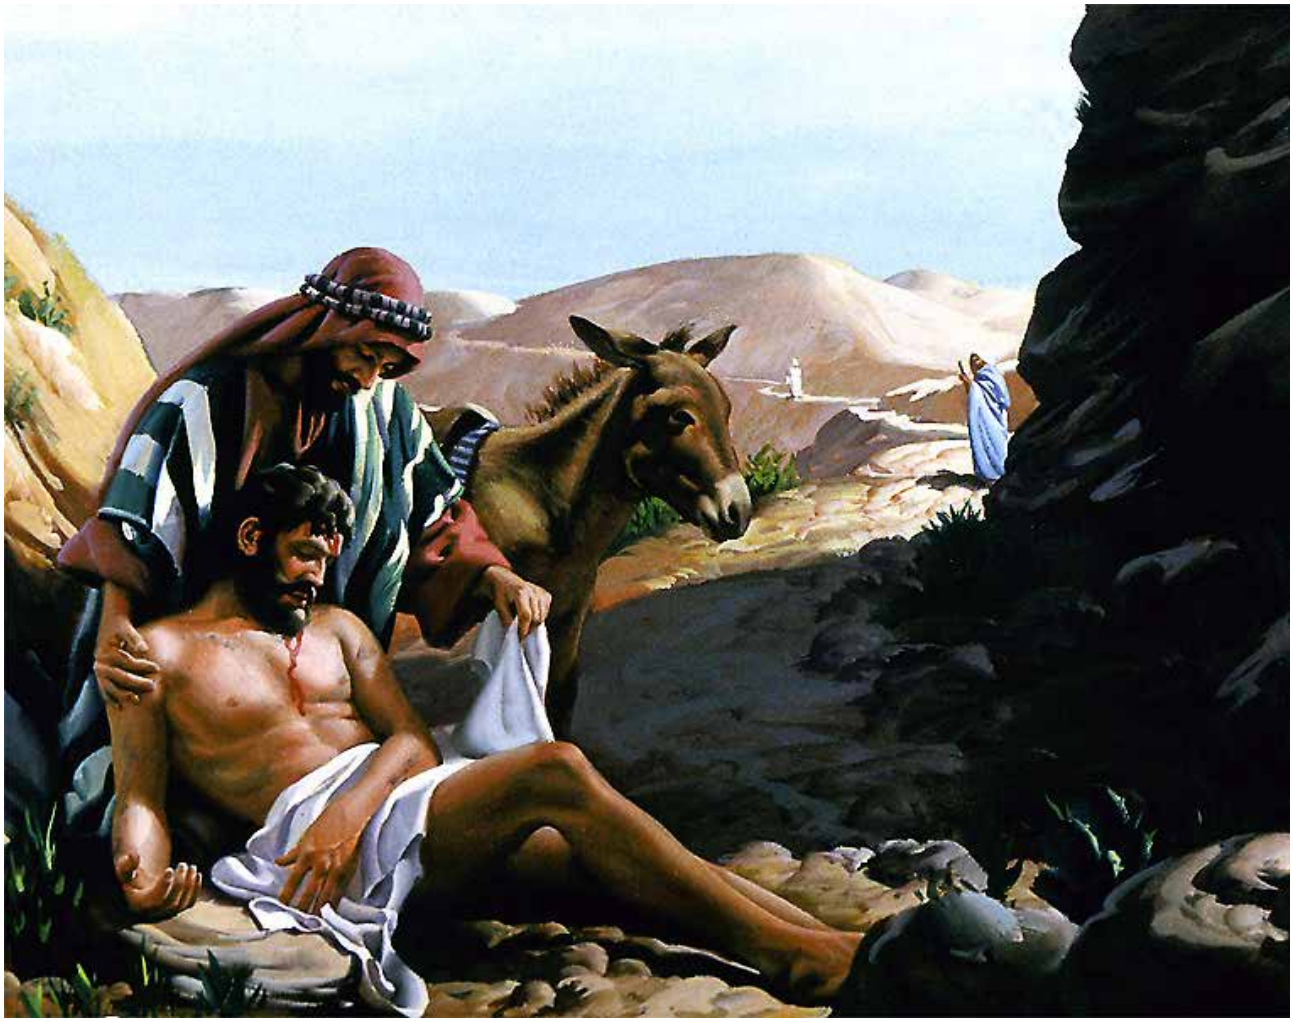
3. Why did Jesus tell the disciples to rejoice?

4. What authority did Jesus give the disciples?

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Luke 10:5-7.

[5-7] When you enter a house, first say, 'Peace to this house.' If someone who promotes peace is there, your peace will rest on them; if not, it will return to you. Stay there, eating and drinking whatever they give you, for the worker deserves his wages. Do not move around from house to house.



Prayer: Thank You for sending the seventy disciples and giving them power to make the work easier. Help us to encourage people as we share the good news. Forgive our sins. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: House-to-house work—methods of visiting homes effectively! Sit down and write these methods from your own experience and from books or others' experiences.

DAY 227 (August 14)

TOPIC: The Good Samaritan

(Luke 10)

The apostles were very blessed because many people longed to see the things Jesus did with their own eyes. King David, Abraham, and others would have leaped with joy to see the Messiah. Even those considered wise were kept from understanding many things, but the apostles were told everything. We are also fortunate today to have the Word of God because we have access to the same teachings the apostles received.

We, too, have the opportunity to help those in need—whether at our schools, with our parents, our siblings, friends, or anyone who requires assistance—just like the Good Samaritan we are about to read about.

It is easy to share the message of salvation by setting a good example of caring for others and showing compassion. Love is the foundation of the kingdom of heaven—loving our God in heaven and loving our neighbors. From childhood, we are often taught to think of ourselves first and to fight for our own needs before considering others. However, in the kingdom of Jesus, we are called to prioritize the needs of others.

In God's kingdom, if you fight battles on your own without relying on Him, you will fail. But if you surrender to Him, you will have victory. When the seventy disciples returned, Jesus rejoiced in the Holy Spirit and said:
"I praise You, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because You have hidden these things from the wise and learned and revealed them to little children. Yes, Father, for this is what You were pleased to do."

He told them that everything had been entrusted to Him by His Father, and no one knows the Son except the Father, and no one knows the Father except the Son and those to whom the Son chooses to reveal Him. Turning to the disciples privately, He said they were truly blessed to witness these things, for many prophets and kings had desired to see what they saw but did not see it, and to hear what they heard but did not hear it.

Indeed, the apostles were incredibly fortunate to stand face-to-face with the Lord Jesus Himself. Wouldn't you also desire such an opportunity?

One day, a lawyer came forward and asked Jesus, "Teacher, what must I do to inherit eternal life?" Jesus, knowing he wanted to engage in a debate, responded with a question, "What is written in the Law? How do you read it?" The lawyer answered correctly, summarizing the entire law:
"Love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your strength, and with all your mind; and love your neighbor as yourself."

Jesus told him, "You have answered correctly. Do this, and you will live."

Wanting to justify himself—perhaps to avoid the responsibility of loving his neighbor—the lawyer asked, "And who is my neighbor?" This was because the scribes were hypocritical, loving themselves and displaying outward piety while lacking genuine love for people or God.

In response, Jesus told a parable:
"A man was going down from Jerusalem to Jericho when he was attacked by robbers. They stripped him of his clothes, beat him, and went away, leaving him half dead. A priest happened to be going down the same road, and when he saw the man, he passed by on the other side. So too, a Levite, when he came to the place and saw him, passed by on the other side.

“But a Samaritan, as he traveled, came where the man was, and when he saw him, he took pity on him. He went to him and bandaged his wounds, pouring on oil and wine. Then he put the man on his own donkey, brought him to an inn, and took care of him. The next day, he took out two denarii and gave them to the innkeeper. ‘Take care of him,’ he said, ‘and when I return, I will reimburse you for any extra expense you may have.’”

Jesus then asked the lawyer, “Which of these three do you think was a neighbor to the man who fell into the hands of robbers?”

The lawyer replied, “The one who showed him mercy.”

Jesus told him, “Go and do likewise.”

Through this parable, Jesus answered the question for all humanity. Even today, our neighbors are not only our relatives, people of the same tribe, those living near us, members of our denomination, or our friends. Our neighbors are anyone in need of our help. Jesus settled the question of “Who is my neighbor?” once and for all.

The Law of Moses instructed people to show kindness and mercy to orphans, widows, strangers, and the poor. The Samaritan risked his safety by stopping on a road known for robbers and worked hard to care for the injured man. Showing compassion and helping those in need, without thinking of ourselves, is crucial.

Do not say, “This is my time to rest, don’t bother me,” or “I don’t owe you anything.” Such attitudes violate the principles of heaven. Some people refuse to help others in hospitals, perhaps because there are few nurses, or because others are unkind. Do not let such things discourage you—help where you can, and God will give you the opportunity and blessing to fulfill your desire to assist others. He Himself will sustain and empower you.

Sometimes, people bring trouble upon themselves, but that does not mean we should refuse to help them. For example, if someone falls and breaks a bone while playing, do not say, “They brought this on themselves!”

A life of loving others and loving God is the key to the kingdom of heaven. God is Love—not just that He has love, but that He is Love itself. Many people from different nations, like the Samaritan, may not have heard the gospel or read the Scriptures, but they live according to the principles of God’s kingdom. By the work of the Holy Spirit, these people become a blessing to others. Even if they do not know God or Jesus Christ as we do, they are still God's children.

Another person once asked Jesus which commandments were the greatest, not to trap Him, but out of genuine interest. Jesus told him he was not far from the kingdom of God.

Following in Jesus' footsteps does not mean going on a pilgrimage to Israel or Egypt, but rather helping those in need—whether they are the lonely, the elderly, orphans, widows, homeless children, or those in need of professional advice or medical care.

For the forgiveness of sins, the Holy Spirit, a Christ-like character, wisdom, strength to do His work, and every other gift He has promised—we can ask. We must also believe that we receive what we ask for and give thanks to God for providing it.

Questions:

1. Why were those who saw and heard Jesus' teachings so blessed?

2. What good deed did the Samaritan do?

3. Who is my neighbor?

4. Why is it easier to help friends, relatives, or those from our tribe?

5. What blessings do we have even though we did not see Jesus face-to-face during His first coming?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Luke 10:27-29.

[27-29] … 'Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your strength and with all your mind'; and, 'Love your neighbor as yourself.' "You have answered correctly," Jesus replied. "Do this and you will live." But he, wanting to justify himself, asked Jesus, "And who is my neighbor?"

Prayer: Thank You, Lord, for giving us hearts of compassion so that we can help those who suffer misfortunes. Help us to love You deeply and to love people. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A role play of the Good Samaritan.

DAY 228 (August 15)

TOPIC: Seek First His Kingdom and His Righteousness

(Matthew 10)

You are more valuable than sparrows, even those that seem unattractive. – Matthew 10:11

Jesus told His disciples that two sparrows are sold for only a penny, yet none of them falls to the ground or dies without the knowledge of the Heavenly Father. Despite their dull gray and brown colors compared to other birds, God still cares for them. How much more does He love us, human beings? Even the very hairs on our heads are all numbered. It is not easy to count the hairs on a person's head—some people today, using machines, can count up to three hundred thousand or even five hundred thousand hairs on a single head. God cares for us deeply and knows everything about us. He knows us better than we know ourselves! We should not be afraid, for we are more valuable than many sparrows. If we acknowledge Him before others, He will also acknowledge us before His Father in heaven. But if we deny Him before others, He will also deny us before His Father in heaven.

And if we fail by denying Him, as the Reformer Jerome did, we should ask for forgiveness and start a new journey of hope. God accepts a broken and repentant heart.

Jesus also told them not to think that He came to bring peace on earth, but rather a sword and division. He came to bring conflict between a man and his father, a daughter and her mother, and a daughter-in-law and her mother-in-law. This means that when one person believes in God and the other does not, tension and strife may arise between them. A person's enemies will be the members of their own household. Anyone who loves their father or mother more than God is not worthy of Him. Anyone who loves their son or daughter more than God is not worthy of Him. Whoever tries to save their life will lose it, but whoever loses their life for Christ's sake will find it.

Jesus knew that believers would be hated just as He was hated. Some people hated Him simply because others were coming to Him for help and guidance. Even today, similar things happen. If you are in school and strive to be obedient and well-mannered, others may dislike you. If you work hard and earn good grades, some children may accuse you of being a show-off. In my experience as a teacher, I have encountered children who deliberately fail or misbehave just to fit in with others. Those who hated Jesus tried to trap or harm Him, but those who loved Him did not follow the wicked crowd—they were willing to do good for Jesus' sake.

Anyone who welcomes a servant of God welcomes God and Jesus Himself. Whoever receives a prophet because he is a prophet will receive a prophet's reward. Whoever welcomes a righteous person because he is righteous will receive the reward of a righteous person. Even if someone gives a small cup of cold water to one of these little ones who is a disciple, they will certainly not lose their reward.

Jesus was saddened when He saw that some cities where He had performed great miracles refused to repent of their sins and turn to God. Because He knew what was in people's hearts, even when they spoke with pretense, He could see through their hypocrisy. He declared, "Woe to you, Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida! Woe to you, Capernaum!" meaning, "I pity you, Chorazin, Bethsaida, and Capernaum," because they had received more opportunities than others to hear the message but did not make the decision to follow God. He said that if the miracles performed in those cities had been done in Tyre and Sidon, the people there would have repented long ago, wearing sackcloth and covering themselves with ashes as a sign of remorse and sorrow.

Jesus warned that it would be more bearable for Tyre and Sidon on the Day of Judgment than for these cities because they had greater opportunities but did not act on them. He even said that if the miracles performed in those cities had been done in Sodom, it would have remained standing to that day and would not have been destroyed. It will be easier for the land of Sodom to endure judgment than for those who have been given the opportunity to hear God's Word and do nothing about it. To whom much is given, much will be required. Even today, those of us who have access to the Scriptures have received much, and therefore, we should read and obey God's Word without delay.

The Pharisees and Sadducees, who were once enemies, became friends because they shared a common opponent—Jesus. Even today, we should avoid such behavior. Instead of making the enemy of our enemy our friend, we are called to love even those we perceive as our enemies and those who seem unlovable.

The teachings of Jesus challenged the traditions of the religious leaders of the time because He did not teach human traditions, customs, or their legalistic rules. His life exposed their corruption and hypocrisy. This caused the leaders to feel as though they were losing their power and status. Although the Roman government was cruel and oppressive, Jesus did not focus on changing earthly governments. Instead, He focused on the hearts of those who claimed to believe in God but lived contrary to His character.

The Holy Spirit touched people's hearts with the truth of God's Word, but they had the choice to accept or reject it. Although Jesus could heal any disease, raise the dead, and teach with remarkable wisdom, He could not force people to open their hearts to Him. Some people, blinded by prejudice and hatred, chose to reject Him despite the evidence before them. A transformed heart is a great miracle, but Jesus does not force us to change—He is willing to perform this miracle if we allow Him.

If we have the privilege of hearing or reading God's Word, we have a responsibility to follow it without delay. Let us not procrastinate by saying, "Tomorrow, I will obey God's Word."

We also need to pray and fast to receive faith, even as small as a mustard seed. In ancient times, this was the smallest seed sown by farmers. Just as a tiny seed can grow into a large plant, even a small amount of faith can accomplish great things.

Let us give God the glory in everything—our thoughts, intentions, words, and actions—because it is by His power that we are able to do all things.

Living by God's Word means surrendering our whole lives to Him. It fosters a sense of ongoing need and dependence, drawing our hearts closer to God. Prayer is essential because it is the life of the soul. While family prayers and public prayers have their place, it is the private communion with God that sustains spiritual life.

Questions:

1. We are more valuable than which birds?

2. What does it mean that our hairs are numbered?

3. Why were Tyre and Sidon praised in comparison to Capernaum, Bethsaida, and Chorazin?

4. Why do wicked people hate the righteous?

5. How can you distinguish between someone being hated for their goodness and being hated for their wrongdoing?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Matthew 10:29-32, 34.

[29-32, 34] Are not two sparrows sold for a penny? Yet not one of them will fall to the ground outside your Father's care. And even the very hairs of your head are all numbered. So do not be afraid; you are worth more than many sparrows. Whoever acknowledges Me before others, I will also acknowledge before My Father in heaven… Do not suppose that I have come to bring peace to the earth. I did not come to bring peace, but a sword.

Prayer: Thank You, our heavenly Father, for Your care. We pray that we may confess You even in times of persecution. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen. Activity: Count your own hair or someone else's, or draw two sparrows.

DAY 229 (August 16)

TOPIC: Carrying the Cross

The cost of being a disciple of Jesus - Luke 12, 14 and Matthew 10.

Jesus told His disciples that there is a cost to following Him. Anyone who wants to follow Him must carry their cross and follow Him, sharing in His sufferings. Throughout the history of the church, people have sacrificed both materially and physically. Some have been imprisoned, tortured, lost their jobs, been mocked, rejected by their families, or even killed for the sake of Christ. Only God knows how much His people have suffered.

Today, many preach a gospel of material prosperity, claiming that those who believe in God will live comfortably and become wealthy. This "prosperity gospel" promises that by following Jesus and giving offerings to certain ministries, people will receive cars, money, mansions, and all kinds of luxury. Some pastors in certain countries have become billionaires, buying private jets and traveling from place to place, and some even misuse the congregation's offerings. Such actions do not reflect what the Messiah desires! The truth is that many believers will not become rich in this world, but ultimately, Jesus will give us rewards far more valuable than earthly possessions. In the end, we will see that heaven was easy to attain, and we did not sacrifice enough to deserve to enter when compared to its glory.

Jesus said He came to bring fire and division. Fathers will be divided against their children, daughters against their mothers, and daughters-in-law against their mothers-in-law. He said that anyone who comes to Him without "hating" their father, mother, child, brother, sister, or even their own life cannot be His disciple. Whoever loves father, mother, friend, or anyone else more than Jesus is not worthy of Him. Whoever does not take up their cross and follow Him is not worthy of Him. Whoever wants to save their life will lose it, but whoever loses their life for His sake will save it. Jesus meant that anything we love more than Him disqualifies us from being His disciple. This includes self-love, attachment to friends, family, or any other thing—He must be the first priority in our lives.

Being a disciple of Jesus means accepting Him as the Christ, the Savior, and the LORD of our lives. We must follow Him as the first priority, with everything else coming second. Accepting Jesus also means understanding that suffering may come, but we should not shy away from sharing the full message out of fear of persecution. Following Jesus requires discipline. Some people feel that Jesus wants to control their lives. The truth is, we cannot live however we please and still be true Christians or God's people. We are in Christ's school to shape our character to be like His. Our character is the only thing we will take to heaven; everything else will be left behind. Therefore, our character must be built and refined to resemble His.

Jesus told the disciples that He must go to Jerusalem, suffer at the hands of the elders, chief priests, and scribes, and then be killed. Peter objected, saying this should not happen, but Jesus rebuked him, saying, "Get behind Me, Satan! You do not have in mind the concerns of God." Our hearts are deceitful—just a few hours earlier, Peter had confessed Jesus as the Messiah and the Son of the Living God, but shortly after, he spoke like Satan. No one should think they stand firm by their own strength, for that is when they are most likely to fall.

Jesus warned that people would expel His followers from synagogues and even kill them, thinking they are serving God. This prophecy has come true, as some people today kill the innocent, believing they are fulfilling God's will. Jesus told His followers to remember that if the world treats them badly, it treated Him the same way. The world loves its own but persecutes those who love God. Before following Jesus, it is important to count the cost. However, nothing the world offers is more valuable than what Jesus gives.

Every dream, thought, ambition, and desire must be surrendered under the authority of Jesus. Every talent, ability, wealth, or valuable possession must be given to Jesus; otherwise, these things will become idols and lead us astray. This includes our personal opinions and ideologies! Athletes, before competing, train diligently—sometimes all day—eating specific foods, staying hydrated, maintaining strict sleep schedules, and more, all to win a medal.

They willingly give up leisure and comfort for the sake of victory. Shouldn't Christians be even more diligent? The rewards of athletes and worldly achievements are temporary, but the prize of running the spiritual race toward heaven is eternal.

Before building a structure, one must calculate the cost to avoid being mocked for not completing it. Likewise, before going to war, a nation must assess whether it can defeat the enemy; if not, it must seek peace to avoid being overpowered. Counting the cost of being a disciple includes being prepared for emotional pain, rejection by society, poverty, imprisonment, or even death. If a hand or foot causes you to sin, it is better to cut it off and enter eternal life maimed than to go to hell with all your limbs. If your eye causes you to stumble, pluck it out—it is better to enter heaven with one eye than to be cast into hell with both.

We must love our enemies, do good to them, and lend to them without expecting repayment. Our reward will be great. Anyone who has left home, spouse, siblings, parents, or children for the kingdom of God will receive much more in this world—and in the world to come, eternal life. Disciples should not be troubled, for Jesus has prepared a place for them so that where He is, they may be also. Hebrews 11 speaks of people of faith who endured great suffering but will rise again in the first and better resurrection.

If we follow Jesus, we must carry our cross. Every Christian has a cross—believers must turn away from worldly pleasures and desires. "Do not love the world or the things in it."

We can communicate with GOD in our hearts; we can walk in fellowship with Christ. As we go about our daily tasks, we can bring our heart's desires—those deep longings no human ear can hear—but God listens. No earthly noise can drown out the soul's cry, which rises above the street sounds and machinery's roar. It is GOD we speak to, and our prayers are heard.

Questions:

1. What does it mean to carry our cross?

2. Why must a person calculate the cost before building or going to war?

3. Why is anyone who loves their father, mother, or relatives more than Jesus not worthy of Him?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Luke 14:27, 28, 33.

[27, 28, 33] Whoever does not carry their cross and follow Me cannot be My disciple. Suppose one of you wants to build a tower. Won't you first sit down and estimate the cost to see if you have enough money to complete it? … In the same way, those of you who do not give up everything you have cannot be My disciples.

Prayer: Thank You, heavenly Father, for the gift of life. Forgive our sins, we pray that You help us to count the cost by surrendering our desires and personal interests. Help us to be faithful even to death. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Draw a picture of yourself carrying the cross. Discuss the meaning of the cost of discipleship. Or use a heavy backpack (according to the child's or youth's strength). Surrender desires, plans, dreams, and personal interests to follow the example and will of Christ, which require obedience, sacrifice, and perseverance—even to the point of death—for faith's sake.

DAY 230 (August 17)

TOPIC: The Kingdom of Heaven is Like a Precious Pearl or a Fishing Net.

(Matthew 13)

Jesus continued to speak in parables, which drew the listener's attention and encouraged reflection. This method also protected those willing to listen from the trouble caused by His critics. After His death and resurrection, many recalled His parables, and their minds became open to the Holy Spirit's work for transformation. Even today, many continue to be inspired to offer meaningful interpretations of these parables, sharing them in various ways to draw people closer to Jesus.

Jesus said the kingdom of heaven is like a merchant seeking fine pearls. When he found one of great value, he went and sold everything he had to buy it. He did not try to bargain or ask for a lower price because he knew it was of great worth.

Even today, we should not focus on doing the minimum to enter heaven. There is an old song first graders used to sing about a farmer who planted potatoes. While digging, he found a diamond—what luck! He threw away his hoe, went to the city, bought himself a car, and became rich. What luck for the farmer! The kingdom of heaven is far more valuable. We must set everything else aside and seek it first because all other good things will follow. Earthly treasures fade away and cannot bring true joy. Therefore, we should prioritize seeking God's kingdom and His righteousness, and all other things will be added to us.

Jesus is the precious pearl—let us seek Him today. Pearls are formed in fascinating ways and are highly valuable. They are created when a grain of sand enters the shell of a sea creature (an oyster). The pearl begins to form as layers build around the grain of sand. Pearls are beautiful and shiny, and people can admire them for hours. Most pearls are about the size of a pea, though some are larger. Pearls can sometimes be more valuable than gold. Divers often search for oysters, but it is rare to find a pearl. When they do, they sell it for a high price because of its beauty and rarity. Anyone who starts a relationship with God and obeys Him has discovered the most valuable pearl.

Jesus also shared another parable, saying that the kingdom of heaven is like a net cast into the sea, gathering fish, crabs, seaweed, and other debris. When the fishermen pulled the net ashore, they collected the good fish and threw away what was useless. This is how it will be at the end of the age—the angels will separate the wicked from the righteous. The wicked will be thrown into the fiery furnace, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

Many wonder why there are wicked people who still call on God's name and attend worship services. The Bible explains that not everyone who calls Jesus "Lord" will enter heaven, but only those who do the will of God. Jesus said that on the final day, some will claim they performed miracles in His name, but He will say, "I never knew you."

What does it mean for God to "know" us? It is not about His awareness that He created us—it means we have fully surrendered to Him, living according to His Word. The English phrase "to surrender" reflects this idea: dying to our old, selfish ways so that Jesus can live through us. Whether young or old, we must not focus on others but remain committed to this spiritual race, which is the greatest competition of all.

Jesus asked if the people understood these teachings. Then He said that every teacher of the law who has been instructed about the kingdom of heaven is like a homeowner who brings out treasures both new and old. This means that everyone who loves God can present timeless truths in a fresh and meaningful way.

Jesus loves us deeply. God sent His only Son to live among us and teach us so that we would hear and obey. Jesus did not teach in schools; instead, He taught wherever people gathered—on mountainsides, by the sea, and in open spaces. He used simple, relatable stories that were easy to understand and share with others.

If Jesus were with us today in our town, where do you think He would teach? What examples would He use? Perhaps He would talk about mobile phones, radios, plastic buckets, airplanes, or buses—things that did not exist in His time. Jesus taught the most important truths of all—God's love, the kingdom of heaven, and eternal life. He emphasized God's Word, prayer, and our relationship with Him and others. We must listen carefully to His teachings because they are more valuable than anything else we can learn in life.

Jesus also taught about Himself, saying He is the Bread of Life, the Good Shepherd, and the True Vine. There are over 300 known names for Jesus. You can read a book called The Name Above All Names, which lists 365 names of Jesus, and there are even more names we will discover in heaven.

Jesus often spoke plainly, declaring that He came from God and that His Father is God. He said He is the Way, the Truth, and the Life—the only path to the Father. His teachings are the foundation of everything good in the world. If we build our lives on His teachings, we will be wise. If we love Him, we must follow His commands and obey Him. God is very close to us. Jesus said eternal life is found in knowing Him because He alone gives the gift of everlasting life.

Everyone desires a long life, free from aging, sickness, and wrinkles. Jesus is ready to hear our prayers and grant us eternal life. By praying and reading His Word daily, we will be reminded of God and guided to follow His ways. Jesus is willing to do everything for us to ensure our salvation. His death on the cross answered every question from angels and God's creation—demonstrating that God loves us. It is not just that God has love—He is Love.

It is amazing that we, as imperfect and sinful human beings, can speak directly to God. What greater power could anyone desire than the ability to communicate with the Almighty, unlimited Creator? Weak and sinful people have the privilege of speaking with their Maker. We can utter words that reach the throne of the King of the universe. We can talk to Jesus as we walk along the road, and He says, "I am at your right hand."

Questions:

1. How can we seek the precious pearl?
2. How is the kingdom of heaven like a fishing net?
3. Where will the wicked be sent, and where will the righteous go?
4. List 10 to 20 names of Jesus.

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Matthew 13:31, 32.

[31-32] He told them another parable: "The kingdom of heaven is like a mustard seed, which a man took and planted in his field. Though it is the smallest of all seeds, yet when it grows, it is the largest of garden plants and becomes a tree, so that the birds come and perch in its branches."

Prayer: Thank You, Lord, that Your kingdom starts small in our hearts and continues to grow. I pray that I may be Your faithful servant in every stage, and that Your kingdom may grow within me and among my neighbors. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Sing the song "The Farmer with a Field" and discuss what a Pearl is! Bring mustard seeds, show them to the children, plant them, and wait for them to sprout.

DAY 231 – (August 18)

TOPIC: Five Loaves and Two Fish Feeding Thousands

(Matthew 14, Mark 6)

Jesus was not only known as a healer but also as a great teacher. When people heard His teachings, they forgot their troubles, and even those who were hungry did not feel their hunger as they listened for hours. His teachings were a magnet for people. He was a fountain and channel of all good things. Jesus spoke using everyday examples. When He sat on a boat by the shore, He used parables to help people's souls. The people remembered these parables, held onto them, and applied them in their lives. When He taught, He did not always give immediate answers—He wanted them to think about the meaning for themselves. Then, He helped those who chose the kingdom of God to understand deeply.

In those days, teaching using parables, proverbs, and riddles was common. He also fulfilled the prophecy that said, "I will open my mouth in parables, I will utter things hidden since the creation of the world." Even today, children and adults enjoy stories and illustrations in sermons. After the crowds left, the disciples would ask Jesus to explain the parables. He told them that the one who sows the good seed is the Son of Man, meaning Emmanuel (God with us). The field is the world, and the good seed represents those who enter the kingdom of God. The weeds are the children of the evil one. The enemy who sows the weeds is the devil, the harvesters are the angels, and at the end of the age, the wicked will be gathered and thrown into the fire of hell, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. But the righteous will shine like the sun in the kingdom of their Father.

People were amazed at His teachings and asked, "Where did this man get this wisdom and these miraculous powers? Isn't this the carpenter's son? Isn't His mother called Mary, and aren't His brothers James, Joseph, Simon, and Judas? And His sisters, are they not all with us? Where did He get all these things?" Jesus told them, "A prophet is not without honor except in his own hometown and in his own household." Sadly, He did not perform many miracles there because of their unbelief. Today, let us pray for faith, because unbelief hinders God from doing great things in our lives. Jesus told Jairus, "Just believe!" So today, as you read this, believe! If you struggle with belief, ask God for faith. It is one of His promises, and He will increase your faith.

At this time, Jesus also received the news of the death of John the Baptist, who prepared the way for Him and was His relative on His mother's side. Saddened, He withdrew with His disciples to a solitary place by boat. But when the crowds heard where He was going, they followed Him on foot and arrived ahead of Him. When Jesus saw the crowds, He had compassion on them because they were like sheep without a shepherd. Perhaps the spiritual leaders at that time were not helpful. Many of the priests were Sadducees, who did not believe in heaven or the resurrection, which discouraged people.

Jesus healed their sick and taught them, often going without food or rest. In the evening, the disciples came to Him and said, "This is a remote place, and it's already late. Send the crowds away so they can go to the villages and buy themselves some food." But Jesus replied, "They do not need to go away. You give them something to eat." The disciples were amazed because there were thousands of people. Philip said it would take two hundred denarii (or thousands of dollars) to feed them all. Jesus asked what they had. Andrew, Peter's brother, found a boy with five barley loaves and two small fish and brought the information to Jesus. This boy may have caught the fish, and his mother likely prepared small loaves for him. That morning, he set out to hear Jesus, unaware that his small lunch would bless thousands—including Jesus Himself. Whatever little you have, if offered to Jesus, can bless many.

Andrew is not mentioned as often as his brother Peter, but he was always working behind the scenes to help things run smoothly. Jesus asked the disciples to bring the five loaves and two fish. Then, He told the people to sit down in groups of fifty on the grass. He took the loaves and fish, looked up to heaven, blessed them, and broke them. He gave them to the disciples, who distributed them to the people. Everyone ate and was satisfied, and they collected twelve baskets full of leftovers. This teaches us not to waste food, for many poor people are in need. If you know you will not finish your food, do not serve more than you can eat. Take a little at a time and finish it before taking more.

If you have extra food or wealth, do not waste it—share with those in need. This miracle shows us that God is the one who provides our daily needs. When we are willing to share with others, He will always ensure we have enough, whether it is food, shelter, or clothing. If God feeds the birds and animals, how much more will He care for human beings, who are more valuable? No matter how intelligent or capable we are, we can only give to others what God first gives us. Our ability to bless others depends on how much we are willing to share.

It is not right to leave the work of sharing God's Word or providing for others only to pastors or church workers. When we are fed by the Word of God, we must also share it with others to receive even greater blessings. Just like the little boy who gave his lunch, we experience joy when we become channels of blessing. When people saw the bread being multiplied, they pointed to the boy, recognizing him as the one who shared. Even though Jesus had all power, He did not give the people luxurious food—He gave them simple bread and fish, and they were satisfied. This shows us that living simply allows us to be generous without being trapped by greed or unnecessary expenses.

Through this miracle, Jesus teaches us that He is the provider of all our needs. Even today, the process of planting seeds and harvesting food is a miracle. The leftover baskets may have been taken home by the disciples to share with others, spreading the blessing even further. When we follow God faithfully, we can be assured that He will meet all our needs. Whenever we face challenges, we should bring them to Him in prayer.

That day, about 5,000 men ate, not counting women and children. If there were 5,000 men, the total number of people could have been at least 15,000. The people said, “Surely this is the Prophet who is to come into the world.” But He was more than a prophet—He was Emmanuel, the Messiah! The boy with the loaves and fish became a blessing because Jesus used what he had. That day changed his life forever.

Even today, children, do not think you have nothing important to offer. Whatever little you have, if given with humility, can be used by God in great ways. If you have guests and the food seems insufficient, pray, and God will multiply it.

If you are willing to help those in need, you will be blessed, and your own needs will be met. Most importantly, you will experience the joy that comes from the Lord.

Questions:

1. How does the devil sow weeds today?

2. Why are there no weeds in heaven?

3. How can you prevent the devil from sowing weeds in your life?

4. Why didn’t Jesus perform many miracles in His hometown?

5. Why did Jesus ask the people to sit in groups of fifty?

6. Why is it important to feed the hungry?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Matthew 6:36, 37.

[36-37] Send the people away so that they can go to the surrounding countryside and villages and buy themselves something to eat. But He answered, "You give them something to eat." They said to Him, "That would take more than half a year's wages! Are we to go and spend that much on bread and give it to them to eat?"

Prayer: Thank You, Father, for the daily bread You give us. We pray that You help us to feed the hungry and thirsty, and clothe those without garments. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Loaves and biscuits shaped like fish, etc.! Read this passage carefully and act it out.

DAY 232 (August 19)

TOPIC: Peter Walks on Water

(Mark 6)

After feeding the crowd with bread, Jesus realized that the people wanted to seize Him and make Him king because they had received food. They thought a king who could provide plenty of food would keep their stomachs from growling with hunger. These people also wanted someone with the power to deliver them from Roman rule. However, Jesus was not a political leader but a spiritual one. Even for someone who desired to lead these people, it was a challenging task because they were fickle—one moment, they were angry and resentful, and the next, they were filled with love and joy.

The disciples were also exhausted from carrying hundreds or thousands of baskets of bread. Jesus withdrew to the mountain to be alone and pray; He compelled His disciples to go ahead of Him to the other side while He dismissed the crowd. Afterward, He went up the mountain to pray alone. By evening, while He was still alone, the disciples' boat was in the middle of the sea, struggling against the waves because the wind was strong. They wished Jesus were with them to keep them safe.

Yet, Jesus had not forgotten His friends. Around three o'clock in the morning, as the disciples were distressed, Jesus came to them, walking on the sea as if it were dry land. The disciples were terrified, thinking He was a ghost or a spirit, and they cried out in fear because they knew the force of gravity would not allow an ordinary human to walk on water without sinking.

Jesus told them, “Take courage! It is I. Do not be afraid.” Even today, He speaks these words to each of us—say them aloud and believe them. Peter responded, “Lord, if it is You, command me to come to You on the water.” Jesus said, “Come,” and Peter did what no other human had ever done—he stepped out of the boat and began to walk on water.

He walked successfully until fear and doubt crept in. Perhaps he looked at his companions and proudly thought that he was special for walking on water instead of giving glory to God’s power. As soon as he lost focus, he began to sink and cried out, “Lord, save me!” This is recorded as the shortest prayer in the Bible.

Even when we pray short prayers, the Lord hears us—especially prayers for deliverance from evil. There are several prayers that God cannot refuse to answer, such as “Lord, save me from sin,” “Forgive me,” “Show me Your true way,” “Reveal Yourself to me,” “Make me Your instrument,” “Teach me to be generous,” “Show me the purpose of my pain or struggles,” “Grant me wisdom,” “Give me courage and patience,” “Show me why I am here on earth,” and “Bring good out of my suffering.”

Jesus stretched out His hand, caught Peter, and said, “You of little faith, why did you doubt?” When they got back into the boat, the wind ceased, and the disciples worshiped Him, saying, “Truly, You are the Son of God.”

In Gennesaret, they met the two men who had been possessed by demons and lived among the tombs. These men had been healed and had become missionaries. When people recognized Jesus and His disciples, they sent word throughout the region, begging to touch even the hem of His garment, and all who touched it were healed. The former demoniacs had spread the news everywhere, and Jesus and His disciples came to reap the harvest of precious souls.

The following day, people searched for Jesus. They did not see the boat arrive, but they noticed the disciples were alone, so they went to Capernaum to look for Him. When they found Him, they asked, “Rabbi, when did You come here?” Jesus realized they were not seeking Him for salvation or because they recognized Him as a prophet but because they had eaten the bread and were full.

He told them that the food that endures to eternal life is what the Son of Man will give them—the words of eternal life from God. They asked, “What must we do to perform the works of God?” Jesus replied, “Believe in the One He has sent.” They mentioned that their ancestors ate manna in the wilderness and said Moses had given them this sign.

Jesus corrected them, saying that it was not Moses who provided the bread but God Himself who gives the true bread from heaven. The people then asked for this bread so they would never be hungry again. Jesus declared, “I am the Bread of Life. Whoever comes to Me will never go hungry, and whoever believes in Me will never be thirsty.”

He continued, “All whom the Father gives Me will come to Me, and I will never drive away anyone who comes to Me. I have come down from heaven not to do My own will but the will of Him who sent Me. And this is the will of Him who sent Me—that I should lose none of those He has given Me but raise them up on the last day. Everyone who looks to the Son and believes in Him shall have eternal life, and I will raise them up on the last day.”

The Jews murmured against Him because He said He was the Bread that came down from heaven. They questioned, “Is this not Jesus, the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know?”

Jesus told them, “No one can come to Me unless the Father who sent Me draws them. God Himself will teach humanity. Anyone who listens to the Father and learns from Him comes to Me.”

Jesus revealed Himself to the people. Only those guided by the Spirit could recognize Him; those who did not allow God’s Spirit to lead them remained in darkness. Jesus said, “The Father loves the Son and has entrusted all judgment to Him. Whoever does not honor the Son does not honor the Father.”

He explained that anyone who hears His words and believes in Him has eternal life and will not be condemned but has passed from death to life. He declared that a time would come when the dead would hear the voice of the Son of Man and rise from their graves—those who have done good will rise to eternal life, while those who have done evil will rise to face judgment.

Jesus said He could do nothing apart from His Father's will, and John the Baptist had testified about Him. Although John was a lamp that burned brightly for a time and people rejoiced in his light, Jesus' testimony was greater because He was the Son of God.

He told them, "You search the Scriptures thinking they give you eternal life, but the Scriptures point to Me. Yet you refuse to come to Me to have life." He knew they did not have the love of God within them because, although He came in His Father's name, they did not accept Him.

Jesus warned them that Moses, in whom they placed their hope, would be their accuser. If they truly believed Moses, they would believe Him, for Moses wrote about Him. But since they did not believe Moses' writings, how could they believe His words?

God's word is like a ladder or a chain—if we reject one part, the entire truth is compromised. The Ten Commandments are also like a mirror—if one part is broken, the whole mirror is shattered.

Pray, and you will receive. Ask for humility, wisdom, courage, and an increase in faith. Every sincere prayer will be answered—it may not come in the way or time you expect, but it will come in a manner that meets your true needs. Prayers offered in solitude, weariness, or trials are always heard by God—not always as expected, but always for your ultimate good.

Questions:

1. Why did the people want to make Jesus king?

2. Why were the disciples afraid when they saw someone walking on water?

3. What do you think caused Peter to sink?

4. Can you remember a short prayer you have prayed?

5. How did Jesus know these people did not have the love of God in their hearts?

6. Why do people prefer physical food over the Word of God?

7. Can reading God's Word and then eating be helpful to these people?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Matthew 14:27-30.

[27-30] But Jesus immediately said to them: "Take courage! It is I. Don't be afraid." "Lord, if it's You," Peter replied, "tell me to come to You on the water." "Come," He said. Then Peter got down out of the boat, walked on the water and came toward Jesus. But when he saw the wind, he was afraid and, beginning to sink, cried out, "Lord, save me!"

Prayer: Our dear Father, thank You for the gift of this new day. Guide every thought, word, and action. Help me today to love You deeply and to trust You fully. Give me peace in whatever I face. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Take a basin or bowl, fill it with water, and place something like a paper clip—it will sink. Or have each child or youth spend time in private prayer—what should they pray for? Then discuss together.

DAY 233 (August 20)

TOPIC: Some Disciples Turn Back and Others Abandon Him

(John 6)

Jesus told them that the will of God who sent Him was that He should not lose even one. Everyone who looks to the Son of God has eternal life. Some of the Jews murmured because He said He was the bread that came down from heaven—meaning the bread of heaven or manna—saying, "Is this not the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? How can He say He came down from heaven?"

Jesus told them that no one can come to Him unless God draws them. He emphasized that He is the Bread of Life from heaven, meaning the Word of God. He told the people that the manna their ancestors ate in the wilderness did not give eternal life because they died, but whoever feeds on the Word of God will live forever.

The Jews argued among themselves, asking, "How can this man give us His flesh to eat?" Jesus repeated, "Truly, truly, I tell you, unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink His blood, you have no life in you. But whoever eats My flesh and drinks My blood has eternal life, and I will raise them up on the last day. For My flesh is true food, and My blood is true drink. Whoever eats My flesh remains in Me, and I in them, and they will live because of Me, just as I live because of the Father."

He spoke these words in the synagogue in Capernaum as a figurative speech or parable. We know that God does not want us to eat human flesh or drink human blood. Jesus did not mean literal eating or drinking. Even today, we know that cannibalism is a sin. In societies that do not know God, cannibalism is still not acceptable, and those who practice it are punished by death because someone must be killed for others to eat them. Some communities, such as those in Papua New Guinea, were known for practicing cannibalism for many years, even in this century. Many missionaries who went to preach were killed and eaten.

When Jesus said these words, He did not mean that people should eat human flesh. But when His disciples heard this, they found it a hard teaching and asked, "Who can accept it?" Knowing that His words troubled them, Jesus said, “Does this offend you? Then what if you see the Son of Man ascend to where He was before?” Jesus knew that some among them did not believe.

Because of this, many of His disciples turned back and no longer followed Him. Jesus asked the remaining twelve disciples, “Do you also want to leave?” Peter answered boldly, “Lord, to whom shall we go? You have the words of eternal life. We have come to believe and know that You are the Holy One of God.” It was then that Jesus began to reveal that one of them would betray Him.

We must be ready to hear the words of life, even when they are difficult to understand. The disciples misunderstood Jesus’ symbolic language and took His words literally.

It was also the time of the Feast of Tabernacles, one of the three major Jewish festivals that symbolized Jesus. The Jews, in their blindness, sought to kill Him. His brothers told Him to go to the festival so that people could see His works and not perform miracles in secret. Even His brothers did not believe in Him until after His death and resurrection. Jesus told them that His time had not yet come, so while His brothers went to the festival openly, He went later in secret.

The Jews searched for Him at the festival but did not find Him. When the festival was halfway over, Jesus went to the temple and began to teach. The people were amazed and asked, “How did this man get such learning without being taught?” Some wondered, “Why is He speaking publicly while others seek to kill Him?” They were not spiritually enlightened due to their hardened hearts.

They thought that when the Messiah came, no one would know where He was from, so they doubted Jesus. They even insulted Him, calling Him a Samaritan possessed by a demon. Their pride and hypocrisy blinded them, while little children had their eyes opened and worshiped Jesus. Although they sought to seize Him, no one laid a hand on Him because His time had not yet come. Yet some believed in Him, saying, “When the Messiah comes, will He perform more signs than this man?”

Opening the Heart to a Friend
Prayer is opening the heart to God as to a friend. It is not to inform God of who we are but to enable us to receive from Him. Prayer does not bring God down to us but lifts us up to Him.

When Jesus was on earth, He taught His disciples how to pray. He instructed them to present their daily needs before God and cast all their burdens on Him. The assurance He gave them that their prayers would be heard is the same assurance for us today.

Questions:

1. Why did Jesus' brothers not believe in Him?

2. Why did Jesus have knowledge even though He had not studied?

3. Is formal education the only way to become knowledgeable? What is knowledge?

4. Can someone be more knowledgeable than a university graduate without attending university?

5. Why did some of Jesus' disciples turn away and abandon Him?

6. How did Peter respond boldly when asked if he wanted to leave?

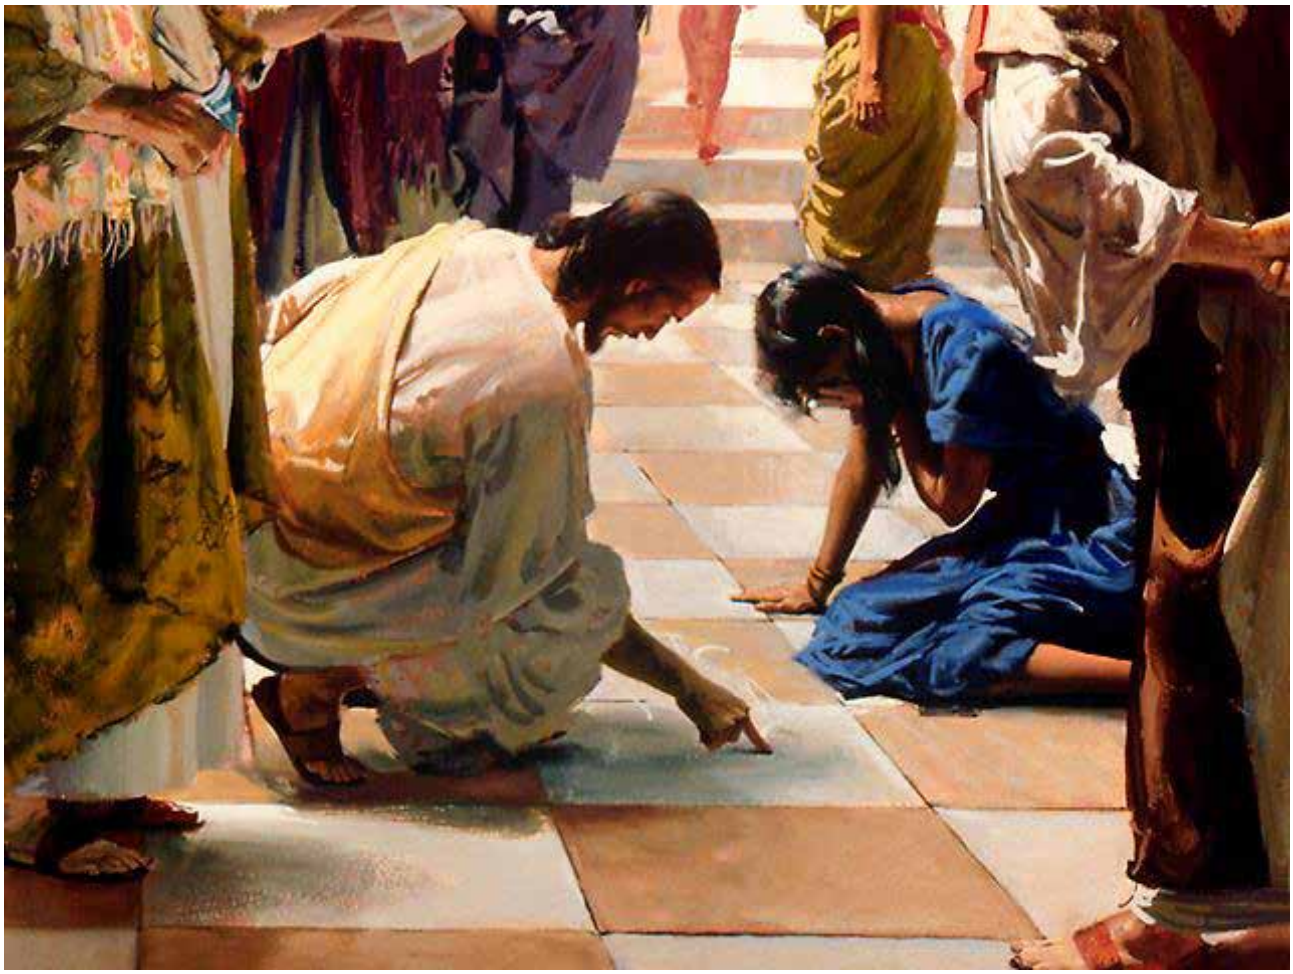
7. What did Jesus mean when He said He is the Bread of Heaven and the Living Water?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: John 6:51.

[51] I am the living bread that came down from heaven. Whoever eats this bread will live forever. This bread is My flesh, which I will give for the life of the world.

Prayer: Dear heavenly Father, You are our bread of life. Guide me to glorify You and to know that You alone satisfy my soul. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.



Activity: Cut bread into pieces and place it in a plate or basket. Discuss the meaning of the bread of life, or the sacrament/communion or the Lord's Supper and its significance.

DAY 234 (August 21)

TOPIC: The Woman Caught in Adultery

(John 8)

On the last day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried out, saying, "If anyone thirsts, let him come to Me and drink. Whoever believes in Me will have rivers of living water flowing from within them," meaning that everyone who believes in Him would receive the Spirit of God. Many believed in Him, but others said, "The Christ does not come from Galilee, but from Bethlehem." They did not even want to ask whether He was truly born in Bethlehem but was later taken to Nazareth in Galilee as a child. Everyone who asked God to reveal the truth was shown this mystery. Some wanted to arrest Him but were unable to lay hands on Him, and when the officers sent by the chief priests and Pharisees were asked why they had not arrested Him, they answered, "No one has ever spoken like this Man!" And this was true—no one had ever lived or acted as He did!

These officers had already been shown that He was the Messiah. But the Pharisees mocked them, saying, “Have you also been deceived? Do you think you have more spiritual knowledge than we do?” Then Nicodemus said to them, “Does our law judge a man before hearing him and knowing what he is doing?” Nicodemus was secretly a disciple of Jesus. He loved Jesus but feared people and sought to please men rather than God. The priests and Pharisees answered, “Search and see that no prophet comes from Galilee!” They read the Scriptures with their minds, but their hearts were filled with hatred and wickedness. They did not realize that the very Word Himself was among them—the One who had inspired the writing of the Scriptures and knew them completely! Yet, He still continued to learn every day. These poor people did not know who they were standing before! Even today, we need spiritual eyes to know God, and by knowing Him, we receive eternal life.

When we read God’s Word today, it is not just to gain knowledge but to transform our lives. Had they done even a little research about where Jesus was born, as the Scriptures in Micah 5:2 say, they would have easily recognized Him. Furthermore, the Scriptures reveal that the prophet Jonah came from Galilee, yet they claimed no prophet had ever come from there—this showed the limitations of their knowledge. If they had asked God to show them the truth, they would have known that Jesus is the Light of the world, and whoever follows Him will never walk in darkness but will have the light of life. May God help us to remove darkness today—let us not wait for tomorrow!

Jesus went to sleep on the Mount of Olives, and in the morning, He returned to the temple, where people gathered around Him to be taught. It was there that the scribes and Pharisees brought a woman caught in adultery, dragging her along. They brought her alone, without the man, intending to trap Jesus. They said, “In the Law, Moses commanded us to stone such women. What do You say?” According to the Law of Moses, both parties caught in adultery were to be brought forward and judged in court with witnesses before receiving the death penalty. However, under Roman rule at that time, only the Romans had the authority to carry out executions, so the Law of Moses could not be enforced independently. If Jesus said they should not follow the Law of Moses, they would accuse Him of being a false prophet or a traitor to the Jewish faith.

But Jesus knew the hearts of men and did not need anyone to tell Him what they were thinking—He could see their thoughts clearly. The woman trembled with fear, her clothes torn from being dragged, as she tried to hide her face in shame. When Jesus looked at her accusers, He saw people without compassion and knew their thoughts. Their lack of love saddened Him. Without answering them, He bent down and began to write on the ground with His finger. We do not know exactly what He wrote, but it appears His words convicted them. Knowing their hearts and intentions, Jesus continued writing on the ground in silence.

These people knew they were not without sin themselves. Some think Jesus may have been writing down their sins, because after they continued questioning Him, He stood up and said, “Let the one who is without sin among you be the first to throw a stone at her,” and then bent down again to write. Their consciences convicted them, and they began to leave one by one until no one remained.

Jesus stood up and saw only the woman, and He asked her, “Where are your accusers? Has no one condemned you?” When she said no, He told her, “Neither do I condemn you. Go and sin no more.” This woman was Mary Magdalene, the one who later anointed Jesus’ feet with perfume.

The sin of adultery brings fear, diseases, anxiety, unwanted pregnancies, guilt, evil thoughts, and even social exclusion. That day, adultery almost cost Mary her life. Jesus did not tell her to continue in sin—no! He forgave her and commanded her to leave her sinful life. Only God can perfectly balance mercy and justice!

Even today, many people are harmed or killed due to infidelity. Others suffer from mental illness caused by immoral sexual behavior. Mary was rescued from this sin. Some fall into such sins due to bad friends or the lure of money. Solomon warns young people against being led into immorality by their peers, saying, “Daughters of Jerusalem, do not arouse or awaken love before it is time.” It is not only boys who lead girls into sin—bad friends of any kind can be a bad influence. Young people should guard their purity in thoughts, words, and actions. If someone tries to lure you into sin, tell them that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit and that you are keeping yourself pure for marriage. If you feel endangered, do not hesitate to tell your parents, guardians, or a God-fearing adult.

Jesus reached out to everyone—men, women, the rich, the poor, the short, the tall, foreigners, and locals. We, too, should reach out to all people without fear! Jesus did not condone sin—He hated sin but loved the sinner. He respected the Law of Moses, and since no two witnesses agreed on the woman’s guilt, He did not condemn her. Jesus came to die for our sins and to deliver us from sin. Sin is serious, but God is merciful and desires to save us from it.

Mary was not told to return to her sinful life but was commanded to change by the grace of God. Our God is full of wisdom and mercy. This story reminds us to be compassionate toward those trapped by sin, for all of us have sinned and fallen short of God's glory.

If you see a friend caught in sin, pray for them and lovingly guide them back to the right path. Do not gossip about them. We are our brothers' and sisters' keepers—ask God for wisdom in handling such matters.

The invitation from God remains: "Come to Me." Whatever your burdens or worries are, take them to the Lord in prayer. We can share all our concerns, small or great, with Jesus. When we stay close to Him, Satan has little opportunity to tempt us. Only Jesus should be our most trusted confidant.

Questions:

Why is it important to allow the Spirit of God to guide us when studying history?

Did Jesus agree with Mary's sin?

Why did the accusers leave when Jesus wrote on the ground?

What does it mean that God wrote the Law on stone but possibly wrote their sins on the sand?

Are there people around you struggling with sin whom you can reach out to?

God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: John 8:12.

[12] When Jesus spoke again to the people, He said, "I am the light of the world. Whoever follows Me will never walk in darkness, but will have the light of life."

Prayer: Thank You, Father, for being the Light of the world and for loving us sinners. You tell us to go and sin no more. Help us to be victorious. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A role play using a torch—Jesus is the Light of the world, and what that means. Or act the story of the woman dragged before Jesus. Jesus faced the scribes and Pharisees by writing on the ground and then declaring that the one without sin should be the first to throw a stone. The crowd dispersed, leaving Jesus alone with the woman caught in adultery, to whom He said, “Go and sin no more.” This chapter also includes Jesus’ teaching about His identity as the Light of the World (John 8:12) and His claim to the Truth that leads to freedom from sin.

DAY 235 (August 22)

TOPIC: The Blind Man is Healed

(John 9)

Jesus continued teaching in the temple treasury during the Feast of Tabernacles, declaring that He is the light of the world and that His testimony is true. He told them that He knows where He comes from and where He is going, but they do not know where He comes from or where He is going. He also said that when He departs, they will seek Him, but they will not find Him, and this made them wonder where He was going. He told them that He is from above, while they are from below, and that they would die in their sins unless they believed in Him and lifted up the Son of Man.

Even His close friends did not know where He was going. They speculated that perhaps He was going to Greece or Italy. Jesus told them that those who believe in Him would become His disciples and be set free, for committing sin is being a slave to sin. They claimed they were children of Abraham and could not be enslaved. Jesus responded that if they were truly Abraham's children, they would not seek to kill Him because Abraham did not do such things. Abraham loved God and obeyed His commands. If they had heavenly thoughts, they would love God and His Son, whom He had sent, and they would understand His teachings.

Jesus told them clearly that anyone rejecting His teachings and those of His Father belongs to the devil, not to God. They were involved in murder and lies like the devil and did not act according to the Scriptures. He further said that Abraham rejoiced to see His day and was glad. This likely refers to when Abraham, being tested to offer his son Isaac, was shown by God many other glorious things, including the future sacrifice of Jesus, making Isaac's sacrifice unnecessary. It was not the ram caught in the thicket that replaced Isaac but the greater and ultimate sacrifice of Jesus Christ, offered so that all might be saved.

The Jews were astonished, saying that Jesus was not even fifty years old, yet He claimed to have seen Abraham. They accused Him of being a Samaritan and having a demon. Jesus replied, "Truly, truly, I say to you, before Abraham was, I AM." They then picked up stones to throw at Him because they recognized that He was using the divine name "I AM," which God had revealed to Moses. By using this name, Jesus was revealing Himself as the very God who led the Israelites through the wilderness. However, Jesus left the temple unharmed, hidden by God's power.

During that week, while the Feast of Tabernacles was ongoing in Jerusalem, Jesus declared that He is the Light of the World and that whoever follows Him will never walk in darkness but will have the light of life. As He passed by, He saw a man who had been blind from birth. The disciples wanted to know why he was blind—was it because of his sins or those of his parents? You may also wonder about such questions today!

A similar question was raised when Pilate sent soldiers to the temple, and they killed Galilean worshippers. Jesus asked whether they thought those Galileans were worse sinners than others because they suffered in that way. He told them they were wrong to think so. People believed that disasters or accidents happened as a punishment for sin. Jesus warned them that unless they stopped judging others based on their misfortunes, entering heaven would be difficult for them. He gave another example of the Tower of Siloam, which collapsed and killed eighteen people—not because they were more sinful than others.

Many people today wonder why some are born with disabilities or why bad things happen. Not all suffering is a punishment from God, for we live in a world of sin, and in the great cosmic conflict, there are rules of engagement that we do not fully understand. You can read lesson number 159 about Job's story and a book called The Great Controversy Between Christ and Satan, which is available online. However, sometimes, sin does cause suffering. For example, a pregnant woman who drinks alcohol can harm her unborn child, leading to disabilities. Likewise, someone who indulges in gluttony can become overweight and develop diabetes or hypertension, resulting in paralysis.

Jesus answered that the blind man's condition was not due to his sins or his parents' sins but so that the works of God might be displayed in him—His glory, power, and healing. Jesus said that He must do the works of the One who sent Him while it was still day because night was coming when no one could work. As He said this, He spat on the ground, made mud with His saliva, and applied it to the blind man's eyes. He then instructed him to wash in the Pool of Siloam. The man obeyed, and when he returned, he could see—this was the same man who had been known as a beggar.

His neighbors were amazed and questioned whether it was really him or someone who looked like him. Some doubted, while others insisted it was the same man. When asked directly, the man confirmed, "I am he." They inquired how he had been healed, and he explained that a man named Jesus had healed him by applying mud to his eyes and instructing him to wash. When asked where Jesus was, he did not know.

They brought the healed man to the Pharisees, who questioned him because the healing took place on the Sabbath. Some Pharisees argued that Jesus could not be from God since He healed on the Sabbath. But the healed man reasoned that a sinner could not perform such miracles. His logical thinking caused division among the Pharisees.

When they asked the man again about Jesus, he declared that Jesus was a prophet. Not satisfied, they called his parents, who confirmed that he was their son and had been born blind. However, fearing expulsion from the synagogue if they acknowledged Jesus as the Messiah, they said, "He is of age, ask him."

The man rejoiced, seeing the sky, flowers, his parents, friends, and the beauty of the world for the first time. He was full of questions and discoveries, grateful for the light that Jesus had brought into his life. Perhaps the first face he ever saw was that of Jesus Himself!

This story teaches us to share in the joy of others rather than engage in meaningless arguments or doubts. When Jesus was on earth, He taught His disciples how to pray, encouraging them to present their daily needs and burdens to God with the assurance that their prayers would be heard. That same promise applies to us today.

Questions:

1. Why do people like to boast about being children of Abraham but act contrary to him?

2. Where was the blind man told to wash his eyes?

3. What new things did the blind man see for the first time?

4. How did Jesus answer the question about being born with disabilities?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: John 9:25, 26.

[25-26] They said again to the blind man, “Give glory to God by telling the truth,” they said. “We know this man is a sinner.” He replied, “Whether He is a sinner or not, I don’t know. One thing I do know: I was blind but now I see!” Prayer: Thank You, Lord, for Your healing. Help us to give You glory, grant us peace and strength for today. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Discuss why people are born with disabilities and the Galileans who were killed.

DAY 236 – (August 23)

TOPIC: The Blind Man Who Was Healed Is Cast Out of the Synagogue

(John 9)

They called the blind man again after questioning his parents and told him to give glory to God for his sight and not to give glory to Jesus because they considered Him a sinner. The man replied, "Whether He is a sinner or not, I do not know. One thing I do know: I was blind, but now I see." They asked him again, "What did He do to you?" By this point, the man was tired, for he had received a great miracle, but they wanted to trouble him out of their hatred for Jesus and their unbelief. These people were more blind than the blind man himself without realizing it. That is when he said to them, "I have told you already, but you did not listen. Why do you want to hear it again? Do you also want to become His disciples?" At this, they began to insult him angrily, saying, "We are disciples of Moses. As for this man, we do not even know where He comes from."

These people were more spiritually blind than the man, for they did not realize that the One standing before them was greater than Moses. Although they intellectually acknowledged the names, cities, and events recorded in the Scriptures, their hearts were untouched. The man asked them, "How is it that you do not know where He comes from, yet He opened my eyes?" He continued, "We know that God does not listen to sinners, but if anyone is a worshiper of God and does His will, He hears him. Since the world began, it has never been heard that anyone opened the eyes of a man born blind. If this man were not from God, He could do nothing." They replied, "You were born in sin, and you are teaching us?" And they cast him out of the synagogue.

Jesus heard what had happened and, when He found him, asked, "Do you believe in the Son of God?" The man answered, "Who is He, Lord, that I may believe in Him?" Jesus said to him, "You have both seen Him, and it is He who is speaking with you." The man said, "Lord, I believe!" and worshiped Him.

Jesus said, "I came into this world for judgment, that those who do not see may see, and that those who see may become blind." Some Pharisees who were with Him heard these words and asked, "Are we also blind?" Jesus answered, "If you were blind, you would have no sin; but since you say, 'We see,' your sin remains."

If we stand for Jesus without shame or fear, as the blind man did, Jesus promises to stand for us. When Jesus spoke to people, He knew their hearts, and by their deceitful hearts, they condemned themselves.

He told the teachers of the Law that true shepherds enter the sheepfold by the gate, but thieves and robbers enter by other means. Jesus declared, "I am the Good Shepherd. I know My sheep, and My sheep know Me. I call My sheep by name and lead them out. When I bring out My own sheep, I go before them, and they follow Me because they know My voice. They will not follow a stranger but will flee from him because they do not recognize a stranger's voice."

Those who care for sheep know how much a shepherd loves and tends to his flock. Even today, some churches expel members not because they have sinned or broken God's commandments but because the church leaders follow dark paths or harbor some form of wickedness. Such leaders despise certain individuals and seek to remove them from their sight.

It is crucial not to follow human traditions or the doctrines of any church but to seek God and His Word. Every believer must be part of a fellowship that follows the Word of God, which is the Bible, and avoid traditions or teachings of men that contradict it. Each church should examine itself and abandon customs that conflict with God's Word.

What is encouraging is that Jesus accepted the blind man's worship even after he had been cast out of the synagogue. I do not suggest that anyone should separate themselves from church fellowship, for Hebrews 10:25 urges us not to forsake assembling together. However, if you are expelled from a church because of the wickedness of its leaders and not because of your sin, be encouraged knowing this has happened before. But if you are suspended due to your sins, repent, follow the teachings of the Scriptures, and return to fellowship.

Today, we can distinguish whether someone is of God—whether they are a spiritual leader or an ordinary member—by their teachings and conduct. When Jesus said these things, many did not understand. So, He declared, "I am the Door, and I am the Good Shepherd." Unlike a hired hand who seeks the flock's wealth, Jesus cares about the eternal life and well-being of their souls. When the hired hand sees the wolf coming, he abandons the sheep and flees, and the wolf snatches and scatters them. But Jesus, the Good Shepherd, lays down His life for the sheep—for us—to deliver us from sin.

Jesus also said, "I have other sheep that are not of this fold. I must bring them also, and they will listen to My voice. There will be one flock and one Shepherd." This means that many who do not yet know God and Jesus will one day hear the message—whether through people, the radio, or books—and will join God's flock.

Many people today worship other gods unknowingly, such as those following Hinduism and Buddhism, with billions of adherents. There are others who believe in the God of heaven but do not fully understand His Word or character. God will reach out to them so that we will all be one flock. God is one, and His teachings do not differ—there is only one God worldwide and one paradise.

We should be humble and ready to learn from God rather than clinging to our traditions, our religion, or what our relatives have taught us. We must rely on the written Word—the Bible. Always strive to draw others to know God and pray that we may all be together in heaven when Jesus returns.

Some people, influenced by Satan, accused Jesus of having a demon or being insane. Others argued, "These are not the words of a demon-possessed man. Can a demon open the eyes of the blind?" Jesus affirmed that He and the Father are one. The Jews picked up stones to stone Him, but He asked, "For which of My works do you stone Me?" They replied, "Not for a good work but because You, being a man, make Yourself God."

Even today, Jesus remains the most remarkable figure in history. His life defines the years before and after His coming. He is the Son of God, our Savior, and our Lord.

Let us be careful not to speak recklessly against God's people but be humble and willing to learn His Word. Many Jews recognized their shortcomings but refused to abandon their heavy traditions.

May we always speak the truth about God, whether we perform miracles or not, so that our words and actions draw others to Him.

Our prayers are never a burden to God. There is no wrong time or place to pray. Like Nehemiah praying before King Artaxerxes, we can silently lift our hearts to God for guidance anytime, anywhere.

Questions:

1. Why did the blind man refuse to listen to the wicked people?
2. If Jesus were working on earth today, what challenges would He face?
3. Who is the hired hand?
4. Who are the "other sheep" that are not of this fold?
5. Why is it blasphemy and a lie to say that Jesus has a demon or is insane?
6. What kind of blindness did the Pharisees have?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: John 9:2, 3.

[2-3] His disciples asked Him, "Rabbi, who sinned, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?" Jesus answered, "Neither this man nor his parents sinned, but this happened so that the works of God might be displayed in him."

Prayer: Dear Father, sometimes we do not understand why bad things happen to good people or to humanity in general. Help us to have faith in our hearts, give us wisdom to make decisions that please You. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Discuss or role-play the man born blind receiving his sight, and then Jesus revealing to him that He is the Son of God.

DAY 237 (August 24)

TOPIC: The Demon-Possessed Man of Gerasa

(Mark 5, Matthew 8, Luke 8)

They arrived on the other side of the sea after the storm had been calmed, in the region of the Gerasenes. When they got out of the boat, they were met by two men coming from the tombs, possessed by evil spirits. These men lived in the tombs, and no one could bind them—not even with chains. Many times, they had been bound with chains and shackles, but they tore them apart. No one was strong enough to subdue them. Their appearance was terrifying—you might even wonder if they were really human. They were fierce, and no one could pass through that area.

In the city, people had seen those with mental illnesses and called them mad because of their strange behavior. I myself have been chased and beaten by people like these while I was in third grade in Mbeya town. Everywhere, there are people suffering from mental and spiritual affliction, and their families are helpless to assist them because these individuals are uncontrollable and resistant. In Western countries, such people are often forcibly taken by the police to hospitals, where they are restrained or given medications. This practice did not exist in ancient times.

These two men lived among the tombs and in the mountains, crying out day and night and cutting themselves with stones. Even today, Satan torments people through evil spirits. These demons are Satan's followers—the fallen angels mentioned in Revelation 12. When the demon-possessed men saw Jesus, the demons within them cried out, "What do you want with us, Son of God? Have you come to torment us?" because Jesus had commanded the impure spirits to leave the men.

Jesus asked the demons their name, and they replied, "Legion," meaning they were a vast number of Satan's angels living within these men—possibly 2,000 or more. The demons begged Jesus to allow them to enter a herd of pigs nearby. They recognized His supreme authority and had to request permission. Jesus granted their request, and the evil spirits entered the pigs. The herd—about 2,000 in number—rushed down the steep bank into the sea and drowned.

The herdsmen fled and spread the news in the town and countryside. The people were terrified by what had happened. The local people had been clearly instructed not to raise or eat pigs, but they had disobeyed this command. The following day, the sea must have been filled with floating pig carcasses—an unforgettable sight in a land where pigs were considered unclean.

When the townspeople came to Jesus, they found the once-possessed men sitting calmly, clothed, and in their right minds. These were the same men who had been filled with a legion of demons. The people were afraid. Although some marveled at the miraculous deliverance, those who owned the pigs were upset by their financial loss. They valued their profits over the freedom and healing of their fellow human beings.

The entire town came out to meet Jesus and pleaded with Him to leave their region, fearing more losses. They did not consider their spiritual salvation or invite Him to heal others—they only thought about their material wealth.

As Jesus was getting into the boat, the formerly possessed men begged to go with Him and become His disciples. However, Jesus instructed them to go home and tell their families what God had done for them. Revelation 12:11 says that believers overcome Satan by the blood of the Lamb and the word of their testimony. These delivered men became the first missionaries Jesus sent out. They went to Decapolis (a region of ten cities), sharing the great things Jesus had done for them, and everyone was amazed. When Jesus returned to their region six months later, the people who had previously rejected Him were now ready to receive and follow Him—thanks to the testimony of these formerly possessed men.

Even today, there are many evil spirits. Demons are Satan's agents—the fallen angels cast out of heaven as described in Revelation 12. The Gospels document how Jesus cast out demons. Satan and his angels know who Jesus is. They were created by Him as angels of light before choosing to rebel and torment humanity. Demons were active during Jesus' earthly ministry, attempting to hinder His mission of salvation from birth to crucifixion. They remain enemies of God and humanity, seeking to destroy us.

We must put on the full armor of God. Denying the existence of Satan or demons is dangerous—it is wiser to acknowledge the enemy's reality while trusting in God's power to overcome.

It is vital to remember that God is all-powerful, all-knowing, and present everywhere. Satan's power is limited to what God allows. God desires our salvation above all else—that is why He sent Jesus Christ. Through Him, we receive the strength to resist Satan daily. If demons have power, Jesus has even greater power. Whenever Jesus encountered a demon-possessed person, He cast the demons out and commanded them to leave.

Anyone who accepts Jesus as their Savior is under His protection. If Jesus is your Savior, you have no reason to fear evil spirits—by the mighty name of Jesus, demons must flee.

We learn that great things happen when people are willing to share the mighty works of God. Has God done something great in your life? Do not hesitate to tell others. Your testimony has power.

Questions:

1. Why did the demon-possessed men live among the tombs?

2. What did the demon-possessed men say when they saw Jesus?

3. How do we know that Satan exists?

4. What does the term "demon" mean?

5. Why did the demon-possessed men want to follow Jesus?

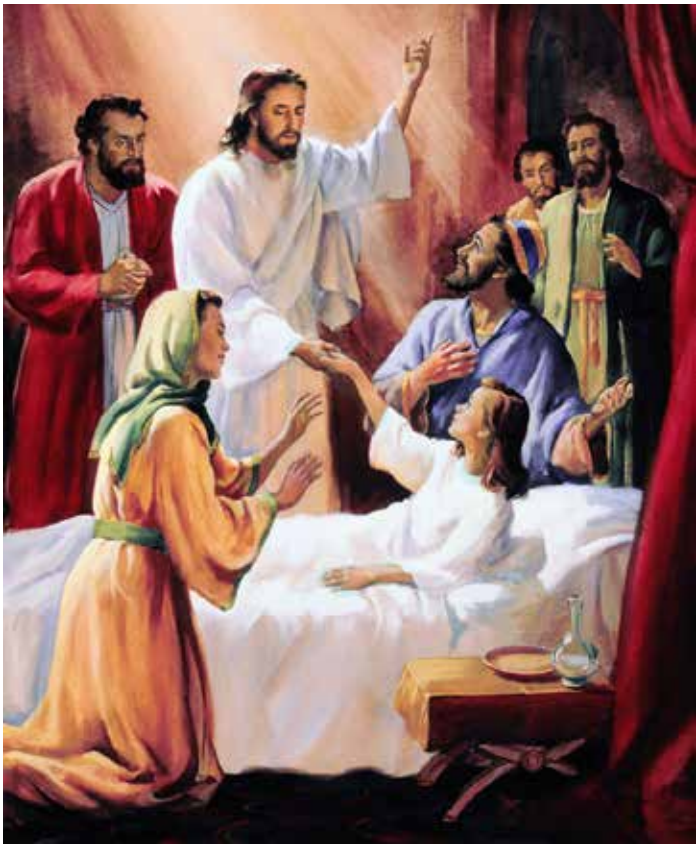
6. What great things has God done for you?

7. Why is sharing your testimony about God's great works important?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Mark 5:19-21.

[19-21] But Jesus did not let him, but said, "Go home to your own people and tell them how much the Lord has done for you, and how He has had mercy on you." So the man went away and began to tell in the Decapolis how much Jesus had done for him. And all the people were amazed. When Jesus had again crossed over by boat to the other side of the lake, a large crowd gathered around Him while He was by the lake.



Prayer: Thank You so much, grant us healing and remove sorrow from our lives. Bless my family, help us in our financial situation. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Act out Jesus getting into the boat, and those delivered from demons asking to follow Him as disciples, but Jesus telling them to go to their homes and tell their people the great things God had done for them and His mercy.

DAY 238 – (August 25)

TOPIC: Jesus Heals Jairus' Daughter and the Woman with the Issue of Blood

(Mark 5)

When Jesus returned by boat and prepared to cross back, a large crowd had gathered by the sea. Then came a man who was one of the synagogue rulers, named Jairus, and he fell at Jesus' feet, pleading earnestly with Him, "My little daughter, who is twelve years old, is at the point of death. I beg You to come and lay Your hands on her, so that she may be healed and live." So, Jesus went with him, and the crowd followed, pressing around Him.

This synagogue ruler had set aside all his thoughts of judging Jesus or speaking ill of Him because he was in distress. What good would it do to pretend he knew everything or to act mighty when his household was falling apart?

As the crowd pressed on, a woman who had suffered from bleeding for twelve years came forward. The same year Jairus' daughter was born was the year this woman began to suffer from her illness. Twelve years is a long time—enough for a child to grow and reach seventh grade—and yet, this woman was still sick. She had visited many physicians, but nothing had helped. She had spent all her money on treatments and had only grown worse. Even today, medical care can be very expensive.

According to the Law of Moses, this woman was considered unclean and was isolated from others. She could not attend synagogue or any form of public worship. She could not have children or interact with others for those twelve years. She endured tremendous suffering.

When she heard that Jesus was passing by and that He had healed many of their physical and spiritual ailments—even raising the dead—she decided to go and see Him. However, she was afraid to approach Him directly due to her condition. Instead, she thought, "If I can just touch the hem of His garment, I will be healed." As soon as she touched His garment, her bleeding stopped, and she felt in her body that she was healed.

Jesus, knowing that power had gone out from Him, turned around in the crowd and asked, "Who touched My clothes?" His disciples were surprised and said, "You see the crowd pressing around You, and yet You ask, 'Who touched Me?'" But Jesus kept looking to see who had done it. Then the woman, trembling with fear, knowing what had happened to her, came and fell at His feet and told Him the whole truth. She could not hide it any longer.

Jesus said to her, "Daughter, your faith has made you well. Go in peace and be free from your suffering." Even today, we can reach out and touch the hem of His garment through prayers of faith.

Meanwhile, Jairus patiently waited as Jesus ministered to the woman and others along the way. He may have wondered why the Teacher was delaying, especially since he had told Him that his daughter was critically ill. But Jesus never hurried or rushed; He moved calmly, following the Father's direction.

As Jairus was still waiting, some men from his house arrived and said, "Your daughter is dead. Why trouble the Teacher any further?" Jairus was overwhelmed with grief, and people began to console him. But Jesus overheard their words and said to Jairus, "Do not be afraid; only believe." Jairus, although filled with worry, chose to wait and trust.

When they arrived at Jairus' house, Jesus did not allow anyone to follow Him except Peter, James, and John. Upon entering, He found a chaotic scene—people weeping and wailing loudly. In those days, it was customary to hire professional mourners to amplify the sound of grief.

Jesus asked them, "Why all this commotion and wailing? The child is not dead but asleep." The mourners, who were sure the girl was lifeless, laughed at Him in disbelief. Then, Jesus sent everyone outside, taking only the child's parents and His three disciples.

He took the girl's cold, lifeless hand and said, "Talitha koum!"—which means, "Little girl, I say to you, arise." Immediately, the girl stood up and began to walk around. She was twelve years old. The people were completely astonished.

Jesus strictly instructed them not to let anyone know about this and told them to give the girl something to eat. Though Jesus asked for silence, the parents could not keep quiet. They shared the miracle with friends and neighbors, and soon the news spread everywhere, bringing great joy.

Even today, Jesus loves and cares for children. Children, do not hesitate to ask Jesus for what you need today.

Questions:

1. What did Jesus tell Jairus when he was informed that his daughter had died?

2. What words did Jesus speak to the twelve-year-old girl?

3. What hardships did the woman with the issue of blood endure?

4. How can we touch Jesus today with the touch of faith?

5. What does Talitha mean?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Mark 5:35, 36.

[35-36] While Jesus was still speaking, some people came from the house of Jairus, the synagogue leader. "Your daughter is dead," they said. "Why bother the teacher anymore?" Overhearing what they said, Jesus told him, "Don't be afraid; just believe."

Prayer: Good Father, may Your name be glorified, we pray for courage to be patient and to be people of thanksgiving. Be praised, King of kings and Lord of lords.

Activity: A play of the story of Jairus, his daughter, Jesus, and the woman who had been bleeding for 12 years. Show Jairus' patience, his conversation with the sick woman, and the people on the way.

DAY 239 – (August 26)

TOPIC: You Cannot Serve Two Masters

(Luke 16)

Jesus gave a parable about a rich man who had a manager. The manager was accused of wasting his master's possessions. The master called him and said, "What is this I hear about you? Give an account of your management because you cannot be my manager any longer."

The manager thought to himself, "What shall I do now? My master is taking my job away. I'm not strong enough to dig, and I'm ashamed to beg. I know what I'll do so that, when I lose my job here, people will welcome me into their houses."

So, he called each of his master's debtors and asked the first, "How much do you owe?" The man replied, "A hundred measures of olive oil." The manager said, "Take your bill, sit down quickly, and make it fifty."

To another, he asked, "How much do you owe?" He answered, "A hundred measures of wheat." The manager said, "Take your bill and make it eighty."

The master commended the dishonest manager for his shrewdness. Jesus remarked that the people of this world are often more shrewd in dealing with their own kind than the people of light.

Jesus said, "Use worldly wealth to make friends for yourselves so that when it is gone, you will be welcomed into eternal dwellings."

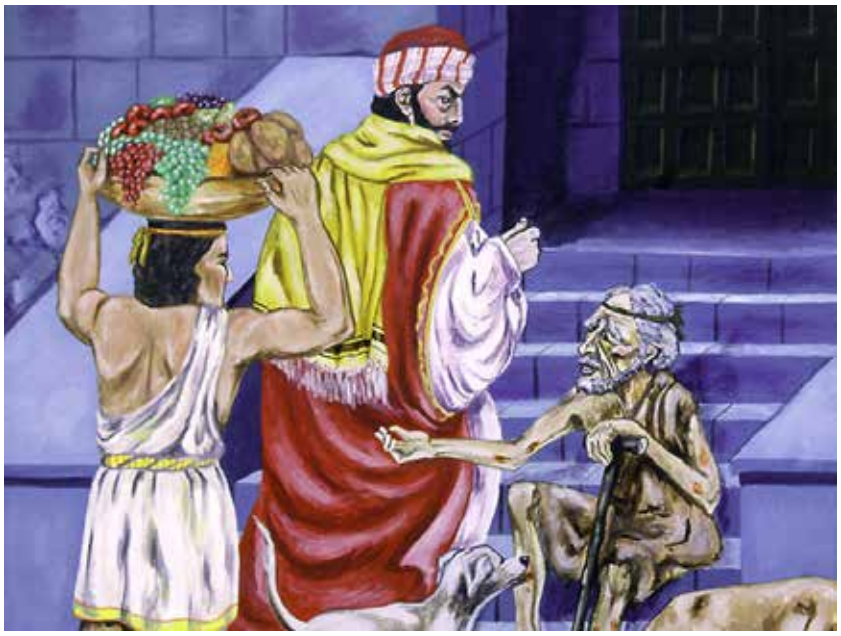
Questions:

1. What clever action did the dishonest manager take?
2. Why did Jesus suggest we should be wise like the manager?
3. Why did the Pharisees, who loved money, mock Jesus?
4. What does the term manager mean?
5. What responsibilities has God entrusted to us today?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Luke 16:13.

[13] No one can serve two masters. Either you will hate the one and love the other, or you will be devoted to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve both God and money.



Prayer: Father, help us not to serve things or wealth but only You. Forgive our sins. Help us to pray for others. Help those who are persecuted in various countries because they serve You, Lord. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: The faithful steward, not the crafty one. Read the story and narrate it.

DAY 240 (August 27)

TOPIC: The Parable of the Rich Man and Lazarus

(Luke 16)

Jesus told a parable that the Pharisees recognized from their traditional stories. He said there was a rich man who dressed in purple and fine linen, living in luxury every day. At his gate lay a poor man named Lazarus, covered with sores. Lazarus longed to eat the crumbs that fell from the rich man's table, and even dogs came to lick his sores.

One day, the poor man died and was carried by angels to Abraham's bosom. The rich man also died and was buried. In Hades, where he was in torment, the rich man looked up and saw Abraham far away with Lazarus by his side. He cried out, "Father Abraham, have mercy on me! Send Lazarus to dip the tip of his finger in water and cool my tongue because I am in agony in this fire."

But Abraham replied, "Son, remember that in your lifetime you received your good things while Lazarus received bad things, but now he is comforted here, and you are in agony. Besides all this, a great chasm has been set between us and you, so that those who want to go from here to you cannot, nor can anyone cross over from there to us."

The rich man then pleaded, "Then I beg you, Father, send Lazarus to my family, for I have five brothers. Let him warn them so that they will not also come to this place of torment."

Abraham replied, "They have Moses and the Prophets; let them listen to them."

The rich man insisted, “No, Father Abraham! But if someone from the dead goes to them, they will repent.”

Abraham said, “If they do not listen to Moses and the Prophets, they will not be convinced even if someone rises from the dead.”

Jesus told this parable to the Pharisees, who loved this story despite it being part of their folklore and not an actual event. He emphasized that people must listen to the Scriptures and act upon them while they are alive because no one can change their ways after death. What we do in this life affects our destiny in the next. Everyone should take care to do good now to avoid future punishment.

This parable contradicts other teachings of the Kingdom of God. It was a story from their traditions, not a factual event. We could compare it to the fable of the tortoise and the hare – it carries a lesson but is not an actual occurrence.

For instance, Abraham’s bosom cannot literally hold everyone. Moreover, how could Abraham be at peace if people are sitting on his chest? Additionally, someone in Hades cannot see what is happening in heaven.

Nonetheless, the lesson we take from this parable is that acts of kindness to those in need have eternal rewards. Words cannot fully express the glory prepared for those united with Christ. Our lives are hidden with Christ in God, and we are assured that when Christ, who is our life, appears, we will also appear with Him in glory. With confidence, we can call God our Father.

Questions:

1. What does the parable of the rich man and Lazarus teach us?

2. Why is this not a real event but a parable?

3. Has God given eternal life to the wicked?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Luke 16:31.

[31] He said to him, "If they do not listen to Moses and the Prophets, they will not be convinced even if someone rises from the dead."

Prayer: Thank You, Lord, remind us that while we are alive here on earth, we must help the poor and those in need. Bless us so that we may bless others. Forgive us for neglecting and despising the poor. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Tell the meaning of the story of the rich man and Lazarus—what it means, or what it does not mean.

DAY 241 (August 28)

TOPIC: Returning Thanks

(Luke 17)

Jesus healed a man with leprosy who approached Him. In those days, people believed that leprosy was a punishment from God for sin, although this was a mistaken belief. Only a few cases in the Bible describe leprosy as divine punishment, such as King Uzziah and Miriam, the sister of Moses.

The leper mentioned here may have hidden and carefully observed his surroundings before approaching Jesus, fearing that people would stop him. Eventually, he took a bold step, fell at Jesus' feet, and pleaded, "Lord, if you are willing, you can make me clean."

Jesus, filled with compassion, reached out and touched him—an extraordinary gesture since no one had touched the man for a long time. Jesus told him to go and show himself to the priest as required by the Law of Moses so that he could be officially declared clean and return to society.

On another occasion, while traveling to Jerusalem, Jesus passed through a village in Samaria where ten lepers stood at a distance. Because they were considered unclean, they could not approach others and were required to shout, “Unclean, unclean!” to warn people to stay away.

When these ten lepers saw Jesus, they cried out, “Jesus, Master, have mercy on us!” Jesus told them, “Go and show yourselves to the priests,” as required by the Law of Moses. As they went, they were healed.

One of them, a Samaritan, when he saw he was healed, returned to Jesus, praising God loudly. He fell at Jesus’ feet and thanked Him.

Jesus asked, “Were not all ten cleansed? Where are the other nine? Has no one returned to give praise to God except this foreigner?” Then He said to the man, “Rise and go; your faith has made you well.”

The other nine had no valid excuse for not returning to thank Jesus. Some may have planned to give thanks later, others wanted to confirm their healing first, and others might have been too proud to acknowledge the help they had received.

Leprosy was a dreadful disease—parts of the body like hands, feet, ears, and nose would decay and fall off. The affected person would lose physical sensations, meaning they could get injured without realizing it. People with leprosy were isolated from their families and communities, living in caves or separate shelters.

Jesus also told a parable about a servant who, after working all day, is still expected to serve his master before taking care of himself. This teaches us that doing our duty does not earn us special praise—we are simply fulfilling our responsibilities.

Miracles are extraordinary works beyond natural explanation. Unlike witchcraft, which causes harm through the power of the devil, Jesus’ miracles revealed His divine nature and His compassion for humanity. The Bible encourages us to pray for healing, seek medical help, and trust God.

Sometimes, God in His wisdom allows people to endure illness for a greater purpose. For example, Timothy had stomach issues, which were managed with a simple remedy. However, Paul suffered from a physical affliction and was told he would not be healed but would receive God’s strength to endure.

Ultimately, God works all things for the good of those who love Him. Though healing is part of God's promise, even if we are not healed immediately, we trust that He loves us and has a greater plan. One day, all sickness and suffering will end, and we will live forever in joy and God's presence.

A Place of Refuge Always Open
The way to God's throne is always open. Even when you cannot kneel in prayer, your silent prayers can always rise to Him for strength and guidance.

Questions:

1. Can you list seven reasons why the healed lepers did not return to give thanks?

2. Why did lepers live separately from others?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Luke 17:16-19.

[16-19] He threw himself at Jesus' feet and thanked Him—and he was a Samaritan. Jesus asked, "Were not all ten cleansed? Where are the other nine? Has no one returned to give praise to God except this foreigner?" Then He said to him, "Rise and go; your faith has made you well."

Prayer: Thank You, Lord, I ask You to give me a grateful heart. May I not take Your goodness for granted. Thank You for giving me a good family. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Act out the lesson of the ten lepers. And its teaching—let each person ask themselves if they are fulfilling it.

DAY 242 (August 29)

TOPIC: Sin Can Follow a Person to Church

(Luke 18 and 21)

Jesus told them that they should always pray and never lose heart because God will grant justice and answer those who cry out to Him day and night. However, when the Son of Man—Jesus Himself—comes, will He find faith on earth? Or will people have forgotten and lost heart in life?

Jesus encountered people who loved to see themselves as superior and believed their religion was better than others. In those days, tax collectors were viewed as traitors, and many were known to be thieves who overcharged people and pocketed the extra money. Tax collectors were often wealthy, and people despised them.

Jesus shared a parable about two men who went to the temple to pray: one was a Pharisee and the other a tax collector. The Pharisees considered themselves righteous and viewed others as sinners. The tax collector knew he was a sinner. While praying in the temple, the Pharisee stood and boasted, "God, I thank you that I am not like other people—robbers, evildoers, adulterers—or even like this tax collector. I fast twice a week and give a tenth of all I earn." He forgot that he was speaking to God, not to boast or gossip about others.

The tax collector, however, stood at a distance and did not even dare to lift his eyes to heaven. Instead, he beat his chest and said, “God, have mercy on me, a sinner.” Jesus said that the tax collector went home justified before God rather than the Pharisee. For those who exalt themselves will be humbled, and those who humble themselves will be exalted.

Prayer is not an opportunity to gossip about God’s people—it is a conversation with God as our friend. When you want God to listen, do not boast about how good you are or how bad others are—God already knows you completely. Focus on telling Him your needs and asking for His help. Those who depend on God and confess their sins will receive eternal life.

It is wrong to think that we are better than others or that we never make mistakes. We must not look down on others because Jesus loves them too and died for them.

One day, while Jesus was in the temple, He witnessed something that has inspired millions of people worldwide. The rich were offering large sums of money—leftovers from their wealth. But a poor widow approached slowly and fearfully to place her offering in the collection box. Jesus noticed her generous heart. He said, “Truly I tell you, this poor widow has put in more than all the others. All these people gave their gifts out of their wealth, but she, out of her poverty, put in all she had to live on.”

Perhaps her friends questioned why she gave all her money instead of keeping it for herself. Even today, people may discourage you from giving generously. But do not miss out on the blessings when the Holy Spirit prompts you to give. No one who gives to God remains poor. This widow believed that God wanted her to support His work. She was filled with joy when Jesus praised her act of faith.

Her offering has become a lasting example for generations—she gave sacrificially, trusting that God would care for her needs.

Some people today refuse to give offerings, claiming that church leaders misuse the money. However, Jesus praised the widow and did not tell her to stop giving, even though He knew some Pharisees were hypocrites.

Even today, there are widows and orphans who are very poor. They should offer their hearts to God with love and gratitude. The small gifts we give with joyful hearts are multiplied by Jesus to bless many.

Our offerings can make a lasting impact on the work of God and the needs of others. Even if some leaders misuse the funds, our responsibility is to give, and their responsibility is to manage it rightly. Do not stop giving because of dishonest people. If you discover corruption, report it appropriately, but continue to fulfill your duty of tithes and offerings.

Jesus knew about the dishonesty of some religious leaders, but He still commended the widow for her faithful giving. The misuse of offerings does not excuse us from our responsibility to give back to God.

The widow did not worry about how her offering would be used—she focused on doing her part. You too should do your part for God.

The Secret of Spiritual Power—Prayer
Prayer is the breath of the soul and the secret of spiritual strength. Without regular prayer, your spiritual life will weaken, and your faith will fade.

Why did Jesus praise the widow who gave two small coins? Why should we give offerings?

May God bless you, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Luke 18:1.

[1] Then Jesus told His disciples a parable to show them that they should always pray and not give up.

Prayer: Thank You, heavenly Father, help us to pray and not faint. Help us to be like the widow with two mites, giving with all our generosity without looking at what others are giving. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: The widow, two coins, and the offering box—and the words of Jesus praising her.

DAY 243 (August 30)

TOPIC: Zacchaeus, the Short Man Who Climbed a Tree

(Luke 19)

Jesus said that people should always pray and not lose heart. He shared a parable about a judge who neither feared God nor cared about people. A widow repeatedly came to him, asking for justice against her adversary. For a while, he refused, but eventually, he thought, “Even though I do not fear God or care about people, because this widow keeps bothering me, I will see that she gets justice.”

Jesus taught that if an unjust judge could grant justice, how much more will God—who is just—answer those who cry out to Him day and night?

Jesus gave these teachings to humble those who trusted in themselves and despised others.

One day, as Jesus passed through Jericho, a man named Zacchaeus, a chief tax collector and a wealthy man, wanted to see Him. But because Zacchaeus was short, he could not see over the crowd. So he ran ahead and climbed a sycamore tree to catch a glimpse of Jesus.

When Jesus reached the spot, He looked up and said, “Zacchaeus, come down immediately. I must stay at your house today.”

Zacchaeus hurried down and welcomed Jesus gladly. The crowd murmured, “He has gone to be the guest of a sinner.”

But Zacchaeus stood and said, “Lord, here and now, I give half of my possessions to the poor, and if I have cheated anybody, I will pay back four times the amount.”

Jesus said, “Today salvation has come to this house because this man, too, is a son of Abraham. For the Son of Man came to seek and to save the lost.”

Zacchaeus’s encounter with Jesus transformed his heart. He was once a man driven by greed, but after meeting Jesus, he became generous and honest.

This story teaches that Jesus seeks to save everyone—even those society despises. No one is beyond God’s grace.

Let us ask God for true repentance and the power to correct our wrongs. Jesus is seeking the lost today. Are you ready to walk with Him?

Questions:

Why did people hate Zacchaeus?

Why did Zacchaeus want to see Jesus?

How did Zacchaeus know whom he had wronged?

What significant words did Jesus say to Zacchaeus?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Luke 19:9, 10.

[9-10] Jesus said to him, "Today salvation has come to this house, because this man, too, is a son of Abraham. For the Son of Man came to seek and to save the lost."

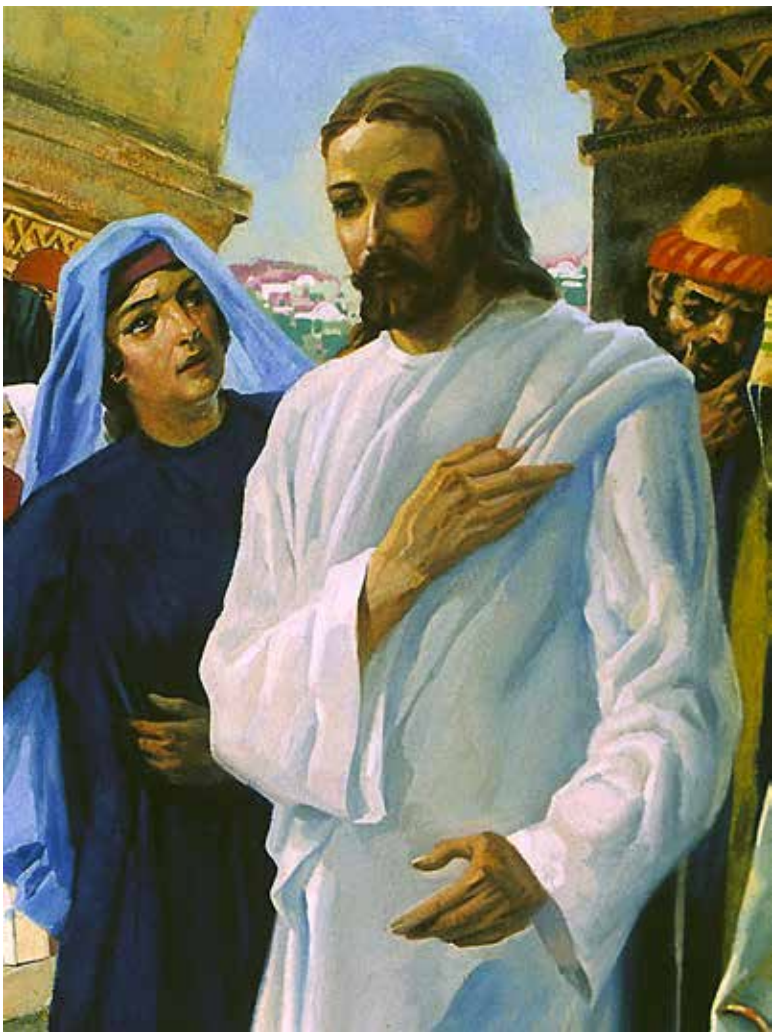
Prayer: Thank You, dear Lord, for always seeking and saving the lost. Help us also to have love for lost people. Go before us today, and teach us how to pray. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A play of the story of Zacchaeus, who was healed from greed for things and wealth. Or the widow and the judge, who asked for help.

DAY 244 – (August 31)

TOPIC: The Faith of the Persistent Woman

(Matthew 15)



The Pharisees and the scribes questioned Jesus about why His disciples broke the traditions of the elders by not washing their hands before eating. Jesus replied that they were eager to maintain human traditions while disregarding God's commandments. He gave them an example from the fifth commandment, which says, "Honor your father and mother." Yet, they avoided helping their parents by declaring their possessions as a gift devoted to God, thus excusing themselves from their responsibilities. Jesus called them hypocrites, as they honored God with their lips while their hearts were far from Him, teaching human traditions instead of divine commandments. Even today, many people prioritize religious traditions over God's Word, which is a serious mistake.

Jesus explained that it is not what enters the mouth that defiles a person, as it simply goes to the stomach and then out of the body. Rather, what comes out of the mouth reflects the heart's condition. He meant that the Jews focused on external cleanliness like washing hands while their words and thoughts were full of evil. Evil thoughts such as theft, lies, and murder are far more harmful than eating with unwashed hands. When the disciples told Him that the Pharisees were offended by His words, Jesus replied that every plant not planted by His Father would be uprooted. He warned them that the Pharisees were blind guides, and if a blind man leads another blind man, both would fall into a pit.

Jesus then traveled to the region of Tyre and Sidon, near the Mediterranean Sea. This area was outside Jewish territory, where people worshiped other gods. The disciples thought they would have a quiet time with their teacher in this foreign land, but suddenly, a Canaanite woman from that region came to Jesus. She cried out, "Have mercy on me, Lord, Son of David! My daughter is demon-possessed and suffering terribly." However, Jesus did not answer her at first. He wanted to test her faith and teach His disciples, who would later carry the gospel to all nations and must learn not to discriminate. Seeing Jesus remain silent, the disciples urged Him to send her away because her cries were disturbing them. They thought suggesting her dismissal would please Jesus since she was a foreigner and a pagan woman.

They were surprised when Jesus told them He was not sent only to the lost sheep of Israel but to all people. Salvation is like the sun – it shines on everyone, allowing each person to choose whether to accept or reject it. The woman came and knelt before Him, pleading, “Lord, help me!” She needed Jesus’ mercy and healing for her daughter, just like any other human being. In God’s eyes, all people are equal. Jesus feels our pain regardless of where we come from—whether Burundian, Rwandese, Gogo, Sukuma, Kisii, Luo, Acholi, Congolese, Ethiopian, or Somali.

Jesus responded, “It is not right to take the children’s bread and toss it to the dogs,” implying that the Jews were considered the “children” and Gentiles were “dogs.” Yet, the woman was not offended. With wisdom from heaven, she replied, “Yes, Lord, but even the dogs eat the crumbs that fall from their master’s table.” Despite the harsh metaphor, she recognized that being a “dog” at the feet of the King of Kings was far better than having all the riches of the world’s rulers.

Today, many people understand this better because they value their dogs highly. Some provide luxury beds, special dog food, and even treat dogs like their own children. A neighbor once told me they spent $1,000 monthly to feed their 140-kilogram dog. Another person paid thousands of dollars for a kidney surgery for their dog, which successfully saved its life. In many African countries, such expenses are unimaginable. For them, it would be easier to get another dog. People often say that dogs are loyal friends who love without resentment. For those living alone, dogs offer companionship, assist the blind, and protect against intruders.

In Western cultures, dogs are highly valued, but in ancient times and even today, some people treat dogs cruelly, throwing stones at them without reason. While dogs are animals and not equal to humans, they too are God’s creation and suffer because of human sin. Although Jesus did not die for dogs, and humans are far more valuable, we should still treat animals with kindness. If we refuse to listen to God, even animals like Balaam's donkey may serve Him better than we do.

The woman recognized Jesus as the Son of David and acknowledged His power. Jesus, seeing her great faith, said, "Woman, you have great faith! Your request is granted." At that moment, her daughter was healed from afar.

Though Jesus was first sent to the Jews, He loves everyone from every nation. We are all His children. Some may think His words to the woman were harsh, but He wanted His disciples to understand the value of every soul, regardless of tribe, language, or nationality. He was ready to help the woman from the moment she approached Him.

Do you think your tribe is superior to others? Or that your mother is better than everyone else's? While that may feel true, in God's eyes, we are all equal. He does not care where you come from—He cares that He created you and has a plan for your life. The woman and those around her were transformed by their encounter with Jesus and believed in God.

Jesus left Tyre and Sidon and went to the Sea of Galilee, where He healed the blind, the mute, the crippled, and many others. The crowd marveled and praised the God of Israel. He also healed a deaf man who could hardly speak. Taking him aside, Jesus put His fingers in the man's ears, spat, and touched his tongue. Looking up to heaven, He sighed and said, "Ephphatha!" meaning "Be opened!" Immediately, the man's ears were opened, his tongue loosened, and he began to speak clearly.

Jesus commanded them not to tell anyone, but the more He instructed them, the more they spread the news. People were amazed, saying, "He has done everything well—He makes the deaf hear and the mute speak."

Yet, the human heart is deceitful and desperately wicked—who can understand it? Although Jesus healed freely without requiring payment, the religious leaders still sought to kill Him. Today, medical specialists charge exorbitant fees—sometimes $50,000 or millions of shillings for a single surgery. But Jesus, the Great Physician, healed without leaving scars or requiring long hospital stays, yet people plotted against Him.

Jesus performed approximately 37 miracles recorded in the Bible. In many villages He visited, He did not leave a single sick person unhealed. His miracles demonstrated His power over nature, disease, demons, and even death itself.

Nothing is too difficult for Him. Jesus loves you and me and has all power—never forget that. Whatever your problem, big or small, tell Him about it.

God delights in hearing your troubles and joys and is eager to provide the best solution for you. Cast all your cares on Him, and commit to serving Him faithfully (Matthew 28:19-20).

Questions:

1. What defiles a person?

2. What does "even the dogs eat the crumbs that fall from their master's table" mean?

3. What kind of power does Jesus have?

4. Why did people continue to spread the news about Jesus' miracles despite being told not to?

5. How many miracles did Jesus perform?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Matthew 15:8, 9.

[8-9] "'These people honor Me with their lips, but their hearts are far from Me. They worship Me in vain; their teachings are merely human rules.'"

Prayer: Lord, thank You so much, I ask You to protect me from fake or hypocritical life. May I not worship You with words only, but may my heart be sincere and close to You. Help me to teach Your instructions and not human ones. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Crumbs or pieces of bread. The persistent and humble Canaanite woman—her pleading and not giving up. The healing of her child.

DAY 245 – (September 1)

TOPIC: The Feeding of the 4,000 with Bread and Fish for the Second Time

(Mark 7-9)

While continuing to heal people in the region of Decapolis—where He had previously instructed the two demon-possessed men from Gerasa or Gadara to go and testify as missionaries—the crowd grew large. They stayed with Him for three days, and during this time, they lacked food. Many became weary and faint from hunger. The disciples suggested that Jesus dismiss the crowd so they could return to their homes because they had nothing to feed them with, and even if there was food, it would not be enough because the crowd was too large.

Jesus, filled with compassion, called His disciples and told them, “I have compassion for these people; they have been with Me for three days and have nothing to eat. If I send them home hungry, they will collapse on the way, for some of them have come from far away.” The disciples, having forgotten the power of Jesus—or perhaps thinking He would not perform a miracle for the Gentiles—asked, “Where can anyone get enough bread to feed these people here in the wilderness?”

Jesus then asked them how many loaves they had. What you have in your hands, if you are willing to offer it, is what Jesus uses to bless others. They answered, “Seven loaves and a few small fish.” Jesus took the bread and fish, gave thanks, broke them, and gave them to His disciples to distribute to the crowd.

From this, we learn that giving thanks to God is essential. We should not eat like birds, who eat without awareness. We, as human beings with understanding, should recognize that the Lord provides our daily bread and all our needs. It is good to give thanks and praise His name. Everyone ate and was satisfied, and the disciples collected seven baskets full of leftovers. About 4,000 men were fed, not counting the women and children.

After feeding the crowd, Jesus got into a boat and went to the region of Dalmanutha. There, the Pharisees came and began to question Him, seeking a sign from heaven to test Him. Jesus sighed deeply in His spirit and said, “Why does this generation ask for a sign? Truly I tell you, no sign will be given to it.” They had already seen and heard many things that should have built their faith, but their hearts remained hardened.

Jesus understood that after more than two years of performing public miracles, His disciples had witnessed everything. Yet, Satan had blinded them, preventing true belief. The words of Jesus transformed the lives of many who believed. From His miraculous birth, the star guiding the wise men, and the angels singing, to all the miracles He performed—many ignored these signs. Jesus grieved that they still wanted more signs and knew that no amount of miracles would soften their hardened hearts.

He said that the only sign left for them would be the sign of Jonah. Just as the people of Nineveh repented at Jonah’s preaching, the Jews should also humble themselves and believe. Despite witnessing so many healings and miracles, they remained unrepentant. Some people wanted miracles only for personal reasons, but Jesus knew that even if He performed more miracles, their hearts would not change.

Even today, some people twist the Scriptures for personal gain, like the Pharisees who sought recognition and power. The main problem is selfishness—caring only about oneself and not the ministry of Jesus. The Jews misunderstood because they were unwilling to understand. They focused on their outward actions rather than having a transformed heart. Even today, our good works can be corrupted by selfish motives. Human traditions that are not based on Scripture can lead us away from God. Only God can change our hearts from selfishness to a heart that loves and serves others. This transformation of the heart is the greatest miracle, proving that God is actively working in our lives.

Jesus' entire life was a sign from God, but many ignored it. He did the will of His Father and spoke the truth. Even today, some people demand miracles to believe in God. If God knows a miracle will help someone believe, He will provide it. However, if it is just to satisfy curiosity, like a magic show, it will not benefit their spiritual lives.

The true miracle is when a selfish person becomes generous and caring. This heart transformation is evidence that God exists. Whenever the Word of God is preached, the Holy Spirit performs miracles by changing people's lives and leading them toward eternal life.

When Jesus arrived at Bethsaida, some people brought a blind man to Him, begging Him to touch and heal him. Jesus took the blind man by the hand and led him out of the village. He spit on the man's eyes, laid His hands on him, and asked, "Do you see anything?" The man looked up and said, "I see people; they look like trees walking." Jesus then placed His hands on the man's eyes again. This time, his vision was fully restored, and he could see everything clearly.

As they left and got into a boat, the disciples realized they had only brought one loaf of bread and had forgotten the rest. Jesus warned them, "Be careful! Watch out for the yeast of the Pharisees and that of Herod." The disciples misunderstood and thought He was referring to their lack of bread.

Jesus, aware of their confusion, asked, "Why are you talking about having no bread? Do you still not understand? Are your hearts hardened? Do you have eyes but fail to see, and ears but fail to hear? Don't you remember when I broke the five loaves for the five thousand and the seven loaves for the four thousand? How many baskets of leftovers did you collect?" They still did not grasp His message.

The “yeast of the Pharisees” referred to their hypocritical and corrupt teachings.

Later, as Jesus and His disciples traveled to Caesarea Philippi, He asked them, “Who do people say that I am?” They answered, “Some say John the Baptist, others say Elijah, and still others, one of the prophets.”

Then Jesus asked them directly, “But who do you say I am?” Peter replied, “You are the Christ, the Son of the living God.” Jesus affirmed him, saying, “Blessed are you, Simon son of Jonah, for this was not revealed to you by flesh and blood, but by My Father in heaven. And I tell you that you are Peter, and on this rock, I will build My church, and the gates of Hades will not overcome it. I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven; whatever you bind on earth will be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven.” He instructed them not to tell anyone.

Jesus then spoke openly about His coming death, saying that He must suffer many things, be rejected by the elders, chief priests, and teachers of the law, be killed, and after three days rise again. Peter, not understanding God’s plan, rebuked Jesus privately. Jesus turned and rebuked Peter, saying, “Get behind Me, Satan! You do not have in mind the concerns of God, but merely human concerns.”

We must be careful with our words. Even well-meaning words can oppose God’s truth.

Questions:

1. How many people were fed?

2. How was Peter used by Satan?

3. What sign did the Jews want?

4. What is the “yeast of the Pharisees”?

5. How did Jesus heal the blind man?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Mark 9:23, 24.

Jesus said to him, "'If You can'? Everything is possible for one who believes." Immediately the boy's father exclaimed, "I do believe; help me overcome my unbelief!"

Prayer: Lord, thank You for all Your promises. I believe, help my unbelief. I ask You to make me Your chosen vessel. Use the gifts You have given me as You will. Fill me with the Holy Spirit. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Play—the blind man of Bethsaida. Mark 8:22-26.

DAY 246 (September 2)

TOPIC: Carrying the Cross and Denying Oneself

(Mark 8, Matthew 17)

He called the crowd together with His disciples and said to them, "If anyone wants to follow Me, let him deny himself, take up his cross, and follow Me. For whoever wants to save his life will lose it, but whoever loses his life for My sake and the gospel will save it." He asked them, "What good is it for someone to gain the whole world, which only lasts a short time, yet lose their soul or forfeit eternal life?" He told them, "If anyone is ashamed of Me and My words in this sinful generation, the Son of Man will also be ashamed of them when He comes in the glory of His Father with the holy angels." He further said, "On the day of judgment, everyone will be repaid according to their deeds."

He told His disciples that some people standing there would not die until they saw the Kingdom of Heaven come with power, referring to the revelation of Jesus' glory. Six days later, Jesus took Peter, James, and John and led them up a high mountain privately. There, He was transfigured before them—His face shone with glory and radiant light. His clothes became dazzling white, whiter than any launderer on earth could bleach them. Suddenly, Elijah and Moses appeared—men who had lived on earth but were now in heaven—and they came to encourage and strengthen Him before His crucifixion.

Peter, James, and John would not have recognized them, but Jesus introduced them, and they overheard their conversation. These two had lived as human beings and understood the sorrow in Jesus' heart. If Jesus failed to complete His sacrifice, even Elijah and Moses would lose their place in heaven because they had entered through the grace and merit of the sacrifice Jesus was about to make on the cross. While Elijah and Moses spoke with Jesus, the disciples were asleep and missed most of the conversation. If they had stayed awake, they would have been strengthened for the days to come when their faith would be tested, and they would face fear and doubt.

When Peter woke up, overwhelmed by awe and fear, he said, “Rabbi, it is good for us to be here. Let us make three shelters—one for You, one for Moses, and one for Elijah.” At that moment, a cloud appeared and covered them, and a voice from the cloud said, “This is My beloved Son. Listen to Him!” This voice was heard three times in the Scriptures: at Jesus’ baptism, when He was with the Greeks in the temple courtyard, and here on the mountain.

The disciples looked around but saw no one else—only Jesus. Overcome by fear, they fell facedown. This was the voice of Almighty God from heaven. As they came down the mountain, Jesus instructed them not to tell anyone what they had seen until He had risen from the dead. They obeyed but discussed among themselves what “rising from the dead” meant. They asked Him, “Why do the scribes say that Elijah must come first?” Jesus replied, “Indeed, Elijah must come first to restore all things by turning people’s hearts back to God and preparing them for the coming of the Messiah.” Then He told them that Elijah had already come, referring to John the Baptist, and that the wicked had mistreated and killed him.

He added, “Likewise, the Son of Man will suffer greatly and be rejected.” The disciples did not yet understand that they too would face suffering. Later, they recalled Jesus’ warnings not to trust the religious leaders blindly, as they were like wolves in sheep’s clothing. He had told them that these leaders would drag them to court, flog them, and mistreat them. Jesus advised them to be as wise as serpents but as innocent as doves. The apostles wandered without a permanent home and endured great hardship, but Jesus had already prepared them through His teachings.

Even today, we are warned through the Scriptures to be prepared so that we are not caught off guard and miss entering heaven. Jesus is at the door—His return is near! Trials and persecutions will come for those who love God, but Jesus has promised to give us strength and help.

Walking through life is a great privilege. Moses led the Israelites for 120 years through intense hardship because of their stubborn hearts. Elijah lived 700 years after Moses during a time when Israel worshiped many false gods. Unlike others, Elijah did not die but was taken to heaven. The apostles on the mountain were still on their earthly journey, and they would continue to face hardships after Jesus’ death. Jesus was blessed to hear the voice of His Father, which assured Him of His identity and mission.

He did not need to prove to anyone that He was the Son of God—His Father had already affirmed and comforted Him. Similarly, if you are doing God's will and treating others with love and respect, do not worry when people speak ill of you or falsely accuse you. It is common for people to gossip, hold meetings to criticize you, or even physically harm you. Bring your concerns to God. Every person faces such trials in life. I, too, have experienced ridicule, scorn, and humiliation on many occasions. If you still enjoy religious freedom and peace where you are, give thanks to God for His protection, goodness, and mercy.

Even today, as a child, you do not need to prove to anyone that you are created by God and that He is your Father. If people question you, and you know you are a child of God, you will not be afraid. Instead, seek to please God and find comfort in Him more than in people, because people are inconsistent—even those close to us. But God never changes—He is the same yesterday, today, and forever. Only God has the ultimate authority and knows everything. All human beings are temporary travelers on this earth—we are not qualified to judge anyone's worth. No matter how successful or accomplished someone is, they eventually retire and die. Our true value lies in God—He is the Almighty One, eternal in the past and future. The only thing God cannot do is sin—and no one wants Him to!

Prayer is opening your heart to God as you would to a friend. With the eye of faith, you will recognize how near God is, and through prayer, you will experience the deep love and care of God.

Questions:

1. In what ways can you carry your cross?

2. How did Jesus appear on the mountain?

3. Why do you think Elijah and Moses were sent to Jesus?

4. Why did Peter want to build three shelters?

5. Why was it wrong to fall asleep instead of praying, as Peter did?

6. Why do you think Moses was happy to stand on the land of Canaan when he was on the mountain with Jesus?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Matthew 17:5-7.

[5-7] Peter said to Jesus, "Lord, it is good for us to be here. If You wish, I will put up three shelters—one for You, one for Moses and one for Elijah." While he was still speaking, a bright cloud covered them, and a voice from the cloud said, "This is My Son, whom I love; with Him I am well pleased. Listen to Him!" When the disciples heard this, they fell facedown to the ground, terrified.

Prayer: Our Father in heaven, thank You so much because even today You tell us that we are Your beloved children, and You are pleased with us. Help us to respond to Your love. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Draw a picture of the mountain where Jesus was transfigured and shone. What words do you think Moses and Elijah told the Messiah? Why do you think Enoch did not come here?

DAY 247 (September 3rd)

TOPIC: The Disciples Fail to Cast Out a Demon

(Mark 9, Matthew 17)

A crowd approached the nine disciples who had remained below, in the valley, seeking their help to cast out a demon from a possessed person while Jesus and three other disciples were on the mountain where Jesus was transfigured in glory. The crowd was discussing with the scribes and Pharisees, debating among themselves. When they saw Jesus approaching, they were amazed, ran to Him, and greeted Him.

Jesus asked them, "What are you arguing about?" A man from the crowd answered, "Teacher, I brought my son to You. He has a mute spirit, and whenever it seizes him, it throws him down; he foams at the mouth, grinds his teeth, and becomes rigid. I asked Your disciples to cast it out, but they could not."

The disciples had weaknesses, just like today. They were caught up in discussions about their favorite topic—seeking positions of power. That was their "valley," but today we want to be on the "mountain" with Jesus to experience His power!

At times, they used the name of Jesus to cast out demons or heal diseases, desiring to claim that power for themselves. Yet others, acting in faith in Jesus, were genuine believers with a heart to help many! They had previously been sent out, like the 70 disciples who performed miracles. However, this time, when they tried to help someone, they failed.

They tried again and again, but without success. Embarrassed, they stood before the watching crowd, realizing something was missing. Perhaps they thought even those who were not Jesus' disciples did better than them that day. The disciples were puzzled—what had changed? Why was their power gone?

The question of who is the greatest still troubles us today.

The disciples were focused on how they would become ministers in Jesus' kingdom, gaining power, authority, wealth, or status. Even when Jesus told them He was going to be killed, they didn't understand. They were confused—was He speaking literally or figuratively?

Jesus continued to emphasize His death repeatedly, reminding them that whoever wants to be first must be last and a servant of all. He told them, "The Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve and to give His life as a ransom for many."

The disciples wanted to hear about how they would have power and how others would serve them, but Jesus told them they needed to be servants, not masters. Today, many think that being a boss means God has blessed us, and being a servant means God has cursed us. Often, that is not true—remember Joseph? Even while in prison, the Lord was still with him.

The father of the child was distressed when Jesus arrived. The people rushed to Jesus, knowing He would easily handle the situation. With sadness, Jesus said, "O faithless generation, how long shall I be with you? Bring him to Me."

When they brought the boy to Jesus, the evil spirit immediately convulsed him, and he fell to the ground, rolling and foaming at the mouth. Jesus asked the father, "How long has he been like this?" The father replied, "Since childhood. The spirit often throws him into the fire or water to destroy him. But if You can do anything, have compassion on us and help us."

Jesus responded, "If you can believe, all things are possible for him who believes."

This poor father did not realize who he was speaking to! He was asking Jesus—eternal life Himself—"If You can, please heal my child!" With a broken heart, the father cried out, "I believe! Help my unbelief!"

When we pray this father's prayer, we are safe. Let us continue to build our faith by hearing and practicing God's Word. Faith comes by hearing and by reading God's Word—both are important. What you miss by hearing, you may catch by reading!

Everyone has been given a measure of faith. There is no person under the sun without faith. We sleep believing we will wake up. We sit on chairs trusting they will hold us up!

We believe in thousands of things—today, let us believe that Almighty God is the Lord of our lives. He loves us and has the power to transform our lives, helping us to love Him with all our hearts, souls, minds, and strength. Let us trust, obey, and depend on Him!

Sing this song:

LEANING ON THE SAVIOR

1. Leaning on the Savior,
How sweet it is for me,
Trusting in His Word,
I have joy in my heart.

Jesus, Jesus, I trust Him,
I have found Him true;
Jesus, Jesus, He is precious,
His promises are sure.

2. Leaning on the Savior,
How sweet it is for me,
Believing in His blood,
I am cleansed completely.

3. Leaning on the Savior,
How sweet it is for me,
In Him I always find,
Life and perfect peace.

4. I rejoice because,
I have trusted Him,
Jesus, my beloved Friend,
Be with me always.

This is a prayer every one of us should pray, and God will never say no—never! He wants us to have faith.

When Jesus saw the crowd rapidly gathering, He rebuked the unclean spirit, saying, “Deaf and mute spirit, I command you, come out of him and never enter him again!”

The spirit cried out, convulsed the boy violently, and left. The boy lay still, and many thought he was dead. But Jesus took him by the hand, lifted him up, and he arose—completely healed.

Later, when they were alone, the disciples asked Jesus privately, “Why couldn’t we cast it out?”

Jesus replied, “This kind can come out only by prayer and fasting.”

When life overwhelms you—whether with studies, poverty, sickness, fees, dangerous environments, sadness, death, relationships, or spiritual battles—call on Him! Pray, pray, pray!

Jesus reminded them that casting out demons and performing miracles comes not from their power but from God.

He told them that even a small amount of faith, like a mustard seed, could move mountains—not literally moving Mount Kilimanjaro, but achieving great things or performing miracles to help others and spread the Gospel.

Faith is a gift we must ask for—God respects our freedom and will not force it on us. Let us pray for stronger faith to live joyful, faithful lives and share His wonderful deeds.

Faith, prayer, and fasting are powerful weapons in the great conflict between God and Satan, bringing positive outcomes to our prayers.

After this, Jesus led them to Galilee, wanting no one to know. For the third time, He told them, “The Son of Man is being delivered into the hands of men, and they will kill Him. After He is killed, He will rise again on the third day.”

They still did not understand but were afraid to ask Him.

Prayer is the life of the soul—whether in family prayers, public prayers, or private communion with God, it sustains the soul’s life.

Questions:

1. Where was Jesus coming from when the crowd ran to Him?

2. Why couldn't the disciples heal the boy?

3. Why is leadership in the church or government risky?

4. How can we avoid the dangers of leadership?

5. Why should "Help my unbelief" be every person's prayer today?

6. What kind of demon possessed the boy?

May God bless you, child and youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Mark 9:23, 24.

[23-24] "'If You can'?" said Jesus. "Everything is possible for one who believes." Immediately the boy's father exclaimed, "I do believe; help me overcome my unbelief!"

Prayer: Thank You, Lord, for this day. I join in the prayer of this father in today's lesson: "I believe, Lord, help my unbelief." In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Play—Jesus, the disciples, and the father whose child had a demon. And the prayer to increase his faith.

Day 248 (September 4)

LESSON: Who is the greatest in the Kingdom of God?

(Mark 9)

They arrived at Capernaum, and Jesus asked them, "What were you arguing about on the way?" But they remained silent because, on the way, they had been arguing with one another about who was the greatest or the boss. The disciples loved the topic of promotion and becoming great rulers. Then, Jesus sat down, called the twelve, and said to them, "If anyone wants to be first, he must be the last of all and the servant of all." He did not forbid them from taking leadership positions or becoming great, but He taught them the principle of heaven—that a leader is a servant of the people. Leadership or authority is dangerous and a great temptation for many. It often leads to pride, mistreating others, or looking down on them instead of helping and guiding them to find assistance.

It is easy to think that if we were leaders, we would be better than those we see in leadership today. However, leadership is a test or a great trial that causes many to fall into sin. Many believe that only government leadership is problematic, but if we examine history, the leadership of priests and pastors also had more conflicts than the leadership of the Romans or worldly rulers. This is a lesson for those who work in the church. Jesus did not oppose leadership but said that a leader who loves God must be a servant who loves and seeks the welfare of others—not someone who only seeks to satisfy their own desires or personal life.

Jesus saw a little child being carried by his mother among the crowd. He took the child, brought him to the center, embraced him, and said, "Whoever receives one of these little children in My name receives Me, and whoever receives Me receives the One who sent Me."

This child was blessed to be held by Jesus because He loves children. All the adults listened intently because they wanted to know who was the greatest. The issue of greatness troubled many people then, just as it does today. No one wants to be a servant, a nanny, a driver, or a farmhand for someone else—everyone wants to be a boss. What we must understand is that every job in life is important.

I once had a job cleaning toilets for many years while I was in college. I often thought about what would happen if schools, offices, or churches had no one to clean their toilets. What would happen if someone didn't have a nanny to care for their children? Have you ever considered how crucial these "small" jobs we often avoid are to life? The disciples were aspiring to positions like prime minister, minister, or vice president when the Romans would be overthrown.

Jesus said, "Whoever humbles themselves and has the heart of a child, the kingdom of heaven belongs to them." He warned them to be very careful not to despise or harm a child through abuse or oppression because every child has angels who continually see the face of the Father in heaven. He said it is not God's will for any child to be lost or to miss heaven.

Jesus further stated that if any adult or person causes a child to sin, it would be better for that person to have a millstone tied around their neck and be thrown into the sea. These are serious words. Truly, Jesus loves children, and nothing happens to a child without His knowledge—He and the angels of heaven are watching. If anyone oppresses a child or tempts them in any way, they are doing it directly to Jesus Himself.

You can imagine how happy the children were when they heard these words—they were ready to obey and follow Jesus. Many mothers lined up to bring their children to Him so that He might bless them and lay His hands on their heads. I can picture the laughter and joy of the children filling that place.

Jesus called the children by name, laid His hands on them, blessed them, and embraced them. He likely advised the parents to raise their children in the way they should go, guiding them to trust and obey their Heavenly Father. When some people tried to tell Jesus that He was too busy, He still took the time to bless the children and speak with them.

Research shows that 75% of children accept Jesus as their Savior before the age of 10, and 90% before the age of 15. However, only 3% accept Him after the age of 51! Children are just as capable of being Jesus' disciples as adults. They are born as pagans, but when they hear about Jesus and we share His message with them, they choose to follow Him.

Parents, let us avoid driving our children away with harsh words and insults. Children have feelings and intelligence—they are complete human beings. Would we like it if someone said the hurtful things we say to them to us? Remember that these children, when we get to heaven, will be our brothers and sisters, not our children. Parents, take time to bless your children and speak words of blessing over them.

Jewish parents regularly laid their hands on their children's heads and blessed them. Words of blessing spoken to children have a long-lasting impact. One day, you will rejoice over the blessings you spoke as a parent because a parent has the authority to bless or curse their child through their actions.

Children must also listen to and obey God's ways and honor their parents. There are also people in the church who are weak in faith—like children, though they are adults. We must treat them carefully, just as we would treat children, to avoid hurting them.

What did Jesus mean when He said the kingdom of heaven belongs to children? Did He mean that all children will go to heaven? No, absolutely not! Some children are disobedient, use foul language, watch inappropriate content, sing immoral songs, and have impure thoughts and actions. If such children entered heaven, they would turn it into a place of sadness and destruction.

Jesus was referring to children who are obedient, whose minds are uncorrupted, and who are quick to ask for forgiveness when they make mistakes. These are children who are willing to help their parents, are selfless, and humble themselves. Heaven will be filled with such people. If we do not have these qualities now, God gives us time to change so that we are not left behind.

After this, John told Jesus that they had seen someone casting out demons in His name and had tried to stop him because he was not following them. They believed they had exclusive rights to Jesus' power. But Jesus told them not to stop him, for "whoever is not against us is for us."

Jesus said that anyone who gives even a cup of water in His name will not lose their reward. However, anyone who causes a child who believes in Him to sin would be better off having a millstone tied around their neck and being thrown into the sea.

If your hand causes you to sin, cut it off; it is better to enter heaven with one hand than to go to hell with both. If your foot causes you to sin, cut it off. If your eye causes you to sin, pluck it out. Jesus was emphasizing the seriousness of sin and the need for radical measures to avoid it.

Salt is good, but if it loses its flavor, it is worthless. Jesus urged His followers to have salt in themselves and live in peace with one another. He knows everything about us—our lives, our homes, and everything we face.

Questions:

1. How can a person be both a leader and a servant?

2. What did Jesus mean when He spoke about cutting off a hand or foot?

3. What should we do to focus on Jesus rather than sinful leadership?

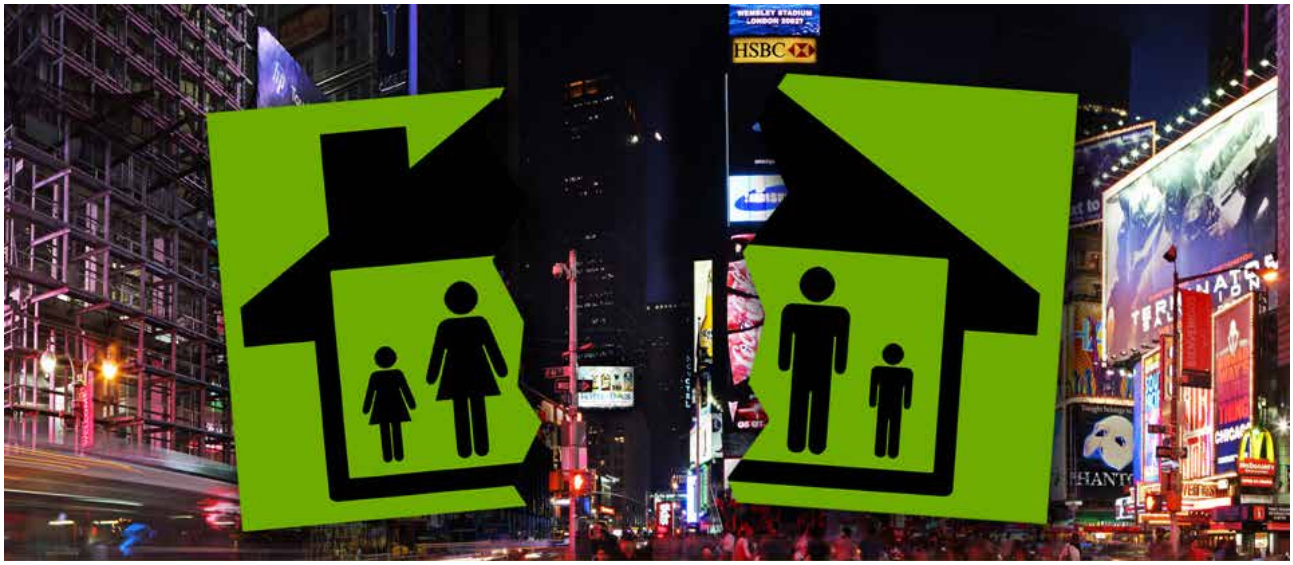
4. Why did the disciples stop the man from casting out demons?

5. What did Jesus mean by plucking out an eye?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Mark 9:34-37.

[34-37] But they kept quiet because on the way they had argued about who was the greatest. Sitting down, Jesus called the Twelve and said, "Anyone who wants to be first must be the very last, and the servant of all." He took a little child whom He placed among them. Taking the child in His arms, He said to them, "Whoever welcomes one of these little children in My name welcomes Me; and whoever welcomes Me does not welcome Me but the One who sent Me."



Prayer: Father, we pray that we may receive those who are younger than us in Your name. Help us to defend those who are bullied in class. May we not add to their trouble by siding with the cruel children. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Act out a competition about who is the greatest among us!

DAY 249 (September 5)

TOPIC: Is it lawful to divorce or separate?

(Mark 10)

The Pharisees approached Jesus and asked Him a question to trap Him, "Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife?" At that time, it was the man who gave his wife a certificate of divorce, but today, women also give their husbands divorce. Many left their wives to marry others whom they thought were better suited or younger. This saddened the LORD because marriage is a covenant between a husband, a wife, and Almighty God. God created Adam and Eve, not Adam, Eve, Amina, and Rehema. The Pharisees focused on following the written law rather than showing love to their wives.

Jesus asked them, "What did Moses command you?" They replied, "Moses allowed a man to write a certificate of divorce and send his wife away." Jesus said, "Moses allowed this because of the hardness of your hearts. But from the beginning of creation, God made them male and female. For this reason, a man will leave his father and mother and be united to his wife, and the two will become one flesh. So, they are no longer two but one flesh. What God has joined together, let no one separate." These are God's amazing calculations, and just as the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit are one, so should a husband and wife be united.

People were surprised because they had thought that marrying and divorcing was an easy thing, not realizing that it is God who joins a husband and wife together. Marriage is one of the first institutions God established. Even though a husband or wife chooses their spouse, each has a responsibility before God to care for, protect, and remain with their spouse forever. That is why Swahili people call marriage a “pingu ya maisha” (a lifelong bond). It should not be a bond of sorrow but of joy, and spouses should not look elsewhere for another partner. Even today, many who divorce end up marrying someone else, but Jesus said doing so is committing adultery. If someone divorces, they should remain single unless the cause is adultery or death. However, many remarry because they leave a marriage not because they dislike marriage itself, but because they want to replace their spouse. This practice is known as serial polygamy or polyandry.

During the time of Malachi, people desired younger wives. They did not want wives of their own age but preferred those who were much younger—sometimes as young as their children’s or grandchildren’s age—thinking they would remain youthful forever. This issue is especially challenging today because it is harder for people to live together in harmony, as society is no longer as interdependent as it once was. A husband should love his wife as Christ loves the Church, even to the point of giving His life for it. Similarly, a wife should submit to her husband, as the Bible commands. The husband is the head of the wife, and the wife is his helper.

Being a helper is an important role. The Holy Spirit is also called a Helper, but that does not mean He is of lesser status. Today, many people want to do whatever they please—marry when they want, divorce when they want, or even live together without marrying. However, God, who established marriage, knows that we need it, though patience seems to be in short supply. This has caused sorrow for husbands, wives, and children alike. Modern alternatives to marriage, including those legalized by governments, should be evaluated against the teachings of the Holy Scriptures. If they are not supported by Scripture, we should avoid these practices and relationships.

Anyone considering marriage must be cautious because divorce is not God’s plan. It is essential to pray and ask God to lead you to a God-fearing person with good character and compatible personality traits. Seeking counsel from the Bible and from mature, God-fearing people is crucial because they can see what young people, blinded by romantic feelings, often cannot. This is especially important because meeting a spouse in places like bars, nightclubs, occult gatherings, or secretive settings can lead to heartbreak for those who love God.

One author wrote:
“If there is any topic that requires thoughtful consideration and calm decision-making without emotional impulses, it is the subject of marriage. If the Bible is needed as a guide, it is before taking the step that binds two people—husband and wife—for life. However, in most cases, intense romantic emotions, or even infatuation, take control and lead to disaster. In this matter, young people often display less wisdom than in any other. They refuse advice and guidance from those who are wise, as if marriage has an enchantment over them. They refuse to surrender to God, and their emotions bind them in chains as they move forward secretly, fearing someone might interfere with their plans." (FE 103.1)

Courtship should not be driven by foolish, overly emotional, or irrational feelings that lead to secrecy and fear of interference. Instead, young people should seek guidance from wise and God-fearing adults.

Life is about mutual tolerance. Everyone tolerates something in others, whether it's within families, among siblings, or in friendships. The reality of this is reflected in the news, which often reports conflicts and violence among relatives, including cousins, aunts, parents, and grandparents. Since married couples share more of their lives together than with anyone else, they are more likely to notice each other's flaws. This is why it is crucial to understand that marriage is a divine institution. When Satan destroys a marriage, he also disrupts the family, society, and even the nation. Ancient empires like Greece, mentioned in Daniel 2, fell due to domestic problems. Understanding this, Satan tirelessly wages war against marriage. As God's children, we must remain vigilant.

When Jesus returned to His disciples, they asked Him again about what He had said. He told them, "Anyone who divorces their spouse and marries another commits adultery. And if a wife divorces her husband and marries another, she also commits adultery." We need God's power to live faithfully in our families and to pray for our parents' marriages, ensuring that we do not cause trouble within them. We should not gossip about other people's marital issues, but it is the responsibility of mature believers to help those who have fallen, with love and care.

The disciples said, "If this is how serious marriage is, then it is better not to marry!" Jesus responded, "Not everyone can accept this teaching, but only those to whom it is given." He explained that some people are eunuchs because they were born that way, others have been made eunuchs by others (such as the Babylonian servants of the king), and some have chosen celibacy for the sake of the Kingdom of God. "Let anyone who can accept this teaching accept it," Jesus said.

We should understand that choosing not to marry does not mean living with someone as if they are your spouse without being legally married. Such behavior is fornication and is displeasing to God. Although some governments recognize cohabitation as marriage after a couple lives together for two years, God's standard remains unchanged.

Jesus experienced constant scrutiny and criticism from those seeking to trap Him, but they never found any fault in Him because His life was perfect. Similarly, the heavens are open to receive our prayers, and we are invited to approach the Throne of Grace with confidence to receive mercy and grace in times of need.

Questions for Reflection:

1. Why does God dislike divorce?

2. What problems do spouses and children face after divorce?

3. Why should humans not separate what God has joined together?

4. Who are the people who can live without marrying?

5. Why is marriage such an important institution?

May God bless you, child and young person of Jesus!

Key Text: Mark 10:7-9.

[7-9] "'For this reason a man will leave his father and mother and be united to his wife, and the two will become one flesh.' So they are no longer two, but one flesh. Therefore what God has joined together, let no one separate."

Prayer: Lord, we thank You for the gift of marriage. We pray for the marriages of parents, relatives, and neighbors. Sustain love in these marriages. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Discuss marriage. What is its meaning, and who is its founder? Draw wedding pictures, etc.

DAY 250 (September 6)

TOPIC: Let the Little Children Come to Me

(Matthew 13, Mark 10)

Parents, especially mothers, brought their children to Jesus so that He could place His hands on them, bless them, and pray for them. These parents were certain that Jesus would make a difference in their children's lives; they wanted Him to bless them to bring value and blessings to their lives and to the entire community. Even today, many parents wish the best for their children and bring them to places of worship or to spiritual leaders to be blessed.

The disciples, like other adults, saw their Lord surrounded by many people and thought He was too busy to be bothered by small children. They rebuked the parents for bringing their children. However, Jesus was very displeased with this and said, "Let the little children come to Me, and do not hinder them, for the kingdom of heaven belongs to such as these. Truly I tell you, anyone who will not receive the kingdom of God like a little child will never enter it." He embraced the children, placed His hands on them, and blessed them.

Wouldn't you want to be one of those children who were blessed by the Lord Himself? I like to think that these children became the best in their villages—people whose lives reflected goodness, helped others, led others to love God, and engaged in various ministries.

As the gospel is being preached worldwide to prepare for Jesus' return, many children are involved in this mission. In Brazil, a young girl named Victoria, aged nine, was seen using oars and a small canoe to visit her peers in a neighboring village to study the Bible with them. Children are quick to believe and trust in God without overthinking the evils of the world because their hearts are still pure and innocent.

In the customs and traditions of those days, Jewish children were fortunate. Other nations, like the Ammonites, sacrificed their children to their gods, believing it would appease them and bring wealth or status. In many places, children have been subjected to harsh labor, working long hours in the fields—often more than adults—and their basic human rights are ignored. It is hard to believe that there are adults who subject children to cruelty and extreme violence.

Most cases of child abuse are committed by people close to the children. We must protect our children and those in our communities as people who love God. Millions of children are abused through physical violence, sexual exploitation, neglect, and abandonment—in their homes, orphanages, schools, or communities. Many cases go unreported because such acts are committed in secret.

Child abuse involves the intentional use of physical force that threatens or causes psychological harm, death, exploitation for commercial purposes, sexual abuse, or violation of their basic rights as human beings. Many children are neglected and lack care and support from their families or communities, leading to developmental challenges. This neglect has resulted in incurable diseases, stunted growth, and other heartbreaking conditions.

The main perpetrators of abuse are parents, guardians, teachers, employers, and even fellow students. Statistics indicate that 20% to 65% of children experience abuse in schools from peers or teachers without receiving help. Data from the past decade reveals that 150 million girls and 73 million boys have been sexually abused worldwide.

Why does society and the family neglect children in such a manner? This grieves God, and as people who love Him, we must advocate for these children because there will be a day of judgment, and we will have to account for our actions.

A child's character is formed by the age of three and solidified by seven. Therefore, what we do during these formative years is crucial. A writer once said, "Everything I needed to know about life, I learned before finishing kindergarten." Children learn the most during the first seven years of life, so parents should take time to set goals and show love during this critical period.

A child's diet also plays a significant role in shaping their character. Simple, natural foods are best—avoiding processed and refined foods, which can negatively impact both a child's physical and mental health. Every family should consider having a garden, as working with the soil helps a child develop a love for work and healthy eating. Agriculture forms the foundation of education.

A child should not be idle or spend their time in harmful activities. Regular mealtimes—every four to five hours—are crucial. Even a nursing baby should be fed on a schedule, about every three hours. Snacking constantly throughout the day disrupts self-control and discipline. Certain foods, like those high in sugar, fat, or salt, can create unhealthy cravings and addictions. Remember, it was food that led to the fall of humanity through Eve and caused Esau to sell his birthright.

During the reign of evil kings like Manasseh, children were sacrificed, causing great sorrow to the God of heaven. Children should be well-educated in the Holy Scriptures and provided with practical knowledge, resources, and land to become self-sufficient. The best gift a parent can give their child is the ability to live independently.

Essential lessons for every child include obedience to God and adults, self-denial, a love for work, organization, serving others, discipline, honesty, and cleanliness of both body and heart. Time and love are the greatest gifts parents can give—not material things. Parents must actively seek to learn better parenting techniques and apply them consistently.

Fathers play a crucial role in raising children and should not abandon this responsibility. On the day of judgment, parents will be asked, "Where is the little flock I entrusted to you?" God praised Abraham because He knew Abraham would guide his household well—shouldn't we strive to do the same?

One of the greatest gifts father can give his child is to love the child's mother, and vice versa. This includes speaking kindly to and about each other and avoiding conflict in front of the children. Words are powerful, and parents must avoid using harsh or careless language that can damage a child's spirit.

Parents should never discipline their children in anger. Instead, love must always outweigh punishment. Many children have been harmed or even killed by uncontrolled parental rage, which grieves their Creator. If we cannot discipline in love, we should not discipline at all.

Jesus gave a stern warning to adults who cause children to stumble, saying it would be better for them to be thrown into the sea with a millstone around their necks. Let us not misrepresent heaven through harshness and cruelty, but instead, let us cherish these little ones as heirs of God's promises.

Every promise in God's Word carries with it a call to prayer. Through Jesus, we are invited to present our needs—both spiritual and physical—before our Heavenly Father, who knows all that we need and will provide for us through His abundant grace.

Questions:

1. What did Jesus do to show the value of children?

2. What actions today demonstrate that adults do not value children?

3. Why is it important to bring children to church to be blessed?

4. Why is it significant to offer a dedication to God when a child is born, just as it is to celebrate birthdays?

5. In what way can we say that those who are new to the faith are also like children?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Matthew 19:14.

[14] Jesus said, "Let the little children come to Me, and do not hinder them, for the kingdom of heaven belongs to such as these."

Prayer: Thank You, Father, for the children You have given us. Bless them to grow in wisdom, stature, and favor with God and man. Help us adults to be like children in faith and humility. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A play of parents bringing children to Jesus, the disciples preventing them, and Jesus welcoming them. Or draw children sitting on Jesus' lap.

DAY 251 – (September 7)

TOPIC: The Rich Young Ruler

(Mark 10, Matthew 13)

As Jesus was going along the road, a man came running up to Him, fell on his knees, and bowed down. This man was young, rich, and a ruler. He was different from other leaders who were spies looking for ways to trap Jesus. The crowd wondered what serious message this well-dressed, wealthy man had brought. While still catching his breath, he asked Jesus, "Good Teacher, what must I do to inherit eternal life?"

This young man believed that his good works alone could grant him entrance into heaven. Jesus responded by asking, "Why do you call Me good? No one is good except God alone." He then asked if the man knew the commandments that define human relationships—specifically the fifth through the tenth commandments: "Do not murder, do not commit adultery, do not steal, do not give false testimony, do not defraud, honor your father and mother, and love your neighbor as yourself."

Clearly, the commandments are important, or else Jesus would not have mentioned them. However, keeping the commandments is only the beginning of the journey. Jesus focused on the commandments dealing with interpersonal relationships because He knew that was where the young man struggled. The young man replied, "Teacher, I have kept all these since I was a boy."

Jesus looked at him intently and loved him. He saw many good qualities in the young man and desired him to be His disciple. Jesus loved him because He was about to die for him. He knew that if the young man fully surrendered, he could achieve great things in spreading the message and serving others. Jesus told him, “You lack one thing. Go, sell everything you have and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven. Then come, follow Me.”

This wealthy young man, dressed in fine clothes, kneeling respectfully and earnestly seeking eternal life, faced an internal struggle. What he lacked was a big thing—his wealth was his god. He loved the gifts more than the Giver. Obeying God means more than just being polite; it means living a self-denying life like Jesus did. The young man left in sorrow, possibly thinking, “I asked about eternal life, and now You’re talking about my possessions! I didn’t ask about my things.”

Jesus, the true physician, knows the disease of each of us and the perfect cure for it. For the rich young ruler, the disease was being a half-hearted believer—he loved his wealth more than God. Many of us today share this same problem. We should pray for God to reveal our weaknesses and give us the right “medicine” to heal us, as only He knows our hearts, motives, and thoughts better than we do. Each person has a different spiritual illness and needs a specific treatment.

God does not ask everyone to sell everything they own. But if He did, would we be willing to obey? Only those willing to surrender everything—both their possessions and their lives—are true children of God. Clinging to material things shows that our hearts are in those things. Someone once said, “Show me how you spend your money, time, and leisure, and I will tell you where your heart is.”

God’s way of saving us is by cutting off anything that weakens our character and draws us away from Him. When we return to God what He has given us, we store up treasures in heaven. The joy of seeing others saved and brought into God’s kingdom is a unique gift from Jesus. We follow in His footsteps when we live in obedience, for He said, “Follow Me.”

God is not unjust—He knows your needs, and if you trust Him completely, He will provide. No one who gives for the work of the Lord or to help others has ever been left in poverty. Even the disciples had all their needs met throughout their lives. If God owes us anything, He will repay it! He provides in many ways—through wealth, health, happiness, and more.

The young man thought he would become poor like the disciples, who often had no homes and depended on others for food. He likely wondered, “Will I live like this until I am old?” As the disciples and Jesus watched silently, the young man slowly stood up and walked away. The Bible says, “At this, the man's face fell. He went away sad because he had great wealth."

He thought about his fields, horses, gold, luxurious houses, servants, and livestock. Was he really supposed to give all these up? Perhaps Jesus instructed him to sell everything before giving to the poor to prevent him from reclaiming his belongings later. If the Messiah Himself said the man was rich, he must have been extremely wealthy!

The young man failed the test. Despite his moral living, he knew something was missing. Many young people today pursue education for a better future, and that is good—money itself is not evil. The danger lies in loving money, seeking it in ungodly ways, and using it improperly. It is wrong to rely on wealth for security because many have pierced themselves with grief through their love of money.

The disciples wondered, "If this rich man who keeps the commandments cannot enter heaven, who can?" The young man lost the opportunity to become an apostle. His name could have been remembered for generations and written on the foundations of the New Jerusalem. Yet, he chose to prioritize his wealth over following the King of kings.

Even today, we may not possess great wealth, but we may hold onto other things that we are unwilling to surrender to God. The journey to heaven requires ongoing self-examination. Have we let go of envy, pride, or any idols in our lives? Before we judge this young man, we should ask God to reveal what is lacking in our own lives—and address it.

If you feel weak or unwilling to obey, pray that God will supply what you lack and make you whole. Let us not walk away from Jesus in sorrow, unwilling to obey Him. Heaven holds treasures far greater than anything we cling to on earth.

Jesus told His disciples, "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for someone who is rich to enter the kingdom of God." Amazed, they asked, "Who then can be saved?" Jesus replied, "With man, this is impossible, but with God, all things are possible."

Peter asked what they would receive for leaving everything to follow Jesus. He promised that everyone who sacrifices for His sake will receive a hundredfold and inherit eternal life. "But many who are first will be last, and many who are last will be first."

The goal of life is to be with Jesus forever in heaven. Keep that goal in your heart every day. Life is full of noise and distractions, and important things can get lost in the chaos. Stay focused on God's light. Reflect on His character daily. His love will lift you up and empower you to do more than you ever imagined possible.

Questions:

1. Why did the rich young ruler run to Jesus?

2. Why is the love of money dangerous?

3. How can someone who seems good still miss heaven?

4. How can a rich person be saved?

5. Why does the journey to heaven require complete surrender?

May God bless you, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Matthew 19:23, 24.

[23,24] Then Jesus said to His disciples, "Assuredly, I say to you that it is hard for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven. And again I say to you, it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God."

Prayer: Thank You, Father, who intercedes for us with groanings that cannot be uttered. Help us to enter Your kingdom by Your grace and mercy. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: A drama of the rich young man.

DAY 252 (September 8)

TOPIC: The Early and Late Workers Paid Equally

(Matthew 20)

Jesus continued teaching using parables because they made people listen attentively. People loved His captivating stories and became curious to understand their meanings, which led them to discover the truth for themselves. After saying, "The first will be last," He shared a parable:

The kingdom of heaven is like a landowner who went out early in the morning to hire laborers for his vineyard. He agreed to pay them a denarius for the day and sent them to work in his vineyard. Around the third hour (9 a.m.), he saw others standing idle in the marketplace and said to them, "Why are you standing here doing nothing?" They replied, "No one has hired us." So, he sent them to work in his vineyard and promised to pay them a fair wage.

He did the same around the sixth hour (12 p.m.), the ninth hour (3 p.m.), and even the eleventh hour (5 p.m.), when he found others still standing idle. When asked why, they answered, "No one has hired us." He sent them as well, even though only an hour remained before the workday ended.

At evening, the landowner instructed his foreman to call the workers and pay them, beginning with the last ones hired and ending with the first. Each worker, whether they had worked the entire day or only the last hour, received a denarius.

Those who had worked from early morning expected to receive more, so when they were paid the same amount as those who came last, they grumbled against the landowner. They said, "These last men worked only one hour, and you have made them equal to us who have borne the burden of the day and the scorching heat."

But the landowner replied, “Friend, I am not being unfair to you. Didn’t you agree to work for a denarius? Take your pay and go. I want to give the one who was hired last the same as I gave you. Don’t I have the right to do what I want with my own money? Or are you envious because I am generous?”

Jesus concluded, “So the last will be first, and the first will be last.”

Through this parable, Jesus wanted His disciples to understand that entrance into the kingdom of heaven is based on grace, not on works. Forgiveness of sins and salvation are gifts from God. We should not feel jealous when God extends His mercy to others because His grace is His to give as He pleases.

If someone has been with Jesus from the early days, they experience the joy of walking with the Lord and hearing His voice daily—this itself is a blessing. In contrast, those who come at the last minute may have suffered under the burdens of the world before finding salvation.

Some people think they can wait until old age to follow the Lord, assuming that they will receive the same reward as those who have served Him faithfully from their youth. This is a mistake because no one knows when their life will end. Moreover, living without God can bring pain and sorrow that could have been avoided.

When you hear God’s voice calling you, respond immediately and work joyfully in His vineyard. Don’t compare yourself to others or be envious of those who come later. Remember, the thief on the cross believed in Jesus just before his death and was saved, but that is an exception—not a model to follow.

Those who delay coming to the Lord often endure hardships and pain caused by their sinful lives. We should not envy them because they carry wounds from the world. It is far better to follow Jesus now, enjoy His presence, and live in the light of His love.

Lay your needs, joys, sorrows, worries, and fears before God. You cannot burden Him, and He will never grow weary of you. The One who counts the hairs on your head cares deeply about your life. “The Lord is full of compassion and mercy” (James 5:11). His loving heart is touched by our troubles, and He invites us to bring every concern to Him. Nothing is too big or too small for Him to handle—He holds the universe in His hands.

Questions:

1. What does the wage in this parable represent?

2. Who do the workers hired in the morning represent?

3. Why will the first be last and the last be first?

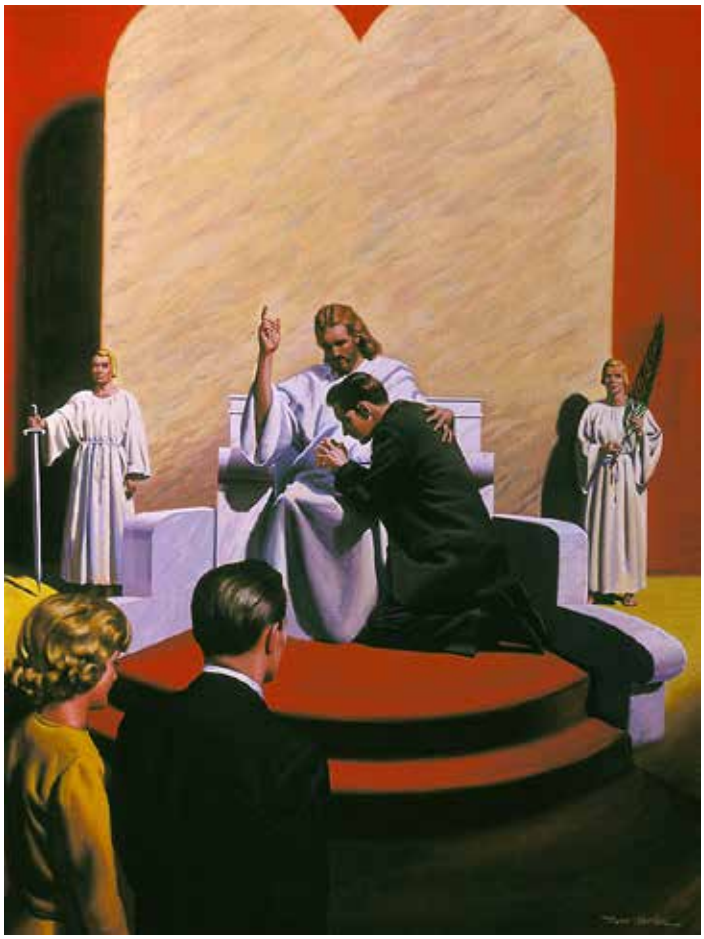
4. Why do people become envious when God blesses others?

5. How can we overcome jealousy when others succeed?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Matthew 20:13-16.

But he answered one of them and said, "Friend, I am doing you no wrong. Did you not agree with me for a denarius? Take what is yours and go your way. I wish to give to this last man the same as to you. Is it not lawful for me to do what I wish with my own things? Or is your eye evil because I am good?" So the last will be first, and the first last.



Prayer: Thank You, Lord, because You are generous. Help us not to envy others. Their gain is not our loss. Remove jealousy and hatred from us. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: God's gifts are not given by merit, but by grace. Clothespins or stones can represent wages, etc.

DAY 253 (September 9)

(Matthew 20, Mark 10)

Jesus predicted His death for the third time, saying, "We are going up to Jerusalem, and everything written by the prophets about the Son of Man will be fulfilled. He will be delivered to the Gentiles, the chief priests, and the scribes. They will mock Him, insult Him, and spit on Him. They will flog Him and kill Him, and on the third day, He will rise again." However, the disciples did not understand these words at all, and the meaning was hidden from them. They were still thinking about how they would become ministers or vice presidents after overthrowing the Romans and how Jesus would establish His kingdom, allowing them to live comfortably.

Right after Jesus told them about His impending suffering and death, they continued their favorite discussion about the greatness and positions they would soon acquire. They did not realize that if Jesus died as He predicted, it would mark a difficult time for them to witness to others, endure great tribulations, and even face persecution. They discussed the matter with their mother—Salome Zebedee, or Mrs. Zebedee—perhaps thinking that Jesus would respect her and grant their request. This mother had also dedicated herself to Jesus, supporting Him financially.

First, she had two strong and ambitious sons who were passionate about following Jesus. This woman and her husband likely supported Jesus and His disciples with their resources because their sons loved Jesus so much that they left everything behind to follow Him. She allowed her sons to walk with Jesus, leaving her without help at home—a significant sacrifice. Now, she wanted Jesus to reward her sons by giving them prominent positions. Wouldn't you also want your child to be honored by the Messiah?

Indeed, they loved Jesus, supported Him, and enjoyed listening to Him. Moreover, according to the customs of that time—just like in many African cultures—a disciple's mother was also considered a mother to their teacher, Jesus. It is possible that these young men planned for their mother to speak to Jesus on their behalf, or perhaps it was her own heartfelt desire. After all, every mother wants her children to succeed or hold positions of power, not realizing that the authority in heaven is different from that of the world.

So, the mother of James and John, the sons of Zebedee, approached Jesus, knelt before Him, and asked for a favor. Jesus asked her, "What do you want?" She requested that Jesus grant her two sons the honor of sitting on His right and left sides in His kingdom. Jesus, with a serious face, responded, "You do not know what you are asking. Can your sons drink the cup I am going to drink or endure the suffering I will face?" They confidently answered, "We can."

Jesus then said, "You will indeed drink from My cup, but to sit at My right or left is not for Me to grant. These places belong to those for whom they have been prepared by My Father."

I doubt that anyone can truly drink from the cup of Jesus, as no one can endure what He went through. While we may face suffering as humans, if we had divine power, we would avoid it. Imagine being nailed to a cross—if you had God's power, wouldn't you free yourself and leave everyone in awe? We might even perform miracles to paralyze those crucifying us. However, Jesus' burden was unique—it was in His heart. He carried the sins and sorrows of the entire world, more than 10 billion people who have ever lived over the 6,000 years of earth's history. This burden could only be carried by the Lamb of God. For this reason, only He is worthy to sit at the right hand of the Father.

We, as humans, cannot even bear the sorrows of those close to us, and when we do, we often try to avoid them.

When the other disciples heard what James, John, and their mother had asked for, they became indignant. Although they too desired these positions and had probably thought about it themselves, they lacked the courage to speak up or bring their parents.

Jesus then told them, "The rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and their high officials exercise authority over them. But it shall not be so among you. Instead, whoever wants to become great among you must be your servant, and whoever wants to be first must be your slave—just as the Son of Man did not come to be served but to serve and to give His life as a ransom for many."

Jesus did not oppose having authority, but He clarified that in the kingdom of heaven, leaders are servants of the people, not masters over them. Anyone who wants to be great must be a servant, and whoever wants to be first must be a slave.

Many parents need the wisdom to guide their children through life's challenges. If Mrs. Zebedee had such wisdom, she would have given her sons better advice instead of requesting positions of power.

Authority, no matter how small, often corrupts people's character. This is what led to Satan's fall in heaven. Even though he already held a high position, he wanted to overthrow others and elevate himself further. Many people in positions of power become arrogant, desiring worship, praise, and constant attention, forgetting where God brought them from when they had nothing.

Jesus has given us the formula for true greatness: if you want to be great, be a servant. If you want to be first, be a slave.

If you deliberately aim to be elevated for selfish reasons, you will lose your true purpose. God sees the heart.

Jesus came to give His life as a ransom for us, not to seek greatness. We should adopt the same attitude described in Philippians chapter 2—please read that chapter!

From childhood, we are trained to compete—in academics, sports, and the pursuit of wealth. But if we always strive to be first with a competitive spirit, thinking only of ourselves, we deceive ourselves. This attitude has no place in heaven.

Heaven is a place where we think of and love others, not a place for those who seek to exploit others for personal gain. Even in sports, the focus should be on exercise, friendship, and problem-solving—not on rivalry, hatred, or prioritizing games over spiritual matters.

Pray in Faith; Then Receive

There is power from God. He can help, provide grace, and give heavenly wisdom. If you pray in faith, you will receive—but you must be vigilant in prayer. Let your motto be: "Watch, pray, and work."

Questions to Ponder:

1. What did the mother of James and John ask from Jesus?

2. How did Jesus respond to her request?

3. What is the formula for true greatness?

4. Could the disciples really drink from Jesus' cup?

5. What happens if someone serves others while secretly seeking power?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Matthew 20:26-28.

[26-28] "Yet it shall not be so among you; but whoever desires to become great among you, let him be your servant. And whoever desires to be first among you, let him be your slave—just as the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give His life a ransom for many."

Prayer: Thank You, Father, for teaching us humility and how to live Your life. Help us to be servants to others, and to care for people. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Jesus speaking to His disciples that the Scriptures were about to be fulfilled concerning His death. Discuss the meaning of Jesus' death.

DAY 254 (September 10)

TOPIC: Blind Bartimaeus

(Matthew 17, Luke 19)

Time was running out, and Jesus knew it. While He was alone with His disciples, He tried to remind them that the joyful life they had shared was nearing its end. Unfortunately, they did not believe Him when He said that He must go to Jerusalem, suffer at the hands of the elders, the chief priests, and the teachers of the law, be killed, and rise again on the third day. To them, this seemed impossible. Why would a 33-year-old young man risk His life, especially when even older disciples wanted to live longer? Why not escape and help other towns or countries facing problems? Even Peter had rebuked Him, saying that such a thing could never happen.

Everything had been going well, and His miracles had drawn many people to Him; they had been fed, and they were happy and satisfied. Would the priests really ruin all this when Jesus was ready to establish His kingdom on earth and drive out the Romans? They could not comprehend that if Jesus was the Lamb of God, as John had proclaimed, then He had to be sacrificed. It would have been easy for Jesus to hide if He had wanted to. He could have gone to India, Australia, or even returned to Africa as He did when He went to Egypt. But Jesus did not flee from the suffering He knew was coming. Do you know why Jesus did not run away?

As they journeyed toward Jerusalem, evening came while they were in a Samaritan village. Jesus sent James and John, the two brothers, ahead to ask for a place to stay for the night. The disciples did not expect any problems, as Jesus had previously stayed in Samaria, helping and preaching to many people. They assumed the Samaritans would gladly host Him again. After all, they knew Jesus loved the Samaritans just as He loved the Jews. However, when they asked for accommodation, they were refused. When they inquired why, they were told, “Because your Master is heading to Jerusalem.”

This was similar to how a president cannot combine a visit to a friendly nation with one to an enemy nation during the same trip. He must return home first before proceeding to the enemy country.

The disciples were furious. The two brothers, known as the “Sons of Thunder,” asked Jesus, “Do you want us to call down fire from heaven to destroy these Samaritans, as Elijah did to the prophets of Baal on Mount Carmel?” Jesus was surprised by their spirit of anger and revenge. Have you ever been so angry at someone who wronged you that you wished they would disappear forever? Even today, many people struggle with anger, believing they have the right to be righteously angry—but that is wrong. Anger is a powerful force within us, and everyone experiences it. We should ask God to deliver us from the spirit of anger. Both children and adults must learn to overcome anger because it is a sin.

Jesus rebuked His disciples, saying, “The Son of Man did not come to destroy lives but to save them.” Wishing harm on those who disagree with your beliefs is the work of the devil. Never harm someone who opposes your faith—leave it to God to handle them.

Jesus looked at the village that rejected Him with compassion, knowing that He was on His way to Jerusalem to die for them and all humanity, even though they were unaware of the events unfolding. Prejudice, arguments, tribalism, religious bias, and jealousy consumed them. Even today, do you harbor prejudice based on your tribe or religion? If so, Jesus calls you to welcome Him and His people into your heart.

Later, after Jesus ascended to heaven, the Samaritans welcomed Philip to preach to them. Perhaps at that time, they realized the precious opportunity they had missed to welcome the Son of God and comfort His heart before His great suffering. Jesus did not get angry but simply moved on to another village, and wherever He was welcomed, blessings followed.

Jesus tried hard to explain what was about to happen, but the disciples took time to understand. Although they were shocked by the Samaritans' rejection, they did not realize that the Jews in Jerusalem were about to kill Him that same week. They still thought the Samaritans had greater issues. They had misinterpreted the prophecies, were unwilling to learn, and refused to change. They did not understand that Jesus' and humanity's victory would come through His death and resurrection. For them, death meant final defeat. This week marked the climax of the battle between Satan and God. Satan was about to suffer his greatest defeat.

Jesus reminded His disciples, "You have the Light for a little while longer—use the Light while you have it, so darkness does not overtake you."

As they left the home of James and John's mother, a large crowd followed Jesus. Two blind beggars, one named Bartimaeus, were sitting by the roadside. When they heard that Jesus was passing by, they cried out loudly, "Lord, Son of David, have mercy on us!"

The crowd was irritated by their noise because they could already see and did not understand the blind men's desperation. Despite being rebuked, the blind men cried even louder, "Lord, Son of David, have mercy on us!" Jesus stopped and called them over. The people said to the blind men, "Take heart! Jesus is calling you." They threw off their cloaks, jumped up, and went to Jesus. He asked them, "What do you want Me to do for you?" Even though He knew their need, He wanted them to express it themselves.

They said, "Lord, we want our sight." Jesus, filled with compassion, touched their eyes, and immediately they could see. He told them, "Go, your faith has healed you." Their sight was restored at once, and they followed Him, glorifying and praising God.

These blind men began to travel around, exploring things they had only heard about before. Their lives changed completely.

The blind men were like children because they knew they could not rely on themselves. They fully trusted God, believing He was the only One who could deliver them from their blindness. Anyone who trusts God like a child is considered the greatest in His kingdom.

Do not lose heart if you do not receive an immediate answer. Your faith should not let go of God's promises, even when you do not see or feel a quick response to your prayers. Do not be afraid to trust God. Rely on His true promises: "Ask, and it will be given to you." God is too wise to make mistakes and too kind to withhold any good thing from His faithful ones who walk in integrity.

Questions:

1. How did the Jews misinterpret the prophecy of the Messiah?

2. Why didn't Jesus hide or escape to Greece?

3. Why did the Samaritan village refuse to host Jesus?

4. What does Bartimaeus' courage teach us?

May God bless you greatly, child and youth of Jesus!

Key Text: John 1:29.

[29] The next day John saw Jesus coming toward him, and said, "Behold! The Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world!"

Prayer: Thank You, Father, for taking away my sin. Today I come to You, asking to live a holy life. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Bartimaeus and his fellow blind man stopping Jesus, or John the Baptist pointing to Jesus, the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world.

DAY 255 (September 11)

TOPIC: Paying Taxes is Lawful

(Matthew 22 and 24)

According to the Law of Moses, every man over the age of 20 was required to pay a special half-shekel tax called the drachma. This currency could be exchanged or obtained at the temple to pay the tax. When Jesus and His disciples arrived in Jerusalem, those who collected the half-shekel approached Peter and asked, "Does your teacher not pay the half-shekel?" Peter replied, "Yes, He does," without carefully considering the Jewish trap.

When Peter entered the house, Jesus asked him, "What do you think, Simon Peter? From whom do the kings of the earth collect duties and taxes—from their own children or from others?" Peter answered, "From others." Jesus said to him, "Then the children are exempt. However, so that we do not offend them, go to the sea, cast a hook, and take the first fish that comes up. When you open its mouth, you will find a shekel. Take it and give it to them for you and Me."

The Jews wanted to trap Jesus with this tax issue. If He did not pay, they would accuse Him before the authorities, claiming He was not a prophet. If He did pay, they would argue that He was not above ordinary people. Interestingly, Jesus faced more opposition from the religious authorities than from the Roman government. We never read about the Roman authorities trying to trap Him in this way. Even when He overturned tables, He did so in the temple, not in government offices, because corruption was rampant in the temple. Jesus knew that if the religious leaders repented, even the ruling government would be blessed and more likely to accept Him.

When Peter realized the trap, he probably thought it would have been better to say, "My Master does not pay because He is the Son of God." Yet, Jesus knew exactly how to find the temple coin, and He knew which fish would have it. This example is relevant to us today—rather than wasting time arguing over small matters, it is better to focus on sharing the gospel and helping those in need.

On another occasion, the Pharisees, seeking to trap Jesus, sent their disciples along with Herodians to ask, "Teacher, we know You are truthful and teach the way of God truthfully, and You do not care about anyone's opinion, for

You are not swayed by appearances. Tell us, is it lawful to pay taxes to Caesar or not?"

Jesus, knowing their malice, asked, "Why do you test Me, you hypocrites? Show Me the coin used for the tax." They brought Him a denarius, and He asked, "Whose image and inscription is this?" They replied, "Caesar's." Jesus then said, "Give to Caesar what is Caesar's and to God what is God's." When they heard this, they marveled, left Him, and went away.

Governments need taxes to fund essential services like building roads, maintaining hospitals, paying teachers, and other development projects. Fair governments use tax revenue responsibly, while corrupt governments exploit it for personal gain. Nonetheless, citizens play a crucial role in supporting the government. Rather than asking what the government will do for us, we should also consider how we can contribute to its success.

Another vital responsibility is to pray for the government and its leaders, so there may be peace and freedom to worship without persecution. Remember, those who love God are citizens of two kingdoms—earthly and heavenly.

Offering tithes and giving to God are also essential. Compared to the abundance God provides—family, health, and resources—what we give back is very little. God does not force us to give, but failing to do so robs us of blessings. If you think you are giving God too much, remember that He is no oppressor; He will always reward you beyond what you give.

It is our privilege to pray boldly, as the Spirit leads our prayers. With humility, we should present our needs to the Lord and claim His promises.

God does not answer unprayed prayers. Faith and prayer can achieve what no earthly power can. Each new day brings unique challenges that cannot be solved by past experiences alone. We need continuous guidance from God. Christ always sends messages to those who listen to His voice.

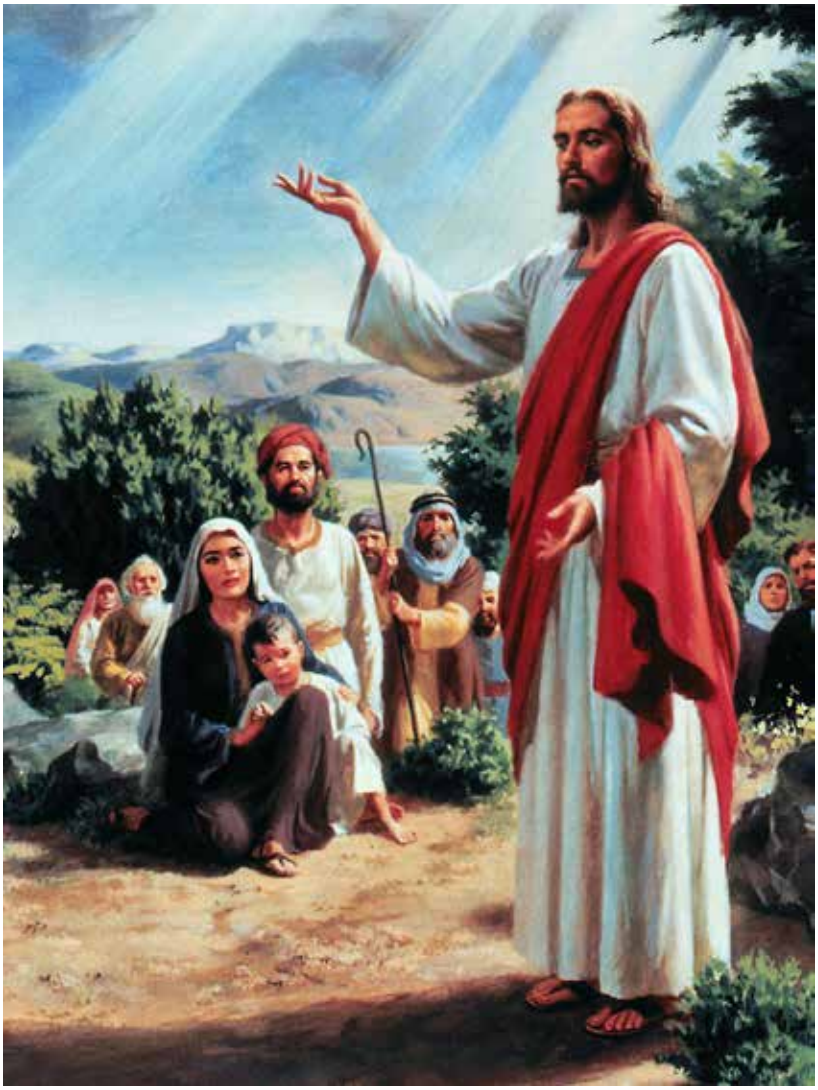
Questions:

1. How did Jesus pay the tax?
2. Why did Jesus pay the tax?
3. Who tried to trap Jesus with questions?
4. How did Jesus respond to them?
5. Why are paying taxes and giving tithes important today?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Mark 12:16, 17.

[16,17] So they brought it. And He said to them, "Whose image and inscription is this?" They said to Him, "Caesar's." And Jesus answered and said to them, "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's." And they marveled at Him.



Prayer: Dear Father, we pray that we do not rely on our own ways of solving issues, but instead take guidance from Your Word. Grant us favor with people as we go outside our homes today. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: A coin with the president of the country. Then discuss the example of how Jesus spoke that day.

DAY 256 (September 12)

TOPIC: We Must Forgive Others as God Forgives Us

(Matthew 18)

Do your siblings or friends sometimes irritate you, making it hard to forgive them? Do you ever feel like gossiping about them so others will know how wrong they are? Have you wondered, "Why can't I hold a grudge against someone who has deeply wronged me?" You are not alone—everyone struggles to forgive when hurt.

When Peter approached Jesus, he asked, "Lord, how often shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? Up to seven times?" Peter thought seven times was a reasonable limit. Jesus surprised him by saying, "I do not say to you seven times, but seventy times seven"—which equals 490 times!

Jesus knew no one could keep such detailed records. Who could remember being wronged 490 times by the same person in a day? If someone wrongs you once a day, it would take over a year to reach 490 offenses.

Have you been wronged 490 times by one person? If not, make a list of everyone you are angry with and what they did. Pray and ask God to help you forgive them. Likely, by the time you reach 20 offenses, you will have forgotten most of the wrongs and be ready to reconcile.

Jesus told a parable about a king who wanted to settle accounts with his servants. One servant owed him 10,000 talents, a debt he could not pay. The king ordered him, his family, and his possessions to be sold to settle the debt. The servant begged for mercy, and the king, moved with compassion, forgave the entire debt.

However, this same servant found a fellow servant who owed him 100 denarii. Instead of showing mercy, he seized and imprisoned him until the debt was paid. Other servants reported this injustice to the king, who, outraged, revoked his forgiveness and handed him over to the jailers until he repaid everything.

Jesus concluded by warning that God will treat us the same way if we do not forgive others from the heart.

Forgiveness frees us from the burden of anger and bitterness. Without it, we become prisoners of our own resentment. God, like the compassionate king, forgives us and expects us to do the same for others.

If someone repeatedly wrongs you, forgive them without limit. This does not mean enabling harmful behavior but maintaining a heart free of resentment.

Questions:

1. Why did the forgiven servant refuse to forgive his fellow servant?

2. What question did Peter ask Jesus?

3. How many times did Jesus say we should forgive?

4. Why does refusing to forgive enslave us?

5. What lesson do we learn from the unforgiving servant?

6. Who does the shepherd who seeks the lost sheep represent?

7. Is there a limit to how many times we should forgive?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Matthew 18:15-17.

[15-17] "Moreover if your brother sins against you, go and tell him his fault between you and him alone. If he hears you, you have gained your brother. But if he will not hear, take with you one or two more, that 'by the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established.' And if he refuses to hear them, tell it to the church. But if he refuses even to hear the church, let him be to you like a heathen and a tax collector."

Prayer: Thank You, Lord. Help me to forgive those who offend me, and to know which conflicts I should share with my parents. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: A skit on conflict resolution or forgiveness. Or discuss the meaning of forgiveness, with a skit showing forgiveness.

DAY 257 (September 13)

TOPIC: Hosanna, Blessed is He Who Comes in the Name of the LORD

(Matthew 21)

A summary of the last week of Jesus before His death:

Sunday: He rode a donkey and entered Jerusalem.

Monday: He cleansed the temple and cursed the fig tree.

Tuesday: He taught in the temple.

Wednesday: Judas planned to betray Him. Mary anointed Him with oil.

Thursday: They ate bread and drank wine together, Jesus gave His final teachings, and prayed in the Garden of Gethsemane.

Friday: Jesus was arrested, accused by the Sanhedrin, and sentenced to death by Pilate.

Friday: Jesus was crucified and buried.

Saturday: Jesus rested in the tomb.

Sunday: Jesus rose from the dead and appeared to Mary, the disciples on the road to Emmaus, and His other disciples.

During Jesus' final week on earth, He traveled from Ephraim toward Jerusalem and reached Bethphage on the Mount of Olives. There, Jesus paused and sent two of His disciples ahead, saying, "Go to the village ahead of you, and immediately you will find a donkey tied there with her colt by her. Untie them and bring them to Me. If anyone asks you what you are doing, tell them, 'The Lord needs them,' and they will let you go right away."

The disciples were a little surprised because it was unusual that Jesus knew even the age of the donkey! All of this happened to fulfill the prophecy spoken by Zechariah, saying, "Tell the daughter of Zion, 'Look, your King comes to you, gentle and riding on a donkey, on a colt, the foal of a donkey.'" The disciples thought about this. The King of Kings was humble—without banners or royal decorations. Some governments, like the United Kingdom, spend $50 million to maintain and decorate the royal family. Yet, Jesus worked with His own hands and did not ride in luxurious chariots but walked on foot. Wealthy people passed by in their fine chariots, leaving dust behind them, but Jesus remained focused, saying He must preach before night falls when no one can work.

The disciples obeyed Jesus' instructions. Perhaps the donkey's owner was also a follower of Jesus, so they brought the donkey and her colt. The disciples may have thought that their days of walking were over now that they had a donkey.

Jesus rode the donkey while the people laid their clothes on it, and He sat on them. The donkey began to move forward. It was the time of the Passover, and many people from different regions had gathered to celebrate. Suddenly, there was a great shout of joy. When the crowd saw Jesus, they spread their clothes on the road while others cut palm branches and laid them on the path or waved them. This was like rolling out the red carpet for a president. The crowd grew larger, and the joyful shouts increased, filling the air with praise—freely given without pressure from the government or religious leaders.

Those who went ahead and those who followed shouted, "Hosanna to the Son of David! Blessed is He who comes in the Name of the LORD! Hosanna in the highest heaven!" The Pharisees and chief priests were angry, but they could do nothing. When Jesus entered Jerusalem, the whole city was stirred, and people asked, "Who is this?" The crowd answered, "This is Jesus, the prophet from Nazareth in Galilee." Indeed, He was more than a prophet—He was the Son of God.

The next day, Jesus entered the temple for the second time. The temple had become like a marketplace or a livestock yard. Jesus drove out all who were buying and selling there. He overturned the tables of the money changers—who exchanged regular currency for the temple tax coin called a drachma—and the benches of those selling doves. The people stood still in shock, unable to act. Jesus said to them, "It is written, 'My house will be called a house of prayer,' but you have made it a den of robbers."

The blind and the lame came to Him, and He healed them. The children also continued to praise Him joyfully. But when the chief priests and the teachers of the law saw the wonderful things He did and heard the children shouting, "Hosanna to the Son of David," they were indignant. They asked Jesus, "Do You hear what these children are saying?" Quoting Psalm 8, Jesus replied, "Yes. Have you never read, 'From the lips of children and infants, You, LORD, have called forth Your praise'?" He added, "If these children keep quiet, the stones will cry out."

The disciples had a day of joy before the week's sorrow arrived. Perhaps even the young donkey felt honored to carry his Creator, thinking how special he was to be chosen instead of a horse or an elephant.

Jesus was humble; He did not choose luxurious vehicles or expensive means of travel. Today, we learn not to chase after costly or extravagant things. Just as the donkey was needed by the Lord, today, the Lord needs each one of us to share the final message of eternal good news with a world heading toward destruction. A vital prayer is, "Lord, if You need me, show me where, when, and how to serve You. Help me to do what You want with all the strength You give me until that day when I will be with You forever in heaven."

Jesus was a King without soldiers or weapons to protect Him. All who followed Him did so out of love—no one was forced. Many who followed Him had been healed by Him, and they showed their gratitude sincerely.

However, the crowd was surprised when Jesus suddenly stopped near Jerusalem. Many rushed closer to hear what He would say. When Jesus saw the city, He wept over it. The King of Kings cried, saying, "If only you had known this day what would bring you peace—but now it is hidden from your eyes." People were puzzled—what kind of King cries when being praised and celebrated? But Jesus was not crying for Himself—He was crying for them and for us. That city could have received blessings and peace, but they rejected

His warnings.

Jesus predicted, “The days will come when your enemies will build an embankment against you and encircle you, hemming you in on every side. They will crush you and your children, leaving no stone on another because you did not recognize the time of God’s coming to you.” This prophecy was fulfilled in 70 AD when the Roman General Titus besieged Jerusalem. Such events will occur again in the last days.

The people were proud of their magnificent temple and buildings, but Jesus did not weep for the buildings—He wept for the people, knowing many would reject Him and be lost forever. What Jesus foretold happened 50 years later when Jerusalem was destroyed, leaving only one remaining wall of the old temple.

In many places today, the beginning of the Passover week is called Palm Sunday, and people use palm branches in worship. Many thought Jesus would become an earthly king, unaware of the suffering He would endure to save us from sin.

How much more could Jesus have done for Jerusalem if its leaders and people had accepted Him? After cleansing the temple, Jesus left for Bethany and spent the night there.

Prayers of faith never go unanswered—even if they are not answered in the way or at the time we expect.

Questions:

1. What did the disciples tell the donkey’s owner?

2. What did Zechariah’s prophecy say?

3. Why is Jesus more than a prophet?

4. What did Jesus say would happen if the children did not praise Him?

5. Why did Jesus weep over Jerusalem?

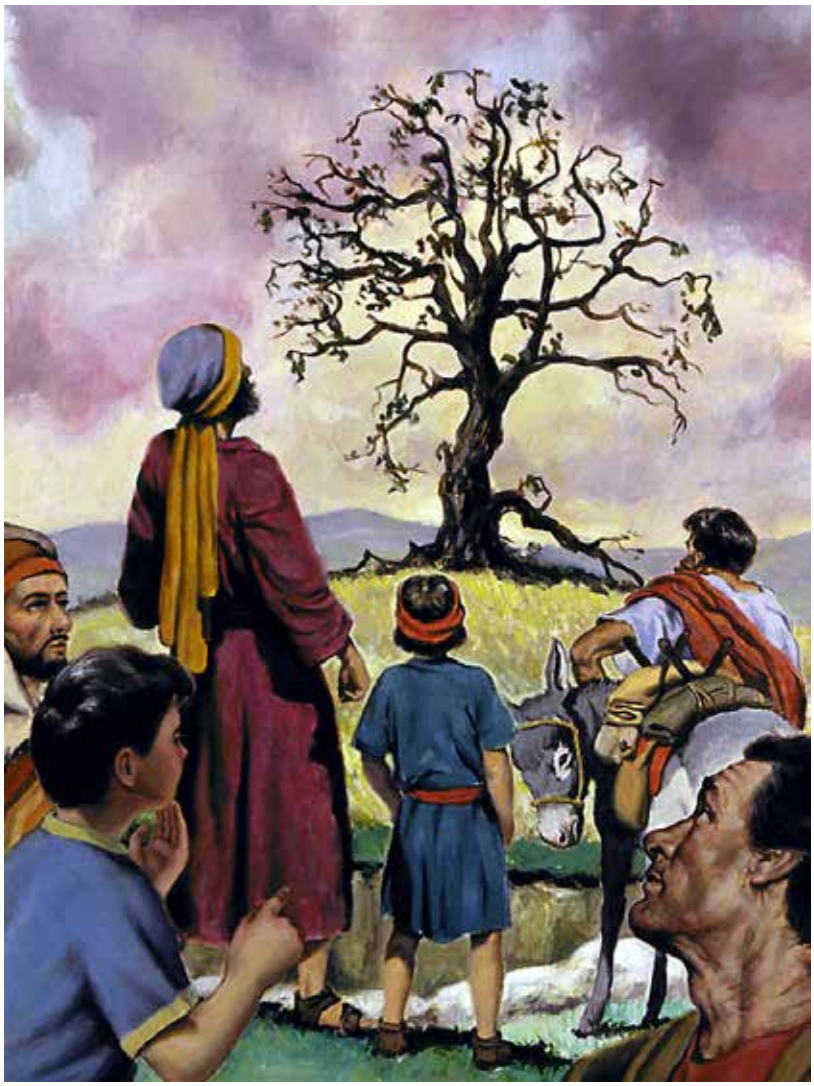
6. How do radio and television fulfill the prophecy that “stones will cry out”?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Matthew 21:21, 22.

[21,22] So Jesus answered and said to them, "Assuredly, I say to you, if you have faith and do not doubt, you will not only do what was done to the fig tree, but also if you say to this mountain, 'Be removed and be cast into the sea,' it will be done."

Prayer: Thank You, Lord, for answering our prayers. Remove all doubt from us. Help us not to grieve You, since You love us and do not want us to suffer destruction and painful judgment because of our deeds. Forgive our sins and help us receive the Holy Spirit to convict us of sins of the eyes, lust, and pride of this life. In Jesus' Name, Amen.



Activity: Reflect on Luke 19:41-44, about Jesus' sorrow and tears. How does His sorrow concern me?

Private Prayer: Find a quiet place, and each one spend three minutes in prayer. Ask God to increase your understanding of Jesus' sorrow. Reflect on the brokenness and pain in the world and consider how you can open your heart to grieve injustice, racism, and violence.

DAY 258 (September 14)

TOPIC: Learn from the Fig Tree

(Matthew 21, Luke 20)

Early in the morning, before breakfast, Jesus left for the city, and He was hungry. He saw a fig tree by the roadside. He approached it to pick some fruit to eat, but found nothing except lush leaves, as if it had fruit. He said to the tree, "May you never bear fruit again!" Immediately, the tree began to wither. The next day, as the disciples passed by, they saw the tree had dried up from the leaves to the roots. When the disciples saw this, they were amazed and said, "How did the fig tree wither so quickly?"

Jesus answered, "Truly I tell you, if you have faith and do not doubt, not only will you do what was done to the fig tree, but even if you say to this mountain, 'Be removed and thrown into the sea,' it will happen. And whatever you ask for in prayer, believing, you will receive. And when you stand praying, forgive others; do not hold grudges, so that your Father in heaven may also forgive your sins. But if you do not forgive others, your Father in heaven will not forgive your sins either."

The withered tree represented the Jewish religion and their temple, which appeared beautiful on the outside with priests dressed in ornate robes and with lovely hymns of worship, but God was not at the center. They displayed an outward appearance of religious devotion, but their hearts and minds were far from God. In other words, they were religious but lost. This scenario has repeated itself in many faith communities. Often, the first generation of a community believes in God sincerely, the second generation gains education because of that faith, and the third generation acquires wealth due to that education and faith—but the fourth generation abandons the faith altogether and must begin the journey of spiritual rebirth again.

Jesus did not place importance on outward appearances if the inner heart lacked genuine love for God or others. Those ceremonies and external forms of worship were meaningless without true devotion. Through this example, Jesus reminds us that living for human approval—being seen as spiritual or religious—is not enough to get us into heaven. A day will come when people will see the emptiness if we do not bear fruit. As the Swahili proverb says, "The beauty of a container is just on the outside; inside, it's a piece of wood."

We may appear successful in our studies, have many friends, and be famous where we are, but our character should reflect our faith and the love of God for others. A person living without God's love inside them will eventually lack true joy and will not bear fruit in the community. Let us pray to God to live authentic lives because by living falsely, we only deceive ourselves, not others.

Jesus had been working for three years, preaching in the temple without being stopped, though the leaders often sought to trap Him. They knew of the thousands He had healed and those He had freed from demons. They knew He had power over nature, as He walked on water and performed many miracles no ordinary human could do. Indeed, no one who has ever lived on earth has done the wonders that He did!

When He entered the temple, the chief priests and elders came to Him and asked, "By what authority are you doing these things, and who gave you this authority?" Jesus answered them with a question: "If you answer my question, I will tell you by what authority I do these things. John's baptism—was it from heaven or from men?"

They debated among themselves, saying, "If we say, 'From heaven,' He will ask, 'Why did you not believe him?' But if we say, 'From men,' we fear the people, for they all hold that John was a prophet." So they answered Jesus, "We don't know." And Jesus said, "Neither will I tell you by what authority I do these things."

Then He told them a parable: "A man had two sons. He went to the first and said, 'Son, go and work today in the vineyard.' He answered, 'I will, sir,' but did not go. Then the father went to the second son and said the same. The son answered, 'I will not,' but later he changed his mind and went. Which of the two did what his father wanted?"

They replied, "The second one."

Jesus said to them, "Truly I tell you, tax collectors and prostitutes are entering the kingdom of God ahead of you. For John came to show you the way of righteousness, and you did not believe him, but the tax collectors and prostitutes did. And even after you saw this, you did not repent and believe him."

This lesson teaches us to approach the temple with reverence and humility, not to engage in arguments or quarrels there. God values our actions more than our words. This does not mean that when our parents give us work, we should first refuse and then later go; rather, we should obey immediately. But if we initially refuse, we should repent and then do as asked.

When the Holy Spirit speaks to us—through our thoughts or conscience—we should be willing to change. Tax collectors and prostitutes changed their ways when they heard Jesus' call and left their sinful past behind. However, those who knew God's Word—the Pharisees, scribes, elders, and priests—professed willingness to follow God, but their words were empty without action.

Those who truly love and fear God should not pursue worldly pleasures or follow their own desires. The kingdom of heaven is not just a kingdom of love, but also of truth, sincerity, goodness, and faithfulness in both words and actions. If we want to be part of this kingdom, we must follow His plans and laws. It does not matter how rebellious or disobedient we were in the past—we must repent, turn away from our old ways, and do God's will.

When your parents ask you to do something, do you refuse? When God tells you to follow His commandments, do you obey, or do you reject His commands? When God asks for your heart, do you deny Him? If so, remember that Jesus loves you deeply. Like a loving Father, He is waiting for you to turn back and say, "I was wrong, forgive me—I am now ready to do what You ask." He is waiting for you today in His vineyard.

Angels Carry Our Prayers to the Heavenly Sanctuary
Angels hear our prayers of praise and faith and carry them to the One who ministers in the Heavenly Sanctuary on behalf of His people. They present His righteousness and merits for us. True prayer relies on Him who is supreme and grants us victory. On our knees before Him, the Christian gains strength to resist temptation.

Questions:

1. Who does the son who said “Yes” but did not go represent?

2. Who does the son who said “No” but later went represent?

3. Who does the withered fig tree represent?

Key Text: Matthew 21:42.

[42] Jesus said to them, “Have you never read in the Scriptures:
‘The stone which the builders rejected Has become the chief cornerstone.
This was the Lord’s doing, And it is marvelous in our eyes’?”

Prayer: Thank You, our Father in heaven. Help us to believe in You, the chief cornerstone. In Jesus’ Name, Amen.

Activity: A play of the two sons in Matthew 21:28-32. What is the lesson of these two sons?

DAY 259 (September 15)

TOPIC: The Vineyard Owner and the Wicked Workers

(Matthew 21, Luke 20)

Jesus told a parable about a man who owned a vineyard. He planted vines and took good care of the vineyard—he built a fence around it, dug a winepress, and constructed a watchtower. He then rented the vineyard to some tenants and traveled to another country.

When the harvest time approached, he sent his servants to collect his share of the produce from the tenants. However, the tenants seized the servants, beat some, and sent them away empty-handed; others they even killed. The owner sent more servants, more than the first group, but the tenants treated them in the same cruel way—beating them, humiliating them, injuring their heads, and throwing them out of the vineyard.

Finally, the owner sent his beloved son, thinking, "They will respect my son." But when the tenants saw the son, they conspired among themselves, saying, "This is the heir—let's kill him and take his inheritance." They seized him, threw him out of the vineyard, and killed him.

Jesus then asked, "When the owner of the vineyard comes, what will he do to those tenants?" The people replied, "He will destroy those wicked men and rent the vineyard to others who will give him his share of the harvest at the proper time."

Jesus used this parable to symbolize Israel as the vineyard. God had cared for and protected the nation, expecting it to bear good fruit. However, when He sent His prophets to guide them toward His kingdom, the people rejected them—some were stoned, others were mistreated as enemies, and some were even killed. Finally, God sent His Son, Jesus Christ, but they would also kill Him. Judgment was coming, and the wicked would receive their due punishment.

At the time Jesus told this parable, His death had not yet occurred—but the religious leaders were already planning to kill Him. When they heard the parable, they understood its meaning and said, "May this never happen!"

Jesus responded, "Have you not read the Scriptures? 'The stone the builders rejected has become the cornerstone; the Lord has done this, and it is marvelous in our eyes.'" He explained that since they rejected the cornerstone—Jesus Himself—the kingdom of God would be taken away from them and given to a nation that would bear its fruit. This prophecy has come true, as the gospel has spread to people worldwide, not just the Jews.

Jesus warned that anyone who falls on this stone (meaning those who submit to Him) will be broken and humbled—but those on whom the stone falls (those who reject Him) will be crushed completely.

When the chief priests and Pharisees heard this parable, they realized Jesus was speaking about them. They knew they were not following God's ways but were consumed by their own selfish interests. Feeling guilty, they wanted to arrest Him but feared the crowds who considered Jesus a prophet and respected Him deeply.

The religious leaders continued to set traps for Jesus, hoping to catch Him in His words and hand Him over to the authorities for execution—just like the wicked tenants in the parable. They asked if it was lawful to pay taxes to Caesar, and Jesus wisely answered, "Give to Caesar what is Caesar's and to God what is God's."

In contrast to the wicked tenants, faithful workers in God's vineyard—like the apostles—shared the message of His kingdom. Even today, many continue to work faithfully, bringing forth the fruits of love, truth, kindness, patience, joy, and peace.

You, too, have a choice—to be a faithful worker in God's vineyard or to be like the wicked tenants. Which side will you choose?

Jesus gave many agricultural parables, including the story of a fruitless tree. This tree was given time to be nurtured with fertilizer, but if it still did not bear fruit, it would be cut down. Similarly, God gives us time to change our ways—but if we refuse to bear good spiritual fruit, we face judgment.

Serving God requires effort, patience, and perseverance. You will face struggles, carry burdens, offer counsel, and plan strategies—but always seek God's guidance and strength. Pray and work—work and pray. As students in the school of Christ, learn continually about Jesus.

Questions:

Who do the tenants who killed the owner's servants represent?

Who are the tenants that killed the son compared to?

What does the fruitless tree symbolize?

What is the cornerstone that the builders rejected?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Luke 20:42-45.

[42-45] "Now David himself said in the Book of Psalms:
'The Lord said to my Lord,
"Sit at My right hand,
Till I make Your enemies Your footstool."'
Therefore David calls Him 'Lord'; how is He then his Son?"

Prayer: Thank You, my Father, my God, my Rock, and my salvation. In the Name of Your beloved Son, Amen.

Activity: Take examples of Jesus' parables in Luke 20 about the farmer, etc., and explain their meaning for today.

DAY 260 (September 16)

TOPIC: The Sadducees, Marriage, and the Resurrection

(Luke 20)

The Sadducees, who did not believe in the resurrection, tried to challenge Jesus with a tricky question. They were wealthy, held high-ranking priestly positions, and had some alliance with the Romans. Although they knew the Pharisees had failed to trap Jesus with a question about taxes, they believed their question about marriage and the resurrection would succeed.

The Sadducees did not believe in the resurrection, angels, or spiritual matters. This disbelief made them like pagans because anyone who denies heavenly things or the resurrection cannot truly believe in God. They led the religious institutions of the time but were hypocritical in their practices.

The Sadducees referred to Moses' law, which stated that if a man died without children, his brother should marry the widow to continue the family line.

They posed a scenario: seven brothers, one after another, married the same woman after each preceding brother died childless. Eventually, the woman also died. They asked, “In the resurrection, whose wife will she be since all seven married her?”

Jesus answered that in the resurrection, people do not marry but are like the angels in heaven. They can no longer die because they are children of God and share in the resurrection. Jesus also pointed to Moses’ writings, where God identifies Himself as the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Since God is not the God of the dead but of the living, these patriarchs must be alive in Him.

Some of the scribes—who believed in the resurrection—praised Jesus’ answer, saying, “Teacher, you have spoken well.” From that point on, no one dared to question Him further.

Jesus also clarified that marriage is a sacred institution between one man and one woman, established by God. Divorce and infidelity violate God’s seventh commandment. Those who are married should uphold their vows, seek forgiveness, and nurture their relationship. Christian marriages that reflect love and unity preach a powerful message of God’s goodness.
Jesus further asked, “Why do people say that Christ is the son of David? David himself, by the Holy Spirit, called Him ‘Lord.’” This meant that the Messiah, though a descendant of David, was also divine and preexistence.

He warned His disciples to beware of the scribes and Pharisees who loved public recognition but were hypocritical, exploiting widows while pretending to be pious. Despite their long public prayers, their actions showed their true motives.

Questions:

What did the Sadducees believe?

Why is their belief a sin?

What question did the Pharisees use to test Jesus?

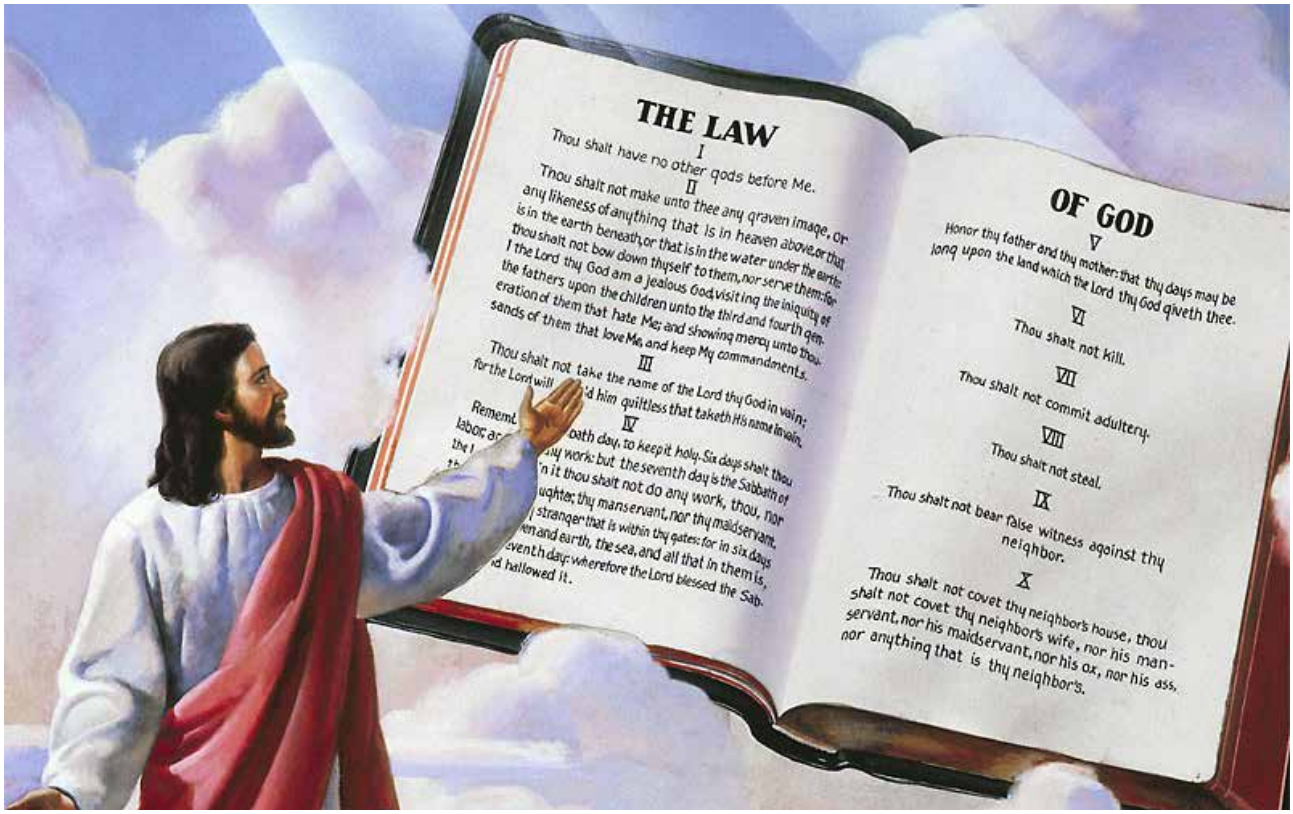
How did Jesus respond?

Why did the Pharisees sit in the front seats and offer long prayers?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Luke 20:22-25.

[22-25] "Is it lawful for us to pay taxes to Caesar or not?" But He perceived their craftiness, and said to them, "Show Me a denarius. Whose image and inscription does it have?" They answered and said, "Caesar's." And He said to them, "Render therefore to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's."



Prayer: Thank You, Lord. Help us to be faithful stewards of time, health, the gospel, possessions, talents, and in imitating Your character. Keep us from false teachings. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: A play of giving to Caesar what is Caesar's and to God what is God's.

DAY 261 (September 17)

TOPIC: Which Commandment is the Greatest?

(Matthew 22)

When the Pharisees heard that Jesus had silenced the Sadducees, they gathered together, and one of them, an expert in the law, tested Him with this question: “Teacher, which is the greatest commandment in the Law?” Jesus replied, “Love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your mind, and with all your strength. This is the first and greatest commandment. And the second is like it: Love your neighbor as yourself. All the Law and the Prophets hang on these two commandments.”

We cannot touch heaven without touching our fellow human beings. As we draw closer to God, we also draw closer to others. We cannot live as hermits and avoid people. It is necessary for all of us to remember to pray to God. Private prayers are the secret to strength and victory. We should understand what He tells us and put it into practice.

When another woman saw Jesus, she became envious and said, “Blessed is the womb that bore you and the breasts that nursed you.” But Jesus replied, “Blessed rather are those who hear the Word of God and obey it.” We must always pursue what is good and do it because we are often tempted to do evil. There is a day when everything done in darkness will be revealed and brought to light by God.

Another man came to Jesus seeking a judgment regarding an inheritance dispute with his brother. Jesus asked him, “Who appointed Me to be a judge or an arbitrator between you?” Then He said, “A man’s life does not consist in the abundance of his possessions.” He told the parable of a rich man who harvested so much that his barns were full, and he planned to tear them down and build bigger ones, not knowing he would die that very night without having decided to follow Jesus.
