Sometimes, people rely on themselves and make plans without involving God, unaware of what tomorrow holds. Accumulating wealth without realizing that life is fleeting, without considering helping the community or supporting the work of the Gospel, is pointless because one day, all worldly riches will turn to ashes.

Jesus also spoke of two people who built houses—one on sand and the other on a rock. When storms came, the house on the sand collapsed, but the house on the rock stood firm. A person who believes in God is likened to someone who builds their house on a rock. In the Scriptures, the Rock represents Jesus Christ. Today, we are advised to build on this Rock, to love Him with all our hearts, minds, souls, and strength, and to love our neighbors as ourselves.

The words of Jesus cannot be explained scientifically or by human wisdom and philosophy but through the power of the Holy Spirit. Earthly knowledge alone is insufficient to understand our salvation—only the Holy Spirit helps us comprehend. Therefore, we should not read the Scriptures without asking God to give us the light to understand them.

Our character is always under construction; if we build our character on the Rock—Jesus—life’s troubles and challenges will not consume our thoughts to the point of falling into Satan’s traps. Our lives must be founded on the solid teachings of Jesus. He is the unshakable Rock, our refuge, and a firm foundation. We should not base our beliefs on whether many people agree with us but on whether our faith aligns with God’s Word and is rooted in the Rock.

When children listened to Jesus, they understood His words and accepted them without worrying about whether others followed them or not. A child who loves Jesus and desires to follow His instructions can be a better worker for God than an adult. Because a child knows their weakness, they seek and depend on God more. Such a child will build a stronger foundation than adults with vast knowledge and talents if they follow and rely on God.

If we fully commit ourselves, we will know whether we are building on the Rock or the sand. We will discern whether the teachings we follow are the Truth or human traditions.

Our prayers should be earnest, sincere, and persistent, like the poor friend who went to ask for bread at midnight. The more we pray with determination, the closer our spiritual union with Christ will become. We will receive increased blessings as our faith grows.

Questions:

1. What is the greatest commandment?

2. Who did Jesus say is more blessed than His mother?

3. What does building on the Rock mean?

4. How can you tell if you are building on the sand?

5. What was Jesus' response to the man who wanted Him to settle an inheritance dispute?

Key Text: Matthew 22:36-40.

"Teacher, which is the great commandment in the law?"
Jesus said to him, "'You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your mind.' This is the first and great commandment.
And the second is like it: 'You shall love your neighbor as yourself.'
On these two commandments hang all the Law and the Prophets."

Prayer: Thank You, Lord. Please help me not to focus on wealth, but to love You with all my heart, and my neighbor as myself. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: A case of inheritance, or a house with a strong foundation and a house with a weak foundation.

DAY 262 (September 18)

TOPIC: Woe to the Pharisees

(Matthew 23)

Jesus loved people from all walks of life and sought opportunities to speak with them for their salvation. Because of this deep love, He did not remain silent and allow them to be lost. He told them what they needed to hear. We, too, should not seek peace to the extent that it causes us to forget the principles of Truth.

Jesus said we should not fear those who kill the body but the One who can destroy both body and soul. The Pharisees focused on outward appearances while neglecting the heart, thoughts, and intentions that needed transformation first.

They created 613 laws based on Moses' teachings, adding their own rules to enforce them, making thousands of regulations that became burdensome. Jesus warned the crowd and His disciples to follow the teachings but not the Pharisees' example because they did not practice what they preached. They placed heavy burdens on others but would not lift a finger to help.

Jesus called them hypocrites because they performed religious acts to be seen by others. They loved places of honor, being greeted in marketplaces, and being called "Rabbi." Jesus instructed His followers not to seek titles or positions of superiority, as true greatness comes from serving others.

Jesus declared, "Woe to you, teachers of the law and Pharisees, you hypocrites!" because they hindered others from entering the kingdom of heaven and did not enter themselves. They exploited widows and made lengthy prayers for show. They would travel extensively to convert one person but then make them twice as much a child of hell.

Jesus wanted people to understand that outward appearance is not as important as the condition of the heart. Despite their knowledge of Scripture, the Pharisees' hearts were filled with wickedness.

Jesus' words were a final effort to help them repent. His desire was for them to love God and others sincerely, not to live for selfish gain.

Even today, we must examine our lives and ask whether we follow Jesus' teachings sincerely or if we merely put on a religious show.

Questions:

1. Why is it unwise to lead others to hell?

2. What does it mean to cleanse the inside of the cup first?

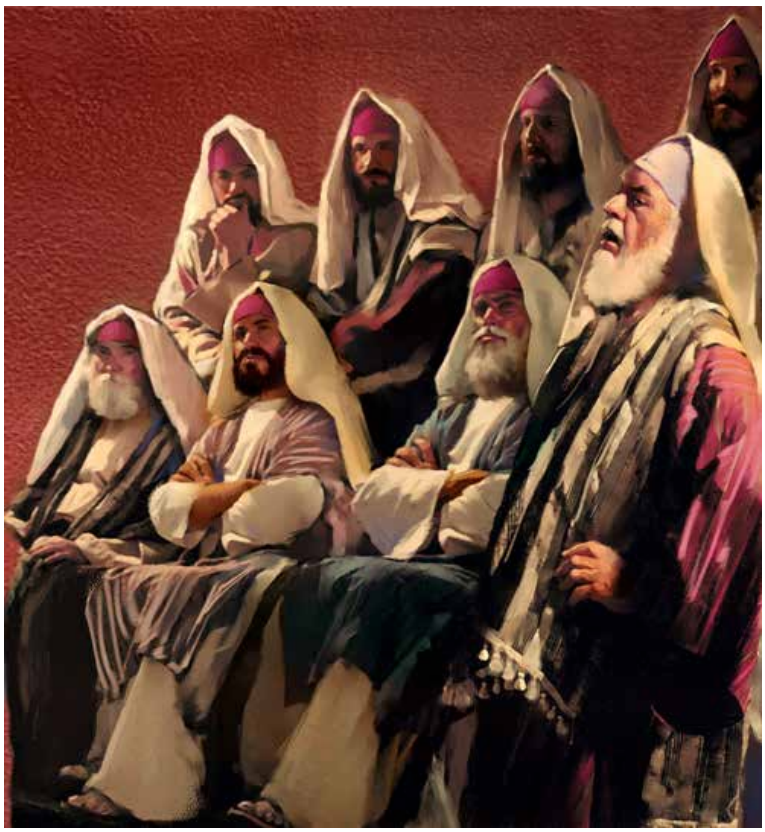
3. Why did Jesus rebuke religious leaders publicly?

4. What behaviors today resemble those of the Pharisees?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Matthew 23:11-13.

[11-13] "But he who is greatest among you shall be your servant. And whoever exalts himself will be humbled, and he who humbles himself will be exalted. But woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you shut up the kingdom of heaven against men; for you neither go in yourselves, nor do you allow those who are entering to go in."



Prayer: Thank You, Father in heaven. Help us not to shut people out of the kingdom of heaven. Keep us from hypocrisy. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Look for a vegetable and begin counting its leaves. Explain further—Pharisees, hypocrites, you pay tithe of mint, dill, cumin, and tiny herbs, yet you neglect the weightier matters of the law, namely justice and mercy.

DAY 263 (September 19)

TOPIC: The Pharisees – Part Two

(Matthew 23)

Jesus continued to give warnings, saying, "Woe to you, Pharisees!" He had compassion but rebuked the scribes and Pharisees who displayed outward acts of righteousness. They loved to sit in the front seats at synagogues and banquets, exploited widows, took food from the poor, and burdened others with heavy rules while refusing to lift a finger themselves. They enjoyed being called grand titles like "Father" or "Teacher," which should only be reserved for God. They loved receiving honor and being worshiped by people.

During Jesus' time on earth, there were four kinds of laws: the Law of Moses, the laws of the rabbis, the Roman laws, and the Ten Commandments of God. The Pharisees counted 613 laws from Moses and added their own interpretations, multiplying them into thousands of rules. The scribes, whose job was to copy the Scriptures manually since there were no printing machines, also taught people to know God. Although they occupied the seat of authority like Moses, they failed to fulfill their duties toward God and people. They were given time to correct themselves but refused to change. This is the problem with hypocrisy—deceiving others until eventually, you believe your own lies and deceive yourself.

Jesus said, "Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you are like whitewashed tombs which appear beautiful on the outside but inside are full of dead men's bones and all uncleanness. In the same way, on the outside, you appear righteous to people, but on the inside, you are full of hypocrisy and lawlessness." These people spent large sums of money building monuments for the dead instead of helping the sick and needy while they were still alive. They prioritized things people didn't need and denied them what they truly needed.

"Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! You decorate the tombs of the prophets and say, 'If we had lived in the days of our fathers, we would not have joined them in killing the prophets.' By saying this, you testify against yourselves that you are the descendants of those who murdered the prophets. You are doing exactly as your fathers did, even now planning to kill Me and fill up the measure of your forefathers' sins. You serpents, brood of vipers! How will you escape being condemned to hell?"

Jesus warned that His death would not end their hatred and wickedness. He said, "I will send you prophets, wise men, and teachers. Some of them you will kill and crucify; others you will flog in your synagogues and pursue from town to town." He accused them of persecuting righteous people from the beginning of the world, from Abel to Zechariah, who was murdered in the temple. The scribes and Pharisees had taken away the key to knowledge—they did not enter God's kingdom themselves and prevented others from entering. When they heard Jesus' words, they became furious and began to question Him aggressively, seeking a reason to accuse and kill Him.

With sorrow, Jesus lamented, "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, you who kill the prophets and stone those sent to you! How often I have longed to gather your children together as a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, but you were unwilling! Look, your house is left to you desolate, for you rejected the presence of God's Spirit. You will not see Me again until you say, 'Blessed is He who comes in the name of the Lord.'" After these words, Jesus left the temple.

Jesus wanted everyone to understand how deeply He cared for them. Like a mother hen protecting her chicks from hawks and storms, He wanted to shield them from spiritual danger—but they refused His help. Jesus did not want to embarrass them, but their sin and rebellion had gone too far, and He offered them one last chance to repent. Even today, Jesus warns us to be careful. Do we read His Word? Do we obey it? Whether young or old, we must examine where we have gone wrong and repent so that we do not become hypocrites.

Jesus was speaking to religious people—churchgoers—not to political leaders, government officials, or pagan outsiders. Someone once said that many believers live like actors, telling the story of Jesus' crucifixion as if it were a performance, while their hearts are not truly engaged. Interestingly, professional actors pretend to live in a reality, yet they know it is fiction. We must seek Jesus and know Him personally so that when we tell others about Him, we are not just acting—we are sharing the truth that changes lives. Today, everyone in the church must be on guard.

The desires of the eyes, the desires of the flesh, and the pride of life are stronger temptations today than they were in Jesus' time. We cannot be saved unless we humble ourselves before Jesus and surrender to Him. The priests and scribes were obsessed with wealth and human praise, and they oppressed others.

These warnings were not just for the Pharisees—they are for us today. The Pharisees received these rebukes through Jesus' words because the Scriptures had not yet been written. But we have the Bible, and it is our responsibility to stay vigilant and pray against false religion—even within the church. A person can be lost while attending church if they are like the Pharisees. If we burden others with unnecessary rules, we may drive them away from the faith. While the Law and Scriptures are important—even Jesus did not break the Law—it is crucial that we are not hypocrites.

One day, my seven-year-old child called me a hypocrite because I always insisted we be on time for church, but I was running late. He got into the car and waited for me, even though we had to drive 25 miles to church. Does this happen in your home? Do you try to do the right thing, but your parents hold you back—even though they introduced you to faith?

You cannot justify being a hypocrite just because others around you are. If others are hypocritical, you must take responsibility for your own actions and be an example of righteousness. Pray, "Lord, I live among hypocrites who show bad examples. Help me to take responsibility for my actions and to be a positive example to others so that those who watch my life may choose truth over hypocrisy."

It is easy to become a hypocrite like the Pharisees. Small children are not hypocrites—they speak the truth and live sincerely. That is why the Bible says the kingdom of God belongs to those who are like little children. As children grow older, they are more prone to hypocrisy. Every adult has struggled with this sin.

Our lives follow three parallel paths: the center path is the Gospel and the love of Jesus—it is the path to eternal life that God wants us to follow. The left path represents hypocrisy—knowing the Bible but living differently. The right path represents worldly living—seeking pleasure and denying God.

Everyone slips toward either worldly living or hypocrisy. It is easy to become extreme—either allowing everything or being overly strict. Only Jesus can keep us on the right path if we surrender to Him and ask for His grace. By looking to Jesus on the cross, we receive life. When parents maintain a close relationship with God, the Holy Spirit helps shape their children's character and protects them from hypocrisy or worldliness.

Earnest and sincere prayer is powerful. God may not always answer our prayers as we expect because we do not always ask for what is best. But in His infinite love and wisdom, He provides what we truly need.

Questions:

1. What was inside the beautifully decorated tombs?

2. What does the example of the hen and chicks teach us?

3. Why did the Jews kill the prophets?

4. What hypocritical behavior do you need to change?

5. What practices in your church today resemble the Pharisees?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Matthew 23:23, 24.

[23,24] "Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you pay tithe of mint and anise and cummin, and have neglected the weightier matters of the law: justice and mercy and faith. These you ought to have done, without leaving the others undone. Blind guides, who strain out a gnat and swallow a camel! Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you cleanse the outside of the cup and dish, but inside they are full of extortion and self-indulgence."

Prayer: Thank You, Father. Help us to be merciful people. Keep us from hypocrisy and fake lives.

Activity: How many woes are there? Go through them. Draw a picture of a hen gathering her chicks.

DAY 264 (September 20)

TOPIC: Jesus Is Coming Soon

(Matthew 24)

Do you know that this world is at the edge of its history? Almost every prophecy has been fulfilled. The remaining prophecies will happen in a short time. Do you know how one can prepare so that when Jesus returns, they can go with Him to heaven?

When Jesus left the temple, His disciples came to Him to show Him the temple buildings. Many Jews took pride in their temple, which took 46 years to build and was the economic center of their nation due to the sacrifices offered there. However, they forgot that those sacrifices were only symbols or shadows—the true sacrifice was Jesus Himself, the Lamb of God, who would be slain for the sins of humanity. The blood of lambs could not save anyone; it was merely a picture or representation.

Jesus told them that not a single stone of those buildings would be left upon another without being thrown down. While sitting on the Mount of Olives, His disciples came to Him privately, asking, "Tell us, when will these things happen? And what will be the sign of Your coming and the end of the age?" Jesus responded with an answer that applies to us all. Knowing His disciples were fearful and confused, He described the deceptions that would occur as signs of His coming; however, they were to live with hope, always looking forward to His return.

Many will come to deceive others—false prophets claiming to be Christ—and they will mislead many, even those who seem strong in faith, if they do not fully depend on God.

Today, we must also take this warning as the first sign of Jesus' coming or the end of the world. Many people have already emerged, claiming to be prophets. A missionary friend of mine in Congo told me that when they arrived at a certain village and entered a house, there was a man claiming to be God the Father, and his son claimed to be God the Son. He gained thousands of followers who worshiped him. However, one day, he fell ill with severe diarrhea and died at about the age of forty. Out of fear, his son stopped claiming to be God the Son.

Nowadays, even women have emerged claiming to be God—something that never happened before. In the past, some women claimed to be prophets (false prophets) or pastors, but they never declared themselves to be God, unlike some Eastern and Western religions that have female deities.

Other signs include wars and rumors of wars. Nations will rise against nations, and there will be famines, earthquakes everywhere, and the stars will fall from the sky. Two hundred years ago, earthquakes were rare, but now their frequency has increased to hundreds each year. As the return of Jesus draws closer, disasters like fires, floods, piracy, murders, and other calamities continue to increase worldwide. These are just the beginning of birth pains—similar to a mother experiencing labor pains before giving birth.

At that time, people will betray you and cause you to suffer and even be killed. Some of those who will betray you will surprise you because you thought they were fellow believers, but they are actually the chaff or weeds. You will be hated by all nations because of My name. Then, many—especially church members who seemed strong—will fall away, betray one another, and hate each other. False preachers and prophets will arise everywhere, deceiving people. Because of the increase of wickedness, the love of many will grow cold. People will not understand the true meaning of love because evil will dominate their lives. Many will speak of love with their mouths but harbor evil intentions in their hearts.

Although most signs seem troubling, one positive sign remains—the Gospel of the Kingdom will be preached to the whole world as a testimony to all nations, and then the end will come. Today, people are seeking spiritual matters day and night. In 2013, spiritual books outsold all others. This shows that people are earnestly searching for spiritual truth. The most purchased book was the Bible, followed by the Quran, and third was the "Little Red Book" of Mao Zedong. All these books address spiritual matters.

Jesus said that when you see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by the prophet Daniel, standing in the holy place, then let the reader understand that difficult times have come. This prophecy had a dual meaning: the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 AD and the end of the world with the second coming of Jesus in the last days. Since we are living in the last days, let us read these things, meditate on them, and live according to them.

He told them that when these things happen, those on the rooftop should not go down to retrieve anything from their houses, and those in the fields should not return home to pack their belongings, because there will be no time, and doing so could lead to their capture. It will be especially difficult for pregnant women and nursing mothers during that time of emergency.

He urged us to pray that our flight to the mountains would not occur during winter or on the Sabbath, as it would be distressing for such chaos to happen on a holy day or during the harshness of winter. If God does not intervene and shorten those days, no one will survive.

Jesus told us that before He returns, the Good News will be preached to the ends of the earth. Today, we have media that did not exist in the past to spread the Gospel, such as loudspeakers, projectors, printing presses, and books. The Scriptures have been translated into over 2,000 languages, and there are inventions like radios, televisions, computers, and phones. Jesus did not say everyone who hears will believe, but that each person will have the opportunity to hear and decide for themselves whether to follow Him or not—removing any excuse.

Jesus will not return secretly; His coming will be as visible as lightning flashing from the east to the west. Everyone will hear and see Him—people of every language, nation, and tribe, whether they are Australians, Kenyans, Ugandans, Rwandans, Chinese, Indians, Americans, Peruvians, Kurds, Swiss, Tanzanians, or Filipinos.

The book of Thessalonians tells us that it will not be a secret event because there will be a loud trumpet sound, and every eye will see Him. Those who have prepared themselves will be taken to heaven, while the Antichrist will be destroyed before the journey to heaven. There will be no second chance for salvation, as some claim through the rapture theory, which is not supported by the Bible. This false teaching has spread through interpretations like the Scofield Bible and books by Tim LaHaye. Even the deaf will hear the trumpet blast. The heavens will be rolled up like a scroll, and mighty men, kings, the wealthy, and those who ignored God will seek refuge in caves, pleading for the mountains to fall on them.

Persistent and fervent prayer is essential. If the Savior of humanity, the Son of God Himself, felt the need to pray, how much more should we, as weak and sinful humans, feel the need to pray continually?

Questions:

Why does Jesus want us to know the signs of the end times?

What signs will show us that we are in the last days?

How did Jesus respond when the disciples boasted about the temple?

Why is it unwise to boast about human achievements?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Matthew 24:11-14.

[11-14] And many false prophets shall rise, and shall deceive many. And because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold. But he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved. And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations.

Prayer: Thank You Lord that You will come to take us and go with us to heaven.

Keep us away from deceivers, and help us to love You and love people. Help us to take the good news to the whole world. Even through our phones help us to spread the Bible.

Activity: In June of the year 2025 there were 14,000 people groups in the world, and among them 7,290 were still unreached. These represent about 42.4% of the world's population. This equals about 3.4 billion people with little or no access to the Christian gospel. Look at the 1040 Window and JoshuaProject.org or Jesus4Asia. Learn together about this matter, and what to do to reach Hindus, Buddhists, Muslims, Confucianists, people in Pakistan, Indonesia, China, Jews, Shintoists, etc.

DAY 265 (September 21)

TOPIC: Signs of the End Times

(Matthew 24)

For the sake of the elect who cry out to God day and night, He will shorten those days of tribulation to save those who trust and rely on Him. If someone says Christ is here or there during these days, do not believe them, for false christs and false prophets will arise. Some will even claim to be Christ, but it is a lie, and the devil will empower these deceivers to perform certain kinds of miracles to mislead people—if possible, even the elect. What is important to know is that when Christ returns the second time, He will not set foot on this earth. He will be in the sky, and believers will be caught up to meet Him in the clouds. So, if you hear someone saying Christ is in a shop or a particular place, and they are still walking on the earth, know that there is a problem—even if they perform great signs and wonders. Jesus already warned us that if people say He is in the wilderness or in a house, we should not believe them. Just as lightning flashes from the east and is seen in the west, so will the coming of the Son of Man be.

Many things will happen, but those who have surrendered to the Lord and trust Him will know that the end is very near, even though they will not know the exact day or hour. Just as when we see vultures gathering, we know there is a carcass, so will we know that Jesus is near, at the door.

Jesus went on to tell them about things that would happen many years later. His coming will be sudden and unexpected for those who are not prepared. The sun will be darkened or eclipsed—this happened on October 27, 1780—the moon will not give its light, and the stars will fall from the sky—this occurred on November 12 and 13, 1833. The powers of heaven will be shaken, as seen in earthquakes like the Lisbon earthquake of 1755. All these things have already happened and continue to happen. Then, the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and all the nations of the earth will mourn when they see Him coming on the clouds with power and great glory.

He will send His angels with a loud trumpet call to gather His elect from the four corners of the earth. All the signs in Matthew 24 have been fulfilled except one—that the gospel must be preached to the whole world. This can only happen if we allow God to enter our hearts. Since the great conflict between good and evil prevents God from taking over our hearts and minds without our consent, the completion of this mission depends on our willingness.

Jesus said to learn a lesson from the fig tree: when its leaves sprout, you know that summer is near. In the same way, when you see these things happening, you will know that Jesus is near, at the door. Heaven and earth will pass away, but God's words will never pass away. Jesus is coming—let us encourage one another with this good news! Maranatha! No one knows the day or the hour except the Father in heaven. If people knew the exact time, they would prepare out of fear of punishment, but their hearts and minds would not be ready to be citizens of heaven. Such people would enter heaven only to steal gold from the streets, fight with others, and make heaven an unpleasant place.

As in the days of Noah, people were preoccupied with their daily lives—eating, drinking, marrying, and giving in marriage—without realizing the impending judgment. So it is today. People are busy with everyday activities—eating, dancing, fetching water, drinking porridge, gossiping, watching TV, washing clothes, cleaning dishes, mopping floors, sweeping, going to school, working jobs, getting married—without seeking spiritual matters or preparing for God's kingdom. Such people may not commit what we call "big sins," but their thoughts are focused on people, things, and worldly matters that do not lead to salvation.

Two people will be working in the field—one will be taken, and the other will be left. Two women will be grinding grain—one will be taken, and the other will be left. We must stay awake and be ready because we do not know on which day the Lord will come. If a homeowner knew when a thief was coming, he would stay awake to prevent his house from being broken into. In the same way, we must be prepared because the Son of Man will come at an unexpected time.

A faithful and wise servant who is entrusted to give others their food at the proper time will be blessed if his master finds him doing so when he returns. Our task is to tell others the message of judgment—that people should fear and glorify God because the hour of His judgment has come. Dear child, God is coming to judge the world, and we must be ready now.

Let us not be wicked servants who say, "My master is delayed," and begin to mistreat others, live selfishly, or oppress those who love God. The Lord will come unexpectedly and will punish such people severely—assigning them to the place of hypocrites, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. However, we believe that those who have surrendered to God and dedicated their lives to Him will know when the end is near, even though they will not know the exact day or hour.

The apostles knew their faith had to be firm, and the same applies to us. Can you tell others about His kingdom? If we love Jesus, it will be natural for us to follow His call, obey His commands, love others, and share the good news of the kingdom. We long for Him to return soon. The event of Jesus' return to take us to heaven is the most important event in your life and mine—it is something we should wish to happen even today if possible.

May the coming of Jesus not catch us by surprise. Some people think they should finish school, get married, buy a house, or accomplish personal goals before going to heaven. But I want to tell you that heaven holds greater joys than anything we can imagine here. Just being there will bring indescribable peace and happiness. All our sorrows will disappear instantly. There will be no pain, tears, death, hatred, or any form of evil.

A mother who had struggled for years to have a child once told me, "Let Jesus delay His coming—I have just given birth after many years." But when I asked if her child would lack anything in heaven, she realized everything would be better there. Heaven is a place of perfection where no one will suffer.

Prophecies about the end times are being fulfilled daily. We must study God's Word, guided by the Holy Spirit, and share it with others. The time is short—let us prepare and help others prepare, too.

Pray with Unwavering Faith—Yes, pray with steadfast belief, knowing that Jesus Christ, our Mediator and Advocate, ensures our prayers are heard and accepted.

Questions to Consider:

Why didn't Jesus tell us the exact day or hour of His coming?

What can we do to ensure the day of Jesus' return does not catch us off guard?

How can we recognize false Christs?

How are our days similar to the days of Noah?

How can we distinguish between true and false miracles?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Matthew 24:35-37.

[36-38] Heaven and earth shall pass away; but My words shall not pass away. But of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but My Father only. But as the days of Noah were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be.

Prayer: Thank You our Father in heaven, help us to tell people the good news and to be ready for Your coming. Since we do not know the time or the hour, help our love not to grow cold and help us to endure to the end, without fear of wars or earthquakes. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: "Be Ready!" Musical Chairs Game. A way of teaching the importance of being ready for the return of Jesus, which will happen when people least expect it.

Materials: Chairs, music.
What to do: Play the music and stop it suddenly (musical chairs). When the music stops, the child without a chair must say one thing they are looking forward to about Jesus' return. Do not remove chairs again, and continue the game about ten times—always with one chair less.

Conclusion: Remind the students that the return of Jesus will be a surprising event, just like the surprise of not finding a chair in the game.

DAY 266 – (September 22)

TOPIC: The Parable of the Ten Virgins is a Lesson for Us

(Matthew 25)

This end time is compared to the ten virgins who took their lamps with joy, waiting for the bridegroom who was coming to the bride at night before the wedding celebration began. Five of these virgins were wise, and five were foolish. These virgins represent all members or believers in these last days because they were all virgins, meaning they were part of the church. In those days, the bridegroom was the one being awaited for several days, and he was the center of the wedding. Today, we usually wait for the bride to come in last and rise as she enters.

All the virgins fell asleep, but the five wise ones woke up and, although they had fallen behind, they realized their mistake and started anew. They had enough oil in their lamps, while the foolish ones had lamps but forgot to bring enough oil. At midnight, there was a loud cry of celebration announcing that the bridegroom had arrived and they should go to meet him. All the virgins trimmed their lamps, but the foolish ones asked the wise ones to share their oil because their lamps were going out. The wise virgins refused, saying there would not be enough for both and advised them to go and buy more oil.

I doubt that stores were open at midnight like some 24-hour shops today. As the foolish virgins rushed out in fear to find oil, perhaps from friends with private shops, the bridegroom arrived, and those who were ready went in with him to the wedding banquet. When the foolish virgins returned, they begged to be let in, but it was too late—the bridegroom said he did not know them.

It is crucial for everyone to be watchful because we do not know the day or hour when Jesus will return. We must prepare ourselves for the coming of the Son of Man. If we are too occupied with the worries and affairs of this world, we will not be ready when Jesus appears in the clouds. The apostles wanted to understand the meaning of this parable, and they were told that the oil represents the Holy Spirit, and Jesus is the Light of the world. The Holy Spirit is the extra oil that helps believers wait for Jesus' return, just as the bridegroom was awaited. In the Scriptures, Jesus is portrayed as the Bridegroom, while the church or believers are the bride.

The ten virgins represent those waiting for Jesus' second coming to earth. Since it has been a long time without Jesus returning, some people are falling back and becoming spiritually asleep. They forget that they must remain vigilant as their Lord commanded and share the love of Jesus with others. They should tell their neighbors and also prepare themselves.

Faithful servants waiting for the Bridegroom will be ready to open the door when He comes, and they will rejoice at the banquet He has prepared for all humanity. We must be prepared because we do not know the day or hour. If Jesus told us the exact time, many would live recklessly, while others would act out of fear just to enter heaven, but their hearts would lack true love.

Throughout history, some people have claimed that although no one knows the day or hour, we can know the year of Jesus' return. These people have left school, quit their jobs, and sold their possessions to wait for Jesus. This is a mistake. Jesus told us to continue our daily activities and make plans whether He comes today or tomorrow. He never said we should stop our daily work or stop telling others about His return. If our activities are not sinful, why should we stop them? We are human beings—we must plant, harvest, and eat.

Those who have oil are those with faith. The oil represents the Holy Spirit, who helps us develop a heavenly character—an experience no one else can share on our behalf. The Holy Spirit helps believers have enough faith to wait for Jesus while witnessing to others. When Jesus comes, the faithful will enter the Kingdom of God.

The main lesson here is that we must always be ready for Jesus' second coming by watching and praying because we do not know when He will return. We should observe the signs and indications He mentioned so that we are not like the foolish virgins. No one can enter heaven based on another person's preparation. The wise virgins could not share the Holy Spirit working in their lives or their faith and character experience. Total surrender to Jesus is the key to entering heaven.

You are invited to come, pray, seek, and knock, and you are assured that you will not be turned away empty-handed. Jesus says, "Ask, and it will be given to you; seek, and you will find; knock, and it will be opened to you. For everyone who asks receives, the one who seeks finds, and to the one who knocks, the door will be opened."

Questions:

1. The five foolish virgins were all church members and believers today—what is their difference from the wise ones?

2. Who do the five wise virgins represent today?

3. What does the oil represent today?

4. Who is the Bridegroom who prepared the banquet?

5. What should a person do to enter the banquet?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Matthew 25:1, 2, 13.

[1, 2, 13] Then shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom. And five of them were foolish, and five were wise … Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour.

Prayer: Thank You Lord, come and speak with us, have mercy on us we pray, that we may not be like the foolish virgins. Help us to watch in prayer and to tell others to be ready for Your Return, You who are the Bridegroom. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity:
Wise Virgins: Each one should have a torch or a small container of extra oil.
Foolish Virgins (5): Each one should have a torch or lamp but no extra oil.
Bridegroom: A special role, possibly taken by the teacher or an adult.
Setting: Prepare a darkened room.

Steps:

1. Preparation and waiting for the Bridegroom's arrival: Explain that the children are like virgins waiting for the bridegroom.

2. Waiting: Let everyone sit and wait for a short time. You may say the bridegroom is delayed.

3. Arrival: Announce the arrival of the bridegroom with a signal.

4. Wise Virgins: Light their lamps or torches, shining brightly.

5. Foolish Virgins: Their lamps go out because they have no extra oil.
6. Impossible Request: The foolish virgins ask the wise for extra oil, but this is not possible.
7. Sad Refusal: The wise virgins explain they do not have enough oil for everyone.
8. The Door Closes: The wise virgins and the bridegroom enter the wedding feast, and the door is shut.
9. Lesson in Preparation: The foolish virgins return too late and find the door closed.

DAY 267 – (September 23)

TOPIC: Using Our Talents to Be Fruitful

(Matthew 25)

Jesus, knowing He would soon leave, continued to give His disciples guidance so they would know what to do when He was no longer with them. He gave the parable of a businessman preparing to travel who entrusted his property to his servants as stewards. To one, he gave five talents of silver, to another two, and to another one—each according to their ability—and then he left.

The servant who received five talents immediately went and traded with them, earning five more. The one with two talents also gained two more. But the one who received one talent dug a hole in the ground and hid his master's money.

After a long time, the master returned and settled accounts with them. The servant who had received five talents reported that he had gained five more. The master praised him, saying, "Well done, good and faithful servant! You have been faithful with a few things; I will put you in charge of many things. Enter into the joy of your master." The servant with two talents received the same praise.

However, the servant with one talent returned it without any profit, blaming the master for being a harsh man. The master called him wicked and lazy, saying he should have at least deposited the money with bankers to earn interest. The master ordered the one talent to be taken from him and given to the servant with ten talents.

Jesus is the businessman in this parable, and the talents represent the gifts and abilities God gives each of us. We must use them wisely and faithfully to bear fruit for His Kingdom.

Questions:

1. Why were the servants with five and two talents praised?

2. List the talents you are using or hiding.

3. Who does the businessman represent?

4. Why should we continue to prepare for Jesus' return even if it seems delayed?

5. Which talents are you hiding, and which are you using today?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Matthew 25:21.

[21] His lord said unto him, Well done, thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy lord.

Prayer: Thank You Holy Father, I want to be a good and faithful servant, and one day rejoice to hear Your voice saying, "Well done, good and faithful servant." Enable me to do this with joy and completely. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Find three people and give them—one talent, two talents, and five talents. They go away, and two return with ten and four, and the one with one returns with that one. See Matthew 25:14-30: "For the kingdom of heaven is as a man travelling into a far country, who called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods. And unto one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one; to every man according to his ability; and straightway took his journey. Then he that had received the five talents went and traded with the same, and made them other five talents."

DAY 268 (September 24)

TOPIC: Passport to Heaven

(Matthew 25)

Jesus continued to speak in parables, using stories or everyday examples to explain spiritual matters or the kingdom of heaven. These parables captured the audience's attention because they painted vivid mental pictures of the narratives. The parables related to the daily lives of people, were easy to understand for both children and the elderly, and contained teachings for everyone.

When the Son of Man comes in His glory, accompanied by all the holy angels, and sits on His glorious throne, He will gather all nations before Him. He will separate the people who truly belong to Him, those who obey and trust Him, just as a shepherd separates sheep from goats.

He will say to those on His right hand, "Come, you who are blessed by My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. For I was hungry, and you gave Me food; I was thirsty, and you gave Me something to drink; I was a stranger, and you welcomed Me; I was naked, and you clothed Me; I was sick, and you visited Me; I was in prison, and you came to see Me."

The righteous will be surprised and ask, "Lord, when did we do these things for You?" He will answer, "Truly, I say to you, whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers and sisters of Mine, you did for Me."

Those who gave food to the hungry, sheltered the homeless, clothed the naked, and cared for the sick and imprisoned were, in fact, serving Jesus Himself.

Then He will turn to those on His left and say, "Depart from Me, you who are cursed, into the eternal fire prepared for the devil and his angels. For I was hungry, and you gave Me no food; I was thirsty, and you gave Me nothing to drink; I was a stranger, and you did not welcome Me; I was naked, and you did not clothe Me; I was sick and in prison, and you did not visit Me."

They will also ask, "Lord, when did we see You hungry, thirsty, a stranger, naked, sick, or in prison and did not help You?"

He will answer, “Truly, I tell you, whatever you did not do for one of the least of these, you did not do for Me.”

Since they did not care for others, it shows that they could not care for Jesus either. Because His kingdom is about compassion and service, they will be sent away into eternal punishment, while the righteous will enter eternal life.

In Matthew chapters 24 and 25, Jesus’ final teachings emphasize that judgment will be based not on what people believe but on what they do. Jesus is the ultimate Judge, and neither you nor I have our own heavens to send people to. As the Lord of all love and authority, He teaches that our judgment depends on how we treat the vulnerable—the poor, orphans, widows, strangers, and those who are marginalized.

He says there will only be two groups—those on the right and those on the left. Those on the right will be saved because of their visible love through their actions. May God help us, and let us pray for one another!

If we claim to believe in Jesus yet hoard our belongings while others lack basic needs, we fail to embody His teachings. The kingdom of God is not about self-centeredness or accumulating possessions, but about sharing and caring for others.

This parable emphasizes that our actions toward others determine our eternal destiny. Those commended by Jesus were unaware they were serving Him. They may not have known theology or Bible doctrines, but they understood and practiced God’s principles of love.

Even today, there are people who may not know the Bible or who Christ is, but they show kindness, love, and compassion. In regions where many have never encountered a Christian—like the remote areas of Nepal, Burma, or Tibet—people can still respond to the Holy Spirit’s prompting.

Although they may not know God’s laws or the Scriptures, they allow the Holy Spirit to work in their hearts, and their actions reflect His presence. Such people will be surprised to hear that they are also children of God.

Just as angels serve and assist in people’s salvation, we, too, must be committed to acts of compassion. When God gives us opportunities, resources, or talents, they are meant to bless those in need—not for self-indulgence or hoarding.

Instead of spending lavishly on unnecessary things, we should use our resources to uplift others. It is not about giving leftovers, worn-out clothes, or spare change to those in need—such an attitude dishonors God.

In urban areas where the homeless, prisoners, and hospitalized individuals live, there are countless opportunities to bring hope and assistance. Caring for others is crucial, and statistics show that 80% of the world's wealth is in the hands of Christians (from "Rich Christians in the World of Hunger" by Ron Sider).

When giving, it's important to do so generously and thoughtfully. Some people accumulate many possessions they never use while others go without basic needs. As I write this, I am reminded that none of us have "arrived"—we are all on a journey of growth.

When Jesus returns in glory, money and worldly possessions will lose all value. Wealth will be discarded in the streets because heavenly treasures are far greater. Even the streets of heaven are made of gold, and perhaps diamonds will be as common as the soles of our shoes.

Those on the left—the condemned group—are those who neglected to share their time, resources, and love. Maybe they heard of someone who needed urgent help but did nothing because it was not their concern. This lack of compassion will cost them dearly.

Our neighbors are anyone in need—whether or not they are related to us.

Do you visit the sick? Is there a child in school who is lonely and needs a friend? Is there someone who goes hungry whom you could share your meal with? Does your family know people in prison or in pain whom you could comfort? Do you have clothes to share with those who have none?

When we do these things, we do them for Jesus Himself.

This parable teaches us that people will be judged based on how they treated others or neglected those in need.

I remember when my mother first taught us to share our clothes with the less fortunate when I was six years old. It was hard at first—we wanted to keep everything for ourselves! But her lesson showed us the importance of giving and having a generous heart.

Let nothing distract you from Bible study and sincere prayer. Stay vigilant and devoted to prayer. Live out your faith through action.

Questions:

1. Explain which group is on the left and which is on the right.

2. Why didn't people realize they were serving or neglecting Jesus?

3. What can you do this week to help someone in need?

4. What reasons might prevent people from helping others despite having the ability?

5. Who truly reflects God's kingdom—those who attend church regularly or those who show love through their actions?

6. Is there a child who is bullied or excluded whom you can help?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Matthew 25:34-36.

[34-36] Then shall the King say unto them on His right hand, Come, ye blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world: For I was an hungred, and ye gave Me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave Me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took Me in: Naked, and ye clothed Me: I was sick, and ye visited Me: I was in prison, and ye came unto Me.

Prayer: We thank You our beloved King. Give us a heart of generosity for those who are hungry, thirsty, without clothes, strangers, the sick, and those in prison. In the Name of Jesus, Amen.

Activity: Go to a place where people in need are helped, for example beggars on the street. Take them water and food. Visit prisoners, the elderly, orphans, widows, etc.

DAY 269 (September 25)

TOPIC: Jesus Raises Lazarus

(John 10 and 11)

Jesus continued preaching, and many believed in Him. In Bethany, about two miles from Jerusalem, there lived three siblings—Martha, Mary, and Lazarus—who welcomed Jesus and His disciples to stay with them. Mary was the one who anointed Jesus' feet with perfume to prepare Him for His burial about a week before His death, and Jesus said she did all she could.

Their brother Lazarus became seriously ill, and the two sisters sent a message to Jesus while He was preaching in Perea, saying, "Lord, the one you love is sick; come quickly." When Jesus heard this, He continued His preaching and told His disciples, "This sickness will not end in death, but it is for God's glory, so that God's Son may be glorified through it."

Although Jesus loved Martha, Mary, and Lazarus, He stayed where He was for two more days after hearing about Lazarus's illness. Then He told His disciples, "Let us go back to Judea." The disciples were concerned and said, "Rabbi, the Jews were just now trying to stone you, and you are going back there?" Jesus answered, "Are there not twelve hours of daylight? Anyone who walks in the daytime will not stumble, for they see by this world's light. It is when a person walks at night that they stumble, for they have no light." By this, He meant that His ministry had a set time, and the "night" of His crucifixion was approaching.

He then said, "Our friend Lazarus has fallen asleep, but I am going there to wake him up." The disciples misunderstood and thought He meant natural sleep, so Jesus clarified, "Lazarus is dead, and for your sake, I am glad I was not there, so that you may believe. But let us go to him." Thomas, called Didymus (the Twin), courageously said to the other disciples, "Let us also go, that we may die with Him."

When Jesus arrived, Lazarus had already been in the tomb for four days. Many Jews from Jerusalem, only about a half-hour's walk away, had come to comfort Martha and Mary. In those times, it was customary to hire professional mourners to weep loudly and show how much the deceased was loved. Amid the noise and grief, Martha heard that Jesus was coming and went to meet Him, while Mary stayed in the house.

When Martha met Jesus, she said, "Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died. But even now I know that God will give you whatever you ask." Jesus assured her, "Your brother will rise again." Martha replied, "I know he will rise again in the resurrection at the last day." She believed in the final resurrection when all the dead would be raised to eternal life. The Bible teaches that death is like sleep until the resurrection.

Jesus then declared, "I am the resurrection and the life. The one who believes in Me will live, even though they die; and whoever lives by believing in Me will never die. Do you believe this?" Martha responded with unwavering faith, "Yes, Lord, I believe that You are the Messiah, the Son of God, who is to come into the world."

This declaration angered the Sadducees, who did not believe in the resurrection or in angels. Although they were more tolerant of Jesus than the Pharisees, their disbelief in the resurrection undermined the very foundation of faith. As Paul later wrote in 1 Corinthians 15, if there is no resurrection, our faith is in vain.

After this, Martha returned to the house and quietly told her sister, “The Teacher is here and is asking for you.” Mary quickly went to meet Jesus. When the mourners saw her leave, they followed, thinking she was going to the tomb to weep. When Mary reached Jesus, she fell at His feet and echoed Martha’s words, “Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died.” Seeing Mary and the others weeping, Jesus was deeply moved and troubled. “Where have you laid him?” He asked. When they showed Him, “Jesus wept.”

This verse, “Jesus wept,” is the shortest in the entire Bible. Even though He knew He would raise Lazarus, His compassion for the pain of those mourning moved Him to tears. His tears show us that expressing grief is natural and that Jesus understands our sorrows.

Some people questioned, “Could not He who opened the eyes of the blind man have kept this man from dying?” Their doubt pained Jesus. He approached the tomb—a cave with a stone covering the entrance—and said, “Take away the stone.” Though He could have moved the stone by divine power, Jesus involved others in the miracle, just as He involves us in His work today.

Martha hesitated, saying, “Lord, by this time there is a bad odor, for he has been there four days.” But Jesus reminded her, “Did I not tell you that if you believe, you will see the glory of God?”

They removed the stone, and Jesus prayed, “Father, I thank You that You have heard Me. I knew that You always hear Me, but I said this for the benefit of the people standing here, that they may believe that You sent Me.” After praying, He called out in a loud voice, “Lazarus, come out!”

To everyone’s amazement, Lazarus emerged from the tomb, still wrapped in grave clothes. Jesus instructed, “Unbind him and let him go.” The sorrow of death turned into joy as Lazarus reunited with his sisters and friends.

Lazarus had not gone to heaven when he died—he had simply been asleep in the grave. If he had been in heaven, being called back to this world would have been sorrowful, no matter how much his sisters loved him.

This miracle spread quickly, even among the Jewish leaders. The Sadducees, who did not believe in resurrection, were especially troubled. They called a meeting and decided that Jesus must die to prevent the Romans from taking away their privileges. Caiaphas, the high priest, unknowingly prophesied, “It is better for one man to die for the people than for the whole nation to perish.”

In reality, Jesus' death was God's plan for the salvation of humanity. Despite His love and miracles, the religious leaders plotted to kill Him—proving how deceitful the human heart can be.

GOD Answers Sincere Prayers
It is only when we pray with sincerity that God grants the desires of our hearts.

Questions:

1. What message did the two sisters send to Jesus?

2. How did Thomas show courage?

3. Did Jesus have close friends besides His disciples?

4. Why did Jesus weep, even though He knew He would raise Lazarus?

5. Why did Lazarus rise from the grave and not from heaven?

6. What do you think Lazarus said to Jesus when he came out of the tomb?

7. What prophecy did Caiaphas make?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: John 10:14, 15.

[14,15] I am the good shepherd, and know My sheep, and am known of Mine. As the Father knoweth Me, even so know I the Father: and I lay down My life for the sheep.

Prayer: Father in heaven, thank You for being our good shepherd. We pray that we may recognize Your voice through reading the Scriptures and praying, so that we may not be deceived. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity:

- Preparation: Put children in pairs. One child in each pair is the "sheep," and the other is the "shepherd."

- Blindfold the “sheep” and place them in the middle of the room. Scatter the “shepherds” around the edges.
- Instructions: Tell the sheep to turn around three times. The shepherds then call their sheep.
- Goal: The sheep must walk to their shepherd, guided by the voice. No running allowed.
- Winner: The first pair to reunite wins.
- Repeat: Swap roles and repeat the activity.
- Discussion: After the game, discuss how we recognize the voice of Jesus as His sheep and follow Him.

DAY 270 (September 26)

TOPIC: Plans to Kill Jesus

(John 11 and 12)

Many Jews who had come to the funeral and witnessed what happened—specifically, the raising of Lazarus—believed in Jesus. This was significant because some believed that those Jesus had previously raised had only fainted and that the soul left the body after three days. However, Lazarus had been in the tomb for four days, proving beyond doubt that he had truly died.

Some people went to the Pharisees and reported what Jesus had done, stirring up hatred against Him. As a result, the Pharisees and the chief priests convened a council, asking, "What shall we do? This man performs many signs and miracles. If we let Him continue, everyone will believe in Him, and the Romans will come and take away both our place and our nation."

Caiaphas, who was the high priest that year—having taken over from his father-in-law Annas, who had retired—spoke up. Without realizing the significance of his words, he prophesied during the meeting, saying, "You do not realize that it is better for one man to die for the people than for the whole nation to perish." Although he spoke from a political perspective, his words fulfilled what was written in Scripture—that Jesus would die not only for the nation of Israel but for all people who believe in Him worldwide, to unite God's scattered children.

We must understand that Jesus' death was not the end of His life. He came to die as a sacrifice for us so that our sins could be forgiven. It is through His death and resurrection that He could save humanity. Jesus' death is the core of the gospel. If Jesus had died and remained in the grave, it would not have helped us. Praise be to God—He is alive today, interceding for us and reconciling us to the Father!

From that day on, the Pharisees and the chief priests plotted to kill Jesus and carefully planned their strategy. As a result, Jesus no longer moved about publicly among the Jews but withdrew to a region near the wilderness, to a town called Ephraim, where He stayed with His disciples.

The Jewish Passover was approaching—a festival commemorating their deliverance from slavery in Egypt. It was no coincidence that Jesus died during the Passover; it was God's plan to reveal that He is our Passover Lamb, who takes away our sins so that we may escape eternal death.

It is important to note that the scribes, Pharisees, elders, and chief priests were spiritual leaders. Today, they would be equivalent to pastors and bishops in our churches or places of worship. Ironically, these were the people who led the effort to kill the Son of God. This teaches us that being religious does not guarantee eternal life or a relationship with God. Many people call themselves servants of God, yet they are far from His will.

What is God's will? These leaders knew the Scriptures better than ordinary people. What did they do wrong that we should avoid? Their hypocrisy and pride prevented them from accepting the gospel.

Today, we are more privileged than they were because we have the Holy Scriptures. In those days, few people had access to them, and fewer still could read. Today, every child should own a Bible. If you do not have one, pray and ask God to provide it for you—He is able. The Bible is relatively affordable, and if you seek God sincerely, He will make a way.

Pray for the Holy Spirit to give you understanding because His teachings lead to eternal life. How can you know God if you do not read His Word? The Bible is not an ordinary book—it is a life-transforming message. Believe in it, value it, and live by it. The Word of God answers life's most profound questions. Through it, God reveals Himself and His relationship with humanity throughout history.

Pray for genuine love for God and for others. The human heart is deceitful and desperately wicked—only God truly understands it.

While there are many godly spiritual leaders who provide valuable guidance, teachings, and counseling, your relationship with God and His Word should come first. Acts 5:29 says, "We must obey God rather than men." Always prioritize God's Word above human traditions or religious customs. If you do not understand something, pray for insight and obey what is written.

Do not follow human traditions blindly—such as family rituals or ancestral worship. Always ask yourself, "What does the Word of God say?" Read Matthew 23 to understand how religious leaders of Jesus' time misled many. Each person will bear their own burden on the day of judgment. You cannot claim ignorance as an excuse because the life of Jesus clearly shows that we should listen to Him first, then to spiritual leaders like pastors, teachers, or prophets. Your denomination or religion is secondary—God and His Word come first.

Many people traveled from the countryside to Jerusalem to purify themselves before the festival. The chief priests and Pharisees discussed among themselves, wondering if Jesus would attend the feast. They had issued a public notice asking anyone who knew where Jesus was to report Him so that they could arrest Him.

Even Jesus' brothers pressured Him to show Himself publicly if He wanted people to believe that He was the Messiah. Perhaps they hoped that if Jesus claimed kingship, they would share in His earthly glory.

When people heard that Jesus would be at Simon the Leper's house, many gathered there. It was during this visit that Mary anointed Jesus' feet with expensive perfume. The chief priests planned not only to kill Jesus but also Lazarus, whom Jesus had raised from the dead, to eliminate the evidence of resurrection. Because of Lazarus, many Jews began to believe in Jesus and distanced themselves from the corrupt religious leaders.

At this point, it was less than a week until Jesus would die for our sins. John 20 says that the Word of God was written so that we may believe that Jesus is the Son of God and that by believing, we may have eternal life through His name. Not through the names of family members or religious leaders—only through the name of Jesus can we be saved.

After the visit to Simon the Leper, Jesus entered Jerusalem riding on a donkey, and the people welcomed Him, shouting "Hosanna!"

Focus your mind on spiritual matters. Avoid relying on your own understanding. Cultivate a spirit of contentment and joy. Many people talk excessively about unimportant things. If the time spent on idle conversations were devoted to prayer, you would receive spiritual strength and find songs of praise filling your heart.

Questions:

1. Why did the Jews want to kill Lazarus, whom Jesus raised?

2. What did Caiaphas prophesy?

3. How did the Passover festival originate?

4. Why did Jesus go to stay in the hills of Ephraim?

5. Why must we obey God rather than men?

6. How can you recognize if your pastor is leading you astray?

God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: John 12:24, 25.

[24,25] Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit. He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal.

Prayer: Lord, thank You for Your Word. Help us to grow spiritually by letting go of things that are not important, to "hate" the life of this world, and to surrender selfish desires to follow Christ, who will finally lead us to "eternal life," so that we do not lose our lives. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A dramatization. Find palm branches for waving and mats or rugs to spread on the ground. Have someone walk on the mat as if riding a donkey, as in: "They took branches of palm trees, and went forth to meet Him, and cried, Hosanna: Blessed is the King of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord. And Jesus, when He had found a young donkey, sat thereon; as it is written."

DAY 271 (September 27)

TOPIC: The Greeks Seek Jesus

(John 11 and 12)

There were even Greeks (from Greece) who went up during the Passover feast in Jerusalem along with others to worship the true God of Abraham. These Greeks approached Philip, a disciple of Jesus, and said, "Sir, we want to see Jesus." They had heard about the Messiah and believed, even though they were Gentiles. Philip went to tell Andrew, and then Andrew told Jesus, who was teaching in the temple.

When they asked Jesus if He would like to see these people, He gladly went out to meet them, as Gentiles were not allowed inside the temple. Jesus was happy to speak with them because He had no favoritism—all people were His children. Many Jews thought others were unimportant. On another occasion, they said Jesus had gone to hide among the Gentiles, and some even called Him a demon-possessed Samaritan. They did not realize that, although they were Jews, they were filled with many evils and had rejected the very God they claimed to worship.

Jesus welcomed those who accepted Him as their Savior. These Greeks likely came from cities like Corinth, Athens, or Thessalonica. They were overjoyed to see Jesus, and after meeting them, Jesus said to His disciples, "The hour has come for the Son of Man to be glorified. Truly, truly, I tell you, unless a grain of wheat falls into the earth and dies, it remains a single seed. But if it dies, it produces many seeds and a great harvest."

If Jesus had not died, there would be no fruits of salvation. Anyone who lives only for themselves will lose the kingdom of God. But if someone sacrifices their life and lives for others, they will produce a bountiful harvest and receive eternal life. Jesus said, "Whoever loves their life will lose it, but whoever hates their life in this world will keep it for eternal life." Anyone who wants to serve God must follow Him wherever He goes, and those who serve Jesus will be honored by the Father in heaven.

Jesus continued, "What shall I say now? My soul is troubled—should I say, 'Father, save me from this hour'? No! For this purpose, I came to this hour. Father, glorify Your name." Immediately, a voice from heaven responded, "I have glorified it, and I will glorify it again." Everyone in the crowd heard the voice of God from heaven like thunder, and some said an angel had spoken to Him. But Jesus told them, "This voice was not for My sake but for yours."

The voice of God was heard three times: during His baptism, during His transfiguration on the mountain, and now in the temple. The Greeks fully understood these signs and the words spoken by the Father, and they left feeling blessed.

Jesus declared that the ruler of this world (Satan) was about to be cast out. He also said, "And I, when I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all people to Myself." He was speaking of His death on the cross and how His sacrifice would draw people to salvation. Jesus, the magnet of the world, has been lifted up, and people from every nation, language, tribe, and people are being drawn to Him.

Some in the crowd were confused because their Scriptures led them to believe the Messiah would live forever. Jesus explained, "The light is among you for a little while longer. Walk while you have the light, so that darkness will not overtake you. Whoever walks in darkness does not know where they are going. While you have the light, believe in the light, that you may become children of light." Jesus, the Word of God, is the light.

Despite witnessing many miracles, some did not believe, as the prophet Isaiah had predicted, saying, "He has blinded their eyes and hardened their hearts, so they cannot see, understand, and turn to Me to be healed."

Many leaders believed in Jesus but were afraid to confess Him publicly for fear of being expelled from the synagogue. They loved the praise of men more than the praise of God. Jesus said, “Whoever believes in Me does not believe only in Me but in the One who sent Me.” He emphasized that He came to save the world, not to judge it. Jesus loved His people on earth deeply, to the very end.

Child, do not be afraid—Jesus is coming again to take us home. He loves us and is eager to return for us. Let us read His Word, believe in it, and place our hope in Him. The Greeks represent all of us from different nations today—let us also say, “We want to see Jesus.” Jesus saw the vision of all who would accept Him until the end of time, and He found joy in facing the cross and enduring its shame for our salvation.

The greatest blessing God can give to a person is a sincere spirit of prayer. All of heaven is open to those who pray. Christ’s ambassadors will have power with people after they have first sought God with heartfelt prayer.

Questions:

1. Why did the Greeks approach Philip?

2. What did Jesus say about the Greeks?

3. Who do the Greeks represent today?

4. What did the voice of God say?

5. What does it mean for the Son of Man to be lifted up?

6. What does the falling and dying of a seed represent?

7. Do you want to see Jesus today?

God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: John 12:25, 26.

[25,26] He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal. If any man serve Me, let him follow Me; and where I am, there shall also My servant be: if any man serve Me, him will My Father honour.

Prayer: Thank You Lord because You are the Resurrection and the Life and the Light of the world, and because You are touched with sorrow when people die and suffer. Father, I want to serve You so that You will honor me, for being honored by You is better than anything else in the world. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: "Jesus Wept." Children can discuss why people cry, and then use toilet paper rolls to act out Jesus raising Lazarus from the dead. These activities teach children that Jesus had human feelings and understands their sorrow. He also has power over death and grief.

DAY 272 (September 28)

TOPIC: Invited to the Wedding

(Matthew 22, Luke 16)

Jesus gave a parable about the kingdom of heaven, comparing it to a king who prepared a wedding banquet for his son. He sent his servants to invite the esteemed guests, but they refused to come. He sent other servants with the message, "Tell those who are invited that I have prepared my banquet—my oxen and fattened cattle have been butchered, and everything is ready. Come to the wedding banquet."

Some guests ignored the invitation and went about their business—one to his field, another to his trade. Others mistreated and even killed the king's servants. The king was furious and sent his army to destroy those murderers and burn their city.

He then told his servants, "The wedding banquet is ready, but those I invited were not worthy. Go to the street corners and invite everyone you find." The servants gathered all they could—both good and bad—and the wedding hall was filled with guests.

When the king came in to see the guests, he noticed a man not wearing wedding clothes. The king asked, "Friend, how did you get in here without wedding clothes?" The man was speechless. The king commanded, "Tie him hand and foot and throw him outside, into the darkness."

This parable represents God's invitation to the heavenly banquet. The king is God, who invites everyone to salvation. The first guests represent those who reject His message. The wedding garment symbolizes the righteousness of Christ, which must be worn by everyone who enters the kingdom of heaven.

Questions:

1. How do people today reject God's invitation?

2. Who is the king in the parable?

3. Discuss: We are the bride awaiting Jesus' return.

4. What is the wedding garment?

5. How can we recognize if we are rejecting God's invitation and how can we accept it?

[36-40] "Teacher, which is the greatest commandment in the Law of Moses?" Jesus replied: "'Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind.' This is the first and greatest commandment. And the second is like it: 'Love your neighbor as yourself.' All the Law and the Prophets hang on these two commandments."

Prayer: Father, thank You so much. I pray that I may love You with all my heart, with all my soul, and with all my mind, and love my neighbor as I love myself. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A dramatization of Lazarus and the rich man. One dresses in rich clothes and the other in poor clothes. See Luke 16.

DAY 273 (September 29)

TOPIC: The Lost Sheep and the Lost Coin

(Luke 14)

Jesus said, “If anyone comes to Me and does not hate his father, mother, wife, children, brothers, and sisters—yes, even their own life—such a person cannot be My disciple. And whoever does not carry their cross and follow Me cannot be My disciple.

Suppose one of you wants to build a tower. Won’t you first sit down and estimate the cost to see if you have enough money to complete it? For if you lay the foundation and are not able to finish it, everyone who sees it will mock you, saying, ‘This person began to build and wasn’t able to finish.’

Or suppose a king is about to go to war against another king. Won’t he first sit down and consider whether he is able with ten thousand men to oppose the one coming against him with twenty thousand? If he is not able, he will send a delegation while the other is still a long way off and will ask for terms of peace. In the same way, those of you who do not give up everything you have cannot be My disciples,” said Jesus. “Whoever has ears to hear, let them hear.”

People murmured, saying that Jesus ate with sinners and tax collectors. Then He gave them a parable, saying, “Suppose one of you has a hundred sheep and loses one of them. Doesn’t he leave the ninety-nine in the open country and go after the lost sheep until he finds it? And when he finds it, he joyfully puts it on his shoulders and goes home. Then he calls his friends and neighbors together and says, ‘Rejoice with me; I have found my lost sheep.’

I tell you that in the same way, there will be more rejoicing in heaven over one sinner who repents than over ninety-nine righteous persons who do not need to repent."

Everyone understood the parable because they would do the same for their livestock—or had already done so. A lost sheep was valuable to a shepherd. Shepherds understood this language; they would sound the alarm and ask others to help search—even in the middle of the night. Many who raised livestock loved their animals and knew them by name. They sought out pastures and water for them. They recognized when a sheep was in distress, happy, or sad.

They traveled great distances to find lost sheep. They risked their lives against wild animals and braved rain, snow, and storms. They climbed mountains and went down into valleys and even asked neighbors for help when their animals were in danger. Some livestock were loved as much as household children.

Likewise, every boy and girl is precious to their God. There is no one like you. To God, you are worth more than a lost sheep. You were created in His image. There is great joy in heaven when you ask for forgiveness after you sin—more than over those who are righteous and do not need to repent.

God knows you by name, and He does everything possible for you to receive eternal life. Jesus spoke about God's love and His willingness to forgive. Even those who had committed great sins found comfort in His words. Many sinners came to listen to Him—thieves, fraudsters, liars, the envious, gossips, and those who took other people's spouses. Deep inside, these people wanted to live better lives, but they did not know how.

They thought it was impossible to return to the right path after falling into sin—until Jesus reached them. They flocked to hear Him, and their hearts were comforted. But the Pharisees, priests, and scribes were astonished. Thinking themselves perfect, they wondered, "What kind of man is this who welcomes sinners and eats with them?" They criticized, mocked, and scorned Him.

Unknowingly, their insults highlighted Jesus' true character, and many people paid attention to Him because the Son of Man came to seek and save the lost, giving everyone hope.

Jesus continued, "Or suppose a woman has ten silver coins and loses one. Doesn't she light a lamp, sweep the house, and search carefully until she finds it? And when she finds it, she calls her friends and neighbors together and says, ‘Rejoice with me; I have found my lost coin.’

In the same way, I tell you, there is rejoicing in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner who repents.”

These two parables show two types of lost people—some, like the lost sheep, know they are lost but do not know how to return. These people need our help as brothers and sisters in the Lord. Others, like the lost coin, do not even realize they are lost and need to be found.

Then Jesus told the story of the prodigal son, who knew he was lost and knew how to return to his father.

Ezekiel 34 says that today we are the shepherds of our brothers and sisters, though sometimes shepherds make mistakes. “Woe to the shepherds of Israel who only take care of themselves! Should not shepherds take care of the flock? You eat the curds, clothe yourselves with the wool, and slaughter the fattened animals, but you do not take care of the flock. You have not strengthened the weak or healed the sick or bound up the injured. You have not brought back the strays or searched for the lost. You have ruled them harshly and brutally.

So they were scattered because there was no shepherd, and when they were scattered, they became food for all the wild animals. My sheep wandered over all the mountains and on every high hill. They were scattered over the whole earth, and no one searched or looked for them.”

The food is the Word of God—the bread of life. Anyone who brings traditions and false teachings outside of the Scriptures is a thief of Jesus’ sheep. Jesus will lead us today to where the lost sheep are, and we must bring them back with love.

A servant of God must not care more about consuming the flock’s wealth than feeding them with the Word of life. Jesus became known as a friend of sinners. He sat with them and gave them hope. Even those who had strayed far from the flock realized someone cared for them.

The angels in heaven rejoiced greatly because Jesus assured them that there is joy in heaven over one sinner who repents and returns to the flock. Love is a powerful magnet. The love of Jesus drew many hearts, freeing them from Satan’s chains and bringing them to God.

Jesus knew people would mock, spit on, ridicule, beat, and kill Him, yet He did not turn back. In the great cosmic battle that began in heaven with Satan’s rebellion, human beings must understand that the real enemy is Satan—not other people or God—and must put on the armor of God (Ephesians 6).

When Jesus passed by, no sickness remained. They did not need hospitals, surgeries, or money—yet they killed Him. If someone like Him were among us today and people killed him, wouldn't we think they were insane?

Such is the battle between good and evil. Evil has no reason to exist—if it did, it would cease to be evil.

Questions:

1. Who does the lost sheep represent?

2. What are the qualities of the Good Shepherd?

3. When people complained that Jesus ate with sinners, what parable did He give?

4. Why were the shepherds of Israel condemned?

5. Who does the woman with ten coins represent?

6. Why did Jesus not turn back from loving us?

"But when you are invited, take the lowest place, so that when your host comes, he will say to you, 'Friend, move up to a better place.' Then you will be honored in the presence of all the other guests. For all those who exalt themselves will be humbled, and those who humble themselves will be exalted."

Prayer: Thank You, Heavenly Father. Help me to be kind and to invite people on our journey to heaven. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

DAY 274 – (September 30)

TOPIC: The Child Who Ran Away from Home

(Luke 15)

Among the remarkable parables that Jesus gave, this one is among the most touching. He told a parable about a man who had two sons. The elder son was diligent and responsible, always obeying his father's instructions. The younger son, however, was lazy, wasteful, and loved pleasures. One day, the younger son said to his father, "Father, give me my share of the inheritance." This was a serious request because asking for an inheritance while the father was still alive was like wishing for his father's death.

This young man wanted to be free, to explore distant lands and hide his sins from his father, as he knew his father's principles. He was afraid to commit sins under his father's watchful eyes or in front of the community he lived in. So, the father divided his wealth and gave the young man his portion. Not long after, the younger son gathered his belongings and traveled to a distant country—some might call it "abroad." There, he squandered his wealth on wild living and reckless pleasures.

He enjoyed himself thoroughly, exploring every enticing place and indulging in all kinds of food. He did not value the money because he had not worked for it—it was an inheritance. Wherever he went, people welcomed him because they wanted to enjoy his wealth with him. It is easy to have friends when you have money, especially on payday. He bought drinks and other luxuries for his friends, living a lavish lifestyle.

But as time passed, his money dwindled until it was completely gone. When his wealth ran out, his friends abandoned him. At the same time, a severe famine struck that country. Food became scarce, his clothes became tattered, and he found himself broke and in desperate need. With no one to help him and no one to advise him—since he had ignored those who tried—he sought work from a local resident. The man sent him to his fields to feed pigs.

As he fed the pigs, he became so hungry that he longed to eat the pods the pigs were eating, but no one gave him anything. Feeling weak and dizzy from hunger, he began to reflect on his life. He thought, "How many of my father's servants have more than enough food, and here I am starving to death? I will go back to my father and say, 'Father, I have sinned against heaven and against you. I am no longer worthy to be called your son. Make me like one of your hired servants.'"

His laziness left him—he realized that nothing comes for free without effort. He acknowledged the wrong he had done in disregarding God and his father's love. He had not considered how much pain he caused his father; instead, he had been selfish. Alone and abandoned, he realized that people only cared about him when he had money. Jesus shared this sad story to warn young people against believing the world has only good things to offer because it can lead to both physical and spiritual destruction.

Once he had prepared his apology speech, the young man set off for home. Hungry and weak, he walked slowly, worrying about how he would be received. Would they reject him? While he was still far off, his father saw him. Every day, his father had been watching the horizon, hoping that his beloved son would realize his mistake and return home. Filled with compassion, the father ran to meet his son.

The son, wondering who was running toward him, soon realized it was his father. His father embraced him and kissed him repeatedly—he did not hold back despite the son's filthy clothes and the stench of pigs. The son began his prepared speech, "Father, I have sinned against heaven and against you. I am no longer worthy to be called your son." But the father did not let him finish his speech. Instead, he turned to his servants and said, "Quick! Bring the best robe and put it on him. Put a ring on his finger and sandals on his feet. Bring the fattened calf and slaughter it. Let us have a feast and celebrate. For this son of mine was dead and is alive again; he was lost and is found."

The young man was overjoyed—he had not expected such a warm welcome. He had been prepared to live as a servant but instead was restored to his former position. He was given fine clothes, new shoes, and even the family ring—a symbol of authority and belonging. After bathing and removing the stench of pigs, he joined the celebration. Laughter and music filled the air as guests arrived to rejoice with the family.

The father, overcome with joy, repeated, “My son was dead but is alive again; he was lost but is now found!” This reflects how our Heavenly Father responds when a sinner repents—He is full of love, compassion, and mercy. No matter how far we stray, if we return to Him sincerely, He is ready to welcome us with open arms.

Meanwhile, the older son was coming home from the fields, exhausted from working. He had faithfully performed tasks like cleaning the stables since his younger brother left. When he heard the music and celebration, he called one of the servants and asked what was happening. The servant excitedly replied, “Your brother has returned, and your father has slaughtered the fattened calf because he is safe and sound!”

The older brother was furious. He felt it was unfair for his reckless brother to be celebrated after wasting the family’s wealth. Refusing to join the celebration, he sulked outside. When his father came out to encourage him to enter, he complained, “I have served you all these years and never disobeyed your commands, yet you never gave me even a young goat to celebrate with my friends. But when this son of yours, who squandered your property with prostitutes, returns, you kill the fattened calf for him!”

The father lovingly responded, “My son, you are always with me, and everything I have is yours. But we had to celebrate and be glad because your brother was dead and is alive again; he was lost and is found.”

The older son did not understand his father’s love. He viewed himself as a servant rather than an heir. The father reassured him that nothing would be taken from him, and his brother’s return did not diminish his own inheritance.

This parable shows that God rejoices when a sinner repents. Some people, like the older brother, resent seeing others receive mercy, but God's love is boundless. Jesus told this story to rebuke the Pharisees, who were angry when He welcomed sinners. Just as the father celebrated his lost son's return, God welcomes all who come back to Him with sincere hearts.

Questions:

1. What did the prodigal son ask his father for?

2. Why did the prodigal son return home?

3. How does the father in the parable represent God?

4. How do our actions resemble those of the prodigal son?

5. In what way was the older brother also lost?

6. Do you think the older brother ever repented?

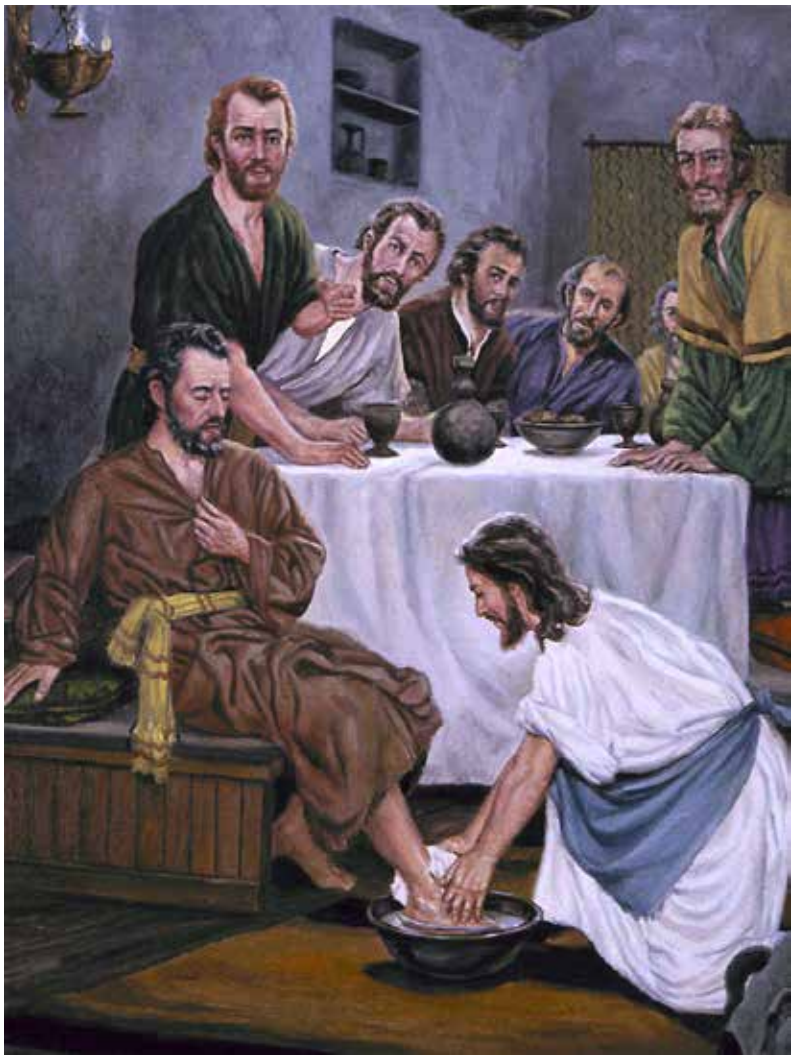
Key Text: Luke 15:4-7.



[4-7] "Suppose one of you has a hundred sheep and loses one of them. Doesn't he leave the ninety-nine in the open country and go after the lost sheep until he finds it? And when he finds it, he joyfully puts it on his shoulders and goes home. Then he calls his friends and neighbors together and says, 'Rejoice with me; I have found my lost sheep.' I tell you that in the same way there will be more rejoicing in heaven over one sinner who repents than over ninety-nine righteous persons who do not need to repent."

Prayer: Thank You, Lord, for seeking us when we are lost. You give us great joy because when we go astray, You follow after us and bring us back to the path of righteousness. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

DAY 275 (October 1)

TOPIC: Foot Washing

(Matthew 26, John 13)

When Jesus finished speaking with His disciples, He told them that the Son of Man was going to be crucified. At that time, the chief priests gathered the elders, the scribes, and the Pharisees to decide how they would arrest and kill Jesus. However, they said it should not happen during the Passover festival to prevent causing a riot among the people and failing to achieve their goal.

On the first day of the Passover week, which began on Thursday evening, His disciples came to Him and asked, "Where do You want us to prepare the Passover meal for You?" He told them to go into the city, where they would meet a certain man carrying a pitcher of water. They were to follow him and say, "The Teacher says, 'My time is near; I will keep the Passover at your house with My disciples.'" He instructed them to prepare a large upper room for the meal.

The Passover festival began when the Israelites were delivered from slavery in Egypt. They were instructed to slaughter a lamb and put its blood on the doorposts so that when the angel passed through to strike down the firstborn of the Egyptians, he would pass over the doors marked with blood without harming them.

The Passover symbolized that God is the Redeemer who delivers from both the slavery of Egypt and the bondage of sin. The blood on the doorposts represented the blood of Jesus, which would be shed on the cross and bring true forgiveness of sins. The blood of the lamb could not bring salvation—only the Lamb of God, Jesus Christ, could and is worthy to redeem humanity. The sacrificed lambs were a foreshadowing of Jesus, who is the true sacrifice for the entire world.

The disciples followed Jesus' instructions and prepared the Passover meal. Despite being with Jesus, the disciples were still full of jealousy, selfishness, and pride. They did not fully understand what was happening, even though Jesus had repeatedly told them that He was going to die. Jesus wanted to share many things with them, but they were not ready. After His resurrection and ascension, they worked with great dedication, often wishing they had asked Him more questions while He was still with them. Even today, we should not waste time when we hear God's Word.

During this meal, Jesus demonstrated that true greatness comes from love and service to others. Knowing that the Father had placed all things under His power, and that the devil had already prompted Judas to betray Him, Jesus rose from the table. He laid aside His outer garments, took a towel, and wrapped it around His waist. He poured water into a basin and began to wash the disciples' feet—a task usually performed by a servant when guests entered a house—because none of the disciples had volunteered to do it.

Perhaps some thought that John should do it because he was the youngest, while John might have believed he was too beloved to perform such a lowly task. John and Judas rushed to sit on Jesus' right and left sides.

We often see similar behavior today when people scramble to sit by the window when traveling to have the best view or easier communication with those outside. Jesus dried their feet with the towel He had wrapped around Himself. When He came to Simon Peter, Peter asked, "Lord, are You going to wash my feet?" Surprised that his Master would lower Himself to such a task, he protested, but Jesus told him, "You do not understand now what I am doing, but later you will."

Peter, still unwilling to accept the act, said, "You shall never wash my feet!" But Jesus replied, "Unless I wash you, you have no part with Me." This humbled Peter, and he responded, "Then, Lord, not just my feet but my hands and my head as well!"

Jesus explained that a person who has bathed only needs to have their feet washed to be completely clean. He said the disciples were clean because they had been spiritually renewed—all except one: Judas, the betrayer.

After finishing, Jesus put on His clothes and returned to His place. He asked, "Do you understand what I have done for you?" He continued, "You call Me 'Teacher' and 'Lord,' and rightly so, for that is what I am. If I, your Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet, you also should wash one another's feet. I have set you an example that you should do as I have done for you. Truly, no servant is greater than his master, nor is a messenger greater than the one who sent him. Now that you know these things, you will be blessed if you do them."

Human nature tends toward seeking to be served rather than serving others. But Jesus teaches us humility and selfless service. This kind of humility does not come naturally; it is the Holy Spirit who enables us to serve others with a sincere heart.

Jesus commanded believers to wash one another's feet before the Passover as a remembrance. Foot washing symbolizes a "mini-baptism," cleansing us from the dust and impurities of life. However, if someone strays from Christ's teachings or falls into sin, they must undergo full baptism.

This act of washing feet is a renewal of our commitment to serve others in the church and the world, just as the apostles did. Many churches teach children about the meaning of the Lord's Supper (Communion) before allowing them to participate. Communion is not just about eating and drinking; it is a sacred act of dedication. It is a time for seeking forgiveness from God and from one another while praying and singing together.

The bread and wine represent Jesus' body and blood, sacrificed for the forgiveness of our sins. This ritual calls for self-examination and repentance before partaking in the Lord's Supper. It is not an ordinary meal; rather, it signifies spiritual renewal and commitment to Christ.

All believers are invited to participate in this service. Foot washing served as an example for the apostles to reject selfishness and instead serve others humbly. Jesus even washed the feet of those who would deny and betray Him without exposing their faults. Today, many would retaliate or publicly shame those who wrong them, but Jesus demonstrated forgiveness and humility.

God lives not for Himself but for us, His creation. Even now, we are cleansed of all our sins—whether anger, lies, jealousy, or pride—by Jesus. His act of humility in washing the disciples' feet teaches us that we, too, must serve and care for others.

Jesus told the disciples about Judas' betrayal before it happened, so that when it occurred, they would believe that He truly was the Messiah. Whoever receives a servant of God receives God Himself.

Pray—pray earnestly and without ceasing—but do not forget to praise God (Worship).

Questions:

1. What lesson do we learn from the Lord washing His disciples' feet?

2. Why is self-examination important before participating in the Lord's Supper?

3. Why did the disciples need to wash one another's feet?

4. Would you be willing to wash someone's feet?

5. Did Peter have good intentions when he refused to be washed?

6. Can a person sit in church while having an evil heart, like Judas Iscariot did with Jesus?

7. How does the broken bread remind us of Jesus?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Matthew 26:26-29.

[26-29] "While they were eating, Jesus took bread, and when He had given thanks, He broke it and gave it to His disciples, saying, 'Take and eat; this is My body.' Then He took a cup, and when He had given thanks, He gave it to them, saying, 'Drink from it, all of you. This is My blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins.'"

Prayer: Thank You for being the Bread of Life, and for being the Giver. Thank You for Your blood that was shed for us. We pray to live lives of gratitude to You for all You have done for us. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: In Matthew 26, an excellent class activity is "eating bread and juice together," where students spend time learning the meaning of the bread and body of Jesus. Afterwards, they may go outside singing: “But I tell you, I will not drink from this fruit of the vine from now on until that day when I drink it new with you in My Father’s kingdom.” When they had sung a hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives.

DAY 276 (October 2)

TOPIC: The Last Passover

(John 13)

The Passover did not fall during the time of Jesus' death by mere coincidence—No! The Passover, a major feast that began when the Israelites were freed from slavery in Egypt, symbolized freedom from the bondage of sin. Jesus, the Lamb of God, was about to die for all humanity to save us. This was the year 31 AD. That evening, Jesus and His twelve disciples sat down together for a meal. While they were there, Jesus repeated again, "Truly, I tell you, one of you will betray me." The Lord's Supper is also called the Last Supper, the farewell meal, or Communion.

The disciples were sorrowful and could not believe it; they began to ask one by one, "Is it I, Lord?" John, who was the youngest of them all, loved to sit close to Jesus. Although others were also loved, he felt particularly close to Jesus. Responding to the question, Jesus said, "No, not for those who will not betray me." But when He gave a piece of bread to Judas, He said, "It is he to whom I will give this piece of bread when I have dipped it in the dish who will betray me. The Son of Man will go just as it is written about Him; but woe to the man who betrays the Son of Man! It would have been better for him if he had not been born than to bring upon himself such destruction."

The disciples were astonished—how could it be true? Who would dare do such evil to their good Teacher who loved them? Judas Iscariot, the one who would betray Him, despite knowing he was the one, also asked, "Is it I, Rabbi?" Jesus answered, "You have said it, or yes, it is you." Then Jesus told Judas, "What you are about to do, do quickly." However, the disciples did not understand why He said this to him. Some thought, since Judas was the group's treasurer, He was instructing him to buy what was needed for the feast or to give something to the poor.

It is possible that Judas, as the treasurer, had handled purchasing the lamb and the bread, but his heart was far from Jesus. He sat close to Jesus to give the impression that he was on His side, continuing his deception. Upon receiving the piece of bread, Satan entered into him, and immediately he left to carry out his plans. Perhaps Judas did not intend for Jesus to be killed but wanted to hasten His declaration as King so that he could secure a high position. He thought Jesus was taking too long, so he decided to push things forward to avoid missing out on privileges.

Do we today love wealth, possessions, or other things that make us willing to betray Jesus?

All the disciples came to the Passover or the Lord's Table with sins or jealousy, but they confessed to one another—except for Judas, who refused to confess. We are instructed to examine and confess our own hearts even today before participating in this sacred service. We are not told to examine or judge others. This service reminds us of God's love because He was willing to wash the feet of the one who would betray Him.

Jesus said, "Now the Son of Man is glorified, and God is glorified in Him." He added, "Little children, I will be with you only a little longer. You will look for Me, but as I told the Jews, 'Where I am going, you cannot come.'"

John devoted about five chapters to writing what Jesus said that night. Jesus then said, "A new commandment I give you: LOVE one another as I have loved you. By this, everyone will know that you are My disciples if you love one another." Jesus did not say that people would know His disciples by their offerings or by refraining from violence, but by how they love one another. Love covers a multitude of sins. A person who loves will fear to do evil against God or others.

Simon Peter asked, "Lord, where are You going?" Jesus replied, "Where I am going, you cannot follow now, but you will follow later." Peter insisted, "Lord, why can't I follow You now? I will lay down my life for You." Peter genuinely intended to keep this promise because he truly loved Jesus. However, he thought he could defend Jesus and even die for Him by relying on his own strength. He did not understand that such strength comes only through grace when we depend on God to empower us. That is when Jesus told Peter that he would deny Him three times before the rooster crowed twice that night.

Jesus said, “Simon, Simon, Satan has asked to sift all of you as wheat, to test your faithfulness to Me. But I have prayed for you, Simon, that your faith may not fail. And when you have turned back, strengthen your brothers.” Even today, Jesus prays for us.

He instructed them to prepare themselves because things would change—they would need a purse, a bag, and even a sword to sustain themselves.

While they were eating, Jesus took the unleavened bread, blessed it, broke it, and gave it to His disciples, saying, “Take and eat; this is My body.” Then He took the cup, gave thanks, and said, “Drink from it, all of you. This is My blood of the new covenant, which is poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins.”

To drink His blood and eat His body means to accept His words and live as He commanded us.

Jesus said He would not drink from the fruit of the vine again until the day He drinks it anew with us all in His Father’s kingdom. Research confirms that the wine used was grape juice, not fermented wine. The Greek word “oinos” can mean either fresh grape juice or fermented wine. Context determines which is meant. When Jesus said “new,” He referred to unfermented juice. We know that rotting fruits produce alcoholic wine, rotting grains produce beer, and rotting potatoes produce rum—these are all forms of alcohol. The blood of Jesus cannot be represented by anything fermented or decayed!

Satan Cannot Overcome a Praying Person – The enemy cannot overcome a humble disciple of Christ who walks in prayer before the Lord. Christ Himself intervenes as a protector and refuge against the attacks of the evil one. The promise is given, “When the enemy comes in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord will lift up a standard against him.” No power in all of Satan’s schemes can defeat a soul that relies on God’s wisdom with simple, confident faith.

Questions:

1. What did Jesus say about the bread and wine?

2. Why should one avoid alcohol?

3. Why did Jesus want us to partake of the bread and wine?

4. Which disciple insisted he would never deny Jesus?

5. What did Jesus' new commandment mean?

6. How can someone recognize a disciple of Jesus?

7. Can someone be a church member without being a Christian?

8. What do the bread and wine represent?

9. Why is it important to attend church or fellowship according to the Bible?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: John 13:34,35.

[34,35] "A new command I give you: Love one another. As I have loved you, so you must love one another. By this everyone will know that you are My disciples, if you love one another."

Prayer: Thank You so much, Heavenly Father. Help us to love one another as You have loved us.

Activity: For John 13, a great classroom activity is "washing one another's feet," where students use their resources and time to serve each other, followed by a discussion on the meaning of serving others. Or, wear aprons and put this lesson into practice. See John 13:1-17.

DAY 277 (October 3)

TOPIC: Do Not Let Your Hearts Be Troubled

(John 14)

Jesus did not call His disciples to the Lord's Table or the Last Supper just to eat the Passover meal. He wanted to sit and talk with them one last time while they were together. When Judas was given a piece of bread, he left to go to the chief priests and soldiers to betray Jesus. Jesus called His disciples "little children." Why do you think He did that? The disciples knew that Jesus was more than a prophet or a friend, and on this day, He revealed it to them completely. The words in this chapter have comforted many believers who have lost loved ones, faced hardship or sickness, poverty, or abandonment by family or close friends.

While sitting at the table, Jesus told His disciples not to let their hearts be troubled. These words apply to us as well. We should not be troubled but should trust in God and also trust in Him. He said, "In My Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you." There is plenty of room in heaven, unlike when we go on a journey and people say, "There are only five spots left!" Jesus said He was going to prepare a place for us. While Jesus is building a home for us in heaven, we should build our characters here on earth to mature spiritually for the sinless life in heaven. Our character is the only thing we will take with us to heaven, along with the people we have invited to follow Jesus. Everything we think, do, or say is like a brick building that heavenly home.

When we go to heaven, no one will carry suitcases, computers, cars, houses, planes, or food because heaven offers far more beautiful things—things no eye has seen, no ear has heard, and no human mind has imagined. When moving to a new city, we do not go to the trash heap to pick up broken or worn-out items to take with us!

The disciples were filled with joy because many of them had no permanent home; they slept here and there. We do not know if new homes are being built in heaven or if the angels who were cast out left many empty places. We do not know that, but we do know there is plenty of room for everyone to enter and stay. Jesus promised to come back and take us to be with Him so that where He is, we may also be. He said, "You know the way to where I am going, and one day you will come too."

Jesus had not stopped being God; He was still God, and His works and miracles testified to that. Thomas, one of His disciples, was honest and did not want to remain in the dark. He said, “Lord, we don’t know where You are going, so how can we know the way?” Thomas was courageous because even today, many people do not know the way to heaven, but they do not ask; they are afraid, hesitant, or too busy, thinking they will ask tomorrow.

Jesus answered Thomas, “I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life. No one comes to the Father except through Me.” Jesus is the only way to the Father and the truth of who God is. No one can reach the Father without the grace of Jesus leading them on that path. If we know Jesus, we know the Father. Jesus told Philip, “From now on, you can say you know and have seen the Father.”

Philip repeated his request, “Lord, show us the Father, and that will be enough for us.” Jesus was saddened because He had been with them for three and a half years, day and night. He said, “Philip, have I been with you all this time, and you still do not know Me? Anyone who has seen Me has seen the Father. How can you say, ‘Show us the Father?’ Don’t you believe that I am in the Father and the Father is in Me? The words I say to you, I do not speak on My own authority, but the Father living in Me does His work.”

When the disciples believed these truths, they grew closer to one another, and heaven felt very near. Let us learn from Jesus’ patience and endurance. We should not be quick to give up when friends do not trust us or when we face tough situations. Instead, we should pray to God to guide us through. We may have parents, teachers, or close people who make our lives difficult. Let us look at Jesus as our example and our heavenly parent.

Jesus said that anyone who believes in Him as the Messiah will also do the works He does—and even greater works—because they will spread His message worldwide. He promised, “Whatever you ask in My name, I will do it, so that the Father may be glorified in the Son." Jesus said that if we love Him, we will keep His commandments, and He will ask the Father to send us a Helper—the Holy Spirit. Though we cannot see the Holy Spirit, when we receive Him, He lives within us and comforts us, so we are not left as orphans without guidance or support until Jesus returns to take us home. Today, Jesus lives in our hearts through the Holy Spirit.

Because Jesus rose from the dead and is alive, we too will live one day and will be with Him forever. The Holy Spirit was sent to teach us all things, to show us what is sin, what is righteousness, and to guide us into all truth. The gifts of the Holy Spirit are essential and form the core of a Christian's life. A new Christian is born through the Holy Spirit and is led by Him. The Holy Spirit is our Helper.

Jesus said that He loves His Father and does everything He commands. He also said that the evidence that we are His followers is that we love others. If we do not love our brothers, sisters, parents, or fellow humans, we have no part in Him. Do you love people? If we love others, love God, and keep His commandments, He will make our hearts His dwelling place. Do you want to make your heart His home and be used by the Holy Spirit?

When Jesus was in human form, He could not be everywhere at once, but the Holy Spirit is present with everyone at all times. Whether we are imprisoned or isolated, the Holy Spirit is there with us. Even when we face evil surroundings or difficult parents, God will help us overcome and shape our character to reflect Him. We must surrender our hearts and minds to the Spirit of God for Him to work in us.

The human mind is limited in understanding, but the Holy Spirit, as promised by Jesus, helps us grasp His Word and reminds us of what we have read. Jesus told His disciples that the key to victory is praying in His powerful and authoritative name. Even when our prayers seem weak or lack the right words, the Holy Spirit presents them to the Father, perfected by Jesus' righteousness.

Jesus has promised that if we ask in His name, He will answer our prayers for the sake of His righteousness. He intercedes for us with deep, unspoken groans. If we ask Jesus to help us be obedient to Him, He will guide our hearts and minds to do His will.

Who holds your heart? What occupies your thoughts? Do you love talking about Jesus? If you are on the Lord's side, your thoughts, time, and resources will be dedicated to His service.

Is it not evidence of God's great love that He gave His only Son to save us? He loves when we ask for big things, so we can rejoice and glorify Him when He answers our prayers. Let us come to Him with any burden or concern, and He will guide us and give us the strength to overcome.

Satan Cannot Defeat a Praying Person
The enemy cannot overcome a humble follower of Christ who walks in prayer before the Lord. Jesus Himself intervenes as a refuge and shield against the attacks of the evil one. The promise is given: "When the enemy comes in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord will lift a standard against him."

Why did Jesus tell His disciples not to be troubled?

What kinds of things can we ask God for?

Why is it important to keep God's commandments?

How would your parents react if you told them you no longer care about their rules?

Why is Jesus different from other religious leaders like Buddha or the Dalai Lama?

Key Text: John 14:6,7.

[6,7] "Thomas said to Him, 'Lord, we don't know where You are going, so how can we know the way?' Jesus answered, 'I am the way and the truth and the life. No one comes to the Father except through Me. If you really know Me, you will know My Father as well. From now on, you do know Him and have seen Him.'"

Prayer: Thank You, Father, for Your words that whatever we ask in Your name, You will give us. We pray to love You and to keep Your law of joy. We are grateful for Your peace and for the Holy Spirit who reminds us of all You have said. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: For students in class, John 14 activities may include art and the significance of a compass, since He is "The Way." Children can decorate a compass drawing on paper to symbolize Jesus guiding them. “Do not let your hearts be troubled. You believe in God; believe also in Me. My Father’s house has many rooms; if that were not so, would I have told you that I am going there to prepare a place for you? And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come back and take you to be with Me that you also may be where I am. You know the way to the place where I am going.”

DAY 278 (October 4)

TOPIC: Jesus, the True Vine

(John 15, 16)

Jesus gave an illustration, saying He is the True Vine, and His Father is the gardener. This brought to mind the image of how a tree with branches works. The illustration meant that every branch that does not bear fruit is removed, and every branch that bears fruit is pruned or trimmed so that it may sprout more branches and bear even more fruit—just as we prune fruit trees like orange trees to make them more productive. He said that the Word of God is the only thing that makes the children of God clean, and the disciples were already clean because of the Word of God.

He said, "Abide in Me, and I in you," for just as a branch cannot bear fruit by itself unless it remains in the vine, neither can we bear fruit unless we remain in the Lord. Whoever abides in Jesus and Jesus in them bears much fruit because without Him, we can do nothing. Anyone who does not remain in Him dries up and is thrown out into the fire, like withered branches that are burned. Branches that do not bear the fruit of the Spirit—such as gentleness, love, joy, and patience—will be cast away.

If we remain in Him, we will produce good fruit. Branches do not struggle to bear fruit—it is a natural process from being connected to the vine. Similarly, followers of Jesus who build their faith in Him and rely on Him will naturally bear fruit due to the spiritual nourishment they receive from Jesus—just as a tree bears fruit because of the nutrients it draws from good soil.

He said that if we abide in Him and His words abide in us, we may ask whatever we desire, and it will be done for us. Abiding in Him also means obeying His commands. True obedience comes from the heart, and when we ask in His Name, He will help us obey and surrender completely. He will give us the wisdom to do what is right. God is glorified when we remain in Him, and we cannot bear fruit by separating ourselves and living independently. We must abide in Him to be His disciples.

God loves us, and we should remain in His love by keeping His commandments. Anyone who breaks or rejects God's commandments is a liar and does not love God. God has given us His commandments because He loves us. His commandments teach us to love Him and to love one another. Jesus loved us so much that He died for us. We become friends of God when we follow His instructions and obey Him, and whatever we ask the Father in Jesus' Name, He will give us.

It is easy to be attached to other people instead of remaining in Jesus. Ask yourself today—are you in Jesus, or are you attached to other people? In other words, do you follow the teachings of the Scriptures and seek to please God, or do you follow human teachings?

Jesus warned His disciples about the persecution they would face as believers. The world may hate us because it hated the Lord Jesus first. A servant is not greater than their master. If they persecuted Him, how can we escape it? He warned all believers that those who hate God would persecute them—even in religious places like synagogues—thinking they are serving God, while in reality, it is Satan who is driving them. Saul, who later became Paul, was an example of this—he thought that by killing Christians, he was serving God, but he was completely misguided.

Jesus told His disciples that if He did not go away, the Comforter—the Holy Spirit—could not come. The Holy Spirit would guide them and lead them into all truth. After this, Jesus no longer spoke to them in parables. He told them clearly that He had come from heaven and was returning to the Father. The disciples said, "Now you speak plainly and do not use figurative language. We believe that you came from God."

Jesus, rejoicing at their faith, asked, "Do you now believe?" He then said,

“The time is coming, and in fact, has come, when you will be scattered, each to your own home, and you will leave Me all alone. Yet I am not alone, for My Father is with Me. I have told you these things so that in Me you may have peace. In this world, you will have tribulation and many troubles, but take heart—I have overcome the world.”

Let us remember the final words of Jesus—He is our way to heaven. Without the Savior, we cannot be saved. He is the Truth—those who do not receive Him do not have the truth. He is the Life—no one can have eternal life without Him. It is crucial that today, when we hear this good news, we accept Him. By following His teachings and obeying His new commandment—to love one another as He has loved us—we will always be joyful.

Jesus gave His disciples His final words: “In a little while, you will not see Me, and then after a little while, you will see Me again because I am going to the Father.” He told them that they would grieve, but their grief would turn to joy. Even today, we should ask to receive the Holy Spirit and ask the Father in heaven for anything in Jesus’ Name so that our joy may be complete.

Jesus consistently emphasized the Holy Spirit in His teachings. The Holy Spirit is the third person of the Trinity, and His works are worth exploring today. We cannot do anything good without His inspiration. He is now our Helper. The word “Helper” does not suggest weakness but rather a rich and profound resource. Jesus was inspired by the Holy Spirit daily to accomplish His mission, and we see the Holy Spirit descend like a dove when Jesus was baptized. We cannot do anything without the Holy Spirit. Let us, like Jesus, focus our thoughts on the Holy Spirit today.

Prayer Brings Power to Overcome Temptation
If we do not pray continuously and vigilantly, we risk becoming lazy and straying from the right path. Our enemy constantly seeks to block the way to the Throne of Grace so that we do not receive the mercy and strength needed to overcome temptation through sincere prayer and faith.

Satan Trembles When We Pray
There is great power in prayer. Our chief enemy is always seeking to keep the troubled soul away from God. The humble prayer of even the weakest saint is more terrifying to Satan than the decrees of councils or the commands of kings.

Questions:

Why did Jesus tell His disciples not to be troubled?

What kinds of things can we ask from God?

Why is it important to keep God's commandments?

What would your parents say if you told them their rules don't matter?

Why is Jesus different from other religious leaders, like Buddha or the Dalai Lama?

Believers sometimes feel alone—why are they not orphans?

Who did Jesus say He is?

What does it mean to abide in Jesus?

What does "Take heart—I have overcome the world" mean to you today?

How can we become friends of God?

Why was Jesus pleased when the disciples said they believed?

List ten works of the Holy Spirit.

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Young Person of Jesus.

Key Text: John 16:12-14.

[12-14] "I have much more to say to you, more than you can now bear. But when He, the Spirit of truth, comes, He will guide you into all the truth. He will not speak on His own; He will speak only what He hears, and He will tell you what is yet to come. He will glorify Me because it is from Me that He will receive what He will make known to you."

Prayer: Father, thank You for Your Holy Spirit who guides us into all truth. We pray to allow the Holy Spirit to continue convicting us of sin, righteousness, and judgment. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: John 15 – “I am the True Vine.” Use a real vine branch or a fruit-bearing tree branch, such as pumpkin, to show how a branch depends on its tree for life and nourishment. You can explain that, just like branches, believers must remain connected to Jesus, the True Vine, to grow and “bear much fruit.”

DAY 279 (October 5)

TOPIC: Jesus' Prayer for All of Us

(John 17, Luke 22)

On that night, Jesus made a beautiful and amazing prayer for you and me. All the other disciples forgot to write it down, except John. You can read this prayer for yourself in John 17. Jesus said that He wanted all of us who love Him and believe in Him to be one, just as He and His Father are united. Have you realized that only you and I can answer or fulfill this prayer? He cannot do it for us! Let us give Him our choice and our will. Even today, Africans say, "If you want to go fast, go alone; if you want to go far, go together!"

Many people think that only people from specific tribes, religions, ages, races, cultures, or social statuses are prejudiced while others love unity. This is not true. Every human being has some form of prejudice! If you sit and reflect, you will realize this. However, the important thing is to repent and determine that God's Word is the compass and shield against prejudice. Only then will we be filled with love and have the unity that allows us to love our neighbors as ourselves, feeling compassion when they are in trouble, even if we are not related by blood.

I have asked God to help me love others as I love myself. This will make the Holy Spirit's work of sharing the Good News of the Kingdom easier because we will feel sorrow knowing that others will face punishment in the lake of fire and will be lost forever if we do not tell them the Truth. Never should we wish even the worst enemy to suffer the torment of the lake of fire.

Christ did not point out their weaknesses, ignorance, or jealousy. He told them that their sorrow would be turned into joy. He said that joy would fill their hearts and minds so much that their lives would never be the same again. Even though their faith wavered and they scattered, Jesus knew their weaknesses and did not give up on them. He gathered them again and sent them to the ends of the earth, where they did great things in His Name. He told them to be joyful because He had already overcome and would share His victory with them. Even today, if our faith is weak, we should not lose hope—Jesus does not abandon us. He knows our struggles, and even when we stumble, He will lift us up. Let us confess Him again and move forward, asking for the strength to overcome. He has already given us His victory when we pray to have His mindset, as mentioned in Philippians chapter two.

As He spoke to His Father, He only mentioned the good things about His friends. He asked His Father to keep and protect them always. He said, “All those You have given Me may have eternal life.” And this is eternal life—that they may know You, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom You have sent. What a joy it is to know that this prayer was not only for the eleven disciples but for everyone who loves Jesus. He was praying for all of us—you and me—that we may be protected from the evil one, that our hearts may be set right and filled with love, and that one day we may be with Him forever in Heaven.

Jesus lifted His eyes to Heaven and said, “The hour has come. I have glorified You on earth and finished the work You gave Me to do. Now, Father, glorify Your Son so that the Son may glorify You.” He told His Father that He had completed the work He was sent to do—the work of revealing God’s character to humanity. The words He gave to the disciples had been accepted, and they knew for certain that He had come from Heaven. He prayed for His disciples and for all of us until the end of the world, that we might be protected from the evil one. He prayed for unity among all who love Him on earth, just as He was united with His Father in Heaven. He pleaded, “Do not take them out of the world, but protect them from the evil one.” Then He spoke powerful and sweet words for us all: “Father, those You have given Me (which means you and me), I want them to be with Me where I am, to see My glory which You have given Me." Jesus revealed that He is Emmanuel—God with us.

When they arrived at the Garden of Olives, He told His disciples, "Pray that you will not fall into temptation," knowing they would soon face difficulties. He wanted them to seek help from the Lord. He went a little further, knelt down, and prayed, "Father, if You are willing, take this cup from Me; yet not My will, but Yours be done." Jesus knew what was going to happen that night—the suffering and crucifixion—yet He felt alone, carrying this burden. He, who had never sinned, was condemned by sinners.

Jesus prayed so earnestly that His sweat became like drops of blood. Being treated unjustly is no small matter. Have you ever been falsely accused of something, even a small thing, that you did not do? How did you feel? Jesus was about to be blamed and accused of great and terrible things He had never done. All the sins ever committed, from Eve in the Garden of Eden to today, were placed on Him. It was not only the physical pain that crushed His heart but the weight of the world's sins.

If Jesus had lost heart and given up at that moment, we would have been lost forever. He was severely tempted because He could have escaped by performing a miracle, just as He had done before when people in Nazareth wanted to kill Him. He was about to take on all the shame associated with sin—God laid the sins of the entire world on Him. That is why the Savior was deeply sorrowful. At that moment, an angel from Heaven appeared to strengthen Him.

When He returned to His disciples, He found them asleep and was saddened. He was exhausted and needed comfort and prayer support, but they were asleep. He told them again, "Get up and pray so that you will not fall into temptation." Even today, we should pray to avoid falling into temptation, even as children. We should not go to school or sleep without praying. We need to pray in the morning, at night, and even during the day. Someone once said, "A single hour without prayer is a loss!" Jesus felt the deep separation from His Father because of our sins. The salvation of the world was hanging in the balance during those few hours.

After singing a hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives. They crossed the Kidron Valley to a garden where Jesus and His disciples often met. Judas, who betrayed Him, also knew the place. He came with a detachment of soldiers and officials from the chief priests and Pharisees, carrying lanterns, torches, and weapons. Knowing what was about to happen, Jesus stepped forward and asked, "Who are you looking for?" They answered, "Jesus of Nazareth." He said, “I am He.” At this, they drew back and fell to the ground twice in awe of His divine presence.

Judas approached Jesus and gave Him a kiss—a kiss of betrayal. Jesus said, “Judas, are you betraying the Son of Man with a kiss?” Although Judas loved Jesus, he loved wealth and position more. Do you have anything you love more than you love God?

Questions:

1. What problem did the servant Malchus face?

2. What was Jesus’ main prayer to His Father that night?

3. Do you think Peter would have fallen into temptation if he had stayed awake and prayed?

4. Why is the unity Jesus prayed for before His death important for us?

5. Can we have the unity Jesus prayed for if we hold teachings contrary to His Word?

6. Why did Jesus pray for His disciples to be united?

7. Why did Jesus face greater temptations than any other human being?

8. How can a person stop using bad or offensive language?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Luke 22:47-51.

[47-51] “While He was still speaking a crowd came up, and the man who was called Judas, one of the Twelve, was leading them. He approached Jesus to kiss Him, but Jesus asked him, ‘Judas, are you betraying the Son of Man with a kiss?’ When Jesus’ followers saw what was going to happen, they said, ‘Lord, should we strike with our swords?’ And one of them struck the servant of the high priest, cutting off his right ear. But Jesus answered, ‘No more of this!’ And He touched the man’s ear and healed him.”

Prayer: Our Father in heaven, thank You for loving even Your enemies and those who betrayed You. This has given us an example to be kind to our enemies. Help us not to be violent or cruel. Give us love like Yours. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Read and reflect on Jesus' prayer in John 17, sentence by sentence.

DAY 280 (October 6)

TOPIC: Jesus is Arrested

(Luke 22)

In the middle of the night, they arrested Jesus and took Him to the house of the retired high priest, Annas, who was the father-in-law of Caiaphas, the current high priest that year. Both of them were Sadducees, meaning they did not believe in the resurrection or heavenly beings like angels. Caiaphas was the one who had prophesied that it was better for one man to die for the people. This priest considered himself a hero, thinking he was about to save the nation of Israel by his power, but in reality, he was leading himself and others to destruction by killing the innocent out of hatred.

Titles, authority, wealth, and education have been used in the world to rule others and change their thoughts. The priests wanted to destroy the minds of ordinary people so they would not accept and love Jesus. Some believed that the priests could not be wrong and followed them blindly, which led to their spiritual downfall.

Even today, many priests follow Jesus, but the work comes with great trials. The devil loves to discourage those who serve God because those who do not serve God are already on his side. The kingdom of God is about being a servant—even angels are servants, although they are created with a higher rank than us.

What we learn here is that we should not serve God for financial gain. Be willing to serve Him wholeheartedly, trusting in God and striving to do good even when there is no payment. Lay people—those who serve God without pay—should be careful not to get involved in the politics of religious leaders, for they are not paid to engage in politics. Those who do will leave empty-handed and, more importantly, displease God and lose everything.

Jesus' trial was illegal according to Jewish law. The Sanhedrin council was not supposed to meet or judge someone at night. Additionally, it was against the law to charge, convict, and sentence someone to death on the same day. The Jews violated their own laws by condemning Jesus, but their hatred blinded them.

They were jealous of Jesus because of His love, His healing power, His popularity, and His teachings, which exposed their falsehood and hypocrisy. If there had been children in the courtroom that night—perhaps the ones Jesus had healed—things might have turned out differently. They might have defended Him! But all the children were asleep, tucked in bed, soundly sleeping.

When we say the Jews had no right to condemn Jesus, we refer mainly to their leaders. They hated and feared Jesus because He exposed their wickedness. They rushed the trial to finish before the crowds who loved Jesus could wake up and cause unrest or witness their evil plans.

They had already decided to kill Him regardless of the trial's outcome. However, they wanted to appear as though they followed the law. Since they knew their reasons were insufficient to sentence Him to death, they began the trial early to accomplish their goal. Their strategy was to accuse Jesus of blasphemy under Jewish law and of rebellion under Roman law, which carried a death sentence.

John also followed Jesus and was known by the high priest, so he was allowed to enter the courtyard. Peter followed from a distance. It was a cold night, and people had lit a fire in the courtyard. Peter sat among them, warming himself.

A servant girl noticed Peter in the firelight, looked closely at him, and said, "This man was also with Jesus." But Peter denied it, saying, "Woman, I do not know Him."

A little later, someone else saw him and said, "You also are one of them." Peter replied, "Man, I am not!"

About an hour later, another insisted, "Surely this man was with Him, for he is a Galilean." Peter firmly denied it, saying, "Man, I do not know what you are talking about." Immediately, while he was still speaking, the rooster crowed.

At that moment, Peter remembered the Lord's words: "Before the rooster crows twice, you will deny Me three times." Peter went outside and wept bitterly.

Poor Peter! He loved Jesus but relied on his own strength. He had fallen asleep when he should have been praying for the strength to resist temptation. Even today, we need God's power to stand firm.

Jesus knew everything that would happen, which is why He prayed for Peter so that his faith would not fail. Although Peter denied Him, Jesus did not want Peter to lose hope or abandon his faith.

Those who arrested Jesus mocked Him, spit on Him, and struck Him with fists and whips. They blindfolded Him and demanded, “Prophesy! Who hit You?” It is heartbreaking to think that the Creator, who came to die for us, was treated with such cruelty.

They continued the trial illegally through the night. In the morning, the elders, chief priests, and scribes assembled and brought Jesus before their council, questioning Him about His teachings and disciples.

Jesus replied that He had spoken openly in public and had nothing to hide. If they asked those who heard Him, they would know the truth. When He said this, a temple servant struck Him, asking, “Is this how You answer the high priest?” Jesus responded calmly, “If I said something wrong, testify to what is wrong. But if I spoke the truth, why do you strike Me?”

The religious leaders asked Him directly, “Are You the Son of God?” Jesus answered, “You say that I am.” His response gave them the opportunity to know the truth and follow Him. But instead, they claimed He had spoken blasphemy and said there was no need for further testimony because they had heard it from His own lips.

The accusations against Jesus were false—not because no one had witnessed the alleged crimes, but because He had never done anything wrong. Throughout the trial, Jesus responded with patience and without anger.

Jesus was humiliated by the very people He came to save. Satan and his demons were present, urging people to commit these evil acts. Although any angel could have rescued Jesus, God the Father and Jesus had decided to offer this sacrifice so that you and I could have eternal life.

It was an agonizing time for Jesus because He foresaw all that was about to happen. The most painful part was the apparent loss of connection with His Father. This separation weighed heavier on Him than any physical suffering.

Since the Jews had no authority to execute anyone under Roman rule, they took Jesus from Caiaphas to the Roman governor’s palace (the Praetorium) at dawn. Jesus had already been awake for over 24 hours without rest.

The Jews refused to enter the Praetorium to avoid ritual defilement, as they wanted to remain “clean” for the Passover. Ironically, their actions of plotting murder had already defiled them.

Everyone had the opportunity to acknowledge Jesus as the Messiah that day—whether it was Caiaphas, Annas, Herod, Pilate, the religious leaders, or ordinary people. Yet, their rejection of the Holy Spirit and their choice to follow the spirit of darkness led them to the peak of their wickedness.

Prayers Do Not Provide New Information to God
Prayer is not about telling God things He does not already know. The Lord knows the secrets of every heart. Our prayers should not be long and loud. God sees what is done in secret and rewards us openly.

Questions:

1. If the person who struck Jesus knew who He was, what would they have done differently?
2. How can we "strike" Jesus today?
3. Why did the priests begin the trial in the middle of the night?
4. Why did the Jews lack the authority to execute someone?
5. Who was Annas?
6. Why did Peter deny Jesus even though he loved Him?
7. What can we learn from Jesus' patience during His unjust trial?
8. Discuss what you learned about these religious leaders and how it applies to your life today.

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Luke 22:33,34.

[33,34] "But he replied, 'Lord, I am ready to go with You to prison and to death.' Jesus answered, 'I tell you, Peter, before the rooster crows today, you will deny three times that you know Me.'"

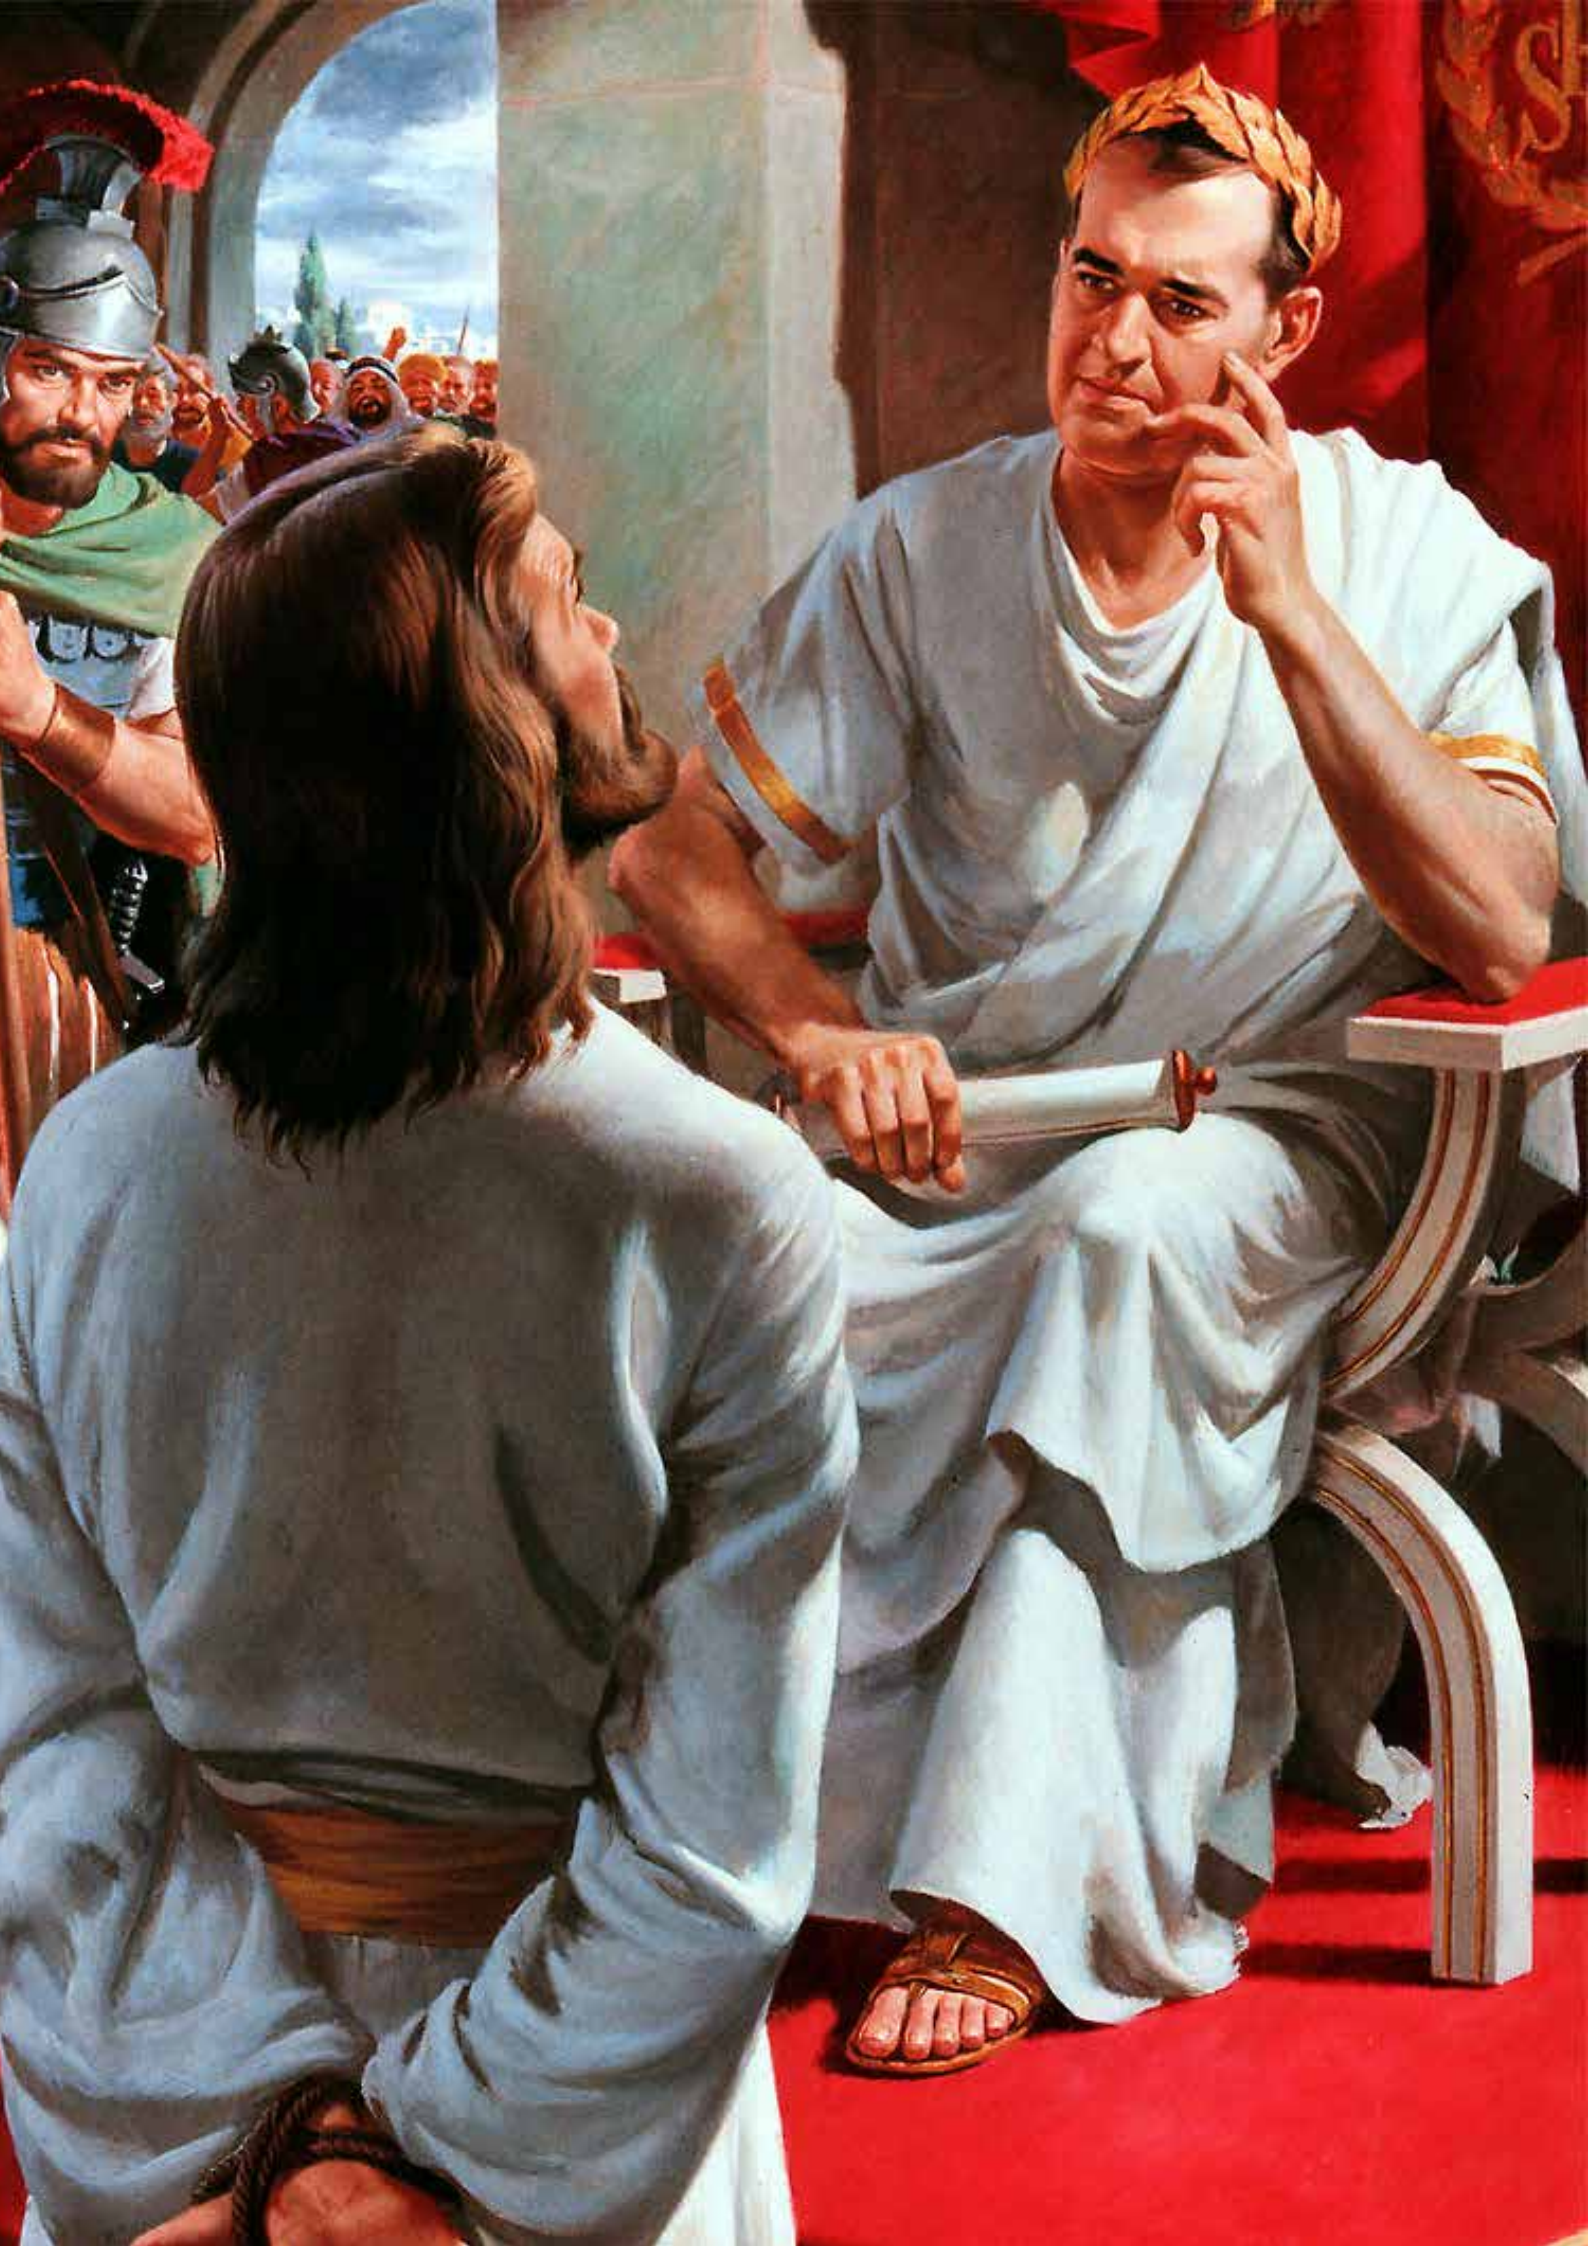
Prayer: Father, sometimes we are weak and deny You before our friends, even when we boast that we would defend You even to death. Help us, by looking at the example of Peter, not to rely on our own strength. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A dramatization of Peter talking to three people, followed by the rooster crowing.

DAY 281. (October 7)

TOPIC: Jesus before Pilate.

(Luke 22)



The entire assembly arose and led Jesus to Pilate, who was the Roman governor; perhaps they woke him up from his sleep. It was not lawful for them to judge someone at night, but they were in a hurry to commit their evil act, claiming that the Passover festival was approaching, and they needed to rush to fulfill their wicked plan of killing Jesus. We may wonder why they committed this evil, but even today, we do the same by crucifying Christ anew through the sins we commit. Let us pray for the Holy Spirit to help us recognize our sins and turn away from them through repentance and restoration.

Herod the Jew was under Pilate's authority. The Jews could not pass the death sentence themselves under Roman law. Pilate was surprised to find Jesus to be a calm and gentle person, and he asked, "What charges do you bring against this man?" They replied, "He is guilty of many offenses; otherwise, we would not have brought him to you." They began to accuse Him falsely, claiming that He was misleading their nation, forbidding them to pay taxes to Caesar, and claiming to be the Messiah and a king. Others accused Him of saying that He would destroy the temple and rebuild it in three days, but their testimonies did not agree.

Pilate asked Him, "Are you the King of the Jews?" Jesus, giving Pilate an opportunity for salvation, replied, "Yes, as you say, but are you asking this on your own, or did others tell you about me?" Pilate responded, "Am I a Jew? Your own people and chief priests handed you over to me."

When Pilate questioned Jesus further, Jesus said, "My kingdom is not of this world. If it were, my servants would fight to prevent me from being handed over to the Jews." Jesus continued to testify to Pilate, stating that He was born to testify to the truth. Pilate then asked, "What is truth?" This is a question we should ask ourselves today—what is truth? The truth is the Word of God! It is the complete and absolute truth.

Pilate then told the chief priests and the crowd, "I find no basis for a charge against this man." He told them to judge Jesus by their own law, but they objected, saying, "We have no right to execute anyone." The Jews insisted, saying, "This man stirs up trouble by teaching throughout Judea, starting

Upon hearing that Jesus was from Galilee, Pilate asked if He was a Galilean. When he learned that Jesus was under Herod's jurisdiction, he sent Him to Herod, who was also in Jerusalem at the time. This was the same Herod who had beheaded John the Baptist. When Herod saw Jesus, he was delighted because he had heard about Him and had wanted to see Him for a long time. He hoped to see Jesus perform a miracle as entertainment. But Jesus did not come to earth to perform magic tricks or put on a show. Herod questioned Him extensively, but Jesus gave no answer. The chief priests and teachers of the law stood there, vehemently accusing Him.

Out of malice and because he had the authority, Herod mocked Jesus and treated Him with contempt. He dressed Him in a luxurious royal robe and sent Him back to Pilate, for he also found no fault in Him. This teaches us not to mock or ridicule others. From that day, Herod and Pilate became friends—although they had previously been enemies—not because "the enemy of my enemy is my friend," but because both agreed that Jesus was innocent. Even today, some betray Jesus to make friends with people they were previously at odds with.

While Pilate was sitting on the judge's seat, his wife sent him a message saying, "Have nothing to do with that righteous man, for I have suffered greatly today in a dream because of Him." However, this warning did not stop Pilate. He continued to please the crowd to protect his position. Pilate told the chief priests, "You brought this man to me as one who incites rebellion. I have examined Him in your presence and have found no basis for your charges against Him—nothing deserving death."

Even Herod found no reason to condemn Him. Pilate then proposed to punish Jesus by flogging Him and releasing Him, as it was customary to release a prisoner during the festival. It is strange—if Jesus was innocent, why punish Him at all? However, the crowd shouted, "Release Barabbas to us!"

Barabbas, whose name means "son of the father," was in prison for insurrection and murder. He likely feared for his life, but suddenly the prison door opened. Barabbas was brought before Pilate, and perhaps he recognized Jesus or had heard of Him. Pilate again asked the crowd, "What shall I do with Jesus, who is called the Messiah?" They shouted, "Crucify Him!" Barabbas must have felt relieved. We do not know what became of him afterward, but we can hope that he realized that Jesus took his place—just as Jesus takes our place today. Through His suffering and death, we who are sinners have been redeemed.

Again, Pilate asked, “Why? What crime has He committed?” But the crowd shouted louder for His crucifixion. Wanting to satisfy the people, Pilate granted their request. He released Barabbas and handed Jesus over to be crucified. Though Pilate washed his hands and declared, “I am innocent of this man’s blood,” water could not cleanse him of his guilt. Only confession and repentance can do that. The Jews present declared, “His blood be on us and on our children.”

No one, not even Jesus’ enemies, found any fault in Him. This sets Him apart from the founders of other religions, who acknowledged their sins. This truth is clear—only God is without sin, and we all fall short of His glory.

Even today, our sins continue to crucify Jesus. Let us seek forgiveness, for Jesus is willing to forgive all sins. Despite being given the chance to know the truth, Pilate chose to please people rather than do what was right.

History records that Pilate lost his position after Jesus’ death, despite trying to appease the people. Ancient historians like Tacitus and Josephus wrote extensively, confirming these events. You can read more if you wish.

Jesus does not call us to follow Him only to abandon us. If we surrender our lives to Him, He will never leave us. In every circumstance, we have a Guide to lead us, a true Counselor in our troubles, and a compassionate Friend in our sorrow. Even when we err out of ignorance, Christ does not forsake us.

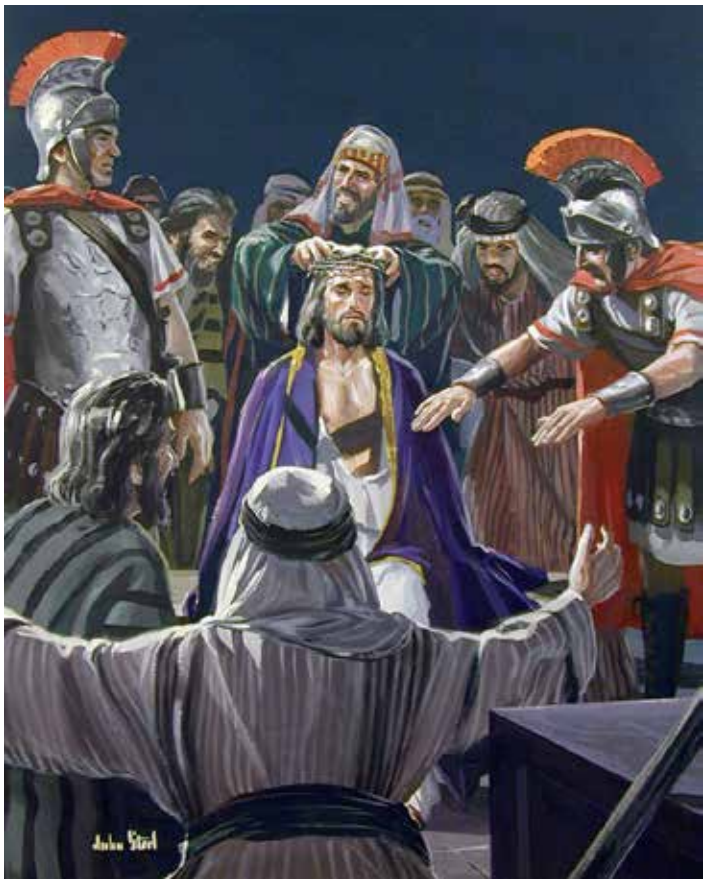
Simple prayers, offered through the Holy Spirit, ascend through the open door that Christ has declared: “I have set before you an open door, and no one can shut it.” These prayers, mixed with the incense of Christ’s perfection, ascend to the Father as a pleasing aroma, and answers will come.

Questions:
1. What fault did Pilate find in Jesus?
2. What warning did Pilate’s wife give him?
3. Why did the people choose Barabbas instead of Jesus?
4. How do people today choose Barabbas over Jesus?
5. Why did Herod and Pilate become friends that day?
6. Why did Pilate have Jesus flogged despite His innocence?
7. What example of patience does Jesus give when others treat us unjustly?
8. Do you seek to please people today, or to please Jesus?

May God greatly bless you, child and youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Luke 22:40-43.

[40-43] "On reaching the place, He said to them, 'Pray that you will not fall into temptation.' He withdrew about a stone's throw beyond them, knelt down and prayed, 'Father, if You are willing, take this cup from Me; yet not My will, but Yours be done.' An angel from heaven appeared to Him and strengthened Him."



Prayer: Holy Lord, we pray that You help us not to fall into temptation, and that Your will be done and not ours. We ask that You strengthen us. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: What is Truth? – A discussion. Jesus continued to testify to Pilate that He was born for this purpose, giving him the story of salvation and the Truth He came to bear witness to. Pilate then asked, "What is truth?" This is a question you and I must ask today. The truth is only the Word of God! That is the whole Truth, and nothing but the Truth (absolute Truth). Pilate did not wait for Jesus to answer what truth is but instead told the chief priests and the crowds, "I find no basis for a charge against this man."

Day 282 (October 8)

TOPIC: The Crown of Thorns

(John 19)

Pilate knew well that Jesus was innocent, but wanting to please the Jews and protect his position and job, he took Jesus and had Him flogged. The soldiers twisted together a crown of thorns and placed it on His head. They approached Him mockingly, saying, "Hail, King of the Jews!" They struck Him with their hands and dressed Him in a purple robe to ridicule Him. Pilate was afraid, and his conscience troubled him because he knew the Jews had delivered Jesus out of envy. Even today, if someone commits a sin that is not a crime, we cannot force them to become a believer by punishing or killing them. Faith is a personal choice; we should correct someone in the hope that they will repent and turn from their wicked ways, but we do not kill them.

In our world today, no religious leader has the authority to kill a person for sins that are not criminal acts, such as being a heretic. For instance, if someone claims to be God but does no harm to anyone, neither the church nor the government should kill them. Besides, who among us is without sin? If we were to kill every sinner, then everyone would have to die! Pilate asked Jesus, "Where are You from?" but Jesus gave him no answer. Pilate, growing frustrated, said, "Do You refuse to speak to me? Don't You realize I have the power to release You or crucify You?" Jesus answered, "You would have no power over Me if it were not given to you from above."

From that moment, Pilate sought to release Jesus but was hindered because the Jews warned him, "If you let Him go, you are not a friend of Caesar."

Desiring to protect his position, Pilate chose not to release Him. Jesus stood on the stone pavement as Pilate declared, “Behold, your King!” But the crowd shouted back, “Take Him away! Crucify Him!” Satan desired that Jesus sin at any point in His life, but he failed. Even here, Satan wanted Jesus to respond angrily or act in a way that would cause Him to fall. Despite the brutal scourging with iron-tipped whips and pieces of bone, Jesus endured everything to save us.

Pilate had the opportunity to speak with Jesus and learned the whole truth of God’s Word, which could have saved him. God even sent Pilate’s wife a dream as a warning. Jesus is the Way, the Truth, and the Life. Pilate would not have starved or lacked essentials if he had released Jesus—he was a Roman citizen. His primary concern was losing his status, and the Jews threatened to report him to Caesar. Many people still betray Jesus today for the sake of friends, entertainment, fear, fashion, beauty, opinions, status, benefits, reputation, school, fame, or material possessions. Each of us faces such temptations. Ask yourself: Are you betraying Jesus for the sake of friends or worldly pleasures? Watching inappropriate movies or listening to corrupt music?

We should pray earnestly because, in many public places like buses, indecent images are displayed, degrading African women while glorifying women from other nations. These images promote immorality and violate our cultural values. Jesus died to rescue us from such evil, and we should urge bus owners to play cleaner and more edifying content. One day, on a long journey from Nairobi to Mwanza, a mother with young children asked the conductor to turn off the inappropriate film. She was harshly told to make her children look down. How long could they keep their heads down on such a long trip?

On Judgment Day, which is approaching, may we stand victorious. We must guard our hearts by filtering what we see, hear, touch, and think according to Philippians 4:7-9:
“And the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus. Finally, brothers and sisters, whatever is true, whatever is noble, whatever is right, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is admirable—if anything is excellent or praiseworthy—think about such things. Whatever you have learned or received or heard from me, or seen in me—put it into practice. And the God of peace will be with you.”

When Judas, who betrayed Jesus, saw that Jesus was condemned, he was filled with remorse. He returned the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders, saying, “I have sinned by betraying innocent blood.” But they replied, “What is that to us? You bear the responsibility.” This revealed their corruption and the bribe they had given for evil to be done. Judas threw the silver into the temple and went out to hang himself. He could have been forgiven if he had repented, but he had hardened his heart against the Holy Spirit over the years.

On that same day, Peter also denied Jesus but repented and became a bold witness for Christ. The chief priests used the thirty pieces of silver to buy the potter's field as a burial place for foreigners, fulfilling the prophecy of Jeremiah. Judas died on the same day as Jesus—both on trees. Judas died as a traitor, while Jesus died as a Savior and Hero. Judas' death benefited no one, but Jesus' death brought salvation to all. Let us all say, Hallelujah!

Many people that day betrayed Jesus like Judas but later repented. Ignorance is no excuse for sin or for a clear conscience. We must educate ourselves about our salvation. Judas' example is a warning to us not to betray Jesus through our actions or words. Let us pray for one another because all of us have sinned and fall short of the glory of God. No one is perfect!

Jesus was crucified at nine o'clock in the morning—a Roman punishment reserved for robbers and murderers. He bore His cross to Golgotha, but when He grew weak from the beatings and blood loss, the soldiers forced Simon of Cyrene, an African from Libya, to carry it. This man, passing by with his sons Alexander and Rufus, likely came to know Jesus personally that day. We are also called to carry our cross daily for Christ. Are you willing?

A great crowd followed Jesus, including women who mourned for Him. Jesus turned to them and said, "Daughters of Jerusalem, do not weep for Me; weep for yourselves and your children." His concern was for their eternal salvation rather than their human sympathy.

At the crucifixion site, Jesus was nailed to the cross, along with two criminals. Yet, instead of anger, He prayed, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." Even in His agony, Jesus had the power to forgive sins. One thief mocked Him, but the other repented and asked, "Lord, remember me when You come into Your kingdom." Jesus promised him, "Truly, I tell you, today you will be with Me in paradise."

Reflect deeply on Christ's sacrifice. Accept Him as your Savior now—do not delay. People of all ages die unexpectedly, and Jesus may return at any time.

Pilate had a sign placed on the cross that read, "Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews," written in Hebrew, Latin, and Greek. Though the priests objected, Pilate refused to change it. Despite the evidence before them, Pilate and the Jews did not recognize the Truth.

Historical records indicate that not long afterward, Pilate lost his position and eventually took his own life.

Questions:

1. What did Judas do when he realized Jesus was condemned?

2. What inscription did Pilate place on the cross?

3. Did Judas regret betraying Jesus, or was he disappointed his plan failed?

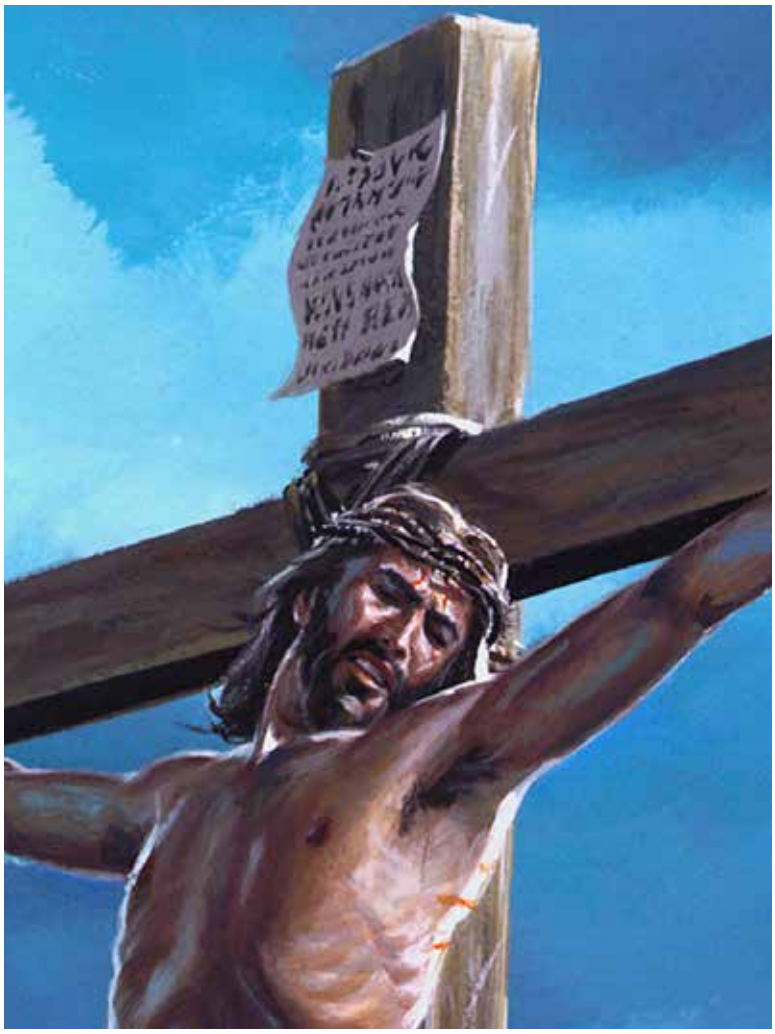
4. What prophecies about the Messiah were fulfilled during the crucifixion?

5. What is truth?

6. Why is it wrong to mock or ridicule others like the thief on the cross did?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: John 19:25-27.



[25-27] Near the cross of Jesus stood His mother, His mother's sister, Mary the wife of Clopas, and Mary Magdalene. When Jesus saw His mother there, and the disciple whom He loved standing nearby, He said to her, "Woman, here is your son," and to the disciple, "Here is your mother." From that time on, this disciple took her into his home.

Prayer: Beloved Lord, thank You for reminding us at the cross to care for our parents. Even in the midst of Your great suffering, You did not leave Your mother without help. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

DAY 283 (October 9)

TOPIC: TETELESTAI – IT IS FINISHED

(John 19, Matthew 27)

The soldiers who crucified Jesus stopped concerning themselves with the affairs of those being crucified and began to divide His garments into four parts, one for each soldier, and also took His tunic. The tunic was seamless, woven in one piece from top to bottom. They said to one another, "Let us not tear it, but cast lots for it," so that the Scripture might be fulfilled: "They divided my garments among them, and for my clothing, they cast lots."

At the cross stood His mother, His mother's sister (Mary, the wife of Clopas), Mary Magdalene, and other women, along with John. While still hanging on the cross, Jesus said to His mother, "Woman, behold your son," referring to John, and to John, He said, "Behold your mother." Jesus was a Son who loved His mother. Knowing she was elderly, He found someone to care for her even while enduring great agony. Jesus did not have money to leave for His mother, but He entrusted her to John, His beloved disciple. For John, living with Jesus' mother was a blessing and a constant reminder of his Lord. This mother was likely already a widow.

The lesson we learn today is not to abandon our parents but to care for and honor them. Although Jesus had half-brothers like Jude and James, He perhaps did not entrust His mother to them because they had not yet fully believed in or loved God as John did. It is also believed that John may have been related to Jesus since his mother was a relative of Mary (based on a comparison of the Synoptic Gospels).

Jesus' mother faced trials and tribulations. She remembered the angel's message, the birth of Jesus, and the sorrows of motherhood. Even the elderly priest Simeon had foretold these things to her. She recalled how kind and helpful her Son had been and felt unworthy of what was happening.

Why do you think such things happen? Sometimes, it is necessary to be separated from your father or mother, but God knows why. Jesus' suffering was not only from the nails but also from bearing the sins of the whole world—this is what caused Him to die quickly. The guilt of humanity, from Adam to the end of the world, was laid upon Him. He was separated from the face of His Father, which tore His heart in a way no human can comprehend or explain. This spiritual agony was far greater than His physical pain. Though God the Father was present, sin created a vast separation. Even today, sin hides us from seeing God's face.

One day, sin will be removed forever, and we will see God face to face. The wrath of God was upon His Son, as prophesied in Isaiah 53. Even the sun darkened, as if it could not bear to witness the suffering of its Creator.

Jesus was given vinegar mixed with gall to drink when He was thirsty on the cross. Upon tasting it, He refused it—perhaps because it contained a sedative—choosing instead to keep His mind clear until the end. At noon, darkness fell over the land for three hours. Jesus cried out, "Eloi, Eloi, lama sabachthani?" meaning, "My God, My God, why have You forsaken Me?" Some who heard this thought He was calling Elijah.

Seven statements made by Jesus on the cross are recorded. One of them was, "I thirst." People hurled insults at Him and spat on Him, including the criminals crucified beside Him. The forces of Satan gathered to incite people to do evil, hoping to make Jesus sin by retaliating and thus fail in His mission. But thanks be to God, Jesus achieved victory. Through Him, we too can overcome, but we must pray to possess the fruit of the Spirit, especially self-control and self-denial.

The temptation Jesus faced was unparalleled. With all power and authority at His disposal, He could have come down from the cross and struck down His enemies, but He chose not to. His miracles were always for helping others, never for Himself. Even after fasting for 40 days, He did not turn stones into bread to satisfy His hunger. If Jesus had come down from the cross, we would be eternally lost without hope.

Throughout history, God's people have endured various forms of suffering. The Old and New Testaments bear witness to this truth. After the apostles' time, many believers suffered for defending God and His Word. Some were thrown to lions, others burned at the stake, beaten, shipwrecked, or slain by swords. The Waldensians of Italy, John Huss of Czechoslovakia, Jerome, Knox, and many others faced severe persecution. You can read their stories in the book The Great Controversy and The Book of Martyrs. Even today, believers in many countries endure persecution, especially in the "10/40 Window" region—areas between 10 and 40 degrees north latitude, including countries like North Korea and Somalia. We should pray for these persecuted believers.

The darkness that fell at noon lasted three hours. Many witnessing these events at the cross chose to follow the path of life. Some trembled in fear, believing they were being punished for their sins. The temple veil, 60 feet high and 6 inches thick, was torn from top to bottom—a divine act symbolizing that the way to God was now open to all through Jesus' sacrifice.

The sacrificial system on earth was finished. Jesus, the Lamb of God, had died once for all generations. Angels, previously filled with concern, now knew without a doubt that God is love.

Jesus faced temptations to avoid the cross and to come down from it, but He overcame them all. His victory is our victory—let us rejoice and celebrate!

The disciples were filled with fear and anxiety that day. Only later, upon reflection, did they understand the significance of these events. Jesus' profound sorrow and agony teach us to trust God even during our darkest moments. When trials and suffering come, let us hold firm to our faith, regardless of our feelings.

When the Roman centurion saw what happened, he glorified God, saying, "Truly, this man was righteous." Others confessed, "Surely, He was the Son of God." The crowds who had gathered to watch these events returned home beating their breasts in sorrow. Many recognized that Jesus was indeed the Son of God.

Jesus had died bearing the sins of the entire world—your sins and mine. For six hours, Satan and his hosts sought to thwart the plan of salvation, but Jesus triumphed. Hallelujah! Let us pray for one another as we journey toward our eternal home.

All who knew Jesus, including the women from Galilee, stood at a distance watching these events unfold. Some trembled in fear at the darkness and the earthquake, while others reflected deeply on their lives.

The power displayed that day caused many to fear Jesus in death more than when He was alive. Even without newspapers, news of these events spread throughout the Roman Empire and the known world.

It is for you and me that the Son of God decided to take the guilt of sin and die, to conquer the second death once and for all. It is for you and me that He opened the gates of heaven by giving His life because of His love for you and me. Let us always thank God for this amazing love and reflect often on His death. Although we have sorrow over His death, He has brought us hope and eternal life. Through His death, Jesus demonstrated another profound truth—the great love of God for humanity. God exposed Satan's claims that He is a dictator as false. Satan was left without any valid accusations against God.

Even the angels who served God after Satan's rebellion had all their questions answered and gained a complete picture of God's love that they did not have before. Now, God's character is clearly known. For all the accusations Satan made, both heaven and earth have seen them as lies, and Satan himself is revealed as the father of lies and all evil. God is served only by those who choose to serve Him. Love can only be love if there is a choice. God gives us a choice today—to serve Him or Satan. There are only two kingdoms, and no one willingly loves evil—we simply find ourselves trapped in it.

No one wants to live near an evil person, and that is why one day God will bring judgment to erase evil forever. Jesus is now our High Priest and Advocate so that we may be victorious on the day of judgment. He has never lost a case—unless we reject Him as our Defender. The summary of that day on the cross is as follows: Jesus was offered vinegar but refused it, He was crucified, He said, "Father, forgive them," the soldiers cast lots for His clothes, He was mocked by His enemies and the thieves on the cross, but one thief believed in Him and was promised eternal life. Jesus entrusted His mother to John, darkness covered the whole land, He cried out, "My God, My God, why have You forsaken Me?" He said, "I thirst," then declared, "It is finished," and finally, He said, "Father, into Your hands I commit My spirit," and He breathed His last.

Think about this: the all-wise and all-powerful God had no other way to save us except to come to earth, suffer, and die. Indeed, this battle between good and evil is intense. And Jesus loves us more than we can ever comprehend. He loves us more than He loves Himself and more than we love ourselves!

Perhaps this realization came first to the angels in heaven. At first, some separated and followed Satan, while others remained loyal to God but still had lingering questions about His love. When they saw Jesus being humiliated, tortured, and ultimately killed—and God did nothing to stop it—they may have pleaded, "Lord, do something! Don't let Him suffer like this!" But as they witnessed His suffering and death, they were struck with shock and awe. In their hearts, they may have marveled, "What kind of God is this? That He loves these creatures—and us—so much? That He loves these human beings more than He loves Himself?" This truth is a mystery that will be celebrated for all eternity—a sweetness and depth that will never fade!

After Satan's rebellion caused chaos, the entire universe was at risk. Yet, in His infinite wisdom, God has resolved this turmoil once and for all. No one can deny that God loves us more than He loves Himself!

God also told Moses about the services to be performed in the sanctuary and how animals were to be sacrificed. This was not because God delighted in sacrifices but to show humanity how offensive sin is to Him and that its wages are death. Thus, a sinner had to slaughter an innocent lamb, symbolizing that the sinner deserved death, but the lamb died in their place. This lamb represented Christ, who would one day die on Calvary as the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world. Moses spent forty days on the mountain, where God instructed him in detail, even giving the names of those who would serve as priests and describing the garments they would wear. The Lord repeated these commands a second time, and after those forty days of speaking with God, He gave Moses two stone tablets inscribed with the Ten Commandments.

Today, we no longer have earthly priests because the Messiah is our High Priest. We no longer need to bring a lamb to symbolize the bearing of our sins because the Lamb of God alone carries the sins of every human being, whether they acknowledge it or not. The sacrificial lamb was merely a shadow of what Jesus accomplished on the cross in the year 31 AD. He alone grants forgiveness. Our High Priest, who is in heaven interceding for us, is not a human being. Today, we do not need to go to a church or anywhere else to confess our sins to a human priest because no human serves as a priest anymore. The Messiah has already died! When Jesus declared, "It is finished" (Tetelestai), the human priesthood ceased. We may have pastors, priests, bishops, and other spiritual leaders, but they are not priests. They too must go to the Savior to confess their sins privately and personally.

When someone wrongs us, we ask for their forgiveness for that specific offense, but asking for forgiveness of sin is reserved for God alone. No human being can forgive sins. When a person surrenders to the Messiah, their sins are placed upon Him—not upon the scapegoat as depicted in Leviticus 16. Believing that a human being can grant the forgiveness of sins is meaningless because sin is handed over only to Jesus. He presents it to the Father and the law, and only Jesus ultimately transfers it to Satan (Azazel). Evil, rebellion, and guilt are placed back on the originator of sin—Satan himself. Through repentance and confession, a person is declared righteous, and all their sins are returned to the founder of sin—Satan/Azazel.

The Israelites who were saved by the blood of the lamb during the Passover placed blood on their doorposts. That month marked the beginning of the Jewish calendar, symbolizing a new beginning. Salvation comes by grace on Mount Calvary, where Jesus embraced both the law and the sinner. This is how we are reconciled to God. He says, "If you love Me, keep My commandments." It is not that we must keep His commandments to love Him, but rather, our love for Him compels us to obey. Anyone who claims to love God but does not keep His commandments is a liar and does not have the truth in them.

Grace is like an ambulance that finds us broken and wounded by sin and takes us to the hospital for healing. In the spiritual sense, grace carries us to the mercy seat where our Great Physician, the Messiah, treats our sin, rebellion, and transgressions. There, we are repaired, restored, and made new. Jesus then transfers our sins back to Satan/Azazel. Today, we must surrender our guilt, sin, and rebellion to Satan—the true origin of sin—so that we can live in accordance with God's law and will. Jesus alone is the High Priest.

Read more in Leviticus 16, John 19, the related Gospel accounts, and Isaiah 53.

If, despite these promises before us, we choose to remain dry and thirsty for the living water, it is our own fault. If we approach Christ with the humility of a child going to a parent and ask for the things He has promised—believing we will receive them—we will indeed have them.

Questions:

1. Why did Jesus die?

2. To whom did Jesus entrust His mother?

3. What were the seven statements Jesus made on the cross?

4. How was Isaiah 53 fulfilled on the cross?

5. Did God kill Jesus?

6. Why was there no need to offer sacrifices anymore?

7. What did Jesus mean when He said, “It is finished”?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: John 19:6,17,18.

[6] As soon as the chief priests and their officials saw Him, they shouted, “Crucify! Crucify!” But Pilate answered, “You take Him and crucify Him. As for me, I find no basis for a charge against Him.” … Carrying His own cross, He went out to the place of the Skull (which in Aramaic is called Golgotha). There they crucified Him, and with Him two others—one on each side and Jesus in the middle.

Prayer: Thank You, Jesus, for enduring suffering, scorn, sorrow, and pain for me. You were despised and considered as nothing. Surely You bore our griefs and carried our sorrows. By Your stripes we are healed. Each of us had gone astray, and the Lord laid on You the iniquity of us all. You were oppressed and afflicted, yet You did not open Your mouth; like a lamb led to the slaughter. We thank You, Lord. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A dramatization of this part of Jesus’ suffering—crown of thorns, scourging, etc. “Then Pilate took Jesus and had Him flogged. The soldiers twisted together a crown of thorns and put it on His head. They clothed Him in a purple robe and went up to Him again and again, saying, ‘Hail, king of the Jews!’ And they slapped Him in the face. Once more Pilate came out and said, ‘Look, I am bringing Him out to you to let you know that I find no basis for a charge against Him.’”

DAY 284 (October 10)

TOPIC: The Burial of Jesus

(Luke 23-24, Mark 15, Matthew 27)

The faith of Jesus' disciples had been shaken, yet they still loved their Teacher and Lord deeply. Although it would have been difficult for them to be granted the body of Jesus for burial, they did not leave the cross but waited to see what would happen. Help came from an unexpected place—Joseph of Arimathea and Nicodemus. Joseph provided his own tomb cut into the rock, while Nicodemus brought 100 pounds of spices.

Everyone has a part in God's grand plan, and you, too, have a role to play. Joseph and Nicodemus were secret disciples of Jesus. They had previously tried to protect Him when the priests sought to kill Him. Although they feared openly declaring their faith, Jesus' death changed them more profoundly than His life had. They became courageous and stepped out of hiding.

No one can remain a secret follower forever—one day, you must come out of hiding! If we confess the Messiah before others, He will also confess us before His Father and the angels.

A man named Joseph, a member of the Sanhedrin council—a good and righteous man—did not agree with the Jewish leaders' plans and actions. He was from the town of Arimathea and was waiting for the kingdom of God. This Joseph courageously went to Pilate and secretly, for fear of the Jews, asked for Jesus' body. Even today, we must be careful as we work for God.

Another thing to remember is that despite the wickedness around us, God still has His chosen ones, undefiled by evil, like Joseph and Nicodemus, who are ready to serve Him in special circumstances.

Pilate was surprised that Jesus died so quickly because crucifixion typically caused a slow death over several days. The soldiers broke the legs of the criminal crucified with Jesus to hasten his death, but when they came to Jesus, they found He was already dead.

According to Jewish customs, the dead were buried on the same day. Breaking the legs caused quicker death because it prevented the crucified from pushing themselves up to breathe. The Jews did not leave bodies hanging on the Sabbath or during Passover. Some thought the legs were broken to prevent the criminals from escaping.

Pilate ordered that Jesus' side be pierced with a spear, and blood and water flowed out, confirming His death. This fulfilled the prophecy from Psalms: "Not one of His bones will be broken," and "They will look on the one they pierced." John witnessed and recorded this event.

When Pilate confirmed Jesus was dead, he released the body to Joseph. It is comforting to know that Jesus had faithful friends like Joseph. He and Nicodemus, who brought the spices, worked together. They climbed ladders, removed the nails, and lowered Jesus' body. They wrapped Him in linen cloth and placed Him in a new tomb cut into the rock. This was a great honor, as criminals were usually buried in common graves.

Although many hated Jesus and crucified Him, others loved Him and removed the nails. This tomb has since been visited by millions from every nation. Perhaps Nicodemus remembered his nighttime conversation with Jesus when He said, "Just as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, so must the Son of Man be lifted up, that whoever believes in Him may have eternal life." This became a powerful testimony that strengthened his resolve to become an open disciple.

The poor and those who needed healing were saddened by these events. Although the priests and others tried to silence people, the death of Jesus became the most talked-about event, even more than His life. Many were fearful because they knew He never lied, and since He claimed to be the Son of God, they wondered if He might return to seek justice.

We should not fear because anyone who believes and confesses their sins is forgiven, no matter how grave their sins are.

It was Preparation Day—Friday—and the women who had come with Jesus from Galilee, including Mary, followed and saw the tomb and how His body was laid. They returned home to prepare spices and perfumes and rested on the Sabbath according to the commandment, waiting to anoint Jesus' body on Sunday.

They also celebrated the Passover feast, not realizing that the True Passover Lamb—Jesus—had already been sacrificed.

In the temple, the veil—estimated to be over six inches thick—was torn in two from top to bottom without human intervention, exposing the Most Holy Place. The sacrificial lamb, ready to be slain, escaped. This event led many to search the Scriptures to understand its meaning.

Mary, standing at the cross and during the burial, remembered all the words spoken to her since the angel first announced she would conceive by the Holy Spirit. The angel had said, "The Holy Spirit will come upon you, and the power of the Most High will overshadow you; therefore, the holy one to be born will be called the Son of God."

Jesus is the only One born into the world completely perfect and holy. Yet, He was killed and buried without even a formal mourning ceremony. Emmanuel—God with us—fulfilled the prophecy in Isaiah 7.

Understanding Jesus' love, the heavenly plan, and His life of humility is a profound mystery we will continue to explore throughout eternity. We should read God's Word again and again, reflecting on the mystery of God becoming human and dying for us sinners.

Simeon's prophecy to Mary also came true: "A sword will pierce your own soul too, so that the thoughts of many hearts will be revealed." Mary, who had already lost her husband Joseph, now experienced the deepest sorrow as she lost her Son.

Through these events—His death, burial, and ultimately His resurrection—Mary finally understood the purpose of Jesus' life. We, too, must connect these truths to strengthen our faith as God's children.

Many who wanted to follow Jesus could not because of the cost. One man asked to follow Jesus but wanted to bury his father first, although Jewish custom required immediate burial. Another, upon hearing that the Son of Man had no place to lay His head, vanished. Each person's journey with God is unique.

Joseph and Nicodemus' courage reminds us that following Jesus requires sacrifice. Are you willing to follow Him openly, even if others mock you?

Interestingly, out of the 71 Sanhedrin members, only Joseph and Nicodemus are remembered—because they chose Jesus. Most things we do in life will be forgotten, but the little we do for Jesus will be remembered forever.

Judas Iscariot had the freedom to choose but rejected Jesus despite repeated warnings. He felt remorse, not true repentance, and ended his life. Pilate valued his position and public opinion over the truth of Jesus.

Will you choose Jesus today?

My Prayer Today:
Dear Lord, help us always be attentive to Your revelations and walk faithfully with You. Amen.

Questions:

1. Who was given Jesus' body?

2. How did Nicodemus assist with the burial?

3. How do you prepare for the Day of Preparation?

4. Why did Jesus have no place to lay His head?

5. How can we ensure Jesus' sacrifice is not in vain?

6. What lessons do we learn from Joseph and Nicodemus?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Mark 15:34,39.

[34,39] At noon, darkness came over the whole land until three in the afternoon. And at three in the afternoon Jesus cried out in a loud voice, "Eloi, Eloi, lema sabachthani?" (which means "My God, My God, why have You forsaken Me?") … And when the centurion, who stood there in front of Jesus, saw how He died, he said, "Surely this man was the Son of God!"

Prayer: Thank You, Heavenly Father, that You allowed even separation from Your own Father, so that You might die for us. Greater love has no one than this, to lay down one's life for his friends.

Activity: Sing a hymn that tells the story of Jesus. Example: "Tell Me the Story of Jesus."

DAY 285. (October 11)

TOPIC: The Greatest Good News in the World!

(Mark 16)

The disciples were afraid that their lives were in danger and that since they had killed Christ, it would now be their turn to be killed. They went back home and forgot what Jesus had told them would happen. Their faith had weakened significantly. They did not reflect on Jesus being the Messiah or on what the prophecy of the Messiah said. They were utterly confused because, for three and a half years, they had devoted their entire lives to Him, leaving their homes to follow Him everywhere, and now He was dead! Just a week before, Jesus had entered Jerusalem riding on a donkey like a King, and now, within the same week, He was killed. They thought the positions they had fought over had disappeared forever. Even in our lives, Fridays of sorrow come, but Sunday is on the way!

On the second day, although it was the Sabbath, a day of rest, the priests, filled with fear and troubled consciences, went to Pilate. These chief priests, pastors, and high-ranking bishops told Pilate, “We remember that deceiver said while He was still alive that He would rise again after three days. Therefore, command that the tomb be secured, so His disciples do not come and steal Him and tell people He has risen from the dead.” Although they claimed to be resting on the Sabbath, abiding by their 1,521 Sabbath-keeping laws, they were busy working on their evil schemes. This labor of deceit had consumed their entire lives—during Jesus’ ministry, His arrest, His trial, and even after His death.

At times, they wondered if resurrection was possible for Jesus, as He had raised others from the dead. Pilate told them, “You have guards; go, make it as secure as you know how.” So, they went and secured the tomb, sealing it with a stone and placing guards. In their hearts, although they called Jesus a deceiver to calm their fears, the truth was that they were deeply afraid, for everything Jesus had ever said came true during His ministry—He never lied. After being with Him, they knew that they trusted Him more than they trusted themselves. While they were capable of lying, He was not! He also had power and authority that no other human being had ever possessed.

They likely stationed many guards, thinking it would strengthen their security. This also became a blessing for believers, as these guards witnessed the resurrection firsthand. While the whole city slept that night, only Jesus' opponents were present to witness the resurrection. Perhaps even hundreds of soldiers were stationed there! Sunday had come—death could not hold Him, Jesus is the Resurrection and the Life. Hallelujah! Praise be to Almighty God, who is all-powerful—Jesus has risen! The Good News came on Sunday after Jesus rested in the tomb. Those guards must have seen everything that happened, heard the voices of the angels, and witnessed Jesus Himself rising. Yet when they reported to the chief priests, they were given bribes to spread a false story, saying that the disciples had stolen Jesus' body while they slept.

Many people knew this was a lie—because if the guards were asleep, how could they have seen the disciples steal the body? And why were the soldiers not punished for falling asleep on duty or allowing such a crime to occur? The guards and the people of the city witnessed a mighty earthquake. That is when Jesus rose from the grave. The guards must have seen Jesus emerge, and His glory caused them to freeze. They saw wonders that you and I would love to witness. Mary and the disciples found the empty tomb with the burial cloths neatly folded. Thieves would never bother to fold clothes when stealing a body. Instead of repenting and turning away from their evil, the leaders chose to maintain their lies. Be careful—there are still deceitful people today who deny the truths of God.

Since that day, billions have believed in Jesus through the testimony of the truth. Where truth exists, lies cannot prevail. Those who declared, "Let His blood be on us and our children," lived in fear, perhaps worrying that they might encounter the risen Christ. Early Sunday morning, at dawn on the first day of the week—Sunday—Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, Joanna, and Salome went to the tomb with spices to anoint Jesus' body. They found the tomb empty and were deeply distressed.

During the night, a great earthquake occurred because an angel of the Lord came down from heaven, rolled back the stone, and sat on it. The greatest and most important Good News of yesterday, today, and forever is that Jesus has risen—He is the Resurrection, the Truth, and the Life! Perhaps as the angel rolled away the stone, he called out to Jesus, "Son of God, Your Father is calling You—come out!" The One who is the Author of Life had been in the tomb for three days and then rose again. Jesus is the Resurrection and the Life! Because He is risen, that is our hope—that we too shall rise again. His resurrection is the ultimate victory over sin, death, and the devil. Let us rejoice today!

Although the disciples were filled with sorrow on Friday, by Sunday, their joy was beyond measure. The angel sitting on the stone had a face like lightning and clothes as white as snow. The guards trembled in fear and became like dead men. The angel told the women, “Do not be afraid, for I know that you are looking for Jesus, who was crucified. He is not here—He has risen, just as He said. Come, see the place where He lay. Then go quickly and tell His disciples, ‘He has risen from the dead and is going ahead of you into Galilee. There you will see Him.’” The women hurried away from the tomb, afraid yet filled with joy, and ran to tell His disciples.

The first person to see the risen Jesus was Mary Magdalene—how remarkable that God chose to reveal His resurrected Son first to a woman who had once been demon-possessed! God does not show favoritism—He looks at a person’s heart, their love for Him, and their obedience. Mary, weeping outside the tomb, saw two angels in white seated where Jesus’ body had been. They asked her, “Woman, why are you crying?” She replied, “They have taken my Lord away, and I don’t know where they have put Him.” Turning around, she saw Jesus but did not recognize Him. Thinking He was the gardener, she said, “Sir, if you have carried Him away, tell me where you have put Him, and I will get Him.”

Jesus said to her, “Mary!” She turned toward Him and cried out, “Rabboni!” (which means “Teacher”). She wanted to hold Him to verify it was really Him, but Jesus said, “Do not hold on to Me, for I have not yet ascended to the Father. Go instead to My brothers and tell them, ‘I am ascending to My Father and your Father, to My God and your God.’” Mary went to the disciples with the news, “I have seen the Lord!” and told them everything He had said to her.

Questions:

1. Why did they place guards at the tomb?

2. Why do you think the guards' story was a lie?

3. What did the angel say when he saw the women?

4. How do we know that Jesus is alive today?

5. According to the book of Hebrews, what is one of Jesus' current roles in heaven?

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Mark 16:1-3.

[1-3] When the Sabbath was over, Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, and Salome bought spices so that they might go to anoint Jesus' body. Very early on the first day of the week, just after sunrise, they were on their way to the tomb and they asked each other, "Who will roll the stone away from the entrance of the tomb?"

Activity: Role-play where the girls "buy" spices, then act out walking to the tomb while wondering who would roll away the stone. Emphasize their intention to anoint Jesus' body and their surprise at finding the tomb empty. You can also explain how spices were mixed, play a "rolling the stone" game, or discuss what happens when events surprise us.

Goal: To understand the women's purpose and how they prepared for it.
Task: Collect spices like cinnamon, cloves, etc. Let children "buy" spice mixtures to represent the real ones used for Jesus' body.

Discussion: Talk about why the women wanted to bring spices and their love in honoring Jesus.

Purpose: To show the challenge the women faced at the tomb.

DAY 286. (October 12)

TOPIC: The Road to Emmaus: Cleopas and His Companion Receive a Bible Lesson!

(Luke 24)

On that Sunday, after Mary had seen Him, two people who believed in Jesus were walking to a village called Emmaus, which was about a two-hour walk or approximately 12 kilometers away. These two were discouraged because their hopes had been shattered. They were discussing and questioning each other about the events that had occurred. They had heard that Jesus' body was missing and that some women had seen angels and spoken with them. These were the breaking news and the main topics of conversation that week, bringing them sadness and disappointment.

Some had been misled by the Sadducees' doctrine that there is no resurrection, and instead of rejoicing that Jesus was now alive in heaven, they were sorrowful. As they walked, Jesus Himself came up and walked along with them, but they were kept from recognizing Him due to their overwhelming grief and tears, which clouded their understanding.

Jesus asked them, “What are you discussing as you walk along?” They stood still, their faces downcast. One of them, named Cleopas, replied, “Are you the only visitor to Jerusalem who does not know the things that have happened there in these days?”

Jesus asked, “What things?” They replied, “About Jesus of Nazareth, who was a prophet, powerful in word and deed before God and all the people. The chief priests and our rulers handed Him over to be sentenced to death, and they crucified Him. But we had hoped that He was the one who was going to redeem Israel. And what is more, it is the third day since all this took place. Some of our women amazed us. They went to the tomb early this morning but did not find His body. They came and told us that they had seen a vision of angels, who said He was alive. Then some of our companions went to the tomb and found it just as the women had said, but they did not see Him.”

Jesus felt compassion for their sorrow because He knew these were His disciples who loved Him but were confused by traditions. He lovingly said to them, “How foolish you are, and how slow to believe all that the prophets have spoken! Did not the Messiah have to suffer these things and then enter His glory?”

They were surprised at the stranger’s emphasis. Jesus began with Moses and all the Prophets, explaining to them what was said in all the Scriptures concerning Himself. He explained everything, including His death and resurrection on the third day, and that repentance for the forgiveness of sins would be preached in His name to all nations, beginning at Jerusalem. He also told them about being clothed with the power of the Holy Spirit from on high.

Wouldn’t we also love to have such sweet Bible teachings as Cleopas and his companion received? Even today, it is important to use Old Testament prophecies to know that Jesus is the Messiah and our example. His death is a powerful testimony that He is the prophesied Messiah.

Many people today neglect the Old Testament. This is a grave mistake because the Old Testament helps us understand the New Testament more clearly. The New Testament is a continuation of the Old Testament—they are inseparable twins. The Old Testament speaks about creation in the first and second chapters, and in the third chapter, it talks about the fall of man and the beginning of the promise of the coming Messiah to save us from sin. The remaining 1,186 chapters continue to discuss the salvation of humanity.

The Old Testament is the Word of God—His breath and His final authoritative words.

Many Jews do not believe in Jesus or the New Testament, and this is a significant problem because both Testaments are crucial for our journey to understand the full picture. I worked with Jews at their hospital near New York City and found that many rely on the New Testament and traditional stories like the Talmud as the foundation of their faith. Some abandoned even their Old Testament in favor of these traditions. Giving authority to traditions or denominations over the Bible is not only a mistake but a sin.

The Word of God is not just good words we follow selectively—it is the final authority in heaven and on earth. God reveals Himself to people gradually, and people's spiritual understanding differs. The Old and New Testaments are interdependent—neglecting one risks breaking both.

Some people may not have the entire Bible, like my friend, a Tanzanian missionary in Kisangani, Congo, who found that some people only had portions of Scripture—some had the books of Moses, others had Paul's letters, etc. In such cases, people use and follow what they have. Not everyone possesses the whole Bible. This is due to various reasons, including the resources needed to translate and print Bibles. Currently, the Bible has been translated into about 2,900 languages, while approximately 1,680 languages still need translations (according to Wycliffe Bible Translators).

As our story continues, Cleopas and his companion approached the village to which they were going, and Jesus acted as if He were going farther. But they urged Him strongly, saying, "Stay with us, for it is nearly evening; the day is almost over." Hospitality was their custom, especially for this stranger who had spoken to them so powerfully.

So, He went in to stay with them. As He sat at the table with them, He took bread, gave thanks, broke it, and began to give it to them. Then their eyes were opened, and they recognized Him, and He disappeared from their sight. They said to each other, "Were not our hearts burning within us while He talked with us on the road and opened the Scriptures to us?"

If they had not invited Him to stay, they would have missed the blessing. Jesus does not force His way into anyone's home or heart. He enters by invitation, whether the home belongs to a rich person or a poor one, filling hearts with joy and abundant peace.

That very hour, Cleopas and his companion returned to Jerusalem despite the darkness and fatigue, driven by their renewed energy and joy. They found the Eleven gathered together, along with others, and said, “It is true! The Lord has risen and has appeared to Simon.” They explained what had happened on the road and how Jesus was recognized by them when He broke the bread.

While they were still talking about this, Jesus Himself stood among them and said, “Peace be with you.” They were startled and frightened, thinking they saw a ghost because the doors were locked! They forgot that He had extraordinary powers. Jesus reassured them by saying, “Why are you troubled, and why do doubts rise in your minds?” He invited them to touch Him to confirm that it was really Him.

There are three crucial questions in life:

1. Where did I come from?

2. Why am I here?

3. Where am I going?

For a Christian, the Great Commission to “Go into all the world” answers the second question—we are here to be used by God to prepare the world for the end times by spreading the gospel. Life only has meaning when we dedicate ourselves to this mission.

To succeed in reaching others, remember this: only Christ’s method will bring true success. The Savior mingled with people as one who desired their good. He showed sympathy, ministered to their needs, and won their trust. Then He said, “Follow Me.”

If you find the voice and time to pray, God will find the voice and time to answer.

Questions:

1. To which village were the two people going?

2. Why were their faces downcast?

3. What words did Jesus use to comfort them?

4. Has your heart ever burned while hearing God’s Word?

5. How did they recognize Jesus?

6. What did Cleopas and his companion do after Jesus disappeared?

7. What is your plan to study the Scriptures to understand prophecy and today's events?

8. How can our eyes be opened today, like the disciples on the road to Emmaus?

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Luke 24:24-26.

[24-26] He said to them, "How foolish you are, and how slow to believe all that the prophets have spoken! Did not the Messiah have to suffer these things and then enter His glory?" And beginning with Moses and all the Prophets, He explained to them what was said in all the Scriptures concerning Himself. As they approached the village to which they were going, Jesus continued on as if He were going farther.

Prayer: Thank You, Heavenly Father. Help us to hold on to Your Word so that our hearts may burn within us. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Teach how to give Bible lessons so that people's hearts may also burn within them! Train your class how to hold a Bible study and teach each other.

[32-34] They asked each other, "Were not our hearts burning within us while He talked with us on the road and opened the Scriptures to us?" They got up and returned at once to Jerusalem. There they found the Eleven and those with them, assembled together and saying, "It is true! The Lord has risen and has appeared to Simon."

DAY 287 (October 13)

TOPIC: Simon and John Go to the Tomb to Confirm

(John 21, Luke 24)

"Jesus is risen!" This was the news everywhere. The reports of the empty tomb spread widely, and millions—or perhaps all the Jews—heard about it. It was no longer a secret. Saints had risen with Him from the graves and appeared to many. When Jesus said, "It is finished," the battle was over. Heaven rejoiced in victory, and Satan was defeated. Humanity, all creation, and even the angels understood the plan of salvation more clearly than ever before. Some angels had followed Satan out of ignorance, but after God demonstrated His love for us, they realized that God's power and strength come from His goodness, mercy, and love. Everyone acknowledged that God is true and just.

For 4,000 years, Satan worked to oppress humanity, but Jesus worked to lift people up. From the time of Jesus' birth, Satan tried to disrupt the plan of salvation, but now he was defeated. Satan, who knows God's love, mercy, and goodness better than humans do, had deceived many by claiming that God's law was not based on love and that it could not be obeyed. However, after Jesus' death, this accusation was silenced. Satan had lost his opportunity to repent; his door to mercy was closed because he had utterly refused to turn back. Satan chose to be rebellious—no one deceived him. Instead, it was humanity that was deceived by Satan. Yet, in His mercy, God spared us from severe punishment despite our lack of excuse.

Today, as we are given the opportunity to know the gospel, we are left without excuse because we understand the greatness of God's love. God offers His mercy to us all, and He knows when a person has utterly rejected the gospel after it has been presented to them. He grants us the greatest gift—the power to live holy lives through His grace. His mercy, truth, and justice were fully revealed through His death, and these qualities cannot be separated. The battle between God and Satan continues until the end of time. Everyone—whether young or old—must choose between God's Word and His promises, or reject His Word, which He has exalted even above His own name.

In those few days, many people heard about Jesus' resurrection because even those who had been raised appeared to many, sharing this good news before being taken to heaven as the firstfruits with Jesus. Although the Bible does not provide many details about these resurrected people, we know they appeared to many. In the Bible, death is compared to sleep. On the day Jesus returns, many will hear the voice of the Son of Man calling them from the sleep of death. That voice, which declared "It is finished," will penetrate the graves, and the dead will rise. Those who believed in Jesus will be raised by the same power that brought Him out of the grave.

Simon Peter and John ran to the tomb to see if these things were true. John, being younger, outran the older Peter and arrived at the tomb first. He bent down and saw the linen cloths but did not enter. When Peter arrived, breathless from running, he went straight into the tomb and saw the linen cloths and the cloth that had been around Jesus' head. It was not lying with the other cloths but was folded and placed separately. Then John also entered, saw, and believed, although they still did not fully understand that Jesus had to rise from the dead. The words, "I will see you again," spoken by Jesus, had not yet registered with them. So, the two disciples returned home.

That evening, Jesus appeared to two people walking to the village of Emmaus. They later told others, but many did not believe. According to the Gospel accounts and Paul's letters, Jesus appeared about eleven times during the forty days He remained on earth after His resurrection.

Jesus met with His disciples on that Sunday night. Although the door was locked, He entered—because He has the power to transcend natural laws—and said, "Peace be with you." Jesus had six wounds from the crucifixion—two in His feet, two in His hands from the nails, one in His side where He was pierced by a spear, and one on His head from the crown of thorns. He showed them His side. They approached, astonished and fearful, thinking they were seeing a ghost or spirit. But when they touched Him, He was tangible. They recognized His voice, His appearance, and the way He did things.

It is a trustworthy promise that when Jesus returns, we will recognize all our loved ones who are resurrected. We will see them face to face—it will not be spirit to spirit. Heaven is not just a state of being; it is a real place where people will live and know each other. If you touch someone, they will be tangible—they will not be a spirit, but a complete, real person.

When I was a child, some people taught that we would become spirits in heaven, floating around playing harps. Although the Bible gives a clear picture of what heaven will be like, there are still things beyond human perception that will be revealed there. Some people overstep and claim things the Scriptures do not say. The Bible makes it clear that heaven is a real place. In Scripture, the terms "person" or "living soul" do not separate the body from the spirit. To be a human being, the body and spirit must be together—if they are separated, life is lost.

Body (dust) + Breath of Life from God = A Living Soul or Person

The apostles had much to testify about—His life, His death, and His resurrection. Then Jesus told them, "Do not be afraid. Go and tell My brothers to go to Galilee; there they will see Me." Jesus rebuked them for their unbelief and hardness of heart because they did not believe those who had seen Him after He had risen. He said, "Why are you troubled? Look at My hands and My feet, that it is I Myself. Touch Me and see; a spirit does not have flesh and bones as you see I have." After saying this, He showed them His hands and feet. Still in wonder and disbelief because of their joy, He asked, "Do you have anything here to eat?" They gave Him a piece of broiled fish, which He took and ate in their presence, proving that a spirit cannot eat.

Interestingly, Jesus appeared to His friends before His family, even though some of His friends were also relatives. This surprises us because we might have expected Him to reveal Himself to His family first. But the angel sent the message to His disciples and close followers—like Mary and the other women—before anyone else.

Jesus alone has the power to lay down His life and take it up again. He is the Resurrection and the Life. Because Jesus rose from the dead, we have hope that we, too, will be resurrected. He is the model for all who will be raised—those who died believing in Him—on that glorious morning of the first resurrection.

JESUS REVEALED HIMSELF

Sometimes it may seem that knowing Christ is impossible, but Scripture shows otherwise. In John 21:1, it says, "After these things, Jesus revealed Himself again to the disciples." Jesus did not hide—He continued to make Himself known.

1. He appeared to Mary in the garden – (John 20:11-18)

2. To other women – (Matthew 28:8-10)

3. To two disciples on the road to Emmaus – (Luke 24:13-32)

4. To Peter – (Luke 24:34)

5. To the disciples (without Thomas) – (Luke 24:36)

6. To the disciples (with Thomas) – (John 20:26-29)

7. To the disciples at the Sea of Galilee – (John 21:1-2)

If you seek Him with all your heart, you will find Him (Jeremiah 29:13).

Questions:

1. Who alone has the power of resurrection and life?

2. Why did Jesus rebuke the disciples?

3. How did Jesus pass through the door?

4. Why did Jesus show them His side?

5. What would you have done if you were a disciple on that day?

6. Why didn't the disciples believe, even though Jesus told them repeatedly that He would rise again?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Luke 24:1-3.

[1-3] On the first day of the week, very early in the morning, the women took the spices they had prepared and went to the tomb. They found the stone rolled away from the tomb, but when they entered, they did not find the body of the Lord Jesus.

Prayer: We thank You, Heavenly Father, that the stone was rolled away and You came out of the tomb. This is the good news of hope for us forever! Thank You so much. In the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Use large gray balls, pillows, or foam "stones." Let the children take turns rolling the stone away from a pretend tomb (made from a box or play tent). Each time the "stone" is rolled, let everyone shout: "Jesus is alive!"

DAY 288 (October 14)

TOPIC: Jesus Appears to His Disciples for 40 Days

(Matthew 28, Acts 1, John 21)

As the women went to inform Jesus' brothers, they met some soldiers entering the city to report to the chief priests about all that had happened. The soldiers had witnessed the extraordinary event of Jesus' resurrection. The chief priests gathered with the elders to discuss the matter and decided to bribe the soldiers with a large sum of money to silence them. They instructed the soldiers to say that Jesus' disciples came during the night and stole His body while they were asleep.

This was an outrageous lie because even Jesus' disciples themselves did not know that He had risen—they were still grieving. Thieves do not usually take time to fold clothes neatly! After Jesus' resurrection, His burial cloths were found folded carefully. Furthermore, Jesus' disciples would never dishonor their Teacher by stealing His body without His garments. Besides, all the apostles, except John, were willing to die for Jesus. If the resurrection were a lie, they would not have risked their lives.

It is likely that the soldiers were the first to witness the miraculous resurrection and reported it to the chief priests. The priests, however, instructed them to say that they fell asleep and, while they were sleeping, Jesus' body was stolen. To protect the soldiers from punishment for failing their duty, the priests promised to speak to the governor on their behalf. This lie spread among the Jews and, to this day, many people still believe it. Not only among the Jews but across the entire world, this falsehood has spread. Yet, the truth remains—Jesus rose from the dead. Many people witnessed it with their own eyes. Every year, millions visit Jerusalem to see the empty tomb.

The remaining eleven disciples traveled approximately 120 kilometers to Galilee, to the mountain where Jesus had instructed them to go. When they saw Him, they worshiped Him, although some still doubted if He was truly their Teacher who had lived with them for three and a half years. Jesus did not stay with them continuously as before but would visit them from time to time. Now, He could be present anywhere within His vast and eternal Kingdom.

He explained to them that His mission was not to establish an earthly kingdom or engage in politics, but to bring a heavenly, spiritual kingdom. He instructed them to begin their work in Jerusalem, despite the hostility and opposition there. The people of Jerusalem were given another opportunity to repent from their previous actions against God's servants. God would work miracles and wonders—not only through the apostles but also through all believers who follow His calling until the end of the world.

Jesus granted His disciples extraordinary gifts, even though they were uneducated. Their wisdom and power surpassed those with formal education. Today, it remains our responsibility to share the good news, whether to crowds or to individuals. Many people carry burdens of poverty, guilt, and troubled consciences due to the oppression of the enemy. We must pray that God gives us genuine love for them. True love, without hypocrisy, comes only from God. We should begin by sharing the Bread of Life with those in our homes, then with our neighbors and friends, and finally with those who do not know God. If we do our part faithfully, God will perform great works. Jesus came to heal the sick and break the chains of Satan. Faith—trusting in Him—is essential for us to work with God in reaching others.

Angels may wonder why we do not pray more when God is ready to do great things for us. He left the glories of heaven for our sake. Scripture records Jesus appearing to His disciples on several occasions, although the accounts are summarized. He had returned to His position as the Ruler of heaven and earth.

On one occasion, Simon Peter, Thomas (called the Twin), Nathanael, the sons of Zebedee, and two other disciples were together. Not knowing what else to do, Peter said, "I am going fishing." The others joined him, and they went out to fish, but that night they caught nothing. At dawn, Jesus stood on the shore, but the disciples did not recognize Him. He called out to them, "Children, do you have any food?" They answered, "No." He then instructed them to cast their net on the right side of the boat. Although they did not know who He was, they obeyed—and the net became so full of fish that they could not pull it back into the boat.

John realized it was the Lord and told Peter, "It is the Lord!" When Peter heard this, he quickly put on his outer garment and jumped into the water to reach Jesus. The other disciples followed in the boat, dragging the net full of fish. When they arrived onshore, they saw a charcoal fire with fish cooking on it and some bread. Jesus told them to bring some of the fish they had just caught. Peter went back and hauled the net ashore, which, although full of 153 large fish, did not tear.

Jesus invited them to eat the breakfast He had prepared. Even today, we are invited to open our mouths to receive spiritual nourishment through His Word each morning. The disciples were blessed to have the Lord Himself serve them. If Jesus, the King of the universe, cooked for His disciples, how much more should we be willing to serve others? Every young person should learn to cook simple, healthy, and affordable meals using locally available ingredients before turning fifteen years old.

Jesus' third appearance to His disciples after His resurrection revealed His deep love and care for them. Our greatest need is already known to the Lord, but He wants us to seek Him in prayer. "Ask, and it will be given to you" (Matthew 7:7). "He who did not spare His own Son but gave Him up for us all—how will He not also, along with Him, graciously give us all things?" (Romans 8:32).

Questions:

1. How many days did Jesus stay with His disciples before ascending to heaven?

2. What conspiracy did the chief priests devise?

3. Do conspiracies occur in churches today? How can we avoid them?

4. Why did Jesus cook for His disciples?

5. How many fish did the disciples catch?

6. Have you ever thought of returning to your old ways and leaving God's service, like the disciples?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Matthew 28:4-7.

[4-7] The guards were so afraid of him that they shook and became like dead men. The angel said to the women, "Do not be afraid, for I know that you are looking for Jesus, who was crucified. He is not here; He has risen, just as He said. Come and see the place where He lay. Then go quickly and tell His disciples: 'He has risen from the dead.'"

Prayer: Thank You, Lord, for rising again as You said, and this is our hope. We pray in Jesus' name, Amen.

Activity: Sing a resurrection hymn. For example: "Christ is Risen, Hallelujah." You may also find the song AMEFUFUKA – Beroya Mission Adventist online.

DAY 289 (October 15)

TOPIC: Jesus Strengthens Peter

(John 21)

Since Peter had openly denied Jesus, it was important for Jesus to help rebuild his faith so that if he faced trials, he would be able to endure. Peter loved Jesus and was willing to die for Him, but he relied on his own strength. After denying Jesus during those three days, Peter felt sorrow in his heart. We all need to ask God to help us withstand trials because no one can overcome them by their own power—only God gives us strength. Jesus called Peter by name to comfort him and assure him that he was fully forgiven.

After they finished eating the fish and bread that Jesus had prepared for the disciples by the Sea of Tiberias, Jesus said to Simon Peter, "Simon, son of John, do you love Me more than these?" Peter answered, "Yes, Lord, You know that I love You." Jesus said to him, "Feed My lambs." Again, Jesus asked him a second time, "Simon, son of John, do you love Me?" Peter replied, "Yes, Lord, You know that I love You." Jesus said, "Take care of My sheep."

A third time, Jesus asked him, "Simon, son of John, do you love Me?" Peter was deeply saddened because Jesus asked him the same question three times. He answered, "Lord, You know all things; You know that I love You." Jesus told him, "Feed My sheep."

Peter had denied Jesus three times, so Jesus asked him the question three times. The term "feed My lambs" refers to caring for new believers—both children and adults—who are like little lambs in their faith. When someone comes to Christ for the first time, they are like newborns who need spiritual nourishment. Peter realized he had been forgiven, and Jesus trusted him to care for His followers.

The same power Jesus gave Peter is available to anyone willing to care for His people by sharing the Word of Life. Even today, when workers in God's vineyard stumble and fall, they should be helped to repent and be forgiven, just as Peter was. God performs many miracles for those who follow His calling.

Jesus also told Peter, "When you were young, you dressed yourself and went wherever you wanted, but when you are old, you will stretch out your hands, and someone else will dress you and lead you where you do not want to go." This statement foretold the manner of Peter's death. Historians say Peter was crucified upside down around 68 AD. The man who once spoke hastily and acted impulsively had become wise and close to Jesus' heart. He became a leader of the early church and brought many to Christ.

As the Bible says, "And we know that in all things God works for the good of those who love Him, who have been called according to His purpose" (Romans 8:28). There are many truths we would not know if Peter had not asked questions that revealed important lessons. Through His conversation with Peter, Jesus gave him a powerful assurance of restoration and trust.

After saying this, Jesus told Peter, "Follow Me." However, instead of focusing on his own calling, Peter became curious about John. Seeing the disciple whom Jesus loved, Peter asked, "Lord, what about him?" Jesus answered, "If I want him to remain alive until I return, what is that to you? You must follow Me."

Jesus wanted Peter to keep his eyes on Him, not on others. Even today, we should not be jealous of how God blesses others—whether they are successful in ministry, financially prosperous, or seemingly living an easier life. God knows what is best for each of us and blesses us accordingly.

This conversation spread among the disciples, leading to the belief that John would not die. However, Jesus had not said John would never die—He only said, "If I want him to remain alive until I return, what is that to you?" Each person has a unique calling from God. For example, John the Baptist knew when his mission was complete, even when Jesus' ministry continued. Jesus Himself faced His time of suffering, and the disciples also fulfilled their calling in their time. Now, it is our turn to follow Jesus and carry out our mission without worrying about others' paths.

Peter was not given authority to manage others' lives—his focus was to follow Jesus. Later, in 1 Peter 5:3-4, he advised others to be faithful shepherds, reminding them not to be surprised by the trials they faced. John testified about what he had seen and heard firsthand—he witnessed Jesus before and after the resurrection, and he saw Jesus in His glorified body.

The Bible says that if everything Jesus did were written down, the whole world could not contain the books (John 21:25). Even in heaven, we will continue learning more about God's Word without ever exhausting its depth. The story of salvation itself is so profound that it will take eternity to fully understand it.

Another vital element of effective and enduring prayer is faith. As the Bible says, "Anyone who comes to God must believe that He exists and that He rewards those who earnestly seek Him" (Hebrews 11:6). Jesus also said, "Whatever you ask for in prayer, believe that you have received it, and it will be yours" (Mark 11:24).

Do we come to God with the confidence to claim His promises through His Word?

Questions:

1. How did Jesus strengthen Peter?

2. Why do people deny Jesus today?

3. Have you ever denied Jesus in any way? If so, have you confessed?

4. What kind of death did Jesus say Peter would face?

5. Why was Peter curious about John's future?

6. Why can't the world contain all the written accounts of Jesus' works?

7. How can we encourage a friend who has made a mistake today?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

DAY 290 (October 16)

TOPIC: Jesus Ascends to Heaven

(Matthew 28, Luke 24, Mark 16, and Acts 1)

Jesus chose the Mount of Olives as the place of His ascension. This was a place where He had often prayed with His disciples. He had spent 33 ½ years with them. Together, they endured hardships, insults, and even ridicule from people. Despite being rejected and eventually crucified, Jesus still loved humanity. Although the disciples had their weaknesses, they sincerely loved Jesus with genuine affection. Though they were not perfect, He purified them.

Jesus came to them, spoke to them, and said, “All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to Me. Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, and teaching them to obey everything I have commanded you. And surely, I am with you always, to the very end of the age. Whoever believes will be saved, but whoever does not believe will be condemned. These signs will accompany those who believe: In My name, they will drive out demons; they will speak in new tongues; they will pick up snakes with their hands, and if they drink anything deadly, it will not harm them. They will lay hands on the sick, and they will recover."

He also said to them, "As the Father has sent Me, I am sending you into the world to proclaim the good news." After saying this, He breathed on them and said, "Receive the Holy Spirit." Thus, the disciples began to receive the Holy Spirit while Jesus was still with them. They forgave one another, reflected on their past desires for greatness, abandoned their old, flawed ways, and began to rejoice and work together.

However, one disciple, Thomas, also called Didymus, was not present when Jesus first appeared to the others. When the other disciples told him, "We have seen the Lord," he replied, "Unless I see the nail marks in His hands and put my finger where the nails were, and put my hand into His side, I will not believe."

Eight days later, the disciples were together again, and this time Thomas was with them. Though the doors were locked, Jesus came and stood among them, saying, "Peace be with you!" Then He turned to Thomas and said, "Put your finger here; see My hands. Reach out your hand and put it into My side. Stop doubting and believe."

Thomas was shocked because no ordinary man could know what he had said to the other disciples. Overcome with humility, and without even touching Jesus' wounds, he exclaimed, "My Lord and my God!" Jesus then said, "Thomas, because you have seen Me, you have believed. Blessed are those who have not seen and yet have believed."

These words apply to us today. Although we may not see Jesus in our daily lives, we believe in Him and trust Him in every aspect—whether in our needs, education, health, or joy.

Jesus performed many other signs in the presence of His disciples that are not recorded in this book. But these are written so that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that by believing, you may have eternal life.

More than 500 people gathered on the Mount of Olives in Galilee, near Bethany. After giving the Great Commission—"Go into all the world and make disciples of all nations"—Jesus prepared to ascend to heaven. This was the eleventh time the risen Savior had appeared to His disciples.

After speaking with them, He led them to Bethany, lifted His hands, and blessed them. While blessing them, He was taken up into heaven. The disciples worshipped Him and watched in awe as He ascended, and a cloud hid Him from their sight.

This incredible event fills us with joy because we too will ascend to heaven when Jesus returns. Our journey to heaven will be extraordinary. We will witness wonders beyond the knowledge of human science. What takes rockets millions of years to reach, we will travel in a short time—perhaps within a week.

We will see planets like Mercury, Jupiter, and Venus, and much more, for human knowledge barely scratches the surface of the universe. We will travel without needing safety belts or spaceships, able to see and converse with one another in joy as we recount our experiences on earth. Our earthly troubles will seem small compared to the glorious reward God has prepared for us.

As Jesus ascended, two men dressed in white—possibly angels—appeared and said, "Men of Galilee, why do you stand here looking into the sky? This same Jesus, who has been taken from you into heaven, will come back in the same way you have seen Him go into heaven."

He will not return in secret, nor will He touch the earth. Instead, we will be caught up to meet Him in the clouds. Are you ready to meet Jesus in the sky?

The disciples returned to Jerusalem filled with joy. People expected them to be sad after Jesus' departure, but instead, their faces shone with heavenly joy. They were eager to share the good news of Jesus' resurrection and ascension, and many believed because of their testimony.

The disciples knew they had a Friend in heaven who deeply cared for them. They devoted themselves to prayer and communion with their beloved Friend, knowing He would grant whatever they asked in His name. The Holy Spirit also filled them with even greater joy, as Jesus had promised.

When Jesus arrived in heaven, He presented His scars to His Father—proof of His sacrifice for humanity. Jesus' prayer to His Father was: "Father, I want those You have given Me to be with Me where I am." That includes you and me.

Heaven rejoiced as the angels welcomed their victorious King. As described in Psalm 24:7-10, they sang in a call-and-response:

“Lift up your heads, you gates; be lifted up, you ancient doors, that the King of glory may come in. Who is this King of glory? The LORD strong and mighty, the LORD mighty in battle.”

Jesus, who had left heaven as the Word, returned in human form—forever uniting heaven and earth. Because He lives eternally, He is able to save us completely when we come to God through Him (Hebrews 7:25).

Jesus is not just a good man who died for our sins; He is the risen God who sits at the right hand of the Father, interceding for us.

When we ask for forgiveness, we must also forgive others. How can we pray, “Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors,” if we hold unforgiveness in our hearts? (Matthew 6:12) If we expect our prayers to be heard, we must forgive others just as we desire to be forgiven.

Questions:

1. Approximately how many people were present with Jesus on the Mount of Olives?

2. What did He instruct them to do?

3. What promise did Jesus give His disciples? How would it help them?

4. What does “ascension” mean? What happened during Jesus’ ascension?

5. What was Thomas’ doubt?

6. What did the two men in white say?

7. How can we overcome doubts like Thomas’?

8. Based on this passage, describe how Jesus’ return will be.

9. Are you ready to meet Jesus in the sky today?

10. How did Jesus’ 30 years at home before His ministry prepare Him for His work?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: John 21:4-6.

[4-6] Early in the morning, Jesus stood on the shore, but the disciples did not realize that it was Jesus. He called out to them, "Friends, haven't you any fish?" "No," they answered. He said, "Throw your net on the right side of the boat and you will find some." When they did, they were unable to haul the net in because of the large number of fish.

Prayer: Thank You, Heavenly Father. We are grateful that You care for Your children, even preparing food and providing abundance. Be praised, in the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A dramatization of these words: "When they had finished eating, Jesus said to Simon Peter, 'Simon son of John, do you love Me more than these?' He said, 'Yes, Lord, You know that I love You.' Jesus said, 'Feed My lambs.' Again Jesus said, 'Simon son of John, do you love Me?' He answered, 'Yes, Lord, You know that I love You.' Jesus said, 'Take care of My sheep.' The third time He said to him, 'Simon son of John, do you love Me?' Peter was hurt because Jesus asked him the third time, 'Do you love Me?' He said, 'Lord, You know all things; You know that I love You.' Jesus said, 'Feed My sheep.'"

DAY 291 (October 17)

TOPIC: We Have a Friend in Heaven

Jesus lived on earth for thirty-three and a half years as both man and God. Many children are curious to know what things were like when Jesus went to heaven and what He is doing there now. The Scriptures give us glimpses of what Jesus is currently doing. According to the book of Psalms, Jesus was welcomed by angels when He entered heaven. Angels, elders, and the four living creatures worship Him in heaven. Jesus, the Lamb who was slain, is worthy to receive power, authority, wealth, wisdom, strength, honor, glory, and blessing. There was a song of praise heard in heaven, as all creatures sang, "Blessing and honor, glory, and power be to Him who sits on the throne, forever and ever."

When the apostles received the Holy Spirit on earth, Jesus was installed as the High Priest and King of heaven. We do not know how His Father greeted Him after completing such a difficult mission. Both of them had sacrificed greatly. Jesus had spent 33 ½ years on earth speaking with His Father through prayer, and now He had returned home to heaven to meet Him face to face. We cannot fully understand divine matters, but we can discuss a few things as revealed by the Bible. We must avoid speculating about things that the Bible does not speak of. The book of Hebrews explains Jesus' work in heaven more clearly than any other book. He is the radiance of God's glory and the exact representation of His being. After providing purification for sins, He sat down at the right hand of the Majesty in heaven, becoming superior to the angels as the name He inherited is more excellent than theirs. He is the one who gives us rest for our souls and sets us free – Hebrews 4:9.

It is essential to read the Bible more about the Messiah because it tells us that all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge are hidden in Him. Indeed, we all need these treasures found in Jesus. He is the Way, the Truth, and the Life. We must remain in Him and surrender to Him.

Stephen, in Acts 7, saw Jesus in a vision standing at the right hand of God the Father. Psalms 110:1 also speaks of this. Earthly priests stood and repeatedly offered many animal sacrifices that could never completely take away sins. But Jesus, the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world, died once for all to remove sin forever because He offered one perfect and eternal sacrifice.

Jesus has finished the work of offering Himself as a sacrifice for our salvation, and now He is in heaven as our High Priest, interceding for His followers. Jesus is greater than Moses, Joshua, Aaron, or any angel, and He offers us a superior priesthood and a better covenant. He holds a permanent priesthood because, unlike human priests who die, He lives forever. Because of this, He can save completely those who come to God through Him, for He always lives to intercede for them. Jesus did not only offer the greatest sacrifice for our salvation, but He also serves as our perfect High Priest, who mediates and reconciles us to God. He is all-powerful, so we have no reason to fear. His hand is not too short to save. He is Almighty, which is why He is called the Almighty God.

John wrote to the children, saying, "I am writing to you so that you may not sin. But if anyone sins, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ, the Righteous One." He is the atoning sacrifice for our sins, and not only for ours but also for the sins of the whole world. John clearly states that humans commit sin, but if we confess our sins without making excuses, Jesus will intercede for us. Therefore, we should approach His throne with confidence to receive mercy and grace.

Paul says, "If God is for us, who can be against us? He who did not spare His own Son but gave Him up for us all—how will He not also, along with Him, graciously give us all things?" Who can separate us from the love of Christ? Is it trouble, hardship, persecution, famine, nakedness, danger, or sword? No! None of these can separate us from the love of Christ Jesus.

We have a Friend in heaven today – Jesus Christ. Jesus said that the Father does not judge anyone, but He has entrusted all judgment to the Son. Therefore, Jesus is both our Judge and our Advocate. As long as we maintain our faith and relationship with God through Jesus, we have no reason to fear. Why should we not fear judgment? Because Jesus died for us, He was resurrected, and now He is at the right hand of God, interceding for all who believe in Him as their High Priest. There is no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus, for He has already borne our punishment.

It is important to understand that there is a judgment before we enter heaven. However, our High Priest is also our Judge and Advocate, meaning we are safe in Jesus. The Bible assures us that if we ask anything according to His will, He hears us. We have a Friend in heaven who answers our prayers. Since He became human, He understands our experiences and loves to answer the prayers of those who trust and rely on Him. He listens to the prayers of both children and adults. His intercessory work is the core of His ministry as our High Priest today.

Another work Jesus is doing in heaven is judgment. The Jews observed the Day of Atonement (Yom Kippur), which was a day of judgment. In Daniel 7, it says: “I watched as thrones were set in place, and the Ancient of Days took His seat. His clothing was as white as snow; the hair of His head was like pure wool. His throne was a blazing fire, and its wheels were all aflame. A river of fire was flowing, coming out from before Him. Thousands upon thousands served Him; ten thousand times ten thousand stood before Him. The court was seated, and the books were opened.”

In human terms, when Jesus finishes His work of judgment, He will set aside His priestly robes and wear the garments of a victorious King. This scene of thrones and books being opened shows that judgment is a serious matter. God wants the world and all other created beings to know that He has done everything possible to address the problem of sin. The judgment in Daniel 7 concludes by stating that Jesus, the Son of Man, will be given dominion, glory, and a kingdom, and all peoples, nations, and languages will serve Him.

The purpose of judgment is not to keep people out of heaven but to bring as many as possible to Jesus so they may live with Him forever. Each person will be judged according to their deeds, which is why Jesus said, “Not everyone who says to Me, ‘Lord, Lord,’ will enter the kingdom of heaven, but only those who do the will of My Father.”

One day, the door of mercy will close. Those who are unjust will remain unjust, and those who are holy will remain holy. Jesus is coming soon, bringing His reward with Him to repay each person according to their work.

We have a powerful Advocate, so we should approach Him confidently through prayer to receive forgiveness and cleansing.

Questions:

1. How many years did Jesus live on earth?

2. What are the works of Jesus in heaven today?

3. Why should we not fear judgment?

4. Why should we be courageous?

5. What are you doing to prepare for judgment today?

6. Why should we fear and glorify God?

God bless you, child and youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Hebrews 4:14-16

[14-16] Therefore, since we have a great high priest who has ascended into heaven, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold firmly to the faith we profess. For we do not have a high priest who is unable to sympathize with our weaknesses, but we have one who has been tempted in every way, just as we are—yet He did not sin. Let us then approach God's throne of grace with confidence, so that we may receive mercy and find grace to help us in our time of need.

Prayer: Thank You Lord, we are grateful because You are our Creator, Friend, Brother, High Priest, Teacher, Father, and Redeemer.

Activity: Who is a Friend? Come together and hold hands.

Friendship Stories: Begin a story about friends, and let each student add a sentence to continue it, encouraging creativity and interactive storytelling about friendship.

Friendship Pledge: Read aloud the "Friendship Pledge."

DAY 292 (October 18)

TOPIC: Share the Story of Salvation in Three Minutes!

What is Salvation?
Now that we have finished the Gospels—the Good News for all of us, the children of Adam—can you tell the story of salvation in a few minutes to someone who does not know God or Jesus at all? It is important that you can. Through the resurrection of Jesus, we have received the forgiveness of sins. There is joy in heaven because people are being saved now through His death. That humanity can no longer be lost forever is a miracle worth telling for all eternity. People began to experience this gift from the cross on that very day—such as the thief crucified with Jesus and even the centurion.

Since you are now a disciple of Jesus, not just a follower, you must go and tell others. You are now an apostle of Jesus. Ask Him to give you His Spirit so you can live a godly life and witness to others. A disciple or convert learns, but an apostle is sent to testify about God to others. When you meet people, tell them of the great things God has done—that is how you overcome Satan: "They overcame him by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony" (Revelation 12:11).

Friend, do you know the way of salvation? Do you know that God exists and has a plan for everyone, including you? Do you know how to have peace with God in your heart? It is possible to have peace even in the troubles and struggles of this life. The answers to all your questions are found in God's Word. Do you know what happens when you die? Is it possible to live a life full of joy, peace, and contentment? Yes, it is possible, and the secret is in God's Word—it is not about being wealthy, highly intelligent, or talented!

The Word of God in Romans 3:23 says: "For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God." It continues to say: "There is no one righteous, not even one; there is no one who understands; there is no one who seeks God. All have turned away, they have together become worthless; there is no one who does good, not even one" (Romans 3:10-12). "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life" (Romans 6:23). "If we claim to be without sin, we deceive ourselves and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just and will forgive us our sins and purify us from all unrighteousness" (1 John 1:8-9).

To receive salvation, we must confess our sins and genuinely repent: "Repent, then, and turn to God, so that your sins may be wiped out, that times of refreshing may come from the Lord" (Acts 3:19). We must confess with our mouths that Jesus is Lord and believe in our hearts that God raised Him from the dead to be saved. You can live a happy, meaningful, and fulfilling life. Yes! You can know God personally; all the answers are in His Word. Now that you know these truths, go and tell others about the great things God has done for you—the precious story of salvation.

Tell them about God's plan after the fall of our first parents in the Garden of Eden. God loved the world so much that He gave His only Son so that whoever believes in Him will not perish but have eternal life. Put your name in that promise: "For God so loved [your name] that He gave His only Son…"

Jesus took the punishment we deserved so that we could receive the righteousness and goodness we did not deserve. He died our death so that we might have eternal life—we are healed by His wounds.

Continue to grow in faith and obey His commandments: "We know that we have come to know Him if we keep His commands" (1 John 2:3). Walk in the light and be born again through water and the Spirit—be baptized and receive the Holy Spirit to guide you in all things.

If you have taken these steps, the Lord bless you—you are now a child of God, born again. He who began a good work in you will complete it. Jesus said, "All that the Father gives me will come to me, and whoever comes to me I will never drive away" (John 6:37). Amen. He is able to keep you from falling and to present you before His glorious presence without fault and with great joy.

If someone asks, "If Jesus comes today, will you be in heaven?" say, "Yes!"
If someone asks, "Are you saved?" say, "Yes!"
Continue reading His Word and living according to His teachings.

If you sin, confess it and return to the right path as the Scriptures instruct us.

If you share the story of salvation, some may ask, "What is the Holy Trinity?" Though the term is not found in Scripture, it refers to God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit—three persons in one God. We do not have three gods but one true God. Like a family with a father, mother, and child—each is distinct but together form one family.

Keep reading His Word, praying, and living according to His will. Maranatha—The Lord is coming again—soon!

Now answer God's call by saying, "I will go."

Key Text: John 3:17-19

[17-19] For God did not send His Son into the world to condemn the world, but to save the world through Him. Whoever believes in Him is not condemned, but whoever does not believe stands condemned already because they have not believed in the name of God's one and only Son. This is the verdict: Light has come into the world, but people loved darkness instead of light because their deeds were evil.

Prayer: Thank You Lord, for You have been merciful and tenderly compassionate to us. Help us to walk in Your way. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Compare the four Gospels and write down the unique features of each book.

DAY 293 (October 19)

TOPIC: Waiting for the Holy Spirit / Pentecost in Jerusalem

(Read: Luke 24, Acts 1 and 2)

Jesus instructed His disciples to stay in Jerusalem and promised them they would receive power from above—the power of the Holy Spirit. As He led them to Bethany, He lifted His hands and blessed them. While blessing them, He departed from them and was taken up into heaven. They worshiped Him and returned to Jerusalem with great joy, continually praising God in the temple.

Although they did not know exactly what power they would receive, they remained united in prayer, humility, and love. They forgave each other and helped anyone in need.

Luke, the beloved physician, wrote the Book of Acts as a continuation of the Gospels. It records the acts of the Holy Spirit through the apostles—work that continues today through us.

Jesus instructed them to wait for the Holy Spirit's power to be His witnesses in Jerusalem, Judea, Samaria, and to the ends of the earth. Two men in white robes (angels) assured them that Jesus would return the same way He ascended.

In the upper room, Peter led the believers (about 120) to choose a replacement for Judas Iscariot. They prayed and cast lots, and Matthias was chosen.

The apostles went out preaching everywhere, and the Lord worked with them, confirming the message through signs and wonders.

Questions:

1. Why did the apostles cast lots?

2. What did the men in white robes say?

3. How did Luke write the Book of Acts?

4. How do the acts of the apostles continue today?

5. What is the difference between being chosen by lot and being ordained by laying on of hands?

6. Name the twelve apostles after Jesus ascended to heaven.

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Acts 1:2-3

[2,3] Until the day He was taken up to heaven, after giving instructions through the Holy Spirit to the apostles He had chosen. After His suffering, He presented Himself to them and gave many convincing proofs that He was alive. He appeared to them over a period of forty days and spoke about the kingdom of God.

Prayer: Dear Father, we thank You for the Holy Spirit who comes with all the gifts we need. Help us to receive power and go out into all the world. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Divide into two groups and rewrite together the works of the Holy Spirit.

DAY 294 (October 20)

TOPIC: Pentecost

(Acts 1)

Before going out to preach, the apostles spent ten days together, humbling themselves, asking each other for forgiveness, and seeking God's forgiveness for their unbelief in the Scriptures and prophecy. The word "Pentecost" means fifty days after Passover or after Jesus' resurrection. The disciples received the Holy Spirit, whom Almighty God had promised. Jesus appeared to them for forty days after His resurrection, and then ascended to heaven, and they received the Holy Spirit ten days after His ascension.

When the day of Pentecost had fully come, the disciples of Jesus, the twelve apostles, including Jesus' mother, His brothers, and other believers, were gathered in an upper room in one place. Suddenly, there came from heaven a sound like a mighty rushing wind, filling the entire house where they were sitting. There was a shaking, and this loud noise was heard by people outside. Then, tongues of fire appeared and rested on each one of them. Each person could see these tongues of fire on their companions' heads, making the house seem as if it was ablaze. They had been quietly praying, but everything changed. All of them were filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in other languages as the Spirit enabled them. The apostles could no longer remain inside – they went out and began to proclaim the story of Jesus, the cross, and salvation with joy.

The outpouring of the Holy Spirit happened while believers from every region had come to Jerusalem to celebrate Pentecost, giving many people the opportunity to witness this event. These people included Jews, devout men, and people from every nation under heaven. When they heard the sound of the rushing wind, they gathered in amazement because each one heard the 120 evangelists speaking in their own languages, which they recognized. The apostles were not speaking meaningless words but complete languages from different nations. The crowd, in astonishment, said, "Aren't these people all Galileans?" (Only Judas Iscariot was from outside Galilee.)

They asked, "How is it that each of us hears them in our native languages?" There were Parthians, Medes, Elamites, residents of Mesopotamia, Judea, Cappadocia, Pontus, Asia, Phrygia, Pamphylia, Egypt, Libya near Cyrene, Romans, Cretans, Arabs – all heard the apostles speaking in their own tongues about the mighty works of God. They were amazed and puzzled, asking each other, "What does this mean?" because languages from the east, west, north, and south were being spoken. The Holy Spirit gave the apostles the gift of speaking in different languages to spread the Gospel. Even today, there are missionaries who, when they speak, are understood in the local language by miraculous means – like the Maori people in New Zealand who heard the Gospel in their own tongue.

Nowadays, people spend years studying languages like Chinese, which has over 100,000 characters, although about 200 are used daily. In comparison, Swahili uses only 24 letters. People invest time learning languages for business opportunities, especially in China. But the apostles did not need formal education to speak in other languages. As is human nature, some mocked and ridiculed them, saying they were drunk on new wine. Such mockery is often a way to avoid thinking deeply or making decisions about choosing Almighty God. Let us be careful never to treat the matters of God lightly.

Even children today know that a drunk person cannot speak a foreign language fluently and be understood by locals. If it were possible, people would drink alcohol to become instant translators. People say knowing Chinese guarantees employment because it is in high demand for business. If alcohol could grant language skills, everyone would drink to get jobs. Even the Chinese themselves, about 1.5 billion people, want to learn English because it is the second most spoken language worldwide.

The gift of speaking in tongues was given to the apostles so the Gospel could reach the whole world. At the Tower of Babel, languages were confused due to human rebellion, making communication difficult. But the Holy Spirit bridges this gap for the sake of the Gospel. Even today, some people have the gift of learning languages easily or receive divine help to speak new languages to spread the Gospel. The promise of the Holy Spirit is still available to all of us. We cannot accomplish God's work without being filled with the Holy Spirit.

The Holy Spirit is a person (not a mere force), and when we pray, we must acknowledge this truth. One of the key focuses of Jesus' ministry was the outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Today, our cities are home to people of many languages and ethnic backgrounds – Europeans, Indians, Arabs, Jews, Chinese, Koreans, Turks, and others. Many of them do not know Christ. It is our responsibility to reach them however we can. Some are refugees, international students, or migrant workers. Scott Griswold's book "Reach the World," available online for free, encourages us to engage these communities (visit: ReachtheWorldNextDoor.com).

A friend from Turkey became a Christian while working as a tour guide. An African Christian visiting Turkey shared the Gospel with her while touring biblical sites like Mount Ararat (where Noah's Ark landed) and the seven churches of Revelation (Revelation 2 and 3). This Turkish woman later attended school with me in Michigan. In the United States, about 160 million tourists visit each year – nearly half the population – providing many opportunities to share the Gospel. Tanzania receives about 2 million visitors annually, giving you a chance to make a difference!

Business leaders like those from Honda in Japan, Chinese plastic manufacturers, and Indian IT experts often visit other countries. These visits are unique opportunities for Christians to share the Gospel. People in foreign lands are often more open and humble, willing to listen. God declared in Isaiah 56 that His house shall be called a house of prayer for all nations.

Even in nations hostile to Christianity, where people have been martyred for their faith, there are visitors who travel abroad. These travelers, while in other countries, can encounter Christians and hear the Gospel. Would you want these people to miss out on eternal life? Millions still worship ancestral spirits or follow religions like Hinduism, Shintoism, Confucianism, and Buddhism. Others are secular or follow no religion at all.

Pray for these people and ask the Holy Spirit to work in their lives. Pray for government leaders to open doors for the Gospel. Psalm 67 tells us that God desires to bring salvation to all nations. Imagine if others knew how to find eternal life and did not share it with you – how would you feel? The Gospel is the ultimate cure for sin, leading to eternal life. Let us pray daily to grow spiritually and help others know the truth.

We must be united in faith, following God's Word as our guide. JESUS IS LORD, AND HIS WORD IS THE LIGHT FOR EVERYONE.

The Holy Spirit does not need to appear as tongues of fire to be present. Although we cannot see Him, His work is visible. He is always present, 24/7. John 16 tells us the Holy Spirit is our Comforter and Teacher, guiding us in faith and helping us pray. He convicts us of sin, leading us to repentance. No one can live a faithful life without the Holy Spirit. We must allow Him to lead our lives.

Joel's prophecy says that in the last days, God will pour out His Spirit like rain. Even in our weakness, God will empower us to do great things. Today, people from China and India – one-third of the world's population – are coming to Africa for business. Many of them do not know the God of heaven. Let us reach out to them, for their salvation matters to God. With the Holy Spirit's help, start sharing the Gospel with your friends and peers.

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Acts 1:7-11

[7-11] "But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit comes on you; and you will be My witnesses in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the ends of the earth." After He said this, He was taken up before their very eyes, and a cloud hid Him from their sight. They were looking intently up into the sky as He was going, when suddenly two men dressed in white stood beside them. "Men of Galilee," they said, "why do you stand here looking into the sky? This same Jesus, who has been taken from you into heaven, will come back in the same way you have seen Him go into heaven."

Prayer: Thank You Father in heaven that You will return again to take us, just as You went up into heaven. Lord, we are waiting for You; help us to do what You commanded and to tell others the good news as we wait for You. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Go outside, look at the clouds, and retell the story of Jesus' ascension.

DAY 295 (October 21)

TOPIC: Peter's Sermon

(Acts 2)

As people were amazed, Peter stood up boldly, raised his voice, and told the whole story of salvation. He said, "Men of Judea and all who dwell in Jerusalem, let this be known to you. It is not as you suppose; we are not drunk, for it is only the third hour of the day (9:00 AM). But this is what was spoken by the prophet Joel: 'I will pour out My Spirit on all people; your sons and daughters will prophesy, your young men will see visions, and your old men will dream dreams. Wonders in the heavens will be shown— the sun will be turned to darkness, and the moon to blood— before the great and glorious day of the Lord comes. And everyone who calls on the name of the Lord will be saved.'"

This was God's promise to them, to us, and to our children today. Peter spoke about Jesus of Nazareth, how He performed miracles and wonders, how He was crucified, and how God raised Him from the dead, freeing Him from the agony of death. David saw the Messiah before him, exalted to the right hand of God. "Therefore," Peter declared, "let all the house of Israel know for certain that God has made this Jesus, whom you crucified, both Lord and Christ."

When the people heard Peter's bold preaching, they were cut to the heart because they were involved in Jesus' death. Even Pilate, the Roman governor, was surprised by their determination for Jesus to be crucified. They had lived sinful lives like all humans, but they knew it was time to repent sincerely, and they were convicted.

Peter preached without a notebook, a microphone, or a projector, but people's hearts were changed. The people asked the apostles, "What shall we do, brothers?" Peter answered, "Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins, and you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. This promise is for you, your children, and all who are far off— for all whom the Lord our God will call."

Peter continued to testify and warn them, urging them to save themselves from this corrupt generation. Those who accepted his message were baptized, and about 3,000 people were added to their number that day. It is possible this number only counted the men. This was the seed of the first Christian church. Some who had not believed in Jesus during His life now turned to Him after His death and resurrection. As Jesus said, “When I am lifted up, I will draw all people to Myself.”

People began to be drawn to Jesus— even today, we are drawn to Him. Jesus, who loves us and died for us on the cross and rose again, still has the power to forgive our sins and help us live holy lives. The believers devoted themselves to the apostles’ teaching, fellowship, breaking of bread, and prayer. Everyone was filled with awe, and many wonders and miraculous signs were done by the apostles.

All the believers were together and had everything in common. They sold their possessions and goods and shared with anyone in need. No one was left wanting. Every day, they continued meeting together in the temple courts, broke bread in their homes, and ate together with glad and sincere hearts— without deceit, hatred, envy, or pride— praising God and enjoying the favor of all the people. And the Lord added to their number daily those who were being saved.

As Jesus said, “My brothers and sisters are those who obey My teachings,” so these followers became brothers and sisters in Christ. Believers became family to each other. This did not mean Jesus wanted us to neglect our biological families— far from it. Long before Jesus was born, God commanded, “Honor your father and mother.” Jesus wants us to love and respect our parents and family members.

Parents and children live together for a time, but eventually, children grow up and become independent, continuing their own lives. If their relationship remains good, they support each other through joys and struggles. In the family of God, believers encourage and help each other in the same way. Sometimes, the spiritual family in Christ can be even closer than biological relatives.

Noah had a family like this— though he could not save others, he saved his family because they listened to him and worked together in obedience to God. This is the best example. However, if you did not have a godly family when you were born, do not lose hope— through faith in Jesus Christ, you gain a spiritual family with countless brothers and sisters.

We must remember that loving our families should not interfere with our obedience to God. All people are created by God, making us all part of His family, and through Christ’s sacrifice, we are redeemed by His precious blood.

The book of Acts fills my heart with joy and anticipation more than any other book in the Bible. It gives a clear picture of the great outpouring of the final rain. Luke, the historian, wrote Acts while traveling with Paul. Before Jesus ascended to heaven, He gave His followers a crucial key to fulfill the Great Commission. Jesus instructed His disciples not to leave Jerusalem but to wait for the Father's promise:

"But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit comes upon you, and you will be My witnesses in Jerusalem, in all Judea and Samaria, and to the ends of the earth."

Christ has given us the Great Commission to take the Gospel to the whole world. Yet, in our zeal, we sometimes commit the sin of omission— failing to do what we should. We must confess our sins and seek unity. The Word of God urges us to always kneel in prayer for His strength.

I want Jesus to return today, but even if He does not come during my lifetime, one thing is certain— He will return. One day, He will come back to take His people home, and that truth should motivate us to prepare the world for His coming. This world will not last forever— one day, it will end.

Wherever we are on this earth, let us prepare the world for His return. There is no greater mission than this! God says, "Take hold of My strength and make peace with Me; yes, make peace with Me."

God will help us, but we must not isolate ourselves. Our light must shine so that people may see God through us. While the enemy plays games with people's lives, we must not lay down our oars— instead, we must row against the current with determination. Sometimes, the wind will blow against us, but we must persevere.

In the life to come, the mysteries and troubles that frustrated or discouraged us will be revealed. We will understand that our prayers, which seemed unanswered, were among the greatest blessings we received.

Questions:

1. What did Peter say in his sermon?

2. Why were the people pierced to the heart?

3. Why did the apostles continue in teaching and fellowship?
4. How can someone today remain steadfast in God's teachings while being in fellowship?

5. What important lesson do the apostles teach us about joining the fellowship?

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus.

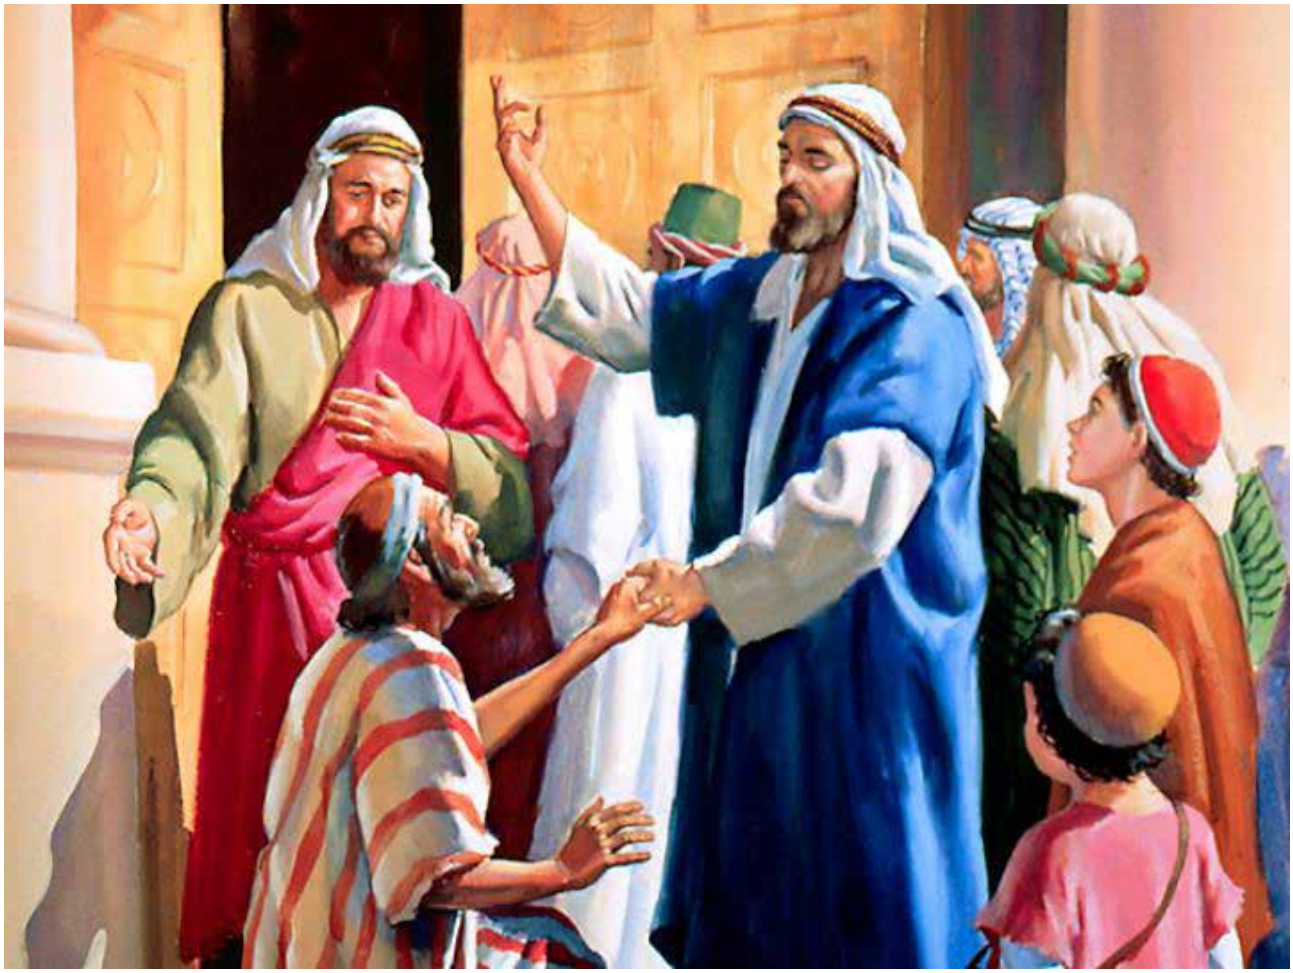
[17-21] "'In the last days, God says, I will pour out My Spirit on all people. Your sons and daughters will prophesy, your young men will see visions, your old men will dream dreams. Even on My servants, both men and women, I will pour out My Spirit in those days, and they will prophesy. … The sun will be turned to darkness and the moon to blood before the coming of the great and glorious day of the Lord. And everyone who calls on the name of the Lord will be saved.'"



Prayer: Beloved Father in heaven, thank You for Your Holy Spirit whom You promised would come to us. We pray that He may enter our lives and bring revival and reformation. Help us to prepare for Your coming. Thank You for giving visions and dreams. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Explain to children who the Holy Spirit is, and that He cannot be seen with the eyes—like the wind in John 3. You can place a piece of paper where there is wind so the children can visualize it. Sing together a song about the Holy Spirit.

DAY 296. (October 22)

TOPIC: The Lame Man Jumps.

(Acts 3)

Besides speaking many different languages and being renowned preachers, the apostles were also given the power to heal—meaning they were more than just doctors. They also cast out demons and performed various other miracles. Many people were empowered to continue the work of Jesus. This work has also been entrusted to us today—you and me—because Paul, Peter, and John are no longer here. We have been handed the torch, and we must run with it through God's power.

One day, at three in the afternoon, Peter and John went up to the temple to pray. There was a man who had been lame from birth. He was carried daily and placed at the temple gate called Beautiful, where he would beg for money from those entering the temple. In many of our cities, we have seen people like this and labeled them as beggars.

When this man saw Peter and John about to enter the temple, he asked them for money. Peter looked straight at him, as did John, and said, “Look at us!” The man gave them his attention, expecting to receive something. Then Peter said, “Silver or gold I do not have, but what I have I give you. In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, walk!” Taking him by the right hand, Peter helped him up, and immediately the man’s feet and ankles became strong.

He jumped to his feet, began to walk, and entered the temple courts with them, walking and jumping and praising God. All the people saw him walking and praising God and recognized him as the same man who used to sit begging at the temple gate called Beautiful. They were filled with wonder and amazement at what had happened to him.

While the man held on to Peter and John, all the people ran to them in astonishment at the place called Solomon’s Colonnade, for they had known him since childhood. Perhaps his relatives carried him and placed him in a public spot to beg for money.

Peter addressed the crowd, saying, “Fellow Israelites, why does this surprise you? Why do you stare at us as if by our own power or godliness we made this man walk? The God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, the God of our ancestors, has glorified His servant Jesus. You handed Him over to be killed, and you disowned Him before Pilate, though he had decided to let Him go. You disowned the Holy and Righteous One and asked that a murderer be released to you. You killed the author of life, but God raised Him from the dead. We are witnesses of this. By faith in the name of Jesus, this man whom you see and know was made strong. It is Jesus’ name and the faith that comes through Him that has completely healed him, as you can all see.”

Peter continued, “Now, fellow Israelites, I know that you acted in ignorance, as did your leaders. But this is how God fulfilled what He had foretold through all the prophets, saying that His Messiah would suffer. Repent, then, and turn to God, so that your sins may be wiped out, that times of refreshing may come from the Lord, and that He may send the Messiah, who has been appointed for you—even Jesus. For Moses said, ‘The Lord your God will raise up for you a prophet like me from among your own people; you must listen to everything He tells you. Anyone who does not listen to Him will be completely cut off from their people.’”

Peter reminded them that God had told Abraham, “Through your offspring, all peoples on earth will be blessed.” When God raised up Jesus, He sent Him first to the Israelites to bless them by turning each of them from their wicked ways.

Even today, we are called to preach the good news of healing and salvation to all people. The message is clear: “Fear God and give Him glory, because the hour of His judgment has come. Worship Him who made the heavens, the earth, the sea, and the springs of water” (Revelation 14:7).

This message is even more vital today than it was during the apostles’ time, and nothing should distract us from it. We are called to proclaim the message of the first angel flying in midair, who has the eternal gospel to proclaim to those who live on the earth (Revelation 14:6). The angel urges everyone to fear God, give Him glory, and worship the Creator of the heavens, the earth, the sea, and the springs of water (verse 7).

These verses remind us that humanity originates from God—the Creator—and not from any evolutionary process. Those of us who believe in His Word hold onto the everlasting gospel, a timeless, essential message that meets the needs of every age.

We are also called to share the second angel’s message found in Revelation 14:8: “Fallen is Babylon!” This message urges true followers of God to reject any form of worship and beliefs that are not based on the Word of God. It calls us to leave behind all human-made doctrines not founded on the Scriptures or the Spirit of Prophecy. Later, the angel in Revelation 18:4 commands, “Come out of her, my people,” urging us not to participate in her sins or receive her plagues.

The third angel’s message connects with the first angel’s call to worship God and the second angel’s call to separate from false worship. However, this third message delivers the most solemn warning:

“If anyone worships the beast and its image and receives its mark on their forehead or on their hand, they, too, will drink the wine of God’s fury, which has been poured full strength into the cup of His wrath” (Revelation 14:9-10).

This message draws a clear line between those who worship the beast and receive his mark and those who worship God and bear His seal. It is written, “This calls for patient endurance on the part of the people of God who keep His commands and remain faithful to Jesus” (Revelation 14:12).

This is the message we must proclaim now—with great power and urgency. We must not let human theories or deceptions cloud this divine truth. As we pray today, let us ask God to strengthen our worship so that we may boldly proclaim His final message to a dying world. Let us remember—we all have a reason to leap and praise God! We have a Savior, Jesus Christ, our Lord. We have been redeemed! We have the hope of eternal life!

Be encouraged, my friends. Don't look down. Don't focus only on your troubles. Lift your head today. Seek Jesus. Look up—He is the Author and Finisher of our faith. Let us walk, leap, and praise God as that lame man did! What do you say?

Prayer:
Our Creator God, King of the Universe, we humbly come into Your presence. You alone are our God—worthy of our praise, worship, and lives surrendered to Your will. You are wonderful, good, and powerful. Fulfill Your promise, and fill us with the Holy Spirit so that our lives may reflect Your perfect love. Manifest Yourself through us.

We know we live in the hour of Your judgment. Thank You for the assurance of salvation through the righteousness of Christ. Help us live lives of service and mission, honoring You in all things. Despite the effects of sin, we still see the beauty of Your creation. We exist because of You. Thank You for sharing Your life with us and calling us into eternal fellowship with You.

In Your glorious name, Amen.

Reflection Questions:

1. Why was healing the lame man more important than giving him silver or gold?

2. The Jews acted in ignorance—are we also acting unknowingly?

3. Why did people stare at Peter?

4. Through which name alone is salvation found?

5. Are we sharing the Word of Life with others?

6. Do you believe in God's miracles?

7. What does the third angel's message say?

8. How can you recognize false worship?

9. Do you read the Scriptures daily?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Acts 3:4-7

Peter looked straight at him, as did John. Then Peter said, "Look at us!" So the man gave them his attention, expecting to get something from them. Then Peter said, "Silver or gold I do not have, but what I do have I give you. In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, walk." Taking him by the right hand, he helped him up, and instantly the man's feet and ankles became strong.

Activity: Role-play with three people: the lame man, Peter, and John. Act out the healing and the man leaping with joy.

DAY 297 – (October 23)

TOPIC: The Apostles Are Imprisoned for the First Time

(Acts 4)

While preaching, the priests—many of whom were Sadducees—and the captain of the temple approached the apostles, feeling disturbed because they were teaching about the resurrection of the dead. They arrested the apostles and put them in prison until the next morning, as it was already evening. The Sadducees did not believe in the resurrection or angels. The Gospel is the good news about Jesus dying for us and rising again as our High Priest to intercede on our behalf. The Sadducees opposed this Gospel because of their beliefs. However, later, some other priests came to believe.

Even though the apostles were arrested, many people had already heard the Word, and about 5,000 men believed in Jesus. The next morning, the rulers, elders, and teachers of the law gathered in Jerusalem. Annas the high priest, Caiaphas, John, Alexander, and others from the high priest's family questioned them, asking, "By what power or in whose name do you do this?" Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, spoke to them boldly and respectfully, saying:

"Rulers of the people and elders of Israel, if we are being called to account today for an act of kindness shown to a man who was lame, know this—you and all the people of Israel—that it is by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom you crucified but whom God raised from the dead, that this man stands before you healed. Jesus is the stone you builders rejected, which has become the cornerstone. Salvation is found in no one else, for there is no other name under heaven given to mankind by which we must be saved."

Peter repeatedly had the opportunity to testify about the Lord. God gave them many platforms to share the Gospel. Even today, God gives us opportunities—let us pray to recognize and use them. You don't need to attend a seminary to share your faith. As a layperson, you can pray, study the Scriptures, and you will be amazed at how many people you can reach. However, if you feel called to attend seminary and become a pastor to teach others, that is a noble thing.

Jesus is the way to heaven—without Him, no one can be saved. He is the truth—without Him, we live in lies. He is the life—without Him, there is no eternal life. The Sadducees and priests thought their traditions were the truth, but they were wrong. We can only find the way, the truth, and the life by being united in His love. By believing in and following Jesus and His teachings, we will have joy and peace, even when things go wrong.

When the priests, Sadducees, and elders saw the courage of Peter and John and realized they were unschooled, ordinary men, they were astonished. They recognized that these men had been with Jesus. Jesus gave them wisdom and ability. Even today, if you want to excel in your studies, make wise decisions, be innovative, and live harmoniously with others, spend time with God. You will learn valuable lessons. Even those with the highest academic qualifications may lack the wisdom that comes from God, which even a child can possess.

Seeing the healed man standing with Peter and John was undeniable proof, leaving the religious leaders speechless. They debated how to punish them because all of Jerusalem had witnessed the miracle. Unable to deny the truth, they warned Peter and John not to speak or teach in the name of Jesus. However, Peter and John replied, "Which is right in God's eyes: to listen to you, or to Him? We cannot help speaking about what we have seen and heard."

After further threats, they released them, finding no basis for punishment because all the people were praising God for the miracle—especially since the healed man had been lame for over 40 years.

Upon their release, Peter and John reported everything to the believers. Together, they prayed, saying:

"Why do the nations rage, and the people plot in vain? The kings of the earth rise up, and the rulers band together against the Lord and against His Anointed One."

They asked God to consider the threats and grant them boldness to speak His Word, performing healings, signs, and wonders through the name of Jesus. After they prayed, the place where they were gathered was shaken, and they were filled with the Holy Spirit and continued to speak the Word of God boldly.

The believers were united in heart and mind. No one claimed private ownership of any possessions; instead, they shared everything. With great power, the apostles testified to the resurrection of the Lord Jesus, and God's grace was powerfully at work among them. There were no needy persons among them because those who owned land or houses sold them, brought the money, and placed it at the apostles' feet for distribution according to need.

Joseph, a Levite from Cyprus, whom the apostles called Barnabas (meaning "son of encouragement"), sold a field he owned and brought the money to the apostles. Barnabas was known for his kindness, humor, and generosity. Today, "sons of encouragement" are needed everywhere—at school, home, work, and in the community—to lift others up.

Each of us has the gift of time—let's use it to speak words of healing and hope rather than words that harm. Barnabas gave from his heart. In the Bible, there are tithes and offerings. The Psalmist asks, "What shall I return to the Lord for all His goodness to me?" (Psalm 116). Recognizing that God owns everything, he vowed to fulfill his promises and proclaim God's deeds as an act of gratitude.

A tithe is 10% of one's income, while offerings are any additional gifts given to God. Studies show that 90% of people's wealth is not in liquid cash but in assets like houses and property. Barnabas was generous not for personal glory but to support God's work. Offerings can be given in gratitude, to help the poor, for blessings, or for health.

Reading Scripture, praying, singing, and giving are acts of worship. When God blesses us, we should not come to worship empty-handed if we have the means. Jesus said, "Where your treasure is, there your heart will be also." If you keep all your wealth at home, your mind will always focus there. Instead, we should invest in heavenly things.

When we entrust our resources to Jesus, it deepens our love for Him and for others. Our finances can do much good. Jesus spoke more about money and possessions than any other topic. One out of every six verses in Matthew, Mark, and Luke refers to money. The Gospel is the good news that God can free us from the misuse of and love for money. Let us give while we are healthy, not just leave gifts after we are gone.

Our offerings reflect our commitment to God. Generosity reveals and strengthens our love for Him. When giving, remember the sacrifice Jesus made for you. Giving is an act of worship. Whether through time, money, or talents, our giving expresses gratitude for God's gifts.

In Prayer, We Feel the Presence of Jesus
If we keep the Lord before us and allow our hearts to thank and praise Him, we will be renewed spiritually. Our prayers will become a conversation with God, just as we speak with a friend. He will reveal His mysteries to us, and the joy of His presence will fill our hearts.

Questions:

1. Through which name can we find salvation?

2. How united were the believers?

3. How old was the lame man?

4. Why were the apostles bold and wise despite their lack of formal education?

5. Why is it important to give offerings when we have income?

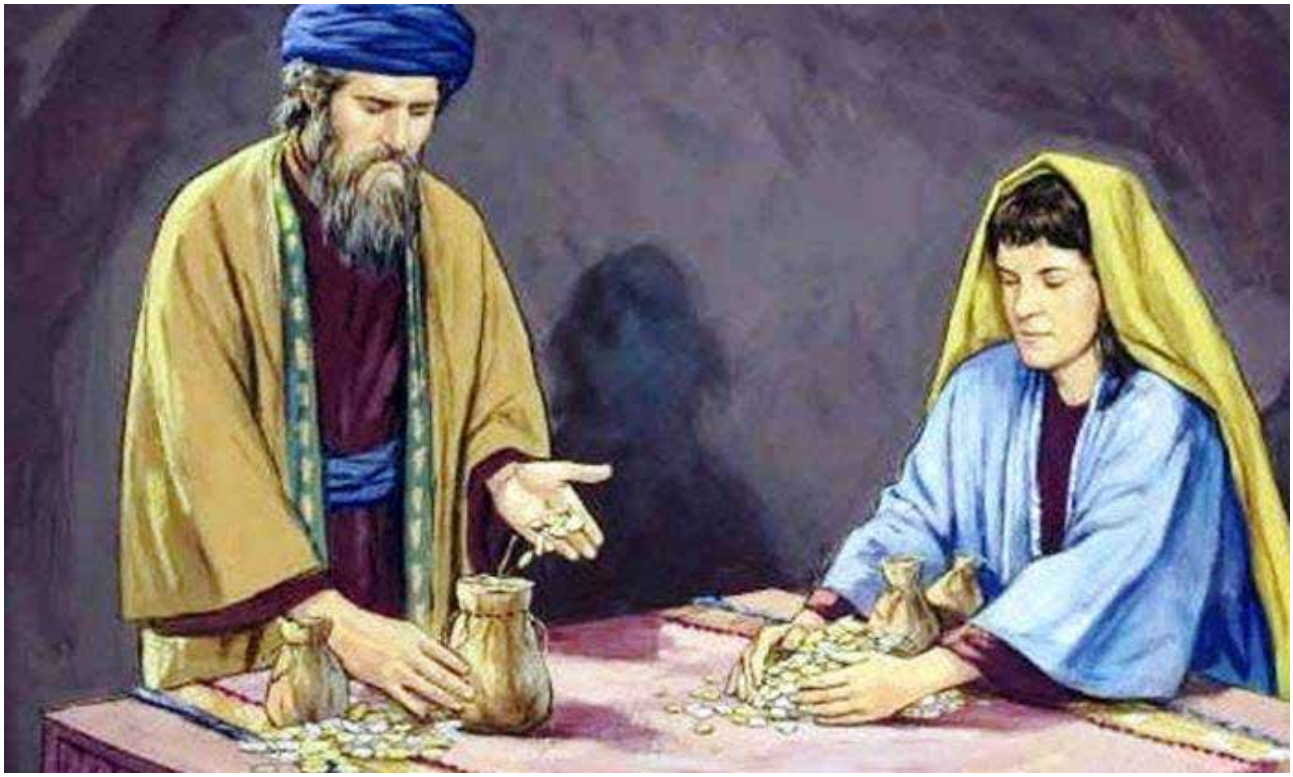
6. How can someone become a “son of encouragement”?

7. What are the purposes of offerings?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Acts 4:11-12

[11,12] Jesus is “‘the stone you builders rejected, which has become the cornerstone.’ Salvation is found in no one else, for there is no other name under heaven given to mankind by which we must be saved.”



Prayer: Lord, You are great and exalted in heaven and on earth. Help us to give You the honor and glory You deserve as our Creator and Savior. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Song Suggestion: All Hail the Power of Jesus’ Name (Psalter Hymnal, 1987).

DAY 298. (October 24)

TOPIC: Ananias and Sapphira.

(Acts 5)

The apostles did not force anyone to bring or sell their property, but the believers recognized that it would be helpful to share and support the preaching of the good news so that every creature could hear it. Those who had been rejected and cast out by their families or employers also benefited from the fellowship of believers. The believers were happy to do this; no one commanded them. This unity caused God's work to spread like wildfire because of their selflessness. This fellowship supported everyone in need, ensuring no one went hungry, lacked clothing, or had no place to sleep. Offering one's property was a voluntary vow to God, not to humans.

A man named Ananias and his wife Sapphira were part of this fellowship. They sold their property and vowed to give everything to help spread the gospel. However, they secretly kept part of the proceeds and brought the rest to the apostles out of greed and a desire for status and praise. Ananias came first, laid the money at the apostles' feet, and claimed he had brought everything. This problem often arises when someone wants to appear generous but lacks true kindness in their heart. Those who gave their property relied on the fellowship to meet their needs.

Ananias and his wife wanted to benefit from both sides—keeping part of the money for themselves while gaining recognition for giving everything. They wanted to be famous for their generosity while secretly keeping some of the proceeds. Through the Holy Spirit, Peter was made aware of their deception. Without knowing that the Spirit had revealed the truth, Ananias was asked by Peter, “Is this the full amount you received for the land?” Ananias replied, “Yes.”

Peter answered him, “Why has Satan filled your heart to lie to the Holy Spirit and keep back part of the price of the land? Wasn’t the land yours before you sold it? And after selling it, wasn’t the money yours to use as you wished? Why did you lie not to us but to God?” When Ananias heard these words, he fell down and died. Great fear seized all who heard about it. The young men arose, wrapped his body in a cloth, took him out, and buried him—perhaps without his family’s knowledge.

About three hours later, his wife Sapphira came in, unaware of what had happened and not realizing she was now a widow. Peter asked her, “Tell me, did you sell the land for this amount?” She answered, “Yes, for that amount.” Peter said to her, “Why did you and your husband agree to test the Spirit of the Lord? Look! The feet of those who buried your husband are at the door, and they will carry you out as well.” At that moment, she fell at his feet and died. When the young men came in and found her dead, they carried her out and buried her beside her husband.

Their children must have been deeply saddened, perhaps learning the lesson that lying to God brings severe consequences. Even today, we must be faithful in returning tithe, giving offerings, and fulfilling the vows we make to God. God is not to be mocked—whatever a person sows, they will also reap. You cannot plant weeds and expect to harvest beans.

Great fear seized the entire church and everyone who heard about these events. This fear helped people avoid lying to God. They realized that a person could die from lying—not by sword or spear, but by divine judgment. Ananias and Sapphira were driven by greed, thinking they were giving too much, so they withheld some and lied. They planned to use the hidden money for fine clothes and luxurious things. They conspired together in wrongdoing. Even today, it is wrong for a husband and wife, or parents and children, to agree on dishonest actions.

The unity Jesus spoke about is unity in doing good. Ananias and Sapphira thought Peter would thank them for their contribution, not realizing they were offending God. It is likely that Peter was warned by the Holy Spirit about their deception.

God empowered the apostles to perform many miracles and heal the sick. Believers gathered to pray in Solomon's Colonnade near the temple. The Jewish leaders did not dare to interfere with the apostles out of fear, though the apostles were highly respected by the people. The Lord added many men and women to the number of believers. Peter healed people in the name of Jesus of Nazareth, and even those possessed by evil spirits were delivered.

The church was founded by Christ, who chose its first leaders (Mark 3:14). Christ loves His church as a groom loves his bride. When Peter spoke to Ananias and Sapphira, he did so as a representative of the church. In times of persecution, the church often meets privately, like bees in a hive working together. But here, Peter and the apostles acted openly, leading the church and working to strengthen it. The Holy Spirit revealed to Peter that Ananias and Sapphira were frauds.
What is the church?
The Bible uses many metaphors to describe the church: a holy nation, a covenant people, the body of Christ, God's family, the household of faith, the bride of Christ, and a royal priesthood. A local church refers to a gathering of people.

But what does all this mean? What is the church?
The church is a group of Christian believers. It is a living entity that Christ Himself gives spiritual life to, which cannot be fully defined by human words. Above all, the church is built on Christ and exists to serve people. It is not an institution for itself but for its people.

The word "church" sometimes means "called-out ones," signifying people separated from the world but united in fellowship. Christianity is a relationship, not isolation. The church is not the building where people gather but the people themselves. Christians are called out of the world to learn to love God and love one another.

We must pray for the Holy Spirit as the disciples did at Pentecost. Our hearts must be cleansed from every impurity to be filled with the Spirit. It was through confessing and forsaking sin, praying earnestly, and dedicating themselves fully to God that the early disciples prepared for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit. The same work—on a greater scale—must be done today.

Questions:

1. Why are the vows or promises we make to God important?

2. How did Peter know about the lies of Ananias and Sapphira?

3. Why did great fear seize the whole church?

4. Why did people bring out their sick and lay them on mats?

5. Do you want to be a Barnabas—a son of encouragement—or an Ananias and Sapphira—children of discouragement?

6. What do you think the death of Ananias and Sapphira taught the people?

7. For how many hours was Sapphira a widow?

May God bless you, child and youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Acts 5:3-4

[3,4] Then Peter said, "Ananias, how is it that Satan has so filled your heart that you have lied to the Holy Spirit and have kept for yourself some of the money you received for the land? Didn't it belong to you before it was sold? And after it was sold, wasn't the money at your disposal? What made you think of doing such a thing? You have not lied just to human beings but to God."

Prayer: Thank You Father in heaven, help us to always speak the truth, never lying to God or to people. Protect us from the evil one who leads us into sin. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Teach about tithe and offerings, and about faithfulness in giving. Take pieces of paper and make about 100 one-shilling notes. Teach children how to give tithe, regular offerings, and special vow offerings.

DAY 299 (October 25)

TOPIC: The Apostles Are Imprisoned Twice

(Acts 5)

The high priest and his fellow priests, who were Sadducees, were filled with jealousy because they did not believe in the resurrection or angels. Out of envy, they arrested the apostles and put them in prison. However, during the night, an angel of the Lord opened the doors of the prison, brought them out, and instructed them, "Go, stand in the temple courts and tell the people the full message of this new life." At daybreak, the apostles entered the temple and began to teach.

The high priest and the Sanhedrin council gathered to decide what to do with the apostles. But when they sent for the prisoners, the guards found the jail securely locked with the guards standing at the doors, but no one inside. This caused confusion and concern about what might happen next. Traditionally, the elders of Israel, including the Sanhedrin, were 71 in number.

The events involving the Pharisees and Sadducees are written for our instruction as we live in the end times. When we commit ourselves to the Lord's work by obeying His Word, He will use us to complete His mission, even when circumstances seem hopeless. Moreover, He will transform our hearts, making us pure, holy, and joyful in His service. We will not be mere wage workers or laypeople with political agendas.

Let us wake up and free ourselves from the enemy's grasp. Let us put on the full armor of God so that we may fight diligently against the cunning adversary who roams around like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour. Yet, he does not always roar—when he fulfills his purpose most effectively, he lowers his voice and whispers gently, appearing as an angel of light. Humans have little knowledge of his cunning schemes and evil secrets, but only the Lord can help us in this spiritual battle.

Those who enjoy gossiping and spreading others' faults should also awaken and examine their own hearts. Let us read the Bible and approach God in earnest prayer. We should ask Him to reveal our own hearts, to help us understand our weaknesses, our sins, and our foolishness in the light of eternity. Let us seek the Lord's guidance to know where we stand before Him. These are the prayers we ought to offer when we face opposition like the early church did.

While the high priest and the captain of the temple were wondering what would become of the situation, someone came and reported, “The men you put in jail are standing in the temple courts teaching the people!” The high priest ordered the captain and the temple guards to arrest the apostles again, but carefully, fearing that the people might stone them. Many had already recognized the priests’ deceit and had come to believe in Jesus, the Messiah.

When the apostles were brought before the Sanhedrin, the high priest said, “We gave you strict orders not to teach in this name. Yet you have filled Jerusalem with your teaching and are determined to make us guilty of this man’s blood.” Peter and the apostles boldly replied, “We must obey God rather than men!” He continued, “The God of our ancestors raised Jesus from the dead—whom you killed by hanging Him on a cross. God exalted Him to His right hand as Prince and Savior to give Israel repentance and forgiveness of sins. We are witnesses of these things, and so is the Holy Spirit, whom God has given to those who obey Him.”

When the council heard this, they were furious and wanted to put the apostles to death. However, a respected Pharisee named Gamaliel, a teacher of the law honored by all the people, stood up in the council and advised, “Men of Israel, consider carefully what you intend to do to these men.”

He gave examples of previous uprisings:

1. Theudas, who claimed to be someone important, and about 400 men followed him. But he was killed, and all his followers were scattered and came to nothing.

2. Judas the Galilean, who led a revolt during the time of the census when Jesus was born, also perished, and his followers were dispersed.

Gamaliel concluded, “Therefore, in the present case I advise you: Leave these men alone! Let them go! For if their purpose or activity is of human origin, it will fail. But if it is from God, you will not be able to stop them—you may even find yourselves fighting against God.”

The council was persuaded by his words. They called the apostles back, flogged them, and ordered them not to speak in the name of Jesus before releasing them. Though the beatings were painful, the apostles left the council rejoicing because they had been counted worthy to suffer disgrace for the name of Jesus. They continued to teach and proclaim the good news of Jesus Christ every day, both in the temple and from house to house.

Indeed, we are not only called to believe in Christ but also to suffer for His sake. We are instructed to "consider it pure joy when we face trials of many kinds, because the testing of our faith produces perseverance." Let perseverance finish its work so that we may be mature and complete, not lacking anything.

Jesus is coming very soon. Let us hold firmly to what we have, so that no one may take our crown. Suffering is painful and is often caused by anger, hatred, jealousy, and rage. Many countries today—especially in Asia and parts of West Africa—have severe persecution against believers, such as North Korea and Somalia.

If you are being persecuted, pray and ask God to give you strength and wisdom to do what is right. Seek counsel from wise believers. The Lord constantly reminds us through the gospel to pray without ceasing. The Bible contains thousands of promises about how to endure and overcome suffering. Study the Scriptures daily because God's answers are always found in the Bible and through prayer.

Remember to trust in the Lord with all your heart during times of sorrow and never lose hope. We must also forgive and even pray for our enemies. Our present sufferings are temporary, but our eternal rewards await us in God's heavenly kingdom. Let us persevere in faith and pray for one another.

Christian homes should be a light to the world. From them, morning and evening prayers should rise to God like sweet-smelling incense. Just as dew falls silently at dawn, so will the Lord's mercy and blessings descend upon those who pray.

Questions:

1. Why were the apostles imprisoned?
2. What advice did Gamaliel give?
3. Why must we obey God rather than men?
4. What is the Sanhedrin?
5. Why did the priests dislike hearing that they were responsible for Jesus' death?
6. What should we do during times of persecution?

May God bless you, child and youth of Jesus!

We will turn this responsibility over to them and will give our attention to prayer and the ministry of the word."

DAY 300 (October 26)

TOPIC: The Persecution and Martyrdom of Stephen

(Acts 6)

During those days, the number of believers increased significantly, creating a need for administrative structure and leadership. As any growing organization requires systems and governance, the early church faced challenges. Disputes arose between the Greek-speaking Jews (Hellenists) and the native Hebrews because the Hellenist widows were being overlooked in the daily distribution of food. This neglect, possibly due to language barriers or discrimination, caused tension among the believers. Initially, there had been trust among them, but now suspicion and dissatisfaction began to emerge. The essential needs of the people—such as food, care for the sick, and other forms of support—were being neglected.

The apostles gathered the disciples and said, "It is not right for us to neglect the ministry of the Word of God to serve tables. Therefore, brothers and sisters, choose seven men from among you who are known to be full of the Spirit and wisdom. We will turn this responsibility over to them and will give our attention to prayer and the ministry of the Word."

The primary mission of the church is to proclaim the message of salvation to everyone. This should be the foremost duty of every Christian. Activities such as cleaning, cooking, farming, working, collecting firewood, or lighting fires should come after spreading the gospel. The church's second duty is to care for those in need—the poor, widows, orphans, strangers, the sick, and prisoners, while also maintaining the church environment. The role of deacons is administrative, helping to ensure the gospel continues to advance.

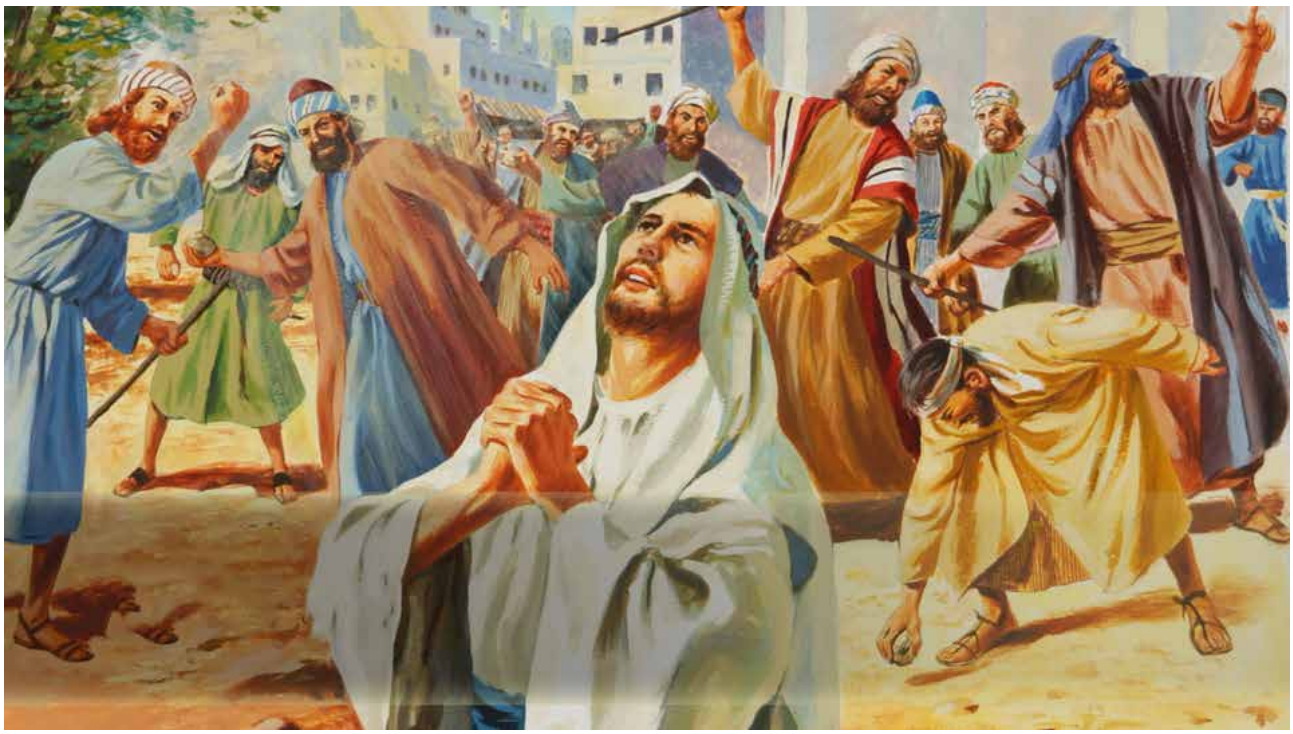
The proposal pleased the whole group, and they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and the Holy Spirit, along with Philip, Prochorus, Nicanor, Timon, Parmenas, and Nicolas from Antioch, who was a convert to Judaism. They presented these men to the apostles, who prayed and laid their hands on them, blessing them for this special ministry. Since that time, the laying on of hands has continued as a sign of God's blessing upon those called to serve in ministry.

The Word of God spread rapidly, and even many Jewish priests came to believe in Jesus Christ. This was encouraging because, although Jesus Himself had not witnessed these conversions during His ministry, His death and resurrection became a powerful message that drew people to Him. As Jesus had said, "When I am lifted up from the earth, I will draw all people to Myself."

Another prophecy of Jesus was fulfilled through the apostles' work as the Holy Spirit empowered them to perform even greater works. Stephen did not limit himself to the administrative duties of a deacon. Filled with the Holy Spirit, he preached boldly and performed great wonders and signs among the people. However, opposition arose from members of the Synagogue of the Freedmen, including Jews from Cyrene (Libya), Alexandria (Egypt), Cilicia, and Asia. They argued with Stephen, but the wisdom and Spirit by which he spoke were irresistible.

Since they could not defeat him through debate, they resorted to false accusations. They secretly persuaded some men to say, "We have heard Stephen speak blasphemous words against Moses and against God." This stirred up the elders and the teachers of the law. They seized Stephen and brought him before the Sanhedrin, the Jewish ruling council.



They produced false witnesses who testified, "This man never stops speaking against this holy place and the law. We have heard him say that this Jesus of Nazareth will destroy this place and change the customs Moses handed down to us." As all who were sitting in the Sanhedrin looked intently at Stephen, they saw that his face was like the face of an angel, reflecting the glory of God due to his unwavering faith.

The high priest asked Stephen if these charges were true. In response, Stephen began a detailed defense, recounting the history of Israel. He started with Abraham's calling in 2091 B.C., when God commanded him to leave his homeland of Ur in Mesopotamia (modern-day Iraq) and go to Canaan (modern-day Israel). Stephen spoke about Isaac (born in 2066 B.C.), Jacob (born in 2006 B.C.), and Joseph (sold into slavery around 1885 B.C.). He also described Moses' life from his birth in 1570 B.C. until God called him to lead Israel out of Egypt in 1446 B.C.

Stephen emphasized that Moses had foretold the coming of a prophet like himself—Jesus Christ. He explained how their ancestors had rejected Moses, just as they were now rejecting Christ. Stephen accused them, saying, "You stiff-necked people! Your hearts and ears are still uncircumcised. You always resist the Holy Spirit, just as your ancestors did. Was there ever a prophet your ancestors did not persecute? They even killed those who predicted the coming of the Righteous One. And now you have betrayed and murdered Him—you who have received the law given through angels but have not obeyed it."

When the Sanhedrin heard these words, they were furious and gnashed their teeth at him. But Stephen, full of the Holy Spirit, looked up to heaven and saw the glory of God and Jesus standing at the right hand of God. "Look," he said, "I see heaven open and the Son of Man standing at the right hand of God."

At this, they covered their ears, yelled at the top of their voices, and rushed at him. They dragged him out of the city and began to stone him, following the Jewish law to avoid defiling the temple. Even though they valued their physical temple, they failed to understand that God's primary temple is the human heart.

As Stephen was being stoned, the witnesses laid their coats at the feet of a young man named Saul. While they were killing him, Stephen prayed, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." Then he fell on his knees and cried out, "Lord, do not hold this sin against them." When he had said this, he fell asleep (died). Saul approved of Stephen's execution and soon became a leader of the persecution against the early church in Jerusalem.

Stephen's example of faithfulness, even unto death, remains a model for all believers. While some people curse others in their dying moments, Stephen chose to bless and forgive. We must learn to bless others rather than curse them. This is especially important for evangelists and parents.

Today, we should be grateful for our freedom to worship, unlike Stephen's time when believers faced death for their faith. The right to freedom of religion means that we should advocate for truth with love, without resorting to violence. Jesus did not command us to kill those who oppose us; rather, we are called to be patient and loving.

Questions:

1. Why are deacons needed in the church today?

2. Name the seven original deacons.

3. What qualities did Stephen possess?

4. How did Stephen get the opportunity to witness about Christ?

5. Why did people kill Stephen?

6. What is the primary mission of the church?

7. Why did Stephen forgive his persecutors instead of being angry?

8. Since our bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit, in what way did Stephen's killers already defile the temple?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

[1] Saul began to destroy the church. Going from house to house, he dragged off both men and women and put them in prison. But those who had been scattered preached the word wherever they went.

Prayer: Thank You Father in heaven that You always use everything for good, even when bad things happen, like the death of Stephen. We pray that You help us to walk according to Your plan. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Gather a group, and let each person with their Bible scatter to different spots to preach to others sitting aside, just as the disciples scattered after the death of Stephen.

DAY 301 (October 27)

TOPIC: Saul Persecutes the Saints and the Church

(Acts 8)

Because of the persecution of Christians, believers began to scatter to the lands of Judea, Egypt, Cyprus, Italy, Spain, Caesarea, and Samaria. However, the apostles remained in Jerusalem. People buried Stephen with great mourning. Everything had been going well for these new Christians until the killing of Stephen. Believers faced many hardships, but God also performed many miracles to protect them.

The chief priests did not want this new faith that Christ brought because they saw that the old system was not helping people. To prevent Christianity from spreading, they sought ways to persecute these believers. A man named Saul, who was a member of the Jewish council, entered people's homes and dragged believers—both men and women—throwing them into prison, thinking he was serving God.

During those days, the children of believers suffered because their parents were imprisoned and tortured. However, many who fled to other towns continued to spread the good news of Jesus Christ. The Jews made a mistake by thinking that since they had killed Jesus, the gospel would fail. In fact, the more they persecuted and killed Christians, the more it became a seed that caused many to believe and become even bolder.

This pattern is common in religious persecution. We saw the same thing happen in Uganda and Rwanda—after persecution, there was a spiritual awakening and revival as many people embraced God's work with great zeal.

Philip, who had started serving as a deacon, went to Samaria and preached Christ. The people were eager to listen to him, and miracles happened through him. Evil spirits came out of many who were possessed, and they cried out in loud voices. The lame and the blind were healed, and great joy filled the city of Samaria.

The same people who had once rejected Jesus and refused to welcome Him into their village were now ready to receive His Word. Truly, we know that in all things, God works for the good of those who love Him—those who have been called according to His purpose.

A man named Simon the sorcerer lived in Samaria and earned money through the magic he performed, claiming to be someone great. People, both young and old, followed him. But when Philip came preaching the good news of the Kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, many believed and were baptized—both men and women. This baptism is recorded as the first one outside the land of Judea.

Even Simon himself claimed to believe and was baptized. When he saw the signs and miracles being performed, he was amazed and desired to have that power too because he realized that his magical abilities were weak compared to the power of Philip.

We must understand that Satan's power can never compare to God's power because Satan is merely a created being.

When the apostles in Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the Word of God, they sent Peter and John to them. When they arrived, they prayed for the new believers to receive the Holy Spirit, because although they had been baptized in the name of Jesus, they had not yet received the Holy Spirit. Peter and John laid their hands on them, and they received the Holy Spirit.

When Simon saw that the Holy Spirit was given through the laying on of the apostles' hands, he offered them money, asking to receive the same power so that anyone he laid hands on would receive the Holy Spirit. Poor Simon—he did not even understand who the Holy Spirit truly is.

Peter rebuked him, saying, "May your money perish with you, because you thought you could buy the gift of God with money! You have no part or share in this ministry because your heart is not right before God. Repent of this wickedness and pray to the Lord in the hope that He may forgive you for having such a thought in your heart."

Simon had to repent because he was envious of the gifts God had given to the apostles. However, God does not accept bribes—no one can buy the Holy Spirit with money. Simon replied, "Pray to the Lord for me so that nothing you have said may happen to me."

The apostles and Philip continued preaching the gospel in many villages in Samaria.

The Lord said, "I will also do the thing that you have spoken, for you have found grace in My sight, and I know you by name."

Even the prophet Moses did not stop pleading with God. Every prayer he made was answered, but he still had a deep desire for a greater sign of God's favor. Finally, he made a request that no human had ever made before: "Please, show me Your glory."

Questions:

1. Why did the early believers scatter?

2. Why was the scattering of believers a blessing in some ways?

3. What work did Philip do in the village of Samaria?

4. Why did Peter rebuke Simon?

5. Why is it a sin to be envious of the gifts of others?

6. Why can't the Holy Spirit be bought?

May God bless you, child and youth of Jesus!

[30-32] Then Philip ran up to the chariot and heard the man reading Isaiah the prophet. "Do you understand what you are reading?" Philip asked. "How can I," he said, "unless someone explains it to me?" So he invited Philip to come up and sit with him. This is the passage of Scripture the eunuch was reading: "He was led like a sheep to the slaughter, and as a lamb before its shearer is silent, so He did not open His mouth."

Prayer: Thank You Lord for reaching people of every nation, like the Ethiopian who met Philip. Bring us also to meet people of other nations and help us to share the story of the good news. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Make a scroll using paper. Then let the children or youth sit in a circle and pass the scroll around. Each one should look at it as though reading it. Write on it the passage from Isaiah 53.

DAY 302 (October 28)

TOPIC: Philip and the Ethiopian Eunuch

(Acts 8, Isaiah 53)

While Philip continued his work in Samaria, an angel of the LORD told him to go south to the road that goes down from Jerusalem to Gaza, which is a desert road. Without questioning or arguing, he obeyed. As he traveled, he saw a man from Ethiopia who had journeyed over 1500 kilometers to worship in Jerusalem. This man was a eunuch and a high official in charge of the treasury for Candace, queen of the Ethiopians. These Ethiopians had known the God of Heaven and the Old Testament for many years.

The Ethiopian eunuch was returning to his country, seated in a luxurious chariot, reading from the scroll of the prophet Isaiah. The Holy Spirit told Philip to go closer to the chariot. Philip ran up and heard the man reading aloud from Isaiah. Philip asked him, “Do you understand what you are reading?” The eunuch replied, “How can I, unless someone guides me?” He invited Philip to sit with him in the chariot.

The passage the eunuch was reading was from Isaiah 53, which speaks about the suffering of Jesus and the sacrifice He made as the Lamb of God to take away our sins. It says, “He was led like a sheep to the slaughter, and as a lamb before its shearer is silent, so He did not open His mouth.” (Please read this chapter in your Bible!)

The eunuch asked Philip, “Who is the prophet talking about—himself or someone else?” Eager to understand, the eunuch listened as Philip explained the Scriptures. Philip taught him how the prophecies of the Old Testament were fulfilled in Jesus—His birth, His death for our sins, His resurrection, and His promise to return. Philip also explained the steps to becoming a believer in Jesus, including the importance of baptism, as Jesus had taught Nicodemus about being born of water and the Spirit.

As the chariot continued on, they came to a place where there was water. The eunuch said, “Look, here is water. What prevents me from being baptized right now?” Philip replied, “If you believe with all your heart, you may.” The eunuch answered, “I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God and my Savior.” Filled with love for Jesus and a desire to follow Him completely, the eunuch ordered the chariot to stop.

They both went down into the water, and Philip baptized him. When they came up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord suddenly took Philip away, and the eunuch did not see him again but went on his way rejoicing as the first African missionary, sharing the Good News in his homeland.

Philip, the same man who met the eunuch, had four daughters who prophesied by the power of the Holy Spirit. Even today, some people are baptized after reading the Scriptures at home, but they may need guidance in areas they do not understand. It is good for someone to be thoroughly taught the Scriptures before being baptized. Often, they are asked questions to ensure they understand what they have been taught.

Topics covered in Bible lessons include:

- Why the Bible is the Word of God and should be trusted
- Who Jesus, God, and the Holy Spirit are
- How to understand the Bible
- The judgment day
- Prophecies in Daniel 2
- How Jesus will return
- The great prophecies of the Bible
- God’s love and the truth about hellfire
- The unpardonable sin
- How to find peace in your heart

- Healthy living and lifestyle
- Achieving economic success, and more.

Meanwhile, Saul continued to increase his persecution of the saints, threatening and even killing the Lord's disciples. One day, he approached the high priest for letters of authority to go to Damascus and arrest any followers of Jesus he found and bring them back to Jerusalem. Saul, a Pharisee, became the greatest enemy of the Christians, and everyone feared him.

Questions:

1. Can someone be both a deacon and an evangelist?

2. How did Philip meet the eunuch?

3. What did the Ethiopian eunuch say to Philip when they met?

4. Why did the eunuch return home rejoicing?

5. Why did Saul go to Damascus, Syria?

6. What is the Gospel?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

DAY 303 (October 29)

TOPIC: Saul Encounters Jesus

(Acts 9)

Young Saul was a Pharisee with an extreme and fanatical zeal filled with hatred. He traveled north to Damascus in Syria, about 200 kilometers away, to capture the saints there and bring them back to Jerusalem to persecute and destroy them. The journey took several days, and as he and his companions neared the city, suddenly a bright light, as intense as lightning, shone around him from heaven, and they all stood still.

Saul fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to him, “Saul, Saul, why do you persecute Me?” In confusion, Saul asked, “Who are You, Lord?” The voice answered, “I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting. But get up and go into the city, and you will be told what you must do.”

The men traveling with him stood speechless, hearing the voice but seeing no one. When Saul got up from the ground and opened his eyes, he could not see anything—he was blind. Stumbling and unable to proceed with the threats and violence he had planned, his companions led him by the hand to Damascus.

During those three days without sight, food, or drink, Saul reflected humbly on his wrongdoing. His energy and zeal, once used for evil, transformed into a passion for serving Jesus. Saul had time to reflect and realize that Jesus was indeed the promised Messiah. Before this, he had done terrible things, believing he was serving God. Both the Jews and the Christians were curious to understand what had happened to him.

In Damascus, there was a disciple of Jesus named Ananias. The Lord called to him in a vision, and Ananias answered, “Here I am, Lord.” The Lord instructed him, “Arise and go to Straight Street and inquire at the house of Judas for a man named Saul of Tarsus. He is praying and has seen in a vision that a man named Ananias will come and lay hands on him so that he may regain his sight.”

However, Ananias, knowing how dangerous Saul was, replied, “Lord, I have heard from many about this man and all the harm he has done to Your saints in Jerusalem. He has come here with authority from the chief priests to arrest all who call on Your name.”

But the Lord reassured him, “Go, for he is My chosen instrument to carry My name before Gentiles, kings, and the people of Israel. I will show him how much he must suffer for My name’s sake.”

Ananias obeyed and went to the house. He laid his hands on Saul and said, “Brother Saul, the Lord Jesus, who appeared to you on the road, has sent me so that you may regain your sight and be filled with the Holy Spirit.” Immediately, something like scales fell from Saul’s eyes, and he could see again. He stood up, was baptized, ate some food, and regained his strength.

From that time on, those who had known him began calling him by his Roman name, Paul, meaning “small” or “humble.” Paul stayed with the disciples in Damascus for several days and began to preach boldly in the synagogues that Jesus is the Son of God. All who heard him were astonished and asked, “Isn’t this the man who caused havoc in Jerusalem among those who call on this name? And hasn’t he come here to arrest them and take them to the chief priests?”

Paul grew stronger in his preaching through the power of the Holy Spirit, proving from the Scriptures that Jesus is the Messiah. The Jews who debated with him could not refute his words. The former enemy had become a brother in Christ as soon as his spiritual eyes were opened. Those he had once persecuted were now his fellow believers.

The Jews in Damascus, unable to accept his conversion, conspired to kill him. They kept watch at the city gates day and night to capture him, but Paul learned of their plan. With growing hatred against him, the Lord directed Paul to go to the desert of Arabia for three years, where He personally taught him. There, Paul had time to study the Scriptures, pray, and grow spiritually without interference.

Afterward, Paul returned to Damascus to continue preaching. The Jewish leaders' hatred intensified, forcing his disciples to lower him in a basket through an opening in the city wall to escape. Paul became the apostle to the Gentiles, a bold champion spreading the gospel to the early church.

He undertook four extensive missionary journeys across regions, even though there were no modern means of travel like cars or planes—he traveled on foot and by boat.

When Paul returned to Jerusalem and tried to join the disciples, they were afraid and did not believe he was truly a follower of Christ. However, Barnabas, known as the “Son of Encouragement,” befriended Paul and introduced him to the apostles. He explained how Paul had encountered the Lord on the road and how boldly he had preached in Damascus.

The apostles accepted Paul as one of their own, and he moved freely in Jerusalem, speaking boldly in the name of the Lord. He debated with the Hellenistic Jews, who also tried to kill him. When the believers learned of this, they took him to Caesarea and sent him to his hometown of Tarsus.

Paul continued his ministry, supporting himself by making tents, and spread the gospel to other regions of the world. Despite his education at the finest universities of his time and possibly holding a high position in the Sanhedrin council, Paul counted all his worldly achievements as worthless compared to knowing Christ.

The church throughout Judea, Galilee, and Samaria experienced peace, was strengthened, and grew in numbers, living in the fear of the Lord and the comfort of the Holy Spirit.

Meanwhile, Peter traveled through the region and came to Lydda, where he found a man named Aeneas who had been bedridden for eight years due to paralysis. Peter said to him, “Aeneas, Jesus Christ heals you. Get up and make your bed.” Immediately, Aeneas stood up, and all who lived in Lydda and Sharon turned to the Lord.

On the Mount of Transfiguration, Moses and Elijah—who had been taken up—appeared as bearers of light and glory from the Father to the Son. In that moment, the ancient request of Moses to see the promised land was fulfilled. He stood on that “good mountain” in the land of Israel, bearing witness to Jesus, the fulfillment of all divine promises.

Questions:

1. Why is God displeased with hypocritical religion, hatred, or harming others?

2. Why did Saul go to Damascus?

3. How was Saul converted?

4. Why was Paul lowered in a basket?

5. What was Aeneas’ condition?

6. Why did Paul go to Arabia for three years?

7. How can we persecute Christ today?

8. How can you be a chosen instrument today?

9. What are people called who travel to other countries to preach?

10. Why did Ananias obey the voice of God?

11. If you heard God's voice calling you today, would you respond like Saul?

12. How do you value earthly things compared to heavenly matters? (Philippians 3:8)

May God bless you, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Acts 9:4-6

[4-6] He fell to the ground and heard a voice say to him, "Saul, Saul, why do you persecute Me?" "Who are You, Lord?" Saul asked. "I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting," He replied. "Now get up and go into the city, and you will be told what you must do."

Prayer: Thank You Lord, for showing Your power to change even the hardest of hearts, as You did with Saul. Help us to follow Your voice when You call us. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Explain how God's power has changed even very bad people. Pair children, and blindfold one safely while the other leads them. This illustrates Saul's blindness on the road to Damascus and how Jesus showed him the right way, bringing him to a new path of sight.

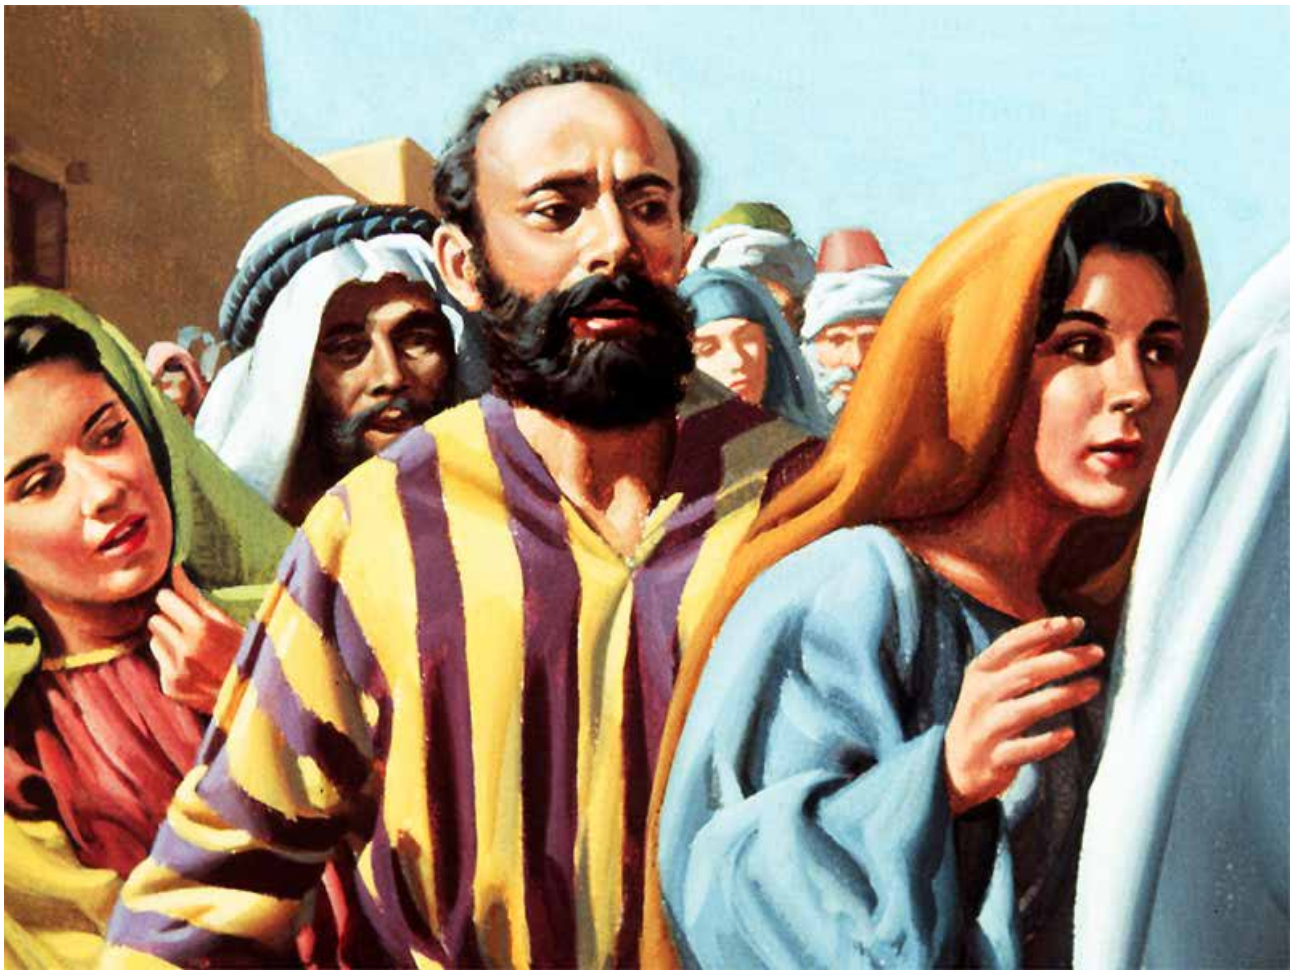
DAY 304. (October 30)

TOPIC: Tabitha or Dorcas, the Kind Woman, is Raised to Life.

(Acts 10)

Near Joppa, there was a devout woman who was a disciple of Jesus, named Tabitha or Dorcas, which means "gazelle." She was full of good works and acts of charity. It is possible that Tabitha was gentle like a gazelle and quick to help those in need, showing compassion and providing comfort to others. There are many ways to assist people—offering hospitality to strangers, sewing clothes for orphans, cleaning the homes of the elderly, caring for the sick in hospitals, visiting those in prison, comforting a lonely widow, helping a blind person cross the road, or teaching someone to read. Tabitha did these acts with kindness, a cheerful spirit, and love.

The church valued her greatly, and anyone in need would turn to her for help. We do not know what illness she had—whether it was an infection or a chronic disease—but she became seriously sick and died. After washing her body, they laid it in an upper room. At that time, and even today, it was common for Jews to bury the dead on the same day.



Since Lydda was near Joppa, the disciples, upon hearing that Peter was nearby, sent two men to urge him to come quickly. When Peter arrived, he was led upstairs where the widows stood weeping. They showed him the tunics and garments that Dorcas had made for them while she was alive.

Peter asked everyone to leave the room. Then, kneeling down, he prayed.

Turning to the dead body, he said, “Tabitha, arise!” She opened her eyes, and when she saw Peter, she sat up. She was surprised to see this famous apostle beside her. Peter gave her his hand, helped her stand up, and called the saints and widows to present her alive.

This miracle became known throughout Joppa, and many people believed in the Lord. Peter stayed in Joppa for several days with Simon, a tanner. Tabitha, with her spirit of service, did not sit idly by after being raised; she continued to care for and serve others.

The people were overjoyed because their helper, “Lady Gazelle,” was alive again to continue her ministry. Indeed, serving others is a great blessing. Today’s lesson teaches us not to be lazy or waste our time playing all day, expecting others to serve us. Even if we have household workers, we should still learn to serve others and use our resources to help those in need.

Peter had compassion for the widows and the poor and wanted to assist them. The early church was filled with the good news of Jesus Christ. The miracles and signs performed by the apostles through the power Jesus gave them were real. Even today, we are given that same power to do the works of Jesus. As we approach the second coming of Jesus, we will see even greater signs, for the Holy Spirit will be poured out abundantly.

Hannah was a Woman of Prayer.
Hannah did not blame her husband for their difficult marriage situation. Instead, she took her sorrow, which she could not share with any earthly friend, to her Heavenly Father and sought comfort from Him, who said, “Call upon Me in the day of trouble, and I will deliver you.” There is great power in prayer.

Our greatest enemy, Satan, constantly tries to separate troubled hearts from God. Yet, the humble prayer of a saint is more frightening to Satan than the decrees of earthly rulers or the commands of kings.

Questions:

1. What does the name Tabitha mean?

2. Why did people love Tabitha?

3. What did Peter say to Tabitha?

4. What kind of service do you think you can begin to do?

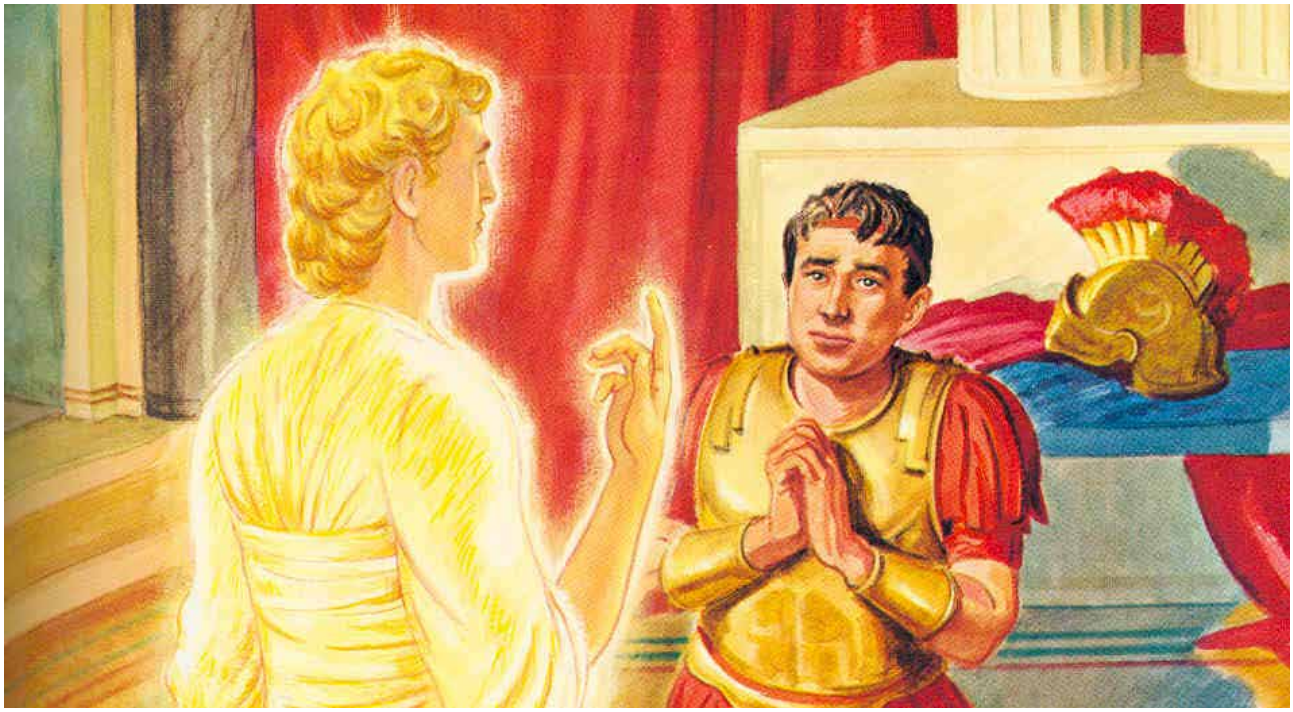
5. What did people say when they saw Tabitha alive again?

6. Why do we feel joy and encouragement when we do good deeds for others?

May God bless you, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Acts 19:17

[17] Whoever is kind to the poor lends to the Lord, and He will reward them for what they have done.



Prayer: Thank You Father in heaven. Help us to care for the poor, widows, orphans, and those in need. We thank You today for providing us with food, clothing, shelter, and all our needs. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Involve children in blessing others by collecting items and distributing them to those in need. Use scissors and paper to cut out different shapes of clothing, etc.

DAY 305 (October 31)

TOPIC: Cornelius of the Gentiles – His Prayers Were Heard

(Acts 10)

There was a man in Caesarea of Rome named Cornelius, a centurion of the Italian Regiment. Today, our armies would call him a captain. Unlike the Romans who worshipped idols, he was a devout and God-fearing man along with his entire household. He gave generously to the poor and prayed to God regularly. One day, at about three in the afternoon, he had a clear vision. An angel of God came to him and called, "Cornelius!"

Cornelius stared at the angel in fear and asked, "What is it, Lord?" The angel answered, "Your prayers and gifts to the poor have come up as a memorial offering before God. He has not forgotten you. Surely, God pays attention to your prayers and offerings!"

Our possessions, time, and the entertainment we engage in reflect the condition of our hearts. Just as we saw with the widow who gave two small coins and was commended, here we see a soldier receiving encouragement. Many people in the military serve the God of heaven, which is why the army has a chaplaincy to minister to them. Soldiers who defend their countries while upholding justice often live out the Bible verse: ‘Greater love has no one than this: to lay down one’s life for one’s friends.’ (John 15:13)

The angel continued and instructed Cornelius to send men to Joppa to bring back Simon, who is called Peter. Peter was staying as a guest with Simon the tanner, whose house was by the sea. The angel departed, and Cornelius immediately called two of his household servants and a devout soldier who attended him regularly. He told them everything that had happened and sent them to Joppa.

They traveled overnight, covering approximately 45 kilometers. Around noon the next day, as they approached the city, Peter went up on the rooftop to pray. He became very hungry and wanted something to eat. While the meal was being prepared, he fell into a trance.

In his vision, Peter saw heaven open and something like a large sheet being let down to earth by its four corners. It contained all kinds of four-footed animals—creatures like octopuses, crabs, rats, dogs, snakes, donkeys, turtles, ostriches, pigs, snails, bears, kangaroos, hippopotamuses, elephants, rabbits, and others. He also saw reptiles and birds such as owls, eagles, crows, bats, millipedes, and more.

A voice said to him, “Get up, Peter. Kill and eat.”

Knowing that these animals were considered unclean, Peter replied, “Surely not, Lord! I have never eaten anything impure or unclean.”

The voice spoke to him a second time, “Do not call anything impure that God has made clean.”

This happened three times, and then the sheet was taken back to heaven.

Peter was puzzled, wondering what the vision meant. At that very moment, the men sent by Cornelius arrived at Simon’s house, asking if Peter was staying there. While Peter was still thinking about the vision, the Spirit said to him, “Three men are looking for you. Get up and go downstairs. Do not hesitate to go with them, for I have sent them.”

Peter went down and said to them, “I am the one you are looking for. Why have you come?”

They replied, “Cornelius the centurion, a righteous and God-fearing man who is respected by all the Jewish people, was directed by a holy angel to invite you to his house so that he may hear what you have to say."

Peter invited the men into the house to be his guests. The next day, Peter set out with them, accompanied by six other brothers from Joppa. The following day, they arrived in Caesarea, where Cornelius was expecting them. He had gathered his relatives and close friends to hear the message.

It is a good thing to invite your family and friends to hear the good news of the Gospel so that they may not perish but have eternal life. Often, we think loving our family means only providing for their physical needs, but this is a mistake. The greatest need of every person is to know Jesus and have eternal life.

Can you walk 10 kilometers in a day? Start practicing—it will help you as a missionary of the Lord to be active and not lazy!

When Peter entered the house, Cornelius met him and fell at his feet in reverence. But Peter made him get up. "Stand up," he said, "I am only a man myself."

As he talked with him, Peter went inside and found a large gathering of people. He said to them, "You are well aware that it is against our law for a Jew to associate with or visit a Gentile. But God has shown me that I should not call anyone impure or unclean. So when I was sent for, I came without raising any objection. May I ask why you sent for me?"

Cornelius explained what had happened. "Three days ago, at this exact hour—three in the afternoon—I was in my house praying. Suddenly, a man in shining clothes stood before me and said, 'Cornelius, your prayer has been heard, and your gifts to the poor have been remembered before God.' He told me to send for you, Simon Peter, who is staying by the sea at Simon the tanner's house. I immediately sent for you, and it was good of you to come. Now we are all here in the presence of God to listen to everything the Lord has commanded you to tell us."

These people were eager and ready to listen and obey God's will.

Nehemiah's Prayers Were Strengthened by a Firm Purpose
There is a need for Nehemiah-like figures in the church today—not just people who can pray and preach, but those whose prayers and sermons are reinforced by a firm and passionate purpose.

Questions to Consider:

1. What did the angel say to Cornelius?

2. What vision did Peter have?

3. Why do angels refuse to be worshipped?

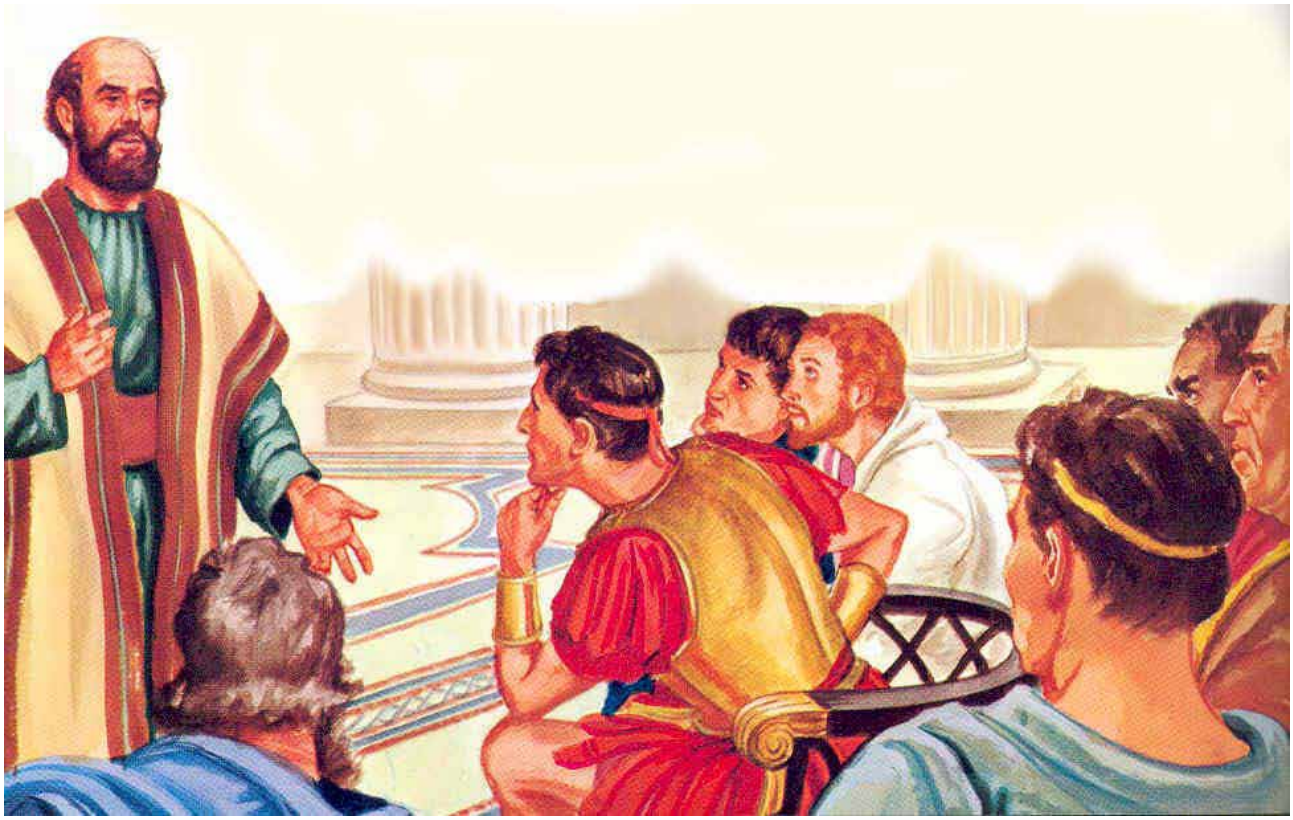
4. What should we do for God to hear our prayers?

5. How did Peter learn that God is not only for one nation?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Acts 10:4

[4] Cornelius stared at him in fear. "What is it, Lord?" he asked. The angel answered, "Your prayers and gifts to the poor have come up as a memorial offering before God."



Prayer: Thank You so much Father for bringing us people of different ranks and positions to reach. Help us to share the gospel with the wealthy, the powerful, and those in high positions, for You also reached people of every kind. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Discuss how the gospel can reach wealthy people, those with influence, or leaders in government or even in houses of worship.

DAY 306 (November 1)

TOPIC: Truly, God Shows No Favoritism

(Acts 10)

Then Peter opened his mouth and said, "Truly, I understand that God shows no favoritism, but in every nation, anyone who fears Him and does what is right is acceptable to Him." He spoke about the word that God sent to the people of Israel, preaching the good news of peace through Jesus Christ—He is Lord of all. You know what happened throughout Judea, beginning in Galilee after the baptism John preached—how God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Spirit and power, and how He went about doing good and healing all who were oppressed by the devil, because God was with Him.

Peter said they were witnesses who saw, heard, and touched Him. They lived with Him for three and a half years, and the Jews in Jerusalem killed Him by hanging Him on a tree. He died, but God raised Him on the third day and allowed Him to be seen—not by all the people but by witnesses chosen by God, like Peter and others. These witnesses ate and drank with Him after He rose from the dead. Peter said that Jesus commanded them to preach to the people and to testify that He is the one appointed by God to judge the living and the dead. All the prophets testify about Him, and through His name, everyone who believes in Him receives forgiveness of sins.

While Peter was still speaking these words, the Holy Spirit fell on all who heard the message. The Jewish believers who had come with Peter were amazed that the gift of the Holy Spirit had been poured out even on the Gentiles. They heard them speaking in different tongues and praising God. Indeed, God is for all people—not just for a particular tribe, nation, race, family, or language. Peter said, “Can anyone forbid water that these should not be baptized who have received the Holy Spirit just as we have?”

So, he commanded them to be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ. Then they asked him to stay with them for a few days after the baptism. The apostles and other Jewish believers heard that the Gentiles had also received the word of God. When Peter returned to Jerusalem, the Jewish believers criticized him, saying, “You entered the house of uncircumcised men and ate with them.” Peter explained everything to them from the beginning—his vision, his journey, his meeting with Cornelius, and how the Holy Spirit was poured out, even enabling them to speak in tongues.
Peter then recalled how his Master, John the Baptist, had baptized with water for repentance, but they were given the baptism of the Holy Spirit. He concluded by asking, “If God gave them the same gift He gave us who believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I to think that I could stand in God’s way?” When the Jewish believers heard this, they had no further objections and praised God, saying, “So then, even to the Gentiles, God has granted repentance that leads to life.” The belief that a Gentile could not enter a Jew’s house or receive God’s Spirit was destroyed.

Peter was a devout believer who had never eaten unclean animals like bears, lions, pigs, crabs, rats, cats, or donkeys. While he was a disciple of Jesus, he observed that Jesus and the other disciples did not eat such things, which is why he was puzzled by the vision. But when he was called to the Gentiles, he realized that God’s message was not about eating unhealthy animals, but about extending love and sharing the good news of the kingdom with Romans and all people so they would not perish but have eternal life.

At creation, God gave humanity plants for food (Genesis 1:29). After sin and the flood, vegetation was scarce, and God allowed Noah and his family to eat clean animals that would not harm their health, with specific instructions on how to use them. Noah did not eat unclean animals on the ark—if he had, those species would not exist today because there were only two of each. Even for clean animals, there were restrictions—God commanded that they should not eat fat or blood (Leviticus 11).

Every morning, take time to begin your day with prayer. Do not think of it as wasting time—it is time invested for eternity. This practice brings success and spiritual victory. Your body will respond to the touch of the Great Master. Seeking God's blessing is worthwhile, and no work can be done properly without a right beginning.

Questions:

1. What does it mean that God shows no favoritism?

2. What would happen if God were as partial as humans?

3. Why were the Jews amazed when the Holy Spirit came upon the Gentiles?

4. Why were the Gentiles baptized after believing in Christ?

5. Why did Peter refuse to oppose God?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Acts 10:34-36

[34-36] Then Peter began to speak: "I now realize how true it is that God does not show favoritism but accepts from every nation the one who fears Him and does what is right. You know the message God sent to the people of Israel, announcing the good news of peace through Jesus Christ, who is Lord of all."

Prayer: Thank You Lord in heaven. Surely You do not show favoritism, You love everyone regardless of their nation. Help us to preach the good news to all nations. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Bring toys or pictures of animals such as dogs, crocodiles, lions, goats, and other clean and unclean animals. One person asks another if they should eat a certain animal, and the other answers yes or no based on whether it is clean or unclean. You may also draw clean and unclean animals.

DAY 307 (November 2)

TOPIC: Peter is freed from prison by an Angel

(Acts 11-12)

The believers who were scattered after the persecution following Stephen's martyrdom continued to travel to Phoenicia, Cyprus, Antioch, Cyrene, and other places, preaching the Word of God—but only to the Jews. They remained united and supportive of one another, ensuring that no one was in need or faced hardship without help. However, the Jews who thought the desire to preach Jesus would fade continued to persecute the new believers and disciples of Jesus, with hearts hardened like stone and eyes blinded to the truth. The hand of God continued to sustain these new Christians, and even those who once thought believing in Jesus was madness joined them.

When people from the islands of Cyprus and Cyrene arrived in Antioch, Syria, they boldly shared the Good News with the Greek-speaking Jews. The Lord's hand was with them, and a great number of people turned to the Lord. News of these happenings reached the church in Jerusalem, and they sent Barnabas (Barsabbas), the "son of encouragement," to Antioch. When he arrived and saw the grace of God transforming people and bringing many to faith, he encouraged them to remain faithful to the Lord with all their hearts.

Barnabas was a good man, full of the Holy Spirit and faith, and through his work, many people were brought to the Lord. He then went to Tarsus to find Saul and brought him to Antioch. For a whole year, they met with the church and taught many people. This marked the beginning of a long partnership between Paul and Barnabas, working together among people from various nations. Seeing the love and dedication of Barnabas and Paul as they preached Christ, the people of Antioch began calling the followers of Jesus "Christians" for the first time, meaning followers of Jesus Christ. Today, as followers of Jesus Christ, we imitate His character and walk in His footsteps.

It was in Antioch that the Greek word "Christos" began to be used, meaning "Messiah" in Hebrew. This term signifies the Anointed One or God's Chosen One. Even today, we are called Christians when we accept and believe in Jesus as the Lord who died on the cross for our salvation and rose again. We cannot be true Christians without following Christ with all our hearts—He is the foundation and cornerstone of our faith. In the past, many did not know Him, but He came, lived among people, and revealed Himself. Even today, some do not know Him. Let us, with love and compassion, share these truths with others because eternal life comes from knowing the only true God and Jesus Christ, whom He sent (John 17:3). Faith comes by hearing the Word of God, and everyone is given a measure of faith. When we genuinely love people, we do not want them to be lost on Judgment Day.

During that time, prophets went to Antioch, and one of them, named Agabus, stood up and foretold by the Holy Spirit that a severe famine would strike the entire Roman world. This happened during the reign of Emperor Claudius. The disciples, each according to their ability, decided to send help to the believers living in Judea, and they sent their gifts through Barnabas and Saul.

Around that time, King Herod Agrippa I, the grandson of Herod the Great (who killed the children in Bethlehem) and the nephew of Herod Antipas (who beheaded John the Baptist), began to persecute some members of the church. He ordered the execution of James, the brother of John—one of the "Sons of Thunder"—by the sword. This occurred about ten years after Jesus' ascension. When Herod saw that the Jewish leaders were pleased, he continued to persecute the believers and arrested Peter during the Passover festival, intending to present him to the people and execute him afterward.

Peter was imprisoned, guarded by four squads of soldiers. As Peter lay asleep between two soldiers, bound with two chains, with sentries guarding the prison doors, the church earnestly prayed to God for him. The night before Herod planned to bring him to trial, an angel of the Lord appeared, and a light shone in the cell. The angel struck Peter on the side, woke him up, and said, "Quick, get up!" The chains fell off Peter's wrists. The angel instructed him to dress, put on his sandals, and follow him.

Peter followed the angel, not realizing that what was happening was real—he thought he was having a vision. They passed the first and second guards and came to the iron gate leading to the city, which opened by itself. They went through, and the angel suddenly left him. Realizing what had happened, Peter said, "Now I know without a doubt that the Lord sent His angel to rescue me from Herod's clutches and from everything the Jewish people were expecting."

Peter went to the house of Mary, the mother of John Mark, where many believers were gathered in prayer. When he knocked at the door, a servant girl named Rhoda answered. Recognizing Peter's voice, she was so overjoyed that she ran back to tell the others, forgetting to open the door. The believers, although praying for Peter's release, did not believe her, saying, "You are out of your mind." Others thought it was Peter's angel. Peter continued knocking, and when they opened the door, they were astonished. He motioned for them to be quiet and described how the Lord had brought him out of prison.

The next morning, there was great confusion among the soldiers about Peter's disappearance. Herod, after searching and failing to find Peter, ordered the guards to be executed. Peter left Judea and stayed elsewhere to continue preaching.

Later, Herod quarreled with the people of Tyre and Sidon, who depended on him for food. On the appointed day, Herod dressed in royal robes and delivered a public address. The people shouted, "This is the voice of a god, not of a man!" Because Herod did not give glory to God, an angel of the Lord struck him down, and he was eaten by worms and died. Despite persecution, the Word of God continued to spread and flourish.

When following Christ, if you keep your eyes on Him, the Author and Finisher of your faith, you will feel His presence, knowing that He sees your every intention. At every step, you should humbly ask, "Does this please Jesus? Does it glorify God?" Morning and evening prayers should ascend to God for His guidance and blessings. True prayer relies on the Almighty and brings victory. A Christian on their knees gains strength to overcome temptations.

Questions:

1. What is the work of the church?

2. How do you know if your church is fulfilling its mission?

3. How did Peter escape from prison?

4. Who was the first apostle to die for Christ?

5. Why did Herod's stomach decay?

6. What should you do if people praise you like they praised Herod?

7. Why did Herod kill the apostle James?

8. How can we avoid "stomach decay" today?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

DAY 308 (November 3)

TOPIC: The Jews Reject the Gospel, Christianity Goes to the Gentiles.

(Acts 13-14)

When Barnabas and Saul finished their ministry, they returned to Jerusalem. From there, they took John Mark and went to Antioch, approximately 350 kilometers away, where they were sent as the first missionaries. In Antioch, there were Christian prophets and teachers, including Barnabas, Simeon called Niger (a black man), Lucius of Cyrene (a North African from Libya), Manaen (who was brought up with King Herod), and Paul.

While they worshiped and fasted, the Holy Spirit instructed them to set apart Barnabas and Saul for the work He had called them to do. The believers laid hands on them and sent them off. Laying hands symbolized asking God to give them special blessings for His work and showed the church's support for their mission. Led by the Spirit, they traveled to Seleucia and then to the island of Cyprus. In Salamis, they preached in Jewish synagogues, accompanied by John Mark.

Travel during those days was difficult—there were no trains, cars, airplanes, or fast ships. The apostles walked on foot and sailed on boats to spread the gospel to many. Paul undertook three major missionary journeys, visiting various cities (see the map), with a fourth journey taking him to Rome.

During their missionary work, the apostles faced many hardships because Satan uses anyone willing to hinder God's work. When they reached Paphos, they encountered a false Jewish sorcerer named Bar-Jesus (or Elymas). This man was an attendant of the local governor, Sergius Paulus, a man of intelligence. The governor invited Barnabas and Saul because he wanted to hear the word of God and be saved, but Bar-Jesus opposed them, trying to prevent the governor from believing and distorting the message.

Filled with the Holy Spirit, Paul stared at Bar-Jesus and said, "You are full of deceit and trickery, a child of the devil and an enemy of everything that is right! Will you never stop perverting the straight paths of the Lord? Now the hand of the Lord is against you. You will be blind and unable to see the sun for a time." Immediately, Bar-Jesus became blind and needed someone to lead him by the hand. Seeing this, the governor believed and was amazed at the teachings about the Lord.

From this point in the book of Acts, Saul began to be called Paul, a name he retained throughout his ministry.

Paul and his companions sailed from Paphos to Perga in Pamphylia. At this point, John Mark, weary from the hardships of unpaid missionary work, the dangers, and the suffering, left them and returned to Jerusalem. Paul and Barnabas continued to Antioch in Pisidia, where they entered the synagogue on the Sabbath.

After the reading of the Law and the Prophets, the synagogue rulers invited them to speak if they had any encouraging message for the people. Paul stood up and began to speak, explaining that Jesus is the promised Messiah. He recounted the history of Israel, mentioning the patriarchs Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, the exodus from Egypt, and the forty years in the wilderness.

He described how God defeated seven nations in Canaan, giving the Israelites their land after 430 years, and how God provided judges until the prophet Samuel. Then, Israel demanded a king, and God gave them Saul, followed by David, a man after God's own heart who fulfilled His will. Paul emphasized that Jesus, a descendant of David, is the Savior God promised.

Paul further explained how John the Baptist prepared the way by preaching a baptism of repentance and that the people of Jerusalem and their leaders failed to recognize Jesus as the Messiah. Although Pilate found no fault in Him, they condemned Him to death and laid Him in a tomb. But God raised Him from the dead on the third day, and He appeared to many witnesses over forty days.

Paul declared that through Jesus, forgiveness of sins is proclaimed and that everyone who believes in Him is justified—a righteousness the Law of Moses could not provide. He warned them not to reject the message, quoting Habakkuk 1:5, which says, "Look, you scoffers, and be amazed and perish, for I am doing something in your days that you would never believe, even if someone told you."

The people were so moved that they invited Paul and Barnabas to speak again the following Sabbath. On that day, almost the entire city gathered to hear the word of the Lord. While many Gentiles and God-fearing converts believed, some Jews became jealous and opposed Paul's message, speaking abusively against him.

Paul and Barnabas boldly declared, “We had to speak the word of God to you first. But since you reject it and do not consider yourselves worthy of eternal life, we now turn to the Gentiles. For this is what the Lord has commanded us: ‘I have made you a light for the Gentiles, that you may bring salvation to the ends of the earth.’”

The Gentiles rejoiced and honored the word of the Lord, and many who were appointed for eternal life believed. However, some Jews stirred up persecution against Paul and Barnabas, expelling them from the region. The apostles shook the dust from their feet as a testimony against them and moved on to Iconium. Despite the opposition, the disciples were filled with joy and the Holy Spirit.

Take time each day for prayer
Those who put on the full armor of God, pray regularly, and study the Scriptures will be connected with heaven and have an influence that leads others to salvation. Great thoughts, noble aspirations, and clear understanding of truth and duty toward God will become theirs. They will long for purity of heart, light, love, and the grace of heaven. Their earnest prayers will reach the throne of God, and they will experience His divine presence.

Questions:

1. Why did Bar-Jesus become blind?

2. Why were Paul and Barnabas set apart by the laying on of hands?

3. Why did the apostles shake the dust from their feet?

4. What lesson can we learn from John Mark?

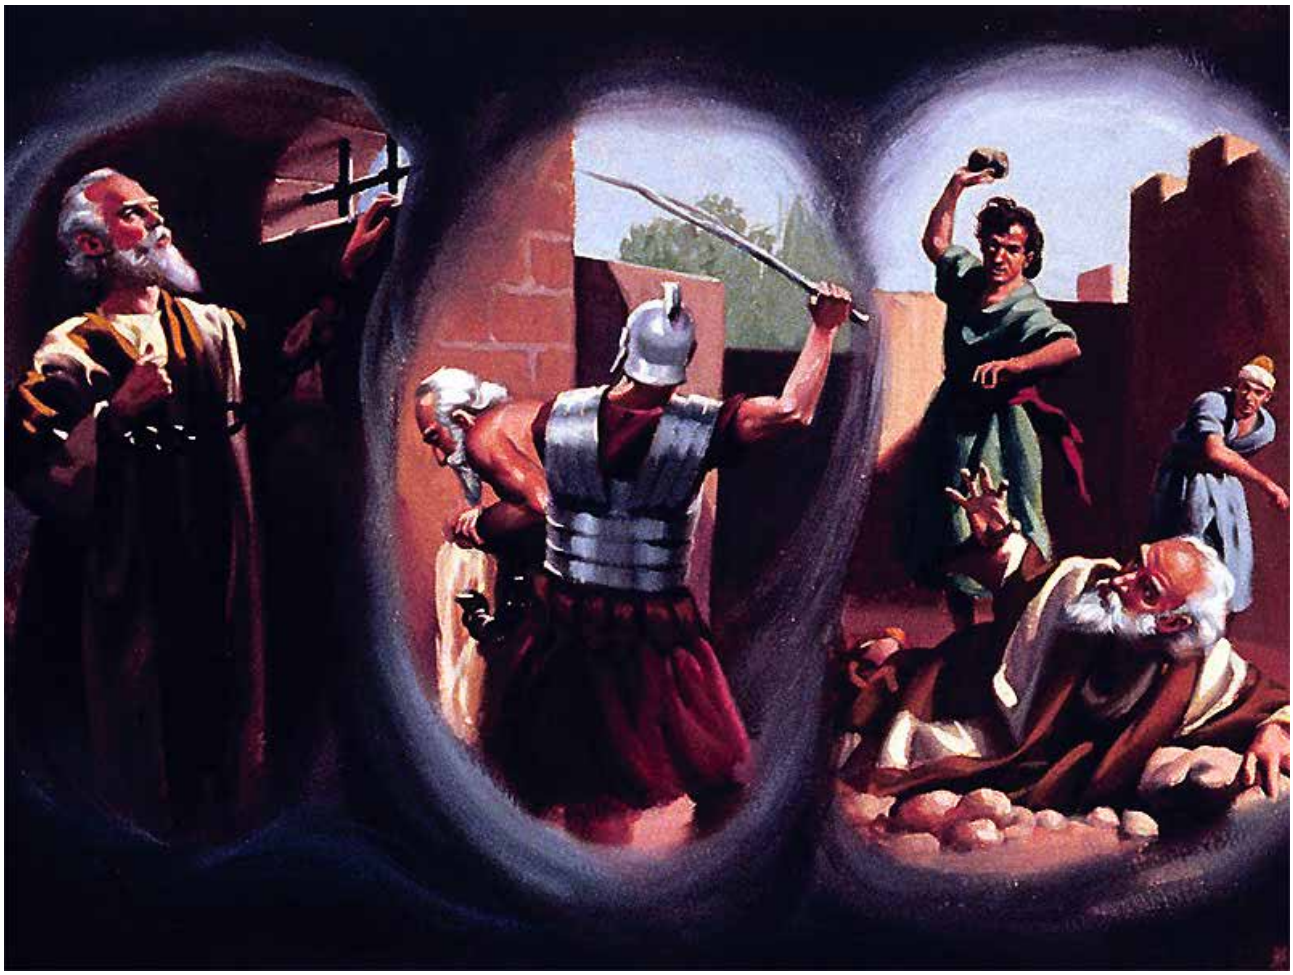
5. Why did Paul frequently recount the history of the Jews?

6. Why did the believers send Barnabas to Antioch?

God bless you, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Acts 13:47-49

[47-49] For this is what the Lord has commanded us: "'I have made you a light for the Gentiles, that you may bring salvation to the ends of the earth.'" When the Gentiles heard this, they were glad and honored the word of the Lord; and all who were appointed for eternal life believed. The word of the Lord spread through the whole region.



Prayer: Thank You so much Lord, for You did not care only for those written about in the Bible, but we also are Your chosen people. Help us to live by every word that comes from You. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Use drawing materials to make a map of Paul's first missionary journey and color it.

DAY 309 (November 4)

TOPIC: Paul is Stoned at Lystra

(Acts 14)

When they arrived in Iconium, they did as they had done in Antioch—they entered the synagogue. A large group of Jews and Greeks believed. However, the Jews who refused to believe stirred up the Gentiles and poisoned their minds against the preachers of the gospel. Everywhere there are people who create disturbances and difficulties for the work of God.

Paul and Barnabas stayed there, speaking boldly the Word of the grace of the LORD Jesus Christ. God allowed signs and wonders to be performed through them. The people were divided—some sided with the Jews and others with the apostles. The Jews incited a mob to stone them. These preachers fled to Derbe, Lystra, Lycaonia, and the surrounding regions, where they continued to preach the gospel. These were the first European regions they reached.

In Lystra, there was a man who had been crippled from birth and had never walked. When he heard Paul preaching, he paid close attention. Paul looked at him intently and, seeing that he had faith to be healed, said in a loud voice, “Stand up on your feet!” The man jumped up and began to walk.

When the crowd saw what Paul had done, they were amazed and said in their local language, “The gods have come down to us in human form!” They called Barnabas “Zeus” because he appeared regal, and Paul “Hermes” because he was the chief speaker. Without Paul and Barnabas knowing, the people brought bulls and garlands to the city gates, intending to offer sacrifices to them.

When the apostles heard about this, they tore their clothes and ran into the crowd, shouting, “Why are you doing this? We are human beings just like you. We bring you good news, urging you to turn away from these worthless things to the living God, who made the heavens, the earth, the sea, and everything in them. In the past, He let all nations go their own way, but He did not leave Himself without testimony—He gave you rain from heaven, crops in their seasons, and provided you with plenty of food and filled your hearts with joy.” With these words, they barely stopped the crowd from sacrificing to them.

However, Jews from Antioch and Iconium arrived and persuaded the crowd to stone Paul. They dragged him out of the city, thinking he was dead, and left. The disciples gathered around Paul, and in a miraculous moment, he stood up and returned to the city. The next day, he and Barnabas went to Derbe.

In Derbe, they preached the gospel and gained many disciples for Jesus. Afterward, they returned to Lystra, Iconium, and Antioch, strengthening the believers and encouraging them to remain firm in their faith. They taught them that every believer must go through many hardships to enter the Kingdom of God.

In each church they established, they appointed elders to oversee and care for the congregation, committing them to the LORD through prayer and fasting. Paul later wrote pastoral letters to Timothy and Titus, who shepherded these churches. These letters should be read by every pastor, member, and believer to understand how to walk in the way of Christ.

Paul and Barnabas continued their journey, preaching in the cities of Pisidia, Pamphylia, Perga, and Attalia. From there, they returned to Antioch, where they had been commended to the grace of God for the work they had now completed.

At Antioch, they gathered the believers and reported all that God had done through them, including how He had opened the door of faith to the Gentiles. They stayed there for a while.

The work of Paul and Barnabas was filled with tremendous hardships. This work was only possible through God's grace—their faith and love for God and people. Their boldness is the reason the gospel has reached us here in Africa today. Let us pray that we also receive that same passion and desire to share the good news with others.

Reflection:
Theoretical knowledge without practical action is not enough; neither is mere activity without a spiritual foundation sufficient. Both are essential in forming a Christ-like character. The power found in sincere, private prayer prepares us to withstand the temptations and pressures of the world.

Yet, we should not isolate ourselves from the world, for our Christian experience must be a light to those around us. Unbelievers will not harm us if we interact with them for the purpose of leading them to God while maintaining spiritual strength to resist their influence.

Questions:

1. Why must we enter the Kingdom of God through many hardships?

2. What did Barnabas and Paul do when the people gave them the names of their gods?

3. What did the people say when the crippled man at Lystra was healed?

4. What happened to Paul at Lystra?

5. Which letter of Paul did not address problems but was instead a letter of praise and encouragement?

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus.

Key Text: Acts 14:22-23

[22,23] Strengthening the disciples and encouraging them to remain true to the faith. "We must go through many hardships to enter the kingdom of God," they said. Paul and Barnabas appointed elders for them in each church and, with prayer and fasting, committed them to the Lord, in whom they had put their trust.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for the ministry of those who were appointed by the laying on of hands. Help us to remain steadfast in prayer, for we must enter the kingdom of God through many hardships. Remind us never to forget to pray. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: In a dramatization, act out the service of choosing church elders and laying hands on them.

DAY 310 (November 6)

TOPIC: A Song in Prison

(Acts 16)

Paul arrived at Derbe and Lystra in Europe, where there was a believer named Timothy. His mother was a Jewish believer, but his father was Greek. Timothy was well spoken of by other believers for his good character and spiritual devotion. Paul invited him to join his missionary journey and circumcised him to avoid offending the Jews. Timothy became a beloved spiritual son to Paul in Christ.

As they traveled through the cities, Paul and his companions delivered letters from the council of apostles and instructions for those who needed to be arrested. The churches were strengthened in their faith, and their numbers grew daily. They passed through Phrygia and Galatia but were forbidden by the Holy Spirit to preach in Asia or Bithynia. After traveling through Mysia, they arrived at Troas.

At this time, Luke, the beloved physician, had joined them. He may have been a helpful companion, especially in matters of health. While in Troas, Paul had a vision during the night of a man from Macedonia in Greece, standing and pleading with him, saying, “Come over to Macedonia and help us.”

Convinced that God had called them to preach the gospel there, they immediately set sail. They traveled from Troas to Samothrace and then to Neapolis. From there, they went to Philippi, a major city in Macedonia and a Roman colony. They stayed there for several days. On the Sabbath, they went outside the city to a riverside, thinking it was a place of prayer, and they spoke with the women gathered there.

One of these women was named Lydia, a seller of purple cloth from the city of Thyatira, and a worshiper of God. She listened carefully to Paul's words because the Lord had opened her heart. She and her household were baptized, and she urged the apostles to stay at her home, saying, "If you have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come to my house and stay." Her persistent invitation revealed her sincerity and hospitality.

Some people invite others without genuine intention, simply to appear welcoming, but Lydia's invitation was genuine. Welcoming those who bring the message of God is a blessing. This applies especially to those who work without pay, like the pastors and missionaries of that time. However, those who are welcomed should not burden their hosts or expect special treatment.

The book Testimonies to Ministers and Gospel Workers warns against ministers who visit homes and expect their hosts to wash their clothes, gather firewood, cook special meals, and perform other burdensome tasks. Evangelism is not a vacation or a time to impose on others while enjoying oneself. Everyone should be willing to engage in manual labor. Even Paul, despite having advanced theological education, worked as a tentmaker to support himself.

Lydia was the person Paul had seen in his vision, asking for help in Macedonia.

One day, as they were going to the place of prayer, a slave girl with a spirit of divination met them. She earned a lot of money for her masters by fortune-telling. She followed Paul and his companions, crying out, "These men are servants of the Most High God, who are telling you the way to be saved." This continued for many days, disrupting their preaching.

Although her words were true, Paul was troubled because her shouting created confusion, preventing people from hearing God's message. This girl was under the power of darkness, which is like a severe illness. Out of compassion, Paul turned to her and commanded the spirit, "In the name of Jesus Christ, come out of her!" Instantly, the spirit left her.

Even today, seeking guidance from fortune-tellers or astrologers is a sin. Only God knows the future. Fortune-tellers work under the kingdom of darkness, even though they may say some true things. However, knowing the future through these means does not benefit us—only God can provide true guidance and peace.

When the girl's masters realized their hope of profit was gone, they seized Paul and Silas and dragged them to the marketplace before the authorities. They accused them, saying, "These Jews are disturbing our city and promoting customs that are unlawful for us Romans to adopt or observe."

The crowd joined in attacking them, and the magistrates ordered Paul and Silas to be stripped and beaten with rods. After being severely flogged, they were thrown into prison, and the jailer was instructed to guard them securely. He put them in the inner cell and fastened their feet in stocks.

Despite their suffering, Paul and Silas did not complain. Instead, they prayed and sang hymns to God, and the other prisoners listened. Around midnight, a great earthquake shook the prison, opening all the doors and loosening everyone's chains.

The jailer woke up, and when he saw the prison doors open, he drew his sword to kill himself, assuming the prisoners had escaped. But Paul shouted, "Do not harm yourself! We are all here."

The jailer called for lights, rushed in, and fell trembling before Paul and Silas. He brought them out and asked, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?"

They replied, "Believe in the Lord Jesus, and you will be saved—you and your household." They shared the word of the Lord with him and his family. That very night, the jailer washed their wounds, and he and his entire household were baptized. He then brought them into his home, fed them, and rejoiced because he and his household had come to believe in God.

When morning came, the magistrates sent orders to release Paul and Silas. However, Paul protested, saying, "They beat us publicly without a trial, even though we are Roman citizens, and now they want to release us secretly? No! Let them come themselves and escort us out."

The authorities, realizing they had wronged Roman citizens, were frightened. They apologized, escorted Paul and Silas out of prison, and requested them to leave the city. Before leaving, Paul and Silas visited Lydia to encourage the believers, and then they departed.

The word of God protects us from sin, although sin itself can lead us to avoid the word of God.

Daily Prayer Is Needed to Resist Satan

Sanctification is not a one-time event but a continual growth in grace. Satan is active and persistent, and we must daily seek God's help to resist him. As long as Satan exists, we must continually deny selfishness and confront challenges. There is no point where we can rely on our own strength—we always need God's assistance.

Questions:

1. How did Paul meet his spiritual son, Timothy?

2. Where was Paul when he received the vision to go to Macedonia?

3. How did Paul meet Lydia and her companions in Philippi?

4. How was Lydia a blessing to the mission work?

5. Why is it wrong to leave someone sick or possessed, or to exploit them for profit?

6. What happened when Paul and Silas were imprisoned?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Acts 16:25-26

[25,26] About midnight Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns to God, and the other prisoners were listening to them. Suddenly there was such a violent earthquake that the foundations of the prison were shaken. At once all the prison doors flew open, and everyone's chains came loose.

Prayer: Thank You so much for the story of Paul and Silas. They gave us a good example of singing praises to You even though they were in great trouble in prison. Give us the same spirit. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Take a thin rope or toilet paper and wrap it around a child, as though they are in prison. Then ask them to sing praises to God even while "in prison"!

DAY 311. (November 7)

TOPIC: The People Who Turned the World Upside Down.

(Acts 17)

They passed through Amphipolis and Apollonia and came to Thessalonica, where there was a synagogue of the Jews. We know that Paul wrote his first letters to the Thessalonian believers to encourage, counsel, and teach them matters of faith. It is possible that this was his first letter. As was his custom, Paul entered the synagogue and reasoned with the Jews from the Scriptures for three Sabbaths, explaining that Christ had to suffer and rise from the dead, and that this Jesus he proclaimed was the promised Messiah. Some of them believed, along with many Greeks and not a few prominent women.

The Jews became jealous and gathered some wicked men from the marketplace to stir up trouble in the city. They went to the house of Jason, a believer who had welcomed Paul, and when they did not find Paul and Silas there, they dragged Jason before the city authorities. They accused him, saying, “These men who have turned the world upside down have come here too, and Jason has welcomed them. They are acting against Caesar’s decrees, saying there is another king—Jesus.” The authorities were troubled by these accusations, and after taking security from Jason, they let him go.

The believers immediately sent Paul and Silas away to Berea. The Bereans were more noble than those in Thessalonica because they received the Word with all readiness of mind and searched the Scriptures daily to verify what they were taught. As a result, many believed, including prominent Greek women and many men. Truly, the apostles turned the world upside down by preaching the gospel of Jesus. Are you turning your neighborhood or city upside down by sharing the gospel? Do you study God's Word and pray daily so that you too can impact the world? If you were taken to court for being a Christian, would there be enough evidence to convict you? Let us beware of being led astray by false teachings.

However, when the Jews in Thessalonica heard that Paul was preaching in Berea, they came there too, stirring up the crowds. The believers immediately sent Paul to the coast, while Silas and Timothy remained behind. Paul was escorted to Athens, and Silas and Timothy were instructed to join him there as soon as possible.

While waiting for them in Athens, Paul's spirit was provoked within him as he saw the city full of idols. He went to the synagogue to reason with the Jews and devout persons and also debated daily with those in the marketplace. Some Epicurean and Stoic philosophers encountered him. Some said, "What is this babbler trying to say?" Others remarked, "He seems to be preaching foreign gods," because Paul was proclaiming Jesus and the resurrection.

They took him to the Areopagus, a place of public discourse dedicated to their god Mars, and asked him to explain this new teaching. The Athenians and their philosophers spent much of their time discussing and listening to new ideas. Paul stood in the middle of the Areopagus and said, "Men of Athens, I see that you are very religious in all respects. For as I walked around and observed your objects of worship, I even found an altar with the inscription: 'TO THE UNKNOWN GOD.' Therefore, the One whom you worship without knowing, I proclaim to you.

The God who made the world and everything in it, being Lord of heaven and earth, does not dwell in temples made with hands. Nor is He served by human hands as if He needed anything, since He Himself gives life and breath to all. He made from one man every nation of mankind to dwell on the face of the earth, determining their appointed times and the boundaries of their lands, so that they would seek Him and perhaps reach out for Him and find Him—though He is not far from any of us. For in Him we live and move and have our being, as some of your own poets have said: 'We are His offspring.'

Therefore, since we are God's offspring, we should not think that the Divine Being is like gold, silver, or stone—an image made by human design and skill. In the past, God overlooked such ignorance, but now He commands all people everywhere to repent. For He has set a day when He will judge the world with justice by the Man He has appointed. He has given proof of this to everyone by raising Him from the dead."

When they heard about the resurrection of the dead, some mocked, while others said, “We will hear you again on this matter.” So, Paul left the council. However, some people joined him and believed, including Dionysius the Areopagite, a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

Even today, many people appear good but are not ready to make decisions about their salvation. Paul realized that using Greek philosophy was ineffective and resolved to preach Christ directly in the future.

In our time, many theories oppose the truth of the living God. The Bible says, “In Him was life, and that life was the light of all mankind” (John 1:4). Christ is the Source of life, and obedience to Him brings joy and vitality. Knowledge of God, as revealed in Christ, is essential for everyone who is to be saved.

The devil seeks to obscure the knowledge of God through appealing fictions and distractions. However, true wisdom and understanding come from the Word of God, which is unchanging and reliable.

Daily Prayer Includes Physical and Spiritual Needs

When we pray for our daily bread, we ask not only for physical sustenance but also for spiritual nourishment that leads to eternal life. Jesus said, “Do not work for food that spoils, but for food that endures to eternal life” (John 6:27). He declared, “I am the living bread that came down from heaven. Whoever eats this bread will live forever” (John 6:51). We feed on Christ by meditating on His love and internalizing His Word.

Questions:

1. Why did the troublemakers go to Jason’s house? What makes a person a troublemaker?

2. Who believed in Athens?

3. Why is it dangerous to be a good person without choosing to follow God?

4. How can we be noble like the Bereans today?

5. How did debating with the Greeks impact Paul's approach?

6. Are you turning your world upside down by sharing Christ?

7. Why do people say Western civilization began in Greece?

8. What theories have you heard that contradict God's revelations?

9. Are you making a difference by spreading the gospel today?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Acts 17:11.

[11] These were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the Scriptures daily, whether those things were so.

Prayer: Lord, thank You for the Bible, Your Word. We ask You to help us not to be deceived by people but to study it and confirm whether the things people tell us are true or not! In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Find ten verses, and among them add or remove five. Then bring the Bible, and let the students verify for themselves if everything you said is written in the Bible.

DAY 312 (November 8)

TOPIC: Aquila, Priscilla, and Apollos

(Acts 18)

Paul left Athens and arrived in Corinth, where he met a Jew named Aquila and his wife Priscilla. They had recently come from Pontus in Italy because Emperor Claudius of Rome had ordered all Jews to leave. Paul joined them to preach the gospel. Aquila and Priscilla were tentmakers, and they welcomed Paul to stay with them and work together in their trade. Every Sabbath, Paul went to the synagogue to present his case and tried to persuade both Jews and Greeks.

When Silas and Timothy arrived from Macedonia, Paul began devoting himself fully to preaching, testifying to the Jews that Jesus was the Messiah who had risen from the dead. When the Jews opposed and insulted him, Paul shook out his clothes in protest and said, “Your blood be on your own heads! I am innocent of it. From now on, I will go to the Gentiles.” He left there and went to the house of Titius Justus, a God-fearing man whose house was next to the synagogue. Titius Justus and his entire household believed in the Lord. Even Crispus, the synagogue leader, believed in the Lord along with many Corinthians who also believed and were baptized.

One night, the Lord spoke to Paul in a vision, saying, “Do not be afraid; keep on speaking, do not be silent. For I am with you, and no one is going to harm you, because I have many people in this city.” Paul stayed in Corinth for a year and a half, teaching the word of God. Paul described us humans as clay jars—of little value—yet carrying a great treasure, which is the gospel. Though we are earthen vessels, the love of Jesus motivates us to avoid sin.

When Gallio was the governor of Achaia, the unbelieving Jews united against Paul and brought him before the court, accusing him of persuading people to worship God contrary to the law. Just as Paul was about to speak in his defense, Gallio refused to get involved in their religious disputes. He dismissed them, saying, “If it were a matter of wrongdoing or serious crime, I would be reasonable to listen to you. But since it is about questions of your law, settle the matter yourselves. I will not be a judge of such things.”

After Gallio drove them out of the courtroom, the Jews seized Sosthenes, the synagogue leader, and beat him in front of the tribunal. But Gallio showed no concern for these matters. Although many opposed the preachers and the gospel, Paul had no reason to fear because God had assured him that no harm would come to him.

Paul stayed in Corinth for a while, then said farewell to the brothers and sisters and sailed for Syria, accompanied by Priscilla and Aquila. At Cenchrea, Paul cut his hair because of a vow he had taken. Typically, such hair was brought to Jerusalem and burned on the altar as part of an offering to God. They arrived in Ephesus, where Paul entered the synagogue and engaged in discussions with the Jews. Although they asked him to stay longer, he declined but promised to return if it was God's will. Paul then traveled to Caesarea, greeted the church there, and proceeded to Antioch. After spending some time in Antioch, he traveled through Galatia and Phrygia, strengthening all the disciples and encouraging them in the truth of God's word.

The people of Galatia were known for their generosity. They welcomed Paul as if he were an angel of God or even Christ Jesus Himself. Paul noted that they were willing to give him their very eyes if needed, just to support the spread of the gospel. However, the Galatians were later misled by Jewish teachers who falsely taught that they needed to follow Jewish customs and laws to be saved. In response, Paul wrote to them, asking, "Who has bewitched you? Why have you abandoned the gospel I preached to you and accepted another message that enslaves you?" Paul reminded them that they were free in Christ and that old laws like circumcision no longer bound them.

At this time, a Jew named Apollos from Alexandria in Egypt arrived. He was a learned man with a deep knowledge of the Scriptures and spoke about Jesus with great enthusiasm and accuracy. However, he only knew about the baptism of John and did not fully understand the message of Christ's death and resurrection. When Priscilla and Aquila heard him speaking boldly in the synagogue, they invited him to their home and explained to him the way of God more thoroughly.

Apollos later traveled to Greece. The believers in Ephesus wrote a letter of recommendation for him, encouraging the disciples in Greece to welcome him warmly. When Apollos arrived, he was a great help to those who had believed by God's grace. He vigorously refuted the Jews in public debate, proving from the Scriptures that Jesus was the Messiah. Paul later described Apollos as a great champion of the faith. However, when believers started to divide themselves by saying, "I follow Apollos" or "I follow Paul," Paul corrected them, saying that neither he nor Apollos had died for them—only Jesus had. Paul emphasized that all believers are part of the body of Christ, with Jesus as the head. The Holy Spirit unites the body through God's love, and we must remain faithful to Jesus rather than attaching ourselves to human leaders.

The church in Corinth was one of the major churches of that time. Corinth was a modern and prosperous city with a busy port that connected to other countries. However, some believers were influenced by the city's corruption and immoral practices. This prompted Paul to write several letters—about four in total—to correct and guide them. One of his key messages was about the importance of love.

We receive Christ through His word, and the Holy Spirit reveals God's truth to our hearts. We must pray daily for the Spirit to open our minds as we read the Bible and to strengthen our spirits with His truth.

Questions:

1. How did Priscilla and Aquila support Paul?

2. How did Gallio protect Paul?

3. What important teachings was Apollos lacking without realizing it?

4. What does "Your blood be on your own heads" mean?

5. What vision did Paul receive while in Corinth that gave him comfort?

6. Why is it harmful to attach ourselves to human leaders instead of Christ?

7. Paul established and visited churches, encouraging believers to give tithes and offerings. How were these tithes and offerings used? (Romans 15:26 and 2 Corinthians 8:1-4).

May God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Acts 18:3.

[3] …Aquila, a native of Pontus, who had recently come from Italy with his wife Priscilla, because Claudius had commanded all Jews to depart from Rome, and he came to them. And because he was of the same craft, he stayed with them and worked; for by their occupation they were tentmakers. And he reasoned in the synagogue every Sabbath, and persuaded both Jews and Greeks.

Prayer: Christ of all grace, we thank You and ask You to give us diligence and skill in work, remove all laziness from our lives, and make us like the apostle Paul, Priscilla, and Aquila, in being self-reliant and supporting ourselves through learning and doing handiwork. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Tentmaking. Use needles and pieces of cloth or colored papers, and sticks for raising them up, or even Lego. Or use farming tools and go into the garden to learn gardening, etc.

DAY 313 (November 8)

TOPIC: Evil Books Are Burned

(Acts 19)

While Apollos was preaching in Corinth, Paul traveled on foot through Asia Minor and arrived in Ephesus, as he had promised, where he met new believers. These believers were called disciples of Jesus. Paul asked them if they had received the Holy Spirit when they believed. They replied, "No, we have not even heard that there is a Holy Spirit." When he asked, "Then what baptism did you receive?" they answered, "John's baptism." Paul explained to them, "John's baptism was a baptism of repentance, confessing sins, but he told people to believe in the Messiah who was to come after him—that is, Jesus." Upon hearing this message, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. When Paul laid his hands on them, they received the Holy Spirit and began to speak in tongues and prophesy, and the total number of these men was twelve.

We can learn an important lesson from these people. When they heard the teachings of Jesus, they were willing to correct their traditional beliefs and follow the truth.

Paul then entered the synagogue and spoke boldly for three months, arguing and persuading people about the kingdom of God. However, some refused to believe and publicly maligned the teachings. So, Paul left them, taking the new believers—the disciples of Jesus—with him. He held daily discussions in the lecture hall of Tyrannus. This continued for two years, and Paul taught one group after another, until everyone living in the province of Asia, both Jews and Greeks, had the opportunity to hear the Word of God.

God performed extraordinary miracles through Paul, so that even handkerchiefs and aprons that had touched him were taken to the sick, and their illnesses were cured, and evil spirits left them.

During this time, some Jewish exorcists who went around driving out evil spirits tried to invoke the name of the Lord Jesus over those who were demon-possessed. They would say, "In the name of Jesus, whom Paul preaches, I command you to come out." Among these were seven sons of Sceva, a Jewish chief priest. They treated the name of Jesus as if it were a magic charm. But one day, an evil spirit answered them, "Jesus I know, and Paul I recognize, but who are you?" Then the man who had the evil spirit jumped on them and overpowered them all. He gave them such a beating that they ran out of the house naked and wounded.

This event became known to all the Jews and Greeks living in Ephesus, and they were all filled with fear, and the name of the Lord Jesus was held in high honor. Many of those who believed now came openly confessing their evil deeds. Some who had practiced sorcery brought their scrolls together and burned them publicly. When they calculated the value of the scrolls, the total came to fifty thousand drachmas, which is equivalent to three million dollars today. The Word of the Lord spread widely and grew in power.

It is remarkable how many books of sorcery there were, especially considering that this was a time when there were no printing presses, and everything had to be copied by hand. Even today, there are many books of magic and witchcraft. Children and youth must be careful not to read any evil books. Books like Harry Potter, Wicca, black magic, and others promote darkness. We must be vigilant in choosing books that promote light and truth. Romantic novels and spy thrillers should also be avoided.

Do you know which books promote evil? Can you list them? In those days, there were no movies, videos, computers, television, or radio. Today, we have all these things—can you identify which radio programs, television shows, or online content promote evil and should be avoided? What advertisements should you steer clear of? Some things may seem harmless, but their influence has led many astray, pulling them away from their goal of reaching heaven and instead leading them to hell.

Activities like playing cards or board games often foster laziness and addiction, which the Word of God condemns. Besides our faith in Almighty God, work is the next most important thing. We read that Jesus spent thirty years working as a carpenter and only three and a half years preaching. Hard work protects us from many temptations.

After the burning of these sorcery books, Paul resolved in the Spirit to go to Macedonia, Achaia, Jerusalem, and eventually to Rome, the capital of the world at that time, and later to Spain. His primary goal was to spread the good news of Jesus Christ, the risen Messiah. He sent Timothy and Erastus ahead to assist him.

When we pray daily for both physical and spiritual blessings, we acknowledge our dependence on God's constant care. Through prayer and the study of His Word, our hungry souls will be fed, and our thirsty spirits will be refreshed by the fountain of life.

Questions:

1. Why did they burn the books instead of selling them to raise money for spreading the gospel?

2. What books today should be burned or never read?

3. What television shows or online content should we avoid?

4. Why is being a pastor's child or a church worker not a license to live sinfully?

God Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus!

Key Text: Acts 19:19.

[19] Many of them also which used curious arts brought their books together and burned them before all men; and they counted the price of them, and found it fifty thousand pieces of silver. So mightily grew the word of God and prevailed.

Prayer: Lord, we give You our thanks. Help us not to watch witchcraft videos or participate in sorcery in any way. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Gather bad books or dirty papers and burn them.

DAY 314 (November 9)

TOPIC: The Ephesians and Their Goddess Artemis

(Acts 19)

Paul stayed in Ephesus for two years. The Ephesians had a magnificent temple dedicated to their goddess Artemis (also called Diana). The Ephesians loved their silver idols of Artemis, which were made by silversmiths and worshipped. Even today in Africa and other parts of the world, people worship objects like sacred trees or other things instead of the Almighty God. Many people profit from selling religious items, knowing that people will buy them.

A silversmith named Demetrius, who made silver shrines of Artemis, stirred up trouble when he realized that Paul's preaching was turning people away from idol worship. He gathered other craftsmen and warned them that their trade was in danger. He said, "This man Paul has convinced and led astray large numbers of people here and throughout Asia, saying that gods made by human hands are not gods at all. If this continues, our business will suffer, and the temple of Artemis will be discredited."

When the people heard this, they were furious and began shouting, "Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!" Soon, the whole city was in turmoil. They seized Gaius and Aristarchus, Paul's traveling companions from Macedonia, and rushed them into the theater.

Paul wanted to address the crowd, but the believers would not let him, fearing for his safety. Meanwhile, the assembly was in confusion—some were shouting one thing, some another—and most people did not even know why they were there.

Finally, the city clerk quieted the crowd, reminding them that the temple of Artemis was known worldwide and could not be easily discredited. He urged them to resolve their issues through legal channels rather than through violence. After calming the crowd, he dismissed the assembly.

Questions:

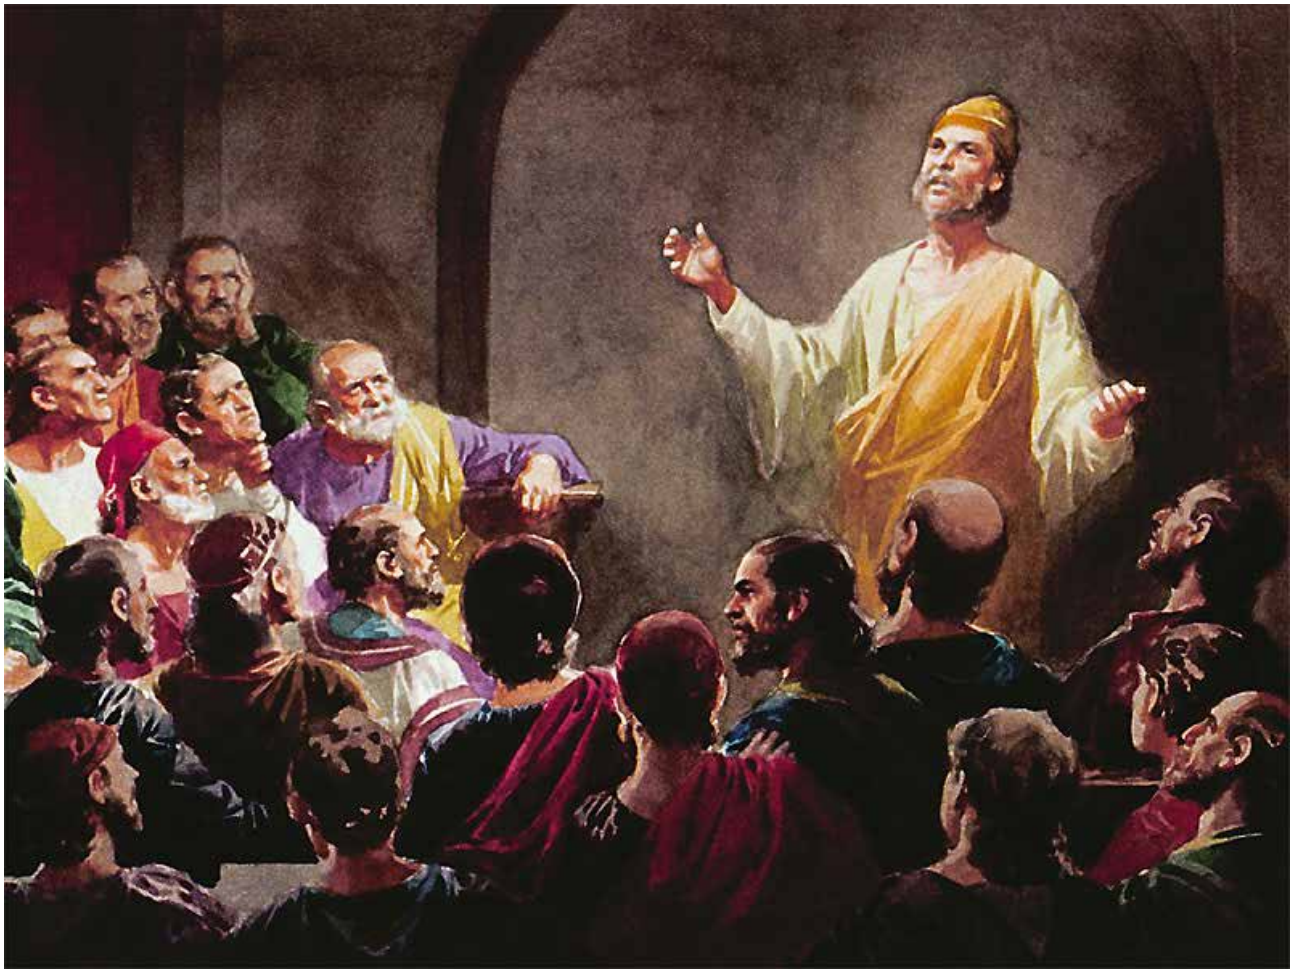
1. How did Demetrius incite the crowd to riot?

2. How did the city clerk calm the angry mob?

3. Why is it easy for people to follow a crowd without knowing the truth, like those in Ephesus?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Exodus 20:1-3.



[1-3] I am the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. You shall have no other gods before Me. You shall not make for yourself a carved image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth. You shall not bow down to them nor serve them. For I, the Lord your God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children to the third and fourth generations of those who hate Me.

Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father for Your goodness and mercies. Help us to worship You in truth and righteousness. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.
Activity: Role play – show how worshiping idols is meaningless. Take a stick, cut it into two pieces, burn one piece, and bow down to the other piece asking it for this or that. Then demonstrate the difference between things God provides and why they should never be worshiped.

DAY 315 (November 10)

TOPIC: Paul Bids Farewell to the Believers

(Acts 20)

When the commotion ceased, Paul bid farewell to the believers, warning and encouraging them with words of comfort, and then departed for Macedonia. After traveling through those regions and encouraging the people with many words, he arrived in Greece. He stayed there for three months, but when the Jews plotted to kill him as he was about to sail to Syria, he decided to return through Macedonia. He was accompanied by Sopater of Berea, Aristarchus and Secundus from Thessalonica, Gaius of Derbe, Timothy, and Tychicus and Trophimus from Asia. These men went ahead and waited for him at Troas.

It was during the time of Passover, when they ate unleavened bread according to the command given when they left Egypt, which symbolized the body of Christ being without sin. They departed from Philippi and arrived at Troas.

On the first day of the week, they broke bread, meaning they partook in the Lord's Supper. Paul preached to them, intending to leave the next day, and continued speaking until midnight. They were in an upstairs room, with many oil lamps and candles burning.

A fifteen-year-old boy named Eutychus was sitting by the window. He struggled to keep his eyes open but eventually failed. The usual bedtime for children had long passed. As Paul continued to preach late into the night, the boy was overcome by sleep, lost focus, fell from the third floor, and was picked up dead. The people began to cry out in fear, knowing that he had died.

Paul went down, embraced the boy's body, and said, "Do not be alarmed, for his life is still in him." He then returned upstairs, broke bread, ate, and continued speaking until dawn before leaving. They brought the young man back alive, and the people were greatly comforted.

There are many young people today like Eutychus who fall asleep in church despite their desire to listen. Such youths should be encouraged and given responsibilities in the church. At the same time, sermons should not be too long unless the Holy Spirit leads otherwise.

Let this story not make you fall asleep in church, for even as a child, you must listen to what the preacher says. Eutychus fell asleep because it was midnight, the place was crowded, there was nowhere comfortable to sit, and he wanted to listen, but it was very late. Church is not a place to sleep as if you are in a guesthouse—no! It is a place of worship. However, we can excuse this situation because Paul was giving his farewell speech, knowing they would not see him again, and the believers were eager to hear his final words of the gospel.

Luke, the physician, went ahead with others to Assos to meet Paul, who was traveling on foot. Paul did not sleep. After raising Eutychus from the dead, he continued preaching until morning and then began a 30-kilometer journey on foot. Truly, Paul was a champion of God's work.

When they reached Assos, Paul boarded a ship, and they traveled to Kios, then Samos, Trogyllium, and finally Miletus. Paul wanted to hurry to Jerusalem, passing by Ephesus, so that he could be there for Pentecost—the celebration fifty days after Jesus' resurrection and ascension.

At Miletus, Paul sent for the elders of the church in Ephesus. Church elders were appointed to oversee new churches as soon as they were established. When they arrived, Paul told them, "You yourselves know how I lived among you from the first day I set foot in Asia. I served the Lord with all humility and with tears. You know the trials I faced because of the plots of the Jews.

I did not hold back from declaring to you anything that was profitable, teaching you publicly and from house to house. I testified to both Jews and Greeks that they must repent and believe in our Lord Jesus Christ. Now, I am going to Jerusalem, compelled by the Holy Spirit, not knowing what will happen to me there. What I do know is that the Holy Spirit has warned me that prison and hardships await me. However, I do not count my life as precious to myself. What matters is that I finish my course and the ministry I received from the Lord Jesus."

Paul continued, "I want you to know that you have been precious to me since the day I began preaching the gospel to you. I know that after I leave, you will not see my face again. Therefore, I declare to you today that I am innocent of the blood of any man, whether Jew or Greek, who perishes. I have not hesitated to proclaim the whole counsel of God—that everyone may be saved and have eternal life.

Take heed to yourselves and to all the flock over which the Holy Spirit has made you overseers, to shepherd the church of God, which He purchased with His own blood. I know that after my departure, savage wolves will come among you, not sparing the flock. Even from among you, men will arise speaking perverse things to draw disciples after themselves. Therefore, watch and remember that for three years, day and night, I did not cease to warn everyone with tears."

Paul warned his spiritual children that false teachings not found in the Bible would come, but they should keep their focus on Jesus—the One who died on the cross. He said, "I commend you to God and to the word of His grace, which is able to build you up and give you an inheritance among all those who are sanctified. I have not coveted anyone's silver, gold, or clothing. You yourselves know that these hands have provided for my needs and those of my companions. In everything, I have shown you that by working hard like this, we must help the weak and remember the words of the Lord Jesus, who said, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.'"

After saying this, Paul knelt and prayed with all of them. They all wept as they embraced and kissed him, grieved most of all by his words that they would not see his face again. They accompanied him to the ship.

Paul was a father to many churches that he helped establish. He gave them advice and wrote letters to guide them. He did not value his own life above the mission of sharing the good news of the kingdom of God. It is amazing how the Christian churches began and how the apostles labored day and night.

Brotherly love is a great blessing. As Psalm 133 says, “Behold, how good and pleasant it is when brothers dwell together in unity! It is like precious oil on the head, running down on the beard, on the beard of Aaron, running down on the collar of his robes. It is like the dew of Hermon falling on the mountains of Zion. For there the Lord has commanded the blessing—life forevermore.”

A Parent’s Daily Prayer:
Make your work pleasant with songs of praise. If you want to have a clean record in heaven’s books, do not be angry or harsh. Let your daily prayer be: “Lord, teach me to do good. Teach me how to do excellent work. Give me strength and cheerfulness. Bring Christ into everything I do.” Then your life will be filled with light and gratitude. Let us strive forward with joy in the service of the Lord, our hearts full of His joy.

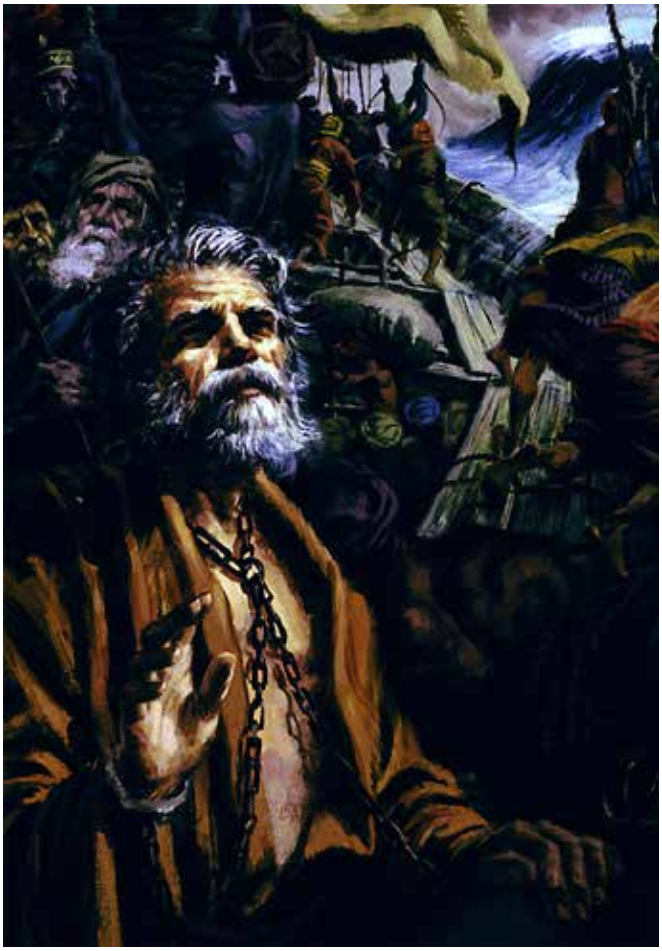
Questions:

1. What happened to Eutychus when he fell asleep during the sermon?
2. What did Paul do for Eutychus afterward?
3. What words did Paul speak when bidding farewell to the believers?
4. Why did the believers weep when Paul said goodbye?
5. How are pastors neglecting their pastoral duties in these last days of earth’s history?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Acts 20:32.

[32] And now, brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of His grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified.



Prayer: Lord, thank You because You can build us up, and even raise our loved ones from their graves on the last day. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Role play of the young man Eutychus who fell asleep, fell down, and was raised back to life!

DAY 316 (November 11)

TOPIC: Paul is Arrested

(Acts 21)

After saying their farewells, they boarded a ship and sailed to Cos, then to Rhodes, and from there to Patara. In Patara, they found a ship going to Phoenicia, boarded it, and continued their journey. They passed by the island of Cyprus and arrived in Syria, where they docked in Tyre. The ship unloaded its cargo there, and they met other believers and stayed for seven days. Through the Holy Spirit, the believers prophesied, warning Paul not to go to Jerusalem. Afterward, they, along with the preachers, the children, and their wives, accompanied Paul out of the city. On the shore, they knelt down and prayed.

They then boarded the ship and arrived at Ptolemais, where they greeted the brethren in Christ and proceeded to Caesarea. In Caesarea, they stayed at the house of Philip, the evangelist, who was one of the seven deacons. The gospel had reunited them as friends and co-workers. Philip had fled because of Saul's persecution, but now Saul had become Paul, and they were brothers in the Lord. Philip had four unmarried daughters who were prophets. While they were staying there for several days, a prophet named Agabus came down from Judea. When he arrived, he took Paul's belt, tied his own hands and feet, and said, "The Holy Spirit says this: the owner of this belt will be bound by the Jews in Jerusalem and handed over to the Gentiles to be persecuted and killed."

۞ When the disciples, including Luke the physician and other co-workers, heard that Paul would be killed, they pleaded with him not to go to Jerusalem. But Paul responded, “Why are you weeping and breaking my heart? I am ready not only to be bound but also to die in Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus.” When they realized they could not change his mind, they stopped trying and said, “Let the Lord’s will be done.”

۞ They left Caesarea, gathered their belongings, and traveled on foot to Jerusalem. Some disciples from Caesarea, including Mnason of Cyprus, an early disciple, accompanied them. When they arrived in Jerusalem, the brothers in Christ welcomed them warmly. The next day, Paul and his companions, including Luke and the elders working with him in the gospel, went to meet James, the brother of Jesus. It had been about 25 years since Jesus’ resurrection.

۞ Many people in Jerusalem had become followers of Jesus. They greeted one another and shared testimonies of all that God had done among the Gentiles through Paul’s ministry, and when they heard these reports, they glorified God. The Gentile believers felt included in God’s kingdom and were dedicated to supporting the gospel work with their resources, so the Jewish people and the whole world could receive the gospel. However, the Jewish believers expressed concern that Paul was being accused of teaching Jews to abandon the law of Moses and not circumcise their children or follow Jewish customs. They feared that if people heard Paul was in Jerusalem, it would cause a public uproar and harm the church.

۞ They gave Paul private advice, saying, “We cannot deny you were sent by God, but take these four men who have made a vow of purification, join them in their purification rites, and pay their expenses so they can have their heads shaved. This way, everyone will know that the accusations against you are false and that you still respect the law of Moses.” Although the Gentile believers were not required to follow all Jewish customs, they had agreed to the council’s instructions to abstain from food sacrificed to idols, sexual immorality, and meat from strangled animals.

۞ Paul agreed to follow their advice to maintain peace, even though it was a risky decision. The next day, he took the four men, purified himself with them, and went to the temple to announce the completion of their days of purification. When the seven days were nearly over, some Jews from Asia Minor saw Paul in the temple and stirred up the crowd. They seized him, shouting false accusations: “Fellow Israelites, help us! This is the man who teaches against our people and the law, and he has brought Greeks into the temple, defiling this holy place.” They had earlier seen Trophimus the Ephesian with Paul in the city and assumed Paul had brought him into the temple, though he had not.

The whole city was thrown into turmoil. People rushed together, seized Paul, and dragged him out of the temple, shutting the gates behind them. They sought to kill him immediately, but news reached the Roman commander that the city was in chaos. The commander took soldiers and centurions and ran to the scene. When the mob saw the soldiers, they stopped beating Paul. The commander approached, arrested Paul, and ordered him to be bound with two chains, fulfilling Agabus' prophecy. He then tried to determine who Paul was and what he had done. The crowd was in such uproar that the commander could not get a clear answer, so he ordered Paul to be taken into the fortress.

As the soldiers carried Paul to the steps leading to the Antonia fortress, which overlooked the temple, the violent mob continued shouting, "Kill him! Kill him!" Ironically, the Roman soldiers—pagans who did not know the God of heaven—were the ones who protected Paul from the Jewish crowd seeking to kill him.

Paul, a former Pharisee, had once participated in the killing of many who believed in Jesus. Now, for his loyalty to Christ, he faced the danger of losing his own life. Yet, God gave him extraordinary courage.

Youth should pray daily for wisdom and grace. The trials and hardships that many young people complain about were endured by Christ without murmuring. This discipline provides the experience young people need to develop strong character and become like Christ—resilient in the face of temptation. But they cannot achieve this if they surround themselves with people who corrupt their morals and lead them astray. Through daily prayer, they will receive wisdom and grace from God to face life's struggles and emerge victorious. Integrity and mental stability are preserved only through vigilance and prayer. Christ's life was an example of unwavering strength, unaffected by criticism, mockery, poverty, or hardship.

Questions:

What did the prophet Agabus prophesy?

Why did people want Paul to be killed?

Is it possible for Christ's religion to cause pain or death to others?

How did the Roman commander help Paul?

Why is it wrong to seek to kill someone, whether wicked or innocent, thinking we are serving God?

Why is our testimony a powerful tool to spread the gospel story?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Numbers 12:6.

[6] And He said, Hear now My words: If there is a prophet among you, I the Lord will make Myself known to him in a vision, and will speak to him in a dream.

Prayer: Thank You Jesus for revealing things to us beforehand to prepare us. Help us to have courage and to encourage others. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Use a belt or rope as the prophet Agabus did, to tie hands and feet as the story tells.

DAY 317 (November 12)

TOPIC: Paul Defends Himself and Repeats the History of the Gospel

When Paul was brought into the Antonia fortress, he spoke to the commander in Greek, saying, "I have something to say to you; do you permit me to speak?" The commander was surprised that Paul knew Greek and asked, "Where did you learn to speak Greek? Aren't you the Egyptian who, some time ago, led four thousand assassins into the wilderness to cause rebellion?" Paul replied, "No, I am a Jew, born in Tarsus, a city in Cilicia, a citizen of a respected city under Roman rule—I am neither a rebel nor a murderer. Give me permission to speak to these people." The commander allowed him, and Paul motioned to the crowd to be silent. Standing on the steps, which served as a platform, Paul seized the opportunity to testify about Jesus again before thousands of people.

Paul began his speech, saying, "Brothers and fathers, listen to my defense before you now." When they heard him speak in Hebrew, they became even more silent. He continued, "I am a Jew, born in Tarsus of Cilicia, but raised in this city, Jerusalem, at the feet of Gamaliel, a respected rabbi who taught me the Law of our ancestors and the importance of Moses' teachings. I was zealous for God, just as you all are today. I persecuted those who followed this Way, imprisoning both men and women, believing I was serving God by doing so.

As a member of the Sanhedrin and a Pharisee, I continued this work with the authority of the high priest and the council. They gave me letters to go to Damascus and arrest those who believed in the resurrected Jesus and bring them to Jerusalem for punishment. But as I neared Damascus at about noon, suddenly a great light from heaven shone around me, and I fell to the ground. I heard a voice saying, 'Saul, Saul, why do you persecute Me?' I answered,

‘Who are You, Lord?’ The voice replied, ‘I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom you are persecuting.’ Those traveling with me saw the light but did not understand the voice. I asked, ‘What shall I do, Lord?’ and He told me, ‘Get up and go into Damascus, and there you will be told all that you are appointed to do.’

I became blind because of the light. My companions led me by hand to Damascus. There, a devout man named Ananias, respected by all the Jews living there, came to me and said, ‘Brother Saul, receive your sight.’ And at that moment, I could see him. He said, ‘The God of our ancestors has chosen you to know His will, to see the Righteous One, and to hear words from His mouth. You will be His witness to all people of what you have seen and heard. Now, why delay? Get up, be baptized, and wash away your sins, calling on His name.’

When I returned to Jerusalem after three years, while praying in the temple, I fell into a trance and saw the Lord speaking to me. He said, ‘Quickly leave Jerusalem because they will not accept your testimony about Me.’ I answered, ‘Lord, they know that I imprisoned and beat those who believe in You. When Your witness Stephen was being killed, I stood by, approving and guarding the clothes of those who were stoning him.’ But the Lord said to me, ‘Go, for I will send you far away to the Gentiles.’”

The crowd listened until Paul mentioned the Gentiles. Then, they shouted in anger, “Away with him! He is not fit to live!” They became like wild animals, throwing off their clothes and hurling dust into the air. The commander ordered Paul to be brought into the barracks.

This is how it should be for young people. When trials increase, they should know that GOD is testing and proving their faithfulness. Only through maintaining integrity amid discouraging circumstances will their strength, courage, and endurance grow, making them strong in spirit.

Questions:

Where was Paul born?

Why did Paul repeat the history of his testimony?

Why was the commander surprised when Paul spoke to him?

What did Paul say about Stephen’s death?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Acts 22:15,16.

[16] For you will be His witness to all men of what you have seen and heard. And now why are you waiting? Arise and be baptized, and wash away your sins, calling on the Name of the Lord.

Prayer: Thank You Father for giving us baptism so that our sins may be washed away. Please help me to be Your witness to all people of what I have seen and heard. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Role play of baptism for one who believes, after explaining the meaning of baptism.

DAY 318 (November 13)

TOPIC: The Sadducees and Pharisees Argue Over Paul

(Acts 22-23)

The commander ordered Paul to be brought in and interrogated by flogging to find out why the people were shouting against him. As they tied him up to be whipped, Paul asked the centurion, "Is it lawful for you to flog a Roman citizen without a trial?" The centurion, shocked, went to inform the commander, saying, "Be careful what you do, for this man is a Roman citizen."

In those days, Roman citizens had special rights and protections greater than those of conquered peoples. When the commander asked Paul if he was a Roman citizen, Paul confirmed, "Yes." The commander replied, "I paid a large sum for my citizenship." Paul answered, "But I was born a citizen."

Those who were about to flog him withdrew immediately, and the commander became afraid because he had put a Roman citizen in chains without a trial. The next day, seeking to understand the accusations against Paul, he released him and summoned the chief priests and the Sanhedrin. Paul stood before them and declared, "Brothers, I have lived my life before God with a clear conscience up to this day."

The high priest Ananias ordered those near Paul to strike him on the mouth. Paul responded, "God will strike you, you whitewashed wall! You sit to judge me according to the law but violate the law by ordering me to be struck!" Those standing nearby objected, "Do you dare insult God's high priest?" Paul apologized, "I did not know he was the high priest, for it is written, 'Do not speak evil about the ruler of your people.'"

Realizing the council was divided between Pharisees and Sadducees, Paul declared, "I am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee. I am on trial concerning the hope of the resurrection of the dead."

This statement caused a great dispute between the two groups. Sadducees do not believe in resurrection, angels, or spirits, while Pharisees believe in all these. The Pharisees argued that Paul might have received a message from an angel or spirit, while the Sadducees rejected this possibility. The dispute became violent, so the commander ordered his soldiers to remove Paul for his safety.

🌻The Need for Teachers to Pray Daily:
Every teacher should receive daily instruction from Christ and work under His guidance. Only through prayer and self-denial can they perform their duties wisely and effectively.

🌻Questions:

Why did the commander stop flogging Paul?

Are there Pharisees and Sadducees today arguing over their beliefs?

Is it lawful for a pastor to strike someone like the high priest struck Paul?

Why did Paul apologize despite being wronged?

Key Text: 2 Corinthians 11:24-27.

[24-27] Of the Jews five times received I forty stripes save one. Thrice was I beaten with rods, once was I stoned, thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day I have been in the deep; In journeyings often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils by mine own countrymen, in perils by the heathen, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils among false brethren; In weariness and painfulness, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for giving us a picture of Paul's life. We pray that You keep us from danger and help us endure hardships as You did when necessary. In the Name of Jesus, Amen.

Activity: Role play – use rods, stones, robbers, etc.

DAY 319 (November 14)

TOPIC: Paul Goes to Caesarea with the Army

(Acts 23)

That night, the LORD Himself stood near Paul, comforting him by saying,

"Take courage; for as you have testified about Me in Jerusalem, so you must also testify about Me in Rome." When morning came, more than 40 Jewish men conspired together and took an oath that they would neither eat nor drink until they had killed Paul. After making this agreement, they went to the chief priests and elders and told them that they had taken a solemn oath not to eat or drink until they had killed Paul. They asked the elders and chief priests to arrange for the Roman commander to bring Paul to the council again under the pretense of wanting to examine his case more thoroughly. However, their real plan was to ambush and kill him on the way, before he even reached the council platform.

Paul's nephew, his sister's son, heard about the plot and informed his mother. His mother then sent him to the fortress to tell Paul about the evil scheme. Paul called one of the prison guards and asked him to take the young man to the commander because he had urgent information. The guard took the young man to the commander and said, “Paul, the prisoner, called me and asked me to bring this young man to you because he has something urgent to tell you.” The commander took the young man by the hand, led him aside, and asked him privately what information he had. The young man explained the plot he had overheard—that the Jews planned to ask for Paul to be brought to the council the next day, intending to kill him en route. The commander, after hearing this, instructed the young man not to tell anyone that he had revealed this information. Truly, being a disciple of Jesus involves the cost of faith and obedience.

The commander summoned two centurions and ordered them to prepare 200 foot soldiers, 70 horsemen, and 200 spearmen by 9:00 PM to escort Paul safely to Caesarea. He also ordered that horses be provided for Paul and another person to carry any belongings he had, ensuring Paul’s safe delivery to Governor Felix. The commander then wrote a letter to Felix. Paul experienced many trials while serving God. A military escort of 470 soldiers accompanied the man of God to Caesarea to ensure no harm came to him, as God intended for him to complete the mission He had given him. Even today, if we commit ourselves to God’s work, He will protect and perform great things for us.

The letter from Claudius Lysias, the commander, to the most excellent Governor Felix read as follows:
“This man was seized by the Jews, and they were about to kill him when I intervened with my troops to rescue him after learning that he is a Roman citizen. I wanted to understand the charges against him, so I brought him before the Jewish council. I found that he was accused concerning questions of their law but had committed no crime deserving death or imprisonment. When I was informed that there was a plot against him, I immediately sent him to you and ordered his accusers to present their case before you.”

The soldiers took Paul by night as ordered and brought him to Antipatris, about 45 kilometers from Jerusalem. The following morning, the 70 horsemen continued with Paul while the 400 foot soldiers returned to Jerusalem. Upon arriving in Caesarea, the horsemen delivered the letter to the governor and presented Paul to him. After reading the letter, the governor asked Paul which province he was from. When Paul replied that he was from Tarsus in Asia Minor, the governor said he would hear Paul’s case once his accusers arrived. In the meantime, Paul was held under guard in Herod’s palace.

Do you know what happened to the men who had sworn not to eat or drink until they killed Paul? Perhaps they broke their fast and ate, as it is unlikely they starved themselves to death. We must be very careful about making foolish vows or those that contradict the Word of God.

🏵Daily prayers enhance and strengthen our spiritual experience.
True religion begins with cleansing the heart and must be nourished by daily prayer.

🏵Questions:

What did the angel say to Paul in the vision?

What message did Paul's nephew deliver?

How many soldiers escorted Paul?

What questions did the governor ask Paul?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Key Text: Psalm 34:7,8.

[7,8] The angel of the Lord encamps round about them that fear Him, and delivers them. O taste and see that the Lord is good: blessed is the man that trusts in Him.

Prayer: Lord, thank You for angels who encamp around us and protect us. Thank You for the goodness You send us, sweeter than honey. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Bring something sweet to taste together, such as honey, pineapple, etc., and let each child taste.

DAY 320 (November 15)

TOPIC: Paul Before Governor Felix

(Acts 24)

After five days, the high priest, some elders from the Sanhedrin, and Tertullus, a lawyer, arrived in Caesarea to present charges against Paul before the governor. When the governor gave them the floor, Tertullus began his speech with flattery, saying, “Most excellent Felix, under your wise leadership, we enjoy peace, and many reforms have been made for the benefit of the people. We welcome your governance everywhere and at all times, and we are grateful for your presence.”

Tertullus continued, “We do not wish to burden you with a long speech but ask you to hear us briefly. We have found this man to be a troublemaker, stirring up riots among Jews worldwide. He is also a leader of the sect of the Nazarenes. Furthermore, he attempted to desecrate the temple, and so we arrested him. But Commander Lysias intervened and took him away by force. He ordered us to bring our charges before you here in Caesarea. If you examine him yourself, you will find that our accusations are true."

Although Tertullus praised Felix's leadership, Felix was not the just and noble ruler the lawyer claimed. After Tertullus finished his speech, the Jews present supported his accusations.

When given the opportunity to defend himself, Paul addressed the governor respectfully. He acknowledged Felix's long-standing role as a judge over the Jewish nation and expressed his willingness to present his case confidently. Paul explained that he had come to Jerusalem to worship and that he had not caused any disturbance in the temple or the city. He stated that his accusers could not prove their allegations.

Paul admitted that he worshiped God according to "The Way," which his accusers called a sect, but affirmed his belief in everything written in the Law and the Prophets. He shared his hope in the resurrection of the righteous and the wicked, emphasizing his effort to maintain a clear conscience before God and people.

Felix, familiar with "The Way," postponed judgment, stating he would decide when Commander Lysias arrived. Meanwhile, he ordered that Paul be kept under guard but granted him some freedom, allowing his friends to visit and care for his needs.

If you fail to seek divine help through prayer during trials, you risk falling into temptation. Neglecting your spiritual duties will be recorded by God and will bear witness against you on the Day of Judgment.

Questions:

Why did the high priest, elders, and lawyer go to Caesarea?

Why did Felix delay judgment despite knowing Paul was innocent?

Why is it sinful to delay helping someone when you can do so immediately?

Why was Paul on trial?

What challenges do we face today in spreading the Gospel, 2,000 years after these events?*

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Proverbs 3:28.

[28] Say not unto your neighbor, Go, and come again, and tomorrow I will give, when you have it by you.

Prayer: Our Father and God, we come before You with thanksgiving. Help us not to trouble others by telling them, "Come tomorrow I will give you what you ask," when we already have it with us. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Role play of telling your neighbor "come tomorrow, come tomorrow" when the very thing they ask for is with you—for example, a pencil, food, ruler, clothes, etc.

DAY 321 (November 16)

TOPIC: Paul Appeals to Go to Rome Before Agrippa

After a few days, Felix arrived with his wife Drusilla, who was Jewish, and he summoned Paul to hear him speak privately about his faith in Jesus Christ. As Paul testified to him about righteousness, self-control, and the coming judgment of God that awaits every person—including Felix himself—Felix became afraid. Trembling and unable to bear it, he said, "You may go now, Paul; when I find the opportunity, I will summon you again." He said this because his conscience troubled him due to Paul's preaching, yet he feared surrendering his life to God. He still wanted to maintain his high position, with God being beneath him. Moreover, he hoped to receive a bribe from Paul to release him. Accepting bribes is a sin because it denies justice to others. Paul, a tentmaker by trade, was poor in material wealth. Felix, a wealthy governor, still sought to exploit the poor man. He often called Paul to converse with him, and two years passed in this manner. The poor man of God was denied his right to freedom. Wanting to please the Jews, Felix left Paul imprisoned. Eventually, Felix was removed from office, and another governor, Porcius Festus, was appointed in his place.

After three days of being the governor of Caesarea, Festus visited Jerusalem, where the chief priests and elders informed him about Paul's case and requested that he transfer Paul to Jerusalem so they could plan to kill him on the way. They did this because they knew the government would do nothing, as Paul's charges were religious rather than criminal. Festus informed them that Paul was under Roman protection as a citizen and that he himself would soon return to Caesarea to handle the case. He invited them to accompany him if they wished to bring charges against Paul. Upon his return to Caesarea after ten days, Festus convened the court the next day and ordered Paul to be brought before him. The Jews from Jerusalem accused Paul of many serious charges, including being against Caesar, but they could not prove any of them. Paul defended himself, saying, "I have done nothing wrong against the law of the Jews, the temple, or Caesar, as you well know, Governor Festus. I am not afraid to die if I am guilty, but if their accusations are false, no one can hand me over to them." Seeking to please the Jews and maintain their favor, Festus asked Paul if he was willing to go to Jerusalem to be tried there. Paul replied that he had already been tried there and found innocent, and that there was no hope of receiving a fair trial or safe passage to Jerusalem. Therefore, he appealed to Caesar in Rome. After consulting with his council, Festus declared, “You have appealed to Caesar, and to Caesar you shall go.” Paul was safer among pagan Romans than among religious Jews who had not surrendered to God.

King Agrippa was the son of Herod, who had killed James, the first Christian martyr, and imprisoned Peter. His great-uncle (another Herod) killed John the Baptist and mocked Jesus during His trial. His grandfather (yet another Herod) ordered the massacre of Bethlehem’s infants after Jesus’ birth. It was a cruel family led by the enemies of God. Agrippa’s wife, Bernice, accompanied him to Caesarea to greet and congratulate Festus on his appointment as governor. After several days, Festus discussed Paul’s case with Agrippa, explaining how the chief priests and Jewish elders in Jerusalem had presented charges against Paul. He had told them that Roman law required a face-to-face confrontation between the accused and accusers before judgment could be passed. Festus recounted how, during the trial, the Jewish leaders accused Paul not of criminal behavior but of religious disputes concerning a man named Jesus Christ, who had been crucified under Pontius Pilate, but whom Paul claimed was alive. Unsure how to judge the matter, Festus asked Paul if he would be willing to go to Jerusalem for trial. However, Paul appealed to Caesar’s court in Rome. Agrippa, intrigued, expressed a desire to hear Paul himself. Festus promised he would hear Paul the next day.

The following day, Agrippa and Bernice arrived with great pomp and ceremony, accompanied by high-ranking officers and city leaders. Festus ordered Paul to be brought in and addressed the assembly, saying, “King Agrippa and all present, here is the man the Jews have demanded I condemn to death. Upon investigating, I found he had committed no crime deserving death. However, as a Roman citizen, he has appealed to Caesar, and I am obligated to send him. Yet, I find it unreasonable to send a prisoner without specifying the charges against him.” Agrippa then granted Paul permission to speak, giving Paul another opportunity to testify. This provided a platform for the gospel to reach many, ensuring no one could later claim they had not heard the message. God offers everyone the opportunity to hear the good news so that no one will have an excuse on the day of judgment. Let us not neglect our duty to God while trying to please others. Prayer time should never be compromised for any reason. Let us approach prayer with joy and thanksgiving, offering our praises to God.

Key Text: Revelation 2:10.

[10] Fear none of those things which you shall suffer. Behold, the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that you may be tried; and you shall have tribulation ten days: be faithful unto death, and I will give you a crown of life.

Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father. We are grateful to see how You helped Your servant Paul to proclaim the good news. He fought the good fight and finished the race. Help us also to fight the good fight. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Courtroom scene of Paul being accused; role play of guards and soldiers representing Paul's time in prison, with chains and two guards.

DAY 322 (November 17)

TOPIC: Paul testifies about his story again

(Acts 26)

Paul raised his hand as a sign and began to defend himself when he was given permission. He said, "I consider myself fortunate to stand before you today to defend myself against all the accusations brought against me by the Jews, especially because you are well acquainted with all the Jewish customs, religion, and controversies. I beg you to listen to me patiently, for all the Jews know about my life from my youth, which was spent from the beginning in my nation and in Jerusalem. They have known me for a long time, and if they are willing to testify, they can affirm that I lived as a Pharisee according to the strictest sect of our religion. And now, I am on trial because of the hope in the promise made by God to our ancestors."

"This is the promise our twelve tribes hope to attain as they earnestly serve God day and night. It is because of this hope, O King, that I am accused by the Jews. Why should any of you consider it incredible that God raises the dead? I myself was convinced that I ought to do many things to oppose the name of Jesus of Nazareth. This is exactly what I did in Jerusalem. With the authority of the chief priests, I imprisoned many of the saints, and when they were put to death, I cast my vote against them. I often punished them in the synagogues and tried to force them to blaspheme. In my extreme rage, I persecuted them even in foreign cities."

"On one of these journeys, I was going to Damascus with authority and commission from the chief priests. At noon, O King, as I was on the road, I saw a light from heaven, brighter than the sun, shining around me and those traveling with me. We all fell to the ground, and I heard a voice speaking to me in Aramaic, 'Saul, Saul, why do you persecute me? It is hard for you to kick against the goads.' I asked, 'Who are you, Lord?' and the Lord replied, 'I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting.' Saul thought he was doing good by persecuting the followers of Jesus, but in reality, he was opposing God. Even today, we should examine our actions to ensure that we are not unintentionally working against God and His people."

"The Lord told me to get up and stand on my feet. He appeared to me to appoint me as a servant and a witness of what I had seen and what He would reveal to me. He promised to rescue me from the Jewish people and from the Gentiles. He was sending me to them to open their eyes and turn them from darkness to light, from the power of Satan to God, so that they may receive forgiveness of sins and a place among those sanctified by faith in Him."

۞ "So then, King Agrippa, I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision. From that time, I preached first to those in Damascus, then in Jerusalem and throughout all Judea, and to the Gentiles. I told them to repent and turn to God and to demonstrate their repentance by their deeds. That is why the Jews seized me in the temple and tried to kill me. But God has helped me to this very day, and so I stand here and testify to both small and great alike. I am saying nothing beyond what the prophets and Moses said would happen—that the Messiah would suffer and, as the first to rise from the dead, would bring the message of light to His own people and to the Gentiles."

۞ "Through the Messiah, God offers the gift of eternal life to all who believe in Him. The prophets also foretold that the good news of salvation would be proclaimed to the whole world—to the Jews and to the Gentiles alike."

۞ May all who visit Christians recognize that the hour of prayer is the most valuable, sacred, and joyful time of the day. These seasons of worship bring a positive, pure, and uplifting influence that directs our thoughts toward heaven. They offer peace and a restful spirit of gratitude to the soul.

Questions:

1. Why did Paul have the courage to say he did not disobey the vision from heaven?

2. Why did Saul ask, “Who are you, Lord?”

3. Why can a person’s right to justice be lost, even when they are innocent?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Romans 1:16,17.

[16,17] For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believes; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. For therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith: as it is written, The just shall live by faith.

Prayer: Thank You our Father. Help us not to be ashamed of the gospel, for it is Your power bringing salvation to us who believe. Thank You because we shall live by faith. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Take turns with different children testifying about Jesus as Paul did, while others listen.

DAY 323 (November 18)

TOPIC: Paul Challenges King Herod Agrippa

(Acts 26 and 27)

As Paul was defending himself and giving his testimony, Festus interrupted him loudly, saying, “You are out of your mind! Your great learning is driving you insane.” But Paul replied, “I am not insane, Most Excellent Festus. What I am saying is true and reasonable. The king is familiar with these things, and I can speak freely to him. I am convinced that none of this has escaped his notice, because it was not done in a corner.”

Nothing Jesus did was hidden—everyone saw what He did and had the opportunity to know Him. It was because of Jesus that the Jews seized Paul in the temple. Paul challenged King Agrippa by asking, “King Agrippa, do you believe the prophets? I know you do.” Then Agrippa said to Paul, “Do you think that in such a short time you can persuade me to be a Christian?” Paul replied, “I pray to God that not only you but all who are listening to me today may become what I am—except for these chains.” Salvation had come to Agrippa's doorstep, but he was treating it lightly, perhaps because he feared embarrassment. However, no matter how high our rank or position is, it is temporary. People usually hold office for just a few years—maybe 50 if they are a king or a president who does not leave power. But after that, they must step down. If they try to stay longer, they often end up in a wheelchair or confined to a bed for a long time, with a schedule full of medical treatments. Eternity, however, is infinitely long—without limits or an end! Our human minds cannot fully comprehend it because we are limited.

The king, Governor Festus, Bernice, and those sitting with them stood up, signaling that the hearing was over. As they left, they discussed among themselves, "This man has done nothing deserving death or imprisonment." Agrippa said to Festus, "This man could have been set free if he had not appealed to Caesar." However, it was God's plan for Paul to testify to thousands of people in Rome, who would eventually choose to follow Jesus the Messiah. If Paul had been released, the Jews in Jerusalem would have killed him—especially those who, while claiming to serve God, were actually being used by Satan in their cruelty and rage.

Even today, many religious groups act violently and kill people, believing they are serving God and that He has commanded them to do so. But there is no such command unless a person is a criminal guilty of a capital offense. Nowadays, God does not have a chosen nation authorized to kill others! During the time of Israel under God's direct rule, He gave them specific instructions, but since then, things have changed.

Paul had delivered the full message of salvation, but people's positions and statuses can prevent them from making decisions that would lead them to heaven. Even today, we encounter people in various high positions who find excuses to avoid choosing God, reading His Word daily, and following it. The Jews had religious traditions but did not understand what was happening regarding the kingdom of God. Paul remained imprisoned for about two years before the date for his journey to Rome was set. He boarded a ship bound for Italy, accompanied by followers and co-workers like Luke and Aristarchus. It is possible that Timothy joined later, but we are not sure because he was in Rome, perhaps arriving afterward.

Paul and 276 other prisoners were placed under the custody of a centurion named Julius from the Imperial Regiment. They boarded a ship from Adramyttium that was preparing to sail to ports along the coast of the Mediterranean Sea. They stopped at Sidon, where Julius treated Paul kindly, recognizing that he was a servant of God. From there, they sailed past Cyprus instead of going directly because the winds were against them. Paul took the opportunity to meet with believers and continued witnessing during the journey to Rome, which took three months. They traveled through Cilicia, Paul's birthplace, then Pamphylia, and arrived at Myra in Lycia. There, Julius found an Alexandrian ship from Egypt sailing to Italy.

🏵 He transferred the 276 passengers onto this ship. The journey was slow and difficult due to opposing winds, and they struggled to reach Cnidus. From there, they sailed south of Crete, past Salmone. Struggling against the wind, they arrived at a place called Fair Havens, near the town of Lasea. They stayed there for a long time without any clear reason. When the leaders were ready to continue westward to Italy, the season of danger had arrived. After the Jewish Day of Atonement, sailing became hazardous due to winter storms and snow.

🏵 Paul warned them, saying, “Men, I can see that our voyage is going to be disastrous and bring great loss to ship, cargo, and even our lives.” But Julius, the centurion, ignored Paul’s advice, trusting instead the ship’s owner and captain, who wanted to continue for business reasons. Most of the passengers agreed with the captain, believing that Fair Havens was not a suitable place to spend the winter. They decided to risk their lives and sail to Phoenix, a harbor in Crete, which offered better shelter. When a gentle south wind began to blow, they thought they had achieved their goal, so they weighed anchor and sailed along the coast of Crete.

🏵 Daily Prayer as Sweet Incense to God

The life of Abraham, God’s friend, was a life of prayer. Wherever he pitched his tent, he built an altar nearby, where he offered sacrifices in the morning and evening. When his tent was moved, the altar remained. Any Canaanite passing by would know who had been there. Whenever Abraham settled in a new place, he built an altar and worshiped the living God.

🏵 Questions:

How did Festus and King Agrippa II get the opportunity to know God?

Why did Julius ignore Paul’s advice?

Why did they say they could not release Paul?

Why are people who share God’s Word sometimes called insane?

Discuss with others the duties given to the government of Israel during Joshua’s time and compare them to the government of Israel today!

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Acts 27:23-25.

[23-25] For there stood by me this night the angel of God, whose I am, and whom I serve, saying, Fear not, Paul; you must be brought before Caesar: and, lo, God has given you all them that sail with you. Wherefore, sirs, be of good cheer: for I believe God, that it shall be even as it was told me.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for giving visions and dreams to Your servants so that we may not be afraid. Help us to be cheerful and know that You love us even in the midst of storms. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: A basin of water, a paper boat, and a straw placed in the middle of the boat. Stir the water to create a storm.

DAY 324 (November 19)

TOPIC: Shipwrecked and Swimming.

(Acts 27)

Traveling in those days was very challenging. The ships were not sturdy, they had no engines, and they relied on the stars and the sun for navigation, while storms were fierce. However, everything happened because the centurion chose to listen to the ship's captain rather than the servant of God. Indeed, from a human perspective, the captain knew more about sailing than Paul, but Paul was led by the Spirit of God. Paul was an elderly man, possibly around sixty years old, and his friends, like Luke and Aristarchus, decided to accompany the man of God.

The sailors later came to realize who Paul truly was—indeed, those who do not know you cannot value you. Likewise, in our lives, we should be cautious about listening to the advice of certain people, friends, and experts over God. As they traveled along the coast of Crete, after some time, a wind called the Northeaster (Eurakilo) blew violently like a storm. It struck the ship so hard that it could not withstand the wind, and they were carried away to a small island called Cauda, where they tried to secure the lifeboat. The lifeboat, which was aboard the ship, was tied to it.

They used ropes to hoist the lifeboat and reinforced the ship by passing ropes underneath it, fearing they might run aground. They lowered the anchor, fearing that the wind would drive them onto the sandbanks along the coast of Cyrene, Libya. Despite their efforts, the storm battered them severely, and on the second day, they began to throw the cargo overboard. On the third day, they threw the ship's tackle overboard with their own hands. Neither the sun nor the stars were visible due to the thick clouds, and the storm persisted for many days, causing everyone to lose hope of being saved.

After spending a long time without eating properly, Paul stood up and addressed the passengers and crew, speaking loudly to be heard over the storm: "Men, you should have listened to me and not sailed from the harbor on the coast of Crete; you would have avoided this loss and damage. But now I urge you to keep up your courage, because not one of you will be lost—only the ship will be destroyed. Last night, an angel of the God to whom I belong and whom I serve stood beside me and said, 'Do not be afraid, Paul. You must stand trial before Caesar, and God has graciously given you the lives of all who sail with you.' So, men, keep up your courage, for I have faith in God that it will happen just as He told me. However, we must run aground on some island."

On the fourteenth night, they were still being driven across the Adriatic Sea. About midnight, the sailors sensed they were approaching land. In fact, they were approximately 700 km from land. They took soundings and found the water was 120 feet deep. A little later, they took soundings again and found it was 90 feet deep. When they measured again, it was 15 feet deep. Fearing they would be dashed against the rocks, they dropped four anchors from the stern and prayed for daylight. That night, some sailors attempted to escape from the ship. They let down the lifeboat into the sea, pretending they were going to lower more anchors. When Paul noticed this, he warned Julius, the centurion, saying, "Unless these men stay with the ship, you cannot be saved." So, the soldiers cut the ropes that held the lifeboat and let it drift away.

As dawn was breaking, Paul urged everyone to eat, saying, "For fourteen days you have been in constant suspense and have gone without food—you haven't eaten anything. Now I urge you to take some food. You need it to survive. Not one of you will lose a single hair from his head." After saying this, he took some bread and gave thanks to God in front of them all. Then he broke it and began to eat. They were all encouraged and ate some food themselves. Once they had eaten enough, they lightened the ship by throwing the rest of the cargo overboard.

When daylight came, they did not recognize the land, but they saw a bay with a sandy beach where they decided to run the ship aground if they could. The sailors cut loose the anchors and left them in the sea, untied the rudder ropes, and hoisted the foresail to the wind to make for the beach. However, the ship struck a sandbar where two seas met and ran aground. The bow stuck fast and would not move, while the stern was broken to pieces by the pounding of the waves.

The soldiers planned to kill the prisoners to prevent any of them from swimming away and escaping. But the centurion, wanting to spare Paul's life, kept them from carrying out their plan. He ordered those who could swim to jump overboard first and get to land. The rest were to follow on planks or other pieces of the ship. In this way, everyone reached land safely. These people were blessed to travel with the man of God. Their safety was secured because of these faithful individuals. Even today, if you associate with those who worship the true God of heaven—the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—and follow His ways and His Word closely, you will be saved. Perhaps many among the 276 passengers believed in God during those three months. Today, a journey like that could be made in about two days.

🌻Fathers and mothers, every morning and evening, gather your children close to you, and with humble prayer, lift your hearts to GOD for His help. Your loved ones face trials. The daily burdens press upon both the young and the old. Those who desire to live lives of patience, love, and cheerfulness must pray. It is only through receiving continuous help from GOD that we can achieve victory over ourselves.

🌻Questions:

1. How did Paul encourage the travelers?

2. What words did God use to encourage Paul?

3. How many people were saved from the shipwreck?

4. What scheme did the sailors attempt, which Paul warned Julius about?

5. Why didn't the soldiers kill the prisoners?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Key Text: Acts 20:35.

[35] …It is more blessed to give than to receive. And when he had thus spoken, he kneeled down, and prayed with them all. And they all wept sore, and fell on Paul's neck, and kissed him, sorrowing most of all for the words which he spoke, that they should see his face no more. And they accompanied him to the ship.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for helping us to be generous, that we may rejoice in giving rather than receiving. Sometimes we part with our loved ones and feel sorrow; help us that we may meet them again in heaven one day. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Make paper boats. Prepare a box with things for Paul's journey. Act out saying goodbye and the sadness of accompanying him.

DAY 325 (November 20)

TOPIC: On the Island of Malta and Their Kindness

(Acts 28)

When they had safely reached the shore, they discovered that they were on the island of Malta (check it on the map), which is part of Africa. Today, the people here speak Arabic but write it using the Latin alphabet, not Arabic script. The locals were not highly educated or advanced (primitive), but they were very kind and showed extraordinary kindness. God does not require people to be highly educated but to be loving. Even if they do not know Him deeply, they fulfill His Law according to their understanding by performing good deeds, as the Book of Romans says.

Since it was cold, and seeing that the shipwrecked people were wet from swimming and the rain, the locals lit a fire to warm them and welcomed them. While gathering firewood, Paul brought a bundle and placed it on the fire. As he did so, a venomous snake emerged from the bundle and bit him, latching onto his hand. When the people of Malta saw this, they said, “This man must be a murderer. Although he escaped the sea, justice does not allow him to live because of his many crimes.” However, Paul shook the snake off into the fire and suffered no harm. They expected him to swell up or suddenly fall dead because they knew how deadly the snake’s venom was. But nothing happened—he remained healthy. After observing him for a long time and seeing no harm come to him, they changed their minds and said he was a god.

It is easy for a person who does not put God first to worship other gods when they encounter something extraordinary. Not far from that place, there were fields belonging to the chief of the island, named Publius. This wealthy and generous man, upon hearing about them, welcomed the shipwreck survivors. Paul and his fellow evangelists were honored guests for three days.

Publius’s father was bedridden, suffering from fever and dysentery. Paul visited him, placed his hands on him, prayed for him, and healed him. News of this spread quickly throughout the island, and many people brought their sick to Paul, and through the power of Almighty God, he healed them all. The people of Malta were blessed by the team of evangelists. They honored them greatly, and when they were ready to depart, the people provided them with many gifts and all the supplies they needed. After three months on the island—during which many, I believe, accepted Jesus and the True God who created the heavens, the earth, and everything in them—they boarded an Alexandrian ship that had wintered on the island. This ship bore the figurehead of the twin gods Castor and Pollux, Roman deities.

From Malta, they traveled on foot for about 150 kilometers and reached Syracuse, then proceeded to Rhegium. After three days, a favorable wind blew, and the next day they arrived at Puteoli, near Naples in Italy. There, they found Christian brothers and sisters who had prepared to receive them and urged them to stay for seven days. Finally, the ship arrived in Rome.

By this time, the captains and even the soldiers had developed a good relationship with Paul and his companions, allowing them to stay for seven days. As a prisoner, Paul continued to preach and strengthen the believers there. Paul was a courageous servant of Christ who never grew tired of witnessing, along with his companions. Luke and Aristarchus worked tirelessly on the island. This example is one we should all follow as believers in Jesus.

If you want to develop a good and virtuous character, follow the example of this gospel preacher. Paul undertook about four long missionary journeys—you can explore his travels in detail through maps online. Pray for those you share the gospel with. Ask God to give them hearts willing to receive His Word. Your role is to faithfully speak to them.

Jesus left us a command, saying:

“All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to Me. Therefore, go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, and teaching them to obey everything I have commanded you. And surely, I am with you always, to the very end of the age.”

What an amazing promise! It comes with all authority from Him, and He will be with us until the end of the world! 🌻Let us pray for courage like Paul’s! He led many to believe in the Messiah, including members of Emperor Nero’s household.

You cannot read Paul’s story and remain unconvinced that he truly believed with all his heart that Jesus is the Way, the Truth, and the Life. He was so certain of his faith that he was willing to die for it.

Paul, once a fierce enemy of Jesus, became a devoted follower because the risen Jesus appeared to him and removed his ignorance (lack of understanding). Only those with such strong faith will endure the coming “time of Jacob’s trouble” spoken of by the prophet Jeremiah. Let us ask God to give us this kind of faith.

🌻Every morning, dedicate yourself and your children to God for that day. Do not plan based on months or years—that is not yours to control. You have been given one short day. Work as if it is your last day on earth. Submit all your plans to God for Him to carry out or remove as He sees fit.

Accept His plans over your own, even when it means giving up cherished ambitions. In this way, your life will be increasingly shaped according to the divine pattern:

“And the peace of God, which transcends all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus.” (Philippians 4:7)

🌻Questions:

1. Where is Malta located on the map?

2. Which language is similar to the Maltese language?

3. What did the people say when Paul was bitten by a snake?

4. Who was Publius?

5. Were the people of Malta blessed by the evangelists or the servants of God?

6. Which city was Paul taken as a prisoner?

7. In which country is Naples located?

8. Do you talk to your neighbors about the Messiah?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Key Text: Acts 28:3-5.

[3-5] And when Paul had gathered a bundle of sticks, and laid them on the fire, there came a viper out of the heat, and fastened on his hand. And when the barbarians saw the venomous beast hang on his hand, they said among themselves, No doubt this man is a murderer, whom, though he has escaped the sea, yet vengeance suffers not to live. And he shook off the beast into the fire, and felt no harm.

Prayer: Father, thank You for protecting us from pain or harm and sending Your angels to accompany us. Help me to be courageous and to trust in You. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Gather a bundle of sticks, use a plastic snake, then light a pretend fire among the sticks and throw the plastic snake into it.

DAY 326 (November 21)

TOPIC: Paul Testifies in Rome and Writes Letters to the Churches.

(Acts 28)

When the Jewish brothers heard that Paul was arriving in Rome with the evangelists Aristarchus and Luke, the beloved physician, they came to meet them at the Market of Appius and the Three Taverns, about 60 kilometers from the city of Rome. Julius, the centurion, handed over the other prisoners to the soldiers and the prison of Caesar in Rome. However, Paul was treated with respect because of his role during the shipwreck. Julius explained these things, and Paul was given the privilege of staying in his own rented house under guard. He was allowed to receive visits from friends. He had longed to one day arrive in Rome to preach, and he had already written a remarkable letter about the story of the cross. Now that he had finally set foot in Rome, he felt comforted and encouraged. Paul thanked God for the love and care shown by the brothers, despite being in chains and considered a criminal—they were not ashamed of him.

The believers who knew Paul understood well that God was using him as a chosen vessel so that many could receive eternal life. Paul explained his situation to these brothers and testified about his experiences. This courageous man, Paul, has brought millions to Christ through his work and writings. Although education is not a requirement to serve God, a well-educated person can easily reach certain groups and has the ability to articulate ideas in writing and speak to people in high positions. Every human being is given the ability to reach specific people that others cannot—what is known as reaching the "grassroots."

After three days, Paul invited the leaders of the Jews in Rome to meet with him and explained his circumstances. He told them that although they might have heard about his case, he had done nothing against the Jewish religion or the customs of their ancestors. Yet, he had been imprisoned in Jerusalem and handed over to the Romans. Upon investigation, the governor found no fault in him worthy of death and planned to release him. However, when the Jews objected to his release, and Paul realized that the governor might surrender him to them, he appealed to Caesar. He clarified that it was not his intention to bring any accusations against his own people.

Paul emphasized that he was in chains because of his hope in the Messiah and the promise to Israel. The Jewish leaders in Rome told him that they had not received any letters or reports from Judea about his case, nor had any of their brothers arrived to speak ill of him. They expressed their interest in hearing his views because, while the Christian movement was known to them, it was spoken of negatively everywhere.

They arranged a day to meet, and many people came to Paul's rented house. From morning until evening, he explained and testified about the kingdom of God. He taught them using the Scriptures, showing them how the writings of Moses and the prophets pointed to Jesus as the promised Messiah. Some of them were convinced by his message and believed in Jesus, while others disagreed and argued among themselves.

Before they departed, Paul reminded them of the words spoken by the Holy Spirit through the prophet Isaiah: "Go to this people and say, 'You will be ever hearing but never understanding; you will be ever seeing but never perceiving.' For this people's heart has become calloused; they hardly hear with their ears, and they have closed their eyes. Otherwise, they might see with their eyes, hear with their ears, understand with their hearts, and turn, and I would heal them."

Paul declared that the message of salvation was for all nations, languages, and tribes. If the Jews refused to believe, the Gentiles would be ready to receive it. Many Jews did not accept Paul's words; instead, they smiled politely, said farewell, and left while continuing to argue among themselves. Although they were good people who did no harm to God's servant, their hearts were hardened. They were unwilling to accept Jesus because they feared their lives would be changed. They preferred to remain as they were. Are you ready to surrender to Jesus, or do you want to remain unchanged? When you hear this precious story, will you respond by embracing the love of Jesus, or will you remain indifferent?

Paul continued to preach the good news of the gospel. Since Governor Agrippa and others were in no rush to judge Paul, knowing he was not a criminal, they delayed the case. For two years, Paul remained under house arrest, continuing to speak boldly about the kingdom of God. He knew his time of execution was drawing near, so he made the most of every opportunity to share the gospel openly and without hindrance. Even the members of Caesar's household and the soldiers guarding him heard the gospel, and many believed (see Philippians 1:12 and Philippians 4:22).

Later, Paul was released and traveled again, but he was eventually imprisoned once more. During this time, he wrote letters to the young churches he had founded or that his disciples had established. These are known as the Prison Epistles, including Philippians, Colossians, Ephesians, 1 and 2 Timothy, and Philemon. In these letters, Paul encouraged and comforted the believers. He concluded one letter by saying, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith. Now there is in store for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will award to me on that day—and not only to me but also to all who have longed for his appearing." It is said that Paul was executed by Emperor Nero in 68 AD.

Paul and the apostles worked hard to break down the barriers of ethnicity and religion. They preached that Jesus, the Messiah, had come, died, and risen again. Although many knew this was true, they were reluctant to fully commit. The apostles emphasized that it was better to suffer for doing good than for doing evil. They tirelessly testified about God. Their zeal and dedication deserve our support and imitation. If we want to develop good character, we must value and follow the example set by the apostles.

Daily Prayer Focus: We should view every duty as sacred because it is part of our service to God, no matter how humble the task may be. Our daily prayer should be, "Lord, help me to do my best. Teach me how to work diligently. Give me strength and enthusiasm. Help me to bring the Savior's love into my service."

Questions:

Who accompanied Paul to Rome?

What did Julius do upon arriving in Rome?

What kind of imprisonment did Paul experience?

Why did Paul appeal to Caesar?

Why did people refuse to change when Paul spoke to them?

Are you ready to fully surrender to God?

How do you think strangers perceived Paul, an older man in chains among other prisoners?

Have you ever heard the truth and failed to act on it?

Key Text: Acts 3:7.

[7] Then Peter said, "Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I you: In the Name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk." And he took him by the right hand, and lifted him up: and immediately his feet and ankle bones received strength.

Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father, for You heal our disabilities and diseases, even those we may have been born with since childhood. Blessed be Your Name. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

DAY 327 (November 22)

TOPIC: The Letters of Paul, the Apostles, Jude, and James.

While in Rome as a prisoner, Paul had the opportunity to preach the gospel, receive visits from friends, and write letters to the churches he had helped establish. Luke, Aristarchus, Mark, Timothy, and others continued to serve alongside him. The letters we have are only a portion of those included in the Bible. The New Testament contains 21 letters, written to churches that had been established after being taught about the Messiah. It is believed that these letters were written even before the Gospels. Fourteen of these are Paul's letters, including the letter to the Hebrews. Paul's letters make up more than half of the New Testament. I encourage parents to discuss these letters with their children and to memorize passages from them. We should not overlook these letters, as they contain valuable teachings and are part of the Holy Scriptures. Paul was a remarkable letter writer, and his writings continue to be read by millions of people today. It is said that Galatians and Thessalonians were the first letters written around 45 AD.

Paul was a Pharisee, a Jew from the tribe of Benjamin. Initially, he was called Saul and held Roman citizenship because he was born in Cilicia, Tarsus. He was educated under Rabbi Gamaliel in Jerusalem. He wrote letters to the newly founded churches to encourage them regarding their relationship with God, their relationship with others, and their family relationships. In his letters, he addressed people from different backgrounds and tailored his messages to their cultural contexts. He said that although he was free, he became a servant to all—becoming like a Jew to win the Jews, living under the law to win those under the law, and becoming weak to win the weak. It appears he did not marry, choosing instead to dedicate himself fully to serving God.

Although it is possible that during his time as a member of the Sanhedrin council he may have had a wife, he might have become a widower later on. He earned his living by making tents, choosing to be content and not depend on others. He knew how to live humbly and how to live in abundance, having learned to face hunger and plenty, and to endure need. He believed that he could do all things through Christ who strengthened him. After his conversion, Paul was taken to Arabia, where he was taught by the Holy Spirit for three years. Despite his great knowledge, he remained humble, calling himself the chief of sinners. Through God's power, he preached and healed. He worked alongside many others, including Barnabas (the son of encouragement), Silas, Mark, Timothy, Priscilla, Aquila, Luke the physician, and others.

❁ In addition to their profound teachings on faith, these letters provide valuable insights into the history of God's work and the early Christian church. Although Romans is listed first among Paul's letters, the chronological order of his writings begins with Thessalonians, followed by Galatians, Corinthians, Romans, Colossians, Ephesians, Philippians, Philemon, 1 Timothy, Titus, and 2 Timothy. Most of his letters were written between 45 AD and 65 AD. Epaphroditus and Timothy carried Paul's letter to Philippi, a letter filled with comfort, joy, gentleness, and kindness. Onesimus delivered the letter to the church in Colossae. This letter to the Colossians did not address any specific problem but offered Christian guidance. These letters conveyed messages of deep love, as the apostles wrote to their spiritual children, providing counsel in all aspects of life to help them grow in their faith and serve Christ until His second coming.

❁ The apostles desired believers to remain faithful until the day Jesus would appear in the clouds, living lives of godliness, humility, peace, love, joy, hope, and patience. These letters reminded the believers that they would face difficulties because the enemy sought to cause them to fall and suffer. However, they were urged not to worry, as nothing could separate them from the love of Christ—not trouble, hardship, hunger, lack of clothing, danger, or persecution. If you find some parts of Paul's letters difficult to understand, do not be discouraged, as even Apostle Peter acknowledged that some aspects of Paul's writings were challenging. When reading these letters, consider the audience, the time they were written, and the issues faced by those early believers.

❁ Many Christians had previously worshiped other gods, following pagan beliefs, and needed to be taught the truth with care and love—qualities that Paul demonstrated. Paul served the Lord with all his heart and strength, trusting that God would safeguard his faith until the end. In his letter to Timothy, Paul urged him to preach the Word, be prepared in and out of season, and to rebuke, correct, and encourage with great patience. Paul foresaw a time when people would reject sound doctrine, follow their own desires, gather teachers to suit their itching ears, and turn aside to myths. He instructed Timothy to be sober-minded, endure hardships, and fulfill his ministry as a preacher of the gospel. Paul believed that God gave him the strength to rescue others from the jaws of the lion—meaning the devil.

❁ Other New Testament letter writers include Jude (the brother of Jesus),

James (the brother of Jesus), John, and Peter, who were apostles. Paul continued to testify about Christ freely. It is believed that at one point, he was released from prison and traveled again before returning to Rome, where he was eventually executed under Emperor Nero. Paul's final words were encouraging: "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith. Now there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord will award to me—and not only to me but to all who long for His appearing." May we also strive to live lives that reflect these words.

Consecrate yourself to God each morning; make this your first task of the day. Let your prayer be: "Take me, O Lord, as wholly Yours. I lay all my plans at Your feet. Use me today in Your service. Abide with me, and may all my work be done in You." This is a daily matter. Every morning, consecrate yourself to God for the day ahead. Commit your plans to Him to be carried out or set aside as He directs. By doing this day by day, you place your life in His hands, and He will shape your character to reflect that of Christ.

DAY 328 (November 23)

TOPIC: For I Am Not Ashamed of the Gospel!

❁ Many people have called this book the clearest gospel book of all. Paul wrote the letter to the Romans around 60 AD while he was in Corinth, a city in Greece. Although he had never been to Rome, he knew there were believers there who began meeting after hearing the news of the death and resurrection of Jesus the Messiah, who had been promised. Rome was a gathering place for people from all over the world, as it was the capital of the Roman Empire. It was a city filled with music, competitive sports, entertainment, and even brutal games where people died. An example of these cruel games included people being thrown to wild animals while others cheered as the victim tried to defend themselves.

❁ This city also had many God-fearing people like Priscilla and Aquila, Phoebe, and others mentioned in Romans chapter 16. Paul traveled farther than most missionaries of his time, despite the lack of modern transportation such as cars, airplanes, telephones, emails, WhatsApp, or trains. Communication was challenging, so letters like the one to the Romans were a great help to many. Paul prayed constantly for the Romans, and we too should pray for our parents, relatives, and all people who do not yet know Christ. Paul tells the believers that through faith in Jesus and what He did for us—dying on our behalf—we are reconciled to God. This means we should live our lives for Him.

Romans 1:1 says, “Paul, a servant of Christ Jesus, called to be an apostle and set apart for the gospel of God.” What are we set apart for today? The Holy Spirit knew that we all need the message of Romans. Paul addresses the greatest problem in human history—God’s judgment on humanity due to our unrighteousness and self-righteousness. Human solutions to the problem of guilt and separation from God have always fallen short—our efforts cannot provide the required solution. Human-made religious systems cannot bridge the gap. Paul explains that both Jews and Gentiles are under the power of sin (Romans 3:9), and the problem is so severe that only God can resolve it. We need to abandon our own righteousness and run to Christ and His sacrifice as our only righteousness. After being justified by faith, we must grow in righteous living and relationships. We need to embrace the gospel fully and share it with others. Let us fix our eyes on Jesus alone!

The letter to the Romans is a treasure of Christian faith, carefully organized and more widely understood than Paul’s other letters. It is a pastoral letter that completes the foundational plan of pastoral ministry. It speaks about grace led by the Holy Spirit. This letter has transformed the hearts of many who have read it. Grace is one of the most significant distinctions between Christianity and other religions. Paul wrote the letter to the Romans to explain the gospel—that our righteousness comes from Jesus alone and that we do not earn it. We are saved by works—the works of Jesus on the cross—not by our own actions.

This letter is another gospel book! It is the good news of salvation. Jesus died on the cross for us. Faith comes by hearing, and hearing comes by the Word of God. Blessed are the feet of those who bring the gospel so that others may hear. Paul also reminds us that same-sex relationships—whether a man with a man or a woman with a woman—are sinful and go against the natural order; there are consequences for these actions. Paul emphasizes how sin affects not only humanity but all of creation. Since the fall, all of creation groans under the weight of human sin. Before sin entered the world, animals did not prey on each other, and there was no pain, sorrow, or death. However, after human sin, all of creation suffered, even though it was not responsible.

Paul reminds us that all have sinned, and the wages of sin is death. He asks how a sinful person can live day by day to glorify God. Paul recognized his own struggle—“What I want to do, I do not do, but what I hate, I do.” He cried out, “Wretched man that I am! Who will deliver me from this body of death?” He then thanked God, who gives us victory over sin through Jesus. Paul explains that evil comes to those who reject God as the Creator, believing they know everything and refusing to follow His ways. It becomes difficult for God to help such people, and over time, they become entrenched in false teachings.

❁ With boldness, Paul declares, “For I am not ashamed of the gospel, because it is the power of God that brings salvation to everyone who believes: first to the Jew, then to the Gentile.” A Gentile refers to people like you and me. The righteousness of God is revealed through faith, as God says, “The righteous will live by faith.” This means that we are not justified by the works of the law but by God’s grace through faith in Jesus Christ, who died for us while we were still sinners. Paul asks, “What shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall trouble or hardship or persecution or famine or nakedness or danger or sword?” He concludes that neither death, life, angels, nor powers can separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord.

❁ The Jews believed that circumcision or being descendants of Abraham would save them. Paul explains that true circumcision is a change of heart—loving God and accepting the sacrifice of Christ on Calvary. He uses Abraham as an example, who was justified by faith even before he was circumcised. There is nothing we can do to earn salvation, no matter how good our works are. Our ethnicity, religion, or heritage cannot save us. Only God’s mercy and grace through Jesus Christ can save us.

❁ Paul emphasizes that we should obey government authorities because they are God’s servants to bring order and justice. We should love and pray for our government. We owe no one anything except love. Paul stresses that believers should love one another and avoid false teachings that contradict the Bible.

❁ We are fully reconciled to God through the death of His Son, Jesus Christ. Sin entered the world through one man—Adam—and it is removed through Jesus’ death as a gift to all humanity. We are born again by confessing Jesus as our Savior and being baptized. Through Him, we are freed from the slavery of sin. Though Israel as a nation rejected Christ, many Jews will be saved through faith.

❁ Paul concludes the letter by greeting many friends, giving thanks, and praising God, saying: “To the only wise God be glory forever through Jesus Christ! Amen.”

DAY 329 (November 24)

TOPIC: Problems Faced by New Believers in Corinth Are Discussed

This lengthy letter, addressing spiritual matters, was written in Greek to the believers in Corinth, Greece, probably around 55 AD. Paul established this church when he preached and lived there for a year and a half. Ancient Corinth was an international city—migration, money-making activities, major sports events, grand parties, and immoral practices like fornication, adultery, and moral decay were prevalent. Paul writes to the leaders and members to address the problems faced by the believers. These same problems exist in our churches today.

First, there were disputes among the members of the Corinthian church—they were quarreling with each other. Paul says the Jews seek signs, and the Greeks seek wisdom, but they should seek Jesus Christ crucified. Some claimed to belong to Paul, others to Apollos, and others to Cephas (Peter), prompting Paul to ask, "Is Christ divided? Was Paul crucified for you? Were you baptized in the name of Paul or in the name of Jesus?"

Paul emphasizes that they are merely workers in God's field or servants of Christ. He says they have been beaten, gone hungry, been humiliated, and become the scum of the earth so that Christ may be glorified—not themselves. We must be careful not to quarrel like people of the world. Even today, we must avoid disputes with others, seek solutions, reconcile, and maintain peace when playing, working, or interacting with others.

Paul also addresses the immorality within the church—there was a man who took his father's wife as his own. This shameful and grievous sin prompted Paul to instruct the church to separate the man and impose disciplinary measures so that he might be helped and saved.

He advised them not to associate with sexually immoral people, the greedy, swindlers, or idolaters, as these will not inherit the kingdom of God. He reminded them that their bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit and that they are not their own. Therefore, whether they eat, drink, or do anything else, they must honor God with their bodies because they were bought at a high price—the blood of Jesus.

This means we cannot consume anything harmful, such as cigarettes, unhealthy food, or alcohol. We cannot do whatever we please with our bodies because we are God's creation and are accountable as stewards of our lives.

Paul mentions that some people ate food sacrificed to idols, which he declares as sinful. For him, the most important thing was to know nothing else except Jesus Christ crucified.

Paul discusses the Lord's Supper in detail, explaining that before partaking in this sacrament, one must examine themselves and confess any wrongdoing. The bread represents the body of Christ, and the wine represents His blood—by partaking, we proclaim His death until He comes again. This sacrament also symbolizes sanctification.

Paul gives his personal advice, saying it is better not to marry, but if one cannot live without a partner, it is better to marry.

It is sinful to live with someone without a legally recognized marriage. Whether it is a traditional, church, or government marriage, it is ideal to have a church wedding for the blessing of the union. Paul notes that remaining unmarried can sometimes allow for more focus on God's work.

However, for those already married, they should not leave their spouses. If someone is married to an unbeliever, they should not divorce them, as their faith could lead to the spouse's salvation. However, believers should not be unequally yoked with unbelievers. Husbands and wives must live with love and humility. Everyone should avoid the impurity of living with someone outside the bonds of a God-ordained marriage.

Paul also addresses the issue of believers suing each other in secular courts. He asks, "Can't you settle these matters within the church? Don't you know that the saints will judge the world?" If we will judge the world and even fallen angels, how much more should we be able to handle minor disputes among ourselves?

Paul speaks about the spiritual gifts given by the Holy Spirit to each person for the benefit of others—some have the gift of teaching, others singing, words of wisdom or knowledge, healing, performing miracles, prophecy, distinguishing spirits, or speaking in tongues. The Holy Spirit distributes these gifts as He wills.

Therefore, we should not be envious of others' gifts because God knows what is best for each of us, and we all have unique gifts. After discussing spiritual gifts, Paul emphasizes the importance of love. Without love, all gifts are meaningless in God's work.

True love is not just a feeling or emotion—it is a divine principle. God is love, and Jesus came to demonstrate God's love. Love is the greatest commandment—loving God with all our hearts, souls, minds, and strength, and loving our neighbors as ourselves.

Paul explains that love is patient, kind, not envious, not boastful, not proud, not rude, not self-seeking, not easily angered, and does not keep records of wrongs. Love does not delight in evil but rejoices with the truth. Love always protects, always trusts, always hopes, and always perseveres. The three enduring things are faith, hope, and love, but the greatest of these is love.

Paul discusses the resurrection, stating that at the last trumpet, the dead will rise, and our perishable bodies will be transformed into imperishable ones. Death will be swallowed up in victory. This message offers comfort to those grieving the loss of loved ones.

In chapter 16, Paul discusses the collection of offerings to support the ministry. Giving is an act of gratitude for Jesus' sacrifice, a sign of our trust in God, and an expression of love for Him and our neighbors. Following God's principles of giving opens the windows of heaven's blessings (Malachi 3).

Life is challenging for everyone in this sinful world. However, Christians find peace not because of a lack of troubles but because Christ is with them through their trials. Paul himself was overwhelmed beyond his strength but relied on God's help.

As Christians, we should comfort others with the comfort we have received from God. Only God can provide true help and strength. As Matthew 24:13 says, “He who endures to the end will be saved.”

🌻Follow Jesus’ example of starting the day with prayer. Just as Jesus found wisdom and strength in prayer, young people should seek quiet moments with God daily. In every step, God says, “I am the Lord your God who takes hold of your right hand and says to you, ‘Do not fear; I will help you.’” (Isaiah 41:13).

🌻Questions:

Why is it wrong to marry a close relative?

Why shouldn’t believers take each other to court?

Why can’t we save ourselves through our works?

What does it mean that our bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit?

Memorize 1 Corinthians 13:4-8—what are the characteristics of true love?

What does the Lord’s Supper represent?

Why is everything meaningless without love?

Why did Paul ask the Corinthians if Christ was divided?

How should a believer approach legal disputes with another believer?

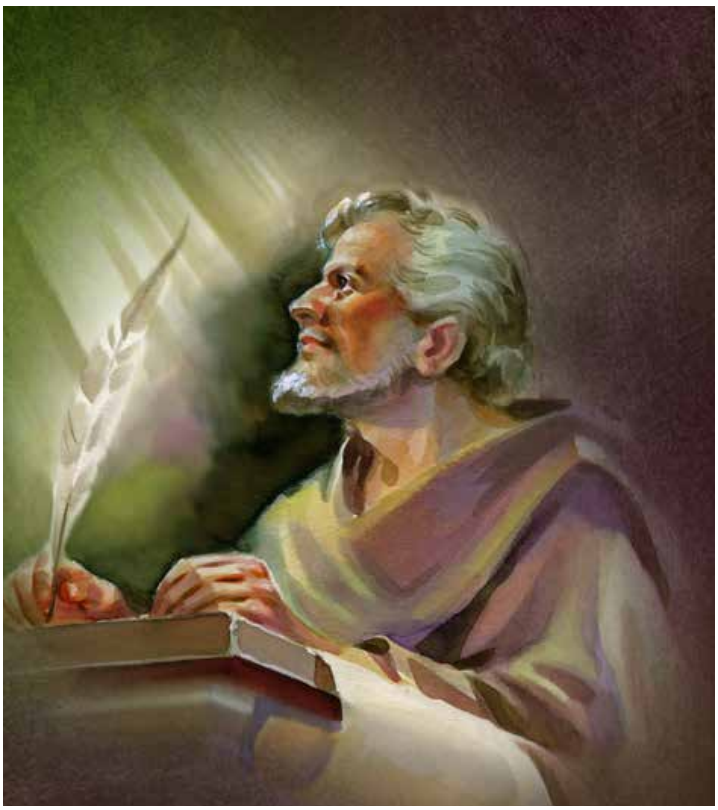
Should those who steal from the church be taken to court or forgiven?

How will the dead be raised?

In what way would you like God to open the windows of heaven for you this month?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: 1 Corinthians 13:1.



[1] Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal. … Love suffers long, and is kind; love envies not; love vaunts not itself, is not puffed up, does not behave unseemly, seeks not its own, is not easily provoked, thinks no evil, rejoices not in iniquity, but rejoices in the truth; bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for giving us Your love and for loving us. Help us to be patient, kind, humble, respectful, free from envy or grudges, and full of faith. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

DAY 330 (November 25)

TOPIC: When we are weak, then we are strong.

(2 Corinthians)

The Apostle Paul wrote this letter to the Corinthians in Greece, defending his apostleship and the gospel. His writings suggest he had written about four letters to the Corinthians, but only two have survived to this day. Paul was given his apostleship directly by Jesus Himself. He asserts that he is not inferior to the greatest apostles in any way, though he considers himself nothing. He writes a letter of rebuke like a father, so that when he comes, he will not have to be harsh, using the authority the Lord gave him to build up rather than tear down. Paul postponed his visit to Corinth to lessen their sorrow because some had misunderstood him and made him weep. His desire was to draw people to Christ, but others wanted to hide their evil deeds and divide the church.

Paul commends the Corinthians for disciplining the man who had sinned by living with his stepmother and urges them to forgive and restore him to fellowship. This is to prevent Satan from taking advantage of their lack of forgiveness and love, as the offender might be overwhelmed by excessive sorrow. False prophets existed even then—people who claimed to follow Moses and Jesus but taught that Jewish laws such as sacrificial offerings still applied. Even today, false prophets exalt themselves, focus on their ministries, and seek offerings more than caring for the flock of God. We are urged to avoid these false prophets and instead be the fragrance of Christ before God. Someone once said that while Jesus fed 5,000 people, false prophets seek 5,000 followers to feed themselves, traveling in extravagant cars and even private jets.

Paul emphasizes that those who follow and serve God will face suffering at some point, but God is the comforter of all who are in trouble, especially those who receive Him and seek to do His will. In every trial and difficulty, we should remember that God is Almighty, and nothing is impossible for Him. God can also use other believers to comfort those in trouble. We can intercede for our friends or relatives facing difficulties. Joseph's suffering in Egypt strengthened and purified him. Although Paul and his companions faced many hardships, they considered their afflictions light and temporary compared to the glory of Christ. He advises us to focus on the unseen eternal things rather than the temporary things of this world. He encourages us to walk by faith, not by sight. Even if people think they are crazy for preaching the gospel, it is because the love of Christ compels them—they do not want people to perish.

Jesus reconciled us to God through His death. This alone is a compelling reason to live for Him rather than for ourselves. We are called to live holy lives without blemish, spots, or wrinkles. Since God is holy, we must also pursue holiness and peace with others. Paul urges the believers to set aside offerings for the poor and needy, reminding them that God will reward their generosity. He praises the Macedonian believers for their generosity in supporting God's work, trusting that God would meet their every need. Let us give as we are blessed—not only material things, for God owns everything, but also our hearts, our entertainment, and our time. It is our choice what and how much to give to Him. Whoever sows sparingly will also reap sparingly. Let us not merely fill our minds with Scripture while allowing our hearts to be corrupted by sin.

Paul emphasizes that Christians should be humble, knowing that many misunderstand humility as weakness. True humility is having the mind of Christ. Paul teaches that marriage is an institution established by God and warns against marrying unbelievers. "Tell me who your friend is, and I will tell you who you are." Birds of a feather flock together. Many also consider social media their friend, which raises the question: How much time do we spend on it, and what do we consume there? Are we sharing the gospel digitally as well? An unbeliever values different things from a believer. Just as oil and water cannot mix, so too the kingdom of God cannot mix with the kingdom of the enemy. The gospel remains hidden to those who are perishing because the god of this world has blinded their minds. Paul emphasizes that our sufferings are small and temporary compared to the eternal kingdom of heaven. Someone once said that when we get to heaven, we will struggle to remember our earthly sorrows because they will pale in comparison to the beauty of heaven and the joy of seeing God face-to-face. Isn't this good news that should bring a smile to us as pilgrims in this world?

Therefore, let us focus on the unseen things because the visible is temporary, but the unseen is eternal. Today is the acceptable time and the day of our salvation. Jesus, though rich, became poor for our sake so that we might become rich through His poverty. Paul recounts the many hardships he endured: beatings with rods, stoning, shipwrecks, dangers from rivers, robbers, and his own people, as well as hunger, thirst, fasting, cold, and lack of clothing—all for the sake of the gospel. He says he boasts in these sufferings, not because it is pleasant, but because when he is weak, he is strong in Christ.

Paul reveals a powerful truth about taking captive every thought and demolishing arguments that rise against the knowledge of God. This truth should be explained clearly to children so they understand it well. To prevent pride due to the abundance of revelations, God gave Paul a thorn in his flesh—a messenger of Satan to torment him. Paul pleaded with the Lord three times to remove it, but God told him, “My grace is sufficient for you, for My power is made perfect in weakness.” Therefore, Paul chose to boast in his weaknesses so that Christ’s power might rest on him. He takes pleasure in his weaknesses, hardships, and troubles because when he is weak, he is spiritually strong and able to overcome the enemy.

Paul was a hardworking man. He did not burden the church financially but supported himself by making tents. Since the church was in its early stages, Paul spent time explaining his experiences in ministry, as many were speaking against his work. He disliked boasting but emphasized that if anyone should boast, it should be in knowing the Lord.

Let us learn from Paul that if we are in Christ, we are new creations; the old has passed away, and we have begun a new life as children of light. A powerful promise in this letter is found in 2 Corinthians 1:20: “For all the promises of God in Him are Yes, and in Him Amen, to the glory of God through us.” The Bible is God’s precious garden, and His promises are treasures. We must receive the Scriptures as God’s Word to us, as though He were speaking directly to us. Let us believe God’s promises. We should not rely on our feelings as proof of our acceptance by the Lord but instead take hold of His promises and claim them as our own. Believe that you have received what you asked for, and it will be yours. Through faith, let us hold onto Christ, and He will empower us. Let us thank God for our Savior.

If Jesus needed to pray while on earth, how much more should we pray? When Jesus was on earth, He taught His disciples how to pray. He instructed them to present their daily needs to God and cast all their burdens on Him. The assurance He gave them—that their prayers would be heard—is also an assurance for us today.

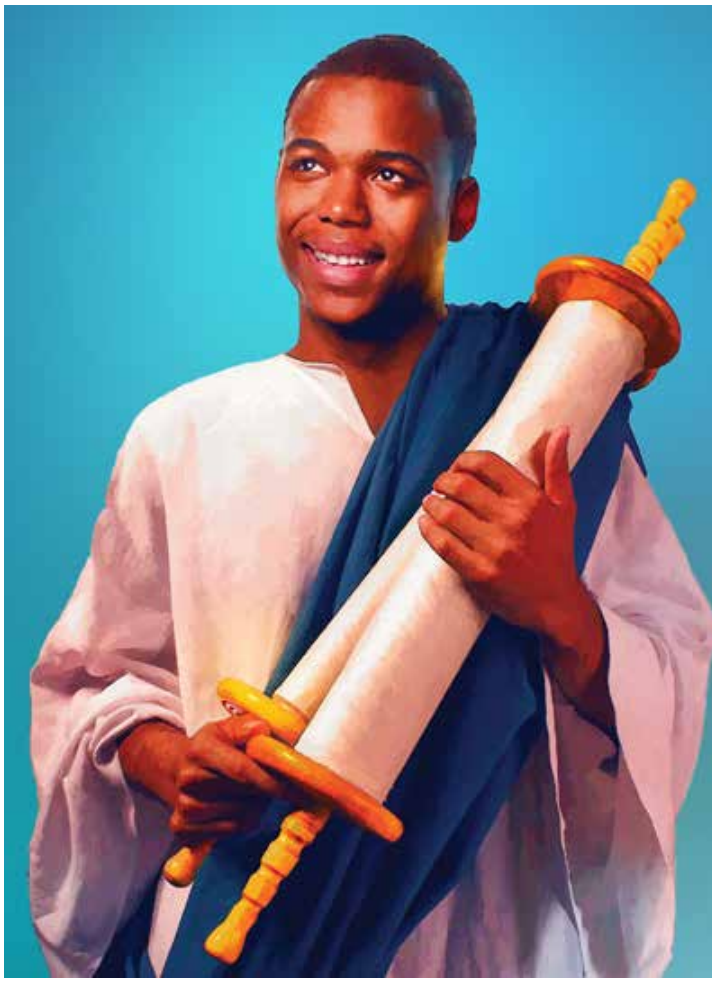
Questions: Why didn't God remove Paul's thorn? Why should a believer not marry an unbeliever? Why is it important for believers to give offerings? Why should we focus on the unseen things?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: 2 Corinthians 5:6,7.

[6,7] Therefore we are always confident, knowing that, whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord: (For we walk by faith, not by sight).



Prayer: Thank You very much, our Father. We pray that You help us live by faith, knowing that You love us and that Your promises are completely true. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: For little children, you can teach the principle "we walk by faith, not by sight" through a "blindfold" activity, where children with eyes covered trust a leader to guide them along a path. Explain what faith means!

DAY 331 (November 26)

TOPIC: The Fruit of the Spirit

Galatia is part of modern-day Turkey. Paul traveled there during his missionary journeys, preaching about Jesus for the first time in churches in Pisidian Antioch, Iconium, Lystra, and Derbe. His spiritual child, Timothy, was from Derbe. Paul wrote this letter to the Galatians to explain that his apostleship came from the Lord and not from man. His emphasis was that salvation does not come from human works, as many Galatians believed that circumcision and becoming a Jew would lead them to heaven. He told them that those who insisted on circumcision or following the works of the law did not even keep the law themselves but were obsessed with external practices. Paul questioned their reasoning, asking if anyone could be saved through good works or circumcision. No one can! Every human being is sinful—whether in small or great ways.

It is only the act of Jesus on the cross that saves us. Paul declared that if anyone preached a different gospel from the one he taught them, let that person be accursed. He reminded the Galatians that they began their spiritual journey well but became entangled in the works of the flesh. He challenged them by saying that if they believed cutting a small part of their body (circumcision) would save them, then they should go ahead and cut the whole thing off. Even Peter was misled by this issue. After spending time with Jewish believers in Galatia—those of the circumcision group—Peter began to avoid eating with Gentile Christians to please the Jews and care more about what they thought.

Paul rebuked Peter, who realized his mistake—that prioritizing human opinions over God's guidance distorts the Word when preaching to the Gentiles. It is Jesus alone who saves. Certain religious practices, such as bodily marks, pilgrimages, or rituals, cannot save us. God is our salvation—seek Him and accept Him first, and then good works will be the fruit of our faith. God does not discriminate between Gentiles and Jews, men and women, free people and slaves, the rich and the poor, the tall and the short, the black and the white.

Paul saw some people misusing the grace of God—a problem that persists today. Many claim that because they are saved by grace, breaking the law does not matter. It is true that we are all saved by faith alone—our faith in God and His Son, not by our works. However, being saved by grace does not mean we should continue doing evil. We must crucify our sinful desires, surrender to the Son of God, and abandon our sinful ways to embrace a new life. Paul said, "I marvel that you are turning away so soon from Him who called you in the grace of Christ, to a different gospel." Anyone preaching a different message should be accursed. We are not justified by the works of the law, for no one can be justified by works alone.

We all need to be justified because we often fall and sin. Those who have faith are the children of Abraham, the father of faith. Many Jews boasted of being Abraham's descendants, but Paul reminded them that if they belonged to Christ, they were truly Abraham's children. We are the children of Sarah—the children of the promise—not the children of Hagar, meaning we are free and should not enslave ourselves to the works of the law. Paul said the Galatians started their spiritual journey well but were now ruining it by focusing on fleshly works like circumcision. He urged them to walk by the Spirit, and they would not fulfill the desires of the flesh.

Galatians teaches us about the fruit of the Spirit, which every child of God should possess. It is one fruit with many aspects: love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, and self-control. Memorize these characteristics! The opposite of the fruit of the Spirit is the works of the flesh: boasting, provoking one another, envy, witchcraft, idolatry, divisions, gossip, sexual immorality, impurity, hatred, quarreling, jealousy, outbursts of anger, selfish ambitions, dissensions, drunkenness, gluttony, and similar things. Those who practice such things will not inherit the kingdom of God.

We should always act with love and restore those who fall into sin with gentleness, bringing them back to Jesus. At the same time, we must be cautious, lest we also fall into temptation. We should carry one another's burdens and help each other as brothers and sisters, for we have one Father.

Paul reminds us that God sees everything we do—both in secret and openly. Do not be deceived—God is not mocked. Whatever a person sows, that is what they will reap. Those who sow to please the flesh will reap destruction, while those who sow to please the Spirit will reap eternal life. No one can plant spinach and harvest cannabis. May God help us run the race, forgetting what lies behind and focusing on the great reward Jesus has prepared for us. While others strive for perishable trophies, let us not chase after houses, bicycles, cars, wealth, fields, livestock, fancy clothes, or toys—but let us pursue eternal life in Jesus.

There is no better university than sitting at the feet of Jesus, waiting quietly to hear His voice through the power of the Holy Spirit. Just as in Paul's time, Satan still works today to deceive and destroy people's souls through false teachings. Be wary of anyone who teaches a message contrary to the Bible. This means you must know the Bible's teachings thoroughly so that when Satan's agents bring false doctrines, you will recognize and reject them. This is a matter of life and death—so take it seriously!

Let us have joy, and whatever our needs or troubles may be, let us tell God without hiding anything. If we feel sadness, anger, or gratitude, let us speak to God because He cares deeply about our lives.

Jesus Prayed for Strength to Endure Temptations. Few people follow the Savior's example of praying diligently and constantly to God for the strength to endure life's trials and fulfill daily responsibilities. Christ, the Captain of our salvation, through His suffering and sacrifice, set an example for all His followers that persistent prayer and vigilance are essential for representing His love for fallen humanity.

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Galatians 5:22-26.

[22-26] But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law. And they that are Christ’s have crucified the flesh with its affections and lusts. If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit. Let us not be desirous of vain glory, provoking one another, envying one another.

Prayer: Lord, thank You for today. Go before us as we go to school. We pray for love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, and self-control.

Activity: Memorize the fruit of the Spirit, and draw fruits, writing the nine traits on them, or use one large fruit such as jackfruit or watermelon to show the different traits.

DAY 332 (November 27)

TOPIC: The Message of Relationships

(Ephesians)

Paul wrote this letter while he was imprisoned in Rome. If we were to memorize one book out of the 66 books of the Bible, this would be the one! This book contains everything—creation, the first coming of Jesus to earth and His death for us, and His second coming. It covers everything from Genesis to Revelation! During this time, Paul also wrote letters to the Philippians, Colossians, Philemon, and Second Timothy. The members of the church in Ephesus, located in modern-day Turkey, were Gentiles (non-Jews). Timothy was their pastor, and this church was the first of the seven churches John wrote about in Revelation. This letter does not seem to address specific issues among the members.

Ephesus was known for the great temple of the goddess Diana (Artemis). In this city, metalworkers became angry with Paul when he preached about Jesus because they lost their market for selling metal idols of Diana. Paul sent Tychicus to deliver this letter. He urged the Ephesians to live according to the calling they had received from God. This book overflows with joy in knowing Jesus and having fellowship with other believers. It is our opportunity to know God, understand His love, and become part of His family. We should be encouraged that through His grace, nothing can separate us from the love of God.

This book is somewhat similar to Colossians. Paul reminds the people that he is an apostle and a servant of Christ, and that unity in the body of Christ is important—whether among parents, husbands, wives, slaves, or children. Paul encourages us to follow God as dearly loved children and to live a life of love, just as Christ loved us and gave Himself up for us as a fragrant offering and sacrifice to God. He advises against speaking foolishly, living shamefully, or engaging in arguments because these things are not pleasing to God. His advice is to live wisely, making the most of every opportunity because we live in evil days—do not waste time on meaningless things.

He tells wives to submit to their husbands as they submit to the Lord because the husband is the head of the wife, just as Christ is the head of the church. Each wife is to respect her husband as the leader of the home. He tells husbands to love their wives as Christ loved the church and gave Himself up for it. There is a certain respect we owe to each gender as part of humanity, but it is important to note that the submission of a wife is directed to her husband—not to all men.

The body and its parts are an example of unity within the Christian church—each part is important and dependent on the others. The head, lungs, or heart cannot claim to be more important than the mouth, feet, hands, or kidneys. Paul warns the church elders against false teachers who spread a false gospel. He urges them not to abandon their first love—the passion they had when they were new believers.

The Holy Spirit seals us and gives us assurance of our salvation, so we do not fear being lost. The church must be distinct from the world. Christ is one, there is one Spirit, one baptism, one hope, one faith, and one God. By grace, we are saved through faith—not by our works (Ephesians 2:20). It is a gift from God, so no one can boast.

Paul instructs children to obey their parents as they would obey the Lord, because it is right. This is the first commandment with a promise—that you may live long in the land the Lord your God is giving you. Fathers are advised not to provoke their children but to bring them up in the training and instruction of the Lord. Slaves are told to obey their masters with respect and sincerity.

Masters are also instructed to treat their slaves well and not to threaten them because both slave and master share the same Master in heaven, who shows no favoritism. Paul tells us to let go of selfish desires and sinful behaviors as if removing filthy clothes and instead to put on new garments of righteousness. We should avoid anger and arguments and not let the sun go down while we are still angry. We must leave behind old ways such as stealing, lying, and disobedience, and instead work hard to support ourselves and help others. We should speak words that uplift and encourage others and focus our minds on what is good.

Jesus is the peace and foundation of the entire church. We must be the light of the world, walking in love.

🌼 Paul concludes his letter by urging us to put on the seven pieces of the armor of God so that we may stand against the schemes of the devil. This is especially crucial for us today as we live in the final days of earth's history. Every day we are in a spiritual battle—these battles take place in our minds. It is a fight between the kingdom of God and the kingdom of Satan. Every minute, we must choose whether to follow God or the devil. Our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against rulers, authorities, the powers of this dark world, and spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly realms.

🌼 We are called to wear the whole armor:

1. The Belt of Truth – to stand firmly in God's truth.
2. The Breastplate of Righteousness – to protect our hearts and live righteously.
3. The Shoes of the Gospel of Peace – to walk in readiness to share the good news.
4. The Shield of Faith – to extinguish the flaming arrows of the evil one.
5. The Helmet of Salvation – to guard our minds with the assurance of salvation.
6. The Sword of the Spirit – the Word of God, which is our offensive weapon.
7. Prayer – to stay alert and continually intercede for all of God's people.

Interestingly, the armor protects the front but not the back—perhaps a lesson that retreating from defending Christ makes us vulnerable to attack.

🌼 May Jesus Christ continue to dwell in our hearts. He has brought us into His family so that we may understand how wide, long, high, and deep His love is—a love that surpasses all knowledge.

🌹 Make it a habit to pray Ephesians 3 every week! It says:
🤲 "For this reason, I kneel before the Father, from whom every family in heaven and on earth derives its name. I pray that out of His glorious riches,

He may strengthen you with power through His Spirit in your inner being, so that Christ may dwell in your hearts through faith...” (Ephesians 3:14-21)

Often, we limit God’s blessings by asking for too little. Instead, we should pray boldly—God can and will bless us beyond what we ask or imagine! Let us pray like Jabez, saying, “Oh, that You would bless me indeed!” May the Lord bless you today, beyond all that you ask or think. Let us pray for one another.

Through Christ, the cry of humanity reached the heart of the merciful Father. Christ’s union with God provided divine power to overcome and give life to the world. This experience should be ours as well.

Questions:

Why should children obey their parents?

Why should husbands love their wives?

Why should wives submit to their husbands?

What advice is given to employers?

Why should servants obey their masters?

What are the pieces of the armor of God?

How can you put on the armor of God in your daily life?

What image does the prayer in Ephesians 3 give you?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Ephesians 6:10-12.

[10-12] Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of His might. Put on the whole armor of God, that you may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places.

Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father for the armor You have given us. Help us to know that You enable us to stand against all the schemes of Satan. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Belt of truth, breastplate of righteousness, shoes of the gospel of peace, shield of faith, helmet of salvation, sword of the Spirit.

DAY 333 (November 28)

TOPIC: Rejoice in the Lord, again I say, rejoice

(Philippians)

Philippi was home to Lydia, the seller of purple cloth, and the jailer who, after his conversion along with his household, started a church. Paul had a vision at night of a man standing and pleading with him to come to Macedonia to help the people. Philippi was a city in Macedonia, Europe. The people of that city loved Paul and supported him more than other churches. Epaphroditus was Paul's helper and a friend of the Philippians. He went to Rome to deliver greetings from Philippi, but he became seriously ill. After prayer, God healed him, and he returned to Philippi with a letter for the believers. Paul advises them that no one should steal their joy!

The enemy wanted to imprison Paul to silence him. However, the letters he wrote while imprisoned became a blessing to the churches he had helped establish—and to us as well. Although Paul wrote Philippians while in prison, the book mentions the word "joy" approximately 20 times within its 104 verses. Knowing that believing in Christ includes suffering for Him, Paul considered all other things as rubbish compared to the surpassing greatness of knowing Christ (Philippians 3:8). Paul encourages us, like the believers in Philippi, not to be anxious about anything but in everything, by prayer, supplication, and thanksgiving, to present our requests to God. And the peace of God, which transcends all understanding, will guard our hearts and minds in Christ Jesus.

Philippi was under Roman rule, enabling them to support Paul effectively during his imprisonment. Paul did not like to receive financial help from his spiritual children because he did not want to burden them. As a spiritual father, he believed it was his duty to support his children. However, he accepted the Philippians' gifts because of their unique relationship, knowing they gave sincerely and with great love. Even today, we may encounter situations where someone insists we accept food or other items—either sincerely or to test us, hoping we will refuse so they can keep their possessions. Let us give without stinginess or reluctance.

Paul emphasizes that Jesus is the ultimate and perfect example for believers. Although He was with His Father in heaven, He left all His glory and humbly came to live among us, enduring injustice for our sake. Although He was God, He made Himself nothing and took on the nature of a servant. Paul urges us to have the same mindset as Christ Jesus—the attitude of doing things without seeking recognition, payment, or boasting. God exalted Jesus and gave Him the Name above all names, so that at the name of Jesus, every knee should bow—in heaven and on earth—and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father. We pray to acknowledge Him as victors, not as those who are defeated.

Paul reminds us to work out our salvation with fear and trembling. What a joy to know that He who began a good work in us will carry it on to completion until the day of Christ Jesus. Let us be ready to believe, even if it means suffering for Him. May God help us not to rely on our own righteousness but on His. Our greatest desire should be to know Him, the power of His resurrection, and the fellowship of His sufferings. Although some preach Christ out of envy or rivalry and others out of goodwill or love, the important thing is that Christ is preached in every way—whether from false motives or true. Paul does not consider himself to have already attained the goal. Instead, he focuses on one thing—forgetting what is behind and straining toward what is ahead, pressing on toward the goal to win the prize for which Christ Jesus has called him. Let this be our goal today—to strive for the prize that Christ will one day give us.

Let us learn to be content in every situation—whether in plenty or in want, in abundance or in need. For godliness with contentment is great gain. We came into the world with nothing, not even clothes, and when we die, we take nothing with us to the grave. God is the One who strengthens us and meets our needs every day. Paul thanks the Philippians for sending Epaphroditus with financial assistance. He says his life is for Christ, and dying is gain for God's work, as he was imprisoned for Christ's sake. Paul declares that he does not want to waste time on anything else but knowing Christ. He encourages the Philippians to live each day in anticipation of Jesus' return.

Paul rejoices that the gospel is being preached and takes joy even in his sufferings. He encourages others to rejoice as well, calling the church in Philippi his joy and crown. He says, "Rejoice in the Lord always; again, I say, rejoice." This is a beautiful song—let's sing it! Since we live in a world full of troubles, Paul emphasizes that instead of worrying about our problems, we should pray, give thanks, and present our requests to God. Although He already knows our needs, telling Him gives Him room to work in our lives according to His supreme authority.

Then comes the ultimate filter for everything in our lives. Finally, brothers and sisters, whatever is true, noble, right, pure, lovely, admirable—if anything is excellent or praiseworthy—think about such things. This verse is worth memorizing. It is the standard for every decision and action in our lives—whether singing, dressing, pursuing a degree, engaging in a sport, choosing friends, or anything else. Before doing anything, ask yourself: Is it true? Is it noble? Is it right? Is it pure? Is it lovely? Is it admirable? If the answer is "No," avoid it. If the answer is "Yes," embrace it.

Paul encouraged the Philippians to stand firm in the Lord—a message that applies to us today. The way to stand firm is by keeping our eyes on Christ and remembering that this world is not our home. It is remarkable that someone in prison would tell the church to rejoice! But Paul's perspective teaches us a crucial lesson—our inner attitude does not need to reflect our external circumstances. Paul was filled with joy because he knew that no matter what happened, Jesus Christ was with him. It is easy to become discouraged by unpleasant situations or overburdened by trivial matters. Ultimately, true joy comes from Christ dwelling within us. He is near, and when He returns, we will fully experience this great joy. The One who lives in us will accomplish His final purposes for us. Soon, brothers and sisters, we will be going home—let us rejoice!

It is not enough to hear, read, or even know God's Word well. We must also put it into practice. What do we wear? What music do we listen to? Who are our friends? Do we take time for worship? We can trust God to meet our needs always—whether for daily provision or the courage to face death as Paul did.

However, we must distinguish between our wants and our needs.

🌻Paul invites us to separate ourselves from worldly influences. If we obey His Word, we will be strong and useful. The disciples sought Jesus and told Him everything, and He encouraged and taught them. If we come to Jesus today and present our needs, He will not disappoint us.

🌻Questions:

Where was this letter written? Why is it called the letter of joy? What is the mindset of Christ? Why does Paul forget what is behind? Why is contentment important? What things are we told to think about? What should be the ultimate filter for our lives?

God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus👦👧

Key Text: Philippians 4:8.

[8] Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for giving me a spirit of gratitude. Help me filter the things I think about. Guard my thoughts to meditate only on those that are pure, just, lovely, and of good report. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Find a sieve or filter. Write on papers words that are pure and impure, true and false, lovely and unlovely, good and bad. Then pass these papers through the filter. The bad traits should be on large papers that cannot pass through the sieve.

DAY 334 (November 29)

TOPIC: As we have received Christ, let us walk in Him.

(Colossians)

We do not know exactly how the gospel reached Colossae, perhaps through other cities. Thessalonica was a major city with a port in Macedonia, Greece. Many members there were new converts and Gentiles. Paul writes to them with counsel on living a godly life. Epaphras of Colossae was a minister and a friend of Paul in the gospel. This letter mentions that false teachings had begun to infiltrate the church, possibly through confusion of doctrines. Epaphras reported the problems occurring in the church at Colossae. This letter was probably written alongside the letters to the Ephesians and Philemon. False teachings had entered the church, and Paul takes time to explain that Jesus is sufficient for our lives—for salvation, intercession, and sanctification. It is Jesus—not astrologers, sorcerers, or fortune-tellers—who is the Way, the Truth, and the Life.

Jesus Christ was the agent through whom the Godhead created everything in heaven and on earth. This includes angels and Lucifer, who became Satan and crucified Christ on the cross. That Jesus would allow a being He created to nail Him to the cross to save humanity demonstrates His extraordinary love for mankind. May God help us to perceive this immeasurable love so that we respond by loving Him with all our hearts, souls, and minds.

Jesus is God, the image of the invisible God, the firstborn over all creation. By Him, all things were created—things in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible, whether thrones or powers or rulers or authorities. All things were created through Him and for Him. He existed before all things, and in Him, all things hold together. He is the head of the body, the church. He is the beginning and the firstborn from among the dead so that He might have supremacy in everything. He is the mediator through the shedding of His blood on the cross. Therefore, let us be vigilant that no one takes us captive through hollow and deceptive philosophy, which depends on human tradition and the basic principles of this world rather than on Christ.

Let us clothe ourselves with compassion, kindness, humility, gentleness, and patience, bearing with one another and forgiving each other as the LORD forgives us. Let us put on love, which binds everything together in perfect harmony. Paul wanted us to understand that we cannot attain heaven by merely following the law—only Jesus gives us eternal life. He reminds the Colossian believers to hold on to what they were taught by Epaphras, the founder of their group, and to walk in Christ just as they received Him, being rooted and built up in Him to remain firm. Let us persist in prayer, being watchful and thankful, and pray for God's workers so that doors may open to proclaim His Word. Paul encourages the members to sing psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs.

Even God sings—Zephaniah 3:17. Music is an essential part of a believer's life. Martin Luther, a German pastor and reformer of the Scriptures, also reformed church music. Many people have received the gospel message through songs. We must sing songs that convey the truth of God's Word, for there are songs with false teachings and rhythms that stir our minds toward darkness or fleshly desires. The moral power of a song cannot be overstated. The history of biblical songs is full of recommendations regarding the use and benefits of music. While music is often misused to serve evil purposes, becoming an agent to lure people into temptation and sin, when used correctly, it is a precious gift from God. It is meant to elevate our thoughts to higher themes, strengthen us, and uplift our spirits. The Israelites sang in the wilderness. Angels sang when they announced the birth of Jesus. Singing is an act of worship—nothing soothes the heart like praising God. Songs are weapons against sorrow and despair. We can work with joy while singing and glorifying God. Music also helps us learn Scripture in a simple and memorable way.

Paul reminds us all to walk in wisdom, making the most of every opportunity. Our speech should always be full of grace, seasoned with salt, so that we may know how to answer everyone. We should not speak rashly, discourage others, or cause them sorrow, but rather speak with wisdom. Our thoughts and words preach a powerful message.

We must be cautious of false teachings. Christianity is a way of life—a relationship within God's family—not just a religion. In our daily lives at school, home, work, and in the community, let us set our minds on heavenly things. Let us put away anger, wrath, malice, slander, filthy language, and lies. In Christ, there is no Jew or Gentile, foreigner or native, slave or free, rich or poor, black or white, short or tall, thin or stout—Christ is all and in all. Like in the letter to the Ephesians, Paul emphasizes that wives should submit to their husbands as is fitting in the LORD. A wife who disrespects her husband discredits Jesus and influences children to develop bad character.

Husbands should love their wives sincerely without bitterness or harshness. Children should obey their parents, for this pleases the LORD. This behavior serves as a powerful testimony to believers and non-believers alike. Parents are urged not to provoke their children lest they become discouraged. A person who deliberately provokes a child to anger or mocks them maliciously often demonstrates emotional immaturity. Let us avoid such evil. Servants should obey their earthly masters with reverence for the LORD. Whatever we do, we should do it wholeheartedly as if working for the LORD, knowing we will receive an inheritance from the LORD as a reward, for we serve Christ Jesus.

Many of us have domestic workers or assistants—whether a nanny, gardener, driver, laundry worker, cook, or laborer. Put yourself in their shoes. As children, we witnessed others mistreating household workers through insults and dishonest actions. Such behavior should be avoided by anyone who loves God. Our workers should have fair working hours, rest, just wages, and be treated with kindness, as though we were serving Jesus. Let us be gentle, patient, and forgiving, just as the LORD forgave us. We should allow the Word of Christ to dwell in us richly, teaching and admonishing one another with psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs, singing with grace in our hearts to God.

Whatever we do, we should do it in the name of the LORD Jesus. Let us focus on heavenly things rather than earthly concerns, persisting in prayer day and night, giving thanks, and redeeming the time, knowing that Jesus is at the door. Tychicus delivered this letter to the Colossians.

What a precious opportunity it is to love, serve, and obey Jesus. May God help us maintain undivided loyalty and faithfulness to Him.

For the consecrated worker, there is great comfort in knowing that even Christ, during His earthly life, sought His Father daily for fresh supplies of grace. Through this fellowship with God, He went forth to strengthen and bless others.

Questions: Who is Jesus? Why should children obey their parents? Why should husbands not be harsh toward their wives? Why does it please the LORD when wives submit to their husbands? Why is it important to avoid meaningless arguments and disputes? How can we mistreat those who work in our homes? Why is it a sin to oppress workers? Why is it wrong to disobey your employer or cause trouble in the household where you are employed?

GOD BLESS YOU GREATLY, CHILD AND YOUTH OF JESUS

Key Text: Psalm 119:105-106

[105-106] "Your words are sweeter to my taste than honey, and Your law gives me understanding; therefore I hate every false way. Your Word is a lamp to my feet and a light to my path."

Prayer: Thank You Lord for Your Word, which is sweet to my taste and a light to my path. Help me to hate falsehood and love Your truth. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Memorize all 66 books of the Bible using a song.

DAY 335 (November 30)

TOPIC: Pray Without Ceasing

(Thessalonians)

The city of Thessalonica, or Salonika, is located in Greece. Paul thanks the believers for their faith and love for God, expresses his desire to visit them, and prays for them due to the hardships they endure. He encourages the believers to live holy lives for Jesus Christ. "We always thank God for all of you, mentioning you in our prayers. The gospel did not come to you in words only but also with power and in the Holy Spirit." Paul commends them because their faith has spread everywhere—they turned to the living God from idols and now await Jesus' return in the clouds. Paul emphasizes that their ministry there was not in vain. Thessalonica was a bustling port city, especially known for trade. Paul urged the believers to live lives of godliness and purity, reminding them of the second coming of Jesus.

It is essential to understand that their relationship did not end with the Thessalonians. After following Paul's teachings, they became examples to all believers in Macedonia and Achaia. These followers later became leaders—those who had been taught became mentors to others. Paul emphasizes that the gift of salvation is only the beginning of our spiritual journey; once we believe in Christ, we are called to grow in faith, hope, and love.

Paul tells the believers that, as ministers of Christ, they did not seek human glory from them or others, nor did they burden them as apostles. Instead, they were gentle among them, like a nursing mother caring for her children. He prays for their hearts to be strengthened and blameless in holiness before God our Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all His saints. Paul thanks God continually and advises everyone to pray without ceasing. This includes both formal and informal prayers—whether you are lying down, walking, standing while waiting for a bus, or kneeling in private prayer. Read the prayer booklet we have translated. Public prayers should not be too long, as they may discourage others. The secret to victory is private prayer. What matters most in prayer is to pray sincerely, with zeal and diligence, not merely out of routine or pretense.

The new believers in Thessalonica expected Jesus to return while they were still alive. When they saw their fellow believers dying, they were shocked and disheartened because they thought they would live until Jesus returned in the clouds. This fear still troubles people today, for no one escapes death. Paul wanted to explain the meaning of death so they would not think that believing in Jesus was in vain.

Trusting in God and His Word concerning the resurrection is not a fantasy but a real event that will happen. Our confidence in what God will do in the future—raising us from the dead—comes from seeing what He is doing in our lives now. Paul tells the believers that those who have died will be raised and be with Jesus when He comes again. “But we do not want you to be uninformed, brothers and sisters, about those who are asleep, so that you do not grieve like the rest, who have no hope. For we believe that Jesus died and rose again, and so through Jesus, God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep. For we who are alive and remain until the coming of the Lord will not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ will rise first. Then we who are alive, who remain, will be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. And so, we will always be with the Lord.”

Therefore, encourage one another with these words of truth. Paul expanded on this teaching about death in his letter to the Corinthians, saying it will happen like lightning. The saints will hear the voice of the Son of God calling them to rise. All the dead in their graves will hear His voice and come forth. The poor, the imprisoned, the overweight, the short, the rich, and the humble—all their perishable bodies will put on imperishable, immortal bodies. Then it will be fulfilled: “Death, where is your victory? Death, where is your sting?” Jesus will come to restore what was lost. What should we do while waiting for these events? According to Scripture, when a person dies, they do not immediately go to heaven. That is why the graves will open, and the dead will come out to meet Jesus. The soul cannot exist without the body. A living soul or a person is the breath of life united with the body. Neither the body alone nor the breath of life alone constitutes a person.

Paul speaks about faith, hope, and love. He assures us that since Jesus was resurrected, we should have no doubt—this is the blessed hope. Christ Himself, who is the resurrection and the life, will grant it to us. He encourages the believers concerning Jesus’ second coming: “The Day of the Lord will come like a thief in the night.” While people are saying, “There is peace and safety,” destruction will come upon them suddenly, like labor pains on a pregnant woman, and they will not escape. However, we are not in darkness for that day to surprise us like a thief. We are children of the light and of the day—not belonging to the night or to darkness. So, let us not sleep as others do, but let us be alert and sober, putting on faith and love as a breastplate and the hope of salvation as a helmet. Whether we are awake or asleep, we should live together with Christ, encouraging and building one another up. Let one hand hold on to faith in Jesus while the other manages our daily duties here on earth.

🌻Again, Paul emphasizes rejoicing and praying without ceasing, giving thanks in all circumstances. He prays that the believers be kept blameless until the coming of the Lord. He reminds them that this is God's will in Christ, not to grieve the Holy Spirit, to hold on to what is good, and to avoid every form of evil. This letter, along with the letter to the Corinthians, answers every believer's questions about death and what will happen when Jesus returns. People will be resurrected with bodies, not as floating spirits going to heaven.

🌻Prayer Strengthened Jesus for Trials. Christ, our Savior, was tempted in every way as we are, yet He was without sin. He took on human nature and, being found in appearance as a man, had human needs that required fulfillment—physical fatigue that needed relief. It was through prayer to His Father that He was prepared and strengthened for His duties and trials. Day by day, He followed His cycle of responsibilities, seeking to save souls, and He would spend entire nights in prayer for those being tested.

🌻Questions: What does it mean that those who have died in Jesus will rise to eternal life? Why is it important to keep our eyes on the crown that Jesus will give us rather than anything else? What does it mean that the Day of the Lord will come like a thief? What does it mean to give thanks and pray without ceasing?

GOD BLESS YOU GREATLY, CHILD AND YOUTH OF JESUS 👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Key Text: 1 Thessalonians 4:13,14.

[13,14] But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that you sorrow not, even as others which have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him.

Prayer: Thank You Lord. We pray for those who are grieving because of bereavement. Give them hope to believe that You died and rose again, and that You will come to raise all the dead who believed in You. In the Name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

Activity: Bring a photo of a family member who has died, such as a grandfather or grandmother, and share about this according to age.

DAY 336 (December 1)

TOPIC: If anyone is not willing to work, let them not eat

(2 Thessalonians)

The purpose of writing this book was to comfort and encourage people during times of persecution. If mobile phones had existed, they might have eased these hardships by allowing regular communication! In the Second Letter, Paul anticipates the positive outcomes of his work among the Thessalonians. During the Second Coming, believers will be delivered from their oppressors through the help of God in Christ (1:5-10). Paul's aim in this passage is not to rejoice in revenge (1:8-9) but to encourage those who have been persecuted and oppressed (1:5-7). The Second Coming will enable the Thessalonians to be "with the Lord." At that time, their oppressors will be cast away from the presence of the Lord—not because He hates them, but because their behavior cannot withstand the glory of God's presence.

Most Western or English-speaking churches have not experienced such persecution in recent times. Paul expresses gratitude that the church continues to grow despite the suffering of God's people. He also sends warnings to those who are lazy and have an unhealthy outlook. Some had stopped working and were living idly, relying on others because they believed Jesus was returning soon and there was no need to work. Paul insists that they should not take advantage of other Christians to meet their needs, as that is equivalent to exploiting others.

Humanity was commanded to earn their bread by the sweat of their brow, so Paul instructs that these idle believers be separated from other members until they repent. However, once they repent, they should be welcomed back as brothers and sisters. Laziness is a serious problem. Here, the apostle uses strong words, saying that if someone is unwilling to work, they should not eat. The lazy must eat their own food, not wander around town begging from others when they have the strength and ability to work. Some only engage in small, lazy activities when they are capable of doing more substantial work to support themselves and even help others. Many people own land but do not use it. Anyone with land cannot starve—God's plan for Israel was that everyone should have land so that poverty would not exist.

The character of children raised according to the scriptures in rural areas is far better than that of children raised in urban areas. Everyone should learn to farm, work diligently, and earn a living instead of idling in town or the village without a job.

۞ Work is essential, whether it involves household chores such as sweeping, farming, mopping, ironing, cleaning windows, washing livestock, doing the dishes, herding animals, cooking, cutting trees, or cultivating fields. Every child should learn to work. Look up age-appropriate tasks online, then plan and identify tasks you can do. Besides believing in Almighty God and His Only Son, Jesus Christ, the next most important thing is to work. Work was given by God even before the fall of humanity into sin—humans were assigned work before marriage!

Paul emphasizes the importance of prayer to receive God's strength to overcome or endure trials. He says we must always thank God for believers because God chose us from the beginning for sanctification through the Spirit.

۞ Paul also speaks about the mystery of lawlessness—the Antichrist—who exalts himself above everything called God and seeks to be worshiped, claiming to be God. This mystery of rebellion is already at work. Those who oppose Christ will be destroyed by the breath of God's mouth. Even the wicked and those who are perishing because they refuse to love and accept the truth will face judgment. Paul advises that everyone should live orderly lives, not according to mere traditions. We should not live carelessly but have plans, including writing things down to avoid forgetting—whether it is reading God's Word, household tasks, schoolwork, or other responsibilities.

🌻 So, how should we live in today's world? The apostle says, "Therefore, beloved, since you look forward to these things—a new heaven and a new earth where righteousness dwells—be diligent to be found by Him in peace, without spot or blemish, and blameless." We must be people who hunger for righteousness, who are meek, merciful, peacemakers, and who love God with all our heart, mind, soul, and strength, and love our neighbors as ourselves. Jesus came to serve and minister to others. Therefore, our greatest desire while we await His return should be to BE LIKE HIM—that is, to REFLECT HIM.

🌻 Paul often dictated his letters through secretaries, but a few letters, like this one, he wrote personally, stating at the end, "I, Paul, write this greeting with my own hand, which is the distinguishing mark in all my letters; this is how I write." The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Communication with others is a great blessing, whether through phone calls, face-to-face conversations, or letters.

Do your work as someone who is awaiting the second coming of Jesus and who desires to hear Him say upon His return: "Well done, good and faithful servant; you have been faithful over a few things, I will make you ruler over many things. Enter into the joy of your Lord." (Matthew 25:23)

🌻 The nighttime prayer sessions that the Savior spent on the mountain or in the wilderness were vital in preparing Him for the trials He had to face in the days ahead. He felt the need to be refreshed and strengthened both spiritually and physically so that He could withstand Satan's temptations. Those who strive to live like Him will feel the same need.

🌻 Questions:

1. What is the best way for you to communicate, and why?

2. Why should a person who does not work not eat?

3. What tasks do you perform or help with every day?

4. What kind of work did Jesus do while living on earth?

5. Why is it important to have order and planning in your activities?

6. What work did Paul himself do?

7. Who is the Antichrist?

8. What does it mean to be like Jesus?

GOD BLESS YOU GREATLY, CHILD AND YOUTH OF JESUS

Key Text: 2 Thessalonians 2:2, 3.

[2, 3] Let no one deceive you in any way; for that day will not come, unless the falling away comes first, and the man of sin is revealed, the son of perdition; who opposes and exalts himself above all that is called God or that is worshiped; so that he sits in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God.

Prayer: Thank You Heavenly Father for the good family You have given me. Help me to be kind to people and to do what is right. Help me not to be deceived when the antichrist comes.

Activity: Write down about 10 sentences that are true and false, for example: “Clouds are made of sheep’s wool,” “Birds fly in the air.”

DAY 337 (December 2)

TOPIC: The Character of a Pastor and a Deacon

(1 Timothy)

Paul's letters make up more than half of the New Testament. Paul wrote a pastoral letter to Timothy. The letters to Timothy and Titus are still considered letters for church leaders today. Timothy is instructed on how to serve as a pastor or minister of God. He is guided on the conduct expected of pastors and deacons, including their words, thoughts, intentions, and mindsets. Timothy, a believer from Ephesus and Lystra, traveled with Paul during his church visits. Paul wrote this letter during a period when he had been temporarily released from prison.

Timothy received the gospel from his mother Eunice and his grandmother Lois. His father was Greek. The church in Ephesus was being infiltrated by false teachings of Gnosticism—worshipping other gods besides the heavenly God. Some people believed they had more knowledge than others, leading to arguments and distrust. These teachings separated the body from the spirit, claiming that the body was evil while the spirit was righteous. Paul instructed Timothy to remain in Ephesus to help eliminate these teachings and bring discipline to the churches. He is told how to choose good leaders and set an exemplary model. He is also advised on how to assist struggling members and to warn others not to teach different doctrines.

Paul expresses gratitude that, despite being formerly a blasphemer, persecutor, and an aggressor, God's mercy saved him because he acted out of ignorance. He says, "It is a trustworthy statement that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners—of whom I am the foremost."

Paul advises Timothy that everyone should offer prayers, supplications, intercessions, and thanksgiving. He emphasizes that there is one God and one mediator between God and humanity—Jesus Christ. He encourages people to lift holy hands in prayer and instructs women to dress modestly and behave with humility, avoiding extravagant hairstyles, gold, pearls, or expensive clothing. Women are instructed to remain quiet and not to exercise authority over men, as Adam was created first, then Eve.

Paul explains that if someone desires to be a pastor or overseer, it is a noble task, but they must be above reproach, the husband of one wife, temperate, self-controlled, hospitable, able to teach, not given to drunkenness, gentle, not quarrelsome, and not a lover of money. They must manage their own household well and ensure their children are respectful. For if someone cannot manage their household, how can they take care of God's church? They must not be recent converts, lest they become conceited and fall under the devil's condemnation. Furthermore, they must have a good reputation with outsiders.

Similarly, a deacon must exhibit the same qualities as a pastor. They must be worthy of respect, sincere, not indulging in much wine, not greedy for dishonest gain, and they must hold the mystery of the faith with a clear conscience. These servants should be tested first, and if they are found blameless, they may serve as deacons. Those who serve well gain an excellent standing and great confidence in their faith. Deacons must not be slanderers but trustworthy and capable of carrying out their duties responsibly. Paul warns that in the last days, people will follow deceitful spirits and hypocritical liars who forbid marriage and advocate abstaining from certain foods based on human traditions rather than God's word.

Paul encourages Timothy, saying, "Let no one despise your youth," but to be an example to the believers in speech, conduct, love, faith, and purity. He urges Timothy to teach, rebuke, and correct while maintaining personal integrity and the truth of the gospel. When correcting older men, he should treat them as fathers, younger men as brothers, older women as mothers, and younger women with absolute purity. Widows with children or grandchildren should first learn to fulfill their family duties. Those without family support should be cared for by the church.

A widow who qualifies for church support should be over 60 years old, known for good deeds, such as hospitality, washing the feet of the saints, and helping the afflicted. Lazy widows who gossip and exploit others should be taught to be self-reliant. Believers with needy relatives should assist them to prevent burdening the church. Those who work hard in preaching and teaching should be provided for, as Scripture says, “Do not muzzle an ox while it is treading out the grain.” However, leaders must not exploit or burden their members with unreasonable demands.

Paul insists that accusations against elders should be supported by two or three witnesses and that judgment should not be rendered hastily. He warns against hastily laying hands on anyone for ministry and urges Timothy to keep himself pure. Although Timothy is advised to drink a little wine for his stomach’s sake, Paul emphasizes self-control.
Employers should treat their workers fairly and not exploit them. Workers should be granted fair wages and reasonable working hours. Paul rebukes those who, in their pursuit of wealth, neglect the well-being of others. He emphasizes that the love of money is the root of all evil, and many have strayed from the faith due to greed. Believers should pursue righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, and gentleness.

Questions: Why did Paul write to Timothy? What character should a pastor have? What character should a deacon have? What false teachings will arise in the last days? How should an elder be corrected? How should a young person respond when corrected? How can you share the truth of God without arguing? Why did Paul want Timothy to set a good example despite his youth?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: 1 Timothy 4:12.

[12] Let no one despise your youth, but be an example to the believers in word, in conduct, in love, in spirit, in faith, in purity. Till I come, give attention to reading, to exhortation, to doctrine.

Prayer: Lord, thank You so much for what You give us. We pray that our childhood and youth may be an example, so that people may not despise us or speak evil against Your work. Help our speech and conduct, that we may have love and pure faith as we read the Scriptures and teach others. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: What does it mean for your youth not to be despised? How should our words and conduct be? How should our love, faith, and purity as children or youth be?

DAY 338 (December 3)

TOPIC: Victors Will Receive Crowns of Victory

(2 Timothy)

Paul wrote this letter during his second imprisonment in Rome. Although he had been released temporarily by Nero and continued to spread the gospel, he was arrested again and eventually executed under Emperor Nero (according to historical records). Nero was a cruel ruler, and historians document that he killed his mother, his wife, and later his brother with poison to secure his power. In this letter, Paul encourages Timothy to be a brave soldier of Christ, to hold firmly to the faith, and to teach the truth of God's Word faithfully. Paul gives Timothy counsel as a worker in God's ministry. He tells Timothy not to be intimidated because of his youth compared to the older church members. Since Timothy may have been overseeing older members, Paul advises him not to be afraid to guide them if they needed correction.

Jesus and the gospel must always come first, and Timothy should not fear members who try to intimidate the pastor or fellow believers. "GOD FIRST" should be our motto as believers! Paul also asks Timothy to bring him his coat and scrolls, as it was during the cold season. Paul experienced loneliness in prison since he was not allowed the freedom he had when writing his first letter to Timothy. This was his final letter before being executed for his faith. Many friends abandoned him, including Demas, Hermogenes, and Phygelus. Alexander the metalworker strongly opposed Paul's teachings, and Paul warns Timothy to be cautious of people like him. However, Onesiphorus did not feel ashamed of Paul's chains. Instead, he visited Paul in prison and refreshed his spirit by providing care. Even today, we should not forget those who are imprisoned.

Titus and Tychicus had traveled, leaving only Luke, the physician, with Paul. Paul loved Timothy like a son and regarded him as a faithful worker in God's ministry. Paul was saddened by the persecution facing the churches under the harsh rule of Emperor Nero. He instructs Timothy to guard the faith, protect the gospel, and continue preaching it despite suffering. Paul recalls Timothy's sincere faith and prays for him night and day, urging him to fan into flame the gift he received through the laying on of hands. Even today, God has not given us a spirit of fear, but of power, love, and self-control.

Paul had no legal counsel to defend him, but God gave him strength to testify courageously, even before the authorities. Though those in power were moved by the Spirit, like Pilate, they prioritized preserving their positions and public approval. What position or reputation are you trying to protect today? Paul tells Timothy to rely on God's grace through Christ. Although Paul suffered greatly, he was not ashamed because he knew the One in whom he believed and was convinced that God could guard what he had entrusted to Him. Paul emphasizes the need for determination—no soldier entangles himself in worldly affairs, and an athlete must follow the rules to win the prize. Likewise, a farmer works hard to enjoy the harvest. Despite Paul's imprisonment, the Word of God is not chained and continues to spread. If we endure hardship, we will also reign with Christ.

Paul warns against quarreling over words and urges Timothy to present himself to God as an approved worker who correctly handles the word of truth. Some, like Hymenaeus and Philetus, spread false teachings, claiming that the resurrection had already taken place. Paul instructs Timothy to flee youthful passions and pursue righteousness, faith, love, and peace. He must avoid foolish arguments, as the Lord's servant must not be quarrelsome but gentle, able to teach, and patient. Paul warns that in the last days, people will display open sin without shame.

He describes the characteristics of people in the last days: lovers of themselves, lovers of money, boastful, proud, abusive, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, unholy, without love, unforgiving, slanderous, without self-control, brutal, not lovers of the good, treacherous, rash, conceited, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God—having a form of godliness but denying its power. Paul advises Timothy to avoid such people. These individuals worm their way into households and captivate weak-minded people burdened with sins. Like the magicians Jannes and Jambres who opposed Moses, these people resist the truth. However, they will not get far because their folly will become evident to everyone.

Have you encountered people like this? May the Lord help us avoid such evil traits! Paul encourages Timothy to follow his teachings, patience, love, and endurance. Anyone who wants to live a godly life in Christ will face persecution. Paul commends Timothy for knowing the Holy Scriptures from childhood, which have made him wise for salvation through faith in Christ Jesus. All Scripture is God-breathed and is useful for teaching, rebuking, correcting, and training in righteousness so that the servant of God may be thoroughly equipped for every good work.

Paul exhorts Timothy to be prepared in season and out of season, to correct, rebuke, and encourage with great patience and careful instruction. A time will come when people will not endure sound doctrine, but will gather around themselves teachers to suit their desires, turning away from the truth toward myths. Paul encourages Timothy to keep a clear mind, endure hardships, and fulfill his ministry. Paul expresses confidence as he faces death, declaring that he has fought the good fight, finished the race, and kept the faith. He looks forward to receiving the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will award him—and not only to him but to all who long for His appearing.

DAY 339 (December 4)

TOPIC: The Character of a Pastor and an Elder

(Titus)

The letter to Titus was written to Titus, a church elder or young pastor who was a convert whom Paul helped bring to Jesus Christ. This role closely resembles that of Timothy. Indeed, these instructions apply to every believer or church member today. When Paul went to Jerusalem to discuss the Gospel for the Gentiles with the leaders in Jerusalem, he brought along Titus, a Gentile believer in Christ. Titus was a fellow worker with Paul but was not circumcised like Timothy or the Jews. Paul also sent Titus to Corinth to resolve problems. Titus worked with Paul again after Paul gained some relief from his imprisonment in Rome. Titus also worked in Dalmatia, which is modern-day Yugoslavia or Serbia. Titus was seen as a person of integrity and faithfulness in his work.

Paul preached on the island of Crete and laid hands on his disciple and companion Titus, appointing him to shepherd the flock there before leaving. He wrote this letter while in Corinth or Nicopolis. Paul says he left Titus in Crete to set in order what was lacking and to appoint elders as spiritual leaders in every city. Some had come with teachings that confused the believers by saying they must follow Pharisaic laws. Paul outlines the character and qualifications to consider when choosing church leaders. An elder must be a believer, blameless, not accused of corruption or rebellion. The Cretans had a reputation for moral decay and depravity; even one of their prophets and poets said, “Cretans are always liars, evil brutes, lazy gluttons” (Titus 1:12). Paul affirms that this testimony is true.

Paul gives Titus authority from God to rebuke them sharply so that their faith may be sound and not be destroyed. He emphasizes that they should not heed Jewish myths because although these people claim to know God, their actions deny Him. They are detestable and disobedient. A bishop or pastor—and indeed all spiritual leaders—must be above reproach because they represent God. Paul lists qualities they should not possess: they must not be self-willed, quick-tempered, drunkards, violent, or greedy for dishonest gain. Instead, a bishop should be hospitable, a lover of good, self-controlled, upright, holy, and disciplined. He must hold firmly to the trustworthy message as it has been taught so that he can encourage others with sound doctrine and refute those who oppose it.

Likewise, older men should be temperate, dignified, self-controlled, and sound in faith, love, and endurance. Older women should live reverently, avoiding slander and drunkenness, and should teach what is good. They should train younger women to love their husbands and children, to be self-controlled and pure, to be busy at home, and to be kind and submissive to their husbands, so that the word of God is not maligned. Even the Gentiles respect their husbands, as this is a command from God.

Young men should be urged to be self-controlled and to set an example by doing what is good. In teaching, they should show integrity, seriousness, and sound speech that cannot be condemned, so that those who oppose them will be ashamed because they have nothing bad to say about God's people. Slaves or employees should be taught to be subject to their masters in everything, to try to please them, not to talk back or steal from them, but to show that they can be fully trusted. This way, they will make the teaching about God our Savior attractive. For the grace of God that brings salvation has appeared to all people. It teaches us to say "No" to ungodliness and worldly passions, and to live self-controlled, upright, and godly lives in this present age while we wait for the blessed hope—the appearing of the glory of our great God and Savior, Jesus Christ.

It is important to obey the authorities set to govern the nation, and every Christian should learn not to be slanderous, quarrelsome, but to be gentle and show true humility to all people. We were once foolish, disobedient, deceived, and enslaved by all kinds of passions and pleasures, living in malice and envy, being hated and hating one another. But when the kindness and love of God our Savior appeared, He saved us—not because of righteous things we had done, but because of His mercy. He saved us through the washing of rebirth and renewal by the Holy Spirit. Avoid foolish controversies, genealogies, arguments, and quarrels about the law, because these are unprofitable and useless. Titus 3:3-8 summarizes the entire gospel!

Paul emphasizes that we must renounce evil and live godly lives. Why?

Because the grace of Jesus has been revealed to all people, teaching us to reject worldly desires and live sober, righteous, and godly lives as we await the blessed hope—the second coming of Jesus Christ. Remember, the same character traits required of pastors apply to every believer who loves God! This is because God's laws are the same for all humanity. Indeed, God's grace has appeared to us all! Above all, we must guard our hearts diligently, for from it flow the springs of life. The human heart that is not transformed is a frightening thing. While acts of kindness and love occur daily, evil also abounds everywhere we look. In the face of ongoing conflicts, political corruption, and widespread violence, we must acknowledge that where oppression is present, corrupted human hearts are at work. The Bible does not have many positive things to say about hearts that have not been surrendered to Jesus Christ. God says, "The heart is deceitful above all things and beyond cure. Who can understand it?" (Jeremiah 17:9).

The heart God refers to here is not the physical organ pumping blood, but the center of our thoughts, the seat of our reasoning and moral consciousness. Jesus clarified this when He said, "A good man brings good things out of the good stored up in his heart, and an evil man brings evil things out of the evil stored up in his heart. For the mouth speaks what the heart is full of" (Luke 6:45). Our thoughts drive our actions—whether good or evil. The mind is what God seeks to renew in the battle against selfishness and evil. What a blessing to know that our minds can be transformed by the healing Word of God!

Jesus prayed to prepare for special tasks. Before significant moments—such as appointing apostles, delivering the Sermon on the Mount, His transfiguration, His trial, crucifixion, and resurrection—He spent whole nights in prayer. We must also set aside time for meditation, prayer, and spiritual refreshment. We often underestimate the power and effectiveness of prayer.

Questions:

Why should slaves or employees obey their masters?

Why is it important for a Christian not to be slanderous or quarrelsome?

What is the blessed hope?

What qualities should an elder, bishop, and older women have?

Why should we not let anyone despise our youth?

Does your life align with Titus 2:7-8?

Why should we guard our hearts and minds?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Titus 2:11-14.

[11-14] For the grace of God that brings salvation has appeared to all men, teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in the present age.

Prayer: Holy One who dwells in the highest heavens, thank You so much for Your grace which has appeared to all people. We thank You for teaching us to deny ungodliness and worldly lusts, and we know that by Your grace we will live soberly, righteously, and godly in our world today. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Act out the qualities of a Christian leader, such as being gentle, respectful, and generous.

DAY 340 (December 5)

TOPIC: Forgive Onesimus and Accept Him as a Brother

(Philemon)

Paul wrote this letter along with the one to the Colossians at the same time. From its introduction, we see that he was with Onesimus and Tychicus while writing these letters in prison in Rome. Paul wrote to Philemon, a believer from the city of Colossae, who loved Jesus and was hospitable to strangers. Philemon owned slaves—a common but unfortunate practice during those dark times. One of his slaves, Onesimus, had stolen from him and run away. Under Roman law, such an act was punishable by death.

At that time, a slave was considered the property of their master, who had absolute authority over them. Most Romans had slaves to assist with household chores, farming, and business. Slaves did not receive wages but were provided with food, clothing, and shelter. Onesimus lived a hidden life, fearing discovery. However, he encountered Paul and, through his ministry, became a converted Christian. Onesimus began to serve Paul, but Paul felt it was right to reconcile him with his master, Philemon. This would allow Onesimus to live a new life without fear.

Paul spoke with Onesimus, who became willing to return to his master. Paul then wrote a letter to Philemon, pleading for forgiveness and urging him to accept Onesimus as his brother in Christ, thus preparing Philemon's heart to welcome him back. Onesimus may have been ready to return but unsure how to begin. Paul wrote with wisdom and love, using persuasive words to appeal to Philemon.

Paul identifies himself as a prisoner of Christ Jesus, writing alongside Timothy and other co-workers in Christ. He expresses gratitude to God, always remembering Philemon in his prayers because of the comfort and encouragement Philemon had provided to many saints. Philemon was a wealthy man, and after his conversion, he supported many believers in need, including those preaching in Colossae.

Paul acknowledges Philemon's love and kindness towards the brethren and all people, and because of this, he writes with confidence. As an elder and spiritual father, Paul pleads on behalf of Onesimus, whom he has "fathered" spiritually during his imprisonment in Rome. He tells Philemon that although Onesimus was once unprofitable and unreliable, he has now become useful both to Paul and to Philemon. While Paul could command him, he instead appeals in love and wisdom.

Paul describes Onesimus as his very heart. Out of love, he would have liked Onesimus to remain with him, but legally, Onesimus belonged to Philemon as a runaway slave. Paul requests Philemon's permission and urges him to accept Onesimus back—not merely as a slave but as a beloved brother in the Lord. Paul argues that if Philemon considers him a partner in faith, he should welcome Onesimus as he would welcome Paul himself. Paul even offers to repay any debt Onesimus owes, writing the letter in his own hand, and gently reminds Philemon of the spiritual debt he owes to Paul.

Paul concludes the letter by expressing confidence that Philemon will do even more than he asks. Although the letter does not reveal Philemon's response, we can assume he followed Paul's plea and accepted Onesimus back—not just as a slave but as a brother in the Lord. At that time, a slave was considered property, receiving no wages and often suffering under harsh masters. This letter calls on those in authority—employers, political leaders, and parents—to treat their workers and subordinates with kindness and compassion.

Employers should protect their employees' welfare, provide fair compensation, and support their personal development. Workers should not be exploited or abandoned without assistance. On the Sabbath day, employees should be given rest from their duties. Likewise, employees should not steal from their employers or engage in deceit, such as spreading false information or creating conflict within the employer's family. Every action will ultimately be judged.

🌻If the Savior of humanity, despite His divine power, felt the need for prayer, how much more should weak and sinful human beings feel the necessity of earnest and continual prayer! When Christ faced His greatest temptations, He fasted and surrendered Himself fully to God through prayer and complete obedience to the Father's will, emerging victorious. In these last days, those who bear witness to the truth must follow the example of Christ, our greatest model of prayer and faith.

🌻Questions:
Why did Paul write this letter?
Why did Paul want Onesimus to stay with him?
Where did Philemon live?
How does this letter apply to us today?
Can you imagine what happened between Philemon and Onesimus after receiving the letter?
Why is enslaving others a sin?
It is said there are more slaves today—both children and adults—through human trafficking across Africa and other regions like the Arab states. How can you help these modern-day slaves?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

In modern words – Read this letter:

Philemon, my dear friend,
I could command you with my authority and force you to do what I want, but instead, I, Paul—an apostle writing from prison for the sake of the Gospel—am appealing to your heart. (Remember, you owe me your very life—but I won't press that point.) Instead of using my position to compel you, I am encouraging you through love.

Your kindness and love are well-known, and they have been a great comfort to me. I know you well and trust that you will grant me this favor.

Believe it or not, I have become a spiritual father here in prison! My spiritual child is Onesimus—your very own servant—who was once useless to you, but now he is incredibly useful to both of us. Honestly, I do not want to send him back because he is such a help to me, and I have come to love him like my own. In a way, he is filling your place here in easing my hardships in prison—something I know you would do if you were here.

But now, I am sending him back to you—not as a slave, but as a beloved brother in Christ. Please receive him as you would receive me. Open your heart to him because, as my spiritual child, he is a part of me.

I hope to visit you soon.

Yours in faith,
Paul

Key Text: Philemon 1:19, 21.

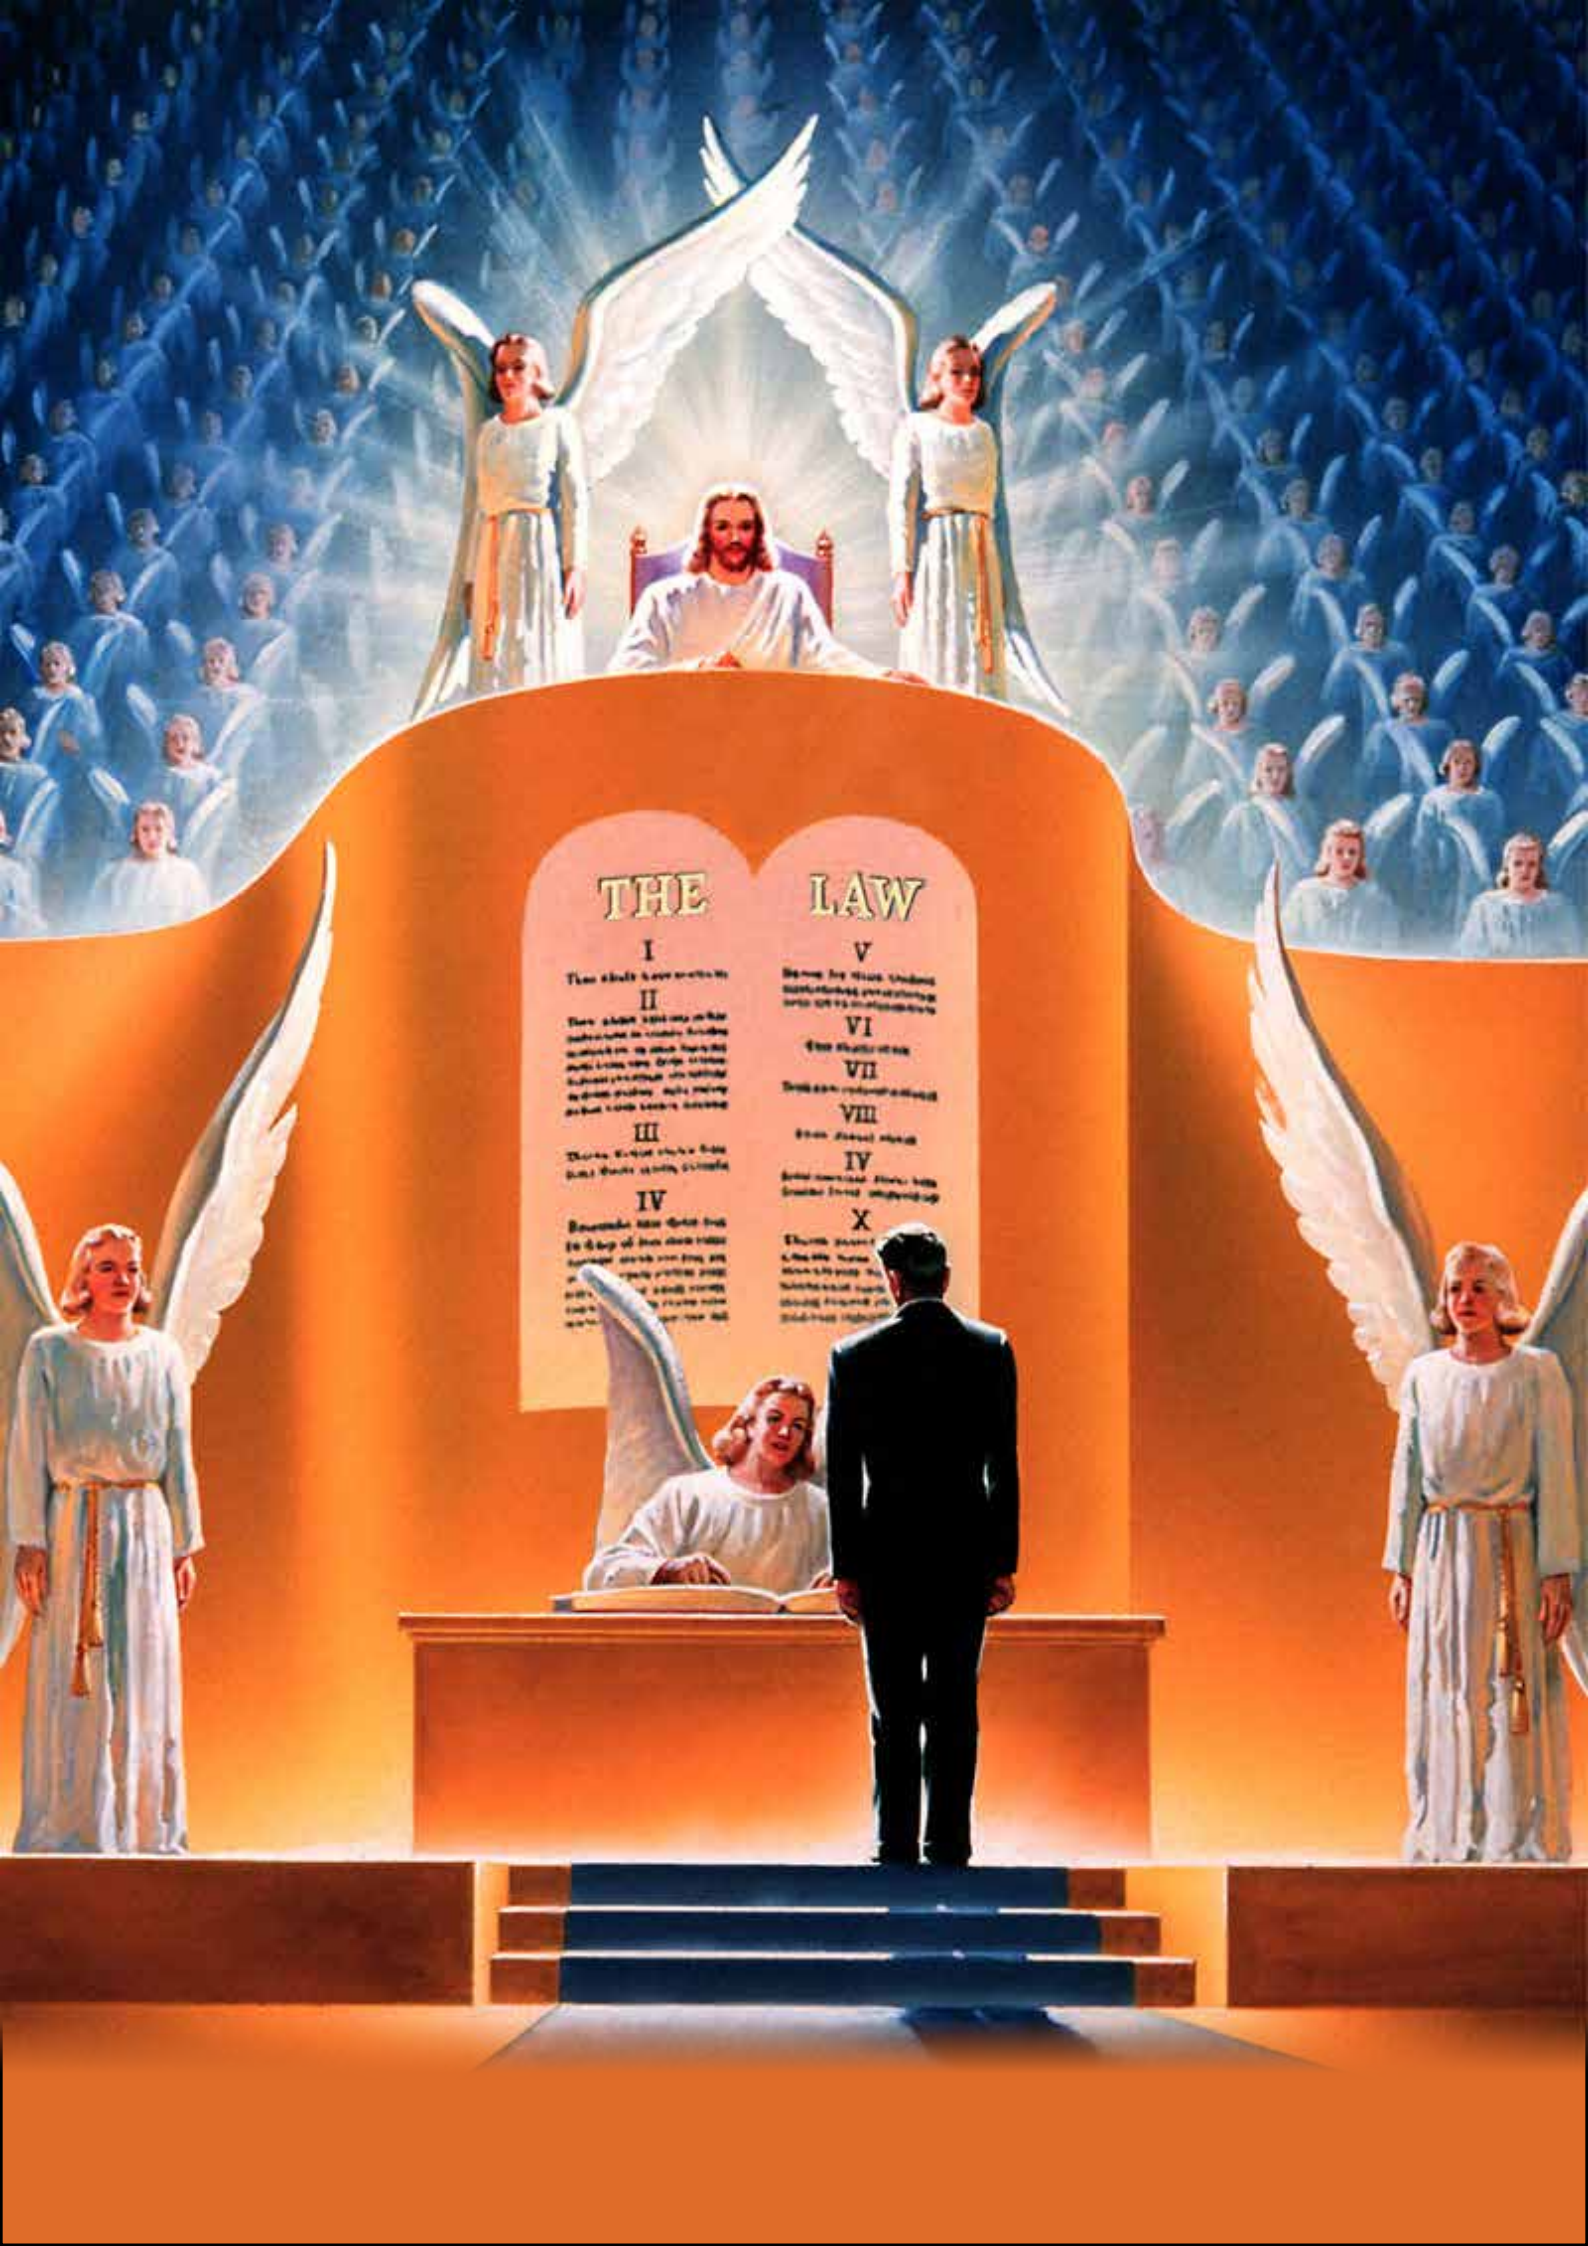
[19, 21] I, Paul, am writing with my own hand. I will repay—not to mention to you that you owe me even your own self besides. …Having confidence in your obedience, I write to you, knowing that you will do even more than I say.

Prayer: Holy Father who dwells in the highest heaven, help us to be peacemakers. Help us to forgive others when they steal from us, and help others to forgive us when we wrong them, so that we may stop doing evil. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Talk about the wrong of stealing. Discuss how to forgive someone if they steal something from you.

DAY 341 (December 6)

TOPIC: Jesus is superior to all.



(Hebrews)

The Hebrews are the descendants of Abraham through Isaac. The Old Testament was written in Hebrew. This longest letter of Paul was written to believers who were Hebrews by origin, and even today, it carries many teachings for us. Jesus, the apostles, and the first Christians were Hebrews. They lived within the culture of the Jewish religion, attending the temple, praying, and offering sacrifices. The entire sacrificial system, as a symbol of salvation, needed to be understood by each of them. God established this system to deliver us from the grip of Satan.

Jesus came and died for our sins to remove our guilt. It was difficult for those who had been in Judaism when they converted to Christianity. They had to abandon the practices of sacrifices and other rituals after Jesus' death. This letter explains the mission or purpose of Jesus the Messiah and clearly outlines His work today. Many attribute this letter to Paul due to its language and writing style, although its authorship is not definitively known. This letter was written to explain the end of the Old Testament sacrifices after the temple was destroyed by General Titus in 70 A.D. The thick veil of the temple was torn from top to bottom after Jesus died, and even the lamb that was about to be sacrificed ran away! The ultimate sacrifice, the true sacrifice of Jesus, had been offered, and it was fully sufficient.

In the past, God spoke to our ancestors through prophets and other means, but now He speaks to us through His Son, Jesus Christ. We must pay close attention to this because even the words spoken by angels were important. How shall we escape if we neglect the message of Jesus, the Son of God? The Jewish economy heavily depended on sacrificial animals; people earned money by selling livestock. Even the temple received revenue from these sacrifices. They completely forgot that the animal sacrifices were merely a symbol or shadow of the true sacrifice that Jesus would offer by dying on the cross.

The book of Hebrews emphasizes the superiority and greatness of Christ as the perfect, blameless sacrifice and as our true and ultimate High Priest. Unlike other priests who had to offer sacrifices first for their sins and then for the people's sins, Jesus, being without sin, offered Himself once and for all on our behalf. The priesthood of the Levites or the descendants of Aaron and all human priests has many shortcomings. Christ is perfect and holy—only His sacrifice can remove our sins. It was necessary for Jesus to be made like us, His brothers and sisters, in every way so that He could be a merciful and faithful High Priest before God and make atonement for our sins.

Therefore, today, if we hear His voice, let us not harden our hearts as the Israelites did, wandering in the wilderness for forty years. Read Leviticus 16 and Exodus 25, as they are closely related to this book. Leviticus and Exodus provide a shadow, type, or picture of Jesus' death, which is the true act that removes our sins. Today, we know that we have a High Priest—Jesus—who has entered heaven and sympathizes with our weaknesses. He was tempted in every way as we are, yet He did not sin. Let us, therefore, approach Him with grace and confidence to receive mercy and find help. Jesus is superior to angels and all sacrifices. Let each of us, by faith, look to heaven and envision Jesus in the Most Holy Place, interceding and advocating for us.

In the past, people worshipped gods made of wood and stone, but today, people have modern idols such as technological devices like phones, televisions, computers, food, children, opinions, beauty, appetite, clothing, cars, houses, and other possessions. What idols do you have? There is only One who deserves to be number one in our lives—God and His Son, Jesus Christ. Jesus has everything superior—He is the superior High Priest, the bearer of a superior covenant, the giver of a superior hope, and the ultimate sacrifice. Place Jesus in every aspect of your life, and everything will be well.

The book of Hebrews frequently quotes the Old Testament. This book relates closely to the sacrificial system, much like the book of Leviticus in the Old Testament. Sin entered through one man and was removed by one man—Jesus Christ. Therefore, we must pay careful attention to what we are being told so that we do not miss the promise of entering His rest. Let us press on toward perfection because He is able to save completely those who come to God through Him, for He always lives to intercede for us.

This book also tells us that just as the Israelites had a temple or tabernacle in the wilderness, there is also a temple in heaven with the Most Holy Place (Hebrews 9 and Exodus 25). This is the original and real sanctuary, while the earthly tabernacle of Moses was only a copy or shadow of the heavenly one. In the wilderness tabernacle of Moses, the priest offered sacrifices every morning and evening (Exodus 39:29), and once a year, the High Priest would enter to make atonement for the sins of the people (Leviticus 16). However, our High Priest, Jesus Christ, in the heavenly sanctuary, does not use the blood of animals like bulls or goats but His own blood, offered through His death on the cross once and for all.

Christ did not enter a sanctuary made by human hands to offer sacrifices but entered the true Most Holy Place to appear before God on our behalf. He has entered once for all, not every year. Having been offered as a sacrifice once, He took away the sins of all people, and He will appear a second time without sin to those who eagerly await Him. Paul urges us not to neglect gathering together in fellowship each week, not to remain in our homes without attending worship, but to encourage one another as we see the Day approaching (Hebrews 10:25). This book is essential for all believers, as it explains the ongoing priestly ministry of Jesus in heaven today. He is both the Son of God and the Son of Man. In His role as our High Priest, He provides us a way to approach God the Father in prayer.

Paul wrote to the Jews to remain faithful because they were wavering. Some were falling back and wanting to continue with outdated sacrifices that could no longer help them. Even today, many Jews continue to offer sacrifices, waiting for the Messiah. But we know that Jesus is the ultimate sacrifice, and He lives today, interceding for us as our High Priest. Faith is the assurance of things we hope for, even though we do not see them. The elders of faith believed in God despite facing trials and hardships—their actions aligned with their faith. From Abel, who offered a sacrifice because he understood the plan of salvation and how the lamb represented Jesus, the Lamb of God, we are called to believe and trust in Christ's perfect sacrifice.

Enock walked according to God's instructions, as did Noah, Abraham, Sarah, Elijah, Daniel, Paul, Job, John, and many others who journeyed this path of faith. They trusted in the city that God had prepared for them. Although they did not receive the heavenly city and the new earth until they fell asleep in death, they knew they would be resurrected one day and receive the promise that God had made to them—because God is faithful and true. If you are overwhelmed with thoughts of giving up due to the hardships you face, read Hebrews 11 and see how these people endured incredible trials through their faith, including Jesus Himself, but their reward is great. The list of faith in Hebrews 11 is still being written today, and it is our prayer that we may also be counted among them. Let us run the race with patience and encouragement.

The Bible mentions the word "faith" 247 times, and only twice in the Old Testament, yet here we also see the faith of the Old Testament being brought forth! If we were still required to offer sacrifices today, could we manage it? I think life would be far too expensive. But Jesus has done it all for us! And God is not ashamed to be called our God. So why should we be ashamed of Him before others when we are weak and empty?

The writer tells us about the excellence and greatness of Christ and His work on the altar as our High Priest. The scriptures speak about the Levitical priesthood and highlight the shortcomings of the Old Covenant and its sacrifices compared to the perfection and holiness of Christ. Let us read the Word of God because it is alive and powerful, sharper than any double-edged sword. It penetrates and divides soul and spirit, joints and marrow. It judges the thoughts and intentions of the heart. Everything is uncovered and laid bare before Him. Let us ask God to help us value this sacrifice and to have the boldness to seek His forgiveness and live in a way that honors Him.

We are surrounded by a great cloud of witnesses, so let us lay aside the burden of sin that so easily entangles us. Let us run with patience, fixing our eyes on Jesus, the author and perfecter of our faith. For the joy set before Him—being with us in heaven—He endured the cross, despising its shame, and is seated at the right hand of the Father in heaven. We have not yet resisted to the point of shedding blood for our faith, and our lives are not as hard as we might think. Let us be ready for the Lord's return. Strengthen the weak hands and the feeble knees. Pursue peace with everyone and holiness, for without these, no one will see God. Let us worship God in a way that pleases Him.

Let brotherly love continue. Do not forget to show hospitality to strangers, for by doing so, some have entertained angels without knowing it. Remember those in prison as if you were there with them. Do not love money, but love God, for He has said, "I will never leave you nor forsake you." Remember that we do not have a lasting city here, for everything is temporary, but we look forward to the city to come—the heavenly one. We are advised to obey government authorities because they watch over our souls; let us make their work joyful and not burdensome.

May the Great Shepherd of the sheep—Jesus, our High Priest—help us to be perfect in every good work, so that we may do His will. What amazing love! He, who is equal to God and greater than the angels, did not consider equality with God something to cling to. Instead, He emptied Himself, took on the form of a servant, and became human. He humbled Himself and obeyed God. God spared no effort or cost to secure our salvation. If we value this amazing love and this great salvation, why wouldn't we be willing to leave everything behind to receive His gift of salvation? Let us accept this message and offer the sacrifices we need to, ensuring that nothing stands between us and our Savior. Lord, we pray that You help us! All glory belongs to You forever and ever.

Jesus Prayed Early in the Morning
Early in the morning, He often found a quiet place to meditate, study the Scriptures, or pray. With the sound of singing, He welcomed the morning light. Through songs of thanksgiving, He filled His hours with joy and brought heavenly comfort to those weary from their daily labor and the broken-hearted.

Questions: Why is Jesus better than the animal sacrifices that were offered? Why is it important to show hospitality to strangers? Why is it important to go to church? Why should we visit those in prison? Why should we respect government leaders? What is faith? What kinds of idols do people have today? Why does human priesthood have many shortcomings? Why should you read Hebrews 11 when you feel discouraged by life's challenges? How can a person make their opinions, philosophies, or views become their "god"?

May God Greatly Bless You, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Hebrews 1:1-4.

[1-4] God, who at various times and in various ways spoke in time past to the fathers by the prophets, has in these last days spoken to us by His Son … who being the brightness of His glory and the express image of His person, and upholding all things by the word of His power, when He had by Himself purged our sins, sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high, having become so much better than the angels, as He has by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they.

Prayer: Thank You Lord that You are above all, greater than angels, priests, and every creature. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

DAY 342 (December 7)

TOPIC: Faith Without Good Deeds is Dead

(James)

This letter is from James, the brother of the LORD Jesus and one of the 12 apostles. James was not a believer until Jesus resurrected and appeared to him. James was the leader of the Jerusalem council—the first council of believers who followed Jesus Christ. He knew a lot from childhood, having lived with the LORD Himself. Have you ever wondered what he knew about Jesus as his brother? This is not James the apostle, the son of thunder, or the first apostle to be killed by Herod in 44 AD. When the Scriptures mention the brothers of Jesus, James is listed first.

Jesus appeared to him after the resurrection, and Paul refers to him as a pillar of the church in his letters because of the work he upheld. When Paul converted, he went to see him in Jerusalem. When Peter was released from prison, he told his friends to inform James. Jude, who wrote the epistle, was also a brother to James. James writes to the 12 tribes scattered abroad, addressing issues of law, community morals, faith and deeds, growth in faith, and the works of the fruit of the Spirit. He emphasizes that our words should align with our actions—it is easy to speak but challenging to walk in faith. Our words should match our lifestyle. It is not just about being a Christian but about walking with Christ. Remember, even Satan believes and trembles at the existence of God. When Christ walked on earth, demons acknowledged Him and trembled. Therefore, we should be doers of the Word and not just talkers. He discusses doing good but focuses on being good.

🌻 James says it is a joy to face trials because testing produces patience and perfection. He advises us to ask for wisdom from God, who gives generously to all without finding fault, but we must ask in faith without doubting. We should not be double-minded, tossed by the wind. Anyone who endures trials will receive the crown of life. However, if tempted, one should not say, "God is tempting me," because temptation comes from one's own desires. God only gives good things, not evil. If anyone thinks they are religious but cannot control their tongue and speaks recklessly, they deceive themselves.

🌻 The Christian faith requires self-control and moderation. The tongue is a small organ but can set a fire like hell. Just as animals like horses and ships are guided by small bits and rudders, so is the tongue. Teachers are held to a higher judgment because God has entrusted them with greater responsibilities, so they should use their tongues with wisdom from above. Adults should never speak words that discourage children by calling them names like "dog" or "fool." Children may believe these labels, causing them lifelong harm.

🌻 Adults or children may act foolishly, but that does not mean they are fools. If we can speak kind words to some people, we should learn to speak kindly to everyone, or remain silent. Gossiping about God's servants in front of children brings a curse upon oneself. Even if those servants are wicked, such discussions should be left to adults. Communication is only 7% verbal—the remaining 93% is conveyed through our tone and body language. Sometimes, our looks and facial expressions communicate more powerfully than words.

🌻 True religion requires us to guard ourselves against worldly corruption, especially careless speech. Animals like lions, elephants, and snakes can be tamed, but the tongue cannot—it is a deadly poison. We should be mindful of our speech, not speaking blessings at one moment and curses the next. The same mouth should not produce both sweet and bitter words. The tongue fosters jealousy, strife, and confusion, and Satan thrives in such environments. Today, technology amplifies this issue, so we must be cautious about what we write on computers or phones and the pictures we post.

🌻 We often speak out of anger or without thinking. It is wise to let anger subside before sending messages. In Ephesians 4:29, Paul reminds us that evil resides within us, but we must not let it spill out through our words. We should ask God to cleanse our thoughts so that our words will also be pure. James warns against favoritism—if a wealthy person with gold rings enters the church and is given a seat of honor while a poor person in shabby clothes is told to sit on the floor, that is discrimination.

God has chosen the poor of the world to be rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom. To fulfill the law means to love others—our neighbors. If we break one commandment, we are guilty of breaking the entire law, for the same God who said, "Do not steal," also said, "Do not murder." Faith without works is dead. If you see someone without food or clothes and only say, "Go in peace, stay warm and well-fed," you have done nothing to help them. Even Abraham was justified by his actions when he offered his son Isaac.

James discusses conflicts arising from selfish desires. We do not receive because we do not ask, or we ask with wrong motives. We must resist the devil, and he will flee from us. Draw near to God, and He will draw near to you. Humble yourselves before the LORD, and He will lift you up. James reminds us that if our deeds are evil, we are no better than non-believers. True religion involves helping widows, orphans, the poor, and the needy while keeping ourselves unpolluted by the world.

James advises us not to boast about tomorrow because life is like a vapor that appears briefly and then vanishes. We should do good when we know it is right, for failing to do so is sin. Faith without deeds is dead. He warns oppressive employers who exploit workers and fail to pay fair wages that their wealth will rot and testify against them. The cries of these workers have reached God's ears.

True religion is also reflected in how we treat our servants and animals. Be it overworking a donkey or underpaying employees who toil tirelessly while our families relax, such injustice cries out to heaven. James concludes by urging us to pray in times of trouble, sing songs of praise when cheerful, and call church elders to pray and anoint the sick, for the prayer of faith will heal them.

Someday in heaven, we will understand how our trials were intricately linked to our salvation and how these light afflictions worked for our eternal good. God provides wisdom to endure trials, strengthening our weak areas. The prayer of a righteous person is powerful, as seen when Elijah prayed, and rain ceased for three and a half years, and when he prayed again, the rains returned. If someone strays from the faith, we should encourage them to return, for restoring one soul saves them from death.

🌼 Jesus Had a Special Place for Prayer:
You should have a private place for prayer. Just as Jesus had specific places for fellowship with God, we too need such places to commune with Him.

🌼Questions:

Why is faith without works dead?

What is the problem with the tongue if misused?

Who should a sick person call?

What warning is given to employers who exploit workers?

What benefit do trials bring?

As Jesus' brother, what unique knowledge might James have?

Who are the wise people who do not need to ask God for wisdom?

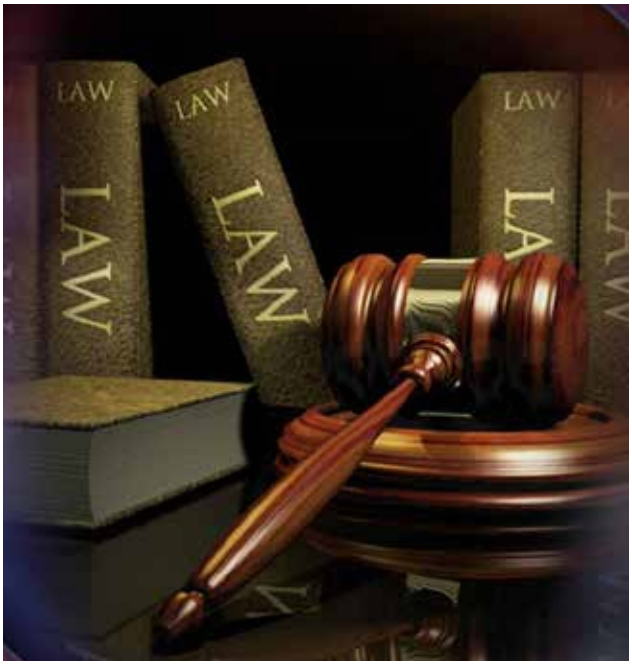
How can we communicate using our eyes, tone, or body language?

How can we avoid speaking harmful words?

List words that heal and words that destroy.

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Key Text: James 2:16-18.



[16-18] And one of you says to them, "Depart in peace, be warmed and filled," but you do not give them the things which are needed for the body, what does it profit? Thus also faith by itself, if it does not have works, is dead. But someone will say, "You have faith, and I have works." Show me your faith without your works, and I will show you my faith by my works.

Prayer: Dear Almighty God, help us not to be people of empty words, but that our faith may be joined with works. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Role play of a needy person asking for food or something necessary, and others who claim to love God respond by saying: "Go in peace, may the Lord feed you," etc.

DAY 343 (December 8)

TOPIC: The First Letter of Peter

Peter was an apostle of Jesus and one of the 12 disciples of Jesus. He was one of the first leaders of the Christian church in Jerusalem. He wrote to the believers, encouraging them to rejoice when they are persecuted because Christ also suffered for them, and when He was persecuted, He did not retaliate with insults. It seems Peter witnessed these things with his own eyes. He was drawn by Jesus' love and was willing to do anything for the LORD. He emphasized that it is better to suffer for doing good than to suffer for breaking the law or doing evil. Peter wrote this letter while in Babylon, with John Mark reminding us that we have been purchased with precious blood and not with perishable things, and therefore, we should rid ourselves of deceit and all evil. He urges us to keep our minds focused on what is good.

Peter's letter was addressed to all believers in general, emphasizing the spirit of unity and love after they had been scattered due to severe persecution. Peter himself knew much about suffering, as he was beaten, threatened, and imprisoned. He accepted these without resentment or discouragement but continued to obey God and live a victorious life. His purpose was to encourage those facing trials because of their faith and to call them to live holy lives. Peter asserts that holiness is important, even during suffering and pain. It is common for believers to be imprisoned or even killed for their faith. Peter says that everyone should be ready to testify to anyone about the hope that is within their heart.

Let us be watchful because our accuser, the devil, is like a roaring lion seeking someone to devour. Therefore, we must be vigilant and alert, not giving him any opportunity or forgetting that we are in a great battle. Peter says that times of suffering are times of rejoicing because we share in Christ's sufferings. Suffering can also serve as a lesson, revealing flaws in our character that need correction. Eternal life is promised to all who love God. Peter worked with both Jews and Gentiles, traveling to various regions, and even reached Rome around 60 AD, just as Paul did.

In the past, Peter denied Jesus, but he later gained courage and considered it an honor to die for Christ. Historians say that Peter was also killed in Rome under Emperor Nero, just like Paul. Although this letter is brief, it contains great teachings on faith. He urges us to humble ourselves under God's mighty hand, and He will lift us up, casting all our worries and troubles on Him because He cares deeply for us. We should live holy lives because it is written, "Be holy, for I am holy." We have been redeemed by the precious blood of Jesus and not with perishable things.

Therefore, we must put away malice, deceit, hypocrisy, envy, and all slander. Let us remember that we are sojourners and pilgrims, and we must avoid the desires of the flesh—things we see and desire to possess, and things that make us prideful and feel superior to others or even to God Himself. Jesus is the Living Stone, the cornerstone needed to build a strong house. We are all children of the King, for our home is in heaven, so we must live uprightly. Let servants obey their masters, even the harsh ones, because if they do wrong and are punished, they deserve it. However, if they do good and are punished, they suffer for Christ. Wives should submit to their husbands, as this is God's command.

Peter provides guidance on how we should adorn ourselves, saying we should not focus excessively on outward appearances, such as gold jewelry, wigs, braided hair, or expensive and attractive clothing. Instead, we should adorn ourselves with the inner beauty that does not fade—qualities of gentleness, calmness, patience, and obedience, which are of great value in God's sight. This does not mean we should wear dirty or shabby clothes. Rather, we should not prioritize external appearances for human approval, as God knows the hearts. Gold, diamonds, and many precious stones that people wear were created by God and will even exist in heaven. However, the problem arises when these things become temptations or idols. The principle is to use our money, time, and resources for God's glory.

When we adorn ourselves with earrings or show off for attention, it corrupts the inner person. Especially when we quarrel to protect these possessions when someone tries to help us, it reveals a form of idolatry. This is not the time to spend large sums of money on clothes or adornments when there are pressing physical, emotional, and spiritual needs. Personally, as an African and a Christian, I have realized that I am always poor and without enough money, even if I were a billionaire. I have many people to support. There are three billion people who have never heard the gospel, particularly in the 10/40 window (1040window Joshuaproject.org).

Every day, I meet people with severe needs for health, clothing, shelter, or food. There are people on the streets without shoes, clothes, or food. I cannot justify spending $500 on a suit, tie, or jewelry while many are perishing spiritually and physically. This is my personal testimony because I want others to live eternally, rather than living in luxury while so many have not heard the message of the cross. Five people dedicated themselves to sharing the gospel with me when I was in darkness so that I could hear the good news, which will soon be closed.

This is the time to be like the apostles—offering everything as a sacrifice to help others prepare for the soon return of Jesus. Everything is temporary—perhaps seventy or eighty years for humans—but eternity is forever. Likewise, husbands should live with their wives wisely, giving them honor as the weaker vessels, because they are co-heirs of the grace of eternal life. Husbands who mistreat their wives may have their prayers hindered. This applies to everyone under our care—if we neglect them, God will not hear our prayers.

Those who love Jesus must love one another, be humble, and repay evil with good. We should strive for goodness and not plan or engage in evil. Always be ready to answer anyone who asks about your faith with gentleness and humility, not with pride or religious arguments that drive people away. Employees should respect their employers, and children should honor their parents. Peter concludes by urging church elders to shepherd God's flock properly, not under compulsion or for financial gain.

Spiritual leaders should not seek shameful profit. We have witnessed servants of God asking for money for personal gain, telling people they will pray for them if they pay, or selling prayer items like anointing oil or cloths—this is wrong. Both leaders and members should practice humility and service. God opposes the proud but gives grace to the humble.

Questions:

Where was Peter when he wrote this letter?

Why should spiritual leaders shepherd God's flock faithfully?

Why should we humble ourselves under God's mighty hand?

Why should husbands live with their wives wisely?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: 2 Peter 1:5-7.

[5-7] But also for this very reason, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue, to virtue knowledge, to knowledge self-control, to self-control perseverance, to perseverance godliness, to godliness brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness love.

Prayer: Our Father in heaven, thank You for this ladder of Peter. Help us to grow spiritually and have good character. Help us to discern false prophets who twist Your Word. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Discuss Peter's ladder, step by step, until the end.

DAY 343 (December 9)

TOPIC: The Second Epistle of Peter.

Peter wrote this letter as he approached the end of his life, just before being executed in Rome by Emperor Nero. Peter saw false teachers and prophets spreading doctrines without the foundation of faith in Christ, infiltrating the church with their teachings. He exhorts Christians to grow in faith and become courageous so they can identify false teachings or apostasy. He says these false religious teachers will exploit people with fabricated stories.

Peter tells us that they did not follow cleverly invented stories when they spoke about the power and coming of the Lord Jesus Christ but were eyewitnesses of His majesty. He recalls the time when Jesus was transfigured in radiant glory. Peter was very close to Jesus—eating, walking, and accompanying Him everywhere. He says he personally heard the voice from heaven saying, “This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.”

This voice came from heaven when he was with Jesus on the holy mountain during the transfiguration. We, as Christians, have also been given the sure prophetic word of God—the Scriptures. The Scriptures are like a light shining in a dark place, and we do well to pay attention to them until the day dawns and the morning star rises in our hearts when Jesus returns. Peter emphasizes that the Scriptures did not come by human will but through people who were moved by the Holy Spirit.

Peter reminds us that if God did not spare the angels who sinned but cast them into hell to be held for judgment, and if He did not spare the ancient world but saved Noah—a preacher of righteousness—and seven others when He brought the flood, He will likewise bring judgment in the last days. He also condemned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah by burning them to ashes but rescued righteous Lot, who was distressed by the depravity around him. Similarly, God will deliver the godly from trials and keep the unrighteous under punishment. Among the unrighteous is Balaam, the son of Beor, who loved the wages of wickedness. Such people are like wells without water and clouds driven by a storm.

Those who have escaped the corruption of the world but are entangled again and overcome are in a worse condition than before. They are like a dog that returns to its vomit or a washed pig that returns to wallow in the mud.

Peter quotes the Old Testament 35 times. He addresses concerns about the delay in the Lord's return, assuring believers that the Lord is not slow in keeping His promise as some understand slowness. Instead, He is patient, not wanting anyone to perish but for all to come to repentance. The Day of the Lord will come like a thief, unexpectedly for those who are not watching. On that day, the heavens will disappear with a roar, and the works of humanity will be burned up.

Therefore, we ought to live holy and godly lives as we wait for the promise of a new heaven and a new earth. Since we are looking forward to this, we must make every effort to be found spotless, blameless, and at peace with Him. We should continue to grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. God desires us to move forward, and He enables us to do so. By trusting in God's promises, He will help us fulfill them in our lives. Thus, the return of Jesus will not catch us unprepared like a thief in the night. Are you ready to meet Jesus in the clouds?

Have you heard of Peter's ladder? When using a ladder, we climb from the bottom to the top. This reflects our Christian journey. Therefore, make every effort to add virtue to your faith, knowledge to virtue, self-control to knowledge, perseverance to self-control, godliness to perseverance, brotherly kindness to godliness, and love to brotherly kindness. If you possess these qualities in increasing measure, they will keep you from being ineffective and unproductive in your knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

There is no way to prove genuine faith without trials, and only genuine faith saves. Are you going through the furnace of trials now? Remember, our God is the Master Deliverer—He will ensure you are refined without being burned! There is a difference between temporary and eternal matters. The believers addressed in this letter were strangers, temporary residents, and pilgrims, waiting for their eternal inheritance. Their trials were temporary, but there is great joy ahead—some of which can even be experienced now amidst trials. Some people had not fully understood the reality of God's work and His love, but now Jesus is fully revealed. Our human lives are fragile and fleeting, but lives founded on the Word of God will endure forever.

However, anyone who lacks these qualities is blind, shortsighted, and has forgotten that they were cleansed from their past sins. Therefore, brothers and sisters, make every effort to confirm your calling and election, for if you do these things, you will never stumble. In this way, you will receive a rich welcome into the eternal kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

The church today is being tested by false teachings. Our safety is found in the Scriptures alone. Everyone should be able to discern between true and false teachings to avoid deception. To detect counterfeit currency, we study the genuine—not the fake. Similarly, to identify false teachings, we must study the Bible so that when false doctrines arise, we can distinguish them. For a long time, Satan, through his agents—false prophets and teachers—has attacked the church of Christ. He has introduced heresies that many have accepted into the church.

One such heresy is "theistic evolution," which claims that God created the world through evolution. Another is the belief in a secret rapture, where believers will be secretly taken to heaven. These doctrines are recent innovations. Another dangerous teaching is that the soul leaves the body at death and goes to either heaven or hell, remaining alive apart from the body (see Ezekiel 18:4). Additionally, there is the false teaching that the first day of the week, rather than the seventh, is the holy day. God personally descended on Mount Sinai and proclaimed the Ten Commandments, including the command to keep the seventh-day Sabbath (see Exodus 19, 20), which Jesus affirmed by observing it (see Luke 4:16).

In these last days, false prophets have become more aggressive. Many, including young children, claim to be prophets or apostles and demand money from people. This was rare in the past but is now widespread. Some treat it as a business to satisfy their greed. Jesus warned us, saying, “For false Christs and false prophets will appear and perform great signs and wonders to deceive, if possible, even the elect” (Matthew 24:24). Satan deceives to destroy. Only through a personal relationship with Jesus and a deep knowledge of the Scriptures can we avoid being misled. Let the Holy Spirit be our teacher as we study the Bible.

The disciples were deeply impressed by Jesus’ prayer life and communion with God. One day, after being absent for a short while, they found Him immersed in prayer. Unaware of their presence, He continued praying aloud. Their hearts were profoundly touched. When He finished, they said, “Lord, teach us to pray.”

Questions:

Who is compared to a pig that returns to the mud?

What is our safeguard against false teachings?

Mention three Old Testament events that Peter refers to.

How did the Scriptures come to us?

DAY 344 (December 10)

TOPIC: Behold the Amazing Love!

(1 John)

John was the beloved and youngest apostle of all. He witnessed Jesus' transfiguration in glory and saw Elijah and Moses when they came to comfort Jesus. He was an eyewitness to these events. It is possible he was a close relative of Jesus, particularly on His mother's side, as suggested by Mark 15:40, Matthew 27:56, and John 19:25-27. His mother, Salome, was related to Jesus' mother.

Jesus entrusted His mother to this apostle rather than to His biological brothers. John was present in the Garden of Gethsemane, witnessing Jesus' sweat falling like drops of blood. John wrote the Gospel of John, which describes the life of Jesus, and the book of Revelation, which was a vision given to him on the island of Patmos. By the time he wrote his letters, John was an elderly man speaking to beloved members of the church, whom he called "little children." In his letters, John reminds us of God's great love and that we are His children.

When a child understands God's love, they will be joyful, thankful, and love both God and people. God cares for us deeply, which is why He sustains us. John wants us to remain close to God, which helps us trust Him more. In his old age, John lived in Ephesus. It is possible that his letter was directed to the church there. At the time, the church was divided, and John wrote to help them distinguish between the true teachings of faith and false ones.

Some did not believe that Jesus was the Messiah or that He came in the flesh.

Others claimed they did not need Jesus as their Redeemer and Advocate, arguing they could relate to God directly without Him. This letter is, in a way, a summary of the Gospel of John. As a spiritual elder, John wanted believers to hold firmly to the faith because stepping away from faith leads to deep darkness. God is light, and there is no darkness in Him at all. Today, there are even more false teachings and spiritual darkness than in Paul's time. We must remember that God is light, and there is no darkness in Him.

If we claim to have fellowship with Him but walk in darkness, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us—we are simply liars. The Lord tells us that even if we fall off the path, if we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness. However, if we say we have not sinned, we make Him a liar, and His Word is not in us.

John addresses the "little children," meaning all of us who are God's children, saying we should not sin. But if we do sin, we have an Advocate with the Father—Jesus Christ—who intercedes for us and wipes away our sins. Knowing God means walking in His ways and keeping His commandments—His Word. We cannot claim to know and love God while living however we please. Those around us will see through that and call us hypocrites.

John emphasizes that he is not giving a new commandment but the same commandment of love. We should not hate others because anyone who hates their brother or sister is in darkness and lacks light. John writes to children because their sins are forgiven through Jesus' name and because they now know the Father. He writes to fathers because they have known God from the beginning. Finally, he writes to young people because they are strong, have overcome the evil one, and the Word of God lives in them. These messages are deeply encouraging.

John wanted believers to be 100% assured that their faith and hope in Jesus would secure eternal fellowship with Him. He warns us not to love the world or the things in it. The desires of the world do not come from God. The world and its desires will pass away, but whoever does the will of God will live forever. The Antichrist is coming in the last days, but even now, there are many antichrists. Anyone who denies Jesus Christ and the Father is an antichrist. Furthermore, anyone who elevates themselves above God or thinks they are better than God is also an antichrist. How do we recognize this attitude in ourselves? We ask the Holy Spirit to reveal it to us, as this was the problem with Eve—she believed she knew better than God and disobeyed His instructions.

If we do not follow God's instructions while claiming to believe in Him, we become antichrists. Christ did not break God's law. We must be careful not to be misled by false teachings that are not rooted in God's Word. John emphasizes that Jesus is not just a good person—He is the Son of God. Jesus is both fully human and fully divine. Throughout his letter, John repeatedly emphasizes God's love and instructs us to love one another. Christianity without Christ's divinity ceases to be Christianity. John's letter invites us all to share in fellowship with the Father and His Son, Jesus Christ. This "fellowship" refers to a partnership, a shared relationship. The Almighty God, Creator of heaven and earth, invites us to enter into fellowship with Him!

For our light to shine, we must sincerely confess our sins and ask God to cleanse us. Upon careful reflection, we will see that we have sins to confess and be purified from. This may include the sin of impatience, doubting God's promises, selfishness, or pride. In short, because we fall short of Christ's character, we have sins to confess and be cleansed of. Let us pray that God gives us the spiritual insight to see ourselves as He sees us.

When John first followed Jesus, he was hot-tempered, ambitious for status and respect, and eager for revenge. Yet, Jesus' love transformed him. John loved Jesus, but he had flaws—he was willing to change. Are you willing to be transformed today to reflect Jesus? The Holy Spirit speaks to us just as He did to John, warning and guiding us. John insists that we love not just with words but with actions. He exclaims, "Behold what manner of love the Father has given to us, that we should be called children of God!" Being God's children means adopting His character, and when He is revealed, we will be like Him. Those who remain in Him do not continue in sin but confess and turn away from it. Do not be surprised if the world hates you—God loved us first, not the other way around.

We cannot claim to love God, whom we have not seen, while hating people we do see. Therefore, we are urged to love one another. God loves us all, which is why He gave His only Son to die for us. John declares the profound truth: "God is love!" The term "love," used to describe how God cares for us, is a limited human attempt to express the divine truth of God's care.

Biblical scholars and linguists suggest that the concept of love encompasses over 23 attributes, including mercy, grace, justice, patience, kindness, goodness, comfort, hope, and peace. We must avoid false spirits because they have already come into the world and will continue to come through false prophets. We are called to test these spirits—do they acknowledge Jesus as the Son of God? If not, they are the spirit of the Antichrist. John encourages the “little children” to pray with confidence, knowing that if we pray according to God’s will, He hears us.

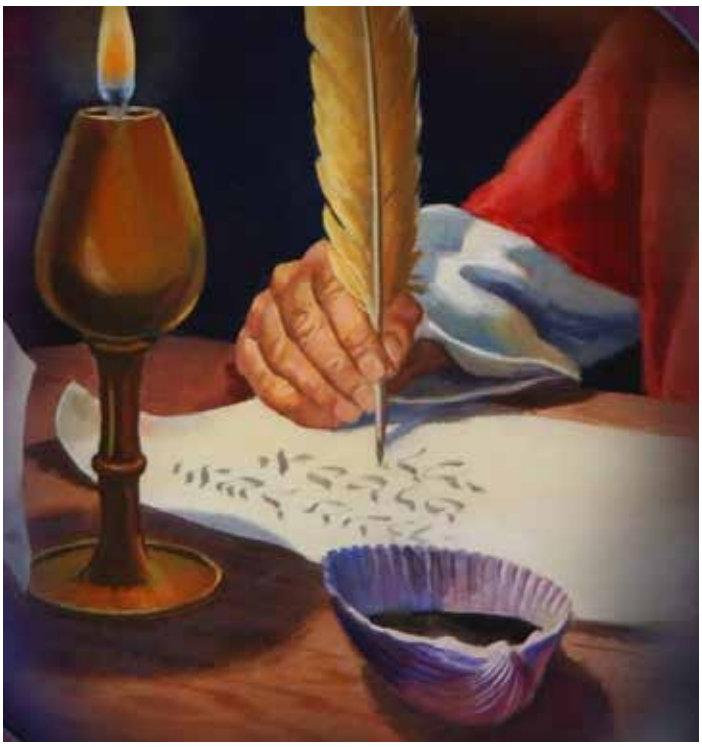
Questions: Why did John write his letters? Why should we love in action rather than words alone? What does it mean to be children of God? What category does someone belong to if they hate their brother? Why is it important to love others before claiming to love God? What does the Bible mean when it says, “God is love”? What helped to calm John, the Son of Thunder?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: 1 John 3:1.



[1] Behold what manner of love the Father has bestowed on us, that we should be called children of God! Therefore the world does not know us, because it did not know Him.

Prayer: Thank You Lord for John’s letter. We are grateful that we are Your children. We pray that we may resemble You, so that when You come we may say, “Behold, this is our God; we have waited for Him.” In Jesus’ Name, Amen.

Activity: Discuss 1 John 1:5-10. Find light such as a torch or candle and explain: “This is the message which we have heard from Him and declare to you, that God is light and in Him is no darkness at all.” Contrast this with darkness.

DAY 345 (December 11)

TOPIC: The Second Epistle of John

John writes a letter to the chosen lady, with the main message being that we should love one another. His urgent message concerns believers with false teachings. These are not worldly people with deceitful teachings, but believers. Worldly teachings are easy to identify and avoid, but the teachings from believers require wisdom to discern because they contain much truth mixed with a little falsehood. Many deceivers have gone out into the world who do not confess that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh. Jesus has taken on humanity forever! John says this deception is from the Antichrist.

Often, this deception greatly harms the church because it comes from church leaders. Leaders cause many to stumble through their influence, leading people away from God's truth. False teachings, or misleading knowledge, sometimes come from those close to us. Through their lifestyles or actions, they suggest that fearing God is not a priority, and we tend to believe them. Sometimes, these individuals hear the voice of the Holy Spirit, repent, and return to the faith. However, those they mislead often stray too far and fail to return.

A married woman once said she could no longer follow God's ways because her husband had embraced false teachings. He stopped attending church, insisting they should stay home and "fix themselves," claiming fellowship with other believers was unnecessary because they were part of "Babylon" or confusion. When they stayed home, they grew weary and abandoned even their home worship. The Lord's Day became just another ordinary day without any worship. They began to argue with each other, and even their children abandoned the faith.

Eventually, the wife passed away, and it is believed she was lost because there was no evidence of her repenting or returning to her former faith—though only God knows her final fate. Five years later, her husband decided to return to the faith and rekindle his first love for God. Many wondered what would happen on Judgment Day, considering he had a strong faith when they married but led his wife astray. Now, the husband had returned, but the wife never got the chance. Indeed, you cannot rely on someone else's spiritual journey. This situation also occurred with King Manasseh. He misled thousands through false worship but eventually repented after being taken captive. Although he returned to God, he had already caused many to stumble.

False teachings often involve exaggerating or presenting partial truths. For example, at funerals, people may claim the deceased will go to heaven, even if they lived a life of open sin. While it is understandable not to speak ill of the dead, it is better to remain silent than to overpraise and declare someone's eternal destination when their life clearly opposed the faith. While our loved ones are still alive, we have the opportunity to guide them to live according to God's will. That way, those who love Jesus will not have to lie at their funeral just to create a comforting narrative, knowing fully well that their life glorified Satan.

There will be three surprises in heaven: First—How did I make it here? It will be a marvel because we often fall into sin. Second—Where are those I expected to see in heaven? And third—Why do I see people here whom I thought would be in hell?

John says that if someone comes to you without bringing true doctrine but instead deceives people, do not welcome them into your home or even greet them. For if you greet them, you share in their evil works. These words are serious. Often, we engage with such people, listen to their deceptions, and waste our time. Television, computers, and other modern technology contain a mix of knowledge and falsehoods, requiring us to filter their content—especially for children. Anyone who loves and seeks God should avoid time-wasting distractions. Wasting time through excessive engagement with modern devices like videos, phones, computers, and other electronic gadgets is one of Satan's strategies to divert us from spiritual and physical success.

In those days, false teachings known as Gnosticism also emerged. Gnostics believed that salvation came through knowledge. They held that the spirit was inherently holy while the body was evil. They denied the humanity of Jesus, claiming that the body was corrupt. According to their false belief, the body and spirit were separate, and the spirit had greater value, making it acceptable to mistreat the body. This was their erroneous doctrine.

John is called the Apostle of Love. He emphasizes loving one another because God is love. Whoever loves is born of God and knows God. It is impossible to have the selfless love that the Bible commands without the Holy Spirit. The evidence of being filled with the Holy Spirit is the ability to love (see 1 John 4:12-13), for love is the fruit of the Spirit (see Galatians 5:22-23). It is through this fruit that we recognize the true children of God.

Satan will try to deceive, if possible, even the elect (Matthew 24:24). Deception in these last days requires God's grace and a solid knowledge of the truth to avoid being misled. Can you believe that in this final hour of earth's history, some Christians no longer believe in the Trinity? Some former faithful Christians now believe that God took millions of years to create the world through evolution.

A Scotland Yard officer was once asked how they could detect counterfeit currency. It was assumed that they spent much time studying fake money. However, the officer explained that instead, they devoted their time to thoroughly studying genuine currency. This way, whenever a counterfeit bill was placed next to it, the difference became obvious. Similarly, we must deeply study the truth found in the Bible so that whenever false teachings arise, the difference will be clear. This requires diligent Bible study, sincerity, and prayer.

If we do not love, we do not know God. John has much to tell us, but he ends this brief letter here. Private prayers, family prayers, and public worship gatherings are all important. We must live out our prayers and cooperate with Christ in His work.

Questions: To whom does John write his letter? What is John's primary purpose in this letter? Are there any false teachings in your school or home that do not align with God's Word? How can we have God's love without compromising the core teachings of faith? How can we avoid superficial love in words only? Can we love God without obeying His commandments?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: 2 John 6, 7, 9.

[6, 7, 9] This is love, that we walk according to His commandments. This is the commandment, that as you have heard from the beginning, you should walk in it. For many deceivers have gone out into the world who do not confess Jesus Christ as coming in the flesh. This is a deceiver and an antichrist. …Whoever abides in the doctrine of Christ has both the Father and the Son.

Prayer: Our Father in heaven, thank You for Your commandments. We pray that we may walk in them, protect us from the deception of the antichrist, and help us to abide in the doctrine of Christ. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Let the children participate in a game of "Truth or Deception," where they identify statements as true or false. Prepare true and false statements about Jesus, God, or Christian living (e.g. "Jesus is the Son of God" is true; "We can do anything we want and still be good Christians" is false). Read each statement aloud and ask the children to decide if it is 'truth' or 'deception.'

DAY 346 (December 12)

TOPIC: I Pray That You May Prosper in All Things

(3 John)

John writes this letter to encourage his fellow worker Gaius in the ministry he is doing. He says, "Beloved, I pray that you may prosper in all things and be in health, just as your soul prospers." Physical health helps us maintain spiritual health. The Greek word "Desozo" refers to both health and salvation. Living up to 70 years is insignificant compared to salvation, which is eternal life. Through our brains, we come to know or understand God. Although we do not know much about Gaius, we do know that John loved him dearly. Gaius is also praised for his gift of hospitality and generosity.

For instance, if we smoke cigarettes, drink alcohol, or entertain impure thoughts, these actions damage our brains and prevent us from understanding God's Word or His plan for us. The brain is the battleground between God's angels and Satan because our struggle is not against flesh and blood. Studies show that, on average, people begin smoking or consuming alcohol before the age of 15. When we are sick, it is difficult to help those in need because we ourselves require help and often become discouraged and exhausted, relying on others for assistance.

However, we do not present a positive image to those who do not know God if we harm our health by engaging in destructive habits. The commandment "Do not kill" also includes not harming our bodies. Every tool produced in a factory comes with instructions for its proper use. Similarly, God has provided guidelines for taking care of our bodies, which are found in the Bible. You cannot pour salt into a petrol tank without expecting to damage the car—likewise, we should be mindful of what we consume. Avoid consuming unhealthy, refined, or overly processed foods with high sugar and fat content. It is best to eat two balanced, affordable meals a day, preferably homegrown, delicious, and easily accessible. If you engage in strenuous physical work, such as farming, you may eat three times a day, but most people do not perform heavy labor. An ideal schedule includes having breakfast around 10 a.m. and the second meal around 4 p.m.

Refined sugar, meaning sugarcane juice stripped of its nutrients, and refined oils are harmful. Avoid imitation foods advertised on television and instead consume natural foods created by God. It takes approximately 14 ears of corn to produce a tablespoon of oil. God's plan was for you to eat 5 ears of corn and feel satisfied, but a plate of French fries represents about 28 ears of corn. Refined foods lack nutritional value and fail to satisfy hunger despite their volume.

Another example is cheese. A small piece of cheese, the size of your palm, requires about 20 liters of milk to produce—this is wasteful and promotes unhealthy weight gain. Never refine grains—eat whole wheat and brown rice. Learn simple home remedies and use them whenever possible. Understand when to use conventional medicine, which provides crucial diagnostic tools and often saves lives in emergencies. Both conventional and alternative medicines are mentioned in the Holy Scriptures.

The Bible recognizes both professional and natural healers. Both groups should work together without greed, focusing instead on helping and serving God's people. Those who love God, whether practicing conventional or alternative medicine, should strive to reduce healthcare costs, improve health, and earn a living. We will discuss ten health principles—commonly called the "Ten Natural Remedies"—which are essential for physical and spiritual well-being.

These are simple practices God gave us to follow daily as preventive measures to reduce illness. Westerners use the acronym "NEW START," which stands for:

Nutrition (Healthy diet)

Exercise (Physical activity)

Water (Hydration)

Sun (Sunlight)

Temperance (Moderation)

Air (Fresh air)

Rest (Rest)

Trust in Divine Power (Faith in God)

🌻Other essential principles include gratitude and praise, avoiding complaints, cleanliness, work, a positive attitude, service, entrepreneurship, and farming. In Swahili, you can organize these principles in any way that helps you remember them.

🌻10 Important Health Practices

1. Water: Children should drink 4 glasses of water daily, while adults need 8-12 glasses. Water cleanses the body internally (by drinking) and externally (by bathing). Avoid drinking water during meals—wait an hour or two. Ensure your water is clean by boiling and filtering it.

2. Sunlight: Aim to get at least an hour of sunlight daily (morning sun). Sunlight helps produce vitamin D, reduces cancer risks, and boosts the immune system.

3. Trust in God: Trusting in God reduces fear, anger, anxiety, and despair, all of which improve health. A cheerful heart is good medicine. Knowing God has forgiven us, forgiving others, and seeking forgiveness brings emotional healing.

4. Nutrition: Approximately 80% of health issues stem from poor diet. The five essential food groups are:

Fruits (at least five daily)

Vegetables

Whole grains

Legumes (beans, lentils)

Nuts and seeds (e.g., coconut, cashews)

5. Exercise: Engage in physical activity for at least 30 minutes to an hour daily. Walking is ideal, but any exercise is beneficial.

6. Fresh Air: Breathe deeply 4-5 times daily and spend time outdoors. Keep your home well-ventilated.

7. Temperance: Avoid harmful substances (cigarettes, alcohol) and use good things in moderation. Do not overeat or overindulge.

8. Rest: Children should sleep for 10 hours, adults for 8 hours, and infants for up to 20 hours. Follow the biblical principle of working six days and resting on the seventh.

9. Community Service: Serving others fosters joy and reduces selfishness. Helping at home and supporting the needy promotes physical and mental well-being.

10. Gratitude: Those who express gratitude and praise live longer, healthier lives. Always say “thank you,” “sorry,” “please,” and “excuse me.”
There is a place for both conventional medicine and lifestyle adjustments. True healing also involves restoring our spiritual relationship with our Heavenly Father.

John warns Gaius about Diotrephes, who was arrogant and dictatorial, hindering the gospel and refusing to welcome fellow believers. John commends Demetrius as an example of goodness and faithfulness.

We must always be vigilant and prayerful. Neglecting prayer and spiritual duties opens the door to sin. Every Christian faces temptations, and no one is immune. We must be governed daily by God’s Spirit; otherwise, we will fall under Satan’s control.

Questions:

Who wrote this letter?

Why is physical and spiritual health important?

What are the ten health principles?

What is the difference between Diotrephes and Demetrius?

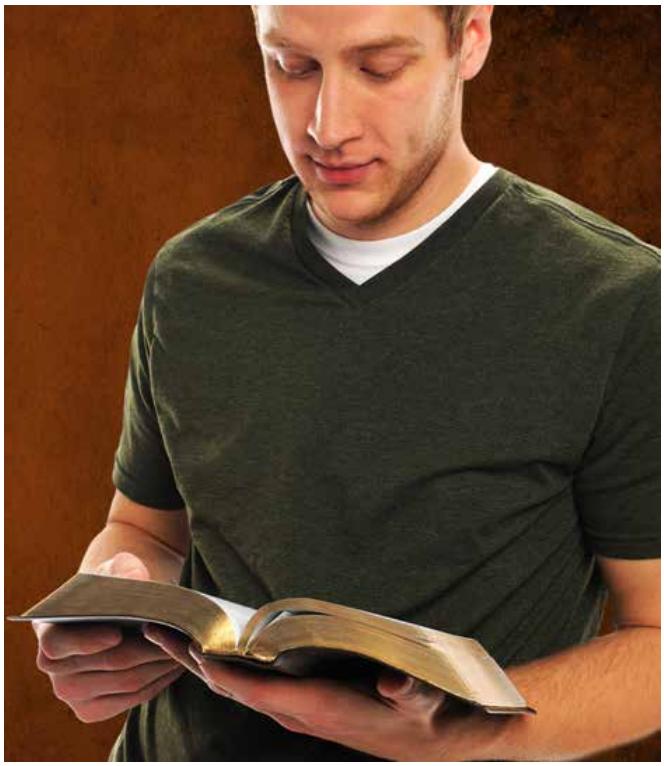
Why is gluttony a serious issue?

Why is it important to follow God’s health plan?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: 3 John 2.

[2] Beloved, I pray that you may prosper in all things and be in health, just as your soul prospers.



Prayer: Thank You Lord that You care about our health. Help us not to use things You have forbidden, and to use those things You have said are good for us. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Draw the eight health principles, and also the things that are not good to use (e.g. Coca-Cola, coffee, alcohol) and the things that are good to use (e.g. fruits, vegetables, grains, beans, nuts). Talk about healthy living.

DAY 347 (December 13)

TOPIC: GOD can keep us from stumbling if we allow Him

(The Epistle of Jude)

This letter is addressed to all believers and was written by Jude, the brother of Jesus. He writes to those who are called and loved by God the Father and who are kept for Jesus Christ. Jude says he felt compelled to write to warn them about false teachings that were creeping in secretly. He urges them to contend earnestly for the faith that was once delivered to the saints because certain individuals, who were marked for condemnation long ago, have secretly slipped in. These people pervert the grace of God into immorality and deny our only Master and Lord, Jesus Christ.

He reminds us that God delivered the Israelites from Egypt, yet many of them perished in the wilderness because of their unbelief. Although they experienced God's goodness, their lack of faith led to their destruction. Similarly, we must walk with God daily. We cannot rely on yesterday's experience with God for today; otherwise, we will backslide. It does not matter if our parents were believers—each of us will give a personal account before the judgment seat. God has no grandchildren, only children. We must seek Him daily and live according to the Holy Spirit.

Jude emphasizes the importance of obedience. He gives the example of angels who did not keep their positions of authority but abandoned their proper dwelling; these angels are bound in eternal chains. He also references Old Testament examples, such as Sodom and Gomorrah, whose people were punished for sexual immorality and perversion. From Jude's letter, we also learn that Moses was resurrected and taken to heaven. Michael the archangel disputed with the devil over the body of Moses. The devil accused Moses of sin, but Michael simply said, “The Lord rebuke you!”

Jude discusses the way of Cain—the first murderer and rebel—who chose to follow his own ideas instead of God’s instructions. When God required a lamb as a sacrifice, Cain offered crops instead, representing his own righteousness. True obedience means doing things God’s way, not ours. Cain thought he was doing God a favor by offering his own produce rather than asking his brother Abel for a lamb. The lamb symbolized Jesus, who would die on the cross. Without the shedding of blood, there is no forgiveness of sins. Cain was warned that sin was crouching at his door, but he ignored the warning.

Those who follow their own teachings rather than God’s instructions are like clouds without rain—useless. They are like trees that bear no fruit and are uprooted twice, destined for destruction. Jude also mentions the rebellion of Korah and the greed of Balaam, who led others astray through falsehood and selfish ambition. Such people cause divisions in the church and places of worship.

Jude reminds us of Enoch, who was taken to heaven without dying. Enoch prophesied that the Lord would come with thousands upon thousands of His holy ones to judge everyone and convict all the ungodly of their wicked deeds. Everyone will be judged according to their works. Jude warns us against grumbling and complaining, as the Israelites did during their 40 years in the wilderness. Complaining displeases God, even when He is providing for us. Just as no parent enjoys being constantly criticized by a child despite their best efforts, God is not pleased when we grumble. The Israelites reached the borders of Canaan three times before they finally entered.

1. The first time, they sent spies to Jericho but did not enter.

2. The second time, they reached Kadesh Barnea but were bitten by serpents and fell into immorality with Midianite women, due to Balaam’s scheme.

3. The third time, they finally crossed the Jordan and entered the Promised Land.

In the last days, there will be mockers who follow their own ungodly desires, rejecting the authority of God. Such people cause division because they are not led by the Holy Spirit. Jude urges us to separate ourselves from such people and to pray in the Holy Spirit.

We are called to have compassion on those who doubt and to save others by snatching them from the fire—just as we would rescue a child from danger.

This message is especially important for us living in the final days of earth's history, to protect us from being misled by false teachings. Jude concludes his letter with an encouraging promise: God is able to keep us from stumbling and to present us before His glorious presence without fault and with great joy. To the only God, our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, be glory, majesty, power, and authority, now and forevermore. This is a powerful assurance! Do we truly believe that God can give us victory over every sin that troubles us? Many of us struggle with this idea and make excuses for our failures, blaming our human nature or external influences. But God does not accept these excuses. He longs for people through whom He can reveal His character to the world—people who would rather die than commit a sinful act.

While it is true that Jesus covers us with His robe of righteousness, this does not allow us to continue in known sin. If God excused sin, Satan would be the first to object, saying, "It's not fair, Lord! If you excuse them, you must excuse me too." And Satan would have a valid point. If we continue in sin without repentance, Christ's sacrifice for us is in vain. We must allow Jesus to save us from our sins, not in our sins. When we fully surrender to Jesus and rely on Him for guidance and strength, He will hold us with a hand that will never let go (1 Corinthians 1:7-9).

False prophets who deceive others for money or personal gain will not escape judgment. On that day, they will say, "Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in Your name and drive out demons in Your name and perform many miracles?" But Jesus will reply, "I never knew you. Depart from Me, you who practice lawlessness!" (Matthew 7:22-23 NKJV). To avoid being deceived and destroyed along with them, we must study the Bible diligently to know the truth.

Pray Always – Cultivate the habit of speaking to the Savior throughout the day—when you are alone, while walking, or during your daily tasks. Let your heart be constantly lifted in silent prayer for help, light, strength, and wisdom. Let every breath you take be a prayer.

Questions:

To whom did Jude address this letter?

What did Enoch see in his vision?

What sin did Cain commit?

What is wrong with complaining and grumbling?

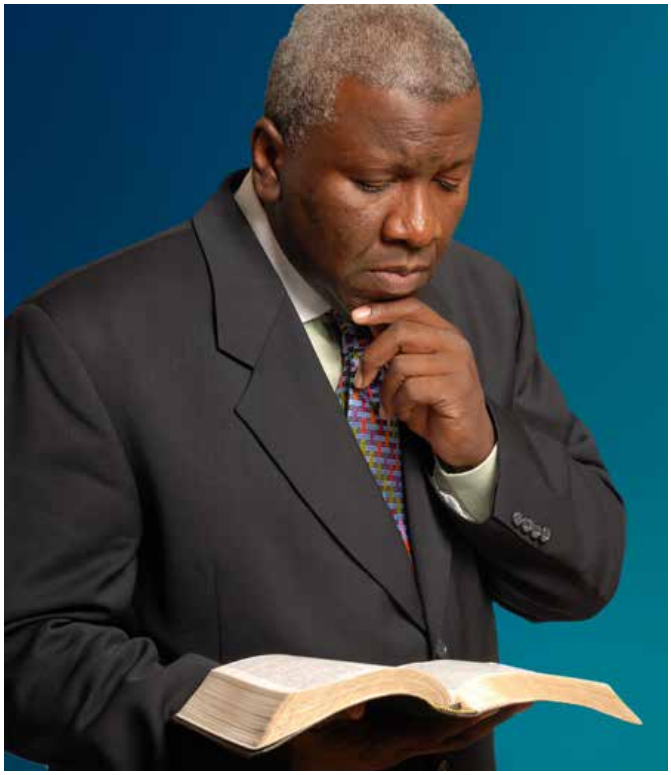
For whom did Michael contend with the devil?

What is Jude's relationship to Jesus?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Jude 1:24, 25

[24,25] Now to Him who is able to keep you from stumbling, and to present you faultless before the presence of His glory with exceeding joy, to God our Savior, Who alone is wise, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and forever. Amen.



Prayer: Thank You, Heavenly Father, that You can help us not to stumble or fall, and present us faultless. Glory, majesty, dominion, and power belong to You from eternity past, now, and forevermore. Amen.

DAY 348 (December 14)

TOPIC: Blessed is the One Who Reads

(Revelation 1-2)

❁ A gospel choir once sang, "I have read the end of the book, and I have seen that our side is the one that wins!" The book of Revelation is the last book of the Holy Scriptures. When someone begins reading a book—especially one about battles, problems needing solutions, or mysteries without answers—they are eager to know who will be the victor or how the story will end. Today, we are in a battle. Our thoughts are like a battlefield filled with missiles and heavy conflicts. We have chosen the team of the Almighty God who lives in heaven. You can read the book online or purchase it from literature evangelists—it is called The Great Controversy. It reveals how intense the battle we are facing truly is.

❁ After reading the first three chapters of the Bible (Genesis 1, 2, and 3) and Revelation 12, you will see that the battle began 6,000 years ago. In the book of Revelation, those who stand with God will be victorious. Praise the Lord! Do not seek answers to your questions from fortune-tellers, astrologers, scientists, television, computers, friends, witches, or worldly people—only the Bible holds the truth! The prophecy of Revelation, or the Apocalypse, reveals God's promises and His love. It is not simply knowledge about events or the beast. If we focus more on events and describing the beast than on God's promises and character, we lose our way. As you read, be careful not to grasp at other things instead of holding onto the promises of God's grace. He says to be watchful and stay alert for eternity, for the One who is coming is on His way! Prophecy reveals God.

۞ Do not waste your time seeking answers from fortune-tellers. By using the Bible, you can understand the entire history until the end. You will know that the wicked and those aligned with Satan will be on the losing side—even if they themselves are unaware. Why not ask God every day to give us all the strength we need, to pour out our hearts for true repentance, and to dedicate ourselves by studying the Scriptures, praying, and sharing the good news with others? It would also be wise to join a fellowship that follows the teachings of the Scriptures as they are.

۞ The book of Revelation, as its name suggests, is a revealed book—it is understandable. We may not understand everything at once because God reveals His Word to us day by day, but He has shown us enough to secure our salvation. Again, Revelation is no longer a mystery or hidden. Many who read this book find that it reveals what the prophet Daniel was shown long ago. The book contains 407 verses, 278 of which are drawn from the Old Testament. Thus, the New Testament alone cannot stand without the Old Testament. The New Testament is a continuation of the Old Testament—they are inseparable. For example, the four horses reappear in the book of Zechariah, and the four creatures with faces like an eagle, an ox, a man, and a lion are also found in Ezekiel 1.

۞ When Daniel wanted to understand more of the prophecy he had received, he was told, "Go your way, Daniel, for the words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end." This prophecy was sealed until the time of the end—and we are now living in that time. Almost all prophecies have been fulfilled. The ones remaining will not take much longer. Let us ask God to reveal His truth to us and take time to study this book, for it has already been revealed. We are living in the time Daniel was told about—a time when this book would be more clearly understood than in the days of John and Daniel.

۞ Jesus comforted John and told him not to worry because He is the Alpha and the Omega, the Beginning and the End—He who is, who was, and who is to come. Alpha and Omega are the first and last letters of the Greek alphabet. The Jews would say "Aleph and Taw." God is everything—He lacks nothing. He is Almighty. The apostle John, whom Jesus loved, received this message while exiled on the island of Patmos, near Turkey, when he was about 100 years old. This island is located in the Aegean Sea.

۞ About 60 years had passed since Jesus' death and resurrection, and John wondered why Jesus had not yet returned. He was exiled under the Roman ruler Domitian. It is said that he was tortured many times but was not killed. Around 90 AD, John was the last surviving apostle. Tradition holds that he was once placed in a vat of boiling oil but miraculously survived. John loved to speak about love.

۞ This apostle of love often told both children and adults, “Little children, love one another,” for love fulfills the law, moves us from death to life, and leads us to eternal life. Read 1 Corinthians 13 again! John wrote to us that “GOD IS LOVE.”

۞ The destruction of Jerusalem by General Titus in 70 AD had already occurred by this time, and the Roman government had begun to persecute Christians. The Romans continued to persecute believers until 197 AD. A Christian named Tertullian defended believers who were falsely accused of breaking the law. He argued that these Christians were different from other criminals because their persecution was based on false accusations.

۞ Instead of spreading fear, the persecution strengthened the believers’ courage. The blood of the martyrs became the seed of the church. How do you respond when someone mocks your faith? Do you lose hope and deny Jesus, retaliate in anger, or stand firm in your faith?

۞ John began the book by saying, “I was in the Spirit on the Lord’s Day, and I heard behind me a loud voice like a trumpet, saying, ‘Write what you see in a book and send it to the seven churches: to Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamum, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea.’”

۞ John saw Jesus in His glory, shining brightly and standing among seven golden lampstands. John fell at His feet as though dead, but Jesus reassured him, saying, “Do not be afraid. I am the First and the Last. I am the Living One; I was dead, and now look, I am alive forever and ever! And I hold the keys of death and Hades.”

۞ Although John, now an elderly man with wrinkles on his face, felt lonely as his friends had died, he still remembered the years he spent with Jesus.

۞ God will judge the world and reward those who have trusted and obeyed Him—these are His saints. Jesus Himself orchestrated John’s vision to reveal what must soon take place. Blessed is the one who reads, hears, and keeps the words of this prophecy, for the time is near.

۞ Jesus addressed the church in Ephesus, commending their perseverance and opposition to evil but warning them to return to their first love. Those who overcome will eat from the tree of life.

Questions:

1. On which island was John when he received the vision?

2. Who is the Alpha and Omega?

3. Which side will win the battle between God and Satan?

4. What counsel was given to the church in Ephesus?

5. Can the characteristics of the seven churches reflect different stages of the Christian church throughout history?

Key Text: Revelation 1:1-3

[1-3] The Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave Him to show His servants things which must shortly take place. And He sent and signified it by His angel to His servant John, who bore witness to the word of God, and to the testimony of Jesus Christ, to all things that he saw. Blessed is he who reads and those who hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written in it; for the time is near.

Prayer: Thank You, Father, for the book of Revelation that has been revealed to us. Please help us to read, hear, and obey what is written in it. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Give the children a map of Turkey (ancient Asia Minor). Let them find the seven churches mentioned in Revelation and mark their locations: Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamos, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea.

DAY 349 (December 15)

TOPIC: The Seven Churches of Asia Minor

(Revelation 2-3)

۞ 2. The Church of Smyrna: Represents the period from 100-331 AD, a time of persecution.

Commendation: You are poor and afflicted, yet you are rich because you know Me. You endure insults and suffering.

Encouragement: Do not fear what you are about to suffer. You will be thrown into prison and tested through tribulation. Be faithful unto death, and I will give you the crown of life.

Warning: He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.

Reward: Whoever overcomes will not be hurt by the second death.

۞ 3. The Church of Pergamum: Represents the period from 331-538 AD.

Commendation: You dwell where Satan's throne is, yet you hold fast My name and have not denied My faith, even during the days when My faithful witness Antipas was killed for My sake.

Rebuke: There are those who hold to the teachings of Balaam, who taught Israel to sin by eating food sacrificed to idols and committing sexual immorality. Others hold to the teachings of the Nicolaitans.

Warning: Repent! He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.

Punishment: If you do not repent, I will come and fight against you with the sword of My mouth.

Reward: Whoever overcomes will receive hidden manna and a white stone with a new name written on it, known only to the one who receives it.

۞ 4. The Church of Thyatira: Represents the period from 538-1500 AD.

Commendation: You have good works of love and faith. You show patience in service, and your later works are greater than your first.

Rebuke: You tolerate the woman Jezebel, who calls herself a prophetess, misleading My servants into sexual immorality and eating food sacrificed to idols.

Punishment: I have given her time to repent, but she refuses. I will cast her onto a sickbed, and those who commit adultery with her will suffer greatly unless they repent. I will strike her children dead. I will repay each according to their deeds.

Warning: Hold fast to what you have until I come. He who has an ear, let him hear.

Reward: Whoever overcomes will have authority over nations, ruling them with an iron scepter. I will give them the morning star.

5. The Church of Sardis: Represents the period from 1500-1830 AD.

Commendation: There are a few who have not soiled their garments. They will walk with Me in white, for they are worthy. I will never blot out their names from the Book of Life but will acknowledge them before My Father and His angels.

Rebuke: You have a reputation of being alive, but you are dead. I have not found your deeds complete in the sight of God.

Advice: Be watchful and strengthen what remains and is about to die. Hold on to what you have received and heard—obey it and repent. If you do not wake up, I will come like a thief, and you will not know the hour of My coming.

Warning: He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.

6. The Church of Philadelphia: Represents the period from 1830-1840+.

Commendation: You have little strength, yet you have kept My word and not denied My name. You have patiently endured.

Reward: I have placed before you an open door that no one can shut. Those from the synagogue of Satan will come and bow down before your feet and acknowledge that I have loved you. I will keep you from the hour of trial that is coming upon the whole world. Whoever overcomes will become a pillar in the temple of My God, and I will write on them the name of My God.

Advice: I am coming soon. Hold fast to what you have, so no one may take your crown. He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. (This period corresponds with the time when many believed Jesus would return based on the prophecy of Daniel 8:14, but it actually referred to the investigative judgment).

🌻 7. The Church of Laodicea: Represents the period from 1844 until today.

Rebuke: You are neither cold nor hot—I wish you were either one or the other. Because you are lukewarm, I will spit you out of My mouth. You say, "I am rich, I have acquired wealth, and do not need anything," but you do not realize that you are wretched, pitiful, poor, blind, and naked.

Advice: Buy from Me gold refined in fire so you can become rich, white garments to cover your shameful nakedness, and salve to anoint your eyes so you may see. I rebuke and discipline those I love. Be earnest and repent. I stand at the door and knock—if anyone hears My voice and opens the door, I will come in and dine with them.

Reward: Whoever overcomes will sit with Me on My throne, just as I overcame and sat with My Father on His throne.

🌻 Jesus says He stands at the door and knocks, waiting to be welcomed. Are you ready to invite Jesus to be your Savior, Teacher, and Friend? Do not leave Him waiting outside—tell Him, "Jesus, I am happy to welcome You to live in my heart forever!" But you must know His voice because you would not open the door to a stranger—you might be invaded by someone else!

🌻 John thought he was old and that his usefulness was over, but he was only beginning a great work! The message of this book is that God is the One who controls the future. If we try to control the future ourselves, we cause chaos. If Satan controls the future, he will use it to destroy us. But Revelation teaches that the future is in the hands of the One who loves us and desires the best for us. This is good news!

🌻 The prophecies of the Four Horsemen, the Seven Seals, and the Four Trumpets align with these seven churches—they are repetitions and expansions. For further study, refer to resources such as Amazing Facts, God Cares by Mervin Maxwell, Salvation in Symbols & Signs by Ivor Myers and James Rafferty, and Gems of Revelation by Patrick Jones.

🌻 Secret Prayer Works Anywhere, Anytime. Pray in your room, and as you go about your daily tasks, let your heart be lifted to God continually.

Key Text: Revelation 2:4, 5

[4,5] Nevertheless I have this against you, that you have left your first love. Remember therefore from where you have fallen; repent and do the first works, or else I will come to you quickly and remove your lampstand from its place—unless you repent.

Prayer: Thank You, Heavenly Father, we ask forgiveness for our sins. Help us not to leave our first love. In Jesus’ Name, Amen.

Activity: Give children paper to write a letter addressed to one of the seven churches.

DAY 350 (December 16)

TOPIC: Who is worthy to open the scroll?

(Revelation 5, 8-10)

❁ John was shown the throne of God and His heavenly seat of power. He saw marvelous and amazing things. There were 24 elders and four living creatures, each with a unique face. The first had a face like a lion, the second like an ox, the third had a face like a man, and the fourth had a face like an eagle. These creatures had many eyes in front and behind, representing the Spirit of God, who sees everything. They sang, "HOLY, HOLY, HOLY."

❁ John then saw the Glorious One sitting on the throne. In His right hand was a scroll written on both sides and sealed with seven seals. An angel asked, "Who is worthy to break the seals and open the scroll?" But no one in heaven, on earth, or under the earth could open the scroll or even look inside it.

❁ John wept because no one was found worthy to open or examine the scroll. However, one of the 24 elders told him, "Do not weep! Behold, the LION of the tribe of JUDAH, the Root of David, has triumphed. He is able to open the scroll and its seven seals." Then, the Lamb who had been slain—JESUS CHRIST—came and took the scroll. At this, the living creatures and the elders fell down before Him. Each held a harp and golden bowls full of the prayers of the saints, and they sang a new song.

۞ The song declared: “You are worthy to take the scroll and to open its seals because You were slain, and with Your blood, You purchased for God persons from every tribe, language, people, and nation.” Tens of thousands of angels (10,000 × 10,000 × 1,000) also joined in, singing in chorus: “Worthy is the Lamb who was slain, to receive power, wealth, wisdom, strength, honor, glory, and praise!” The elders responded with “Amen” and bowed down to worship Jesus. (In those days, the Hebrew numbering system only counted up to 10,000—our modern concept of millions did not exist. In some languages back then, the largest number they could count was three, after which they simply said “many.”)

۞ When the seals are opened, they bring troubles, suffering, and turmoil. John saw four horses—white, red, black, and pale. Although the exact meaning of the horses was not given to John, history reveals that they represent different periods the church went through.

The white horse represents the early church during the time of Roman rule. The rider symbolizes Jesus Christ Himself, with the color white signifying purity and the church’s faithfulness in its first love.

The red horse represents the period of persecution and martyrdom.

The black horse symbolizes the era of spiritual darkness and false teachings that misled many.

The pale horse represents a mixture of truth and falsehood, reflecting a compromised church.

۞ Later, John saw 144,000 people who had received a special seal. They were dressed in white robes, and when asked, “Who are these?” the answer was given: “These are those who have come out of the great tribulation. They have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb.” This means that they possess pure, blameless characters—not because they are inherently good but because they have accepted Jesus, confessed their sins, and have been cleansed and sanctified by His grace.

۞ These people serve God day and night in His temple. He who sits on the throne will shelter them with His presence. They will never hunger or thirst again, and the Lamb will be their Shepherd, leading them to springs of living water. God will wipe away every tear from their eyes. Are you ready to follow the Lamb wherever He goes?

🌻 Revelation also mentions seven trumpets, which signal the final events of the world. Let us pray that we are not among the wicked—kings, rulers, mighty men, rich and poor—who will hide in caves and among the rocks of the mountains, begging the mountains and rocks to fall on them and hide them from the face of Him who sits on the throne and from the wrath of the Lamb. That final day will be dreadful. Who will be able to stand without the garment of God's grace and mercy?

🌻 This is how Enoch walked with God—through constant prayer and communion. Silent prayers, like precious incense, rise before God's throne of grace. Satan cannot overcome someone whose heart is anchored in God.

🌻 Questions:

1. Who was able to open the scroll and break its seals?

2. Why did people hide in caves and among the mountains?

3. Why will the chosen ones follow the Lamb wherever He goes?

4. What are the characteristics of the 144,000?

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Key Text: Revelation 5:2-6

[2-6] Then I saw a strong angel proclaiming with a loud voice, "Who is worthy to open the scroll and to loose its seals?" And no one in heaven or on the earth or under the earth was able to open the scroll, or to look at it. So I wept much, because no one was found worthy to open and read the scroll, or to look at it. But one of the elders said to me, "Do not weep. Behold, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, has prevailed to open the scroll and to loose its seven seals."

Prayer: Thank You, Lord, for my friends and family. Thank You for redeeming us. You alone are worthy, Lord. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Make a scroll and a king's crown, then act out a play showing that only the Messiah is able to open the scroll—and what the scroll contains.

DAY 351 (December 17)

TOPIC: How Satan and His Angels Fell to Earth

(Revelation 12)

❁ There was a war and rebellion in heaven, as we have seen in this book, in Genesis 3. Satan was cast down along with one-third of all the angels in heaven. He came to the garden and deceived our first parents, Eve and Adam. Satan is a roaring lion seeking whom he may devour, so let us be watchful and diligent—reading the Word of God, praying, and sharing the message with others, for the Lord's Day of judgment is drawing near.

❁ The saints will judge Satan and his angels. Even now, they are not happy; they argue among themselves, asking their leader, "Why did you cause us to sin and be cast out of heaven? Why did you deceive us?" Satan and his angels were given time to repent, but due to pride, they refused to abandon their evil ways. Even today, when we sin, we must confess immediately to avoid being lost on the last day due to pride, or facing the consequences of this world. The eternal fire and punishment of death were prepared for Satan and his angels—not for humans.

In the Bible, the dragon refers to Satan, or the Devil. The Devil has come down with great wrath, knowing that he has a short time to deceive people. He is called the accuser of the brethren because he accuses people before God, as he did with Job, recounting their sins—but his day is coming. When Satan reminds you of your past sins, confess them with true repentance, and remind him of the punishment that awaits him soon.

You still have a chance today to choose God, but one day your opportunity will end. Satan no longer has a chance. He was given time, but the door of mercy was closed for him, and his day to repent ended. Today, if you hear God's voice calling you, do not harden your heart. Choose God and the Lamb of God, who died for you. Isaiah 12 and Ezekiel 28 discuss more about Satan. He is referred to as the king of Babylon or Tyre, but when you examine the characteristics mentioned, you realize they are not human but those of the Devil, who was created as the morning star—Lucifer.

He was perfect until sin was found in him through pride and rebellion, desiring to exalt himself above God, even though he was merely a created being. God made angels to be slightly above humans but never above God. Angels should not be worshipped. The Word of God shows that every time an angel was worshipped, the angel would say, "Stand up, I am your fellow servant—worship God." Angels were created because we are told that through Him, all things were created—things in heaven, on earth, visible and invisible, whether thrones, dominions, or powers—all things were created through Him and for Him.

Therefore, angels, like humans and all creatures, have a beginning—but God has no beginning or end. Billions of angels exist today to assist with our salvation; they are God's servants helping us with our spiritual welfare. Elijah was given food by an angel and was strengthened emotionally, spiritually, and physically to continue his journey when the wicked queen Jezebel sought to kill him. Today, many people have adopted teachings about angels that are not based on the Light of God. Sometimes, they fail to distinguish between angels of light and angels of darkness. We must understand that angels exist, as the Bible clearly teaches, and this is the only absolute Truth. The Word mentions angels and their works over 300 times. Angels were created by God, and they exist. Though only a few have seen them, many of us have been saved from difficulties through their intervention.

Angels have been used to rescue us. Perhaps you have heard stories of people being saved or assisted in miraculous ways by angels—whether seen or unseen. Some have encountered angels by being hospitable to strangers, welcoming angels without knowing it. Our father of faith, Abraham, is an example of someone who welcomed angels unknowingly. Angels do not marry or reproduce. Angels in heaven will not have our experiences. We are told there are songs or things they will not fully understand as humans do because they were not redeemed by the death of Jesus like we were. Angels are more powerful and capable than humans—but they do not possess the wisdom, power, and knowledge of God. This is why Jesus said they do not know the day or hour of His return.

❁ Angels eat, as seen when Abraham offered them food, and we are told the Israelites ate manna, which is the food of angels. Angels sang at Bethlehem when Jesus was born, announcing the good news. Angels ministered to Jesus after His temptation and were present at His resurrection and ascension. Angels worship God and Jesus at the throne, and their joy is to be near God. They marvel at His love—especially after witnessing the fall of their fellow angels and how Jesus came to die for us. Their doubts about God's love were forever erased at Calvary when Jesus died, and they knew that God is Love, a truth we should never doubt.

❁ The book of Revelation describes the sealing of the saints—those who cease to worship worldly things, idols, traditions, and practices contrary to true worship as outlined in God's Word. These will be people who keep all of God's commandments and have the faith of Jesus. They will reflect the love of God. Angels marvel at how weak we are, yet how lazy we can be in seeking God, who can do far beyond all that we ask or imagine.

❁ Angels have ranks—Michael is the highest. Perhaps after Lucifer fell, Gabriel took his place. While we do not know for sure, we see Gabriel being sent on major missions, such as announcing the birth of Jesus. There are two main types of angels: Seraphim and Cherubim. Seraphim have six wings, and Cherubim have four wings (see Isaiah 6 and Ezekiel 10). To avoid worshipping or following fallen angels, understand the difference between angels of light and angels of darkness. Our refuge is the Word of God, which helps us discern. Miracles and signs should not come first—God's Word should.

❁ God has warned us about the works of fallen angels, which include the deeds of the flesh described in Galatians. Although Isaiah 13 says Satan seeks to overthrow nations and the kingdom of God through disasters, tribulations, lies, and cunning schemes—Jesus is the ultimate victor. One day, Satan will be judged and destroyed because "the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life." The Bible says, "They overcame him by the blood of the Lamb," which means Jesus Christ. Those who love God or Jesus Christ do not prioritize their own lives—they put God first and are willing to die if it is His will. Salvation, power, and authority belong to God.

🏵 Questions:

What is the difference between Seraphim and Cherubim? What are the duties of angels? What false teachings exist about angels? Who is the dragon? Why is it a sin to worship angels?

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

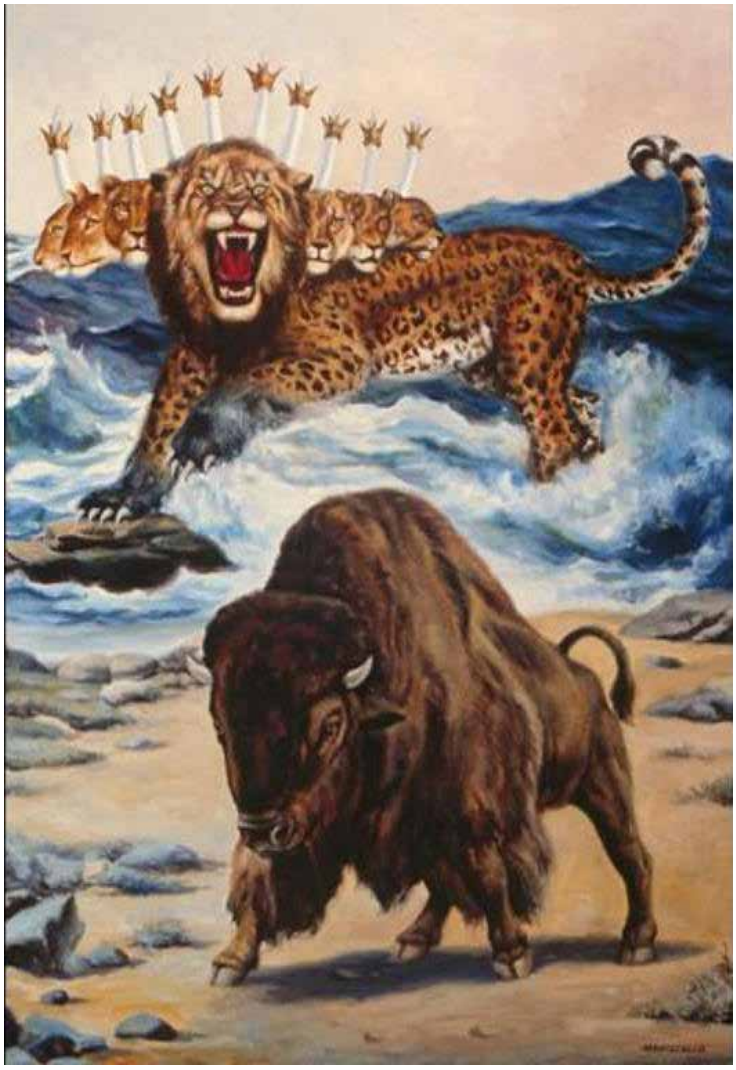
Key Text: Revelation 12:7-9

[7-9] And war broke out in heaven: Michael and his angels fought with the dragon; and the dragon and his angels fought, but they did not prevail, nor was a place found for them in heaven any longer. So the great dragon was cast out, that serpent of old, called the Devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world; he was cast to the earth, and his angels were cast out with him.

Prayer: Dear Lord, thank You for Your gifts. Please help me to avoid the dragon and always choose You, for the dragon has nothing good for me. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Discuss the subject of war, then act out a short play about the heavenly war. Emphasize the power of choice, sing songs about Jesus and His victory, and strengthen faith in Him.

DAY 352 (December 18)



TOPIC: The First and Second Beast

(Revelation 13)

❁ Here, it speaks about two beasts. The first beast rises out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads, with ten crowns on its horns and blasphemous names on its heads. It resembles a leopard, with feet like a bear and a mouth like a lion. It receives its power from the dragon, meaning Satan, who gives it great authority. People worship the dragon because he gives power to the beast. The horns represent kingdoms. It is said that this kingdom will open its mouth to blaspheme against God and will wage war against the saints of God. In prophecy, the sea represents a place with many people. This power is linked to the one described in Daniel 7, which refers to the Roman Empire.

❁ Everyone whose name is not written in the Lamb's Book of Life will worship the beast. The scripture states that this kingdom will persecute people for 1,260 years or 42 months (42 x 30 = 1,260 days). The Bible says, "It was given power to wage war against the saints," and that all who dwell on the earth will worship it—those whose names are not written in the Book of Life of the Lamb, who was slain from the foundation of the world. "If anyone has an ear, let them hear," meaning God will give wisdom to those who seek Him, so they will not worship anyone but Him. We cannot serve two masters. Through our words, thoughts, actions, and intentions every day, we serve either God or the devil.

۞ Ask yourself today—who do you want to serve? The first beast comes from the sea, which often symbolizes an area with many people, while the second beast comes from the earth, meaning it emerges from a place with fewer people. This second beast is also a kingdom or power, speaking like the dragon or Satan and exercising the authority of the first beast. It causes the entire world to worship the first beast. It misleads those who live on the earth. It forces all people—small and great, rich and poor, free and slave—to receive a mark on their right hand or forehead. The two horns represent two powers, the state and the church, which were initially separate. Historians believe this second beast resembles the rise and actions of the United States of America.

۞ During this time, people will not be able to buy or sell unless they have the mark, the beast's name, or the number of its name, which is 666. This is something to pray about so that God may give us understanding. Many believe that this kingdom or leader is the antichrist. Based on the descriptions, their character shows opposition to Christ. We should not fear these things but instead pray for God's guidance during the end times because He is ultimately the victor. Prophecies are given so that when they come to pass, we may know that He is true. Before the fulfillment, we may not understand clearly, and even while it is happening, we may be confused. However, once it is fulfilled, the meaning will become clear.

۞ An example is the prophecy of Jesus' birth. Many people did not understand it fully at the time. They thought Jesus had come to establish His kingdom immediately, without realizing He would first suffer, die, and rise again. Today, as we read His Word, we are blessed to know the truth clearly. The apostles did not understand as much as we do today. In those days, the Word of God was not widely available, and people had to copy it by hand. Now, anyone can access it easily. Pray and ask God to help you get a Bible and read it every day. Return to your family altar, morning and evening. It is said that only 40% of believers pray in the morning and evening—we must be among those who pray earnestly and ask God to raise a mighty prayer army. Our refuge is in God's Word and in God Himself, not in words of fear or intimidation.

❦ It will not help us to understand every prophecy if we do not obey and live according to God's will.

❁ Obedience to God's voice and a transformed heart are what matter most. God reveals only what we need to know for our benefit, so we are not overwhelmed. The greatest question is this: "Am I an antichrist?" The Bible states in Thessalonians and Revelation 13 that the antichrist will come—or is already present—but we may not recognize who he is. Ask yourself today, "Am I an antichrist?" Could you be opposing Christ through your thoughts, words, deeds, or intentions?

❁ God does not only record our actions and words but also the intentions of our hearts. One day, we will all stand before Him to give an account of everything we have done.

❁ Prayer Brings Us Into the Presence of God Himself—Whether offered in a public gathering, at the family altar, or in private, prayer places us directly before God. Through persistent prayer, young people can establish a foundation so strong that even the most powerful temptations will not pull them away from their faith in God.

❁ Questions:

Read Revelation 13 and explain these two beasts.

How can you recognize whether you or someone else is an antichrist?

What is the number that people must have to buy or sell?

How many years or months was the beast given to wage war against the saints?

What are the reasons prophecies are given to us?

Describe the first beast.

Describe the second beast.

Who is the antichrist?

What differences exist between the beast from the sea and the beast from the earth?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Revelation 13:16-18

[16-18] He causes all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and slave, to receive a mark on their right hand or on their foreheads, and that no one may buy or sell except one who has the mark or the name of the beast, or the number of his name. Here is wisdom. Let him who has understanding calculate the number of the beast, for it is the number of a man: His number is six hundred sixty-six.

Prayer: Thank You, Father, for warning us about the two beasts of Revelation 13. Help us not to worship them or follow the evil one. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: List good deeds and bad deeds, and then choose which side a person would want to be on.

DAY 353 (December 19)

TOPIC: The Four Angels and the 144,000 Saints

John was shown again the 144,000 people, who had the name of God on their foreheads, playing harps and singing a new song that only these 144,000 knew. These 144,000 were those who lived without blemish, holy and faithful, and they followed the Lamb wherever He went. They were redeemed humans, the firstfruits for God and the Lamb. No deceit or lies were found in their mouths, for they were blameless. It appears that these are the faithful ones found alive at the time of Jesus' return, who will not experience death.

Then John saw an angel flying in the sky, holding the eternal gospel, proclaiming the true worship that God desires. This angel preached to those living on earth, to every nation, tribe, language, and people, saying with a loud voice, "Fear God and give Him glory, for the hour of His judgment has come. Worship Him who made the heavens, the earth, the sea, and the springs of water.” Another angel followed, giving a warning about false worship, saying, “Babylon the Great has fallen, has fallen! That great city, because she made all nations drink the wine of the wrath of her fornication.”

A third angel came, announcing punishment for false worship, saying, “If anyone worships the beast from Revelation 13 and his image, and receives a mark on their forehead or on their hand, they will also drink the wine of God’s wrath, poured out without mixture into the cup of His indignation. They will be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels and the Lamb.” The angel declared that this would be the punishment for all who worship the beast and his image and receive his mark. Here is the patience of the saints who keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus. The angel said, “Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from now on. Yes, says the Spirit, they will rest from their labors, and their works will follow them.”

John then saw the Son of Man—Jesus—ready to harvest the elect because the harvest was ripe. The harvesting for eternal life began. Then he saw four angels harvesting, representing the four corners of the earth: south, north, east, and west. He continued to describe the seven angels with the seven last plagues, pouring out bowls of great disasters. Let us pray to God and be on His side so that we do not receive these plagues, just as the Israelites who trusted God in Egypt were spared from the seven deadly plagues.

When the seventh angel poured out his bowl, a loud voice came out, similar to when Jesus died on the cross, saying, “It is finished.” There were flashes of lightning and great thunder. Every island fled away, and the mountains were no longer found. A great hailstorm fell, and the wicked were struck by these hailstones and blasphemed God because the plague was exceedingly severe. Therefore, we must commit ourselves to obeying God and studying His Word, so that instead of blaspheming Him, we may praise, thank, and glorify Him, saying, “Great are Your works, You have brought us far and saved us from troubles and all wrath.”

John was then shown a prostitute sitting on a scarlet beast, holding a golden cup full of abominations to God. On her forehead was written: “Mystery, Babylon the Great, the Mother of Harlots and Abominations of the Earth.” This woman was drunk with the blood of the saints. In the Word of God, prostitution represents false teachings. Being drunk with the blood of the saints means persecuting or killing believers. The people who follow the prostitute or false teachings are said to have their names not written in the Book of Life.

Jesus has defeated Satan. To share in His victory over Satan, we must fully commit ourselves to Him, just as the three Hebrew boys—Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego—did (Daniel 3). In other words, our total dedication to Jesus and our faithfulness in spreading the gospel ensure that we will share in His victory over Satan. This victory will be ours!

The horns symbolize kingdoms, which give power and authority to the beast. This beast will make war against the Lamb but will be defeated because the Lamb is the Lord of Lords and King of Kings. In the end, all who oppose Him will be destroyed.

✓ A. TWO OPPOSING SYSTEMS

1. King Trajan of Rome visited Babylon in 116 AD, shortly after John wrote Revelation. He found only ruins. Therefore, John was not referring to the literal city of Babylon.

2. According to Genesis 11:9, Babylon means "confusion." In the End Times, the religious system will mix truth with falsehood, causing spiritual confusion.

3. On the other hand, a pure woman represents a religious system built on Truth.

✓ B. TWO TYPES OF WINE

1. Babylon has committed fornication with kings and merchants. The church has left its rightful Husband (Jesus) and joined unlawfully with state powers.

2. She has adulterated the pure wine of the Gospel and given her own wine to the nations. She has abandoned following Christ in favor of relying on government support.

3. However, the pure church remains faithful to her Husband. She continues to offer only the pure wine—the precious blood of Christ, which washes away sins (Matt. 26:28).

4. God calls His children to come out of Babylon (Rev. 18:3-4).

✓ C. TWO WAYS OF THINKING

1. Symbolic Babylon and her daughters have replaced God's Word with human traditions and ideas.

2. There are two types of religion: one that follows God's Word and trusts

Jesus, His grace, His sacrifice, and His salvation, and another that relies on human authority, leaders, and traditions.

3. Babylon has always sought to destroy those who uphold the pure faith (Rev. 17:6).

✓ D. TWO DIFFERENT LEADERS

1. Babylon sits on many waters (Rev. 17:1, 15) and is supported by a scarlet beast (Rev. 17:3). It is built on human systems, so its leader is a human or a human institution (2 Thess. 2:4).

2. However, the pure church is built on the Rock—Jesus Christ, our Savior (Matt. 16:16-18; 1 Cor. 3:11). Its leader is Jesus (Col. 1:18).

3. In the last days, a church-state system—spiritual Babylon—will arise again. It will have a spiritual leader claiming to speak for God and attempting to take His place.

✓ E. TWO WAYS OF WORSHIP

1. Idolatry was one reason for Babylon's fall. Idolatry was introduced into the early church (4th century), leading Christians away from true worship.

2. However, the pure church obeys all of God's commandments (Rev. 12:17), including the second commandment, which forbids making and worshiping idols (Ex. 20:4-6).

❁ Questions:

Why should we fear and glorify God?

Why is the prostitute described as wicked?

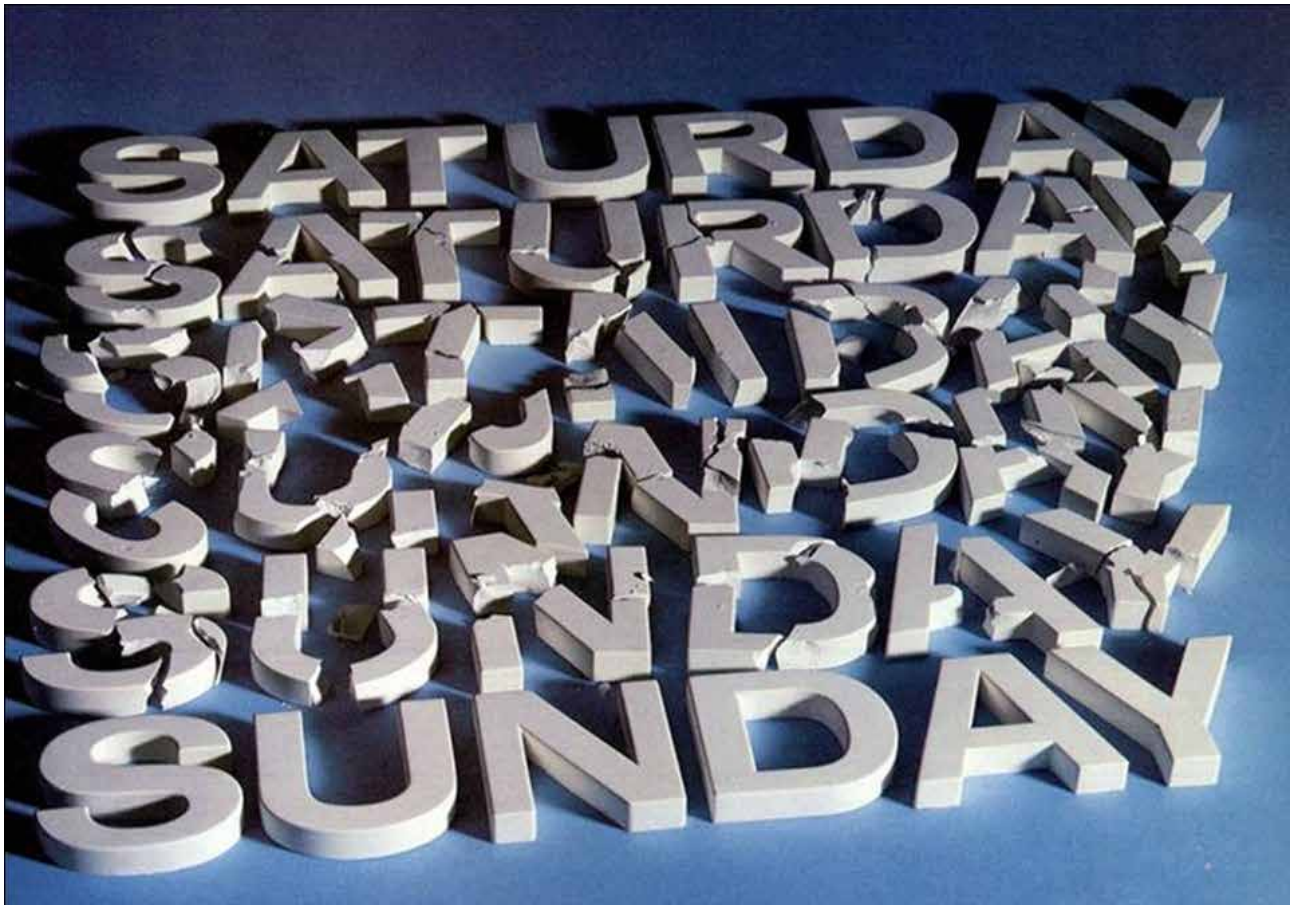
What did the three angels say?

What changes do you see in the world today that indicate the Lord's return is near?

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Revelation 14:6, 7

[6,7] Then I saw another angel flying in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach to those who dwell on the earth—to every nation, tribe, tongue, and people—saying with a loud voice, "Fear God and give glory to Him, for the hour of His judgment has come; and worship Him who made heaven and earth, the sea and springs of water."



Prayer: Thank You, Father, we ask to worship You and give glory to You, for You made the heavens, the earth, the sea, and the springs of water. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Draw the three angels. Watch a video of the three angels and visit the Three Angels for Kids website.

DAY 354 (December 20)

TOPIC: Avoiding False Teachings

(Revelation 18-20)

John saw an angel descending from heaven with great authority, and the earth was illuminated by his glory. He said, "Fallen, fallen is Babylon the Great; she has become a dwelling place for demons, a prison for every unclean spirit, and a cage for every unclean and detestable bird." He heard a voice calling people to come out of Babylon and not share in her sins, for her sins have reached heaven. Babylon represents evil teachings, deceit, and doctrines contrary to the Bible that God has given us. It also symbolizes the chaos of evil, like what happened at the Tower of Babel when languages were confused, and people scattered.

Although we may not understand the interpretation of some Scriptures in the book of Revelation, as children of God, we must focus on avoiding false teachings that are not in the Bible. If a teaching is not found in the Bible, we should not follow it. The Bible should interpret itself, and we should pray before reading it. Human traditions should be avoided. If the Bible says to follow something, that is what we should do. We should read it, memorize it, cherish it, meditate on it, believe it, and obey it in action. This book seems to speak about judgment from beginning to end. John says, “Rejoice over her, O heavens, and you saints and apostles and prophets, for God has pronounced judgment on her behalf.”

For someone who loves God, judgment is a good thing and not a cause for sorrow because God covers them with His grace. Being on God’s side means obedience and faith in Him, and it guarantees victory—He has already scored the winning goal. John sees a great multitude in heaven, of God’s creatures, saying, “Hallelujah! Salvation, glory, and power belong to our Lord, for His judgments are true and just.” Here, God will judge all evildoers, including the great prostitute and the wicked kingdoms. The twenty-four elders and the living beings worshiped God, praising Him from the smallest to the greatest. People rejoiced and sang, “Hallelujah! The Lord Almighty reigns. Let us rejoice and be glad and give Him glory.”

The righteous wear fine linen, which represents righteous deeds, and it is said, “Blessed are those who are invited to the wedding supper of the Lamb.” You and I are also invited—praise be to God. We are told here that Jesus has a name written on His robe and on His thigh: KING OF KINGS AND LORD OF LORDS. The leaders of evil and mighty men, slaves and free people, small and great, all received punishment. Those who refused to follow God were captured, along with the beast and the false prophets who deceived people. These false prophets led others to receive the mark and to worship anything other than God.

An angel came down from heaven, seized the dragon—that ancient serpent who is the devil and Satan—and bound him for a thousand years. This binding may mean that he will be restricted from deceiving people. John saw thrones and those who had been killed for the testimony of Jesus and the Word of God. They were resurrected and lived again—this is the first resurrection, the resurrection of the righteous. This first resurrection is one of blessing and joy for the saints, who will not experience the second death. The first death is the physical death we know on earth today. The second death is eternal destruction or separation from heaven. Jesus died both the first and second deaths to save us from this eternal punishment.

When the thousand years are over, Satan will be released and will try to deceive people again. He will attempt to wage war against the saints and the beloved city—the New Jerusalem coming down from heaven. He will try to bring evil one last time, surrounding the camp of God’s people and the city.

But fire will come down from heaven and devour them. The devil, along with the beast and the false prophet, will be thrown into the lake of burning sulfur.

John says he saw the dead, great and small, standing before the throne, and books were opened. The book of life was also opened, and everyone was judged according to their deeds. All our actions are recorded—nothing is hidden. Every thought, desire, word, ambition, feeling, and deed is clear before God. If we confess our sins, they are erased through the blood of Jesus, which has the power to cleanse. The sea gave up the dead, and the earth was judged according to their works. Death and Hades were thrown away because all who chose God will live forever. But anyone whose name was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire.

Our prayer is for God to help us surrender completely to Him and live according to His plan so we can reach heaven. Here is some advice for our music ministry as we prepare on earth:

1. Church music should reflect reverence and respect during worship, as this is when we meet God. It should align with the Holy Scriptures and not include messages that contradict the Bible.
2. Musical instruments should be played harmoniously and should not overpower the lyrics, which convey God's message.
3. Music should express joy and enthusiasm in being before God (Revelation 7:12).
4. There should be harmony between the message delivered and the arrangement of voices, offering a clear and specific lesson.
5. Choir members and singing groups should wear uniforms or modest, respectful attire that presents them well before people and before the King of Kings and Lord of Lords.
6. Music and singing in Scripture are equivalent to thanksgiving offerings to God for creation, His protection, and eternal salvation. Look at how the choir of 4,000 people served as ministers to the Lord.
7. Let us restore the old Adventist music paths (Jeremiah 6:16). May God bless you.

Private prayers should be personal and confidential. In private prayer, everyone has the freedom to express their desires and speak openly to God. It is a time to pray for family and friends and present personal challenges and trials. Corporate worship is not the place to disclose personal matters.

Questions:

1. What is the difference between the first death and the second death?
2. What will Satan and his followers try to do after a thousand years?
3. What does it mean that death and Hades were thrown away?
4. What does Babylon symbolize?
5. What is in the book of life?
6. What is the fine linen garment?
7. Why should we follow God's Word and not human traditions?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Revelation 18:2

[2] And he cried mightily with a loud voice, saying, "Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen, and has become a dwelling place of demons, a prison for every foul spirit, and a cage for every unclean and hated bird!"

Prayer: Thank You, Father, for the warning You have given us. We do not want to be in the dwelling of demons, but in Your dwelling. Protect us, Lord. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Let one child shout the words of the key text loudly, while the others fall to the ground! Then compare two things: generosity and greed.

DAY 355 (December 21)

TOPIC: Hell (Part 1)

GOD has many ways to help us by setting barriers or boundaries to save us. Hell may be the final barrier to help us be saved. Many people have read and spoken about hell. There are various opinions about this place. Some have imagined what hell is like without considering what the Scriptures say. Can you describe hell as you understand it? What do the Holy Scriptures say about hell? Do the Scriptures want us to know about hell? If so, what do they want us to know, and why should we know?

We cannot write Bible stories for young people without addressing this topic because it is important. This is because there is an end to our journey after judgment. There are only two destinations: heaven and hell. GOD's love is mentioned over a thousand times in the Scriptures, and many people read and stop there. However, GOD's wrath is mentioned 584 times in the Bible. The wrath of the Lamb in Revelation 6 is puzzling because we are used to the Lamb being gentle. Yet, we must understand that the Lamb is also the Lion of Judah. GOD is love, but He hates sin because it destroys the lives and happiness of His creatures through murder, robbery, immorality, disease, tribal wars, and rape.

If the Bible tells us about going to heaven if we choose to, then there is also a need to talk about going to hell. There are only two choices or kingdoms—heaven and hell—and these are definite realities. Today, we will look at a few scriptures about hell or the punishment of the wicked. In other words, humanity is given the opportunity to make choices in life, with two options presented: life or death. Whoever chooses life chooses paradise (heaven), and whoever chooses hell chooses fire and eternal destruction. Everyone has the freedom to choose because God does not force His creatures to do anything. He did not create robots who would love and serve Him without free will. He gave us all the freedom of choice, which is both a blessing and a risk—we can follow Him or turn away from Him! However, when we use our free will wisely, we grow spiritually, and our love becomes genuine and continues to grow—it is not fake or counterfeit!

Many people have read about GOD's wrath and become fearful. Fear can be beneficial because it helps us set things right. What we must remember about hell is that it was not created for human beings. It was prepared for Satan and his angels, who were given time to repent but refused to do so. Hell is not eternal fire or eternal punishment because GOD did not promise eternal life to the wicked. GOD gave His only Son as a sacrifice so that whoever believes in Him will not perish but have eternal life (John 3:16).

Many have said that GOD is a consuming fire. When GOD tries to embrace sinners with His love, they will experience torment because GOD is a consuming fire to sin. However, when He embraces the righteous, it will be an embrace of joy and love. Surely, no one in heaven will want to live with someone who has not changed their bad behavior. Every child or elder is tired of the evil in this world and does not want to encounter it in heaven—otherwise, it would not be heaven! Imagine your neighbor in heaven stealing from you or attacking you while you are enjoying yourself—that would not be heaven, but somewhere else. What should GOD do, then, to eliminate selfishness so that everyone can live joyfully and peacefully in heaven without sorrow? Can you answer this question, considering that even you would not want to find evil in heaven, even if it came from a close friend or relative?

I have heard many people joke about hell, saying they will have many friends there and will spend time shaking hands and chatting. I think that will not happen. According to Scriptures like Daniel 12:2, it will be a place of extreme shame, where those filled with shame, weeping, and gnashing of teeth will not even be able to look at one another, let alone shake hands. It will be a place of unimaginable cries and blame. Even Satan's angels will blame their leader for leading them there. Moreover, those in the lake of fire, as described in Revelation 21:28, will include those who are detestable, liars, hypocrites, the proud, the hateful, murderers, thieves, gossipers, sorcerers, and all evildoers. You may think your sins are not as severe as these, but sin is sin, and all will face punishment before being destroyed. There will be no desire or opportunity for greetings, jokes, or laughter in hell.

JESUS said in Matthew 5 that anyone who is angry with their brother is subject to judgment, and whoever insults their brother is in danger of the fire of hell. If your eye or any part of your body causes you to sin, it is better to remove it and enter heaven with one part missing than to go to hell with your whole body. Every tree that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire. He told the scribes and Pharisees that they make a convert who becomes twice the child of hell as they are.

It is a certainty that those who trust GOD, obey Him, and truly repent when they sin (because no one is without sin) will be rewarded with eternal life in heaven where there is no more death. But the wicked—those who do not trust GOD, obey Him, or repent of their sins—will be cast into the lake of fire and brimstone where the beast (of Revelation 13), the false prophet, and the dragon (Satan) are. There, they will suffer day and night (Revelation 20).

The Bible mentions hell or the punishment of the wicked only briefly. GOD emphasizes His love and relationship with His people. Although we do not know much about hell, from the little the Bible reveals, we understand that it is not a place anyone would want to go. In English, when people dislike someone, they say, "Go to hell." This alone is enough to show that it is not a desirable place.

It is a terrible place—worse than anything bad we have ever heard or experienced—but JESUS died on the cross, enduring all the pain, so that you and I can avoid the torment of hell and not perish forever. The way to hell is broad, while the way to heaven is narrow. The path to hell requires no self-denial. You can do whatever pleases you if you want to go to hell. Nowhere in the Scriptures does it say that a Christian or believer who fears the LORD can do whatever they want.

A believer who genuinely loves GOD cannot do whatever they please, but only what the LORD directs or desires. A Christian is someone who follows and obeys the Scriptures. On the broad path, you can do whatever you like, including breaking the Ten Commandments of GOD.

❁ On the broad path, you can lie, steal, disrespect your parents, or take the name of the LORD God in vain. You can have other gods and worship them. You can neglect honoring the Lord's Sabbath, stop praying, skip worship services, or fail to read the Holy Scriptures. You can be as greedy as you want. You may refuse to help the poor and the hungry, be quarrelsome, and disobedient. The broad path accommodates all kinds of garbage or behavior—anything goes—but its punishment is the worst imaginable. No one likes to burn, ever. When most of us suffer a small burn, we rush for Vaseline, honey, aloe vera, lotion, or cold water mixed with flour to ease the pain. The fire of hell, however, is indescribable—there are burning stones and unimaginable agony. Many who have suffered toothaches understand the intensity of such pain, and from this description, the gnashing of teeth will be far worse than any toothache or cavity pain!

❁ God has given us His Word to prevent us from going to hell. The words we heard from childhood echo in our minds, drawing us back to Him. Verses we memorized remain etched in our minds, returning to convict our hearts. Bible stories also guide us back from being lost. God's Word is a map, a compass, a lamp, and wisdom to lead us to eternal life in heaven. God has not promised eternal life to sinners but only to the righteous. The wicked are promised hell. This Bible will either keep you from sin or sin will keep you from the Bible. God also uses sermons to draw us away from the broad path to hell. Today, if you hear His voice, do not harden your heart. Many mock preachers, criticizing their outdated style, poor clothing, or imperfect English. Yet, Scripture says that preachers are sent to proclaim the Good News—not with human wisdom—so that the cross of Christ may not be emptied of its power. For the message of the cross is foolishness to those who are perishing, but to those who are being saved, it is the power of God. God chose to save believers through the foolishness of what is preached. Even if someone thinks they are wise and that the Scriptures are nonsense, they should be cautious—God has chosen this seemingly foolish method to save us from hell.

❁ Preachers may lack eloquent words or human wisdom, but what matters most is that we all come to know Jesus Christ, who was crucified. He alone can save us and take us to heaven, helping us escape hell. Hearing God's Word is what keeps us from perishing. However, all human beings are merely servants doing what they are called to do. Perhaps this is the last sermon you will ever hear in your life—we do not know what tomorrow holds, for it is not guaranteed. What is surprising is that young people die just as the elderly do. Death spares no one. It is inevitable for all. God has also used the prayers of others to draw us back to Him—prayers of parents, the righteous, spiritual leaders, and even grandparents. Such prayers have brought us to the narrow path that leads to heaven. God has also used various problems and challenges to bring us back to Him so that we will not be lost. He has allowed us to be weak so that we may humble ourselves and listen to Him.

God has also used the image of Jesus' cross to remind us and prevent us from perishing. Every time you think of this image—His thoughts, His life, and His final days on earth as He went to die for you and me—say, "Jesus, I give You my life forever." We have written only a few things that God has inspired us to share—you can list other ways God has worked in your life. Let us examine where we have fallen, repent, and return. If we are right with God, let us continue to grow step by step until that day when Jesus appears in the clouds to take us to live with Him forever and ever. What an indescribable joy that will be!

Occasional prayers—praying only when you feel like it—will cause you to lose your fellowship with God. Prayer is the breath of the soul; it is the secret of spiritual strength. There is no other means of grace that can substitute for prayer while maintaining spiritual health and ensuring things go well. Prayer brings the heart into immediate contact with the Fountain of Life and strengthens the nerves and muscles of spiritual experience. Neglect prayer, or engage in it sporadically as you see fit, and you will lose your connection and dependence on God. Spiritual faculties will weaken, and spiritual vitality and resilience will fade.

Questions: What did Jesus say about hell? In what ways has God helped us avoid hell? Why don't people like living near a wicked person? Has God promised that the wicked will live forever in His Word? Explain what the Bible says about the nature of hell.

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: John 3:15, 16

[15,16] That whoever believes in Him should not perish but have eternal life. For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish but have everlasting life. For God did not send His Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through Him might be saved.

Prayer: Thank You, our Father in heaven, that You did not come to condemn us but to save us. Help us to believe in You. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Use an illustration to show the idea of being left out. Explain it like when all their friends are invited to a party, but they are not. Show that being separated from God is like this sadness and loneliness, because God is the source of all good and joy. Emphasize that being apart from God means sadness and loneliness.

DAY 356 (December 22)

TOPIC: Hell (Part II)

GOD has spoken more about Heaven than Hell. Heaven is so beautiful that even in our most wonderful dreams, nothing compares to it. Heaven is one of the safeguards to keep us from going to Hell. He has given us glimpses of Heaven throughout the Scriptures, appearing every few chapters. The Almighty GOD has told us in the book of Hebrews that if we deliberately keep on sinning after receiving the knowledge of the truth, no sacrifice for sins is left... It is a dreadful thing to fall into the hands of the living GOD (Hebrews 10:26-31). If someone who disregarded the law of Moses died without mercy on the testimony of two or three witnesses, how much more severe will be the punishment for someone who tramples the Son of GOD underfoot? What will happen to the one who insults the Spirit of GOD when He calls? Let us reflect on these things—GOD loves us far more than we love ourselves. No one can come to GOD by themselves unless drawn by the Almighty GOD. Even today, GOD is drawing us in various ways so that we do not perish and go to Hell.

JESUS, the Son of Man, came to seek and save those who were lost and to give His life for the forgiveness of our sins. When JESUS calls you—whether you are six, ten, fifteen, or even one hundred years old—do not say, "Tomorrow, tomorrow." Respond with "Yes" and do not rely on your own wisdom and strength, but trust GOD to deliver you from all kinds of desires. These desires distance us from the Heaven that GOD has promised us. If you have sinned, make things right with your GOD. We have all sinned and fallen short of the glory of GOD, but He says to come to Him, reason with Him, confess, and have genuine repentance.

Let us surrender to Him and begin a new life in JESUS, being open to His unyielding guidance. GOD's many ways will set us on His narrow path so that we do not go to Hell but have eternal life. GOD uses His Spirit to convict us of sin, righteousness, and judgment. When we go astray, the Spirit of GOD speaks to us, and we hear that still, small voice. He directs us to righteousness and reminds us that everything we do will be brought to judgment—our words and our actions. Therefore, we must understand that for everything we do, there will be an account. All sins fall into three categories: the lust of the eyes, the lust of the flesh, and the pride of life.

A person is drawn to do evil through seeing, and through this sight, they feel tempted in their heart and think, "Why shouldn't this be mine?" They then decide to take and claim it, thereby committing theft and sinning. Similarly, the lust of the flesh can lead a person to engage in unlawful sexual acts or other forms of defiling the body. GOD's plan is for a person to engage in sexual relations only with their lawful spouse. The lust of the flesh can pollute thoughts and the mind, leading to fornication, masturbation, pornography, adultery, or prostitution.

The pride of life includes the misuse of your health. Being young and neglecting GOD while saying, "Let me enjoy life first, and when I grow old, I will seek GOD," is a form of pride in life. GOD advises us to seek Him while we are still young or while we still have good health. GOD draws us to Himself in many ways, and the image of Heaven is one of them. He describes how life there will be full of peace, joy, rest, and the great glory of JESUS, angels, and the elders of faith. Imagine Heaven and consider what you would miss if you were not there—no pain, no tears, no sorrow, and no death. This reality surpasses everything else about Heaven. Being with JESUS forever will comfort our hearts and remove all worry permanently.

What grieved JESUS the most as He approached death was the feeling of being separated from His FATHER. To Him, this separation felt eternal. JESUS went forward and endured separation from GOD so that we would not be separated from Him. Being separated from the face of GOD is the worst thing of all. Concerning Hell—eternal separation from GOD—what does this mean? It means there will be nothing good or pleasant. There will be no child's smile, no cheerful greeting of “Good day,” and no peaceful or joyful moments. There will be no meeting kind people—only the darkness of being cut off from GOD and all good things. It will be a place of weeping and gnashing of teeth.

Perhaps, in the torment of the lake of fire or the pain of separation, there will be no one nearby because of the darkness. Revelation 9 says an angel was given the key to the Abyss, and when it was opened, smoke rose from it like the smoke of a gigantic furnace. We do not know for sure if this describes Hell or the Abyss, but just imagining it as humans, an endless pit must be terrifying. Many of us fear falling into a pit, and Scripture says this pit is incredibly deep. Some have asked whether one would fall through to the other side of the Earth—about 7,900 miles! The thought of falling into such a deep pit without knowing how long the fall will last is frightening. GOD’s descriptions of Hell serve as a final warning to help us all make the choice not to perish.

Revelation says that some will lose their strength while trying to attack the city when the saints descend to make war but will fail. Let us not waste our strength planning how to hide in caves or asking mountains to fall on us to escape GOD’s wrath. Instead, let us wisely choose now to be in the New Jerusalem, the new Heaven, and the new Earth. When the books are opened and judgment is underway, let us pray to be on GOD’s side. Do not be confused—goodness may seem slow to win, but in the end, Love and GOD will triumph.

GOD is not trying to scare us with Hell, but if you consider it seriously, you will decide that it is not a place you want to be. Today, leave the broad path and walk the narrow way. The broad road does not align with the narrow path—they are in opposite directions. If you do not have a relationship with GOD today, choose whom you will serve. There are only two masters: Satan or GOD. If you are on the path to Hell, change direction—make a U-turn. Plan to go to Heaven, where there is no complaining, strife, cruelty, or discouragement. It is a place of eternal and abundant peace, where perfect health abounds.

GOD does not force anyone to choose Heaven or Hell—the choice is yours and mine. However, if you fully surrender to GOD, He will do everything in His power to keep you from Hell and give you eternal life. GOD only uses truth, not deception, to draw you to Him. He does not offer false promises—only truth. Pilate asked, “What is truth?” and even today, many ask the same question. The only truth is GOD’s Word. He is the Way, the Truth, and the Life. Choose His way—it leads to eternal life. Today, if you hear His voice, do not harden your heart.

🌻In the secret place of prayer, where no eye but GOD's can see and no ear but His can hear, we can pour out our hidden desires and deepest longings to the Father of infinite mercy. In the quietness of the soul, that voice—one that has never failed to respond to the cry of human need—will speak to our hearts.

🌻Questions:
What happens if we deliberately keep sinning after knowing the truth?
Why do you think GOD has spoken more about Heaven than Hell?
What will you do today if you hear GOD's voice calling you?
What is the worst thing about Hell?
How does the Holy Spirit help us avoid Hell?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus👥

Key Text: Philippians 2:3-4

[3,4] Let nothing be done through selfish ambition or conceit, but in lowliness of mind let each esteem others better than himself. Let each of you look out not only for his own interests, but also for the interests of others.

Prayer: Thank You, Heavenly Father, for Your goodness, protection, and kindness. Today we lift up Your Name and say that we are part of Your team. Forgive our sins, and help us to love You. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Invite each child to tape a spoon to a ruler. Tell them that now they are in hell, and their elbows are tied straight so they cannot bend. Ask them to try to feed themselves without bending their elbows. After a minute, tell them that their elbows are still tied, but now they are in heaven. This time, they must remove selfishness and feed each other instead.

DAY 357 (December 23)

TOPIC: Behold, the dwelling place of God is with man

(Revelation 21)

❁ The Bible tells us that John was shown a new heaven and a new earth, for the first heaven and the first earth had passed away, and there was no longer any sea to separate people. There will be no deserts, ravines, floods, thorns, poisonous plants, snakes, or animals that harm others. Nothing will die there, which is why no creature will prey on another. There will be no hunting. The taste of things there will be astonishing, far surpassing the flavors of this world. Eyes have not seen, ears have not heard, nor has it entered the heart of man the beauty of heaven!

❁ Then John saw the New Jerusalem city coming down from heaven from God, prepared like a bride adorned for her husband. The dwelling place of God will be with mankind. God will move His great city from heaven to dwell with humanity forever here on earth. That is, God's main city or dwelling will be here after the earth is made new. We will be His people, and He will be our God. He will wipe every tear from our eyes because there is much sorrow on earth. Some will remember their loved ones who are lost forever—whether their children, mothers, fathers, uncles, aunts, grandchildren, brothers, or sisters. They will cry, but God will wipe away their tears.

❁ There will be no more death, pain, or anything that takes away joy. Tears will appear in two forms—tears of joy and tears of sorrow. The tears of sorrow will only be at the beginning because we are told there will be no more tears, death, sorrow, or pain, for God will wipe away all these things. Sin will never rise again (Nahum 1:9). The prophet John was instructed to write these things by the Messiah because they are trustworthy and true. “I am the Alpha and the Omega, the Beginning and the End. To the thirsty, I will give water without cost from the spring of the water of life. Those who overcome will inherit all these good things and live with God forever.”

There will be no cowards, unbelievers, sorcerers, vile persons, murderers, adulterers, idol worshipers, those with impure behaviors, liars, or anyone practicing wickedness there. Their portion will be in the lake of fire—the second death. Those who love the Almighty God will experience the first death, which we know as the ordinary death, but not the second death because the Messiah died so that we would not face eternal death. John was shown the Holy City in a vision. He saw the city descending from heaven from the Almighty God, shining with His glory, and its radiance was like a precious jewel, like a jasper stone, clear as crystal. It had a great, high wall with twelve gates—three gates on each side.

The names of the twelve tribes of Israel were written on the gates, and the names of the twelve apostles were written on the foundation. The city was square in shape, with its length, width, and height equal. Its wall was made of jasper, and the streets were pure gold, as clear as glass. The twelve foundations were adorned with twelve different precious stones: jasper, sapphire, chalcedony, emerald, sardonyx, sardius, chrysolite, beryl, topaz, chrysoprase, jacinth, and amethyst. The gates were made of pearls.

There was no temple there because the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are its temple. The city does not need the sun or the moon to shine on it because the glory of God gives it light, and its lamp is the Lamb. The nations will walk by its light, and the gates will never be shut because there is no night or any evil. Nothing impure will ever enter it, nor will anyone who does what is shameful or deceitful—only those whose names are written in the Lamb’s book of life. The great conflict will be over. Sin and sinners will be no more and will have vanished forever. Loving relationships and joy will be the daily life of all beings. The universe and all planets will be pure and perfect. Both the great and the small will declare, “GOD IS LOVE.”

The Lord is compassionate and full of mercy (James 5:11). He patiently waits with unyielding love to hear the confession of those who have strayed and to accept their repentance. He longs to receive our gratitude, just as a mother looks forward to a recognition smile from her beloved child. He wants us to understand how tender and yearning His heart is for us, loving us deeply.

He invites us to bring our trials and challenges to His mercy, our sorrows to His love, our wounds to His healing, our weaknesses to His strength, and our emptiness to His fullness. No one who comes to Him has ever been turned away disappointed. “They looked to Him and were radiant; their faces were not ashamed” (Psalms 34:5).

Questions:

What did the Holy City look like?

Why was there no temple anymore?

What are the twelve names on the foundation of the city?

What are the twelve names on the gates?

What things will be present in heaven?

Do you plan to go to heaven?

Key Text: Revelation 22:12-14

[12-14] “And behold, I am coming quickly, and My reward is with Me, to give to every one according to his work. I am the Alpha and the Omega, the Beginning and the End, the First and the Last. Blessed are those who do His commandments, that they may have the right to the tree of life, and may enter through the gates into the city.”

Prayer: Father in heaven, we love You. Please help us to be ready, for You have told us that You are coming quickly. In Jesus’ Name, Amen.

Activity: Draw a picture of the Tree of Life, the River of Life, blessings and curses, and show what we must do to be ready.

DAY 358 (December 24)

TOPIC: Forever and Ever in Heaven

(Revelation 22)

John was shown the river of the water of life, as clear as crystal, flowing from the throne of the Almighty God and of the Lamb. On each side of the river stood the tree of life, bearing twelve kinds of fruit, yielding its fruit every month. The leaves of the tree are for the healing of the nations so that they will no longer die. All curses will be gone, and the throne of God and the Lamb will be in the city. There will be no more night, and no need for a lamp, sun, or moon because God Himself will be the light. Many of us say the first thing we want to do when we arrive in heaven is to see Jesus! But I think we will also desire to see God the Father and the Holy Spirit, for they all love us deeply and have worked tirelessly for our salvation.

We will serve God with joy and see Him face to face, and His name will be on our foreheads. These words are faithful and true and must soon take place, for He says, "Behold, I am coming quickly! Blessed is the one who keeps the words of the prophecy of this book." When John heard these things, he fell down to worship at the feet of the angel who showed him these things. But the angel said to him, "Do not do that! I am a fellow servant with you; worship God alone—the Lamb, not the angels." Angels are messengers and servants of God, as shown to Jacob, a ladder connecting heaven and earth. They are ministers appointed by God for our sake. Keeping the words of this book also means not adding to or subtracting from them. For example, during the 1800s, slave traders reduced the Bible from 1,189 chapters to only 232 chapters for their slaves. They removed entire books, such as Exodus, which spoke about God delivering the Israelites from slavery. That was only about a quarter of the whole Bible.

John was told that the time is near, and when the time is fulfilled, the Spirit of God will be withdrawn, and the door of mercy will be closed. This will cause the unjust and the filthy to become even more wicked, while the righteous and holy will be further purified. The Lord will come with His reward to give to everyone according to their work. Blessed are those who wash their robes—those with the heavenly character free from sin. Jesus, the Root of David and the Bright Morning Star, gave these messages as a testimony for us today, so we may prepare ourselves. The Spirit and the bride invite us three times to heaven, saying, "Come!" Let the one who hears say, "Come!"

Let the one who is thirsty come and take the water of life freely.

Do you know a friend or relative who has died? It is heartbreaking when we bury our loved ones. When the Lord returns and the trumpet sounds, He will awaken children, fathers, mothers, grandfathers, and grandmothers. This is a true promise. Angels will carry little children to their parents, and friends will reunite face-to-face, never to be separated again. We will see those who have been in heaven transformed—the elderly made young again, the sick healed, and the blind, deaf, and disabled will see, hear, and run. In the blink of an eye, we will all have immortal and perfect bodies. Our thoughts will be clearer and more profound than ever before.

We will find ourselves rising above the earth, leaving it behind, and ascending to heaven. We will not need to carry anything with us—no suitcases, boats, cars, or houses—because heaven has everything we could ever need. It will be a wonderful journey full of surprises. The Bible says the journey will take half an hour. If this follows the prophetic time where a day equals a year, then half an hour could represent approximately seven days, meaning it will take seven days to reach heaven. Imagine when Paul, once known as Saul, meets Stephen, or when King David meets Uriah—what a conversation they will have!

There are people who lived before hearing about the Almighty God or Jesus, yet they obeyed the Spirit's voice in their hearts and followed the good laws of their nations—many of which align with God's Ten Commandments. These people will be eager to learn about God and the Lamb. The Ten Commandments are a reflection of God's character. They will be amazed to discover the miracle that allowed them to live forever, for they never knew about the resurrection! Those of us who knew God and the Lamb and had the Scriptures will have the privilege of sharing the story of Jesus with them. Is there anything more important than being with the Almighty God forever and ever? Earthly riches are temporary—lasting maybe less than a hundred years. Beauty, education, wealth, and fame all fade away. Let us seek the Almighty while He may be found today!

After those seven days, we will arrive at the New Jerusalem—a city beyond our imagination. It is a square, 1,500 miles on each side. I wonder if it will have stories reaching that height or just a high ceiling! Perhaps we will have homes in the city and in the countryside where we can garden! Jesus Himself will place a crown on each person's head and give us a harp. Without much effort or training, everyone will play beautiful heavenly music. Many of us who cannot play musical instruments look forward to that day! Imagine the moment when Adam meets the Son of Man—Jesus. When Jesus stretches out His loving, nail-scarred hands, I believe Adam will fall to the ground, exclaiming, “Worthy is the Lamb who was slain.”

Jesus will show Adam the Garden of Eden, which was taken to heaven before the flood, and He will give Adam fruit from the tree of life. Adam will see millions of his descendants who have overcome sin. This realization will overwhelm him with joy and gratitude. When we sing the song of Moses and the Lamb and reflect on our earthly journey, the angels will not be able to sing that song, for they never experienced the trials we faced or the salvation we received. Jesus will open the city gates and welcome us. We will see a long table stretching beyond our sight, prepared for everyone who has overcome. This is the special feast Jesus promised to share with us in His Father’s kingdom. Wouldn’t you want to be there with Jesus? Decide today if you haven’t already.

We will live in the New Jerusalem for a thousand years. During this time, we will search for our loved ones, hoping to see them there. If they are missing, we will ask, “Where are they? They were good people.” God will open the record books, and we will see every hidden sin they refused to confess. Despite all of God’s efforts to save them, they rejected Him. This will confirm that God is both just and loving.

During this time, Satan will be bound in the desolate earth, unable to deceive anyone. For a thousand years, he will wander alone, reflecting on the consequences of his rebellion. Even he will acknowledge that God is just and loving and that he alone is responsible for the destruction he caused.

What will you do with Jesus, called the Christ? The answer to salvation is to behold Jesus, trust Him, and follow Him daily. By looking to Him, we are transformed to be like Him!

A heart that seeks God daily through sincere prayer will grow in understanding, righteousness, and spiritual strength. This connection with God will bring peace and stability to your heart.

Questions:

How large is the New Jerusalem?

Who will sing the song of Moses and the Lamb?

What will happen to Satan?

Are you preparing to go to heaven?

What have you done with Jesus, called the Christ?

What will happen in the blink of an eye?

What does the Spirit and the bride say?

Who will the trumpet awaken?

How many kinds of fruit does the tree of life bear?

Why are those who wash their robes in the blood of Jesus blessed?

Key Text: Revelation 22:1-4

[1-4] And he showed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding from the throne of God and of the Lamb. … On either side of the river was the tree of life, which bore twelve fruits, each tree yielding its fruit every month. The leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. They shall see His face, and His name shall be on their foreheads.

Prayer: Thank You so much, our Father, for preparing good fruits for us in heaven, and that we will see Your face, and Your Name will be on our foreheads. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Use 12 different fruits, and paper to write the children's names on their foreheads.

DAY 359 (December 25)

TOPIC: The New Jerusalem Descends

We have seen that during the 1,000 years, all our questions will be answered. We will understand that GOD is just, and His judgments are true, but Satan and his angels will still think GOD is not fair. After the 1,000 years, the saints will descend inside the holy city of New Jerusalem, returning to earth with the angels and JESUS Himself. Satan and the wicked will be resurrected. This second resurrection will involve imperfect bodies and evil thoughts, just as they had when they fell asleep in death. Blessed are those who die in the LORD and will rise in the first resurrection; the second resurrection is for the wicked.

When the wicked see JESUS, they will say, "Blessed is He who comes in the Name of the LORD." Even though they hate Him, they will acknowledge GOD because they will have no choice but to speak the truth. When JESUS sets foot on the Mount of Olives, the mountain will split into two (Zechariah 14:4). Then, the New Jerusalem will descend while Satan watches with billions of resurrected wicked, thinking he has another chance to rule them. He will urge the wicked to seize the New Jerusalem. As they plan this attack, GOD's commandments will appear in the sky, and they will be judged. They will be shown everything that has happened—from Adam's temptation, the plan of salvation, to the work of the Holy Spirit inspiring people.

Every wicked person will remember their sins and how they rejected GOD's Spirit and believed Satan's lies. Each will see how loving and just GOD is, and they will acknowledge that they deserve death. Even Satan will admit that GOD is righteous. Resurrection will not change a person's character, but GOD has given us the opportunity to change our character now by accepting His love and mercy. Although the wicked will confess GOD's love and justice, they will still hate Him and plan to seize the city. The wicked will see Satan as a deceiver and will even attempt to invade the city—but fire will come down from heaven and destroy them.

Each wicked person will be destroyed according to their sins. Satan will suffer the longest, but all will be reduced to ashes (Malachi 4:1-3 and Ezekiel 28:19). Heaven will be safe without Satan. There will be no more funerals, orphans, poverty, accidents, gossip, mockery, prisons, fires, floods, volcanoes, oppression, cruelty, diseases, earthquakes, famine, theft, divorce, sorrow, or any form of evil. Some people do not want to go to heaven, imagining they will live forever as ghosts floating on clouds playing harps! They think it would be boring. The truth is, GOD has planned only good and wonderful things for us. We will enjoy creation, delight in various activities, and have real, incorruptible bodies. We will recognize faces and see each other clearly—right there, in that eternal joy! The resurrection will restore the body, and GOD will give the breath of life! No body will exist without the breath of life in heaven.

We will have the opportunity to talk with Adam, Noah, Abel, Enoch, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Job, Moses, Elijah, Daniel, Paul, Solomon, David, our friends, family, and many more. We will be able to explore and know the beings on other planets—perhaps those that did not fall into sin like ours. Our joyous conversations will center on GOD's love, how He sent His Son to die and take our punishment so that whoever believes in Him shall not perish but have eternal life. The good news is that we still have the chance to choose Him today—if you have not yet chosen Him, today is the day. Once you have chosen Him, help others to choose GOD as well so that they will not be lost. We are saved to save others. You have time today—tomorrow may be too late. Tomorrow is uncertain and may bring unforeseen events.

We do not need to guess about eternity—GOD has prepared great things for those who love Him. But GOD has revealed these things to us by His Spirit, for the Spirit searches all things, even the deep things of GOD (1 Corinthians 2:9-10). We will have homes in New Jerusalem and on the new earth. We will build our own houses and cultivate gardens without toil. We will return to the original work of Adam before sin, as the dew will water our crops. There will be no thorns, weeds, harmful insects, or poisonous plants (Isaiah 55 and 65).

We will walk in beautiful fields with amazing plants and flowers of indescribable colors. Plants and flowers will not die, and food will be delicious without decay or spoilage. The weather will always be perfect—there will be no floods, hurricanes, hailstorms, droughts, or storms. We will live among amazing animals—you might decide to ride a horse, a lion, or a whale, and they will not harm you! Perhaps animals will even enjoy carrying you, for in heaven, all creatures will love and care for each other. We will hear the sweet songs of birds, and there may be no need to keep domestic animals like chimpanzees or dogs, as all animals will be gentle and harmless (Isaiah 11:6-9).

Since nothing will die again, people will not eat other creatures there. That is why we are told that no living being will suffer pain anymore. Even with fruits and trees, we will use only what we need and will not destroy plants unnecessarily. In some places, people made guns and tested them by killing animals without using them for food, causing harm without a valid reason. Let us start practicing care for creation by using plants and animals responsibly. Animals can sense who loves GOD by how they are treated—no one who loves GOD is cruel to harmless creatures!

The rivers will be pure and clear—just as we are told, the river of life will flow from GOD's throne and water the tree of life. This tree will bear different fruits every month—delicious fruits that prevent death. Beyond our world, we will explore other planets and stars like Jupiter, Venus, and Orion, marveling at their landscapes. Let us meet under the tree of life. One thing will forever remind us of earth's sins—the scars on JESUS' hands, head, and feet. These marks will be a reminder that He gave His life so we would not perish but have eternal life. In the Garden of Eden, GOD visited Adam every evening until sin disrupted that beautiful relationship. GOD has longed to restore this connection.

When sin is finished, our world will be honored above all others, for GOD Himself will dwell with us. GOD wants you there—do you accept His invitation today to be with Him? Let us read His Word daily and continue to grow in grace. The LORD warns us not to add to or subtract from His Word. If anyone adds to these words, GOD will add the plagues described in this book. If anyone removes words from this prophecy, GOD will take away their share in the tree of life and the holy city.

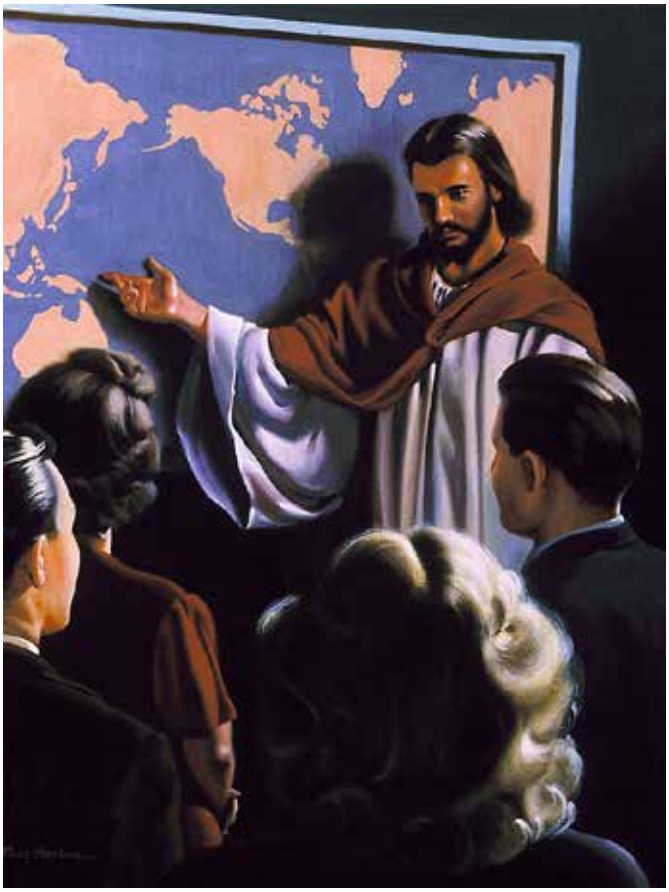
🌻At that time, the saints will rejoice exceedingly. The great conflict between GOD and Satan, good and evil, will be over. Sin and sinners will no longer exist. The plan of salvation will be fully accomplished, as GOD's character will be clear to everyone. His words will endure forever. Everyone will understand the consequences of sin and Satan's true nature. The removal of sin forever will demonstrate GOD's love and His marvelous attributes to all creation. Everywhere will be safe for eternity.

🌻Reflection Questions:
Why is it dangerous to add to or subtract from the Scriptures? How can someone alter GOD's Word? What does JESUS, who testifies to these things, say? What do you look forward to in heaven? Would you like to be part of the marriage supper of the Lamb? How are you preparing to be there? What does eternity mean? Why will heaven be safe? What has GOD prepared for us? How do we know heaven is a real place?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Lesson: The New Jerusalem Comes Down

Key Text: Revelation 20:1



[1,2] Then I saw an angel coming down from heaven, having the key to the bottomless pit and a great chain in his hand. He laid hold of the dragon, that serpent of old, who is the Devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years.

Prayer: Thank You, Lord, that Satan will be bound and his power destroyed forever. Help us to remain faithful until then. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Use a Bible to discover 10 verses where something was either added or removed. Make a chain to represent Satan being bound, along with other tools that can illustrate the scene.

DAY 360 (December 26)

TOPIC: Christian Education Is the Eternal and Best Education of All

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and the knowledge of the Holy One is understanding. —Proverbs 9:10. God is the source of everything. He alone is the Creator and the Sustainer of all life—from a single living cell to insects, animals, stars, humans, angels, kingdoms, and authorities in the spiritual realm (Ephesians 3:10). He does not need wood or raw materials to make a chair or any other object; He simply speaks, and things come into existence.

All knowledge, wisdom, and understanding originate from the Lord. God is love and the true Light. He is the giver of life. The law of God or His commandments is our teacher—read Psalm 119. This chapter, the longest in the Bible, contains 22 stanzas with 8 verses each. In its 176 verses, God's law, testimonies, commandments, precepts, Word, ways, statutes, and judgments are mentioned 175 times. The psalmist says he has more understanding than his teachers and elders because of God's law (Psalm 119:99-100). The law is a mirror and a light that guides us through darkness so that we do not go astray, enabling us to walk in the light. Anyone who values God's law and commandments will have a better and more meaningful life than someone who disregards them.

Since the fall into sin, we are all engaged in the great controversy between two sides—God's side and Satan's side. Because God is righteous, He has established laws in this conflict so that the entire world may know His character of love and the gift of choice He has given us, in contrast to Satan's character of evil, hatred, and injustice. We must seek the knowledge of God and His kingdom first, above any other form of education. What benefit is there in gaining advanced knowledge in science, engineering, economics, or the arts if we lose eternal life? Christian education is the most valuable education. In the beginning, God initiated this Christian education in the Garden of Eden, where He taught Adam and Eve face to face. They were given work and responsibilities, such as naming the animals and caring for the garden. Their love, praise, and gratitude for God grew daily. Humanity was given laws and instructions by God.

Although God gave instructions to humanity, Adam and Eve chose to listen to the evil teacher—Satan. Sin entered the world, and everything was corrupted. Now we are in the process of restoration, preparing to enter the heavenly classroom where God will once again be the teacher. There, we will learn about other planets, worlds, and the science of redemption for all eternity.

Obedience to God's authority and to the leaders He has appointed is essential—starting from the home, where parents are the first teachers, to the church, and even to civil authorities, as long as they do not contradict God's law. True education at home or school must teach worship, faith, evangelism, and service. Jesus is presented as Lord, Savior, and our Heavenly Father.

Parents educated their children at home according to God's plan as revealed in the Scriptures. Later, Samuel established the schools of the prophets, where students were taught God's Word and ministered to others.

The childhood life of Jesus shows us that He obeyed His parents and respected authority while also growing in favor with God and humanity. Parents must diligently teach their children to fear the Lord when they rise, when they sit, when they lie down, and when they walk (Deuteronomy 6:5). We must continuously receive Christian education in our homes so that we do not forget God. Jesus is the greatest and best teacher of all. People tried to arrest and accuse Him but failed because they marveled at His teachings. His life was both a model and a lesson. Indeed, Jesus is our example—let us follow His ways.

As believers, our worldview is shaped by the Bible, which teaches us that we were created by God. Our understanding of life's meaning, the afterlife, and our eternal destination comes solely from the Scriptures—not from newspapers or cultural traditions like evolution. We have lived in Africa for many years, yet we have never seen apes evolve into humans! God calls us to worship Him in spirit and truth and in the beauty of His holiness. We must not worship human theories, philosophies, science, or mathematics. We are called to fear God and give Him glory because the hour of His judgment has come. Judgment Day is approaching swiftly; therefore, we must choose the right education so that we may stand blameless on that day.

Education and redemption are inseparable. Every Scripture inspired by God is useful for teaching, rebuking, correcting, and training in righteousness. We are told to hold on to education and never let it go. God created us in His image, but this image was greatly damaged by sin. The education God designed for us will restore His image in us. True education removes hatred and discrimination and helps us recognize that all humans are children of God. When we lift up the cross, we see the dignity and image of God in people and treat them justly—this is true education. True education humbles us and prevents pride. Genuine science does not contradict the Bible; however, false theories created by humans—such as evolution—are dangerous and should be opposed by all believers.

Work is a blessing and an essential part of Christian education. Working merely to earn money and retire early in good health is not ideal for the body. The human body was created to be active. Agriculture is the alphabet of education. Work provides joy and dignity. It is more than employment—it is a service and promotes physical health. Manual labor, like the apostle Paul's tent-making, is part of the education God wants us to have. Agriculture and manual labor are foundational to Christian education. Stewardship is also a responsibility God has given us in our lives. We should work and rest according to His command so that we may reflect His character each week.

Many parents send their children to expensive schools to ensure academic success, but these schools often lack spiritual education. As a result, these students lack balanced education, which encompasses intellectual, physical, and spiritual development. Such holistic education is found in schools that teach the Scriptures. A person who excels academically but is deficient spiritually is unprepared for God's coming kingdom. Moreover, such a person cannot be a fully responsible citizen on Earth. May God help parents awaiting Jesus' return to enroll their children in Bible-based schools—especially before the age of 10—where they can receive a balanced education.

Read Deuteronomy 6 and the book "Fundamentals of Christian Education." We have an online copy available, and if you cannot access the English version, we have translated it into Swahili.

"And this is the law, the commandments, and the judgments which the Lord your God has commanded to teach you, that you may observe them in the land you are crossing over to possess."

Prayers offered to God, confessing our sins and weaknesses with genuine contrition, are the prayers He accepts. For He who is high and exalted, who inhabits eternity and whose name is Holy, says: “I dwell in the high and holy place, but also with the one who is contrite and lowly in spirit, to revive the spirit of the lowly and to revive the heart of the contrite.”

Questions:

1. What is education?

2. How are education and redemption related?

3. What were the Israelites instructed in Deuteronomy 6? (Summarize)

4. Why are manual tasks important in Christian education?

5. How are salvation and education connected?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Proverbs 9:10

[10] The fear of the LORD is the beginning of wisdom, and the knowledge of the Holy One is understanding.

Prayer: Thank You, Father, for creating us and for loving us. We ask that we may know You, for You are the source of our wisdom and understanding. In Jesus’ Name, Amen.

Activity: Recite the books of the Bible, and say what each of them teaches.
Reflection: GOD is the source of all things. He is the Creator and the Sustainer of all life—from the smallest living cell to insects, animals, stars, humans, angels, kingdoms, and authorities in the spiritual world (Ephesians 3:10). He does not need wood or raw materials to make things—He simply speaks, and it comes into being.

DAY 361 (December 27)

TOPIC: Making Friends with God

❁ Mission or making disciples of JESUS is God's work. He has provided all the resources of heaven to redeem humanity, but it is our joyful duty to cooperate with Him in this work of saving souls. This work is not a burden but a joy because we see the lost returning to the LORD. God has placed eternity in our hearts (Ecclesiastes 3:11). When a person is born, they naturally desire to live forever with their God, and they lack peace or joy until they surrender to Him. JESUS is the light that illuminates everyone, and His Holy Spirit draws us to Him. Every desire to do good comes from the Holy Spirit. Although we may not understand how the Holy Spirit draws us, He is a gift to us. When humanity fell into sin, JESUS was sent to help us in our sinful state. God sought us before we even thought to seek Him. The plan of salvation was established before humanity sinned. We have a wonderful task of partnering with God to make others friends and followers of JESUS.

❁ Witnessing to others brings people to salvation. It is God's will for everyone to reach salvation. God desires our salvation even more than we do. Witnessing is about lifting JESUS up and telling others what He has done in creating and redeeming us. We should view everyone as a citizen of the kingdom of heaven. JESUS rejoices when we care about the salvation of others. Witnessing is a command from God. We should have a heart of friendship and love, avoiding arguments so that people see our faith as something desirable.

🌻 Our personal testimony attracts others—that is, the things God has done for us. When our hearts are filled with the love of JESUS, we will feel compelled to share Him with others. Mark 5 describes how those who were delivered from demons were eager to follow JESUS and testify about Him. We should see people the way JESUS saw them. By observing how JESUS reached others, we learn how to reach them ourselves. He saw people as citizens of heaven—like Mary Magdalene, the Samaritan woman, and others. Pray and start where you are, and you will see great changes.

🌻 Intercessory prayer for others is crucial because the great conflict between Satan and God, which began in heaven, continues today. Many who are captured by Satan are unaware, and praying for them can greatly influence their decisions, leading them to accept JESUS' sacrifice and align with God. JESUS, Paul, Samuel, and others in Scripture provide examples of intercessory service. Pray with all your heart, and the Holy Spirit will help you witness. God gives various gifts to empower us to witness to others. Spiritual gifts are given to strengthen the church. These gifts include serving, teaching, encouraging, generosity, compassion, helping, and having a joyful spirit. Discover and develop the gifts God has given you.

🌻 The Word of God is powerful and does not return to Him empty; it accomplishes His purposes. We must study God's Word because it transforms us and makes us more like Him. The Word is useful for teaching, correcting ignorance, and bringing blessings beyond measure. The Bible contains more than 3,500 promises.

🌻 When JESUS met people, they knew He wanted the best for them. He helped them with their problems, gave them hope, and then invited them to follow Him, enabling them to lead others to the light of life. He healed many and provided for their needs.

🌻 Small groups play a significant role in witnessing because they encourage us and allow us to work together rather than alone. The central message is about JESUS! JESUS is radiant and the core of our faith. Revelation 14:6-12 says:
"Then I saw another angel flying in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach to those who dwell on the earth—to every nation, tribe, tongue, and people—saying with a loud voice, ‘Fear God and give glory to Him, for the hour of His judgment has come; and worship Him who made heaven and earth, the sea, and the springs of water.’ Another angel followed, saying, ‘Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she has made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.’ Then a third angel followed them, saying with a loud voice, ‘If anyone worships the beast and his image, and receives his mark on his forehead or on his hand, he himself shall also drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out full strength into the cup of His indignation. He shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels and in the presence of the Lamb.

And the smoke of their torment ascends forever and ever; and they have no rest day or night, who worship the beast and his image, and whoever receives the mark of his name.’ Here is the patience of the saints; here are those who keep the commandments of God and the faith of JESUS. Then I heard a voice from heaven saying to me, ‘Write: Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from now on.’ ‘Yes,’ says the Spirit, ‘that they may rest from their labors, and their works follow them.’” This message of the three angels warns the world about false worship and teachings. These angels prepare the world for the judgment that is coming soon.

We must receive light and blessings so that we have something to share. It is every worker’s privilege to speak with God in private prayer before speaking to people as God’s mouthpiece. Men and women who communicate with God and have Christ dwelling in them make their surroundings holy because they cooperate with the holy angels. Such a testimony is needed in this time. God accepts silent prayers—the Lord will hear even the unspoken cry of a burdened heart.

Questions: What are the spiritual gifts? What did the angels say? Why should we witness? How does praying for others help? What is the benefit of small groups?

Mungu Akubariki Sana Mtoto Na Kijana Wa Yesu

Key Text: Mark 16:15-18

[15-18] And He said to them, “Go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. He who believes and is baptized will be saved; but he who does not believe will be condemned. And these signs will follow those who believe: In My name they will cast out demons; they will speak with new tongues; they will take up serpents; and if they drink anything deadly, it will by no means hurt them; they will lay hands on the sick, and they will recover."

Prayer: Thank You, Father in heaven, for giving us the authority to pray for the sick, and they will be healed. Help us to pray for those who are sick and to share the good news. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Make posters with the word "Go!", prepare boxes and bags, bring Bibles, Bible games, and let twelve children act as apostles.

DAY 362 (December 28)

TOPIC: How God Loves Humanity

All the creatures of the universe and the way God reveals Himself demonstrate God's love. Our Father in heaven is the Source of life, wisdom, and joy. Consider the beauty and wonder of all created things. Think of how they are suited to meet the needs and happiness not only of humanity but also of every living creature. The sun and rain refresh and nourish the earth; the mountains, seas, and valleys all reflect the love of our Creator. God is the one who provides for all His creatures' daily needs. In the beautiful words of the Psalmist, we read:
"The eyes of all look to You, and You give them their food at the proper time. You open Your hand and satisfy the desires of every living thing." (Psalm 145:15,16)

God created humanity in a state of perfect happiness and holiness, and when the earth came forth from the Creator's hand, it was completely beautiful; there was no sign of decay or curse.
Suffering and death entered the world due to breaking God's law—the law of love. Yet, even in the midst of the pain caused by sin, God's love is revealed. It is written that God cursed the ground because of humanity (Genesis 3:17). Thorns and thistles—trials and difficulties that make life burdensome—were introduced for the benefit of humanity, to serve as part of God's teaching plan to rescue us from the state of sin and restore us to the original goodness. Despite the fallen condition of the world due to sin, it is not all sorrow and distress.

The things of nature serve as messengers of God's comfort and peace. Every thorn bush has its blossom; in every hardship, we can find God's blessings. "God is love" is written on every budding leaf and every delicate flower. The beautiful birds that fill the air with their joyful songs, the flowers painted with radiant colors, the tall green trees of the forest—all testify to God's love and care and how He desires to bring joy to His children. The Word of God reveals His character. He has personally declared His love and compassion. When Moses requested, "Show me Your glory," the Lord responded, "I will cause all My goodness to pass before you." This is His glory.

The Lord passed before Moses and proclaimed, "The LORD, the LORD, the compassionate and gracious God, slow to anger, abounding in love and faithfulness, maintaining love to thousands, and forgiving wickedness, rebellion, and sin." (Exodus 33:18,19; 34:6,7) God is merciful and full of compassion, for He delights in showing mercy (Jonah 4:1; Micah 7:18). He has bound our hearts to His in countless ways, revealing His love both in heaven and on earth. Through nature and the bonds of human affection, God seeks to reveal Himself to us. Yet, even with all these evidences, they can only imperfectly express His love.

Although all these testimonies are given, the enemy of good has blinded the spiritual vision of humanity, causing people to view God with fear, imagining Him as stern and unforgiving. Satan has misrepresented God to humanity as a harsh judge, an exacting creditor who watches for our faults to punish us. This dark shadow was removed, and the boundless love of God was revealed to the world through Jesus Christ. The Son of God came from heaven to reveal the Father. "No one has ever seen God, but the one and only Son, who is Himself God and is in closest relationship with the Father, has made Him known." (John 1:18). "No one knows the Father except the Son and those to whom the Son chooses to reveal Him." (Matthew 11:27).

When one of His disciples asked, "Show us the Father," Jesus replied, "Have I been with you so long, and yet you have not known Me, Philip? He who has seen Me has seen the Father." (John 14:8,9). Explaining His mission on earth, Jesus said:
"The Spirit of the Lord is on Me, because He has anointed Me to proclaim good news to the poor. He has sent Me to proclaim freedom for the prisoners and recovery of sight for the blind, to set the oppressed free." (Luke 4:18).

That was His mission. He went about doing good and healing all who were oppressed by the devil, for God was with Him (Acts 10:38). There were entire villages where no sound of sickness was heard because He had passed through and healed all their sick. His works testified to His divine mission. Every aspect of His life revealed love, kindness, and compassion; His heart was filled with tender sympathy toward humanity. He took on human nature to meet humanity's needs. The poor and the lowly felt no fear in approaching Him. Even little children were drawn to Him, climbing onto His lap and gazing into His face full of love and grace.

Jesus never concealed truth, but He always spoke it in love. His interactions were filled with kindness, care, and compassion. He never acted harshly, spoke unnecessarily severe words, or caused needless sorrow. While He was firm against hypocrisy, unbelief, and iniquity, His rebukes were given with sorrow in His heart. He wept over Jerusalem—the city He loved—because it rejected Him as the Way, the Truth, and the Life.

🌻 His life was one of self-denial and service. Every person was precious to Him. Though He was divine, He never looked down on humanity. He saw everyone as fallen beings whom He came to save. This is the character of Christ as revealed through His life. This is the character of God. From the heart of the Father, through Christ, flows a stream of love to humanity.

🌻 Jesus, the compassionate Savior, was God manifest in human form (1 Timothy 3:16). It was to redeem us that He lived, suffered, and died. He, who was one with God, felt the separation caused by sin and cried out, "My God, My God, why have You forsaken Me?" (Matthew 27:46). Yet, His sacrifice was not to persuade the Father to love us, but because God already loved us (John 3:16).

🌻 The Apostle John, reflecting on God's immeasurable love, exclaimed: "Behold what manner of love the Father has bestowed on us, that we should be called children of God!" (1 John 3:1). Through faith in Christ's atonement, fallen humanity can become children of God, transformed and made heirs of His kingdom. What amazing love!

🌻 Let us begin our day with prayer—speaking to God as we would to a friend. Tell Him your joys, sorrows, and needs. He is always ready to listen.

🌻Questions: Explain how God's love is evident in your life and those around you.

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Key Text: 1 Corinthians 2:9

[9] But as it is written: "Eye has not seen, nor ear heard, nor have entered into the heart of man the things which God has prepared for those who love Him."

Prayer: Thank You, Father, for preparing such a beautiful place for us—one so wonderful that our minds cannot fully imagine it. Help us to tell others so that they too may be ready. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Make a list of 33 attributes of God, and explain their meanings.

DAY 363 (December 29)

TOPIC: The Great Controversy is Over!

There will be great rejoicing in heaven—no eye has seen, no ear has heard, nor has it entered into the heart of man what GOD has prepared for humanity. There will be no more sorrow or suffering! There, the "Hallelujah" of the Jews and the "Hosanna" of the Gentiles will mingle—it will be a glorious day! May GOD help us, beloved, to meet those who will rise in the first resurrection! On that day, we shall be clothed with immortality and will declare, "O death, where is your victory?!" I imagine that on that day, the triumph of God's love—the love He Himself has planted in our hearts—will be fully realized. Fellowship with holy beings and perfect unity of righteousness will sustain the complete joy of eternity (Ephesians 3:15). In that perfect state of mind, we will witness the wonders of God's creative power and the mysteries of redemptive love. Every aspect of our being will continue to grow and advance.

Knowledge will have no limit. Our love will grow deeper each day, and our relationships will continually improve. Great and marvelous things will be achieved, and the highest heights of thought and understanding will be reached. Yet, there will always be new wonders to explore. Throughout eternity, there will be endless lessons to learn, and there will be no weariness. The treasures of GOD will be opened to His redeemed children. They will traverse other worlds without the burden of tiresome journeys. The redeemed of this world will enter the sinless universe and share in the flawless knowledge that other beings have possessed for generations upon generations. They will behold the glory of creation without any dimness of vision. The sun, stars, and all the planets will revolve around the throne of GOD. As the ages of eternity roll on, the unfolding revelation of GOD's glory will continue to increase, magnifying the greatness of GOD and Christ. The more humanity understands GOD, the more they will reflect His character.

GOD and Christ will reveal themselves to us in wondrous ways. As people come to understand the character of GOD, their love and worship for Him will deepen. As Jesus reveals the mysteries of the great controversy—the cosmic battle between good and evil instigated by Satan—His followers will increasingly glorify and serve Him with all their hearts, joining their voices with tens of thousands upon thousands. Every creature in heaven, on earth, under the earth, and in the sea—everything in creation—will declare, "Blessing and honor and glory and power be to Him who sits on the throne, and to the Lamb, forever and ever!" (Revelation 5:13). The great controversy is finished.

Sin and sinners are no more. The entire universe is now at peace. Perfect unity and harmony fill heaven. From the Creator flows life, light, and joy, spreading to all corners of existence. From the smallest atom to the grandest galaxy, every living and non-living thing in the universe declares that GOD is Love.

May GOD grant us His love because one day in heaven, it will overflow and continue to grow as we discover the wonders He has done for us and experience the profound awe of His grace (The Great Controversy). Let us hold on to this comforting promise from Revelation 22:17: "The Spirit and the Bride say, 'Come!' And let the one who hears say, 'Come!' Let the one who is thirsty come, and let the one who wishes take the free gift of the water of life." Completely free!

The Privilege of Kneeling in Prayer—Whether in public worship or private devotion, it is our privilege to kneel before GOD when we offer our prayers. Jesus, our example, "knelt down and prayed" (Luke 22:41). It is written of His disciples that they also "knelt down and prayed" (Acts 9:40). Paul declared, "I kneel before the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ" (Ephesians 3:14). When confessing the sins of Israel before GOD, Ezra knelt in prayer (Ezra 9:5). Daniel "got down on his knees three times a day and prayed, giving thanks to his GOD" (Daniel 6:10).

Our Prayers Are Not in Vain—It is a wondrous thing that we can pray effectively and confidently. Despite being unworthy, mortal, and sinful, we have the privilege to present our prayers to GOD. What greater power could a human being desire than to commune with the Infinite GOD? Weak and sinful as we are, we are granted the honor to speak directly with our Creator. Our words reach the very throne of the King of the universe. We can talk with Jesus as we walk along the way, and He assures us, "I am with you always."

Pray, therefore; pray, and you will receive. Pray for humility, wisdom, courage, and increased faith. Every sincere prayer will be answered. The answer may not come in the way or at the time you expect, but it will come in the manner that best meets your needs. The prayers you offer in solitude, in times of weariness and trial, GOD will answer—not always according to your expectations, but always for your ultimate good.

Fathers and mothers, no matter how busy you are, take time to pray. In our efforts to serve and entertain our guests, let us not neglect our duty to GOD. The hour of prayer should not be sacrificed for anything or anyone. Do not engage in endless conversations or entertainment until you are too exhausted to enjoy the blessings of worship. Offering such weary devotion is like presenting a defective sacrifice to GOD. The early evening hours—when our minds are clear and alert—are the best times to bring our prayers before GOD, lifting our voices in joyful praise and thanksgiving to Him.

Questions: Explain the meaning of the Great Controversy. Why will sin and sinners no longer exist?

May God Bless You Greatly, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Revelation 21:3,4

[3,4] And I heard a loud voice from heaven saying, "Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and He will dwell with them, and they shall be His people. God Himself will be with them and be their God. And God will wipe away every tear from their eyes; there shall be no more death, nor sorrow, nor crying. There shall be no more pain, for the former things have passed away."

Prayer: Thank You, Father in heaven, for preparing heaven for us—something no eye has seen, no ear has heard, nor has entered into the heart of man. Help us to be strong and prepare for it. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Use pencils and crayons to draw heaven, and then share stories of what they think will be there.

DAY 364 (December 30)

TOPIC: How to Develop Your Brain to Become a Genius

1. Think: Just as physical exercise benefits those who engage in it, so does exercising the front part of your brain through thinking. The more you think, the more your thinking capacity increases.

2. Love Truth and Seek It: GOD is limitless, and He reveals His love to us every day (through the Scriptures, science, and experience). He will show you the Truth in all fields, whether science or otherwise.

a. Learn and delight in God's commandments and His principles—The Law of Love, the Law of Freedom.

3. Test All Theories About God: Verify all theories about God using the Scriptures; do not follow human inventions such as evolution. Trust in the LORD with all your heart and do not rely on your own understanding; acknowledge HIM in all your ways, and He will direct your paths.

4. Surrender to God: Based on the evidence of God's character—His supreme faithfulness and love—surrender to Him and invite Him into your heart. Begin each day by inviting His Spirit. Consecrate yourself to Him, abide in Him, and He will abide in you. Ask His Spirit to dwell within you.

5. Meditate Daily on God's Character: Reflect on God's character of love and wisdom every day. Fill your thoughts with gratitude and truth, and contemplate His kingdom of love and the work of creation.

6. Trust God Today and for the Future: Trust in God for your life today, for the future, and for the outcomes after understanding His faithfulness and experiencing it firsthand.

7. Practice God's Principles: Live selflessly by giving to others, volunteering, and sharing what God has given you. The more you give, the more you will receive.

8. Share the Truth: Seek ways to share the truth about God's kingdom and love with others. Join organizations dedicated to demonstrating God's love worldwide. Start ministries, lead Bible studies, and fellowship with believers who share similar faith perspectives. Fellowship enhances your knowledge, demonstrates God's love, and brings healing and renewal.

9. Live According to God's Physical Laws: Avoid substances and habits that can harm your body and soul, such as tobacco, alcohol, drugs, unhealthy entertainment, addictions, violent games, secular literature, or anything that diminishes God's character.

10. Exercise Regularly: Engage in physical exercises and activities that promote nerve growth and improve emotional regulation, including temper control.

11. Prioritize Rest and Wellness: Ensure you get enough rest, drink water, breathe fresh air, eat well, and sleep adequately to maintain your brain's ability to function effectively.

12. Follow God's Natural Principles: Eat healthy foods, cleanse your body of toxins, get sunlight, and reduce the risk of many diseases.

13. Forgive: Do not hold grudges. Harboring anger creates fear, anxiety, and ultimately reduces your peace and health. Let go of hatred and negative thoughts against others.

14. Release Guilt: Guilt reduces peace, increases anxiety, and affects innocent people around you. Confess your sins, move on with your life believing you are forgiven, and forgive yourself.

15. Confront Fear and Doubt: If fear or doubt tempts you to act against your conscience to gain others' approval, take a step back and reflect:

a. What is the truth? What is right? What is healthy? What is worthy? What should I do?
b. If someone rejects or is angry with you for doing what you believe is right, is this person truly your friend? Do you need their approval?
c. Be willing to let others think or feel about you however they choose. If you think, "If I do what they want, they won't be mad," release them to their opinions, and you will be free from the stress of pleasing others.
d. Remember, love does what is right and reasonable, not just what feels good at the moment. Look beyond the present and follow God's principles, even when they seem difficult.
e. Always FOCUS ON JESUS, live confidently in God's beauty, knowing the truth of His Law of love and His plan for life. With all your heart, long for His Return and seek His Pentecost in your life every day.

Always ask yourself these questions as you progress. Loving God does not mean we never sin—we are human and will make mistakes. Salvation is a gift from God, not a result of our deeds. Our actions are the fruit of salvation. Knowing He saved us frees us from the bondage of idols or other forms of slavery. Who governs my heart?

Where do my thoughts dwell? What do I talk about most? Who do I love and serve with all my strength? If we belong to the Almighty God, our thoughts will be with Him, and our sweetest reflections will focus on Him. We give ourselves and all we have to Him always. We desire to resemble Him, have His Spirit in our hearts, follow His will, and please Him in everything. Those who become new creations in Christ Jesus will indeed bear the fruits of the Spirit!

While exiled on the island of Patmos, John felt that his usefulness to the Lord had reached its limit. However, he was greatly surprised. In those challenging circumstances, Jesus Christ revealed to John visions detailing future events. God uses whomever He chooses, whenever and wherever He wills. Be hopeful and sharpen your brain so that Jesus can use you—even when things seem impossible!

🌻Let all who visit Christian homes see that prayer time is the most precious, sacred, and joyful moment of the day. These seasons of worship bring refinement, cleansing, and uplifting influence to all who participate. They bring peace and grateful rest to the soul. Morning and evening, heaven watches every praying household. The Angel with the incense, representing the atoning blood, seeks a way to reach God.

🌻Questions: Explain 10 ways to develop your brain, and describe what you are doing today to enhance your brain capacity.

God Bless You Very Much, Child and Youth of Jesus👨‍👩‍👧‍👦

Key Text: James 1:5-6

[5,6] If any of you lacks wisdom, let him ask of God, who gives to all liberally and without reproach, and it will be given to him. But let him ask in faith, with no doubting, for he who doubts is like a wave of the sea driven and tossed by the wind.

Prayer: Thank You, Almighty God, for giving us intelligence. Help us to have wisdom and do well in our studies at school. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Place about 20 different items on a table. Ask the children to look at them, then remove them, and see how many items they can remember.

DAY 365 (December 31)

TOPIC: Steps to Success in Your Life

❁Step 1: Wake up two hours before your first appointment or before going to work. Invest the early hours in reading spiritual books—start with the WORD of GOD, then proceed to educational and motivational books. The first hours of the day are the driving wheel for your entire day.

❁Step 2: Write down your main goals every day in a notebook in the present tense every morning before leaving, without looking at what you wrote yesterday. The act of writing and repeating forms a principle that shapes the information guiding your mind. By repeatedly writing down your ten goals each morning, you will continually visualize and think about the opportunities to achieve them. You will become more focused, goal-oriented, and steadfast. This will accelerate your success much faster than if your goals merely drifted through your mind as vague thoughts.

❁Step 3: Plan ahead every day. Prepare a list and prioritize your tasks before leaving home. Your ability to identify priorities and choose what is most important at any given time is the key to organizing your life and increasing your productivity.

❁Step 4: Cultivate the discipline to engage your entire mind in ONE task. Choose the most important thing you can do each day. Then, start with it and work on it until it is 100% complete. Your ability to focus and work on tasks while building this habit will increase your productivity, spiritual growth, efficiency, and positive outcomes.

Step 5: Listen to educational programs on your phone, videos, or radio. Avoid programs that contain profanity, sin, time-wasting content, and foolishness. When you turn your home into a classroom, you receive knowledge equivalent to attending two semesters of school. Many people say that if you spend three hours daily learning a particular subject, after three years, you will possess the knowledge equivalent to a degree in that field. For instance, if you dedicate three hours daily to studying agriculture—reading, researching syllabuses, and practicing—you will acquire the knowledge of an agricultural degree after three years. You may not have a certificate, but your understanding will match that of a degree holder. Many people have transformed their lives through self-education in entrepreneurship, craftsmanship, the Bible, history, and other fields by listening to various audio programs.

Step 6: Always ask yourself two reflective questions, for example, when you meet someone:

1. What did I do well?

2. What can I do differently?
The first question forces you to think deeply and recall all the right things you did the last time you met someone, attended a meeting, made a presentation, or participated in a Bible study—even if the outcome was not successful. The second question compels you to think of different ways to improve your effectiveness in similar situations. Write these thoughts down somewhere. This method is one of the fastest and most important exercises for personal growth and continuous improvement.

Step 7: Treat every person you meet as a precious gem or a valuable treasure—consider them as potential citizens of heaven. Whether at home, school, or the office, and even when visiting others, value each person you encounter. When you treat people as important and valuable, they will reciprocate by valuing you in return. Even the people you meet online can become a significant part of your growth if you take the time to know them. Start with those in your household—express gratitude, maintain a positive attitude, and you will experience peace and joy throughout your day.
Eighty-five percent of your success depends on your relationships with others—avoid being quick-tempered or moody. Love your neighbor as yourself—this is the second greatest commandment. The first commandment is to love the LORD your GOD with all your heart, soul, strength, and mind.

Thank GOD before you sleep and plan how your next day will be—never wake up without a plan or drift through the day aimlessly like a ship without an anchor. Read the book The Atomic Habits of Successful People.

Before leaving home for work, the entire family should be gathered together. The father, or the mother in the father's absence, should earnestly seek GOD's protection for the day. Come humbly and with hearts full of kindness, love, and gentleness—aware of the trials and dangers ahead for you and your children. With faith, entrust your family to GOD's altar, praying fervently for the LORD's protection. Ministering angels will guard the children dedicated to GOD in this way. Every home should be a House of Prayer—if there has ever been a time when every home should be a house of prayer, it is now.

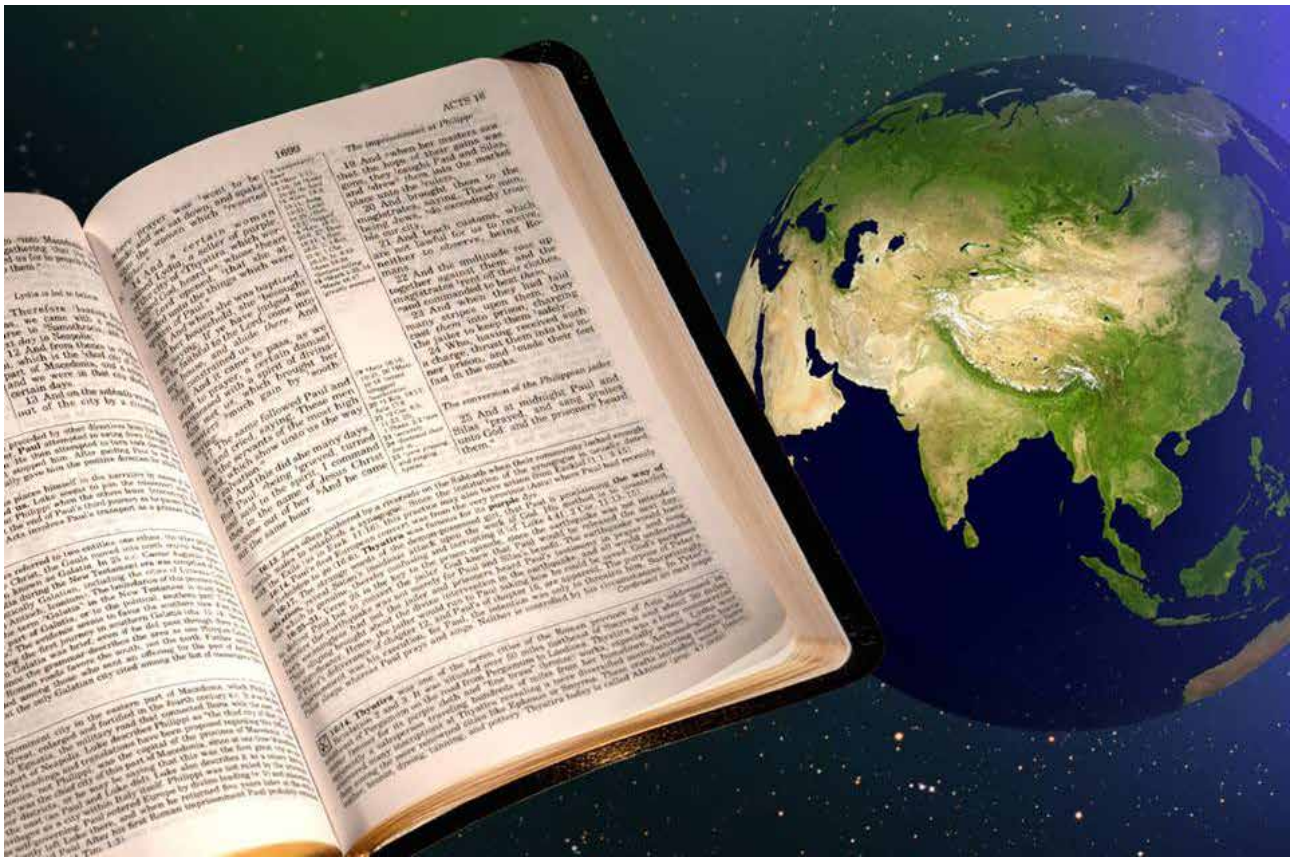
Questions:

1. List three habits of success and explain them.

2. The Second Coming of Jesus is a hope people have had for many years. How are you preparing for the return of Jesus?

God Bless You So Much, Child and Youth of Jesus

Key Text: Ephesians 5:15-16



[15,16] See then that you walk circumspectly, not as fools but as wise, redeeming the time, because the days are evil. Therefore do not be unwise, but understand what the will of the Lord is.

Prayer: Thank You, Father, for giving us time, and for helping us to use it wisely so that we may progress in school and at home. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: Teach about time management. Use a clock and tasks to count, and see who can count or complete activities the fastest.

DAY 366 (December 31)

TOPIC: Methods of Studying the Holy Scriptures:

John 17:3 – "Now this is eternal life: that they may know you, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom you have sent."

1. Reading by Chapter and Analyzing It

Today, read chapter 17 and analyze it.

What is the main idea? (For example, the main idea of Genesis 1 is creation.)

What is the leading subject?

What is the key verse in that chapter?

Which verse do you love the most?

Who are the people involved in this chapter?

What does this chapter reveal about the Lord?

What important example should I follow in my life today? (Personal application)

Are there any promises for me in this chapter?

Is there a responsibility I need to fulfill for someone after reading this chapter?

What are the prayer points from this chapter?

2. Reading by Paragraph

3. Reading by Subject or Theme

For example: the parables of Jesus, the prayers of different people, miracles, stories, and conversations mentioned.

4. Reading by Verses

For example: Romans 8:28.

5. Reading by Words

The Old Testament in Hebrew contains approximately 8,674 words, and the New Testament has about 6,000 words.

6. Reading by People's Prayers

The Old Testament contains eighty-three prayers, while the New Testament has forty-nine prayers.

7. Reading by the Life History of People

For example, King David or Joseph, the husband of Mary. The Bible mentions thirty Zechariahs in the Old Testament and fifteen in the New Testament. There are seven Jonah figures and five Jacobs.

8. Reading by Fulfilled Prophecies

For example, the prophecy in Daniel 2 or 7.

9. Reading All Passages about Christ Throughout the Bible
Luke 24:27 says that the Scriptures and prophets speak about Him.

10. Reading One Entire Book

For example, read the entire book of Matthew in a day and meditate on it.

11. Reading by Questions and Answers

12. Reading by Copying the Entire Bible

As you copy, continue to meditate on it.

The Lord Does Not Accept Routine Family Worship
Often, morning and evening devotions become mere habits—shallow and repetitive—where the spirit of gratitude and a sense of dependence on God are absent. The Lord does not accept such worship. However, He will not despise a humble heart and a broken spirit. Opening our hearts to our Heavenly Father, acknowledging and confessing our total dependence on Him, expressing our needs, and offering worship with loving gratitude—that is true prayer.

Name Two Methods of Studying the Bible That You Plan to Use.

Do you have a Bible?

If not, what is preventing you from having one?

Key Text: John 17:3

[3] "And this is eternal life, that they may know You, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom You have sent."

Prayer: Our dear Father in heaven, thank You so much for preparing a beautiful place in heaven where we will live with You forever. Thank You that eternal life is not simply living a long time, but knowing You, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom You have sent. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Activity: A short play with crowns and heavenly garments to show life in heaven.

Note: Reading the entire Bible takes only 70 hours—but we must digest it carefully!

UNDERSTAND THIS WHAT IS IN THE BIBLE:

God has revealed Himself to His people; it is the history of what God has done and said to His people.

Why the Bible is important:
It is the breath of God's Word, it teaches us who God is, shows us right and wrong, teaches us how to live with others, reveals God's love even to the point of death, teaches us how to repent, helps us not to fear, helps us to talk to God, guides us in making decisions, shows us things about heaven and how to get there, and teaches us how to have joy and gratitude.

The Bible is not just a book for learning but a map for how to live, how to make wise choices, and how to bring joy both here on earth and in eternity. It shows us how to be friends with God and that God loves us deeply.

Where did I come from? Who is God, and what is He like? What is the right thing for a person to do? How can I make friends and take care of them? Why did Jesus die on the cross? How can I be forgiven when I sin or make mistakes? What should I do when I am afraid, anxious, or worried? How do I talk to God? Where is heaven, and how can I have eternal life? Regardless of the version you use, most people care more about how you live the Word than which version you read! How do you interpret the Word of God in your life? Are you a true Christian, or are you just pretending? Will you be a faithful interpreter of the Scriptures?

Respect, Courtesy, Good Manners, PROPER BEHAVIOR (ETIQUETTE)

HOW TO HAVE GOOD MANNERS

- Respect God.
- Respect others.
- Respect yourself.
- Respect other people's property.
- Be a good steward of God's creation and possessions.

These principles encompass everything about good behavior, and everyone remembers these things! That is the summary of GOOD MANNERS.

WHAT IS ETIQUETTE FOR CHILDREN AND ADULTS?

Children and adults should know:
A child's mischief is not always intentional. Sometimes, children do not realize that it is rude to interrupt, pick their noses, or speak loudly when they see a woman with one leg walking ahead of them! With the daily struggles of life, busy parents often lack the time to focus on teaching good manners. However, if you emphasize these 36 essential lessons, you will raise a well-mannered, kind, and lovable child by God's grace. We know that parenting involves one sinner raising another sinner—but God's grace is sufficient for the journey!

36 ESSENTIAL MANNERS TO TEACH YOUR CHILDREN:

1. When asking for something, say "Please."
2. When receiving something, say "Thank you."
3. Do not interrupt adults who are speaking unless it is an emergency. They will address your issue when they finish talking.
4. If you need to get someone's attention immediately, saying "Excuse me" is the most polite way to enter their conversation.
5. When in doubt about doing something, ask for permission first. It can save you from much sorrow later.
6. The world does not care about what you dislike. Keep negative opinions to yourself or share them privately with friends—but not in front of adults. Avoid being a complainer.
7. Do not comment on other people's appearance unless it is a compliment. If you have concerns, address them privately and lovingly.
8. When people ask how you are, respond politely, and ask them how they are in return.
9. When spending time at a friend's house, thank their parents for hosting you.
10. Knock on closed doors and wait for a response before entering—especially at restrooms.
11. When making a phone call, introduce yourself first and then ask to speak with the person.
12. Be grateful and say "thank you" for any gift you receive. Sending a handwritten thank-you note can leave a lasting impression.
13. Never use foul language in front of adults. They already know all those words, and cursing is neither pleasant nor necessary.
14. Do not call people hurtful names (Colossians 4:5-6).
15. Do not mock anyone for any reason. Mocking others reflects your weakness and is a form of cruelty (Ephesians 4:29).
16. Even if a performance or gathering is boring, remain quiet and respectful. Performers and speakers put in effort, even if their views differ from yours.

17. If you accidentally bump into someone, say “Sorry” immediately.
18. Cover your mouth when you cough or sneeze. Do not pick your nose in public. Avoid urinating in public unless it is an emergency.
19. When going through a door, check if you can hold it open for someone behind you.
20. If you see a parent, teacher, or neighbor working on something, offer to help. If they accept, assist them—you may learn something new. Sometimes, offer help without waiting to be asked.
21. When an adult asks for your help, do it cheerfully and without complaining.
22. Always thank people who help you. This encourages them to assist you again—especially teachers at school, church, and the community. Sending a thank-you note is a kind gesture.
23. Use cutlery properly. If you do not know how, ask your parents or observe adults.
24. Place a napkin on your lap during meals and use it to wipe your mouth if needed.
25. Do not reach across the table; ask for items to be passed to you.
26. Greet people warmly. While handshakes have been limited due to COVID-19, still acknowledge people who greet you.
27. Avoid anger and conflict. If disagreements arise, seek peaceful solutions and be a peacemaker (Colossians 1:20-21).
28. Be kind and courteous to the poor, needy, strangers, widows, and orphans.
29. Respect everyone and know how to speak appropriately to your elders (2 Kings 2:23-24; Leviticus 19:32).
30. Do not be lazy. Always be hardworking and avoid living off others’ labor (2 Thessalonians 3:7-10).
31. Respect other people’s spouses in both words and actions. Avoid immoral behavior.
32. Respect the lives of others and all living creatures. Do not harm them unless they are pests like rats, mosquitoes, or cockroaches (1 Corinthians 13:5).
33. Respect other people’s property when visiting them (Philippians 2:3).
34. Follow the rules of any house you visit. Ask for permission if necessary before taking their children or giving them food or gifts.
35. Treat others as you would want to be treated (1 Peter 3:8).
36. Show kindness even to those who do not deserve it. Your kindness may humble and teach them (Luke 6:32).

Important Considerations in Music Ministry

1. Music for believers should reflect reverence and honor during worship, aligning with the Scriptures and avoiding content that contradicts the Word of God.
2. Musical instruments should blend harmoniously without overpowering the lyrics, which convey God's message.
3. Church music should express joy and enthusiasm for being in God's presence (Revelation 7:12).
4. Ensure a balance between the message, vocal arrangement, and sound for clarity and understanding.
5. Choir members and singing groups should wear uniforms or modest, respectful attire when presenting themselves before the congregation and God.
6. Music and singing in worship are like a thanksgiving offering to God for creation, His protection, and eternal salvation. Remember that a choir of 4,000 people served as ministers before the Lord.
7. Let us restore the principles of early Adventist music (Jeremiah 6:16). May God bless you.

MAY GOD BE WITH US.

The Fundamental Teachings of the BIBLE

The Church accepts the Bible as its only statement of faith and holds the Fundamental Teachings of Faith to be the teachings of the Holy Scriptures. These beliefs, as outlined here, represent the Church’s understanding and expression of the teachings of the Scriptures. Revisions of these statements may be expected at a General Conference session of the worldwide Church when the Church is led by the Holy Spirit to a fuller understanding of Bible truth or finds more suitable language to express the teachings of God’s Holy Word.

1. Holy Scriptures:
The Holy Scriptures, both the Old and New Testaments, are the written Word of God, given by divine inspiration through holy men of God who spoke and wrote as they were moved by the Holy Spirit. In this Word, God has committed to humanity the knowledge necessary for salvation. The Holy Scriptures are the supreme, authoritative, and infallible revelation of God’s will and an accurate account of His acts throughout history.
(2 Peter 1:20, 21; 2 Tim. 3:16, 17; Ps. 119:105; Prov. 30:5, 6; Isa. 8:20; John 17:17; 1 Thess. 2:13; Heb. 4:12.)

2. The Trinity:
There is one God: Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, a unity of three co-eternal Persons. God is immortal, all-powerful, all-knowing, above all, and ever-present. He is infinite and beyond human comprehension, yet known through His self-revelation. He is forever worthy of worship, adoration, and service by all creation.
(Deut. 6:4; Matt. 28:19; 2 Cor. 13:14; Eph. 4:4-6; 1 Peter 1:2; 1 Tim. 1:17; Rev. 14:7.)

3. The Father:
God the Eternal Father is the Creator, Source, Sustainer, and Sovereign of all creation. He is just and holy, merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love and faithfulness. The qualities and powers displayed in the Son and the Holy Spirit are also revelations of the Father.
(Gen. 1:1; Rev. 4:11; 1 Cor. 15:28; John 3:16; 1 John 4:8; 1 Tim. 1:17; Exod. 34:6, 7; John 14:9.)

4. The Son:
God the Eternal Son became incarnate in Jesus Christ. Through Him all things were created, the character of God is revealed, the salvation of humanity is accomplished, and the world is judged. Forever truly God, He became truly man, Jesus the Christ. He was conceived by the Holy Spirit and born of the virgin Mary. He lived and experienced temptation as a human but perfectly exemplified the righteousness and love of God. Through His miracles, He manifested God's power and was attested as the promised Messiah. He suffered and died voluntarily on the cross for our sins and in our place. He was raised from the dead and ascended to minister in the heavenly sanctuary on our behalf. He will return in glory for the final deliverance of His people and the restoration of all things.
(John 1:1-3, 14; Col. 1:15-19; John 10:30; 14:9; Rom. 6:23; 2 Cor. 5:17-19; John 5:22; Luke 1:35; Phil. 2:5-11; Heb. 2:9-18; 1 Cor. 15:3, 4; Heb. 8:1, 2; John 14:1-3.)

5. The Holy Spirit:
God the Eternal Spirit was active with the Father and the Son in Creation, incarnation, and redemption. He inspired the writers of Scripture. He filled Christ's life with power. He draws and convicts human beings, and those who respond are renewed and transformed into the image of God. Sent by the Father and the Son to be with His children always, He bestows spiritual gifts upon the Church, empowers it to bear witness to Christ, and guides it into all truth in harmony with the Scriptures.
(Gen. 1:1, 2; Luke 1:35; 4:18; Matt. 10:38; 2 Peter 1:21; 2 Cor. 3:18; Eph. 4:11, 12; Matt. 28:19; John 14:16-18, 26; 15:26, 27; 16:7-13.)

6. Creation:
God is the Creator of all things and has revealed in Scripture the authentic account of His creative activity. In six days the Lord made "the heavens and the earth" and all living things on the earth and rested on the seventh day of that first week. Thus, He established the Sabbath as a perpetual memorial of His completed creative work. The first man and woman were made in the image of God as the crowning work of Creation, given dominion over the world, and charged with responsibility to care for it. When the world was finished, it was "very good," declaring the glory of God.
(Gen. 1; 2; Exod. 20:8-11; Ps. 19:1-6; 33:6, 9; 104; Heb. 11:3.)

7. The Nature of Humanity:
Man and woman were made in the image of God with individuality, the power to think and act. Though created as free beings, each person is an indivisible unity of body, mind, and spirit, dependent upon God for life and breath and all else. When our first parents disobeyed God, they denied their dependence on Him and fell from their high position under God. The image of God in them was marred, and they became subject to death. Their descendants share this fallen nature and its consequences. They are born with weaknesses and tendencies to evil. But God, in Christ, reconciled the world to Himself, and by His Spirit restores in penitent humans the image of their Maker. Created for the glory of God, they are called to love Him, love one another, and care for their environment.
(Gen. 1:26-28; 2:7; Ps. 8:4-8; Matt. 17:24-28; Gen. 3; Ps. 51:5; Rom. 5:12-17; 2 Cor. 5:19, 20; Ps. 51:10; 1 John 4:7, 8, 11, 20; Gen. 2:15.)

8. The Great Controversy:
All humanity is now involved in a great controversy between Christ and Satan regarding the character of God, His law, and His sovereignty over the universe. This conflict began in heaven when a created being, endowed with freedom of choice, in self-exaltation became Satan, God's adversary, and led a portion of the angels into rebellion. He introduced the spirit of rebellion into this world when he led Adam and Eve into sin. This human sin resulted in the distortion of God's image in humanity, the disordering of the created world, and, ultimately, its devastation during the global flood. Observed by the entire created universe, this world became the arena of the universal conflict, from which the God of love will ultimately be vindicated. To assist His people in this conflict, Christ sends the Holy Spirit and loyal angels to guide, protect, and sustain them on the path of salvation.
(Rev. 12:4-9; Isa. 14:12-14; Eze. 28:12-18; Gen. 3; Rom. 1:19-32; 5:12-21; 8:19-22; Gen. 6-8; 2 Pet. 3:6; 1 Cor. 4:9; Heb. 1:14.)

9. The Life, Death, and Resurrection of Christ:
In Christ's perfect life of obedience to God's will, His suffering, death, and resurrection, God provided the only means of atonement for human sin, so that those who by faith accept this atonement may have eternal life and the entire creation may better understand the infinite and holy love of the Creator. This perfect atonement vindicates the righteousness of God's law and the graciousness of His character; for it both condemns our sin and provides forgiveness. Christ's death is substitutionary and expiatory, reconciling and transforming. The resurrection of Christ proclaims God's triumph over the forces of evil, and for those who accept the atonement, it ensures their final victory over sin and death. It declares the Lordship of Jesus Christ, before whom every knee in heaven and on earth will bow.
(John 3:16; Isa. 53; 1 Pet. 2:21, 22; 1 Cor. 15:3, 4, 20-22; 2 Cor. 5:14, 15, 19-21; Rom. 1:4; 3:25; 4:25; 8:3, 4; 1 John 2:2; 4:10; Col. 2:15; Phil. 2:6-11.)

10. The Experience of Salvation:
In infinite love and mercy, God made Christ, who knew no sin, to be sin for us, so that in Him we might become the righteousness of God. Led by the Holy Spirit, we sense our need, acknowledge our sinfulness, repent of our transgressions, and exercise faith in Jesus as Lord and Christ, as Substitute and Example. This faith which receives salvation comes through the divine power of the Word and is the gift of God's grace. Through Christ, we are justified, adopted as God's sons and daughters, and delivered from the lordship of sin. Through the Spirit, we are born again and sanctified; the Spirit renews our minds, writes God's law of love in our hearts, and we are given the power to live a holy life. Abiding in Him, we become partakers of the divine nature and have the assurance of salvation now and in the judgment.
(2 Cor. 5:17-21; John 3:16; Gal. 1:4; 4:4-7; Titus 3:3-7; John 16:8; Gal. 3:13, 14; 1 Pet. 2:21, 22; Rom. 10:17; Luke 17:5; Mark 9:23, 24; Eph. 2:5-10; Rom. 3:21-26; Col. 1:13, 14; Rom. 8:14-17; Gal. 3:26; John 3:3-8; 1 Pet. 1:23; Rom. 12:2; Heb. 8:7-12; Eze. 36:25-27; 2 Pet. 1:3, 4; Rom. 8:1-4; 5:6-10.)

11. Growing in Christ:
By His death on the cross, Jesus triumphed over the forces of evil. He who subdued demonic spirits during His earthly ministry has broken their power and made their ultimate doom certain. Jesus' victory gives us victory over the evil forces that seek to control us, as we walk with Him in peace, joy, and assurance of His love. Now the Holy Spirit dwells within us and empowers us. As we continually surrender to Jesus as our Savior and Lord, we are set free from the burden of our past deeds. No longer do we live in darkness, fear of evil powers, ignorance, or a life without meaning. In this new freedom in Jesus, we are called to grow into His likeness, communicating with Him daily in prayer, feeding on His Word, meditating on it and His providence, singing

His praises, gathering together for worship, and participating in the mission of the Church. As we give ourselves in loving service to those around us and in witnessing His salvation, His constant presence with us through the Spirit transforms every moment and every task into a spiritual experience.
(Ps. 1:1, 2; 23:4; 77:11, 12; Col. 1:13, 14; 2:6, 14, 15; Luke 10:17-20; Eph. 5:19, 20; 6:12-18; 1 Thess. 5:23; 2 Pet. 2:9; 3:18; 2 Cor. 3:17, 18; Phil. 3:7-14; 1 Thess. 5:16-18; Matt. 20:25-28; John 20:21; Gal. 5:22-25; Rom. 8:38, 39; 1 John 4:4; Heb. 10:25.)

12. The Church:
The Church is the community of believers who confess Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior. In continuity with God's people in Old Testament times, we are called out from the world, and we join together for worship, fellowship, instruction in the Word, the Lord's Supper, service to all humanity, and the proclamation of the gospel to the world. The Church derives its authority from Christ, who is the incarnate Word, and from the Scriptures, which are the written Word. The Church is God's family; adopted by Him as His children, its members live on the basis of the new covenant. The Church is the body of Christ, a community of faith with Christ Himself as the Head. The Church is the bride for whom Christ died to sanctify and cleanse her. At His victorious return, He will present to Himself a glorious Church, the faithful of all ages, purchased by His blood, without spot or wrinkle, but holy and blameless.
(Gen. 12:3; Matt. 7:38; Eph. 4:11-15; 3:8-11; Matt. 28:19, 20; 16:13-20; 18:18; Eph. 2:19-22; 1:22, 23; 5:23-27; Col. 1:17, 18.)

13. The Remnant and Its Mission:
The universal church is composed of all who truly believe in Christ, but in the last days, during a time of widespread apostasy, a remnant has been called to keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus. This remnant proclaims the arrival of the hour of judgment, salvation through Christ, and the nearness of His second coming. This proclamation is symbolized by the three angels of Revelation 14 and coincides with the investigative judgment in heaven, which leads to repentance and reform on earth. Every believer is called to have a personal part in this worldwide witness.
(Rev. 12:17; 14:6-12; 18:1-4; 2 Cor. 5:10; Jude 3, 14; 1 Pet. 1:16-19; 2 Pet. 3:10-14; Rev. 21:1-14.)

14. Unity in the Body of Christ:
The church is one body with many members, called from every nation, kindred, tongue, and people. In Christ, we are a new creation; distinctions of race, culture, learning, nationality, social status, wealth, gender, and other differences must not divide us. We are all equal in Christ, who by one Spirit has united us into one fellowship with Him and with each other. We are to serve and be served without partiality or reservation. Through the revelation of Jesus Christ in the Scriptures, we share the same faith and hope and give a united witness to all. This unity has its source in the oneness of the triune God, who has adopted us as His children.

(Rom. 12:4, 5; 1 Cor. 12:12-14; Matt. 28:19, 20; Ps. 133:1; 2 Cor. 5:16, 17; Matt. 17:26, 27; Gal. 3:27-29; Col. 3:10-15; Eph. 4:14-16; 4:1-6; John 17:20-23.)

15. Baptism:
Through baptism, we confess our faith in the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior. We become His people and are received as members of His church. Baptism is a symbol of our union with Christ, the forgiveness of our sins, and the reception of the Holy Spirit. It is performed by immersion in water and is based on a public declaration of faith in Jesus and evidence of repentance from sin. It follows instruction in the Holy Scriptures and acceptance of their teachings.
(Romans 6:1-6; Colossians 2:12, 13; Matthew 16:30-33; 22:16; Acts 2:38; Matthew 28:19, 20.)

16. The Lord's Supper:
The Lord's Supper is a communion symbolizing the body and blood of Jesus as an expression of faith in Him, our Lord and Savior. In this fellowship experience, Christ is present to meet and strengthen His people. As we joyfully partake, we proclaim the Lord's death until He returns. Preparation for the Lord's Supper includes self-examination, repentance, and confession. The Lord commanded the service of foot washing to signify renewed cleansing, to express a willingness to serve one another in humility, reflecting the spirit of Christ, and to unite hearts in love. The Lord's Supper is open to all Christian believers.
(1 Corinthians 10:16, 17; 11:23-30; Matthew 26:17-30; Revelation 3:20; John 6:48-63; 13:1-17.)

17. Spiritual Gifts and Ministries:
God bestows spiritual gifts upon all members of His church in every generation, and each member is called to use these gifts in loving service for the common good of the church and humanity. Given by the Holy Spirit, who distributes them according to His will, these gifts provide the abilities and ministries needed for the church to fulfill its divinely ordained mission. According to the Scriptures, these gifts include faith, healing, prophecy, preaching, teaching, administration, reconciliation, compassion, and selfless service to help and encourage people. Some members are called by God and equipped by the Spirit for recognized ministries such as pastoral work, evangelism, mission work, and teaching, especially to prepare believers for service, to build the church to spiritual maturity, and to foster unity in faith and knowledge of God. When members use these spiritual gifts as faithful stewards of God's varied grace, the church is protected from destructive influences of false teachings, grows through divine increase, and is strengthened in faith and love.

(Romans 12:4-8; 1 Corinthians 12:9-11, 27, 28; Ephesians 4:8, 11-16; Matthew 6:1-7; 1 Timothy 3:1-13; 1 Peter 4:10, 11.)

18. The Gift of Prophecy:
One of the gifts of the Holy Spirit is prophecy. This gift is an identifying mark of the remnant church and was manifested in the ministry of the Spirit of Prophecy. As the Lord's messenger, these writings are a source of continuing and authoritative truth that provides the church with comfort, guidance, instruction, and correction. They also clearly affirm that the Bible is the standard by which all teaching and experience must be tested.
(Joel 2:28, 29; Matthew 2:14-21; Hebrews 1:1-3; Revelation 12:17; 19:10.)

19. The Law of God:
The great principles of God's law are embodied in the Ten Commandments and were exemplified in the life of Christ. They express God's love, will, and purposes concerning human conduct and relationships and are binding upon all people in every age. These commandments form the basis of God's covenant with His people and are the standard of God's judgment. Through the agency of the Holy Spirit, they point out sin and awaken a sense of the need for a Savior. Salvation is entirely by grace and not by works, but its fruit is obedience to the Commandments. This obedience develops Christian character and results in a sense of well-being. It is evidence of our love for the Lord and our concern for our fellow human beings. Obedience of faith demonstrates the power of Christ to transform lives and strengthens the Christian witness.
(Exodus 20:1-17; Psalm 40:7, 8; Matthew 22:36-40; Deuteronomy 28:1-14; Matthew 5:17-20; Hebrews 8:8-10; John 15:7-10; Ephesians 2:8-10; 1 John 5:3; Romans 8:3, 4; Psalm 19:7-14.)

20. The Sabbath:
The gracious Creator, after six days of Creation, rested on the seventh day and established the Sabbath for all people as a memorial of Creation. The fourth commandment of God's unchanging law requires the observance of this seventh-day Sabbath as a day of rest, worship, and ministry, in harmony with the teachings and practices of Jesus, the Lord of the Sabbath. The Sabbath is a day of joyful communion with God and with one another. It is a sign of our redemption in Christ, a mark of our sanctification, a token of our obedience, and a foretaste of our eternal future in God's kingdom. The Sabbath is God's perpetual sign of His eternal covenant between Him and His people. Joyful observance of this holy time from evening to evening, sunset to sunset, is a celebration of God's acts of creation and redemption.

(Genesis 2:1-3; Exodus 20:8-11; Luke 4:16; Isaiah 56:5, 6; 58:13, 14; Matthew 12:1-12; Exodus 31:13-17; Ezekiel 20:12, 20; Deuteronomy 5:12-15; Hebrews 4:1-11; Leviticus 23:32; Mark 1:32.)

21. Stewardship:
We are God's stewards, entrusted by Him with time, opportunities, abilities, possessions, and the blessings of the earth and its resources. We are responsible to Him for their proper use. We acknowledge God's ownership by faithful service to Him and to our fellow human beings and by returning tithes and giving offerings for the proclamation of His gospel and the support and growth of His Church. Stewardship is a privilege given to us by God to nurture love and to overcome selfishness and greed. Stewards rejoice in the blessings that come to others as a result of their faithfulness.
(Genesis 1:26-28; 2:15; 1 Chronicles 29:14; Haggai 1:3-11; Malachi 3:8-12; 1 Corinthians 9:9-14; Matthew 23:23; 2 Corinthians 8:1-15; Romans 15:26, 27.)

22. Christian Behavior:
We are called to be a godly people who think, feel, and act in harmony with heavenly principles. For the Spirit to recreate in us the character of our Lord, we must engage only in those things that will produce Christlike purity, health, and joy in our lives. This means that our amusements and entertainment should meet the highest standards of Christian taste and beauty. While recognizing cultural differences, our dress should be simple, modest, and neat, befitting those whose true beauty does not come from outward adornment but from the imperishable ornament of a gentle and quiet spirit. It also means that because our bodies are the temples of the Holy Spirit, we are to care for them intelligently. Along with adequate exercise and rest, we are to adopt the healthiest diet possible and abstain from unclean foods as defined in the Scriptures. Since alcoholic beverages, tobacco, misuse of drugs, and other addictive substances are harmful to our bodies, we are to avoid them as well. Instead, we are to engage in whatever brings our thoughts and bodies into the discipline of Christ, who desires our wholesomeness, joy, and goodness.
(Romans 12:1, 2; 1 John 2:6; Ephesians 5:1-21; Philippians 4:8; 2 Corinthians 10:5; 6:14-7:1; 1 Peter 3:1-4; 1 Corinthians 6:19, 20; 10:31; Leviticus 11:1-47; 3 John 2.)

23. Marriage and Family:
Marriage was divinely established in Eden and affirmed by Jesus as a lifelong union between a man and a woman in a loving relationship. For Christians, marriage is a commitment to God and to each other and should be entered into only by partners who share a common faith. Mutual love, honor, respect, and responsibility are the foundation of this relationship, reflecting the love, sanctity, closeness, and permanence of the bond between Christ and His Church. Concerning divorce, Jesus taught that anyone who divorces a spouse, except for sexual immorality, and marries another commits adultery. Although some family relationships may fall short of the ideal, those who give themselves fully to each other in Christ may achieve loving unity through the guidance of the Spirit and the nurture of the Church. God blesses the family and intends that its members shall help each other toward complete maturity. Parents are to raise their children to love and obey the Lord. By their example and their words, they are to teach that Christ is a loving, tender, and caring disciplinarian who desires the children to become members of His body, the family of God. Increasing family closeness is one of the distinguishing marks of the final gospel message.

(Genesis 2:18-25; Matthew 19:3-9; John 2:1-11; 2 Corinthians 6:14; Ephesians 5:21-33; Matthew 5:31, 32; Mark 10:11, 12; Luke 16:18; 1 Corinthians 7:10, 11; Exodus 20:12; Hebrews 6:1-4; Deuteronomy 6:5-9; Proverbs 22:6; Malachi 4:5, 6.)

24. Christ's Ministry in the Heavenly Sanctuary:
There is a sanctuary in heaven, the true tabernacle that the Lord set up and not man. In it, Christ ministers on our behalf, making available to believers the benefits of His atoning sacrifice offered once for all on the cross. He was inaugurated as our great High Priest and began His intercessory ministry when He ascended to heaven. In 1844, at the end of the prophetic period of 2,300 days, He entered the second and final phase of His atoning ministry, which is a work of investigative judgment. This work of judgment reveals to heavenly beings who among the dead are asleep in Christ and are thus, in Him, deemed worthy of the first resurrection. It also makes manifest who among the living are abiding in Christ, keeping the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus, and are, in Him, ready for translation into His everlasting kingdom. This judgment vindicates the justice of God in saving those who believe in Jesus. It declares that those who have remained loyal to God shall receive the kingdom. The completion of this ministry of Christ will mark the close of human probation before the Second Coming.
(Hebrews 8:1-5; 4:14-16; 9:11-28; 10:19-22; 1:3; 2:16, 17; Daniel 7:9-27; 8:13, 14; 9:24-27; Numbers 14:34; Ezekiel 4:6; Leviticus 16; Revelation 14:6, 7; 20:12; 14:12; 22:12.)

25. The Second Coming of Christ:
The second coming of Christ is the blessed hope of the church and the grand climax of the gospel. The Savior's return will be literal, personal, visible, and worldwide. When He returns, the righteous dead will be resurrected, and together with the righteous living, will be glorified and taken to heaven, while the wicked will die. The near fulfillment of most prophecies, along with the current state of the world, indicates that Christ's coming is near. The exact time of this event has not been revealed, and therefore we are urged to be ready at all times.

(Titus 2:13; Heb. 9:28; John 14:1-3; Acts 1:9-11; Matt. 24:14; Rev. 1:7; Matt. 24:43, 44; 1 Thess. 4:13-18; 1 Cor. 15:51-54; 2 Thess. 1:7-10; 2:8; Rev. 14:14-20; 19:11-21; Matt. 24; Mark 13; Luke 21; 2 Tim. 3:1-5; 1 Thess. 5:1-6.)

26. Death and Resurrection:
The wages of sin is death. But God, who alone is immortal, will grant eternal life to His redeemed. Until that day, death is an unconscious state for all people. When Christ, who is our life, appears, the resurrected righteous and the living righteous will be glorified and caught up to meet their Lord. The second resurrection, the resurrection of the wicked, will occur a thousand years later.
(Rom. 6:23; 1 Tim. 6:15, 16; Eccl. 9:5, 6; Ps. 146:3, 4; John 11:11-14; Col. 3:4; 1 Cor. 15:51-54; 1 Thess. 4:13-17; John 5:28, 29; Rev. 20:1-10.)

27. The Millennium and the End of Sin:
The millennium is the thousand-year reign of Christ with His saints in heaven between the first and second resurrections. During this time, the wicked dead will be judged; the earth will be desolate and void of human life, but occupied by Satan and his angels. At the end of the millennium, Christ, His saints, and the Holy City will descend from heaven to earth. The wicked dead will be raised, and together with Satan and his angels, will surround the city. But fire from God will consume them and cleanse the earth. Thus, the universe will be free from sin and sinners forever.
(Rev. 20; 1 Cor. 6:2, 3; Jer. 4:23-26; Rev. 21:1-5; Mal. 4:1; Ezek. 28:18, 19.)

28. The New Earth:
In the new earth, where righteousness dwells, God will provide an eternal home for the redeemed and a perfect environment for everlasting life, love, joy, and learning in His presence. God Himself will dwell with His people, and suffering and death will be no more. The great controversy will be over, and sin will be no more. All things, animate and inanimate, will declare that God is love, and He shall reign forever. Amen.
(2 Pet. 3:13; Isa. 35; 65:17-25; Matt. 5:5; Rev. 21:1-7; 22:1-5; 11:15.)

RAISING A BOY TO BECOME A PRIEST TO LEAD HIS HOME

(or raising a child to be a layperson – written for boys by parents)

Many have written books on raising boys for believers. Raising a girl is not significantly different from raising a boy, except where gender roles differ, as God has instructed us. God is the ultimate parent, and the Scriptures are the primary parenting manual—everything else supplements it. The most important thing in raising our children is to help them live independently of us. They must learn to navigate life through relationships with God, the community (school or work), the church, and their families.

The heavens and the earth are a boy's first books before he learns to read or write, as Psalm 19 states. Psalm 144:12-15 says:
"May our sons in their youth be like well-nurtured plants, and our daughters like pillars carved to adorn a palace. May our barns be filled with every kind of provision. May our sheep increase by thousands, by tens of thousands in our fields; may our oxen draw heavy loads. May there be no breaching of walls, no going into captivity, no cry of distress in our streets. Blessed is the people of whom this is true; blessed is the people whose God is the Lord."

God's definition of a man goes beyond physical appearance. Ezekiel 22:30 tells us that a man stands in the gap to repair what is broken. Being a man according to God's Word means growing spiritually, mentally, emotionally, and physically. A child grows properly at home, in the community, at school, and in the church.

Once we have children, we must plan because God has entrusted us with them as stewards. They are like a garden that we must cultivate until they grow and mature. We cannot simply sit back and assume things will happen by themselves. Food and clothing are not enough to complete a child's upbringing.
Our sons will become leaders in their communities, priests in their homes, and our brothers in heaven one day. We are preparing our sons to be husbands, fathers, and believers in the household of God. This is a lifelong journey that requires significant time and is firmly rooted in the foundation of God's Word.

God's Word is the beginning and the end of parenting (the Alpha and Omega). It is the only true security for both parents and children. May you reap the fruits of your labor and faithfulness to God; may you help your children become responsible individuals who bear much fruit in righteousness. Luke 2:52 says, "And Jesus grew in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man."

The teenage years do not have to be marked by rebellion; instead, they can be a time of productivity for the child, the parents, and the community. Let us not grow weary in doing good, for one day, “Your father and mother will rejoice; she who gave you birth will be joyful.” As parents, we should take our children to gospel or lay ministry seminars and involve them in the work we do for the Lord so they learn through action and grow to love God’s work.

Raising a God-fearing son requires commitment because today’s boys face challenges in developing diligence in academics and manual labor. About 90% of farmland in Africa is cultivated by older women, and approximately 80% of congregants in places of worship are women, who also show greater enthusiasm for education and reading in many countries.

In the past, subjects like mathematics or physics were considered masculine, and boys generally scored higher in these areas. However, research by Dr. Nedley in the United States indicates that these trends are shifting, with girls now performing as well as boys. He adds that many boys today feel less motivated to strive for excellence because finding a wife no longer requires the traditional bride price, making marriage easier.

Nowadays, girls are the ones pursuing boys. This dynamic reduces boys’ sense of responsibility, motivation, and ambition. Dr. Nedley also points out that many boys rely on their parents or wives for financial support well into adulthood. If a wife eventually leaves, she often takes the children, leaving the husband to return to his parents and depend on them.

A boy is created in God’s image and was made before the woman. His primary purpose on earth is not just to reproduce but to give glory to God, have dominion, and subdue the earth. Our sons must understand this first and foremost. The boy was given the task of tending the garden even before humanity’s fall. Obedience to God and to parents is the first lesson for our sons—followed by discipline, skill, education, self-control, and manual labor. These qualities teach self-denial, self-discipline, and the responsibility of providing for a family.

In African traditions, the eldest son was the one who cared for his parents and was relied upon by his sisters and younger siblings as a provider, counselor, and leader. This responsibility has been diminishing to some extent.

Although these statistics are from the United States, the trends often influence other regions. The U.S. often sets social standards—sometimes negative ones, like the normalization of homosexuality—that other cultures follow without much resistance. Today's media, especially television, acts as a surrogate parent to many children, which is dangerous because much of the content promotes questionable values in speech, dress, and behavior.

In the past, calling a boy a "girl" was considered an insult. Today, even intelligent and strong boys are adopting immoral behaviors like homosexuality—something that was once taboo even among non-believers. In countries like the Philippines, reports indicate that the nation leads in gender reassignment surgeries for men who believe their lives will become "easier" if they become women. This reflects a misunderstanding of God's created order: man was created first, he is the head, and he is to be respected by the woman. Furthermore, the first sinner was a woman—a fact that should not inspire admiration from anyone.

Herod killed male children. Pharaoh also knew that by eliminating male children, he could destroy a nation. Even Balaam caused the death of 24,000 men of Israel, knowing that by eliminating the men, he would finish the nation. God has given male children and men gifts and responsibilities that women were not given, so when raising boys, we must consider this. Fathers should spend time with their sons and teach them through actions. It is said that many fathers spend less than four minutes a day talking to their children.

We must be intentional in choosing many things, such as friends, the music we listen to, the books we read, the education we pursue, the church we attend, the clothes we wear, and much more. Parents should read the Word of God to find answers and proper standards. We should also strive to mature as believers and serve together. Even careless parents can raise children who love God. We see Timothy, his grandmother Lois, and his mother Eunice helping Timothy become a hero who served many as a layman and later as a pastor.

You must have goals and plans for a year. You cannot do everything at once—create a step-by-step plan for what you want to achieve instead of stumbling in the dark until the children leave home. Young children are like sponges that absorb a lot of knowledge. They retain much of what they learn in science and memory work. Use this time to teach them from the book of creation and the world. The teachings of 1 Corinthians 13 on love are essential for both children and us.

Always teach our children about God's creation and not evolution. This should be a priority (1 Corinthians 3:19). Utilize the help of grandparents to assist with the children. Children should be taught how to build a house, sew, cook, farm, and other skills. Teach children to speak in public, manage their time, and evaluate their progress. Celebrate their achievements. Teach them about biblical heroes like David, Noah, and Abraham. Ask your child who their heroes are—are they movie characters or video game figures? How can they be a light or a beacon in their home?

Read books like "10 Boys Who Changed the World," by Irene Howard. Does your child admire people who do not love God, like Samson loved the Philistines? What kind of books are they reading?

A man's life is full of decisions and actions based on those decisions. We should prepare our young men to take responsibility by making the right choices. Prepare them well, then allow them to make decisions, and when they make mistakes, let them learn to correct them. Learn even from small creatures like ants and from biblical figures such as young Joseph, Jethro, Abigail, the Good Samaritan, Boaz, and others.

Can your child handle responsibilities when you are absent? Do they greet people? Do they do household chores? Observe if they manage their time well and keep their belongings organized and clean. Do they know how to solve problems, or do they forget their responsibilities? Do they understand that time is valuable and avoid procrastination?

Take your child to observe court proceedings appropriate for their age and discuss common cases. Read stories like those of Achan and Samson and discuss them. Does your child make excuses, exaggerate, or break promises? Do they take other people's belongings without permission? Do they love gossip and bear false witness?

We should not shield our children too much from pain or failure. Sometimes they must fail to learn, but they should not fear trying again. Read about David's thirty mighty men (1 Chronicles 11). Also, study the heroes of the Reformation, such as Luther, Zwingli, Tyndale, Knox, and Huss. Can your child accept correction and learn from it? Do they have the courage to admit their sins, repent, and leave them behind? Can they confess when they are wrong? Do they fear people more than God?

A man is the head of the family, just as Christ is the head of the Church. Look at the character of men like Noah, Job, Abraham, Moses, and David. Abraham was praised as a hero because "I have known him, that he will command his children and his household after him to keep the way of the Lord, to do justice and judgment." A son should thoroughly understand the major teachings of the faith and distinguish them from false doctrines because he will be a priest in his home and perhaps even in the church. He should question pastors and spiritual leaders about their beliefs—what is the gospel, and how does it impact their lives?

Deuteronomy 6:7-8 instructs us to teach children and ensure they memorize these truths. Parents should help their sons become teachers.

Learning leadership is vital. In 1 Kings 3:9, Solomon prayed, “Give your servant an understanding heart to judge your people, that I may discern between good and evil. For who is able to judge this great people of yours?” Here, Solomon asked for wisdom and leadership. We should model to our sons how to be fair judges. When we discipline them, we uphold God’s law and guide them in the Lord’s instructions. Teach them to reconcile with friends when conflicts arise so they can do the same with their children when they err against God’s law.

Ensure that your discipline reflects your love. If your punishment exceeds your love, there is a problem. We acknowledge that everyone makes mistakes in parenting, but discipline should be loving and corrective rather than rooted in anger. Do not punish a child while angry—wait until you have calmed down, then talk with them and administer discipline. They should understand what they did wrong and how to make it right.

Can your child lead others humbly, delegate tasks, and follow through to completion and evaluation? Refer to resources like the “Brother Offender Checklist” and “21 Rules of This House” available online. Have a “Court of the Home” to decide which actions require punishment and which need warnings. Study the punishments of prophets, biblical figures, and apostles. List the sins your child struggles with, plan appropriate discipline, and define the consequences of ignoring correction.

What are the responsibilities of authority, and how should we treat authority figures? Can your child teach others, such as leading a children’s class or youth group at church?

A boy should be taught not to covet other people’s possessions and to be grateful for what he has, for godliness with contentment is a great blessing. We came into the world with nothing, and we will leave with nothing. When he makes mistakes, he should be taught to ask for forgiveness. Since he will one day be a leader, he should be taught to exercise authority and responsibility with wisdom. Examples of those who misused power include the Pharisees, while those who used power wisely include Noah, Job, Elijah, and others. He should understand that authority means being a servant to the people, not a dictator who oppresses others. He should learn to work with his own hands to provide for himself and others.

He should start fasting and praying when he reaches about twelve years old, for many things are impossible without prayer and fasting. He must understand that his wife and children will need clothes, food, and shelter, which is reason enough for him to learn to pray and fast.

Straying or moral decay begins slowly, like a thermometer rising, so he should realize that over time, he may find himself far from the right path. He should learn from wise men with good character, for these men have experienced both victories and failures, allowing him to avoid missteps and sinking into ruin. Temptations often appear attractive but do not reveal the whole truth. He should not attempt to fight temptations by himself but should ask God for the strength to obey and avoid invitations to do evil, for the battle belongs to God when one chooses to follow His law.

Why is it advisable for a young man to avoid engaging with rock music and dance music? Because such music often carries evil; many artists who perform it promote rebellion against God's laws, engage in idol worship, indulge in alcohol or drugs, and unknowingly teach dark matters. This music diminishes spiritual sensitivity, increasing anxiety and restlessness.

Education is valuable, but start reading books early before life becomes challenging. Explain this to the young man as well. For instance, he should not wait to read a book on how to have a successful marriage after divorcing his wife—he should read it before marriage. Being educated and being knowledgeable are two different things; one can earn advanced degrees and still lack wisdom. Similarly, making money and working are different things. The Word of God is proven to be beneficial in all aspects—for teaching, rebuking, correcting, and training in righteousness—so that a person may be thoroughly equipped for every good work.

A child should learn to obey authority because he may one day hold a leadership position. One cannot lead others without first knowing how to follow. The Holy Scriptures tell us to respect and obey those who lead us, so their work will not be difficult or burdensome, for they will give an account for their actions. Consider the services the government provides for its citizens. While we recognize that some leaders are corrupt, most leaders provide vital assistance, and we cannot live without leadership. If parents make the work of leaders difficult or treat them with contempt, children will imitate that behavior.

Forgiveness is essential for a young man. Holding onto unforgiveness is like drinking poison and expecting someone else to die. Moreover, we must remember that we, too, have wronged others and received forgiveness. He should be free from those who have hurt him, not their prisoner. Furthermore, we are forgiven as we forgive others. A young man should learn to forgive and tell God about the pain in his heart, asking Him to remove it. He should be honest with God, for the Lord has the power to take away all bitterness and hatred, and he will be surprised at how light his heart becomes. His wife, children, and even his parents may hurt him, but he must learn how to resolve such conflicts. We are told that they are fragile vessels, so we need wisdom to deal with them. He should entrust his problems to the Almighty, and if the burdens return to his mind, he should keep giving them to God until they are gone.

Holding onto grudges and hatred is utterly destructive. How can we remove evil thoughts? Evil thoughts come to everyone, but how do we eliminate them? Many people fail to deny themselves and end up speaking, thinking, or doing anything they please. Does he struggle with uncontrollable anger or bad thoughts? Psalm 119:110 tells us to store God's Word in our hearts to overcome evil thoughts. Like Joshua, we should choose daily whom we will serve. If we choose to serve the Lord, He will help us overcome evil thoughts. We must take captive every thought and make it obedient to Christ (2 Corinthians 10:5). Finally, we should focus on things that are good, praiseworthy, and honorable.

A child's curiosity should be nurtured so that he can invent and discover things. Give him tools and time; do not worry too much if he breaks things or spends time experimenting. The people who have invented great things in the world needed time, trust, and freedom from pressure. For a child to become an inventor, he needs knowledge in different fields of study. God is the greatest inventor—do not waste your time inventing evil things that will destroy people, like those who created nuclear bombs. Try to provide durable, long-lasting items that are strong and few in number.

The greatest quality in invention is perseverance. Thomas Edison conducted 1,000 failed experiments before inventing the light bulb and other things. He discovered 1,000 ways not to succeed. Do not give up when you fail—learn from mistakes and keep moving forward until you find the answers.

A young man is created to invent songs, programs, tools, methods, art, books, devices, and more. Strive to be an inventor, as God designed you to be—to serve the world and live a meaningful life. However, do not neglect your physical health; exercise regularly to avoid becoming weak from spending too much time indoors without sunlight and fresh air.

A young man should learn endurance and how to maintain friendships. He should not be quick to anger or fail to repair broken relationships. As human beings, we often fail in many ways, but courage and persistence are essential. Even God has not abandoned us despite our failures, and He continues to restore the brokenness that began in the Garden of Eden (Genesis 3). From Genesis 4 until today, His restoration work continues.

Where should I belong? Sometimes you may feel like you do not fit in anywhere. Ultimately, heaven is our true home, where we will find our permanent residence. Do not waste time trying to "fit in" here on earth, for the Almighty has gone to prepare a place for us. Often, we will feel like strangers here, but we should set our minds and goals on that heavenly country. It is better to live as a stranger here while preparing for heaven than to feel at home and eventually face eternal sorrow.

Righteousness is crucial; otherwise, a young man becomes a slave to his desires and a lack of self-denial. Treating all people justly and loving others is vital. King Solomon judged with wisdom, but when he began to indulge himself by marrying many wives, he lost his sense of justice and damaged his relationship with God. Sometimes young men think such downfalls cannot happen to them. However, if we believe we are immune, we claim to be wiser than Solomon, stronger than Samson, and love God more than David.

Life is about working, studying, building, investing—don't be lazy and idle. Don't sit lazily at the "jobless corner" until your clothes tear at the back—that is not God's plan for a young man. A young woman can marry a man with means, but as a young man, you are the provider. It is shameful to prey on a wealthy woman just to make your life easier. If it is God's plan for it to happen that way, you should still be diligent and a provider so that you are not despised by your wife or in-laws.

If you want to become an engineer, you must start studying math and science today. If you want to be a priest, start planning to study God's commandments. God created us to be doers, not spectators.

Learn to read the Word of God. When you wake up, the goal is not how many pages you have read but your relationship with God. God wants to talk to you about things that matter to you (concerns); He wants to know your dreams. God has the power to stir up a weak man or boy to get out of bed and read His Word. Pray and ask Him to help you wake up and read. The Creator wants to be close to you—allow Him.

Often in life, people will fail to understand us. Being misunderstood—if you are falsely accused—learn to hold your tongue and speak only the truth until the accusations pass. Being falsely accused is an opportunity for God to teach us patience, humility, and forgiveness. Even the Lord was falsely accused and slandered. Instead of getting angry and shocked, stay calm and ask the LORD for strength. Have peace in your heart, knowing that God understands and knows your inner motives. Doing good is a weapon. The Almighty uses it to counter the falsehoods people accuse you of or the labels they place on you.

Sometimes you will not understand and will get tired of being falsely accused or misunderstood, but remember, we are in a great conflict between good and evil. Satan has accused God of being unjust, and some have believed it; but one day soon, God's character will be cleared of all blemishes.

Strive not to work just to play. Many men think that work is simply a way to earn money to buy toys and entertain themselves on their days off. Men have expensive "adult toys" like luxury cars, motorcycles, boats, and other costly things. Remember that working to earn a living is important, but there is also other work—helping the widows, the poor, and orphans. This is also important for bringing healing to others. Use your talents and skills to make the world a better place.

To provide for your needs, your parents work hard. A good child does not want to take the work or wealth of their parents and waste it on their pleasures. When you inherit property, be careful to use it to help others and future generations. We are saved by grace, not by our works, so let us think of others and the next generation.

Does a young man fear darkness, dogs, high mountains, or spiders? Overcoming fear is part of growing into manhood. You may not eliminate all fear, but you will thrive and overcome your environment, even while having some fears.

Moses had this fear—Exodus 3-4. Joshua was told, "Be strong and courageous. Do not be afraid or discouraged, for the LORD your God will be with you wherever you go." A man overcomes his fears by knowing that the Almighty is present and that He is capable. The Almighty knows what you need, and He will give you courage and confidence—but not arrogance. Victory is sweeter when you work for it. "I write to you, young men, because you are strong, and you have overcome the evil one."

Every man faces fear at some point—you cannot overcome if you have no enemies to fight against. Every man faces challenges. The key is to conquer the small, everyday battles within your heart. There will be days when you won't want to work, but you will have to. Victory comes especially when you treat anger, greed, and lust as your enemies.

Ninety percent of the fears we have are about things that will never happen. The remaining ten percent you will face—and you may lose a few battles—but if you keep fighting with strength, you will win.

Selfishness should be forbidden, and if you struggle with it, you do not have to remain that way all your life. A young man will become a leader of his household and perhaps a nation, planning to help others. If he is selfish or self-centered, he will harm many. Many of those who support the social welfare of a nation are men—so a young man must learn to reject selfishness.

Mothers generously give food or small household items, but men handle major plans to assist society and even entire nations. In times of disaster or calamity, they often rescue many. We must teach our young men not to have a "me-first" attitude.

A young man should pray and be honest with the Almighty: "I am selfish, I think of myself more than others. I know You don't want me to be this way—please open my eyes to see the needs of others so that I may be helpful. I ask to have a character like Yours."

Imagine how your father feels when he comes home—can you help him with something? Can you ease your mother's burden? When you visit someone, look for ways to help instead of sitting in the corner waiting to be served. Use your time to serve others—it will help you overcome fear and selfishness.

Do not be ashamed of your pain or sorrow—start helping others. Every visionary leader must think about serving people. Selfish people lack courage. Brave people do not wait for grand opportunities to be heroes—they seize the small, daily chances that arise. These give you opportunities to be brave or cowardly.

Learn to love certain things. Many young men complain: "I don't like the rain, I don't like this job, I don't like the hot sun, I don't like this city, I don't like this village, I don't like this, I don't like that!" If you want to enjoy the greatness and goodness of God, learn to love what He has openly given you to love. You have a choice—to complain and grumble with a sour face or to love what you have been given. But there is no need to wear a gloomy face all day.

One man said that as a child, he hated tomatoes. But when he got married, his wife cooked with tomatoes. He asked, "Why are there tomatoes in my food?" But his wife didn't change anything. Eventually, he started liking them—and now he even misses them when they're not there. However, we say do not love evil or unhealthy things. Still, there are many things you can learn to tolerate—and you might even find that you love them.

Many people have grown to love mushrooms or avocados, even though they couldn't eat these foods when they were young due to their attitudes. Maturity and growth involve embracing both the bitter and the sweet. Don't just force yourself to "eat tomatoes"; instead, learn to love them. God has many good things in His kingdom, and we shouldn't turn up our noses and say, "I don't like how it tastes," because God has allowed us to eat.

To become a man, every boy must learn to endure pain. It is part of life, bringing wisdom, strength, and skill. A child who does not deny himself cries out over small pains and thinks more about his happiness than his responsibilities. Instead of working in the field, he thinks about how hot the sun is or how tired he feels. Instead of giving up a seat for an elderly mother, he thinks about his comfort and entertainment. If he scratches his hand a little, he refuses to wash the dishes. Life holds much greater pains than small scratches. All creation groans with some form of pain—whether spiritual, physical, or mental. Many people are hurt simply by someone speaking unkind words—not just you! So, do not pity yourself when you are in pain, because every creature experiences pain.

A man must learn how to endure pain; he cannot hide or avoid it. Without pain, there are often no fruits or progress. Pain is universal and is usually temporary. But in heaven, there is no pain. What hurts us today may be gone tomorrow—so don't dwell on your pain. Pain also has its limits, even when it feels unbearable. Pain cannot do whatever it pleases to us because the Almighty controls and knows the limits of our endurance, giving us only what we can bear. God knows the length and weight of every pain and has allowed it to come to us; 1 Corinthians 10:13. As the story of Job shows, God did not allow Job to suffer beyond what he could endure. Pain has a certain beauty—God does not allow it without a purpose. And sometimes, we are counted worthy to suffer with Christ.

When someone close to us hurts our hearts—whether through misunderstanding or unmet expectations—it wounds us more deeply. David said, "If an enemy were insulting me, I could endure it; if a foe were rising against me, I could hide. But it is you, a man like myself, my companion, my close friend, with whom I once enjoyed sweet fellowship at the house of God, as we walked about among the worshipers."

How you respond to people who hurt and offend you reveals whether you are growing as a man of God or are focused only on yourself and your pain. Cry out to God for comfort, and don't make a big fuss over small pains or get angry when things don't go your way.

Many people seek to avoid pain, but few of them are fit for the kingdom of God. If you are physically injured, go to the hospital to get stitched or have a broken bone set—but don't show your wounds to everyone. A man must be brave and not constantly seek pity from others. Instead of always focusing on your wound, find people to serve and shift your thoughts away from yourself and your pain.

For emotional pain, don't be like a dog that licks its wounds all day—instead, "overcome evil with good." Even the Lord, "for the joy set before Him, endured the cross, scorning its shame, and sat down at the right hand of the throne of God." There is a time to weep and a time to laugh. I do not believe the saying that "a man does not cry," because even the Lord wept—but He did not cry over His own sorrows, but for others. Crying can ease the pain of the heart. So, there is a time to hold back, and there is a time to cry—and the Lord will help His children to know the difference, so they are not people who cry over everything or hold everything inside and suffer silently.

How can you prepare yourself now to live well with a wife in the future? You might think you are still too young to consider this and laugh at the idea—and it is true that it is not yet time to marry. However, you can prepare yourself now mentally so that, in the future, you will be a happy husband with a joyful marriage. It is not about rushing to get married, but it is wise to be ready, whether you marry or receive the calling to be celibate.

Learn the tasks that men do to help their sisters or mothers—such as changing a tire, repairing the house, unclogging a toilet, applying fertilizer, beekeeping, herding livestock, uprooting stumps, using a hammer and pliers, building animal pens, selecting seeds for planting, killing rats, or pruning fruit trees.

How you treat your sisters and mother now is the best training for marriage. Let your younger siblings be happy to have a big brother—love them, and let them love you too. The way you build relationships with your sister or mother is how you will build relationships with your wife. Do not be arrogant so that your sisters fear you and cannot share their hearts with you. Be gentle so that they trust you, and when they share their problems, take the challenge to solve them quietly without bragging.

Do you know what your sisters like or dislike? Do you understand their dreams and their fears? What hopes do they have for today or tomorrow? If you are proud and harsh, they will hide things from you. If your sister wants to learn a musical instrument, take the challenge to help her get one. Your sisters are your training ground for learning how to provide for your future family.

David's courage to defeat Goliath did not appear suddenly—it started when he fought lions and bears. Likewise, serve your sisters and mother. Do not mock, humiliate, or compete with them to prove your strength. Be a team with them—if there is food, let them have the bigger portion, and you take the smaller one. Give them the better seat.

Have you thought about reading the Word of God with your sisters and younger siblings? Do you pray with them? Praise them when they do good, and when they do wrong, forgive them, help them improve, and cover their faults. You have the opportunity to help them become beautiful both inside and out. One day, they will say, "My brother gave me the chance to achieve my dreams—I love and respect him."

If your younger sibling, sister, or mother is self-centered, help them. Pray to God to assist you, and make it your mission to restore good relationships. Be an example to your siblings, sisters, and mother. The Lord has turned millions of hearts toward Him—so you can do the same.

A mature young man does not focus on who loves or does not love him; instead, he focuses on doing good, regardless of how others treat him. Do not assume that your younger siblings, sisters, or mother do not want your help or love—most of the time, they will change. Girls can be unpredictable at times, but you should find ways to please your sisters—ask your mother for guidance if needed. It is the duty of a young man and a grown man to love his sisters and, ultimately, his wife.
Choose a wife carefully—let God guide you. Pray and wait for the time He will choose for you. People choose based on outward appearance, but the LORD knows the heart. Observe if she loves spiritual matters. Avoid the reckless games you play with men. Make it a rule never to dance with girls, as it stirs up evil desires. Many boarding schools host dances that have led young people into lust and sin. Every day, we face battles in our minds and against the kingdom of Satan. Wear the spiritual armor of Ephesians 6 and do not expose yourself to temptations. Avoid any sinful sexual relationships, as many exist on the internet.

Dancing is a tool of Satan himself. Ask any man if he would allow someone to dance closely with his wife while embracing her—he will tell you no! During the colonial era, people were prohibited from performing traditional dances, claiming they were primitive. Strangely, those traditional dances kept men and women apart. Today, sin is done openly—embracing a girl who is not your wife, and being closer than a centimeter apart.

Many are taught about wearing condoms, but for those who respect God, sex belongs only within marriage; outside of that, it is sin and rebellion against God's laws. Moreover, condoms do not erase sin, silence a guilty conscience, fully prevent pregnancy or HIV, or remove sorrow.

A young man should always know that only God can help him avoid sexual sin. Many men, especially in today's world of pornography, have fallen into sin because of three things: women, money, and the pride of power. If a young man thinks he cannot fall into these traps, he must have strength greater than Samson, wisdom greater than Solomon, and love for God greater than David.

"He who finds a wife finds a good thing and obtains favor from the LORD." A young man should distinguish between the "strange woman" of Proverbs 7—a harlot—and the virtuous woman of Proverbs 31. Does she possess the qualities of a noble woman? Does she understand the role of sex according to the Word of God? Teach her about physical changes such as puberty and keep talking to her at every stage of life.

Many parents only talk to their children about sex when they are thirteen years old and then stop, only to be shocked when things go wrong at seventeen! They give one lesson about sex and leave it at that. Sexual temptations, including masturbation, affect many people. Children should be taught to avoid these things consistently. Do not allow your children to sleep in other people's homes or participate in overnight parties (pajama parties or sleepovers).

A young man should remain pure in words, thoughts, and body until marriage. Is he willing to seek permission from the girl's father before opening the door to marriage rather than living together without commitment ("come-we-stay")? Is he prepared to inform you when he plans to marry? Is he willing to remain single if God has called him to a life of celibacy and avoid living a double life?

The Bible is not just a book of good advice or opinions—it contains the thoughts of God Himself, holding the ultimate authority in heaven and on earth. God's Word teaches us how to treat and please everyone we meet—friends, siblings, parents, employers, women, elders, enemies, or children. It warns us about traps, instructs us on how to work, invest money, what to eat, and even when to sleep. It provides principles for every aspect of your life. It reveals the depths of how God works and how to hear His voice. It explains life, the natural world, and even other planets. From Genesis to Revelation, it tells us how to receive the LORD, who gave Himself for us to grant us eternal life.

You are not an animal, as the theory of evolution falsely teaches—you were created for a special purpose. Every young man should ask himself why he is here, where he came from, and what will happen when he dies. The Word of God explains why there is so much pain and suffering. No other book answers all these questions. One hour with any other book cannot compare to one hour with the Word of God.

No other book is as thrilling or life-changing as the Bible. Mathematics or chemistry cannot transform your life the way this book can. However, the Bible is not meant just for information—it is for transformation. If you follow its teachings, your life will become real, and you will be changed. Do not waste time reading novels or fictional stories that diminish your desire for God's Word. Fiction makes the Bible lose its appeal.

Your mind will expand if you read the Bible, and you will even excel in your studies. Share with your friends what you learn from each chapter. Sometimes, sit quietly and reflect on His glory. Memorize many of its verses, and sing hymns. Mark 1:35 says, "He went to a solitary place to pray;" you, too, should wake up and pray.

Listen to the advice of elders—you will not be like your peers but will have wisdom beyond your years. The counsel of the elderly may seem outdated, but you will process it and digest wisdom that people your age do not possess. When Solomon died, his son Rehoboam ignored the elders' advice, listened to his young friends, and lost his kingdom.

Wise elders do not speak their thoughts quickly—they weigh matters first. They understand how a child's life will turn out, even without formal education, because their years of experience guide them. Many people have rejected their advice, causing elders to remain silent, fearing hostility from young people. It is the responsibility of young men to sit with elders and ask them questions about valuable professions, important skills to acquire, or the best investments to make.

Ask an elder questions like these: What should someone do to maintain good relationships? What destroys relationships? How has society changed today? Has it changed for better or worse? What mistakes did you make that led to failures? What areas of your life turned out very well? What can you teach me about marriage and raising children? As an employer, what qualities would you look for in an employee? Do you remember the advice your father gave you as a child? Did you follow it? What is most important to you now in life? Are you prepared to die at any time? If yes, why? If no, why not?

There is a time to kill and a time to heal (Ecclesiastes 3), and that is the challenge of growing up or becoming a man. Many people get confused and kill when they shouldn't and fail to kill when they should. How will a boy know? A man or a boy is not just another animal in God's kingdom. He was given authority and dominion. He is supposed to respect creatures and be a good steward—not to kill animals or cut down trees without reason, just because they are under his dominion. He should use these things for his needs but not wastefully; if he cuts down a tree, he should plant another. He should not be cruel but should know how to preserve and also understand what to preserve. For example, if mice are eating your maize in the house, should you kill them? Should you kill ants in the wild? Should you kill a cat crossing the road? If you live near a wildlife reserve and are hungry, should you kill a gazelle without permission? Do not ignore the work God gave you—to protect and care for His creatures. Even animals know who fears God based on the compassion and care that person shows to them.

Do your livestock receive adequate food and nourishment? Or do you keep a dog without feeding it until its ribs are visible? Remember, Noah was told to bring animals into the ark. God could have created new ones, but He cared for the ones that already existed. The Bible says, "God remembered Noah and the animals."

To meet the needs of one's family, sometimes it is necessary to kill, but one should not kill God's creatures out of anger or recklessness—only for sustenance or protection. When wars have occurred, we know that many people who love God have fought to bring freedom and to defend their countries or communities. Others, due to their conscience and the calling God placed on them, have refused to kill during war and instead care for the wounded (non-combatants), and that is also acceptable depending on the individual's convictions. However, all men must know how to protect their families and provide for them.

A man has a duty to care for the environment around him and not to be destructive. Some boys have shot birds with slingshots just for fun without any meaningful reason. A man must care for what God has entrusted to him, including the environment. We live in a time when people kill even their own children through abortion or other means. People are willing to kill their children but are afraid to kill cockroaches in their cabinets. We must understand the value of human life while also having the courage to kill things like cockroaches or mice.

Home worship is essential. Do not frown during prayers or worship. The Israelites spent a lot of time in worship and offering sacrifices, but they were self-centered and selfish. Every day is a day of worship, and how we live is also worship. We may sing beautifully, but if our lives have a bad odor, we are failing. Our hearts need to change—not just to have heads full of God's Word while our hearts are full of sin.

If you want to be a true man whom God can use, learn to worship God the way He wants to be worshiped. Worship Him every day in the beauty of His holiness. Relationships and communication are important. Learn to write letters of encouragement. Practice writing simple letters, and as you continue, you will develop that skill and be able to write meaningful letters. Many people receive letters of complaints, and when they see a letter of gratitude, they are surprised and encouraged, and they will cherish your letter forever.

Where I live, many people are afraid to receive gifts because they feel indebted, are proud, or do not want to be part of "welfare programs." Others are afraid to write thank-you letters. Giving and receiving gifts builds good relationships. If you stop accepting gifts, people may think you value your possessions too much or that you are unwilling to give, thus closing the door to further kindness. It is more blessed to give than to receive, so do not make others lose their blessings by refusing their gifts if given with a good heart.

For our children, we teach them to give when we receive as well. However, write thank-you letters and be specific about what you are thankful for. For example: "Thank you for the money; it has greatly helped me during this cucumber-growing season." Many people write letters asking for things while they are students in boarding schools, but when they become adults and no longer need anything, they never write again—that is wrong. Communication is not just for getting things but is a service of love.

How do we prepare to be good fathers while we are still young? The answer: By becoming the kind of person we would want our children to be! Do not think about how you will raise your children—think about how God wants you to be like Him. When your children are your age, what kind of people do you want them to be? Because your children will want to be like you. Are you faithful? Are you a hard worker? Do you love to complain? Understand that they will follow your example.

God is merciful, even when you have messed things up. He does not always give us what we deserve (exceptions). Not all your bad habits will pass on to your children, but "the fruit does not fall far from the tree." The children you raise will resemble you. When your son is twelve years old, he will likely be as you were at twelve. If you are grateful and diligent, so will he be—but if you are lazy, he will inherit that bad habit. If you practice playing a musical instrument diligently, he will do the same. Whatever you work hard at, he will also work hard at. Your example teaches more than your words ever will.

The habits you form today will shape you into the man you will become tomorrow, and that will affect your children. You may think, “I am just a child, I will deal with this or that when I grow up.” But the days will come quickly, and suddenly, you will be an adult doing the same things you did as a child. So start today to change your ways—there is little chance to change them tomorrow.

Have a vision of doing things as a man, and these wise visions will help you build good relationships and true wealth. Each day, you are laying bricks of character that will harden like cement—if it is bad, it will be difficult to remove even for future generations.

Good character is like making a savings deposit into your children’s account. If you understand this lesson, you will avoid many pitfalls. Boys can change things more easily than older men. Examine your life honestly and carefully—ask your friends or parents about your strengths and weaknesses. Pray that God will make you the man He wants you to be, and then start changing your ways today.

Can a son lead prayers and read God’s Word and be blessed? Can he delegate tasks to his siblings? There must be a schedule for all children to work at home.

Helping the disabled and not mocking or ridiculing them is essential. Where I live, a man from East Africa and his wife used to mock disabled people with large heads and brain disorders while working. When they got married and had their first child, he was born with a severe disability—a urinary tract deformity that required them to live in the hospital. People said, “Now they don’t have to look far to mock; they have something to mock right in their home!” They became humble and more understanding of others’ suffering. It is true that sometimes we face disabilities even if we did not mock others—because we do not fully understand God’s will—but when we mock people’s suffering, our conscience condemns us.

If you want to be a cheerful and hardworking person, your children will follow suit. They will love work like their father and be cheerful. You might ask, “How is it that I am a young man, yet they do not see me now?” God’s plan for living is that a good tree produces good fruit—not by chance but by a heavenly principle.

Does a child understand what evil is? Does he know that the Ten Commandments are the standard of righteousness? Does he understand God's mercy and the importance of treating others fairly, or is he prejudiced? For God desires us to walk in justice, mercy, and humility. Can he correct his siblings? Does he get angry and hold grudges against them? Does he resist correction? He should know how to manage his household well. Children should be given tasks appropriate to their age, such as cleaning the car, mowing the lawn, or farming.

Self-denial is crucial because the Garden of Eden was lost due to failing to control the desire for food and gluttony. A child should be taught to avoid this. He should guard his heart and thoughts by not watching harmful programs on television, phones, or computers.

He should avoid getting into debt. Discuss the dangers of debt and how to avoid it, especially in these days of credit card debt. If possible, he should pay off any debts and learn to give offerings and tithes. He should not be quick-tempered: "A man without self-control is like a city broken into and left without walls" (Proverbs 25:28). Even a young child should learn to wait patiently without anger when playing with others.

Uncontrolled anger can harm a wife, children, or even the young man himself. If he struggles to control his temper, teach him "not to be anxious about anything, but in everything, by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known to God, and the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and minds" (Philippians 4:6-7). Encourage him to focus on what is true, noble, right, pure, lovely, admirable, excellent, and praiseworthy and to think about such things.

He should learn how to care for the family and develop good manners, as these do not come naturally without practice. He should learn to say "sorry," "excuse me," "thank you," "please," "forgive me," and "may I." He should be taught not to oppress those under him because many children who are mistreated by their parents continue that behavior. Let him go before God to renounce those forces of darkness, so that any curse is broken and does not pass to the third and fourth generation.

Does he waste time on social media or the internet? Is he learning the habits of a diligent person? Can you trust him to complete tasks without being distracted by technology? Do his close friends love God, or does he associate with wicked people like Delilah? Does he know how to maintain healthy friendships with girls without engaging in inappropriate relationships? What character traits should he avoid in friends?

Does he make excuses to skip worship services? Does he frequently leave to get water or go to the restroom during worship? Does he trust in God, or does he grumble when things go wrong? Can he complete the work given to him, like Noah or Nehemiah? Can he fulfill his promises like Elkanah and his wife? Or is he easily distracted? Does he leave his belongings scattered everywhere—even leaving his trousers on the floor right where he took them off?

Sometimes parents are busy serving others, and the child seeks attention in ways the parents may not notice. I learned this from the preacher Billy Graham. While he was very famous, his children would sit near the gate of their house and ask visitors for money or items before they met the preacher. Feeling ashamed, the guests would give the children these things without reporting it to him. This behavior was like that of Gehazi, the servant of Elisha, who asked for clothes and silver, tainting the work of a servant. The preacher eventually discovered this. If you are a parent with a public role or responsibilities that attract visitors, observe how your children interact with people to protect them from certain evils.

Can he be as hospitable as Abraham, welcoming strangers and receiving blessings? Study the importance of hospitality toward guests and family. Is he afraid to answer the phone, respond to letters, or open the door for guests? “Behold, I stand at the door and knock.” Today, we may not receive physical visitors often, but sometimes phone calls are from people who need our counsel or assistance. I have learned that many times, it is those people who bless me, rather than the other way around—just like Abraham, who was blessed by the stranger. Let the child learn to be a servant and not to avoid guests.

A young man who does not know how to earn a living is worse than an unbeliever. Although women also earn their livelihood today, this is primarily a man’s responsibility. This requires a man not to be selfish, and as parents, we should help our sons become responsible providers. Let them assist their younger siblings, grandparents, and family projects. Discuss the family budget and how they can find small jobs.

Can he earn his own bride price? Does he understand his duty to care for elderly parents? Does he help with household chores faithfully? Is he generous in assisting those in need and showing others how to do so? Teach him to be a good listener and not to interrupt others’ conversations.

Does he remember to pray for others, or does he only bring his problems to God? Does he know how to confess his sins when he is wrong? Can he share his salvation testimony in a few minutes, including relevant Bible verses?

What kind of woman does he want to marry? Does he respect girls as future wives and protect them from evil and impurity so that they remain virgins for their husbands?

Although we try our best, we must leave the rest to God, who is almighty. We may not understand why certain things happen, but in time, we often see their rewards.

A young man who lives according to God's laws and judgments will reap the blessings of children who love God in the future (Proverbs 22:6). Therefore, when tempted to do evil or act foolishly, such as breaking the law, think about your decisions and how they will affect future generations—even the third and fourth. Determine to live with integrity for the sake of future generations. You will live without regrets, and it will become a strong foundation for your children and grandchildren, as the Lord permits. Let us remember that God is patient, full of mercy, and forgives sin.

What should a young man's relationship with alcohol be? The answer is: "Do not put even a drop of alcohol to your lips." He should not wear clothing with alcohol advertisements, listen to alcohol commercials, or go where alcohol is sold. He should not mock drunkards because sin is a sorrowful thing. Refuse to give the excuse that drinking is necessary. Even if you do not plan to drink, recognize that it is a temptation. Tell your friends lovingly that you will not drink because you honor God. Proverbs 23:32 says, "Stay away from any intoxicant as you would stay away from a snake." Forty percent of drinkers become alcoholics. If you had a dog that bit two out of five visitors, would you keep it?

A son should understand why he is disciplined or corrected—to guide him in the right path of wisdom. A son who loves his parents will be grateful when they correct him. Avoid being led astray by peer pressure, as it ruined Samson. Loving God, walking in His ways, and serving Him with our hearts, minds, strength, and spirit is true wisdom. His words should be seasoned with grace so he knows how to answer others because words reveal character and what fills his heart. Purity of heart, speech, and actions is essential.

Raising a Girl to Become a Proverbs 31 Woman – Lessons for Mothers and Daughters

David, the writer of Psalms, speaks words of blessing in Psalm 144:11-15, “May our sons in their youth be like well-nurtured plants, and our daughters like pillars carved to adorn a palace…” Without a doubt, raising our daughters to maturity while pleasing God is a tremendous blessing. Many parents, due to their busy schedules, are tempted to let their children raise themselves. God did not give us children to neglect them. Parenting is a serious responsibility, greater than many of us imagine. As mothers, we cannot leave our children, even those in high school, alone at home while we are busy or constantly traveling.

Some of us work shifts, others move around frequently, leaving our children alone – this is a mistake. A child’s thoughts wander easily. They might visit neighbors or engage in inappropriate activities. The life of Dinah, Jacob’s daughter, is an example. Children may begin to do wrong, but do not be the one to create the cracks. Some parents send their young children abroad and leave them alone without parental guidance. Many fail to finish school, but what is even more heartbreaking is that many abandon their faith. Some enter into strange marriages to obtain work permits, face conflicts with the locals, and others are left broken and exhausted. Solomon says that foolishness is bound up in the heart of a child.

Nowadays, higher education and moving to Western countries have become idols. A God-fearing life requires effort and intention. Do not leave your child in someone else’s care unless it is an emergency, because you will end up blaming that person. Children are curious and like to experiment to see what will happen—even if the caregiver is a good person, they cannot care for your child like you can. We once met a high school girl who had been raised far from her parents. She did not greet people, show gratitude when treated kindly, or respond when spoken to. We thought she was mute or deaf, but we later realized her behavior was due to poor upbringing and ignorance. Some said she was just “shy,” but there is a difference between shyness and rudeness.

Our daughters need training because, in the future, they will be responsible for raising their own children and communicating effectively with their husbands and in-laws. Can you accidentally step on someone’s foot and not say “sorry”? Anyone who wants to be a citizen of the kingdom of God must know how to share the Good News with others. Will she remain silent out of embarrassment but know how to bargain for a better price at the market? Proverbs 31 describes many qualities a woman should possess, and these lessons start in childhood—not adulthood. Some claim that the Proverbs 31 woman is a combination of many women, but we see that while she has helpers, she is the one who organizes and plans her household. As parents, especially mothers, we must study Proverbs 31 in depth and model it for our daughters.

Mama Pam Foster from doorpost.org has elaborated on this woman in detail. We have adapted her questions for you to discuss with your daughter daily and teach her the lessons from Proverbs 31. It is beneficial to read the entire books of Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and Psalms together. Take time to read the Bible every evening for three years, focusing on one chapter per day, reflecting on it, and asking questions. This practice will help shape your child's character. There is no better parenting guide than the Word of God. God is the perfect parent, while human parents are sinners raising other sinners.

Does your child understand that the six days of creation and the Sabbath rest are foundational to the teachings of the Bible? Today, evolutionary theories have caused many of our daughters to lose their sense of worth, forgetting they were created by God. The days described in Genesis 1 are literal 24-hour days, not millions of years. The first lesson for our children is obedience—we repeat, "Obedience is the first lesson!" Obedience to God's instructions and parental authority is crucial. We must remember that these words in Proverbs 31 were spoken by Solomon's mother, advising her son on how to identify a virtuous woman. In contrast, Proverbs 7 describes the "strange woman," who is the opposite of the Proverbs 31 woman.

As women, we must be prayerful, vigilant, and intentional about parenting. We should have clear plans and goals for raising our daughters and write them down. If we want Proverbs 31 daughters, they must see that example in us. Let us pray for strength and commit to guiding and supporting our daughters. Our daughters need to learn obedience, discipline, self-denial, diligence, cleanliness, and practical skills. We all desire to have daughters who are spiritually, intellectually, socially, economically, and physically mature.

The Proverbs 31 woman is described in great detail. She prepares food, sews clothes for her family, engages in entrepreneurship, buys land, plants vineyards, and helps those in need. She is an admired woman. Men would love to have a sister, mother, daughter, or wife like her. Even an unbelieving husband can be influenced by such a woman. Women play a significant role in shaping future generations. We see this in Timothy, a great preacher who received his faith from his grandmother Lois and his mother Eunice. Let us not grow weary in doing good, for we will reap a harvest in due time if we do not give up.

Some women have become discouraged due to the hardships of life. One woman even said, "I have drunk from the bitter cup." It is true that life can be challenging, but we must not lose heart. Even if our family members do not praise or appreciate us, our calling by the grace of God is to live as Proverbs 31 women and to go into all the world and make disciples of all nations.

These lessons must be taught to our daughters as they grow. Perhaps we should have fewer material possessions so we can invest in our children's eternal inheritance rather than earthly wealth. It is not just about academic education—home education matters too. It is wise to establish a structured plan to nurture both character and academic growth in our children. After all, the wisdom of this world, which we often prioritize, is foolishness to God (1 Corinthians 3:19). You can integrate these teachings into your prayer life, ask thoughtful questions, engage in practical activities, hold discussions, memorize Scripture, and evaluate progress regularly. This holistic approach will help your daughter grow spiritually in every area you aim to develop.

"Charm is deceptive, and beauty is fleeting; but a woman who fears the Lord is to be praised. A wife of noble character who can find? She is worth far more than rubies." – Proverbs 31:10. This verse encourages us to pray for our daughters to have humble and gentle hearts before God, to be willing to listen, and to obey His Word. Give your daughters the opportunity to interview a godly grandmother or mother who loves the Lord and seeks His counsel. Allow them to speak with their father or uncles and ask what qualities attracted them to the women they married. Who are the women in the Bible who exemplify these qualities? Consider women like Deborah, Esther, Huldah, Elizabeth, Job's wife, Ruth, Lot's daughters, Tamar, Sapphira, Gomer, Priscilla, Abigail, Jezebel, Bathsheba, Rachel, and Rebekah.

Read Titus 2 and make a list of the qualities of a God-fearing woman. Study 1 Timothy 5:3-10, which outlines the criteria for honoring and supporting widows. Ask yourself reflective questions about your daughter: Does she love God, and is her salvation important to her? Does she enjoy reading the Bible, or does she only listen when others read to her? Does she understand God's Word and seek to obey it? Does she have a personal relationship with God? When she makes mistakes, does she feel remorse and seek forgiveness from God and those she has wronged? Is she drawn to the world's ways in how she dresses, the games she plays, and her outlook on life? Does she have any weaknesses of character? What steps is she taking to overcome them? Do the fruits of the Spirit as described in Galatians 5:22-23 manifest in her life? Is she growing to reflect the virtues found in Proverbs 31 and Titus 2? Does she have goals that honor God and seek to serve her family, or is she self-centered and pursuing her own pleasures?

"Her husband has full confidence in her and lacks nothing of value." – Proverbs 31:11. A husband trusts his wife when she takes her responsibilities seriously. We must prepare our daughters by training them in this mindset. A daughter's education begins at home. Teach her household skills and arrange for her to learn from a diligent, faithful woman. Encourage her to ask, "Why is it important to work with integrity?" Discuss examples of faithfulness from the Bible, including Abraham, Joseph, Daniel, Naaman's servant girl, Delilah, Michal, Potiphar's wife, Haman's wife, Herodias, Eve, and Tabitha. The era of formal initiation ceremonies for girls has passed—today, it is up to parents and the faith community to instruct them. Do not delegate this responsibility to an aunt or sister-in-law.

Young girls often face the temptation to gossip and flatter. As parents, we must model truthfulness, avoid slander, jealousy, anger, pride, and hypocrisy in our speech and actions. Encourage her to interview someone at church: "Why do you trust this person and not that one?" Can you trust your daughter to speak truthfully, or does she mix truth with falsehood? Does she keep her promises? If she lies, does she try to cover it with another lie? Does she speak negatively about others behind their backs? Does she return borrowed items? Is she trustworthy in relationships and goals, or does she deceive herself? Does she use flattery or manipulation to get what she wants? Does she claim, "I was just joking," when caught doing wrong? Does she speak thoughtlessly, criticizing others without kindness? Is she comfortable approaching you with sensitive matters?

Discuss questions like, "Why is it wrong for a wife to speak poorly of her husband, parents, or others?" and "Why should a student avoid speaking negatively about their teacher?" Faithfulness is essential both in childhood and adulthood. Discuss the consequences of divorce, and encourage her to write an essay on the topic. Is she willing to help a friend who is struggling with love and humility rather than criticizing them publicly? Does she hold grudges or end friendships easily? Is she possessive of her friends, or does she allow them to befriend others? Does she forgive quickly? Does she value the opinions of her friends and younger siblings? Is she jealous when others succeed? Is she faithful in guarding her purity, preserving herself for her future husband? Does she understand that marriage is a lifetime commitment?

As a girl, being a good listener is a vital quality, especially when she becomes a wife. She should practice listening attentively without interrupting, arguing, or dominating conversations. A wife listens to her husband as the leader of the household and engages in discussions about family matters. Her children will also need her attentive ear—this is a skill she must learn and cultivate. Many women need to listen more and speak less. Gossip, criticism, and nagging often stem from talking excessively instead of listening. Teach your daughters the value of listening, drawing from the books of Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, Psalms, and Paul's letters. Observe people you consider wise—how do they speak and listen? What can your daughter learn from them?

Why is it important for a wife to listen to her husband and children before responding? Encourage her to write an essay on the importance of listening to a husband or child. Reflect as a parent: Does she listen to God's voice and obey the Holy Spirit's prompting? Does she pay attention to sermons and remember their messages? Does she listen respectfully when you or her father speak to her? Does she show humility and attentiveness when being corrected? Does she remember instructions and follow through? Is she eager to give advice before hearing the full story? Does she dominate conversations, or does she listen carefully?

A young woman should embody love and selflessness. Encourage her to memorize 1 Corinthians 13:4-8 and recite it within two weeks. If she truly loves others, how will she treat them? If she loves God and desires to do His will, how will it be evident? How can she show love to her siblings, parents, grandparents, aunts, and uncles? How should she treat her "enemies," according to God's Word? Titus 2 encourages older widows to teach younger women to love their husbands. Love is also something that must be taught, and it is essential that we teach our daughters, especially in today's self-centered world. Many people today say, "I am doing this for myself," or "I am always doing things for others, now it is time to focus on me." Widows who remember their husbands often express deep appreciation, saying, "If only I had known."

Read together and discuss the three types of love (Phileo—brotherly love, Agape—God's love, and Eros—romantic love between a husband and wife). How do these types of love differ?

Does she show patience when others make mistakes, or does she get angry quickly?
Does she show God's love to others even when she disagrees with them?
Is she willing to overlook small offenses from others?
Does she get along with others, work cooperatively, and do people enjoy being her friend?
Does she prioritize helping others' needs before her own, or does she put herself first before her siblings or friends?
Does she rush to take the best seat, the biggest piece of bread, or the nicest toy so that others do not get it?
Does she focus excessively on the weaknesses and faults of others?
Does she criticize her friends publicly?

Does she seek to build others up, or does she like to boast and praise herself?
Does she hold on to others' mistakes and remember them often?
Does she laugh and take pleasure when others face punishment?
Does she seek opportunities to serve others, or does she want to be served herself?
Does she show love even to those who wish to harm or undermine her?

Obedience and having good manners are very important for a young girl. Let us prepare our daughters to obey God.
To live a life of peace and joy, it is essential to obey a husband if God has appointed her to marry. Arguments, sulking, constant complaining, and trying to dominate others are not good qualities. We have all sinned and fallen short of the glory of God, but we must rise again.

Our mother Eve, by not obeying and staying close to her husband, became the first sinner in the world. Often, we think men have more vices and sins like murder, robbery, and lying. However, let us remember it was a woman's disobedience that brought us to where we are! The man also has his duty—to love his wife as Christ loved the Church and gave Himself for it. This is perhaps a greater task than what is asked of the woman if performed as required.

I once heard a mother say that men are more generous than women. I was surprised, but later realized it was true because most governmental programs of social welfare or international aid are often managed by men! Therefore, mothers, let us teach our daughters generosity and the unique roles of each gender so that this teaching reaches our grandchildren as well. On the negative side, women often quarrel with people nearby, like neighbors, while men go to war and engage in larger conflicts. All these things, the Proverbs 31 woman should understand to guide her children wisely.

Barbara, the wife of former U.S. President George H.W. Bush, reportedly said when her son became President, "I have ruled the world twice—first when my husband was president, and now my son!" This woman recognized that a mother holds a certain position, not necessarily the one given to a man, but she has her own portion.

In the model God gave us, it is not difficult to obey a husband because it appears that he bears the greater responsibility in marriage while the woman is the helper. Obeying a husband brings great joy and is a command from God. If you do not believe this, ask a mother whose daughter-in-law does not respect her son, and she will tell you how painful that situation is.

A girl must understand God's command in Ephesians 6:1, "Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right."

In what ways can a girl demonstrate obedience to her parents?
What other authorities besides parents should she obey? (Church, government, workplace, etc.)
Read the Bible and study the examples of those who obeyed and those who did not—such as Achan, Cain, Noah, and Jacob. Read Deuteronomy 28.

Why can God's name be dishonored by a disobedient child or wife?
Does she obey promptly, without arguing or complaining?
Does she carry out instructions cheerfully, or does she respond with a bad attitude?
Does her facial expression show a spirit of humility before God and the authorities He has placed in her life?
Do her actions reflect obedience?
Does she obey other authorities you have entrusted with her care, such as a nanny, aunt, or teacher?
Does she understand that God is the ultimate authority?
Does she value your decisions even when they do not always make sense to her?
Does she know how to appeal respectfully if she wishes to be heard again?
Does she show respect to police officers, teachers, and government authorities?
Does she spend time learning and obeying God's Word?
Does she obey whether you are present or absent?
Does she obey joyfully or grudgingly?

Maintaining peace at home is crucial for a young girl.
Girlhood is a preparation ground for how she will conduct herself in the world. Good relationships are a gift from God, and preserving and nurturing them is a responsibility. Let us teach our daughters to avoid sulking, holding grudges against parents, or harboring bitterness toward their siblings. Hatred or malice is not a good thing. We must forgive to bring healing, growth, and spiritual maturity. Read about reconciliation, conflicts, warnings, and quarrelsome women in the book of Proverbs.

How should an enemy be treated?
Let your daughter write about forgiving others and being forgiven. Study God's Word and the examples of forgiveness and reconciliation. We may know the Word of God, but without practicing forgiveness, we will face much pain, broken relationships, and even risk eternal separation from God if we are not careful.

A girl's relationships within her family prepare her to maintain healthy relationships with her own family in the future.

Do the parents model reconciliation and forgiveness, or do they enjoy quarrels? As a mother, reflect on where you may need to offer correction. Discuss the quarrelsome woman in Proverbs and other examples in the Bible—Sara and Hagar, Rachel and Leah with Jacob, Peninnah and Hannah, Michal and David, Miriam and Moses, Job and his wife, Euodia and Syntyche. What were their conflicts about? What were the results? What can we learn?

Read Hebrews 12:15-16 and discuss with your daughter. Discuss anger, revenge, forgiveness, and patience.

Does she get along well with her siblings, or is she always arguing while defending her "rights"?
Is she quick to speak, or does she listen when corrected?
When in conflict, does she examine her own heart to see if she is at fault?
Does she forgive others, knowing she also makes mistakes?

Is she willing to approach someone who wronged her and seek reconciliation?
Does she desire peace, or does she hold onto grudges?
Does she know how to resolve issues without causing more conflict?
Does she pray before discussing reconciliation?
Is she willing to be reconciled even if it requires multiple attempts?
Does she seek peace quickly, or does she harbor anger for a long time?

These lessons are essential, as she will be wronged by her husband or children in the future, and she will also wrong them. Therefore, she must learn to foster peace while growing up.

Humility is essential—submitting to God's authority allows His Spirit to work in her life. She should be open to correction without argument and willing to confess her faults.

Living a pure life—thoughts, words, and deeds—is vital for her now and when she has her own household. Teach her to pray daily to obey God and resist temptation.

What is temptation? Why do we sin, and what are the consequences of sin?Read together from the Word about sin, the life of darkness, and the relationships associated with sin. How many have sinned? What is the wage of sin? Who overcame temptation, and who avoided it?

Read Proverbs 7 and learn how to avoid the behavior of the adulterous woman.

Does she know that there is a battle between Satan and God and that she is involved? Does she know where Satan came from? Does she understand that when she has problems, she should not go to witch doctors or sorcerers but to God-fearing people?

Does she know why she is here on earth?
Does she understand how to achieve victory? Does she know how to use the Word of God to overcome temptation? Does she avoid places with traps of temptation, or does she put herself in harm's way?

Does she choose friends who love God, or does she associate with those who lead her into evil?
Does she know how to flee from temptation? Does she accept counsel about bad friends? Does she obey you in everything, such as curfew times and activities to engage in?

Does she have a habit of flirting with boys or using questionable language that may cause people to suspect her of immoral behavior?
Does she pray to God to help her avoid sin? Does she avoid having boyfriends and understand that dating is not pure, but courtship is?

Does she use her time wisely, or does she read inappropriate books or watch indecent images?
Does she waste her time daydreaming about unproductive things? Does she come to you with sensitive questions appropriate to her age, or is she afraid to ask you (about relationships, bad friends, etc.)?

It is essential to teach our daughters patience and the virtues of heavenly behavior.
We should teach them while they are young before they mature. They should be patient in many areas, for example, by not starting romantic relationships early but following the plan of courtship. We do not recommend starting courtship until they are mature—around the age of 18—but it is advisable that they become independent to avoid being a burden.

General friends are often the ones they will marry.
She should avoid secret conversations with boys, giving them false hope of an improper relationship. It is best to be transparent about everything happening because parents have significant experience, especially in today's world, to help their daughters avoid sorrowful marriages.

Mothers should be ready to discuss these matters openly.
Your child cannot learn from someone else as well as they can from you. It is wise for a mother to help her daughter establish standards for the kind of husband she wants to marry, ensuring she is ready to obey and respect him. Look at examples like Isaac and Rebekah, David and Michal, Esau, Samson, and Solomon.

Read books like “I Kissed Dating Goodbye” by Joshua Harris and discuss the dangers of dating and the benefits of courtship.

Is she willing to listen to your advice about choosing a life partner?
Does she believe that God will help her find a spouse, or does she want to rush the process? Is she willing to grow spiritually to build a better home, or is she desperate to get married quickly?

Does she read romance novels that spread false teachings about love and marriage?
Is she committed to preserving herself by avoiding sexual temptations found in music, books, images, friends, and movies?

Has she come to you with questions about God’s plan for sex and sexual purity?
Does she understand God’s purpose for sex? Has she grasped what it means to mature as a young woman by rejecting lies and learning how to maintain purity?

Take time to discuss these matters regularly, not just once.
Is she prepared to live her entire life alone if God has called her to a life of singleness?

Selflessness is crucial for a young woman.
Look at the life of Ruth and how she devoted herself to her husband and his family, ultimately receiving a blessing. A daughter should respect her parents while she is young and living under their care.

Does she respect her elders?
Does she mock or disregard them? Does she expect her grandparents to help her but refuses to do anything for them in return?

Does she listen respectfully to her uncles, aunts, and other elders?
Does she reach out to her grandparents for advice? Does she regularly communicate with them? Parents must set an example by loving and respecting their own parents.

Does she willingly help the elderly in her community?

Does she express gratitude to relatives who assist her, or does she take their help for granted?
“She selects wool and flax and works with eager hands.” (Proverbs 31:13)
We should teach our daughters to be industrious and diligent. “The one who is unwilling to work shall not eat.” They must work whether they feel like it or not!

Daughters should learn to work with their hands, complete their schoolwork, and follow a daily to-do list.
Tasks could include feeding chickens, making the bed, doing laundry, sweeping, mopping, and caring for animals.

Learn from ants, bees, and other creatures about the importance of hard work.
Take time to observe these creatures with your daughter. Let her see you working diligently so she can learn to do the same without laziness.

Assign extra tasks for small payments if you can afford to.
If possible, let her open a savings account to learn how to manage money wisely.

Study the dangers of oversleeping and laziness.
Examine the lives of Joseph, Nehemiah, Daniel, Ruth, or Tabitha. Consider the examples of Rachel and Rebekah, who worked hard before being courted.

Give her a section of the garden to manage.
Study the discipline of athletes, scientists, writers, and inventors and the hours they dedicate to their work. Observe diligent women you know and the things they do. What are the consequences of laziness?Ask yourself these questions:Does she do her best work?Does she only work when being watched?Does she complain or expect rewards for basic tasks?Does she wait for others to do the work, offering excuses?Does she complete her daily tasks without reminders?Does she check her work before reporting it, or does she rush through it?Does she take care of her belongings?Does she return things to their place after using them?Does she procrastinate or give up when the work gets tough?

“She is like the merchant ships, bringing her food from afar; she also rises while it is yet night;” (Verse 14). The qualities of entrepreneurship, diligence in work, and managing resources are very important. A girl should be taught to work with her hands, how to manage money, how to make a budget, and how to shop at the market or store. If possible, she should compare prices in different markets before purchasing. She should be taught the dangers of wastefulness and misusing resources. She should know how to buy nutritious but affordable food.

Teach her business skills, how to determine the value of items, and how to bargain when possible. Does buying in bulk or larger quantities reduce costs? If she cooks a large amount of food and portions it for two days, does it help save money? Teach her how to shop wisely and how to save money. She should be taught gardening to reduce the need to buy everything, especially vegetables.

Does she know how to find good second-hand clothes and clean or repair them to make them presentable for herself or her younger siblings? Many families spend a lot on expensive recreation; does she know affordable and appropriate leisure activities? I observed in Dar es Salaam how Indian families would go to the beach to enjoy the breeze and eat cassava chips or drink coconut water at a reasonable price. Meanwhile, other families would go to expensive entertainment venues, eating fried chicken at big hotels, along with soda, pizza, ice cream, and other costly and unhealthy foods. It is essential to teach our children these lessons.

Can she store and repurpose leftover food properly? For example, can she make soup from leftover vegetables and beans by adding other ingredients? If unexpected guests arrive, does she know how to stretch a small amount of food to serve many? Teach her how to raise egg-laying chickens or dairy cows if possible. A girl should also learn how to preserve food during the dry season.

In the past, many communities dried vegetables, sweet potatoes, and other foods, but nowadays, this knowledge is fading. During the rainy season, we have an abundance of vegetables, but during the dry season, there are shortages. Observe if she buys unnecessary items without thinking. Does she fall for advertising that encourages impulse purchases? Is she willing to buy items on sale or wait patiently for better deals?

Does she know how to sew, knit, and engage in other skills to reduce household expenses? If you send her to the market, can she compare prices and bring back affordable and quality goods? If you give her a shopping list, does she follow it or buy items not on the list? When shopping, can she distinguish between nutritious food and junk food? Can she stick to a budget and use it wisely? Does she neglect her belongings, allowing them to spoil or get damaged?

A girl should also be taught how to manage time effectively. Time is a valuable gift given to everyone. Children should be taught how to manage their time and redeem it to serve their husband, children, community, and church. Teach her how to plan her time for household tasks. Assign her projects with deadlines. Make a list together of tasks that can be completed in five, ten, or fifteen minutes. Time management is a precious skill.

Encourage her to carry a book to read while waiting for a bus or to knit or do something useful. Provide her with books that will help her improve her life (lifelong learning). Consider how time played a vital role in the creation story in Genesis 1. Create a daily schedule together, including waking up, brushing teeth, bathing, and reading the Word of God. Let her interview older people about what they would do differently if they could go back to their youth.

What regrets do they have about wasting time or neglecting responsibilities? What time-saving shortcuts can she use when cooking, cleaning, or sewing? How did biblical figures like David, Josiah, Christ, Daniel, Miriam, Joseph, Moses, and Samuel use their time wisely? Make a list of activities that are limited to certain seasons of a girl's life, such as education, childbearing, marriage, and old age. Ask her if she is doing what is appropriate for her current stage of life.

Buy her a planner and a monthly calendar and review them weekly. Ask yourself if she is using her time wisely to plan for the future or if she is merely daydreaming. Is she investing her time in eternity by reading God's Word and praying? Does she follow a daily schedule, or does she spend her time aimlessly? How does she use her leisure time? Does she waste time on her phone, TV, or computer? When given a task, does she waste time or manage it well? Does she spend too much time grooming herself? Does she sleep according to a set schedule? Does she arrive early at church, school, or other appointments?

Does she procrastinate, saying, "I will do it tomorrow," or wait until the last minute? Can she multitask, for instance, preparing vegetables while waiting for beans to cook, or does she sit idle? Is she actively seeking productive ways to use her time wisely?

As a girl and eventually a mother who will care for her husband and children, it is crucial for her to know how to do laundry, maintain personal hygiene, cook, and handle all domestic responsibilities. Can she delegate tasks to her younger siblings and, in the future, instruct a household helper without wasting time?

Observe how you manage tasks and teach her to do the same. Encourage her to invest in household tools little by little as she earns money. These may include a sewing machine, needles, a hoe, cooking pots, and other essentials. Does she know how to use a sewing machine and repair her clothes? Can she use a needle to mend garments, sew buttons, or knit cloths? Can she read patterns for a sweater, a knitted cloth, or a sewn garment?

Work with your daughter on a project, such as decorating a wedding hall, and write down the steps to complete it. Reflect on the lives of Joseph, Deborah, and Daniel. How did God prepare them to become leaders? God is also preparing our girls to take on family responsibilities and beyond.

Does she complete the tasks you assign her? Can she break down large projects into smaller tasks and delegate them to others (delegation)? Does she teach her younger siblings patiently? When given a shared task, does she want to do everything herself, or does she cooperate with others? Can she follow directions accurately? Can she inspect the work of others under her supervision?

Does she lead others with humility, or does she oppress them by asserting her authority? Does she work alongside her younger siblings or merely watch them? Do others enjoy working with her, or do they avoid her?

A woman can cook 1,000 meals a year, and many people remember their mothers' cooking. It is important to teach our children how to cook well. Let us also learn recipes from other tribes and plan meals based on what we grow and what is available in that season. Does she know how much each family member should eat? Nowadays, with globalization, one can access recipes from various sources like books, websites, and more. Could you and she write your own simple recipe book for your church?

Experts say that any recipe with more than seven ingredients is not healthy. Teach her to cook, not with too many spices but for health first, then taste, and later presentation. Some recipes take a short time to prepare, while others are more cost-effective. Ask friends, church members, and relatives for new recipes, collect and write them down. You could volunteer to hold a cooking class once a month for about three hours at your church.

What kitchen tools are necessary for cooking? Can you learn how to bake bread, make jam, or peanut butter? Look through cooking magazines. Ask mothers, "Why is mealtime important?" Does she know how to bake? Fry? Boil? Can she use kitchen appliances skillfully, safely, and maintain them properly? Can she follow a recipe correctly? Can she double the portions if needed, for instance, making ugali for six people instead of three? Can she manage time and serve food on the table promptly? How does she know if the food is cooked properly? Does she clean the utensils she used after cooking? If the mother falls sick, can she manage everything by herself? Can she prepare tasty and appealing food? Are the people she cooks for more important than the food itself? Does she prefer expensive, decorative dishes instead of being economical and cooking nutritious meals? Can she budget for a month's worth of food? Does she collect good recipes and learn those that are practical? Does she know how to cook for people with special health needs like diabetes, allergies, heart disease, or high blood pressure? Does she enjoy developing her cooking talent and selling food? As a mother, are you willing to help her start a small food business (restaurant)? What other factors are important about food besides good nutrition and taste?

Another key area is organizing things. Proverbs 31:15 mentions planning the home properly, which promotes peace of mind and reflects God's nature of order and beauty. Guests love to return when our homes are calm and well-arranged. A girl who learns to organize from a young age will be an asset to her family and workplace.

Some people are naturally gifted in organizing, like women from the Far East, who arrange flowers effortlessly, but most of us need to be taught and encouraged repeatedly. If you as a mother are not naturally organized—like me—seek help by reading and learning from others.

The first law in heaven is order. 1 Corinthians 14:40 says everything should be done in an orderly manner. Teach young girls to return their toys after playing. Let them learn to make their beds. Plan your day in the morning and even write down your tasks, or else the day will end without accomplishing much. Learn how to schedule plans in a calendar or notebook. Teach children to organize their books, pictures, dolls, study desks, letters, and schoolwork. Teach them to set long-term and short-term goals.

Organize the kitchen, their cabinets, and bookshelves together while teaching them how to prioritize. When planning a trip, involve them in organizing what to pack, maps, booking hotels, making necessary calls, travel dates, and the route to follow. Plan with your child for hosting guests or a small party. Set a budget and follow it. Plan games, decorations, and how to raise funds for the party. If possible, read books like Don Aslet's "Clutter's Last Stand" or "Clutter-Free."

Visit homes of well-organized women and, with their permission, observe how they arrange their kitchen, cabinets, or living rooms. Organize household records such as health documents (vaccination records, first aid information, and doctor's appointments). Also, keep certificates like birth certificates and school reports in a specific place.

Get a new file and divide it into sections to record phone numbers and addresses, calendar appointments like sports and events, babysitter instructions, and children's clothing sizes—each on its own page. Keep this file in an easily accessible place for reference. Identify disorganized areas in your home and work together to improve them.

Give your daughter tasks like organizing photo albums and labeling pictures. Together, arrange receipts, insurance papers, or teaching materials for church. Help her organize her room and decorate it affordably. Check out www.Titus2.com for resources on managing homes. Ask your daughter to write an essay on "The Value of an Organized Home."

Does she return everything to its place, or does she leave her clothes on the floor at night? Does she pile things up instead of organizing them? Is her wardrobe, purse, or school bag in order? Can she pack her luggage neatly for a school holiday? Does she throw things carelessly? Does she struggle to find items like needles, thread, schoolwork, or shoes? Can she tidy up a messy area? Can she prioritize tasks? Does she hoard junk and refuse to let go of unnecessary items? Can she keep track of appointments, addresses, and phone numbers without losing them? Is she so mentally fixed on her plans that she gets frustrated if they change? Can you trust her to manage the house for a day if you leave? Does she write down her long-term plans?

"She considers a field and buys it; from her earnings she plants a vineyard." (Proverbs 31:16). This verse emphasizes planning when buying items, managing seeds, and organizing the farm for efficiency and better yields. Even as a child, she can do small tasks like washing dishes, doing laundry, cleaning the house, caring for younger siblings, running errands, and changing baby diapers. Doing small tasks will prepare her to organize bigger things in the future.

Many people emphasize school, and that is good, but children study mainly to get jobs eventually. Everything they do has meaning for the heavenly King's glory and also builds character, which is the only thing they will take to heaven. We should not despise small beginnings because they shape our children into strong and courageous women. A girl should start setting goals for tasks to complete before playing. Assign her small tasks to do and plan with her as she grows.

By the age of 14 and above, she can start setting small goals, even entrepreneurial ones. Does she have spiritual goals for the future, like sharing God's love? A woman's goals should align with her husband's—discuss why that is important. Is there something difficult that God wants her to do in her life? Does she desire to please God and give Him glory, focusing on eternal matters rather than temporary ones? Are her future goals aligned with God's Word or with worldly pleasures? Does she plan her daily activities and future goals and write them down? Does she agree with your family's goals and support them practically? Is she willing to forgo temporary pleasures to achieve her goals (e.g., studying for exams instead of playing)? Does she have a desire to learn new things and apply those skills? Does she know that Jesus is coming back and that it is essential to prepare for that great event?

Gardening helps in many aspects of a woman's life. It usually blesses both the gardener and others. A garden can bring beauty, provide exercise, and offer a peaceful place to relax. It does not need to be large—even in the city, friends have grown flowers or tomatoes in cans, providing enough to eat and share. The joy of planting seeds and watching them grow is invaluable. Every girl should learn to plant vegetables and flowers! She should receive practical training on how to garden effectively because it is a useful service for those in need.

Many of us with gardens have shared our produce with those in need and received blessings in return. It is good for a girl to write an essay on the benefits of having a garden. Does she know the difference between weeds and crops? When you work in the garden, do you include her? Does she know how to prepare the soil for planting and where to find agricultural knowledge? Can she manage pests that harm crops? Does she seek gardening advice from others? Have you given her a small section of the garden to cultivate? Can she plan and manage a garden for one growing season?

The virtuous woman in Proverbs, when planning to buy and plant a field, demonstrates entrepreneurship and financial wisdom. Since our daughters will grow up to manage their own finances, their husbands' resources, and help their children with various plans, financial training is essential. A child should be taught how to divide any money she receives—giving a tithe, setting aside savings, and allocating the rest for expenses. It is helpful to study stories such as the widow's offering in Mark 12, the parable of the talents in Matthew 25, and the rich fool in Luke 12.

A girl should ask others, including her parents, to share testimonies of God's blessings for those who return tithes. Lessons on the dangers of greed, trusting in wealth, debt, and wasteful spending are important. Children should be taught both short-term and long-term financial goals. How will she earn money for something she wants to buy? Parents should discuss and, if possible, support small business ideas for their children. It is crucial to teach a child that giving is better than receiving and that God blesses those who give cheerfully. If possible, open a bank account for her.

What principles should guide us when borrowing items? Can she compare prices before purchasing something? Study examples like Abraham, Job, Solomon, Zacchaeus, Sapphira, and Hezekiah. Keep a record of monthly expenses together. Create a yearly clothing budget. Discuss the proper way to lend money to others. Encourage her to interview a few women on how they manage their finances or save money.

What is the difference between tithes and offerings? Does she give tithes and offerings cheerfully? How can a wife support her husband by being a good steward of family resources? When preparing the household budget, involve her so she understands the family's monthly expenses. Which recurring expenses could be reduced or eliminated? What are the benefits of a wife staying home versus working outside the home? Does she understand that everything she has is a gift from the heavenly Father? Is she thankful to God for what she has?

Does she save money, or does she spend it carelessly? Is she generous, or does she hoard what she has? Does she live beyond her means? Does she spend money on fleeting pleasures instead of saving for the future? Can she plan a budget based on her available resources?

"She girds herself with strength and strengthens her arms" (Proverbs 31:17). Just as a soldier prepares for battle (Ephesians 6:17), so must we and our daughters. For them to understand God's Word deeply, we must teach them systematically and in an orderly way so they grasp the core doctrines of faith.

Every child should have their own Bible. By the age of seven, a child should have a personal Bible-reading time, even if only for ten minutes a day. It may be helpful to start with a Bible written in simple language. We have used the Clear Word Bible and the International Children's Bible, although there are currently no Swahili Bibles specifically for children. We have begun writing a children's Bible and Bible stories—pray for us to complete this work.

We cannot know or love God without reading His Word. Eternal life is knowing God, trusting Him, and walking with Him daily (John 17:3). Prayer is how we speak to God, while reading the Bible is how God speaks to us.

As a parent, a mother must be an example. Do your children see you reading God's Word every day? A child should begin memorizing the 66 books of the Bible in order, perhaps using a song. Encourage them to copy and memorize Scripture passages. Reading God's Word should be a daily habit, just like eating. If you feel too busy, a solution is to skip a meal until you have read the Bible—you will eventually feel hungry and remember to read it. As soon as a child learns to read, they should start reading the Bible.

Use a reading chart to track daily Bible reading—perhaps one page or one chapter a day. Study the history of how the Bible came to us and basic facts about it—for instance, the original languages, the books of the Law, history, poetry, and Psalms. The Bible was first printed in 1456 using Gutenberg's printing press, has changed countless lives, was written over 1,700 years by about 40 authors, and contains 1,189 chapters. It is not just a book of good advice or helpful thoughts—it is the voice of God and the ultimate authority in heaven and on earth!

Let the girl read the Bible and insert her name, for example, in 1 Corinthians 13. Wherever the word "love" appears, let her first insert the name of God, and then read it again, replacing "love" with her own name. Summarize the key message (theme) of each book of the Bible. Take the girl to attend Bible study classes at church. Read Psalm 119 together and discuss it. Explore different ways of studying the Bible and pray for the grace to apply what is written. Enroll the girl in Bible study courses by mail or online, such as amazingdiscoveries.org, amazingfacts.org, secretsunsealed.org, or voiceofprophecy.com. When she reads a Bible verse, encourage her to write down the following: What does this verse say? What does it mean? How can it be applied to my life? What should I do about this verse? After a week, let her evaluate if anything in her life has changed because of that verse.

Does she read the Word of God every day without being reminded? Does she have a desire to read it? Is it transforming her life and giving it meaning? Can she provide examples of how God's Word applies to her life? Does she ask questions when reading the Bible? Does she share what she learns with others? Does she seek answers to her questions from the Bible? Can she find specific verses easily? Does she have a basic understanding of the history of the Bible? Does she know how to use Bible study tools like commentaries, concordances, and cross-references? Memorizing Scripture is essential. In times of temptation, you will overcome the evil one by the promises you remember—"It is written." Hiding God's Word in your heart is the greatest weapon against sin (Psalm 119:10). The Holy Spirit will remind us of the right Scripture when we face a specific temptation. Let her start by memorizing one verse each week. Young children have excellent memories, and because their minds are not yet cluttered, memorization becomes easier. Nothing expands the mind and increases knowledge like memorizing God's Word.

Discuss the meaning of the verses she memorizes as she progresses. Good chapters to start memorizing include Psalm 23, Psalm 91, 1 Corinthians 13, the Ten Commandments, or Ephesians, which deals with relationships. You could also record her recitations. It is helpful to have a notebook where you write down what you study. Can she memorize 20 Bible verses? Teaching a girl the habit of daily prayer is crucial because, as she grows, she will know how to bring her problems to God. This habit will also help her manage family challenges in the future through prayer. Always teach those you mentor to bring their problems to God. Pray together in the morning and evening, and let her pray by herself as well. Discuss the Lord's Prayer found in Matthew 6. Whenever she feels tempted to speak negatively about someone, encourage her to pray instead.

Let her keep a small notebook to record her prayer requests and their dates. This will help her look back and thank God for answered prayers. Encourage her to pray for those in need, the government, her family, school, church, the elderly, those who are discouraged, and the sick. She should also learn to pray for those who hurt her. Every prayer should include praise, confession of sins, thanksgiving, and requests. Let her interview people of faith—missionaries or preachers—about how prayer has opened doors or how God has answered their prayers. Which women in the Bible approached Christ with specific requests? Write down God's promises and how to claim them—there are over 3,500 promises in the Bible. Encourage her to start praying for her future husband, even if she is only a young girl.

Let her read stories of faith such as those of Hannah, Moses, Solomon, Nehemiah, and David. Study the lives of Augustine, John Newton, and others who attribute their transformation to their mothers' prayers. As the girl matures, teach her the principles of fasting and prayer. Does she close her eyes when she prays? Is prayer a real conversation with God for her, or just a ritual? Does she ask for God's guidance before making decisions? Does she naturally turn to prayer when she faces problems? Does she show reverence during prayer, or is she distracted? Does she believe that God answers prayer? Do you share with her the prayers you've had answered through her? Does she express gratitude in her prayers, or is she always asking for things?

It is also crucial to teach our daughters self-control—to manage their bodies and emotions. Teach her the importance of denying herself, going to bed on time, and waking up on time. Encourage her to read the Bible and pray first thing in the morning. Teach her to eat on time and to practice good hygiene without being reminded (brushing her teeth, combing her hair, cutting her nails, bathing, and washing her clothes). She should learn to eat only when she is hungry—not out of boredom. Teach her to wait four to five hours between meals. Self-denial extends to avoiding laziness, gluttony, immodest clothing, immoral behavior, and bad company.

What kind of music does she listen to? Encourage her to ask others to point out her bad habits so that, by God's grace, she can overcome them. Does she understand the importance of a healthy diet and regular exercise, or does she eat whatever she enjoys? Does she know that the Bible emphasizes the importance of what we eat? Let her study the lives of people who practiced self-denial to achieve great things—such as Daniel, Esther, and Joseph. Ask her to write an essay on "Gluttony." Sit together in a public place and observe people. Based on their walk, their eyes, their clothing, or their posture—what kind of message are they communicating? Which individuals appear confident, disciplined, or lazy? What does the Bible say about our bodies? Study the effects of overeating or poor eating habits (junk food) and examine the dietary laws in the Old Testament from the time of Noah.

Is she trying to live a healthy and clean life without being reminded? Does she brush her teeth daily? Does she wash her underwear daily? Does she bathe daily without being told? Does she exercise and practice self-control in her diet? Does she know her body is the temple of the Holy Spirit?

Does her appearance reflect self-denial and self- respect?Does she control her body to avoid disturbing others?Does she always seem exhausted? Is she frequently sick?Does she sit with proper manners?Are there things that could help her maintain health and strength?Does she display nervous habits, such as biting her nails?Does she care about how she appears to others?Does she care too much about her appearance?It is important to teach our daughters to seek appropriate counsel. God is the ultimate counselor, but He also provides people to help us. She can ask godly older women for advice. As she grows older, she will often need guidance. It is better to humbly seek counsel than to ruin things by relying solely on oneself. God's Word in James 1 says that if anyone lacks wisdom, they should ask God, and He will give it generously. Parents should share times when they sought advice and benefited from it.

The book of Proverbs is an excellent resource, often saying, "My son, listen to my instruction…" How should she seek wise counsel for spiritual matters, household issues, social situations, or finances? Titus 2 instructs older women to mentor younger women. Study examples in the Bible of those who received both good and bad counsel.What is wisdom?Read Ephesians 5:22-24 and discuss:What does it mean for a wife to submit to her husband while seeking advice from others?How should a wife respond if her husband gives unwise counsel, like Abigail did?I remember the advice my mother gave me before finishing the 12th grade when she noticed young men coming to inquire about courtship or marriage. Even when I was in seminary—where I was the only girl—or in college studying chemistry as the only female, I encountered many young men considering marriage. My mother advised me:

“When young men come to express interest, do not respond with arrogance or rudeness, even if you are focused on your studies and do not wish to marry. Reply with kindness and respect, even to those you feel are unworthy due to their bad behavior. Kindly ask for time to think about it, and after a few days, tell them that you are still in school or have other commitments and that it will not be possible. Perhaps in a few years, your outlook will change. Since you answered kindly, they might return later, and you may find a worthy husband. Even if they do not return, they will speak well of you to others, and this good reputation may lead to a suitable match.”

She continued, “The world changes—today they want to marry, but you are not ready. Tomorrow, you may want to marry, but they will not be available because of your rudeness. Remember, it is not a woman’s role to chase after a man like Potiphar’s wife. Let men pursue you, and from those who do, you can choose one. It is shameful for a woman to pursue a man, even if you love him—let him pursue you. Although, these days, many women seem eager to chase after men!”

“A man was created to seek, and he feels fulfilled when he finds and wins a woman’s heart. Above all, pray earnestly—more than three times a day—for a good husband, because only God knows who is truly suitable. Some men who seemed unpromising have become excellent husbands, while those who appeared ideal have turned out to be cruel. The human heart is deceitful and desperately wicked—who can know it, but God alone? A woman should understand that a good husband is a gift from the Lord, not something she can secure by her own wisdom.”

People change—some who marry seemingly stable partners find their spouses turn abusive, while others who marry less promising partners see their spouses transform for the better. A spouse’s character can improve when given room to grow.Look at the Bible for examples of parental advice:Does your daughter seek your counsel on both ordinary and sensitive matters?Does she accept your advice about her friends, or does she argue?Does she think she is always right?Does she seek spiritual guidance?Does she desire to know God’s will by studying His Word?Does she delight in the counsel of God and those who love Him, or does she prefer her own ways?Since we are part of the community of believers, we should support and encourage one another. Involve your daughters in church activities and biblical discussions. Encourage them to value serving in the church by helping with cleaning, assisting others in need, and appreciating those who teach and lead them.Do our daughters:Learn to sit quietly and respectfully in church?

Understand the importance of the Lord's Day and participate in Bible reading Recognize the role of women in both the Old and New Testaments?Complain about going to church or find excuses to avoid it?Frequently leave the sanctuary during service to use the restroom or get water?Apply the lessons taught at church to their lives?Pray beyond just thanking God for meals—do they pray about their lives?Have close friends who are part of the church?Take joy in being in the house of the Lord?Remember and share what they learned in church?Serve others using the talents God has given them?Listen attentively?Pray for the needs of the church?Understand and use their spiritual gifts?Admire godly women in their church, or do they idolize worldly celebrities?

"She sees that her trading is profitable, and her lamp does not go out at night" (Proverbs 31:18).
The virtuous woman is patient and persevering. As parents, we must avoid shielding our children from every hardship. Children need to see that God is faithful even in difficulty. Let them hear testimonies of God's greatness from older believers and read about those who endured through trials. Hebrews 11 provides examples of people who, through faith, overcame challenges with God's help.

When facing difficulties, ask:

What is the worst that could happen?

Who holds ultimate authority over everything?

Obedience and trust demonstrate to others that God is sovereign and faithful.

Read the lives of notable people who did not give up during extreme hardships or failures. Study the Psalms and read accounts like "Voice of the Martyrs" about those who have recently suffered or died for their faith. Reflect on Isaiah 53 and the stories of those who endured trials to the end.

Ask your daughter:

Does she quickly lose hope and refuse to try again after failure?

Does she complain and indulge in self-pity when things do not go her way?

Does she dwell on problems without seeking solutions?

Can she manage her emotions during hardship without harboring resentment?

Does she act as though her troubles are the worst in the world?

Does she find comfort in Scripture during difficult times?

Does she examine herself for hidden sins when she faces trials?

Does she recognize that God uses hardships to teach and refine her?

Does she glorify God through how she handles her struggles?

Does she trust that trials can help her grow in maturity?

“She stretches out her hands to the distaff, and her hands grasp the spindle. She opens her arms to the poor and extends her hands to the needy;” Proverbs 31:19-20.

God has shown us kindness and invites us to show kindness to others, even to those we do not know, and to extend love to them. A woman learns generosity while she is still young. A home that welcomes those who need comfort, fellowship, help, and love is an ideal home. A mother brings joy by participating in helping others. Many are told that they have welcomed angels without knowing it (Hebrews 13).

Teach children to be generous by delivering food to the sick, helping those in need—such as the elderly and the ill—and inviting people into your home. Teach children how to greet a guest upon arrival, introduce them, receive their belongings, engage in conversation, serve them food, and make them feel at ease.

Discuss:

What should the host do?

How can they assist their family when an unexpected guest arrives?

How can they help the children of a guest who comes to visit with their mother?

Think of someone who welcomes you warmly when you visit them and try to imitate them.

How can someone welcome visitors to church and make them feel loved? Read examples from the Bible of those who welcomed guests. Who welcomed angels? Consider the examples of Martha and Mary in Luke 10 and John 12. Can she quickly prepare a simple meal to offer guests? Does she know what food children like?

For overnight guests, can she assist in making them comfortable? Is there a difference between how a husband and a wife welcome guests? Does she sit with the guests or isolate herself?

Is she willing to share her belongings with visitors? Does she know how to engage in adult conversations respectfully? Does she make an effort to start conversations with guests? Does she strive to be kind to guests of all ages? Does she help guests feel "at home"?

When her friends visit, does she take responsibility for welcoming and serving them? Does she show good manners when sitting at the table with guests? Does she warmly greet and welcome visitors to the church?

Does she dislike visitors because of the extra work they bring? Does she understand that her hospitality is a way of serving God? Does she see her home as a tool to reach people with the knowledge of God?

On the other hand, she should also know how to be a good guest when visiting others:

Be cheerful and polite wherever she is.

Dress modestly, even when preparing for bed.

Know how to respond to situations wisely.

For example, what should she do if she hears her hosts arguing? What tasks can she assist her hosts with?

Being a compassionate woman is essential. Helping the poor and giving people hope—both spiritually and physically—is vital. "Whoever is kind to the poor lends to the Lord, and He will reward them for what they have done" (Proverbs 19:17).

God's children are not stingy but generous. Teach children to share their toys, clothes, and other belongings. Plan how to assist widows, the sick, the disabled, the lonely, orphans, and the elderly in your church. Set aside money to support those in need—for example, prisoners, missionaries, caregivers, expectant mothers, people with mental illnesses, and those who have been abused.

How can you help them?
What Bible verses would bring comfort to them? Consider visiting www.persecution.com for more ways to help persecuted believers.

Read the Gospels and observe how Christ cared for the needy. How did He help the poor, the sick, widows, and orphans? Listen to news reports and think of ways you can help those affected by disasters.

Can you assist your neighbors who are poor but prefer jobs over handouts? What does compassion mean?

Does she notice when others are suffering or in need?

Does she feel sorrow and show kindness toward those in need?

Does she know how to speak comforting words to those in pain?

Does she give her time and resources out of love for God, or does she give only to be seen by others?

Is she eager to follow Christ by serving others?

Does she find joy in serving?

Does she volunteer in service projects?

We must also care for people's spiritual needs. As women, we are involved in this work daily. We are commanded to go into all the world and share the Good News.

It is helpful for her to understand how to share her testimony briefly:

How did she become a Christian?

How has God changed her life?

She should know the story of the cross, even in summary:

“For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God” (Romans 3:23).

“For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord” (Romans 6:23).

We are saved by grace alone. God gives us grace through faith. We must confess our sins, have genuine repentance, and trust in Christ as our Savior to be assured of salvation.

Can she explain to a friend what salvation means? Can she pray with someone and guide them in a sincere prayer of repentance? Can she organize a Bible club for neighborhood children?

People often meet physical needs to open the door to meet spiritual needs. Can she raise funds for a church project, such as construction or community outreach?

Does she believe that Jesus died and rose again to pay for her sins? Has she accepted Christ as her Savior and Lord? Does she feel compassion for those who are lost without knowing God? Does she pray for those who do not know God? Does she know the Bible verses to guide someone to believe in God? Is she ashamed to confess Christ before others? Does she love to obey God? Do her actions align with the Word of God? Does she pray for and encourage those who serve God? Does she give what she has to support God’s work, or is she only concerned with life here on earth?

Being righteous is one of the characteristics of a virtuous woman. It is good for her to understand the laws of the land, to vote, and to respect leaders. She should know that leaders are appointed by God and that it is important for them to act justly. Whom should she choose when she votes? There are many issues that a Christian should consider: such as abortion, euthanasia (assisted dying), capital punishment, homosexuality, pornography, taxation, fornication, or lying. How should someone who loves God engage with these issues? Should they vote for leaders who support such things? Are there leaders who love God and have brought blessings to people? Read about the lives of Daniel, Noah, or Rehoboam.

Does she know her leaders, and does she understand what authority means? Can she present her views to local and higher authorities? Does she understand how a bill becomes a law? Is she aware of current affairs in the country? Can she discern misleading ideas from “human wisdom” in the media? Does she show the appropriate respect for government leaders, even those who are selfish or corrupt? Is she making efforts to change unjust laws by speaking to local leaders? Does she care for those who have been wronged? Does she understand that all authority is established by God?

“She is not afraid of snow for her household, for all her household are clothed in scarlet.” (Proverbs 31:21)

A virtuous woman prepares for the future. It is good for a young girl to know emergency contact numbers, such as those for family members, the police, or the fire department. Joseph prepared Egypt for times of famine (Genesis 41), and we should also teach our children to prepare. Teach them what to do in case of a fire, where to escape, and how to help their younger siblings. Does she know where to find a flashlight, matches, or candles?

If she is left to care for young children, train her well on how to watch over them and handle potential dangers. Are there poisonous plants nearby? What should she do if a child drinks kerosene or falls into water? Interview a mother who has faced child safety issues at home and learn how she handled them. Teach the girl the dangers of water, electricity, and gas, and how to turn them off safely.

First aid is crucial, and every child should learn according to their age. If a child suddenly becomes ill, does she know what to do, whom to ask for help, and when to take the child to the hospital? Are there specific dangers where you live? Can she identify spoiled food and discard it to prevent food poisoning? Should food leftovers be kept or discarded? How should meat, eggs, or fish be stored?

Which direction should a pot handle face? When handing someone a knife, which side should she hold? Does she know how to use a pressure cooker safely? Teach her how to preserve vegetables by drying or canning. She should also learn basic safety skills for using vehicles like bicycles, motorcycles, or cars. Can she change a tire? Does she know how to get vaccinated safely? Do your research thoroughly.

A book like “Where There Is No Doctor” is helpful to have at home. When is home first aid insufficient, requiring hospital care? Teach the girl about alternative medicine and how to grow medicinal herbs such as echinacea, ginger, and garlic. Consider taking classes on water rescue and self-defense. Learn the safety precautions regarding having weapons at home, such as arrows, clubs, rat traps, poisons, or firearms.

Does she know what to do if no one else is around during an emergency? Can she swim? Can she recognize potential dangers? Does she act carefully to avoid harming herself or others, such as by leaving water on the floor or throwing objects carelessly? If her vehicle breaks down, can she assist? Does she know how to handle home emergencies? Does she handle food with cleanliness and care? Does she know what to do during an earthquake or storm? Can she use tools safely? Does she understand how to protect herself from diseases? Can she defend herself if attacked? More importantly, does she trust God as her ultimate protector and provider?

“She makes coverings for herself; her clothing is fine linen and purple.” (Proverbs 31:22)

A woman who fears God also appreciates beauty and skill. She strives to learn how to sew and master a craft. She makes an effort to dress well, even at home, and not to be careless. She should learn to make her bed and tidy her room in the morning. A room transforms completely just by making the bed! She could help make chair covers, tablecloths, and even grow flowers for the home.

If she cares for young children, teach her how to mend their clothes. Can she sew on a button? If you cannot teach her, find someone who can. She should learn to insert zippers, sew bags, handkerchiefs, baby clothes, skirts, or aprons. She could even use her skills to help those in need. Encourage her to attend sewing or crafting classes to increase her knowledge. Mothers can also teach girls these skills in churches or community groups. A book like “Simple Secrets to a Beautiful Home” by Emilie Barnes is excellent for young girls to read.

Is her room organized? Does she try to make her room clean and attractive? Are the tables, chairs, clothes, and bed linens in order? Does she take time to decorate her home with simple things like flowers, and does she participate in decorating the church? Are her wall decorations wholesome, or do they feature worldly celebrities and magazines that promote vanity?

This woman wears fine linen and purple—royal garments. She is a daughter of the King! If you can afford it, have a few nice clothes, but also remember to help those in need. Being a child of the King also means adopting noble behavior. Teach your daughters polite manners, such as saying “thank you,” “please,” “sorry,” and “excuse me.” They should know how to remain quiet in church and other places, speak respectfully, and avoid loud arguments.

Do they know how to address others properly? Teach them etiquette when visiting others. A helpful book is “Visiting Other Families in Polite Moments” by Gary and Cathy Maldaner. Consider which lessons to teach your children when they visit others.

When you visit a hotel or restaurant, how should you behave with politeness and dignity? This includes how to serve food, how to request a menu, how to use utensils like a spoon, fork, or napkin (mouth wipe), and understanding dining etiquette. Write these rules down and learn them together. For instance, who should be served first when you are guests somewhere? Books like “Manners Made Easy” by June Hines Moore can be helpful.

Learn how to answer a phone call politely and how to introduce yourself when meeting new people. Understand how to give compliments or words of encouragement, how to welcome a guest at your door, and how to express gratitude when receiving praise or after a visit. Know how to excuse yourself when leaving for the restroom, how to set a table properly, how to serve others, and how to politely get someone’s attention without interrupting rudely.

Learn how to be a gracious guest when invited somewhere. Avoid being selfish or self-centered. Understand how to write a thank-you note to your hosts after a visit.

How should a young girl learn to carry herself with grace and dignity? Read the Gospels and observe how Christ behaved as a guest, a friend, and a teacher. How did He greet people, speak to them, and take His leave? Reflect on the stories of Nabal (1 Samuel 25) and Hanun (2 Samuel 10) to understand the consequences of bad manners.

(Philippians 2:2-4):

This passage encourages us to consider others as more important than ourselves. How does this apply to your relationships?

Write down behaviors that annoy others or demonstrate poor etiquette. Identify how a girl can change these bad habits. Observe people you admire and study their polite habits—do they respect others more than themselves? Compare their behavior to your own and seek out a gracious woman to learn from.

How does the fruit of the Spirit (love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, and self-control) relate to our manners?

Invite a guest and allow a girl to set the table, arrange flowers, prepare a meal, and be a gracious hostess. In the Bible, those with good manners showed kindness and humility. Where does the Bible instruct us to be polite and kind, such as caring for the elderly or serving others before ourselves? Why is it impolite to talk while chewing food?

Does she treat others the way she wants to be treated? Does she exhibit good table manners and speak politely? Does she know how to excuse herself when necessary? Does she love people and display good etiquette with humility and love? Do others enjoy talking to her or visiting her? Do you often feel embarrassed by her behavior when you have guests? Does she show respect for elders, express gratitude, and care for other people's belongings?

Teach children to be modest in both speech and dress. Help them understand that their appearance and words can either uplift or offend others. Children should know their responsibility to reflect wisdom in how they dress and speak, remembering they are children of the King.
From a young age, girls should be dressed modestly. It is confusing to allow them to wear revealing clothing when they are little and then restrict it when they reach adolescence. Young girls should wear shorts under dresses to maintain modesty while playing. Avoid allowing a child to walk around with exposed shoulders without an additional covering.

Guidance from 1 Timothy 2:
This chapter describes a woman who honors God. What kinds of clothes or fashion lack modesty? Establish a dress code that reflects godly values. Consider the types of trousers a girl wears—do they cling tightly to private areas? Do her clothes expose her chest or cleavage? Are her dresses too short?

Encourage daughters to discuss their wardrobe with their fathers to ensure their clothing does not create temptation for young men or adult men.
Use clothing catalogs to evaluate modesty together as a family. Observe people's outfits in public and discuss which ones are modest and which are not. Establish guidelines for a girl's wardrobe that reflects her commitment to represent God, including appropriate hairstyles, nails, and makeup.
Why did God provide Adam and Eve with garments to cover themselves rather than allowing them to remain with the fig leaves they made? This suggests that proper clothing matters to God.
Examine fashion from different countries and across historical periods. Do these styles reflect cultural values and modesty? Discuss the goal behind a girl's wardrobe—does she dress to please God or to attract human attention?

Some countries now have spaces where families go without any clothing (nude beaches). Why is this wrong? Consider the story of Noah's curse upon his son who saw his nakedness. What does the Bible say about covering private areas?

Encourage fathers to be involved in their daughters' wardrobe choices. Have them go shopping together and discuss why certain clothes are appropriate or inappropriate. Fathers should also assess their own clothing for modesty.

Study the woman in Proverbs 7 who lures men through seductive behavior and compare her to the virtuous woman in Revelation who is clothed with the sun. What kind of men are attracted to immodest women? Fathers should explain to daughters how young men perceive revealing clothing and the inappropriate attention it invites.

When a girl dresses, she should consider how her appearance may affect men's thoughts. Modesty is not only about clothing but also about a respectful spirit and behavior.
As a girl matures, discuss courtship around age 18. Teach her how to maintain a godly balance between grace and modesty without being legalistic.

Does she dress and behave in a way that brings glory to God? Does she lead others toward purity or temptation? Prepare daughters early for a life that reflects God's character in their appearance, speech, and actions.

It is said that men are tempted to lust after women, and women are tempted to make men lust after them. Discuss this.

Does she desire to please God with her dress, or does she want to glorify herself and attract people's attention? Does she accept counsel regarding her attire, or does she wear whatever pleases her? Does she understand how men's eyes perceive clothing and what they think when they see a woman dressed in a certain way? Does she protect men from sinful thoughts through her dress? Does she wear clothes that cover her, or does she like to expose her body?

Does she dress like a girl, or does she prefer to dress like a boy? Does she seek to seduce men through her clothing, behavior, and speech? Does she overdo modesty to the point where she looks odd or unlike a young woman? Is she proud of dressing modestly and judgmental toward those who do not? Is she legalistic about her attire, focusing on outward appearance while harboring a rebellious spirit within? Does she impose her standards of appropriate dress on others?

"Her husband is respected at the city gate, where he takes his seat among the elders of the land;" – Proverbs 31:23. A man who is respected publicly must also be respected at home. Proverbs 12:4 emphasizes that a wise and respectful woman helps her husband grow in leadership and responsibility.

Respecting a husband begins when a girl is young, by honoring her father. Nagging is a habit to be avoided. She must learn to respect and recognize that her father and mother are authorities placed in her life by God. She should learn to respond politely when called by her father, assist him by welcoming him home, carrying his coat, preparing his meals, and serving him. She should learn to thank her father and understand the things that please him, such as a newspaper, music, or books. Write a list of things that please or displease your father.

Read the book of Proverbs to understand the relationship between parents and children. Also, study Ephesians 5:33.

What actions demonstrate respect for your father? How does your mother show respect for your father? As women, we must strive to be examples for our children to follow. How do we support our husbands as helpers? How can a daughter show respect for her grandfather or brothers? Can you write a list of things that display disrespect? If a girl struggles to respect her parents, she should write down the reasons and examine what the Bible says about these issues.

Study the wives of Job, Michal, and Vashti—how did they fail to respect their husbands? Study Sarah and Esther—how did they show respect for their husbands? Observe children or women who lack respect for their husbands or parents. What kind of example do children receive from women who disrespect their husbands? How is a man's authority perceived in such a home? How is God's authority recognized in that household?

A daughter should discuss with her father the importance of respecting a husband. How should an employee, citizen, child, or wife respond if the authority over them does not deserve their respect (is unworthy of respect)? Are they still required to submit, even when the authority is sinful?

Does she speak to you and her father with respect? Does she use respectful words when addressing parents and other authorities? When you speak to her or call her, does she respond and turn her face toward you to listen? Do her facial expressions, gestures, and posture reflect obedience? Does she respect you both privately and publicly? Does she reveal your weaknesses to others? Does she correct or criticize you in front of others? Does she respect older people, police officers, and government leaders? Does she try to please you? Does she recognize you as the authority God has placed over her life? Does she value your opinions? Does she know how to express disagreement respectfully? Does she show embarrassment or shame in being your child? Does she mock or ridicule you in public?

Supporting a husband is crucial—young women should be taught this. This support enables our husbands to fulfill their God-given leadership responsibilities more effectively. A woman is a helper to her husband and should use her time and abilities to honor and serve him. By doing so, she can become a crown to her husband. Sometimes, she may need to set aside her desires to serve her husband, and this is a lesson that should be learned early.

Some women may not consider this important because they are married to men who do not fear God, but even such men need to be respected (Matthew 20:28). Even the Son of Man came to serve others. Let her learn how to serve her younger siblings and brothers or sisters. She should ask her mother or other women, "What are your goals today?" She will see that many mothers focus on serving their families.

Let her learn how to please her brothers and sisters for a day. She should pray for her parents. Discuss ways to support her father in his work. Does she know how to set aside her interests to help others? She should observe how her mother supports her father. A daughter should ask her father how her mother has encouraged him in his God-given calling. How has she helped him throughout his life? Observe how daughters assist their fathers. Interview two men about how their wives have helped them succeed in life. How have their wives encouraged them to grow as leaders?

Study the lives of notable historical leaders and the roles their wives or mothers played in supporting their success (1 Timothy 3:1-13).

What role does a woman have in helping her husband? First Timothy 3 and Titus 1 show that a man needs his wife to support him in many areas. Look at Jesus as a servant—how did He serve others?

Consider women in the Bible like Sarah and Priscilla and how they supported their husbands. Study the lives of wives like Lot's wife, Haman's wife, Jezebel, and Herodias—how did they affect their husbands? Examine families where the wife refuses to support her husband—what are the outcomes? For wives who prioritize career ambitions over supporting their husbands, consider how this affects their children and spouses.

1 Timothy 3 and Titus 1 highlight that men need their wives' support in many areas. Study how Jesus served others. Look at the examples of women like Sarah and Priscilla and how they aided their husbands. Consider the negative impact of women like Jezebel and Herodias on their husbands' lives. Reflect on the outcomes in homes where wives do not support their husbands. For women who prioritize their careers over their families, reflect on how this decision influences their husbands and children.

How can a family sin as a team? How can a wife be a help to her husband through her words—by praising his good qualities, being humble and respectful, or through prayer? Write 15 ways to honor a husband. How can your role as a wife reflect the church's role as Christ's helper in your marriage?

Verse 24 shows the entrepreneurial spirit that our daughters should learn. We should teach our daughters how they can work from home to earn income and develop skills. A father or mother can create a small project to support the family—perhaps selling small items like water, sewing products, or baked goods. If there are jobs she can do for payment, she should take them.

Women like those in Acts 16:15 show us that women can sell fine goods. Discuss the benefits of a woman having an income-generating job at home rather than working outside the home. Learn about business licenses and government taxes. Interview women who run their businesses—what do they do? Consider a business that requires little capital and start it. How should a woman use the income she earns?

Does she do her work with excellence? Does she desire to please God with her work? Is she improving her craftsmanship? Does she have the skills to earn an income? Do others recognize her as a diligent worker? Do people like her products or services? Does she have entrepreneurial strategies? Does she enjoy working both outside and inside the home? When she sees a need, does she try to meet it? Does she want to earn money only for her own needs, or does she also desire to support her family and others?

"Strength and dignity are her clothing, and she laughs at the time to come;" (verse 25). This woman knows a life of faith, contentment, and gratitude. She understands that God holds the future. We need to help our daughters be content with what God and we, as parents, provide. We can discuss and write down things we are thankful for together. What is she grateful to her parents for? What is the difference between asking and giving thanks? Philippians 4:6-7 and 1 Thessalonians 5:16-18.

Does she have jealousy or resentment? Study people in the Bible who were discontent. Whenever tempted to complain, read Philippians 2 and Isaiah 53. Should a daughter of the King live a life of discontent? Talk to an older woman about contentment. Discuss the meaning of the word covet. Write a list of things you are discontent with—your appearance, where you live, your family—then identify the root of this discontent in your heart and confess it to God. Look at Hebrews 11 and how each person listed lived a life of faith and contentment.

Is she thankful to God for what He provides? Does she demand things when shopping? Does she care if someone else gets more than she does? Does she desire what others have? Can she live through hard times and recognize God's lessons through them?

Does she trust God as the provider? Does she focus on temporary things or eternal ones? Is she content with what she has, or does she want more? Does she express gratitude to her parents and appreciate their love? Does she give thanks for the services and kindness she receives? Does she love to complain and whine? Does she compete with others to get what she wants? Does she always fight for her rights? Does she indulge in self-pity? Does she envy other people's belongings or successes? Does she desire other people's blessings with bitterness?

God provides for our needs now and in the future. Who gave Adam his wife? What kind of people does God want us to be? Micah 6:6-8. Consider the women who supported Jesus' work—how many of them were unmarried? Encourage your daughter to recognize and visit unmarried women in her church community.

Can a daughter make her unmarried years meaningful through education, Bible study, ministry, Scripture memorization, and skill development? Does she understand the sin of same-sex marriage? Discuss this topic with her.

The Bible mentions women like Miriam, Rahab, Delilah, Mary, Martha, Esther, Anna, the widow of Zarephath, and the daughters of Zelophehad. How did their unmarried status help them serve God's purposes? How did God provide for their needs? What mistakes did they make, and what consequences did they face? 1 Corinthians 7:34-35.

Write down ways in which an unmarried woman without the responsibility of pleasing a husband can serve God effectively. How can her freedom allow her to be a blessing to God's work? What ways can she currently serve the church while being single? If God calls her to singleness, can she trust Him with that calling?

Talk to your parents about the possibility of being called to serve God without getting married. Why does God sometimes call people to remain single? How do these people support themselves? If you do not marry, will you live in your own home? Where will you seek counsel if you are single? Study the Bible's teachings on the calling to live a single life.

Read the book: "Did I Kiss Marriage Goodbye?" by Carolyn McCulley. Can a life of singleness be fulfilling and complete? Discuss the issue of loneliness.

Does she trust God for everything and find fulfillment in her relationship with Him? Does she understand that the enemy comes in many forms besides overt sin—such as discouragement, hypocrisy, bad friendships, and weariness? Has she surrendered herself to serving others, starting within the home?

Does she have opportunities at home to learn how to be a wife and mother? Does she trust God to choose the right husband at the right time if that is His plan? Does she value your opinion about the boys who pursue her? Does she care more about marriage than obeying God? Does she daydream about marriage? Does she entertain inappropriate romantic thoughts?

Is it more important for her to be a mature, God-fearing woman or to get married to anyone? Does she feel jealous when her peers get married? Does she feel anxious knowing she might not get married? Is she aware that God may have called her to a life of singleness and service instead of marriage? Does she know that God has special plans for her, whether she gets married or not? Is she using her unmarried years to prepare herself for God's greater calling? Does she speak to single women in the church with kindness and love? Does she have a heart to care for the needs of the lonely?

Let us teach our daughters not to live lives of fear but of strength and courage. Let them understand the importance of prayer. When they feel afraid, they should rely on Him. Study God's promises and His protection. Look at how these women trusted God—Noah's wife, Lot's wife, Sarah, Esther, Jochebed, Deborah, and Ruth. Choose Psalms to read when feeling fearful. Consider the Israelites' fears in the book of Exodus. How did the people in Hebrews 11 demonstrate courage?

Interview several women and ask them about times they were tempted to be afraid—what happened when they were fearful, and what happened when they trusted God? Study the life of Sarah—what were her strengths and weaknesses? How did she respond when tested? Why is she mentioned as an example for those who have faith?

Does she fear trusting God to care for her? Does she have the faith of Romans 8:28? Does she know which Bible verses to read when she is afraid? When she is afraid, does she pray? Is she afraid to try something new? Is she afraid of what others think of her? Is she afraid of making mistakes? Is she afraid of the future? Can she say "no" when people ask her to do wrong? Is she afraid of getting hurt? Is she afraid to talk to people?

Does she worry, expect failure, and only see problems? Does she have the courage to resolve conflicts or misunderstandings with friends, siblings, teachers, or parents? Does she have the courage to admit when she's wrong? Is she willing to apologize when she offends someone? Does she fear God more than humans? Can she tell a friend when they are sinning? Does she lose hope when she sins? Does she accept correction positively? Is she afraid to share her opinions? Is she afraid to witness about Christ? Is she afraid to express her feelings?

"She opens her mouth with wisdom, and the teaching of kindness is on her tongue." The tongue cannot be restrained—it is full of restless evil and deadly poison. As parents, we must help our children "tame" their tongues early so they can be a blessing to their husbands, children, church, and community. David asked God to put a guard over his mouth. It is important to point out to our daughters when they speak improperly, and their friends can be guardians of their speech as well. We must not return evil for evil. How can we do this? Encourage your daughter to ask someone to hold her accountable for every careless word (Matthew 12:36-37).

Read and discuss James 3 together. Study people who have been helped by kind words and those whose lives were damaged by harmful speech. Consider words that lead to conflict, complaints, gossip, lies, exaggeration, false witness, and blasphemy. How can a woman control her speech? Study the story of Abigail or Pilate's wife. How can a woman offer words of encouragement or wise counsel? How can we control ourselves when speaking? How can we make our conversations a blessing (improving speech)?

Does she like to give people nicknames? Does she speak foolishly or in an annoying tone? Does she mock others? Does she enjoy whining and complaining? Does she like to gossip? Is her tone of voice harsh all the time? Does she yell when arguing with her siblings? Does she enjoy reporting others' mistakes? Does she use unkind words toward her siblings? Does she like to tease others? Does she enjoy criticizing, mocking, or belittling others sarcastically?

Does she take God's name in vain? Does she show respect for you and her father through her words? Do her words build others up or tear them down? Does she say whatever comes to mind, or does she filter her words? Does she correct others gently? Does she offer good advice? For a mother or wife, speaking with wisdom is crucial. Children must be trained to obey. A daughter should not be lazy in her work. We must teach our daughters how to have inner beauty beyond outward appearance.

GOD'S STEWARD

We are all God's stewards—everything we have is entrusted to us, and we will give an account for five or six key areas: time, talents, possessions, influence, relationships, health, and even our character. The greatest stewardship is to represent God correctly and walk in His footsteps. It means sharing the good news with others and living out that good news by offering our time and resources.

We cannot love without giving. Think about your friends and how your friendship is—often, you enjoy being with them and feel good about giving, even without being asked. You laugh wholeheartedly together. What about the Father of love, who loves us and provides us with every good thing—how much more should we give to Him?

Let us learn to live without selfishness and greed—that is where true joy and health are found. A cheerful heart is better than medicine, as Solomon said. We brought nothing into this world, and we will take nothing out. Loving free things or preferring to receive more than to give is not a good thing.

Perhaps the greatest stewardship of all is to emphasize that stewardship goes beyond what we listed earlier—the most important stewardship is sharing God's mysteries of salvation or the gospel. It is about telling others of God's love, mercy, compassion, and forgiveness—in short, revealing His character and His desire to live with us forever.

People will only recognize true stewards of God if they see us and our children loving others, acting justly, being humble, and showing mercy.

The widow who gave two small coins was commended not because of the little she gave but because of the zero she kept for herself! Too often, we give leftovers and what we do not need to the poor, orphans, widows, or those in need. Yet, to those we love, we give things they may not even need while keeping nothing back. Let us be cautious about this—I, too, have struggled with it and pray for wisdom to avoid it.

Jesus knew there were politicians and hypocrites (Pharisees), but He did not tell the widow to withhold her offering. Instead, He praised her for giving, even knowing there were greedy and corrupt individuals in the temple! This teaches us that it is our duty to return to God what belongs to Him.

Giving is for our own protection and that of our children—to shield us from greed and envy. The Tenth Commandment is the hardest to keep because it is invisible! It is easy to see jealousy in others when they have what we do not. We often judge how others should spend their money to help the needy, but when it is our turn to give, we become hesitant and offer scraps to those in need—while spoiling our children with excess they do not even need, encouraging them to boast. Children will imitate our examples.

John D. Rockefeller, one of America's wealthiest oil magnates, was a miser and deeply unhappy. When he reached the age of fifty, he became seriously ill. A friend advised him to start giving generously to those in need, promising that he would find healing and a happier life. Rockefeller took the advice and lived to be ninety years old, spending his remaining years giving generously. The Rockefeller Foundation still supports schools, scholarships, and people with disabilities, among other causes.

Do not assume people give because they are wealthy—that is only half the story.

Jesus silenced the question of "Who is my neighbor?" forever by showing us that anyone in need—whether a relative, a stranger, a Chinese person, a Jew, or someone outside our group or tribe—is our neighbor.

Many times, I have been selfish and remembered a story I read when I was in first grade. It was about a very selfish woman. She had stepchildren who visited her where she lived. Her husband had set a trap for antelopes, and when she heard a noise, she knew that an antelope had been caught. She thought that those stepchildren would prevent her from enjoying the meat alone with her husband and biological children. She hurriedly sent the stepchildren away, as if she was chasing them back to their home. When she later went to check the trap, it turned out to be a leopard. It attacked her, and she was killed because she had no one to help her.

Many times, I have wanted to enjoy things by myself, where I could have invited others to share with me, but I failed to do so. I have encountered people who refuse to share their possessions, whether it's an inheritance or other resources, only for those things to be wasted or bring great sorrow. A person does not find true joy simply by what they own. True joy comes from knowing God, serving Him, and helping others. I believe extraordinary joy comes directly from God. When you serve or give, you feel overwhelmed by happiness—what I call a "smile attack"—even if you are wearing patched clothes, you experience a joy greater than those living in grand mansions. Speaking of grand mansions, a new trend has emerged where people build large houses but never welcome anyone inside. There was a kind-hearted woman who expanded her house so she could accommodate guests. Today, we build to gain praise, yet someone living in a thatched hut may be more helpful than those of us with big houses.

Some of us started from humble beginnings, walking barefoot. When we saw those who had many pairs of shoes, we thought they were cruel for not sharing with us—if only they considered us, they would be blessed. Today, we give people worthless things—we buy expensive clothes, and when they no longer please us, we give them away just so others know they came from us.

Earthly possessions lose their value quickly. Today, I buy something new, and by tomorrow I wonder, "Why did I waste my money on this useless thing?" Some people refuse to give toward God's work, saying, "They will misuse my money at church, the temple, or the mosque." But think about it—if I give someone money to take to my parent and they misuse it, does that mean I will stop supporting my parent altogether? If there are people mismanaging church funds, they should be reported and held accountable. But do not withhold from God and miss your blessings because of people who are as fleeting as smoke.

If you think you have given too much to God, be at peace—He is not unjust. He will return to you everything you think you have overgiven. Your "change" will always come back to you! Remember, though, that the tithe—10% of your earnings—belongs to the Lord. The Word says that if you withhold your tithe, you are not merely stealing—you are robbing God with force, like an armed thief. A thief sneaks in when no one is looking, but a robber takes openly and by force. A believer who does not tithe is committing robbery—plain and simple. They are robbing God directly, and God knows it.

People say, "Show me your daily schedule and your budget, and I will tell you what your priorities are." Your checkbook is a theological document—it reveals what you believe about God and your love for Him. Do not hoard or deceive the poor by exploiting them in various ways. When we die, we cannot take our possessions with us, but we can send them ahead by helping those in need and giving to God's work.

It is also worth asking yourself how you spend your time online—what consumes your time? Last week, a woman told me she spends her entire day watching funny cat videos. What about you—what do you waste your time watching? This reflects who or what your god truly is.

Everyone has the gift of time—no one is without it! It is true that we may not have wealth, but what about time? Use your time and spiritual gifts wisely because the gifts of the Spirit are given to us to bless others. Read stewardship books like The Blessed Life and spend time praying for that work. You will be amazed at the love and joy you will experience.

I was shocked to learn that a billionaire from a poor country like India owns the most expensive house in the world, valued at two billion dollars! Meanwhile, Warren Buffet, the second-richest man in the United States, still lives in the same three-bedroom house he bought over fifty years ago. He drives an ordinary car and lives a simple life. He has been interviewed by many people, and you can find his life story online.

Many people in developing countries act like someone who never expected to become wealthy—so they waste and flaunt their wealth in extravagant ways. There are two kinds of people who will never be rich—believers and Africans. I have taught this stewardship lesson in several countries across four continents. Africans and people who love God have responsibilities to their families and to support the gospel. If they truly understand this responsibility, they will always feel as if they do not have enough money—even if they are billionaires. Africans have many poor relatives, friends, and community needs. Even if I were to receive one hundred billion dollars today, there would still be much to do because we live in a global village.

Dr. Albert Schweitzer, who worked in West Africa as a physician, once said, "You are placed on earth by God, and you must remember your needy brothers." He dedicated his life to improving people's health in those countries. His life story is something everyone should read.

When billionaire John D. Rockefeller died, his accountant was asked by a newspaper, "How much did he leave behind?" The accountant replied, "He left it all!" He did not take anything with him—he left everything here on earth.

Even if we have many things, we cannot use them all. I can only wear one pair of shoes at a time, sleep in one bed at a time, and drive one car at a time. And no matter how much wealth we accumulate, we cannot eat tanzanite or gold. We still eat rice, beans, ugali, or vegetables. Let us teach our children to be generous and to help those in need.

Throughout life, we are always chasing happiness. We say, "Let me go to school, and I will be happy." Then, "Let me get a job, and I will be happy." Next, "Let me get married and have children, and I will be happy." Then, "Let me retire, and I will be happy." And so on—until old age arrives with its illnesses and frailty.

In 1969, my maternal grandmother visited us in Arusha. She was 48 years old, and to me, she seemed very old. I said to her, "Grandma, you are so old!" She replied, "Grace, I only turned my head, and suddenly I was old! It happened so quickly. One day, you will also grow old and wonder where the years went."

It is true—I came to America intending to stay for six years. Today, I have lived here longer than I ever did back home, and now I am older than my grandmother was in 1969. And I, too, marvel at how quickly time has passed!

We came into the world with nothing, and we will leave with nothing. However, we can send our treasures ahead (in advance) to heaven by doing good deeds—where moth and rust cannot destroy them. Give until it hurts, not just what you were planning to throw away.

“I was hungry, and you fed me; I was thirsty, and you gave me something to drink; I was naked, and you clothed me; I was in prison, and you visited me.” The Word tells us that doing these things from the heart—not out of obligation—is a passport to eternal life. Let us pray to be faithful stewards so that we will not hear the words, “Depart from me, you who are cursed, into the eternal fire prepared for the devil and his angels.” By the grace of God, I do not want to go to hell—what about you?

God will judge us for the wrong things we do and for the good things we fail to do (commission and omission). I know you will encounter people who are not good and will never be satisfied no matter how much good you do for them.

The Word of God says the Kingdom of Heaven is like a great pearl that, when a man found it, he sold everything he had to buy it. As children, we used to sing the song “Yankee Doodle,” which included a verse about a farmer who, while digging potatoes, found a diamond. He threw away his hoe, went to the city, bought a car, and became wealthy. The Kingdom of God is that valuable—something worth giving up everything to obtain.

Do not store up treasures on earth and become consumed by the love of money, for many have pierced themselves with sorrow because of it. People have done unimaginable things for the sake of money. The Bible says, “The love of money is the root of all evil.” Money can change your character—be careful. Many people who are poor criticize others for their greed, but when they become wealthy, they forget that they struggle with the same temptation. Often, we all have desires in our hearts, but poverty hides them because there is no opportunity to act on them.

Never stop giving your tithe (one-tenth of your income). Teach your children to give tithes and offerings. Encourage them to start small projects to earn money, even if it’s a little, so they can give from their own resources—not just from their parents—by the time they are around eight years old.

Many of us only do good for those we love, but even wicked people do the same for their friends and family. African culture emphasizes generosity to those we know—if we care for orphans, they are usually our relatives. If we help someone, it is usually a family member. One admirable thing about many Westerners is that they give to strangers through charities or organizations, such as orphanages or cancer research. I am not saying to neglect your family—forgetting your relatives is like being an unbeliever—but in your generosity, after helping six orphaned relatives, extend your kindness to a stranger in need.

I once met a preacher and his wife who told me they do not tithe because their income is small. I asked them, “Do you eat? Do you have clothes? Do you own a farm?” If so, they could give from their produce. Many husbands or wives prevent their spouses from tithing—do not fall into this sin. Two people can often see things more clearly than one, so do not be a one-person committee making all financial decisions in your household.

Tithing is for our benefit, not God’s—He owns everything. Whether I give Him a few cents or not, He will never be poor. It is like asking your child for a small portion of the potato you gave them to teach them to be generous. If you think you have given God more than you should, remember—He is not like a businessperson waiting to keep your change! If you give more than expected, He will repay you. No one has ever given to God and become bankrupt. Hallelujah!

In the time of Moses, the Israelites gave up to 33%—a third of their income! As a result, no one was in need. The community developed systems to ensure everyone had enough for shelter, food, and other necessities. God’s plan always brings blessing and prosperity.

Empower your children and others by providing resources and guidance to help them become self-sufficient. Many wealthy people complain or deceive others with big promises they never fulfill. Some people who once relied on others forget their helpers once they become successful—until they need relationships or an audience to admire their accomplishments.

As the saying goes, “You cannot outgive God.” Start serving and loving God with all your heart and passion. He will provide the vision, the mission, the passion, and the provision.

Your influence is very important. When people love and respect you, do not misuse that position without wisdom. If someone offers themselves to you for evil purposes, do not accept it.

Pastor Kulakov from Russia once shared that when he was teaching high school students, a girl fell deeply in love with him and told him privately that she loved him and wanted them to be in a relationship or for him to marry her. Pastor Kulakov informed the girl’s mother, and she advised him, saying, “My dear son, when those under your authority love you and want to give themselves to you, do not misuse your authority. Even if this girl were an adult, you should not accept her offer of friendship unless you are ready to marry her. Do not ruin her life simply because she loves you.”

I also knew Dwight Nelson, a preacher from Michigan. One day, during a service I attended, he shared a story about a trip he took that week. He drove from Michigan to California, a distance of about 4,000 kilometers, in an old Honda. He said his car broke down about seven times along the way. After his sermon, the following week, about ten people volunteered to buy him a new car! He had influence. Although he could have accepted the new car, he told those people to contribute the money to a charity fund to help those in need.

How many orphans, widows, the poor, or strangers are you helping today in your life? I ask myself the same question! Please reflect on this because it is the essence of humanity and true religion. Evaluate yourself today. Do you have cars lying unused in your yard, which people who did not work for them will fight over after you die? Start distributing your wealth where it is needed.

Colgate, the wealthy man, loved God deeply. He gave more than 10% of his wealth to help those in need and to support God's work so that many could go to heaven. However, when he died, he forgot to write a will. His children did not care about others or God, and they squandered his wealth, forgetting the values their father upheld. Today, write your will—it does not mean you will die soon. Not at all. Give your children just enough to help them work hard and manage their lives independently without becoming destitute. As you raise them, show them that you care for the poor, widows, and orphans, and teach them to live blamelessly.

In Israel, it was God's plan for every family to own land so that poverty would not exist. People with land will never be poor if they work hard to cultivate it. Developed countries began by ensuring food self-sufficiency and preserving it in storehouses. Later, they became distracted by buying weapons. They could not purchase weapons without first having food security!

Not giving tithes is like visiting someone while bringing them a basket of groceries and other gifts. After you leave, they keep even the basket. In African culture, they should not return the basket empty—they should try to put something in it as a token of gratitude. What would you think of such a person? That they are ungrateful. This is how we treat our God. After blessing us abundantly, we hold onto everything, even the "basket!" But when we give, we are blessed. He said we should test Him and see if He will not open the windows of heaven and pour out blessings.

Some people have been blessed to give more than 10%. For example, a pharmacist in Switzerland was so blessed that he gave 90% of his income as tithe because all his needs were met. Do not be stingy or count small things greedily. If you have plenty, follow John the Baptist's message: "Anyone who has two coats should share with the one who has none."

If your size hasn't changed, you don't need to keep buying clothes and other unnecessary items. As a traveler to heaven, use your money to save souls, not to accumulate things. After all, the Holy Spirit is not the "Spirit of Possessions," as evangelist Mukangara humorously puts it.

Simplify your life—they say, "Less is more." You may have fewer possessions, but your heart is full of joy, and your spirit is enriched, making you feel richer than Bill Gates because God has given you a contented heart. Even when you wear simple things, people marvel and ask, “Where did you get that?” You radiate an unexplainable beauty.

I believe heaven will be wonderful, not because of material things, but because of the joy in our hearts—sitting by the flowing river, sharing laughter with loved ones, and enjoying the company of angels and the voice of God. All your troubles will be gone—no death, sorrow, crying, pain, or evil. Material things will not matter—gold will merely be the pavement we walk on!

If you have talents, beauty, a good personality, or writing skills, use them to win souls. Do not let them fill you with pride, thinking, “I am the best.” Be humble. Do you know that a truly humble person is unaware of their humility? Once, a village awarded a very humble man with a medal for his humility. The next day, when he wore it, they took it back because he was now boasting about it!

Budget wisely to avoid debt. I have been burdened by housing debt and pray day and night to be free from it. Fear debt as you would a deadly disease. Love only. If you are in debt, you may fail to give to God because you are afraid of imprisonment. Some even claim, “God understands that I have debts, so I cannot give my tithe or offering.”

Learn to live within your means. Do not buy what you do not need or live on credit. Many husbands control household finances alone. But if your wife does not work, she has many needs. Imagine if the roles were reversed—she earned the money and did not involve you at all, except for occasional reports.

Children often recognize their mothers’ sacrifices. When they start earning, they tend to support their mothers, leaving behind fathers who were stingy and uncaring. These fathers may end up lonely, cooking their own meals. Some children even take their mothers abroad, leaving the fathers behind. Yet, it is a sin to neglect either parent.

Mothers should defend their husbands and co-parents. Sometimes, mothers paint an exaggerated picture of their suffering, failing to acknowledge their husbands’ positive contributions. We must be careful not to sow seeds of hatred in our children.

Once, during an argument with my husband, I vented my frustrations to my seven-year-old child. He responded, “Don’t worry, Mom—when Dad comes home, my sibling and I will beat him up.” His younger sibling was only three years old! That’s when I realized my mistake and prayed for God’s forgiveness. I know He has forgiven me.

I used to give freely when I had no debts, but now I constantly complain about my debts. Let us pray for each other to overcome this burden and for God to bless our incomes.

“Shall I come before the Lord empty-handed?” That is a children’s song. Should I withhold from God because of a mortgage or school loan? It is shameful.

Teach your children to give tithe and offerings. Let them see you giving during worship services. Reduce digital transactions occasionally so they can witness you giving physical money. Teach them how to manage finances to avoid future troubles.

Help orphans, charities, and ministries that bring people to the Lord. Do not neglect your family—“Anyone who does not provide for their relatives is worse than an unbeliever.”

Do not let anyone, including your spouse or relatives, hinder you from helping those in need. I have never seen anyone become poor by helping the poor. God’s promises are true.

Some will criticize a peaceful marriage, suggesting that a loved wife must be “controlling” or that the couple will eventually separate. Focus on your spiritual journey—judgment day is coming for us all.

One person rejoiced and laughed when his neighbor’s child encountered misfortune, saying, “He has joined our group. He has become like us, or his children will be worse than mine!” Yet, that person never inquired about your children and may have even prayed for you.

Another person saw a man opening a car door for his wife and remarked, “This must be something new; either it’s a new wife or a new car!” Do not be someone who wishes for others to fail—pray for them. God still has the power to change people—after all, Saul became Paul without even asking for it.

I once lived with my friend and his wife in Michigan. They showed me a letter from their brother who had supported their high school education. It read:

“Dear ones, we paid for your education and told you to buy us a truck and a tractor. To this day, you have not done so. You went to America, and now you have changed. We will pray that God cuts off your legs so that you will remember us and see our worth!”

These friends cried bitterly because they had come to study in the United States through their own efforts. They were paying rent and surviving by doing small jobs—one guarded the graves of white people, while the other changed adult diapers for elderly white people. You will encounter such people, but do not let it discourage you from helping those in need when you have the means. Every day when you wake up, commit your plans to the Lord and ask Him to guide you.

Carry books and read while waiting for a bus or something else. Give people the gift of good books. It's not enough to smile and laugh with people without offering them something good if you have it. Your influence should not aim to elevate yourself but to make God visible in your life. Even if you have been blessed with a beautiful home, invite people in and lovingly tell them about the coming judgment on the world.

Do you know the Scriptures say that God has three books? One of them records deeds. These books will be brought out on the Day of Judgment, and every act—whether good or bad—will be revealed. The movie of our lives will be played out, and everything we have done will be shown, even the things we were supposed to do but did not.

Do you remember those secret things you do—things you do not want your spouse, child, sibling, or anyone else to know? All of them will be revealed. However, the sins we confess will not be brought up. When God forgives, He erases them completely and buries them as deep as the Mariana Trench in the Pacific Ocean—seven miles deep! Even if our sins are as red as blood, they will become as white as the snow on Mount Kilimanjaro if we confess them. Beloved reader, have you confessed your sins today and sought forgiveness to start a new chapter of your life?

One way to set a good example for your children is by helping others become self-reliant rather than making them dependent on you. Teach a person how to fish instead of just giving them fish. Provide your children with education or land so they can be independent. Help orphans and widows.

In his book "Rich Christians in the World of Hunger," Ron Sider presents astonishing insights. He explains that research shows that God has been remarkably faithful: "I will make you the head and not the tail." He states that 80% of the world's wealth is in the hands of people who profess faith in God and Christ. Yet, he laments that many believers are incredibly stingy. Although God has blessed us with trillions, we often give only loose change to the poor instead of developing programs to empower them.

Rather than offering sustainable resources like cows, goats, or other productive ventures, we give temporary relief like flour—something that will be consumed without generating more. This is a kind of cruelty. It is far better to provide education or small capital to help people lift themselves out of poverty. Let them not always stand before you flattering and bowing.

The Chinese say: If you want to make a difference for one day, eat at a fancy restaurant. If you want to make a difference for a month, get married (a poor example). If you want to make a difference for a year, plant a garden. But if you want to make a difference for a lifetime, invest in people—help them gain education or send children to school.

We often claim that the poor are liars or lazy. But when we were in need, we did not think like this—we wanted help, and we were grateful when we received it. Now that we are doing well, we analyze too much before offering help, insisting on thorough investigations to ensure people are genuine. But is it your job or mine to judge the authenticity of their needs? Only God has that task.

Some say, "If I give them money, they'll spend it on alcohol." While that may be true, when will you help a widow, an orphan, or a poor person if you spend so much time scrutinizing their motives? Jesus' words—"I was hungry, thirsty, naked, and imprisoned"— do not suggest we conduct investigations before helping. God will judge—our role is to give.

I sometimes watch disaster images—people suffering in floods or other crises—and feel moved. Yet, even though I see their pain, how often do I give even a dollar to help? It is unfair to treat human suffering as mere entertainment while refusing to lift a finger to help.

Do not let anyone become dependent on you through begging. Some believers are incredibly stingy when they have much but are quick to tell others how to serve God when they have nothing.

I once met a Tanzanian friend who boasted that his suit cost $5,000! Yet, when we hear of people in need, we only give a few coins, thinking we are being generous. In reality, we are shortchanging both the poor and ourselves.

Let me also speak to those who ask for help while insulting or harassing others. If your situation is dire and you need assistance, do not curse or abuse people. Be respectful when asking for help, even from family members—they have the right to decide whether to help you or not.

I struggle against selfishness and pray daily for the grace to continue giving because we cannot touch the Creator without touching His creation. No matter how much you have, you cannot wear two pairs of shoes at once, drive three cars simultaneously, or sleep in two beds at the same time. Even if I visit you, you won't eat gold or diamonds—you'll still eat the same simple food. Give generously until it hurts, not just the loose change you don't care about. Remember, the widow who gave two small coins was praised for giving all she had left.

Check your home for items you no longer need—give them away. I, too, have accumulated things I plan to give away someday. A woman I know realized she had 200 DVDs and cassette tapes she no longer used. She decided to sell them and use the money to support God's work.

A friend from South Africa, Grace Zuzo, once told me, "If you have 20 or 30 outfits, that's enough. Any clothing you haven't worn in over a year isn't yours—give it away."

I have realized that when I give away my clothes, it is not always a genuine sacrifice. Often, I only give things that are out of fashion or that I no longer want. While the poor may benefit, my giving lacks true generosity. I spend large sums on my wardrobe but hesitate to give real money to support God's work—choosing instead to give my worn-out leftovers to the poor.

I have been reflecting on these things. You too can ponder them.

When you buy something just to own it and appear fashionable, then give it away, it may seem fine if you give it to a fellow human being. However, when it comes to God, you might need to reconsider. If you worship in the same church or live in the same village with the people you give your used items to, you may be humiliating them. When everyone sees them wearing your second-hand clothes, they will know that you are the one who donated them.

Some people build houses in every city, which do not generate any income but instead incur maintenance costs. They only visit once a year with their workers so that the poor people in the area can celebrate and say, "The rich man has arrived." A friend from Korogwe made me laugh when he said that his house had been empty for so long that even monitor lizards had moved in and lived there.

Buying things without careful consideration is a problem, except when it comes to investments. Some people build large mansions like caves and are unable to even dust some of the rooms. Their children have moved away, yet they struggle to clean the floors and remove cobwebs instead of focusing on serving others. Large mansions were never a part of African culture, but now we are embracing them while Westerners are trying to downsize. They build big houses because of their long winters, which keep them indoors. But we have the blessing of the sun—we can live in smaller houses, spend time outdoors, breathe fresh air, and enjoy the sunshine! Our Maasai brothers only go indoors to sleep—they do not spend the whole day inside, and that is healthy.

Nowadays, there is a challenge of managing wealth and time. Therefore, we advise spiritual leaders not to have more than six children. This is no longer the age to bear ten children as in the past. One friend said, "I will keep having children until my eggs are finished. God created us to have children, so I will give birth to as many as He gives me." Yet, God also created the natural cycle of safe days when a woman cannot conceive. Use those days because, even if you are capable, how will you prepare for the judgment of God which is coming soon if you still have young children for 30 years?

However, inquire about family planning methods that do not terminate a conceived pregnancy. Raising children today is tough—be careful not to get overwhelmed because parenting is a lifelong commitment. Even if they argue with their spouse or face troubles, they will always come back to you, and you will have to start over with your grandchildren because a parent's love never ends.

It is easier to be kind to strangers, but our words often cut down those closest to us. We must remain humble everywhere. In our parenting guidebook, many parents—especially mothers—speak words that crush their children's spirits. We may not believe these words, but we utter them out of anger: "You'll never amount to anything in life!" That is a heavy blow—it's better to discipline the child with a rod. Or, "You're a dog, just like your father!" Are these truly the words of a human being created in the image of God?

Think about it—dogs give birth to dogs. And if you married a "dog," what does that say about your choice? Our words are also a testimony. Do you enjoy cursing and speaking foul language all the time to those inside and outside your home? Stop—it does no good to your health. Find some soap, bleach, and a toothbrush to clean your mouth every time you utter filthy words, and eventually, you will stop.

Let us avoid the habit of swearing. Doug Batchelor from Amazing Facts encouraged me. He said that even after knowing God for several years, he still struggled with swearing. Despite being a powerful preacher who preached everywhere, he was overwhelmed by cursing. Finally, he knelt down and prayed, "Lord, my mouth is unclean. I try not to curse, but when I get angry, I unleash all kinds of words. Help me." He said from that day on, all the swearing stopped. That is my prayer too—that God may deliver me from swearing. And when you gain victory over anything, give thanks to God and share your testimony. They say that testifying about God's goodness brings down the devil—"They overcame him by the word of their testimony and the blood of the Lamb."

"A journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step." We made a vow to God that if He helped us finish school, we would give 25% of our income back to Him in tithes and offerings and help those in need. When I finished school and started earning $2,000 a month, I moved out of my place to allow new people to be helped by the kind missionaries. Then, I began giving 25%—eventually up to 50%—in tithes, offerings, and to those in need.

God blessed us, and we worked with pastors and laypeople to build about 80 small churches ("bush churches") and sponsor 350 laypeople for various training programs. The pastors and laypeople also made us their partners in organizing around 65 public evangelistic meetings.

It has been a journey of faith. We discovered that a Christian has no limits—whatever a believer is doing, join them, and you will receive a blessing. We never sat down to plan everything because we are not planners by nature, but many people have blessed us by including us in their plans.

Indeed, we cannot do great things, but we can do small things with love. And even if our work is just a drop in the ocean, let us remember that every drop is what makes the ocean.

We used to think that if we had more money or time someday, we would do this or that for God's work. But we found that there was never a time when we had extra savings. Instead, we gave little by little from each paycheck and devoted our time and resources consistently.

My brother-in-law once laughed at the small churches we were building and said, "These foundations are weak—they will collapse. I am waiting until I can build a $50,000 church with a youth center on the upper floor." Ten years later, he came back to me and said, "I've realized that the right time may never come because money comes in and disappears. It's better to build these small church shelters like you do!"

One day, a pastor called us to build a church for the needy in Kigoma. We had no resources. He said, "Don't you even have 100 dollars to get women to fetch water, mix the mud, and bring wood so I can build these people a house made of mud and thatch?"

Before we think of the stars in the sky, let us first consider the small things that God enables us to do each day. Who knows—perhaps one day He will entrust us with greater tasks? Our greatest need is prayer; please join us in prayer so that the Lord may use us in His field. He who began a good work in you will bring it to completion—this is an encouragement to us in our stewardship. Our response should be, "Here I am, Lord, send me!" In short, let us remember that not only 10% of all we have belongs to the Lord, but 100%.

I have often asked myself, "Where will I get the resources?" Since I gave birth when I was over 40 years old, and my children are still young, I have wondered—if I give to others, how will my children go to school? Indeed, it is a challenge to provide education, and we have started this work, which is no small task. I am nearing retirement, my strength is fading, but my children are still young.

One day, while walking through the neighborhood I used to live in—Jersey City, New Jersey, just three miles from Manhattan, where those tall buildings were bombed by terrorists—I saw a man with a very large and beautiful white dog. I ran up to him and asked how much the dog weighed. He said, "140 kilograms!" I was amazed. He continued to boast, saying, "This dog eats a lot!" I asked how much he spends on the dog's food each month, and he said, "I spend a thousand dollars every month!"

I was shocked because there were six of us in my household, and we probably spent less than 500 dollars a month, while this man was spending twice that amount on just one dog. Then, the answer came to my heart—this man loves his dog and has asked his God to help him fulfill his desire to keep a pet. If you love people, ask God to help you—He will never abandon you. He will assist you in doing the work of helping others and furthering His mission.

Let us support one another in prayer so that we may become faithful stewards and overcome selfishness. May God also open the windows of heaven for us—after all, a house has more windows than doors!

If you were told today that you only had 24 hours to live and that you would die tomorrow, what would you do immediately? John Wesley said, "I would live just as I live every day." He outlined his daily schedule:

"I will wake up in the morning, read the Bible, and pray. Then I will take food to the widow and her children. After that, I will attend the morning worship service, work in my garden for two hours, visit people house to house, and share the Gospel…"

David asked, "What shall I render to the Lord for all His benefits toward me?" He realized that God owns everything. What could a mere mortal give to God? David concluded that the only thing he could do was to thank the Lord, tell others about His goodness, obey His commands, and uphold His testimonies

The Bible mentions seven major covenants that God made with people

1. The First Covenant—Adam (Genesis 1–3

2. The Second Covenant—Noah (Genesis 6–9)

3. The Third Covenant—Abraham (Genesis 12:1–3)

4. The Fourth Covenant—Moses and the Nation of Israel (Known as the Sinai or Mosaic Covenant; Exodus 19–24)

5. The Fifth Covenant—Phinehas (Numbers 25:10–13

6. The Sixth Covenant—David (2 Samuel 7:5–16)

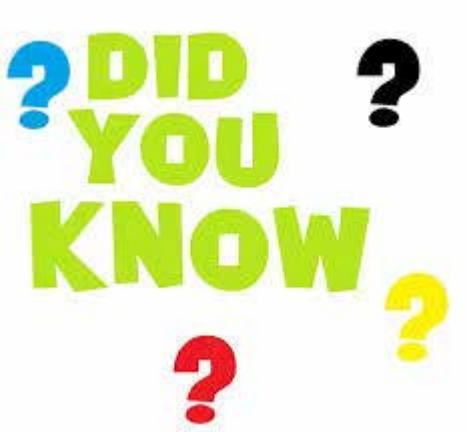
7. The Seventh Covenant—The New Covenant (Jeremiah 31:31–34)

Read the following scriptures. What do they mean when they mention the "everlasting covenant"?

Genesis 9:16

Genesis 17:7

Isaiah 55:3



Hebrews 13:20

We agree together that the New Jerusalem is not in ruins or desolation as in the time of Nehemiah, Ezra, Esther, and Zerubbabel. Instead, we are looking forward to a new heaven and a new earth.

BIBLE STUDIES

In These Morally Challenging Times

Lesson 1

In these morally challenging times—where billions of people are deceived by trusted corporate fraud, spiritual leaders are exposed as liars, lying in politics is commonplace, and those you rely on often hurt you the most—is there anything left that you can trust? Yes! You can completely trust the Bible! Why? Just consider the evidence...

The Bible is not a collection of human ideas. Its authors were inspired by the Holy Spirit.

1. What does the Bible claim about itself?

The Bible says:
"All Scripture is God-breathed." (2 Timothy 3:16)
"Prophecy never came by the will of man, but holy men of God spoke as they were moved by the Holy Spirit." (2 Peter 1:21)
"The Scripture cannot be broken." (John 10:35)

Answer: It claims divine authority. It was written by people who were inspired by the Holy Spirit. It cannot be broken or proven untrue.

Jesus quoted the Bible and declared it to be the truth.

2. How did Jesus demonstrate His confidence and faith in the Scriptures?

Jesus said:
“It is written, ‘Man shall not live by bread alone.’”
“It is written again, ‘You shall not tempt the Lord your God.’”
“It is written, ‘You shall worship the Lord your God, and Him only shall you serve.’” (Matthew 4:4, 7, 10)

“Your word is truth.” (John 17:17)
Answer: Jesus quoted the Scriptures when facing Satan’s temptations. He also declared that the Bible is truth (John 17:17). He consistently referred to Scripture as the authoritative truth in His teachings.

Before Cyrus was born, God’s prophet in the Bible named him as the general who would overthrow Babylon.

3. Does Bible prophecy confirm that it is inspired by the Holy Spirit?

The Bible says:
“I am the Lord ... I declare new things; before they spring forth, I tell you of them.” (Isaiah 42:8-9)
“I am God ... declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times things that are not yet done.” (Isaiah 46:9-10)

Answer: The Bible’s predictions of future events confirm its divine inspiration as they are fulfilled. Consider the following examples of fulfilled Bible prophecies:

Four world empires would arise: Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece, and Rome (Daniel chapters 2, 7, 8).

Cyrus would be the military leader who captures Babylon (Isaiah 45:1-3).

After Babylon’s destruction, it would never be inhabited again (Jeremiah 51:37).

Egypt would never again have a commanding role among nations (Ezekiel 29:14-15; 30:12-13).

Global disasters and fear would increase toward the end of time (Luke 21:25-26).

A moral and spiritual decline would occur in the last days (2 Timothy 3:1-5).

4. Can we expect the Bible's scientific statements to be accurate?

The Bible says:
"Your word is true from the beginning." (Psalm 119:160)
"The Spirit ... will guide you into all truth." (John 16:13)

Answer: Yes, the Bible is true. The Holy Spirit, who guided the Bible's authors, always speaks the truth. Here are a few scientific statements from the Bible confirmed by modern science:

"He ... hangs the earth on nothing." (Job 26:7) – This scientific fact came from Job, the oldest book of the Bible.

"He ... sits above the circle of the earth." (Isaiah 40:22) – The Bible declared the earth is a sphere centuries before humans discovered it.

"To make the weight for the wind." (Job 28:25) – Long before scientists knew, God said the air has weight.

"By Him [Jesus] all things consist." (Colossians 1:17) – The Greek word translated "consist" literally means "hold together" or "stick together." Many Bible translations say, "hold together." This addresses the mystery of nuclear physics—why do atoms hold together? Science says they should fly apart, but they do not. Some scientists marvel at what unknown force holds them together. The Bible reveals that this mysterious force is the Creator Himself—God.

The Bible is not only a spiritual guide but also provides accurate insights into the natural world—long before human discovery.

Many diseases would not exist if ancient God's moral laws were followed.

5. Are the biblical health principles relevant to the 21st-century mind?
Answer: Cover excrement with dirt (Deuteronomy 23:12, 13).
The biblical instruction during the time of Moses that bodily waste should be buried was given 3,500 years ahead of its time and saved countless Jewish lives. Serious problems still arise today when sanitation is not properly handled.

"Neither let us commit fornication." (1 Corinthians 10:8).
The word "fornication" refers to all forms of sexual immorality, including homosexuality and other practices that God forbids in Scripture. There would be no outbreaks of sexually transmitted diseases or AIDS if this modern biblical counsel were obeyed, nor would abortion be the global scandal it is today.

Avoid alcoholic beverages (Proverbs 23:29–32).
If this highly effective biblical solution were followed, imagine what it would mean:

Millions of alcoholics would become temperate, respectable citizens.

Millions of families would be reunited.

Countless broken homes would be restored.

Thousands of lives would be saved through sober driving.

Thousands of government leaders, businesspeople, and professionals would make clear-headed decisions.

Billions of dollars would be freed up for humanitarian use.

The use of alcohol has brought unspeakable sorrow to many people.
Remember: God not only tells us how to live happily amid today's terrifying problems but also gives us the extraordinary power to do so (1 Corinthians 15:57; Philippians 4:13; Romans 1:16). The Bible's health principles are practical and urgently needed, but few pay attention to them. For more information on health, see Study Guide 13.

Archaeological discoveries repeatedly confirm the accuracy and truth of the Bible.

6. Are the historical statements in the Bible accurate?
The Bible says, "I, the Lord, speak the truth; I declare what is right." (Isaiah 45:19, RSV).

Answer: Yes, the historical records of the Bible are accurate. What God says in His book is true. Sometimes, evidence to confirm certain biblical historical facts may not be available immediately, but over time, such evidence emerges. Consider the following:

For years, skeptics claimed the Bible was unreliable because it mentioned the Hittite nation (Deuteronomy 7:1) and cities like Nineveh (Jonah 1:1–2) and Sodom (Genesis 19:1), which they believed never existed. However, modern archaeology has confirmed the existence of all three.

Critics also claimed that the biblical kings Belshazzar (Daniel 5:1) and Sargon (Isaiah 20:1) never existed, but archaeological evidence has since confirmed their existence.

Some doubters argued that the Bible's mention of writing (Exodus 24:4) and wheeled vehicles (Exodus 14:25) during Moses' time was false. However, modern findings have proven these practices existed during that era.

At one point, the only record of 39 kings of ancient Israel and Judah during the divided kingdom came from the Bible, leading critics to question their existence. Yet, archaeological inscriptions have confirmed many of these kings. Time and again, new discoveries validate biblical people, places, and events—proving the Bible's accuracy.

7. One of the greatest miracles of the Bible is its unity. Consider these amazing facts:

Answer:
A. The 66 books of the Bible were written:

On three continents.

In three languages.

By approximately 40 different people—kings, shepherds, scientists, lawyers, military leaders, fishermen, priests, and a physician.

Over approximately 1,500 years.

On the most controversial subjects.

By people who, in many cases, had never met.

By writers with widely different backgrounds and levels of education.

B. Yet, despite these differences:

The 66 books maintain perfect harmony with one another.

New concepts are often introduced, but they do not contradict what other biblical writers say about the same topics.

C. This is astonishing!

If you ask several people who have witnessed the same event to provide a report, their accounts will usually differ and often contradict each other. Yet, the Bible—written by 40 authors over 1,500 years—reads as if it were written by a single mind. Indeed, it was: "Holy men of God spoke as they were moved by the Holy Spirit." (2 Peter 1:21). The Holy Spirit "moved" the writers—He is the true Author of the Bible. Although the four Gospels sometimes present events differently, they complement one another perfectly.

Accepting Christ and obeying the Scriptures transforms a drunkard, an immoral person, and a sinner into a loving, temperate, and pure Christian. Skeptics cannot explain this reality.

8. What evidence of the Bible's inspiration is found in the lives of people?
The Bible says, "If anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation; old things have passed away; behold, all things have become new." (2 Corinthians 5:17).

Answer: The transformed lives of those who follow Jesus and obey the Scriptures provide the most heartwarming evidence of the Bible's divine inspiration. A drunkard becomes sober; the immoral become pure; addicts are set free; the irreligious become devout; the fearful become courageous; and the rude become kind.

An American critic once visited an island where the inhabitants had been cannibals. Seeing an old man reading the Bible, he mockingly remarked that the book was filled with "fables long since debunked." The islander smiled and replied, "My friend, you should be grateful we believe this book—otherwise, you would be our dinner." The Bible truly changes people, offering undeniable proof of its divine inspiration.

9. What evidence of the Bible's inspiration appears when we compare Old Testament prophecies about the Messiah with New Testament events in the life of Jesus?
The Bible says, "Beginning with Moses and all the Prophets, [Jesus] explained to them what was said in all the Scriptures concerning himself." (Luke 24:27). "For [Apollos] vigorously refuted the Jews publicly, showing from the Scriptures that Jesus is the Christ." (Acts 18:28, NKJV).

Answer: The Old Testament prophecies about the Messiah were specific and were fulfilled so clearly by Jesus of Nazareth that both He and Apollos used these prophecies to prove to the Jews that Jesus was indeed the Messiah. There are over 125 prophecies about the Messiah. Here are just 12 of them:

Prophecy		Maandiko ya Agano la Kale	Utimilifu wa Agano Jipya
1.	Native of Bethlehem	Micah 5:2	Mathew 2:1
2.	Virgin birth	Isaiah 7:14	Mathew 1:18-23
3.	Of the lineage of David	Jeremiah 23:5	Revelation 22:16
4.	Attempted murder by herod	Jeremiah 31:15	Mathew 2:16-18
5.	Betrayed by a friend	Psalms 41:9	John 13:18 , 19 , 26
6.	Sold for 30silver coins	Zechariah 11:12	Mathew 26:14-16
7.	Crucifixion	Zechariah 12:10	John 19:16-18 , 37
8.	Lots cast for his clothes	Psalms22:18	Mathew 27:35

11.	Year,day,hour of his passing	Daniel 9:26 , 27 Exodus 12:6	Mathew27:45-50
12.	Resurrected on the third day	Hosea 6:2	Acts10:38-40

##table

Dr. Peter Stoner, former chairman of the departments of mathematics, astronomy, and engineering at Pasadena College in California, worked with 600 students over several years using the "principle of probability" to examine prophecies about the coming of the Messiah. They selected only eight prophecies out of the many available and ultimately determined that the likelihood of all eight being fulfilled by one person in a lifetime is one in 1,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000. What would the probability be for more than 125 Messianic prophecies? It could not have happened by chance!

The Bible teaches that the earth was created in six literal days.

10. What great benefit does a person receive by accepting the Bible as God's inspired Word?

The Bible says, "I understand more than the ancients because I keep Your precepts." (Psalm 119:100) "You ... have made me wiser than my enemies."

(Psalm 119:98) “For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways.” (Isaiah 55:9)

The Bible’s account of the Flood provides answers that secular scholars seek. Answer: A person who accepts God’s Word will soon know the answers to many complex challenges that secular scholars will never be able to find. For example, the Bible teaches:
God created the earth and all living creatures in six literal 24-hour days (Exodus 20:11; Psalm 33:6, 9).

A worldwide flood destroyed every living creature except marine life and those inside Noah’s ark (Genesis chapters 6, 7, 8).
The various languages of the world originated at the Tower of Babel (Genesis 11:1-9).

God, who has always existed and knows everything, shares these three truths with us, knowing that we could never discover them on our own. We currently “know in part” (1 Corinthians 13:9), and God’s knowledge “surpasses understanding” (Romans 11:33). Evolutionists will never know the true age of the earth because it was created with apparent age—just as Adam and Eve were.

The couple was only one day old on their second day of life, but they appeared as fully mature adults. Human measuring instruments cannot account for apparent age. In such cases, they are unreliable. Trust the Bible, and you will always be ahead of secular and worldly wisdom.

11. What major world events have highlighted the power and appeal of the Bible?
Answer: The collapse of communism and the weakening of the theory of evolution have emphasized the Bible’s authority.

True science will always align with the Bible because God is the author of both.

Note: The Soviet Union tried communism, rejected God, and adopted evolution—the core principle of Marxism. All three failed. Emerging democracies recognize that only one thing will work, and almost unanimously, they call for the Christian faith: “Bring us the Bible and Christian teachings and preaching. We must now build on the solid foundation of prayer and Christian faith. Nothing else will work. Nothing else will answer the great questions of life and bring peace to the hearts of our people. Please, do not make us wait! We are yearning for and need the Bible, God, and Christianity now." Once again, God's Word prevails.

Evolution, like communism, is losing its credibility and coherence. We must remember that it is nothing more than an unproven and shaky theory. Here are just three points:

1. Robert Gentry's book, Creation's Tiny Mystery, has unsettled many evolutionists with its clear evidence of an instantaneous creation. His book, Mystery in the Rocks, is easy to understand and based on his research—it is available from Amazing Facts.

2. Recent molecular biology evidence shows that a single cell is so complex that the accidental origin of life is mathematically impossible.

3. The drastically revised scientific dating of the layers in the Grand Canyon—contradicting earlier claims—exposes the irresponsibility and inaccuracy of evolutionary methods.

The atheistic theory of evolution, which claims that humans and apes evolved from a common ancestor, denies the biblical teaching that people were created in the image of God. It rejects the existence of God, denies Jesus as the Savior, undermines the Bible, and mocks the truth of eternal life in heaven. Satan loves the theory of evolution because it undermines the credibility of salvation. Communists are learning—are you?

The Bible appeals to people everywhere because it provides clear answers to life's most perplexing questions.

12. Why is the Bible so appealing worldwide?

The Bible says:
"Your word is ... a light to my path." (Psalm 119:105)
"These things I have spoken to you ... that your joy may be full." (John 15:11)
"In the image of God ... He created them." (Genesis 1:27)
"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father in heaven." (Matthew 5:16)
"I will come again and receive you to Myself, that where I am, there you may be also." (John 14:3)
Answer: Because it answers life's most puzzling questions:
Where did I come from?

God created us in His image. We did not emerge accidentally from a cosmic accident. We are the sons and daughters of the Almighty King (Galatians 3:26). We are so valuable to God that when Adam and Eve sinned, He gave His Son to die and pay the penalty for our sins, setting us free. God wants to restore us to His image and, soon, to restore us to Eden—the paradise Adam and Eve lost.

Why am I here?

Our life's purpose today should be to discover the Bible's wonderful answers to life's perplexing problems and to accept Jesus' offer to restore us to His image (Romans 8:29).
What is the future?
There is no guesswork about the future. Jesus will soon return to take His people to the glorious home He has prepared for them in heaven. There, with great joy and happiness, people will live forever (John 14:1-3; Revelation 21:3, 4).

13. I thank God for giving me positive answers to the perplexing questions in life.

Answer

Questions for Thought

1. I am disturbed that the Bible gives such shocking and explicit accounts of sin when recording the lives of certain people mentioned in it. Is this really necessary? (Romans 15:4)
Yes. This is one of the main reasons the Bible is trustworthy. Most biographies either omit or downplay faults and often exaggerate virtues. Telling it as it is gives people confidence that the Bible can be trusted because it does not hide the truth. Moreover, Satan's strategy is to make people believe they are too sinful for God to save or accept them. How joyful it is for those people to see Bible stories of individuals like them—or even worse—whom God redeemed from sin and justified! (Romans 15:4)

2. Is the entire Bible inspired by the Spirit? Many believe only parts of it are. (2 Timothy 3:16)
The Bible answers: "All Scripture is God-breathed and is useful for teaching, rebuking, correcting, and training in righteousness." (2 Timothy 3:16). The Bible does not merely contain God's Word—it is God's Word. It is the manual for human life and conduct. Ignore any part of it, and you will encounter unnecessary difficulties and troubles.

3. The Bible is an ancient book with outdated words and concepts. Don't you think it's unsafe to rely on something so far removed from our modern, enlightened age? (1 Peter 1:25)

No. Its age is part of its greatness. In fact, that is one of the proofs of its divine nature. The Bible says, "The Word of the Lord endures forever." (1 Peter 1:25). The Bible stands firm like a rock—it is God's book, His Word. It cannot be destroyed. Humans and even entire nations have burned, banned, and tried to discredit and destroy the Bible, yet in the end, they discredit themselves. They fade away, and their attacks are forgotten. Yet the Bible remains the world's best-selling and most sought-after book. Millions would die for it if necessary. Its message comes from God and is 100% reliable. Before reading it, pray and ask God to open your heart as you study.

4. Some of the world's most intelligent people, who have studied the Bible thoroughly, believe no one can truly understand it. If the Bible is really God's book, shouldn't everyone be able to understand it?
People with brilliant minds who can comprehend and explain nearly anything are often stumped when they read the Bible. The reason is that spiritual matters "are discerned only through the Spirit." (1 Corinthians 2:13, 14). The deep things of God's Word will never be understood by worldly intelligence, no matter how gifted a person may be. Unless someone sincerely seeks an experience with God, they cannot understand God's truths. The Holy Spirit, who explains the Bible (John 16:13; 14:26), is beyond the comprehension of the natural, worldly mind. On the other hand, a humble Christian—even without formal education—can receive astonishing insights from the Holy Spirit (Matthew 11:25; 1 Corinthians 2:9, 10).

5. The Bible is full of errors. How can you believe it is inspired? (Isaiah 28:9)
Many of the so-called errors in the Bible have been shown to be misunderstandings or misjudgments by critics. They are not errors at all—just misunderstood truths. The inspired Bible:

Will always tell you the truth.
Will never mislead you.
Can be trusted completely.
Is reliable and authoritative, not just in spiritual matters, but also in other areas it addresses, including history and science.

Satan is always seeking to find faults in Scripture, which is not surprising—he even found fault with God in heaven. While copyists may have made minor errors in certain cases, nothing alleged affects the truth of God's Word. Doctrine is not based on a single verse but on the overall message of Scripture. We know of no claimed errors that would affect the substance of biblical truth. Some things in Scripture remain difficult to reconcile, and there will always be room for doubt for those who prefer to doubt. However, we believe that even the so-called errors—just as in the past—will eventually be revealed as false claims. The more people try to undermine the Bible, the brighter its light shines.

Did God Create Satan?

Lesson 2

Many people worldwide are deceived by an evil force intent on destroying their lives—a master schemer known as the Devil or Satan. But this prince of darkness is more than you might think... Some say he's just a mythical figure, but the Bible reveals that he is very real. He deceives families, churches, and even nations to increase sorrow and pain. Here are amazing biblical facts about this prince of darkness and how you can overcome him!

Sin Originated with Satan, Who Is Also Called the Devil

1. With whom did sin originate?
"The devil has been sinning from the beginning." (1 John 3:8)
"That ancient serpent called the devil, or Satan." (Revelation 12:9)

Answer:
Satan, also known as the devil, is the originator of sin. Without the Scriptures, the source of evil would remain unexplained.

2. What was Satan's name before he sinned? Where did he live at that time?
"How you have fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, son of the morning!" (Isaiah 14:12)
Jesus said, "I saw Satan fall like lightning from heaven." (Luke 10:18)
"You were on the holy mount of God." (Ezekiel 28:14)

Answer:
His name was Lucifer, and he lived in heaven. Lucifer is compared to the king of Babylon in Isaiah 14 and to the king of Tyre in Ezekiel 2

Lucifer Was a Heavenly Angel Created by God
He was perfect in wisdom and beauty and stood near God's throne.

3. What was Lucifer's origin? What position did he hold? How does the Bible describe him?
"You were created." (Ezekiel 28:13, 15)
"You were the anointed cherub who covers." (Ezekiel 28:14)
"You were the seal of perfection, full of wisdom and perfect in beauty; every precious stone was your covering. The workmanship of your timbrels and pipes was prepared for you on the day you were created. You were perfect in your ways from the day you were created until iniquity was found in you." (Ezekiel 28:12-15)

Answer:
Lucifer was created by God, just like all other angels (Ephesians 3:9). He was the “covering cherub,” or angel. One mighty angel stands on the left of God’s throne and another on the right (Psalm 99:1), and Lucifer was one of these highly exalted angels. His beauty was flawless and dazzling, and his wisdom was perfect.

Ezekiel 28:13 suggests that Lucifer was specially gifted as a master musician. Some believe he led the heavenly choir of angels.
Satan Wants People to Worship Him
He even tried to persuade Jesus to worship him.

4. What happened in Lucifer’s life that led him to sin? What blasphemous sin did he then commit?
“Your heart was lifted up because of your beauty; you corrupted your wisdom for the sake of your splendor.” (Ezekiel 28:17)
“For you said in your heart: … ‘I will exalt my throne above the stars of God; … I will be like the Most High.’ “ (Isaiah 14:13, 14)

Answer:
Pride, jealousy, dissatisfaction, and self-exaltation developed in Lucifer’s heart. He decided to attempt to overthrow God and demand worship from all created beings. This was the most severe form of treason.

Lucifer was not satisfied with the high honor God had already given him. He desired God’s position and power. His rebellion led to the great conflict between good and evil that continues to this day

Remember: Why is worship such a big deal? Worship is at the heart of the ongoing conflict between God and Satan. People were created to find true happiness and fulfillment only when they worship God alone. Even the unfallen angels in heaven must not be worshiped (Revelation 22:8, 9). Satan sought worship from the beginning. Many centuries later, when he tempted Jesus in the wilderness, worship was still the main issue (Matthew 4:8-11). In these last days, God is calling all people to worship Him (Revelation 14:6, 7). This enrages Satan so much that he will try to force people to worship him—or else be killed (Revelation 13:15).

Everyone worships someone or something—power, fame, food, pleasure, wealth, personal opinions, etc. But God says, “You shall have no other gods before Me.” (Exodus 20:3). If we do not worship Him alone, He considers us to be against Him (Matthew 12:30). This is startling, but it is true. If anything or anyone else takes first place in my life instead of God, I may unknowingly be supporting and worshiping Satan. Does God hold the first place in my life, or am I unknowingly elevating Satan? It's a tough question, isn't it?

Lucifer's discontent led to open rebellion against God. A third of the angels in heaven joined him in an attempt to overthrow God. As a result, Lucifer and his followers were cast out of heaven.

5. What happened in heaven as a result of Lucifer's rebellion?
"And there was war in heaven; Michael and his angels fought against the dragon, and the dragon and his angels fought back. But he was not strong enough, and they lost their place in heaven. The great dragon was hurled down—that ancient serpent called the devil, or Satan, who leads the whole world astray. He was hurled to the earth, and his angels with him." (Revelation 12:7-9).

Answer:
Lucifer convinced a third of the angels (Revelation 12:3, 4) to join his rebellion against God. God had no choice but to cast Lucifer and his angels out of heaven. This was the most significant battle ever fought. Lucifer's goal was to seize God's throne, even if it meant murder (John 8:44). After his expulsion from heaven, Lucifer became known as Satan (which means "adversary") and the devil (which means "accuser"), while his followers became known as demons.

Satan's headquarters are on earth. He hates humanity and seeks to hurt God by destroying people.

6. Where is Satan's headquarters now? How does he feel about people?
"The Lord said to Satan, 'Where have you come from?' Satan answered the Lord, 'From roaming throughout the earth, going back and forth on it.'" (Job 2:2).
"Woe to the earth and the sea, because the devil has gone down to you! He is filled with fury, because he knows that his time is short." (Revelation 12:12).
"Your enemy the devil prowls around like a roaring lion looking for someone to devour." (1 Peter 5:8).

Answer:
Contrary to popular belief, Satan's headquarters are on earth—not in a place of fiery torment. God gave Adam and Eve authority over the earth (Genesis 1:26). When they sinned, they lost that authority to Satan (Romans 6:16), who became the ruler, or prince, of this world (John 12:31). Satan intensely hates humans because they were created in God's image. Since he cannot hurt God directly, he directs his hatred toward humanity—God's children. He is a cruel, hateful murderer whose aim is to destroy you and thereby hurt God.

Adam and Eve were forbidden to eat from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, with death as the penalty for disobedience.

7. What was the one thing God forbade Adam and Eve to do? What was the penalty for disobedience?
“But you must not eat from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, for when you eat from it you will certainly die.” (Genesis 2:17).

Answer:
They were forbidden to eat from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. The penalty for eating from it was death.
Satan took the form of a talking serpent to deceive Eve into eating the forbidden fruit.

8. What agent did Satan use to deceive Eve? What lies did Satan tell her?
“Now the serpent was more crafty than any of the wild animals the Lord God had made. He said to the woman, ‘Did God really say, “You must not eat from any tree in the garden?”’ (Genesis 3:1).

“You will not certainly die,” the serpent said to the woman. ‘For God knows that when you eat from it your eyes will be opened, and you will be like God, knowing good and evil.’” (Genesis 3:4, 5).

Answer:
Satan used a serpent—the most intelligent and attractive animal God had created—to deceive Eve. Some believe the serpent originally had wings and could fly (Isaiah 14:29; 30:6). Remember, it did not crawl until after God cursed it (Genesis 3:14). Satan’s lies were: (1) “You will not die,” and (2) “Eating the fruit will make you wise.” Satan, the inventor of lies (John 8:44), mixed truth with falsehood to deceive Eve. The most effective lies contain some truth. It was true that they would “know evil” after sinning. In His love, God had shielded them from the knowledge of sorrow, pain, suffering, and death. Just as he does today, Satan made the knowledge of evil seem attractive.

Satan lied to misrepresent God’s character, knowing that no one would turn away from a loving God unless they misunderstood who He truly is.

Eating the forbidden fruit made Adam and Eve align themselves with Satan, God’s bitter enemy.

9. Was eating a piece of fruit really such a serious sin? Why were Adam and Eve expelled from the garden?

“If anyone, then, knows the good they ought to do and doesn’t do it, it is sin for them.” (James 4:17).

“Sin is lawlessness.” (1 John 3:4).
“The one who does what is sinful is of the devil.” (1 John 3:8).
“And the Lord God said, ‘The man has now become like one of us, knowing good and evil. He must not be allowed to reach out his hand and take also from the tree of life and eat, and live forever.’ So the Lord God banished him from the Garden of Eden…” (Genesis 3:22, 24).

Answer:
Yes, eating the fruit was a serious sin because it was direct disobedience to one of God’s few commands. It was an open act of rebellion against God’s law and authority. By rejecting God’s command, Adam and Eve aligned themselves with Satan and caused a separation between themselves and God (Isaiah 59:2). Satan hoped that by getting them to sin and then eat from the tree of life, they would become immortal sinners. But God removed them from the garden to prevent such a disaster.

10. What astonishing facts does the Bible reveal about Satan’s methods of harming, deceiving, discouraging, and destroying people?

Answer: Satan uses every possible means to deceive and destroy people. His demons can appear as righteous people—even ministers. Satan himself will impersonate Jesus, performing miracles like calling fire down from heaven. But you have been warned—do not be deceived. When Jesus returns, every eye will see Him (Revelation 1:7), and He will remain in the clouds without touching the earth (1 Thessalonians 4:17).

The Bible says Satan
The Bible says satan deceives/ oppresses (Revelation 12:9 , 13)	Misquotations/incorrect quotations in the Bible (Mathew 4:5 , 6)
False accusations /murders(Revelation 12:10 John 8:44)	Traps (2 Timothy 2:26 1 Peter 5:8)
Wages war against God’s people (Revelation12:17)	Binds/Incites betrayal (Luke13:16 Job 13:2 , 21)
Prisonners (Revelation 2:10)	Wealth/Obstacles (Luke 22:3-5 1 Thessalonians 2:18)
Performs miracles / lies(Revelation 16:13 , 14 John 8:44)	He appears as an angel of light (2 corinthians11:13-15) .
Brings diseases/suffering(Job 2:7)	His demons disguise themselves as pastors (2 Corinthians 11:13-15) .
Slander(“Devil means accuser”)	He calls down fire from heaven (Revelation13:13)

Satan's End-Time Deceptive Power Will Be So Great That Nearly the Entire World Will Follow Him

11. How powerful and effective are Satan's temptations and strategies?
He deceived:
One-third of the angels (Revelation 12:3-9)
Adam and Eve (Genesis 3)
Everyone except eight people in the days of Noah (1 Peter 3:20)
He will make the lost feel saved (Matthew 7:21-23)
Almost the entire world will follow him (Revelation 13:3)
Only a few will be saved (Matthew 7:14; 22:14)

Answer:
Satan's success rate is so high that it seems unbelievable. He deceived one-third of the angels. In Noah's time, everyone except eight people was deceived. Before Jesus returns the second time, Satan will appear as an angel, pretending to be Christ. His deceptive power will be so great that our only safety will be in refusing to go and see him (Matthew 24:23-26). If you firmly refuse to look or listen, Jesus will protect you from being deceived (John 10:29).

At the end of the world, Satan will be cast into the lake of fire, which will reduce him to ashes and bring his existence to an end forever.

12. When and where will the devil receive his punishment, and what will it be?
"So will it be at the end of this world. The Son of Man will send out His angels, and they will gather out of His kingdom all things that offend, and those who practice lawlessness, and will cast them into the furnace of fire." (Matthew 13:40-42)
"And the devil, who deceived them, was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone." (Revelation 20:10)
"Depart from Me, you cursed, into the everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels." (Matthew 25:41)
"I will bring forth a fire from within you; it will devour you. And I will turn you to ashes upon the earth in the sight of all who see you... and you will never exist again." (Ezekiel 28:18-19)

Answer:
The devil will be cast into the lake of fire on this earth at the end of the world. The fire will consume him, turn him into ashes, and end his existence forever. This fire will also destroy all sinners. In this final display, no one on God's side will die, and no one on Satan's side will survive.

Note: It is impossible to fully express the sorrow and pain the Father and the Son will experience when Satan is destroyed. He was once closer to them than any other created being—a cheerful and personal friend. Destroying him and the millions of people who followed him will cause the Father and the Son more pain than the fire will cause anyone being consumed.

God's people in heaven will be safe from sin forever. It will never rise again.

13. What permanently solves the terrible problem of sin? Will sin ever arise again?
"As I live, says the Lord, every knee shall bow to Me, and every tongue shall confess to God." (Romans 14:11; see also Philippians 2:10-11; Isaiah 45:23)
"Affliction will not rise up a second time." (Nahum 1:9)

Answer:
Two major events will resolve the problem of sin permanently:

First, every creature in heaven and on earth—including Satan and his angels—will willingly kneel and publicly confess that God is true, just, and righteous. No questions will be left unanswered. All sinners will openly admit that they are lost because they deliberately rejected God's love and salvation. They will acknowledge that justice requires their eternal death, and they will agree that they deserve it.
Second, sin will be eradicated from the universe by the complete and final destruction of sin, sinners, Satan, and his angels.
God assures us that sin will never arise again to destroy His perfect universe. Jesus made the destruction of sin possible.
14. Who guarantees the final and complete removal of sin from the universe?
"For this purpose, the Son of God was manifested, that He might destroy the works of the devil." (1 John 3:8)
"Since the children have flesh and blood, He also shared in their humanity so that by His death He might destroy him who holds the power of death—that is, the devil." (Hebrews 2:14)

Answer:
Through His life, death, and resurrection, Jesus made the removal of sin from the universe certain.

God, our Father, loves us more than any earthly father could ever love his children. He cannot wait to welcome us into His new kingdom.

15. How does God the Father feel about people?
“The Father Himself loves you.” (John 16:27; see also John 3:16; 17:22-23)

Answer:
The Father loves people just as much as the Son does. Jesus’ primary mission was to reveal His Father’s character through His own life so that people would understand how loving, caring, and approachable the Father truly is (John 5:19).

Satan Misrepresents the Father
Satan falsely portrays the Father as cold, harsh, and unapproachable—attributes that reflect Satan himself. He even blames his own evil actions and disasters on God. Jesus came to erase these lies and to show that our heavenly Father loves us more deeply than a mother loves her child (Isaiah 49:15). Jesus’ greatest passion was to demonstrate God’s patience, compassion, and abundant mercy.

The Father Is Eager to Welcome Us
To give His people eternal happiness, our heavenly Father has prepared a wonderful home for them. Our dreams here cannot compare to what He has in store! It is hard for Him to wait to welcome His people on that joyful homecoming day that lies ahead.

Let us share the message! Let us be ready. The remaining time is already ticking away.

16. I am glad to know that God the Father loves me as much as Jesus does.

Questions of Thought

1. Was the fruit that Adam and Eve ate an apple?
We don’t know. The Bible doesn’t say.

2. Where did the idea of depicting Satan as a red creature, half-man and half-beast with horns and a tail originate?
It came from pagan myths and pleases Satan. He knows that people who think of him as a fictional monster will be led to deny his existence. Those who do not believe in Satan are the first to fall prey to his schemes.

3. God told Adam and Eve, “On the day you eat from the tree, you will surely die.” (Genesis 2:17). Why didn’t they die that day?
The Bible speaks of two kinds of death:
(1) The “first” death, which everyone experiences (Hebrews 9:27).

(2) The “second” death, which the wicked will suffer in the lake of fire at the end of time (Revelation 21:8).
The difference is that there is no resurrection from the second death—it is eternal death.

Jesus Died the Second Death for Everyone
When Adam and Eve sinned, they would have immediately died the second death if not for the fact that Jesus stepped in and offered His life on Calvary for everyone. His supreme sacrifice spared them (Hebrews 2:9).

When Adam Sinned, His “Immortal” Nature Became “Mortal”
Regarding the first death, the literal translation of the word “die” in Genesis 2:17 is “dying you will die,” which is noted in the margins of many Bibles. This means that Adam and Eve would enter the process of dying. Before sinning, the couple had an immortal, sinless nature. This immortality was sustained by eating from the tree of life. At the moment of sin, their natures changed to mortal, sinful natures—just as God had predicted. Since they were barred from the tree of life, decay and deterioration, leading to death, began immediately. The grave became certain. The Lord emphasized this later when He told them, “For dust you are, and to dust you will return” (Genesis 3:19).

4. Since God created Lucifer, isn’t He responsible for his sin?
Absolutely not. God created Lucifer as a perfect, sinless angel. Lucifer made himself Satan. Free will is a foundational principle of God’s government. God knew Lucifer would sin when He created him. If God had refused to create him because of this foreknowledge, He would have been rejecting that fundamental principle of free choice.

“Free Will” is God’s Way
Therefore, even knowing what Lucifer would do, God still created him. The same applies to the creation of Adam and Eve. And, closer to home, this truth applies to you and me. God knows how we will live before we are born, yet He still allows us to live and choose whether to support His government or Satan’s. God is willing to be misunderstood, falsely accused, and blamed for years while allowing everyone to freely choose whom they will follow.
Only a Loving God Can Risk Granting Complete Freedom to All
This precious and essential gift of freedom can only come from a righteous, open, and loving God. It is an honor and a joy to serve such a Lord and Friend.
Choose to Serve God

The problem of sin will soon come to an end. In the beginning, everything was “very good” (Genesis 1:31). Now, “the whole world lies in wickedness” (1 John 5:19). People everywhere are choosing to serve either God or Satan.

Use your amazing, God-given freedom to choose to serve the Lord.

5. Why didn't God destroy Satan when he first sinned and thus end the problem of sin?
Because sin was an entirely new thing in God's universe, and its inhabitants did not understand it. Perhaps even Lucifer himself did not fully understand it at first. Lucifer was a highly talented and greatly respected angelic leader. His approach was undoubtedly one of concern for heaven and the angels. It may have sounded something like this:

"Heaven is wonderful, but it could be improved with more input from the angels. Too much unquestioned authority (like the Father and the Son possess) tends to blind leaders to real-life situations. Angels should not have to take orders; we should give orders. God knows my suggestions are right, and He feels threatened. We must not allow our exalted leaders to jeopardize heaven's existence. They will listen if we unite—let's not be weak. We must act; otherwise, we will all be destroyed by a government that does not value us."

A Third of the Angels Joined Lucifer
Lucifer's arguments persuaded many angels, and a third of them joined him. If God had destroyed Lucifer immediately, some angelic beings who did not fully understand God's character might have begun to worship Him out of fear, saying, "Maybe Lucifer was right. Be careful. If you disagree with God, He might kill you." So, nothing would have been resolved. Instead, the problem would have grown worse.

God Accepts Only Willing, Loving Service
The only service acceptable to God is cheerful, voluntary service motivated by love. Obedience for any other reason is not acceptable.

God Allowed Satan Time to Demonstrate His Principles
Satan claimed that he had a better plan for governing the universe. God is allowing him time to reveal his principles. The Lord will bring sin to an end once every being in the universe is convinced that Satan's government is unjust, hateful, merciless, deceitful, and destructive.

The Universe Is Watching This World
The Bible says, "We have been made a spectacle to the world, to angels, and to men." (1 Corinthians 4:9). The entire universe is watching as each of us participates in the conflict between Christ and Satan. When the conflict is over, every being will fully understand the principles of both kingdoms and will have chosen to follow either Christ or Satan. Those who have chosen to align with sin and Satan will be destroyed with him, and God's people will be taken to the eternal safety of their heavenly home

Rescue from Above

Scriptures: Jeremiah 31:3, 1 John 4:9-10, Romans 5:8

Lesson 3

Imagine the terror of being stranded in the ocean with hungry sharks and looming dangers! Now, think of the joy and relief you would feel if you were rescued safely. The truth is, every person on this planet is lost in a sea full of dangers. We need urgent rescue—not from a boat or a helicopter, but from our Heavenly Father. God loves you so much that He sent His Son to save you. You may have heard this before, but are you sure you fully understand what it really means? What does it mean to you, and how can it change your life? Read on and find out!

God cares about you personally. What a wonderful reason to rejoice!

1. Does God really care about me?
This is what He says: “Since you were precious in My sight, you have been honored, and I have loved you.” (Isaiah 43:4)
“Yes, I have loved you with an everlasting love.” (Jeremiah 31:3)

Answer: God’s endless love for you and me is beyond our understanding. He loves you as if you were the only lost soul in the universe. He would give His life for you or me, even if there were no other sinner to redeem. Never forget this truth—you are precious in His sight. He loves you.

There has never been a greater display of love than the cross.

2. How has God shown His love for us?
“For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish but have everlasting life.” (John 3:16)
“In this, the love of God was manifested toward us, that God has sent His only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through Him. In this is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us and sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins.” (1 John 4:9, 10)

Answer: Because He loved us so much, He was willing to see His only Son suffer and die rather than be separated from you and me forever. We may never fully understand it, but He did it—for you alone, for me alone!

There has never been a person whom Jesus did not love.

3. How could He love someone like me?
“But God demonstrates His own love toward us, in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us.” (Romans 5:8)

Answer: Certainly not because I earned it or deserved it. None of us has earned anything except the wages of sin, which is death (Romans 6:23). But God's love is unconditional. He loves thieves, adulterers, and murderers. He also loves the selfish, the hypocritical, and the irreligious. But most amazing of all—He loves me! And because He knows that my sins can only bring sorrow and death, He wants to save me from my sins. That is why He died.

Jesus' death was the full payment for every sin you could ever commit. When you accept this incredible gift, you become part of Jesus' personal family.

4. What does His death do for me?
"Behold what manner of love the Father has bestowed on us, that we should be called children of God!" (1 John 3:1)
"But as many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God, to those who believe in His name." (John 1:12)

Answer: Christ died to satisfy the death penalty against me. He was born as a human so He could experience the kind of death I deserve. Then He offered to credit my account with what He did. In other words, His sinless life is counted as mine so that I am considered righteous. His death is accepted by God as full payment for all my past mistakes, and by accepting what He has done as a gift, I am adopted into God's family as His child. It's mind-blowing!

Take a moment to reflect on these simple truths:

Because of my sins, I am sentenced to death.

I cannot pay this penalty without losing eternal life because if I died for my sins, I could not raise myself back to life. I would be dead forever.

I have a debt I cannot pay! But a Friend comes—in the person of Jesus—and says, "I will pay. I will die in your place and settle the debt for you. You will not have to die for your sins."

I must accept the offer! Simple, isn't it? I openly confess and accept His death for my sins. When I do this, I become a son or daughter of God!

Jesus gave His life to pay a debt you could never pay.

5. How do I receive Him and pass from death to life?
Accept three things:

1. I am a sinner. "For all have sinned." (Romans 3:23)

2. I am condemned to die. “The wages of sin is death.” (Romans 6:23)

3. I cannot save myself. “Without Me, you can do nothing.” (John 15:5)

Then, believe three things:

1. He died for me. “...that He might taste death for everyone.” (Hebrews 2:9)

2. He forgives me. “If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins.” (1 John 1:9)

3. He saves me. “He who believes in Me has everlasting life.” (John 6:47)

Answer: By praying, believing, and accepting God’s greatest gift—our Lord Jesus Christ.

Are you drowning in sin? Jesus will save you immediately if you call upon Him.

6. What must I do to receive this gift of salvation?
“Being justified freely by His grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus.” (Romans 3:24)
“A man is justified by faith apart from the deeds of the law.” (Romans 3:28)

Answer: The only thing I can do is accept it as a free gift. My works of obedience cannot contribute anything to my justification. All who ask for salvation by faith will receive it. The worst sinner is accepted on the same basis as the most moral person. The past does not count. Remember, the Almighty God loves everyone equally, and forgiveness is available to those who ask.

“For by grace you have been saved through faith, and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God, not of works, lest anyone should boast.” (Ephesians 2:8, 9)

The power of Jesus transforms a vile sinner into a loving saint.

7. When I join His family through faith, what changes does Jesus make in my life?
“Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation; old things have passed away; behold, all things have become new.” (2 Corinthians 5:17)

Answer: When Christ is received into my heart, He destroys the old sinful nature and truly transforms me into a new spiritual being. The old life of sin becomes distasteful and undesirable. For the first time, I experience glorious freedom from guilt and condemnation. I begin to see how empty my life was without Christ. Instead of feeding on the scraps under the table, I now feast at the King's banquet. One moment with God brings more joy than a lifetime of serving Satan. What an exchange! Why did I wait so long to accept it?

The most valuable gift parents can give their children is to be Christians.

8. Will this changed life truly be happier than the pleasures of my old life?
Jesus said: "These things I have spoken to you, that My joy may remain in you, and that your joy may be full." (John 15:11)
"If the Son makes you free, you shall be free indeed." (John 8:36)
"I have come that they may have life, and that they may have it more abundantly." (John 10:10)

Answer: Many people believe that the Christian life will not be joyful because of restrictions and self-denial. The opposite is true! When you accept the love of Jesus, a remarkable joy wells up from within. An unmatched peace and happiness fills your life. When it comes to excitement—there is no comparison between the old life of selfishness and failure and the new life of victory and joy. Like a bad dream, the painful past fades, and you experience the "more abundant" life that God intended for you.

When Jesus enters your life, His miraculous power transforms obedience from a burden into a joyful privilege.

9. But can I really do all the things a Christian should do?
"I have been crucified with Christ; it is no longer I who live, but Christ lives in me." (Galatians 2:20)
"I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me." (Philippians 4:13)

Answer: Here is where the greatest miracle of the Christian life is revealed. There is no forced effort to "be good." What you do as a Christian flows naturally from the life of Jesus living within you. Obedience becomes a natural response of love. Being born of God as a new creation, you want to please Him because His life has become part of your life. Pleasing someone you love is not a burden—it is a delight!
"I delight to do Your will, O my God, and Your law is within my heart." (Psalm 40:8)

It is not difficult to please someone you truly love.

10. Do you mean that even the Ten Commandments would not be difficult to obey?
"If you love me, keep my commandments." – John 14:15. "For this is the love of God, that we keep His commandments; and His commandments are not burdensome." – 1 John 5:3. "But whoever keeps His word, truly the love of God is perfected in him." – 1 John 2:5.

Answer: The Bible always connects obedience with a relationship of love. Born-again Christians do not find it burdensome to keep the Ten Commandments. With all past sins covered by His atoning death, my present and future obedience stems from His victorious life within me. Indeed, because I love Him so much for transforming my life, I go beyond the requirements of the Ten Commandments. Every day, I search the Bible to discover signs of His will, seeking even the smallest ways to express my love for Him. "And whatever we ask, we receive from Him, because we keep His commandments and do those things that are pleasing in His sight." – 1 John 3:22 (emphasis added).

Keeping the Ten Commandments in an attempt to earn salvation will only lead to sorrow and despair. But someone who has received the gift of salvation rejoices in walking the path of obedience to God's laws.

11. How can I be sure that the obedience mentioned in the Bible for God's people is not legalism?
"Here is the patience of the saints; here are those who keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus." – Revelation 14:12. "And they [the saints] overcame him [Satan] by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony, and they did not love their lives to the death." – Revelation 12:11.

Answer: Do not confuse obedience with legalism. Legalism is the attempt to earn salvation through good works. The Bible describes the saints as having four key traits: (1) keeping the commandments, (2) believing in the blood of the Lamb, (3) sharing their faith with others, and (4) choosing to die rather than to sin. These are the true marks of a person who is in love with Christ and has fully committed their life to follow Him.

Baptism is the marriage ceremony that unites me with Christ.

12. What significant act seals a loving relationship with Christ, and what does it signify?
"Therefore we were buried with Him through baptism into death, that just as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life." – Romans 6:4. "That the body of sin might be done away with." – Romans 6:6. "For I have betrothed you to one husband, that I may present you as a chaste virgin to Christ." – 2 Corinthians 11:2.

Answer:
Baptism signifies three major events in the life of a true believer:
(1) Death to sin,
(2) New birth into life with Christ, and
(3) A spiritual marriage to Christ for eternity.

This spiritual union grows stronger and sweeter over time as long as love continues to grow. Just like in any marriage, the loss of love can turn paradise into misery. When love fades, the home is held together only by mechanical, forced duty under the law of marriage. Similarly, when a Christian stops loving Christ deeply, their religion becomes mere obedience to a set of rules.

My love for Jesus grows as I share it with others.

13. How can I be sure that my faith and love in my marriage to Christ will continue to grow?
"Search the Scriptures." – John 5:39. "Pray without ceasing." – 1 Thessalonians 5:17. "As you have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk in Him." – Colossians 2:6. "I die daily." – 1 Corinthians 15:31.

Answer: No relationship can succeed without communication. Prayer and studying the Bible are absolutely essential for maintaining and growing this relationship. His Word is a love letter I must read daily to nourish my spiritual life. Speaking to Him in prayer strengthens my commitment and opens my mind to exciting and deeper insights into His care for me. Each day, I am amazed to discover new details of His amazing provision for my joy.

God Seals Our Spiritual Marriage
To seal our spiritual marriage for eternity, He has promised to never leave me (Psalm 55:22; Matthew 28:20; Hebrews 13:5), to care for me in sickness or health (Psalm 41:3; Isaiah 41:10), and to provide for every need I may face (Matthew 6:25-34). Just as I received Him by faith and found His promises to be sufficient, I continue to trust Him for every future need, and He never leaves me.

14. It is my desire to invite Jesus into my life and experience a new birth.

Questions for Reflection:

1. How could the death of one man pay the penalty for the sins of all humanity? I have lived a terrible life of sin. I am afraid that God would have to do something very special to redeem someone as bad as me.
Romans 3:23 tells us that "all have sinned." Because "the wages of sin is death" (Romans 6:23) and "all have sinned," a "special act" is needed for every human being ever born. Only someone whose life equaled the value of all humanity could die for the sins of the entire world. Since Jesus is the Creator and Source of all life, the life He gave was equal to the lives of all who would ever live. Not only did the atonement require Someone whose life could represent all created beings, but the One who died had to have the power to rise from death. Why? To administer the benefits of His atonement to all who would accept it by faith. "Therefore, He is also able to save to the uttermost those who come to God through Him, since He always lives to make intercession for them." – Hebrews 7:25.

2. If I accept Christ and His forgiveness but then fall again, will He forgive me again?
Yes, we can trust God to forgive us again if we truly repent and confess our sins. "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." – 1 John 1:9.

3. How can I approach God in my sinful condition? Wouldn't it be better to have a priest or minister pray for me?
Since Jesus Christ lived in the flesh and "was tempted as we are" (Hebrews 4:15), we have a God who understands us and desires to show us mercy. Hebrews 4:16 invites us to "come boldly to the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy." Through Jesus Christ, we can directly approach God without a human mediator. 1 Timothy 2:5 declares, "For there is one God and one Mediator between God and men, the Man Christ Jesus."

4. Is there anything I can do to help God save me?
No. His plan is entirely based on grace (Romans 3:24; 4:5); it is "the gift of God" (Ephesians 2:8). While it is true that when God grants us grace through faith, He also gives us the desire and power to obey Him, even this obedience comes from His free grace. Obedience—serving and following Him out of love—is the true evidence of discipleship and the natural fruit of faith in Jesus Christ.

5. If God forgives my sins and restores me to His family, does that remove any future punishment for my sins, or will I still need to perform some kind of penance?

Scripture declares, “There is therefore now no condemnation to those who are in Christ Jesus” (Romans 8:1). Christ paid the full penalty for our sins, and those who accept Him by faith owe nothing in terms of acts of penance to be cleansed. They are already considered “washed” by the blood of the Lamb! Isaiah 43:25 offers a beautiful promise of forgiveness: “I, even I, am He who blots out your transgressions for My own sake; and I will not remember your sins.”

Micah 7:18–19 also reveals the compassionate heart of our Redeemer:
“Who is a God like You, pardoning iniquity and passing over the transgression of the remnant of His heritage?
He does not retain His anger forever, because He delights in mercy.
He will again have compassion on us, and will subdue our iniquities.
You will cast all our sins into the depths of the sea.

The Colossal City

Lesson 4

Talk about a big city! New York, Tokyo, and London are nothing in comparison! Just wait until you learn the astonishing truth about this enormous city that can travel through the skies. It's all true, not science fiction! The details in this Study Guide will delight your soul and give you hope for the future.

God is the Architect and Builder of the Holy City.

1. Who is the architect and builder of this heavenly city?
"Therefore, God is not ashamed to be called their God, for He has prepared a city for them." (Hebrews 11:16)

Answer:
The Bible declares that God is building a magnificent city for His people. This city is real and tangible, just like any city you have ever known.

God's amazing city is located in heaven, His dwelling place.

2. Where is this amazing city that God is preparing?
"And I, John, saw the holy city, New Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God." (Revelation 21:2)
"O Lord my God ... hear in heaven Your dwelling place." (1 Kings 8:28-30)

Answer:
This magnificent city currently exists in the far reaches of space in God's dwelling place, which is called heaven.

Behold the size of the city compared to several states.

3. How do the Scriptures describe this amazing heavenly city?

Answer:
(A) SIZE
"The city is laid out as a square; its length is as great as its breadth. And he measured the city with the reed: twelve thousand furlongs." (Revelation 21:16)
The city is a perfect square. Its circumference is 12,000 furlongs, or 1,500 miles (a furlong is 1/8 mile). Each side of the city measures 375 miles.

(B) NAME
The city is called “New Jerusalem” in Revelation 21:2.

(C) WALLS
“Then he measured its wall: one hundred and forty-four cubits ... The construction of its wall was of jasper.” (Revelation 21:17, 18)
The wall surrounding the city is 144 cubits, or 216 feet high (one cubit is 18 inches). It is made of solid jasper, a radiant and indescribably beautiful gem. Imagine it—a wall nearly 20 stories high, built of solid jasper!

(D) GATES
“It had twelve gates ... three gates on the east, three gates on the north, three gates on the south, and three gates on the west ... The twelve gates were twelve pearls: each individual gate was of one pearl.” (Revelation 21:12, 13, 21)
The city has 12 gates—three on each side—each made from a single pearl.

(E) FOUNDATIONS
“The wall of the city had twelve foundations ... adorned with all kinds of precious stones: the first foundation was jasper, the second sapphire, the third chalcedony, the fourth emerald, the fifth sardonyx, the sixth sardius, the seventh chrysolite, the eighth beryl, the ninth topaz, the tenth chrysoprase, the eleventh jacinth, and the twelfth amethyst.” (Revelation 21:14-20)
The city has 12 complete foundations, each made of precious stones. Every color of the rainbow is represented, making the city appear to rest on a shimmering rainbow from a distance.

(F) STREETS
“The street of the city was pure gold, like transparent glass.” (Revelation 21:21)

(G) APPEARANCE
“The holy city ... prepared as a bride adorned for her husband.”
“Having the glory of God. Her light was like a most precious stone, like a jasper stone, clear as crystal.”
“Its length, breadth, and height are equal.” (Revelation 21:2, 11, 16)

The city, with all its precious jewels, gold, and dazzling beauty, will be illuminated by the glory of God. In its radiant beauty and purity, it is compared to “a bride beautifully adorned for her husband.”

The miraculous tree of life in heaven grants eternal youth and vitality to all who partake of it.

4. What amazing feature of this glorious city guarantees every citizen eternal strength and youth?
“In the middle of its street, and on either side of the river, was the tree of life, which bore twelve fruits, each yielding its fruit every month; and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations.” (Revelation 22:2)
“Take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live forever.” (Genesis 3:22)

Answer:
The tree of life, which produces 12 kinds of fruit (and is located in the center of the city—Revelation 2:7), grants eternal life and everlasting youth to all who partake of it. Even its leaves will have healing properties. This tree will yield new fruit every month.

The holy city will descend to Earth and become its capital.

5. Is it true that this amazing city will descend to Earth?
“Then I, John, saw the holy city, New Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband.” (Revelation 21:2)
“Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth.” (Matthew 5:5)
“The righteous will be recompensed on the earth.” (Proverbs 11:31)

Answer:
Yes, this glorious holy city will descend to this earth and become the capital city of the newly restored Earth. All the righteous will have a home in this magnificent city.

Sin and sinners will be destroyed by fire from God.

6. What will happen to sin and sinners?
“All the proud, yes, all who do wickedly will be stubble. And the day which is coming shall burn them up.” (Malachi 4:1)
“Fire came down from God out of heaven and devoured them.” (Revelation 20:9)
“The elements will melt with fervent heat; both the earth and the works that are in it will be burned up.” (2 Peter 3:10)
“You shall trample the wicked, for they shall be ashes under the soles of your feet.” (Malachi 4:3)
“Nevertheless, we, according to His promise, look for new heavens and a new earth in which righteousness dwells.” (2 Peter 3:13

Answer:
God will destroy sin and all sinners by fire. This fire will melt the earth and turn everything to ashes. Then God will create a perfect new earth, and the holy city will become its capital. The righteous will live in peace, joy, and holiness forever. God promises that sin will never rise again (Nahum 1:9).

In His new kingdom, the Lord will live among His people.

7. What comforting and thrilling promises does God give to those who enter His new kingdom?

Answer:
A. The Lord will live with them face-to-face (Revelation 21:3).
B. There will be eternal joy and happiness (Psalm 16:11).
C. Pain, death, sorrow, and suffering will be gone forever (Revelation 21:4).
D. They will never grow tired (Isaiah 40:31).
E. Everyone will be made physically whole (Isaiah 35:5, 6).
F. All evil will be gone forever (Revelation 21:8, 27).

The vast seas of today will not exist in God's new kingdom.

8. How will the new world be different from our world today?

A. The great seas as we know them today will disappear (Revelation 21:1). Currently, the seas cover three-quarters of the earth's surface. This will not be the case in God's new kingdom. The entire world will be a magnificent garden, interspersed with lakes, rivers, and mountains (Revelation 22:1; Acts 3:20, 21).

B. Deserts will become gardens (Isaiah 35:1, 2).

C. All animals will be tame. None will hunt others, and a young child will lead them (Isaiah 11:6-9; 65:25).

D. There will be no more curse (Revelation 22:3).

E. There will be no violence of any kind (Isaiah 60:18). This means no crime, storms, floods, earthquakes, hurricanes, injuries, etc.

F. Nothing impure will be found in the new world (Revelation 21:27). There will be no cigarette butts, tobacco, drunkards, bars, alcoholic drinks, brothels, obscene images, or any other form of evil or impurity.

Children, playing together, will fill the streets of the New Jerusalem.

9. Will there be children in God's kingdom? If so, will they grow up?

"And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in its streets." (Zechariah 8:5)
"You shall go out and grow like calves of the stall." (Malachi 4:2)

Answer:
Yes, there will be many boys and girls in the Holy City (Isaiah 11:6-9), and these young ones will grow up (Malachi 4:2). We have greatly diminished in stature, intelligence, and longevity since Adam, but all these will be restored (Acts 3:20, 21).-

10. Will people recognize each other when they reunite with loved ones in heaven?

"Then I shall know just as I also am known." (1 Corinthians 13:12)

Answer:
The Bible clearly teaches that righteous loved ones who have died will be resurrected to join the living righteous in God's kingdom (Isaiah 26:19; Jeremiah 31:15-17; 1 Corinthians 15:51-55; 1 Thessalonians 4:13-18). Scripture also teaches that people in God's new kingdom will recognize each other, just as people recognize each other on earth today.

In heaven, real people will experience true joy. The deepest desires of the human heart will be fulfilled.

11. Will people in heaven be real, with flesh and bones?

"Jesus Himself stood in the midst of them and said to them, 'Peace be to you.' But they were terrified and frightened, and supposed they had seen a spirit. And He said to them, 'Why are you troubled? ... Behold My hands and My feet, that it is I Myself. Handle Me and see, for a spirit does not have flesh and bones as you see I have.' ... So they gave Him a piece of broiled fish and some honeycomb. And He took it and ate in their presence." (Luke 24:36-39, 41-43, 50, 51)

"This same Jesus, who was taken up from you into heaven, will so come in like manner as you saw Him go into heaven." (Acts 1:11)

"The Lord Jesus Christ ... will transform our lowly body that it may be conformed to His glorious body." (Philippians 3:20, 21)

Answer: After His resurrection, Jesus proved to His disciples that He was flesh and bones by allowing them to touch Him and by eating food. This same Jesus of flesh and bones ascended to His Father and will return to earth. The righteous will be given bodies like Christ's, and they will be real people with flesh and bones forever. The difference is that the heavenly body will never die, decay, or deteriorate.

The idea that the saved in heaven will be floating spirits playing harps on clouds is not supported by Scripture. Jesus did not die on the cross to offer a meaningless and boring future for those who accept His love and follow His way of life. Many people are not excited about this kind of existence and therefore have little or no desire for God's heavenly kingdom—often choosing it only out of fear of hell. If people everywhere understood the truth about God's holy city and the new earth, millions would begin to grasp His love and turn to Him with all their hearts. Anyone who misses God's kingdom has made the greatest mistake of their life.

No human language can fully describe the glory and joy of heaven's pure music.

12. How will the righteous spend their time in God's kingdom?

"They shall build houses and inhabit them; they shall plant vineyards and eat their fruit. They shall not build and another inhabit; they shall not plant and another eat ... And My elect shall long enjoy the work of their hands." (Isaiah 65:21, 22)

Answer:
The righteous will build their own houses on the new earth (in addition to having a city mansion prepared by Christ—John 14:1-3). They will plant vineyards and eat their fruit. The Bible is clear—real people will do real things in heaven and will fully enjoy everything.

Heaven will give us the opportunity to be friends with patriarchs and prophets of the Bible.

13. What other exciting activities will the redeemed participate in?

Answer:
A. Sing and play heavenly music (Isaiah 35:10; 51:11; Psalm 87:7; Revelation 14:2, 3).
B. Worship before God's throne every Sabbath (Isaiah 66:22, 23).
C. Enjoy unfading flowers and trees (Ezekiel 47:12; Isaiah 35:1, 2).

D. Visit loved ones, patriarchs, prophets, etc. (Matthew 8:11; Revelation 7:9-17).
E. Learn about heavenly animals (Isaiah 11:6-9; 65:25).
F. Travel and explore without weariness (Isaiah 40:31).
G. Listen to God sing (Zephaniah 3:17).
H. Fulfill the deepest desires of the heart (Psalm 37:3, 4; Isaiah 65:24).
I. The greatest joy—being like Jesus, traveling with Him, and seeing Him face to face (Revelation 14:4; 22:4; 21:3; 1 John 3:2).

Heaven will be more glorious and rewarding than anything we can imagine.

14. Can human language truly describe the glory of heaven?

"Eye has not seen, nor ear heard, nor have entered into the heart of man the things which God has prepared for those who love Him." (1 Corinthians 2:9)

Answer:
Even in their wildest dreams, human beings cannot begin to comprehend the wonders of God's eternal kingdom. Everything Adam lost will be restored (Acts 3:20, 21).

Jesus is preparing heaven for you personally. You matter to Him.

15. Is this kingdom being prepared for me personally?

"Whoever desires, let him take the water of life freely." (Revelation 22:17)

Answer:
Yes, it is prepared for you personally. The Lord's invitation is for you. If you reject it, friend, you will have no one to blame but yourself.

16. How can I be assured of a place in this glorious kingdom?

Answer:
The Bible makes it clear. Give your life to Christ for the forgiveness of your sins...

17. I have decided to accept Jesus' offer to live with Him forever in His heavenly kingdom.

Answer
Thought Questions
1. How can heaven be a place of happiness when the saved think about their lost loved ones?

The Bible says that God "will wipe away every tear from their eyes" (Revelation 21:4). Surrounded by the beauty and joys of the new earth, God's redeemed people will forget the tragedies and heartaches of the past; "The former things will not be remembered, nor will they come to mind" (Isaiah 65:17).

2. The Bible says, "Flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God" (1 Corinthians 15:50). So, how can the redeemed have flesh and bones?
Here, the Bible uses the word "flesh" to describe an unconverted person. A similar concept is explained in Romans 8:8-9: "Those who are in the realm of the flesh cannot please God." John 3:6 says, "Flesh gives birth to flesh, but the Spirit gives birth to spirit." In this context, "flesh" refers to an unconverted person, while "spirit" refers to a converted or "born again" person. So, 1 Corinthians 15:50 simply means that no one can enter the kingdom of God unless they are first converted and transformed. After His resurrection, Christ declared that He was indeed "flesh and bones" (Luke 24:39). According to Philippians 3:21, we will have bodies like His.

3. Is the apostle Peter the one guarding the gate of the holy city?
No! The Bible says in Revelation 21:12 that the New Jerusalem—the holy city of God—has twelve gates, and at the gates are twelve angels. There is no biblical reference suggesting that any apostle is guarding the gates.

4. Is the holy city really large enough to accommodate all the saved people of all ages?
If the city were densely populated and each saved person were given just 100 square feet of space, there would be room for 39 billion people—many times the earth's current population. Many statisticians believe that if everyone who has ever lived were saved, there would still be plenty of room in the city. However, the Bible makes it clear that only a few will be saved (Matthew 7:14), so there will be more than enough space in the great city.

5. Sometimes I wonder if the reward is worth the sacrifice. It feels like Satan is about to defeat me at times. Does the Bible encourage me?

Yes! In fact, the apostle Paul must have had someone like you in mind when he wrote, "I consider that our present sufferings are not worth comparing with the glory that will be revealed in us" (Romans 8:18). One glimpse of that eternal kingdom will make even the worst trials and suffering on earth seem insignificant. The redeemed will cry out, "Hallelujah, heaven is cheap enough!"

6. Will little children who die be saved in God's kingdom?
We do not have a specific answer from the Bible on this question, but many believe that infants will be saved based on Matthew 2:16-18. This passage describes the wicked King Herod killing all the male children in Bethlehem who were two years old and under. The Old Testament prophesied this tragic and cruel event, and God told the grieving mothers to stop weeping because their children would one day be restored to them: "Restrain your voice from weeping... [the slain children] will return from the land of the enemy... your children will return to their own land" (Jeremiah 31:16-17). This is a clear reference to the resurrection.

7. Do I understand correctly that heaven, the home of the saved, will be here on earth?
That is correct. Although the holy city is now located in God's dwelling place, He will move it to this earth. Sin and sinners will be destroyed by fire, and the earth will be made new and given to the righteous in all its glory and beauty as it was in Eden. The holy city will be the capital of the new earth, and God will move His throne here (Revelation 21:2-3; 22:1, 3) and live with the righteous forever. Wherever God dwells, that is heaven. God's plan is to restore to humanity everything that Adam lost—the glory of perfect life on a perfect planet. Though Satan and sin interrupted God's plan, it will be fulfilled. We must be part of this new kingdom—it is far too dangerous to miss it.

8. Why do so many teach and believe that the home of the saved is a cloudy place with ghost-like inhabitants floating on clouds, doing nothing but playing harps?
These teachings come from Satan, the father of lies (John 8:44). He is eager to distort God's plan of love and present heaven as an unreal, dull place so that people lose interest or become skeptical about God's Word. Satan knows that once people understand the Bible truth about the home of the saved, his power over them will be broken because they will begin to make plans to enter that kingdom. This is why he works so hard to hide the truth and spread lies about heaven.

Keys to a Happy Marriage

Lesson 5

Perhaps you've heard that nearly half of all marriages today end in divorce, leaving broken-hearted spouses and confused children. Don't let this happen to you! Whether your marriage is going through tough times, is happy, or even if you're not yet married but considering it, here is free yet proven advice to help your marriage last. It comes directly from God, who created and designed marriage! If you've tried everything else, why not give God a chance? Follow the keys in this guide, and you can protect your home.

Seventeen Principles for a Happy Marriage from God's Great Book
1. Establish your own home, even if it must be just one room.
"Therefore a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and they shall become one flesh." – Genesis 2:24

Answer:
God's directive is clear. Married couples should leave their parents and establish their own household, even if finances require it to be a single room. Husband and wife should decide together on family policies and then inform their relatives. They must remain firm no matter who opposes them. Thousands of divorces could be avoided if this principle were carefully followed.

2. Don't forget that God Himself joined you together in marriage.
"Above all, keep loving one another earnestly, since love covers a multitude of sins." – 1 Peter 4:8 (RSV)
"Her husband … praises her." – Proverbs 31:28
"The married woman is concerned … with how to please her husband." – 1 Corinthians 7:34
"Love one another with brotherly affection; outdo one another in showing honor." – Romans 12:10

Answer:
Continue (or perhaps revive) the courtesies of courtship in your marriage. Successful marriages don't just happen—they must be nurtured. Don't take each other for granted, or complacency will ruin your marriage. Keep growing in love by showing affection, or it will fade, and your marriage will crumble. Love and happiness are not found by seeking your own interests, but by giving to others. Spend as much time together as possible if you want to get along well. Learn to greet each other warmly. Relax, visit, shop, watch, and eat together. Don't neglect little courtesies, encouragements, and acts of love. Surprise each other with small gifts or favors. Try to "out-love" each other.

Don't take more out of your marriage than you invest in it. Divorce itself is not the main destroyer of marriage—lack of love is. Given the chance, love always wins.

3. Remember that God joined you together in marriage.
"For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife … So then, they are no longer two but one flesh. Therefore what God has joined together, let no man separate." – Matthew 19:5, 6

Answer:
Has love almost vanished from your home? The devil (the great home-breaker) is behind it. Don't forget that God Himself joined you together in marriage and intends for you to stay together and be happy. He will bring happiness and love to your life if you obey His divine laws (commandments). "With God, all things are possible." – Matthew 19:26. Don't give up. The same God who places love in a missionary's heart for a leprous outcast can easily give you love for your spouse if you allow Him to.

4. Guard your thoughts—don't let your feelings trap you.
"For as he thinks in his heart, so is he." – Proverbs 23:7
"You shall not covet your neighbor's wife." – Exodus 20:17
"Keep your heart with all diligence, for out of it spring the issues of life." – Proverbs 4:23
"Whatever things are true, … noble, … just, … pure, … lovely, … of good report; … think on these things." – Philippians 4:8

Answer:
Wrong thoughts will destroy your marriage. The devil will tempt you with ideas such as: "Our marriage was a mistake," "He/she doesn't understand me," "I can't take this much longer," "We can always get a divorce if necessary," "I'll go back to my mother's," or "He smiled at that woman." Stop entertaining such thoughts, or your marriage will be doomed, because your thoughts and feelings control your actions. Avoid seeing, speaking, reading, or hearing anything (or associating with anyone) that suggests impurity or unfaithfulness. Unchecked thoughts are like a car in neutral on a hill—anything can happen, and the result is always disastrous.

5. Never retire for the night angry with each other.
"Do not let the sun go down on your wrath." – Ephesians 4:26
"Confess your trespasses to one another." – James 5:16
"Forget those things which are behind." – Philippians 3:13
"Be kind to one another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, just as God in Christ forgave you." – Ephesians 4:32

Answer:
Harboring anger and holding grudges (whether big or small) is dangerous. Unless resolved quickly, even small issues become magnified in your mind, affecting your whole outlook on life. This is why God says to let go of your anger before bedtime. Be mature enough to forgive and sincerely say, "I'm sorry." After all, no one is perfect, and you're on the same team—so be a good sport and admit when you're wrong. Besides, making up is a delightful experience that draws married couples closer together. God recommends it—and it works!

6. Keep Christ at the center of your home.
"Unless the Lord builds the house, they labor in vain who build it." – Psalm 127:1
"In all your ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct your paths." – Proverbs 3:6
"And the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus." – Philippians 4:7

Answer:
This is the greatest principle—it encompasses all the others. Put Christ first! The true secret to genuine happiness in the home is not diplomacy, strategy, or tireless efforts to overcome problems, but rather a union with Christ. Hearts filled with Christ's love can never be far apart. With Christ in your home, your marriage will succeed. The gospel is the cure for homes filled with hatred, bitterness, and disappointment. It prevents thousands of divorces by miraculously restoring love and happiness. It can save your marriage too—if you're willing.

7. Pray together.
"Watch and pray, lest you enter into temptation. The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." – Matthew 26:41
"Pray for one another." – James 5:16
"If any of you lacks wisdom, let him ask of God, who gives to all liberally and without reproach." – James 1:5

Answer:
Pray aloud! This is a wonderful rule that works beyond imagination. Kneel before God and ask Him for genuine love for each other, for forgiveness, strength, wisdom—and for solutions to your problems. God has personally promised to answer. Prayer doesn't instantly fix all mistakes, but it creates a heart willing to do right. No family breaks apart while sincerely praying together for God's help.

Forgiveness is always better than divorce.
8. Accept that divorce is not the answer.
“So they are no longer two, but one flesh. Therefore, what God has joined together, let no one separate.” – Matthew 19:6. “I tell you that anyone who divorces his wife, except for sexual immorality, and marries another woman commits adultery.” – Matthew 19:9. “A married woman is bound by law to her husband as long as he lives.” – Romans 7:2.

Answer:
The Bible is clear. Marriage is meant to be indissoluble and unbreakable. Divorce is only permitted in the case of adultery—but even then, it is not required, only allowed. Forgiveness is always better than divorce, even in cases of moral failure. Marriage is a lifelong commitment. God established it in the Garden of Eden at the very first wedding. The thought of divorce as a solution will ruin any marriage. This is one reason Jesus condemned it. Divorce always brings destruction, and separation is never the solution to a problem—it only creates greater difficulties. Broken lives, shattered dreams, misery, and ruined homes often follow divorce, and even success in life itself is often hindered.

God established marriage to preserve the purity and happiness of humanity, provide for our social needs, and uplift us physically, mentally, and morally. The vows of marriage are among the most solemn and binding commitments humans can make. Ignoring these vows leads to the loss of God’s favor and blessings.

9. Keep the family circle tight and private.
“You shall not commit adultery.” – Exodus 20:14. “The heart of her husband safely trusts her… She brings him good, not harm, all the days of her life.” – Proverbs 31:11,12. “The Lord has been witness between you and the wife of your youth, against whom you have dealt treacherously.” – Malachi 2:14. “Keep yourself from the immoral woman… Do not lust in your heart after her beauty or let her captivate you with her eyes… Can a man scoop fire into his lap without his clothes being burned?” – Proverbs 6:24-29.

Answer:
Family intimacy should never be shared with outsiders—not even with parents. It is a serious sin and tragedy to break this God-given rule. A sympathetic third party who listens to complaints can be a tool of Satan to divide a husband and wife. Solve your household problems privately. No one else (except a pastor or professional marriage counselor) should be involved. Always be honest with each other and never hide secrets. Avoid jokes at your spouse’s expense. Defend each other strongly and shut out all intruders.

Regarding adultery (despite what some marriage counselors might say), it always harms you and everyone involved. God, who knows our minds, bodies, and emotions (and knows what helps or hurts us), says, "Do not commit adultery." When God says "Do not," we should not. Those who ignore this command will suffer the consequences. If any inappropriate attachment has begun, break it off immediately, or dark shadows may fall on your life that cannot be lifted.

With true love, your marriage cannot fail.

10. God defines love—make it your daily standard.
"Love is patient and kind. Love does not envy, it does not boast, it is not proud. It does not dishonor others, it is not self-seeking, it is not easily angered, and it keeps no record of wrongs. Love does not delight in evil but rejoices with the truth. It always protects, always trusts, always hopes, and always perseveres." – 1 Corinthians 13:4-7 (Weymouth).

Answer:
Please read the above passage carefully. This is God's true description of love. How do you measure up? Love is not just a feeling—it is a holy principle that influences every part of life. With genuine love, your marriage cannot fail; without it, your marriage cannot succeed.

11. Remember that criticism and nagging destroy love.
"Husbands, love your wives and do not be harsh with them." – Colossians 3:19. "Better to live in a desert than with a quarrelsome and nagging wife." – Proverbs 21:19. "A quarrelsome wife is like the dripping of a leaky roof in a rainstorm." – Proverbs 27:15. "Why do you look at the speck in your brother's eye but fail to notice the plank in your own eye?" – Matthew 7:3. "Love… always seeks to build up." – 1 Corinthians 13:4 (Phillips).

Answer:
Stop criticizing, arguing, and finding faults. Your spouse may have flaws, but complaining will not help. Do not expect perfection, or you will only become bitter. Overlook faults and focus on the good. Trying to correct or control your partner will destroy love. Only God can change people. A cheerful heart, kindness, patience, and love will remove most marital problems. Work to make your spouse happy, and the rest will follow. The secret to a successful marriage is not having the right partner, but being the right partner.

12. Avoid excess in anything—practice moderation.
"Everyone who competes in the games goes into strict training." – 1 Corinthians 9:25. "Love… is not self-seeking." – 1 Corinthians 13:5 (Phillips). "Whether you eat or drink or whatever you do, do it all for the glory of God." – 1 Corinthians 10:31.

Answer:
Excessiveness in any area can ruin your marriage. So can neglect. Work, love, rest, exercise, recreation, worship, meals, and social life must be balanced, or trouble will arise. Overworking, under-sleeping, poor diet, and lack of exercise make a person critical and irritable. Gluttony dulls the mind and deadens the conscience. Sexual excess harms love and respect. A moderate and respectful sexual relationship, as recommended in the Bible (1 Corinthians 7:3-7), is essential. Avoid extremes and ensure balance to preserve a happy marriage.

13. Respect each other's rights and privacy.
"Love is patient… It does not envy… It is not rude or self-seeking." – 1 Corinthians 13:4-7 (Weymouth).

Answer:
Each partner is entitled to personal privacy. Do not go through your spouse's belongings without permission. Respect each other's need for private space. Complete trust is essential for a happy marriage.

14. Be clean, orderly, and reverent.
"Let everything be done decently and in order." – 1 Corinthians 14:40.

Answer:
Laziness, disorder, and neglect are tools of Satan to destroy love and respect. A clean, well-ordered home brings peace and satisfaction. A lazy husband or wife is a burden to the family and a reproach to God.

15. Speak softly and kindly.
"A gentle answer turns away wrath, but a harsh word stirs up anger." – Proverbs 15:1.

Answer:
Always speak softly and lovingly. Decisions made in anger or exhaustion are often poor. Practice self-control and patience in your words.

16. Be wise with money.
"God loves a cheerful giver." – 2 Corinthians 9:7.

Answer:
Share financial responsibilities and decisions. Discuss large purchases and practice generosity and fairness with shared resources.

17. Communicate openly and honestly.
“Plans fail for lack of counsel, but with many advisers they succeed.” – Proverbs 15:22.

Answer:
Discuss major decisions together openly. Cooperation and communication prevent mistakes and strengthen your relationship.

18. I want my home to be a place where heaven’s angels love to visit.

Thought Questions

1. Which spouse should be the first to apologize after a quarrel?
The one who was in the right!

2. Can you suggest a law for a troublesome mother-in-law?
Yes! Mind your own business and be quiet! (See 1 Thessalonians 4:11.) In fact, this rule applies to all in-laws. Many marriages that could have been a little heaven on earth have turned into a nightmare because of in-laws. The duty of all in-laws is to leave the newly established household alone.

3. My husband is an ungodly man, and I am trying to be a Christian. His influence is terrible. Should I divorce him?
No! Read 1 Corinthians 7:12–14 and 1 Peter 3:1, 2. God gives a specific answer.

4. If my husband offends me, I won’t sleep with him. He says I’m wrong. Am I?
Yes! God gives a clear answer to this question in 1 Corinthians 7:4, 5.

5. My wife ran away with another man. Now, after repenting, she wants to come back home. My pastor says to take her back, but doesn’t God forbid this?
No. Absolutely not! God allows divorce for adultery, but He does not command it. Forgiveness is always better and always appropriate. (See Matthew 6:14, 15.) Divorce will bring devastating consequences to your life and the lives of your children. Give her another chance! The Golden Rule (Matthew 7:12) applies here. If you and your wife surrender your lives to Christ, He will make your marriage happy and fulfilling. It’s not too late.

6. What can I do? Men are always trying to get too familiar with me.
Be very careful with your behavior. God says, “Abstain from every form of evil." (1 Thessalonians 5:22.) Perhaps your behavior toward men—suggestive smiles, immodest clothing, inappropriate jokes, or a casual and inviting attitude—encourages their advances. There is something about Christian modesty and dignity that keeps people in their place. Christ said, "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father in heaven." (Matthew 5:16.) When Christ shines through your life, you will have fewer problems with improper advances.

7. Can you tell me simply and clearly what God's counsel is for someone who has fallen but has genuinely repented?
A long time ago, Christ gave a clear and comforting answer to a person who had fallen into moral failure but had repented. He said, "Go and sin no more." (John 8:11.) His counsel still applies today.

8. Is the "innocent party" in a divorce ever guilty too?
Absolutely. Sometimes the "innocent party," through lack of love, neglect, self-righteousness, unkindness, selfishness, nagging, and emotional coldness, can encourage wrong thoughts and actions in their spouse. At times, the "innocent party" may be just as guilty before God as the "guilty" one. God looks at our hearts and judges accordingly. "For the Lord does not see as man sees; for man looks at the outward appearance, but the Lord looks at the heart." (1 Samuel 16:7.)

9. Does God expect me to stay with an abusive spouse?
Physical abuse can be life-threatening and is a serious issue that requires immediate attention. An abused spouse and their family must find a safe living environment. Both husband and wife should seek professional help through a qualified Christian marriage counselor.

Written in Stone

Lesson 6

Many centuries ago, God wrote His law on stone, and you are still required to keep it today! It is absolutely true that breaking any part of God's law always brings harmful consequences. When crime dominates our cities, doesn't it make sense that for peace and safety, we should obey the laws of the land? Well, this same principle applies to God's law—the Ten Commandments—in our personal lives as well! They are not called the Ten Suggestions, the Ten Ideas, or the Ten Opinions. Since so much is at stake, you should take a few moments to seriously consider your responsibility.

"And the tablets were the work of God."

1. Is it true that God Himself wrote the Ten Commandments?
"And when He had made an end of speaking with him on Mount Sinai, He gave Moses two tablets of the Testimony, tablets of stone, written with the finger of God."
"Now the tablets were the work of God, and the writing was the writing of God engraved on the tablets." (Exodus 31:18; 32:16)

Answer: Yes, the great God of heaven wrote the Ten Commandments on tablets of stone with His own finger.

God says that sin is the breaking of His law.

2. What is God's definition of sin?
"Sin is the transgression of the law." (1 John 3:4)

Answer: Sin is breaking God's Ten Commandments. And because God's law is perfect (Psalm 19:7), it covers every conceivable sin. It is impossible to commit a sin that is not condemned by at least one of God's Ten Commandments. The commandments encompass "the whole duty of man." (Ecclesiastes 12:13) Nothing is left out.

Blessings follow those who keep His commandments.

3. Why did God give us the Ten Commandments?
"Happy is he who keeps the law." (Proverbs 29:18)
"Keep my commands; for length of days and long life and peace they will add to you." (Proverbs 3:1, 2)

Answer:
A. As a guide for a happy, abundant life.

God created us to enjoy happiness, peace, long life, fulfillment, satisfaction, and all the other great blessings our hearts desire. God's law is the roadmap that points out the right paths to follow in order to find this true and supreme happiness.

"By the law is the knowledge of sin." (Romans 3:20)
"I would not have known sin except through the law." (Romans 7:7)

B. To show me the difference between right and wrong.

God's law is like a mirror (James 1:23–25). It reveals the flaws in my life just as a mirror shows the dirt on my face. The only possible way for a person to know if they are sinning is to carefully examine their life in light of the mirror of God's law. Hope for this confused and chaotic generation is found in the Ten Commandments of God. They draw the line between right and wrong.

"And the Lord commanded us to observe all these statutes ... for our good always." (Deuteronomy 6:24)
"Hold me up, and I shall be safe, and I shall observe Your statutes continually. You reject all those who stray from Your statutes." (Psalm 119:117, 118)

C. To protect me from danger and disaster.

God's law is like a strong fortress in a wildlife park, protecting us from wild and destructive animals. It safeguards us against impurity, dishonesty, murder, idolatry, theft, and many other evils that destroy life, peace, and happiness. All good laws protect, and God's law is no exception.

Special Note: The eternal principles of God's law are written deep within the nature of every person by the Creator Himself. The writing may be dim and defaced, but it is still there. This means, without question, that you cannot find true peace unless you are willing to live in harmony with your inner nature—where God has written these principles. We were created to live in agreement with them. When we choose to ignore them, the inevitable result is tension, confusion, and disaster—just as neglecting the laws of safe driving leads to serious problems.

The law protects us from Satan just as a fortress protects us from a lion in the wildlife park.

4. Why is God's law so personally important to me?
"Speak and act as those who will be judged by the law of liberty." (James 2:12)

Answer: Because the Ten Commandments are the standard by which God examines people during the judgment in heaven. How do you measure up? It is a matter of life or death!

The cross is positive proof that the law cannot be changed.

5. Can God's law (the Ten Commandments) be changed or abolished?
"It is easier for heaven and earth to pass away than for one tittle of the law to fail." (Luke 16:17)
"My covenant I will not break, nor alter the word that has gone out of My lips." (Psalm 89:34)
"All His commandments are sure. They stand fast forever and ever." (Psalm 111:7, 8)

Answer: Absolutely not! The Bible is very clear on this matter. If the law could have been changed, God would have done so immediately after Adam and Eve sinned, rather than sending His Son to die for the sinner to pay the penalty of the broken law. But this was impossible because the commandments are not just rules or regulations that were enacted—they are revealed principles of God's holy character, which will always remain true as long as God exists.

Look at the chart below, which shows that God and His law share the same attributes. What does this mean? The Ten Commandments are God's character written down so that we can understand it. It is no more possible to change God's law than to remove God from heaven and change Him.

Jesus came to show us what the law (which is the pattern of a holy life) looked like when formed in human nature. God's character can never change—neither can His law, because it is His character expressed in human language.

	GOD IS	LAW IS
Good	Luke 18:19	1 Timothy 1:8
Holy	Isaiah 5:16	Romans 7:12
Perfect	Mathew 5:48	Psalms 19:7
Pure	1john3:2 , 3	Psalms 19:8
Only	Deutronomy 32:4	Romans 7:12
Truth	John3:33	Psalms 19:9
Spiritual	1 Corinthians 10:4	Romans 7:14
Justice	Jeremiah 23:6	Psalms 119:172
Faithful	1 Corinthians 1:9	Psalms119:86
Love	1 John 4:8	Romans13:10
Unchanging	James 1:17	Mathew 5:18
Forever	Genesis21:33	psalms 111:7 , 8

1. Is Jesus the law in human form? When He is in the heart, keeping the law becomes a delight.

6. Did Jesus abolish God's law when He was on earth?
"Do not think that I came to destroy the Law... I did not come to destroy but to fulfill... Till heaven and earth pass away, not one jot or one tittle will by no means pass from the law till all is fulfilled." (Matthew 5:17, 18)

Answer: No, absolutely not! Jesus specifically emphasized that He did not come to abolish the law but to fulfill (or keep) it. Instead of removing the law, Jesus magnified it (Isaiah 42:21) as the perfect guide for righteous living. For example, Jesus taught that "you shall not murder" also condemns anger "without cause" (Matthew 5:21, 22) and hatred (1 John 3:15), and that lust is equivalent to adultery (Matthew 5:27, 28). He said, "If you love Me, keep My commandments." (John 14:15)

The law is like the length of a chain. If even one link is broken, its entire purpose is nullified.

7. Will people who knowingly continue to break even one of God's commandments be saved?
"The wages of sin is death." (Romans 6:23)
"He will destroy the sinners." (Isaiah 13:9)
"Whoever shall keep the whole law, and yet stumble in one point, he is guilty of all." (James 2:10)

Answer:
No! They will be lost. The Ten Commandments are the guide we must follow to find our way to God and holy living. If I ignore even one commandment, I reject part of the divine structure or map. If one link in a chain is broken, the entire purpose is rendered useless. The Bible says that when we knowingly break any of God's commandments, we sin (James 4:17) because we reject His will for us. Only those who do God's will can enter the kingdom of heaven. Sinners will be lost.

Salvation from Jesus is as real as a gift received on a special holiday or birthday. It is free, specially prepared for us by Jesus!

8. Can anyone be saved by keeping the law?
"By the deeds of the law no flesh will be justified in His sight." (Romans 3:20)
"For by grace you have been saved through faith, and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God, not of works, lest anyone should boast." (Ephesians 2:8, 9)

Answer:
No! The answer is very simple. No one can be saved by keeping the law. Salvation comes only through grace, as a free gift from Jesus Christ, and we receive this gift by faith, not by works. The law only serves as a mirror to reveal sin in our lives. Cleansing and forgiveness from that sin come solely through Christ.

Our own standards are never reliable. I cannot know if I am a sinner unless I carefully examine myself against the perfect standard, the mirror of God's law.

9. Why, then, is the law absolutely essential for developing Christian character?
"Fear God and keep His commandments, for this is the whole duty of man." (Ecclesiastes 12:13)
"By the law is the knowledge of sin." (Romans 3:20)

Answer:
Because the complete structure, or "whole duty," of the Christian life is contained in God's law. Like a six-year-old boy who makes his own ruler, measures himself, and tells his mother he is twelve feet tall, our own standards are never reliable. I cannot know if I am a sinner unless I carefully examine myself against the perfect standard, the mirror of God's law.

Millions of people who have cast out demons, prophesied, and done many wonderful works in Jesus' name will be lost (Matthew 7:21-23) because they did not bother to examine their lives by His supreme standard of the law. As a result, they think they are righteous and saved when, in fact, they are sinners and lost. “Now by this we know that we know Him if we keep His commandments.” (1 John 2:3)

When Jesus lives in the heart, a life of darkness and sin is transformed by His victorious living.

10. What enables a truly converted Christian to follow the example of God’s law?
“I will put My laws in their mind and write them on their hearts.” (Hebrews 8:10)
“I can do all things through Christ.” (Philippians 4:13)
“God... sent His own Son... that the righteous requirement of the law might be fulfilled in us.” (Romans 8:3, 4)

Answer:
Christ not only forgives repentant sinners but also restores in them the image of God. He brings them into harmony with His law through the power of His presence within them. “You shall not” becomes a promise that the Christian will not steal, lie, kill, etc., because Jesus lives within and reigns.

God could not change His law, but He made a blessed plan through Jesus to transform the sinner so that he could meet the law’s requirements.

A governor’s pardon forgives a prisoner, but it does not give him the freedom to break any law.

11. But isn’t a Christian who has faith and lives under grace freed from keeping the law?
“For sin shall not have dominion over you, for you are not under law but under grace. What then? Shall we sin [break the law] because we are not under law but under grace? Certainly not!” (Romans 6:14, 15)
“Do we then make void the law through faith? Certainly not! On the contrary, we establish the law.” (Romans 3:31)

Answer:
No! Scripture teaches the exact opposite. Grace is like a governor’s pardon for a prisoner. It forgives, but it does not give him the freedom to break any law on the books. A forgiven person living under grace is doubly obligated to keep the law.

Anyone who refuses to obey God’s law, claiming to live under grace, is mistaken. He is living under shame.

12. Are the Ten Commandments of God confirmed again in the New Testament?
Answer: Yes, and very clearly so. Pay close attention to the following:

THE LAW OF GOD IN THE NEW TESTAMENT	THE LAW OF GOD IN THE OLD TESTAMENT
1. ‘’You shall worship the lord your God,and Him only shall you serve.’’Mathew 4;10	1. “You shall have no other gods before Me.” Exodus 20:3 .

The Sacrifices of Ceremonies and Rituals Pointed Forward to the Sacrifice of Jesus.

13. Are the Law of God and the Law of Moses the Same?
Answer: No, they are not the same. Study the following details and compare them carefully.

Note: The Law of Moses was a temporary, ceremonial law of the Old Covenant. It governed the priesthood, sacrifices, rituals, meat and drink offerings, etc., all of which were a shadow of the cross. This law was added "until the Seed should come," and that Seed was Christ (Galatians 3:16, 19). The ceremonies and rituals of the Law of Moses pointed forward to the sacrifice of Christ. When He died, this law came to an end, but the Ten Commandments (the Law of God) "stand forever and ever" (Psalm 111:8). That there are two laws is made very clear in Daniel 9:10, 11.

Special Note: Please remember that the Law of God has existed for at least as long as sin has existed. The Bible says, "Where there is no law, there is no transgression [or sin]" (Romans 4:15). Therefore, the Law of the Ten Commandments has existed from the beginning. Humanity broke that law (they sinned—1 John 3:4). Because of sin (or breaking God's law), the Law of Moses was given (or "added"—Galatians 3:16, 19) until Christ came and died. Two distinct laws are involved: the Law of God and the Law of Moses.

LAW OF MOSES	LAW OF GOD
Called the "Law of Moses" (Luke 2:22).	Called the "law of the Lord" (Isaiah 5:24).
Called "the law contained in ordinances" (Ephesians 2:15).	Called "the royal law" (James 2:8).
Written by Moses in a book (2Chronicles 35:12).	Written by God on stone (Exodus 31:18). 32:16).
Placed beside the Ark of the covenant (Deutronomy 31:26).	Placed inside the Ark (Exodus 40:20).
Ended at the cross (ephesians 2:15).	Stands forever (Luke16:17).
Added because of sin (galatians 3:19).	Reveals sin (Romans 7:7). 3:20).
Against us,contrary to us (Collosians 2:14).	Not burdensome (1 john 5:3).
Judges no one (Colossians 2:14-16).	Judges all people (james2:10-12).
carnal (hebrews7:16).	Spritual (romans 7:14).
Made nothing perfect (Hebrews 7:19).	perfect (psalms 19:7).

The Dragon Was Angry with the Woman [the True Church].

14. How does the devil feel about people who follow God's Ten Commandments in their lives?
"The dragon [the devil] was enraged with the woman [the true church], and he went to make war with the rest of her offspring, who keep the commandments of God." – Revelation 12:17.
"Here is the patience of the saints; here are those who keep the commandments of God." – Revelation 14:12.

Answer:
The devil hates people who keep God's law because the law is a standard for righteous living. If you choose to follow the guidelines outlined in God's law, you will immediately feel Satan's fierce anger directed at you. It is no surprise that Satan hates and fiercely opposes everyone who obeys God's law. However, it is shocking and astonishing to hear religious leaders deny the binding claims of the Ten Commandments while upholding human traditions. No wonder Jesus said, "Why do you also transgress the commandment of God because of your tradition? … And in vain they worship Me, teaching as doctrines the commandments of men." – Matthew 15:3, 9.
David also said, "It is time for You to act, O Lord, for they have regarded Your law as void." – Psalm 119:126.
Christians should awaken and restore God's law to its rightful, exalted position. It is foolish for this undisciplined generation to think that they can break the laws of the living God without facing consequences.

15. I believe a Christian must obey God's Ten Commandments, and I ask Jesus to help me bring my life into harmony with them.

Answer

Thought-Provoking Questions

1. Doesn't the Bible say that the law was (or is) faulty?

No. The Bible says that the people were at fault. God found "fault with them." – Hebrews 8:8. In Romans 8:3, the Bible says that the law "was weak through the flesh." The story is always the same: the law is perfect, but people are at fault or are weak. That is why God wants His Son to live within His people "so that the righteous requirement of the law might be fulfilled in us" – Romans 8:4, through Christ dwelling in us.

2. Galatians 3:13 says we are redeemed from the curse of the law. Can you explain this?

The curse of the law is death (Romans 6:23). Christ "tasted death for everyone" – Hebrews 2:9. In doing so, He redeemed all from the curse of the law (death) and, in its place, offers eternal life.

3. Do Colossians 2:14–17 and Ephesians 2:15 teach that God's law ended at the cross?

No, these verses refer to the law containing "ordinances"—the law of Moses, which included ceremonial laws governing sacrifices and the priesthood. All these ceremonies and rituals pointed forward to the cross and ended with Christ's death, as God intended. The law of Moses was added "till the Seed should come," and that Seed was Christ (Galatians 3:19, 16). God's moral law is not included here, because Paul described it as holy, just, and good years after the cross (Romans 7:7, 12).

4. The Bible says, "Love is the fulfillment of the law." – Romans 13:10. It also commands us in Matthew 22:37-40 to love God and our neighbors, concluding with, "On these two commandments hang all the Law and the Prophets." Do these commandments replace the Ten Commandments?

No, the Ten Commandments hang on these two commandments just as ten fingers hang from two hands. They cannot be separated. Love for God makes keeping the first four commandments (which relate to God) a joy, and love for our neighbor makes keeping the last six (which relate to our fellow human beings) a delight. Love fulfills the law by removing hostility and making obedience a pleasure (Psalm 40:8). When you truly love someone, it becomes a joy to honor their requests. Jesus said, "If you love Me, keep My commandments." – John 14:15.

It is impossible to love the Lord while refusing to obey His commandments because the Bible says, "For this is the love of God, that we keep His commandments. And His commandments are not burdensome." – 1 John 5:3. "He who says, 'I know Him,' and does not keep His commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him." – 1 John 2:4.

5. Doesn't 2 Corinthians 3:7 teach that the law written on stone tablets "was to be done away with"?

No. The passage says that the "glory" of Moses' ministry of the law was to be done away with, not the law itself. Read the entire passage carefully (2 Corinthians 3:3–9). The lesson is not the removal or introduction of the law, but the change of its location—from "tablets of stone" to "tablets of the heart." Under Moses' ministry, the law was on stone. Under the Holy Spirit's ministry through Christ, the law is written on the heart (Hebrews 8:10). A law on a classroom bulletin board becomes effective only when it enters the student's heart. Christ's ministry of the law is superior because He places it in the Christian's heart. Then obedience becomes a joyous and fulfilling way of life because the Christian genuinely loves both God and others.

6. Romans 10:4 says that "Christ is the end of the law." Does this mean the law is abolished?

No. The word "end" in this verse means "goal" or "purpose," as it does in James 5:11. The meaning is clear: the goal or purpose of the law is to lead people to Christ, where they find righteousness.

7. Why do many people reject the binding claims of God's law?

"Because the carnal mind is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, nor indeed can be. So then, those who are in the flesh cannot please God. But you are not in the flesh but in the Spirit, if indeed the Spirit of God dwells in you." – Romans 8:7–9.

8. Were the righteous people of the Old Testament saved by keeping the law?

No one has ever been saved by the law. All who have been saved in every age were saved by grace. This "grace … was given to us in Christ Jesus before time began." – 2 Timothy 1:9. The law only reveals sin. Christ alone can save.

Noah “found grace” (Genesis 6:8), Moses found grace (Exodus 33:17), and the Israelites in the wilderness found grace (Jeremiah 31:2). All the Old Testament heroes listed in Hebrews 11 were saved by faith. They were saved by looking forward to the cross; we are saved by looking back at it. The law is vital because, like a mirror, it reveals the “dirt” in our lives. Without it, people are sinners but do not know it. However, the law cannot save—only Jesus can. This has always been true, even in Old Testament times (Acts 4:10, 12; 2 Timothy 1:9).

9. Why is conscience not a safe guide?

Because the Bible speaks of an evil conscience, a defiled conscience, and a seared conscience—all of which are unsafe. “There is a way that seems right to a man, but its end is the way of death.” – Proverbs 14:12. God says, “He who trusts in his own heart is a fool.” – Proverbs 28:26.

The Lost Day of History

Lesson 7

Did you know there is a very important day that almost everyone has forgotten? It is surprising that so few people know about it because it is one of the most significant days in all human history! It is not only a day of the past but also of the present and the future. Moreover, what happened on this neglected day could have a profound impact on your life. Would you like to know more amazing facts about this lost day of history? Then read this Study Guide carefully.

When Jesus was on earth, He worshiped on the Sabbath day.

1. Which day did Jesus customarily worship on?
"So He came to Nazareth, where He had been brought up. And as His custom was, He went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day and stood up to read." (Luke 4:16)

Answer:
It was Jesus' custom to worship on the Sabbath day.

The seventh day of the week (Saturday) is the Sabbath.

2. But which day of the week is the Sabbath?
"The seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord your God." (Exodus 20:10)
"Now when the Sabbath was past… very early in the morning, on the first day of the week, they came to the tomb." (Mark 16:1-2)

Answer:
The Sabbath is not the first day of the week (Sunday), as many believe, but the seventh day (Saturday). Notice from the above Scriptures that the Sabbath comes just before the first day of the week.

God established the Sabbath during Creation.

3. Who made the Sabbath and when?
"In the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth." (Genesis 1:1)
"And on the seventh day God ended His work which He had done, and He rested on the seventh day from all His work which He had done. Then God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it." (Genesis 2:2-3)

Answer:
God established the Sabbath during Creation when He created the world. He rested on the Sabbath day, blessed it, and sanctified it (set it apart for holy use).

God wrote the Sabbath commandment with His own finger.

4. What does God say about keeping the Sabbath in the Ten Commandments, which He wrote with His own finger?
"Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy. Six days you shall labor and do all your work, but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord your God. In it, you shall do no work: you, nor your son, nor your daughter, nor your male servant, nor your female servant, nor your cattle, nor your stranger who is within your gates. For in six days the Lord made the heavens and the earth, the sea, and all that is in them, and rested the seventh day. Therefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it." (Exodus 20:8-11)
"And the Lord gave me the two tablets of stone written with the finger of God." (Deuteronomy 9:10)

Answer:
In the fourth commandment of the Ten, God commands us to keep the seventh-day Sabbath as His holy day. God knew people would forget His Sabbath, so He began this commandment with the word "remember." He has never commanded anyone, anywhere, to keep any other weekly day as holy.

Jesus says it is easier for heaven and earth to pass away than for God's law to change.

5. But haven't the Ten Commandments been changed?
Jesus said, "And it is easier for heaven and earth to pass away than for one tittle of the law to fail." (Luke 16:17)
God says, "My covenant I will not break, nor alter the word that has gone out of My lips." (Psalm 89:34)
Note that the Ten Commandments came directly from His lips (Exodus 20:1).

Answer:
No, absolutely not! It is impossible for any part of God's moral law to change. All Ten Commandments are still binding today.

Paul and the other apostles kept God's seventh-day Sabbath.

6. Did the apostles keep the Sabbath?
"Then Paul, as his custom was, went in to them, and for three Sabbaths reasoned with them from the Scriptures." (Acts 17:2)

"But when they departed from Perga, they came to Antioch in Pisidia and went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day and sat down." (Acts 13:13-14)
"And on the Sabbath day, we went out of the city to the riverside, where prayer was customarily made." (Acts 16:13)
"And he reasoned in the synagogue every Sabbath and persuaded both Jews and Greeks." (Acts 18:4)

Answer:
Yes, the book of Acts clearly shows that Paul and the early church kept the Sabbath.

The apostles taught Gentiles to keep the Sabbath.

7. Did Gentiles also worship on the Sabbath?
God commanded:
"Blessed is the man who… keeps from defiling the Sabbath." (Isaiah 56:2)
"Also, the sons of the foreigner who join themselves to the Lord… everyone who keeps from defiling the Sabbath and holds fast My covenant—even them I will bring to My holy mountain." (Isaiah 56:6-7)

The apostles taught:
"When the Jews went out of the synagogue, the Gentiles begged that these words might be preached to them the next Sabbath… On the next Sabbath almost the whole city came together to hear the word of God." (Acts 13:42, 44)

Answer:
The apostles not only obeyed God's command to keep the Sabbath but also taught converted Gentiles to worship on the Sabbath day.

The Sabbath was not changed to Sunday at Christ's resurrection.

8. But wasn't the Sabbath changed to Sunday at Christ's death or resurrection?

Answer:
No, there is no hint that the Sabbath was changed at Christ's resurrection. On the contrary, the Bible teaches the opposite.

Everyone in God's eternal kingdom will keep the Sabbath.

9. Some people say the Sabbath will be observed in God's new earth. Is this correct?

“For as the new heavens and the new earth which I will make shall remain before Me,” says the Lord, “So shall your descendants and your name remain. And it shall come to pass that from one New Moon to another, and from one Sabbath to another, all flesh shall come to worship before Me,” says the Lord. (Isaiah 66:22-23)

Answer: Yes, the Bible says that the redeemed of all ages will keep the Sabbath in God’s new earth.

The Lord’s Day is the Sabbath, not Sunday.

10. But isn’t Sunday the Lord’s Day?
“Call the Sabbath a delight, the holy day of the Lord.” (Isaiah 58:13).
“For the Son of Man is Lord even of the Sabbath.” (Matthew 12:8).

Answer:
The Bible mentions the “Lord’s Day” in Revelation 1:10, indicating that the Lord has a special day. However, there is no scripture that refers to Sunday as the Lord’s Day. Instead, the Bible clearly identifies the Sabbath as the Lord’s Day. The only day ever blessed by the Lord or claimed as His holy day is the seventh-day Sabbath.

Jesus established baptism—not Sunday observance—in honor of His resurrection.

11. Shouldn’t I keep Sunday in honor of Christ’s resurrection?
“Or do you not know that as many of us as were baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into His death? Therefore we were buried with Him through baptism into death, that just as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. For if we have been united together in the likeness of His death, certainly we also shall be in the likeness of His resurrection.” (Romans 6:3-6).

Answer:
No! It is no more appropriate to observe Sunday for Christ’s resurrection than it would be to observe Friday in honor of His crucifixion. Christ instituted baptism as a symbol of His death, burial, and resurrection. The Bible never suggests keeping Sunday for the resurrection (or for any other reason). We honor Christ by obeying Him (John 14:15)—not by following human traditions in place of His commandments.

Corrupt people had the audacity to change Sunday in place of God’s Sabbath law.

12. Well, if Sunday-keeping is not in the Bible, whose idea was it?
“He shall intend to change times and law.” (Daniel 7:25, NKJV).
“Thus you have made the commandment of God of no effect by your tradition. And in vain they worship Me, teaching as doctrines the commandments of men.” (Matthew 15:6, 9).
“Her priests have violated My law.” (Ezekiel 22:26).

Answer:
Long ago, corrupted religious leaders declared that God’s holy day had been changed from the Sabbath to Sunday. God foretold that this would happen, and it did. This falsehood has been passed down through generations as gospel truth. Sunday observance is a human tradition that violates God’s law,which commands Sabbath-keeping. Only God can make a day holy. He blessed the Sabbath, and what God blesses, no one can “reverse” (Numbers 23:20).

Changing the Sabbath to Sunday is an insult to God because it attempts to alter His holy law.

13. But isn’t it dangerous to tamper with God’s law?
“You shall not add to the word which I command you, nor take from it, that you may keep the commandments of the Lord your God.” (Deuteronomy 4:2).
“Every word of God is pure ... Do not add to His words, lest He rebuke you, and you be found a liar.” (Proverbs 30:5-6).

Answer:
God explicitly forbids anyone from changing His law by adding to or removing from it. Tampering with God’s holy law in any way is one of the most serious and dangerous things a person can do.

The Sabbath is a sign of God’s power to create and to redeem.

14. Why did God make the Sabbath?
A. A Sign of Creation.
“Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy... For in six days the Lord made the heavens and the earth, the sea, and all that is in them, and rested the seventh day. Therefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it.” (Exodus 20:8, 11).

B. A Sign of Redemption and Sanctification.
“Moreover I also gave them My Sabbaths, to be a sign between them and Me, that they might know that I am the Lord who sanctifies them.” (Ezekiel 20:12).

Answer:
God gave the Sabbath as two important signs:
1. It is a sign that He created the world in six literal, 24-hour days.
2. It is a sign of His power to redeem and sanctify humanity.
Every Christian should cherish the Sabbath as a precious symbol of God's creation and redemption (Exodus 31:13, 17; Ezekiel 20:12, 20). Ignoring the Sabbath is a serious offense against God. In Isaiah 58:13-14, God promises blessings to those who honor His Sabbath

Breaking any commandment of God's law is a sin
15. How important is Sabbath-keeping?
"Whoever commits sin also commits lawlessness, and sin is lawlessness." (1 John 3:4).
"The wages of sin is death." (Romans 6:23).
"For whoever shall keep the whole law, and yet stumble in one point, he is guilty of all." (James 2:10).
"Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that you should follow His steps." (1 Peter 2:21).
"He became the author of eternal salvation to all who obey Him." (Hebrews 5:9).

Answer:
It is a matter of life and death. Sabbath-keeping is part of the fourth commandment in God's law. Deliberately breaking any of the Ten Commandments is sin. Christians should joyfully follow Christ's example of Sabbath observance. Our only safety is in diligently studying the Bible, "rightly dividing the word of truth" (2 Timothy 2:15), and ensuring every Christian practice we follow has solid biblical support.
God will pour out His wrath on religious leaders who deliberately ignore His Sabbath

16. How does God feel about religious leaders who ignore the Sabbath?
"Her priests have violated My law ... Therefore I have poured out My indignation on them." (Ezekiel 22:26, 31).

Answer:
By hiding their eyes from God's true Sabbath, religious leaders provoke God's anger. He promises judgment on these false shepherds. Millions have been misled on this vital issue, and God does not take it lightly. Jesus rebuked the Pharisees for pretending to love God while nullifying one of the Ten Commandments through their traditions (Mark 7:7-13).
Everyone who enters heaven and eats from the tree of life will keep God's Sabbath.

17. Does Sabbath-keeping affect me personally?
“If you love Me, keep My commandments.” (John 14:15).
“So then each of us shall give account of himself to God.” (Romans 14:12).
“To him who knows to do good and does not do it, to him it is sin.” (James 4:17).
“Blessed are those who do His commandments, that they may have the right to the tree of life, and may enter through the gates into the city.” (Revelation 22:14).

Answer:
Absolutely! The Sabbath is your Sabbath. God made it for you, and if you love Him, you will keep it because it is one of His commandments. Love without obedience is not true love (1 John 2:4). You must make a decision—no one else can do it for you. You will personally answer to God for your response to this crucial issue. God invites you to love and obey Him now.
18. I am ready to follow Jesus’ example of keeping the Sabbath.

Answer:
Thought Questions

1. But isn’t the Sabbath only for the Jews?
No. Jesus said, “The Sabbath was made for man.” (Mark 2:27). It was not just for the Jews, but for humanity—all men and women everywhere. The Jewish nation did not even exist until 2,500 years after the Sabbath was made.

2. Doesn’t Acts 20:7-12 prove that the disciples kept Sunday as a holy day?
According to the Bible, each day begins at sunset and ends at the following sunset (Genesis 1:5, 8, 13, 19, 23, 31; Leviticus 23:32), and the dark part of the day comes first. Therefore, the Sabbath begins Friday night at sunset and ends Saturday night at sunset. This meeting in Acts 20 occurred during the dark portion of Sunday, or what we now call Saturday night. The New English Bible begins Acts 20:7 this way: “On Saturday night in our gathering…”

It was a Saturday night meeting that continued until midnight. Paul was on a farewell journey and knew he would not see these people again before his death (verse 25). No wonder he preached for so long! (No regular weekly service lasted all night.) Paul was “ready to depart on the morrow.” “Breaking bread” had no special “holy day” significance because they broke bread every day (Acts 2:46). There is no indication in this passage that the first day was sacred or that these early Christians regarded it as such. Nor is there the slightest evidence that the Sabbath had been changed. Interestingly, this meeting is likely mentioned in Scripture only because of the miracle where Paul revived Eutychus, who had fallen to his death from a third-story window.

In Ezekiel 46:1, God refers to Sunday as one of the six “working days.”

3. Does 1 Corinthians 16:1, 2 refer to Sunday School offerings?
No, there is no reference to a public meeting here. These funds were to be laid aside privately at home. There was a famine in Judea (Romans 15:26; Acts 11:26-30), and Paul was writing to ask the churches in Asia Minor to help their starving brethren. All these Christians kept the Sabbath, so Paul suggested that on Sunday morning (which was the time for settling accounts and paying bills), after the Sabbath had ended, they should set aside something for their needy brethren to be ready when he arrived. This was to be done privately or, as La Santa Biblia (a Spanish translation) says, “at home.” Also, note that there is no reference here to Sunday as a holy day. In fact, the Bible neither commands nor even suggests keeping Sunday.

4. But hasn’t time been lost and the days of the week changed since Christ’s time?
No! Encyclopedias and reliable reference books clearly show that our seventh day is the same one Jesus kept. It is a simple matter of historical and astronomical research.

5. Doesn’t John 20:19 record the disciples establishing Sunday worship to honor he resurrection?
On the contrary, at this time the disciples did not even believe the resurrection had occurred (Mark 16:14). They were gathered “for fear of the Jews” behind closed doors. When Jesus appeared among them, He rebuked them “because they did not believe those who had seen Him after He had risen.” There is no indication that they considered Sunday to be a holy day. The New Testament mentions the first day of the week only eight times, and none of these texts suggest it is sacred.

6. Doesn’t Colossians 2:14-17 abolish the seventh-day Sabbath?
Not at all. It refers only to sabbaths that were a “shadow of things to come” and not to the seventh-day Sabbath. There were seven annual holy days, or festivals, in ancient Israel, also called sabbaths. These were in addition to the “Sabbath of the Lord” (Leviticus 23:38), or the seventh-day Sabbath. All these annual sabbaths pointed forward to the cross and ended at the cross. God’s seventh-day Sabbath was established before sin entered the world and thus could not foreshadow deliverance from sin. This is why Colossians 2 distinguishes these shadowy sabbaths. The seven annual sabbaths that were abolished are listed in Leviticus 23.

7. Does Romans 14:5 teach that the day we observe is a matter of personal opinion?

Note that the entire chapter addresses judging one another (verses 4, 10, 13). The issue here is not the seventh-day Sabbath, which was part of the moral law but concerns annual ceremonial feast days. Jewish Christians were judging Gentile Christians for not observing these festivals. Paul simply says, "Do not judge one another. That ceremonial law is no longer binding.

Final Redemption

Lesson 8
It's not a myth—one day, you can be free from the troubles, hunger, loneliness, crime, and chaos that plague the world today. Doesn't that sound wonderful? But it won't be some charismatic world leader who will deliver you… no, He is far greater than that!

Jesus is coming back soon, but there are many common misconceptions about how He will return. So, take a few moments to understand exactly what the Bible says about the second coming—so you won't be left behind!

Jesus taught that He will return to earth a second time

1. Will Jesus return to earth a second time? Can we be sure?
"Christ ... will appear a second time." (Hebrews 9:28)
"If I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again." (John 14:3)

Answer:
Yes! In Matthew 26:64, Jesus testified under oath that He would return to earth again. Since the Scriptures cannot be broken (John 10:35), this is a sure confirmation. Believe it as it is written. It is Christ's own personal guarantee.

Jesus said He would return to earth in the clouds.

2. In what manner will Jesus return the second time?
"As they watched, He was taken up, and a cloud received Him out of their sight. And while they looked steadfastly toward heaven as He went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel, who also said, ‘Men of Galilee, why do you stand gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, who was taken up from you into heaven, will come in like manner as you saw Him go into heaven.’” (Acts 1:9-11)

Answer:
The Scriptures promise that Jesus will return to earth in the same manner He left—visibly, literally, physically, and personally. Matthew 24:30 says, “They will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of heaven with power and great glory.” He will come in the clouds, in bodily form (Luke 24:36-43, 50, 51), and His coming will be visible. The Bible is clear on these points.

Everyone on earth will see Jesus when He returns the second time.

3. Will Christ’s second coming be visible to everyone or just to a chosen group?
“Behold, He is coming with clouds, and every eye will see Him.” (Revelation 1:7)
“For as the lightning comes from the east and flashes to the west, so also will the coming of the Son of Man be.” (Matthew 24:27)

Answer:
Every man, woman, and child living on earth will see Jesus when He returns the second time. His coming will be as bright and visible as lightning flashing across the sky. No one will be able to hide or miss it. Every living soul will face Christ. Jesus left no room for doubt or misunderstanding.

Note: The “secret rapture” theory, believed and taught by many today, is not found in the Bible. It is a human invention. Nor is the second coming a spiritual event that occurs in the heart at conversion. It does not happen when a person dies, nor is it a symbolic event represented by better world conditions. All these theories are of human origin. The second coming of Christ will be a literal, worldwide, visible, personal event where Christ appears in the clouds to bring judgment and reward to all people.

All the angels of heaven will accompany Jesus when He returns.

4. Who will come with Jesus at His second coming, and why?
“When the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the holy angels with Him, then He will sit on the throne of His glory.” (Matthew 25:31)

Answer:
All the angels of heaven will come with Jesus when He returns. As the cloud approaches the earth, Jesus will send His angels to gather the righteous for their journey to heaven (Matthew 24:31).

Jesus will take His people to heaven and restore all that Adam and Eve lost.

5. What is the purpose of Jesus' second coming to this earth?
"Behold, I am coming quickly, and My reward is with Me, to give to everyone according to his work." (Revelation 22:12)
"I will come again and receive you to Myself; that where I am, there you may be also." (John 14:3)
"And that He may send Jesus Christ … whom heaven must receive until the times of restoration of all things." (Acts 3:20-21)

Answer:
Jesus is coming back to fulfill His promise to gather His people and take them to the beautiful homes He has prepared. He will restore to His people the joy and glory that Adam and Eve lost through sin. His second coming will end this age of sin and evil.

Young children who died will be reunited with their parents at Jesus' second coming.

6. What will happen to the righteous when Jesus comes again?
"For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven … and the dead in Christ will rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. And thus we shall always be with the Lord." (1 Thessalonians 4:16-17)
"We shall all be changed … and the dead will be raised incorruptible. For this mortal must put on immortality." (1 Corinthians 15:51-53)
"We eagerly wait for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, who will transform our lowly body to be conformed to His glorious body." (Philippians 3:20-21)

Answer:
The righteous dead will be raised from their graves with perfect, immortal bodies like Christ's. The living righteous will also be transformed and caught up with them in the clouds to meet Jesus. Together, they will be taken to heaven.

Note: Jesus will not touch the earth during His second coming. The righteous will meet Him in the air. Any reports claiming that Christ is on earth should be ignored (Matthew 24:23-27). False Christs will appear and perform miracles, but the real Jesus will remain in the clouds.

The wicked will be slain when Jesus comes the second time.

7. What will happen to the wicked when Jesus returns?
"With the breath of His lips He shall slay the wicked." (Isaiah 11:4)
"And the slain of the Lord shall be from one end of the earth even to the other end." (Jeremiah 25:33)

Answer:
The wicked will be destroyed by the brightness of Jesus' coming.
The earthquakes today are minor compared to the great earthquake at Jesus' return.

8. How will Christ's second coming affect the earth itself?
"There was a great earthquake, such a mighty and great earthquake as had not occurred since men were on the earth. … Every island fled away, and the mountains were not found." (Revelation 16:18, 20)
"I beheld, and indeed the fruitful land was a wilderness, and all its cities were broken down." (Jeremiah 4:26)
"The Lord makes the earth empty and makes it waste. … The earth is utterly emptied." (Isaiah 24:1, 3)

Answer:
A massive earthquake will devastate the earth during Jesus' return, leaving it in a state of total desolation.

Millions of Christians died during the Dark Ages—many were burned at the stake.

9. Does the Bible give any signs about the nearness of Christ's second coming?
Answer: Yes! Jesus said, "When you see all these things, know that it is near—at the doors." (Matthew 24:33)

One sign was the destruction of Jerusalem:
"Not one stone shall be left upon another that shall not be thrown down. … Let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains." (Matthew 24:2, 16)
Fulfillment: Jerusalem was destroyed in 70 A.D. by the Roman general Titus.

B. The Great Tribulation

Prophecy of Tribulation:
“For then there will be great distress, unequaled from the beginning of the world until now—and never to be equaled again.” (Matthew 24:21)

Fulfillment:
This prophecy refers primarily to the long period of tribulation that occurred during the Dark Ages, fueled by the apostate church. It lasted for more than 1,000 years. More than 50 million Christians were killed for their faith during this terrible time of persecution. One historian states that the apostate church “has shed more innocent blood than any other institution that has ever existed among mankind.”

C. The Sun Will Be Darkened

Prophecy:
“Immediately after the distress of those days ‘the sun will be darkened.’” (Matthew 24:29)

Fulfillment:
This was fulfilled on the extraordinary “Dark Day” of May 19, 1780. It was not a solar eclipse. Timothy Dwight said, “On May 19, 1780, there was a remarkable dark day. Candles were lit in many houses; birds fell silent and disappeared, and poultry retired to roost. … The general opinion prevailed that the Day of Judgment was at hand.” (Quoted in Historical Collections of Connecticut, compiled by John Warner Barber, 2nd edition, New Haven: Durrie & Peck and J.W. Barber, 1836, p. 403).

D. The Moon Will Turn to Blood

Prophecy:
“The sun will be turned to darkness and the moon to blood before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord.” (Joel 2:31)

Fulfillment:
The moon appeared red as blood on the night of the “Dark Day,” May 19, 1780. Milo Bostick, in Stone’s History of Massachusetts, says, “The moon, which was full, had the appearance of blood.”

E. The Stars Will Fall from Heaven

Prophecy:

“The stars will fall from the sky.” (Matthew 24:29)

Fulfillment:
A spectacular meteor shower occurred on the night of November 13, 1833. It was so bright that newspapers could be read outdoors. One writer described it as follows: “For nearly four hours the sky was literally ablaze.” People thought the end of the world had come. This event remains one of the most vivid signs pointing to Christ’s return. (Source: Peter A. Millman, “The Falling of the Stars,” The Telescope, May–June, 1940, p. 57).

F. Jesus Will Come in the Clouds

Prophecy:
“Then will appear the sign of the Son of Man in heaven. And then all the peoples of the earth will mourn when they see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of heaven, with power and great glory.” (Matthew 24:30)

Fulfillment:
This is the next great event to come. Are you ready?

10. How can we know when we have reached the very last days of earth’s history? Does the Bible clearly describe the world and its people in the final generation?

Answer:
Yes, absolutely. Consider the following specific signs of the last days. You will be amazed. These are just a few of the many clear signs indicating that we are living in the final days of earth’s history

A. Economic Problems

“The wages you failed to pay the workers who mowed your fields are crying out against you. The cries of the harvesters have reached the ears of the Lord Almighty.”
“Be patient … because the Lord’s coming is near.” (James 5:4, 8)

The Bible predicts economic struggles in the last days. To see the fulfillment of this prophecy, just check today’s news

B. Wars and Civil Unrest

“When you hear of wars and uprisings, do not be frightened. These things must happen first." (Luke 21:9)

Wars and internal conflicts are affecting millions worldwide. Only the soon return of Jesus will bring an end to the pain and destruction of warfare
C. Widespread Anxiety, Fear, and Chaos

"On the earth, nations will be in anguish and perplexity. … People will faint from terror, apprehensive of what is coming on the world." (Luke 21:25–26)

This sounds remarkably like today's headlines, reflecting the state of our world. This global anxiety should not surprise us—Christ predicted it. It should also convince us that His return is near
D. Increase in Knowledge

"In the time of the end, knowledge shall increase." (Daniel 12:4)

The Information Age makes this prophecy unmistakably clear. Even the most skeptical mind must acknowledge its fulfillment. Knowledge is exploding in every field. It is said that 80% of all the knowledge in human history has been produced in the past decade, and 90% of all scientists who have ever lived are alive today

E. Scoffers and Religious Skeptics Who Reject Biblical Truth

"In the last days scoffers will come, scoffing and following their own evil desires." (2 Peter 3:3)

"They will turn their ears away from the truth and turn aside to myths." (2 Timothy 4:3–4)

It is not difficult to find scoffers today, fulfilling this prophecy. Even religious leaders deny clear biblical truths about Creation, the Flood, Christ's divinity, His second coming, and many other essential teachings. Psychology and human traditions have replaced Scripture in many religious circles.

A recent poll found that only 2% of U.S. seminary students preparing for ministry believe in the literal second coming of Christ.

F. The Decline of Morality; The Collapse of Spiritual Integrity

"In the last days... people will be lovers of themselves, ... without natural affection, ... without self-control, ... despisers of those who are good, ... having a form of godliness but denying its power." – 2 Timothy 3:1-5

America is in the midst of a major crisis. People from all walks of life acknowledge this. Suicide is becoming a popular solution to human problems. Divorce rates are soaring, with nearly one out of every two marriages ending in a courtroom. The current immoral generation, obsessed with sex and impurity, combined with the increasing number of churchgoers but the declining true spiritual condition, is a clear and undeniable fulfillment of God's Word. For a real shock, observe how many of the last-days sins listed in 2 Timothy 3:1-5 you can find reflected in any edition of your Sunday newspaper. Nothing short of the coming of the Lord will halt the tide of evil now sweeping across the world.

G. Lovers of Pleasure

"In the last days... people will be lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God." – 2 Timothy 3:1-4

The world has gone mad for pleasure. Only a small percentage of the population in major cities attend church services regularly, but multitudes crowd entertainment venues. America spends billions every year on pleasure while giving only "peanuts" (by comparison) to God. Pleasure-crazed Americans waste billions of hours in front of television screens in direct fulfillment of 2 Timothy 3:4.

H. Increase in Lawlessness, Bloodshed, and Violence

"Because lawlessness will abound." – Matthew 24:12
"Evil men and impostors will grow worse and worse." – 2 Timothy 3:13
"The land is full of bloodshed, and the city is full of violence." – Ezekiel 7:23

It is abundantly clear that this sign has been fulfilled. Crime and lawlessness are increasing at an alarming rate. Many people in large cities no longer answer their doors after dark. The wisest leaders of our time worry about the survival of civilization because crime is advancing and seems unstoppable.

I. Destructive Earthquakes, Storms, and Famine

"There will be great earthquakes in various places, and famines and pestilences." – Luke 21:11

Earthquakes, hurricanes, floods, and other natural disasters are increasing at an unprecedented rate. One-third of the world's population is hungry, and thousands die daily from starvation. All these events further confirm that we are living in the final hours of Earth's history.

J. A Special Message to the World in the Last Days

"And this gospel of the kingdom will be preached in all the world as a witness to all the nations, and then the end will come." – Matthew 24:14

A powerful, urgent, and final warning message about the second coming of Christ is now being delivered in more than 900 languages and dialects. Approximately 95% of the world's population can access this message. Before Jesus returns, everyone in the world will be warned about His soon coming. People will be lost only if they reject this warning message.

K. Turning to Spiritualism

"In the latter times some will depart from the faith, giving heed to deceiving spirits." – 1 Timothy 4:1
"They are spirits of demons." – Revelation 16:14

Today, people—including many world leaders—seek advice from psychics, mediums, and spiritualists. Spiritualism has even infiltrated churches, along with the false doctrine of the immortality of the soul. The Bible teaches that the dead are truly dead. We are indeed living in the last days.

11. How soon is the second coming of the Lord?

"Now learn this parable from the fig tree: When its branch has already become tender and puts forth leaves, you know that summer is near. Assuredly, I say to you, this generation will by no means pass away till all these things take place." – Matthew 24:32-34

Answer: The Bible is very specific and clear about this matter. Nearly all the signs have been fulfilled. While we cannot know the exact day or hour of Christ's return (Matthew 24:36), we can be sure that we are the generation that will see Jesus coming. God has promised to bring things to a swift conclusion (Romans 9:28). Christ is returning soon for His people. Are you ready?
---

12. Satan tells many lies about Christ's second coming and, through false wonders and miracles, will deceive millions. How can I be sure I will not be deceived?

“They are spirits of demons, performing signs.” – Revelation 16:14
“For false christs and false prophets will rise and show great signs and wonders to deceive, if possible, even the elect.” – Matthew 24:24
“To the law and to the testimony! If they do not speak according to this word, it is because there is no light in them.” – Isaiah 8:20

Answer: Satan has devised many false teachings about Christ’s second coming, deceiving millions into believing that Jesus has already come or that He will return in some unscriptural way. But Christ warned us about Satan’s schemes, saying, “Take heed that no one deceives you.” (Matthew 24:4). He revealed Satan’s plans and lies so that we would be prepared, reminding us, “See, I have told you beforehand.” (Matthew 24:25).

For example, Jesus specifically said He would not appear in the desert or come to secret chambers (verse 26). There is no need to be deceived if we study what God’s Word teaches about Christ’s second coming.

The ultimate test is this: What does the Bible say? Those who know the Bible’s teachings about the second coming will not be misled by Satan. Everyone else will be deceived.

Jibu: Ndiyo, na kwa uwazi kabisa hivyo. Angalia yafuatayo kwa makini sana.

13. How can I be ready when Jesus returns?

“The one who comes to Me I will by no means cast out.” – John 6:37
“As many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God.” – John 1:12
“I will put My laws in their minds and write them on their hearts.” – Hebrews 8:10
“Thanks be to God, who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.” – 1 Corinthians 15:57

Answer: Jesus says, “Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If anyone hears My voice and opens the door, I will come in.” (Revelation 3:20). Through the Holy Spirit and our conscience, Jesus knocks and asks to enter our hearts to transform our lives. If I surrender my life fully to Him, He will forgive all my past sins (Romans 3:25) and empower me to live a godly life (John 1:12).

It’s that simple. My part is to surrender my life to Christ and allow Him to live in me. His part is to work the great miracle within me, transforming my life and preparing me for His second coming. It is a free gift—I simply need to accept it.

---

14. What serious warning does Christ give us?

“Therefore, you also be ready, for the Son of Man is coming at an hour you do not expect.” – Matthew 24:44

Answer: The greatest danger is being so absorbed with the cares and pleasures of this life that we are unprepared when the Lord returns. Jesus is coming soon. Are you ready? Nothing else is more important.

15. I choose to be ready when Jesus returns.

Questions of Thought

1. Has the great tribulation come yet? It is true that a terrible tribulation will cover the earth just before Jesus returns to redeem His people. Daniel describes it as “a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation.” (Daniel 12:1). However, in context, the “great tribulation” of Matthew 24:21 refers to a severe persecution of God’s people during the Dark Ages. Millions were killed for their faith during that time.

2. Since the Lord is coming “as a thief in the night,” how can anyone know anything about it? The answer is found in 1 Thessalonians 5:2-4: “For you yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so comes as a thief in the night. For when they say, ‘Peace and safety!’ then sudden destruction comes upon them, as labor pains upon a pregnant woman, and they shall not escape. But you, brethren, are not in darkness, so that this Day should overtake you as a thief.” Notice, the day of the Lord comes as a thief to those who are unprepared, but not to those called “brethren.”

3. When will Christ establish His kingdom on earth? After the thousand-year period of Revelation 20. This thousand years begin when Christ returns the second time, taking the righteous from the earth to live and reign with Him “for a thousand years.” (Revelation 20:4). At the end of the thousand years, the “holy city, new Jerusalem” (Revelation 21:2) comes down from heaven to the earth with all the saints (Zechariah 14:1, 4, 5), and the wicked who have died in all ages are resurrected to life (Revelation 20:5). They surround the holy city to capture it (Revelation 20:9), and fire comes down from God out of heaven and devours them. This fire purifies the earth and destroys all remnants of sin and sinners (2 Peter 3:10). Finally, the fire goes out (Isaiah 47:14), leaving only ashes (Malachi 4:3). Then God creates a new earth (2

Peter 3:13; Isaiah 65:17; Revelation 21:1) and gives it to the righteous, and "God... will dwell with them... and God Himself will be with them, and be their God." (Revelation 21:3). Perfect, holy, and happy beings, restored to the perfect image of God, will finally make their home in a sinless, spotless world, as God originally intended. Only a fool would choose to miss this.

4. Why don't we hear more preaching and teaching today about the second coming of Christ? Satan is involved. He knows very well that the second coming is the "blessed hope" (Titus 2:13) of the Christian, and when it is understood, it changes the lives of men and women and leads them to take an active, personal, and earnest part in spreading the good news to others so that Christ's return may be hastened. This angers Satan, so he draws those with a "form of godliness" (2 Timothy 3:5) but denies "its power," mocking, saying, "Where is the promise of His coming? For since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of creation." (2 Peter 3:3, 4). Those who deny, ignore, or scoff at the second coming of Christ (as a real, soon-coming event) are fulfilling exactly the prophecy of the Bible—and doing Satan a great service.

5. But didn't Jesus speak about a secret rapture when He said in Luke 17:36, "One will be taken, and the other left"? No. There is no indication that this event is secret. Jesus was referring to the flood in Noah's time and the destruction of Sodom. (See Luke 17:26-37). He described how God saved Noah and Lot and destroyed the wicked. He specifically says that the flood and fire "destroyed them all." (Verses 27, 29). Clearly, in each case, a few were taken to safety, and the rest were destroyed. He then added, "Even so will it be in the day when the Son of Man is revealed." (Verse 30). As an illustration, Jesus continued, "Two men will be in the field; one will be taken, and the other left." (Verse 36). There is nothing secret about it. "Every eye will see Him." (Revelation 1:7). When He comes the second time, Christ will openly and publicly take the righteous to the skies (1 Thessalonians 4:16, 17) and destroy the wicked (Isaiah 11:4; 2 Thessalonians 2:8). That is why Luke 17:37 speaks of the bodies of the wicked and mentions the eagles (or vultures) gathered around them. (See also Revelation 19:17, 18). The wicked who are left behind when Christ comes are left dead.

Purity and Power!

Lesson 9

Have you grown tired of hurting your loved ones and hurting your conscience? Do you live in constant regret for your past mistakes? Have you ever wished you could wash yourself and be clean both inside and out? Then we have good news for you... you can! God has a plan that can completely wash away all your sins and transform your character—into foolishness? Certainly not! Christ says, “We were therefore buried with Him through baptism” (Romans 6:4). When you accept Christ, the old life dies, and the Lord promises to forget all our sins! Not only that, He can help you overcome every sinful habit in your life. Did you know that the cross is mentioned 28 times in the Bible, but baptism is mentioned 97 times? It must be very significant, and no wonder, because it symbolizes new life and the old sorrowful, sinful life that has been buried and forgotten forever. Read the amazing truth from the Bible about this amazing subject... you will never be the same!

This verse makes it clear that baptism is essential for salvation.

1. Is baptism really important?
“He who believes and is baptized will be saved; but he who does not believe will be condemned.” (Mark 16:16)
Answer: Yes, indeed! How could any language or words make it clearer?

Circumstances made it impossible for the thief on the cross to be baptized.

2. But the thief on the cross wasn’t baptized, so why should I be baptized?
“For He knows our frame; He remembers that we are dust.” (Psalm 103:14)
Answer: He also did not return what he had stolen, as the Lord specifically directs in Ezekiel 33:15. God holds us accountable for what we can do, but He also recognizes the limitations of “dust.” He wouldn’t require something physically impossible.
If the thief had been able to come down from the cross, he could have been baptized. This is the only example in the Bible of an exception to this principle. God wanted to make sure no one could excuse themselves from baptism.

There is only one Biblical way of baptism, not 14.

3. There are many teachings referred to as baptism. Is there anything among them that is acceptable, as long as someone is sincere and diligent about it?
“One Lord, one faith, one baptism.” Ephesians 4:5
Answer: No! There is only one true baptism. All other baptisms are counterfeit.

Remember: Satan's "choice" plan for baptism says, "Choose your option. The method of baptism doesn't matter. It is the spirit that counts." But the Bible says, "One Lord, one faith, one baptism." Ephesians 4:5. It also says, "I urge you to obey the voice of the Lord." Jeremiah 38:20.

Jesus was baptized by immersion.

4. How was Jesus baptized?
"Jesus ... was baptized by John in the Jordan. As He came up out of the water, He saw the heavens open." Mark 1:9, 10
Answer: By immersion! Note that after the act, He "came up out of the water." Jesus was baptized "in the Jordan," not on the riverbank, as many believe. John always found places to baptize where "there was much water" (John 3:23), so there was enough depth. The Bible commands us to follow Jesus' example (1 Peter 2:21). Any baptism other than immersion breaks this command. The word "baptism" comes from the Greek word "baptizo." It means "to dip, immerse, or submerge." There are eight different Greek words in the New Testament used for the application of liquids, but among these—meanings such as sprinkling, pouring, or immersing—only one (baptizo) means "to immerse," and it is the one used to describe baptism.

Philip baptized the Ethiopian by immersion.

5. But did the disciples or apostles change the method of baptism?
"And both went down into the water, Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him. And when they came up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught Philip away." Acts 8:38, 39
Answer: No! Please note that Philip, a leader in the early church, baptized the Ethiopian eunuch by immersion, just as John had baptized Jesus. The apostle Paul warned that anyone teaching contrary to what Jesus taught should be "accursed." Galatians 1:8. No one—even if they are devout—has the authority to change God's words and commandments.

All forms of baptism except immersion come from people, not from Scripture.

6. Since Jesus and the disciples baptized by immersion, who started these other baptisms called baptism that exist today?
"And in vain they worship Me, teaching as doctrines the commandments of men." Matthew 15:9
Answer: Apostate men introduced other forms of baptism in direct opposition to the Word of God. Jesus says, "Why do you also transgress the commandment of God because of your tradition?" "Thus you have made the commandment of God of no effect by your tradition." Matthew 15:3, 6. Worship that follows the teachings of men is "vain." Consider this! The sacred practice of baptism has been altered and rendered insignificant during the perilous journey of truth over many centuries. It is no wonder that the Bible urges us to "contend earnestly for the faith which was once for all delivered to the saints." Jude 3.

There are three simple things a person must do before baptism.

7. What must a person do to prepare for baptism?
Answer:
A. Learn God's requirements. "Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them... and teaching them to observe all things that I have commanded you." Matthew 28:19, 20.
B. Believe in the truth of God's Word. "He who believes and is baptized will be saved." Mark 16:16.
C. Repent and forsake their sins and experience conversion. "Repent, and let every one of you be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins." Acts 2:38. "Repent therefore and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out." Acts 3:19.

When I am baptized, I am confirming my faith in the death, burial, and resurrection of Jesus.

8. What is the meaning of baptism?
"We were therefore buried with Him through baptism into death, in order that, just as Christ was raised from the dead through the glory of the Father, we too may live a new life... For we know that our old self was crucified with Him so that the body of sin might be done away with, that we should no longer be slaves to sin." Romans 6:4-6
Answer: It represents the believer following Christ in His death, burial, and resurrection. The symbol is complete and full of deep meaning. In baptism, the eyes are closed, the hands are folded, and the breath is held, as if in death. Then, the person is buried in the water and resurrected from the water grave to a new life in Christ. When they are lifted from the water, their eyes open, and they begin to breathe again and join with friends, a perfect representation of the resurrection. The major difference between Christianity and every other religion is the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ. In these three acts, everything that God desires to do for us is made possible. To keep these three essential acts alive in the minds of Christians until the end of time, the Lord instituted baptism by immersion as a reminder. There is no symbol of death, burial, and resurrection in other forms of baptism. Only immersion fulfills the meaning of Romans 6:4-6.

Death to sin. The old life buried in the water. A new person raised to life in Christ.

New Christians are like infants learning to walk. Sometimes they slip and fall.

9. But a person should not be baptized until they are sure they will not slip or fall, right?
“For if there is first a willing mind, it is accepted according to what one has, and not according to what one does not have.” 2 Corinthians 8:12
Answer: This is like saying a child should not try to walk until they are sure they won’t slip or fall. A Christian is a “newborn” in Christ. This is why the experience of conversion is called “being born again.” The old sinful ways are no longer present in God’s child. The person’s past sin is forgiven and forgotten by God at conversion. And baptism symbolizes the burial of those old lives of sin. We begin our Christian life as infants, not as adults, and God judges us on our attitude and direction in life, not on small slips and falls we may experience as new Christians.

Baptism is a glorious event because it symbolizes the burial of the old life of sin and the beginning of a new life in Christ.

10. Why is baptism a necessity for a repentant sinner?
“And now why are you waiting? Arise and be baptized, and wash away your sins, calling on the name of the Lord.” Acts 22:16
Answer: Baptism is a public testimony that the repentant sinner has been forgiven and cleansed by Jesus (1 John 1:9), and that their old life of sin and rebellion is behind them. There is no charge of guilt against someone after they are baptized.

Men and women today are stumbling and struggling under heavy burdens of guilt and sin. This pollution and burden is so bad for human nature that people will go to great lengths to experience a feeling of forgiveness and cleansing. Many are pushed to the bed of a psychiatrist, where humans try to help other humans. But true help is found in coming to Christ, who says to all who come to Him, “I will be clean.” Matthew 8:3. Not only does He cleanse, but He crucifies the old nature of sin within you. Being buried in the waters of baptism symbolizes the burial of the corrupt body of the old sinful life. This command is of great importance because it publicly represents the extraordinary terms ever offered to people.

Philip baptized the Ethiopian eunuch the same day he accepted Christ as his Savior.

11. How long does it take to prepare for baptism?
Answer: That depends on the person. Some grasp things more quickly than others. But in many cases, preparations can be made in a short time. Here are some Biblical examples:

A. The Ethiopian eunuch (Acts 8:26-39) was baptized the same day he heard the truth.
B. The Philippian jailer and his family (Acts 16:23-34) were baptized the very night they heard the truth.
C. Saul of Tarsus (Acts 9:1-18) was baptized three days after Jesus spoke to him on the road to Damascus.
D. Cornelius (Acts 10:1-48) was baptized the same day he heard the truth.

In conversion, God:

1. Forgives and forgets the past.

2. Miraculously transforms us into new spiritual beings.

3. Adopts us as His sons and daughters.

Indeed, no truly converted person would want to delay baptism, which publicly acknowledges all these miracles that God performs.

God is pleased with those who are baptized by immersion. Is He pleased with your baptism?
12. How does God feel about the baptism of a repentant sinner?
Answer: He said at the baptism of His Son, “This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.” Matthew 3:17. Therefore, today, God is very pleased when someone is baptized by immersion according to His command. Those who love the Lord will always strive to please Him (1 John 3:22; 1 Thessalonians 4:1). Is God pleased with your baptism?

Baptism is a formal entry into the church of God. Being baptized without joining God’s church is unbiblical.

13. Can a person receive true baptism without being a member of God’s church?
Answer: No! God makes this clear. Consider the following steps:

A. All are called into one body. “And let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to which also you were called in one body.” Colossians 3:15.

B. The church is the body. “And He is the head of the body, the church.” Colossians 1:18.
C. We enter that body through baptism. “For by one Spirit we were all baptized into one body.” 1 Corinthians 12:13.
D. The redeemed people of God are added to the church. “And the Lord added to the church daily those who were being saved.” Acts 2:47.

If Jesus is speaking to you about baptism, do not delay.
Baptism is a public display of your desire to follow God completely.

14. Consider four things that baptism does not do:
Answer:
First
Baptism itself does not change the heart of a person; it is a sign of changes that have already taken place. A person can be baptized without faith, without repentance, and without a new heart. They may even be immersed to follow the example of Jesus, but they would come out still sinful, wet rather than dry, without faith, without repentance, and without a new heart. Baptism cannot make a person new. It is the power of the Holy Spirit that changes the heart in repentance. A person must be born of the Spirit as well as born of water.

Second
Baptism is not necessary to make a person feel good. It does not have to change their emotions. Some people are disappointed because they don’t feel any different after being baptized. Salvation is not about feelings, but about faith and obedience.

Third
Baptism does not remove temptation. The devil does not leave a person alone just because they are baptized. But Jesus is the helper of every believer. He says, “I will never leave you nor forsake you.” Hebrews 13:5. No temptation will come without a way to escape. This is the promise of the Scriptures (1 Corinthians 10:13).

Fourth
Baptism does not guarantee salvation. It is not a magical act. Salvation only comes as a free gift from Jesus Christ when a person goes through the process of being born again. Baptism is a sign of true repentance, and unless repentance precedes baptism, the act is meaningless.

15. Jesus asks you to be baptized by immersion as a sign that your sins have been washed away. Would you like to arrange for this holy command soon?

Answer:

Thought Questions

1. Is it appropriate to be baptized more than once?
Yes, Acts 19:1-5 shows that the Bible supports re-baptism in certain cases.

2. Should infants be baptized?
No! No one should be baptized unless they (1) know the truth of God, (2) believe it, (3) have repented, and (4) have been converted. No child can meet these criteria. No one has the right to baptize an infant. In fact, doing so is a direct disregard of God's commandments about baptism. Corrupted men in the church in past years ordered that infants who were not baptized were lost, but this is not true scripturally. It is blasphemous to accuse God of being an unjust tyrant who would condemn innocent infants to destruction just because negligent parents failed to have them baptized. Teachings like these are terribly sad. It is bad enough to sprinkle infants and call it baptism. It is even worse to hold the unbiblical belief that infants are eternally lost because their negligent parents failed to fulfill their duty.

3. Is baptism just a matter of personal opinion?
Yes, but not your opinion or mine. It is Christ's opinion that matters. Christ says baptism is essential to Him. "No one can enter the kingdom of God unless they are born of water and the Spirit." John 3:5. Rejecting baptism is rejecting God's direct counsel (Luke 7:29, 30).

4. How old should someone be to be eligible for baptism?
Old enough to understand the difference between right and wrong, and to make a conscious decision to surrender to Christ and follow Him. Many children are ready for baptism at the age of 9 or 10, some at 7 or 8, and others at 12 or 13. There is no specific age mentioned in the Bible, because children have different levels of experience and understanding. Some are ready for baptism earlier than others.

5. Can baptism alone save you?
No! But refusing to be baptized can cause someone to be lost, because it means disobedience. Salvation is for "those who obey Him." Hebrews 5:9.

6. Is the baptism of the Holy Spirit not necessary?
No! The Bible shows in Acts 10:44-48 that baptism by water is necessary, even when the baptism of the Holy Spirit has already occurred.

7. Should we be baptized only in the name of Jesus?

In Matthew 28:19, we are told to baptize in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. These are the words of Jesus, and we hold them as sacred. In the book of Acts, we find new believers being baptized in the name of Jesus. Acknowledging Jesus as the Christ and Messiah was important for the people of that time; therefore, it was important for them to be baptized in His name. We believe it is equally important today. When we combine the testimony of Matthew and the book of Acts, we baptize people in the name of the Father, the Son, Jesus Christ, and the Holy Spirit. Following this approach prevents elevating one Scripture over another.

8. Is there one sin you are not willing to surrender? Should you be baptized? No! It is clear that you are not ready to be buried in the waters of baptism because your old sinful life has not yet died. It would be a criminal act for a burial official to bury someone who has not died, and it is wrong for a minister to baptize someone whose old sinful life has not died.

9. Can you explain Galatians 3:27?
Here, God compares baptism to marriage. A person who is baptized publicly acknowledges that they have taken on the name of Christ (Christian), just as a bride publicly takes on the name of her husband during the wedding. In baptism, as in marriage, several principles always apply:
A. It must never be entered into unless true love governs it.
B. It must never be entered into unless the candidate has decided to remain faithful in difficult and trying circumstances.
C. It must be entered into with full understanding.
D. It must not be delayed unnecessarily.

Do the Dead Really Die?

Lesson 10

Death can be one of the most misunderstood things today. For many, it is shrouded in mystery and evokes terrifying feelings of fear, uncertainty, and even hopelessness. Some believe that their loved ones who have died haven't truly died, but are still living with them or in other places! Others are confused about the relationship between the body, the spirit, and the soul. But does it matter what you believe? Yes... absolutely! Because what you believe about the dead will have major consequences on what happens to you at the end of life. There's no room for guessing, so this Study Guide will give you exactly what God says about this subject. Get ready for some real eye-opening truths!

Adam was created by God in the beginning.

1. How did we get here in the first place?
"Then the Lord God formed a man from the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and the man became a living soul." Genesis 2:7
Answer: God made us from the dust in the beginning.

2. What happens when a person dies?
"And the dust returns to the ground it came from, and the spirit returns to God who gave it." Ecclesiastes 12:7
Answer: The body returns to dust, and the spirit returns to God, who gave it. The spirit of everyone who dies—whether righteous or wicked—returns to God when they die.
There is nothing strange about the spirit returning to God at death. It is the breath of life.

3. What is the "spirit" that returns to God at death?
"As the body without the spirit [breath, see note] is dead, so faith without deeds is dead." James 2:26
"The spirit of God [the breath He gave me, see note] is in my nostrils." Job 27:3
Answer: The spirit that returns to God at death is the breath of life. There is no place in the whole Bible where the "spirit" has life, wisdom, or emotions after a person dies. It is the "breath of life" and nothing more.

4. What is a "soul"?
"Then the Lord God formed a man from the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and the man became a living soul." Genesis

2:7
Answer: A soul is a living being. A soul is always a combination of two things: the body and the breath. A soul cannot exist unless the body and the breath are united. The Word of God teaches that we are souls.

5. Do souls die?
“The soul who sins is the one who will die.” Ezekiel 18:20
“Every living soul died in the sea.” Revelation 16:3
Answer: According to God’s Word, souls die! We are souls, and souls die. A human being dies (Job 4:17). Only God cannot die (1 Timothy 6:15, 16). The idea of an immortal and indestructible soul contradicts the Bible, which teaches that souls can die.

6. Do righteous people go to heaven when they die?
“Do not marvel at this, for the time is coming when all who are in their graves will hear His voice and come out.” John 5:28, 29
“David... is dead and buried, and his tomb is here to this day.” “For David did not ascend to heaven.” Acts 2:29, 34
“I wait for my change; I will go to the grave to the end.” Job 17:13
Answer: No, people do not go to heaven or hell when they die. They go to their graves to await the resurrection.

7. How much does a person know or understand after death?
“The living know that they will die, but the dead know nothing; they have no further reward, and even their name is forgotten. Their love, their hate, and their jealousy have long since vanished; never again will they have a part in anything that happens under the sun.” “There is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, where you go.” Ecclesiastes 9:5, 6, 10
“The dead do not praise the Lord.” Psalm 115:17
Answer: God says that the dead know absolutely nothing!

8. But do the dead not communicate with the living, and do they not know what the living are doing?
“So man lies down and does not rise till the heavens are no more; they will not awake or be roused from their sleep. His sons come to honor, and he does not know it; they are brought low, and he perceives it not.” Job 14:12, 21
“Never again will they have a part in anything that happens under the sun.” Ecclesiastes 9:6
Answer: No, the dead cannot communicate with the living, nor do they know what the living are doing. They are dead. Their thoughts are gone (Psalm 146:4).

Jesus calls death “sleep.” It is a state of total unconsciousness.

9. Jesus referred to the state of the dead as “sleep” in John 11:11-14. How long will they sleep?
“Just as a man lies down, and does not rise again; until the heavens are no more, they will not awake.” Job 14:12.
“The Day of the Lord will come... in which the heavens will pass away.” 2 Peter 3:10.
Answer: The dead will sleep until the great Day of the Lord at the end of the world. In death, humans are completely unconscious, without activity or any kind of knowledge.

The righteous will be resurrected and given immortality at the second coming of Jesus.

10. What happens to the righteous dead at the second coming of Christ?
“Behold, I come quickly, and My reward is with Me, to give to everyone according to his work.” Revelation 22:12. “The Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout... and the dead in Christ will rise first... and thus we shall always be with the Lord.” 1 Thessalonians 4:16, 17. “We shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye... for the dead will be raised incorruptible... For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality.” 1 Corinthians 15:51-53.
Answer: They will be rewarded. They will be resurrected, given imperishable bodies, and caught up to meet the Lord in the air. There would be no purpose for the resurrection if people went to heaven immediately when they died.

The first lie of Satan to Eve was, “You shall not surely die”—a statement completely contrary to all of Scripture.

11. What was Satan’s first lie?
“The serpent said to the woman, ‘You will not surely die.’” Genesis 3:4. “The great dragon, that serpent of old, called the Devil and Satan.” Revelation 12:9.
Answer: Satan told Eve that sin would not bring death. “You will not surely die,” he said.
Those who believe the dead are alive are easily targets for Satan’s deception.

12. Why did Satan deceive Eve about death? Is this lesson more important than many think?
Answer: It is one of the pillars of Satan’s kingdom. He has performed powerful miracles throughout history through people claiming to receive their power from the spirits of the dead. (Examples: Egyptian magicians, Exodus 7:11, the Woman of Endor, 1 Samuel 28:3-25, Daniel’s magicians, Daniel 2:2, a certain girl, Acts 16:16-18.)

Strong Warning
At the end, Satan will again use sorcery as he did in Daniel's day to deceive the world (Revelation 18:23). Sorcery is an unusual practice that claims to receive power and wisdom from the spirits of the dead.

Pretending to be the Followers of Jesus
Pretending to be loved ones who have died, holy priests who are now dead, biblical prophets, or even apostles or followers of Christ (2 Corinthians 11:13), Satan and his angels will deceive billions of people. Those who believe that the dead are alive in any form will certainly be deceived.

All miracles do not come from God, for demons also perform miracles.

13. Is it true that demons perform miracles?
"These are spirits of demons, performing signs." Revelation 16:14. "For false Christs and false prophets will rise and show great signs and wonders to deceive, if possible, even the elect." Matthew 24:24.
Answer: Yes, indeed! Demons perform very convincing miracles (Revelation 13:13, 14). Satan and his angels will appear as angels of light (2 Corinthians 11:14) and, even more shockingly, as Christ Himself (Matthew 24:23, 24). The entire world will perceive that Christ and His angels are leading in a worldwide spiritual awakening. The emphasis will seem very spiritual and very miraculous, so much so that only God's elect will not be deceived.
The elect will not be deceived because they utterly reject everything contrary to Scripture.

14. Why will God's people not be deceived?
"These were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness, and searched the Scriptures daily to find out whether these things were so." Acts 17:11. "To the law and to the testimony: If they do not speak according to this word, it is because there is no light in them." Isaiah 8:20.
Answer: God's people will know from their diligent study of His word that the dead are dead, not alive. The spirits of the dead do not exist. Therefore, God's people will reject all miracle workers and teachers who claim to receive special "light" or perform miracles by communicating with the spirits of the dead. God's people will also reject all false and dangerous teachings claiming that the dead are alive in any form.

In the days of Moses, those who claimed to communicate with the dead were to be stoned to death.

15. What did God command to be done to those who taught that the dead were alive in the days of Moses?
"'A man or a woman who is a medium, or who has a familiar spirit, shall surely be put to death; they shall stone them with stones.'" Leviticus 20:27.
Answer: God commanded that witches and others who had "familiar spirits" (who claimed to communicate with the dead) be stoned to death. This shows how God views the false teaching that the dead are alive.

No one in God's new kingdom will die forever. Death will cease when Satan is destroyed.

16. Will the righteous who are resurrected in the resurrection ever die again?
"Those who are counted worthy to attain that age, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry nor are given in marriage; nor can they die anymore, for they are equal to the angels and are sons of God, being sons of the resurrection." Luke 20:35, 36. "And God will wipe away every tear from their eyes; there shall be no more death, nor sorrow, nor crying, nor pain, for the former things have passed away." Revelation 21:4.
Answer: No! Death, sorrow, crying, and pain will never enter the new kingdom of God.

Reincarnation is rapidly gaining belief today. Are these teachings biblical?
"The living know that they will die; but the dead know nothing, and they have no more reward, for the memory of them is forgotten." Ecclesiastes 9:5, 6.
Answer: Nearly half of the world's population believes in reincarnation, the teaching that the soul never dies but is reborn in another form in each successive generation. However, these teachings are contrary to Scripture.
The Bible says:
After death, a person returns to the dust (Psalm 104:29), knows nothing (Ecclesiastes 9:5), has no mental faculties (Psalm 146:4), has no relationship with anything on earth (Ecclesiastes 9:10; 6), does not live on (2 Kings 20:1), waits in the grave (Job 17:13), and does not continue (Job 14:1, 2).

Satan's Invention
We learned in questions 11 and 12 that Satan invented the teaching that the dead are alive. Reincarnation, mediumship, communication with spirits, spirit worship, and the "immortal soul" are all inventions of Satan, with one goal: to convince people that when you die, you don't truly die. When people believe that the dead are alive, "the spirits of demons, performing signs" (Revelation 16:14), pretending to be the spirits of the dead, will deceive and mislead nearly 100% of the time (Matthew 24:24).
Those who insist on Scripture for every teaching will not be deceived by Satan.

18. I am thankful for the Bible, which tells us the truth on this sensitive subject of death.
Answer:

Thought Questions

1. Did the thief on the cross go to paradise with Christ the day he died?
No. In fact, on Sunday morning, Jesus told Mary, “I have not yet ascended to My Father.” John 20:17. This shows that Christ did not go to heaven when He died. Also, remember that the punctuation marks in the Bible were added by humans, and the comma in Luke 23:43 should be placed after the word “today” rather than before it. Therefore, the verse should read, “Assuredly, I say to you today, you will be with Me in paradise,” or “I tell you today—at a time when it seems that I cannot save anyone, when I am being crucified as a criminal—I give you assurance today that you will be with Me in paradise.” The Kingdom of Christ will be established at His second coming (Matthew 25:31), and all the righteous from all ages will enter at that time (1 Thessalonians 4:15-17), not at death.

2. Does the Bible speak of an “immortal” or “immortal soul”?
No, the immortal soul is not mentioned in the Bible. The term “immortality” is found only once in the Bible, and it refers to God (1 Timothy 1:17).

3. When a person dies, the body returns to the dust, and the spirit (or breath) returns to God. But where does the spirit go?
It goes nowhere. Rather, it ceases to exist. Two things must be joined together to make a soul: the body and the breath. When the breath departs, the soul ceases to exist because it is a combination of both elements. When you turn off a light, where does the light go? It goes nowhere. It ceases to exist. Two things must come together to create light: the bulb and electricity. Without a combination, light is impossible. So it is with the soul; unless the body and breath are joined, there can be no soul. There is no such thing as a disembodied soul.

4. Does the word “soul” have any other meaning besides a living being?
Yes, it can also mean (1) life itself or (2) the mind, or intellect. No matter the meaning, the soul is still a combination of two things (body and breath), and it ceases to exist at death.

5. Can you explain John 11:26, which says, “And whoever lives and believes in Me shall never die”?
This does not refer to the first death, which everyone experiences (Hebrews 9:27), but to the second death, which only the wicked experience and from which there is no resurrection (Revelation 2:11; 21:8).

6. Matthew 10:28 says, “And do not fear those who kill the body, but cannot kill the soul.” Doesn’t this prove that the soul doesn’t die?
No, it proves the opposite. The second half of that very verse proves that the soul dies. It says, “But rather fear Him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell.” The word “soul” here means life and refers to eternal life, which is a gift (Romans 6:23) that will be given to the righteous on the last day (John 6:54). No one can take away the eternal life that God gives. (Also see Luke 12:4, 5.)

7. Does 1 Peter 4:6 say that the gospel was preached to the dead?
No, it says the gospel “was preached” to those who were “dead.” They are dead now, but the gospel “was preached” to them while they were still alive.

8. How about the souls crying out under the altar in Revelation 6:9, 10? Does this show that souls do not die?
No. This cry was symbolic, just like Abel’s blood cry (Genesis 4:10). The term “soul” here refers to people (or living beings) who were killed for their faith. Certainly, no one believes that dead souls literally lie under the altar, nor do people believe that the righteous ask God to punish their enemies. Instead, the righteous pray for mercy for their enemies, as Christ did on the cross (Luke 23:34).

9. Does the Bible say that Christ went to preach to the lost spirits in hell between His crucifixion and resurrection?
No, the Scripture being referred to is 1 Peter 3:18-20. The preaching was done “by the Spirit” (verse 18) in the days of Noah—to the people who were living at that time (verses 19, 20). “Spirits in prison” refers to people whose lives were in bondage to Satan. (See Psalm 142:7; Isaiah 42:6, 7; 61:1; and Luke 4:18.)

Does Satan Lead to Hell?

Lesson 11
Does God really place Satan on His list of punishment – is he the chief warden of hell who assigns punishments to the lost? Nearly the entire world holds non-Biblical views about hell, and it is your responsibility to know what the Bible says about hell. Don't be deceived, for what you believe about hell certainly affects what you believe about God's character! Take a moment to discover the important facts you need to know today!
The wicked will not be punished until after the judgment.

1. How many lost souls are being punished in hell today?
"The Lord knows how to deliver the godly out of temptations and to reserve the unjust under punishment for the day of judgment." 2 Peter 2:9
Answer: There is not a single soul in the fires of hell today. The Bible says that God reserves or restrains the wicked until the day of judgment when they will be punished.
Sinners will be thrown into the fire of hell at the end of the world—not when they die.

2. When will the wicked be thrown into the fires of torment?
"So shall it be at the end of the world: the Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity; and shall cast them into a furnace of fire." Matthew 13:40-42. "The word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day." John 12:48
Answer: The wicked will be thrown into the fires of hell on the great day of judgment at the end of the world—not when they die. God will not punish a person with fire until their case has been heard and decided in court at the end of the world. Nor would God burn a murderer who died 5,000 years ago 5,000 years longer than the one who dies today and deserves the same punishment for the same crime.
All the dead, both the righteous and the wicked, are in their graves awaiting the resurrection.

3. Where are the wicked (those who have died) now?
“The hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation.” John 5:28, 29. “The wicked is reserved to the day of destruction.” “Yet he shall be brought to the grave, and shall remain in the tomb.” Job 21:30, 32
Answer: The Bible is clear. Both the righteous and the wicked who have died are in their graves “asleep” until the day of resurrection.
Jesus died to save us from our sins. Those who do not accept His gift of salvation will receive death.

4. What is the final result of sin?
“For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.” Romans 6:23. “Sin, when it is finished, brings forth death.” James 1:15. “For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.” John 3:16
Answer: The wages (or penalty) for sin is death, not eternal life in the fire of torment. The wicked “perish,” or receive “death.” The righteous receive “eternal life.”

5. What will the wicked experience in the fire of torment?
“But the fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death.” Revelation 21:8
Answer: The wicked die the second death in the fires of hell. If the wicked were to live forever in torment in hell, they would be immortal. But that is impossible, because the Bible says that God “alone has immortality.” 1 Timothy 6:16. When Adam and Eve were expelled from the Garden of Eden, an angel was placed to guard the tree of life so that sinners could not eat of it and “live forever.” Genesis 3:22-24. The teaching that sinners cannot die in hell came from Satan and is completely false. God prevented this when sin entered this world by guarding the tree of life.

Clear Bible Teaching – The Wicked are Annihilated
The Bible says the wicked will receive “death” (Romans 6:23), will be “destroyed” (Job 21:30), “perish” (Psalm 37:20), will be “consumed” (Malachi 4:1), “will be destroyed together” (Psalm 37:38), “will be cut off” (Psalm 37:9), “will be slain” (Malachi 4:3), “will be wiped out” (Psalm 62:3). God “will destroy them” (Psalm 145:20), and “the fire will consume them” (Psalm 21:9).
Remember, all these references clearly indicate that the wicked die and are destroyed. They do not live forever in suffering.

At the end of the world, fire will fall from heaven upon the wicked and consume them.

6. When and how will the fire of torment be kindled?
"So shall it be at the end of the world: the Son of man… will cast them into a furnace of fire." Matthew 13:40-42. "And they went up on the breadth of the earth, and compassed the camp of the saints about, and the beloved city: and fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them." Revelation 20:9. "The righteous shall be recompensed in the earth." Proverbs 11:31
Answer: At the end of the world, God Himself will kindle the fire of hell. When the holy city comes down from God out of heaven (Revelation 21:2), the wicked will attempt to capture it. At that time, God will send fire from heaven to the earth, and it will consume the wicked. This fire is the hell of the Bible.
Hell will be a worldwide fire. It will be 25,000 miles in diameter—so hot that everything on earth will be "consumed."

7. How great and how hot will the fire of torment be?
"But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up." 2 Peter 3:10
Answer: The fire of hell will be as great as the earth itself because it will be the earth burning with fire. This fire will be so hot that it will melt the earth and burn up "all the works that are in it." The heavens will explode and "pass away with a great noise."

Jesus will insist on justice for the wicked. Their level of punishment will be proportional to their deeds, as He has promised.

8. How long will the wicked suffer in hell?
"And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be." Revelation 22:12. "And then shall he reward every man according to his works." Matthew 16:27. "That servant, which knew his lord's will, and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes. But he that knew not, and did commit things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with few stripes." Luke 12:47, 48
Answer: The Bible does not specify how long the wicked will be punished before receiving death in the fire. However, God clearly states that all will be punished according to their deeds. This means that some will receive a greater punishment than others, based on their works.

God will create a new world that will no longer contain the evils of the old world.

9. Will the fire ever go out?
“Behold, they shall be as stubble; the fire shall burn them; they shall not deliver themselves from the power of the flame.” Isaiah 47:14. “And I saw a new heaven and a new earth… And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away.” Revelation 21:1, 4
Answer: Yes, indeed, the Bible specifically teaches that the fire of torment will go out and that it will not remain “a burning flame, nor a fire to sit before it.” The Bible also teaches that in God’s new kingdom, “all the former things” will be gone. Hell, as one of the old things, is included, so we have God’s promise that it will be wiped away.

Is God a Tormentor?
If God were to torment His enemies in a terrifying chamber forever and ever, He would be more cruel and heartless than humans have ever been in the worst atrocities of war. Eternal torment in hell would be hell for God too, who loves even the worst sinners.
The fire will burn until only ashes remain. Even bones will completely disappear.

10. What will remain after the fire is extinguished?

“For behold, the day is coming, burning like an oven, and all the proud, yes, all who do wickedly, will be stubble; and the day which is coming shall burn them up,” says the Lord of hosts, “that will leave them neither root nor branch.” “But you who fear My name, the Sun of Righteousness shall arise with healing in His wings; and you shall go out and grow fat like stall-fed calves.” Malachi 4:1, 3.

Answer: Look, the verse does not say the wicked will burn like asbestos, as many believe today, but like stubble, which will be burned up. The little word “up” means complete. Nothing but ashes will remain when the fire is extinguished. In Psalm 37:10, 20, the Bible says the wicked will ascend in smoke and be utterly destroyed. Fire from heaven will strike the wicked and utterly consume both body and soul.
11. Will the wicked enter hell with a bodily form and be destroyed body and soul?

“It is better for you to enter into life maimed, rather than having two hands, to go to hell, into the fire that shall never be quenched." Mark 9:43. "And do not fear those who kill the body but cannot kill the soul. But rather fear Him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell." Matthew 10:28. "The soul who sins shall die." Ezekiel 18:20.

Answer: Yes. Real, living people will enter hell with a bodily form and be destroyed both in soul and body. Fire from God from heaven will fall upon real people and utterly remove them. Satan will be completely destroyed by fire.

12. Will Satan be the overseer of the tormenting fire?

"And the devil, who deceived them, was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone." Revelation 20:10. "I will bring you to ashes upon the earth, in the sight of all who see you. ... You shall be no more." Ezekiel 28:18, 19.

Answer: Absolutely not! Satan will be thrown into the fire, and it will turn him into ashes.

13. Does the word "hell" as used in the Bible always refer to a place of burning fire or punishment?
Answer: No, the word "hell" is used 54 times in the Bible, and in only 12 instances does it refer to "a place of burning fire."

*IN THE OLD TESTAMENT
31 times from "Sheol," which means "the grave."

IN THE NEW TESTAMENT
10 times from "Hades," which means "the grave."
12 times from "Gehenna," which means "a place of burning fire."
1 time from "Tartarus," which means "a place of darkness."
54 TIMES IN TOTAL.*suppose to be a table form

Note: The Greek word "Gehenna" (mentioned above) is a translation of the Hebrew "Ge-Hinnom," which means "Valley of Hinnom." This valley, located just south and west of Jerusalem, was a place where dead animals, garbage, and other refuse were thrown. The fire burned continually, as it does in modern-day landfill sites. The Bible uses "Gehenna" or "Valley of Hinnom" as a symbol of the fire that will destroy the lost at the end of time. The fire of Gehenna did not cease; otherwise, it would still be burning south-west of Jerusalem today. Likewise, the fire of hell will not cease. Destroying sin, sinners, and Satan is the only way to make the world safe for eternity.

14. What is God's purpose in the tormenting fire?

"Depart from Me, you cursed, into the everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels." Matthew 25:41. "And if anyone's name was not found written in the Book of Life, he was cast into the lake of fire." Revelation 20:15. "For yet a little while and the wicked shall be no more; indeed, you will look carefully for his place, but it shall be no more." Psalm 37:10, 20.

Answer: God's purpose is that hell will destroy Satan, all sin, and sinners, and make the earth safe for eternity. One sinner, if left on this planet, would be a dangerous virus threatening the world forever. It is God's plan to separate sin and remove it forever.

Eternal Hell Would Sustain Sin
An eternal hell of torment would perpetuate sin and make its eradication impossible. An eternal tormenting hell is not part of God's great plan at all. That terrifying theory is a slander against the holy name of the loving God. Satan delights in seeing our loving Creator portrayed as an extremely cruel ruler, and only he benefits from such teachings.

Eternal Hell Theory Created by Man
The theory of "eternal hell of torment" did not come from the Bible, but from depraved people who (perhaps unintentionally) were led by Satan. And, fortunately, no one will be in heaven because they were afraid of hell. People are saved because they love and obey Christ. Jesus will be deeply grieved when He destroys those He died to save.

15. Is the work of destroying sinners foreign to the nature of God?

"As I live," says the Lord God, "I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but that the wicked turn from his way and live. Turn, turn from your evil ways! For why should you die, O house of Israel?" Ezekiel 33:11. "For the Son of Man did not come to destroy men's lives but to save them." Luke 9:56. "For the Lord will rise up... to do His work, His awesome work, and to bring to pass His act, His unusual act." Isaiah 28:21.

Answer: Yes, God's work has always been to save rather than to destroy. The work of destroying the wicked in the tormenting fire is so foreign to God's nature that the Bible calls it "His unusual act." God's great heart will ache at the destruction of the wicked. Oh, how He works tirelessly to save every soul! But if a person rejects His love and clings to sin, God will have no choice but to destroy the sinner for their sin when He removes the terrifying and evil growth called "sin" from the world in the final fire.

After the destruction of the wicked, God will create a new world for His people, where they will live forever in peace, joy, and love. Sin will never rise again.

16. What are God's plans after the hellfire for the world and His people?

"He will make an end of it; affliction will not rise up a second time." Nahum 1:9. "For behold, I create new heavens and a new earth; and the former shall not be remembered or come to mind." Isaiah 65:17. "Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and He will dwell with them, and they shall be His people. God Himself will be with them and be their God. There shall be no more death, nor sorrow, nor crying. There shall be no more pain, for the former things have passed away." Revelation 21:3, 4.

Answer: After the hellfire is extinguished, God will create a new world and restore it for His people, along with all the beauty and glory of Eden before sin entered. The horrifying things of sin and the past will be forgotten. Pain, death, sorrow, wailing, tears, disease, desires, grief, and all sin will be banished forever.

Sin Will Not Rise Again
God promises that sin will not occur again. His people will be filled with perfect peace, love, joy, and contentment. Their lives of complete happiness will be more glorious and exciting than words can describe. The real tragedy of hell is missing heaven. A person who fails to enter this beautiful kingdom has made the most tragic choice in life.

17. I am grateful to learn that God does not punish the wicked forever in a burning hell.

Answer: Thoughts Questions

1. Doesn't the Bible talk about "eternal torment"?
No, the words "eternal torment" do not appear in the Bible.

2. Then why does the Bible say that the wicked will be destroyed by unquenchable fire?
Unquenchable fire is a fire that cannot be extinguished, but one that goes out when everything has turned to ashes. Jeremiah 17:27 says Jerusalem will be destroyed by unquenchable fire, and in 2 Chronicles 36:19-21 the Bible says this fire burned the city "to fulfill the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah," leaving it desolate. But we know this fire went out because Jerusalem does not burn today.

3. Does Matthew 25:46 not say the wicked will receive “eternal punishment”? Notice the word is punishment, not punishing. Punishment would be ongoing, while punishment is a one-time action. The punishment for the wicked is death, and this death is eternal.

4. Can you explain Matthew 10:28: “Do not fear those who kill the body but cannot kill the soul”?
The word “soul” has three meanings in the Bible: (1) a living being—Genesis 2:7, (2) mind—Psalm 139:14, and (3) life—1 Samuel 18:1, which refers here to eternal life that God promises to all who reach His kingdom. No one can take this away. The last part of Matthew 10:28 says both the soul and body will be destroyed in hell.

5. Does Matthew 25:41 talk about the “eternal fire” for the wicked?
Yes, according to the Bible, it does. We must let the Bible speak for itself. Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed by everlasting or eternal fire (Jude 7), and that fire turned them “to ashes” as a warning to “those who would live ungodly afterward.” 2 Peter 2:6. These cities are not burning today. The fire went out after everything was consumed. Likewise, the eternal fire will go out after making the wicked ashes (Malachi 4:3). The effects of the fire are eternal, but not the burning itself.

6. Does the story of the rich man and Lazarus in Luke 16:19-31 teach eternal hellfire of torment?
No, actually! It is just an example used to emphasize a point. Many things make it clear that this is a parable. Some are as follows:

A. Abraham’s bosom is not in heaven (Hebrews 11:8-10, 16).
B. Those in hell cannot communicate with those in heaven (Isaiah 65:17).
C. The dead are in their graves (Job 17:13; John 5:28, 29). The rich man had a physical form with eyes, a tongue, etc., but we know the body does not go to hell when one dies. It is very clear that the body stays in the grave, as the Bible says.
D. Human beings are confirmed in the second coming of Christ, not at death (Revelation 22:11, 12).
E. The lost are punished in hell at the end of the world, not when they die (Matthew 13:40-42). The point of the parable is found in Luke 16:31. Parables should not be taken literally. If we took them literally, we would have to believe that trees talk! (See this example in Judges 9:8-15.)
7. But doesn’t the Bible speak of the wicked being tormented “forever”?
The word “forever,” as used in the Bible, means a period of time, either limited or unlimited. It has been used 56 times in the Bible to refer to things that have already ended. (To check this in a concordance, search the word "forever.") It is like the word "long," which means something different when talking about humans, trees, or mountains. In Jonah 2:6, "forever" means "three days and nights." (See also Jonah 1:17.) In Deuteronomy 23:3, it means "ten generations." For humans, it means "as long as one lives" or "until death." (See 1 Samuel 1:22, 28; Exodus 21:6; Psalm 48:14.) Therefore, the wicked will burn in fire for as long as they live, or until death. This fire punishment for sin will vary depending on the level of sin for each person, but after the punishment, the fire will go out. The doctrine of eternal torment has caused more people to slip into madness than any other invention of Satan. It is a scandal against the loving character of the merciful, gracious Father, and has caused great harm to the Christian cause.

1,000 Years of Peace

Lesson 12

You can be sure that it is coming—the amazing millennium that will begin after the return of Christ. And Satan does not want you to know about his 1,000-year imprisonment because it reveals his true character. In fact, Satan has fabricated a false message about the millennium to deceive you! It's a fascinating and significant study that will completely shake everything you've ever known! Now, you can learn the amazing truths from the Bible about the coming 1,000-year reign.

1. What event marks the beginning of this 1,000-year period?
"Then I saw thrones, and they sat on them, and judgment was committed to them... And they lived and reigned with Christ for a thousand years." Revelation 20:4, NEB, last part of the verse.
Answer: The resurrection begins the 1,000-year period.

The 1,000 years begin with the resurrection of the righteous.

2. What is this resurrection called? Who will be involved?
"This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is he who has part in the first resurrection." Revelation 20:5, 6.
Answer: It is called the first resurrection. The righteous—"blessed and holy" from all ages—will be resurrected in it.
The 1,000 years end with the resurrection of the wicked.

3. The Bible speaks of two resurrections. When is the second resurrection, and who will be resurrected in it?
"The rest of the dead [the wicked] did not live again until the thousand years were finished." Revelation 20:5. "Do not marvel at this; for the hour is coming in which all who are in the graves will hear His voice and come forth—those who have done good, to the resurrection of life, and those who have done evil, to the resurrection of condemnation." John 5:28, 29.
Answer: The second resurrection takes place at the end of the 1,000 years. The wicked will be resurrected in this resurrection. It is called the resurrection of damnation.

Note: The resurrection of the righteous starts the 1,000 years. The resurrection of the wicked ends the 1,000 years.
A destructive earthquake and hailstorm will strike the world during Christ's second coming. At that time, the righteous from all ages will rise to meet Jesus in the air.

4. What other significant events take place as the 1,000 years begin?
“Behold, He is coming with clouds, and every eye will see Him.” Revelation 1:7. “For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of an archangel and with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ will rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air.” 1 Thessalonians 4:16, 17.
“There was a great earthquake, such a mighty and great earthquake as had not occurred since men were on the earth... Every island fled away, and the mountains were not found. And great hail from heaven fell upon men, each hailstone about the weight of a talent [estimated by scholars to weigh from 58 to 100 pounds].” Revelation 16:18, 20, 21. (See also Jeremiah 4:23-26; Isaiah 24:1, 3, 19, 20; Isaiah 2:21.)
Answer: Other major events at the beginning of the 1,000 years include: a destructive earthquake and the most devastating hailstorm in history hitting the world; Jesus returning in the clouds for His people; and all the saints being caught up in the air to meet Jesus.
The wicked alive will be slain by the brightness of Christ’s second coming.

5. What happens to the wicked—alive and dead—at the second coming of Jesus?
“He shall strike the earth with the rod of His mouth, and with the breath of His lips He shall slay the wicked.” Isaiah 11:4.
“When the Lord Jesus is revealed from heaven with His mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance on those who do not know God.” 2 Thessalonians 1:7, 8.
“Let the wicked perish at the presence of God.” Psalm 68:2.
“But the rest of the dead did not live again until the thousand years were finished.” Revelation 20:5.
Answer: The wicked alive will be slain by the presence of Christ at His second coming. When an angel appeared at Jesus’ tomb, the entire group of Roman guards fell as if they were dead (Matthew 28:2, 4). The brightness of all the angels, God the Father, and God the Son will cause the wicked to die as if struck by lightning. The wicked who are already dead will remain in their graves until the end of the 1,000 years.
The righteous will be with Jesus in heaven during the 1,000 years.

6. Many believe that those who are lost will have an opportunity to repent during the 1,000 years. What does the Bible say about this?
“Those slain by the Lord on that day shall be from one end of the earth even to the other end of the earth; they shall not be lamented or gathered, nor buried; they shall become refuse on the ground.” Jeremiah 25:33.
“I looked, and behold, there was no man.” Jeremiah 4:25.

Answer: It is impossible for anyone to repent during the 1,000 years because there will be no one alive on earth. All the righteous will be in heaven. All the wicked will be dead on the earth. Revelation 22:11, 12 makes it clear that everyone's case is sealed before Jesus returns. Those waiting to receive Christ until the 1,000 years begin will have waited for a very long time.
The earth, in its broken, darkened state, will be a "bottomless pit" where Satan will be forced to remain during the 1,000 years.

7. The Bible says that Satan will be bound in the abyss during the 1,000 years. What is this abyss?
"Then I saw an angel coming down from heaven, having the key to the bottomless pit... He laid hold of the dragon, that serpent of old, who is the Devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years; and he cast him into the bottomless pit..." Revelation 20:1-3.
Answer: The term "bottomless pit" in the original Greek is "abussos," or abyss. This same word is used in the Greek translation of the Old Testament in Genesis 1:2 in reference to the earth's creation, but it is translated "deep" there. "The earth was without form, and void; and darkness was on the face of the deep." How fascinating!

The words "deep," "bottomless pit," and "abyss" here refer to the same thing—the earth in its completely dark, chaotic state before God ordered it. Jeremiah, in describing the earth during the 1,000 years, used nearly the same phrases as in Genesis 1:2: "without form and void," "no light," "no man," "darkness." Jeremiah 4:23, NW 25, 28. Thus, the broken, darkened, lifeless earth will be called the bottomless pit, or abyss, during the 1,000 years as it was before creation was completed. Isaiah 24:22 also speaks of Satan and his angels during the 1,000 years as "gathered in the pit" and "bound in prison."
The earth, in its broken, darkened state, will be a "bottomless pit" where Satan will be forced to remain during the 1,000 years.

8. What chain binds Satan? Why is he bound?
"An angel... having... a great chain in his hand... laid hold of Satan, and bound him for a thousand years... and cast him into the abyss..." Revelation 20:1-3.
Answer: This chain is symbolic, a chain of circumstance. A spiritual being cannot be bound by a literal chain. Satan is "bound" because he has no people to deceive. All the wicked are dead, and all the righteous are in heaven. The Lord confines Satan to this earth so he cannot roam the world looking for someone to deceive. Forcing Satan to stay on this earth, alone with his demons, for 1,000 years without anyone to deceive will be the worst chain ever made.

RECAP OF EVENTS THAT HAPPEN AT THE BEGINNING OF THE 1,000 YEARS:

A destructive earthquake and hailstorm (Revelation 16:18-21, Revelation 6:14-17).

The second coming of Jesus for His saints (Matthew 24:30, 31).

The righteous dead are resurrected (1 Thessalonians 4:16, 17).

The righteous are granted immortality (1 Corinthians 15:51-55).

Bodies transformed to be like Jesus' (1 John 3:2, Philippians 3:21).

All the righteous are caught up in the clouds (1 Thessalonians 4:16, 17).

The wicked alive are slain by the breath of the Lord's mouth (Isaiah 11:4).

The wicked in their graves remain dead until the end of the 1,000 years (Revelation 20:5).

Jesus takes the righteous to heaven (John 13:33, 36; John 14:1-3).

Satan is bound (Revelation 20:1-3).

9. Revelation 20:4 says there will be judgment in heaven during the 1,000 years. For what purpose? Who will participate? "Then I saw thrones, and they sat on them, and judgment was given to them... and they lived and reigned with Christ for a thousand years." Revelation 20:4. "Do you not know that the saints will judge the world?... Do you not know that we will judge angels?" 1 Corinthians 6:2, 3. Answer: The righteous from all times (and possibly even good angels) will participate in judgment during the 1,000 years. Cases of all the lost, including Satan and his angels, will be reviewed. This judgment will clarify details about the lost for everyone who is saved. In the end, all will see that people are excluded from heaven only if they did not want to live like Jesus or be with Him. EXAMINE EVENTS AND CONDITIONS DURING THE 1,000 YEARS: The earth will be in a state of destruction with great hailstones and earthquakes (Revelation 16:18-21, 6:14-17). The earth will be in complete darkness / a bottomless pit (Jeremiah 4:23, 28). Satan and his angels will be forced to stay on earth / bound (Revelation 20:1-3). The righteous in heaven will participate in judgment (Revelation 20:4). All the wicked will be dead (Jeremiah 4:25, Isaiah 11:4). During the 1,000 years, every soul that has ever lived on earth will be in one of two places: (1) on earth, dead and lost, or (2) in heaven, participating in judgment. The Lord invites you to be in heaven.

Please accept His invitation. The holy city, along with all of God's people, will descend to earth at the end of the 1,000 years.

10. At the end of the 1,000 years, the holy city, the New Jerusalem, will descend from heaven to earth. Who will come with it? Where will it settle? "Then I, John, saw the holy city, the New Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God... And I heard a loud voice from heaven saying, 'Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men.'" Revelation 21:2, 3. "Behold, the day of the Lord is coming... And His feet will stand on that day on the Mount of Olives, which faces Jerusalem on the east, and the Mount of Olives shall be split in two... Then the Lord my God will come, and all the saints with You." Zechariah 14:1, 4, 5, 10. Answer: The New Jerusalem will settle where the Mount of Olives stands now. That mountain will be flattened, creating a vast plain, and the city will settle on it. All the righteous from all times (Zechariah 14:5), the heavenly angels (Matthew 25:31), along with God the Father (Revelation 21:2, 3) and God the Son (Matthew 25:31) will return to earth with the holy city in the special third coming of Jesus. The second coming will be for His saints, the third coming will be with His saints. The Three Comings of Jesus:

11. The first coming, in Bethlehem in a manger.

12. The second coming, in the clouds at the beginning of the 1,000 years to take His people to heaven.

13. The third coming, with the holy city and all the righteous at the end of the 1,000 years.

14. What will happen to the wicked who have died at this time? How will this affect Satan? "But the rest of the dead did not live again until the thousand years were finished." "Now when the thousand years have expired, Satan will be released from his prison, and will go out to deceive the nations." Revelation 20:5, 7, 8. Answer: At the end of the 1,000 years (when Jesus comes the third time), the wicked will be resurrected. Satan, being released from his prison, will have a world full of people (all the nations of the earth) to deceive. After the holy city descends, the wicked from all generations—along with Satan as their leader—will attempt to take the city.

15. What will Satan do at that time? "Satan will go out to deceive the nations... of the earth,... to gather them together to battle, whose number is as the sand of the sea. They went up on the breadth of the earth and surrounded the camp of the saints and the beloved city." Revelation 20:7-9. Answer: Satan, true to his nature, will immediately begin to lie to the people left on earth—the wicked from all times. He may claim that the city really belongs to him, that he was unjustly removed from the heavenly kingdom, that God is power-hungry and cruel, and that God is preparing to destroy everyone from the face of the earth with an inescapable fire. He will convince them that, united, there is no place for God. With the whole world against one city, victory will seem certain. Then the nations will unite and prepare their armies to surround the New Jerusalem. When the wicked of all ages surround the holy city, God will destroy them with fire falling from heaven.

16. What will stop Satan's plan to seize or destroy the city? "Fire came down from God out of heaven and devoured them." Revelation 20:9, 10; 21:8. "The wicked... shall be ashes under the soles of your feet on that day that I do this," says the Lord of hosts. Malachi 4:3. Answer: Fire will suddenly fall from heaven (not from hell, as many believe) upon the wicked, and they will be turned to ashes, including Satan and his angels (Matthew 25:41). This fire that destroys sin and sinners is called the second death. There is no resurrection from this death. It is final. Notice that Satan will not be controlling the fire, as is commonly believed. He will be in it, and it will render him nonexistent.

17. When the wicked are consumed by the fire and extinguished, what glorious and exciting event will follow? "Behold, I create a new heavens and a new earth." Isaiah 65:17. "Nevertheless we, according to His promise, look for new heavens and a new earth in which righteousness dwells." 2 Peter 3:13. "And He who sits on the throne said, 'Behold, I make all things new.'" Revelation 21:5. "The tabernacle of God is with men, and He will dwell with them, and they shall be His people, and God Himself will be with them and be their God." Revelation 21:3. Answer: God will create a new heavens and a new earth, and the New Jerusalem will be the capital of the renewed world. Sin and its evil will be gone forever. The people of God will finally receive the promised kingdom. "They shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away." Isaiah 35:10. It is truly amazing to describe! So wonderful to miss out on! So close to us being certain! God has a place prepared for you (John 14:1-3). Plan to live in it. Jesus is waiting for your approval. EXAMINE EVENTS AT THE END OF THE 1,000 YEARS: The third coming of Jesus with His saints (Zechariah 14:5). The holy city settles on the Mount of Olives, which becomes a great plain (Zechariah 14:4, 10). The Father, angels, and all the righteous come with Jesus (Revelation 21:1-3, Matthew 25:31, Zechariah 14:5). The wicked dead are resurrected with Satan being released (Revelation 20:5, 7). Satan deceives the whole world (Revelation 20:8). The wicked surround the holy city (Revelation 20:9). The wicked are destroyed by fire (Revelation 20:9). A new heavens and new earth are created (Isaiah 65:17, 2 Peter 3:13, Revelation 21:1). The people of God rejoice in eternity with Christ in the new world (Revelation 21:2-4).

They surround the holy city. 6.The wicked are destroyed by fire. 7.A new heaven and earth are created. 8.God's people rejoice in eternity with Jesus.

15. Can we know how long it will take for Jesus to return for His saints?
"So you also, when you see all these things, know that it is near, at the doors." Matthew 24:33. "Now when these things begin to happen, look up and lift up your heads, because your redemption draws near." Luke 21:28. "For He will finish the work, and cut it short in righteousness." Romans 9:28. "For when they say, 'Peace and safety!' then sudden destruction comes upon them, as labor pains upon a pregnant woman, and they shall not escape." 1 Thessalonians 5:3.

Answer: Jesus said that when the signs of His coming are rapidly being fulfilled, as they are today, we should rejoice and know that His coming is near—even at the door. The apostle Paul said we can know that the end is near when there is a great movement of peace in the world. Ultimately, the Bible says God will shorten the work (Romans 9:28). So without a doubt, we are living in a time of anticipation. The Lord will come suddenly and unexpectedly—in an hour that no one knows except God alone (Matthew 24:36; Acts 1:7). Our only security is being ready.

16. Indeed, I am planning to live in a wonderful house built in the tradition that Jesus is preparing for me in heaven.
Answer:

Thought Questions

1. How long will it be from the time the holy city descends until the wicked are destroyed by fire from heaven?
The Bible says it will be a "little while," or a short time (Revelation 20:3). Sufficient time will be needed for Satan to deceive people to follow his plan and prepare weapons for war. The full length of time is not revealed in the Scriptures.

2. What kind of bodies will people have in God's new kingdom?
The Bible says the redeemed will have bodies like Jesus' (Philippians 3:21). Jesus had a real body of flesh and bones after His resurrection (Luke 24:36-43). The saved will not be spirits. They will be real people, just as Adam and Eve were.

3. Does the Bible say how the lost will behave at Jesus' second coming?
Yes. The Bible says they will cry to the mountains and rocks, "Fall on us, and hide us from the face of Him who sits on the throne and from the wrath of the Lamb; for the great day of His wrath has come, and who is able to stand?" Revelation 6:16, 17. (See also verses 14 and 15.) On the other hand, the righteous will say, "Behold, this is our God; we have waited for Him, and

He will save us; this is the Lord; we have waited for Him; we will be glad and rejoice in His salvation." Isaiah 25:9.

4. When the holy city descends, will the wicked be able to see the righteous inside the city?
Most likely, they will. The Bible says the city will be clear as glass (Revelation 21:11, 18). The righteous will be able to see the wicked (Psalm 37:34), and the wicked will be able to see the righteous (Luke 13:28). This may imply that certain tragic events will take place on the city's walls, with the saved family inside and the lost outside. The grief and trauma caused by this are too much for human language to explain.

5. The Bible says God will wipe away all tears from His people's eyes, and there will be no more death, sorrow, or pain. When will this happen?
From Revelation 21:1-4 and Isaiah 65:17, it seems this will happen after sin and sinners are destroyed. During the final judgment and destruction by fire, God's people will have many reasons for great sorrow.
As they realize that their relatives and friends are lost, and those they loved are destroyed by fire, grief will surely bring tears and sorrow to God's people. But after the fire is extinguished, the Lord will wipe away their tears. Then He will create a new heaven and a new earth for His people, which will bring them joy and fulfillment beyond measure. And sorrow, mourning, crying, and pain will be gone forever.

6. What will be the effect of the destruction of the wicked angels and people on God the Father and His Son?
Surely, they will be comforted and rejoice greatly that the terrible cancer of sin has been removed forever and that the world is safe. They too will have deep sorrow, grieving over the truth that many of those they loved, and for whom Jesus died, chose to cling to sin and reject salvation. Satan himself, once their personal, cheerful friend, and many people in the fire were their beloved children. It will be like the pain of seeing one of your lost children killed. Sin has been a heavy burden on the Father and the Son since its inception. The Father and Son's purpose has been to love people and gently draw them to salvation. Their emotions are expressed in Hosea 11:8, NASB: "How can I give you up, O Ephraim?"
The New American Standard Bible, (C) 1960, 1962, 1963, 1968, 1971, 1972, 1973, 1975, 1977 by Lockman Foundation. Used by permission.

7. What kind of body does Jesus have?
He has a body of flesh and bones. After His resurrection, Jesus appeared to His disciples (Luke 24:36-43) and showed that He was not a spirit or a ghost by saying that He was flesh and bones, letting them feel His body, and eating fish and honey.

Jesus Ascends
Then He led them out as far as Bethany, and as He was speaking to them, He was taken up into heaven (Luke 24:49-51). The angel who appeared to the disciples when Jesus ascended explained that “this same Jesus, who was taken up from you into heaven, will so come in like manner as you saw Him go into heaven.” Acts 1:11.

This Same Jesus Will Return
The angel’s emphasis was that this same Jesus (of flesh and bones) will come again. He will be real, not a spirit, and the resurrected and changed saints will have bodies like His (Philippians 3:21; 1 John 3:2). The heavenly bodies of the saints will also be incorruptible and immortal (1 Corinthians 15:51-55).

God's Health Plan for Free

Lesson 13

Proper medical care is invaluable – but wouldn't it be better if we no longer needed doctors? Did you know that there is a proven way to take many doctors out of business? Take care of your body! Scientists have issued serious warnings about cholesterol, tobacco, stress, obesity, and alcohol. Why risk your health? Hospitals and mental health institutions are filled with people who have ignored these warnings – do you really want to join them? God cares deeply about how you treat your body, and He has provided a free health plan with instructions to follow... the Bible! For the surprising truth about how you can enjoy vibrant health and long life, check out this study guide – but be sure to read it all before jumping to conclusions!

1. Are health principles part of the true religion of the Bible?
"Beloved, I pray that you may prosper in all things and be in health, just as your soul prospers." 3 John 2.
Answer: Yes. In fact, the Bible considers health to be one of the highest priorities. The mind, the spiritual nature, and the body are all interconnected and interdependent. What affects one impacts the others. If our bodies are misused, our minds and spiritual nature cannot be what God intended them to be.

2. Why did God give health laws to His people?
"And the Lord commanded us to observe all these statutes... for our good always, that He might preserve us alive." Deuteronomy 6:24. "So you shall serve the Lord your God, and He will bless your bread and your water; and I will take sickness away from the midst of you." Exodus 23:25.
Answer: God gave health laws because He knows what is best for the human body. Just as car manufacturers put an "owner's manual" in the glove compartment of each new car because they know what is best for their product, God, who created our bodies, also has an "owner's manual." It's called the Holy Bible. Ignoring God's "operating instructions" leads to disease, corrupted thoughts, and wasted lives, just like misusing a car (contrary to the manufacturer's advice) causes major problems. Following God's laws brings "health restoration" (Psalm 67:2) and more abundant life (John 10:10). These health laws act as a barrier or fence against Satan's diseases. God tells us these laws to avoid the traps of Satan.

God's health laws say much about what we eat and drink.

3. Do God's health laws have anything to do with eating and drinking?
"Eat what is good." Isaiah 55:2. "Therefore, whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do all to the glory of God." 1 Corinthians 10:31.

Answer: Yes, Christians even eat and drink differently, all to the glory of God, only using "what is good." If God says something is not to be eaten, there must be a good reason. He is not a harsh dictator, but a loving Father. All of His counsel is for our benefit. The Bible promises this: "No good thing will He withhold from those who walk uprightly." Psalm 84:11. So if God is withholding something, it's because it is not good.

Note: No one can eat their way into heaven. Eating even angel's food will not give people the right to enter paradise. Only accepting Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior can do that. However, disregarding God's health laws can cause someone to lose their way by destroying their judgment and leading them to sin.

God commanded plant-based food for Adam and Eve.

4. What did God give people to eat when He created them and provided a complete meal for them?
"And God said, 'See, I have given you every herb that yields seed... and every tree whose fruit yields seed... to you it shall be for food.'" Genesis 1:29; 2:16.
Answer: The food God provided for people in the beginning was fruit, grains, and nuts. Vegetables were added a little later (Genesis 3:18).

5. What specifically does God mention as unclean and forbidden?
Answer: In Leviticus 11 and Deuteronomy 14, God clearly outlines the following groups as unclean. Read both chapters thoroughly.

A. All animals that do not have cloven hooves and chew the cud (Deuteronomy 14:6).

B. All creatures in the sea that do not have fins and scales. Most fish are clean (Deuteronomy 14:9).

C. All birds of prey, scavengers, and fish-eating birds (Leviticus 11:13-20).

D. Many "creeping things" (or animals without a backbone) are also unclean (Leviticus 11:21-47).

Note: These chapters make it clear that many animals, birds, and sea creatures that people typically eat are clean. However, there are some notable exceptions. According to God's laws, the following animals are unclean and should not be eaten: pigs, squirrels, rabbits, camels, eels, lobsters, clams, crabs, shrimp, oysters, frogs, and many others.

6. But I like pork. Will God destroy me if I eat it?
“For behold, the Lord will come with fire... and with His sword He will judge all flesh; and the slain of the Lord shall be many. Those who sanctify and purify themselves... eating pork, and the abomination, and the mouse, shall be consumed together, says the Lord.” Isaiah 66:15-17.
Answer: This may be shocking, but it is true and must be told. The Bible clearly says that all those who eat “pork,” “mice,” and other unclean things that are “abominations” will be destroyed by fire when the Lord comes. When God says not to eat something, we should obey in every way. Just as eating the forbidden fruit by Adam and Eve, who were sinless, brought sin and death into the world, can anyone say it doesn’t matter when God clearly shows that it does? God says humans will be destroyed because “they chose what I did not like.” Isaiah 66:4.

Noah’s sacrifice of a clean animal (Genesis 8:20) shows that he understood the difference between clean and unclean.

7. But didn’t this law of clean and unclean animals start at Sinai? Wasn’t it only for the Jews, and didn’t it end at the cross?
“And the Lord said to Noah... of every clean animal you shall take seven... and of animals that are unclean, two by two.” Genesis 7:1, 2.
Answer: No! The Bible has sufficient evidence that clean and unclean animals existed from the very beginning of creation. Noah lived long before any Jews existed, but he knew about clean and unclean animals because he brought clean animals into the ark by “sevens” and unclean ones by “twos.” Revelation 18:2 refers to some birds being unclean just before the second coming of Christ.

The death of Christ did not change these health laws, as the Bible states that those who break them will be destroyed when Jesus returns (Isaiah 66:15-17). The Jewish stomach and digestive system are no different from those of the Gentiles. These health laws apply to all people at all times.

The use of intoxicants is clearly condemned in Scripture.

8. Does the Bible prohibit the use of intoxicants?
“Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging; and whoever is deceived by it is not wise.” Proverbs 20:1. “Do not look on the wine when it is red, when it sparkles in the cup, when it swirls around smoothly; at the last it bites like a serpent, and stings like a viper.” Proverbs 23:31-32. “Neither fornicators... nor drunkards... will inherit the kingdom of God.” 1 Corinthians 6:9-10.

Answer: Yes, the Bible clearly prohibits the use of intoxicants.

9. Does the Bible prohibit the use of tobacco?
Answer: Yes, the Bible gives six reasons why tobacco use is displeasing to God:

A. Tobacco use harms health and pollutes the body.
"Do you not know that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have from God, and you are not your own? For you were bought at a price; therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's." 1 Corinthians 3:16-17.

B. Nicotine is a drug that enslaves people.
Romans 6:16 says we become slaves to whatever (or whoever) we yield ourselves to. Tobacco users are slaves to nicotine. Jesus says, "You shall worship the Lord your God, and Him only shall you serve." Matthew 4:10.

C. The habit of tobacco is unclean.
"Come out from among them and be separate, says the Lord, and do not touch what is unclean, and I will receive you." 2 Corinthians 6:17. It's absurd to think of Christ using tobacco in any form, right?

D. Tobacco use wastes money.
"Why do you spend money for what is not bread?" Isaiah 55:2. We are stewards of God's resources, and "it is required in stewards that one be found faithful." 1 Corinthians 4:2.

E. Tobacco use never brings anyone closer to Christ.
"Abstain from fleshly lusts which war against the soul." 1 Peter 2:11. Tobacco use is a lust of the flesh.

F. Tobacco use shortens life.
Recent scientific results confirm the fact that tobacco use often shortens life by a third. This breaks God's commandment against murder (Exodus 20:13). While it is slow murder, it is still murder. One of the best ways to delay your funeral is to quit using tobacco.

10. What are some simple but very important health laws found in the Bible?
Answer: Here are 11 health laws from the Bible:

A. Eat your food regularly, and do not use animal fats or blood.
"Blessed are you when you eat, for you shall be satisfied." Ecclesiastes 10:17. "It shall be a perpetual ordinance... that you shall not eat fat or blood." Leviticus 3:17.

Note: Recent scientific studies have confirmed the truth that most heart attacks are caused by high cholesterol levels in the blood, and the use of "fats" is significantly linked to this high level. It seems the Lord knows what He is talking about, doesn't it?

B. Do not overeat.
"Put a knife to your throat if you are a man given to appetite." Proverbs 23:2. In Luke 21:34, Christ warns specifically against "overeating" in the last days. Overeating is responsible for many degenerative diseases.

C. Do not harbor jealousy or hold grudges.
These evils destroy bodily processes. The Bible says that envy brings "rottenness to the bones." Proverbs 14:30. Christ even commands us to remove any grudge that others might hold against us (Matthew 5:23, 24).

D. Maintain a cheerful and happy disposition.
"A merry heart does good, like medicine." Proverbs 17:22. "For as he thinks in his heart, so is he." Proverbs 23:7. Many diseases people suffer from are the result of mental depression. A cheerful, happy attitude brings health and extends life.

E. Have full faith in the Lord.
"The fear of the Lord leads to life, and he who has it will abide in satisfaction." Proverbs 19:23. Trusting the Lord strengthens health and life. "My son, give attention to my words... For they are life to those who find them, and health to all their flesh." Proverbs 4:20-22. Thus, health comes from obeying God's commandments and trusting Him fully.

F. Balance work and exercise with sleep and rest.
"Six days you shall labor and do all your work; but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord your God; in it you shall do no work." Exodus 20:9, 10. "The sleep of a laboring man is sweet." Ecclesiastes 5:12. "In the sweat of your face you shall eat bread." Genesis 3:19. "It is vain for you to rise up early, to sit up late, to eat the bread of sorrows." Psalms 127:2. "For what has man for all his labor and for the striving of his heart with which he has toiled under the sun?... his heart is not at rest at night. This also is vanity." Ecclesiastes 2:22, 23.

G. Keep your body clean.
"Be clean." Isaiah 52:11.

H. Have moderation in all things.
"Everyone who competes for the prize is temperate in all things." 1 Corinthians 9:25. “Let your gentleness be known to all men.” Philippians 4:5. A Christian will avoid anything harmful and will be moderate in the use of all good things. Habits that harm health break the commandment “You shall not kill.” They kill gradually. They destroy life step by step.

I. Avoid all harmful stimulants.
Here is a surprise for some. Medical science has confirmed that tea, coffee, and soft drinks containing the drug caffeine and other harmful ingredients all damage the human body. None of these are of any nutritional value except for the sugar or cream added, and many of us already consume too much sugar. Stimulants give a dangerous, artificial excitement to the body, like trying to carry a ton in a wheelbarrow. The popularity of these drinks is not because of taste or advertising but because of the caffeine they contain. Many Americans are sick because of their addiction to coffee, tea, and caffeinated soft drinks. But the real tragedy is that men and women seeking peace and strength use tea and coffee as cheap substitutes for prayer and Bible study. This pleases Satan and ruins human lives.

J. Make mealtime a joyful time.
“Let everyone eat and drink, and enjoy the good of all his labor; it is the gift of God.” Ecclesiastes 3:13. Unpleasant events during mealtime hinder digestion. Avoid them.

K. Help those in need.
“Undo the heavy burdens... feed the hungry... bring the poor who are cast out to your house... when you see the naked, cover them... and your health shall spring forth speedily.” Isaiah 58:6-8. This is very clear: when we help the poor and needy, we improve our own health.
Neglecting God’s health laws is a sure way to end up in surgery.

11. What is the serious reminder given to those who neglect God’s laws?
“Do not be deceived, God is not mocked; for whatever a man sows, that he will also reap.” Galatians 6:7.

Answer: The answer is simple and often missed. Those who break God’s laws concerning the care of their bodies will reap broken bodies and destroyed lives, just as someone who misuses their car will face major car troubles. Those who continue to break God’s health laws will eventually be destroyed by the Lord (1 Corinthians 3:16, 17). God’s health laws are not arbitrary. They are natural laws, set laws of the world, just like the law of gravity. Ignoring these laws always brings some bad results. The Bible says, “A curse without a cause shall not come.” Proverbs 26:2. Trouble comes when we ignore the health laws. In His mercy, God tells us what these laws are to avoid disasters from breaking them.

Parents who use drugs often pass on weakness to their children.

12. What is the frightening and sobering truth about health related to our children and grandchildren?
“You shall not eat, that it may go well with you and your children after you.” Deuteronomy 12:25. “I, the Lord your God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children to the third and fourth generations of those who hate Me.” Exodus 20:5.

Answer: God makes it clear that children and grandchildren (to the fourth generation) pay for the folly of parents who neglect God’s health laws.
Children and grandchildren inherit weakened, disease-ridden bodies when parents disregard God’s laws in their lives. Is this what you want for your beloved children and grandchildren?
Outdoor exercise will help prepare us for heaven.

13. What does the word of God reveal as the most frightening and sorrowful thing?
“There shall by no means enter it anything that defiles.” Revelation 21:27. “But as for those whose hearts go after their detestable things and their abominations, I will recompense their deeds on their own heads, says the Lord God.” Ezekiel 11:21.

Answer: Nothing defiled or unclean will be allowed into the kingdom of God. All impure habits defile a person. The use of unclean food defiles a person (Daniel 1:8). It is terrifying but true. Choosing “their own ways” and those that God “does not delight in” will cost people their eternal salvation (Isaiah 66:3, 4, 15-17).
True, living Christians will want to bring their lives into harmony with God’s health laws.

14. What should every sincere Christian strive to do immediately?
“And let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit.” 2 Corinthians 7:1. “Everyone who has this hope in him purifies himself, just as He is pure.” 1 John 3:3. “If you love Me, keep My commandments.” John 14:15.

Answer: Faithful Christians will bring their lives into harmony with God’s principles immediately, because they love Him. They know His laws greatly increase their joy and protect them from the diseases of Satan (Acts 10:38). God’s counsel and laws are always for our benefit, just as parents’ counsel and laws are most beneficial for their children. And once we know better,

God holds us accountable. “To him who knows to do good and does not do it, to him it is sin.” James 4:17.
Bad habits that bind us can be quickly broken by Jesus.

15. But I am worried because some of my bad habits are so tightly bound. What can I do?
“But as many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God.” John 1:12. “I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me.” Philippians 4:13.

Answer: Take all these habits to Christ and lay them at His feet. He will gladly give you a new heart and the power you need to break any bad habit and become a son or daughter of God (Ezekiel 11:18, 19). It is exciting and uplifting to know that “with God all things are possible.” Mark 10:27. And Jesus says, “The one who comes to Me I will by no means cast out.” John 6:37. Jesus is ready to break the chains that bind us. He desires to set us free, and He will, if only we allow Him. Our worries, bad habits, nervous tensions, and fears will disappear when we obey His command. He says, “These things I have spoken to you... that your joy may be full.” John 15:11. Satan argues that freedom is found in disobedience, but this is a lie (John 8:44).
Heaven will have no sickness or the sick. Its inhabitants will all follow God’s laws of life.

16. What exciting promises are given about God’s new kingdom?
“And the inhabitant will not say, ‘I am sick.’” Isaiah 33:24. “There shall be no more death, nor sorrow, nor crying, nor pain shall be no more.” Revelation 21:4. “They shall mount up with wings like eagles; they shall run and not be weary; they shall walk and not faint.” Isaiah 40:31.
Answer: Citizens of God’s new kingdom will obey His health laws, and there will be no sickness or the sick. They will be blessed with eternal strength and youth and will live with God in great joy and happiness forever.

17. Since healthful living is part of Bible religion, it is my plan to follow God’s health principles.

Questions on Thought:

1. 1 Timothy 4:4 says, “For every creature of God is good, and nothing is to be rejected.” Can you explain this?
This scripture (verse 3) refers to the “meats which God has created to be received with thanksgiving” by His people. These meats, as we have already discovered, are the clean animals listed in Leviticus 11 and Deuteronomy 14.

Verse 4 clarifies that all of God's creatures are good and not to be rejected, provided they are among those created to be "received with thanksgiving" (clean animals). Verse 5 explains why these animals (or foods) are acceptable: they are "sanctified" by the Word of God, which says they are clean, and by "prayer" of blessing, which is offered before meals. However, remember that God will destroy people who try to "purify" themselves by eating unclean foods (Isaiah 66:17).

2. Matthew 15:11 says, "Not that which goes into the mouth defiles a man, but that which comes out." Can you explain this?
The teaching in Matthew 15:1-20 concerns eating without first washing hands (verse 2). The issue is not eating but washing. The scribes taught that eating any food without washing in a specific manner would defile the eater. Jesus said that ritual washing was meaningless. In verse 19, He listed certain evils—murder, adultery, theft, etc. He concluded, "These are the things which defile a man; but to eat with unwashen hands defileth not a man" (verse 20).

3. But didn't Jesus declare all animals clean in Peter's vision, as recorded in Acts 10?
No! In fact, the subject of this vision is not animals, but people. God gave Peter this vision to show him that people from other nations were not unclean, as the Jews had believed. God had instructed Cornelius, a Gentile, to send men to visit Peter. But Peter would have refused to see them unless God had given him this vision, because Jewish law prohibited receiving Gentiles (verse 28). But when the men arrived, Peter welcomed them, explaining that ordinarily he would not do so, but "God hath showed me that I should not call any man common or unclean" (verse 28). In the next chapter (Acts 11), church members rebuked Peter for speaking with these Gentiles. So, Peter explained the entire story of his vision and its meaning. Acts 11:18 says, "When they heard these things, they held their peace, and glorified God, saying, Then hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life."

4. Why did God create pigs if not to eat?
He created them for the same purpose as scavengers—as cleaners of waste. And pigs serve this purpose well.

5. Romans 14:3, 14, 20 says, "Let not him that eateth despise him that eateth not...There is nothing unclean of itself...All things indeed are pure." Can you explain this?
Verses 3 to 6 discuss the disagreement between those who eat certain foods and those who do not. This passage does not say that it is right or wrong to eat, but rather advises not to judge others. Instead, let God be the judge (verses 4, 10-12). Verses 14 and 20 refer to foods that were first offered to idols (and thus were considered defiled ceremonially)—not clean meats and unclean animals from Leviticus 11. (See 1 Corinthians 8:1, 4, 10, 13). The argument here is that no food is "unclean" or "defiled" just because it was offered to idols, as idols are "nothing in the world" (1 Corinthians 8:4). But if a person's conscience is troubled by eating such food, they should avoid it. Even if it only offends a brother, they should still refrain.

6. Are the health laws about eating and drinking important for me personally? If I love the Lord, isn't that enough?
It's a matter of life and death because these laws involve obedience. "He became the author of eternal salvation to all them that obey Him" (Hebrews 5:9). "Not everyone that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven" (Matthew 7:21). Love for Christ is involved here because He says, "If ye love me, keep my commandments" (John 14:15). When we truly love the Lord, we will obey Him joyfully without excuses or evasion. This is a major test.

Is Obedience Valid?

Lesson 14

People may feel they can avoid breaking traffic laws or cheating on their taxes, but God and His laws work in a much different way. God sees everything we do, hears everything we say, and cares deeply about how we act. Although the Lord offers forgiveness for our sins, there are still consequences for breaking God's laws. Surprisingly, some Christians say that any attempt to obey God's laws is equivalent to keeping the law. But Jesus said that if you truly love God, you will do what He asks of you. So, is obedience valid? Take time to carefully read this guide... your eternal outcomes are at stake!

God knows you and cares about you personally.

1. Does God truly see and care about me personally?
"You are the God who sees me." Genesis 16:13.
"O Lord, you have searched me and known me. You know when I sit down and when I rise up; you understand my thought from afar. You search out my path and my lying down, and are acquainted with all my ways. Even before a word is on my tongue, behold, O Lord, you know it altogether." Psalm 139:1-4.

“But even the very hairs of your head are all numbered.” Luke 12:7.

Answer: Yes, God knows each one of us (everyone in the world) better than we know ourselves. He is personally interested in every human being and carefully observes everything we do. There is no word, thought, or action that is hidden from Him.

Seek God’s will in the Bible. It is your only safety.

2. Can I be saved in His kingdom without obeying His Word as found in the Holy Bible?
“Not everyone who says to Me, ‘Lord, Lord,’ will enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of My Father in heaven.” Matthew 7:21.
“If you want to enter life, keep the commandments.” Matthew 19:17.
“And having been made perfect, He became the source of eternal salvation to all who obey Him.” Hebrews 5:9.

Answer: No! The Scriptures are very clear on this matter. Salvation and entry into the kingdom of heaven are for those who obey the commands of the Lord. God does not promise eternal life to those who merely confess faith, are members of the church, or are baptized, but to those who do His will as revealed in the Scriptures. Certainly, this obedience is possible only through Christ (Acts 4:12).
There is only one way to heaven. The Bible is the map that shows us the way.

3. Why does God require obedience? Why must it be done?
“Because narrow is the gate and difficult is the way which leads to life, and there are few who find it.” Matthew 7:14.
“But he who sins against me wrongs his own soul; all those who hate me love death.” Proverbs 8:36.
“The Lord commanded us to observe all these statutes, to fear the Lord our God, for our good always, that He might preserve us alive.” Deuteronomy 6:24.

Answer: Because there is only one narrow way that leads to the fear of God, and thus to His kingdom. All other paths do not lead to the same place. The Bible is the map and the complete guidebook with instructions, warnings, and information on how to reach that kingdom safely. Ignoring any part of it leads us away from God and His kingdom. God’s world is a world of law and order. Natural, moral, and spiritual laws are involved. Breaking any of these laws always has lasting consequences.
If the Bible had not been given, people would eventually (through trial and error) discover that the main principles of the Bible are true and real. These principles are written into our nervous systems, glands, and minds. Ignoring them leads to broken nerves, disease, and a lack of happiness in all forms. Therefore, the words of the Bible are not just advice we can choose to accept or ignore without consequence. The Bible outlines these consequences and explains how to avoid them. A person cannot live however they like and still be like God, just as a builder cannot ignore the blueprints of a house without encountering problems. This is why God asks everyone to follow the plan of the Holy Scriptures. There is no other way to be like Him and thus fit for a place in His kingdom. And there is no other way to find true happiness.

Sin can only be safely destroyed by God after all people understand and confess that He is righteous, loving, and merciful.

4. Why does God allow disobedience to continue? Why does He not destroy sin and sinners now?
“Now Enoch, the seventh from Adam, prophesied about these men also, saying, ‘Behold, the Lord comes with ten thousands of His saints to execute judgment on all, to convict all who are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds which they have committed in an ungodly way, and of all the harsh things which ungodly sinners have spoken against Him.’” Jude 14, 15.
“As I live, says the Lord, every knee shall bow to Me, and every tongue shall confess to God.” Romans 14:11.

Answer: God allows disobedience and sin to continue until all people everywhere are fully convinced of God’s righteousness, love, and mercy. Eventually, all will recognize that God, in requiring obedience, is not trying to impose His will upon us but is trying to prevent us from hurting ourselves and destroying ourselves. The problem of sin will not be solved until even the sinners with contempt and hardness of heart are convinced of God’s love and confess that He is righteous. It may take a great or even worse disaster to convince others, but the terrible consequences of sinful lives will eventually persuade all that God is righteous and true.
Only then, and only then, can sin and disobedience be safely ended by the Lord.
All who choose not to follow Christ, knowing the truth, will eventually be destroyed by the sin they love.

5. Will God really destroy the disobedient?
“For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but cast them down to hell and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved for judgment.” 2 Peter 2:4.
“The Lord preserves all who love Him, but all the wicked He will destroy.” Psalm 145:20.
“...in flaming fire taking vengeance on those who do not know God, and on those who do not obey the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ." 2 Thessalonians 1:8.

Answer: There is no question about it. The rebellious, including Satan and his fallen angels, will be destroyed. This being true, it is certainly the right time to stop being confused about what is right and wrong. It is better for people to stop allowing their foolish thoughts and pride to lead them and to focus on God's great book. And better to do it now — there is not much time left! God promises that if I seek His Word in truth and follow it sincerely, I will not end up in error.

6. I want to obey all of God's laws. How can I be sure I will not neglect one?
"Ask, and it will be given to you; seek, and you will find." Matthew 7:7.
"Be diligent to present yourself approved to God, a worker who does not need to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." 2 Timothy 2:15.
"If anyone wants to do His will, he shall know concerning the doctrine, whether it is from God or whether I speak on My own authority." John 7:17.
"Walk while you have the light, lest darkness overtake you." John 12:35.
"As soon as they hear of me, they will obey me." Psalm 18:44.

Answer: God leaves no room for doubt. He promises to keep me from error and guide me safely into all truth if I: (1) pray diligently for guidance, (2) study God's Word sincerely, and (3) follow the truth as soon as it is revealed to me.
Playing the fool in spiritual matters brings disaster and destruction.

7. Does God hold me guilty for failing to obey a truth in the Bible that I have never had the chance to learn?
"If you were blind, you would have no sin; but now you say, 'We see,' therefore your sin remains." John 9:41.
"To him who knows to do good and does not do it, to him it is sin." James 4:17.
"My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge. Because you have rejected knowledge, I also will reject you." Hosea 4:6.
"Seek, and you will find." Matthew 7:7.

Answer: If I have not had the opportunity to learn a certain truth from the Bible, God does not hold me guilty. But the Bible teaches that I am responsible to God for all the light (knowledge of righteousness) I have and all that I can obtain! Many people who reject or ignore reading, seeking, learning, and listening will be destroyed by God because "they have rejected knowledge." Playing the fool in these very important matters is dangerous. It is my responsibility to diligently seek the truth.

Only two out of the thousands of Israelites who left Egypt fully followed God and were able to enter the promised land of Canaan.

8. But doesn't God not care much about obedience to every little thing and detail?
"Surely none of the men who came up from Egypt, from twenty years old and above, shall see the land which I swore to give to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, because they have not wholly followed Me, except Caleb... and Joshua." Numbers 32:11, 12.
"Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God." Matthew 4:4.
"You are My friends if you do whatever I command you." John 15:14.

Answer: Indeed, He is specific. God's people in the Old Testament learned this the hard way. Those who left Egypt for the promised land of Canaan numbered 603,550. Of this group, only two (Caleb and Joshua) followed the Lord fully, and they alone entered Canaan. The other 603,548 died in the wilderness. Jesus says we must live by "every word" of the Bible. Not one word is too many or too few. All of them are important. Unless I follow the light as soon as it is revealed, it eventually turns into darkness.

9. When I discover new truth, I wait until all obstacles are removed before embracing it. This is better, right?
"Walk while you have the light, lest darkness overtake you." John 12:35. "I made haste, and did not delay to keep Your commandments." Psalm 119:60. "But seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added to you." Matthew 6:33. "As soon as they hear of me, they obey." Psalm 18:44.

Answer: No, once you understand the truth of the Bible, it is not better to wait. In fact, delaying is a very dangerous trap of the devil. It may seem harmless to wait, but the Bible teaches that if one does not take immediate action upon the light, it quickly turns into darkness. Obedience obstacles are not removed when we stand still and wait; rather, they usually grow larger. Man tells God, "Clear the way, and I will move forward." But God's way is the complete opposite. He says, "Move forward, and I will clear the way."
Satan invented the lie that obedience is impossible.

10. But isn't complete obedience impossible for humans?
"With God all things are possible." Matthew 19:26. "I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me." Philippians 4:13. "But thanks be to God, who always leads us in triumph in Christ." 2 Corinthians 2:14. "He who abides in Me, and I in him, bears much fruit; for without Me you can do nothing." John 15:5. “If you are willing and obedient, you shall eat the good of the land.” Isaiah 1:19.

Answer: None of us can obey on our own power, but through Christ, we can and must. Satan, to make God’s commandments seem foolish, invented the lie that obedience is impossible.

11. What will happen to a person who deliberately and knowingly continues in disobedience?
“For if we sin willfully after we have received the knowledge of the truth, there no longer remains a sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful expectation of judgment, and fiery indignation which will devour the adversaries.” Hebrews 10:26, 27. “Walk while you have the light, lest darkness overtake you; he who walks in darkness does not know where he is going.” John 12:35.

Answer: The Bible leaves no room for doubt. The answer is astonishing and alarming, but it is true. When one knowingly rejects the light and continues in disobedience, that light eventually fades, leaving them in great darkness. The one who rejects the truth will receive “strong delusion” to believe that a lie is the truth (2 Thessalonians 2:11). When this happens, they are lost from that moment.

12. I thought love was more important than obedience. Isn’t that right?
“Jesus answered and said, ‘If anyone loves Me, he will keep My word; and My Father will love him, and We will come to him and make Our home with him. He who does not love Me does not keep My words.’” John 14:23, 24. “For this is the love of God, that we keep His commandments; and His commandments are not burdensome.” 1 John 5:3.

Answer: No, not at all! In fact, the Bible teaches that true love for God cannot exist without obedience. Nor can one be truly obedient without love. No child will obey their parents fully unless they love them, and they will not love them if they do not obey. True love and obedience are like Siamese twins. When separated, they die.

13. But I always thought true freedom in Christ freed me from obedience. Isn’t that right?
“If you abide in My word, you are My disciples indeed. And you shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.” “Whoever commits sin is a slave of sin.” John 8:31, 32, 34. “But God be thanked that though you were slaves of sin, yet you obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine to which you were delivered. And having been set free from sin, you became slaves of righteousness.” Romans 6:17, 18. “So shall I keep Your law continually, forever and ever. And I will walk at liberty, for I seek Your precepts." Psalm 119:44, 45.

Answer: No. True freedom comes only through obedience. It means freedom "from sin" (Romans 6:18), or disobedience, which is breaking God's law (1 John 3:4). Citizens who obey the law are free. Rebels are caught and lose their freedom. Freedom without obedience is like the false freedom of a balloon floating in the air or a car without a driver. It leads to confusion and chaos. True Christian freedom means freedom from disobedience. Disobedience always harms a person and leads to the cruel bondage of Satan.

14. When I believe that God requires something, must I obey even if I don't understand why He requires it?
"I implore you, obey the voice of the Lord... so it shall be well with you, and your soul shall live." Jeremiah 38:20. "He who trusts in his own heart is a fool." Proverbs 28:26. "It is better to trust in the Lord than to put confidence in man." Psalm 118:8. "For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts." Isaiah 55:9. "How unsearchable are His judgments, and His ways past finding out! For who has known the mind of the Lord?" Romans 11:33, 34. "I will lead the blind by a way they did not know." Isaiah 42:16. "You will show me the path of life." Psalm 16:11.

Answer: Certainly! We must praise God for having the wisdom to require certain things that we may not fully understand. Good children obey their parents even when the reasons for their commands are not clear. Correct faith and trust in God will make us believe that He knows what is best for us and will never lead us down a wrong path. It is foolish for us, in our ignorance, to question God's guidance, even when we do not fully understand His reasons.

15. Who is really responsible for disobedience, and why?
"Whoever commits sin is of the devil; for the devil has sinned from the beginning." "In this the children of God and the children of the devil are manifest: whoever does not practice righteousness is not of God." 1 John 3:8, 10. "So the devil, who deceives the whole world..." Revelation 12:9.

Answer: The devil is involved. He knows that disobedience is sin, and that sin brings misery, separation from God, and ultimately destruction. With intense hatred, he works hard to lead everyone into rebellion. You are involved. You must face the truth and make a decision. Disobedience leads to being lost, or accepting Christ, obeying Him, and being saved. Your choice regarding obedience is a choice about Christ. You cannot separate Him from the truth, for He says, "I am... the truth." John 14:6. "Choose for yourselves this day whom you will serve." Joshua 24:15.

16. What is the glorious promise about the greatest miracle that the Bible gives to God's children?
"Being confident of this very thing, that He who has begun a good work in you will complete it until the day of Jesus Christ." Philippians 1:6.

Answer: Praise God! He promises that just as He performed the miracle of bringing us to be born again, He will continue to perform the miracles necessary in our lives (when we follow Him joyfully) until we are safely in His kingdom.

17. It brings me joy to know that Jesus not only gives the new birth to those who accept and follow Him, but also continues to perform the necessary miracles in their lives until they are safely in His kingdom. I want to start obeying in love and follow Jesus completely from this moment on.

Thought Questions

1. Is there anyone who will be lost but truly believes they are saved? Yes! Matthew 7:21-23 clearly shows that many who prophesy, cast out demons, and perform many wonders in Jesus' name will be lost but will think they are saved. Jesus said they are lost because they did not do "the will of My Father who is in heaven" (verse 21). Those who refuse to obey God will end up believing a lie (2 Thessalonians 2:11, 12) and thus think they are saved when, in fact, they are lost.

2. Since there is only one right way, what will happen to people who are sincere and truly believe they are right when they are wrong? Jesus says He will call them to His way of truth, and His true sheep will hear and follow (John 10:16, 27).

3. Is faithfulness and zeal enough? No! We must also be right. The Apostle Paul was faithful and zealous when he persecuted Christians before his conversion, but he was also wrong (Acts 22:3, 4; 26:9-11).

4. Is it scientifically impossible for God to see everyone at the same time? It was the same with Noah's Flood (there was no rain before it began—Genesis 2:5, 6), but it happened anyway. Using "scientific" reasons to disobey is a favorite excuse of those referred to in Romans 1:22, who "professing to be wise, they became fools."

5. What will happen to people who have not received the light? The Bible says that everyone has received some light. “That was the true Light which gives light to every man coming into the world” (John 1:9). Everyone will be judged based on how they follow the light available to them. Even pagans have some light and follow the law, according to Romans 2:14, 15.

6. I have asked God for a sign if He wants me to obey. Is this safe? No! Jesus said, “An evil and adulterous generation seeks after a sign” (Matthew 12:39). All teachings should be examined by the Bible, and if they align with the Word of God, they should be accepted and followed (Isaiah 8:20; 2 Timothy 2:15). People who will not accept the clear teachings of the Bible would not be convinced by a sign either. As Jesus said, “If they do not hear Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded though one rise from the dead” (Luke 16:31).

7. Hebrews 10:26, 27 seems to indicate that if someone sins deliberately after knowing better, they are lost. Is this correct? No! Anyone can confess such a sin and be forgiven. The Bible does not refer to one act or sin, but to continuing in stubborn sin and refusing to submit to Christ after knowing better. Such an act grieves the Holy Spirit (Ephesians 4:30) and hardens a person’s heart until they “have past feeling” (Ephesians 4:19) and are lost. The Bible says, “Keep back Your servant from presumptuous sins; Let them not have dominion over me” (Psalm 19:13).

8. Must a person be educated to understand the Bible? No! Even simple people can understand if they are surrendered to the Lord (Psalm 19:7; 119:130; Matthew 11:25).

Who is the Antichrist?

Scripture: Daniel 7:7-8, Daniel 7:24-25, Revelation 13:18
Lesson 15

Who or what is the Antichrist? An evil alliance, or an evil person? Some say his appearance is still in the future. Others say he appeared long ago in ancient Rome. But the Bible shows that he is alive today! Biblical prophecy teaches that this power of the Antichrist will play a crucial role in the final events of world history. Do you know who he is? Are you sure? You need to be, for you cannot understand the events of the end times until you understand this evil power. Be ready for one of the most fascinating Study Guides yet!

This Study Guide, based on Daniel chapter 7, clearly identifies the Antichrist. But it is only an introduction. The following lessons will reveal more details about some of his activities that will have a global impact. What you discover today may shock or sadden you, but please remember that the prophecy of Daniel 7 comes from Jesus, who loves you. Pray for God's guidance as you enter this urgent study. Be sure to read Daniel 7 before reading this guide.

In prophecy, God uses animals to symbolize nations.

1. As the chapter begins, Daniel sees four beasts rising from the sea. In prophecy, what does a beast represent? What does the sea represent?
"The fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom upon the earth." Daniel 7:23.
"The waters… are peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues." Revelation 17:15.

Answer: Beasts represent kingdoms or nations. Waters represent a great multitude of people or large numbers of people.

The lion beast in Daniel 7 represents the Babylonian kingdom.

2. The four beasts of Daniel 7 represent four world empires (verses 17, 18). Babylon, the first empire (Daniel 2:38, 39), is represented as a lion in Daniel 7:4. (See also Jeremiah 4:7; 50:17, 43, 44, where Babylon is compared to a lion elsewhere.) What do "eagle's wings" mean? What do the "four winds" in verse 2 represent?
"The Lord shall bring a nation against thee… as swift as the eagle flieth." Deuteronomy 28:49.
"Thus saith the Lord of hosts, behold, an evil shall go forth from nation to nation… and those slain of the Lord shall be at that day from one end of the earth even to the other end of the earth." Jeremiah 25:32, 33.

Answer: The eagle's wings represent swiftness. (See also Jeremiah 4:13; Habakkuk 1:6-9.) The winds represent strife, violence, and destruction. (See also Revelation 7:1-3.)

The bear with three ribs in its mouth represents the Medo-Persian empire.

3. Which kingdom does the bear represent (Daniel 7:5)? What do the three ribs in its mouth represent?

Answer: Read Daniel 8. Notice that the beasts in chapter 8 are similar to those in chapter 7. Daniel 8:20 specifically mentions the Medes and Persians as the kingdom preceding the male goat, or Greece, in verse 21. It is the second world empire, a power similar to the bear in Daniel 7. This kingdom was made up of two people groups.
The Medes came first (represented in Daniel 7:5 by the bear rising on one side), but the Persians eventually became more powerful (represented in Daniel 8:3 by the second horn of the ram, which grew "higher," or longer). The three ribs represent the three major kingdoms conquered by the Medes and Persians:
Lydia, Babylon, and Egypt.

The leopard beast in Daniel 7 represents the Greek empire.

4. Greece, the third kingdom (Daniel 8:21), is represented by a leopard with four wings and four heads (Daniel 7:6). What do the four heads represent? What do the four wings represent?

Answer: The four heads represent the four kingdoms into which Alexander the Great's empire was divided after his death. The four generals who led those areas were: Cassander, Lysimachus, Ptolemy, and Seleucus. The four wings (instead of two like the lion) represent amazing speed, which was true of Alexander's conquests (Jeremiah 4:11-13).

The Roman world empire is symbolized by the terrifying beast in Daniel 7.

5. The Roman Empire, the fourth world empire, is represented by a dreadful beast with iron teeth and ten horns (Daniel 7:7). What do the horns represent?
Answer: The ten horns represent ten kings or kingdoms into which pagan Rome eventually divided (Daniel 7:24). (These ten kingdoms correspond to the ten toes of the image described in Daniel 2:41-44.) The barbarian tribes that were roaming and invading the Roman empire eventually settled in the empire's land, establishing their nations.

Seven of these tribes grew into the modern countries of Western Europe, while three were uprooted and destroyed. The next section will discuss those kingdoms that were uprooted.
Visigoths - Spain
Anglo-Saxons - England
Franks - France
Alamanni - Germany
Burgundians - Switzerland
Lombards - Italy
Suevi - Portugal
Heruli - Ostrogoths
Roots - Rooted Destructive

The little horn of Daniel 7:8 represents the Antichrist.

6. What follows in Daniel 7's prophecy?
"I considered the horns, and, behold, there came up among them another little horn, before whom there were three of the first horns plucked up by the roots; and, behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of man, and a mouth speaking great things." Daniel 7:8.

Answer: The power of the "little horn" appears next. We must identify it carefully because God spends more time explaining it than the four other kingdoms combined. Why? Because its biblical characteristics identify it as the Antichrist in both prophecy and history. There must be no mistake in making this identification.

The Bible says the Antichrist would persecute God's people.

7. Are there clear identifying points?
Answer: Yes, God gives us nine characteristics of the Antichrist in Daniel 7 to be sure of his identity. And while some may find this truth bitter, we must be honest enough to accept it as His revealed will. Now, let's discover the nine things Jesus is:
A. The "little horn" or kingdom "arising among them," the ten horns of Western Europe (Daniel 7:8). So, it would be a small kingdom somewhere in Western Europe.
B. It would have a great leader who could speak for it (Daniel 7:8).
C. It would uproot or pluck up three kingdoms (Daniel 7:8).
D. It would be "diverse" or different from the other ten kingdoms (Daniel 7:24).
E. It would make war and "wear out" or persecute the saints (Daniel 7:21, 25).

F. It would arise in the pagan Roman empire, the fourth world empire (Daniel 7:7, 8).
G. God's people (the saints) "would be given into his hand for a time and times and the dividing of time" (Daniel 7:25).
H. It would speak "great words against" or blaspheme God (Daniel 7:25). In Revelation 13:5, the Bible says this same power speaks "great and blasphemous things."
I. It would "think to change times and laws…" Daniel 7:25.

Forget not all the matters of identification; these come directly from the Bible. They are not the opinions of some humans or rumors. Historians can quickly tell you which power is being described. These points may fit only one power, the Papacy. But to be certain, let us carefully examine all nine points, one by one. There must be no room left for doubt.

The Papacy clearly fits all nine identification marks. 8. Does the Papacy fit these things? Answer: Yes, it fits each point perfectly. See items A to H below.

A. "It came up among the ten kingdoms of Western Europe." The geographical area of Papal authority was in Rome, Italy, the heart of Western Europe.

B. It would have a man at its head who would speak for it. The Papacy meets this identification mark because there is one great man (the pope) who speaks on its behalf.

C. It would uproot or destroy three kingdoms. The monarchs of Western Europe were largely Catholic and supported the Papacy in its growth and power. However, three Arian kingdoms, namely the Vandals, Heruli, and Ostrogoths, did not support the Papacy. Thus, the Catholic monarchs decided that they must be subdued or destroyed. This is how Dr. Mervyn Maxwell, a theologian and historian, described the outcome in the book God Cares, page 129:

"The Catholic king Zeno (474-491) made an agreement with the Ostrogoths in 487, which led to the extermination of the Arian Herul kingdom in 493. And Catholic Emperor Justinian (527-565) destroyed the Arian Vandals in 534 and largely broke the power of the Arian Ostrogoths in 538. Thus, the three horns of Daniel—the Heruls, Vandals, and Ostrogoths—were uprooted by their roots." It is not hard to recognize that the Papacy fits this stage.

D. It would be "different" or distinct from the other kingdoms. The Papacy clearly fits this description as well. It arose as a religious power and was completely different from the worldly nature of the other ten kingdoms.

E. It would make war with the saints and persecute them. That the church persecuted is a well-known fact. The Papacy openly admits to having done so. There is much evidence to support this. Even conservative historians claim that the church may have destroyed at least 50 million people due to religious beliefs. We will quote here from two sources:

1. “That the Roman Church has shed more innocent blood than any other institution which has ever existed among mankind is not questioned by any Protestant who has a sufficient knowledge of history.”

The History of the Inquisition of Spain, by D. Ivan Antonio Llorente, gives the following figures from the Spanish Inquisition alone:

31,912 people were condemned and perished by burning.

241,450 people were condemned to severe punishment.

F. It would arise in the fourth kingdom of iron—the pagan Roman empire. We quote two authorities on this matter:

1. “The Catholic Church was little more than the Roman Empire baptized... the capital of the former Roman Empire became the capital of the Christian Empire. The office of Pontifex Maximus continued in that of the pope.”

2. “Anything Roman that the pagans and Arians left... [was brought] under the protection of the Bishop of Rome, who was the leading figure after the disappearance of the emperor. The Roman Church thus quietly pushed itself into the place of the Roman World Empire, which was its true continuation.”

Therefore, once again, this thing fits the Papacy.

G. The people of God (the saints) “would be handed over to it” for “a time, times, and half a time.” Daniel 7:25.

Several things need clarification regarding this matter:

1. “Time” is a year, “times” are two years, and “half a time” is half a year. The Amplified Bible translates it as: “three and a half years.”

2. This time period is mentioned seven times (Daniel 7:25, 12:7; Revelation 11:2, 3; 12:6, 14; 13:5) in the books of Daniel and Revelation: three times as “time, times, and half a time,” twice as 42 months, and twice as 1,260 days. According to the 30-day calendar used by the Jews, all these periods represent the same amount of time:

3 ½ years = 42 months = 1,260 days.

3. One prophetic day equals one literal year (Ezekiel 4:6, Numbers 14:34).

4. Thus, the little horn (Antichrist) was to have power over the saints for 1,260 prophetic days, or 1,260 literal years.

5. The Papacy's reign began in 538 AD, the final year when the last of the three Arian kingdoms opposing it was uprooted. Its reign continued until 1798, when Napoleon's general, Berthier, took the pope prisoner with the hope of destroying Pope Pius VI and the political, worldly power of the Papacy. This time period is the complete fulfillment of the prophecy of 1,260 years. That blow was a deadly wound to the Papacy, but the wound began to heal and continues to heal today.

6. This period of suffering is also referred to in Matthew 24:21 as the worst time of persecution that the people of God would face. Verse 22 tells us it was so painful that no one would have been saved if God had not shortened it. But God shortened it. That persecution ended long before the pope was taken prisoner in 1798. It is clear to see that this, too, aligns with the Papacy.

H. It would speak "great words of blasphemy" against the Most High [God]. Blasphemy has two meanings in Scripture:

1. Claiming to forgive sins (Luke 5:21).

2. Claiming to be God (John 10:33).

Does this point fit the Papacy? Yes!

Let us first look at the evidence of claiming to forgive sins: "Does the priest really forgive sins, or does he merely declare them forgiven? Christ."

The Papacy undermines Jesus by introducing the practice of confessing to a worldly priest, thus superseding Jesus, our High Priest (Hebrews 3:1, 8:1, 2) and the only Mediator (1 Timothy 2:5).

Next, consider the evidence of claiming to be God: "We [the popes] hold upon this earth the place of Almighty God."

Here is another: "The pope is not only the representative of Jesus Christ, but he is Jesus Christ Himself, hidden under the veil of flesh."

It is clear that this, too, fits the Papacy.

I. It would think to "change times and laws." In the next Study Guide, we will deal with the "times" of this point. It is a major topic and requires separate consideration. But what about changing "laws"? The Amplified Bible translates "laws" as "commandments." The reference is to changing God's law. Certainly, no one can truly change it, but has the Papacy tried to do so? The answer is "yes."

In its catechisms, the Papacy has removed the second commandment against idolatry and shortened the fourth commandment from 94 words to eight, splitting the tenth commandment into two separate commands. (Check this for yourself. Compare the Ten Commandments in any Catholic catechism with God's list in Exodus 20:3-17).

There is no doubt that the authority of the little horn in Daniel 7 (the Antichrist) is the Papacy. No other institution fits these nine points. Unfortunately, this is not new teaching. Every Reformist, without exception, spoke of the Papacy as the Antichrist.

Words of Concern and Distress

To avoid others thinking that we are attacking fellow Christians by recognizing this authority with little horns, please remember that this prophecy targets a certain system and not individual people. There are faithful, God-fearing Christians in all churches, including the Catholic faith. Daniel 7 is a message of judgment and correction directed at a major religious institution that aligned itself with paganism, much like many other churches that arose after it.

The Prophecy Unveils Errors of All Faiths Another prophecy reveals the errors in Protestant and Jewish beliefs. God has true people in all religions. His true people (regardless of their faith) will always humbly accept correction from the Lord and will not close their ears and hearts against Him for self-preservation. We should be deeply grateful that the Word of God speaks truthfully and impartially on every subject.

8. R. Allen Anderson, Unfolding the Revelation, p. 137. An angel told Daniel that this prophecy would be sealed until 1798, the last time.

9. Did Daniel not say to seal his book until "the time of the end"? (Daniel 12:4) When would the prophecy of Daniel be revealed for us to understand? Answer: In Daniel 12:4, the prophet was told to seal parts of the book until "the time of the end." In verse 6, an angel's voice asked, "How long until the end of these wonders?" Verse 7 says, "It will be for a time, times, and half a time." The angel assured Daniel that the part of the book concerning the prophecy of the last days would be opened after the end of the 1260-year period of papal rule, which, as we learned earlier in this Study Guide, ended in 1798. Thus, the time of the end began in 1798. Indeed, the book of Daniel holds important messages from heaven for us today. We must understand them. All religious teachings must be compared to the Scriptures to know their accuracy.

10. Many Christians today are greatly misled about the Antichrist. Believing lies about the Antichrist can easily deceive someone and lead them astray. What should one do when new Bible teachings emerge? "These were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the scriptures daily, whether those things were so." Acts 17:11. Answer: When a new Bible doctrine is found, the only safe way is to carefully compare it with the Scriptures to see if it aligns with the Word of God.

11. I am willing to follow wherever Jesus leads, even if it may be painful? Final Remarks Many important prophecies from the books of Daniel and Revelation will be revealed in the True Amazing Things Study Guides. God has given these prophecies for:

A. Revealing the final events of the world.

B. Identifying participants in the final stage of the battle between Jesus and Satan.

C. Clearly exposing Satan's wicked plans to ensnare and destroy us all.

D. Showing the safety and love of God's judgment, which will confirm His saints!

E. Exalting Jesus, His salvation, love, power, mercy, and righteousness.

Key Participants Will Appear Frequently The key participants in the final battle between Jesus and Satan will appear frequently in this prophecy. These include: Satan, Jesus, America, the papacy, Protestantism, and communicating with spirits. Jesus repeats and expands His messages from the prophets to ensure that His warnings of love and protection come with clarity and certainty. Answer:

Thought Questions

1. I've always thought the Antichrist was a person rather than an organization. Am I wrong? The Antichrist is an organization—the papacy. The words "eyes of man" in Daniel 7:8, however, point to a leader. Revelation 13:18 speaks of a man with a certain number involved. In Daniel chapter 8, Greece is represented by a goat, and its leader, Alexander the Great, is symbolized by a horn. So it is with the Antichrist. The organization is the papacy. The reigning pope is its representative. Daniel's prophecy in chapter 7 does not say that popes are evil or that Catholics are not Christians. There are many warm-hearted and loving Catholic Christians. However, the system is called the Antichrist because it has taken authority from Jesus and attempted to change His law.

2. Do you think it's wise or Christian to adopt laws enforcing Christianity? No. The Bible is clear that everyone should have the freedom to choose the direction they want to follow in matters of conscience (Joshua 24:15)—even if they choose to deny God and not believe in Him. God allowed Adam and Eve to choose disobedience even though it hurt Him. Forced worship is unacceptable to God. Forced worship is Satan's way. God's way is the influence of love. History shows that whenever the church adopted laws to enforce its beliefs, persecution and the killing of others occurred. This is a lesson we can learn from the history of the Middle Ages and the little horn.

3. Maybe I don't understand, but my idea has always been that the Antichrist would be an evil being who openly opposes God. Isn't this the wrong idea? Normally we take the word "anti" to mean "against." But in "Antichrist," it means "in place of" or "instead of." The Antichrist is guilty of taking God's authority. It claims:

A. Its priests can forgive sins, which only God can do (Luke 5:21).

B. Changing God's law by omitting the second commandment (worshiping images) and splitting the tenth into two parts. God's law cannot be changed (Matthew 5:18).

C. The pope claims to be God on earth.

Satan's Original Plan Satan's original plan (in heaven) was to take God's position and authority. His goal was to expel God and rule in His place. (See Lesson Guide 2.) When Satan was cast out of heaven, his goal did not change, but it grew stronger. For centuries, he has strived (using various human organizations) to despise God and take His place.

The Antichrist Appears Spiritual Satan aims to take God's place in these last days by deceiving people into following the Antichrist, who appears spiritual and holy. The main purpose of the prophecies in Daniel and Revelation is to reveal Satan's traps and strategies and to lead people to anchor themselves in Jesus and His Word for safety.

The Antichrist Will Deceive Many Many will follow the Antichrist (Revelation 13:3), thinking they are following Christ. Only the elect will be safe (Matthew 24:23, 24). They will be safe because they test every spiritual teaching and leader against the Scriptures (Isaiah 8:20). Religious deception is everywhere today. We cannot be too careful.

4. Doesn't the Bible say in 1 John 2:18-22 that there are many antichrists? Yes, there have been many antichrists in history who have worked against God's kingdom. However, there is only one entity that fulfills all the specific characteristics prophesied for the Antichrist. In Daniel chapters 7 and 8 and Revelation chapter 13, you will find at least 10 identifying characteristics of the Antichrist. These 10 signs of recognition can only be fulfilled in one entity, the papacy.

5. In the prophecy, does the symbol of the “beast” refer to “beastly” traits? Not at all. God uses the symbol of a beast to represent a ruler, nation, government, or kingdom. It is His way of representing a government in prophecy. We do this ourselves to some extent: We symbolize Russia as a bear, America as an eagle, etc. The symbol of the “beast” is not a derogatory or dishonorable term. It is similar to “beast” or “creature.” Even Christ is symbolized as the Lamb by John the Baptist (John 1:29) and the apostle John (Revelation 5:6, 9, 12, 13). The term “beast” is used by God to give us a message about nations and rulers, both good and evil.

Message of the Angel from Heaven

Lesson 16

Angels are real! Sometimes they are referred to as cherubim or seraphim, these powerful spirits who serve appear throughout the entire history of the Bible. They are often seen protecting and guiding God's people, and at times punishing evil—but one of their most important missions is to reveal and explain prophecy. Do you know that God has spoken something special through His angels to people who are deeply troubled in our busy world? In Revelation 14, God reveals some of the frightening last-day messages, symbolized by three angels flying. These messages are so significant that when they are fulfilled, Jesus will return! This guide will provide you with a summary to open your eyes, and the following eight points will present astonishing details. Hold onto your seat... God's personal message to you is about to be revealed!

The Book of Revelation reveals Jesus in a unique way.
1. Why do we study Revelation? Isn't it sealed?
Answer: There are six important reasons to read Revelation:
A. It has never been sealed (Revelation 22:10). The long-standing dispute between Christ and Satan, along with Satan's schemes and deceptive plans for the last days, is revealed in Revelation. Satan cannot easily deceive people who know in advance his false deceptions, so he hopes that people will believe that Revelation has been sealed.

B. The name itself "Revelation" means "to reveal," "to open," or "to disclose," the complete opposite of being sealed. It has always been open.

C. Revelation is a book specifically about Jesus. It begins with "The Revelation of Jesus Christ." It even gives a picture of His word upon it in Revelation 1:13-16. No other book of the Bible reveals Jesus and His last-day instructions and plans for His work and people like Revelation does.

D. Revelation is essentially written for the people of today, just before the return of Jesus (Revelation 1:1-3, 3:11, 22:6, 7, 12, 20).

E. A special blessing is pronounced upon those who read Revelation and obey its counsel (Revelation 1:3, 22:7).

F. Revelation describes the people of God in the last days and the church in an amazingly clear way. It makes the Bible come alive as you see last-day events depicted in Revelation unfolding. It also accurately explains what God's church must be preaching in the last days (Revelation 14:6-14). This learning guide will provide a summary of those sermons so that you can recognize them when you hear them.

Remember: Before continuing further, please open your Bible and read Revelation 14:6-14.

God uses angels to signal His final message with three components.

2. God commanded His church to preach the gospel to every creature (Mark 16:15). How does He signify this holy task in Revelation?
"Then I saw another angel flying in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach to those who dwell on the earth, to every nation, tribe, tongue, and people" (Revelation 14:6).
Answer: The word "angel" literally means "messenger," so it is fitting that God uses three angels to signify the preaching of His gospel message with three signs for the last days. God uses the symbol of angels to remind us that supernatural forces will accompany the message.

God's final message of hope must be delivered to every person on earth.

3. What two important things does Revelation 14:6 reveal about God's last-day message?
"Then I saw another angel flying in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel, to preach to those who dwell on the earth, and to every nation, tribe, tongue, and people" (Revelation 14:6).

Answer: The two important things are: (1) it is the "everlasting gospel," and (2) it must be preached to every person on earth. The messages of the three angels emphasize the gospel, which makes it clear that people are saved by faith in—and accepting—Jesus Christ alone (Acts 4:12, Mark 10:26, 27). Since there is no other way of salvation, it is evil to claim there is another way.

False Products of Satan
Satan's counterfeit times, especially two, are very relevant: (1) salvation by works, and (2) salvation in sin. These two falsehoods are exposed and revealed in the messages of the three angels. Many, unknowingly, have accepted one of these two errors and are trying to build their salvation upon them—something that is absolutely impossible. It must also be emphasized that no one preaches the gospel of Jesus for the last time without including the message of the three angels.
Those who fear God will find pure joy in serving Him.

4. What four things does the first angel's message address?
"Saying with a loud voice, Fear God and give Him glory, for the hour of His judgment has come; and worship Him who made heaven and earth, the sea and springs of water" (Revelation 14:7).
Answer:
A. Fear God. This means that we should revere God and look to Him with love, loyalty, and respect—eager to carry out His command. This keeps us from evil. "By the fear of the Lord one departs from evil" (Proverbs 16:6). Solomon, a wise man, also said, "Fear God and keep His commandments, for this is the whole duty of man" (Ecclesiastes 12:13).

B. Give God glory. We fulfill this command when we obey Him, praise Him, and thank Him for His goodness toward us. One of the major sins of the last days is ingratitude (2 Timothy 3:1, 2).

C. The hour of His judgment has come. This signifies that everyone is accountable to God, and it is a clear statement that judgment is here. Several translations say "has come" rather than "has come."

D. Worship the Creator. This command rejects all forms of idolatry—including self-worship—and completely denies evolution, which denies that God is the Creator and Redeemer. (Many books and radio talk shows today emphasize self-esteem, which leads to self-worship. Christian self-esteem is in Christ, who makes His children sons and daughters of the King of heaven.) The gospel includes the creation and redemption of the world by the Lord God of heaven. Worshiping the Creator involves worshiping Him on the day He set aside as a reminder of creation (the seventh-day Sabbath). That references in Revelation 14:7 are Sabbath-related is made clear by the fact that the words "who made the heaven, and the earth, and the sea" were directly taken from the Sabbath commandment (Exodus 20:11) and used here.
Our true roots are found only in God, who created us in His image in the beginning. Those who do not worship God as the Creator, even if they worship anything else, may not realize their true roots.

God's people must come out of Babylon.

5. What strong words does the second angel say about Babylon? What does the angel in Revelation 18 command God's people to do?
"And another angel followed, saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city" (Revelation 14:8). "And I saw another angel coming down from heaven... And he cried mightily with a loud voice, saying, Babylon the great is fallen... And I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her, my people..." (Revelation 18:1-4).
Answer: The second angel solemnly says, "Babylon is fallen," and a voice from heaven urges all of God's people to leave Babylon immediately. Unless you know what Babylon is, you could easily end up there. Think about it. Could you be in Babylon right now?

Those who worship the beast and receive its mark will be destroyed by God.

6. What does the third angel's message warn about?
"And the third angel followed them, saying with a loud voice, If anyone worships the beast and his image, and receives his mark on the forehead or on his hand, he himself shall also drink of the wine of the wrath of God" (Revelation 14:9, 10).
Answer: The third angel's message warns people against worshiping the beast and its image and receiving the mark of the beast on their foreheads or hands. The first angel commands true worship. The third angel outlines the shocking consequences related to false worship. Do you truly know who the beast is? And what his mark is? If you don't clearly know who the beast is and what his mark is, you could end up worshiping him unknowingly.

God's saints in the last days will find their greatest joy in pleasing Him.

7. What four descriptions does God give in Revelation 14:12 of His people who accept and follow the three angels' messages?
"Here is the patience of the saints, here are those who keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus" (Revelation 14:12).
Answer:
A. They are patient, enduring, and faithful until the end, a great command for a generation that says "do it now." God's people reveal themselves through their patient and loving conduct.

B. They are holy or sanctified because they are fully on God's side.

C. They keep the commandments of God. These people of God joyfully obey His Ten Commandments and all the other commands He has given them. Their primary purpose is to please Him, whom they love (1 John 3:22).

D. They have the faith of Jesus. This can also be interpreted as "faith in Jesus." In any case, God's people fully follow Jesus and trust Him completely.

Whenever they hear the message of Jesus for the last days, He will return to the earth to take His people with Him to heaven.

8. What happens immediately after the message of the three angels is delivered to all people?

"Then I looked, and behold, a white cloud, and on the cloud sat one like the Son of Man, having on His head a golden crown." Revelation 14:14.
Answer: Immediately after the message of the three angels is preached to everyone, Jesus will return in the clouds (His second coming) to take His people home to heaven. The period of the 1,000 years of darkness described in Revelation 20 will begin at His coming.

9. In 2 Peter 1:12, the apostle speaks about the "present truth." What does he mean?

Answer: The present truth is a part of the everlasting gospel that has a specific urgency for a certain time. Examples include:

A. Noah's Flood Message (Genesis 6 and 7; 2 Peter 2:5). Noah was a preacher of righteousness. He preached the love of God while warning about the coming flood that would destroy the world. The Flood message was the "present truth" for that time. His urgent cry was, "Enter the ark." It was so important that neglecting to preach it would have been immoral.

B. Jonah's message to Nineveh (Jonah 3:4). Jonah's "present truth" was that Nineveh would be destroyed in 40 days. Jonah also pointed to the Savior, and the city repented. However, ignoring the 40-day warning would have been unfaithful and unforgivable. It was the present truth for that time.

C. John the Baptist's message (Matthew 3:1-3; Luke 1:17). John's "present truth" was that Jesus, the Messiah, was about to come. His task was to present the gospel and prepare the people for the first coming of Jesus. Ignoring that aspect of the gospel in his day would have been unacceptable.

D. The Three Angels' Message (Revelation 14:6-14). The "present truth" of God today is found in the messages of the three angels. Of course, salvation through Jesus Christ alone is the essence of these messages. However, the "present truth" of these three angels is also given to prepare people for the second coming of Jesus and to open their eyes to Satan's deceptive, intense, and persuasive counterfeit. If people do not understand these messages, Satan will seize them and destroy them. Jesus knew we needed these special messages, and out of loving kindness, He gave them. They should not be neglected. Please earnestly pray as you carefully study these in the next Eight Study Guides.

Some of your discoveries may be startling, but they will all be satisfying. Your heart will be deeply moved. You will feel Jesus speaking to you! After all, they are His messages.

10. Who does the Bible say will come to deliver the "present truth" message before the great day of the Lord?

"Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord." Malachi 4:5.
Answer: The prophet Elijah. There is something significant about Elijah and his message, as we will see in a few subsequent questions. End-time messages of God are also referred to as the "Elijah" message. They call for a decision.

11. What did Elijah do that caught the Lord's attention?

Note: Please open your Bible and carefully read 1 Kings 18:17-40 before answering this question.
Answer: Elijah urged the people to decide whom they would serve (verse 21). The nation was about to worship idols. The people had turned away from the true God and His commandments. There was one prophet of God, Elijah, and 450 pagan prophets of Baal (verse 22). Elijah suggested that he and the idol worshipers build altars and put wood and a bull on them. Then he proposed that they pray to their respective gods to reveal themselves by igniting their altars. The pagan god did not respond, but the true God of Elijah sent fire from heaven to consume Elijah's sacrifice.

The Message Demands a Decision
Elijah's message came at a time of great spiritual crisis and national apostasy. It came with power from heaven that stopped the "business as usual" and stirred the nation's emotions. Then Elijah insisted that the people decide whom they would serve: God or Baal. Moved and fully persuaded, the people chose God (verse 39).
John the Baptist preached the "Elijah" message of his day. Those who preach Revelation 14:6-14 today carry the "Elijah" message of our time.

12. The Elijah message has two applications. It applies to the "present truth" message to prepare people for the first coming of Jesus and the "present truth" message to prepare people for the second coming of Jesus. Who did Jesus say preached the Elijah message to prepare people for His first coming?

"There has not risen one greater than John the Baptist... And if you are willing to receive it, he is Elijah [Elijah] who is to come." Matthew 11:11, 14.

Answer: Jesus referred to the preaching of John the Baptist to prepare people for His first coming as "Elijah," or the Elijah message. John's message, like in the days of Elijah, presented clear truth and emphasized a specific decision. The Bible says about John the Baptist, "He will also go before Him in the spirit and power of Elijah" (Luke 1:17).

13. How do we know that the prophecy has a second application for our time just before the second coming?

"Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord." Malachi 4:5. "The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the coming of the great and awesome day of the Lord." Joel 2:31.

Answer: Please note that two events will occur before the coming of the "great and dreadful day of the Lord" mentioned in Joel 2:31. One, the coming of Elijah. Two, the great heavenly signs. These help us pinpoint both events. The dark day occurred on May 19, 1780. On the same night, the moon appeared as blood. Matthew 24:29 includes one more sign, the falling of the stars, which took place on November 13, 1833. Because of this, we know the end times began. The Elijah message must have started sometime around or after 1833, before the coming of the great day of the Lord.

The Second Elijah Message After the Heavenly Signs
It is evident that the "Elijah" message of John does not refer to the "Elijah" message of today because the major heavenly signs of God occurred more than 1,700 years after John preached his message. The "Elijah" message of Joel 2:31 was to begin after those heavenly signs in 1833 and must prepare people for the second coming of Jesus. The "present truth" message of Revelation 14:6-14 fits perfectly. It began around 1844 and is preparing people worldwide for the second coming of Jesus (verse 14), which will take place after the three-part message reaches every person on earth.

The Message Demands a Decision
Elijah emphasized that evil must be confronted directly and that everyone must decide whom they would serve. So it is with God's three-part message for us today. A decision must be made. God's three-part message reveals Satan and his plans. It clearly reveals God's love and His desires. God is calling people today to return to true worship, to worship Him alone. To serve and worship anyone or anything else in this crucial time is to be unfaithful and will lead to eternal death. God reached hearts miraculously in the days of Elijah (1 Kings 18:37, 39) and in the days of John the Baptist. He will do the same in these last days as people respond to the three angels' message (Revelation 18:1).
God's final "Elijah" message will bring families together in rejoicing, love, and happiness.

14. What other wonderful blessing will the preaching of Elijah (or the three angels' message) bring?
"Elijah... will turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the hearts of the children to their fathers." Malachi 4:5, 6.
Answer: Praise God! The Elijah message, or the three angels' message, will bring family members together in a loving, close, joyful, and heavenly relationship. What a blessed promise!

The Three Angels' Messages Focus on Jesus.

15. The word "gospel" means "good news." Does the three angels' messages of Revelation 14 bring good news?

Answer: Yes, indeed! Let's review the good news we find in this summary of the three angels' messages:

A. Everyone will have the opportunity to hear and understand the end-time gospel. No one will be left out.

B. Satan's evil, powerful plans to capture and destroy people will be exposed to us, so we don't have to fall into his traps.

C. Extraordinary heavenly powers will accompany the spreading of God's message in these last days.

D. God's people will be patient. He calls them "saints."

E. God's people will have faith in Jesus.

F. God's people, in love, will obey His commandments.

G. God loves us so much that He sent a very special message to prepare us for the second coming of Jesus.

H. God's end-time message will bring families together in love and unity.

I. The main emphasis of the three angels' messages is that salvation has been provided for everyone through Jesus Christ alone. He offers His righteousness to cover our past lives and gives us His righteousness through miracles every day so we can grow in grace and be like Him truly. With Him, we cannot fail. Without Him, we cannot succeed.

Extra Note:
Some key points of the three angels' messages to be discussed in the upcoming guides are:

A. The hour of God's judgment has come!
B. Come out of fallen Babylon.
C. Do not receive the mark of the beast.

16:15
Many more good things will be revealed as you study these lessons prayerfully in the next Eight Study Guides. You will be amazed and delighted by some things, and shocked and saddened by others. Some points may be very difficult to accept. But because Jesus sent a special message from heaven to help and guide each one of us personally in these last days, surely there is nothing more important than hearing, fully understanding, and following it.

16. I am encouraged and thankful that Jesus has a special three-part message to guide and help His people in these last days of the world.

Thought Questions

1. Will everyone on Earth be reached by the three angels' message before Jesus returns? Since billions of people are living now, how is this possible? Yes, it will happen because God promised it (Mark 16:15). Paul says the gospel went "to every creature under heaven" in his days (Colossians 1:23). Jonah, by God's grace, reached the entire city of Nineveh in 40 days (Jonah 3:4-10). The Bible says God will finish the work and cut it short (Romans 9:28). Count on it. It will happen very quickly and in our days.

2. Did Moses and Elijah appear with Jesus during the transfiguration (Matthew 17:3), or was it just a vision? That event was real. The Greek word "horama," translated as "vision" in verse 9, literally means "that which was seen." Moses was resurrected from the dead and taken to heaven (Jude 1:9), and Elijah was later taken up without seeing death (2 Kings 2:1, 11, 12). These two individuals, who had suffered greatly from the assaults of Satan and the rebellion of God's people, understood what Jesus was going through. They came to encourage Him and to remind all those who would be translated into His kingdom without seeing death (like Elijah) and resurrected from the grave to enter His kingdom (like Moses) because of His sacrifice for our sins.

3. Why did John say he was not Elijah (John 1:19-21) when Jesus said he was (Matthew 11:10-14)? The answer is found in Luke 1:13-17. The angel who announced the birth of John said, "Your wife Elizabeth will bear you a son, and you shall call his name John... He will be great in the sight of the Lord... He will go before Him in the spirit and power of Elijah, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient to the wisdom of the just, to make ready a people prepared for the Lord." Verses 13-17. When Jesus referred to John as Elijah, He was referring to his life, spirit, power, and work being like that of Elijah. The same is true of the Elijah message in the last days. The focus is on the message, not the individual. Therefore, John was not Elijah literally, but was presenting Elijah's message. ("Elijah" is the Greek form of "Elias.")

4. Is it possible for someone to preach the full truth of Jesus' last-day message today without including the three angels' messages? No! The three angels' messages must be included. In the book of Revelation, Jesus Himself reveals or refers to His last-day message (Revelation 1:1) and clearly says that His people must continue to follow what He has revealed in the book (Revelation 1:3, 22:7). Therefore, faithful ministers of the last days must preach His messages from the book of Revelation. This, of course, includes preaching His specific threefold message from Revelation 14:6-14. Notice that Jesus calls these "the everlasting gospel" in verse 6. He also says they must be sent to every person on Earth before He returns for His people. Here are three weighty thoughts: A. No one preaches the "everlasting gospel" of Jesus unless it includes the three angels' messages. B. No one has the right to call their message the everlasting gospel unless they include the three angels' messages. C. The three angels' messages prepare people for the second coming of Jesus (Revelation 14:12-14). Unless you hear, understand, and accept these three messages of Jesus for the last days, you may not be ready for His second coming.

Special Messages for the Last Days Jesus, who knows what we need, gave us three special messages for the last days. We must understand and follow them. The following eight study guidelines will make these messages clear to you.

5. Luke 1:17 says that the message of Elijah would be to turn "the disobedient to the wisdom of the just." What does this mean? "The just shall live by faith." Romans 1:17. The righteous have the wisdom to place their salvation upon faith in the Savior. "Nor is there salvation in any other, for there is no other name under heaven given among men by which we must be saved." Acts 4:12. John's message was to make this clear to all. Faith that is based on anyone or anything other than Jesus Christ can never save people from sin and lead to transformed lives. People must hear and understand this central truth. This truth is also the very heart of God's Elijah message for today.

God Designed the Plans

Lesson 17

We all know that 4,000 years ago, at the peak of Mount Sinai, God gave Moses the Ten Commandments. But many people do not know that at the same time, the Lord gave Moses the blueprints for one of the most amazing structures ever built—the sanctuary. It must have been important because the Israelites could not enter the Promised Land until it was completed. This unique, portable sanctuary represented the dwelling of God among His people, and its services depicted the three phases of the salvation plan for the nation of former slaves set free. A careful study of the secrets of the sanctuary will illuminate your understanding of how Jesus saves the lost and leads the church. The sanctuary is also the key to understanding several prophecies. This fascinating study guide allows you to explore the sanctuary and uncover its hidden meanings. Exciting discoveries await you!

God Himself Gave Moses the Plans for the Sanctuary.

1. What did God ask Moses to build? “Let them make Me a sanctuary, that I may dwell among them.” Exodus 25:8 Answer: The Lord asked Moses to build a sanctuary, a special building that would serve as the dwelling place of the great God of heaven.

A Brief Description of the Sanctuary The sanctuary was an elegant, tent-like structure (15’ x 45’) with a base made of 18-inch boards. It was where God’s extraordinary presence dwelled, and special services were conducted.

The walls were made of upright acacia wood boards, set in silver sockets and covered with gold (Exodus 26:15-19, 29). The roof consisted of four layers of coverings: linen, goat hair, rams’ skins dyed red, and porpoise skins (Exodus 26:1, 6-14). It had two rooms: the Holy Place and the Most Holy Place. A thick curtain separated the two rooms. The courtyard, the area surrounding the sanctuary, measured 75’ x 150’ (Exodus 27:18). It was enclosed by a linen fence supported by 60 copper pillars (Exodus 27:9-16).

2. What did God expect His people to learn from the sanctuary? “O God, Your way is in the sanctuary; who is so great a God as our God?” Psalm 77:13 Answer: God’s way, or the plan of salvation, is revealed in the earthly sanctuary. The Bible teaches that everything in the sanctuary or connected to its services was a symbol of something Jesus would do to save us. This means we cannot fully understand the salvation plan until we comprehend the symbols associated with the sanctuary. Therefore, the importance of this Study Guide cannot be overstated.

The Sanctuary and Its Services Were to Represent God's Salvation Plan.

3. Where did Moses receive the blueprints for the sanctuary? What was the building a copy of? "Now this is the main point of the things we are saying: We have such a High Priest, who is seated at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens, a Minister of the sanctuary and of the true tabernacle, which the Lord erected, and not man." "Who serve the copy and shadow of the heavenly things, as Moses was divinely instructed when he was about to make the tabernacle…" Hebrews 8:1, 2, 5 Answer: The designs for the sanctuary and its complete construction details were given to Moses by God. It was a copy of the true heavenly sanctuary, a model of the one in heaven.

4. What furnishings were in the courtyard? Answer: A. The altar of burnt offerings, where animals were sacrificed, was in the courtyard, just inside its entrance (Exodus 27:1-8). This altar symbolized the cross of Christ. The animal represented Jesus, the ultimate sacrifice (John 1:29).

B. The laver, located between the altar and the entrance to the Holy Place, was a large bronze basin used for washing. Here, priests washed their hands and feet before offering sacrifices or entering the sanctuary (Exodus 30:17-21; 38:8).

The water symbolized cleansing from sin, or the new birth (Titus 3:5).

5. What furnishings were in the Holy Place? Answer: A. The table of showbread (Exodus 25:23-30) symbolized Jesus, the bread of life (John 6:51).

B. The golden lampstand with seven branches (Exodus 25:31-40) symbolized Jesus, the light of the world (John 9:5). The oil represented the Holy Spirit (Zechariah 4:1-6; Revelation 4:5).

C. The altar of incense (Exodus 30:7, 8) symbolized the prayers of God's people (Revelation 5:8).

The mercy seat symbolized God's throne in heaven, also between two angels.

6. What furnishings were in the Most Holy Place? Answer: The ark of the covenant, the only piece of furniture in the Most Holy Place (Exodus 25:10-22), was a chest made of acacia wood overlaid with gold. On top of the ark were two golden cherubim. Between these angels was the mercy seat (Exodus 25:17-22), where God's presence dwelt.

This represented God's heavenly throne, also between two angels (Psalm 80:1).

The Ten Commandments were inside the ark. They represented God's character, which He writes on the hearts of His people.

7. What was inside the ark? Answer: The Ten Commandments, which God wrote on stone tablets with His own finger and which His people are to keep forever (Revelation 14:12), were inside the ark (Deuteronomy 10:4, 5). But the mercy seat was above them, symbolizing that as long as God's people confess and forsake their sins (Proverbs 28:13), mercy would be extended to them through the blood sprinkled on the mercy seat by the priest (Leviticus 16:16, 15, 16). The animal's blood represented the blood of Jesus, shed for us to bring forgiveness of sins (Matthew 26:28; Hebrews 9:22).

Animals offered in sacrifice symbolized Jesus, who gave His life for all people.

8. Why did animals need to be sacrificed in the Old Testament sanctuary services? "And according to the law almost all things are purified with blood, and without shedding of blood there is no remission." Hebrews 9:22 "For this is My blood of the new covenant, which is shed for many for the remission of sins." Matthew 26:28 Answer: Animal sacrifices were important to help people understand that without the shedding of Jesus' blood, their sins could not be forgiven. The harsh truth is that the penalty for sin is eternal death (Romans 6:23). Since we have all sinned, we all deserve to die. When Adam and Eve sinned, they would have immediately died if not for Jesus, who volunteered to give His perfect life as a sacrifice to pay the penalty of death for all people (Revelation 13:8). After the fall, God required sinners to bring an animal sacrifice (Genesis 4:3-7). The sinner had to kill the animal with their own hands (Leviticus 1:4, 5). It was bloody and shocking. It dramatically impressed upon the sinner the terrible consequences of sin (eternal death) and the great need for a Savior and His substitutionary sacrifice. Without a Savior, no one had any hope of salvation.

The sacrificial system taught, through the symbol of the slain animal, that God would give His Son to die for their sins (1 Corinthians 15:3). Jesus would be not only their Savior, but also their substitute (Hebrews 9:28). When John the Baptist saw Jesus, he said, "Behold the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world." John 1:29. In the Old Testament, people looked forward to the cross for salvation. We look back to Calvary for salvation. There is no other source of salvation (Acts 4:12).

The Animal Sacrifices Taught a Startling Truth That Sin Would Cost the Life of Jesus

9. How were animals sacrificed in the sanctuary service, and what was the meaning of this?
"And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the burnt offering, and it shall be accepted for him to make atonement for him." "And he shall kill it on the north side of the altar." Leviticus 1:4, 11.
Answer: When the sinner brought an animal sacrifice to the gate of the court, the priest gave him a knife and a basin. The sinner would lay their hands on the head of the animal and confess their sins. This symbolized the transfer of sin from the sinner to the animal. At that moment, the sinner was considered guiltless, and the animal was considered guilty. Since the animal was now guilty by representation, it had to pay the penalty of sin—death. By slaughtering the animal with their own hand, the sinner was taught plainly that sin caused the death of an innocent animal and that their sin would lead to the death of Jesus, the innocent Lamb.

10. When an animal sacrifice was offered for the whole congregation, what did the priest do with the blood? What did this signify?
"And the anointed priest shall bring some of the blood of the bullock into the tabernacle of the congregation; and the priest shall dip his finger in the blood, and sprinkle it seven times before the Lord, before the veil." Leviticus 4:16, 17.
Answer: When a sacrifice was made for the sins of the entire congregation, the priest, who represented Jesus (Hebrews 3:1), took the blood into the holy place and sprinkled it before the veil that separated the two rooms. God's presence was behind the veil. Thus, the sins of the people were symbolically transferred to the sanctuary. This blood service performed by the priest symbolized Jesus' current ministry in heaven. After Jesus died on the cross as our sacrifice for sin, He rose and went to heaven as our High Priest to minister His blood in the heavenly sanctuary (Hebrews 9:11, 12). The blood administered by the earthly priest represents Jesus applying His blood to our records of sin in the heavenly sanctuary, showing that our sins are forgiven when we confess them in His name (1 John 1:9).
As our sacrifice, Jesus brings us completely transformed lives, and all our sins are forgiven.

11. According to the sanctuary services, what are the two main roles in which Jesus serves His people? What amazing benefits do we receive from His ministry of love?
"Christ, our Passover, is sacrificed for us." 1 Corinthians 5:7.
"Seeing then that we have a great high priest that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our profession. For we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin. Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need." Hebrews 4:14-16.

Answer: Jesus serves as our sacrifice for sin and as our High Priest in heaven. His death as the Lamb of sacrifice and His ongoing powerful ministry as our High Priest in heaven fulfill two amazing miracles for us:
A. A complete transformation of life called the new birth, and all past sins are forgiven (John 3, Romans 3:25).
B. The ability to live in the present and future (Titus 2:14, Philippians 2:13).
These two miracles make a person righteous, meaning there is a proper relationship between the person and God. There is no possible way for a person to become righteous by their own efforts because righteousness requires miracles that only Jesus can accomplish (Acts 4:12). A person becomes righteous by believing in Jesus to do for them what they cannot do for themselves.
This is what is meant by the Bible term "righteousness by faith." I ask Jesus to be the ruler of my life and trust Him to perform the miracles necessary as I fully cooperate with Him. This righteousness, which is accomplished miraculously by Jesus in me and for me, is the only true righteousness that exists. Any other righteousness is counterfeit.
Through His miracles, Jesus will make us happily do things that please God.

12. What are the six main promises the Bible gives us about the righteousness offered to us through Jesus?
Answer:
A. He will cover our past sins and count us guiltless (Isaiah 44:22, John 1:9).
B. We were made in the image of God in the beginning (Genesis 1:26, 27). Jesus promises to restore us to the image of God (Romans 8:29).
C. Jesus gives us the desire to live righteously and then enables us with His power to accomplish it (Philippians 2:13).
D. Jesus, by His miracles, will make us gladly do things that please God (Hebrews 13:20-21, John 15:11).
E. He removes the death sentence from us by counting His sinless life and atoning death as ours (2 Corinthians 5:21).
F. Jesus takes responsibility for keeping us faithful until He comes to take us to heaven (Philippians 1:6, Jude 1:24).
Jesus is willing to fulfill all of these glorious promises in your life. Are you ready? Kneel now and ask Him to reign over your life. He will not disappoint you.
Our role in salvation is to follow lovingly and willingly where Jesus leads us.

13. Does a person have any role in becoming righteous by faith?
“Not everyone that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven.” Matthew 7:21.
Answer: Yes, Jesus says we must do the will of His Father. In the Old Testament days, a person who was truly converted continued to bring lambs for sacrifices, showing sorrow for sin and a desire to fully allow God to lead their life.
Today, although we cannot perform the miracles needed to be righteous, we must give ourselves to Jesus every day (1 Corinthians 15:31), inviting Him to rule our lives so that these miracles can take place. We must be willing to be obedient and follow wherever Jesus leads us (John 12:26, Isaiah 1:18-20). Sin causes us to want to have our own ways (Isaiah 53:6) and, thus, to rebel against God as Satan did in the beginning (Isaiah 14:12-14). Allowing Jesus to reign in our lives at times is as difficult as plucking out an eye or cutting off a hand (Matthew 5:29, 30) because sin is addictive, and it can only be overcome by the miraculous power of God (Mark 10:27).
Many believe that Jesus will take all who claim to be saved and take them to heaven, regardless of their conduct. But this is not true. It is a deception of Satan. A Christian must follow the lifestyle of Jesus (1 Peter 2:21). The powerful blood of Jesus can accomplish this for all of us (Hebrews 13:12), but only if we give Jesus full control of our lives and happily follow wherever He leads, even though the way may be rocky and hard at times (Matthew 7:13, 14, 21).
The Lord’s goat represented Jesus, who would die for our sins.

14. Can you help me understand the Day of Atonement?
Answer:
A. Once a year, on the Day of Atonement, a great day of judgment took place in Israel (Leviticus 23:27). Everyone was required to confess every sin. Those who refused that day were completely cut off from the camp of Israel (Leviticus 23:29).
B. Two goats were chosen: one, the Lord’s goat, and the other, the goat of Azazel, representing Satan (Leviticus 16:8). The Lord’s goat was slain and offered as a sacrifice for the sins of the people (Leviticus 16:9). But on this day, blood was taken to the Most Holy Place and sprinkled upon and before the mercy seat (Leviticus 16:14). On this special day of judgment, the high priest entered the Most Holy Place to meet God at the mercy seat.
The sprinkled blood (which represented the sacrifice of Jesus) was accepted by God, and the confessed sins of the people were transferred from the sanctuary to the high priest. He then transferred these confessed sins to the scapegoat, which was led into the wilderness (Leviticus 16:16, 20-22). In this way, the sanctuary was cleansed from the people’s sins, which had been transferred there through the sprinkled blood and collected for one year.

The Day of Atonement in Israel was a symbol of the final judgment, which will resolve the issue of sin forever in the entire world.

15. Does the Day of Atonement symbolize or represent part of God's great plan of salvation, as other parts of the earthly sanctuary and its services did? "It was therefore necessary that the patterns of things in the heavens should be purified with these; but the heavenly things themselves with better sacrifices than these." Hebrews 9:23.

Answer: Yes. The ceremonies of that day pointed to the removal of sin and the true High Priest in the heavenly sanctuary. Through His shed blood, used for those written in the book of life, Christ would confirm His people's decision to serve Him forever. This special judgment day, like Israel's Yom Kippur, showed the final atonement that would be made for the earth. Based on the annual type of the old Day of Atonement, all humanity is assured that our faithful High Priest, Jesus, is still the intercessor in heaven for His people and is ready to remove the sins of all who will have faith in His shed blood. The final atonement leads to the final judgment, which will settle the matter of sin in every person's life and culminate in either life or death.

Important Events
In the two following Guides, you will discover how the pattern of the earthly sanctuary, especially the Day of Atonement, parallels significant events of the end times, which God will bring to pass in the heavenly sanctuary.

Judgment Date
In the next Study Guide, we will explore the important Bible prophecy where God sets the date for the commencement of the heavenly judgment. It's really exciting!

Right on Time! Prophetic Appointment Revealed!

Lesson 18

Buckle up! You are about to explore the longest time prophecy in the Bible—a prophecy that accurately predicted the first coming of Jesus and the timing of His death. In Study Guide 16, "The Angel's Message from Heaven," you learned that God has a crucial message the world must hear before Christ returns! The first part of this message commands people to worship God and give Him glory because the hour of His judgment has come (Revelation 14:7). In Daniel 8 and 9, God reveals the date when His final judgment begins and provides powerful prophetic clues that confirm Christ as the Messiah. No prophecy in all of Scripture is more significant—yet very few people understand it! Some even misinterpret it completely. Please read Daniel chapters 8 and 9 before starting this Study Guide, and pray for the Holy Spirit to guide you in understanding this amazing lesson.

The Ram Represents Medo-Persia

1. In a vision, Daniel saw a ram with two horns pushing westward, northward, and southward, conquering every animal in its path (Daniel 8:3, 4). What does the ram represent?

"The ram which you saw, having the two horns—they are the kings of Media and Persia." (Daniel 8:20)

Answer: The ram represents the world empire of Media and Persia, which was also symbolized by the bear in Daniel 7:5. The prophecies of the Bible books of Daniel and Revelation follow the principle of "repeat and expand," meaning that each new vision revisits the earlier prophecies and provides additional details. This method enhances clarity and certainty in understanding Bible prophecy.

The Goat Represents Greece

2. What striking animal did Daniel see next?

"And the male goat is the kingdom of Greece. The large horn that is between its eyes is the first king. Now as for the broken horn and the four that stood up in its place, four kingdoms shall arise out of that nation." (Daniel 8:21, 22)

Answer: In Daniel's vision, a male goat with a large horn appeared suddenly, moving swiftly across the earth. It attacked and defeated the ram. The large horn was broken, and in its place, four horns arose. The goat represents the third world empire—Greece—and the large horn symbolizes Alexander the Great. The four horns that emerged after the large horn was broken represent the four kingdoms into which Alexander's empire was divided. In Daniel 7:6, these four kingdoms are symbolized by the four heads of the leopard, which also represents Greece. The accuracy of these symbols makes it easy to identify them in history.

The "Little Horn" in Daniel 8 Represents Rome in Both Its Pagan and Papal Phases

Therefore, the little horn of the end times represents the papacy.

3. According to Daniel 8:8, 9, a powerful little horn later emerged. What does the little horn represent?

Answer: The little horn represents Rome. Some have suggested that the little horn symbolizes Antiochus Epiphanes, a Seleucid king who ruled Palestine in the second century B.C. and disrupted Jewish worship. Others, including many Protestant Reformers, believed that the little horn represents Rome in both its pagan and papal forms. Let's examine the clear biblical evidence for this:

A. According to the prophetic principle of "repeat and expand," Rome must be the power represented here because both Daniel chapters 2 and 7 point to Rome as the kingdom following Greece. Daniel 7:24-27 also confirms that Rome, in its papal form, would be succeeded by Christ's kingdom. The little horn of Daniel chapter 8 fits this sequence exactly: It follows Greece and is eventually destroyed "without human hand" at Christ's second coming. (Compare Daniel 8:25 with Daniel 2:34.)

B. Daniel chapter 8 states that the Medes and Persians would be “great” (verse 4), the Greeks “very great” (verse 8), and the little horn power “exceedingly great” (verse 9). History clearly shows that no power following Greece surpassed Rome in greatness.

C. Rome extended its authority south (Egypt), east (Macedonia), and toward the “Beautiful Land” (Palestine) precisely as the prophecy foretold (verse 9). No other major power fits this description as accurately as Rome.

D. Only Rome stood against Jesus, the “Prince of the host” (verse 11) and the “Prince of princes” (verse 25). Pagan Rome crucified Him. It also destroyed the Jewish temple. Papal Rome cast down the heavenly sanctuary (verse 11) and “trampled it underfoot” (verse 13) by replacing Christ’s heavenly priestly ministry with an earthly priesthood that claims to forgive sins. Only God can forgive sins (Luke 5:21). And Jesus is our sole High Priest and Mediator (1 Timothy 2:5).

The little horn power persecuted and destroyed millions of God’s people.

4. Daniel 8 reveals that this little horn power would destroy many of God’s people (verses 10, 24, 25) and cast truth to the ground (verse 12). When the holy one asked how long God’s people and the heavenly sanctuary would be trampled, what was heaven’s answer?
“He said to me, ‘For two thousand three hundred days; then the sanctuary shall be cleansed.’” (Daniel 8:14)

Answer: Heaven’s answer was that the heavenly sanctuary would be cleansed after 2,300 prophetic days, or 2,300 actual years. (Study Guide 15 provides a complete explanation of the prophetic day-for-year principle found in Ezekiel 4:6 and Numbers 14:34.) We have already learned that the cleansing of the earthly sanctuary occurred on the Day of Atonement in ancient Israel.

On that day, God’s people were clearly identified as His, and the record of their sins was removed. Those who clung to their sins were cut off from Israel permanently. Thus, the camp was cleansed from sin.

Here, Heaven assured Daniel that sin and the little horn power would not continue to succeed, dominate the world, and persecute God’s people forever. Instead, after 2,300 years, God would intervene through the heavenly Day of Atonement, or judgment, where sin and sinners would be identified and eventually removed from the universe permanently. The world would be cleansed of sin. Evil against God’s people would ultimately be corrected, and the peace and harmony of Eden would fill the entire world again.

Daniel prayed for understanding of the 2,300-year prophecy.

5. What key point did the angel Gabriel emphasize repeatedly?
"Understand, son of man, that the vision refers to the time of the end." (Daniel 8:17)
"I will tell you what will happen in the latter time of the indignation." (Daniel 8:19)
"Seal up the vision, for it refers to many days in the future." (Daniel 8:26)

Answer: Gabriel repeatedly emphasized that the vision of the 2,300 days pertained to the events of the time of the end, which began in 1798, as we learned in Study Guide 15. The angel wanted us to understand that the 2,300-day prophecy is a message primarily relevant to those of us living in the final days of earth's history. It holds special meaning for today.

Introduction to Daniel Chapter 9

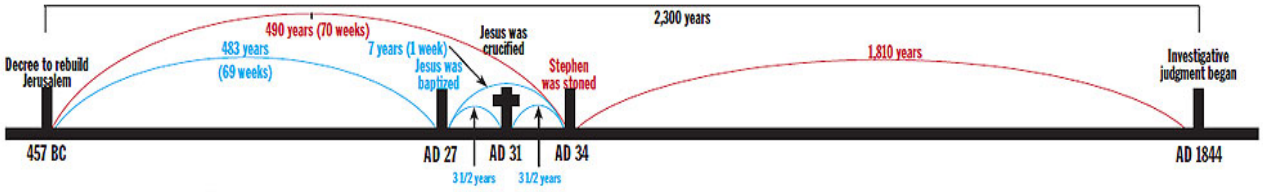
After Daniel's vision in chapter 8, the angel Gabriel came to explain the vision. When Gabriel reached the part about the 2,300 days, Daniel fainted and was sick for several days. He eventually resumed his royal duties but remained troubled by the unexplained portion of the vision—the 2,300 days. Daniel earnestly prayed for his people, the Jews who were in captivity under the Medes and Persians. He confessed his sins and pleaded with God to forgive his people. Daniel chapter 9 begins with the prophet's sincere prayer of confession and supplication to God.

Take a moment now to read Daniel 9 before continuing with this Study Guide.

The angel Gabriel came to Daniel to explain the 2,300-year prophecy.

6. While Daniel was praying, who suddenly touched him and with what message (Daniel 9:21-23)?
Answer: The angel Gabriel touched him and said that he had come to explain the vision that was outlined in Daniel chapter 8 (compare Daniel 8:26 with Daniel 9:23).

7. How much of the 2,300 days was allocated (or "cut off") for Daniel's people, the Jews, and their capital city, Jerusalem (Daniel 9:24)?
Answer: Seventy weeks were "determined," or cut off, for the Jews. Seventy prophetic weeks equal 490 literal years (70 x 7 = 490). God allocated 490 years from the 2,300 years to give His chosen people another opportunity to repent and serve Him.



8. What event and date would mark the starting point for the 2,300-day and 490-year prophecies (Daniel 9:25)?
Answer: The starting point was the decree from King Artaxerxes of Persia, which allowed God's people (in captivity under the Medes and Persians) to return to Jerusalem and rebuild the city. This decree, found in Ezra chapter 7, was issued in 457 B.C.—the seventh year of the king's reign (verse 7)—and was implemented in the fall of that year. Artaxerxes began his reign in 464 B.C.

The baptism of Jesus was the exact fulfillment of Bible prophecy.

9. The angel said that 69 prophetic weeks, or 483 literal years (69 x 7 = 483), added to 457 B.C. would reach the Messiah (Daniel 9:25). Did this happen?
Answer: Yes, absolutely! The math shows that counting 483 years forward from the fall of 457 B.C. reaches the fall of A.D. 27. "Messiah" means "Anointed One" (John 1:41, margin). Jesus was anointed by the Holy Spirit (Acts 10:38) at His baptism (Luke 3:21, 22). This took place in the 15th year of Tiberius Caesar's reign (Luke 3:1), which was A.D. 27.

Jesus then began preaching, saying, "The time is fulfilled" (referring to the 483 years leading to the Messiah). This confirms the prophecy (Mark 1:14, 15; Galatians 4:4). This remarkable fulfillment proves:

A. The Bible is inspired.
B. Jesus is the Messiah.
C. All other dates in the 2,300/490-year prophecy are valid. What a solid foundation to build upon!

10. So far, we have examined 483 years of the 490-year prophecy. One prophetic week, or seven literal years, remains (Daniel 9:26, 27). What happens next? When does it happen?

Answer: Jesus is "cut off" or crucified "in the middle of the week," which is three and a half years after His anointing, or in the spring of 31 AD. Please note how the gospel is revealed in verse 26: "After the sixty-two weeks, Messiah shall be cut off, but not for Himself."

Praise be to God—when Jesus was cut off, it was not for Himself. He "committed no sin" (1 Peter 2:22) but was crucified for our sins (1 Corinthians 15:3; Isaiah 53:5). The precious life of Jesus was offered lovingly and willingly to save us from sin. Hallelujah—what a Savior! The atoning sacrifice of Jesus is the very heart of Daniel chapters 8 and 9.
The disciples preached to crowds of Jews.

11. Since Jesus died after three and a half years, how could He "confirm the covenant with many" for the full final seven years, as Daniel 9:27 states?
Answer: The covenant is His blessed agreement to save people from their sins (Hebrews 10:16, 17). After His three-and-a-half-year ministry ended, Jesus confirmed the covenant through His disciples (Hebrews 2:3). He sent them first to the Jewish nation (Matthew 10:5, 6) because His chosen people still had three and a half years remaining in their 490-year period of probation.
After the stoning of Stephen, the disciples began to preach to the Gentiles.

12. What did the disciples do after the 490-year period of final opportunity for the Jewish nation ended in the spring of 34 AD?
Answer: They began to preach the gospel to others and to the nations of the world (Acts 13:46). Stephen, a righteous deacon, was publicly stoned in 34 AD. From that time onward, the Jews, because they rejected Jesus and God's plan, were no longer God's chosen people or nation. Instead, God now considers people from all nations who accept and serve Him to be spiritual Jews. They have become His chosen people—"heirs according to the promise." Spiritual Jews, of course, include Jews who individually accept and serve Jesus (Galatians 3:27-29; Romans 2:28, 29).
The investigative judgment of God is witnessed by the heavenly host.

13. After 34 AD, how many years of the 2,300-year prophecy remained? What is the ending date of that prophecy? What did the angel say would happen at that time (Daniel 8:14)?
Answer: There were 1,810 years remaining (2,300 minus 490 = 1,810). The ending date of the prophecy is 1844 (34 AD + 1810 = 1844). The angel said that the heavenly sanctuary would be cleansed, or the heavenly judgment would begin. (The earthly sanctuary was destroyed in 70 AD.) We learned in Study Guide 17 that the heavenly Day of Atonement, or judgment, was scheduled for the end time. Now we know that its starting date is 1844. God set this date. It is as certain as the 27 AD date for Jesus being the Messiah. God's end-time people must be proclaiming it (Revelation 14:6, 7).

You will be thrilled and delighted to learn more about this judgment in Study Guide 19. In Noah's day, God said the judgment of the Flood would occur in 120 years (Genesis 6:3), and it did. In Daniel's day, God said His end-time judgment would begin after 2,300 years (Daniel 8:14), and it did. God's final judgment has been in session since 1844.

The Meaning of Atonement

The English word "atonement" originally meant "at-one-ment," that is, the state of being "at one" or in harmony. It signifies the restoration of relationship. Perfect harmony originally existed throughout the entire universe. Then Lucifer, a gifted heavenly angel (as we learned in Study Guide 2), rebelled against God and His principles of government. One-third of the heavenly angels joined Lucifer's rebellion (Revelation 12:3, 4, 7-9).

This rebellion against God and His principles of love is called sin in the Bible (Isaiah 53:6; 1 John 3:4). It brings heartbreak, confusion, chaos, disasters, disappointments, sorrow, betrayal, and all kinds of evil. Worst of all, its penalty is death (Romans 6:23)—an irreversible death in the lake of fire (Revelation 21:8). Sin spreads quickly and is more dangerous than the most aggressive form of cancer. It jeopardized the entire universe.
Therefore, God cast Lucifer and his angels out of heaven (Revelation 12:7-9), and Lucifer received a new name—"Satan," which means "adversary." His fallen angels are now called demons. Satan deceived Adam and Eve, and thus sin came upon the entire human race. What a terrible disaster! The great controversy between good and evil had begun, and evil seemed to be winning. The situation appeared hopeless.

But no! Jesus, the Son of God—God Himself, who was infinitely greater than all human beings combined—agreed to give His life to pay the death penalty for every sinner (1 Corinthians 5:7). By accepting His sacrifice, sinners would be freed from the guilt of sin (Romans 3:25). This glorious plan also involved Jesus entering a person's life when invited (Revelation 3:20) and transforming them into a new creation (2 Corinthians 5:17). It provided power from Jesus to resist Satan and to restore every converted person to the image of God in which they were created (Genesis 1:26, 27; Romans 8:29).

This blessed atoning sacrifice includes God's plan to eradicate sin and destroy it—along with Satan, his fallen angels, and all who join him in rebellion (Matthew 25:41; Revelation 21:8). Furthermore, complete information about Jesus and His loving government and Satan's cruel dictatorship will be given to every person on earth so that all may make an intelligent and informed decision to align themselves with either Christ or Satan (Matthew 24:14; Revelation 14:6, 7).

The case of every individual will be reviewed in heaven's courtroom (Romans 14:10-12), and God will honor each person's choice to serve either Christ or Satan (Revelation 22:11, 12). Finally, after sin is eradicated, God's plan is to create a new heaven and a new earth (2 Peter 3:13; Isaiah 65:17), where sin will never arise again (Nahum 1:9), and to give it to His people as their eternal home (Revelation 21:1-5). Then the Father and the Son will dwell with Their people in perfect joy and harmony forever.

All of this is encompassed in "at-one-ment." God has revealed it to us in His Word and symbolized it in the Old Testament sanctuary services, especially the Day of Atonement. Jesus is the key to atonement. His loving sacrifice for us at Calvary makes everything possible. The removal of sin from our lives and from the universe is possible only through Him (Acts 4:12). No wonder the final three-angels' message from heaven calls us all to worship Him (Revelation 14:6, 7).

Why would anyone disregard such an essential part of this prophecy?

14. Why do some Bible interpreters separate the last week (or seven years) of the 490 years allotted to the Jewish nation and apply it to the work of the Antichrist at the end of world history?

Answer: This is a good question—"Why would anyone remove the last seven years of the 490 years allotted to the Jewish nation and place them at the end of world history?" Let us review the facts:

A. There is no biblical authority or evidence to insert a gap anywhere within the 490-year prophecy. The years are continuous, just as the 70 years of the captivity of God's people mentioned in Daniel 9:2 were continuous.

B. Nowhere in the Scriptures does a specific time unit (days, weeks, months, years) that makes up a period of time mean anything other than consecutive or sequential time units. The burden of proof is on those who claim that any part of any time prophecy should be separated and counted later.

C. AD 27 (the year of Jesus' baptism) marked the beginning of the final seven years of the prophecy, which Jesus emphasized by immediately preaching, "The time is fulfilled." (Mark 1:15).

D. At His death on the cross in the spring of AD 31, Jesus cried out, "It is finished." The Savior here clearly refers to the prophecy of His death found in Daniel 9, as follows:

1. "The Messiah" would be "cut off" or crucified (verse 26).

2. “He would bring an end to sacrifice and offering” by dying for all as the true Lamb of God (verse 27, 1 Corinthians 5:7, 15:3).

3. “He would make reconciliation for iniquity” (verse 24).

There is no biblical authority or evidence for separating the final week, or seven years, of the 490 years allotted to the Jewish nation and applying it to the work of the Antichrist near the end of world history. Most importantly, separating the final seven years from the 490-year prophecy distorts the true meaning of much prophecy in the books of Daniel and Revelation, preventing people from accurately understanding it. This is why God condemns private interpretations of prophecy, such as this seven-year gap theory. Such interpretations mislead people.

Reflection Questions

1. Do the little horns in Daniel chapter 7 and Daniel chapter 8 represent the same power?
The little horn of Daniel 7 represents the papacy. The little horn of Daniel 8 represents both pagan and papal Rome.

2. The “2,300 days” in Daniel 8:14, literally translated from Hebrew, reads “2,300 evenings and mornings.” Does this mean 1,150 days, as some argue?
No. The Bible clearly shows in Genesis 1:5, 8, 13, 19, 23, 31 that an evening and a morning equal one day. Nothing in history at the end of 1,150 days fulfills this prophecy.

3. What role does “choice” play in a Christian’s life?
It is a key factor in success. God’s way has always involved freedom of choice (Joshua 24:15). Although He wants to save everyone (1 Timothy 2:3, 4), He still allows free will (Deuteronomy 30:19). God allowed Satan to choose to rebel and permitted Adam and Eve to disobey. Salvation is never something forced on us or predetermined to send us to heaven regardless of how we live or even if we do not want to go.

Choice means I am always free to change my mind. Jesus asks me to choose Him (Matthew 11:28-30) and to reaffirm that choice daily (Psalm 86:3). If my daily choice is for Him, He will transform me and ultimately bring me to His new, blessed kingdom. But please note: I am free to turn away at any time. God will never force me. My daily choice to serve Him is crucial.

4. Many believe that King Antiochus Epiphanes is the little horn power of Daniel 8. How can we be sure this is not true?
There are many reasons. Some of them include:

A. Antiochus Epiphanes was not "exceedingly great," as the prophecy requires (Daniel 8:9).

B. He did not rule at the "time of the end" or near the end of the Seleucid kingdom, as the prophecy demands (Daniel 8:23), but rather in the middle.

C. Those who teach that Antiochus Epiphanes is the little horn interpret the 2,300 days as literal days instead of prophetic years. This literal time period of just over six years has no meaningful fulfillment in Daniel 8. Every attempt to fit this period with Antiochus Epiphanes has failed, which is an embarrassment to its supporters.

D. The little horn still exists in the "time of the end" (Daniel 8:12, 17, 19), while Antiochus Epiphanes died in 164 BC.

E. The little horn was to become "exceedingly great" toward the south, the east, and Palestine (Daniel 8:9). While Antiochus Epiphanes ruled Palestine temporarily, he had no significant success in Egypt (south) and Macedonia (east).

F. The little horn was to cast down the sanctuary of God (Daniel 8:11). Antiochus Epiphanes did not destroy the temple in Jerusalem. He defiled it, but it was the Romans who destroyed it in AD 70. Nor did he destroy Jerusalem, as the prophecy states (Daniel 9:26).

G. Christ applied the abomination of desolation in Daniel 9:26-27, not to Antiochus Epiphanes' past actions in 167 BC, but to a future event when the Roman army would destroy Jerusalem and the temple within His generation in AD 70 (Luke 21:20-24). In Matthew 24:15, Jesus specifically mentioned the prophet Daniel, saying that Daniel's prophecy would be fulfilled when Christians would see the abomination standing in the holy place in Jerusalem—a future event.

H. Jesus explicitly linked the destruction of Jerusalem to Israel's final rejection of Him as King and Savior (Matthew 21:33-43; 23:37, 38; Luke 19:41-44). This connection between rejecting the Messiah and the destruction of Jerusalem and the temple is the central message of Daniel 9:26-27. Applying this prophecy to Antiochus Epiphanes, who died in 164 BC, long before Jesus' birth, completely distorts the meaning of Daniel 8 and 9—the most important time prophecies in the Bible.

Case Closed

Lesson 19

The court is in session, the judgment has been pronounced... the case is closed! Few thoughts could be more sobering. The day is quickly approaching when the life of every person who has ever lived will be reviewed before the all-knowing eyes of God (2 Corinthians 5:10). But don't let this reality frighten you—take heart! Millions have already discovered the judgment message in this Study Guide to be incredibly good news! In the four instances where the book of Revelation mentions the final judgment, it results in praise and thanksgiving! But did you know that the Bible mentions judgment more than a thousand times? Almost every Bible writer refers to it, so its importance cannot be overstated. In the next few minutes, you will receive a clear understanding of this often-overlooked subject.

Phase One of the Final Judgment

1. The angel Gabriel gave Daniel the prophecy of the heavenly judgment in 1844. The first phase of the judgment is called the pre-advent judgment because it takes place before Jesus' second coming. Which group of people is considered in this first phase of judgment? When does it end?

"Judgment must begin at the house of God." (1 Peter 4:17). "He that is unjust, let him be unjust still: and he which is filthy, let him be filthy still: and he that is righteous, let him be righteous still: and he that is holy, let him be holy still. And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be." (Revelation 22:11, 12). (See also 1 Timothy 3:15.)

Answer: It ends just before Jesus' second coming. Those (both living and dead) who professed to be Christians—the "house of God"—will be considered in the pre-advent judgment. (The date 1844 is established in Study Guide 18.)

Jesus stands with His faithful people in judgment and promises them a positive verdict.

2. Who presides over the judgment? Who is the defense attorney? The judge? The prosecutor? Who are the witnesses?

"The Ancient of Days did sit, … his throne was like the fiery flame." "The judgment was set, and the books were opened." (Daniel 7:9, 10). "We have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous." (1 John 2:1). "The Father … has committed all judgment to the Son." (John 5:22). "The devil … the accuser of our brethren, who accused them before our God day and night, is cast down." (Revelation 12:9, 10). "These things says the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the beginning of the creation of God." (Revelation 3:14). (See also Colossians 1:12-15.)

Answer: God the Father, the Ancient of Days, presides over the judgment. He loves you deeply (John 16:27). Satan is your only accuser. In the heavenly court, Jesus—who loves you—is your advocate, your judge, and your witness. And He promises that the judgment will be "in favor of the saints" (Daniel 7:22, NEB).*

The evidence presented in the judgment comes from the books of heaven.

3. What is the source of the evidence used in the judgment before Christ's return? To what standard will everyone be judged? Since God already knows everything about everyone, why have a judgment?

"The court was seated, and the books were opened."
— Daniel 7:10

"The dead were judged according to their works, by the things which were written in the books."
— Revelation 20:12

"They… will be judged by the law of liberty."
— James 2:12

"We have been made a spectacle to the world, both to angels and to men."
— 1 Corinthians 4:9

Answer:
The evidence in the heavenly court comes from the books where every detail of a person's life is recorded. For the faithful, the record of prayers, repentance, and forgiveness of sins will be there for all to see. These records will show that God's power enables Christians to live transformed lives. God delights in His saints and will take joy in presenting the evidence of their faithful lives.

The judgment will confirm that “there is now no condemnation to those who are in Christ Jesus, who do not walk according to the flesh, but according to the Spirit.” (Romans 8:1).

The Ten Commandments are God’s standard in the judgment (James 2:10–12). Breaking His law is sin (1 John 3:4), and the righteousness of the law will be fulfilled by Jesus in all who believe in Him (Romans 8:3, 4). To claim that this is impossible is to question the truth of Jesus’ word and the power He provides.

The judgment is not to inform God—He already knows everything (2 Timothy 2:19). However, those who are redeemed will come to heaven from a world corrupted by sin. Angels and the inhabitants of other unfallen worlds would naturally have concerns about welcoming anyone who might bring sin back into God’s kingdom.

Thus, the judgment reveals every detail and answers every question. Satan’s goal has always been to portray God as unjust, cruel, unloving, and untrustworthy. This makes it even more essential for all beings in the universe to see how patient and fair God has been with sinners.

The primary purpose of the judgment is to vindicate God’s character (Revelation 11:16–19; 15:2–4; 16:5, 7; 19:1, 2; Daniel 4:36, 37). Notice that praise and glory are given to God for how He handles the judgment.

Every part of a person’s life will be reviewed in the judgment.

---

4. What part of a person’s life is considered in the judgment before Christ’s return? What will be confirmed? How will rewards be determined?

“God will bring every work into judgment, including every secret thing, whether good or evil.”
— Ecclesiastes 12:14

“Let both grow together until the harvest.”
— Matthew 13:30

“The Son of Man will send out His angels, and they will gather out of His kingdom all things that offend.”
— Matthew 13:41

“Behold, I am coming quickly, and My reward is with Me, to give to everyone according to his work.”
— Revelation 22:12

Answer:
Every detail of a person’s life will be reviewed—including thoughts and secret actions. For this reason, this first phase of judgment is also called the investigative judgment.

The judgment will confirm who will be saved among those who profess to be Christians. It will also verify who is lost—those whose names are not accepted during this investigative judgment.

Although we are saved by grace, rewards will be given according to our works—our actions and conduct—because they confirm the authenticity of a Christian’s faith (James 2:26).

The Second Phase of the Final Judgment

5. Which group is involved in the heavenly judgment during the 1,000 years of Revelation chapter 20? What is the purpose of this second phase of judgment?

“Do you not know that the saints will judge the world?… Do you not know that we shall judge angels?”
— 1 Corinthians 6:2, 3

“And I saw thrones, and they sat on them, and judgment was committed to them.”
— Revelation 20:4

Answer:
The “saints,” or the righteous of all ages whom Christ takes to heaven in the clouds at His second coming, will participate in this second phase of judgment.

Imagine a family discovering that their beloved son, who was murdered, is not in heaven—but the murderer is. They would certainly need some answers. This second phase of judgment will address all the questions of the righteous.

The life of every lost individual (including Satan and his angels) will be carefully examined by the righteous, who will fully agree with Jesus’ decisions regarding the reward for each person. It will become clear to everyone that judgment is not arbitrary. Instead, it simply confirms the choices people have already made to serve either Jesus or another master (Revelation 22:11, 12).

(For a review of the 1,000 years, see Study Guide 12.)”5-

6. When and where will the third phase of the final judgment take place? What new group will be present in this phase of judgment?
“On that day his feet will stand on the Mount of Olives, east of Jerusalem.” “Then the Lord my God will come, and all the holy ones with him.” “The whole land, from Geba to Rimmon south of Jerusalem, will become like the Arabah.” — Zechariah 14:4, 5, 10.
“I saw the Holy City, the new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God.” — Revelation 21:2.
“When the thousand years are over, Satan ... will go out to deceive the nations ... to gather them for battle.” — Revelation 20:7, 8.

The wicked will attempt to attack the Holy City.

Answer: The third phase of judgment will take place on Earth at the end of the 1,000 years described in Revelation 20, after Jesus returns to Earth with the Holy City. All the wicked who have ever lived, including Satan and his angels, will be present. At the end of the 1,000 years, all the wicked who have died throughout history will be resurrected (Revelation 20:5). Satan immediately launches a powerful propaganda campaign to deceive them. Shockingly, he succeeds in convincing the nations of the world that they can capture the Holy City.

7. What happens next?
“They marched across the breadth of the earth and surrounded the camp of God’s people, the city he loves.” — Revelation 20:9.

Answer: The wicked surround the city and prepare to attack it. The third phase of judgment will interrupt their plan to assault the city.

8. What halts their battle plan, and what will be the outcome?
“I saw the dead, great and small, standing before the throne, and books were opened. Another book was opened, which is the book of life. The dead were judged according to what they had done.” — Revelation 20:12.
“For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ.” — 2 Corinthians 5:10.
“As surely as I live, says the Lord, every knee will bow before me; every tongue will acknowledge God. So then, each of us will give an account of ourselves to God." — Romans 14:11, 12.

Answer: Without warning, God appears in dazzling brightness over the city (Revelation 19:11-21). The moment of truth has arrived. Every lost soul since the beginning of the world, including Satan and his angels, now faces God in judgment. Every eye is fixed on the King of kings (Revelation 20:12).

Each Person Sees Their Own Life Reviewed
Then every lost soul recalls their personal life story: God's persistent, loving calls to repentance, the quiet, gentle voice of conviction that was often rejected. Everything is revealed. The evidence is undeniable, and the truth is irrefutable. God wants the wicked to fully understand. He provides all necessary explanations to ensure complete clarity. The books and records are available for review.

Nothing Is Hidden
God is not involved in any kind of divine cover-up. No evidence has been destroyed, no records erased. Nothing is concealed. Everything is laid bare, and everyone who has ever lived—along with all the good and evil angels—witnesses this drama of all dramas.

The Lost Fall to Their Knees
Suddenly, there is movement. One lost soul falls to their knees, admitting their guilt and openly confessing that God was more than fair. Stubborn pride had prevented their surrender. Now, all around, people and even the evil angels fall to their knees. Then, in one final collective act, almost simultaneously, the entire assembly of lost people and evil angels—including Satan—prostrates themselves before God (Romans 14:11). They publicly clear God's name of all false accusations and testify that He has treated them with love, justice, and mercy.

All Admit the Judgment Is Just
Everyone acknowledges that the death sentence pronounced upon them is just—the only safe solution to the problem of sin. Of every lost person, it could be said: "You are destroyed, Israel, because you are against me, against your helper." — Hosea 13:9. God now stands vindicated before the entire universe. Satan's accusations and claims are exposed and conclusively discredited as malicious lies.

Fire from Heaven Will Eradicate Sin and Sinners Forever

9. What final steps will eliminate sin from the entire universe and prepare a safe and glorious future for the righteous?

“They surrounded the camp of God’s people ... but fire came down from heaven and devoured them. And the devil, who deceived them, was thrown into the lake of burning sulfur.” — Revelation 20:9, 10.
“You will trample on the wicked; they will be ashes under the soles of your feet.” — Malachi 4:3.
“See, I will create new heavens and a new earth.” — Isaiah 65:17.
“We are looking forward to a new heaven and a new earth, where righteousness dwells.” — 2 Peter 3:13.
“Look! God’s dwelling place is now among the people, and he will dwell with them.” — Revelation 21:3.

Answer: Fire from heaven will rain down upon the wicked. This fire will completely destroy sin and sinners from the universe forever. (See Study Guide 11 for a full explanation of the lake of fire.) This will be a time of deep sorrow and heartbreak for God’s people. Nearly everyone will have a loved one or friend consumed in the fire. Guardian angels will likely weep over the loss of those they protected and loved for so many years. Even Christ Himself will surely grieve for those He loved and pleaded with for so long. During this solemn moment, the indescribable sorrow of God, our loving Father, over the terrible cost of sin will be deeply felt.

A New Heaven and a New Earth
Then the Lord will wipe away every tear from the eyes of His redeemed people (Revelation 21:4) and create a new heaven and a new earth, more beautiful than words can describe, for His saints. Best of all, He will dwell here with His people for all eternity. No one would want to miss that.
The sacrificial animal represented Jesus’ sacrifice on the cross.

10. How did the “Day of Atonement” service in the earthly sanctuary of the Old Testament illustrate God’s judgment and His plan to remove sin from the world and restore complete harmony?
Answer: In Lesson Guide 2, we learned how Satan falsely accused and opposed God and brought the terrible evil of sin into the world. The Day of Atonement in ancient Israel symbolically taught how God would deal with the problem of sin and restore harmony to the universe.
(Atonement means “at-one-ment,” or “bringing all things into divine harmony.”)

In the earthly sanctuary, the symbolic steps included:

A. The Lord’s goat was sacrificed to cover the sins of the people.

B. The priest ministered the blood before the mercy seat.

C. Judgment was conducted through this process:
(1) The righteous were confirmed,
(2) The unrepentant were cut off, and
(3) The record of sin was removed from the sanctuary.

D. The record of sin was placed on the scapegoat (Azazel).

E. The scapegoat was sent into the wilderness.

F. The people were cleansed from their sins.

G. Everyone began a new year with a clean slate.

These five symbolic steps represent the actual atonement events initiated from the heavenly sanctuary—God's headquarters for the universe. Each point above corresponds to a real event in the divine plan of atonement:

A. Jesus' sacrificial death as a substitute for humanity (1 Corinthians 15:3; 5:7).

B. Jesus, as our High Priest, restoring people to the image of God (Hebrews 4:14-16; Romans 8:29).

C. Judgment reviews and confirms every life, revealing good and evil, and then removes the record of sin from the heavenly sanctuary (Revelation 20:12; Acts 3:19-21).

D. The responsibility for originating sin and leading humanity into sin is placed upon Satan (1 John 3:8; Revelation 22:12).

E. Satan is banished to the wilderness (the 1,000 years of Revelation 20).

F. Satan, sin, and sinners are permanently destroyed (Revelation 20:10; 21:8; Psalm 37:10, 20; Nahum 1:9).

G. A new earth is created for God's people. Everything lost through sin will be restored to the Lord's redeemed (2 Peter 3:13; Acts 3:20, 21).

Atonement will not be complete until the world and everything in it are fully restored to their pre-sin condition with the assurance that sin will never arise again.
After judgment, sin will disappear forever. The righteous will be safe for eternity.

11. What good news about the judgment is revealed in this Study Guide and summarized below?
Answer:

A. God and His way of handling the sin problem will be vindicated and glorified before the entire universe. This is the central purpose of the judgment.

B. The judgment will be decided in favor of God's people.

C. The righteous will be safe from sin forever.

D. Sin will be completely eradicated and will never arise again.

E. Everything Adam and Eve lost through sin will be restored to the redeemed.

F. The wicked will be reduced to ashes, not tortured forever.

G. In the judgment, Jesus is our Judge, Advocate, and Witness.

H. Both the Father and the Son love us. The devil is the accuser.

I. The heavenly records will support the righteous because they reveal how the grace of the gospel transformed their lives.

J. There is no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus. The judgment will only confirm this truth.

K. Not a single being (human or angel) will complain that God is unfair. All will agree that God has been loving, just, gracious, and kind in dealing with everyone.

12. God promises to set you free in the heavenly judgment if you invite Him into your life and allow Him to take control. Will you invite Him into your life today?

Thought Questions

1. What is the difference between accepting Jesus as my Savior and accepting Him as my Lord?

The difference is significant.

When I accept Him as my Savior, He saves me from the guilt and penalty of sin and gives me new birth. He transforms me from a sinner to a saint. This is a glorious miracle and is essential for salvation. No one can be saved without it. However, Jesus' work in me does not end there. I am born again, but His plan is for me to become like Him (Ephesians 4:13).
When I daily accept Him as the ruler, or Lord, of my life, He miraculously helps me grow in grace and Christian character until I reach maturity in Christ (2 Peter 3:18).

The Problem – I Want My Own Way
The issue is that I want to control my own life—to have my own way. The Bible calls this "iniquity" or sin (Isaiah 53:6). Making Jesus my Lord is so important that the New Testament refers to Him as "Lord" 766 times. In the book of Acts alone, He is called "Lord" 110 times and "Savior" only twice. This emphasizes the importance of recognizing Him as the Lord and Master of our lives.

A Forgotten Condition – Making Him Lord
Jesus repeatedly emphasized His Lordship because He knew it would be overlooked and neglected (2 Corinthians 4:5). Unless I make Him the Lord of my life, I cannot become a complete Christian clothed in Christ's righteousness. Instead, I will remain "wretched, miserable, poor, blind, and naked"—and worse, I will think that I "need nothing" (Revelation 3:17).

2. Since the record of God's people's sins was transferred to the scapegoat on the Day of Atonement, does that make him our sin-bearer as well? I thought only Jesus bore our sins.

The scapegoat (Azazel), who represents Satan, does not bear or atone for our sins in any way. The Lord's goat, sacrificed on the Day of Atonement, represents Jesus, who bore and paid for our sins at Calvary. Jesus alone "takes away the sin of the world" (John 1:29).

Satan will be punished (like all other sinners—Revelation 20:12-15) for his own sins, which include his responsibility for:
(1) The existence of sin,
(2) His evil actions, and
(3) Influencing everyone on earth to commit sin.

God will hold him fully accountable for his wickedness. This is the meaning of transferring the record of sins to the scapegoat (Satan) on the Day of Atonement.
3. The Bible is clear that God forgives all confessed sins (1 John 1:9). It is also clear that, although forgiven, the records of these sins remain in the books of heaven until the end of time (Acts 3:19-21). Why aren't sins erased when they are forgiven?

There is a very good reason. The judgment in heaven will not be complete until the judgment of the wicked takes place—just before their destruction at the end of the world. If God were to destroy the records before this final phase of judgment, He could be accused of a massive cover-up. All moral records remain open for review until the judgment is complete.

4. Some say judgment took place at the cross. Others say it happens at death. Can we be sure that the timing of judgment, as presented in this Study Guide, is correct?

Yes. To ensure that we can be certain about the timing of judgment, God clearly mentioned it three times in Daniel chapter 7. Pay attention to God's specific timing. God left no room for uncertainty. The divine sequence is described three times (verses 8-14, 20-22, 24-27) in this chapter as follows:

A. The power of the little horn – it reigned from AD 538 to 1798. (See Study Guide 15.)

B. Judgment – it begins after 1798 (in the year 1844) and continues until the second coming of Jesus.

C. God's new kingdom – established at the end of the judgment.

Therefore, God makes it clear that judgment does not occur at death or the cross but between 1798 and the second coming of Jesus. Remember that the message of the first angel includes the phrase, "The hour of His judgment has come" (Revelation 14:6, 7). God's people in the last days must be proclaiming to the world that the final judgment is now in session!

5. What important lessons can we learn from our study of judgment?

Consider the following five points:

A. God may seem to delay action, but His timing is perfect. No one who is lost will be able to say, "I didn't understand" or "I didn't know."

B. Satan and all forms of evil will ultimately be dealt with by God in judgment. Since judgment is God's work and He has all the truth, we should refrain from judging others and let God handle it. It is a serious matter for us to take on God's work of judgment—it is to usurp His authority.

C. God allows us all the freedom to decide how we will relate to Him and whom we will serve. However, we must be ready for the consequences when we choose against His Word.

D. God loves us so much that He has given us the books of Daniel and Revelation to clarify these end-time issues. Our only safety lies in listening to and following His counsel from these great prophetic books.

E. Satan is determined to destroy each of us. His deceptive strategies are effective and convincing enough that all but a very few will be ensnared. Without the power of Jesus' resurrection in our daily lives to protect us from Satan's traps, we will be destroyed by him.

The Mark of the Beast

Scriptures: Revelation 13:1-8, Revelation 14:9-18

Lesson 20

A tattoo number, a computer chip under the skin, or something more subtle? This is one of the most misinterpreted prophecies in the entire Bible—but it is crucial to understand this topic accurately. However, in studying the mark of the beast, we must address very sensitive issues, name names, and be specific. This is not a popular thing to do today, but we must be firm because God loves His people and wants them to know the truth. This message is not ours—it is Jesus' message. And with eternal death facing those who receive the mark, it would be a crime not to help Him deliver this message.

Perhaps this lesson should come with a warning: "THE DEVIL DOES NOT WANT YOU TO READ AND COMPLETE THIS STUDY GUIDE." Please read Revelation 13:1-8, 14:9-12, and 16-18, and pray for the Holy Spirit to give you a faithful and understanding heart before embarking on this study journey.

Quick Reminder

From Lesson 2, we learned that a fierce conflict is ongoing between God and Satan. This battle has been waged for centuries since Lucifer—the most powerful angel in heaven—rebelled against God. With angels who joined him, he sought to overthrow God and take control of the universe. God and His faithful angels had no choice but to cast Lucifer and his angels out of heaven. Lucifer, who became known as the Devil and Satan, was furious. His determination to destroy God and rule the world has only grown stronger over the years. Shockingly, most of the world's population supports him in his rebellion.

God also seeks people's loyalty and cooperation, but He allows everyone to choose freely. Soon, everyone on Earth will either align with Satan or God. The final battle between Satan and God is near and is described in the book of Revelation. This book reveals that God has a sign, or mark, identifying His people. Satan also has a mark that identifies those who follow him. As always, Satan will work through an earthly power—symbolized as a beast in Revelation—to enforce his mark.

This study guide will reveal the mark of the beast, which every lost person at the end of time will receive. Unless you know what his mark is, how can you avoid receiving it?

The Papacy is the Antichrist

1. To know what "the mark" is, we must first identify the beast. How does the Bible describe this beast?

Answer: Revelation 13:1-8, 16-18 gives 11 identifying characteristics listed below:

A. It rises out of the sea (verse 1).
B. It is a composite of the four beasts in Daniel 7 (verse 2).
C. The dragon gives it power and authority (verse 2).
D. It receives a deadly wound (verse 3).
E. The deadly wound heals (verse 3).
F. It becomes a powerful political entity (verses 3, 7).
G. It becomes a powerful religious organization (verses 3, 8).
H. It is guilty of blasphemy (verses 1, 5, 6).
I. It persecutes and kills the saints (verse 7).
J. It rules for 42 months (verse 5).
K. It has the mysterious number 666 (verse 18).

Do some of these points sound familiar? They should! We encountered many of them when studying the Antichrist in Daniel 7. The “beast” of Revelation 13 is another name for the Antichrist, which we learned from Daniel 7 is the papacy.

The prophecies of Daniel and Revelation often cover the same prophetic foundations but add new details that strengthen and confirm the prophecy. So, expect to learn new things about the Antichrist in this study guide. Let’s now examine these 11 identifying points one by one:

A. It would rise from the sea (Revelation 13:1).

In prophecy, sea (or water) represents people or a populated area (Revelation 17:15). Therefore, the beast, or Antichrist, would arise among established nations. The papacy indeed arose in Western Europe, which fits this point perfectly.

B. It would be a composite of the four beasts in Daniel 7 (Revelation 13:2).

Compare the beasts of Daniel 7 with the beast in Revelation 13:
Table##
The four beasts of Daniel 7 represent four world empires—Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece, and Rome. The beast in Revelation 13 combines characteristics of all these empires because the papacy adopted pagan beliefs from all four and spread them globally under a Christian disguise.

A historical quote supports this:
“In a way, the [papacy] copied its structure from the Roman Empire, preserved the philosophical ideas of Socrates, Plato, and Aristotle, and integrated practices from the Roman and Byzantine Empires, while remaining itself.”

C. It would receive its power, seat (capital city), and authority from the dragon (Revelation 13:2).

To identify the dragon, we refer to Revelation 12, where a pure woman symbolizes God’s true church (Jeremiah 6:2). This woman is about to give birth, and the dragon waits to devour the child. The child is clearly Jesus, whom Herod (under pagan Rome) tried to kill (Matthew 2:16). Thus, the dragon represents pagan Rome, but the power behind it was Satan (Revelation 12:7-9).

The papacy indeed received its capital and authority from pagan Rome, fulfilling this point.

D. It would receive a deadly wound (Revelation 13:3).

The deadly wound occurred in 1798 when Napoleon's general Berthier entered Rome and took Pope Pius VI captive. Napoleon decreed that the papacy should end. Pope Pius VI died in 1799, and many believed the papacy had perished.
E. The deadly wound would heal, and the whole world would marvel at the beast (Revelation 13:3).Since its healing, the papacy's power has grown exponentially. Today, it is one of the most influential religious and political organizations worldwide.
Malachi Martin, a former Jesuit and Vatican insider, confirms this in his book The Keys of This Blood, describing the papacy's global power and influence.
The study continues to identify further characteristics of the beast and how the papacy aligns with every prophetic detail. Understanding these points is crucial to avoid receiving the mark of the beast.
ABOUT THE POPE:
He is determined to be the ruler of the world like Constantine in his days (49). He is protected by four governments (120). He is the most recognized person of the 20th century (123). He is a personal friend of leaders from 91 countries (490). People worldwide view him as ready for a global moral government with control (160). Sixteen thousand journalists reported on his visit to America (490).

ABOUT THE PAPACY:

The U.S. ambassador says the Vatican is incomparable as a "listening post" (120). The Vatican knows by Saturday what will happen on Monday anywhere in the world (439). The papal structure is prepared for global governance now (143).

Clearly, the wound has healed, and the eyes of nations are on the Vatican, so this point also fits the papacy.

F. It would be a powerful political authority (Revelation 13:3, 7).
See point E above.

G. It would be a very powerful religious organization (Revelation 13:3, 8).
See point E above.

H. It would be guilty of blasphemy (Revelation 13:5, 6).
The papacy is guilty of blasphemy because its priests claim to forgive sins, and its popes claim to be Christ.

I. It would make war and persecute the saints (Revelation 13:7).
The papacy persecuted and killed millions of saints during the Dark Ages.

J. It would rule for 42 months (Revelation 13:5).
The papacy ruled for 42 prophetic months, equivalent to 1,260 years, from 538 to 1798 AD.

Points H through J also fit the papacy. We have briefly mentioned them here because they were covered in detail in Study Guide 15, Question 8, sections E, G, and H.

K. It would have the mysterious number 666 (Revelation 13:18).
This verse states, "It is the number of a man," and Revelation 15:2 says it is "the number of his name." Whom do you think of when you think of the papacy? Normally, we all think of the pope. What is his official title? Here is a Catholic quote: "The title of the pope of Rome is 'Vicarius Filii Dei' (English: 'Vicar of the Son of God')." Malachi Martin, in The Keys of This Blood, uses the same title for the pope on pages 114 and 122. The footnote of Revelation 13:18 in some editions of the Douay [Catholic] Bible says, "The letters of his name shall make up this number."

Again, the papacy matches the identification of the beast with the "mark." No other power in history could align with these divine descriptions. Now that we have identified the beast, we can discover its mark or sign of authority. But first, let's look at God's Word to understand the mark of authority.

The Sabbath as a Sign or Symbol of God’s Power

2. What is the Sign or Symbol of God’s Authority?
“I also gave them my Sabbaths as a sign between me and them, so that they would know that I, the LORD, made them holy.” (Ezekiel 20:12)
“It is a sign between me and the Israelites forever; for in six days the LORD made the heavens and the earth.” (Exodus 31:17)

Answer: The Scriptures above state that God gave us His Sabbath as a glorious sign of His power to create and His power to sanctify (transform and save) us. In the Bible, the words seal, sign, mark, and token are used interchangeably. The sign of God—the Sabbath—represents His holy power to rule as both Creator and Savior. Revelation 7:1-3 states that it will be written on the foreheads (minds, Hebrews 10:16) of His people. It will signify that they belong to Him and have His character. Hebrews 4:4-10 confirms this by saying that when we enter into His rest (receive salvation), we are to keep His seventh-day Sabbath as a sign, or symbol, of salvation.

True Sabbath observance signifies that a person has surrendered their life to Jesus Christ and is willing to follow Him wherever He leads.

Since the sign, or mark, of God’s authority and power is His holy Sabbath day, it logically follows that the sign, or mark, of God’s opponent—the beast—might also involve a holy day. Let’s see if it does.

(Compare Genesis 17:11 with Romans 4:11 and Revelation 7:3 with Ezekiel 9:4.)

Sunday as a Holy Day Is the Mark of the Beast, or a Sign of Authority

3. What Does the Papacy Say Is Its Sign or Mark of Authority?

Answer: Consider the following excerpt from a Catholic catechism:

“Question: Have you any other way of proving that the Church has power to institute festivals of precept?”

“Answer: Had she not such power, she could not have done that in which all modern religionists agree with her—she could not have substituted the observance of Sunday, the first day of the week, for the observance of Saturday, the seventh day—a change for which there is no scriptural authority.” (8)

Therefore, the papacy here claims that it changed the Sabbath to Sunday and that nearly all churches accepted the new holy day. Hence, the papacy asserts that Sunday as a holy day is the mark, or sign, of its authority and power.

(8 Stephen Keenan, A Doctrinal Catechism [FRS No. 7.], (3rd American ed., rev.: New York, Edward Dunigan & Bro., 1876), p. 174.)

Changing the Sabbath to Sunday Involves Altering God’s Law—A Very Serious Matter

4. Did God Predict This Change in the Scriptures?

Answer: Yes! In describing the Antichrist in Daniel 7:25, God said it would “intend to change times and law.”

A. How Has the Papacy Attempted to Change God’s Law?
In three distinct ways:

1. In its catechisms, it has omitted the second commandment against idolatry.

2. It has shortened the fourth commandment (Sabbath) from 94 words to just eight. The original Sabbath commandment (Exodus 20:8-11) clearly states that the Sabbath is the seventh day of the week. As changed by the papacy, the commandment reads: “Remember that you keep holy the Sabbath day.” Stated this way, it could refer to any day.

3. It divided the tenth commandment into two separate commandments.

B. How Has the Papacy Attempted to Change God’s Times?
In two ways:

1. It changed the time of the Sabbath from the seventh day to the first day.

2. It also altered God's biblical reckoning of time for the Sabbath. Instead of observing the Sabbath from sunset Friday to sunset Saturday (as commanded in Leviticus 23:32), it adopted the pagan Roman practice of counting a day from midnight to midnight.

God foretold that these "changes" would be attempted by the beast, or the Antichrist.

Here is Another Statement from a Catholic Catechism:

"Question: Which is the Sabbath day?"

"Answer: Saturday is the Sabbath day."

"Question: Why do we observe Sunday instead of Saturday?"

"Answer: We observe Sunday instead of Saturday because the Catholic Church transferred the solemnity from Saturday to Sunday." (9)

Here is another Catholic statement:
"The Church is above the Bible, and this transference of Sabbath observance from Saturday to Sunday is proof of that fact." (10)

The papacy states in these references that its successful change of Sabbath observance to Sunday worship is evidence that its authority is superior to, or "above," the Scriptures.

(9 Peter Geiermann, The Convert's Catechism of Catholic Doctrine (St. Louis, B. Herder Book Co., 1957 ed.), p. 50.)

10. The Catholic Record (London, Ontario, Canada, September 1, 1923).
The papacy changed the Sabbath to Sunday.

5. How could anyone dare to try to change God's holy day?
Answer: We ask the papacy, "Did you really change the Sabbath to Sunday?"

They answer, "Yes, we did. It is our mark or sign of authority and power."

We ask, "How could you even think of doing that?"

It is an important question. But the question that the papacy officially asks Protestants is even more significant. Please read it carefully:

"You will tell me that Saturday was the Jewish Sabbath, but that the Christian Sabbath has been changed to Sunday. Changed! But by whom? Who has the authority to change the clear command of Almighty God? When God said, 'Keep the seventh day holy,' who dares to say, 'No, you may work and do all worldly things on the seventh day, but you shall keep the first day holy instead'?

The question that I do not know how you will answer is this: You are a Protestant, and you claim to go by the Bible and the Bible alone. Yet, in such a crucial matter as keeping one day out of seven holy, you go against the clear letter of the Bible and keep another day in place of the one commanded by the Bible.

The command to keep the seventh day holy is one of the Ten Commandments. You believe the other nine still bind you. Who gave you the authority to tamper with the fourth? If you are consistent with your principles—if you truly follow the Bible and the Bible alone—you should be able to provide a portion of the New Testament where this fourth commandment has been explicitly changed."

11. The Library of Christian Doctrine: Why Don't You Keep Holy the Sabbath Day? (London: Burns and Oates, Ltd.), p. 3, 4.

Sadly, both Catholicism and Protestantism stand guilty before the heavenly judgment seat for rejecting God's holy Sabbath, His sacred sign of identity. Religious leaders who disregard God's holy Sabbath will face His wrath.

6. What solemn warnings has God given concerning His law and His sign or mark?
Answer:
A. God warns religious leaders against causing people to stumble by saying that some commandments do not matter (Malachi 2:7-9). For example, some ministers teach, "It does not matter which day you keep holy."

B. God warns people who want their ministers to preach lies instead of the truth about His law (Isaiah 30:9, 10).

C. God warns people against hardening their hearts against the truth of His law (Zechariah 7:12).

D. God warns those who say it would be "strange" to obey His law, such as the Sabbath (Hosea 8:12).

E. God says that chaos, disasters, troubles, and world problems come because people refuse to follow His law and have even tried to change it (Isaiah 24:4-6).

F. God warns religious leaders who refuse to preach the end-time prophecies (Isaiah 29:10, 11).

G. God sternly warns that leaders who teach there is no difference between the holy (such as God's holy Sabbath) and the common (such as Sunday) will face His wrath (Ezekiel 22:26, 31).

The forehead represents the mind. People will receive a mark on their foreheads by observing Sunday as a holy day.

7. Revelation 13:16 says people will receive the mark of the beast on their forehead or their hand. What does this mean?
Answer: The forehead represents the mind (Hebrews 10:16). A person will be marked on their forehead by choosing to keep Sunday as a holy day.

The hand symbolizes work (Ecclesiastes 9:10). A person will be marked on their hand by working on God's holy Sabbath or by following Sunday laws for practical reasons (such as work or family).

The mark, whether for God or the beast, will not be visible to people. Essentially, you will mark yourself by accepting either God's sign—the Sabbath—or the beast's mark—Sunday. Though it is unseen by humans, God will know who has the mark (2 Timothy 2:19).

8. According to Isaiah 58:1, 13, 14, what crucial message does God give to His people in the last days?
"Shout aloud, do not hold back; raise your voice like a trumpet; declare to My people their rebellion."
"If you turn your foot from breaking the Sabbath, from doing your pleasure on My holy day, and call the Sabbath a delight... then you shall delight yourself in the Lord." (Isaiah 58:1, 13, 14).

Answer: He says to show "My people" that they are sinning (perhaps unknowingly) by trampling on His holy day and to urge them to stop breaking His Sabbath so He can bless them. Speak loudly so they can hear!

Note that the third angel of Revelation 14:9-12, who brings the message about the mark of the beast, also speaks with a loud voice (verse 9). The message is too important to treat casually. It is a matter of life or death. Jesus says His sheep—His people—will follow Him when He calls (John 10:16, 27).

9. Do people who worship on Sunday (as a holy day) have the mark of the beast now?
Answer: No! No one will receive the mark of the beast until Sunday worship is enforced by law. At that time (in the future), those who choose to follow the beast's false teachings and worship on Sunday (the beast's counterfeit holy day) will receive the mark of the beast.

Those who follow Jesus and obey His truth will keep the Sabbath holy and receive His seal. Those who expect to reject the mark of the beast in the future must now come under the banner of Jesus' Sabbath. His power is available to those who obey Him (Acts 5:32). Without Him, we can do nothing (John 15:5). With Him, all things are possible (Mark 10:27).

10. According to the book of Revelation, whom did John specifically see in God's eternal kingdom?
Answer: The answer is threefold and crystal clear:

A. Those who have God's seal or sign (His Sabbath) on their foreheads (Revelation 7:3).

B. Those who refused to identify with the beast or its image and who rejected its mark or name on their foreheads (Revelation 15:2).

C. People who today and forever follow wherever Jesus leads, trusting Him completely (Revelation 14:4). There is no other way.

Following Jesus must include keeping His seventh-day Sabbath holy.

11. What does Jesus tell people today?
"I am the light of the world. Whoever follows Me will never walk in darkness but will have the light of life." (John 8:12).

Answer: What a wonderful promise! If we follow Him, we will not end up in darkness but will have His glorious truth. Nothing could be more exciting!

Furthermore, following Him and keeping His Sabbath will place God's seal on our foreheads and protect us from the terrifying plagues (Psalm 91:10) that will fall on the disobedient (Revelation 16). It also marks us as ready for Jesus' second coming.

What a blessing it is to have God's protection and assurance!

Urgent Warning
You will discover some astonishing information as you study the last three lessons of the Nine Study Guides, which address the three angels' messages of Revelation 14:6-14. These Study Guides will explain (1) the role of the United States in the final conflict of the world, (2) how churches and world religions will be involved, (3) what global conditions will trigger the final world battle, and (4) Satan's remarkable strategy to deceive billions.

Perhaps you are wondering what Protestant churches say about the papal claims to have changed the Sabbath to Sunday. The quotes found in the "Your Thought Questions Answered" section of this lesson will provide shocking answers.

12. I have now decided to begin keeping His seventh-day Sabbath (Saturday) as His holy day and to follow Him wherever He leads.

Thought Questions

1. What do other preachers and pastors say about the Sabbath and Sunday?
Answer:
Here are various statements from churches and other authorities regarding the Sabbath:

Baptist:
"There was and is a commandment to 'keep holy the Sabbath day,' but that Sabbath day was not Sunday. ... It will be said, however, and with some show of triumph, that the Sabbath was transferred from the seventh to the first day of the week. ... Where can the record of such a transaction be found? Not in the New Testament—absolutely not. There is no scriptural evidence of the change of the Sabbath institution from the seventh day to the first day of the week."
— Dr. Edward T. Hiscox, author of The Baptist Manual, in a paper read before a meeting of Baptist ministers in New York on November 13, 1893.

Catholic:
"You may read the Bible from Genesis to Revelation, and you will not find a single line authorizing the sanctification of Sunday. The Scriptures enforce the religious observance of Saturday, a day which we [Catholics] never sanctify."
— James Cardinal Gibbons, The Faith of Our Fathers, 16th edition, 1880, p. 111.

Church of Christ:
"Finally, we have the testimony of Christ upon this subject. In Mark 2:27, He says, 'The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath.' From this passage, it is clear that the Sabbath was made not just for the Israelites, as Paley and Hengstenberg would have us believe, but for mankind ... that is, for the entire race, and that it was given to Adam, even in Eden, as one of those primeval institutions which God designed for the benefit of all humanity."
— Robert Milligan, Scheme of Redemption, (St. Louis, The Bethany Press, 1962), p. 165.

Congregationalist:
"The Christian Sabbath [Sunday] is not in the Scriptures, and was not called the Sabbath by the early Church."
— Dwight's Theology, Vol. 4, p. 401.

Episcopal:
"Sunday (Dies Solis, of the Roman calendar, 'day of the sun,' because it was dedicated to the sun), the first day of the week, was adopted by early Christians as a day of worship... There is no regulation for its observance in the New Testament, nor, indeed, any indication that the observance was to be commanded."
— "Sunday," A Religious Encyclopedia, Vol. 3, (New York, Funk & Wagnalls, 1883), p. 2259.

Lutheran:
"The observance of the Lord's Day [Sunday] is founded not on any command of God, but on the authority of the Church."
— Augsburg Confession of Faith, quoted in Catholic Sabbath Manual, Part 2, Chapter 1, Section 10.

Methodist:
"Take the matter of Sunday. There is no clear scriptural evidence that the early church observed the first day of the week as a day of worship, and there is no text telling Christians to observe that day or to transfer the Jewish Sabbath to it."
— Harris Franklin Rall, Christian Advocate, July 2, 1942.

Moody Bible Institute:
"The Sabbath was binding in Eden, and it has been in force ever since. This fourth commandment begins with the word 'remember,' showing that the Sabbath already existed when God wrote the law on stone tablets at Sinai. How can men claim that this one commandment has been abolished when they will admit that the other nine are still binding?"

— D.L. Moody, Weighed and Wanting, p. 47.

Presbyterian:
"Until, therefore, it can be shown that the whole moral law has been repealed, the Sabbath will stand.... The teachings of Christ confirm the perpetuity of the Sabbath."
— T.C. Blake, D.D., Theology Condensed, pp. 474, 475.

Pentecostal:
"'Why do we worship on Sunday? Does not the Bible teach us that Saturday should be the Lord's Day?' ... It seems we must seek the answer from some other source than the New Testament."
— David A. Womack, "Is Sunday the Lord's Day?" The Pentecostal Evangel, August 9, 1959, No. 2361, p. 3.

Encyclopedia:
"Sunday was the name given by the heathens to the first day of the week because it was the day on which they worshipped the sun, ... the seventh day was blessed and sanctified by God Himself, ... and He requires His creatures to keep it holy to Him. This command is universal and perpetual."
— Eadie's Biblical Cyclopedia, 1872 ed., p. 561.

America in Bible Prophecy

Lesson 21
Could it be true? America in Bible prophecy—absolutely! When you think about it, it makes sense that the most powerful and influential nation in the world would play a key role in the astounding closing events of earth's history. But even more amazing things await you as the Bible reveals how the world's leading nation came to be and why! Please read Revelation 13:11-18 before beginning this guide, because these eight verses provide a prophetic picture of America's future.

The beast of Revelation 13:1-10 represents the papacy.

1. Two major world powers are represented in Revelation chapter 13. What is the first one?

Answer: The beast with seven heads (Revelation 13:1-10) is none other than the Roman Papacy.
(See Study Guide 15 for a complete lesson on this topic.) Remember that beasts in Bible prophecy represent nations or world powers (Daniel 7:17, 23). In 1798, General Berthier inflicted a deadly wound on the papacy by taking the pope captive.

2. In what year was the papacy predicted to lose its worldwide influence and power?

“And he was given authority to continue for forty-two months.” (Revelation 13:5)

Answer: The Bible predicted that the papacy would lose its global influence and power at the end of the 42 months. This prophecy was fulfilled in 1798, when Napoleon’s General Berthier took the pope captive, and the papal power suffered a deadly wound. (For full details, see Study Guide 15.)

The Beast of Revelation 13:11-18 Represents America

3. Which nation was prophesied to arise at the same time the papacy was receiving a deadly wound?
“Then I saw another beast coming up out of the earth, and he had two horns like a lamb and spoke like a dragon.” (Revelation 13:11)

Answer:
The captivity of the pope mentioned in verse 10 occurred in 1798, and a new power (verse 11) appeared at that time. The United States declared its independence in 1776, adopted the Constitution in 1787, ratified the Bill of Rights in 1791, and was recognized as a world power by 1798. This timeline corresponds with the United States. No other power fits these criteria.

Prophecy foretold that America would arise from a sparsely populated area.

4. What does it mean that the beast “comes up out of the earth”?
Answer:
This nation rises “out of the earth” instead of the sea, as the other nations described in Daniel and Revelation did. We know from Revelation that water represents areas with large populations:
“The waters which you saw, where the harlot sits, are peoples, multitudes, nations, and tongues.” (Revelation 17:15)

Therefore, the earth represents the opposite – a sparsely populated area. This means that this new nation would arise from a part of the world that was largely unpopulated before the late 1700s. It could not arise among the crowded and struggling nations of the Old World. It had to emerge in a land with fewer inhabitants.

5. What do its two lamb-like horns and the absence of crowns symbolize?
Answer:
Horns represent kings and kingdoms, or governments (Daniel 7:24; 8:21). In this case, they symbolize the two governing principles of America: civil liberty and religious freedom. These two principles are also called “republicanism” (a government without a king) and “Protestantism” (a church without a pope).

Unlike many nations in history, which taxed their citizens to support state religions and oppressed religious dissenters, America introduced something entirely new – the freedom to worship as one chooses without government interference and with government protection. The absence of crowns indicates a republican form of government rather than a monarchy.

The lamb-like horns suggest a nation that is innocent, young, non-oppressive, peace-loving, and spiritual. Jesus is referred to as the Lamb 28 times in the book of Revelation, indicating that this new government sought to uphold Christ-like principles. No other power on earth fits the characteristics and timeline of the lamb-like beast except the United States.

Special Note:
How we wish the description of America ended here, but it does not, because Jesus did not stop there. What follows is shocking and distressing.

The United States is indeed a great nation—protecting freedom of conscience, the press, speech, and enterprise. Its generosity, compassion for the underprivileged, and strong Christian heritage are remarkable. Although not perfect, millions from other nations rush to become American citizens each year. If America’s doors were opened wide, a large portion of the world’s population would immediately move there, viewing it as “heaven on earth.”

Sadly, this greatly blessed nation will undergo drastic changes in the future, causing unprecedented sorrow and distress for God’s people. We report this with calmness and deep concern.

America in the End Times Will Force People to Worship or Face Punishment

6. What does it mean when prophecy in Revelation 13:11 says America will speak “like a dragon”?
Answer:
As we learned in Study Guide 20, the dragon is Satan, who works through various governments to establish his evil kingdom and crush God’s church by persecuting and destroying His people. Satan's ultimate goal has always been to seize the authority and throne of God and to force people to worship and obey him (see Study Guide 2 for more details).

So, when America "speaks like a dragon," it means that the United States (under Satan's influence) will, in the last days, force people to worship against their consciences or face punishment.

Apostate Religion and Civil Governments Will Unite in the End Times to Force Consciences

7. What will America do that causes it to speak like a dragon?
Answer:
Consider these four critical actions:

A. "He exercises all the authority of the first beast in his presence." (Revelation 13:12)
The United States will become a persecuting power, forcing people to violate their consciences, just as the papal power described in the first half of Revelation 13 did.

B. "He causes the earth and those who dwell in it to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was healed." (Revelation 13:12)
The United States will lead the world in forcing worship and obedience to the papal Antichrist. The ultimate issue will be worship. Whom will you worship and obey—Christ the Creator and Redeemer, or the Antichrist?

The entire movement will appear highly spiritual. Miraculous signs will occur (Revelation 13:14, 15), deceiving billions (Revelation 13:3). Those who refuse to join the movement will be seen as extremists. Jesus refers to end-time Protestant America as the "false prophet" (Revelation 19:20; 20:10) because it will appear righteous but will act in a Satanic manner.

C. "Telling those who dwell on the earth to make an image to the beast." (Revelation 13:14)
The United States will create an image of the beast by enforcing religious laws. This will mirror the union of church and state used by the papacy during the Middle Ages when millions were martyred for their faith.

D. "And cause as many as would not worship the image of the beast to be killed." (Revelation 13:15)
The United States will eventually influence all nations to impose a worldwide death decree on those who refuse to worship the beast or his image.
---

8. What specific issues will lead to the use of force and the death decree?
"He was granted power to give breath to the image of the beast ... and cause as many as would not worship the image of the beast to be killed. And no one may buy or sell except one who has the mark or the name of the beast." (Revelation 13:15-17)

Answer:
The final conflict will center on worship and obedience to the beast—Sunday as a holy day—versus worship and obedience to Christ—His seventh-day Sabbath.

When issues become clear, and people are forced to choose between worshiping on Sunday or Sabbath, those who choose Sunday over the Sabbath will, in essence, worship the beast.
---

9. Can the government really control buying and selling?
Answer:
During World War II, purchasing certain goods (like sugar, tires, and gasoline) was controlled through ration stamps. Without these stamps, money was useless.

In our computerized age, a system using Social Security numbers or other identifiers could easily track and restrict transactions. Although we do not know the exact method, we can be certain that it will happen, as Revelation 13:16-17 clearly states.

Two Emerging Powers
Revelation chapter 13 is clear. Two great nations will emerge in the end times: the United States and the Papacy. The United States will support the Papacy by leading the effort to force the people of the world to worship the beast (the Papacy) and receive its mark, or face death. The following two questions will evaluate the power of these two great nations.

The Papacy is the most powerful religious and political authority in the world.

10. How much power and influence does the Papacy have today?
Answer: It is the most powerful religious and political authority in the world. Nearly every leading nation has an official ambassador or government representative at the Vatican. Consider the following facts:

A. The Papacy holds such tremendous influence and power that almost every major nation consults with it before making major policy decisions. "Its large diplomatic corps maintains relations with more than 100 nations." U.S. News and World Report, October 30, 1978, p. 24.

B. It takes credit for the fall of communism, claiming that Mary, the mother of Jesus, guided the pope's strategy to bring down communism. "Handmaid or Feminist," Time, December 30, 1991, pp. 64, 65.

C. The pope's goal is to unite the Christian world under papal leadership by the end of this century. He has made over 40 world trips to lay the groundwork for this goal. Gene H. Hogberg, The Plain Truth, November/December 1989, pp. 24, 25.

D. The global response has been remarkably close. During the Iraq crisis, the pope and the U.S. president sometimes discussed world issues weekly by telephone. U.S. News and World Report, August 13, 1990, p. 18.

E. On June 7, 1982, former President Ronald Reagan and Pope John Paul II met for 50 minutes at the Vatican and formed a plan to eliminate communism. The United States shipped tons of advanced communication equipment to Poland (the starting point) to help spread vital information to citizens. "The Holy Alliance," Time, February 1992, pp. 28, 31, 35.

F. Gorbachev said, "Everything that happened in Eastern Europe in recent years would not have been possible without the pope's efforts and the significant role, including the political role, he played on the world stage." Mikhail Gorbachev, Toronto Star, March 9, 1992.

The Papacy, which once referred to Protestants as "heretics," now calls them "separated brethren" and graciously suggests that all work and pray together for peace and God's presence. Millions of Protestants are deeply drawn to this appeal. Indeed, several Protestant denominations have engaged in formal talks with the Papacy to resolve differences that caused the Reformation.

America is the world's leading military power.

11. How much power and influence does the United States have today?
Answer: The United States is considered the world's leading military power and the center of global influence. Consider the following:

A. "[America is] the only remaining superpower on the planet." "The UN Obsession," Time, May 9, 1994, p. 86.

B. "There is no prospect in the immediate future of any power to rival the United States." Charles Krauthammer, "The Lonely Superpower," The New Republic, July 29, 1992, p. 23.

C. Yassir Arafat referred to America as the "new Rome" because, just as ancient Rome was the unrivaled power of its time, the United States is now number one. Newsweek, August 12, 1991, p. 33.

D. "America's power now determines all major global events." Jim Hoagland, "Of Heroes ...," The Washington Post, August 21, 1991, p. A-23.

When a Marxist group overthrew Ethiopia's government, America was asked to mediate. When Boris Yeltsin took power as president of the new independent Russia, his first visit was to the United States. Former USSR President Mikhail Gorbachev turned to America in his crisis. When Kuwait was invaded, its government sought help from America. The U.S.-led war against Iraq was supported by nearly the entire world.

A National Public Radio journalist referred to the U.S. president as the "president of the world." We now have "an unusual structure of a unipolar world, with the United States at the apex of the international system." Krauthammer, The New Republic, p. 23.

All nations of the world now look to the United States for protection and support.

12. It is clear that the influence and authority of the United States and the Papacy are rapidly increasing. What other factors might help lay the foundation for a global law to kill those who refuse to violate their conscience?
Answer: We cannot say for certain, but some emerging factors include the following:

A. Terrorist activities.
B. Unrest and the increase of crime and evil.
C. The war on drugs.
D. Major economic collapse.
E. AIDS and other epidemic diseases.
F. Nuclear threats from radical nations.
G. Political corruption.
H. Severe injustice in the courts.
I. Welfare abuse.
J. Increasing taxes.
K. Pornography and rampant immorality.
L. Terrifying global disasters.
M. Radical "special interest" groups.
N. The abortion crisis.
A backlash against corruption, lawlessness, immorality, permissiveness, injustice, poverty, weak and incompetent political leaders, and many similar woes could easily spark demands for strict laws, especially if they are enforced with determination.

13. When the world's condition worsens, what will Satan do to deceive many people?
"And he performs great signs, so that he even makes fire come down from heaven on the earth in the sight of men. And he deceives those who dwell on the earth by those signs which he was granted to do in the sight of the beast, telling those who dwell on the earth to make an image to the beast who was wounded by the sword and lived." — Revelation 13:13, 14.

Answer:
The United States will experience a false revival worldwide and will push for religious laws to be passed, forcing everyone to participate. (This is represented by the "image of the beast" in Revelation 13:14.) People will be required to ignore God's holy seventh-day Sabbath and instead worship on the beast's "holy" day—Sunday. Some will comply for social or economic reasons.

The world's conditions will become so unbearable that a global movement calling for a "return to God and prayer," including worship and prayer on Sunday, will seem to be the only solution. Satan will deceive the world into believing that accepting the Bible's truth and honoring Sunday is necessary. However, obeying and worshiping the beast will exclude people from God's kingdom. No wonder Jesus warns about worshiping the beast and receiving its mark in Revelation!

In the last days, God's message of final hope will reach everyone.

14. While interest in the false revival increases, what will be happening with the true worldwide revival led by God's people in the end times?

Answer:
The Bible says the entire world will be "illuminated" by God's glory (Revelation 18:1). Everyone on earth will be reached (Mark 16:15) with God's final message, which is the threefold message of Revelation 14:6-14.

God's last-day church will grow rapidly as millions join His people, accepting His offer of salvation through free grace and faith in Jesus, transforming them into His obedient servants. Many people and leaders from all nations will refuse to worship the beast and embrace its false teachings. Instead, they will worship and obey Jesus alone. They will receive His holy sign—the Sabbath—on their foreheads (Revelation 7:2, 3), sealing them for eternity.

Growing Revival Angers the False Movement
This increasing growth among God's people will anger the false movement. Its leaders will become convinced that those refusing to participate in the false global revival are the cause of the world's troubles (Daniel 11:44). They will deny them the right to buy and sell (Revelation 13:16, 17), but God will feed (Isaiah 33:16) and protect His people (Psalm 34:7).

Satan's Greatest Deception—Impersonating Christ

15. In desperation, what will the U.S.-led coalition eventually decide to do to its enemies (Revelation 13:15)? What will its leaders do to convince people that God is with them?

Answer:
They will perform miraculous signs convincing everyone except God's faithful people (Matthew 24:24). Using spirits (or fallen angels) from Satan (Revelation 16:13, 14), they will impersonate dead loved ones through spiritualism (Revelation 18:23) and may even claim to be prophets and apostles of the Bible.

These lying spirits (John 8:44) will insist that God sent them to encourage everyone to join the movement.

Satan Appears as Christ—His Angels Impersonate Christian Ministers
Satan's angels will also appear as God-fearing pastors, and Satan will present himself as an angel of light (2 Corinthians 11:13-15). As his ultimate deception, Satan will claim to be Jesus (Matthew 24:23, 24).

Pretending to be Christ, Satan could easily claim that he changed the Sabbath to Sunday and encourage his followers to maintain their global revival and observe his "holy" day—Sunday.

Billions Will Be Deceived
Believing Satan is Jesus, billions will bow at his feet and join the false movement. "The whole world marveled and followed the beast." — Revelation 13:3 (NEB).*

This deception will have enormous consequences. However, God's end-time people will not be deceived because they test everything by the Bible (Isaiah 8:19, 20; 2 Timothy 2:15). The Bible says God's law cannot be changed (Matthew 5:18). It also states that when Jesus returns, every eye will see Him (Revelation 1:7), and He will not touch the earth but remain in the clouds and call His people to meet Him in the air (1 Thessalonians 4:16, 17).

16. How can we stay safe from the powerful deceptions of the last days?

Answer:

A. Test every teaching by the Bible (2 Timothy 2:15; Acts 17:11; Isaiah 8:19, 20).

B. Follow the truth as Jesus reveals it. He promises that those who do so will never end up in error (John 7:17).

C. Stay close to Jesus daily (John 15:5).

Reminder: This is Study Guide 6 in our series of nine on the three angels' messages. The next Study Guide will show how Christian churches and other world religions will respond to end-time events.

17. Are you willing to worship and obey Jesus, even if it means facing ridicule, persecution, and ultimately the death penalty?

Answer:

Reflection Questions

1. It seems unfair that, during the final crisis, people who never heard God's truth before will unknowingly choose the counterfeit and be lost.

No one will face the final crisis without first hearing (Mark 16:15) and understanding (John 1:9) God's vital last-day message (Revelation 14:6). People will choose to receive the mark of the beast at that time simply because they do not want to pay the price of following Christ.

2. What is the battle of Armageddon mentioned in Revelation 16:12-16? When and where will it be fought?

The battle of Armageddon is the final war between Christ and Satan. It will be fought on earth and begin just before the end of time. The battle will be interrupted by Jesus' second coming. It will resume after 1,000 years when the wicked surround the Holy City, hoping to capture it. The battle will end when God sends fire from heaven to destroy the wicked (Revelation 20:9). Study Guide 12 explains the 1,000 years in detail.

What Does "Armageddon" Mean?
Armageddon is a symbolic name for the "battle of the great day of God Almighty" between Christ and Satan, involving all the nations of the world (Revelation 16:12-16, 19).

The "kings of the east" represent God the Father and God the Son. In the Bible, "the east" symbolizes God's heavenly kingdom (Revelation 7:2; Ezekiel 43:2; Matthew 24:27).

In this final battle, nearly the entire world will unite (Revelation 16:14) to fight against Jesus, the Lamb, and His people (Revelation 17:14; 19:19). Their aim will be to destroy all who refuse to worship the beast and accept his mark (Revelation 13:15-17).
Deception Follows Rejection
People who reject God's last-day threefold message (even though they know it is true) will be so deceived that they will sincerely believe they are supporting God's kingdom by attempting to destroy His people (2 Thessalonians 2:10-12).

They will view the saints as stubborn, hopeless fanatics who are destroying the entire world by refusing to join the false global revival.

The Second Coming of Jesus Will Stop the War
The war will be worldwide. Governments will simultaneously attempt to destroy God's people, but God will intervene. The symbolic Euphrates River will dry up (Revelation 16:12). The waters represent people (Revelation 17:15). The drying up of the Euphrates means that the people who have been supporting the beast (Satan's kingdom) will suddenly withdraw their support. The beast's support will dry up. Its alliance (Revelation 16:13, 14) will collapse (Revelation 16:19). The second coming of Jesus will stop this war and save His people (Revelation 6:14-17; 16:18-21; 19:11-20).

War Resumes After 1,000 Years
After the 1,000 years, Satan will openly emerge as the leader of armies against God and His people. He will once again wage war against God as he tries to seize the Holy City. Then Satan and his followers will be destroyed by fire from heaven (see Study Guides 11 and 12). Every follower of Satan will be destroyed. Every follower of Jesus will enter His eternal kingdom.

3. The Bible says, "The time is coming when anyone who kills you will think they are offering a service to God" (John 16:2). Do you think this will be literally fulfilled in our time?

Yes. The final-day alliance of world governments and religions will eventually lose all compassion for God's people who refuse to join the counterfeit revival or accept its mark (Sunday worship). They will believe that the miraculous signs accompanying their revival prove its authenticity—signs like healing the sick or the conversion of notorious God-haters, immoral movie stars, drug lords, and infamous criminals. This alliance will insist that no one should be allowed to disrupt this global revival uniting all religions. Everyone will be urged to set aside personal feelings and "stubborn doctrines" (such as the Sabbath) and join the worldwide movement for peace and brotherhood. Everything else will be considered secondary. Those who refuse to comply will be viewed as disloyal, unpatriotic, anti-Christ, and ultimately as dangerous fanatics who should not be tolerated. On that day, those who kill God's people will believe they are doing God a service.

4. When I study the prophecies of Daniel and Revelation, it seems clear that the real enemy is always the devil. Do you agree?
Absolutely! You are 100% correct! Satan is always the true enemy. He uses leaders and nations of the world to harm God's people, thereby causing grief to Jesus and the Father. We easily forget that Satan is the enemy. He is responsible for all evil. Let us blame him and be cautious in how we judge and condemn the people or organizations that harm God's people and the church. Sometimes, they are unaware or completely ignorant that they are hurting anyone. But that is never the case with Satan—he always knows exactly what he is doing. He deliberately hurts God and His people.

5. Would the death of a pope or the election of a new president affect the prophecy about America in Revelation 13:11-18?
The prophecy will be fulfilled regardless of who is pope or president. A new pope or president might temporarily accelerate or slow down its fulfillment, but the final outcome is guaranteed by Bible prophecy.

6. Are the lamb-like beast of Revelation 13:11-18 and the "false prophet" of Revelation 16:13 the same power?
Yes. In Revelation 19:20, where God mentions the destruction of the Antichrist beast, He also refers to the destruction of the false prophet. In this passage, God identifies the false prophet as the power that "worked miracles" before the beast and "deceived those who received the mark of the beast and worshiped its image." This is a clear reference to the actions of the lamb-like beast described in Revelation 13:11-18. In this Study Guide, we have identified the lamb-like beast as the United States. Therefore, the lamb-like beast and the false prophet are clearly the same power.

Another Woman

Lesson 22

Every marriage must be based on faithfulness—and likewise, in our union with Christ, we must remain faithful to Him and His Word. Revelation speaks of Christ's true bride, but there is another woman who seeks to lead the faithful away from God's Word. Revelation gives a shocking message about Babylon, this other woman. Babylon has fallen, and Christ's people must avoid her allurements or perish! This marks the beginning of the second part of the three angels' messages. In this lesson, you will discover the true identity of spiritual Babylon and learn how to avoid being deceived by her seductive beauty... What could be more important?

In the book of Revelation, God calls this woman "Babylon."

1. How does Jesus describe Babylon in the book of Revelation?
"I will show you the judgment of the great harlot who sits on many waters."

“And I saw a woman sitting on a scarlet beast which was full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns... In her hand a golden cup full of abominations and the filthiness of her fornication” (Revelation 17:1, 3-5).

Answer:
In Revelation 17:1-6, Jesus describes Babylon as a harlot dressed in scarlet and purple. She sits on a scarlet-colored beast with seven heads and ten horns and is seated on many waters.

2. Who is the pure woman symbolized in Revelation chapter 12?
Answer:
The pure woman, clothed with the sun, is described in Revelation 12:1-6. As we learned in Study Guide 20, this pure woman represents God’s true church, which remains faithful to her bridegroom, Jesus. We will study Revelation chapter 12 in greater depth in Study Guide 23.

3. What does a harlot represent in Bible prophecy?
“Cause Jerusalem to know her abominations… You trusted in your beauty, and played the harlot” (Ezekiel 16:2, 15).

Answer:
Just as a pure woman represents a faithful church devoted to Jesus, an unclean woman symbolizes a corrupt or fallen church that is unfaithful to Him (James 4:4).

Many Protestant Reformers taught that “Babylon” in Revelation 17 refers to the papacy.

4. Can we identify the harlot (church) called “Babylon the Great, the Mother of Harlots” in Revelation chapter 17?
Answer:
Yes, it is widely recognized that there is only one church that claims to be the “mother church”—the Roman Catholic Church. Catholic priest John A. O’Brien stated: “The observance [of Sunday] remains as a reminder of the Mother Church from which non-Catholic denominations broke away.”

The characteristics used in Revelation 17 to describe Mother Babylon and the beast she rides clearly align with the papacy:

A. She persecuted the saints (verse 6). (See Study Guides 15 and 20.)
B. She is dressed in purple and scarlet (verse 4). Popes often wear the royal color purple in official functions, and scarlet is the color worn by Catholic cardinals.

C. The seven heads of the beast (verse 3) represent seven mountains (verse 9). It is well known that Rome—the headquarters of the papacy—is built on seven hills.
D. The beast is guilty of blasphemy (verse 3), which also clearly aligns with the papacy. (See Study Guides 15 and 20.)
E. She reigns over the kings of the earth (verse 18).

Historian Alexander Flick states that by the 13th century, the pope was, "at least in theory and claim, the ruler of the whole world in both spiritual and temporal matters." Such authority cannot be attributed to any other earthly kingdom or government. Revelation 17 identifies the papacy with unmistakable clarity.

Note: Many leaders of the Protestant Reformation (including Huss, Wycliffe, Luther, Calvin, Zwingli, Melanchthon, Cranmer, Tyndale, Latimer, Ridley, and others) taught that the papacy is the power described here.

The word "Babel" originated from the Tower of Babel. It means "confusion."

5. What is the literal meaning of the word "Babel," and what is its origin?
Answer: The words "Babel" and "Babylon" mean "confusion." The name Babel originated from the Tower of Babel, which was built after the Flood by rebellious pagans who hoped to construct it so high that floodwaters could never cover it again (Genesis 11:4). However, the Lord confused their language, resulting in such chaos that they were forced to stop building. They then called the tower "Babel" or "confusion."

Later, during the Old Testament era, a global pagan empire called Babylon arose, which became an enemy of God's people, Israel. It was marked by rebellion, disobedience, the persecution of God's people, pride, and idolatry (Jeremiah 39:6, 7; 50:29, 31-33; 51:24, 34, 47; Daniel chapters 3 and 5). In Isaiah chapter 14, God uses Babylon as a symbol of Satan himself due to its opposition to and destruction of God's work and people.

In the New Testament book of Revelation, the word "Babylon" is used to signify a religious system that opposes God's spiritual Israel—His church (Revelation 14:8; 16:19). Churches that accept the false teachings of Mother Babylon become "Babylon" themselves.

6. Who are the harlot daughters of Mother Babylon mentioned in Revelation 17:5?

Answer: They represent certain churches that initially opposed the false teachings of Mother Babylon and separated from her during the great Protestant Reformation. However, later they began to adopt the principles and practices of the mother and thus fell themselves. No woman is born a harlot, and neither were these Protestant churches in their beginning. Any church or organization that teaches and follows the false doctrines and practices of Babylon becomes a fallen church or daughter. Thus, "Babylon" is a family name encompassing the mother church and her fallen daughters.

The beast of Revelation 17 represents civil government. A woman riding a beast signifies that the church controls the state.

7. Why is Mother Babylon depicted riding a beast in Revelation 17? What does the beast represent?

Answer: In Revelation 13:1-10, Jesus identifies the papacy as a blend of church and state (for more details, see Study Guide 20). In Revelation 17, Jesus depicts the church (the harlot) and the state (the beast) as separate entities, though they are related. The woman sits on the beast, symbolizing that the church is controlling the government.

Non-Christian religions and apostate Protestantism will join the papacy as allies in the final conflict against God and His followers.

8. What other powers will join the papacy in fulfilling end-time events?

"And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs coming out of the mouth of the dragon, out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet. They are spirits of demons performing signs, which go out to the kings of the earth and the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty" (Revelation 16:13, 14).

Answer: The dragon of Revelation 12:3, 4 and the false prophet of Revelation 13:11-14 and 19:20 will form an alliance with the beast of Revelation 13:1-10, which is the papacy.

A. The dragon of Revelation chapter 12 represents Satan working through pagan Rome (see Study Guide 20 for more details). In the last days, it includes non-Christian religions such as Buddhism, Shintoism, Hinduism, New Age spirituality, secular humanism, etc.

B. The false prophet represents apostate Protestantism based in America, which will lead in enforcing and promoting worldwide worship of the beast (see Study Guide 21).

C. The beast is the papacy (see Study Guide 20).

D. These three powers—non-Christian religions and secular governments, Roman Catholicism, and apostate Protestantism—will unite in the final battle of Armageddon against God, His law, and His faithful followers. This alliance is called "Babylon the Great" by Jesus in Revelation 18:2.

Satan's powerful miracles, performed through his angels who masquerade as the spirits of the dead, will unite the world in supporting the beast.

9. How will these diverse organizations successfully unite?
"These are of one mind, and they will give their power and authority to the beast" (Revelation 17:13).

Answer: Revelation 16:13, 14 states that "unclean spirits like frogs," which are "spirits of demons," will unite them through the miracles they perform. Spiritualism—the belief that the dead are alive and can communicate with the living—will be the common thread binding them together. Satan and his angels, posing as the spirits of deceased loved ones, ancient prophets, heavenly angels (2 Corinthians 11:13, 14), and even Christ Himself (Matthew 24:24), will convince the world that their work is divinely directed (see Study Guide 10). Tragically, all three groups believe that the dead are alive:

A. Roman Catholicism prays to Mary and other deceased saints, believing these saints bless their followers through miracles.

B. Nearly all non-Christian religions practice some form of ancestor worship or spirit communication. The New Age movement emphasizes "channeling" to communicate with the dead.

C. Apostate Protestantism teaches that the dead are not truly dead but rather alive in heaven or hell. This belief leaves them vulnerable to deception by evil spirits pretending to be the dead.

Babylon falls because it abandons the truth of the Bible.

10. What sins does God blame Babylon for?

A. “Babylon the Great has fallen.” (Revelation 18:2)
Answer: Falling means abandoning the truth of the Bible and the true worship of the true God (2 Peter 3:17).

B. “It has become a dwelling place for demons and a prison for every unclean spirit.” “By your sorcery all the nations were deceived.” (Revelation 18:2, 23)
Answer: Here, God accuses Babylon of (1) communicating directly with demons by inviting evil spirits through spiritualism, and (2) deceiving almost the entire world through false, demonic spirits.

C. “The inhabitants of the earth were made drunk” with the wine of her abominations and fornication found in her cup (Revelation 17:2, 4; 18:3).
Answer: The word “abomination” in the Bible signifies falsehood (Proverbs 12:22). Babylon’s wine, which contains false teachings, confuses and spiritually intoxicates those who drink it.

D. “The kings of the earth have committed fornication with her.” (Revelation 18:3)
Answer: The church is the bride of Christ (Revelation 19:7, 8) and must love and be faithful to Him alone, which Jesus said means keeping His commandments (John 14:15). Here, the papacy is blamed for turning away from her husband, Jesus (James 4:4), and forming unlawful relationships with civil governments (church-state union) for her support.

E. The trafficking of “the souls of men.” (Revelation 18:13)
Answer: Here, God condemns Babylon for treating people as commodities rather than as precious children of God.
Accepting false teachings brings spiritual drunkenness, making it very difficult to understand the truth.

11. What are some of the false teachings in Babylon’s wine that cause people to become spiritually drunk and confused?
Answer: Surprisingly, some of the most popular Protestant teachings today are not found in the Bible at all. They were brought into Protestant churches by the mother church of Rome, which adopted them from paganism. Some of these false teachings include:

A. God’s law has been changed or abolished.
God’s law cannot be changed or abolished (Luke 16:17). Study Guide 6 provides irrefutable evidence.

B. The soul is immortal.
The Bible mentions “soul” and “spirit” 1,700 times but never describes them as immortal. People die (Job 4:17), and no one receives immortality until Jesus’ second coming (1 Corinthians 15:51-54). (See Study Guide 10 for more details.)

C. Sinners burn forever in hell.
The Bible teaches that sinners will be completely destroyed (cease to exist) in both body and soul by fire (Matthew 10:28). Eternal torment in hell is not taught in the Bible. (See Study Guide 11 for clarification.)

D. Immersion baptism is not necessary.
Immersion baptism is the only baptism recognized by Scripture. (See Study Guide 9 for more details.)

E. Sunday is God’s holy day.
The Bible clearly teaches that God’s holy day is the seventh-day Sabbath, Saturday. (For more information, see Study Guide 7.)

Note: Believing these false teachings leads to “confusion” (which is the meaning of the word “Babylon”) and makes understanding the Scriptures much harder.

Thought-Provoking Reflections
It is sobering to realize that many people may be drinking Babylon’s wine unknowingly. Perhaps this is all new to you. If so, please ask God to guide you (Matthew 7:7). Then, search the Scriptures to see if these things are true (Acts 17:11). Promise to follow wherever Jesus leads, and He will not allow you to be led into error (John 7:17).

Heavenly angels will be on the side of God’s people in the final battle of the world.

12. Who will be on the Lord’s side in the battle of Armageddon?
Answer: In this final conflict, the heavenly angels (Hebrews 1:13, 14; Matthew 13:41, 42) and God’s people—the remnant (Revelation 12:17)—will join with Jesus, who leads the armies of heaven (Revelation 19:11-16), against Satan and his followers.

God’s remnant consists of those who reject Babylon’s falsehoods (Study Guide 23 will provide more details). They are known for:
(1) Their love for Jesus (1 John 5:2, 3)
(2) Their faithfulness and trust in Him (Revelation 14:12)

(3) Their unwavering obedience to His Word and commandments (Revelation 12:17; John 8:31, 32).

In the last days, Satan will deceive everyone unwilling to seek clear biblical evidence for every doctrine.

13. What strategy will Satan use in the final conflict between God's truth and his lies?
Answer: Although Satan hates God and His Son, he rarely admits this openly. Instead, he and his evil spirits will masquerade as holy angels and dedicated Christian ministers (2 Corinthians 11:13-15). What he presents as evidence will seem righteous, spiritual, and Christlike—so convincing that almost the entire world will be deceived and follow him (Matthew 24:24). Satan will even use the Bible, as he did when tempting Jesus in the wilderness (Matthew 4:1-11). His reasoning is so persuasive that it deceived one-third of heaven's angels, Adam and Eve, and (at the time of the Flood) everyone on earth except eight people.

The word of God exposes satan's strategies

14. What is God's counter-strategy?
"To the law and to the testimony! If they do not speak according to this word, it is because there is no light in them." (Isaiah 8:20)
Answer: God always opposes Satan's lies with the truth of the Bible. When tempted by Satan in the wilderness, Jesus repeatedly quoted Scripture (Matthew 4:1-11). Through His faithful people, God will expose the unbiblical nature of Babylon the Great. He will reveal that Babylon presents a false gospel (Galatians 1:8-12) that has led billions astray. God's counter-strategy is outlined in the three angels' messages of Revelation 14:6-14.

15. Will God's end-time messages of warning and hope have an impact?
"After these things, I saw another angel coming down from heaven, having great authority, and the earth was illuminated with his glory." (Revelation 18:1)
Answer: In Scripture, angels represent messengers or messages (Hebrews 1:13, 14). God's final call will be so powerful that the entire world will be illuminated with His truth and glory. This urgent message will reach every person on earth (Revelation 14:6; Mark 16:15; Matthew 24:14).

16. What urgent call will Jesus make to those in Babylon?
Answer: Jesus will say: "Come out of her, My people, lest you share in her sins, and lest you receive of her plagues. For her sins have reached to heaven, and God has remembered her iniquities." (Revelation 18:4, 5).

17. How will Jesus' people in Babylon respond when they hear His call?
Answer: Jesus answers: "My sheep hear My voice, and I know them, and they follow Me." (John 10:16, 27).

18. If you are in Babylon, are you ready to obey Jesus' urgent call to come out?
Answer:
Questions of Thought
1. Should I stay in Babylon and try to reform it instead of leaving?
No. Jesus says Babylon will be destroyed, not reformed. It will be hopelessly drunk on her wine (identified as false doctrine in Revelation 18:5, 6). This is why He calls His people to come out (Revelation 18:4).

2. Who are the kings of the east in Revelation 16:12?
The kings of the east are the heavenly Kings (the Father and the Son). They are called the kings of the east because that is the direction from which heavenly beings approach the earth. Consider the following examples:

A. Jesus' second coming will be from the east (Matthew 24:27).
B. The glory of God comes from the east (Ezekiel 43:2).
C. The sealing angel of Revelation comes from the east (Revelation 7:2).
D. The sun, symbolizing Jesus, rises in the east (Malachi 4:2).

3. Does the warning about Babylon's fall suggest that Babylon has not always fallen?
Yes, it does. Many churches that make up Babylon once stood firm, tall, and faithful to Jesus. Their founders were God-fearing people who diligently studied the Bible to discover its truths. Not all churches have fallen today. However, any church that teaches the false doctrines of Babylon and follows her practices becomes one of her fallen daughters.

4. Where should a Christian go when called out of Babylon?
Find people who keep God's commandments, have the faith of Jesus, and preach the three angels' messages worldwide—and join them (Revelation 14:6-12). Lesson Guide 23 will fully explain God's end-time church.

5. What do the ten kings of Revelation 17:12-16 represent?
The ten kings symbolize the nations of the world. The ten toes of the image in Daniel 2 and the ten horns of the dreadful beast in Daniel 7 represented the ten kingdoms of Europe. However, Revelation chapters 11 through 18 expand this meaning to refer to "all the kings of the earth" or "all nations" (see Revelation 16:14; 18:3).

6. What does the symbolism of “frogs” mean in Revelation 16:13, 14?
Frogs catch their prey with their tongues, which may symbolize the counterfeit gift of tongues spreading worldwide today. Remember, miracles—including the gift of tongues—only prove supernatural power. But the Bible warns that supernatural power can come from either God or Satan. It further states that Satan, masquerading as an angel of light (2 Corinthians 11:13-15), will use miraculous powers so effectively that nearly the whole world will be deceived and follow him (Revelation 13:3). Currently, Satan uses the counterfeit gift of tongues to unite churches and religions of all kinds—including pagans and spirit worshipers. Each group believes that the gift of tongues confirms their authenticity.

We Must Test the Spirits
The Bible warns us to test the spirits (1 John 4:1). If they do not agree with Scripture, they are false (Isaiah 8:19, 20). Furthermore, the true gifts of the Holy Spirit are never given to someone who knowingly and deliberately obeys Satan (Acts 5:32). The true gift of tongues enables someone to speak fluently in foreign languages they have not previously learned (Acts 2:4-12). God uses this gift when necessary to communicate His end-time message to those of other languages. It was needed on the day of Pentecost because 17 language groups were present, and the disciples probably knew only one language.

7. Will the New Age movement play a major role in the final conflict between good and evil?
Absolutely! It is heavily involved with witchcraft, psychic phenomena, and communication with spirits. Spirit communication will be a major factor in the final worldwide deception. Combined with the supernatural power of the counterfeit gift of tongues and the global union of churches, spirit communication will spread worldwide. The New Age belief in spirit communication and reincarnation is ancient paganism in a new disguise. Its belief in an immortal soul that can communicate with the living is the same old lie Satan told Eve in Eden: “You will not surely die” (Genesis 3:4). (See Lesson Guide 10 for more details about death.)

8. Is the Antichrist power mentioned elsewhere in the Scriptures?
Yes, the Antichrist power (or its activities) is referred to in at least nine prophecies in both the Old and New Testaments: Daniel 7; Daniel 8, 9; Daniel 11; Revelation 12; Revelation 13; Revelation 16; Revelation 17; Revelation 18; and Revelation 19. When God emphasizes the same power nine different times, He wants us to pay attention.

9. Did the kingdom of Satan called “Babylon” originate at the Tower of Babel?
No, it began when Satan rebelled against God in heaven. In fact, the prophet Isaiah compares Lucifer's fall from heaven to the king of Babylon (Isaiah 14:4, 12-15). God has viewed Satan's kingdom as Babylon since the beginning of sin. Satan's clear objective is to overthrow God, destroy His kingdom, and establish his kingdom of rebellion on earth. Jesus said there are only two sides (Matthew 7:13, 14). Every person on earth will ultimately align with either Jesus or Babylon. It is a matter of life and death. Those who serve and support Jesus will be saved in His heavenly kingdom. Those who support Babylon will be destroyed by fire. And there is very little time left to decide. This is why obeying Jesus' end-time warning against Babylon is so urgent.

10. In Revelation 16:12, what does the drying up of the Euphrates River mean to prepare the way for the kings of the east?
Before ancient Babylon was conquered by the Medo-Persian general Darius, the Euphrates River, which flowed under the city's walls, was diverted into a man-made lake. This diversion allowed Darius' army to enter the city under the walls through the dried-up riverbed. In Revelation, "waters" represent people (Revelation 17:15). Thus, the Euphrates River refers to the supporters of "Mystery Babylon," whose support dries up as they turn against her to destroy her (Revelation 17:16). This withdrawal of support for "Mystery Babylon" ensures victory for the kings of the east—the heavenly Father and the Son.

The Bride of Christ

Lesson 23

The Bible says there is only one body, or church, that Jesus calls His people to in the last days—the bride of Christ. For some, this is frightening because there are thousands of different churches today that call themselves Christian. Nearly all claim to be God's church, yet each one differs greatly in Bible interpretation, beliefs, and practices. It is impossible for a sincere seeker of truth to investigate the claims of each one. However, we can be thankful that Jesus has solved this problem for us by describing His church so clearly that you can easily recognize it! These clear and powerful descriptions are found in Revelation 12 and 14, and they will excite you with astonishing truths to guide you in the last days. Please read Revelation 12:1-17 before you begin this journey of discovery

1. By what prophetic symbol does Jesus represent His true church?

"I have likened the daughter of Zion to a lovely and delicate woman." —Jeremiah 6:2
"And say to Zion, 'You are My people.'" —Isaiah 51:16

Answer: We learned in Lesson 22 that Jesus represents His true, pure church (Zion) as a pure woman and an apostate church as a harlot. Other Scriptures that use this symbol include 2 Corinthians 11:2, Ephesians 5:22-23, and Revelation 19:7-8.

2. In Revelation 12:1, Jesus describes His church as a woman "clothed with the sun," standing on the "moon," and wearing a "crown of twelve stars." What do these symbols mean?

Answer:

A. The sun represents Jesus, His gospel, and His righteousness.
"For the Lord God is a sun." —Psalm 84:11 (See also Malachi 4:2.) Without Jesus, there is no salvation (Acts 4:12). Above all else, Jesus wants His church to shine with His presence and glory.

B. The moon under her feet represents the Old Testament sacrificial system. Just as the moon reflects the sun's light, the sacrificial system had spiritual value only as it reflected the light of the coming Messiah (Hebrews 10:1).

C. The crown of twelve stars represents the work of the 12 apostles, who established the early New Testament church.
3. The prophecy then says that the woman is in labor, about to give birth to a child who will one day rule all nations with a rod of iron. She gives birth to a "male child," who is later taken up to God's throne in heaven (Revelation 12:1, 2, 5). Who is this child?

Answer: The child is Jesus, who will one day rule all nations with a rod of iron (Revelation 19:13-16, Psalm 2:7-9). Jesus, who was crucified for our sins, was resurrected from the dead and ascended to heaven (Acts 1:9-11). His resurrection power in our lives is one of His greatest gifts (Philippians 3:10).

4. Revelation 12:3, 4 introduces a "great red dragon" who hates the "male child" and tries to kill Him at birth. Who is this dragon?

Answer: The dragon represents Satan, who was cast out of heaven (Revelation 12:7-9) and who worked through pagan Rome during Jesus' birth. The ruler who tried to kill Jesus was Herod, a king under pagan Rome, who ordered the slaughter of all male infants in Bethlehem, hoping to destroy Jesus (Matthew 2:16).

The third of the stars symbolizes the fallen angels who were cast out of heaven with Lucifer.

5. What do the “seven heads,” “ten horns,” and “one-third of the stars of heaven” in Revelation 12:3, 4 represent?

Answer:

A. The seven heads represent the seven hills or mountains on which Rome is built (Revelation 17:9-10).

B. The ten horns represent nations or governments that support the main power in persecuting God’s people. During the time of pagan Rome (Revelation 12:3-4), these horns represented the ten barbarian tribes that eventually overthrew the Roman Empire (Daniel 7:23-24), forming modern Europe. In the last days, these horns symbolize the nations of the world united against God’s people (Revelation 16:14, 17:12-13, 16).

C. The third of the stars refers to the angels who joined Lucifer’s rebellion and were cast out of heaven (Revelation 12:9, Luke 10:18, Isaiah 14:12).

6. What did Satan do after he failed to destroy the child Jesus?

“He persecuted the woman who gave birth to the male child.” —Revelation 12:13

Answer: Since he could no longer attack Jesus personally, Satan turned his fury toward God’s church and His people.

7. What did the woman (church) do to protect herself, and what is the “wilderness” mentioned in Revelation 12:6, 14?
Answer:
A. The church fled into the wilderness—a symbol of desolate places (mountains, caves, forests)—to escape persecution during the 1,260 years (A.D. 538–1798) of papal oppression (Ezekiel 4:6). Groups like the Waldenses, Albigenses, and Huguenots sought refuge in remote areas.
B. This “wilderness” period corresponds to the 1,260 years of papal supremacy and persecution (Daniel 7:25). During this time, God’s true church was not a recognized institution but remained faithful to apostolic teachings.

8. In Revelation 12:17, God calls His end-time church the remnant. What does “remnant” mean?
Answer: It means the last remaining portion—the final faithful church that maintains the same teachings and practices as the apostolic church.

9. What additional identifying marks does Revelation 12:17 give for God’s end-time remnant church?

Answer:

1. It keeps all of God's commandments, including the seventh-day Sabbath (John 14:15, Revelation 22:14).
2. It has the testimony of Jesus, which is the spirit of prophecy (Revelation 19:10).

Summary of the Identifying Marks of God's End-Time Church:

1. It did not exist as an official organization between A.D. 538–1798.
2. It emerged after 1798.
3. It keeps all of God's commandments, including the seventh-day Sabbath.
4. It has the gift of prophecy.

God calls all His faithful followers to this end-time church, which holds fast to the teachings of Jesus and the apostles.

The Remnant of God Must Preach the Three Angels' Messages Worldwide

10. What Are the Last Two Identifying Marks of God's Remnant Church Given in Revelation?

Answer: The last two of the six marks are:
(5) It will be a worldwide missionary church (Revelation 14:6).
(6) It will be preaching the three angels' messages of Revelation 14:6-14, summarized below:

A. God's Judgment Is in Session – Worship Him!

God's end-time church must preach that judgment began in 1844 (see Study Guides 18 and 19). It also calls people to "worship Him who made the heavens, the earth, the sea, and the springs of water" (Revelation 14:7). How do we worship God as the Creator? The answer is in the fourth commandment:
"Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."
"For in six days the Lord made the heavens, the earth, the sea, and all that is in them, and rested the seventh day; therefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it." (Exodus 20:8, 11)
Thus, the first angel's message commands all to worship God as the Creator by keeping His seventh-day Sabbath, which He gave as a memorial of creation.

B. Come Out of Fallen Babylon

C. Do Not Worship the Beast or Receive His Mark, Which Is Sunday as a Holy Day – Beware of Counterfeits

Summary of the Last Two Identifying Marks:

5. God's end-time church will be a worldwide missionary church.
6. It will teach and preach Jesus' threefold message of Revelation 14:6-14.
Now, Let's Review the Six Marks That Jesus Gives to Identify His End-Time Remnant Church:
1. It would not exist as an official organization between A.D. 538 and 1798.
2. It would arise and carry out its mission after 1798.
3. It would keep all Ten Commandments, including the seventh-day Sabbath of the fourth commandment.
4. It would have the gift of prophecy.
5. It would be a worldwide missionary church.
6. It would teach and preach Jesus' threefold message of Revelation 14:6-14.
Jesus promises that all who sincerely seek His six identifying marks will find His remnant church.

11. Now That We Have Established Jesus' Six Identifying Marks for His End-Time Remnant Church, What Does Jesus Tell Us to Do, and What Will Be the Result?

Answer: "Seek, and you will find." (Matthew 7:7)
Jesus gives you these six characteristics and says, "Go find My church." He promises that those who seek heavenly things will find them.

The Seventh-day Adventist Church is the only church that matches all six identifying marks.

12. How Many Churches Fit These Six Characteristics?

Answer: Jesus gave specific and unique identifying marks that match only one church. He did not give vague, general statements like, "There will be many good people in My church" or "There will also be hypocrites." How many churches would fit those two statements? All of them.
Those two statements could also apply to a grocery store or a civic club downtown—they could fit anything and thus mean nothing. Instead, Jesus gave clear, specific, highly detailed identifying marks that match only one church—the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Let's double-check the facts:
The Seventh-day Adventist Church:
1. Did not exist as an official organization between A.D. 538 and 1798.
2. Emerged after 1798, beginning in the early 1840s.
3. Keeps all Ten Commandments, including the fourth—God's holy seventh-day Sabbath.
4. Has the gift of prophecy.

5. Is a worldwide missionary church, operating in 208 of the world's 236 countries.
6. Teaches and preaches Jesus' great threefold message of Revelation 14:6-14.
Jesus asks you to take these six identifying marks and examine for yourself. It's simple. You can't miss it.

13. After One of Jesus' Children Obeys His Loving Warning Call and Leaves Babylon (Revelation 18:2, 4), What Does Jesus Ask Them to Do Next?
"You were called in one body." (Colossians 3:15)
"And He [Jesus] is the head of the body, the church." (Colossians 1:18)
Answer: The Bible says that God's people are called into one body, or church. Jesus asks those who leave Babylon to join the remnant church—of which He is the head. Jesus said, "Other sheep I have which are not of this fold." (John 10:16) He also calls them "My people" in the Old Testament (Isaiah 58:1) and the New Testament (Revelation 18:4). Regarding His sheep outside His fold (church), He says:
"Them also I must bring, and they will hear My voice; and there will be one flock and one shepherd." (John 10:16)
"My sheep hear My voice, … and they follow Me." (John 10:27)
When God calls people out of Babylon, He asks them to join His remnant church. People join His remnant church through baptism.

14. How Does a Person Enter That Body, or Church?
"For by one Spirit we were all baptized into one body—whether Jews or Greeks." (1 Corinthians 12:13)
Answer: We enter Jesus' end-time remnant church through baptism. (See Study Guide 9 for more details on baptism.)

15. Does the Bible Provide Any Additional Evidence That Jesus Has Only One End-Time Remnant Church Where He Calls All His People?Answer: Yes, it does. Let's review:
A. The Bible says there is only one true body, or church (Ephesians 4:4; Colossians 1:18).
B. The Bible says our days are like the days of Noah (Luke 17:26, 27). How many ways were there to be saved in Noah's day? Only one, the ark. Once again today, God has provided only one ark, or church, to bring His people safely into His heavenly kingdom. Make sure you get into the right ark! The Bible says, "The Lord added to the church daily those who were being saved." (Acts 2:47) It was true in apostolic times, and it remains true today.
God Promises That His Remnant Church Will Triumph in Glory

16. What Good News Does the Bible Give About God's Remnant Church?

Answer:
A. Its main mission is the “everlasting gospel” of righteousness by faith in Jesus alone (Revelation 14:6).
B. It is built upon Jesus, the Rock (1 Corinthians 3:11; 10:4), and “the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.” (Matthew 16:18).
C. Jesus died for His church (Ephesians 5:25).
D. Jesus describes His remnant church so clearly that it is easy to identify. He also describes the fallen churches and calls His people out of them. Satan will deceive only those who close their eyes and hearts.
E. Its teachings are all true (1 Timothy 3:15).

17. What Good News Does the Bible Give About God’s Remnant People?

Answer: They will:
A. Be saved in His heavenly kingdom (Revelation 15:2).
B. Overcome Satan by the “power” and “blood” of Jesus (Revelation 12:10, 11).
C. Have patience (Revelation 14:12).
D. Have the faith of Jesus (Revelation 14:12)
E. Experience glorious freedom (John 8:31, 32).
18. The World’s Time Is Running Out – What Is Jesus’ Urgent Plea to His People Now?
“Come into the ark, you and all your household.” (Genesis 7:1)
Answer: In Noah’s day, only eight people (including Noah himself) obeyed God’s invitation. Today, Jesus waits at the door of His final ark, the remnant church, for you.
Will you answer His call?

Questions on Thought
1. China, home to a quarter of the world’s population, remains largely untouched by the gospel. Will it not take a long time to reach everyone there? “With man this is impossible, but not with God; all things are possible with God.” (Mark 10:27). The Bible says the Lord “will finish the work and cut it short in righteousness” (Romans 9:28). The same Lord who gave Jonah the power to lead an entire city to repentance in less than 40 days (Jonah chapter 3) will finish His work quickly in these last days. He says His work will progress with such astonishing speed that it will almost be impossible for God’s church to handle the influx of people (Amos 9:13). God promised it. It will happen. Soon and suddenly, everything will end. Long-term planning in God’s work is uncertain today. This is a time of great urgency, and urgency demands quick action. Long-term thinkers might be caught off guard and wake up too late.

2. Is there really a significant danger that many who call themselves Christians will be caught off guard and lost when Jesus returns?

Yes, Jesus made this very clear. He warned about several things that will trap and destroy Christians:
A. Gluttony – This refers to excess in anything – eating, working, studying, entertainment, etc. It disrupts balance, clouds clear thinking, and hinders spending time with Jesus.
B. Intoxication – This refers to anything that dulls our spiritual senses and causes indifference toward heavenly matters. Examples include pornography, immoral sexual relationships, bad company, neglecting Bible study, neglecting prayer, and avoiding church worship. Such things cause people to live in a dream world and miss out on reality.
C. The Cares of This Life – Many Christians become so busy with everyday responsibilities that they crowd out time for Jesus, prayer, studying the Word, witnessing, and attending church services. This shifts our focus from the ultimate goal to secondary matters.
D. Spiritual Sleep – This may be the greatest danger today. When someone is spiritually asleep, they are unaware of their condition. Taking our relationship with Jesus lightly, having a form of godliness without power, applying sermons to others rather than ourselves, and refusing to engage fully in Christ's work – all these things, unless miraculously awakened, will cause people to sleep through the final call.

3. I joined God's remnant church and have never been happier in my life. But I have also never been attacked so much by Satan. Why is this?
Because Satan is furious with God's faithful people and spends his time trying to harm and discourage them (Revelation 12:17). Jesus did not promise that His followers would be free from trials, troubles, Satan's attacks, or even severe suffering. In fact, He promised that such experiences would come (2 Timothy 3:12). However, He also made these glorious promises:

4. He will give His people victory (1 Corinthians 15:57).
5. He will be with His people always, through everything they face (Matthew 28:20).

6. He will give them peace (John 16:33; Psalm 119:165).

7. He will never leave them (Hebrews 13:5).

8. Jesus and His Father will hold Their children so securely that no one can snatch them from Their hands (John 10:28, 29). Amen!

9. What does the word "church" mean?
The word "church" comes from the Greek word ekklesia, meaning "the called-out ones." This fits perfectly! Jesus' people are called out of the world and out of Babylon into His precious and safe fold. People become part of Jesus' end-time remnant church through baptism when Jesus calls them. Jesus says, "My sheep hear My voice... and they follow Me." (John 10:27).

Does God Guide Astrologers and Psychics?

Lesson 24

If someone suddenly appeared claiming to be a prophet—drawing large crowds with exciting messages, healing the sick, raising the dead, calling fire down from heaven, and revealing secret details about your life—would you believe them? Should you believe them? Your eternal destiny may depend on your ability to distinguish between true and false prophets. Therefore, it is crucial to know what the Bible says on this important topic!

1. Does the Bible teach that there will be true prophets in the last days of the world?In the last days," says God, "I will pour outmy Spirit on all people. Your sons and daughters will prophesy." (Acts 2:17)
Answer: Yes, both men and women will prophesy in the last days (Joel 2:28-32). The gift of prophecy is essential for completing God's church.

2. When Jesus ascended to heaven, He gave the gift of "prophets" to His church, along with four other gifts: apostles, evangelists, pastors, and teachers (Ephesians 4:7-11). Why did God give these gifts to the church?
"To equip the saints for the work of ministry, for building up the body of Christ." (Ephesians 4:12)
Answer: Jesus gave all five gifts to equip the saints. The completion of God's end-time church is impossible without all these gifts, including prophecy.

3. In Bible times, was the gift of prophecy only given to men?
Answer: No! In addition to many male prophets, God also gave the gift of prophecy to at least eight women: Anna (Luke 2:36-38), Miriam (Exodus 15:20), Deborah (Judges 4:4), Huldah (2 Kings 22:14), and Philip's four daughters (Acts 21:8, 9).

4. How long will these gifts remain in His church?
"Until we all reach unity in the faith and in the knowledge of the Son of God and become mature, attaining to the whole measure of the fullness of Christ." (Ephesians 4:13)
Answer: They will remain until all God's people are united, mature Christians—this will happen at the end of time.

5. Where do true prophets get their messages?
"Prophecy never came by the will of man, but holy men of God spoke as they were moved by the Holy Spirit." (2 Peter 1:21)

Answer: Prophets speak as they are led by the Holy Spirit. They do not express their personal opinions in spiritual matters—their thoughts come from Jesus through the Holy Spirit.

1. Normally, God speaks to a prophet through visions and dreams.

6. God speaks to prophets in three different ways. What are these ways?
"When there is a prophet among you, I, the Lord, reveal myself to them in visions, I speak to them in dreams." "With him, I speak face to face." (Numbers 12:6, 8).
Answer: Visions, dreams, or face to face.

7. What are the physical signs of a true prophet in vision?
Answer:
A. At first, they will lose physical strength (Daniel 10:8).

B. Later, they may receive supernatural strength (Daniel 10:18, 19).

C. There will be no breath in their body (Daniel 10:17).

D. They will be able to speak (Daniel 10:16).

E. They will not be aware of their earthly surroundings (Daniel 10:5-8; 2 Corinthians 12:2-4).

F. Their eyes will be open (Numbers 24:4).

Note: Although these six biblical signs are physical evidence of a true prophet in vision, not all of them will always be present simultaneously. A prophet's vision can be genuine without displaying all six signs.

8. Is performing great miracles proof that a prophet is from God?
"They are demonic spirits that perform signs." (Revelation 16:14).
Answer: No! Satan and his agents also have the ability to perform miracles. Miracles only prove the presence of supernatural power, but that power can come from either God or Satan (Deuteronomy 13:1-5; Revelation 13:13, 14).

In the last days, false prophets will be so convincing that they will deceive billions of people and lead them to destruction.

9. What warning does Jesus give us about the dangers of the last days?
"For false messiahs and false prophets will appear and perform great signs and wonders to deceive, if possible, even the elect." (Matthew 24:24).

Answer: God warns us about false Christs and false prophets who will be so persuasive that they will deceive everyone except God's chosen ones. Billions will be misled and lost.

10. How can I know if a prophet is true or false?
"Consult God's instruction and the testimony of warning. If anyone does not speak according to this word, they have no light of dawn." (Isaiah 8:20).
Answer: Test their teachings and conduct against the Word of God, the Bible. If they teach or act contrary to Scripture, they are false prophets, and "there is no light in them."

11. Are there specific types of false prophets mentioned and condemned in the Bible?
Answer: Yes. Deuteronomy 18:10-12 and Revelation 21:8 speak against the following types of false prophets:

A. Sorcerer – someone who uses spells or charms.

B. Observer of times – astrologer.

C. Enchanter – someone who claims to communicate with the dead.

D. Medium – someone who channels spirits.

E. Diviner – fortune-teller.

F. Witch – a female psychic.

G. Necromancer – another term for someone who communicates with the dead.

H. Wizard – a male psychic.

Note: Many of these false prophets claim to communicate with the spirits of the dead. The Bible clearly states that the living cannot contact the dead (for more information on this, see Lesson Guide 10). What are thought to be the spirits of the dead are actually evil angels, or demons (Revelation 16:13, 14). Crystal balls, palm readings, tea leaf interpretations, astrology, and speaking with what are believed to be the spirits of the dead are not God's ways of communicating with people. Scripture clearly teaches that those who engage in such practices are detestable (Deuteronomy 18:12), and worse, those who continue in these practices will be excluded from God's kingdom (Galatians 5:19-21; Revelation 21:8, 22:14-15).

12. Is the primary role of a true prophet to serve the church or to minister to unbelievers?
"Prophecy, however, is not for unbelievers but for believers." (1 Corinthians 14:22).
Answer: The Bible is clear. Although a prophet's message may sometimes address the general public, the primary purpose of prophecy is to serve the church.

13. Does God's end-time church have the gift of prophecy?
Answer: In Lesson Guide 23, we discovered that Jesus provides six characteristics of His end-time church. Let's review these characteristics:

A. It would not exist as an official organization between AD 538 and 1798.

B. It would arise and do its work after 1798.

C. It would keep the Ten Commandments, including the seventh-day Sabbath of the fourth commandment.

D. It would have the gift of prophecy.

E. It would be a worldwide missionary church.

F. It would teach and preach Jesus' threefold message of Revelation 14:6-14.

It is important to remember that God's end-time church must meet all six of Jesus' characteristics. This means that the gift of prophecy must be included—it will have a prophet.

14. How will joining God's end-time church, which possesses all these gifts, affect you spiritually?
"Then we will no longer be infants, tossed back and forth by the waves, and blown here and there by every wind of teaching and by the cunning and craftiness of people in their deceitful scheming." (Ephesians 4:14).
Answer: It will anchor you spiritually. You will no longer be uncertain or unstable in your faith.

15. What part of the body best represents the gift of prophecy?
"In the past, if someone wanted to inquire of God, they would say, 'Come, let us go to the seer.'" (1 Samuel 9:9).
Answer: Since a prophet is sometimes called a "seer" (someone who can see future events), the eyes best represent the gift of prophecy.

16. What condition would a church be in without the gift of prophecy?
Answer: It would be blind. Jesus mentioned the dangers that follow when He said, “If the blind lead the blind, both will fall into a ditch.” (Matthew 15:14)

17. Must God’s end-time church have all the spiritual gifts that Christ gave?
Answer: Yes. Scripture clearly teaches that God’s end-time church will “not lack any spiritual gift,” which means it must possess all gifts, including the gift of prophecy (1 Corinthians 1:5-8).

18. Does Revelation 12:17 indicate that God’s end-time church will have a prophet?
Answer: Yes. Revelation 19:10 explains that the “testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy.” The angel who spoke to John identified himself as one of the prophets (Revelation 22:9), clarifying that having the “testimony of Jesus” is equivalent to being a prophet.

19. What does the phrase “testimony of Jesus” mean?
Answer: It means that the words of a prophet are a special message from Jesus to His people (Revelation 1:1; Amos 3:7).

20. What are the Bible’s criteria for a true prophet?
Answer:

A. Live a godly life (Matthew 7:15-20).

B. Be called to serve by God (Isaiah 6:1-10; Jeremiah 1:5-10; Amos 7:14, 15).

C. Speak and write in harmony with Scripture (Isaiah 8:19, 20).

D. Predict future events accurately (Deuteronomy 18:20-22).

E. Receive visions (Numbers 12:6).

21. Did God send a prophet to His end-time church?
Answer: Yes, He did! Here is a brief overview:

God Calls a Young Woman

God's last-day church began to emerge in the early 1840s and urgently needed guidance. In harmony with His promise in Amos 3:7, God called a young woman named Ellen Harmon to be His prophet. Ellen accepted the call. She had been injured in an accident at the age of nine and had to leave school with only three years of formal education. Her health deteriorated to the point that, when God called her at the age of 17, she weighed only 70 pounds and was expected to die.

She Served for 70 Years

Ellen accepted God's call, trusting that He would physically sustain her and keep her humble. She lived 70 more years, dying at the age of 87. She emphasized that her purpose and mission were to point the church and its members to the Bible, which should be their standard of faith, and to the free gift of Jesus' righteousness. Ellen fulfilled every biblical test of a prophet outlined in this Study Guide.

Her Pen Name and Books

Ellen married James White, a minister, and wrote under the name Ellen G. White. She became one of the most prolific female authors in history. Her books, read worldwide, offer inspired counsel on health, education, temperance, Christian home life, parenting, publishing and writing, helping the needy, stewardship, evangelism, Christian living, and more.

Her book Education is considered an authority in its field. It has been used as a textbook in a major world university. It is so profound and relevant that it was once plagiarized by a national minister of education, who published it under his own name. Dr. Florence Stratemeyer, former professor of education at Columbia University, said the book contains "advanced educational concepts" and was "over 50 years ahead of its time." Dr. Clive McCay, former professor of nutrition at Cornell University, remarked about her writings on health: "Despite the fact that Mrs. White's works were written long before the advent of modern scientific nutrition, no better guide for general health exists today." News broadcaster Paul Harvey said she "wrote with deep insight on nutrition, and all but two of the many principles she advocated have been scientifically established."

Her book The Desire of Ages, on the life of Christ, has been described as a "masterpiece of English literature" by Stationers Hall in London. It is uplifting and inspiring beyond words. On the topic of intelligence, she stated that IQ could be increased long before scientists recognized this possibility. In 1905, she said that cancer is caused by a virus or germ, a theory that the medical field only began accepting in the 1950s. Ellen G. White is considered the fourth most-translated author of all time. Her book on Christian living, Steps to Christ, has been translated into over 150 languages and dialects.

Ellen White had many visions, all of which meet the Bible's criteria for a true prophet.

22. Did Ellen White have visions?

Answer: Yes. She had many visions, ranging from a few minutes to six hours. These visions meet the biblical tests of a true prophet as outlined in this Study Guide.

23. Are Ellen White's writings intended to be part of the Bible or an addition to it?

Answer: No! All teachings come from the Bible alone. As a last-day prophet, her purpose was to emphasize Jesus' love, His soon return, and to point people to the Bible. She particularly focused on Revelation 14:6-14—the three angels' messages—and urged people to share this message of hope globally.

24. Do Ellen White's writings agree with Scripture?

Answer: Yes! Her writings are filled with Scripture. Her clear and stated goal was to direct people to the Bible, and her teachings never contradict God's Word.

25. How can I accept Ellen White as a true prophet if I haven't read her writings?

Answer: You can't until you read them yourself. However, you can know that she (1) meets the tests of a prophet, (2) did the work of a prophet, and (3) the true church of God in the last days must have a prophet. We encourage you to read one of her books—perhaps The Desire of Ages—and ask yourself if it draws you closer to Jesus and aligns with the Bible.

26. What three-part instruction does Paul give us about prophets?

Answer:

1. “Do not despise prophecy.”

2. “Test everything.”

3. “Hold fast to what is good.” (1 Thessalonians 5:20, 21)

Paul instructs believers not to reject prophets but to test them by the Bible. If their words and actions agree with Scripture, we should follow them.

27. How does Jesus view the rejection of a true prophet’s words?

Answer: Jesus considers rejecting a true prophet as rejecting God’s counsel (Luke 7:28-30). Moreover, He states that spiritual success depends on believing His prophets (2 Chronicles 20:20)

The words of a true prophet always lead people to a deep understanding of the Bible.
28. Do true prophets of the last days introduce new teachings, or do their messages come from the Bible?

Answer: True last-day prophets do not introduce new doctrines (Revelation 22:18, 19). All teachings must come from the Bible alone.

However, true prophets:
A. Reveal new insights into old Bible truths (Amos 3:7).
B. Lead God’s people to walk closely with Jesus.
C. Clarify difficult or obscure parts of the Bible.
D. Protect against spiritual error and deception.
E. Help interpret end-time prophecies with current world events.
F. Remind people of the soon return of Jesus.

Jesus promises to bless His last-day church with the gift of prophecy. He is doing everything possible to save His people and bring them into His eternal kingdom (Matthew 19:27-29).

29. Are you willing to test Ellen White’s writings by Scripture and accept them if they align?

Answer: [Your answer here]

Do We Trust God

Lesson 25

Do you really trust God?... The truth is, many people say "yes," but their actions say otherwise. Even worse, because they do not trust Him, they may be robbing Him! "Come on!" you say, "No one would steal or snatch money from God." But God's shocking message to His people is, "You have robbed Me" (Malachi 3:8). Accurate records reveal that billions of people rob God, and although it may seem surprising, they use the stolen money to subsidize their careless spending habits! However, many are unaware of their misuse, and in this Study Guide, we will show you how to avoid making the same mistake and how to achieve financial success through genuine faith in God.

A Tenth of Our Income Belongs to God

1. According to the Bible, what portion of our income belongs to the Lord?
"And all the tithe of the land ... is the Lord's." (Leviticus 27:30)
Answer: The tithe belongs to God.

The word "tithe" literally means "ten."

2. What is "tithe"?
"I give to the Levites all the tithes in Israel as their inheritance... The tithes of the Israelites... I give to the Levites as their inheritance." (Numbers 18:21, 24)
Answer: Tithe is one-tenth of a person's income. The word "tithe" literally means "ten." Tithe belongs to God—it is His. I have no right to keep it. When I return tithe, I am not giving a gift; I am returning to God what already belongs to Him. Unless I return one-tenth of my income to God, I am not paying tithe.

Tithe Should Be Brought to God's Storehouse, or the Church

3. Where does the Lord ask His people to bring the tithe?
"Bring all the tithes into the storehouse." (Malachi 3:10)
Answer: He asks us to bring the tithe into His storehouse.

4. What does the Lord mean when He speaks of His storehouse?
"Then all Judah brought the tithe of grain, new wine, and oil to the storerooms." (Nehemiah 13:12)
Answer: In Malachi 3:10, God refers to the storehouse as "My house," meaning His temple or church. Nehemiah 13:12 further clarifies that the tithe was to be brought into the temple treasury, which is God's storehouse. Other scriptures referring to the storehouse as the temple treasury or rooms include 1 Chronicles 9:26 (see margin); 2 Chronicles 31:11, 12 (see margin); and Nehemiah 10:37, 38. In Old Testament times, God's people brought 10 percent of all their increase—including crops and animals—to the storehouse.

Tithing Existed Before the Law of Moses

5. Some think tithing was part of Moses' ceremonial laws that ended at the cross. How does the Bible show us that this is not true?
"And [Abram] gave him a tithe of all." (Genesis 14:20)
"And of all that You give me, I will surely give a tenth to You." (Genesis 28:22)
Answer: These verses reveal that Abraham and Jacob, who lived long before Moses' time, paid tithe from their income. We can conclude that God's plan for tithing existed before the law of Moses.

Jesus Approved of Tithing

6. Did Jesus abolish the plan of tithing?
"Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you pay tithe... and have neglected the weightier matters of the law: justice, mercy, and faith. These you ought to have done, without leaving the others undone." (Matthew 23:23)
Answer: No! On the contrary, He approved of it. Jesus rebuked the Jews for neglecting the more important matters of the law—"justice, mercy, and faith"—even though they were careful to pay tithe. He clearly told them they should continue tithing while also practicing justice, mercy, and faithfulness.

Tithe Supported the Priests in the Old Testament

7. What was the tithe used for in the Old Testament?
"I give to the Levites all the tithes in Israel as their inheritance in return for the work they do while serving at the tent of meeting." (Numbers 18:21)
Answer: In Old Testament times, the tithe supported the priests. The tribe of Levi (the priests) did not receive land for farming or business like the other 11 tribes. The Levites worked full-time in the temple, caring for its services and serving God's people. Therefore, God's plan was that the tithe would provide for the priests and their families.

Today, Tithe Should Support Gospel Workers

8. Did God change His plan for the use of tithe in the New Testament?
"Do you not know that those who serve in the temple get their food from the temple, and those who serve at the altar share in what is offered on the altar? In the same way, the Lord has commanded that those who preach the gospel should receive their living from the gospel." (1 Corinthians 9:13, 14)
Answer: No! His plan remains unchanged. Today, tithe is to be used to support those who work full-time in gospel ministry. If everyone faithfully returned tithe and it was used correctly to support gospel workers, there would be more than enough funds to spread God's final message to the whole world.

God Promises Great Blessings to Faithful Tithe-Payers

9. What amazing offer does God make to those who are unsure about tithing?
"Bring all the tithes into the storehouse... and try Me now in this," says the Lord of hosts, "if I will not open for you the windows of heaven and pour out for you such blessing that there will not be room enough to receive it." (Malachi 3:10)
Answer: He says, "Try Me now" and see if "I will not pour out for you such blessing" that you cannot contain it. This is the only time in the Bible where God makes such a challenge. He says, "Test Me. It works. I promise." Thousands of tithe-payers worldwide joyfully testify to the truth of God's tithing promise. They have learned this reality: "You cannot outgive God."

When We Tithe, Jesus Himself Receives Our Offering

10. When we return tithe, who actually receives our money?
"Here mortal men receive tithes, but there He receives them." (Hebrews 7:8)
Answer: Jesus, our heavenly High Priest, receives our tithes.

Tithing Is a Test of Faith—Just Like in Eden

11. What test did Adam and Eve fail, which we all face if we want to inherit His kingdom?
Answer: They took what God said was not theirs. God gave Adam and Eve the fruit of every tree in the Garden of Eden except one—the tree of the knowledge of good and evil (Genesis 2:16, 17). That fruit was not theirs to eat. Likewise, God gives us all wealth, wisdom, and heavenly blessings.

Everything is ours—except one-tenth of our income, which belongs to Him (Leviticus 27:30). When we deliberately take God's tithe for ourselves, we repeat Adam and Eve's sin and show a tragic lack of trust in our Redeemer.

Make God Your Partner

When I return tithe to God, I make Him a partner in everything I do. What a wonderful and blessed opportunity: God and me – partners! With Him as my partner, I have everything to gain and nothing to lose. It is a dangerous thing to take God's own money, which He has designated for saving souls, and use it for our personal budgets.
God's people give offerings joyfully as an expression of their love for Him.

12. Besides the tithe, which belongs to God, what else does He ask from His people?
"Bring an offering and come into His courts." – Psalm 96:8

Answer: The Lord asks us to give offerings for His work as a demonstration of our love for Him and our gratitude for His blessings. The Bible does not specify the amount to be given for offerings.

13. How much should I give God as an offering?
"Each one should give what he has decided in his heart to give, not reluctantly or under compulsion, for God loves a cheerful giver." – 2 Corinthians 9:7

Answer: The Bible does not mention a specific amount for offerings. Each person decides (as God leads) how much to give and should give cheerfully.

14. What additional principles does the Bible share about giving?

Answer:
A. My first priority should be to give myself to the Lord (2 Corinthians 8:5).
B. I should give God the best I have (Proverbs 3:9).
C. God blesses the generous giver (Proverbs 11:24-25).
D. It is more blessed to give than to receive (Acts 20:35).
E. Being stingy prevents me from using God's blessings properly (Luke 12:16-21).
F. God gives back more than I give (Luke 6:38).
G. I should give according to how God has prospered and blessed me (1 Corinthians 16:2).
H. I should give as much as I am able (Deuteronomy 16:17).

We return the tithe to God because it already belongs to Him. Offerings, however, are voluntary and should be given with joy.

15. What does the Lord own?

Answer:
A. All the silver and gold in the world (Haggai 2:8).
B. The earth and everything in it (Psalm 24:1).
C. The Lord owns the world and all that is in it (Psalm 50:10-12).

God allows people to use His vast resources and gives them the wisdom and ability to succeed and gather wealth (Deuteronomy 8:18). In return for providing everything, God only asks that we return to Him 10% as a recognition of His investment in our business affairs, along with offerings as a sign of our love and gratitude.

16. How does the Lord describe people who do not return His 10% and give offerings?
"Will a man rob God? Yet you rob me. But you ask, 'How do we rob you?' In tithes and offerings." – Malachi 3:8

Answer: He calls them robbers. Can you imagine people robbing God? Those who rob God by withholding tithes and offerings will not be allowed to enter heaven.

17. What does God say will happen to those who knowingly continue to rob Him of tithes and offerings?
"You are under a curse – your whole nation – because you are robbing me." – Malachi 3:9
"Nor thieves nor the greedy nor drunkards nor slanderers nor swindlers will inherit the kingdom of God." – 1 Corinthians 6:10

Answer: They will be under God's curse and will not inherit the kingdom of heaven.

18. Why is greed so dangerous?
"For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also." – Luke 12:34

Answer: Because our hearts follow our investments. If my goal is to accumulate more and more money, my heart becomes selfish, greedy, and proud. But if my goal is to share, help others, and bless God's work, my heart becomes caring, loving, generous, and humble. Greed is one of the 20 terrible sins of the last days that will keep people out of heaven (2 Timothy 3:1-7).

19. How does Jesus feel when we rob Him of His holy tithe and love offerings? "That is why I was angry with that generation, and I said, 'Their hearts are always going astray.'" – Hebrews 3:10

Answer: He likely feels like a parent whose child steals money from them. The money itself is not the issue – it is the lack of integrity, love, and trust that is most discouraging.

20. What inspiring things does Paul emphasize about the faithful stewardship of the Macedonian believers?

Answer: In 2 Corinthians 8, Paul describes the inspiring response of the Macedonian churches to help suffering Christians in Jerusalem:

A. (Verse 5) They first gave themselves to Jesus Christ.
B. (Verses 2-3) Although they were very poor, they gave beyond their ability.
C. (Verse 4) They urgently pleaded to give their gifts.
D. (Verse 9) Their giving reflected Jesus' sacrificial example.

21. What does God promise to those who are faithful in returning tithes and giving offerings?

"Bring the whole tithe into the storehouse, that there may be food in my house. Test me in this," says the Lord Almighty, "and see if I will not throw open the floodgates of heaven and pour out so much blessing that there will not be room enough to store it." – Malachi 3:10

Answer: God promises to bless His faithful stewards financially and spiritually, making them a blessing to others.

Changing Love

Lesson 26

Being in love changes everything. For example, a young woman was reading a large book for her university English literature course. She found the entire thing very boring and couldn't focus while reading it. But then she met a young professor at the university, and they quickly fell in love. Shortly afterward, she discovered that her beloved was the author of the book she had struggled with. That night, she stayed up reading the entire book in amazement, saying, "This is the best book I've ever read!" What changed her perspective? Love did.

Similarly, many people today find the Scriptures to be boring, restrictive, and unappealing. But all of that changes when you fall in love with the Author. See how in this heartwarming Study Guide!

Jesus is the Author of the Scriptures.

1. Who is the Author of the Scriptures?
“Concerning this salvation, the prophets who prophesied about the grace that was to be yours searched and inquired carefully, inquiring what person or time the Spirit of Christ in them was indicating when he predicted the sufferings of Christ and the subsequent glories.” (1 Peter 1:10, 11)

Answer: The God of the Bible (even in the Old Testament) is almost always Jesus Christ. Jesus created the world (John 1:1-3, 14; Colossians 1:13-17), wrote the Ten Commandments (Nehemiah 9:6, 13), was the God of Israel (1 Corinthians 10:1-4), and inspired the writings of the prophets (1 Peter 1:10, 11).

Therefore, Jesus Christ is the Author of the Scriptures.

Jesus loves the people of the world with eternal love.

2. What is Jesus’ attitude toward the people of the world?
“For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have eternal life.” (John 3:16)

Answer: Jesus loves us all with an indescribable, boundless love that surpasses understanding.

Jesus died for all of us, even though none of us deserved it.

3. Why should we love Jesus?
“We love because he first loved us.” (1 John 4:19)
“But God shows his love for us in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us.” (Romans 5:8)

Answer: We should love Him because He loved us enough to die for us—even while we were still His enemies.

A successful marriage and Christian life share common principles.

4. In what ways are a successful marriage and Christian life similar?
“And whatever we ask we receive from him, because we keep his commandments and do what pleases him.” (1 John 3:22)

Answer: In a good marriage, certain things are essential, like faithfulness to your spouse. Other things may seem minor, but if they please your partner, they become important. If something displeases your spouse, it should be avoided. The same is true for the Christian life. The commandments of Jesus are essential.

In the Scriptures, Jesus also outlines principles of behavior that please Him. Just like in a loving marriage, a Christian finds joy in doing the things that please Jesus, the One they love, and avoids what displeases Him.

Doing the things that please Jesus brings great joy and abundant life.

5. What does Jesus say about the results of doing what pleases Him?
"If you keep my commandments, you will abide in my love... These things I have spoken to you, that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be full." (John 15:10, 11)

Answer: Satan claims that following Christian principles is foolish, restrictive, and meaningless. But Jesus says it brings complete joy (John 15:10, 11) and abundant life (John 10:10). Believing Satan's lies brings heartbreak and denies people the life that "is truly life."

The Bible's principles protect us from Satan's dangerous traps.

6. Why does Jesus give us specific Christian living principles?

Answer: Because they:

A. Are always for our own benefit (Deuteronomy 6:24). Just as good parents teach their children good principles, Jesus teaches His followers good principles.

B. Protect us from sin (Psalm 119:11). Jesus' principles shield us from Satan's dangerous traps.

C. Show us how to follow Christ's example (1 Peter 2:21).

D. Bring us true happiness (John 13:17).

E. Give us opportunities to express our love for Him (John 15:10).

F. Help us be a positive example to others (1 Corinthians 10:31-33; Matthew 5:16).

When I love worldly things, I become an enemy of God.

7. According to Jesus, how should Christians relate to the world's evil and worldly things?

Answer: His commands and counsel are clear and specific:

A. Do not love the world or worldly things. The things of the world that oppose God are: (1) lust of the flesh, (2) lust of the eyes, and (3) the pride of life (1 John 2:16). All sins fall into one or more of these categories. When I begin to love the world, I become an enemy of God (1 John 2:15, 16; James 4:4).

B. Keep yourself unspotted from the world (James 1:27).

Christians must firmly resist worldly influences, or Satan will lead them astray.

8. What urgent warning does God give us about the world?

Answer: Jesus warns Christians, "Do not be conformed to this world." (Romans 12:2).

Satan constantly pressures Christians. Through Jesus (Philippians 4:13), we must resist Satan's suggestions, and he will flee (James 4:7).

We must guard our thoughts carefully because thoughts become actions.

9. Why do we need to guard our thoughts?
"For as he thinks in his heart, so is he." (Proverbs 23:7)

Answer: We must guard our thoughts because they shape our behavior. God wants to help us "take every thought captive to obey Christ." (2 Corinthians 10:5).

Christians must avoid music that weakens their desire to live godly lives.

10. What are some principles for Christian living?
"Finally, brothers, whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is commendable, if there is any excellence, if there is anything worthy of praise, think about these things." (Philippians 4:8)

Answer: Christians should avoid anything that is untrue, dishonest, unjust, impure, or unlovely. This includes:

A. Dishonesty—lying, cheating, stealing, and gossip.

B. Immorality—pornography, vulgar language, and corrupt entertainment.

C. Places that dishonor God—such as nightclubs and gambling venues.

Christians must choose music and entertainment that uplift and glorify God.

Dancing
Dancing undoubtedly leads people away from Jesus and spirituality. When the Israelites danced around the golden calf, they forgot about God (Exodus 32:17-25). When Herodias' wicked daughter danced before King Herod, John the Baptist was beheaded (Matthew 14:2-12). Consider these shocking statistics: A Catholic priest in New York said that three-quarters of the girls who confessed to fornication blamed dancing. Other priests estimated the number to be as high as nine out of ten. Remember, if Christ can participate in an activity with you, you are safe. If not, stay away from it.

TV, Videos, and Theaters
Do the things you watch on television, videos, or in movie theaters lift you spiritually, or do they drag you down? Do they lead you to a greater love for Jesus or for the world? Do they glorify Jesus or the works of the devil? In our time, even non-Christians and secular people speak out against much of the content produced for TV and movies. Satan has captured the eyes and ears of billions of people, turning the world rapidly into a pool of immorality, crime, terrorism, and hopelessness. One study reported that without TV, "10,000 fewer murders, 70,000 fewer rapes, and 700,000 fewer assaults" would occur each year in the United States.

Jesus, who loves you, asks you to turn your eyes away from Satan's thought-control devices and focus on Him. He says, "Look unto Me, and be saved." (Isaiah 45:22).

2. Circus magazine, January 31, 1976, p. 39.

3. Newsweek, "Violence, Reel to Reel," December 11, 1995, p. 47.

A safe guide for watching TV is to ask yourself, "Would I feel comfortable inviting Jesus to watch this show with me?"

11. What clear list does Jesus give us to guide our TV viewing?
"The acts of the flesh are obvious: sexual immorality, impurity and debauchery; idolatry and witchcraft; hatred, discord, jealousy, fits of rage, selfish ambition, dissensions, factions and envy; drunkenness, orgies, and the like. I warn you, as I did before, that those who live like this will not inherit the kingdom of God." (Galatians 5:19-21, NEB)

Answer: The Bible is very clear. If a family bans all TV programs that display or support any of the sins mentioned above, there would be very little left to watch. If Jesus came to visit you, what TV shows would you feel comfortable inviting Him to watch? Any show that doesn't meet His standards is probably not suitable for a Christian to watch.

My choice of TV programs—and, in fact, my entire lifestyle—must be guided by the words of Scripture, not my personal feelings.

12. In this age of personal freedom and independent thinking, many people feel fully capable of making spiritual decisions without input from anyone, including Jesus. What does Jesus say about such people?

Answer: Listen to these clear statements from Jesus:
"You shall not do as we are doing here today—everyone doing as they see fit." (Deuteronomy 12:8)
"There is a way that appears to be right, but in the end, it leads to death." (Proverbs 16:25)
"The way of fools seems right to them, but the wise listen to advice." (Proverbs 12:15)
"Those who trust in themselves are fools." (Proverbs 28:26)

13. What serious warnings does Jesus give us about our example and influence on others?

"If anyone causes one of these little ones—those who believe in me—to stumble, it would be better for them to have a large millstone hung around their neck and to be drowned in the depths of the sea." (Matthew 18:6)
"Make up your mind not to put any stumbling block or obstacle in the way of a brother or sister." (Romans 14:13)
"For none of us lives for ourselves alone." (Romans 14:7)

Answer: We expect leaders, influential people, famous athletes, and public figures to be good examples and to use their influence wisely—to pay what is called a "debt to society." However, in today's world, we are often disappointed by the irresponsible and shameful behavior of celebrities.

Jesus says clearly in Romans 1:14 that Christians, who represent Him and His kingdom, also owe a debt to others. He firmly warns that Christians who ignore their influence and cause others to stumble will not enter His kingdom.

God asks His people to set aside ornaments and jewelry.

14. What principles does Jesus give regarding dress and adornment?

Answer:
A. Dress modestly. See 1 Timothy 2:9. Remember that the world appeals to us through "the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life" (1 John 2:16). Immodest dress involves all three and is forbidden for a Christian.

B. Set aside ornaments and jewelry. "The pride of life" is the main issue here. Followers of Jesus should look different—their appearance should reflect His light (Matthew 5:16). Adorning oneself draws attention and promotes self-glorification.

Throughout the Bible, jewelry is a sign of backsliding and rebellion. For example:

When Jacob's family rededicated themselves to God, they buried their jewelry (Genesis 35:1-4).

Before entering the Promised Land, God commanded the Israelites to remove their ornaments (Exodus 33:5-6).

In Isaiah 3:16-23, God condemns the Israelites for wearing jewelry, considering it sinful.

In Hosea 2:13, God says that when Israel left Him, they began wearing jewelry. 1 Timothy 2:9 and 1 Peter 3:3 instruct God's people not to wear gold, pearls, or expensive clothes.

God asks His people to separate themselves from Babylon (Revelation 18:2-4)—including its worldly adornments—and instead to clothe themselves with the righteousness of Jesus.

15. How are Christian behavior and obedience related to salvation?

Answer: Christian behavior and obedience are evidence that I am saved by Jesus Christ (James 2:20-26). If a person's lifestyle does not change after conversion, it is likely the conversion was not genuine. A truly converted person finds joy in discovering Jesus' will and following it gladly.

16. Should we expect everyone to understand the Christian lifestyle?

Answer: No. Jesus said that spiritual matters appear foolish to the natural person because they are understood only through the Spirit (1 Corinthians 2:14).

17. How would someone who rejects Christ's standards view heaven?

Answer: Such a person would be miserable in heaven. Heaven would be like "hell" for those who never formed a genuine relationship with Jesus (2 Corinthians 6:14-17).

18. How can I follow these biblical guidelines without appearing judgmental or legalistic?

Answer: Everything we do should be guided by one thought: to honor and glorify Jesus (1 John 3:22).

19. I want to love Christ so much that following His standards for Christian living will be a joy and a delight.

Questions of Reflection

1. I know what God wants me to do, but I don't feel ready to start doing it. What do you advise?
Start immediately! Never rely on feelings. God leads through the words of Scripture (Isaiah 8:20). Feelings often lead to error. The Jewish leaders felt they should crucify Jesus, but they were wrong. Many will feel saved at Jesus' second coming but will actually be lost (Matthew 7:21-23). The devil influences feelings. If I rely on my feelings, he will lead me to destruction.

2. I have a problem. I really want to do something, but I realize that because of its appearance, others may feel I am doing wrong. What should I do?
The Bible is clear. It says, "Abstain from all appearance of evil." (1 Thessalonians 5:22). The apostle Paul also said that if eating meat caused someone to stumble, he would never eat meat again (1 Corinthians 8:13). He further stated that if he ignored a person's feelings and continued, he would be sinning.

3. It seems to me that churches list too many things I must do and too many things I must not do. It feels overwhelming. Isn't following Jesus the main thing?
Yes, following Jesus is the main thing. However, following Jesus means one thing to one person and something else to another. The only safe way to know what it means to follow Jesus is to discover what He says in the Bible about any matter of right or wrong. Those who follow Jesus' commandments with love will one day enter His kingdom (Revelation 22:14). Those who follow human-made rules may be led away from His kingdom (Matthew 15:3-9).

4. Some of God's requirements seem meaningless and unnecessary to me. I don't understand why they are important. What do you advise?
Children often feel that some of their parents' rules (e.g., "Don't play in the street") are unreasonable. But later, they thank their parents for those rules. We are "children" in our understanding of God because His thoughts and ways are higher than ours (Isaiah 55:8, 9). We must trust our loving Heavenly Father even when we do not understand. He will not withhold anything good from us (Psalm 84:11). When I am truly in love with Jesus, I will trust Him and obey even if I don't always understand why. Being born again is the key. The Bible says that when I am truly converted, obeying Jesus will not be a burden (1 John 5:4). Refusing to obey because I do not understand shows a lack of trust in my Savior.

5. Will I benefit from Jesus' loving principles, rules, and commandments?
Absolutely! Every principle, rule, and commandment of Jesus brings special blessings. The greatest earthly reward cannot compare to the blessings God gives to His obedient children. Some of these benefits include:

6. Jesus as a personal friend.

7. Jesus as a partner in business.

8. Freedom from guilt.

9. Peace of mind.

10. Freedom from fear.

11. Unspeakable joy.

12. Longer life.

13. Assurance of a heavenly home.

14. Better health.

15. Mental clarity.

16. Regarding Christian standards and lifestyle, do I have a responsibility to teach others about them?
The best principle to follow is to focus on our own lifestyle. The Bible says, "Examine yourselves" (2 Corinthians 13:5). When our lifestyle reflects Christ, our example serves as a silent witness. However, parents have a special responsibility to teach their children how to follow Jesus.

17. What is the greatest danger for Christians today?
One of the greatest dangers is divided loyalty. Many Christians attempt to love both Jesus and the sinful pleasures of the world. Jesus warned that no one "can serve two masters" (Matthew 6:24).

18. Is following this Christian moral standards legalism?
Not if you do it out of love for Jesus and because you are saved. Salvation comes only as a miraculous, free gift from Jesus. Following His moral standards out of love is never legalism.

19. Do Christian standards relate to Jesus' command to let our light shine?
Yes! Jesus said, "You are the light of the world" (Matthew 5:14). Our light shines through our conduct, dress, speech, attitude, compassion, cleanliness, and honesty. People will see Christ reflected in our lives and may be led to Him.

20. Aren't Christian standards cultural? Shouldn't they change over time?
Customs may change, but biblical standards remain the same. "The word of our God will stand forever" (Isaiah 40:8). The church should lead the world, not follow it. Jesus calls us to come out and be separate (2 Corinthians 6:17).

21. Surely not all dancing is bad. Didn't David dance before the Lord?
True, not all dancing is bad. David danced before the Lord in joy and worship (2 Samuel 6:14-16). However, modern social dancing often leads to immorality and is condemned by biblical principles.

22. What does the Bible say about judging and condemning others?
"Judge not, that you be not judged" (Matthew 7:1, 2). Only Jesus is the rightful judge (John 5:22).

No Turning Back

Lesson 27

When a skydiver reaches the edge of the airplane door and jumps, he knows there is no turning back. He has gone too far, and if he forgets to fasten the strap to his parachute, nothing can save him—he will surely plunge to a tragic death. What a disaster! But there is something even worse that can happen to a person. Indeed, it is far worse to reach the point of no return in your relationship with God. Yet millions are approaching this point and have no idea! Could you be one of them? What is the terrible sin that could lead to such a fate? Why can't God forgive it? For a clear and insightful answer—one that is also filled with hope—take a few minutes with this fascinating Study Guide.

1. What sin cannot be forgiven by God?
“Every sin and blasphemy will be forgiven men, but the blasphemy against the Holy Spirit will not be forgiven.” (Matthew 12:31)

Answer: The sin that God cannot forgive is “blasphemy against the Holy Spirit.” But what exactly is “blasphemy against the Holy Spirit”? People have many different opinions about this sin. Some believe it is murder; others, cursing the Holy Spirit; others, suicide; some say it is killing an unborn child; others, denying Christ; some believe it is a particularly vile and wicked act; and others think it is worshiping a false god! The next question will shed light on this important matter.

Murder, although terrible, is not the sin that God cannot forgive.

2. What does the Bible say about sin and blasphemy?
“Every kind of sin and blasphemy will be forgiven men.” (Matthew 12:31)

Answer: The Bible clearly states that every kind of sin and blasphemy will be forgiven. Therefore, none of the sins listed in the previous answer is the sin that God cannot forgive. No single act of any kind is the unpardonable sin.

Conflicting Voices

Yes, it may seem contradictory, but both of the following statements are true:

A. Every kind of sin and blasphemy will be forgiven.
B. Blasphemy or sin against the Holy Spirit will not be forgiven.

Jesus Made Both Statements
Jesus made both statements in Matthew 12:31, so there is no mistake here. To reconcile these statements, we must understand the work of the Holy Spirit. By the way, the word “ghost” comes from “ghast,” an Old English word for “spirit.

3. What is the work of the Holy Spirit?

“And when He [the Holy Spirit] has come, He will convict the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment.”
“He will guide you into all truth.” (John 16:8, 13, NKJV)

Answer: The work of the Holy Spirit is to convict me of sin and guide me into all truth. The Holy Spirit is God’s agent of conversion. Without the Holy Spirit, no one feels sorrow for sin, and no one is converted.

4. When the Holy Spirit convicts me of sin, what must I do to be forgiven?

“If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.” (1 John 1:9)

Answer: When the Holy Spirit convicts me of sin, I must confess my sins to be forgiven. When I confess, God not only forgives me but also miraculously cleanses me from all unrighteousness.

God is waiting and willing to forgive any and every sin I may commit (Psalm 86:5), but only if I confess and forsake it.

5. What happens if I refuse to confess my sins when convicted by the Holy Spirit?

“He who covers his sins will not prosper, but whoever confesses and forsakes them will have mercy.” (Proverbs 28:13)

Answer: If I refuse to confess my sins, Jesus cannot forgive them. Therefore, any sin I do not confess cannot be forgiven until I acknowledge it, because forgiveness always follows confession—it never comes before.

The Terrifying Danger of Resisting the Holy Spirit

Resisting the Holy Spirit is extremely dangerous because it easily leads to rejecting Him completely, which is the sin that God can never forgive. It is the point of no return.

Since the Holy Spirit is the only agent given to convict me of sin, if I ultimately reject Him, my case becomes hopeless. This lesson is so important that God explains and emphasizes it in various ways throughout the Scriptures.

When the Holy Spirit convicts me of sin, I must respond immediately.

6. When the Holy Spirit convicts me of sin or leads me to new truth, when should I act?

Answer: The Bible says:

A. “As soon as they hear of me, they will obey me.” (Psalm 18:44)
B. “I made haste, and did not delay to keep Your commandments.” (Psalm 119:60)
C. “Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation.”

(2 Corinthians 6:2)
D. “And now why are you waiting? Arise and be baptized, and wash away your sins, calling on the name of the Lord.” (Acts 22:16)
The Bible repeatedly says that when I am convicted of sin, I must confess it immediately. And when I learn a new truth, I must accept it without delay

God warned the people in the days of Noah that His Holy Spirit would not continue to plead with them forever; nor will He today.

7. What serious warning does God give about resisting His Holy Spirit?
“My Spirit shall not strive with man forever.” (Genesis 6:3)

Answer: God clearly warns that the Holy Spirit will not continue indefinitely to plead with a person to turn away from sin and obey Him. Ignoring the alarm clock instead of waking up will eventually lead to a point where I no longer hear it. Similarly, resisting the Holy Spirit will make me deaf to His voice.
8. When does the Holy Spirit stop pleading with someone?
“Therefore, I speak to them in parables, because... though hearing, they do not hear.” (Matthew 13:13)

Answer: The Holy Spirit stops speaking to a person when that person becomes deaf to His voice. The Bible describes this as “hearing but not hearing.” There is no point in setting an alarm clock in a room full of deaf people—they won’t hear it. In the same way, a person can condition themselves not to hear the ringing of an alarm clock by repeatedly ignoring it and refusing to get up. Eventually, the alarm will ring, and they will no longer hear it.

Do not shut out the Holy Spirit
This is also true for the Holy Spirit. If I continue to resist Him, one day He will speak, and I will not hear Him. When that day comes, the Spirit sadly leaves me because I have become deaf to His appeals—I have crossed the point of no return. This is a serious and sobering warning against resisting the voice of the Holy Spirit!

When I receive new light from God’s Word, I must follow it immediately without delay.

9. Through His Holy Spirit, God brings light (John 1:9) and conviction (John 16:8) to every person on earth. What should I do when I receive light from the Holy Spirit?
“The path of the righteous is like the morning sun, shining ever brighter till the full light of day. The way of the wicked is like deep darkness.” (Proverbs 4:18, 19)

“Walk while you have the light, lest darkness overtake you.” (John 12:35)

Answer: The principle of the Bible is that when the Holy Spirit brings me new light or convicts me of sin, I must act immediately—obeying without delay. If I obey and walk in the light when I receive it, God will continue to give me more light. If I refuse, even the light I have will fade, and I will be left in darkness.

The darkness that results from continually rejecting and ultimately refusing to follow the light is the consequence of rejecting the Spirit and leaves me without hope.

Judas’ unpardonable sin was greed because he refused to confess and forsake it.

10. Can any sin become a sin against the Holy Spirit?

Answer: Yes. If I persistently refuse to confess and forsake any sin, I will eventually become deaf to the pleadings of the Holy Spirit and cross the point of no return. Here are a few biblical examples:

A. Judas’ unpardonable sin was greed (John 12:6).
Why? Was it because God could not forgive him? No! It became unpardonable simply because Judas refused to listen to the Holy Spirit and confess his sin of greed. Eventually, he became deaf to the Spirit’s voice.

B. Lucifer’s unpardonable sins were pride and self-exaltation (Isaiah 14:12-14).
God could have forgiven these sins. Lucifer could have been forgiven and cleansed, but he refused to listen until he could no longer hear the Spirit’s voice.

C. The Pharisees’ unpardonable sin was rejecting Jesus as the Messiah (Mark 3:22-30).
They were repeatedly and deeply convicted that Jesus was the Messiah, the living Son of God from heaven. But they hardened their hearts and stubbornly refused to accept Him as Savior and Lord. Eventually, they became deaf to the Spirit’s voice.

Then, one day, after witnessing another of Jesus’ great miracles, the Pharisees told the crowd that Jesus received His power from Satan.

At that moment, Christ told them that attributing His miraculous power to the devil demonstrated that they had crossed the point of no return and had blasphemed against the Holy Spirit.

God could have, and gladly would have, forgiven them—but they refused until

I Cannot Choose the Consequences

When the Holy Spirit makes His plea, I can choose to respond or reject, but I cannot choose the consequences. If I respond consistently, I will become like Jesus. The Holy Spirit will seal me, or mark me on my forehead as a child of God (Revelation 7:2, 3), thus guaranteeing me a place in God's heavenly kingdom. If I continue to reject the Holy Spirit's promptings, I will grieve Him, and He will leave me forever, sealing my fate. What a solemn warning against ignoring the Holy Spirit!

King David knew that if the Holy Spirit left him, he would be lost. That is why he pleaded with God not to take His Spirit away.

11. After King David committed the grievous double sin of adultery and murder, what anguished prayer did he offer?
"Do not take your Holy Spirit from me." (Psalm 51:11)

Answer: He pleaded with God not to take the Holy Spirit from him. Why? Because David knew that if the Holy Spirit left him, he was condemned from that moment. He understood that only the Holy Spirit could lead him to repentance and restoration, and he trembled at the thought of becoming deaf to His voice. The Bible tells us elsewhere that God eventually left Ephraim alone because he was joined to his idols (Hosea 4:17) and refused to listen to the Spirit. He became spiritually deaf. The most tragic thing that could ever happen to a person is for God to turn away and leave them alone. Don't let that happen to you!

Sin Is Like Water—It Extinguishes the Fire of the Holy Spirit

12. What solemn command did Paul give to the church in Thessalonica?
"Do not quench the Spirit." (1 Thessalonians 5:19)

Answer: The plea of the Holy Spirit is like a fire burning in the mind and heart of a person. Sin has the same effect on the Holy Spirit as water does on fire. When I ignore the Holy Spirit and continue in sin, I pour water on the Spirit's fire. Paul's striking words to the Thessalonians apply to us today. Do not quench the fire of the Holy Spirit by repeatedly refusing to obey His voice. If the fire goes out, you have passed the point of no return.

Any Sin Can Quench the Fire

Any unconfessed or unrepented sin can ultimately quench the fire of the Holy Spirit. It could be rejecting God's holy seventh-day Sabbath. It might be the use of tobacco. It could be failing to forgive someone who has betrayed or hurt you. It could be immorality. It could be withholding God's tithe. Refusing to obey the Holy Spirit's voice in any area pours water on the fire of the Holy Spirit. Do not quench the fire. No greater tragedy could happen.

13. What other shocking and unimaginable statement did Paul make to the Thessalonian believers?

"They perish because they refused to love the truth and so be saved. For this reason God sends them a powerful delusion so that they will believe the lie and so that all will be condemned who have not believed the truth but have delighted in wickedness." (2 Thessalonians 2:10-12)

Answer: What powerful and sobering words! God says that those who reject the truth and the conviction brought by the Holy Spirit will, after the Spirit leaves them, receive a strong delusion to believe that error is truth. What a terrifying thought!

The Lord Will Shut Many So-Called Christians Out of Heaven Because They Refuse to Obey

14. What heartbreaking realization will some people who are sent this strong delusion face on judgment day?

"Many will say to me on that day, 'Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in your name, and in your name drive out demons and in your name perform many miracles?' Then I will tell them plainly, 'I never knew you. Away from me, you evildoers!'" (Matthew 7:22, 23)

Answer: Those who cry, "Lord, Lord," will be shocked and dismayed to find themselves shut out. They will be absolutely sure they are saved. Jesus will undoubtedly remind them of that critical time in their lives when the Holy Spirit brought them new truth and conviction. It was clear and true. It kept them awake at night, struggling with their decision. How their hearts burned within them! But finally, they said, "No!" and refused to listen to the Spirit any longer. Then came the strong delusion, making them feel saved while they were lost. Could any greater tragedy befall a human being?

Assurance of Salvation While Disobeying God Is a False Assurance That Will Destroy Many

15. What special words of warning does Jesus give to help us avoid believing we are saved when we are actually lost?

“Not everyone who says to me, ‘Lord, Lord,’ will enter the kingdom of heaven, but only the one who does the will of my Father who is in heaven.” (Matthew 7:21)

Answer: Jesus earnestly warned that not all who have assurance will enter His kingdom—only those who do the will of His Father. We all desire assurance of salvation. It is a divine necessity. However, there is a false assurance prevalent in Christian communities today that promises people salvation while they continue to live in sin, without any sign of a transformed life.

Pastors Are Concerned
More and more prominent church leaders fear that many church buildings are full of people who feel “assured” but are not truly transformed by Jesus Christ. They are not obedient.

Jesus Clarifies the Truth
Jesus says true assurance is only for those who do the will of His Father. When I accept Jesus as the Lord and Master of my life, my lifestyle will change dramatically. I will become a completely new creation (2 Corinthians 5:17). I will joyfully keep His commandments, do His will (John 14:15), and willingly follow where He leads (1 Peter 2:21). His amazing resurrection power (Philippians 3:10) transforms me into His likeness (2 Corinthians 3:18). His glorious peace floods my life (John 14:27). With Jesus dwelling in me through His Spirit (Ephesians 3:16, 17), “I can do all things” (Philippians 4:13), and “nothing will be impossible” (Matthew 17:20).

True Assurance vs. False Assurance

When I follow the Savior as He leads, He promises that no one can snatch me out of His hand (John 10:28) and that a crown of life awaits me (Revelation 2:10). What an amazing, glorious, and true security Jesus gives to His followers! Any other assurance given under different conditions is false. It will lead people to the side of heavenly judgment, feeling saved while, in reality, they are lost (Proverbs 16:25).

When I make Jesus the Lord of my life, He promises to save me into His kingdom.

16. What blessed promise does God give to His faithful followers who make Him the Lord of their lives?
“He who began a good work in you will carry it on to completion until the day of Christ Jesus.” “For it is God who works in you to will and to act in order to fulfill His good purpose." (Philippians 1:6; 2:13)

Answer: Praise God! Those who make Jesus the Lord and Master of their lives are promised the miracles of Jesus that will safely bring them to His eternal kingdom. Nothing could be better than that!

Jesus promises to enter my life when I open the door to Him.

17. What other glorious promise does Jesus offer to all of us?
"Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If anyone hears My voice and opens the door, I will come in to him and dine with him, and he with Me." (Revelation 3:20)

Answer: Jesus promises to enter our lives when we open the door to Him. It is Jesus who knocks on the door of your heart and mine through His Holy Spirit. He—the King of kings, the Savior of the world—takes time from managing the universe to visit you and me with frequent visits of love, friendly guidance, care, and counsel. What a tragedy and incredible loss if we are too busy or disinterested in forming a warm, loving, and lasting friendship with Jesus.

Jesus' close friends will not be in danger of being rejected on the day of judgment. Jesus Himself will welcome them into His kingdom (Matthew 25:34). Plan to be part of that joyful group that will meet in the clouds at His coming.

18. Will you decide to open the door every time Jesus knocks on your heart and be ready to follow wherever He leads?

Final Word

This is the final Study Guide in our series of 27. Our loving desire is that you have been led into the presence of Jesus and have experienced a new and amazing relationship with Him. We hope you will walk closely with the Lord each day and will soon join that joyful group that will be translated into His blessed kingdom at His coming. If we do not meet on earth, let us agree to meet in the clouds on that glorious day.

Reflection Questions

1. The Bible says that God hardened Pharaoh's heart (Exodus 9:12). That doesn't seem fair. What does it mean?
The Holy Spirit appeals to all people (John 1:9), just as the sun shines on everyone and everything. The same sun that hardens the soil also melts wax. The Holy Spirit has a similar effect on our hearts depending on how we respond to His pleading. If I respond, my heart will be softened and completely changed (1 Samuel 10:6). If I resist the Spirit, my heart will become hardened (Zechariah 7:12).

Pharaoh's Response
Pharaoh hardened his heart by resisting the Holy Spirit (Exodus 8:15, 32; 9:34). But the Bible also says that God hardened his heart because God's Holy Spirit continued to appeal to Pharaoh. Since Pharaoh kept resisting, his heart became hard, just like the sun hardens clay. If Pharaoh had listened, his heart would have softened, just as the sun softens wax.

Judas and Peter
Christ's disciples, Judas and Peter, illustrate the same principle. Both committed serious sins—one betrayed and the other denied Jesus. Which is worse? Who can say? The same loving Holy Spirit pleaded with both of them. Judas rejected Him and became hardened like stone. Peter, on the other hand, was responsive to the Spirit, and his heart melted. He truly repented and later became one of the greatest preachers in the apostolic church.

Please read Zechariah 7:12-13 for God's strong warning about hardening our hearts against the Holy Spirit's pleading.

2. What do you think about asking for a "sign" from the Lord?
In the New Testament, Jesus speaks decisively against it. He said, "A wicked and adulterous generation seeks after a sign." (Matthew 12:39). He was teaching truth and supporting it with the Old Testament Scriptures available at that time. The people clearly understood what He was saying. They also witnessed His miracles but still rejected Him.

Later, He said, "If they do not hear Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded though one rise from the dead." (Luke 16:31). The Bible tells us to test everything by the Scriptures (Isaiah 8:19, 20). If we commit to doing God's will and following where He leads, He promises to help us distinguish truth from error (John 7:17).

3. Is there a time when prayer is useless?
Yes. If someone knowingly disobeys God (Psalm 66:18) while still asking for His blessings (without any intention of changing), their prayer is not only worthless but also an abomination to God (Proverbs 28:9).

4. I am very worried that I may have rejected the Holy Spirit and cannot be forgiven. Can you help me?
You have not rejected the Holy Spirit. You can know this because you feel concern or guilt. Only the Holy Spirit brings conviction and concern (John 16:8-13). If the Holy Spirit had left you, you would feel no concern or conviction in your heart. Rejoice and praise God! Give your life to Him now! Follow Him and obey His guidance in the future. He will give you victory (1 Corinthians 15:57), work within you (Philippians 2:13), and keep you until His second coming (Philippians 1:6).

5. In the parable of the sower (Luke 8:5-18), what does the seed that fell by the wayside and was eaten by birds mean?
The Bible says, “The seed is the word of God. Those by the wayside are the ones who hear; then the devil comes and takes away the word out of their hearts, lest they should believe and be saved.” (Luke 8:11, 12). Jesus indicates that when we understand what the Holy Spirit is calling us to do through the Word, we must act immediately. Otherwise, Satan has an opportunity to remove that truth from our minds.

6. How can the Lord say, “I never knew you” to the people He addresses in Matthew 7:21-23? I thought God knew everyone and everything!
In this passage, Jesus refers to knowing someone as a personal friend. We come to know Him by spending time with Him daily, joyfully obeying Him, and sharing our joys and sorrows with Him as we would with a close earthly friend (John 15:14).

7. Can you explain Ephesians 4:30?
This verse says, “Do not grieve the Holy Spirit of God, by whom you were sealed for the day of redemption.” Paul indicates that the Holy Spirit is a personal being who can be grieved by our rejection of His love. Persistent refusal to respond to His appeals can end our relationship with Him.

_____ Yes.
_____ No.

NB; Many have placed their hopes in parents, relatives, friends, and even pastors. However, the Word of God warns us not to place our hopes in people because people have many weaknesses. There are many pastors today who seek personal gain from their congregants. They are even willing to use inappropriate methods as long as they benefit themselves without caring for their members.

This has led to false prophets who perform fake miracles just to make money. Beloved, seek the True God, and you will be safe. The Lord will not delay; the signs indicate that He will return soon. And we would like to follow the Lamb wherever we go.
The Bible says that for the Lord, one day is like a thousand years for us. Therefore, even Methuselah or Adam, who lived long lives, actually lived for about 20 hours. And if we live for 70 years, we will have lived only 2 hours. So, even though we may think we hold important positions and ranks, the truth is that our dignity, status, or rank has been given to us by Him—Almighty God—who desires that we live a life measured by His time, that is, eternity!
Eternity is a long time, and life becomes better when we choose to be there because we will indeed have true joy. I also believe in what the Lord has said. Let us pray for one another.
JESUS is coming back! The Spirit and the Bride say, “Come!” Let whoever hears this also say, “Come!” Whoever is thirsty, let them come; whoever desires, let them take the water of life freely. Amen. Come, Lord Jesus!
We wish you all the grace of the Lord Jesus.

MARANATHA, Beloved of the LORD! Amen.

LET THE READER UNDERSTAND -1

These lessons on the book of Daniel have been prepared in a very brief manner; JESUS Himself said we should read this book in Matthew 24:15. There is no other book that He specifically mentioned for us to read, and at that time, the New Testament had not yet been written! Only a few key points have been touched on superficially. For a more detailed, verse-by-verse explanation, the reader will need to consult books such as Daniel and Our Times and other English books like Daniel by Norman McNulty. Try to carefully read the Bible's book of Daniel because almost all the answers are found there! There are many study materials available in both English and Swahili online, one of which is Pastor Semba's study titled "The Prophecy of This Book, Part 1: The Relationship Between Daniel and Revelation." The books of Daniel and Revelation are essentially one book regarding future events, or the Apocalypse—do not forget this!

Why Should We Study These Books? Everyone who reads them gains a completely different experience of faith because they open the mind, bring transformation to one's life, and entirely change one's direction. The Bible tells us that blessed is the one who reads and hears these words. Jesus says, "I am coming quickly; hold fast what you have!" These books act as an alarm to awaken our awareness, leading us to seek God and prepare for the Day of Judgment. Daniel and Revelation have been studied, discussed, and written about by many. Here is a list of some resources that have helped me: Pastor Ivory Myers and James Rafferty have studies titled Salvation in Symbols and Signs, which explain salvation through signs and symbols—allowing the Bible to interpret itself. For example, abundant waters, scarce waters, etc. Pastor Mark Finley has studies on Revelation: https://youtu.be/Vtt5Nl4pU84. Pastor Doug Batchelor studied the prophecies of Revelation even before becoming a Christian. Thirty years ago, his Amazing Facts and Revelation studies greatly blessed me.

God has revealed many things to us, and more continue to be revealed. You will be amazed when you take the time to read and study—soon, you will also be able to teach others with greater accuracy! These books were given to us to help us endure trials with faith. While we cannot know all the Scriptures, we can gain a more accurate and deeper understanding that will help us in these last days if we ask God for revelation. For He has said: "Blessed is the one who reads the words of this prophetic message, and blessed are those who hear it and take to heart what is written in it, because the time is near" (Revelation 1:3). Ranko Stefanovic, whom I have studied with, has also written a book on Revelation that is very helpful.

The reader is encouraged to first pray for the guidance of the Holy Spirit, then read the relevant chapter in the Bible to get the full context before proceeding with the lesson on that chapter. Afterward, take time to reflect to grasp the complete picture.

The Book of Daniel and Our Times The book of Daniel is directly related to our times. Understanding the events ahead of us is extremely important because our response to these events will determine whether we receive eternal life or eternal destruction. This is not a minor issue for anyone who seeks eternal life. Speaking to His disciples about the events of the last days, Jesus said: "So when you see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by the prophet Daniel, standing in the holy place (let the reader understand)" (Matthew 24:15). A great danger lies ahead! Jesus wants every reader to understand this abomination of desolation so that when they see it, they will flee to save their lives (Matthew 24:16-22).

The abomination of desolation is mentioned three times in the book of Daniel (Daniel 9:26-27; 11:31; 12:11). It goes by many names in Daniel and Revelation, including the Little Horn, the Beast, and others. You may be surprised to learn that the term beast in prophetic language is not an insult or slander, as many think. It simply means a king or a kingdom (Daniel 7:17). The Bible interprets itself!

What Is the Meaning of "Abomination"? Read 2 Kings 21:1-11 and Deuteronomy 18:9-14. It becomes clear that abomination refers to idol worship, consulting the dead, engaging with spirits, witchcraft, or divination, and worshiping the sun and celestial bodies. Pagan nations practice these things.

What Is "Desolation"? It does not mean destroying objects but rather annihilating people—that is, killing them (Daniel 8:24-25). Therefore, the abomination of desolation refers to a kingdom or authority that practices idolatry, prays to the dead, engages in occult practices, and, more than that, persecutes and destroys the saints—those who keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus (Revelation 14:12; Exodus 20:3-17; James 2:10-12). Paul calls it the man of lawlessness, the son of destruction [murderer], the opposer [or Antichrist] (2 Thessalonians 2:3-4). Unless everyone comes to know this entity, Jesus Christ cannot return to the earth. We will continue to suffer from diseases, poverty, and tribulations. Isn't it, then, extremely important to identify this power so that we know what to do to save our lives—not just physically but spiritually—so that we may have eternal life? (Matthew 10:26-33; John 6:39-40; Revelation 12:11). Dying or not dying is not the issue. The real concern is being ready to meet Jesus Christ when He comes on the clouds of heaven (Revelation 2:10; Matthew 24:29-31).

Dear Reader, By God's grace, do you want to be ready to join the saints worldwide? Read the book of Daniel and understand. Before you begin each lesson, pray that God may give you His Spirit to guide you into all truth (John 16:13-15).

May God bless you!

CAN FOOD AFFECT YOUR MIND?

(Read Daniel 1 in its entirely)

Believe it or not, food can affect your mind, as well as your physical and spiritual health. For more details on this health topic, read books on Health and Nutrition, such as Health and Happiness and God's Healing, where the 8 Health Principles are explained: Proper Nutrition, Physical Exercise, Fresh Air, Clean and Safe Water, Sunlight, Rest, Temperance, and Trusting in God. By following them, you will avoid many diseases and reduce medical expenses. The only diseases that will remain are those that come through unavoidable means, which, due to sin, you cannot escape.

The first-class food that God originally gave to humanity was "every seed-bearing plant on the face of the whole earth and every tree that has fruit with seed in it" (Genesis 1:29). When sin entered the world, it brought a curse not only upon all creatures but also upon the land. As a result, God added vegetables to the original human diet (Genesis 3:18).The flood lasted on the earth for five months or 150 days, destroying all vegetation (Genesis 7:24). Because of this, God added "meat" from clean animals only to the human diet (Genesis 8:3-4, as specified in Leviticus 11:1-47; Deuteronomy 14:1-21).A petrol engine runs on petrol only; a diesel engine runs on diesel only. If you want to ruin your car, put diesel in a petrol engine or petrol in a diesel engine. The manufacturer knows what fuel is suitable for the car, not the user. Likewise, God knows the food that is best for the human body, not humans who pick whatever they want as food. Rebellious people will ruin their bodies (their "engines").

God created clean and unclean animals in the first week of creation. Jesus' death on the cross was not intended to change unclean animals into clean ones, but to change sinful human beings into holy ones. Those who desire holiness will avoid eating meat from unclean animals, but those who do not seek holiness will eat anything that comes their way.

God has assigned certain animals, such as octopuses, pigs, and vultures, to clean up the earth by consuming dead matter. We have no reason to eat these creatures after the "broom" has placed them within a specific waste system (Leviticus 11:41, 43, 46, 47; Deuteronomy 14:1-4).God does not force anyone, just as a car manufacturer does not force a person to use the recommended fuel. However, the consequences in the body are inevitable. The story of Peter in Acts 10:9-16 has been misinterpreted in verses 25-29. It was only a vision, not a literal event. Even so, Peter firmly refused to kill and eat unclean animals, despite God Himself commanding him three times. God does not change; if He declared certain meats unclean, they remain unclean forever (Malachi 3:6; Psalm 89:34).People falsely use Peter's vision to justify eating unclean animals, but he himself completely refused. However, there is punishment for those who continue to eat pigs, rats, and all detestable things of the Gentiles (pagans). (Read Isaiah 65:2-6; 66:15-17).

Alcohol was never part of the drink God gave to humanity; clean and safe water is the best drink of all for human beings (Proverbs 20:1; 23:29-35).Drunkards will not inherit the kingdom of God (1 Corinthians 6:9-10; Galatians 5:21). Many say, "I drink a lot, but I don't get drunk." However, the problem with alcohol is not just intoxication but also its toxic effects, as alcohol contains a harmful poison. This poison negatively affects the heart, nervous system, and muscles, among other things.

God will destroy anyone who deliberately harms their body in any way—through alcohol, tobacco, drugs, or anything similar (1 Corinthians 3:16-17). These substances weaken our connection with God.

Additionally, there are popular beverages like Cola, Coffee, and Tea, which harm the nervous system, brain, and body. They should be avoided.

LET THE READER UNDERSTAND – 3

Now, let us look at those four Hebrew young men, captives from Jerusalem, in that city of Babylon in the year 606 or 605 B.C. They were between the ages of 18 and 20. Because of their wisdom, they were selected to join other Babylonian youths in the Pagan School of Babylon for three years of training. They were given names associated with the gods of Babylon—Daniel was called Belteshazzar, Hananiah was called Shadrach, Mishael was called Meshach, and Azariah was called Abednego (Dan. 1:6,7). The king commanded that they be given the royal food so that they would grow strong and intelligent. His intention was very good. But could the king's food—which included unclean meat, was heavily seasoned with harmful spices, and possibly contained intoxicating drinks—really promote good health and a clear mind? (Dan. 1:1-5).

These four Hebrew young men had been raised in a different environment. They followed the health principles and dietary instructions that God had given to humanity. They refrained from eating any kind of meat and from drinking wine (fermented or even fresh grape juice) because they were consecrated to the Lord as Nazirites (Numbers 6:1-5). Therefore, the king's command posed a very difficult test for them.

"But Daniel resolved in his heart that he would not defile himself with the king's food, nor with the wine which he drank; therefore, he requested of the chief of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself" (Dan. 1:8). What courage! His request was not easy for the overseer to grant because he feared losing his head if they appeared malnourished (Dan. 1:10).

So, Daniel said to him, "Please test your servants for ten days, and let them give us pulse [grains, seeds, green vegetables, fruits] to eat and water to drink. Then let our appearances be examined before you, and the appearance of the young men who eat the king's food..." (Dan. 1:13). The overseer agreed to the request. What happened to their health after just those ten days?

"Their faces appeared better and healthier [those who rely on harmful beauty products should take note], and their bodies were better nourished than all the young men who ate the king's food. So, the steward took away their portion of the king's delicacies and the wine they were given to drink and gave them pulse [grains, seeds, green vegetables, fruits] instead" (Dan. 1:15,16).

The rich or royal foods that we often crave do not bring health to the body. A simple plant-based diet, unrefined and unprocessed, along with clean and pure water, is the best nutrition. For a clear mind and a healthy, well-nourished body—one that is not overweight due to disease—it is advisable to eat plant-based foods, drink clean and safe water, and follow the eight health principles.

Scientists have discovered that those who eat a plant-based diet without meat tend to live much longer than those who consume meat. The Eskimos, who live in icy regions of Canada with little vegetation, hunt sea and land animals for food. Their average lifespan is only about 40 years.

Daniel, on the other hand, lived for more than 90 years, reaching the time of King Cyrus (Dan. 1:21; 10:1). Now, let us see what happened to those four young men at the end of their three years of training. How did King Nebuchadnezzar perceive them?

"And the king talked with them, and among them all, none was found like Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah... And in every matter of wisdom and understanding about which the king questioned them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and enchanters in his whole kingdom" (Dan. 1:19,20).

Why do we struggle so much with the issue of physical health? Is spiritual life not more important? "Beloved, I pray that you may prosper in all things and be in good health [physically], just as your soul prospers" (3 John 2). The wise have said, "A sound mind in a healthy body."This is a principle worth serious consideration.

The Bible's principle is this: "So whether you eat or drink or whatever you do, do it all for the glory of God" (1 Cor. 10:31). We are responsible for keeping our bodies in the best health possible (1 Cor. 6:19,20; 1 Pet. 1:18,19; Rom. 12:1,2). The issue of health is directly connected to our salvation. God can use us just as He used Daniel (Dan. 1:17). These young men could not have been used by the Lord so effectively if they had indulged in the rich foods of the king!

God communicates with us through a clear, unclouded mind.

THE KING OF PEACE IS COMING VERY SOON (READ DANIEL 2 IN ITS ENTIRELY)

No human being can accurately predict future events through their own wisdom or knowledge. Astrologers [those who predict by looking at stars], soothsayers who read bones, palm readers, and even scientists are merely guessing—they cannot truly know past events or those yet to come (Dan. 2:27-28; Isa. 42:8-9; 46:9-10; 41:21-24; 8:19; James 4:13-16). Only God knows the past and the future, and He tells us before things happen. Since sin entered the world, direct communication with God was severed; now, He communicates with us through prophets He chooses, through prayer, nature, and occasionally through angelic visitations or an audible voice instructing someone on what to do (Isa. 59:2; Num. 12:6). All major events that bring calamities to mankind are revealed to His prophets (Amos 3:7).

Regarding the Flood, He informed Noah; about the destruction of Nineveh, He informed Jonah; concerning the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah, He informed Abraham. Ahead of us, there are seven plagues (Revelation 16) that will greatly impact humanity. Before they arrive, He informed John on the island of Patmos. The impending disasters can be avoided if those involved repent and turn away from their sins (Jer. 18:7-10; Jonah 3:1-10). If we reject the prophets sent by God, we will not succeed in our journey to heaven (2 Chron. 20:20). Although the books of the Bible are sealed (66 books—39 in the Old Testament; 27 in the New Testament), God will still send prophets to warn His church (Joel 2:28-31; Eph. 4:11-14). Since there are false prophets, we must test them. There are four criteria a prophet must meet in order to be recognized as a true prophet of God:

1. Jer. 28:9; Deut. 13:1-5

2. Isa. 8:20 [Exod. 20:3-17]

3. Matt. 7:20

4. 1 John 4:1-3

Prophecy and history go hand in hand (John 14:29). The correct interpretation of prophecy will be supported by both biblical passages and history (Isa. 28:10; 2 Pet. 1:19-21). Prophecy is not interpreted according to personal preference or the preference of any particular church. The dream that greatly troubled the king was about the Four Great Kingdoms that ruled the world and the kingdoms that followed until the coming of Jesus Christ to establish His eternal kingdom. The interpretation is as follows:

I. THE KINGDOM OF BABYLON (606-538 or 605-539 B.C.)

Represented by the head of gold (Dan. 2:37-38). History confirms this.

II. THE MEDO-PERSIAN KINGDOM (538-331 or 539-331 B.C.)

This kingdom overthrew the Babylonian Kingdom (Dan. 5:25-31). It is represented by the chest and arms of silver (Dan. 2:32a, 39a). History confirms this. The dates are approximate.

III. THE GREEK KINGDOM (331-168 B.C.)

The Medo-Persian Kingdom was prophesied to be overthrown by the Greeks (Dan. 8:4-7, 20-21; 11:1-3). The Greek Kingdom is represented by the belly and thighs of bronze (Dan. 2:32b, 39b). History confirms this.

IV. THE ROMAN EMPIRE (168 B.C. - 476 A.D.)

The Roman Empire is represented by the legs of iron. The Bible describes the Roman Empire as one that crushed and shattered the previous kingdoms like iron. Daniel was not given the name of this empire, but history confirms that the Romans defeated the Greeks in 168 B.C. When Christ was born, this empire was still ruling the world, including Palestine, under Emperor Augustus (Luke 2:1-7; John 11:48).

V. THE PAPAL KINGDOM (538-1798 A.D.)

It emerged from the remnants of the Roman Empire after it was overthrown by the barbarian [pagan] tribes of Northern Europe in 476 A.D. It is represented by the feet (Dan. 2:33b, 41a). The clay represents the church or God's people (Isa. 64:8; Jer. 18:6). The iron represents the government. Thus, the mixing of clay and iron symbolizes the union of religion and government under a single religious leader in Rome. History confirms that this kingdom arose from the remnants of the Roman Empire after its fall and ruled the world from 538 A.D. This is the rule of the Pope, or the Papacy.

VI. THE TEN KINGDOMS OF WESTERN EUROPE (476 A.D. – THE RETURN OF CHRIST)

The ten kingdoms of Western Europe are represented by the Ten Toes of the feet (Dan. 2:42). These kingdoms are England, France, Germany, Switzerland, Portugal, Spain, Italy, the Heruli, the Vandals, and the Ostrogoths*. The last three kingdoms are no longer visible on modern maps. More details about them will be provided in the study of Daniel 7. These ten nations were former Roman colonies. When Rome fell in 476 A.D., they gained independence and became sovereign. Later, when they were forcefully converted to Catholicism, they found themselves under the rule of the Pope, who called himself the King of kings from 538 A.D. onward.

VII. THE ETERNAL KINGDOM OF CHRIST (HIS RETURN TO ETERNITY)

This kingdom is represented by the Stone cut out without hands (Dan. 2:34, 35, 44, 45). The Stone is Christ (Luke 20:17, 18; Matt. 21:42, 44; Acts 4:10-12). He is the Prince of Peace who is coming very soon (Isa. 9:6; Rev. 22:12). When He returns, He will destroy all the kingdoms of the world (Rev. 11:15; 19:11-21). Read more about the 1,000-year period that will begin when Christ returns for the second time in Swahili books like Majibu kwa Mashaka Yako. After those 1,000 years, the wicked will be resurrected and destroyed in eternal fire along with Satan and his angels, turning into ashes. Then this world, which will have been devastated at His second coming (Jer. 4:23-27; Rev. 6:14-17), will be made new along with its heavens (Revelation 20; Mal. 4:1-3; Ezek. 28:14-19; Rev. 21:1; Psalm 37).

Our sincere prayer should be this: "Lord Jesus, remember me when You come into Your kingdom" (Luke 23:42). The same promise will be given to us starting today if we make this request with a true intention to live for Him on this earth: "You will be with Me in Paradise" (Luke 23:43). My dear friend, why would you waste this precious opportunity today? Decide now to make Jesus your Lord and Savior. Use today's chance wisely, just like the thief on the cross. Stop playing with sin. Today is the day of your salvation (2 Cor. 6:2).

THREE YOUNG MEN PASS THE TEST OF THE SECOND COMMANDMENT (READ DANIEL 3 ENTIRELY)

Since heaven, Satan has been waging war against God's Law (The Ten Commandments). He is fiercely angry with anyone who keeps all Ten Commandments of God and the faith of Jesus (Rev. 12:17; 14:12; Ex. 20:3-17). A person who keeps nine out of the ten is just like someone who does not keep any because they are one unit. For example, the Ten Commandments are like a mirror with ten sections—if one part breaks, the entire mirror is broken. Satan has no problem with such a person because they are on his side; he will not fight against them at all (James 2:10-12). The Ten Commandments reveal sin, for "Sin is the transgression of the law [The Ten Commandments]" (1 John 3:4, KJV; Rom. 7:7). Breaking just one commandment makes one a sinner.

Therefore, any Christian, regardless of who they are or what position they hold, who disregards God's Law given at Mount Sinai (The Ten Commandments) is in great danger of losing eternal life (1 John 2:3-6; 5:1-5; Ps. 119:155). Jesus, our example and who is also God, kept His Father's Ten Commandments; how about you? (John 15:10). Do not let anyone deceive you, for "evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived" (2 Tim. 3:13). Avoid them. Be careful not to deceive yourself (Gal. 6:7-8), and do not allow a blind person to lead you, for both of you will fall into a ditch (Matt. 15:14). Eternal life is so precious that no one should be willing to lose it so easily (Matt. 22:29).

Here, we find the three Hebrew young men, but this time, Daniel is not present. In Daniel 1, we saw how the four young men passed the test of food. Eating or drinking anything that harms the body deliberately is a violation of the Sixth Commandment, which states, “Thou shalt not kill” (Ex. 20:13). Thus, they passed the test of the Sixth Commandment. Now they are faced with an even greater test concerning the Second Commandment, which states, “Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth: Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them...” (Exodus 20:4-6).

After being told the meaning of the dream he had about a great image in Daniel 2 regarding the four great kingdoms, including his own, King Nebuchadnezzar became stubborn and defiant against God. He made a large image entirely of gold [gold represented the kingdom of Babylon], signifying that the Babylonian kingdom would last forever. He commanded that the image, which was set up in the plain of Dura, be worshiped by everyone present (Dan. 3:1-7). Everyone bowed down except the three Hebrew young men—Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego. What great courage they displayed among the high-ranking officials of the Babylonian government!

God’s people are required to have such courage to defend God’s truth even if the heavens fall (Rom. 8:35-39; Heb. 11:32-40; Dan. 11:33). The king tried to persuade them to comply once more when the sound of the flute and other instruments played. He threatened to throw them into a furnace that was heated seven times hotter than usual. But they calmly responded, “O Nebuchadnezzar, we have no need to answer thee in this matter. If it be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of thine hand, O king. But if not, be it known unto thee, O king, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up” (Dan. 3:16-18).

Then the king became furious and ordered that they be tied up and thrown into the blazing furnace by his strongest soldiers. The soldiers who threw them in perished because of the intensity of the fire. Eventually, the young men were successfully thrown into the midst of the blazing furnace.

What happened next?

Lo! The king was astonished. “Did we not throw three men into the fire? Why do I see four, and one looks like the Son of God?” [Jesus was there to save them]. He has promised to be with His people until the end of the age (Matt. 28:20). Even if they pass through fire or deep waters, He will be there, ready to deliver them (Isaiah 43:1,2). He fulfilled His promise to them in that terrifying event. They walked inside the fire without being burned. When they were brought out of the furnace, “they saw that the fire had no power over their bodies, not a single hair on their heads was burned, their clothes were not scorched, and there was not even the smell of fire on them” (Dan. 3:27). Praise the Lord!!! He has the power to save completely!

God says, “For those who honor Me, I will honor, but those who despise Me will be regarded as nothing” (1 Sam. 2:30). My brother, will you stand firm to uphold God’s Ten Commandments? The king acknowledged, “There is no other god who can save like this.” Then he promoted Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego in the province of Babylon (Dan. 3:29,30). He despised all those who had bowed to the idol and decreed that anyone who spoke against the God of these young men would be cut into pieces, and their houses would be turned into heaps of rubble. Was that not a great humiliation?

There is a reward for standing firm in defense of God’s truth. Joseph was imprisoned for refusing to commit adultery, that is, for rejecting the violation of the Seventh Commandment (Exod. 20:14). As a result, God was with him in prison, and eventually, he was released and honored by being made Prime Minister of Egypt (Gen. 39:21-23; 41:37-44). Babylon represents the forces of darkness [Satan] fighting against God’s Ten Commandments. Even the Great Babylon of Revelation shares the same character. Satan uses Babylon to carry out his destruction against God’s innocent people.

This final generation, the era of Science and Technology, will face the greatest test of all regarding the Fourth Commandment concerning the Sabbath (Exod. 20:8-11). John was shown that every living person at that time will be tested (Rev. 3:10). Those who will be protected by Christ are those who have kept the word of His patience (Rev. 14:12) — “Here is the patience of the saints; here are those who keep the [Ten] Commandments of God and the faith of Jesus.” Will you stand under the Banner of Emmanuel, which bears those words (Rev. 14:12), or under the Banner of the Mark of the Beast (Rev. 13:16,17) — which signifies the new-age day of rest for the coming generation?

By His grace, let us resolve that “we can do nothing against the Truth, but only for the Truth” (2 Cor. 13:8). But what is Truth? The Word of God is Truth; the Law of God (the Ten Commandments) is Truth (John 17:17; Ps. 119:142). His Word and His Law endure forever (Matt. 24:35; 1 Pet. 1:23; Luke 16:17; Ps. 119:44). His Law is perfect; thus, nothing can be added to or removed from it (Ps. 19:7; Deut. 4:2,10-13).

STUBBORN PRIDE OF THE KING IS HUMBLED (READ DANIEL 4 IN ITS ENTIRETY)

Believe it or not, we all have pride to some degree. That pride stems from the self, that is, ego. The root of all sin is self (ego). You can either exalt yourself or unduly belittle yourself—both are forms of pride. The one who exalts himself says, "I am rich, I am educated, I… I…." He sees himself as superior to others because of what he has or what he does. On the other hand, the one who unduly belittles himself, when praised for a good job, says, "It was nothing! I did nothing significant!" But deep in his heart, he congratulates himself, thinking he has done very well. The One who searches hearts records it as pride.Pride led to Lucifer's fall in heaven, and he was given the dreadful name of Satan (Isaiah 14:12-15; Ezekiel 28:14-17). Our first parents in the Garden of Eden were deceived by Satan into believing that if they ate the forbidden fruit, they would be like God. They ate, realized they were naked, lost the glory with which they were created, and their descendants were left lacking that glory (Genesis 3:3-7; Romans 3:23). God despises pride because our self seeks to remove Him from His throne in our hearts and take that place itself (Proverbs 6:16-19).

We learned in the first lesson (Daniel 1) that our bodies are the temple of the Holy Spirit. A person who allows the self to rule their heart drives out the Spirit from within them. The greatest battle in this world is the battle against our own selves. The self never truly dies; it can only be suppressed so that it does not rise up. Therefore, we must always be watchful lest it rises above God or above others.

Paul faced this same battle. He said, "I die daily" (1 Corinthians 15:31). In other words, "I put my self (ego) to death every day," or "I fight against the self that rises within me." The way to control the self is by allowing Christ to dwell in our hearts:

"I have been crucified with Christ; it is no longer I [my ego] who live, but Christ lives in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh, I live by faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave Himself for me" (Galatians 2:20).

The self will be completely removed from us at the last trumpet when we receive glorified, immortal bodies (1 Corinthians 15:51-53). That is why it is not right for a person to boast that they are saved, for they can fall at any moment due to their ego and lose their salvation (1 Corinthians 10:12; Ezekiel 33:12-16; Matthew 24:13). The act of boasting itself is a sin that is unforgivable unless one repents and humbles themselves (Luke 18:9-14).

We are only permitted to boast in the cross of Christ, which brought redemption to us who were unworthy (Galatians 6:14). All praise belongs to God for whatever we achieve or accomplish (Jeremiah 9:23-24).Now, we see King Nebuchadnezzar, who had witnessed God's great power in saving the three young men from the fiery furnace and had acknowledged that "there is no other god who can deliver like this" (Daniel 3:29), exalting himself above that same God through his pride.

The city of Babylon was magnificent in glory (Isaiah 13:19a). No other kingdom on earth could match its splendor. God had given him a dream of a statue representing all the kingdoms that would rule from his time until Christ establishes His eternal kingdom (Daniel 2). However, in his pride, he opposed God's plan by erecting an entire statue made of gold (gold represented the Babylonian kingdom) in the plain of Dura and commanding people to worship it. In his arrogance, he despised the God of heaven, considering Him insignificant, and believed that he and his kingdom would last forever. He lived.

LET THE READER UNDERSTAND - 9

And the people of God, so that he may learn about the God of Israel; those four young men were a great lesson for him. Yet he paid no attention to all that. In His love, God gave him a second dream to warn him to abandon his stubborn pride (Dan. 4:4-17).

In his dream, he saw a tall tree that grew up to the heavens; all people, animals, and birds found their food in that tree. Then he saw a holy watcher commanding that the tree be cut down, leaving only its stump to be drenched with the dew of heaven for seven periods (years). Why?"So that the living may know that the Most High rules over the kingdom of men, and He gives it to whomever He wills, and sets over it the lowliest of men." (Dan. 4:17).

How many kings understand that it is God who has placed them on the thrones they occupy? (Rom. 13:1-7; 1 Tim. 2:1-6). The duty of all governments in the world is to oversee the implementation of the last six commandments of the Ten (Exod. 20:12-17). When they perform this duty well, with faithfulness and justice, their nations are blessed. However, when they interfere with matters concerning God (the first four commandments – Exod. 20:3-11), they overstep the authority given to them and deserve punishment from God.

The Bible is not a book of politics; however, the rise and fall of all the nations of the world are recorded in it. It is God who rules over all the kingdoms of men. He evaluates the conduct of all nations on earth (Ps. 66:7-8; Ps. 2; 9:17). It is a very tragic reality that all the nations of the world, except for the saints within them, will be utterly destroyed on the last day for going against the authority entrusted to them by God (Rev. 19:11-21).

When Daniel was called to interpret the king's dream, "he was astonished for a moment, and his thoughts troubled him" (Dan. 4:19). Why was he troubled? Because the dream meant that the king would be driven away from men and eat grass like an ox for seven years. Why would this happen? Because of his stubborn pride.

"Seven periods [years] will pass over you until you acknowledge that the Most High rules over the kingdom of men and gives it to whomever He wills, whoever they may be." (Dan. 4:25).Twelve months later, "he was walking in his royal palace in Babylon. The king spoke, saying, 'Is this not great Babylon, which I have built as a royal residence by my mighty power and for the glory of my majesty?'" (Dan. 4:29-30).

At that very moment, a voice from heaven declared that his kingdom had been taken from him and that he would live among the animals, eating grass like an ox for seven years until he learned to acknowledge the God of heaven. Seven years of lessons to humble stubborn pride! Think about that!

Thank God! Nebuchadnezzar learned in a very shameful way (by becoming insane) for a full seven years. But he emerged as a new person; he repented of his stubborn pride and from that moment on, he began to publicly glorify the God of heaven (Dan. 4:34-35). His kingdom was restored to him.His testimony before the people is given at the beginning of Chapter 4:

"King Nebuchadnezzar, to all peoples, nations, and languages who dwell on the whole earth: May peace be multiplied to you. It has seemed good to me to declare the signs and wonders that the Most High God has done for me. How great are His signs! How mighty are His wonders! His kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and His dominion endures from generation to generation." (Dan. 4:1-3).

One day, those who are saved will meet Nebuchadnezzar in heaven. He will tell them his story in full detail.How many people, when God speaks to them through His Word, harden their hearts in pride, elevate their thoughts above God's, and act contrary to His commands? Are they ready to be sent into the wilderness to eat grass so they may learn? That is a very severe lesson.How long will God be patient with me before He cuts down my tree? (Luke 13:6-9).

We must repent; otherwise, we will perish (Luke 13:1-5). We are neither greater than God nor better than others.

THE LAST NIGHT ON EARTH (READ DANIEL 5 IN FULL)

The heart of man is full of foolishness. “The fool says in his heart, ‘There is no God.’ They are corrupt, and their ways are vile; there is no one who does good” (Psalm 53:1). People who love sin choose to erase God from their thoughts, teachings, and lives. The Bible calls this foolishness because God truly exists, and such people will be held accountable for their evil deeds. But the saddest part is that we do not learn from what happened to those who came before us—we always want to experience things for ourselves.

One day, King Belshazzar (the grandson of Nebuchadnezzar) held a great feast of drunkenness for a thousand of his nobles. He did not know that this feast would be his last and that the God of heaven had seen it even before it happened (Jeremiah 51:37-40, 57-58). That night, the feast turned into something extraordinary, but those involved did not wake up the next morning—they were dead. Belshazzar did not learn from what had happened to his grandfather, Nebuchadnezzar (Daniel 5:18-23). He knew all these things but arrogantly committed acts that angered the God of heaven.

His major mistakes were as follows:

His First Mistake: Using Holy Vessels to Drink Alcohol

(Daniel 5:1-3)He failed to distinguish between ordinary utensils and sacred vessels set apart for God’s holy work. Today, how many believers fail to teach their children or peers to make such distinctions?

“Her priests [pastors] have violated My law [the Ten Commandments] and have profaned My holy things; they have not distinguished between the holy and the common, nor have they taught the people the difference between the unclean [such as pigs, rats, and so on] and the clean [such as cattle, goats, and sheep]. They have shut their eyes to My Sabbaths, and I am profaned among them” (Ezekiel 22:26).Failing to recognize what is holy is a fatal mistake.

The Sabbath [Saturday] is holy (Genesis 2:2,3; Exodus 20:11; Isaiah 58:13-14). Sunday is not holy; it is a regular working day (Ezekiel 46:1). The day of worship that God appointed for all mankind is the Sabbath [Saturday], and it will remain so for eternity (Isaiah 66:22-23).

The tithe (a tenth of our income) is holy (Leviticus 27:30-33). Using it for personal needs is robbing God (Malachi 3:8-11). Thieves will not inherit the kingdom of God (1 Corinthians 6:9-10).Depending on your pastor instead of studying the Bible for yourself is a great danger!

His Second Mistake: Drinking Wine [Alcohol]

(Daniel 5:4a)In our first lesson about food and drink, we learned that alcohol severely harms the body, and those who destroy their bodies with alcohol or in any other way will themselves be destroyed (1 Corinthians 3:16-17). Alcohol contains ethanol, a toxic substance that affects the nervous system, brain, heart, and muscles, among other body parts. The issue is not just about getting drunk; it is about the poison inside alcohol. Some people may not appear drunk even after drinking a lot, but the poison is still at work in their bodies, causing damage.

Those who say, "Drinking just a little alcohol is okay," would never say the same about rat poison. Even a small amount of poison is enough to kill or harm the body (Proverbs 23:29-35). The Bible compares the poison in alcohol to the venom of a snake called "fira" (Proverbs 23:31-32), which is extremely deadly.

The Bible states that drunkards—both those who get drunk and those who don't but still consume alcohol—will not inherit the kingdom of heaven (1 Corinthians 6:9-10).

His Third Mistake: Praising Idols Instead of the God of Heaven

(Daniel 5:4b)The Word says: "This is what the Lord says: Let not the wise boast of their wisdom or the strong boast of their strength, or the rich boast of their riches..."

LET THE READER UNDERSTAND – 11

"Let not the wise boast of their wisdom or the strong boast of their strength or the rich boast of their riches, but let the one who boasts boast about this: that they have the understanding to know me, that I am the LORD, who exercises kindness, justice, and righteousness on earth, for in these I delight," declares the LORD" (Jer. 9:24).

It was not that Belshazzar did not know the God of heaven when he was praising his gods alongside his nobles. It was his hardened pride that made him act that way. Who do you praise? When the feast reached its climax, and they were drunk, praising women and their gods, a hand without a physical body began to write on the wall. A cold sweat broke out on them. All the alcohol evaporated from their minds. Great fear gripped them; they did not know what to do. Experts were summoned to read the writing, but they could not. Then the queen, the grandmother of Nebuchadnezzar, entered and told them about Daniel and how he had interpreted her grandfather's dreams. Daniel was called. He rebuked Belshazzar for his pride despite knowing full well what had happened to his grandfather.

He then read the writing on the wall:

“MENE (NUMBERED), MENE (NUMBERED), TEKEL (WEIGHED), AND PERES (DIVIDED).”

And the interpretation of these words was:

MENE – God has numbered your kingdom and brought it to an end.

TEKEL – You have been weighed on the scales and found wanting.

PERES – Your kingdom has been divided and given to the Medes and Persians.

It had already been prophesied that the city’s gates would be left open and the river’s waters would be dried up (Isa. 45:1; 44:27). This is exactly what Cyrus did when he led the armies of the Medes and Persians that night. The river gates were left open that night. They entered and killed the king and all the leaders inside. That was their last night.

God weighs nations on His scales and puts an end to their rule as He pleases. Likewise, He weighs individuals on the heavenly scales (The Ten Commandments) and records before their names either “lacking” or “complete in Him” (Col. 2:10). This is the work our High Priest, Jesus Christ, has been doing in heaven since the year 1844. Very soon, the case of each one of us will be decided forever. Once He completes His work of mediation or judgment, He will declare these solemn words:”Let the one who does wrong continue to do wrong; let the vile person continue to be vile; let the one who does right continue to do right; and let the holy person continue to be holy” (Rev. 22:11).This judgment will be concluded before the seven last plagues of Revelation 16 fall. During the final plague, He will come to take His people and destroy all the wicked.

The rich farmer who harvested abundantly and did not know where to store his crops thought he had many years of ease and pleasure ahead of him (Luke 12:16-21). That night, he told himself, “Soul, you have many good things stored up for many years; take life easy, eat, drink, and be merry” (Luke 12:19). Poor man! That night, he did not wake up; he was taken. The unseen Holy Watcher who wrote on the wall in Babylon pronounced these words to that rich man:”This very night, your soul will be demanded from you! Then who will get what you have prepared for yourself?” (Luke 12:20).

My dear friend, today is the day of salvation (2 Cor. 6:2). Tomorrow is not yours (James 4:13-16). Decide today to accept Jesus as your Lord and Savior. Turn away from drunkenness and all sin. If you accept Him, He will give you the power to overcome sin (1 Cor. 15:57; Jude 24,25).Your last night on earth and mine could be tonight.”Be careful, or your hearts will be weighed down with carousing, drunkenness, and the anxieties of life, and that day will close on you suddenly like a trap. For it will come on all those who live on the face of the whole earth" (Luke 21:34,35).

One day, the entire world, which indulges in sinful pleasures, will not see the morning; they will be corpses—unburied, unlamented (Jer. 25:32-37). It will be the final feast that God will prepare for the birds (Rev. 19:17,18).

SUCCESSFULLY PASSING THE TEST OF THE FIRST COMMANDMENT

(READ DANIEL 6 IN ITS ENTIRELY)

In both ancient Babylon and the final Great Babylon, the same satanic attitude of hatred toward God's Law [the Ten Commandments] is evident, as well as the enforcement of actions contrary to that Law. They worshiped gods, idols, and kings. Nimrod was the founder of the city of Babylon (Genesis 10:8-12). He was worshiped as the god Bel (the sun). Bel (Isaiah 46:1) was the chief god of the Babylonians and the Persians, and his name is a shortened form of "Baal." History shows that pagans, from the days of Babylon, worshiped the sun on Sunday.We have seen how those four young men (Daniel 1) were tested regarding the Sixth Commandment, which says, "You shall not murder" (Exodus 20:13). Eating foods and drinking beverages that harm the body is a form of slow self-destruction. They overcame that test.

We also saw how the three young men (Daniel 3) were tested concerning the Second Commandment, which forbids idolatry (Exodus 20:4-6). They overcame that difficult test even though they were thrown into the fire. God was pleased to deliver them.

Additionally, we touched on how Joseph was tested in Egypt regarding the Seventh Commandment, which states, "You shall not commit adultery" (Exodus 20:14). He overcame.

Now we find Daniel (Daniel 6) being tested regarding the Eighth Commandment, which says, "You shall not steal" (Exodus 20:15). He overcame effortlessly (Daniel 6:4); he was faithful.

We also mentioned that the greatest test of the last days will be regarding the Fourth Commandment, which concerns God's Sabbath (Exodus 20:8-11). The generation of Science and Technology will establish a different day of rest instead of the Sabbath. The world will be divided into two groups—the ones who keep the [Ten] Commandments of God along with the faith of Jesus, and those who do not keep them, even though some among them will believe in Jesus. To keep the Ten Commandments of God, one must keep all of them (Exodus 20:3-17; James 2:10-12). "Sin is the transgression of the Law [the Ten Commandments]" (1 John 3:4, KJV).

Returning to Babylon, we find King Darius, who loved Daniel, a man of God. Because of "an excellent spirit that was in him," Daniel was appointed as the Prime Minister of Babylon. This angered the ministers who were vying for that position. They sought to remove him from office by investigating his work performance and the management of the finances of the Medo-Persian Empire, but "they could find no fault or corruption in him" (Daniel 6:1-4).

They held a secret meeting. They searched for various ways but could not find any. Finally, they said, "We will not find any ground for complaint against this Daniel unless we find it in connection with the Law of his God [the Ten Commandments]."Yes, that idea seemed good and was accepted by all. The caution was to avoid issuing any decree that would alert the king because he loved Daniel. They went through the commandments one by one and saw that the First Commandment was suitable. But Daniel would never agree to worship a human being, for this commandment states, "You shall have no other gods before Me" (Exodus 20:3).They hesitated, realizing that the king would soon figure out that their plan was targeting Daniel, his friend. One of them suggested involving the king in such a way that he would not suspect anything. They proposed that for just thirty days, all people should pray only to the king. This idea would please him, and he would not realize that their real target was Daniel.

They said, "We know that Daniel will not comply, and we will have trapped him completely. He will lose the position of Prime Minister, and it will be ours. Agreed?""Agreed!"

They went to the king deceitfully and pressured him to sign the decree. Read Daniel 6:5-9."So King Darius signed the document and the injunction." (Daniel 6:9).

The law of the Medes and the Persians could not be changed—it could not be revoked once enacted but had to be executed exactly as written.

So when Daniel knew that the writing was signed, he went into his house (now his windows in his chamber were open toward Jerusalem)" (Daniel 6:10). Did he pray silently so that no one would hear whom he was praying to? "Then these men found Daniel praying and making supplication before his God" (Dan. 6:11). He was praying loudly, and they could hear the supplications he made to his God. What great courage in the face of a terrible death—being devoured by lions! Jesus has promised, "Whoever acknowledges Me before men, I will also acknowledge him before My Father in heaven" (Matt. 10:32). When Daniel openly acknowledged Christ even in the face of death, all of heaven watched everything closely and prepared to protect him.Many of us would have prayed silently so that no one could hear and so we would not endanger our lives. What were the results despite the king's efforts to prevent the execution of the decree? "Then they threw him into the den of lions" (Dan. 6:16). They congratulated themselves, believing their plot against Daniel had completely succeeded and that they would never see him again.The king had faith in the God of Israel, although he was deeply troubled about the safety of his friend Daniel when he saw him thrown into the lions' den. He said these words, "Your God, whom you serve continually, He will deliver you" (Dan. 6:16). The king could not sleep all night, thinking about how the lions were tearing his friend to pieces, blaming himself for not having discovered the scheme of the jealous ministers who envied Daniel.

Did those starving lions devour Daniel, the witness of Jesus? The king went to the lions' den, crying out in sorrow, "O Daniel, servant of the living God, has your God, whom you serve continually, been able to deliver you from the lions?" (Dan. 6:20). Daniel answered the king, "My God sent His angel, and he shut the lions' mouths so that they have not hurt me" (Dan. 6:21-22). The lions remained still; their claws did not extend, nor did they show any desire to attack him.The king ordered Daniel to be brought out. The unchangeable decree of the Medes and Persians had been executed, but without the intended outcome. Then he issued another unchangeable decree to be carried out immediately. He ordered that those who had accused Daniel out of jealousy be thrown into the same den—"they, their children, and their wives" (Dan. 6:24). What happened? "The lions overpowered them and broke all their bones in pieces before they even reached the bottom of the den" (Dan. 6:24).Jealousy has its consequences! Many seek to remove others from their positions by bringing false accusations or setting traps that are difficult to escape. But God sees all such wickedness. The wise have said, "He who digs a pit will fall into it himself." The Bible declares, "Whoever digs a pit will fall into it" (Eccl. 10:8).In the days of Esther, Haman envied Mordecai. Secretly, he prepared a very tall, sharp pole on which to impale Mordecai, a man of God who was completely innocent, just like Daniel. What was the outcome? Haman himself was hanged on the very same gallows he had prepared with his own hands (Esther 7:9-10).

King Darius loved Daniel's God, and God, in turn, loved that king. He sent Gabriel to confirm him in his reign (Dan. 11:1). Many kings should follow his example in helping and defending God's people when traps are set against them to bring them down. God will bless such rulers.Daniel overcame that great test of upholding the First Commandment. The king wrote to all the nations, commanding them to fear and tremble before Daniel's God. He declared, "He delivers and rescues, and He works signs and wonders in heaven and on earth, who has delivered Daniel from the power of the lions" (Dan. 6:27).God says, "For those who honor Me, I will honor, and those who despise Me shall be lightly esteemed" (1 Sam. 2:30).

Daniel prospered under two kings (Dan. 2:28). Today's young people should follow Daniel's example.

Kingdoms That Will Affect God's People (Part One)

(Read Daniel 7 in its entirety)

In Daniel 7, we find the same kingdoms that we encountered in Daniel 2, but additional details are provided in this chapter. We will divide this study into two parts for easier understanding. Part One will provide an overview of all the kingdoms from Babylon until the coming of the Lord Jesus to establish His eternal kingdom. Part Two will focus on the Kingdom of the Little Horn, which will significantly affect God's people in the final days of the world's history. God's people include Physical Israel (the Jews) and Spiritual Israel (Christians from all nations). Read Romans 2:28-29 and Galatians 3:26-29, and review the lesson in Daniel 9 regarding God's Holy Nation in these days. The book Daniel and Our Times provides a detailed explanation of this subject.

In Daniel 2, we examined these kingdoms from a political perspective. We looked only at their declining glory in relation to the different metals—gold, silver, bronze, iron, and clay. Babylon had the greatest splendor of them all (Isaiah 13:19). However, in Daniel 7, we examine these kingdoms from a religious-political perspective. We see how these kingdoms affected God's people (both Physical Israel and Spiritual Israel).God warns that He will destroy all kingdoms that oppress and kill His people (Jeremiah 25:15-38; 46:28). God's people are like the apple of His eye (Zechariah 2:8). Fighting against God's people is equivalent to fighting against God Himself. The climax of this battle is the War of Armageddon, which is a conflict between God and the kingdoms of the world that seek to destroy His people. In doing so, they wage war against God Himself (Revelation 16:13-16).

We will see how these nations, one by one, had their kingdoms completely destroyed. The kingdom of Pagan Rome and the kingdom of Papal Rome will be judged in the New Testament era through the Seven Trumpets of Revelation 8-11. It is truly tragic that the ultimate fate of all earthly kingdoms is total destruction simply because they aid the "Little Horn," also known as the "Beast" (Revelation 19:11-21).It is our duty to earnestly pray for kings, presidents, ministers, and all high-ranking leaders in governments worldwide so that they do not fall into the calamity that Satan has prepared (1 Timothy 2:1-6).Common words we use in daily life often have different meanings in various fields of study. For example, the word "spoon" refers to a utensil we use to eat food. However, for a Civil Engineer or a Road Engineer, a "spoon" is a type of bulldozer that scoops up soil and places it where needed.A wise person always asks, "What do you mean by that?" When an explanation is given, any misunderstanding disappears. Today, when people hear the word "Beast," their anger rises to the point where they might physically attack the person who says it or even take them to court. But in the language of prophecy, the word "Beast" means "King" or "Kingdom" (Daniel 7:17).Who would attack someone for saying "King"? That would be irrational. Why get so angry, my brother? First, ask for clarification, and you will understand its meaning.Therefore, the Little Horn represents a King or a Kingdom. We will use Part Two to explain it in detail so that everyone can recognize it. Because if he is not identified by all people worldwide, Jesus Christ will not return; we will continue suffering on this earth with chronic diseases, poverty, and oppression for an unknown period (2 Thessalonians 2:1-4). Paul has made it very easy for those unfamiliar with prophecy to recognize this king in verse 4.

Now, let us look at these kingdoms as a whole. All the animals mentioned are ferocious. This means that these kingdoms committed great atrocities. We will briefly go through them:

1. THE LION — THE KINGDOM OF BABYLON (606-538 or 605-539 B.C.)

The kingdom of Babylon is represented by the lion (Dan. 7:4; Jer. 4:5-7; Hab. 1:6-8). In Daniel 2, it is represented by the Head of Gold (Dan. 2:37,38). Regarding its cruelty, read 2 Chronicles 36:17-20 and Jeremiah 21:7. The "two wings" that the lion had symbolize the speed or swiftness in conquering in war (Hab. 1:6-10). History books show different dates.

2. THE BEAR — THE KINGDOM OF THE MEDES AND PERSIANS (538 or 539-331 B.C.)

The kingdom of the Medes and Persians is represented by a bear, a very fierce beast (Dan. 7:5). In Daniel 2, it is represented by the Chest and Arms of Silver (Dan. 2:39a; 5:25-31). The “three ribs” symbolize the three provinces that were brutally conquered by this kingdom—Babylon, Egypt, and Lydia (not Libya). Regarding its cruelty, read Isaiah 13:17-22 and Jeremiah 51:28-44.

3. THE LEOPARD — THE KINGDOM OF GREECE (331-168 B.C.)

The kingdom of Greece is represented by a leopard, a very aggressive animal (Dan. 7:6). In Daniel 2, it is represented by the Belly and Thighs of Bronze (Dan. 2:39b; 8:20,21). The “four wings” signify even greater speed in military conquests. The “four heads” represent the four rulers (Rev. 17:9,10) who took control after the death of Alexander the Great. These were his generals—Cassander, Lysimachus, Seleucus, and Ptolemy. In Daniel 8, Alexander the Great is symbolized as “the prominent horn between the eyes of the goat” (Dan. 8:5,21), and his four generals are “the four horns” of the goat (Dan. 8:8,22). For the cruelty of this kingdom, read Daniel 8:6,7.

4. THE DREADFUL BEAST — THE KINGDOM OF ROME (168 B.C. - 476 A.D.)

The Roman Empire is represented by a dreadful, unnamed beast with ten horns (Dan. 7:7). It ruled over ten European colonies. In Daniel 2, it is represented by the Legs of Iron (Dan. 2:40). Regarding its cruelty, read Daniel 7:7,23 and 2:40. It was a kingdom that crushed and shattered everything. Though not mentioned by name, history confirms that the power that overthrew Greece was Rome in 168 B.C. When Jesus was born, Rome was still in power (Luke 2:1-7; John 11:48).

5. THE TEN HORNS — THE TEN KINGDOMS OF WESTERN EUROPE (476 A.D. - THE SECOND COMING OF JESUS)

These kingdoms are represented by the ten horns (Dan. 7:8). “Horns” symbolize “kings” or “kingdoms” (Dan. 7:24). These ten kingdoms gained independence from Roman rule when the empire fell in 476 A.D. to the pagan tribes of Northern Europe. The ten kingdoms are England, France, Germany, Switzerland, Portugal, Spain, Italy, the Heruli, the Vandals, and the Ostrogoths. In Daniel 2, they are represented by the Ten Toes of the Feet (Dan. 2:41,42). For their cruelty, read history. They aided, and will again aid, the Pope in persecuting the saints (Rev. 17:12-14).

6. THE LITTLE HORN — THE KINGDOM OF THE PAPACY (538-1798 A.D.)

The Papal kingdom is represented here by the Little Horn (Dan. 7:8,20,24). This kingdom has many names in prophecy—The Abomination of Desolation, The Beast, and so on.

LET THE READER UNDERSTAND – 17

It is represented by the Feet of Iron and Clay (Dan. 2:33,42). Its unparalleled cruelty was evident during the Dark Ages when it killed more than 50 million of God's people, whom it called "heretics." Read Daniel 7:21,25. How do we know this is referring to the Papacy? Read the Second Part of Daniel 7.

7. ONE LIKE THE SON OF MAN — THE KINGDOM OF CHRIST (AT HIS SECOND COMING)

The eternal kingdom of Christ is represented by One Like the Son of Man (Dan. 7:13,14; Matt. 24:29-31). In Daniel 2, it is represented by the Stone (Dan. 2:34,35,44,45).

This kingdom has no cruelty; its citizens will experience eternal peace (Rev. 7:13-17; 21:1-7). But before this kingdom comes, judgment has been ongoing in heaven since 1844 to determine the fate of these oppressive kingdoms and the punishment of all the wicked; then He will return(Rev. 22:11,12).

KINGDOMS THAT WILL AFFECT GOD'S PEOPLE (PART TWO)

(READ DANIEL 7:7-14,18,20-28)

In this second part, we have only one task—to confirm that the "Little Horn" represents the Papal Kingdom or the Papacy. Just as those who capture witches have their criteria to confirm whether someone is truly a witch, God has also set His own criteria to identify the "Little Horn" and remove any doubts people may have about this matter. We will use various Bible passages (Isa. 28:10) along with historical evidence.Why should we bother to identify this kingdom? Because it will cause all the people in the world who align with it to be destroyed along with it (Rev. 19:11-21). As I mentioned before, this kingdom is given many names in the books of Daniel and Revelation. We will try to build a bridge connecting Daniel 7 and Revelation 13 by examining just a few criteria among the many available.The judgment mentioned in Daniel 7 has determined to take away its kingdom and destroy it, but only after it has been granted its final phase of rule (Dan. 7:26; Rev. 19:1-3; 18:4-8; 16:1,2,10,19-21; 17:1-11). For more details, read the books Daniel and Our Time and The Great Controversy.

CRITERION 1: THE LITTLE HORN AROSE AFTER THE TEN KINGDOMS BECAME INDEPENDENT(Dan. 7:8)

The ten Western European kingdoms mentioned in the first part of this lesson gained independence in A.D. 476, immediately after the fall of the Roman Empire. After the fall of that empire, the Bishop of Rome, who was later called the Bishop of Bishops or the Pope, ruled only in the city of Rome until A.D. 538, when he took control over Western Europe. History confirms this.

CRITERION 2: THE LITTLE HORN UPROOTED THREE HORNS BEFORE IT COULD RULE

The three kingdoms that were uprooted by the Pope's command (Dan. 7:8,20,24) were:The Heruli, who were overthrown in A.D. 493The Vandals, who were overthrown in A.D. 534The Ostrogoths, who were overthrown in early A.D. 538

These three nations opposed the Pope. By A.D. 508, the remaining seven kingdoms had been forced to become Catholic under the influence of the King of France, Clovis, the Pope's beloved son. History confirms this.

CRITERION 3: THE LITTLE HORN WAS DIFFERENT FROM THE TEN HORNS(Dan. 7:24)

The ten horns represent the political kingdoms of Western Europe. The Little Horn represents the Papal Kingdom, which is both religious and political. History supports this. The Christian Church worldwide does not have political authority (John 18:33-38). Therefore, the Papal Kingdom obtained its power from somewhere else—not from God (Rev. 13:1,2; 12:9).This is why those who support it will perish along with it. All the political governments of the world have been given their authority by God (Rom. 13:1-7; 1 Tim. 2:1-6). For this reason, they punish criminals and commend good citizens. However, the Papal Kingdom kills righteous people (the saints) while allowing criminals to live (Dan. 7:21).

LET THE READER UNDERSTAND -19

CRITERION 4: THE LITTLE HORN RULED FOR 1260 YEARS (Dan. 7:25).

One prophetic time equals one literal year. Therefore, 1 time + 2 times + ½ time = 3½ times = 3½ years.One year has 12 months. Thus, 3½ years = 3½ × 12 months = 42 months.A biblical month has 30 days (Dan. 6:7; Gen. 7:24). Therefore, 42 months = 42 × 30 days = 1260 days.One prophetic day equals one literal year. Hence, 1260 days represent 1260 literal years.Look at this wonder! The beast in Revelation 13:1-10, 18 was given authority to operate for the same 42 months (Rev. 13:5). Even more astonishing is that the Great Red Dragon of Revelation 12 represents Pagan Rome, which sought to kill Christ through Herod (Rev. 12:2-5; Matt. 2:16). It also represents Papal Rome (Rev. 12:6, 14), where we see the woman (God's true church) fleeing into the wilderness for 1260 days or 1260 years.This criterion builds a bridge identifying the Little Horn of Daniel 7 as the Beast like a Leopard in Revelation 13. Their characteristics match closely. Historically, the Papacy ruled from 538 AD to 1798 AD, a complete 1260-year period.

CRITERION 5: THE LITTLE HORN KILLED THE SAINTS (Dan. 7:21, 25).

More than 50 million saints were killed during the Papal rule of 1260 years for simply following biblical teachings. The Papacy called them "heretics," but the Bible calls them "saints." Indeed, the Papacy was drunk with the blood of the saints (Rev. 17:6).How shocking it is for a church to kill another church! Compare this with Revelation 13:7—it is the same kingdom.

CRITERION 6: THE LITTLE HORN INTENDED TO CHANGE TIMES AND LAW (Dan. 7:25).

The law refers to the Ten Commandments of God (Ex. 20:3-17). The Papacy sought to completely remove the Second Commandment, which forbids idolatry. If you check the Catechisms of the Catholic Church and the Missal, you will be shocked.The Fourth Commandment, which concerns the Sabbath, was altered, replacing Saturday with Sunday. Thus, Sunday worship was established by the Pope in direct opposition to the Fourth Commandment.In Revelation, Sunday is referred to as the "mark" or "seal" of the Beast, meaning the mark of the Pope's authority (Rev. 13:16-17).The Catholic Record, London, Ontario, dated September 1, 1923, states:"Sunday is our mark of authority... The Church is above the Bible, and this transfer of Sabbath observance [from Saturday] is proof of that fact."As a result, only nine commandments remained instead of ten. To compensate for the missing second commandment, they divided the Tenth Commandment into two.

CRITERION 7: THE LITTLE HORN SPEAKS GREAT BLASPHEMIES (Dan. 7:8, 20).

Here, we will examine two key blasphemies.The first blasphemy is the claim that the Pope is God (John 10:30-33). How? Consider this quote:"The Pope has a very exalted position and has been so highly glorified that he is not just a man, but as it were, God, and the substitute of God."—Lucius Ferraris, Prompta Bibliotheca Canonica, Vol. VI, pp. 438, 442, under the article "Pope."The title "Holy Father" that the Pope has assumed belongs to God alone (John 17:11).The second blasphemy is the claim that he has the power to forgive sins, a role that belongs to God alone (Luke 5:20-21).God alone is to be worshiped (Matt. 4:10), yet the Pope seeks to be worshiped (2 Thess. 2:3-4; Rev. 13:4, 7, 8, 12). Compare this with Revelation 13:1, 5, 6. It is the same power.God does not want His people to remain in darkness about this kingdom, even though the world highly exalts it today. Eventually, when God allows it to rule fully, it will bring destruction upon the entire world, leading to its end (Rev. 17:8-11; 6:14-17; 19:11-21).The saints will go to heaven to reign with Jesus for 1000 years (1 Thess. 4:16-18; Rev. 20:4). This world will be left in utter ruin.

The entire period of 1000 years (Jer. 4:23-27). After the 1000 years are over, the saints will return here along with the New Jerusalem (Rev. 21:10). Then, the wicked will be resurrected and will attempt to attack the New Jerusalem or the Camp of the Saints. Fire will consume them(Rev. 20:7-10, 15). This is Gehenna, or the Lake of Fire, or the Second Death (Rev. 20:14). Gehenna is not burning now. It will burn after those 1000 years have ended. Those who enter it will be completely consumed and turned to ashes, along with Satan and his angels (Mal. 4:1-3; Ezek. 28:14-19). They will never be resurrected again! Then, the saints will inherit the new earth (Rev. 21:1; Matt. 5:5; 2 Pet. 3:10-13; Psalm 37 in its entirety).

THE LITTLE HORN OF DANIEL 8 (READ THE WHOLE OF DANIEL 8)

The Little Horn of Daniel 7 represents the Papal Kingdom. However, the Little Horn of Daniel 8 represents two kingdoms—Pagan Rome and Papal Rome. It is the same as the Great Red Dragon of Revelation 12, which has seven heads and ten horns, symbolizing these two kingdoms. The distinction is made based only on their actions. God sees no difference between Pagan Rome and Papal Rome. Jesus referred to both as the "Abomination of Desolation," meaning authorities that destroy God's people (Matt. 24:15-22; Dan. 9:27). Daniel 8 and 9 are interconnected; Gabriel was unable to continue explaining to Daniel about the Little Horn, which would kill the saints in a shocking manner, because Daniel had fainted (Dan. 8:24, 27). After some time, Gabriel returned to Daniel and told him he wanted to help him understand the vision of Daniel 8, which he had previously interrupted (Dan. 9:20-22). However, for ease of understanding, we will examine each chapter separately.

Chapter 8 contains two visions—

1. The Ram with Two Horns (Dan. 8:3-4), which represents the kingdom of the Medes and Persians (Dan. 8:20).

2. The Goat with a Prominent Horn between its Eyes (Dan. 8:5-8), which represents the kingdom of Greece (Dan. 8:21)

The prominent horn symbolizes its first ruler, Alexander the Great (Dan. 8:21). The four horns represent his four generals who took over after his death (Dan. 8:22):

Cassander took the Western Province,

Lysimachus took the Northern Province,

Seleucus took the Eastern Province (Syria and beyond),

Ptolemy took the Southern Province (Egypt and the islands).

These Greek kingdoms fought among themselves until Seleucus eventually dominated the east, north, and west after defeating his rivals. It was from his territory that the Little Horn arose, representing Pagan Rome and later Papal Rome (Dan. 8:9). In other words, the Roman Empire emerged from the region once ruled by Seleucus. This is true both geographically and historically

Now, let us briefly examine the works of the Little Horn in Daniel 8. Through Moses, God had warned the Israelites that He would bring against them a nation whose language they did not understand, which would besiege them and lead them to eat their own children. This was fulfilled in 70 A.D. when Roman armies besieged and utterly destroyed Jerusalem, along with its temple (Deut. 28:49-57; Dan. 9:26-27; Matt. 24:15-20; Luke 21:20-24)The cruelty of these kingdoms, represented by a “fierce-looking king,” meaning a ruthless ruler, is mentioned (Dan. 8:23-24). The Jews understood Greek but not Latin. The New Testament was written in Greek, the language of the Greek Empire. Both Pagan Rome and Papal Rome used deception in their rule (Dan. 8:25). Read Ancient History.So far, we have discussed general aspects. Now, let us briefly examine the actions of these kingdoms:

PAGAN ROME:

The Little Horn grew significantly toward “the Beautiful Land,” meaning Palestine (Dan. 8:9). Palestine became part of the Roman Empire in 63 B.C. The “host of heaven” refers to God’s people, while “stars” symbolize religious leaders (Dan. 8:10; Rev. 1:20). “Casting them down and trampling them” means destroying or killing them. This kingdom fulfilled this prophecy in 70 A.D. when it destroyed Jerusalem. Then, in the second century, it killed many Christians under Emperor Diocletian of Rome. Even before him, during the reign of Nero, Christians were slaughtered. History estimates that Pagan Rome killed approximately three million people. “The sanctuary was cast down” refers to the destruction of the temple in 70 A.D. (Dan. 8:11).”The Prince of the Host” or “The Prince of princes” is Christ Himself (Dan. 12:1)

(Rev. 12:7,8; Joshua 5:13-15; Rev. 1:5). The word "angel" means "messenger." It can refer to Christ, to the heavenly beings we call angels (Heb. 1:14), or to "pastors" (Rev. 2:1,8,12,18; 3:1,7). "Michael" is the name of Jesus when He is the Chief of the Angelic Army (Commander of the Lord's Army). His voice will raise the dead (John 5:25,28,29; 1 Thess. 4:16), and He is called the Archangel.That Pilate, the governor of pagan Rome, faced Him directly, as foretold in (Dan. 8:11,25; John 18:33-37; 19:1-3,10,11,23,19-22). He was crucified on a Roman cross, scourged with Roman whips, nailed with Roman nails, and His tomb was guarded by Roman soldiers. That prophecy was fulfilled completely.

Papal Rome

We will consider only a few aspects, not all. Papal Rome "cast down the truth to the ground" (Dan. 8:12). What is truth? Truth is the Word of God. Truth is the Law of God (the Ten Commandments). Read (John 17:17; Ps. 119:142).The papacy has trampled upon the Ten Commandments by abolishing the Second Commandment, which forbids idolatry, and replacing the Sabbath (Saturday) with Sunday as the day of worship (Dan. 7:25; Rev. 13:16,17). In prophecy, Sunday is called the "Mark of the Beast," meaning the mark of the authority of the Pope. The Sabbath is called the Seal of God (Rev. 7:1-4) or the "Mark of God" (Ezek. 9:4-11).Martin Luther discovered 95 errors (false teachings). Now there are even more. "Trampling the Sanctuary and the host" does not mean destroying the temple building, but rather shifting believers' focus toward the Pope instead of Jesus Christ, the High Priest in the Heavenly Sanctuary, by introducing the priesthood and the Mass (Heb. 4:14-16; 3:1). Another error is using God's title, "Holy Father" (John 17:11).

Time is insufficient to list all the false doctrines referred to as "the wine of the wrath of her fornication" (Rev. 14:8; 17:2). It promotes traditions over the Bible (Matt. 15:3-9; Mark 7:5-13). It killed more than 50 million saints during its 1260-year reign (538-1798), known as the Dark Ages (Dan. 8:24,25; Matt. 24:21,22).Those within this system are commanded to leave (Rev. 18:4,5). From the Pope to the laypeople, all are called to depart immediately. Millions will leave with great tribulation, and those who remain in the system will face execution (Rev. 15:2; 20:4).In (Daniel 7:9,10), judgment followed after the papacy's 1260-year rule. This same judgment is repeated in these words: "Unto two thousand and three hundred days; then shall the sanctuary be cleansed" (Dan. 8:14).The entire plan of salvation is revealed in both the earthly and heavenly sanctuaries (Heb. 8:1,2; 9:6,7; Lev. 16; Lev. 23:27-32). From Sinai until Jesus' crucifixion, this service was conducted by priests and the high priest until it ended (Exod. 25:8; Matt. 27:50,51).

When Jesus ascended in 31 A.D., He entered directly into the first apartment of the heavenly sanctuary (Heb. 9:11,12), where He began the work of judgment, purification, or atonement as the High Priest. The 2300 days of (Dan. 8:14) represent 2300 prophetic years (Ezek. 4:6). They began in 457 B.C., when the decree to rebuild Jerusalem was issued, and ended in 1844 A.D.The cleansing of the sanctuary refers to the work of 1844 in the Most Holy Place of the heavenly sanctuary (Heb. 9:23-26; Rev. 11:19). Once completed, Christ will pronounce the solemn words that will determine everyone's eternal destiny—either for eternal life or eternal death (Rev. 22:11,12). Then He will return to take His people and destroy the wicked.The subject of the Sanctuary is vast. You are advised to read The Great Controversy, Chapters 24 and 25, for a comprehensive explanation.

THE HOLY NATION OF ISRAEL REJECTED (READ DANIEL 9 ENTIRELY)

Gabriel came again to Daniel after some time had passed since the day he fainted, to give him further explanations about his vision in Daniel 8. You remember Daniel fainted (Dan. 8:27). Because of this, Gabriel was unable to continue with his explanation; now he returned to complete the interpretation of that vision (Dan. 9:20)."Seventy weeks have been determined [cut off, set apart from the 2300-year period] for your people [the Jews] and for your holy city [Jerusalem].... Know therefore and understand, that from the issuing of the decree to restore and rebuild Jerusalem until the time of the Messiah, the Prince, there shall be seven weeks; and for sixty-two weeks it shall be built again with streets and a trench, but in troublesome times. And after the sixty-two weeks, the Messiah shall be cut off.... Then he shall confirm a strong covenant with many for one week; but in the middle of the week, he shall bring an end to sacrifice and offering..." (Dan. 9:24-27).

As it is, one week has seven days, and in prophetic interpretation, one day represents one regular year. Therefore, seventy weeks equal 70 × 7 = 490 days or 490 years. This period is cut off from the 2300 years in Daniel 8:14 and begins to be counted from the same year, 457 B.C., when the decree to successfully rebuild Jerusalem was issued. The 490 years from 457 B.C. end in A.D. 34. This period was given to the Holy Nation of ancient Israel to fulfill six specified tasks. They were expected to accept the Messiah as their Savior and receive His righteousness. But when He came to them, they did not accept Him as a nation (John 1:11).

The seven weeks represent 7 × 7 = 49 years from 457 B.C. to 408 B.C. The sixty-two weeks represent 62 × 7 = 434 years from 408 B.C. to A.D. 26½ or

27. The year 27 A.D. was when Jesus became known as the Messiah [the Anointed One] after being baptized and receiving the Holy Spirit (Matt. 3:13-17; Acts 10:38). It was indeed the time that had "been fulfilled" according to the prophecy of Daniel 9 concerning the Messiah (Matt. 4:17).The seven weeks plus the sixty-two weeks equal sixty-nine weeks, or 49 + 434 = 483 years from 457 B.C., which ended in A.D. 27. Therefore, only one week or seven years remained to complete the 490-year period granted to the Nation of Israel to accept Jesus. The remaining years were 490 - 483 = 7 years, which would end in A.D. 34 (27 + 7 = 34).In the middle of the final week, that is, halfway through the seven years, or 3½ years, "the Messiah shall be cut off"—He would be killed brutally. Thus, 27 + 3½ = 30½, which rounds to A.D. 31. This was the year Christ (the Messiah) was crucified. This prophecy was fulfilled precisely.Although the Nation of Israel completely rejected the Messiah, refusing to acknowledge Him as their King (John 19:15), they still had 3½ years remaining, until A.D. 34, to be preached the Gospel. One day before His final Passover, as He was about to enter the city, He wept over it, deeply sorrowful for what would happen to it (Luke 19:41-44; Matt. 23:37-39). He foretold the destruction of the city by the Roman armies in A.D. 70 (Dan. 9:26b).

The Jews took pride in their temple, but Jesus told them plainly, "See! Your house is left to you desolate," meaning its glory had departed from it from that very day. His long discourse in Matthew 24 and 25 concerned end-time events."Now it came to pass, when Jesus had finished all these sayings, that He said to His disciples, 'You know that after two days is the Passover, and the Son of Man will be betrayed to be crucified'" (Matt. 26:1-2). This was in A.D. 31.Shortly before this Passover, He had told them openly, "The kingdom of God will be taken from you and given to a nation bearing its fruits" (Matt. 21:43).

Which nation was this? Why did He speak these words to them? (Matt. 21:33-46).

LET THE READER UNDERSTAND -24

The Other Holy Nation of Israel

Which other Holy Nation of Israel exists? When was it given the Kingdom of God? Without a doubt, it was given when the 490 years or the 70 weeks allocated to the former Nation of Israel ended. They still had three and a half years left for the gospel to be preached to them (30 1/2 + 3 1/2 = 34). The founder of the New Nation of Israel is Christ Himself. He instructed His disciples to first preach the gospel to the "lost sheep of Israel" and forbade them from going to the Gentiles (Matt. 10:6). Eventually, He told them, “But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you; and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the ends of the earth” (Acts 1:8).

In A.D. 34, Stephen was stoned, and in that same year, the gospel was taken to the Gentiles. That same year, Paul declared to the Jews who had rejected the Messiah, saying, “It was necessary that the word of God be spoken to you first; but since you reject it and consider yourselves unworthy of eternal life, behold, we turn to the Gentiles” (Acts 13:46). The Nation of Israel was thus rejected. Since A.D. 34, it is no longer a holy nation; nor has it been assigned another special period of receiving the gospel as a privilege after the church is raptured (1 Thess. 4:16,17[18]). There will be no living human beings on earth when the church is raptured (Jer. 4:23-26). They squandered their time that God had set for them. They will be preached to together with all other nations in the same period, from A.D. 34 until the High Priest, Jesus Christ, concludes His work of intercession in the Heavenly Sanctuary (Rev. 14:6-12; 15:8; 22:11). What will follow are the seven last plagues (Rev. 16 in its entirety).

The same conditions that were given to the former Holy Nation of Israel are the very same ones given to the Holy Nation of Spiritual Israel or Christians (Exod. 19:5,6; 1 Pet. 2:9,10; Heb. 8:10). Obedience to the Ten Commandments is the foundation of both the Old and the New Covenant. This is why the “saints” of the last days, just like those of old, will be keeping the Ten Commandments of God along with the faith of Jesus (Rev. 14:12; 1 John 2:3-6). The faith of Jesus involves accepting Him as Savior and following all His teachings (Matt. 28:19,20; Mark 16:15,16; John 3:16; 14:21-26).Christians from various nations are called “Jews” or “Spiritual Israelites” (Rom. 2:28,29; 9:6-8; Gal. 3:26-29).

The death of Jesus on the cross abolished the distinction that existed between Jews and Gentiles; all are now equal and have the same rights through faith in Christ (Eph. 2:11-22). We should shout and say, “Praise the Lord!!!” There is no longer any difference. Under that Cross of Calvary, all human beings are equal. There is no need to set aside a special period to preach the gospel to the Jews. They must be evangelized now; the day of salvation for every human being is now, not after the church is raptured (2 Cor. 6:2). The rapture of the church will be accompanied by the destruction of the Abomination of Desolation and all who support it (Dan. 9:27; Rev. 19:11-21).

GREAT BATTLES ARE TAKING PLACE BEHIND THE SCENES

(READ DANIEL 10 IN ITS ENTIRETY)

It is truly terrifying to be made aware that great battles are taking place behind the scenes—battles that are invisible to our human eyes, though we can see their effects. Daniel was given a revelation, meaning he was shown these great unseen battles, and he came to understand what he had never comprehended before (Dan. 10:1). John, while on Patmos, was also shown these great battles, from the moment they began in heaven, their transition to earth, and their ultimate conclusion in the battle of Armageddon (Rev. 12:7-17; 16:13-16; 17:12-14; 19:11-21).Clearly, there are two great forces at war—Michael (Christ) and His angels against the Dragon (Satan) and his angels. This is indeed the Great Controversy! As the old saying goes, "When two bulls fight, the grass suffers." That is exactly the case here. Humanity is the most affected party in this great conflict. Paul states that we have become "a spectacle to the whole universe, to angels as well as to human beings" (1 Cor. 4:9). Where can we run to, poor us? The astonishing thing is that this battle is fought within our minds and hearts, even though we see its results externally.

So how can we protect ourselves? Paul instructs us to put on the full armor of God so that we may stand against the forces of darkness—not by using physical force, but by wielding the Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God, along with faith and earnest prayer (Eph. 6:10-20). Job did not know what was happening behind the scenes as he endured successive calamities, but in the end, he understood. Likewise, we often do not understand why we face hardships despite our fervent prayers. Behind all the challenges we encounter, there is a great battle raging between the forces of good and evil. If God were to open our eyes, many of us would faint at the sight of how Satan and his angels manipulate humanity—or we might even lose all hope.

All the prophecies of Daniel 2, 7, 8, 9, 11, and 12; the entire book of Revelation; and Matthew 24 are about this great conflict. But thanks be to God, for victory is assured for His people, even if they are beheaded or subjected to any form of persecution (Rev. 15:2; 20:4; 12:11; Heb. 11:35-38; Rom. 8:35-39). Does Satan rejoice when God's people succeed in doing His work? Not at all. He places many obstacles to hinder God's work from advancing. God's work takes away those whom Satan considers his captives, and he refuses to release them. "He does not let his captives go home" (Isa. 14:17b). Even those who have escaped into Christ's hands, he tries to snatch back (John 10:27-30). Therefore, this great battle continues behind the scenes until God Himself brings it to an end on the final day. He may reveal it to us, or He may not.

What is important for us now is to understand that we are in a battleground, that "this is not our resting place," and thus we should not deceive ourselves, become complacent, or indulge in pleasure as though we have arrived; the world is full of filth, and destruction is heavy (Mic. 2:10).

We find Daniel fasting for 21 days, praying for God to fulfill the work of rebuilding Jerusalem as King Cyrus had commanded the Jews to do (Ezra 1:2-5). However, the work did not proceed smoothly; there was great opposition from the Samaritans, who did not want the temple to be rebuilt (Ezra 4). Accusations were sent to Cyrus, urging him to issue a decree to halt the construction.At that very moment when Daniel was praying, King Cyrus was being influenced in his mind to stop the work. Thus, a great battle was underway between Michael (Christ) and Satan over this matter—Christ persuading Cyrus to support the work, while Satan urged him to forbid it entirely. The 21-day struggle slightly softened Cyrus's heart.

THE KING OF THE NORTH MOVING TO JERUSALEM (READ DANIEL 11 IN FULL)

God does not forget kings who do His will and help His people when they are attacked by Satan through human agents who accuse them. Whenever people seek to disrupt or put an end to God's work, know that Satan is behind it; he is using them. A great war [The Great Controversy] is raging behind the scenes. We cannot see it with our physical eyes.Cyrus, the Persian, was the one who led the armies that overthrew Babylon on Belshazzar's final night (Dan. 5:25-31). He handed over the rule of Babylon to his uncle, Darius the Mede. If you remember from previous lessons, Darius greatly loved Daniel and appointed him as Prime Minister. He also had a deep reverence for Daniel's God. Because of this, the angel Gabriel was sent to confirm him on his throne and strengthen him (Dan. 11:1). When he ruled Babylon, he was already 62 years old; after his death, Cyrus took over Babylon's rule (Dan. 10:1).

In Daniel 11, we examine the same kingdoms, from the Medo-Persian Empire until the establishment of Christ's Kingdom. The term "stand" means to reign. The Babylonian Empire had already been overthrown by the Medes and Persians. This chapter is written in plain language that is easy for everyone to understand. Therefore, we will not need to provide extensive explanations. This prophecy continues from Chapter 10; Gabriel continues explaining to Daniel what will happen to God's people in the last days (Dan. 10:1). The astonishing fact is that a significant portion of this prophecy has already been fulfilled. The key players in this conflict are clearly identified, with their actions having come to pass exactly as foretold. Our task here is to mention a few key historical figures who fulfilled the passages indicated in brackets before their names. Now, let us go through them one by one.Key Figures in the Medo-Persian Empire:Darius (Dan. 11:1)Cyrus (Dan. 10:1)

The first three successive kings (Dan. 11:2), who were:

Cambyses, son of Cyrus

Smerdis

Darius Hystaspes

The fourth king, who was wealthier than all of them, was Ahasuerus. He was the one who provoked war against the small kingdom of Greece, which later overthrew the Medo-Persian Empire.

Key Figures in the Greek Empire:

Alexander the Great (Dan. 11:3,4) – He died young at the age of 32 and left no heir to inherit his kingdom. As a result, his four generals divided his empire into four regions (Dan. 11:4). Theirnames were:

Cassander

Lysimachus

Seleucus

Ptolemy

In the Seleucid dynasty, more than 20 kings ruled before the Greek Empire was overthrown by the Romans. One of them, who was not as renowned as his predecessors, was Antiochus Epiphanes IV. Some people mistakenly assume that he is the “Little Horn” of Daniel 7 and 8.Although he persecuted the Jews for three years and ten days and desecrated their Temple, he does not meet all the criteria for the “Little Horn.” He died in battle in 164 B.C. However, the “Little Horn” of Daniel 8 will be removed from power by God Himself (Dan. 8:25). Moreover, Antiochus never directly opposed Christ since he died before Christ was born, nor can he be a threat to the world in these last days like the “Little Horn” of Daniel 7 and 8.

The four Greek generals continued fighting among themselves until the end. Seleucus took control of the entire Eastern region (with its headquarters in Syria), the North, and Western Europe. Ptolemy retained control over the Southern region (Egypt).

Geographically, the two remaining kings were called “The King of the North” (Seleucus), who resided in Syria, and “The King of the South” (Ptolemy), who resided in Egypt. Each king’s dynasty continued to rule until the Romans intervened. The main figures in these two Greek kingdoms were:Ptolemy Philadelphus – the King of the South (Dan. 11:6), whose daughter, Bernice, was given in marriage to Antiochus Theus, the King of the North, who already had a first wife, Laodice (Dan. 11:6). Filled with jealousy, Laodice poisoned Bernice, her infant son, and her attendants, as well as her own husband. Bernice’s brother, Ptolemy Euergetes, “a shoot from her roots,” went to avenge his sister’s death against the King of the North (Dan. 11:7-13). Eventually, the Romans entered the scene of these revenge wars between the Greek kings.

Key Figures in the Roman Empire:

The Roman Empire comes into play from verses 14 to 16 of this chapter. Cleopatra, the daughter of “the people” [the king of Egypt], was given to Julius Caesar as a gift of fornication so that he would favor her in her struggle for power against her brother (Dan. 11:17-19).

Caesar Augustus, a tax-loving ruler who indulged in luxury (Dan. 11:20; Luke 2:1-6), issued a decree during those days:”In those days, a decree went out from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be registered for taxation” (Luke 2:1, KJV).Jesus, the Prince of the Covenant, lived and was crucified under Emperor Tiberius (Dan. 11:21-22; Luke 3:1; John 18:15, under Emperor Tiberius). The Romans entered Palestine and slaughtered the Jews (Dan. 11:23-29).

The Rise of the Abomination of Desolation:

This marks the beginning of the Papal Kingdom (Dan. 11:31-39) during the 1260-year period of the Dark Ages. The mass killings of over 50 million saints are described in verses 32 and 33. The Reformation, initiated in 1517 by Martin Luther and continued by other Reformers, provided places of refuge for those being persecuted and killed by the Pope (Dan. 11:34; Rev. 12:16; Matt. 24:15, 21-22). Through this, the persecution and killings were “shortened” (Matt. 24:22). In Catholic-dominated countries, the killings continued until 1798. The fallen Roman political empire continues today under the Papacy.

The Final King of the North Moving to Jerusalem:

This King of the North is different from the Greek kings who were called “The King of the North” and “The King of the South” from verses 5 to 17. He is mentioned in verses 40 to 45. The matters concerning the “King of the South” in these last days, as described in these verses, remain unclear. There are many speculations.Jesus said:"Now I have told you before it happens so that when it does happen, you may believe" (John 14:29).

When prophecy mentions "the south," it means south of this final King of the North. The nations that will be overthrown are mentioned, along with the countries that will provide him with wealth. The King of the North in the last days is the Papal Kingdom, or the Papacy, which will rule in its second and final phase (Dan. 11:45; Rev. 17:8-11).

That kingdom is destined for utter destruction by Michael [Christ] when He stands up—when He is crowned in heaven during the ceremony known as the Wedding of the Lamb. At that time, He will be given the New Jerusalem, ready to welcome His bride (the Church) when He raptures her at His Second Coming (Dan. 12:1; Rev. 19:6-9; 21:9-10).

Thus, when the Pope moves to Jerusalem—"he shall plant the tents of his royal palace between the seas [Mediterranean Sea] and the glorious holy mountain [Mount of Olives] in the beautiful land [Palestine]"—he will be fulfilling this prophecy.However, while there, "he shall come to his end, and no one will help him" (Dan. 11:45), and "he goes into destruction" (Rev. 17:11).

What kind of end will he face? What kind of destruction will he suffer?Read Revelation 19:11-21.

HOW WILL THE END OF THE WORLD BE? (READ DANIEL 12 IN ITS ENTIRETY)

There are many different opinions people have regarding the end of the world. Some say that the saints will be raptured to heaven, and all the wicked will be destroyed; the earth will remain empty. Others say that only the church will be raptured, while those left behind will continue living on earth, and the gospel will be preached to the Jews; then the Antichrist will come and carry out his works. Still, others believe that only the 144,000 will go to heaven, while all the remaining people will live on earth permanently and that this world cannot be destroyed. Because of this, some look at beautiful buildings and think in their hearts, "I will inherit this mansion."But what picture does the Bible give us about the end of the world? And when we say we are living in the last days, what do we mean? When did the countdown to the last days begin? Let Daniel explain to us in Chapter 12.

The Beginning of the Last Days (Daniel 12:5-7):

We see the same period mentioned in Daniel 7:25 being referenced here again. "The man clothed in linen" [Christ], who also appears in Revelation

10:1-7, speaks. (See also Matthew 17:1-2; Mark 9:2-3.) He says, “It will be for a time, times, and half a time. When the power of the holy people has been completely shattered, then all these things shall be finished.” (Verse 7).

These words were spoken in response to a question from one who asked, “How long will it be until the fulfillment of these wonders?” (Verse 6). The “wonders” refer to the killings carried out by the Papacy during the Dark Ages, when more than 50 million saints were slaughtered—something that even shocked John (Revelation 17:6). A church killing another church is a great marvel! Who, then, will enter heaven?The three and a half times refer to 3 ½ years or 42 months, which equal 1,260 prophetic days—symbolizing the 1,260 years of the First Phase of Papal Rule (538–1798). This period is mentioned repeatedly in prophecy (Daniel 7:25; Revelation 12:6, 14; 13:5; 11:2-3; Matthew 24:21-22). In Daniel 11:33-34, it is written, “... they shall fall by sword and flame, by captivity and plundering, for many days [538–1798].”

The Papacy used the sword, fire, imprisonment, and plundering, just as the prophecy foretold, to kill the saints. The persecution was worse than that inflicted by those who did not know God. The Papal Kingdom, which ruled the world (Western Europe), was broken by the French in early 1798. From that point, Daniel 12:4 began to be fulfilled. Religious, scientific, and technological knowledge began to increase rapidly in a remarkable way. The Dark Ages had no development at all. Scientists and religious scholars who followed the Bible were being killed.

The year 1798 marks the beginning of the “Last Days.” Their end will come in the Second Phase of Papal Rule—”when the power of the holy people has been completely shattered” (Daniel 12:7). History repeats itself. The persecution and killing of the saints will return when the Pope rules again (Revelation 6:9-11)—”They were told to rest a little longer, until the full number of their fellow servants and brothers, who were to be killed as they had been, was completed.”

Many do not believe these words, but they will have to wait until they are fulfilled before they believe (John 14:29).The Establishment of the Abomination of Desolation or the Beginning of Papal Rule (The Papacy):Pagan Rome was overthrown by the pagan tribes of Northern Europe in 476 AD. Since the days of Emperor Constantine in 330 AD, the Bishop of Rome (the Pope) had been given authority to rule over the city of Rome. Therefore, when the Western Roman Empire fell, the Pope continued to govern that city. He took control of Western Europe starting from the year 538 AD, after uprooting three kingdoms—the Heruli (493 AD), the Vandals (534 AD), and the Ostrogoths (early 538 AD).

Other European nations accepted Catholicism through the sword of King Clovis of France. As a result, they once again found themselves under the authority of the Pope (538-1798). Clovis succeeded in converting them to Catholicism in the year 508 (Dan. 12:11,12). From that year, 508, the count of 1,290 and 1,335 days or years begins. The Abomination of Desolation was established [reigned] from 538 to 1798 (that is, 508 + 1,290 = exactly 1798). The year 1798 marked the beginning of the last days. Judgment was set in heaven to determine its penalty in the year 1844, that is, the end of the 2,300 years of Daniel 8:14 (that is, 508 + 1,335 = 1843-1844). A year that begins on January 2 ends in the following year.

What blessing is there for those who will reach the year 1844, the year when Judgment began in heaven? Those who are wise "will purify themselves and make themselves white" (Dan. 12:3,9,10); they will also stand like Daniel in their "lot," meaning their names will remain in the Book of Life in heaven along with all the saints who preceded them (Dan. 12:13). Furthermore, another blessing is that of being resurrected in the special resurrection (Dan. 12:2; Rev. 14:13) for all who faithfully participated in preaching the Everlasting Gospel (Rev. 14:6-12). That Gospel, known as the "Three Angels' Message," began to be preached from 1840 to 1844 and is still being preached. The resurrection of all saints will follow immediately after this mixed resurrection, which will include those who pierced Him and those who severely persecuted God's people (Rev. 1:7; 1 Thess. 4:16,17[18]).What Will the End of the World Be Like?

We have seen how the Papal Kingdom ruled in its First Phase (538-1798) and that it is set to rule the world again. That will be its second and final phase. Its end will come through destruction. The sequence of events is as follows:

— The Pope will reign in the second phase, persecution and the killing of the saints will resume but for a very short period, Christ, our High Priest, will finish His work of intercession in the Heavenly Temple and will close the door of repentance or mercy by the decree of Rev. 22:11.

— God's people will have received His seal on their foreheads, while the followers of the Beast will have received the mark of the beast on their foreheads or their hands.

— The time of trouble will begin (Dan. 12:1) when Michael (Christ) is crowned (stands up) in the Heavenly Jerusalem; the winds of war that had been restrained will be released, and war will spread everywhere, bringing great disasters (Rev. 7:1-4).

— Storms and other calamities will occur, and then God's most terrifying weapon will be used against those who have trampled on His Sabbath— the Seven Plagues of Revelation 16.

— All who follow the Pope will have their names removed from the Book of Life (Exod. 32:32,33; Rev. 13:8).

The final test will revolve around the Fourth Commandment [the Sabbath] (Rev. 3:10; 14:9,10). The act of replacing the Sabbath [Saturday] with Sunday will have dire consequences for the entire world (Isa. 24:1-6,19,20; Rev. 19:11-21). Woe to the kings of this world! Woe to anyone who does not stand on the side of Jesus Christ in this Great Controversy! The end is near.God's children are weary of this world; they long to rest in heaven for a thousand years. And Jesus says:"Behold, I come quickly, and My reward is with Me, to give every man according as his work shall be" (Rev. 22:11).Are you ready to meet the Lord? Will you stand firm even if the heavens fall, and lift high the Banner of Immanuel [Christ], inscribed with:"Here is the patience of the saints; here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus" (Rev. 14:12).Very soon, this world will be left desolate, my brother. From today, choose to enter Paradise with Christ (Luke 23:42,43; 2 Cor. 6:2). You may not hear another call like this. Decide today!"Today, if you hear His voice, do not harden your heart!"

GOD'S STEWARD

We are all God's stewards; everything we have been given is a trust, and we will be accountable for five or six key things: time, talents, wealth, influence, relationships, health, and even our character. The greatest stewardship is representing God properly and walking in His footsteps. It means sharing the good news with others and living it out by dedicating our time and resources.

We cannot love without giving. Look at your friends and how your friendship works; often, you are happy with them, and you feel good about giving even without being asked. You laugh wholeheartedly, enjoying their company. Now, what about our Father, the God of love, who gives us all good things? Let us learn to live without selfishness and greed; this is the path to true happiness and health. Solomon said that a cheerful heart is better than medicine. We came into this world with nothing, and we will leave with nothing. The love for free things or the tendency to prefer receiving over giving is not a good trait.

Perhaps the greatest stewardship of all is emphasizing that stewardship is beyond what we listed in the paragraph above. The most crucial stewardship is the mystery of God's salvation—the Gospel—telling others about God's love, mercy, compassion, and forgiveness. In short, revealing God's nature and love and His desire to live with us forever. People will only recognize true stewards of God when they see us and our children loving others, acting justly, being humble, and showing mercy.The widow who gave two small coins was praised not because of the small amount she gave but because of the zero she had left at home! Too often, we give our leftovers—what we do not need—to the poor, orphans, widows, and those in need. But when it comes to those we love, we give them things they may not even need while we "empty the whole pot." We should be cautious of this, as I, too, have been guilty of it. I pray for wisdom to avoid it. Jesus knew that there were corrupt politicians and greedy Pharisees, yet He did not tell the widow to withhold her offering. Instead, He praised her for giving, knowing full well that there were thieves in the temple! This shows us that it is our duty to return to God what belongs to Him.

Giving is for our own well-being and that of our children so that we do not become greedy or envious. The tenth commandment is the hardest to obey because it is not visible! It is easy to notice jealousy in others who have things we lack, as we try to dictate how they should spend their money to help people. But when it is our turn to receive from God, we hesitate, giving mere change to those in need while we spoil our children with things they do not even need, only for them to boast about it. Our children learn by example. John D. Rockefeller, a great American oil tycoon, was known to be stingy and miserly, filled with anger and misery. When he turned fifty, he fell gravely ill. A friend advised him to start giving generously to those in need, promising that he would find healing and a better life. He tried it, and miraculously, he lived to the age of ninety, giving selflessly! His Rockefeller Foundation continues to support schools, scholarships, and people with disabilities.

Do not assume that people give because they have excess! Not at all! That is only half the story. Jesus answered the eternal question of who our neighbor is by demonstrating that anyone in need—whether a relative, a stranger, a Chinese person, a Jew, or someone outside our community or tribe—is our neighbor.

Many times, I have been selfish, recalling a story I read in first grade about a very stingy woman. She had stepchildren who visited her home. She and her husband had set a trap for small game, and one night, she heard the trap snap shut. Assuming it had caught something, she worried that the stepchildren would want to share in the meat. Wanting to enjoy it alone with her husband and biological children, she hurriedly sent the stepchildren away as if driving them out. But when she went to check the trap, it had caught a leopard, which pounced on her and killed her because there was no one to help her.

Many times, I have wanted to keep things to myself when I could have invited others to share, only to end up with nothing. I have met people who hoard their possessions, even inheritance, only for them to be consumed by moths or to bring sorrow in the end. Happiness does not come from what we own. True joy comes from knowing God, serving Him, and helping others.

I believe extraordinary joy is something that comes from God Himself. When you serve or give, you feel overwhelmed with a sudden, uncontrollable smile—even if you are wearing tattered clothes, you are happier than those living in mansions. Speaking of mansions, a new trend has emerged where people build big houses but do not welcome guests. Yet, in the past, a woman of faith expanded her home to accommodate visitors. We build today for prestige, but sometimes, a person living in a grass-thatched hut can be more generous than those with big houses.

Some of us started in very tough conditions, walking barefoot. When we saw those with many pairs of shoes, we assumed they were cruel and that if they had only thought of us, they would have gained a blessing. Today, we do not give meaningful things to others; we buy expensive clothes, and when we tire of them, that is when we donate them—just so that the recipient can be seen wearing something from us.

The things of the world lose value; today, I buy something new, and tomorrow I ask myself, "Why did I waste my money on this bad or defective item? Why is it not appealing?" Some claim that when they give to support God's work, their money will be misused in the church, temple, or mosque.

But think about this: If I give someone money to pass on to my parent, and they misuse it, should I stop giving my parent money because the person I entrusted it to stole it? If there are people misusing church funds, they should be taken to court and held accountable. Do not rob your God and miss out on blessings because of people who fade away like smoke. If you think you have given too much to God, have peace in your heart—He is not unjust; He will return to you what you believe you have overgiven. Your change will come back to you!

However, remember that the tithe—one-tenth of your income—belongs to the Lord. The Word says that if you take it, it is not just theft; you are robbing God like an armed bandit. A bandit is someone who takes another's property openly and forcefully. Return to God what is rightfully His so that you may be blessed—or rather, so that you may not be cursed. A thief steals by sneaking in when the owner is unaware, like a pickpocket. A believer who does not tithe is essentially committing robbery—plain and simple. He is forcefully taking from God, and God knows it.

It is often said, "Show me your daily schedule and your budget, and I will tell you where your stress lies." Similarly, "Show me how you use your time and your money, and I will tell you what your passion is." Another saying goes, “Your checkbook is a theological document.” Theology is the study of knowing and loving God. Do not hoard possessions or exploit those without means, robbing them in various ways. When we die, we will not be buried with our wealth, but we can send it ahead by helping those in need and giving offerings to God, who loves us beyond measure.Ask yourself: How do you spend your time online? What is consuming your time? A woman recently admitted that she spends the entire day watching videos of extraordinary cats. What about you? What are you wasting your time on? This reveals who or what your god truly is.

Everyone has the talent of time—no one lacks it! Perhaps we do not all have wealth, but what about time? Use your time and spiritual gifts wisely! The gifts of the Spirit are meant to bless others. Read stewardship books like The Blessed Life. Pray over this matter as well. You will be amazed at the love and joy you will experience.

I was astonished to learn that a billionaire from a poor country like India owns the most expensive home in the world, valued at $2 billion! Meanwhile, Warren Buffet, the second-richest man in the U.S., has lived in the same three-bedroom house for over fifty years. He drives a regular car and lives a simple life. He has been interviewed many times, and his life story is available online. Many people in developing countries are like those who never expected to acquire wealth, and when they do, they squander it extravagantly.

Two types of people will never be rich: believers and Africans. I have taught this stewardship lesson in several countries across four continents. Africans and those who love God have responsibilities—to their families and to supporting the gospel. If they truly understand this duty, they will always feel like they do not have enough money, even if they are billionaires. Africans have many poor relatives, extended families, and communities with great needs. Even if I received a hundred billion dollars today, I would have plenty to do with it because we live in a global village.Albert Schweitzer, who worked as a physician in West Africa, once said that we are placed on this earth by God, and we must remember our needy brothers and sisters. This doctor dedicated many years to improving people’s health in these countries, and his life story is worth reading.When billionaire John D. Rockefeller died, his accountant was asked by a newspaper, “How much did he leave behind?” The response was, “He left it all!”—he took none of it with him. There was nowhere to carry it. He left it all here on earth.

Even if we accumulate a lot of possessions, we cannot use them all. I can only wear one pair of shoes at a time, sleep in one house at a time, or drive one car at a time. Even with vast wealth, we cannot eat tanzanite or gold. We will still eat rice, beans, ugali, or vegetables. We must teach our children to be generous and help those in need with their resources.

Our journey through life often goes like this:

As children, we say, “Let me finish school, and then I will be happy and satisfied.”

Then, “Let me get a job and earn money, and then I will be happy.”

Next, “Let me get married and have children, and then I will be happy.”

Later, “Let me retire, and then I will be happy.”

Then, “Let me have grandchildren, and then I will be happy.”

Finally, “Let my children be independent, and then I will be happy.”

But in the end, old age arrives, and we say, “I am not happy. Now, there are illnesses and weaknesses.” Dependence on others begins.

In 1969, when my maternal grandmother visited us in Arusha at the age of 48, I thought she was very old and said, “Grandma, you are so old!” She replied, “Grace, I just turned this way, and before I knew it, I was old! It didn’t take long. Even you will grow old and wonder where the time went.”She was right. I came to the U.S., saying I would stay for six years, but now I have lived abroad longer than I have lived at home. Today, I am older than my grandmother was in 1969, and I, too, wonder—where did the time go?We brought nothing into this world, and we will take nothing with us. But we can send our treasures ahead to heaven in advance through acts of kindness, ensuring that moth and rust do not destroy them here on earth. Give until it hurts—not just what you were planning to throw away.“I was hungry, and you fed me; I was thirsty, and you gave me drink; I was naked, and you clothed me; I was in prison, and you visited me.” The Word tells us that this is the passport to heaven—if we do it with a willing heart and not out of compulsion.Let us pray that we may be faithful stewards so that we do not hear the words:

“Depart from me, you who are cursed, into the eternal fire prepared for the devil and his angels.”

By the grace of God, I do not want to go to hell. What about you?

GOD will judge us not only for the wrongs we commit but also for the good we fail to do (commission and omission).

I know that in life, you will encounter people who are ungrateful and never satisfied, no matter how much good you do for them.

The Word of God says that the Kingdom of God is like a great pearl that, when a man discovered it, he sold everything and went to buy it. When we were young, we used to sing a song to the tune of Yankee Doodle:

“The farmer with a field planted potatoes,

He dug and dug and found a diamond.

Lo! Lo! The fortune of the landowner,

He threw his hoe aside and went to town,

Bought his car, now he's rich.

Lo! Lo! Fortune, Lo! Lo! The fortune of the landowner."

The Kingdom of God is something of great value. For you who love health, it is wise to sell everything and purchase it. Do not focus too much on storing up wealth on earth and becoming obsessed with money, for many have pierced themselves with great pain because of it. Many people have done unimaginable things for the sake of money.

"The root of all evil is the love of money."

Money will change your character—beware! Many people, when they have no money, are quick to judge others and see their weakness for wealth. But once they themselves have money, they forget that they have the same problem. Often, we have desires in our hearts, but they remain unseen simply because we are poor. A poor person also has greed, but they lack the opportunity for their hunger for wealth to be exposed. Never stop returning tithe (one-tenth). Teach your children to give tithe and offerings and to give to charity. Create projects and pay them, even if just a small amount, so they can give offerings from their own savings rather than their parents' money by the time they reach about eight years old.

Many of us tend to do good only to those we love, rather than to anyone who needs our help. Even wicked people do good to their relatives and friends. It is an African tradition to give to strangers. If we are caring for orphans, we take care of our relatives' orphans. If we are helping someone, we help our relatives.

This is where I greatly admire our Western brothers and sisters because they are able to give to people they do not know—even to organizations or institutions, such as orphanages or cancer research. I am not saying you should forget your relatives—far from it! Forgetting your relatives is like being an unbeliever. But in your generosity, if you are helping six orphaned relatives, also help at least one other person you do not know who is in need.

I met a preacher and his wife who told me that their income was too little, so they did not give tithe. I asked him, "What do you eat? What do you wear? Do you have a farm?" Then let him give from his produce! Many husbands or wives have forbidden their spouses from giving tithe—do not fall into this sin. Two people can see things better than one. Do not be the sole "committee" that decides how money should be used in your home.

Tithing is for our own benefit, not for God's. He owns everything. Whether I give Him my few cents or not, He will never be poor. It is like a parent teaching a young child not to be selfish by asking for a piece of the potato they were given. Moreover, if you think you have given God more than you were required to, He is not like a shopkeeper waiting for you to leave without your change so they can keep it. He is faithful, and if you gave more than expected, He will return it to you. No one has ever given to God and gone bankrupt. Hallelujah!When Moses wrote the Torah and led the Israelites, they were so prosperous that they gave up to 33%—a third of their income! There was no one in need. The community created opportunities to ensure everyone had a way to earn a living or at least meet their basic needs for shelter, clothing, and food. God's plan always leads to blessings and prosperity.

Give your children and others capital to grow and supervise them if you have the knowledge, or find someone to guide them. Many wealthy people either keep complaining or become con artists, making big promises and then disappearing. Some, when they had nothing, constantly followed those with wealth. But when they gained riches, they forgot about people—until they needed relationships or an audience to listen to how great and successful they had become.Westerners say you can never give God more than He gives you—it is impossible. "You cannot outgive God."Start serving God and loving Him with passion and courage. HE will provide the vision, mission, passion, and provision!

Your influence is very important. When people love and respect you, do not misuse that opportunity without wisdom. And if someone sacrifices for you so that you can harm them, do not accept.

Pastor Kulakov from Russia once shared that while he was teaching high school students, a girl deeply fell in love with him and privately told him, "Teacher, I love you very much," hoping they could be friends or even that he would marry her. Pastor Kulakov told his mother about the situation, and she advised him, "My dear son, when people under your authority love you and want to give themselves to you, do not misuse your authority. Even if this girl were an adult, do not accept her love unless you decide to marry her—do not ruin her life simply because she has fallen for you."

I knew Dwight Nelson, a preacher in Michigan. One day while I was present, he shared a story about his journey that week. He had driven from Michigan to California, a distance of about 4,000 kilometers, in an old Honda. He said his car broke down about seven times along the way. After his sermon, the following week, around ten people volunteered to buy him a new car! He had influence. He could have accepted the car, but instead, he asked them to donate that money to a ministry that helps those in need.

How many orphans, widows, the poor, or strangers are you helping today in your life? I also ask myself this question! Please reflect on it, because this is where humanity and true religion lie. Evaluate and examine yourself today. Do you have multiple cars scattered around your yard, and when you die, will they be fought over by people who never even worked for them? Then start distributing them where there is need.

The wealthy Colgate loved God deeply. He gave more than 10% of his wealth to those in need and to support God's work so that many could reach heaven. However, when he died, he had not written a will. His children did not care about people or God, and they squandered all his wealth, forgetting what their father had stood for. Today, write a will—it does not mean you will die soon. Not at all. Give your children just enough to help them work hard and sustain themselves without extreme poverty. As you raise them, show them that you care for the poor, widows, and orphans and that you live with integrity.

In Israel, it was God's plan for every family to have land so that poverty would not exist. People with land never become poor as long as they work hard on it. Developed nations first ensured they were self-sufficient in food and stored it in warehouses. Then they became careless and started buying weapons—after all, they would never have purchased weapons on an empty stomach!

Not giving tithes is like visiting someone with a basket of groceries as a gift, and after you leave, they refuse to even return the basket. In African culture, they should not return the basket empty—they should try to put even a little something inside. What would you think of such a person? That they are completely ungrateful. That is exactly how we treat our God. After He generously provides for us, we hold onto even the basket! But when we give, we are blessed. He said we should test Him and see if He will not open the windows of heaven and pour out blessings upon us.

Some people have been blessed to give more than 10%. A Swiss pharmacist, for example, gave 90% as tithe because he had been blessed and had all his needs met. Do not be miserly over small things, counting every penny. If you have plenty, follow John the Baptist's message: "Whoever has two coats should give one to someone who has none." If your size has not changed, you don't need to keep buying clothes and other things.

Heavenly travelers, your money should win souls, not buy more material things. The Holy Spirit is not the 'Spirit of Wanting Things,' as our evangelist friend Mukangara says. Simplify your life—after all, they say "less is more." You may appear to have little, but your heart is full of joy and abundance, so much so that you feel richer than Bill Gates because God has given you a contented heart. And He has adorned you in such a way that even if you wear something inexpensive, people still ask, "Where did you get that? It looks amazing on you!" You radiate beauty in a way that surprises people.

I believe heaven will be wonderful not because of material things but because of the joy in our hearts—where a river flows peacefully, refreshing your soul as you smile, and your loved ones rejoice with you. You share laughter, and angels stop by to sit with you. Then God Himself speaks with you. Even if you are given nothing, what trouble do you have? There is no more death, sorrow, crying, or pain—none of the things that make life miserable.It is not about material things! There, gold will be nothing more than pavement for the streets.

If you have talents, good looks, a charming personality, or writing skills, use them to win souls, not to develop pride and think, "I am the best." Be humble. Did you know a truly humble person is unaware of their humility?

There was once a man who was extremely humble, so much so that his village awarded him a medal for humility. But the next day, when he wore it, they took it away—because he had announced his own humility!

Plan your budget wisely so that you do not drown in debt. I am personally struggling with housing debt; I pray day and night for it to be lifted. Fear debt as you would fear leprosy. Strive only to owe love. If you are in debt, you rob God greatly because you must prioritize repaying your debts—even jail time is a possibility. And that is something many of us fear more than stealing from God.Some even say, "God understands that I have debts, so I cannot give tithe or offering."

Learn Budgeting and Live Within Your Means. Do not buy what you do not need or live in debt. Many men receive money and plan their expenses by themselves. A wife has many needs, especially if she does not work. But consider this: put yourself in her shoes, imagining she is the one earning the salary while you have not a single cent, and she does not involve you in financial decisions—only giving you minimal updates when necessary!Children in such a home eventually realize this dynamic. When they start working, they send money only to their mother and not their father. Many children take their mothers to the city, leaving behind stingy fathers with bitter hearts, fanning the fire and cooking porridge for themselves. These fathers get angry because they contributed to their children's education—though only when it suited them. Some men even witness their neighbors bringing their mothers abroad, leaving fathers behind to offer prayers that, while not affecting the mother, end up influencing the children instead.

Children must care for their parents, even if their parents did not care for them. It is a sin to abandon one's father or mother. A mother must stand up for her husband and co-parent. Sometimes, mothers paint a picture that they have suffered immensely, failing to honestly acknowledge the good things their husbands have done. We must be careful, or we will accumulate sin before God

I remember once, after an argument with my husband, I was upset. My seven-year-old child asked me what had happened. When I explained, he responded, “Mom, don’t worry. When Dad comes back from work, my younger sibling and I will help you beat him up.” His younger sibling was only three years old. That was the moment I realized I was also at fault in this conflict. In fact, my husband was in the right. And now, here I was, dragging my little children into long-term hatred and enmity, setting them up for a curse for despising and neglecting their father? I prayed to God for mercy and forgiveness. I know He has forgiven me.In the past, when I had no debts, if I heard someone was in need, I would give. Nowadays, I constantly lament about debts! Debts! And I do not give. Let us pray for one another so that we may overcome this habit and for God to bless our income.“Shall I appear before the Lord with empty hands?”

That was a children’s song. Is it acceptable to say, “I have a mortgage” or “I have school loans,” and use that as an excuse? It is a shame if you are poor and have nothing substantial to show for it, but even more so if you are financially stable yet do not give. Teach your children to offer tithes and offerings. Let them see you giving every Sabbath during worship. Reduce electronic transactions sometimes and let them see you give real money! How else will they learn? Teach them how to handle money. I am trying to do that with my children so they do not repeat my mistakes.How will you help those in need if you keep borrowing unnecessarily? Orphans or mission work that brings people to the Lord?Do not forget to care for your family.”Anyone who does not provide for their relatives is worse than an unbeliever.”

Some people declare their wealth as “Korban,” meaning they cannot use it to support their parents because they have dedicated it elsewhere. A person who has resources but fails to take care of their parents or relatives is like a non-believer.

I understand that some relatives are impossible to help—they are full of greed and envy when you succeed in serving God. Sometimes, they want to control your life. Pray to God that you do not harbor resentment.Your relatives and even your spouse might pressure you not to help the needy. They will scrutinize who you give to and how much, claiming that you are making them poor. Yet, I have never seen anyone who helps the poor become poor themselves. God’s promises are true.Some people will see a couple living in harmony and serving God, while their own households are filled with strife, and they will say, “That man is under his wife’s control.”Their underlying message is often: if a wife is not loved or is physically abused, then the marriage is “normal.” Or, they might say, “They think they are Westerners.”But tell me, were Westerners the first people in Eden? Do they truly love each other more than believers do? Do they possess more agape love than we do? Yet, they separate constantly, and their crime rates are higher than oursOr you might hear, “They’re just pretending. We’ll see—they’ll separate eventually!Are you really spending all your time hoping for others to fail? When will you ever pray for your own life? Will you keep cursing others until when, really? We are all sinners preparing for Judgment Day.One person laughed when someone else’s child went astray, saying, “He has joined our group. His children will be worse than mine!”And yet, that person never asked about your children or prayed for them.

A man once saw another man opening the car door for his wife and commented, “That must be either a new wife or a new car!”Do not be someone who wishes for others to fail—pray for them.God still has power. Remember, Saul became Paul, even though he never prayed for himself .Beware of Manipulative RelativesI once stayed with a friend and his wife in Michigan. They showed me a letter from their elder brother, who had paid for their high school education. It read: “Dear one, we educated you, and we told you to buy us a truck and a tractor. To this day, you have not bought them. You went to America, and now you have changed. We will pray that God cuts off your legs so that you will finally remember us and see our worth!”

These friends wept because they had come to study through their own efforts, working part-time to survive. One had to pay rent by doing odd jobs, another worked as a security guard in a cemetery, and another changed diapers for elderly white people—just to survive.You will encounter relatives like these. But do not let that discourage you from helping the genuinely needy when you have the means.Every morning when you wake up, surrender your plans to the Lord and ask Him to guide you.Carry books with you and read while waiting for something or traveling. Give people the gift of good books. Do not just smile and nod at them without offering something meaningful. Your influence should not be about elevating yourself, but rather, revealing God in your life.Even if you are blessed with a beautiful home, invite people in and lovingly remind them that judgment day is near.

Scripture says God has three books: one that records deeds. These books will be presented at the judgment, and every action—whether good or bad—will be revealed. The movie of our lives will play before us, showing everything we have done. Even the things we failed to do when we should have! Do you remember the secret things you do—things you do not want your spouse, children, siblings, grandparents, uncles, aunts, or anyone else to know about?They will all be exposed.But the sins we confess will not be brought up. When God forgives, He wipes them out completely, burying them deep—like in the Pacific Ocean’s Mariana Trench, seven miles down.Even if our sins are as numerous and red as blood, they will become as white as the snow of Mount Kilimanjaro—if we confess them.Dear reader, have you confessed your sins today and repented so you can start a new chapter in your life?Other examples of teaching your children include helping people so they can help themselves, rather than making them dependent. As the saying goes, teach a person how to fish rather than just giving them fish, so they do not rely on you forever. Provide children with education or land so they can be self-sufficient; help orphans and widows.In the book by Ron Sider, Rich Christians in a World of Hunger, he explains astonishing things! He states that research has shown that God has been incredibly faithful—I will make you the head and not the tail! He further explains that 80% of all the world's wealth is in the hands of believers who profess the name of God and the Messiah. However, he says the problem is extreme stinginess! God has blessed us with trillions, yet when we give to the poor, we only give loose change—just small change.

Instead of designing programs to uplift people so they do not depend on us, we only give temporary handouts. Instead of providing a pair of cows, goats, or projects that generate income, we hand out flour or something consumable that does not multiply, so that tomorrow they will ask us for help again! This is a form of cruelty. It is far better to provide education and small capital to help them become independent.

Let them not always be before you, flattering and bowing to you. The Chinese say: If you want to make a difference for a day, eat at a nice restaurant. If you want to make a difference for a month, get married (a bad example). If you want to make a difference for a year, plant a garden. But if you want to make a difference for a lifetime, invest in people—that is, help others gain education or send children to school. You will have changed a life.Many times, we assume that the poor are liars, that they do not really need help, or that they are lazy. But think about it—when we were struggling or poor, we never thought this way; we wanted to be helped, and we were grateful when we received assistance. Now that we are well-off, we scrutinize every request, saying, I must investigate thoroughly to see if they are truly in need, because these people are liars.

I have examined this issue many times and realized that I must be careful because it is God who examines people's hearts with His light. He has not entrusted me with that job—has He entrusted you? Some of us say, If I give them help, they might use it to buy alcohol. That may be true, but when will you ever help a widow, an orphan, or the poor if you keep making these endless examinations?The words I was hungry, thirsty, naked, in prison were not meant to imply that you must first investigate and expose people. God will judge. We are not saying you should help those who do not need it, but most of us are simply unwilling to give, so we find excuses to delay or avoid giving by hiding behind the investigation of whether someone is truly in need.

Sometimes, I have looked at images of people suffering—those affected by floods, those we see on TV or in real life—and we point and say, Look at that poor person! Yet we do not give even a cent, nor do we pray for them if we have no money to offer. Is this truly right? Do we turn people's suffering into entertainment, watching disaster videos without even feeling moved enough to donate a single dollar to help someone in distress?Do not let someone constantly beg from you and depend on you. Some believers are extremely stingy when they have plenty, yet when they lack, they suddenly become experts at directing those who have resources on how to serve God or how to do ministry.We wear expensive clothes—a friend from Tanzania once boasted to me that his suit cost $5,000! Yet, when we hear about people in need, we only give small amounts of loose change, thinking we are being generous, while in reality, we are shortchanging the poor.Now, I want to address those who ask for things in a rude and insulting manner, speaking harshly and attacking others with words. If your situation is bad and you need help, that does not give you the right to curse people or hurl insults at them. Be respectful when seeking assistance and show courtesy, even to your relatives. Let them make their own choice about whether to help you or not—you have no right to pressure or mistreat them.

I strive against selfishness and pray to God daily to keep me generous because we cannot truly reach the Creator without touching His creations. Many of us are just resounding gongs and clanging cymbals. Even if you own vast wealth, you cannot wear two pairs of shoes at the same time, drive three cars simultaneously, or sleep in two beds at once. Even if I visit you, you will not say, Today, we will eat gold and diamonds. No! You will eat the same regular food—ugali and vegetables—or common meals, because otherwise, your stomach will suffer! Give until it truly costs you something, not just throwing away loose change you would not even bother to pick up if it fell from your pocket. The widow with two small coins was praised not for what she gave, but for what she had left after giving.

Check if there are scattered items in your home, and remove them. My house is also full—secondhand items that I think I will send somewhere one day! One woman discovered that she had about 200 cassettes and DVDs that she had watched but no longer used. She decided to sell them and use the money for the Lord's work.Do not be someone who hoards things in storage, thinking that one day you might need them. Give to others, and the Lord will not let you lack tomorrow. It is not just a foreigner who gives to a stranger—an African does too, because they understand the pain of poverty.

A brother of mine from Mara had filled his closets with clothes, even occupying other rooms—old children's clothes. He held onto them, reminiscing about how his children used to wear this or that shoe when their feet were still small! I had the same problem until my friend, Grace Zuzo from South Africa, told me, “If you have 20 or 30 outfits, that is enough for work. Any clothing you haven’t worn for over a year isn’t yours—give it to others.”

At times, we have brought containers full of clothes and goods for those in need, but we have encountered fraudsters or difficulties in clearing them at the port. However, this does not mean we should stop helping or fail to research better ways to do so. My friend Zuzo and I often pray that God will help us live near the Mexican or Sudanese border so we can easily send things to people in need. Where we live, people throw away clothes and even discard food wastefully. We have not lost hope—one day, God will open doors. We ask for your prayers.“I have realized that when I give away my clothes to others, sometimes it is not a genuine offering. Often, I donate them when they go out of fashion or when I get tired of them. Yes, the poor do benefit, but my giving has flaws. I buy expensive clothes but am not willing to contribute financially to the work of God, yet I am ready to donate my worn-out clothes to the poor.”

I have been reflecting on this. You, too, can ponder it. If you buy something just to own it and look fashionable before eventually giving it away, that might be acceptable when giving to people. But if it is for God, you need to reevaluate. If you attend the same church as those you donate to, or if they live in your village, you may humiliate them when everyone sees them wearing your secondhand clothes and knows you were the one who gave them. Some people have the habit of building houses in every city—not for rental income but simply to maintain them at great cost. They only visit once a year so that the poor locals can celebrate, “The rich man has arrived!” My friend from Korogwe made me laugh when he said his house had been unoccupied for years—so much so that monitor lizards had moved in!

Buying things without careful thought is problematic, though if it is an investment, it is understandable. Some have built massive houses like caves, only to struggle with cleaning the dust in unused rooms. Their children have moved out, and they are left struggling to mop floors and clear cobwebs instead of engaging in humanitarian work. Large homes were not part of African tradition, but now we are embracing them while Westerners are downsizing. Westerners need big homes for the winter, as they stay indoors all day. But we have good sunshine—we can live in smaller homes, spend time outside, and enjoy fresh air and sunlight! Our Maasai brothers go indoors only to sleep, not to stay inside all day—this is healthy.

Nowadays, wealth and time for maintenance are challenges. That is why we advise spiritual leaders not to have more than six children. This is not an era for having ten children as in the past. A friend once said, “I will keep having children until my eggs are finished. God created us to have children, so I will bear as many as He gives me.”But God also created natural cycles—safe days when a woman does not conceive. Use those. Even if you can afford many children, how will you prepare yourself for God's impending judgment while raising young children for 30 years? Seek out natural family planning methods that do not terminate a conceived life.

Raising children today is a heavy responsibility. Be cautious not to be overwhelmed, because children are a lifelong commitment. Even if they quarrel with their spouse, they will return to you, and you will have to start over—this time with grandchildren—because a parent's love never fades.It is easy to be kind to strangers, but our words often wound those closest to us. We must practice humility everywhere. In our book on parenting, we highlight how many parents—especially mothers—use words that crush their children's spirits. We do not believe it, yet we utter them in anger:"You will never amount to anything in life!"—that is a heavy slap; you might as well beat the child instead.Or: "You are a dog, just like your father!"—Are these truly the words of a person created in the image of God? Think about it: a dog gives birth to a dog. If you married a dog, how did you make such a choice?

Our words bear witness against us. Do you enjoy cursing and using foul language with everyone inside and outside your home? Stop—it does not benefit your health at all. Get soap, bleach, and a toothbrush to cleanse your mouth every time you utter obscene words, and you will stop.Let us avoid the habit of swearing. Doug Batchelor from Amazing Facts encouraged me. He said that even after knowing God for years and preaching powerfully, he still struggled with cursing. Eventually, he knelt and prayed:"Lord, my mouth is filthy. I am trying not to curse, but when I get angry, I unleash any words that come to mind. Help me."He said that from that day on, he was delivered from foul language. This is my prayer too—that God may remove foul speech from me.And when you experience victory in any good thing, thank God and share your testimony. They say that testifying about God's goodness crushes the devil: "They overcame the devil by the word of their testimony and the blood of the Lamb."

"A journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step."We made a vow to God that if He enabled us to complete our education, we would return 25% to Him as tithes and offerings and help those in need.When I completed my studies and started receiving $2,000 per month, I moved out of the place I had been living to make room for others to be helped by kind missionaries. Then I began giving between 25% and 50% of my income in tithes, offerings, and assistance to those in need. God blessed us, and we worked with pastors and laypeople from different backgrounds, building about 80 small churches (bush churches) and sending 350 lay workers to various training programs. Pastors and laypeople also partnered with us in organizing around 65 public evangelistic meetings.

It has been a journey of faith, and we have discovered that a Christian has no limits—whatever a believer does, just join in, and you will be blessed. We have never sat down to plan what to do because we are not the type of people who make detailed plans. However, many have blessed us by including us in their plans.Truly, we cannot do great things, but we can do small things with love. Even if our work is just a drop in the ocean, we must remember that it is individual drops that make up the ocean.

In the past, we thought that if we had money or time one day, we would do this or that in the Lord's vineyard. But we found that we never had money saved up; we would simply set aside a portion from each paycheck or give our time and resources as we earned them.The most important thing is to depend on the Lord and remain consistent, living one day at a time.One of my in-laws saw us building those small churches and laughed, saying, "These structures are not solid; they will collapse. I am waiting to build a grand church worth $50,000, complete with a youth center on the upper floor."

Ten years later, he came to me and said, "I have realized that there will never be such a perfect time because money comes into my hands and disappears. It's better to build these small church shelters like yours!"One day, a pastor invited us to build a church for needy people in Kigoma. We had no means to do so. He asked, "Don't you have even $100? That would be enough for the women to fetch water, mix mud, and bring wood, so I can build a house of mud and grass for these people."Before we set our eyes on the stars in the sky, let's focus on the little things that God enables us to do each day.Who knows? Perhaps one day, He will entrust us with bigger things.

Our greatest need is prayer. Please join us in praying that the Lord may use us in His vineyard.He who began a good work in you will bring it to completion. That is a great encouragement in our stewardship. Our response should be, "Here I am, Lord, send me!"In short, let us remember that it is not only 10% of all we have that belongs to the Lord, but 100%.I have often wondered where I will get the strength.Since I had children later in life, giving birth when I was over 40, I have asked myself, "If I give to others, how will my children be educated?"

It is truly a challenge to provide for education, and we have embarked on a mission that is not easy. I am approaching retirement, my strength is decreasing, yet my children are still young.One day, while walking in the neighborhood where I used to live in Jersey City, New Jersey—about three miles from Manhattan, where the tall buildings were attacked by terrorists—I saw a man with an enormous, beautiful white dog.I ran up to him and asked how much the dog weighed. He said, "140 kilograms!"I was amazed. He went on to boast, "This dog eats a lot!"

I asked how much he spent feeding it each month, and he said, "I spend

$1,000 every month on food!”I was shocked because, in our household of six, we probably spent less than $500 per month, yet this one dog was consuming so much.Then the answer came to my heart: This man loves dogs, and he has asked his god to help him fulfill his desire of having a pet.If you love people, ask God to help you, and He will never abandon you.He will enable you to do the work of helping people and serving Him.Let us support one another in prayer so that we may be good stewards and completely overcome selfishness.May God open the windows of heaven for us because a house has more windows than doors!

If you were told today that you had only 24 hours left to live and that you would die tomorrow, what would you rush to do?John Wesley said he would live just as he lived every day.He then shared his daily schedule:“I will wake up in the morning to read the Bible and pray. Then I will take food to a widow and her children. After that, I will attend the morning worship service. Then I will work in my field for two hours. Later, I will visit people from house to house and talk to them about the Gospel…”King David asked, “What shall I render to the LORD for all His benefits toward me?”He realized that God owns everything.What could a mere mortal possibly give to God?He concluded that the only thing left for him to do was to thank the Lord, tell others of His goodness, and personally obey His commandments and testimonies.

13 Simple Ways to Build a Relationship with Your Children

1. Take your child with you whenever you go somewhere by car. This will give you time to talk together. Your children will learn from you as you shop, serve, and drive, and they will learn to work alongside you.

2. Work together. In the garden, in the kitchen, and around the house. Not only will this give you more time to talk and teach your children through the work you do, but it will also save time and give you more opportunities to be together in other activities.

3. Read books and look at pictures together as a family. Even the youngest child can enjoy looking at picture books and listening as you read aloud. Besides creating shared memories, this will cultivate a love for learning and create great opportunities for discussion. Looking at and discussing appropriate pictures together also helps your children develop critical thinking skills and spiritual discernment.

4. Talk to them—and listen! Take time when putting them to bed, ask about their day, or tell them a short story. Listen patiently when they want to share something with you. Start this early, and your children who love talking to you when they are young will still want to talk to you when they grow up.

5. Show hospitality and spend time together as a family. Reduce the amount of time your children spend with their peers and spend more time together as a family—doing activities together, hosting other families in your home, and welcoming your children's friends into your home.

6. Find projects to do as a family. Sharing common goals as you work and serve together will draw your family closer. Find ways to serve together through your church, help those in need or in nursing homes, start a small business together, host family events, assist grandparents, raise livestock, or play a musical instrument together! 3.1 Start giving your child everything they want from infancy. This way, they will grow up believing the world owes them a living.

3.2 Laugh when they use foul language. This will make them think they are clever.

3.3 Do not give them any spiritual training. Wait until they turn 21, then let them "decide for themselves."

3.4 Avoid telling them, "That is wrong." They might feel guilty, which will later make them believe that when they get arrested, society hates them and is persecuting them.

3.5 Pick up everything they leave lying around. Do everything for them so they grow up expecting others to take responsibility for their mess.

3.6 Defend them against neighbors, teachers, and the police. Teach them that all these people dislike them.

3.7 Argue with your spouse frequently in front of your children. That way, they won't be shocked when your home breaks apart in the future.

3.8 Give your child all the spending money they want. Never let them earn their own.

3.9 Satisfy every craving they have for food, drinks, and pleasures. Make sure they always get whatever their body desires.

3.10 Let them read whatever is printed, listen to whatever music they come across, and watch whatever they want. Be careful to ensure that your dishes and glasses are clean, but don't mind if their minds are fed with garbage.

3.11 When they get into trouble, comfort yourself by saying, "There was nothing I could have done to help."

3.12 Prepare for a life of grief. You will surely have it.

This book carries the thoughts of God, the condition of man, the way of salvation, the fate of sinners, and the joy of the righteous. Its teachings are holy, its principles endure forever, its history is true, and its solutions are reliable. Read it to gain wisdom, believe it to be safe, and apply it to become holy.It is a light to guide you, food to strengthen you, and comfort to fill you with joy. It is a map for the traveler, a staff for the pilgrim, a compass for the pilot, a sword for the soldier, and a covenant for the Christian. Here, paradise is restored, heaven is revealed, and the gates of hell are closed. Christ is the main character: His goodness is its structure, the glory of God is its purpose, and its ultimate goal is salvation. This book must fill the mind, rule the heart, and guide our paths.

Read it carefully, frequently, and prayerfully. It is a mine of wealth, a paradise of glory, and a river of joy. It has been given to you in this life, it will be opened at judgment, and it will be remembered forever. It presents the highest standard of accountability, rewards every good worker, and condemns all who have treated holy things lightly. No other book elevates the mind and increases the capacity for thinking like the Bible.

Believe it to gain wisdom, read it to be safe, apply it to be holy. The Bible is not just a book to inform you but a book to transform you. It is the voice of God speaking with supreme authority in heaven and on earth. The Lord has exalted His Word above His Name. Heaven and earth will pass away, but not the Bible. The Bible has overcome every kind of challenge throughout all ages.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS FOR PARENTS (Examples)

1. I am a mother of three young children. I have studied and could get a job, but many people tell me staying home with my children is better.

The best plan, which benefits children the most, is for the mother to stay home. If you can afford to live on one salary, make an effort for the mother to stay home. Children are happiest when they are with a loving and close caregiver, such as their mother. They also learn more easily. There is no one you can pay to take care of your children as well as their own mother! Research has shown that children who stay with their mothers have fewer illnesses than those who stay in group settings with other children and adults.

This includes infectious diseases, lack of sunlight, and lack of exercise, among others. Strong relationships are built, and you have the opportunity to teach your child obedience directly rather than relying on others. There are times when your child must be with others, but no one is better than a parent. Childcare centers that do not honor God do not teach children about their Creator, and abuse can be common.

Some mothers say they get bored staying home all day with children and would prefer a job to keep them engaged. The truth is, most jobs are boring in some way. Imagine a lab worker looking through a microscope all day or an athlete training nonstop. Often, what we think about is money, that we are not being paid. Try to see if you can start a home-based business so that you can stay with your children. Also, find other mothers and have meetings with them, at least once a week. This will help prevent boredom.

That being said, a mother already has plenty to do—waking up early, dressing the children, cooking for them, praying with them. If she works outside, she often returns home exhausted, and when the children ask for a bedtime story, she is too tired. Marital relationships also suffer nowadays because both parents are exhausted, and at the first sign of conflict, they are ready to separate. Children need you, their mother, to be home. If it is not possible, pray that one day you will have the opportunity to stay home and care for them.

A friend of mine, whom I studied with, decided to stay home with her children until they reached school age. When they started school, she worked only in the mornings and was home in the afternoon to receive them. This woman was highly educated, with a PhD, but she prioritized raising her children first. People mocked her, calling her foolish despite her education. But today, she is reaping the rewards because her children are different—they have good behavior, unlike many of their peers.

2. We have a two-year-old son named Baraka, who constantly wants to be carried. When we tell him not to do something, he cries, throws things, and rolls on the floor (tantrums). If we tell him not to touch things like electrical appliances, he does not listen. Is two years old an appropriate age to start disciplining him?

With good intentions of making him happy and maintaining peace, you have made him a little king. It is impossible to carry him every moment! Let him cry sometimes—he won't die! If he has eaten, is not thirsty, and has used the toilet, feel free to carry on with your tasks while keeping an eye on him. When he screams, do not give him too much attention. Look away as if there is something else of concern, but do not pick him up.

If you have turned off the lights at night, let him cry. Discipline and teaching begin from infancy! Read and learn how to train even a few-month-old baby in discipline—it will be easier with a two-year-old. He knows you love him and see him as adorable, but he does not restrain himself. He wants the world to revolve around his wishes. He must have limits on what he can and cannot do. If you say "no," let it be "no."

Use consequences such as taking away things he likes. Spanking should be rare and only after several warnings. Because of his age, parents must be careful not to hurt him. Never punish in anger. The child must clearly understand his mistake. Parents need great patience. A child at this stage is naturally curious, but that does not mean he should destroy things. Let him touch safe items in your presence, but set clear boundaries on what is acceptable and what is not. Teach him that spilling, breaking, or harming things—including harmless creatures—is wrong. The early years can be challenging, but with love and proper guidance, children will develop obedience, and as they grow, you will be glad you took the time to train them well.

3. My children are still young, but I see that parents with teenagers (13 years and older) struggle more than I do. How can I avoid these future challenges?

Your thoughts are shared by many parents! We advise you to invest a lot of time in building a strong relationship with your children while they are still young, as discussed in this book. Also, surrender your fears to God, who knows the future, so that you do not borrow tomorrow's troubles and live in unnecessary worry. Keep learning and praying over your parenting journey.

4. Why do children find it hard to obey when we instruct them? Why do we have to punish or raise our voices for them to listen? Why don't they cooperate with us willingly in meaningful matters to reduce conflicts?

The struggle comes from human nature, which resists what is good and godly while being drawn to what is wrong. From the beginning of the world, human nature has been in a battle between these two forces: good and evil. Children want to appear as heroes and take control. Even among themselves, they compete to show who is the strongest. This happens at school, at home, and elsewhere. They think, "I don't think you can make me listen or do as you say." This rebellious spirit must be addressed early so that children recognize authority. Set clear rules, state your expectations, and follow through.

5. I had a child out of wedlock at 21. Now my child is three, and I know that one day he will ask about his father. How should I explain this, and when?

The time will come when you must tell your child the full truth about their father. However, not yet. He needs to be mature enough emotionally to handle it. Do not make it a big secret that weighs on your heart. Many mothers have kept this a secret, which is a mistake.

You will need to talk about it openly with your child when the right time comes. Avoid lies. Speak privately and with love. Begin by giving small pieces of information, such as:

"Your father left before you were born. He did not want us to live together. I don't know why—maybe it was impossible for him to marry me. I am not sure. But I believe if he saw you, he would love and care for you. However, he never got to see you. Maybe we should pray for God to bring another man into our lives to be my husband and your father. Would you like that?"

6. I Get Frustrated Because My Two-Year-Old Won't Sit Still in Worship Service

Honestly, children at this age cannot sit still. Since some services do not have separate children's programs, there is no need to punish them for this, but rather, work on it consistently. Bring engaging items such as coloring books and crayons or a doll to keep them occupied. However, do not leave your child with a nanny while you go to a place of worship. This child is growing and learning something from the service, no matter how small, and is developing reverence for the things of God.

Your child needs to know God even more than you do because they are just beginning their journey, so you are doing the right thing. Try to be patient and continue to pray so that your church can have a designated children's section. During the weekdays, practice with them how to sit in church so that by the time they go, they are accustomed to it. If children have a teacher during worship service and you bring them from a young age, they will get used to sitting still and knowing what to do at that time. Do not go to worship service without your child, leaving them with someone else!

7. Why Do Some Children from Good, Well-Off Families Turn Out Bad, While Some from Struggling Families with Poor Parenting Turn Out Good?

It is not only environment and genetics that shape a child's character! Many parents congratulate themselves or even boast when they have well-behaved and successful children, and blame themselves when their children go astray. They ask, "Where did we go wrong?" It is true that parents have a strong influence on a child's behavior, but it is not the only factor. Other influences include the child's experiences, nutrition, friends, and personal choices—because God created us with free will.

Parenting is both a challenge and a gift. Just when you think you fully understand your children and have raised them well, they can surprise you with something unexpected. Stay prayerful, even when your children are adults—do not think that it is too late. They still have time to change, and even if they do not, you can still make a difference for your grandchildren. Even if, in your human weakness, you made clear mistakes in raising your children, you still have the opportunity to learn and help guide other children in your community and extended family with your experiences.

8. My Child Has Been Vaccinated, and Many People Have Warned Me to Be Cautious About Vaccines

The topic of vaccines is extensive. There is an organization called the National Vaccine Information Center (NVIC), which includes scientists from all over the world specializing in biology, medicine, neurology, bacteriology, and other fields. Many who speak on this subject feel they are risking their careers by doing so. Since 1997, vaccine debates have continued to grow.Parents need to educate themselves on this matter so that vaccine research can continue to advance.

There is no doubt that vaccines have helped many, and we believe that natural immunity can be strengthened through proper adherence to the ten laws of health for many diseases. However, the safety of vaccines needs ongoing research. It is important for patients to understand both the benefits and risks before receiving them. Vaccines should not be administered indiscriminately, as some children have suffered neurological damage due to vaccines.

How can you tell if your child has been affected by a vaccine? If a child was healthy before receiving the vaccine and then developed complications afterward, parents should recognize the reaction and know how to report it. It is also important to note the vaccine manufacturer and the batch number. In the March/April 2001 issue of Family Living (issue number 105), a parent wrote about ordering a tetanus vaccine separately from a pharmacy to avoid combined vaccines.

Since our countries are still developing and some things are difficult to implement, parents should research more on the internet for factual information about vaccine risks and how to protect their families. Educate yourself as a consumer. It is true that vaccines have caused deaths, diabetes, and brain damage in some individuals (see the work of Dr. Walter Spitzer from McGill University in Canada). Like any medication, vaccine vials list both benefits and side effects. Some vaccines are preserved with mercury, which can be harmful to the body. Pregnant women are advised to avoid vaccines until after pregnancy. Do not take medical treatments lightly—do thorough research. I am not here to tell you yes or no, but I encourage you to seek more information.

9. Can You Cut the Cord With Your Grown Child Without Damaging the Relationship?

This is a common challenge, especially for mothers who are still emotionally attached to their children, particularly single mothers who raised their children alone. Some grown children still live at home, or their mothers move in with them even when they have no real need to do so, simply because it provides them with emotional comfort.

Parents must demonstrate—through actions and words—that their children are capable of living independently. Children learn from our behavior, not just our words. One parent asked their child for a loan to start a business, saying, “I want to be independent so that I don’t interfere in your marriage.” However, despite this, they continued to be overly involved in their child’s life, unknowingly damaging their marriage.

A child may turn 18 but still need help with school and other things. Understand your child well and find ways to help them become independent—whether through employment, education, resources like land, or startup capital. If a child moves out and then returns home, identify the underlying issue and provide support. Sometimes, a child living on their own may still be more dependent on their parents than one who lives at home, especially if the parents are still financially supporting them.

Have open discussions as parents—do not just complain when children do not contribute or take responsibility. The Times (May 20, 2013) discussed this issue; you are not alone! A grown child who lacks life experience or is struggling with loneliness may risk damaging their marriage. Parents should also avoid forcing their daughters to marry simply because society pressures them for grandchildren.

10. What Are the Benefits of My Grown Children Living With Me?

Some parents prefer to continue living with their grown children because they get along well. Nowadays, even finding a spouse is difficult! We live in a world where people have little patience—everyone wants to live alone, but when they do, they feel lonely and spend all their time on their phones or visiting others just to have company. When they find someone to talk to, they cling to them. But when they have someone at home, they often argue constantly.

Grown children living at home can be helpful with responsibilities, completing their education successfully, and engaging in the community. Many young people, both men and women, have fallen into risky sexual behaviors due to living alone—entertaining visitors of the opposite sex and forming unplanned relationships. If a daughter marries straight from her parents' home, this risk is significantly reduced unless she moves in with the man.

Living with parents also helps young people mature and receive guidance on their relationships before making serious commitments. Parents also get a chance to observe their child's future spouse more closely. Having family members around serves as a moral check, reducing the likelihood of reckless behavior. Additionally, living with parents can help ease financial burdens such as rent and utilities, allowing children to save money for their future.

11. How can we ensure that our grown children respect us?

A parent should be gentle, approachable, and loving. If your child, who once lived under your care, comes back home, perhaps to do laundry or enjoy their mother's cooking, allow them that space. Also, avoid using words that are confrontational, authoritative, or commanding, such as, "Give me money to buy a bicycle," or "Do this or that."

Recognize that they are human and that there is a respectful way to communicate without being aggressive or intrusive. It is better to sit down and discuss matters rather than catching them off guard. Should they use family belongings, like a car or bicycle, freely, or must they ask for permission? Set clear rules to foster mutual respect.

Many times, we overly control our children because we fear losing them, worrying that they will drift too far beyond our reach when we still want to hold onto them!

We see an example of the prodigal son in the Bible: He lived blaming his father, and his father did not want him to leave. But when the father let him go, the son eventually returned, and they respected each other. Discuss this with your child—remember the other son who stayed home complained that his father favored the one who left. But the father replied:

"Listen, my son, you are always with me, and everything I have is yours. But we had to celebrate and be glad, because this brother of yours was dead and is alive again; he was lost and is found."

Engage your child in a conversation about these matters so that you can build mutual respect. Some issues cannot be avoided or left to solve themselves while you bury your face in the sand. Also, avoid praising one child's goodness while highlighting another's faults—this will cause you to lose both and diminish your respect. Every child wants to feel loved; do not take sides.

12. What should you do if your grown children return home after becoming independent?

I am unsure how many grown children live with their parents in our country, but in the U.S., there are sixteen million! Many return home due to financial struggles, job loss, or divorce. When they return, they often bring their families. Addressing this should happen immediately rather than later.

One mother complained about her daughter, who moved back home with young children but would leave them behind to go out looking for men, only to return late at night. The parents were afraid to confront her because if they asked her to leave, their grandchildren would suffer.

Others have found it helpful to divide household chores—cooking, laundry, and cleaning—so that an elderly mother does not bear the burden of managing a full house alone.

Do you have children who return home but do not take responsibility? Sit down with them and explain expectations. If your heart aches, let them know you are willing to care for the grandchildren, but not them. However, some children, realizing how much you love their children, may threaten to take them away just to hurt you.

Some grandparents show favoritism—some prefer their daughter's children over their son's. These grandparents are quick to say, "Go with your kids!" But do not deny anyone their rightful kindness if you are capable of providing it. Still, many grandparents are financially, emotionally, and physically exhausted and lack the space to accommodate everyone.

Ask yourself: Is it too late? Or is there a way to rebuild the bridge? Talk, listen, and respect each other. Do not be afraid—on the day of your fear, trust in God.

13. How much work should a child do in a day?

It is good for children to work, but there must be balance. They should not spend the entire day working without play.

An eight-year-old should learn to properly wash their clothes under supervision. They can also feed pets, sweep, clean their room, and do small kitchen chores. They should not spend all their time watching TV or chatting idly. You must know where your child is.

Monitor the tasks you assign; if you do not follow up, the lesson will be lost. Do not say you are too busy. A child learns best under supervision. This will help them develop into responsible workers and good spouses. Many conflicts arise from laziness—"If a man will not work, neither shall he eat."For more information, visit doorposts.org, Pam Foster, or R.B. Bradley (No Greater Joy website).

14. Should a child be forced to eat if they refuse?

No! Do not force a child to eat unless they are sick

This issue often arises in households with an abundance of food, where children see food all the time and snack continuously. A child should not consume excessive sugary foods or eat randomly throughout the day. If there are structured mealtimes, they will develop an appetite.

A child's appetite may decrease during periods when they are not growing rapidly. Try learning different cooking techniques and offering foods they enjoy, as long as they align with a healthy diet.

15. Should you apologize to your child if you wrong them?

Yes.There have been times when I have had to apologize to my children for being too hasty, speaking harshly, making false promises, or blaming them for something they did not do.

Later, upon reflection, I have asked for forgiveness: "Yesterday, I made a mistake. You know, parents are just human too. Please forgive me."

Many times, my children have responded: "We knew you were wrong, and we're glad you apologized. We forgive you." Then we are all happy again.

16. What should I do if my older child still wets the bed?

First, do not punish them—no one does this on purpose. You will only create more problems.

Try waking them up at specific times during the night. You can use an alarm clock. Reduce their water intake several hours before bedtime. Natural remedies have also been used successfully.

Remember, this issue is common, especially among boys, and is rarely related to bad behavior. It will eventually stop, even if it feels like it is taking forever.

17. We have three children and are always busy. We struggle to find time—what should we do?

A child measures love by the time spent with them. Since you brought children into this world, make time for them.

It is ideal for a mother to stay home if possible. Find ways to bridge this gap. Many people create to-do lists but do not consider parenting important enough to include.

Develop traditions, such as eating meals together, attending worship, celebrating events, or taking vacations. Family is more than just living under the same roof.

A very busy father once had children who longed to spend time with him. One day, they sneaked into his diary to see if he had a free day. When they found one, they booked an appointment, writing: “Day to spend with the kids.”

Later, when they checked again, they saw that their father had crossed it out with a red pen and scheduled another appointment. Their hearts were crushed.

18. My eighteen-year-old ran away from home and has bad behavior. What should I do?

It is difficult to say exactly what to do if this happens.

Rather than scolding them or speaking harshly, invite them back and try to guide them. Visit them if possible. If they refuse, do not be a dictator; this will only fuel rebellion.

Since they are now an adult, help them as much as possible when they face difficulties. Talk to them about the consequences of their choices versus good behavior, and let them decide.

The prodigal son left his father, and the father gave him space. When he came to his senses, he returned on his own and was welcomed with joy.

19. You are writing a parenting book—does that mean your home and children are perfect?

Absolutely not! Parenting is a daily battle, and we must support each other by sharing what we learn.

No parent is perfect. Some days feel like a storm has passed through our home. But we rely on God’s grace.

Look to God, keep learning, and trust Him. Cry out like Jacob: “I will not let You go unless You bless me.”

20. We are struggling financially in raising children; what should we do?

Honestly, I am not an expert in entrepreneurship or business, but it is necessary to seek experts, learn, and then secure capital. If possible, consider going back to school to increase your chances of getting a job. If you have land, farm it. I have seen in many places, such as Tanzania, that there is plenty of land; many could farm and sustain their lives, but laziness is rampant. Land is wealth. Work hard for at least eight hours a day and keep praying. “Everyone who asks receives, the one who seeks finds, and to the one who knocks, the door will be opened.”

Beware of greed and extravagance. Do you want to have things just like others, or are these basic needs? Can you cut down on your expenses by buying second-hand clothes, farming, or taking on small jobs? Do you know how to budget your household finances? Learn. Are there organizations that provide certain types of assistance, such as scholarships for children? Investigate, and you will find information and knowledge you didn’t have before.

Taking a loan should be the last resort, possibly for investment purposes. Avoid debt like a plague, and instead, owe people love. However, sometimes you may need a loan or a grant to boost your income. Do not get used to using credit cards! Live a simple life. I have seen even in poor countries, people building massive houses with many rooms, only for the children to leave and someone is left cleaning dust. Even those who love God have fallen into this trap of materialism.

21. What is the benefit of having children? Raising them nowadays is very difficult.

It is true that parenthood is costly and comes with many challenges. However, God commanded us to be fruitful and multiply. That is how we were created. Ask someone who longs to have a child, and you will get a clearer picture. Parenthood and raising children is not easy, but among societies that love having children, Africans stand out—even to the point of separating from a wife if she is unable to conceive (but not if the husband is infertile!).

There are very few people who regret having children. Most of you desired to have them and have enjoyed your children. Ask yourself: why did the Almighty God create us? Was it to help Him do His work? No. It was to demonstrate His love and glory.

Many have benefited from having children. Look at the good things your children do for you, even if they don’t give you material things. Children are an inheritance from the Lord; He gives them to us as a gift. In some countries, many have chosen not to have children, and in some cases, that is understandable—discuss it with your spouse if you both agree.

However, looking at the lives of prophets like Enoch, they were able to understand God more deeply after becoming parents and learning about the love of our Heavenly Father. As parents, we learn many things, such as patience, selflessness, and love. After I became a parent, my flaws became more apparent, and I pray that God helps me confess and abandon them

22. Is it necessary to teach children about faith? Wouldn't that be forcing them?

It is extremely important for parents to teach their children about faith, especially in their early childhood. They must be taught right from wrong and God's commandments. As they grow, they will make their own choices.

A child is born with selfishness and self-centeredness and is faced with the decision to follow God or follow Satan. They are born into a battle between good and evil. They are not born righteous but in a state of spiritual ignorance. Therefore, they must be taught to know God. Failing to teach them about their Creator is to inherit them into spiritual poverty.

During the first seven years of their life, teach them about God's love, His Word, prayer, the pillars of faith, the joy of knowing God, faith, and His goodness. Teach them to love God and their neighbors, to be self-disciplined, to obey (submission), to avoid greed, gossip, and bad habits. Teach them to obey their parents, respect and honor God with their possessions, worship, avoid pride, be honest, observe the Sabbath, and not be obsessed with material wealth.

23. What about TV? Should parents control what their children watch?

A large percentage of TV content is unhelpful. My opinion is that if you can eliminate it, it would be beneficial! Alternatively, you can choose appropriate programs for your children and monitor what they watch. Even advertisements nowadays are filled with half-dressed individuals, violence, immorality, and disrespect.

Studies have shown that increased violence in society stems from a lack of self-worth. For example, consider the history of Hitler in Germany—he wanted to oppress others to compensate for his inner frustrations. Satan has raised his horns, seeking to capture your children's minds, steal your family's time, and perhaps even affect your health.

If you want to manage television effectively, take a pen and paper and list the programs you want your children to watch. Be present to ensure they stick to those programs.

In some countries, there are up to 900 TV channels! Children wake up at night while parents are asleep and watch inappropriate content. Cartoons today include adult themes and profanities. Carefully evaluate this and have conversations with your children. Seek advice if needed. Do not be a dictator.

24. I am a 15-year-old boy, and I have been told I will experience physical changes, but I haven't seen them yet! What are they?

They will come, just be patient. Some bodily systems may have minor delays, but the reproductive system rarely fails to function. There is a gland called the pituitary gland in your brain, which is about the size of a bean. This gland is the master gland that controls all other glands, including those responsible for reproduction.

For girls, breast development begins, and menstruation (monthly bleeding through the vagina) occurs, approximately every 28 days. This is the body's way of preparing for pregnancy, and if conception does not occur, the uterine lining sheds and resets for the next cycle. These changes usually begin around the age of 12 for girls and 14 for boys. However, due to hormones present in modern meat and dairy products, puberty can now occur as early as before age 10!

For boys, muscles develop, the voice deepens, wet dreams occur, and facial hair grows. Reproductive organs also mature. Sometimes, puberty can bring fatigue due to the many changes happening. Ensure you get at least eight hours of sleep and eat a balanced diet.

Maintaining purity in thoughts, actions, and words is crucial. Many young people fear being laughed at, especially girls, because they become self-conscious. But don't worry—no one is thinking about your changes as much as you do. Parents or guardians should educate you about hygiene, provide sanitary products for girls, and teach boys how to shave.

Many wonder if pregnancy can occur without intercourse. That is impossible unless in a medical setting where sperm is artificially implanted, like in modern cattle breeding.

There are concerns and anxieties about puberty. Parents and guardians should discuss these matters openly. Learn self-control—even though your body is maturing, it is not the right time for romantic relationships. Be cautious about friendships, choose godly companions, and avoid focusing on sexual thoughts.

Some feel embarrassed about medical checkups, but there is no need to be afraid. If necessary, take a parent with you for support. The greatest gift you can give your future spouse is your purity, whether you are a man or a woman. Over 70% of young people engage in sexual activity before marriage. However, God is merciful—He forgives when we repent. If you have made mistakes, start anew with purity and faithfulness in thoughts, words, and actions.

25. A parent who comes to my home and wants to control how I run my household and raise my children has become a burden on my heart. What should I do?

Every home has its own challenges. Try to talk to them and set boundaries.

You and your husband should discuss the matter and lovingly let them know that if they are living with you, it would be better to find a way to help them become independent.

26. I am 14 years old and love to dress like my peers, but my parents say that it is important to consider whether my clothing is modest and respectful to God and others. I feel like I've been left behind by fashion trends!

Often, we struggle with self-worth when we compare ourselves to others. You care about being laughed at. When you grow older, these concerns will fade as you realize that no one actually wants you to be exactly like them. You also need to develop a strong backbone for many things in life! You cannot simply copy what is wrong just because others are doing it! "Everybody is doing it." Let "everybody" do it—you are not "everybody."

Learn to be independent and to please people with good actions, not bad ones. Find wise friends—it is not necessary for them to be popular, but they should have good character. Even if they are few, or even if you have none at all, it is better than having bad friends.

28. My 17-year-old daughter wants to wear a bra, but she has no breasts. What should I do? (How to handle challenges children face).

She likely wants to fit in with others, feel more grown-up, or is anxious about changes that have not come as quickly as expected. There is no harm in buying her one. At this stage, children often struggle with self-confidence or feel inadequate. Some feel weak or rejected by their peers and may lose hope. As a parent, teach your child self-worth, as children can be cruel with words and laugh at others. Help her heal from a wounded heart by showing her that she is loved and valued at home. Also, help her understand that she cannot simply follow others in breaking rules or being disobedient.

Remember, as a parent, you cannot solve all their problems. They must learn to navigate their own challenges. A child must face some difficulties that they can solve on their own. You cannot remove every obstacle from their path!

The struggles they face help them mature, develop patience, compassion, courage, and resilience. A tree without roots falls easily in the wind or floods. Children who learn to solve problems develop security. Your role is not to remove all their problems but to encourage them, protect them from major harm, equip them with tools to overcome challenges, and show them that you are on their side.

29. How can I tell if my child is using drugs?

They may appear constantly tired and lack ambition, perform poorly in school, struggle with concentration, and withdraw from family and friends. They may become emotionally indifferent, have changes in facial appearance (such as red eyes or twitching), neglect personal hygiene, and react aggressively to minor reprimands.

They might prefer to be alone all the time, have secretive friends they do not want you to know, overeat, get into frequent arguments, or have the smell of alcohol. Moral standards decline, they may have needle marks on their body, become overly secretive, disappear for long periods, and money or valuable items may go missing at home. They may also experience diarrhea.

Most children already know the dangers of drug use, but continue reminding them and finding solutions. Talk to them about peer pressure and teach them to be strong enough to stand alone one day. As a parent, be a role model and avoid peer pressure yourself—do not imitate others in wanting material things or dressing like them. Many adults still want to look like certain people. Let's instead follow the example of strong individuals who stood firm, because there are times when you must not go with the crowd.

30. My child loves collecting trees, plants, insects, and animals. What should I do?

If they store them neatly and without causing harm or creating a bad smell, let them continue. This is the age of collecting things. They will pick up everything they find on the road—bottles, wires, bottle caps, etc. Give them a box for storage or designate a place for them. Never throw away their collections.

31. My 16-year-old daughter, who is not married, has told me she is pregnant. What should I do?

Your daughter needs you now more than ever. Show her love; sit down and talk. This is not the time to say, "I told you so," or to scold her harshly. Sometimes, relationships strengthen after such difficulties, and you may become closer than before. Those who make mistakes often become more humble.

Help her, along with your spouse, in caring for the baby, and encourage her to return to school if possible so she can secure a better future. Have a deep conversation after she gives birth because this pattern is common among girls who end up having multiple children while still living at home.

When she is older, she will have the responsibility to choose a clean life and obey the rules, but she must also take responsibility for raising her children.

Many fathers argue with their wives, saying, "You hid things from me about our daughter! Were you planning her bride price?" Try to be open with your husband and show compassion.

32. You said that spanking a child over the age of 12 is not appropriate.

What kind of punishment should they receive instead?

Consider reducing privileges such as pocket money or other benefits. You can also ground them—restricting their movement, such as staying in their room or at home for a set period. This is an effective punishment for children at this stage.

Even younger children should be disciplined without damaging their spirit. Set clear boundaries. Avoid yelling in a way that shames them, such as saying, "Why are your grades worse than your younger sibling's?" or "You are useless!"

For more information, visit www.ngj.org or read the No Greater Joy magazine.

33. Our daughter has recently become shy; when she gets dressed, she asks her sisters to leave the room!

Physical changes are making her seek privacy. Give her space—it is usually just a temporary phase.

34. Do children mature earlier these days?

Yes, physically and in terms of body changes. In the U.S. in the 1850s, the average age for puberty was 17. By the 1950s, it was 13, and today it is around 12.

35. Our 13-year-old child feels embarrassed to be seen with us, the parents, despite us raising and caring for them all their life. They especially feel this way when around their friends! Should I accept or resist this?

Ages 13 to 14 are the most challenging. At this age, children desperately want to appear independent and grown-up, and they feel embarrassed to be seen with their parents. Consider this a normal phase—it will pass, unless there is another serious issue. Your relationship with your child will eventually return to normal, although it may never be exactly as it was in early childhood.

36. Should I dress and talk like my teenage child so they see that I understand them?

There is no greater foolishness than trying to imitate a child just to prove that you understand them. If a two-year-old falls down, should we all fall down too?

You can show understanding in many other ways. First, they want to be different from you and have their own identity. If you start copying them, they will simply change their style! Do not mimic them—they still need your authority, and you are their guide!

We do not follow children's examples; rather, children should follow the example of their parents, who in turn should follow the ULTIMATE PARENT—GOD. This means following His commands, laws, teachings, and testimonies.

37. My fourteen-year-old child has started openly defying us, breaking rules, and resenting the family. He dislikes us when we discipline him. He comes home late without asking for permission. What should we do?

It is good to take him aside on a different day when he is not acting out. Take him for a walk, to a park, or a restaurant. Tell him that you have an urgent matter to discuss. "I have noticed changes at home—you have become angry and rebellious, and your mother and I find ourselves frustrated and reprimanding you. This is not God's plan for us or for you. Is there a better way to resolve these issues? That is why we are here today." Explain that you understand the changes happening in his adolescent body and the impulses he is experiencing.

"You have tasted freedom and want to eat, go out, and dress as you wish. We understand that you want to be your own boss and not be interfered with. Soon, you will grow up, become independent, and get married. But for now, you are not there yet. For months, you have tried to show your mother and me that you are grown up and do not want to study, work, or come home on time. It would be easy for us to let you do as you please, but we know we would regret it, and you would, too. Your younger siblings are watching and following your example, which could ruin their lives if we let you do whatever you want. We are God's stewards—read 1 Samuel 12:22 and 25:27-34. God punished Eli and his sons for their bad behavior." (Look in the Bible for more examples.)

"God will not count us guiltless if we allow you to go astray. I want you to promise that you will be careful about these matters: 1, 2, 3. In return, we will also continue to be mindful of your well-being. When you need something and ask us, we will consider how well you have upheld these expectations. We know you are mature, and we cannot use corporal punishment, but there are things we cannot compromise on, even if you shout and rebel. You don't want us to stay up all night figuring out ways to make your life miserable—because we can!"

"I need to do my job well in these few years you have left at home. It is now up to you. We can have peace if you cooperate and make these last years with us peaceful. You need to come home early, work hard, and respect your mother and me. We love you more than you realize. We want to maintain friendship in this harsh world. You haven't yet faced many of life's struggles, but one day you will, and we need each other. We need you, and whether you believe it or not, you will need us too. Help us so we can help you—let's not drop the ball." Then ask, "Do you have anything to say?"

Give the child time to think. Even if your teenager is angry or does not respond, you have set the tone and made your expectations clear. It is possible to guide young people without being harsh. Be kind to them while still setting boundaries.

42. At the funeral of my children's uncle, they asked me about death. How should I respond?

The Word of God teaches that when a person dies, they rest in the grave awaiting resurrection. Martha, the sister of Lazarus, said, "I know that he will rise again in the resurrection at the last day, but by now he stinks." Try to explain the truth to your child, and if you do not know the answer, tell them you will look into it or admit you do not know. Martha was answered by the Lord, who said, "I am the resurrection and the life!" When the Lord returns and the trumpet sounds, graves will open, and the dead will rise—not from heaven, but from their graves—to meet Jesus in the clouds. The Word of God does not say Jesus will come with an army of those who have already died and gone to heaven, but rather that He will come with an army of angels.

The Lord is coming to resurrect the dead. If they were already in heaven, there would be no need for resurrection. This is the resurrection of the righteous. There is also a resurrection of the wicked, who will go to eternal punishment in the lake of fire. God has not promised eternal life to the wicked so they can burn forever—no! They will burn and be consumed completely.

It is important for a child to understand that there are consequences for sin and righteousness. Let the child cry and comfort them, but do not tell them, "Do not cry, be strong," as this can cause emotional wounds. They may cry for days or even months. It is difficult for a young child to understand death, as even many adults do not fully comprehend what the Bible says about it. That is why it is called a mystery.It is good for a child to see their parent's body before burial, although very young children may become fearful and have nightmares. As a parent, you must assess this. If possible, protect the child from excessive wailing and loud mourning, as it can cause distress. A child may feel abandoned by the deceased or develop guilt, thinking they caused the death, especially if they were ever angry with the person. Reassure them that they were not responsible for the death. Let them know that after death, there is no more opportunity to repent—it marks the end of one's choices.

43. My child comes home from school crying, saying they were beaten by other children. Should I tell them to fight back?

It is best to teach your child not to engage in fights during play. Children can be selfish and sometimes cruel, excluding others or making fun of their disabilities or physical differences. Children love to keep toys for themselves. Since your child is still young, teach them how to protect themselves in certain situations. If they are attacked or have their belongings taken, tell them to report it to the teacher so the bully can be dealt with.

If possible, bullies should be disciplined, even by their fellow students, to put an end to their behavior! Then, the teacher should handle the situation. A child who enjoys fighting will eventually stop such foolishness! The important thing is for the parent to emphasize that fighting is bad and foolish, but they should not leave a young child defenseless or without seeking justice. Some children, due to bullying, have learned self-defense techniques like karate to prevent further harassment.

43. Do you think five-year-olds should listen to rap and rock music?

Honestly, this type of music is harmful to anyone—even adults should not listen to it. Look at the nature of the music and the behaviors it promotes. Many bad behaviors have stemmed from rap music and its related genres. Since Satan was a musician in heaven, he has influenced humans to love his corrupt music.

These styles of music did not originate in African traditions. Even traditional African dances were respectful, unlike today's dancing where men and women hold each other closely. Would anyone want their spouse to dance like that with someone else?

44. After what happened in Rwanda with the Tutsi and Hutu ethnic conflicts, how can I ensure my child does not become prejudiced?

Nothing will teach children better than the example you set in how you treat people from different ethnic backgrounds. Prejudice—whether racial, tribal, or economic—is often inherited from parents. Children carefully observe and imitate us.

A white mother once told me that when she took her children swimming, she later asked them, "How did you feel swimming with Black children?" Her children replied, "Were there Black children there?" In other words, they only saw friends and continued playing.

On the other hand, Black people sometimes assume all white people are prejudiced without even knowing them. Prejudging others is a sin.

Children pick up on discrimination at home. Even gender discrimination—such as telling an eight-year-old boy, "Your sisters will wash your clothes and clean the dishes because you are a man"—is a form of bias. Religious discrimination is another issue, where people believe only they hold the truth and others deserve to die. Age discrimination also exists when the elderly are mistreated. Let us not just think about racial discrimination—do we also exclude certain tribes? Do we speak ill of them? Rwanda's lesson was severe and has repeated itself. Let us learn that we are one family in God.

45. I am raising two sons alone as a mother. How can people of my faith help me?

Truly, anyone who loves God is a spiritual father or mother. Men can help these children learn work skills, sports, and other aspects of manhood. If they have uncles, they can also be a great support. It is the responsibility of every person in a God-loving community to assist in raising children—it takes a village to raise a child. A child does not belong to one person alone; their success benefits the nation, the community, and places of worship.

46. How does a child come to know God? What is my role as a parent in introducing God to them?

A child is born without knowledge of God. The prophet Jeremiah says, "The heart is deceitful above all things and desperately wicked; who can know it? I, the Lord, search the heart." A child under the age of seven can easily be taught about God the Creator. In Ghana and many parts of Africa, even young children recognize God. The name for God, Onyame Kwame, means "God the Creator." Children begin to know God when parents teach them from infancy. Studies indicate that 75% of people come to know and believe in God before the age of 10, while only 3% do so after age 50.

The prophet Moses taught that "The Lord our God is one, and we should love Him with all our hearts, strength, soul, and mind." As parents, we are commanded to diligently teach our children about God's laws, speaking of them while walking, lying down, and rising. We should bind them as a sign on our hands, as frontlets before our eyes, and write them on our doorposts and gates.

It is crucial to teach children God's commandments and model them in our daily lives. Our lives serve as the greatest sermon for our children. We must not be like the Pharisees, who were told: "Follow everything they teach, but do not do as they do, for they are hypocrites." Children can recognize hypocrisy early, sometimes even more clearly than adults.

Young children get bored quickly, so prayer and worship should be engaging. For teenagers, provide challenges, discussions, and thought-provoking questions. By the age of nine, a child should read God's Word daily and pray independently. They should develop their own faith, not merely follow their parents' beliefs. The journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step, so pray for your child to love spiritual matters.

Television does not contribute to home worship. Instead, a child should understand that God is their Father. Catholics say, "Give us a child before the age of seven, and they will be ours for life." The first seven years are crucial for a child to learn that "Cursed is the one who trusts in man and makes flesh his strength, whose heart departs from the Lord... But blessed is the one who trusts in the Lord, whose confidence is in Him."

It is also essential for a child to regularly attend a place of worship and to learn to help orphans, the poor, widows, and those in need—true religion is loving God and one's neighbor. Give your child responsibilities in leading prayers as they grow, take them to religious camps or seminars for children and youth.

47. I want my wife to stay on the farm with the children while I work in the city. That way, she can take care of the farm and raise the children properly.

Your wife is not your mother. When you wanted to marry her, it was to live together, not to have her as a farm laborer. Why don't you also farm with her? Either stay together in the city or on the farm so you can raise your children as a team. Farming teaches essential life skills and good character, and raising children in the countryside is often ten times easier than in the city.

Even if you visit every weekend, it is not enough. Parenting requires daily involvement. Fathers play a critical role in shaping children's discipline. Living alone increases the risk of falling into immorality, poor eating habits, irresponsible decision-making, bad company, and questionable activities.

"Shall a man leave his father and mother to cling to his job or his farm?" That is not what God commands. Why marry if you will live apart? Some say, "I can't eat or sleep without thinking of you," but after marriage, they want their wives to live far away. Is this fair? Should she stay on the farm with your parents while you stay in the city?

48. My wife and I disagree—she wants to buy everything for our children, but I believe that spoiling them with material things is harmful. She also wants to buy them video games, which I oppose.

I agree—children should not be given everything they want. They should learn to value people and God, not possessions. Reducing their exposure to materialism helps them appreciate people and use objects wisely, rather than the other way around.

Sometimes parents buy excessive gifts to ease their guilt for being absent. However, in times of hardship, children who were raised with excess struggle the most. Advertisers target our children with tempting products, but while companies profit, our children develop materialistic desires and eventual dissatisfaction.

If parents themselves indulge in excessive shopping, it becomes harder to deny their children's demands. Teaching children contentment and self-discipline is crucial. A child should learn to make or build toys rather than receive everything pre-made, fostering creativity and long-term enjoyment.

Regarding food, excessive sweets reduce their appetite for nutritious meals. Some things should be denied so children can learn gratitude, while others should be earned through effort—this teaches them not to constantly beg.

49. I've heard that buying toy guns or spears makes children violent.

Violence often stems from TV exposure, parental behavior, abuse, or a child's choice to follow evil. When children watch violent content, their heart rate increases, eyes widen, mouth dries, and palms sweat.However, playing with toy weapons is often just role-playing and does not necessarily lead to aggression—unless the child becomes excessively obsessed with such toys.

50. I feel guilty about disciplining my child, as I fear becoming a dictator or being too harsh.

It is true that some parents punish unfairly, but God has given us this responsibility, and our experience as adults guides us. While we are not always wise, we love our children and desire their best. Discipline and love must be balanced—if you have one liter of love, have one liter of discipline. Never discipline a child you do not love.

If you are overly harsh, they may become fearful and unable to think independently. If you are too lenient, they may embarrass you in public. Boundaries create security for a child.

A child sometimes "shakes the matchbox" to test authority. Educate yourself to use discipline wisely. Discipline now prevents greater consequences later—many criminals blame their parents for not correcting them early.

51. Is spanking a child abusive and damaging to their self-worth?

Not necessarily. Children differ—some are corrected with a stern look, while others need physical discipline. However, love and discipline must be equal. Never discipline in anger or without love. Many children have been injured or killed by excessive beatings.

Never use your hands to hit; they are for love. Use a small switch if necessary. Avoid slapping the face or hitting the head—it is dangerous. Spanking should cause discomfort but not harm. Explain the reason for discipline and do not act in anger. Some parents find it helpful to pray with the child afterward.

52. My two sons fight constantly. How do I stop their conflicts?

It is frustrating when children fight. Young children do not hold grudges, but they can be aggressive, taking things from each other or hitting. If left unchecked, this behavior can continue into adulthood. Cain and Abel fought long before television existed!

Jealousy is a major cause of sibling rivalry. Parents should avoid comparisons in intelligence, skills, appearance, or habits. Every child has unique strengths that should be acknowledged equally.

Sometimes children fight for attention—ignoring them can make them stop. You can say, “If you want to fight, do it outside, not in front of me.” This often discourages them.

Mothers should not feel powerless—handle the situation without waiting for the father. Establish rules: no name-calling, no teasing, and separate them if needed. Set firm boundaries and pray about it, as unresolved childhood conflicts can lead to lifelong feuds. Some grown siblings refuse to speak because of childhood disputes. If Satan cannot steal our joy one way, he will try another.

53. How Many Years Apart Should Our Children Be to Play Well Together?

Children who are two years apart often compete a lot but can develop a strong friendship and companionship over time. Those with a gap of more than four years rarely fight, except when the older one tends to dominate the younger one. However, family planning should not be based solely on this but rather on the mother’s health, financial stability, and the desire to have another child.

54. Our Older Child Is Jealous of the Newborn and Might Harm Them

When a child receives less attention, jealousy can arise. Talk to your older child about the new baby. Remind them that when they were little, they were also cuddled and celebrated. Assure them that your love for them has not diminished. Many children can’t express their jealousy directly, but older ones (above five years) may say things like, “I don’t even know why this baby is here. Why can’t they just go and stay with someone else?” Give your child time to express their thoughts. A newborn often shifts the family’s focus, leaving the older child feeling neglected. Engage them in activities they enjoy, like a trip to town, and say, “The baby can’t go to town yet.” Let them help with small tasks related to the baby to build a connection. Over time, they will learn that the world does not revolve around them alone and that others are important too. At the same time, take care to protect the newborn from potential harm.

55. My Child Is Not Disrespectful but Avoids Responsibilities—What Should I Do?

Behaviors like forgetting things, losing items, making a mess, not making their bed, skipping tooth brushing, or failing to organize their belongings are undesirable. Instead of calling your child names like “lazy” or “careless,” try reinforcing positive behavior. Praise them when they remember to do tasks like making their bed. Explain the consequences of their actions: if they forget their school bag, they won’t be able to study; if they arrive late for work, they might get fired; if they lose their bus fare, they’ll have to walk home. If they repeatedly spill water on the floor, determine whether it’s carelessness or just playfulness. To help them remember tasks, write reminders on a wall, such as “Take your eraser, pen, and notebook to school.”

56. My Four-Year-Old Complains Constantly and Talks Only in a Whiny Voice

Your child might have gotten used to whining and may not realize how often they do it. Perhaps they’ve noticed that this tone of voice gets them attention. Tell them, “I can’t understand you because of the whining.” Encourage them to speak in a normal voice. Repeat this every time they whine, and you’ll see improvement. Ask other family members to follow the same approach.

57. Is Saying “Thank You” Important?

Yes, children should learn gratitude. They must understand that not everything given to them is their right—it is kindness. Gratitude fosters good manners. Words like “Sorry,” “Thank you,” “Please,” and “Excuse me” are golden. A grateful child will grow up to relate well with others. If they get married or have children, these values will bless their family and inspire others.

58. My Child Is Afraid of the Dark—What Should I Do?

Children often fear the dark because of adults’ words or stories. Avoid jokes about darkness, like saying, “A monster is coming.” Reassure your child that even in the dark, God is with them. If they fear wrongdoing in the dark, remind them that light and dark do not change what is right or wrong.

59. Can a Four-Year-Old Read?

Yes, if they are quick learners. Kiswahili is easier to read because its vowels (a, e, i, o, u) do not change sounds. However, few parents have the patience to teach young children without showing frustration. If you lack patience, let your child grow naturally—it’s better for their eyes and brain. Don’t rush just to compete with others who say, “My child could read at three.” Even if a child reads early, where will that take them immediately? Instead, teach them life skills that enhance cognitive development more than reading does. Teach them to cross the street safely, use the toilet properly, tie their shoes, count to 20, or answer the phone. Provide books or take them to the library and read to them. When they are ready, they will begin reading on their own.

60. Should First and Second Graders Receive Grades in School?

Giving grades can motivate a child, but for younger children, the focus should be on their effort rather than perfect results. Praise their attempts, even if their work isn’t excellent, to encourage them. Grades should be used to build motivation, not to discourage them. They may be more suitable for slightly older children.

61. I’ve Noticed That Children Prefer Strict Teachers—Why?

Yes, children tend to like teachers who bring structure to the classroom because it provides predictability. A structured classroom ensures order and fairness. When a teacher maintains discipline, children feel safe and learn better. In chaotic classes, children worry about their safety and bullying may increase. Some students do not treat their peers fairly, so without a strict teacher, some children may be mistreated. Children appreciate fairness. A teacher who follows rules ensures that all students are treated justly, rather than allowing disorder, noise, and bullying to prevail. A good teacher also monitors students' work and ensures discipline when needed.

62. Some Students Come to Class Without Pens or Paper, and When I Lend Them, They Don't Return Them

There should be consequences for this behavior. For instance, tell them that if they borrow a pencil and don't return it, they will have to stand and write for an hour next time. Over time, everyone will bring their own stationery. If a particular student keeps doing this, make them stand as a consequence, and their embarrassment will likely deter them from repeating the behavior.

63. What's the Point of School If Children Forget What They Learn?

Beyond reading, writing, and arithmetic, school teaches discipline, perseverance, time management, obedience to rules, teamwork, and hard work. Even at home, children should be given tasks to reinforce these skills. Education shapes attitudes, emotions, and the ability to earn a living. If a child doesn't attend school, parents should consider homeschooling using an approved curriculum.

64. I'm 21, in My Second Year of University, and I Want to Get Married. My Fiancée and I Plan to Pursue Master's Degrees, Do Part-Time Jobs, and Start Building a Home

Many young couples fight too many battles at once—both parents studying, working part-time, and trying to build a home. On top of that, children can come unexpectedly. Who will have time for the children? Everyone is focused on high ambitions, wanting everything at once. I would advise waiting until you finish school before getting married, or if you do get married, delay having children. Many marriages break down because of the pressure to achieve everything at once, leaving couples with no time for each other. I once visited a major city in Africa and met a divorced couple—both were doctors. They worked hard to finish school, build a nice home, buy cars, and achieve financial success. However, they fought so much that they eventually separated. Now they fight over their children, even in school meetings, telling teachers, "If my husband comes, don't let him take the child! Wait for me." They spent years accumulating wealth, but now, all of it means nothing. True happiness is more than education and possessions. Live wisely—don't rely on worldly intelligence alone. Westerners say, “Less is more.” Sometimes, having fewer material things leads to greater peace, patience, and joy.

65. Our 21-Year-Old Son Still Lives at Home but Disrespects Us. He Breaks Rules, Plays Loud Music, and Comes Home Late. His Younger Siblings Are Copying Him

Since he is already an adult and stubborn, this behavior will only get worse over time. Sit down with him and discuss both your household rules and his desire for independence. If he refuses to respect your home’s rules, help him move out—perhaps by renting a small place for him and providing essentials. You can’t force a grown adult to change.

In the Amish community in America, parents enforce strict rules, but when a child turns 16, they are given freedom to leave, drink, and live as they please. They receive money to start an independent life, but surprisingly, most of them choose to return home because they value their upbringing. I’m not saying you should rush to kick him out, but like the Amish, prepare children from an early age for independence. Over-restricting them leads to rebellion. However, if your child is willing to live harmoniously with you, that is even better.

66. Why do children from good homes sometimes turn out bad, while others from difficult backgrounds grow up to be virtuous?

It is true—another mother once prayed, “You transformed Saul into Paul by force, changing his evil ways into righteousness. Why don’t You force my son to change like You did with Saul?” This is a mystery. As parents, we must do our part with all our strength. Just as pirates demolished New York’s World Trade Center with evil intent, parents should have the same depth of purpose and determination in raising their children well. If those who intended evil succeeded, will God not answer our prayers when we seek goodness so our children may fear God and love others?

Do not lose hope—pray that the Spirit of God will help your child to love God deeply and to love others, showing compassion and offering help to those in need. God will give your child a vision, a mission, a passion, and the necessary provision to fulfill their purpose in life.

67. Universities today have male and female students living in close quarters, with no restrictions on visiting dorm rooms. What do you think about this practice concerning the morals of our children?

This situation compromises the purity of our children’s lives. Especially in this era of homosexuality, there is increasing confusion—some even advocate for shared bathrooms for men and women, which is something our ancestors never heard of.

One day, we visited a university in Nairobi and went to the dorms of some female students we knew. The rooms were very small, with only a curtain separating two girls. On one side, a girl was lying on her bed talking with a man, while we were visiting the girl on the other side! At night, they sleep like that too. Human beings are turning into animals—sleeping with a man here, while others are nearby. Bathrooms and toilets are shared, and the boys' and girls' dorms are next to each other.

In African traditions, children were protected. This setup only promotes immorality. Nearly 70% of students will have engaged in premarital sex before graduating. So, is it wrong for elders to say, "I don't want my daughter to go to university—she will become promiscuous, and I will lose the dowry cows"?

This situation has eroded faithfulness—to God, to others, and especially between husbands and wives. Young people experience strong sexual desires, yet they are put in environments that encourage temptation. Universities are becoming breeding grounds for immorality, and society is paying the price. If we have copied Western culture, we need to abandon such harmful aspects.

For some, academic life has led them into fornication and even homosexuality. If young people cannot control their desires, it would be better for them to marry before going to university. Some say, "I won't marry until I'm 30," yet they engage in sex and even have children. What's the difference? The only thing missing is a marriage certificate. Fornication has led to the decay of many aspects of society. Marry rather than claim you are waiting while living in sin.

67. At what age should a child be taught about sexual matters?

Children naturally become curious about their bodies and the opposite sex, asking questions. Don't be alarmed—listen to what they know and build upon it. For example, a six-year-old once asked his mother, "Where do we come from?" She spent 15 minutes explaining reproduction in detail, only for the child to respond, "I was asking what tribe we belong to and which town we come from!"Parents should answer children's questions; it is not good for them to learn from peers or schoolbooks alone. Do not hide information because the devil makes sexuality seem shameful, yet it is a gift.

Start with simple lessons—perhaps explaining plant reproduction, then moving on to animals like chickens and goats. A child may have seen these examples in nature, so begin there. Be open and honest.

Teach sexual purity—not just physical but also in thoughts, intentions, and speech. Explain that sex is God's gift for procreation. Your child should not go to boarding school and learn these things from others before hearing from you. If they do, you may not like what they learn. Unless their teachers are God-fearing and experienced, parents must take the lead.

By age 10, children should already understand, as government schools introduce them to many topics by then. Teach gradually and continue reinforcing the lessons. Some parents only talk about these matters when a child reaches puberty, but by 16, they are shocked at what has already happened. These lessons should be ongoing.

As your child nears puberty, continue guiding them. Pray for God's help because today, pornography and masturbation are rampant. These are not just sins—they can also damage a child's mind and future. Read and understand these issues deeply, and above all, pray.

68. What do you think about school uniforms?

They help instill discipline and equality among students. A child needs standards; without them, failure is easy, especially in today's fashion-driven world.

Look at athletes, sports teams, or choirs—discipline is key to success. Discipline requires self-control and order. Rules and expectations that are not oppressive are essential.

70. I have seven fifth-grade students who are undisciplined. What should I do?

First, analyze their behavior and what motivates it. Many children misbehave to seek attention. Create an environment where they won't gain attention from misbehavior.

Some children even enjoy being caned in front of others—it makes them feel like stars. Place their desks where they won't be noticed, perhaps behind a cupboard. After a month, they will realize they are not getting attention and will change.

Engage their parents and encourage them to reduce screen time at home. Praise even small improvements and build on them. Television teaches many things, both good and bad. Just because something is done in Western countries doesn't mean it's right.

71. During children's church, they are disruptive, and the teachers do not handle them properly.

Sunday school teachers are volunteers and may not have studied child psychology or classroom management. Some believe they should only teach God's Word and not discipline.

However, children must be trained—no learning can happen amid chaos. The house of God is not a zoo but a place of worship. Even Jesus said, "My house will be called a house of prayer." Order is important, and discipline, when necessary, should be enforced.

Before punishing, ask yourself:

Have I explained the rules clearly?

Do I love these children enough?

Am I setting a good example?

What is their maturity level?

Talk with parents so they can help. You don't want to be too harsh and drive children away from God's house.

72. We have a one-year-old child and heard that we can stimulate their brain to increase intelligence. Is this true?

Research by Dr. Burton White of Harvard showed that between 8 and 18 months, a child's brain development is greatly influenced by their experiences. Mothers play a key role in creating this environment. The language they hear is crucial—but not from TV!

Children who move around and explore learn more at this age. Take your child outside, to farms, and different places. Family conversations are very valuable.

Three key factors from the research:

1. A well-organized environment

2. Encouraging children to ask questions and explore, providing knowledge, humor, and comfort

3. Firm but loving discipline

73. My six-year-old is very hyperactive. A doctor suggested giving him medication to calm him down. What should I do?

In the West, children are often given medication for hyperactivity, but this is becoming common in Africa too. However, children are naturally active—they need to run and play.

Many mothers work full-time jobs and, when they return home, lack the patience to play with their children. Parenting is a full-time job with no pay. Even older children (10+) love coming home to a mother who listens to their day.

Some children develop at different rates. If your child is very playful, consider delaying school or allowing more time for unstructured play. Read Homegrown Kids by Dr. Raymond and Dorothy Moore.

Thomas Edison, who invented the lightbulb, was highly intelligent but seen as disruptive. His teacher gave up on him, but his mother taught him at home, fostering his curiosity.

For children with special needs, seek help from teachers and work closely with them. Many children who were once considered incapable have succeeded with parental involvement. Pray—God created the eyes, ears, brain, and all things.

73. What should we do if a six-year-old child is struggling to learn in class?

The problem is that schools set age-based standards, making us believe that every child of a certain age should be in a particular grade and know a specific set of things! Using age as a benchmark for learning is more about convenience for parents and teachers than it is about truly helping the child. Children develop differently, and they will eventually reach where you want them to be—just give them time.

A major mistake is to show or tell a child that they are "stupid, incapable, or foolish." Instead, give them time, teach them simple things, and allow them some freedom. Avoid participating in competitions like, "My child is so smart; they learned to read at four years old!" A child may learn to read early, but another who was slower may surpass them by the time they reach seventh grade. You've probably noticed in farming that different plants grow at different rates, even when planted at the same time.

Since schools often use a one-size-fits-all approach, work closely with your child and give them room to breathe. If you study how the brain develops in the womb and after birth, you'll realize that children go through specific stages, and sometimes, developmental delays occur. If a child has a genuine intellectual disability (mentally retarded), which can be diagnosed by specialists, they should not be placed in regular academic competition. Instead, keep stimulating their mind.

A child's learning ability is influenced by heredity, environment, and physical development. Expose them to learning experiences—take them to the airport, a bus station, a library, a wildlife park, or even introduce them to pets. If a child has significant difficulty learning due to obesity or other conditions, don't place them in a regular class. This can cause frustration, behavioral issues like bullying, shouting, or disruptive behavior. Unfortunately, schools that cater to children with different learning speeds are rare in our region. If you can afford it, research such schools.

74. How should teachers handle students who struggle academically, even if they have a high IQ of 120? And what about those with an IQ above 70?

Some children struggle with exams despite being intelligent. In such cases, they should be taught exam-taking techniques to help them overcome test anxiety. They should also be guided on how to read efficiently, for instance, studying early in the morning rather than late at night.

Never ridicule, hurt, or pressure a child who is trying their best. With a class of 100 students, an ordinary teacher may struggle to provide individualized support. Communicate with parents and ask for their assistance. Tell them what was taught each day so they can reinforce the lessons at home. Parents should sit with their children and help with schoolwork. Small rewards—such as 50 shillings for completing a math assignment—can serve as motivation.

Parents need to be disciplined and follow a schedule. Different strategies should be used to engage the child effectively. Just like a car moves more easily when driven than when pushed, children learn better when motivated. Find ways to inspire them.

75. My child has vision and hearing problems and understands things differently when reading.

This child should be taken to a specialist to determine whether their condition can be treated. Many children who struggle with learning may simply need glasses or medical assistance for hearing issues. After addressing the health concerns, place the child in an educational setting suited to their needs.

As a parent, work with your child at home, teaching and supporting them. In Western countries, parents of children with disabilities fight to change laws so that these children receive educational support. Although our countries are still developing, many people are advancing in their careers, owning cars and homes, just like in the West. So, why should improving education for children with special needs be impossible? If we set it as a priority and seek God's help, we can achieve it.

If a child has a physical disability, you wouldn't expect them to compete in a race with able-bodied children. However, when it comes to learning, we often expect struggling children to keep pace with everyone else! Sometimes, parents fail to recognize whether a child's struggles are due to a real disability or mere laziness and defiance.

I value education and recognize its impact on Africa. We've seen how schooling has changed lives for those who studied in the past. Discipline and obedience are important, but so is a child's self-esteem. Don't break a child's spirit over academics and later struggle to rebuild their confidence. Not every child will thrive academically. Some cases are exceptional, and parents must assess their child's abilities realistically.

Every child, whether highly intelligent or struggling, has dignity and human worth. They are still God's children. If formal education is not a viable path, consider vocational training to help them navigate life. Not everyone fits into the academic system. A degree should not be worshiped as an ultimate goal—what matters is the ability to earn a livelihood and uphold good character.

76. My child has been expelled from school, and I don't know what to do. I am a teacher and pleaded with the school to let them finish the last two months, but they refused. When I went to pick up my child, I was told, "What kind of teacher are you if you can't discipline your own child?" We have tried everything but fear using too much force and harming them. We feel ashamed around friends who ask how our children are doing. My wife works in radiology and has seen many children with broken bones from parental punishment. We now understand what some parents go through. Our other three children are well-behaved, finished school, and are now married and living in different cities.

There are two sides to this situation. Perhaps the parents had difficulties that led teachers to make such statements. Maybe they never set clear expectations for the child, or they were too occupied with other matters—be it work, alcohol, infidelity, or selfish pursuits—rather than focusing on raising their children. Or perhaps they did not take charge of discipline early on.

However, I don't think this case is entirely the parents' fault. The teachers' words may have been spoken thoughtlessly or without compassion.

Parents today are quicker to blame themselves than in the past. Previously, if a child misbehaved, society would simply say they were a bad child, and parents wouldn't feel as much guilt. Nowadays, parents internalize the blame.

These parents should not be too hard on themselves. Parents are often blamed for everything—even by their grown children! If a child is smart, athletic, rebellious, attractive, short, overweight, disabled, lazy—people assume it's because of the parents.

No one truly understands the shame of having a wayward child. However, by age 17, children make their own choices. The Bible records that at 12 years old, children in biblical times entered adulthood. Parents should not take full responsibility for every action of a near-adult child.

Even in religious circles, a pastor once resigned after his teenage son impregnated a girl in the church, feeling that he had failed to lead his home well. But I believe such scriptures apply to young children. Even Adam and Eve chose sin, and that was not God's fault.

Time has passed—stop blaming yourselves. Pray with hope. Some rebellious children turn out well later in life, while those who start strong may falter.

Read Parents in Pain by Dr. John White or check online resources.

77. I had a child out of wedlock while my husband was at war. He resents the child, and this has made me dislike them too.

If you make the decision to love the child, you will love them, despite the circumstances. The child is innocent—you had the choice, not them.

If you struggle to give them love, seek support from others, perhaps your parents. However, stay involved in the child's life by sending gifts, calling, and checking on their well-being.Avoid letting your child hear negative things about you from others—it damages their character. Seek guidance from trustworthy relatives who share your values.Do not compare your child to others. Love them as they are. Every child is a gift from God, regardless of their circumstances.

78. Why do young children easily learn languages and accents, while adults can learn languages but struggle with accents?

This is due to phoneme contraction, where a child's vocal tract adapts to a particular accent at a young age, making it harder to change later. The same applies to parental authority—there is a short window in childhood to instill respect. If missed, it becomes difficult to restore.

79. We raised our children while living in darkness, surrounded by habits of alcoholism, theft, immorality, lies, and other vices. Now we have returned to God and love Him, but our children, whom we raised in darkness, continue in those ways, even worse than we did. When we try to advise them, they refuse to listen, just as we once did. We do not want them to suffer as we did, so why don't people learn from the experiences of others? They tell us, "Do you want us to be what you were not?" We are saddened, but what should we do? We struggle to forgive ourselves.

This situation is difficult and serves as a lesson for many of us: may God help us live exemplary lives for our children. Sometimes, a parent may abandon sin, but their child surpasses them in wrongdoing. However, we must remember that human beings are naturally drawn to evil, no matter how good their parents were. Truly, no parent exists who does not regret something they did with their children! No parent is perfect. When we look back, we all find many mistakes.

The important thing is to entrust ourselves to God for guidance. Learn to forgive yourself and also teach your child to forgive themselves and you. The world is full of hardships.

I once attended a meeting where a father named Steve Chapman shared that he accidentally reversed his car and hit his child. The world is harsh. Learn to let go of the past and move forward. "One thing I do: forgetting what is behind and straining toward what is ahead, I press on toward the goal to win the prize for which God has called me."

Surrender to God and ask for His mercy because He is compassionate: "All have sinned and fallen short of the glory of God." In the past, when people were ignorant, God overlooked it.

Take time to do things differently for your grandchildren or the children in your community, practicing the good you know will help them. Whatever was eaten away by locusts, God will restore to you according to His will because He hears your cry: "I will return your children to you."

However, do not be envious, argumentative, or bitter. I have seen parents in similar situations rejoice when other parents' well-raised children fail, thinking, "Now we are equal." This is wickedness. Even if those other children become "bad," it will not make yours "good"; it will only increase evil in the world.

When people talk about your children, do not be quick to respond with, "They mock my children, but theirs will end up just as bad, or worse." This is the spirit of the enemy, not of God. Do not wish for the downfall of others just because yours have struggled.

For God to hear your cry, be humble and pray for the well-being of others. "Be still before the Lord and wait patiently for Him; do not fret when people succeed in their ways."

God is merciful, just, and compassionate. Even Samson, who was dedicated to God, wasted his time in sin, and King Manasseh changed his ways at the last moment. However, do not rely on another person's fortune—do not sleep with the door open. Today is the time to believe in God if given the chance. Also, if you have known God from a young age, you will save many from going to destruction.

80. Would you allow your son and his girlfriend, who are not married, to sleep in your house?

No. That would be disrespecting God and the principles that my wife and I have established as our foundation. I will deal with my children, but not to the extent of dishonoring God. Instead, I might find them a place to stay, such as a guest house.

81. Is there a time when parents do not love their children?

Yes, just as in marriage, certain behaviors and circumstances can make our love wane. Sometimes, children commit serious offenses. A mother once told me, "I no longer love my child." Her child, who was ten years old, had been caught in serious misbehavior at school.

However, love is a principle, not just an emotion that comes and goes. Find ways to rebuild the relationship. Advise them and work through issues depending on the severity of the problem. Many times, bad behaviors disappear as they grow. Have patience; in the future, you will thank God for your endurance.

82. We have a 2-year-old son and daughters aged 4, 6, and 8. He beats them and causes trouble until they cry. What should we do?

Talk to him so that he understands. Since a child at that age knows what pain and hitting feel like, tell his sisters that if he hits them, they should hit him back—on his legs or thighs. This is called loving discipline.

83. What problems arise when parents become estranged from their adult children?

Many thought the issue was in-laws, but that is not the case—it is about parent-child relationships! Some children feel that their parents do not want them to be independent. They say, "My mother did not want me to be free; she did not realize that I no longer needed her in that way. She wanted to control my life."Others feel that their parents still treat them like children and expect the same level of dependence. Some say their parents do not appreciate their efforts in the community. A 54-year-old person shared that when they visit their mother, she does not allow them to peel potatoes or cook, saying, "You don't do things the way I want." She criticizes everything, even when visiting their home.

Another person said, "I was the lastborn of five children and the only girl. When I visit my parents, my mother says, 'I would have been better off raising four boys than one daughter.' I pray for strength to forgive her."

Some parents compare themselves with their children in looks or possessions, saying, "Your hair isn't like mine." Competing with one's child as if they were a rival is unwise.

84. What should you do when an adult child or parent speaks hurtful, insulting, or argumentative words?

This is unfortunate, but some people are simply like this. They lack inner peace and enjoy making others unhappy. Many of them like to control people, making everything about themselves.Have you encountered many such people, or are you one of them?

I attended a "Women of Faith" conference where counselors discussed this issue. One suggested avoiding such people, but how can you avoid someone who visits, calls, or writes frequently?

Toxic people exist everywhere, even in places of worship. Try to do good and forgive, because if you do not, you will suffer. They often do not even realize their behavior.

Holding onto resentment is like drinking poison and expecting the other person to die. You must forgive and move on. Abraham faced this issue with his nephew, whom he raised like a son after his brother died. Their herdsmen argued constantly. Abraham said, “Let there be no strife between you and me... If you go left, I will go right; if you go right, I will go left.”

Sometimes, ignoring them is best. I used to respond to such people, but it never helped. Instead, it fueled their fire. If they persist in coming to your home, calmly set boundaries like Abraham did.

Dr. James Dobson discusses “Tough Love” principles—look them up. Some parents fail to set boundaries, and it backfires. A mother was stabbed by her 19-year-old son but still made excuses for him and continued living with him.

If someone repeatedly crosses the line, tell them, “You cannot use this phone,” or “You are not allowed to use my bicycle.” Tough love has its place.

Sometimes, the toxic person is the parent! If so, pray for God to help you control your temper.

85. I envy my neighbor’s child who is obedient and follows instructions.

It is true that we all wish for such a child. However, overly obedient children can become too dependent on their parents and may struggle to think for themselves.

Children who are strong-willed tend to be more independent and ready to leave home when the time comes. A child who always seeks to please others may suppress their anger, leading to future issues like ulcers, headaches, or high blood pressure.

Even the parable of the prodigal son shows that the son who remained at home harbored resentment.

Each child has their challenges; parenting is never easy.

86. Is repeating a grade beneficial for a child?

Sometimes, it is good for a child to repeat a grade, not just for academic reasons but also for intellectual and social maturity. If a child has been sick for a long time, repeating a grade can be helpful. However, for a child who struggles significantly with learning, repeating may not be the best solution. Some parents believe that enrolling their child in extra tuition classes during school breaks can help them catch up with their peers, but this may or may not be effective. A child benefits more from personalized support at home because one-on-one attention can make a big difference. It is good for a child to be taught how to read at home since classrooms have many children, making it difficult for teachers to provide individualized attention. Parents, work closely with your children.

87. Do children with learning difficulties have the same needs as others?

Yes! All children need love and appreciation. Separating them into different classes and labeling them negatively has caused sadness and deep emotional scars. A teacher should strive to be loving and supportive of these children. Meanwhile, parents should take responsibility for supporting their child's learning at home, seek knowledge from experts, and utilize online resources, as there is now plenty of information available about special needs children. Many children who were once thought to have no future have successfully completed high school and even gone to college. It is not just those who excel academically who make a living—those who progress slowly can also be a blessing to many. Look for more information on websites and from experts about special needs children and how to support them.

88. My child, who is 7 years old, wants to assert authority and refuses to follow instructions.

This issue exists in all human beings. From birth, children desire control and can be manipulative. Adults have written many books about this behavior, such as Emotional Blackmail, which describes attitudes like:

"Do what I want, or shut up and obey."

"Do what I want, and I will be nice to your sweet mother."

"Don't upset me—can't you see I'm sick?"

"Do what I want, or I won't pay the bills."

The book Have a New Kid by Friday by Dr. Kevin Leman explains how to teach children that there are consequences to bad behavior and being controlling. For example, if a child comes home and says, "Mom, it's already 1 PM, and I haven't eaten yet," the mother can respond, "That's true, but when I asked you to sweep, you refused, and now even I don't feel like cooking today."

A one-year-old starts refusing to sleep when placed in bed, rejecting food given to them, demanding a different meal, refusing to wear clothes bought for them, avoiding chores, or even fighting over the car window seat. These controlling behaviors, if not managed early, continue into adulthood and can lead to a lack of self-discipline.

A child is under authority when young, but if they grow up without self-control, they may end up in trouble. For example, King Solomon lacked restraint—he married as he pleased, ate whatever he wanted, and traveled wherever he wished. Historical figures like Hitler and Stalin also misused authority; Stalin reportedly killed 25 million people and even ordered the execution of his former teachers.

Should a child be allowed to do whatever they want? Who holds authority in the home? When parents lose their authority to discipline, greater harm can come to the child. A parent should never allow a child to insult them, even when they are young, as this is the child's way of taking control. If a child says something offensive and the parent gets upset, the child has won the game of control.

Too much praise and authority given too early can lead to arrogance and dictatorship—not just in national leadership but also in professions like medicine, music, religious leadership, law, and the military. Many who have been praised excessively become self-centered and think only of themselves. However, those who humble themselves after falling can become great servants to others. "The one who is least among you is the greatest in the Kingdom of God."

Chuck Colson, a U.S. government official involved in the Watergate scandal, misused power and went to prison. But in prison, he learned to live a life of service, helping other inmates.

A child given authority too early is at risk of rebellion and disrespect for authority—whether it be parents, teachers, police, or even God. Parents should not hand over control to a child at a young age but should gradually allow them independence as they grow.

89. What should parents do when they are exhausted from parenting?

Dr. Joseph Procaccini wrote a book called Parent Burnout. The parents who experience burnout the most are those who deeply care about their children and do everything to support them. Just like fire requires fuel to burn, exhaustion comes from overexertion. Such parents sacrifice everything for their children, neglecting friends, personal time, and even their relationship as husband and wife.

Some parents refuse to leave their children with anyone, not even someone as trustworthy as Mother Teresa! They never take a break and struggle to trust even their own parents, who have more experience in raising children. They isolate themselves, creating a lonely life.

In some cases, grandparents live far away or are uninterested in helping raise their grandchildren, as they are busy with work, exercise, travel, and social activities. Many grandparents today are not as involved in childcare as before.

Sometimes, mothers get so immersed in parenting that they neglect their husbands. In response, the husband may begin to resent the children, feeling neglected himself. Parenting is important, but it should not consume a parent's entire identity to the point of exhaustion and burnout.

Human energy is limited. Even Jesus took time away to rest and pray. Parents should manage their energy wisely and avoid unnecessary burdens. Schools, churches, friends, relatives, and communities may have many demands, but parents must prioritize their own well-being. When parents are exhausted, their children suffer, and prolonged exhaustion can lead to physical ailments such as neck pain, high blood pressure, or depression.

Some parents hoped having children would fulfill their emotional needs, but instead, they end up feeling overwhelmed, angry, and resentful. Parents need to recognize these struggles. A burned-out parent might emotionally withdraw or feel like saying, "I just can't deal with the kids right now." A mother in this situation may feel guilty but not know how to seek help. She often feels isolated and lacks someone to advise her, which can lead to broken family relationships and troubled children.

Not all parents reach this extreme, but some do. Early signs of burnout should be addressed. Parenting should not be filled with constant yelling, threats, criticism, or exhaustion. Parents should avoid doing too much at once—studying, getting married, having children, working, building a home—all at the same time. It is often better to wait at least two years after marriage before having children to allow for adjustments.

The human body is not designed for excessive stress. Physical exhaustion also affects emotions and spiritual well-being. Without balance, a person can end up miserable or even mentally unstable. The key is to pace yourself. Parenting is a marathon, not a sprint—run steadily, as it takes 20 to 30 years to complete. Live a balanced life, seek God's grace, and remember that humans are not self-sufficient.

90. Many parents struggle with guilt over how they raise their children. What should they do?

It is true that every parent experiences guilt regarding their parenting decisions. Even with a young child, a parent might feel guilty about leaving them with a nanny instead of taking care of them personally.

Guilt arises when we believe we are doing something wrong. If we need to seek forgiveness, we should do so and believe that we have been forgiven. However, if something is beyond our control, there is no need for unnecessary guilt. It is important to recognize these feelings rather than suppress them until they explode.

Do not let guilt dictate your parenting. Some parents spoil their children out of guilt for being away at work, failing to discipline them, or giving excessive gifts. Instead of allowing guilt to control you, strive to live with joy, faith, and hope. No parent is perfect, and that is okay. Find ways to improve where possible, seek forgiveness when needed, and move forward.

91. What Should I Do About Stepchildren?

Raising stepchildren comes with many challenges, especially when they are older. When you married this person, you were aware of the situation and accepted that you would live with their children in love. Many children hold on to the hope that their biological parents will reunite, so when one remarries, the children may resent the new spouse.

Before getting married, it is important to have open conversations with the children and understand their expectations. Some parents have very close relationships with their children, even sharing a bedroom. It is important to talk to the child about the changes that will occur. For example:

“We have always been close, but now I am getting married. If my marriage is to be as God intends, I must be one with my husband. I love my husband, but my love for you will not change.”

“Sometimes, you may feel like you are being left out because I am married, but please do not think that way. I love you, and you are important in my life. If you ever feel like ‘they don’t need me, and I don’t need them,’ please tell me so we can talk about it. Many children feel this way, and it does not help the family build love and happiness. You must tell me anything that is on your heart so we can address it together.”

Sometimes, children do not want to share rooms or belongings with their step-siblings. It is important to have conversations and come to an agreement to avoid conflict. Strive to be kind and loving to both sides and remain fair. Do not neglect your biological child in an attempt to win the affection of your stepchildren, as this can also create problems.

Many children say things like, “Don’t tell me what to do; you’re not my parent.” In such cases, discuss discipline and household responsibilities with their biological parent so that you can work as a team. A united front is crucial.

Sometimes, older children of the opposite sex may feel uncomfortable living together or sharing bathrooms. It may be necessary to ensure privacy by locking doors or making other arrangements based on the children’s personalities and maturity levels.

Some children struggle with guilt if they grow fond of their stepparent, feeling that they are betraying their biological parent. Additionally, biological parents who are not part of the new marriage may cause conflict in an attempt to disrupt it.

Children may also compare their biological parents with their stepparents, saying things like, “My mom’s cooking is better than yours” or “My dad has a better job than you; he doesn’t carry sacks for a living.” Do not respond with retaliatory words. Children are often angry because they feel their parent's place has been taken. Talk to them and acknowledge their feelings:

"I know it is difficult to have a stepparent. You would prefer to have your own mom or dad instead of a stranger like me, but I am trying my best so we can live happily together as a team."

Then add, "It also hurts me when you say negative things about me, but I truly want us to be friends and support each other."

If conflicts escalate, it is wise to walk away to a quiet place rather than engage in shouting and arguments. Reading Psalm 37 can provide comfort.

Although being a stepparent is not easy, open communication and family meetings to resolve issues can help. Ask the children:

"Do we want to continue living together and supporting one another in life, such as in education and other matters, or do we need to find other ways to manage this situation?"

If everyone is constantly attacking each other, progress will be difficult. I once saw a stepmother who kept provoking arguments. Even when the stepchild said, "Enough, let's stop and go to our rooms," she followed him, opened his door, and continued arguing.

If you and your spouse have decided to live together, be a team of love toward each other and the children. Be ready to love and care for all the children without favoritism.

Sometimes, children, relatives, or outsiders may be jealous and try to separate you. You need to talk to them, understand their intentions, and find solutions to maintain your relationship. Should the children go to boarding school? Should they live with their biological mother or another close relative?

Remember, even if you separate and remarry someone else, these issues will resurface. Children spend only a short time with their parents, but a husband and wife are together until death separates them.

Despite the challenges of step-parenting, many children appreciate their stepmothers or stepfathers. Some even value them more than their biological parents. One woman from Mombasa told me, "My biological mother was worse than my stepmother! She kept running off with different men and never cared for us."

God still has good step-parents who genuinely love the children in their care. I know that being a stepmother is often harder than being a stepfather, perhaps because mothers are the ones providing food and daily care. If you are struggling, ask God for daily strength.

92. When Children Talk About Their Siblings in a Playful Yet Negative Way, Is It Normal?

It is common for teenagers (aged 12 and above) to make fun of their siblings to bond with their friends. It may be an attempt to fit in with their peers or stem from sibling rivalry. However, this is not a good habit because each person should be their sibling's protector.

Teach your children that they are a team and should not expect outsiders to love them more if they show disunity.

Encourage them to avoid speaking negatively about family members at school, in places of worship, or within the community. If you catch a child saying something bad about their sibling, ask them to say two positive things about that person instead.

Never speak negatively about your spouse or children to others. Try to do things together as a family. Teach children to express gratitude and praise their siblings when they do something good. When someone makes a mistake, help them improve instead of blaming them.

Being a good team in the family helps children become good team members in their faith community and society.

As parents, we should fill our children's "cups" with love by listening to them and building a strong family team. Love them unconditionally—without strings attached. This will help them become responsible community members.

93. How Can I Teach Children to Respect Authority?

"And now, O Israel, what does the Lord your God ask of you but to fear the Lord your God, to walk in obedience to Him, to love Him, to serve the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul, and to observe the Lord's commands and decrees that I am giving you today for your own good?"

Parents have a responsibility to teach their children to love God and respect His authority. Children learn to love and obey God by watching their parents.

Children can either fear authority or respect and love it. Teach them about worldly authorities, such as the police, judges, and teachers. Explain that authorities exist to serve and protect them. Ask your child, "How would life be without police or the military?" and discuss the importance of order.If not careful, parents can make children fear authority rather than respect it, or they may rebel and reject God's grace. Avoid using excessive force or dictatorship, such as saying, "I don't care what you think—just do as I say." Constantly scolding, punishing, or restricting a child without allowing them any choices can create resentment.

Some parents enforce strict rules they do not follow themselves, such as saying, “Don’t watch TV for more than an hour” but then watching football for three hours.

Parents should maintain authority at home but use a democratic approach, allowing children to understand and participate in rule-making. For example, ask them why crossing the road recklessly is dangerous, then write down their answers so they remember.

For younger children, rules can be set without too much explanation. However, parents should also spend quality time playing and engaging with their children instead of always trying to escape and do their own things.

Sometimes, show mercy—not every mistake requires harsh punishment. If a child spills water by accident, for example, do not always issue a severe consequence. Over-punishing can make children fearful and dishonest, hiding things from you.

Guide your children to respect your authority with love, not fear.

94. I went to visit a friend with my children.

They started imitating the children in that house by making noise and mocking others. What should I do when their mother does not reprimand them?

When I visit other families, I try to ensure that my children behave properly—”Don’t touch this or that,” “Watch your feet, don’t step on that”—but sometimes, the host parent says, “It’s okay, let them touch or step on it!” I think it would be easier if the host set clear boundaries, so I wouldn’t have to second-guess myself when visiting.

When I remind my children about rules or correct the host’s children, I sometimes seem like the “strict parent.” I want my children to understand that our host does not like chaos either but does not want to spoil our visit. Many parents dislike it when others correct their children, as they see it as criticism of their parenting.

If, as a community, we supported each other when someone helps with our children, we would make great strides in raising them. Parents should understand that most of us have good intentions regarding children’s behavior. When a loving adult corrects our children, they can learn from them, and we can work together as a team.

For example, instead of saying, “Get down from my tree immediately, or you’ll regret it,” one could say, “That tree branch looks weak and dangerous for all of you to climb. Maybe one at a time would be safer.”

Children learn to love and respect other caregivers who are not their parents when they see kindness in them. They understand that the adult is not just being strict but genuinely cares about their well-being.For example, if you see a child making noise in church, instead of waiting for their parent to reprimand them after the service, you could gently say with a smile, “I can’t hear the sermon because of the loud voices.” Or if a child is speaking badly about another, you might say, “Those words will hurt your friend; the loving thing to do is apologize.”

If you see my children damaging property, don’t wait until it’s already broken to tell me—warn them by saying, “This isn’t a good thing to do; it could get you into big trouble.”

I want my children to love and respect God and people, and I cannot always be everywhere. Sometimes, they may even listen to others better than they listen to me, so I ask you to correct them in love to help them. I do the same for other people’s children.

95. How can I help my child discover their talents?

Every child has a unique talent, and if nurtured properly, it can grow and be used to serve God and help others. Tell your child that their talent is not given to boast about but to glorify God.

Encourage them by giving them confidence, freedom, and self-assurance to express their talents. You know your child better than anyone—what do they enjoy? What are their natural abilities?

Avoid the mistake of pushing your own unfulfilled talents onto your child, especially if they do not share the same interests.

Expose your child to various activities that might reveal their talents, such as musical instruments, literature, sports, or academics. For example, buying a telescope might spark an interest in astronomy. Some tools are affordable—like a simple flute, which costs less than $10—yet a child can teach themselves songs and amaze you.

Cultivate their curiosity and enthusiasm for what they love. This can also keep them out of trouble!Set goals, as children thrive when they have targets to reach. Some things may seem impossible, but if God has given a talent, it will flourish.Beethoven, despite being deaf, composed beautiful music and played the piano. Who would have expected that? God gives gifts and does not want us to waste them or be lazy.

Fame does not mean being famous or having a title—it means using the gifts God has given you.

Thomas Edison once said that intelligence is “2% brains and 98% hard work.” Teach your child to set goals and work towards them, whether it’s woodworking, sewing, or playing an instrument for at least 20 minutes daily. Tell your child stories of great people who used their talents, such as Mzee

Morris with his ten drums, Julius Nyerere, Jomo Kenyatta, Patrick Lumumba, Nelson Mandela, and others.Encourage them to reach for the stars—one star at a time. Some goals may be out of reach, but they should never give up. Celebrate their successes and encourage them to keep striving for those within reach.There are also talent-assessment questionnaires that can help identify their strengths. I sent some to my children, and it gave me valuable insights.

96. How can I motivate my children?

Encouraging children is extremely important.Sometimes, we scold children for playing with a kite or spinning top, yet people like Benjamin Franklin made electrical discoveries from such childhood play. Many scientific experiments and inventions began with childhood curiosity, supported by encouraging parents.Because of poverty, we might say, "Don't use my sewing machine or saw!" This is a mistake we often make.How do you rate yourself on the scale of encouraging your child? Ask them!Criticism, perfectionism, or negative comments can make children lose confidence and feel inadequate. Your encouragement builds their self-esteem and belief that they can achieve things.

Reassure your child that they have multiple talents, and guide them in utilizing them.

There was a man named Barnabas, whose name means "Son of Encouragement." This is a great trait we should all pray to have.

Practice this with children and even others by uplifting them.

For those with offices or businesses, involve your children in tasks—even at age eight, you'd be surprised at what they can learn. Nowadays, children who are taught computer skills can help with many things and build confidence to assist others.

If they fail, encourage them with, "Try again." Always uplift them—never say, "I knew you would fail."Children are naturally curious and ask "why" questions. Create a safe environment where they can explore without fear of getting dirty or being scolded.Allow them to experiment and create; they will value their discoveries more than things bought for them. Let them explore and learn through experience.

97. How can I teach my children to distinguish right from wrong?

When a child is young, it's easy to say, "This is bad, don't do it" and "This is good." However, as they grow, it becomes more complicated.

When children are small, they see right and wrong in black and white. But as they grow, they start understanding nuances—whether an act was intentional or accidental.

Teach them from a young age, at all times—when they wake up, walk, and go to sleep—the Word of God.

Children often want to do good but find themselves making mistakes. Has this ever happened to you too?

The Apostle Paul spoke about this struggle in Romans 7.Explain how sin entered the world and how we are saved by grace through Christ. Teach them to ask God for strength to overcome temptation.As children grow, they need to understand principles and motives. Simply following rules without understanding them will not help in adulthood.

Don't just impose rules—help them think critically about right and wrong. They might not always show it, but they will uphold your values when among others.You don't want them to be hypocrites or Pharisees but to internalize moral values.

98. Should children attend worship services?

King David said, "Come, let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the Lord, our Maker."

Worship should be a joyful experience.When you are in a place of worship, observe your children. Do they love and engage in worship, or are they distracted?Encourage them to enjoy worship, not through scolding or punishment but by making it meaningful.Prepare your children mentally before attending worship, arrive early, and discuss what they learned afterward.

99. What chores should I assign my six-year-old?

Children need to learn the value of work. A child who does not appreciate work becomes a burden to themselves and others101. How can I make my child understand that they need God and must know Him?

100. What does it mean to dedicate a house or a child?

Many people, when a child is born, invite those who love God to dedicate the child, setting them apart to serve God and care for others. This is a very important practice, and it is good to give an offering as well. Many people spend a lot of money celebrating birthdays but forget to give offerings to the poor, widows, or orphans. It is wise that during this ceremony of dedicating our child to God, we also consider those in need. Other believers should also make commitments to support children in the community. It takes a village to raise a child to be upright.

Some people also dedicate their homes. God has a special purpose for every house. A family can do many good things for both people and God, but the enemy pushes them toward many evils. That is why it is important to have special prayers to dedicate a house so that the family can work together in joy and love.

One family decided to dedicate their home to serving the Lord. They invited their pastor and guests for a small gathering. They wrote on the wall:

“This house of Masaka Momadi has been dedicated on 20/11/2001 to serve the Lord and care for people.”

Why not start planning such a gathering today? You can write on your wall words that will be a testimony to your visitors and to yourself. When you forget your life’s goals, you will be reminded whenever you look at them, shining a light even on that glorious morning.

Or you can write:”Choose today whom you will serve, but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord.”Take time to bless your children every day. Whenever you have the opportunity, place your hands on their heads and speak blessings over them.

101. How can I help my child understand that they need God and must know Him?

Knowing the rules of football won’t make someone a great player, but understanding them and applying them personally does. Similarly, knowing about God is important, but experiencing a relationship with Him requires practice. Share your testimony with your children and ask them questions at every stage of family worship. Write down your prayers, and when they are answered, give thanks together. Let your child see that you pray and strive to live a life dependent on God. Give children the opportunity to take turns leading family worship.

Personal responsibility is crucial. Every child, even a four-year-old, should be taught to pray on their own and build their faith. If you’re not around, who will help them? A child will not reach heaven just because you love God. God has no grandchildren—only children. Faith must come from them personally; it cannot be secondhand from you. Teach them to rely on, trust, and believe in God. Let them see the depth of God’s love that surpasses all understanding. Even you or they cannot love as profoundly as our heavenly Father does.

Teach them that we need God, even if we don’t realize it until we are helpless and all options are closed—just like Naaman, who had leprosy! A child should not think they can manage without God. Some concepts may be difficult for them to understand, but God’s love is one they grasp even better than adults. That’s why 75% of children accept Christ into their hearts before the age of ten.

Show your children that God is real in your life. From the moment they are born, do not focus on unrealistic stories like Superman or mythical creatures. Teach them that salvation is a free gift. For example, give them a 100-shilling note as a gift and ask, “Do you have to return or pay for this?” The answer is no. A child’s greatest need is salvation, and God says, “Look unto me, and be saved, all the ends of the earth, for I am God, and there is no other.”

Every child is born a pagan or unbeliever until they are taught faith, accept it, and make it their own.

102.How do we teach our children to pray?

We are instructed to pray without ceasing. Often, our children pray as a routine—before meals or bedtime—without much thought. A study identified the seven wonders of those who love God, including “praying for food more than for their entire lives” and “watching TV more than reading God’s Word.”Would we maintain friendships if we only spoke to our friends when we were in trouble? To build relationships, we must share, discuss, and talk about daily life. Teach your child to speak to God as a friend—telling Him about their day, saying things like: “This morning, I played hide-and-seek” or “Mom spanked me unfairly, and I was shocked. Father in heaven, what did You think about that?” or “I think my friend scored a great goal today!”Teach your children to pray for others. When they see the results of prayer, their faith will grow, and they will enjoy praying more. Prayer is simply talking to God as a friend—it brings comfort, draws us closer to Him, and fills us with joy.As a parent, I have realized that I love talking a lot—to friends and children—but I don’t take the same time to pray. When it comes to talking to God, my words run dry! Have you experienced this too? Let us ask God for mercy because spiritual matters require effort. We must wake up and go to our knees—morning, noon, and night, and even more. Let’s learn to “chatter with God” just as we do with our friends.

103.How can we motivate our children to see heaven as the most important destination?

The Scriptures describe heaven, paradise, or the afterlife as a beautiful place—beyond what humans can describe: “No eye has seen, no ear has heard, nor has it entered into the heart of man what God has prepared for those who love Him.”

Heaven is described as a place with no pain, no sorrow, and no death. Its buildings are made of precious stones, its streets of gold, with delightful food and refreshing rivers. The heart will find peace and satisfaction, with friendships, playing with animals like lions, and peace beyond understanding.

It is a must-reach place! A wonderful place. Heaven is not just a state of being—it is a real, joyful place for children. There will be games and much more. Do not make your child think heaven is just living in big mansions without loved ones, feeling lonely, or floating in the clouds playing harps 24/7.Take heart in parenting—do not fear or worry, for the battle is the Lord's.Heaven will fully satisfy every child and every person. Each one will have the freedom they love—without sin.

Keep talking to your children about heaven. It is a blessed hope. You will never regret being there. Everyone will have something to do and enjoy. Show them that heaven is much better than our world, which has become like a worn-out rag. Set your dreams and those of your children on heaven and prepare for the day you will meet at God's throne. Imagine the joy of meeting at the river of life or the tree of life.

If we focus on heaven, we will gain heaven. But if we focus on nothing, we will get nothing. Is there really anything on this earth worth comparing? Let our obedience and that of our children begin here because in heaven, sin will never rise again (Nahum 1:9).

After all, no one wants to rest in heaven only for someone to come and punch them or steal their shoes!

104 .Which school should I take my 6-year-old to?

In the past, we sent our children to public schools without much thought. But society's morals continue to deteriorate. What is most important to you in life?For me, if a child can stay home and be taught by their mother until fourth grade, it would be a great blessing. Books can be purchased, and one-on-one learning is highly effective. However, since many mothers now work, or are not aware they can teach at home, selecting the right school is crucial.

For me, faith-based education is a priority. If a family can afford it, they should choose a school that nurtures faith in God. I do not want my child to attend just any school. Competitive schools are good to ensure children are not lazy. Children should care about their academic results.

Parents should thoroughly research good schools—through the ministry of education, other parents, and so on—to find institutions that uphold both good morals and academics.I have seen classes with 100 students. I also heard of a school in Mvomero years ago that had 700 students with only one teacher!Can parents buy books and start teaching their children reading and math from first and second grade? Many parents know how to read. A book to teach reading this year costs about two or three dollars. Many people spend more on phone credit—aren't books more important?

No child should reach second grade without knowing how to read or do simple math. A bright child can learn to read in just three months!

105. My children fight too much—what should I do?

Sibling rivalry has existed since Cain and Abel—even before television! The main cause is competition and jealousy, which stem from selfishness (me, myself, and I).Avoid comparisons and favoritism—do not compare their personalities, appearances, academic abilities, or talents. Many parents struggle with this. Keep teaching them principles for living together. As they grow, their rivalry will lessen, and their love will grow. Studies show that children close in age often experience more jealousy.

Romans 7 explains why we do wrong: “What I want to do, I do not do. But what I hate, I do! Oh, wretched man that I am! Who will save me from this body of death?”Remind your child that the devil loves conflict. Teach them to resist it. It requires daily lessons and prayer for God’s grace.

I have seen that only prayer is truly powerful. Preacher Charles Spurgeon, who started preaching at 16 and led a congregation of over 2,000 by 20, said, “I would rather teach one person to pray than ten to preach.Prayer is a mighty tool in parenting—pray for your children.

106. Is It Good for a Child to Be Praised for Their Physical Beauty?

In today’s world, where many children struggle with self-esteem and self-worth, receiving compliments about their beauty can help them develop self-acceptance. Physical attractiveness has become a form of power, especially in television and other forms of entertainment. However, this can be dangerous, particularly for a 14-year-old girl who is admired for her beauty and figure. She may attract excessive attention from boys, leading her into temptations such as prostitution, ultimately damaging her life.Therefore, parents should teach their children that, despite being admired, their identity and purpose in life matter more. They should focus on cultivating a pure heart and prioritizing education because these qualities will remain valuable over time. A study on beautiful men and women found that by age 25, many had unhappy marriages. This was likely due to attracting partners who valued their looks rather than their true character. Meanwhile, people with average appearances often find spouses who love them for who they are, not for their looks or talents.

Moreover, when beauty fades with age, those who overly prioritize their looks may struggle with feelings of loss and insignificance. This can be distressing. Therefore, the most valuable beauty is the beauty of fearing God. Actress Marilyn Monroe is an example of someone who suffered due to the burden of physical attractiveness. Prioritizing beauty over all else often leads to destruction. Judging a person based on their physical appearance or talent is a mistake. This is evident in the entertainment industry, where musicians attract fans but struggle in their personal lives.

107.. What Do You Think About Barbie Dolls?

I personally do not like my child to play with such dolls. In some way, they promote physical beauty, promiscuity, and materialism. A child begins to compare themselves to these dolls. When playing, a child needs dolls that resemble children, not adults. These are young children who should not be exposed to adult concerns prematurely, as this can accelerate their awareness of maturity in unintended ways.Carefully choose the dolls your child plays with. Some feature frightening monstrous figures like Ninjas, with snake-like eyes, which can shape a child's interests in certain ways. Young children should play with simple, wholesome toys that do not influence their minds negatively in terms of morality, social values, or spirituality. They should not seek to imitate the clothing, colors, music, or speech of these dolls.A girl with an average appearance who compares herself to such dolls may feel left behind, which is untrue. Her value is not in looking like those dolls. God values her as she is. God created people differently for His glory.

108.Do Middle Children Feel Overlooked in Families?

Yes, it is true. The firstborn, lastborn, firstborn girl, or lastborn boy often feel they have a special place in the family compared to, for example, the third or fourth child in a family of five. They are born into a situation where they find older siblings ahead of them, and later, younger siblings following behind. This can make them feel like they are stuck in the middle.Parents should take time to show all their children that they are valued, especially middle children. One way to do this is by spending one-on-one time with them, such as taking them on errands, even just to the market. This helps them feel like individuals rather than just a number in the family. Allowing them to make decisions, such as choosing a place to visit first, also affirms their worth.Dr. Kevin Leman has written extensively about birth order and its effects, although these are general insights rather than unchangeable rules.

109. How Can I Let My Grown Children Live Independently?

This is a very difficult thing for parents. We often feel they are not ready, that they will struggle in the world, and that others will not treat them as kindly as we do. We worry that they are in some danger.The best thing you can do for your child is to teach them how to live without you! Preparing them for independence means teaching them responsibility. We have loved them and done our job; now, that job is complete! Now we stand at the edge, uncertain whether to cry, rejoice, or deal with loneliness. Should we let go of the crown (tiara) we've been holding?Sometimes, we struggle to let go because our identity has become too tied to our children, and we fear losing influence over them. Or, we may have neglected our relationships with our spouses, and now we have nothing to talk about (empty nest syndrome).

There is a time for everything—a time to throw a stone and a time to gather it. The time has come to let the tiara go. You have done your part. Release it with grace so that your relationship can evolve into a new kind of friendship, one filled with different blessings. If you don't let go, the tiara will eventually slip away on its own. But it is better to release it gracefully when the time comes so that it happens in a good way.Part ways with your children in love and peace, not in conflict and arguments.

110.Should I Pay My Children for Doing Household Chores?

Absolutely not! They should make their own beds because they sleep in them. They should wash the dishes because they eat from them. Do not make it a habit to pay children for regular chores. However, you can give them small incentives for extra tasks beyond their daily responsibilities, such as washing their father's bicycle or gardening beyond the usual schedule.Teach them that money is for needs, not just desires. Children, like adults, love to buy things. However, money is limited, even for parents. If you can afford to give them a small allowance once a month, that's fine, but encourage them to start small businesses. They could sell boiled eggs, newspapers, or bottled water. Help them brainstorm and provide a little startup capital so they can work a few hours a week.Most importantly, parents should focus on helping their children pursue education, acquire land, build businesses, or develop skills for independence. That is their true inheritance. However, they should not expect that you will simply give them wealth. Instead, if you have extra, help those in need—orphans, widows, the poor, and support the work of God. Even when writing your will, ensure you allocate a portion for God's work. Many nations seek God's blessings, and in Africa, we know that God is our shield and greatest blessing.

111. How Can I Recognize If My Child Is Discouraged or Depressed?

Signs of a discouraged or depressed child include:Restlessness, unable to stay in one place for long Withdrawing from others and preferring to be aloneSluggishness and deviation from normal routines

Defiance and impatience ,Constantly comparing themselves to their peers and feeling inadequate

Developing aggressive tendencies and breaking rules ,First, examine your own behavior as a parent. Do you yell and criticize their efforts? Do you speak to your spouse with respect in front of the child?Sometimes, professional help is necessary. A doctor may need to check for medical issues such as thyroid problems. Also, ensure your child has a structured schedule at home and avoids excessive consumption of sugar, processed foods, or salty snacks.

Engage your child in meaningful activities, such as volunteering in the community or helping the sick. A healthy diet and a supportive environment are also crucial. Seek advice from experts when needed.

109.. How Can I Help My Child With Disabilities Develop Skills?

In many African countries, children with disabilities are often left to learn and grow on their own. What they need most is love. Research their condition and learn how to support them. Whether they are blind, deaf, mute, or have learning difficulties, they may struggle in one area but have talents in another. God loves them even more than we do.Parents should work with them systematically, using a structured routine. Some excel in music, gardening, or basket weaving. Do not allow them to be mocked or called names.

Expose them to nature, trees, and flowers. Those with hearing abilities should be read to daily, even if you have only one book, such as the Bible. Be patient and loving.

Teach them values such as compassion, responsibility, and integrity. More importantly, pray and sing with them from a young age so they understand that God is their friend.Nick Vujicic's story is a powerful reminder that no disability can limit a person's potential when they have love, faith, and support. Parents of children with disabilities should focus on their child's abilities rather than limitations. Encouraging independence, exposing them to opportunities, and teaching them to trust in God can make a significant difference in their lives.Every child, regardless of their physical or mental condition, is valuable and has a purpose. By fostering resilience, patience, and self-confidence, parents can help their children grow into fulfilled individuals who contribute positively to society.At the heart of it all, the most important thing parents can give their children—whether they are beautiful, average-looking, firstborn, middle children, or have disabilities—is unconditional love, guidance, and faith in God. These values will shape them far more than material success or physical appearance ever could.

Parenting Challenges and Responsibilities

111. Being Sweet but Firm with Your Child

I dislike repeating things over and over and appearing as if I am constantly following up on my child. I want to be sweet (Moema) to my child.However, a child needs to be monitored and corrected when they do something wrong. You must internalize this. If you stop following up, their progress will be minimal. Strive to control your tone so that you don't sound like you're shouting. Be patient, and let your child see that you are on their side and have their best interests at heart.If you choose to let things slide, especially when you see that things are getting out of hand, you will eventually lose control and get consumed by uncontrollable anger. I have seen this happen, especially with fathers. Mothers tend to be more strict with their children, giving them little room to breathe, which sometimes makes the child perceive the father as the more lenient parent. However, later, when the father—who had distanced himself—realizes that things have gone terribly wrong and that he had no clue about it, he loses control, lashes out, and imposes severe punishments. If he had been involved all along, he wouldn't have reached the point of doing something he might later regret.

Above all, a child should understand that every action has consequences. For example, if they don't weed the garden today, then you will not take them to town. When the time comes to go to town, simply leave them behind. Try to set consequences related to what they enjoy. For example, tell them, "Finish mopping the floor first, then you can have lunch." I don't like using food as a punishment, but if the child has already had breakfast, they can endure a little longer and mop the floor before eating lunch.My friends who teach children how to play musical instruments have noticed that kids who dislike practice respond better when their parents switch roles with other parents. This way, they can maintain a friendly relationship with their own children. May God grant you wisdom. I am still learning in this area, so let's pray for each other! However, I must emphasize: for your own good and that of your child, your love for them should match the discipline you give. If you hate your child, don't discipline them at all.

112. A Child Who Threatens Suicide

A child once threatened to commit suicide, and I thought it was just words—until they actually did it. Now my conscience is troubled, wondering if there was something I could have done to prevent it.This is truly a difficult issue, and no one can answer it definitively because we do not know what the child is thinking, how much they are hurting, who they interact with, or what exactly has happened in their life.A certain pastor and his wife traveled to the U.S. for studies, leaving their child in Form 3 at a boarding school, with caregivers to look after them. The child threatened to commit suicide if they were not taken along. The father called the child and said, "If you take your life, we will be deeply saddened because we love you so much. But the decision is yours. We are going away for three years, and we are looking for ways to get you a visa to join us. However, nothing is certain yet because even our tickets were funded by donors. Please be patient."

The child continued making threats, but the parents went ahead with their studies. A year later, they returned to Tanzania to preach, and the child was still making threats. They sat him down again and said, "You are now 17. We love you dearly." They explained his worth to them and to God but added, "If you choose to take your life, we cannot stop you. However, we will ask Bishop X to conduct your funeral because we are leaving and cannot return soon. We will mourn deeply, but your life is in your hands."That child did not commit suicide. He waited until his parents completed their three-year studies.

However, be very careful! Some children, when told such things, may still go ahead and harm themselves. Mental health experts advise that any suicide threat should be taken seriously. Ask the child how they plan to do it, why they feel that way, and seek professional psychological help. This issue is heavy, and you cannot handle it alone.

Above all, pray and ask God for guidance. Even psychologists sometimes miss crucial details, and they, too, face overwhelming cases. Only God can pull you out of such a deep pit. Be a prayerful person who stays vigilant.

113. Constantly Reminding My 11-Year-Old Child

I have to keep reminding my 11-year-old child: “Brush your teeth, apply lotion, remember your choir notebook,” etc. When will I get to rest from constantly talking? He is well-mannered but lazy and sluggish in certain things.The truth is, most children need constant reminders! However, it seems they never forget the things they enjoy. I once asked my kids, “How come you forget to brush your teeth but never forget to eat?”Parenting is a continuous learning process, sometimes involving trial and error. You try different methods until you find what works best for your child. If one approach fails, you try another to ensure they remember.

In the past, by the time a child was 12, they were given significant responsibilities based on God’s teachings. However, as long as your child still lives with you, you have a duty to remind them—even about brushing their teeth.You can write down a schedule and place it in their room. Tell them they represent your family, so if they go out with food stains on their clothes, it embarrasses you. Sometimes, you have to abandon democracy and give firm instructions that certain things must be done. Children are still learning to be adults; they have not yet developed deep roots.When we look at Ezekiel and even Jesus, they stayed at home until they were 30 years old. Many mistakes happen before that age. Experience shows that when a person reaches around 30, they gain better judgment—sometimes earlier for women. That’s why those who marry after 30 tend to be more patient compared to those who marry young.

A child should also learn the consequences of neglecting responsibilities. For example, tell them, “We will not have dinner until your clothes are washed,” or “You won’t receive your monthly allowance until you plant the mango seedlings I brought.”

114. How Many Hours Should a Child Sleep?

A newborn: about 18 hours

A two-year-old: 12–13 hours

A child aged 2–6 years: about 12 hours

A first- to fifth-grade child: 10–11 hours

A 12-year-old and older: 9–10 hours

Children around ten who stay up late should be encouraged to sleep early and should not sleep past 10 a.m. Oversleeping, even in adults, can be problematic. An adult who sleeps more than 9 hours daily may develop certain health issues.It is advisable to sleep at least two hours before midnight. Young children who sleep after 9 p.m. have a higher risk of developing diabetes. Losing even one hour of sleep daily for a week is equivalent to losing a whole night's sleep, increasing accident risks. Sleep debt is exhausting and cannot be repaid!

116. Visiting My Children Studying in America

I sent my children to study in America when they were young, and now they want me to visit, but I don't have the time. I work for the government and also keep livestock, with no one to take care of them in my absence.Visiting your children is crucial. Children who leave for studies at a young age (10–20 years old) often experience loneliness. They lack parental guidance, advice, and caring friendships. Many fail to complete their studies, and if parents knew this, they would prioritize visiting regardless of financial constraints.

Some parents go abroad for long periods for studies or work and neglect their children. They may write letters, call, and send gifts, but none of these can replace their presence. Many children develop resentment toward their parents, and some make poor life choices due to a lack of guidance. Sometimes, there is no better option than to live with your children—through both struggles and joys. If they are yours, live with them.

117. I deeply dislike it when a child speaks harsh words to me, such as "I don't love you, what kind of parent are you?" or "I hate you, Mom."

Truly, these words are heavy for a parent, and no parent can endure them easily. As the elders say, "A parent is a garbage dump," meaning they bear everything. However, it is important to consider where the child is picking up such words and what they truly mean. Try to understand their heart—ask them, "My child, give me your heart." Talk to them to understand the reason behind their anger and why they speak without thinking. If left unaddressed, these words can continue into adulthood, affecting how they talk to teachers, bosses, spouses, or even their own children.A child must be taught how to express themselves, even when they are displeased with something. Likewise, a parent should avoid provoking or upsetting a child without reason. A parent must refrain from reacting with anger or harshness when a child speaks such words. Instead, they should calm down before addressing the child, as responding in anger could harm them with words or even curses. A child is just a child, and just as an elephant never tires of its trunk, so must a parent not grow weary of guiding their child. Pray to God and understand that now is the time to shape the child while they are still young.

As parents, this is the right moment to recognize that anger is a sin and does not help shape a child's character. Anger is like a demon, just as seen when James and John, the Sons of Thunder, asked for the power to call down fire to destroy those who did not welcome them (Luke 9:51-56). Anger is an abomination, a spirit of destruction. We forbid our children from watching inappropriate programs, from worshiping idols, lying, or engaging in immorality, yet we allow anger into our homes. One parent boasted that they did not allow bad TV programs at home and that they closely monitored their children. However, whenever they became angry, the children would flee. When they expressed surprise at their children's bad behavior to a counselor, they were asked, "Do you have anger issues?" They replied, "Once every two months." The counselor then asked, "If you lived near a volcano that erupts every two months, would you stay there?" Or, "If you had a dog that bites people once every two months, would you still keep it?"

Anger, foul language, theft, lies, witchcraft, and other sins are all the same. No one who harbors anger can truly do the will of God. It cost Moses dearly—his anger led him into many troubles. Some people believe in "righteous indignation," but I think only God can handle such an emotion with holiness. We, as humans, cannot be both holy and angry.

The Bible mentions anger 585 times, with 470 of those referring to God's anger, such as against Achan, Uzzah, Joram, Manasseh, and others. Parents, let us pray to God to rid us of anger. I have fallen into this trap many times and continually ask for God's help. Anger is closely linked to vengeance. If you are angry with your child, take time to cool down so that even if you discipline them, it is not out of revenge. Otherwise, your child may inherit your anger, and I have personally seen this passed down from generation to generation.

There is a difference between being firm and being angry. Many preachers have delivered sermons in anger, mistaking it for emphasis or moral correction, but it is just anger. A child who frequently bursts out in anger and speaks recklessly needs help because the spirit of anger has caused great harm and destruction.

These questions have been answered based on the thoughts and opinions of the writer, who believes that fearing God is the foundation of wisdom. The writer believes that raising a child without God's help is impossible. We cannot live without Almighty God, and we must teach our children to worship and honor Him in their lives so that they may receive His blessings. The best children, parents, and teachers are those who take the time to seek God. Everything else will pass away, but He is eternal. He is the one who solves our problems daily. Humans can only help a little, but entrust everything to God, and He will take care of it all, giving you comfort and, ultimately, eternal life.

118. What are the differences between Western and African parenting styles?

Many aspects depend on the household or family, but in the West, a child is often left alone after misbehaving—neighbors or others do not intervene. Perhaps the difference lies in modern lifestyles versus traditional ones. In the West, the community is not involved. Government laws often protect children so much that sometimes parents feel powerless. However, if a child misbehaves after turning 18, the police can intervene.On the other hand, the Western education system helps children progress at their own pace, even if they have low grades. They can take up to ten years to complete a degree if needed. Western education involves more practical projects and hands-on learning relevant to daily life, whereas our education system has been more focused on rote memorization and theory.In some places, if you discipline a child, they may claim they are being abused. In the West, physical punishment is rare compared to Africa. In Africa, you cannot threaten to take away a child's toys as punishment because they often make their own. Likewise, telling a child to stand in a corner as punishment may not be effective since some homes do not even have defined corners.

African children do not get asked what they want to eat; they eat whatever is available. Sleeping over at a non-relative's house is uncommon. Additionally, praising children and rewarding them is more common in the West.

In Africa, children play together freely without needing formal agreements like "Are you my friend? Can I play with you?" They simply play together without rigid rules. In Africa, when parents go to the store, they take their children with them, but in the West, children are often sent home. Meals are usually eaten at home rather than with neighbors.

Teaching children about anatomy and sexuality is not openly discussed in Africa, except during initiation rites like "jando" and "unyago." In African languages, mentioning private parts is often considered vulgar, whereas in English, such terms are part of the science curriculum.

In Africa, if you live with female relatives, they are expected to help with household chores and return home early. Modern lifestyles have weakened spiritual values but increased physical comfort. However, children worldwide share common traits in playfulness and creativity.

119. Why are children rarely invited to weddings nowadays, even though weddings used to be for everyone?

Children learn through observation. If they do not attend weddings, will they ever have one themselves? Just like attending graduation ceremonies is important for inspiring students, weddings used to be significant for all.

First, let's discuss the types of weddings. Many weddings today, even those involving religious people, are better off without children because of what happens at these events. Weddings now end at midnight, unlike before when they were held in the morning and wrapped up by early evening. Many modern weddings have lost their sacred nature, turning into competitions, displays of wealth, and sometimes even immoral gatherings.

Many wedding venues are entertainment halls where children are not allowed due to age restrictions. Bringing them exposes them to things beyond their understanding. The sacredness of the wedding remains in the church, but in the reception hall, it is all about festivities, cheering, and even inappropriate music.

Children are often not allowed to run around or enjoy themselves but are instead scolded for moving around. Many have read wedding invitations saying, "We love children, but please don't bring them," leaving them confused about what kind of love that is.Weddings today are like debts—if you don't contribute financially, you are not invited. A set amount must be paid, or you and your child will be excluded. If you fail to contribute, even greetings become strained. Weddings have taken on a different face, even within churches. They lack moderation and have shifted from church ceremonies to extravagant receptions.

Let's either keep children safe at home or return to simpler, daytime weddings. Wedding receptions should glorify God, and the Master of Ceremonies (MC) should be a person of integrity. The event should reflect the sanctity of marriage.

If modern wedding customs are problematic, then they are outdated. Children should not be excluded from weddings. Instead, we should restore the old ways—morning ceremonies with modest celebrations, where children are welcomed and not left behind.

1. In many families, children are often placed last in everything that needs to be done. You may see a parent wearing an expensive and elegant suit, while the children wear second-hand clothes.

2. Nowadays, celebrations have become full-fledged businesses, making it difficult for many children to afford participation in these commercialized events.

3. Modern celebrations are sinful:

There must be music that does not uplift or that excites people.

There must be alcohol.

They must take place at midnight so that people feel no shame.

They must be held in entertainment venues so that all kinds of people can attend.

4. Many parents, being immoral—especially in matters of adultery—see children as a burden and deny them the freedom to do what they want.

5. Today, children are valued highly when they are absent, but when present, they are deemed insignificant. That is why you will find children given strange names like Sikutumaini (I did not expect you), Matatizo (Problems), Shida (Trouble), Masumbuko (Hardships). Names like these strip children of their worth. If you ask a parent why they named their child that way, they might respond, "I had them by accident!"

These views are the thoughts and opinions of the writer, who believes that fearing God is the foundation of wisdom. The writer also believes that raising a child without God's help is impossible. We cannot live without Almighty God, and it is necessary to teach our children to worship and honor Him in their lives so that they may receive His blessings. Good children and good parents or teachers are those who take the time to seek God. Everything else will pass away, but He is eternal. He is the one who solves our problems daily. Human beings can help only to a limited extent, but if you entrust everything to God, He will take care of it all, give you comfort, and ultimately grant you eternal life.

Technology in Our Places of Worship Today Where I live, even six-year-old children bring technological devices such as tablets, smartphones, iPods, and Nintendo consoles to church. They use these gadgets to listen to music even while the service is ongoing or while the preacher is delivering a sermon. The good thing is that it keeps them quiet and reduces disruptions. However, I am unsure whether this is right. Many children are generous in sharing these devices with their peers. You would be surprised at what even a two-year-old can do with these gadgets. I understand that the days of giving children crayons, coloring books, and paper are long gone. These changes have come so rapidly.

As a mother of two, I would like my children to grow up understanding the sanctity of the house of worship through their own eyes rather than just being told about it. Opinions are divided on whether to bring a Bible to church along with a few things for children and instruct them to listen to the preacher or to give them modern gadgets to keep them occupied.

(Responses from various individuals) (a) I think this is a challenge for all of us who have children. If there is a place to offer loving guidance, it is here. Peer pressure and heart conditioning are the real issues. As a parent, you are the one who makes decisions. If things go wrong, no one else will help you, so it is wise to decide carefully. Technology is just an excuse, but the real issue is the condition of the heart and the lack of desire for spiritual matters—something that affects all of us as human beings.

Our church elder once said, “If only five out of a hundred adults in the house of worship will go to heaven, then only five out of a thousand children will make it.” Even Noah surprised me—did he not have grandchildren? All three of his sons, yet not a single grandchild! Solomon said that a child is full of folly. Children face many temptations—far too many.

Now, iPods have become an addiction. And we are the ones buying them! I’ve noticed that many conservative Westerners avoid these devices. If we saw a drunk person with alcohol in church, we would be shocked and rush to condemn them. But we, both adults and children, are utterly helpless before these gadgets. We carry them everywhere, even losing basic manners. These days, when you talk to someone, their phone rings, and even if it’s not an important call, they won’t even say “excuse me”—they just abandon the conversation.

One day, my six-year-old child told me, “Mom, you love this phone more than anything in the world. Even if the house were burning, you’d still be on it.” That is addiction! Nothing terrible will happen if I don’t answer my phone during worship. Am I pretending to be a lifesaver? Or on duty 24/7 on some gadget? I am fooling myself. It is God and those close to a person who will truly help them. If someone has an emergency, they will call an ambulance to take them to the hospital.

Even adults no longer bring their Bibles to church—just their phones, and they text each other during the service. I believe that children should not use these devices on the Sabbath. Or will this make them hate worship? Even on weekdays, young children, especially those in elementary school, should use them for only about an hour under supervision. We have started using these gadgets as babysitters, yet most of the time, we have no idea what the children are watching.Even if what they watch is not necessarily bad, the enemy uses distractions. They say the enemy of the best is not the worst but the slightly good. The enemy ensures that they stay occupied with something—anything—so that we adults also remain distracted.Even before reading God’s Word in the morning, I find myself online. Is that right? It is addiction! If I, as a mother, am doing this, how will the child, to whom I gave an iPod, ever read the Bible? When a child is on their iPod and I call them for prayer, they get annoyed and are mentally absent. We have struggled with this.

By the way, the 144,000 in Revelation 7:14—doesn’t that seem like a big number? We must pray day and night because our battle is not against flesh and blood but against the forces we already know that constantly attack our frontal lobe 24/7. If there are children who use these devices for spiritual growth, they must be about 1%.

We should drastically limit the use of these gadgets. I am making an effort in my household because I see no reason for them. Someone else introduced them, and one night, I heard my young elementary-aged child laughing at 2 a.m. It turned out they were on the iPod. Another morning, my 11-year-old woke up feeling sick. His father suggested taking him to the hospital, but it turned out he had stayed up all night on his iPod.

Beloved, if these devices have any benefits, I am waiting to see them. Perhaps I am old-fashioned and ignorant. All I know is that we must cry out to God. If you give a child a task, they resent it, preferring to be on their gadget. Many church members I visit are facing the same issue. What should we do about these gadgets?

Parents may appear devout, but no one is managing these devices wisely. Perhaps we should not have them at all. But if we do, who truly knows what the children are watching? Even Sodom and Gomorrah were advanced and modern, yet they perished. We should not assume that we are different or wiser than the people of Sodom. They were powerful and intelligent beyond us. Their sin was neglecting the poor, living in idleness, and being overly indulgent. They had abundant food and nothing meaningful to do, so they busied themselves with distractions.

Likewise, our children do not have enough responsibilities. We shield them from farm work, cooking, and laundry. So what else will they do except immerse themselves in these gadgets? Let us support each other with ideas and prayers.

(b) Elder Mukangara: It is certain that we all need to be enlightened.

“The night is far spent, the day is at hand. Therefore let us cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armor of light.” — Romans 13:12

The technology being introduced into churches today is the fulfillment of the prophecy in Daniel 12:4, which states that “knowledge shall increase.” This is happening right before our eyes.

Every three months, there are changes. We will reach a point where new technology emerges every half-hour!

The increase in knowledge is a sign that the end is near. This means—stay alert. Be ready.

For the children of light, this increase in knowledge is for the glory of God.

Habakkuk 2:14 says: “For the earth will be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the LORD as the waters cover the sea.”

We should not fear technology. It has brought us books and phones that we use, airplanes that we board, printing presses that produce our Bibles, clothes that we wear, vehicles that take us to church and work, houses we live in, money, ATMs, and much more.

Those who walk in the light are not shaken by technology.

The things that Satan inserts into it—children of light will avoid.

Satan will introduce pornography (sexual immorality through images), but the children of light will not engage in it. He will bring all sorts of deceptions, but the Spirit of God will enable believers to recognize his schemes and traps.

Satan should not be given credit for technology. It does not belong to him. The glory belongs to Almighty God. Satan is merely a deceiver, knowing that his time before being cast into hell is short. He seeks to take our children and their parents to hell with him.

Satan should not be given glory when humans disobey God. Human beings were created by God. Satan did not create even a single fly. He is not a creator—he is a creature. According to Jesus, his role has always been that of a murderer from the beginning and the father of lies (John 8:44).

We should resist and reject the evil that Satan introduces into technology, but we should not reject technology itself. It is for God's glory.

It is parents who buy these gadgets for their children.

If Satan corrupts the minds of these children, the consequences will be severe. The children will learn to worship other gods.

Their parents will pay before the One who will judge all flesh.

Bringing these things into worship services is what we call—

"The snares of Satan."

Children follow what they are given by their parents. If they are denied something, they will stop. If they are given something, they will accept it.

Parents who give their children these things will not escape God's wrath if they do not realize this early and take action.

The day of worship belongs to your God! Obey, and you will live; disobey, and you will die. It is not a day for worldly games and music. If necessary, it should be a day to use all gadgets for learning the Bible so that children may know God and His purpose in bringing them into the world. At the end of the day, parents have the responsibility to ask their children:

"What did you learn today? What scripture have you memorized?"

Even if children seem calm and quiet, there is still a problem if they are not doing what they should in that sacred place.

1. If a child cries for a razor blade, and you give it to them, have you really calmed them? I remember hearing the laws of God from the Father of the Nation, Mwalimu Nyerere, during his lifetime. He said:

“The laws of Almighty God are as follows: If a child plays with fire, they will be burned immediately. If they play on a slippery surface, they will fall right there. If they play with a razor blade, they will be cut right there.”

What has happened today? Parents have found that the way to “calm” a child who insists on trouble as if asking for something good is to give in to their demands.

Is that a positive approach when a child gets burned, cut, or falls and breaks an arm or leg?

2. The prophet Habakkuk tells the entire world:

“But the LORD is in His holy temple; let all the earth keep silence before Him.” — Habakkuk 2:20

QUESTION:

(a) If the LORD is in His temple, why should only parents be present there while their children are elsewhere, instead of being taught to be silent before the LORD?

(b) If parents are in the temple and children are engaged with “gadgets,” do these gadgets now become the temple of God?

(c) If so, why shouldn’t the parents also be in that “temple”?

(d) If not, then what god dwells in those gadgets?

These are rhetorical questions. Each person should answer them in their own heart.

That they may be generous to others:

There is a trustworthy saying from the mouth of Jesus in Matthew 5:46-47:

“For if you love those who love you, what reward do you have? Do not even the tax collectors do the same? And if you greet only your brothers, what more are you doing than others? Do not even the Gentiles do the same?”

Generosity is demonstrated by those who seek God’s righteousness and by those who love their enemies.

Ask drug users, and they will tell you how they share “rolls” of marijuana.

Ask smokers, and they will tell you how they share even “filters.”

Ask “Chibuku” drinkers, and they will tell you how they shake the jug and drink from it—one after another.

This is how Satan can use our children, turning generosity towards things that are not truly good.

(c) Professor Bisanda: The problem is not the children but the parents who buy these things for them.

Remember, we are dealing with Generation Y—the digital generation—while the parents are analogue!

The technology we see today cannot be compared to what we will find in heaven.

Just imagine—Almighty God will review the records of the actions of four billion people, both past and present, in a second or even less than that!

How vast will His archive be?

I believe the records in heaven will be far superior to these DVDs, USBs, and other earthly storage devices.

124.HOW TO HELP YOUR CHILD HAVE MANY FLAWS! – BONUS!

12 RULES FOR RAISING CHILDREN TO BE UNRULY

1. Start from infancy by giving your child everything they want. This way, they will believe they are entitled to everything in life.

2. When they learn bad words, laugh at them. This will make them think they are clever.

3. Do not give them any spiritual teachings. Wait until they turn 21, then let them “decide for themselves.”

4. Avoid using the phrase “that is wrong,” as it may make them feel guilty. Later, they will believe that when they are arrested, society does not love them and is only punishing them.

5. Pick up everything they leave lying around. Do everything for them so they become accustomed to throwing responsibilities onto others.

6. Defend them against neighbors, teachers, and the police. Convince them that all these people dislike them.

7. Argue frequently in front of your children. This way, they will not be shocked when your home falls apart later.

8. Give them all the money they ask for. Do not let them earn their own.

9. Fulfill all their bodily desires—food, drinks, and pleasures. Make sure they get everything their body craves.

10. Let them read whatever is published and listen to whatever music they come across. Be careful to ensure that dishes and glasses are clean, but let their minds be filled with garbage.

11. When they get into trouble, comfort yourself by thinking, "There was nothing I could have done to help."

12. Prepare for a life of sorrow. You will surely have it.

Taken from the article '12 Rules for Raising a Rebellious Child' distributed by the Houston, Texas Police Department.

My husband travels frequently, which makes things difficult for us and the children.

It is a significant challenge when a parent, whether the father or mother, travels frequently. We have very little time with our children, so if possible, the parent should seek a job closer to home, even if it does not pay as well. However, there are some jobs that simply must be done.

A traveling parent can still improve their connection with their children. For example, when they return, the children can meet them at the bus station or airport and spend time talking. Frequent phone calls and even writing letters help maintain the bond. The parent should also try to meet their children's teachers, even if only a few times a year. Taking time off for vacations and planning trips together as a family is important.

There are many things a parent can do even when they are far away. Books have been written on this subject, and online resources offer ideas from other parents facing the same challenge.

126. What are good ways to build a relationship with my children?

13 Simple Ways to Build a Strong Relationship with Your Children

1. Take your child with you whenever you go somewhere by car. This gives you time to talk together. Your children will learn from you as you shop, run errands, or drive. They will also learn to work alongside you.

2. Work together. In the garden, the kitchen, and around the house. Not only will this give you more time to talk and teach your children important skills, but it will also save you time and allow you to enjoy other activities together.

3. Read books and look at pictures together as a family. Even the youngest child can enjoy looking at pictures in a book while listening to you read aloud. This not only creates shared memories but also fosters a love of learning and provides opportunities for discussion. Looking at and discussing appropriate pictures together also helps children develop critical thinking and spiritual awareness.

4. Talk to them—and listen! Take time when putting them to bed to ask about their day or tell them a short story. Listen patiently when they want to share something with you. Start this habit early, and your children will continue to enjoy talking to you even as they grow older.

5. Show hospitality and spend time together as a family. Reduce the time your children spend with their peers and increase the time spent together as a family—whether hosting other families in your home, welcoming your children's friends, or engaging in activities together.

6. Find family projects to do together. Sharing common goals while working and serving together strengthens family bonds. Look for ways to serve together—through your church, helping the less fortunate, or volunteering at a nursing home. Start a small family business, host events for other families, help grandparents, raise animals, or play a musical instrument together!

7. Show interest in what excites your children.

My father was very good at this. The security I found in his love and the direction of my life have both been deeply rooted in this great gift that only my father could give me! Sit and listen when your daughter plays the piano, go to a football game with your son, build a playhouse together, draw pictures together, enjoy constructing a large building, and, most importantly, truly listen to them.

8. Show your children physical affection.

Hold their hands, hug them, say, "I love you," and hug them again! The world has changed—if you don't bring them close, someone else will.

9. Schedule one-on-one time with each child.

Pray together! Talk about struggles and sins, let them know you are on their side, and pray for each other. Study the Bible together. Teach your children how to study the Bible by exploring relevant topics together. Read books and discuss them (some examples of books we have read together include Conversations for Girls, God at Work, Future Men, Breaking Strongholds, and Thoughts for Young Men). We also read books purely for entertainment. Go for walks together—this has been particularly helpful with our sons! They tend to talk more while walking than when sitting on a couch. Go out for meals together—it doesn't have to be fancy; even just ice cream can create a special moment, just like an expensive meal would. Go camping! When each child was younger, we had family "campouts" in the living room every Friday night! We also camped outdoors on the floor with the kids and had spontaneous summer campouts on the deck. It's surprising how much children open up when you're lying together in the dark!

Have a monthly "girls' day out" or "boys' day out." I was encouraged to do this after reading Carolyn Mahaney's wonderful book, Girl Talk. Once a month, the girls and I would spend an afternoon (or sometimes a whole day) enjoying time together. We visited tulip gardens, iris gardens, rose gardens, tea houses, bookstores, parks, and more, always having a wonderful time. Always take time to reflect and set goals. We tried to do this at least once a year. It was an incredibly helpful practice, and we were always encouraged when we looked back and saw how many goals had been accomplished over the past year.

(See article by Pam Foster, © Doorposts – www.doorposts.com)

10. Discipline your children.

One of the most profound ways to show love to our children is to discipline them firmly, lovingly, and consistently. Proverbs 13:24 says, "Whoever spares the rod hates their child, but the one who loves their child is careful to discipline them." A child who is allowed to do whatever they please will not feel secure in their parents' love. Left to themselves, they may struggle to show love as well.

Welcome discipline as an opportunity to draw closer to your children. When we humbly confront our sinful hearts, rejoice in God's grace and the gospel that covers our sins, ask for forgiveness, and forgive—these experiences draw children and parents closer together as brothers and sisters in Christ. Discipline should always be seen as a teaching moment. We have only a few years to instill wisdom in our children while they are in our homes. Every bad habit and every sin is an additional opportunity to teach them from God's Word.

11. Speak openly about the work you see God doing in your children's lives.

One word of encouragement is worth more than a pound of correction. Expect growth and tell your children when you see God working in their lives. You may not realize how much this will encourage them.

12. Do not withdraw too much.

When your children graduate from college or reach the age of 18, it is possible to pull away too much. However, children often face major life transitions at this stage—jobs, marriage, and other big decisions. Stay connected with your adult children. Know their friends. Encourage them to stay at home until God leads them into marriage. Continue offering guidance and counsel, recognizing that as they mature, your role will shift from being an authority

Thank God for your children and pray for them every day.

131. What advice would you give to your child who has completed school and is becoming independent?

Dear Daudi,

Now that you are finishing school, this brings us great joy and blessings as parents. Few people complete secondary school, and only a small percentage go on to earn a degree. The most important thing in life is understanding who you are, why you are here, and where you are going. Ask yourself this question often! For example: I am Daudi. I am here on earth because I was created by God, though things went wrong in Eden due to sin, and now restoration is underway. I am on my way to heaven. This perspective will guide you through many aspects of life, helping you not to waste valuable opportunities.

Life and stewardship go hand in hand! (Stewardship is how we use our lives.) May the Almighty give you a vision, mission, passion, and provision as you work. The Chinese say:

If you want to make a difference for a day, eat at a fine restaurant.

If you want to make a difference for a month, get married (a bad example!).

If you want to make a difference for a year, plant a garden.

If you want to make a difference for a lifetime, invest in people—help children get an education or support them in school. You will have changed someone's life.

When I arrived in America more than 26 years ago, I prayed to God, saying that if He blessed me with a job, I would set aside a portion of my income, beyond my tithe, to make a difference in the lives of people—both those I am related to and those I am not. I realized that problems always arise, money comes and goes, but if you pray for God to help you with this commitment, over many years, it will make a real difference. It is wise to start this habit early in your career because once you begin earning a monthly salary, if you do not plan, many things will come up and prevent you from doing what is truly important. (Differentiate between the urgent and the important.)

Do not forget your relatives on both your father's and mother's side. Even your grandparents, uncles, aunts, and cousins—sending money or gifts, even if it's just $30 every six months, will make a lasting impression and lead them to pray for you. Consider how you can uplift their lives. However, this does not mean neglecting yourself—certainly not! Plan for these things and write them down in a notebook, and after many years, when you read it, you will smile.

Many children born and raised here in the U.S. do not know their extended families, and that is a kind of poverty because they miss the chance to make a difference for their relatives. You are fortunate because you know many of your family members back home. In your life, remember them—not out of obligation, but out of love, as your name suggests, Daudi ("the beloved"). In doing so, you will be blessed and also help others improve their lives.

Albert Schweitzer, a missionary, once said that we must always remember—we do not live in this world alone. We have brothers and sisters, including people in this country, who also need our help, whether materially or otherwise. I pray that God will show you where to prioritize your efforts.Remember:Life is a great battle, and each day has its own struggles.

Acknowledge God in all your ways, and He will guide your path.

The author of Ecclesiastes reflected on his youth, seeking fulfillment in things, animals, gardens,wealth, food, and luxury. He concluded: "Fear God and keep His commandments, for this is the whole duty of man." He mentioned 38 times that everything else is merely chasing after the wind.

Finding balance requires wisdom—pray for wisdom at every step.

If you get the book Do Hard Things by Harris or I Kissed Dating Goodbye, they are great books for a young man. However, start with Messages to Young People. The difference between David and Joseph is that Joseph ran away, while David stared. Running away does not mean one is a coward, but you cannot start reasoning with the devil. There are things that make a man of God fall: women, power, and money. If anyone thinks they cannot fall, they must be wiser than Solomon, stronger than Samson, or love God more than David.

In our lives, when we are born, we say, "Let me go to school, and I will be happy and satisfied." Then we say, "Let me get a job or earn money, and I will be happy." Then, "Let me get married and have children, and I will be happy." Then, "Let me retire, and I will be happy." Then, "Let me have grandchildren, and I will be happy." Then, "Let my children be independent, and I will be happy." Finally, old age comes, and we say, "I am not happy; these days, it's all about sickness and weakness." Then comes the dependency on others.

In 1969, my maternal grandmother visited us in Arusha. She was 48 years old, and I thought she was very old. I told her, "Grandmother, you are so old!" She replied, "Grace, I just looked this way, then turned around and found myself old! It didn't take long. Even you will grow old and wonder where the years went!"

Pray that God makes you a faithful steward so that one day, He will tell you, "Well done, good and faithful servant. You were faithful over little; enter into My eternal joy."

RAISING A SON TO BE A PRIEST AND LEAD HIS HOME

(Or raising a son as a layman – directed to parents raising sons)

Many have written books about raising sons for believers. Raising daughters is not very different from raising sons, except where gender roles differ, as God has commanded us. God is the ultimate parent, and Scripture is the primary parenting manual; everything else is supplementary.The greatest help we can give our children is teaching them to live without us—to be able to face life in their relationships with God, in their communities (whether at school or work), in fellowship, and in their families.

1.Heaven and earth are a boy's first textbooks before he learns to read and write, as Psalm 19 states. Psalm 144:12–15 says:

"May our sons be like well-nurtured plants in their youth, our daughters like pillars carved to adorn a palace. May our barns be filled with every kind of provision. May our sheep increase by thousands, by tens of thousands in our fields; may our oxen draw heavy loads. May there be no breach in our walls, no exile, no cry of distress in our streets. Blessed is the people of whom this is true; blessed is the people whose God is the Lord."

God's definition of a man is more than just outward appearance. Ezekiel 22:30 tells us that a man is one who stands in the gap to repair what is broken. To be a man according to God's Word involves spiritual, intellectual, emotional, and physical growth. A child is raised at home, in the community, at school, and in the church.

After having children, we must have a plan, for God has given us sons as stewards. They are our garden to cultivate until they grow and mature. We cannot just sit and assume things will work out on their own. Food and clothing are not enough to complete a child's upbringing.

Our sons will be leaders in their communities, priests in their homes, and our brothers in heaven one day. We are preparing our sons to be husbands, fathers, and believers in God's house. This journey takes a lot of time and is centered on God's Word.

God's Word is the beginning and the end of parenting (the Alpha and Omega). God's Word is the only security for us and our children. May you reap the fruits of your labor, of faithfulness to God; may you help your children become warriors who take responsibility and bear much fruit in righteousness.

Luke 2:52 says, "Jesus grew in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man." The teenage years do not have to be about rebellion but about productivity for the child, the parents, and the community.

Let us not grow weary in doing good. One day, “your father and mother will rejoice, and she who gave you birth will be joyful.”

As parents, we should take our children to gospel or lay ministry seminars and not leave them behind. Let’s take them along in our service to the Lord so they learn through action and love God’s work.

Raising a son who loves God requires commitment because boys today struggle to be diligent in academics and manual work. In Africa, 90% of farms are cultivated by older women. In many countries, 80% of churchgoers are women, and they also lead in education and reading.

In the past, subjects like mathematics and physics were considered “boys’ subjects,” and they topped the charts. However, research by Dr. Nedley in the U.S. shows that boys’ academic performance now matches that of girls. He adds that boys see no need to strive hard because finding a wife is easy, and dowry is no longer required as before.

Girls today pursue boys, which makes boys less responsible and less motivated. Dr. Nedley also states that many boys live off their parents or wives well into old age. If their wives leave them, these men return to their parents for support.

A boy was created in God’s image, and he was created before the woman. His purpose was not first to “be fruitful and multiply” but to have dominion and subdue the earth. Our sons must understand this. A boy was given work in the garden even before mankind’s fall.

Obedience to God and parents is the first lesson for our sons, followed by planning, skill, discipline, and work. These help him deny himself, control his desires, and provide for his family.

In the past, a boy was the one who took care of his parents and was relied on by his sisters and younger siblings as the provider, advisor, and leader. This is declining today.

Although this is U.S. data, when you see someone else getting shaved, start wetting your own head. The U.S. often sets trends, both good and bad, like homosexuality, and people easily follow them.

Today, what children see in the media, especially television, shapes them more than their parents. This is dangerous because most media content has little that is good. Even in advertisements, the way people talk and dress is problematic.

When I was young, calling a boy “a girl” was an insult. Today, even strong and intelligent boys are engaging in immoral behaviors like homosexuality, which was once a taboo even among non-believers.

In countries like the Philippines, statistics show that men lead in gender-transition surgeries to "make life easier." This is ignorance of creation, where the man was made first and is the head. He should be honored by the woman. Moreover, the woman was the first to sin, and I doubt that is attractive to anyone.

Herod killed male children. Pharaoh did the same, knowing that eliminating the sons meant ending a nation. Balaam caused 24,000 men of Israel to fall, knowing that by eliminating them, the nation was finished.

God has given men gifts and responsibilities that women do not have. When raising boys, we must recognize this. Fathers must spend time with their sons and teach them through action. Studies show that many fathers spend less than four minutes daily talking to their children.

We must make careful choices regarding friendships, the music we listen to, the books we read, the education we receive, the church we attend, the clothes we wear, and much more. Parents must study God's Word to find answers and proper standards.

Even parents who struggle spiritually can raise children who love God. We see Timothy, his grandmother Lois, and his mother Eunice helping him become a warrior who ministered as a layman and later as a pastor.

Have annual goals. You cannot do everything at once. Make a roadmap for what you want to achieve before your children leave home.

When young, children are like sponges that absorb knowledge. Use this time to teach them from nature and the world around them.

Teach children about God's creation, not evolution. This should be a priority (1 Corinthians 3:19).

We should also seek help from grandparents in raising our children.

Children should be taught to build houses, sew, cook, farm, and develop other skills. Teach them to speak publicly, manage their time, and evaluate their progress. Rejoice with them in their achievements. Teach them about biblical heroes such as David, Noah, or Abraham. Ask your child who their heroes are—are they movie characters or video game figures? How can they be a light in their home?

Read books like 10 Boys Who Changed the World by Irene Howard. Does your child admire people who do not love God, like Samson? What kind of books do they read?

A man's life is full of decisions, and he must act based on them. We must prepare our young men to take responsibility by making the right decisions. Prepare them well, then give them space to make choices, and when they fail, teach them how to correct their mistakes. Learn even from small creatures like ants and from figures like young Joseph, Jethro, Abigail, the Good Samaritan, Boaz, and others.

When you're not around, does he do good things? Does he greet people? Does he do household chores? Observe if he uses his time well, keeps his things organized and clean. Does he know how to solve problems, or does he forget his responsibilities? Does he understand that time is valuable and avoid procrastination?

Take him to a police station or court, depending on his age, and discuss common cases. Read about figures like Achan and Samson and discuss them. Does he make excuses or exaggerate? Does he make promises he cannot keep? Does he take things without permission? Does he enjoy gossip and false witnessing? We should not shield our children too much from pain or failure. Sometimes they must fail to learn, but they should not fear trying again. Read about David's 30 mighty men (1 Chronicles 11) and reformers like Luther, Zwingli, Tyndale, Knox, and Huss. Can he accept correction and learn? Does he have the courage to admit his sins, repent, and forsake them? Can he say, "I was wrong" and confess? Does he fear people more than God? A man is the head of the family, just as Christ is the head of the church. Look at the character of men like Noah, Job, Abraham, Moses, and David. Abraham was praised: "For I have known him, that he will command his children and his household after him, that they may keep the way of the Lord, to do justice and judgment." A son should know the core teachings of faith and distinguish between true and false doctrines. He will be a priest in his home and possibly in a place of worship. He should question pastors and spiritual leaders about their beliefs. What is the gospel? How does it affect their lives? Teach children to memorize Deuteronomy 6:7-8. Parents should help their sons become teachers.

Learning leadership is important. 1 Kings 3:9 says, "Give your servant a discerning heart to govern your people and to distinguish between right and wrong. For who is able to govern this great people of yours?" Solomon asked for wisdom and leadership. We set examples for our sons to be just judges. When we discipline them, we uphold God's law and guide them in His instruction. Teach them to speak with their friends when conflicts arise so they can restore relationships and help their own children when they make mistakes. Ensure that discipline is balanced with love. If discipline exceeds love, something is wrong. We acknowledge that everyone makes mistakes in parenting, but discipline should be given in love, not anger. Do not punish a child while angry; wait until you have calmed down, then talk to them before giving discipline.

Can he lead others with humility, delegate tasks, and review and evaluate them? Look up "Brother Offender Checklist" and "21 Rules of This House" online. Have a household rulebook to decide what deserves discipline and what requires warnings. Study biblical punishments given by prophets, people, and apostles. List the sins your child struggles with, plan consequences, and outline the results of ignoring warnings. What are the responsibilities of authority? How should we treat those in authority? Does your son accept the role of teaching others, such as a children's class or youth group in church?

A son must be taught not to covet others' belongings and to be grateful for what he has. Godliness with contentment is a great blessing, for we came into the world with nothing and will leave with nothing. When he makes a mistake, he should learn to ask for forgiveness. Since he will be a leader, he must exercise authority wisely. Pharisees abused their power, while Noah, Job, and Elijah used it well. He must understand that leadership is about serving people, not oppressing them. He should work with his hands to meet his needs and those of others. By age twelve, he should begin fasting and praying, for some things cannot be achieved without prayer and fasting. He must understand that his future wife and children will need clothing, food, and shelter, which are reasons enough to learn how to pray and fast.

Backsliding happens gradually, like a rising thermometer. If he is not careful, he will find himself far from God. He should learn from wise and godly men, for they have experienced victories and failures. Temptations appear attractive but do not reveal the whole truth. He should not fight temptations alone but ask God for strength to obey and avoid invitations to sin, for the battle belongs to the Lord when we choose to obey His commands.Why should a young man avoid much of rock and dance music? Because many of these songs promote rebellion against God's laws, idol worship, substance abuse, and darkness without knowing it. They also reduce spiritual focus, increasing anxiety and restlessness.

Education is good, but one should start reading books early before situations become difficult. Explain this to a young man. He should not read a book about a good marriage only after divorcing his wife, but before. Being educated and being knowledgeable are different things. One can have a high degree but lack wisdom. Likewise, earning money and working are two different things. God's Word is tested and useful for teaching, rebuking, correcting, and training in righteousness so that a person may be fully equipped for every good work.

A child should learn to obey authority because one day he may also be in leadership. One cannot lead if he does not know how to follow. Scripture instructs us to respect and obey our leaders so that their work may be a joy, not a burden, for they will give an account. Consider the services that governments provide to citizens. Though some leaders are corrupt, leadership is generally beneficial, and we cannot live without it. If parents make leadership difficult or show disrespect for leaders, children will imitate them.

Forgiveness is crucial for a son. Holding grudges is like drinking poison and expecting someone else to die. We must remember that we, too, have wronged others and been forgiven. A son should learn to forgive and take his pain to God, asking Him to remove bitterness. He should be honest with God about his struggles, for the Lord can remove all bitterness and hatred, making his heart light. His wife, children, and parents may wrong him, but he must learn how to resolve conflicts with wisdom.

Harboring grudges and hatred is destructive. How can one get rid of impure thoughts? Everyone experiences them, but how do we remove them? Many people fail because they do not practice self-denial. Does he struggle with anger or impure thoughts? Psalm 119:110 says we should store God's Word in our hearts to remove sinful thoughts. Like Joshua, we must choose daily whom we will serve. We must bring every thought into captivity to obey Christ (2 Corinthians 10:5) and focus on things that are true, honorable, and praiseworthy.

Encourage curiosity in a child so he can invent and discover things. Provide materials and time; do not worry too much about him breaking things or wasting time. Great inventors needed time, belief from others, and freedom from excessive pressure. Innovation requires knowledge from different subjects. God is the greatest inventor—use your creativity for good, not to destroy like those who invented nuclear bombs!

A key to invention is perseverance. Thomas Edison failed 1,000 times before inventing the light bulb but saw it as discovering 1,000 ways not to do it. Do not give up when you fail; learn from mistakes and move forward.

A young man is created to invent songs, programs, devices, methods, art, books, tools, and more. Be a creator as God intended. However, maintain physical health with exercise, fresh air, and sunlight.A young man should endure, maintain friendships, and not be quick to anger. Life is about working, learning, building, and investing—do not be lazy. God created men to be doers, not just observers.

The goal of reading God's Word when you wake up is not about how many pages you read but about your relationship with Him. God wants to speak to you about what truly matters in your life—your concerns. He wants to hear your dreams. God has the power to wake up even the weakest man or boy from his bed to read His Word. Ask Him to help you wake up and read. The Creator desires to be close to you—allow Him in.

Many times in life, people will fail to understand us. When misunderstood or falsely accused, learn to guard your tongue and speak only the truth until the false accusations pass. Being falsely accused is an opportunity for God to teach us patience, humility, and forgiveness. Even the Lord Himself was falsely accused and spoken against. Instead of being angry and shocked, stay calm and pray for God's strength. Have peace in your heart, knowing that God understands and sees your true intentions. Doing good is a weapon—God uses it to overcome false accusations and labels placed upon us.

Sometimes, you may feel weary and frustrated from being misunderstood, but remember, we are in a great battle between good and evil. Satan has falsely accused God of being unjust, and many have believed this lie. However, one day soon, God's character will be cleared of all false accusations.

Do not have the attitude of working just to play. Many men view work as a means to earn money for entertainment on their days off. Men often have expensive "adult toys" such as luxury cars, motorcycles, boats, and more. While working to earn a living is important, there is also work to be done in helping others—widows, the poor, orphans. This kind of work brings healing to others. Use your gifts and skills to make the world a better place.

Parents work to provide for their children. A good son does not seek to take his parents' wealth and spend it on his own pleasures. When you inherit wealth, be careful to use it to help others and to support the next generation. We are saved by grace, not by our deeds, so we should think about others and the generations to come.

Does a boy fear the dark, dogs, high mountains, or spiders? Overcoming fear is part of growing into manhood. You may not eliminate all fear, but you will thrive and conquer your surroundings despite having some fears.

Moses experienced fear (Exodus 3-4). Joshua was told, "Be strong and courageous. Do not be afraid or discouraged, for the Lord your God will be with you wherever you go." A person conquers fear by knowing that God is present and that He is capable. God knows what you need and will give you courage and confidence—but not arrogance. Victory is sweeter when you have fought for it. "I write to you, young men, because you are strong, and you have overcome the evil one."Every man experiences fear at some point. You cannot claim victory without having enemies to fight. Every man faces challenges. The key is to overcome the small battles within your heart daily. Some days, you won't feel like working, but you will have to. Victory comes when you fight against anger, greed, and the desires of your heart as if they were your enemies.90% of the fears we have are about things that will never happen. The remaining 10%—you will face them. You may lose some battles, but if you keep fighting with determination, you will win.

Selfishness should be avoided. If you struggle with it, you do not have to remain that way for life. A boy will grow to be the leader of his household and even his nation. If he is selfish and self-centered, he will harm many. Many of those who help meet national social needs are men. Therefore, a young man must learn to reject selfishness.

Women often give generously by sharing food or small household items, but men handle large-scale planning that helps entire communities and even nations. In times of disasters, men often step in to save many lives. We must teach our young men not to be self-centered.

A young man should pray openly, saying, “Almighty God, I am selfish. I think about myself more than others. I know You do not want me to be this way. Please open my eyes to see the needs of others so I can be of help. I ask to have a heart like Yours.”

Imagine how your father feels when he comes home—can you help him with something? Can you ease your mother’s burden? When you visit someone, look for ways to help instead of just sitting and watching. Using your time to serve others will help eliminate fear and selfishness.

Do not be ashamed of your struggles, pain, or sorrow—start helping others.

Every visionary leader must think about serving people. Selfish people lack courage. Brave people do not wait for big opportunities to be heroes or saviors; they seize small opportunities that arise daily. These small acts give you a chance to be courageous or cowardly.

Many young men complain, saying, “I don’t like the rain. I don’t like my job. I don’t like the hot sun. I don’t like this city. I don’t like this village. I don’t like, I don’t like, I don’t like!”

If you want to experience the greatness and goodness of God, learn to love what He has placed before you. You have a choice—to complain and grumble with a sour face or to appreciate what you have. However, there is no need to wear a bitter expression all day.

A man once said that as a child, he did not like tomatoes. But after getting married, his wife cooked with tomatoes. He asked, “Why are there tomatoes in my food?” However, his wife did not change anything, and he gradually began to enjoy them. Now, he loves tomatoes and even misses them when they are not in his meals.

This does not mean you should love evil or unhealthy things. However, there are many things you can learn to tolerate, and eventually, you may come to appreciate them.

Many people have grown to love mushrooms or avocados, even though they refused to eat them as children. Attitude is key—maturity and growth mean embracing both the bitter and the sweet things in life. Don’t just force yourself to “eat the tomatoes”; learn to genuinely appreciate them.

God’s kingdom is full of goodness—let us not live with our noses turned up, saying, “I don’t like the taste of this.” Since God has permitted us to enjoy His provisions, let us embrace them with gratitude.

To be a man, every boy must learn to endure pain. It is part of life, a means to gain wisdom, strength, and skill. A child who is not self-disciplined screams at the slightest pain; they think their happiness is more important than their responsibilities. Instead of working in the field, they complain about the harsh sun or their tiredness. Instead of offering a seat to an elderly mother, they focus on their comfort or entertainment. When they scratch their hand a little, they refuse to wash the dishes. Life has far greater pains than small scratches. The entire creation groans with some form of pain, whether spiritual, physical, or mental. Many experience pain from harsh words, not just because they are the target! Therefore, do not pity yourself when you are in pain, because every creature experiences pain. A man must learn how to handle pain; he cannot hide from it. Sometimes, without pain, there is no fruit or progress.

Pain is universal, and often, it is short-lived. However, there is no pain in heaven; those pains that hurt us today may end tomorrow, so do not dwell on your pain. Pain also has an end, although there are times when it feels unbearable. Pain does not come to us freely to do as it wishes, for the Almighty owns and knows the limit of our endurance. He only allows what we can bear. God knows the length and weight of every pain, and He permits it to come to us, as it is written in 1 Corinthians 10:13. As the story of Job shows, God did not allow Job to reach a point where he could not endure. Pain has some beauty in it; God never allows it without a reason.

When someone close to us hurts our hearts by not understanding us or by not fulfilling our expectations, it hurts more than usual. David said, “For the one who insults me is not my enemy; if that were the case, I could endure it. It is not one who hates me who has exalted himself against me; if that were the case, I would hide myself from him. But it is you, a man of my own rank, my companion and close friend. We used to enjoy sweet fellowship together, and walk with the throng at the house of God.”

How you respond to people who upset you and say things that hurt you shows whether you are maturing into a man of God or only thinking about yourself and your pain. Cry out to God for comfort, and do not scream for long over minor pains or become angry when things do not go your way.

Many people like to avoid pain, but only a few of them are fit for God’s kingdom. If you have physical pain or wounds, go to the hospital to get stitched or have a broken bone set, but do not show your wounds to everyone. A man must be brave, not seeking pity from everyone. Instead of constantly focusing on your own wound, look at the people who need help, and shift your thoughts away from yourself and your pain. For emotional pain, do not be like a dog licking its wounds all day long, but “overcome evil with good.” Even the Lord, “for the joy set before Him, endured the cross, scorning its shame, and sat down at the right hand of the throne of God.”

There is a time to cry and a time to laugh. I do not believe in the saying “a man does not cry,” for even the Lord wept; He did not cry for His own sorrow but for the sorrow of others. Crying alleviates emotional pain. Therefore, there is a time to toughen up, and a time to cry, and God will enable you to distinguish between the two, so that you are not someone who cries unnecessarily or cries out in emotional distress.

How can you prepare to live well with a wife now? You may think you are still too young, and laugh at this idea, and it is true that it is not yet time for marriage, but you can still prepare now. You can prepare in your thoughts, so that later, you will be a joyful man with a happy marriage. It is not about rushing into marriage, but rather being prepared, even if you do not marry or if you are called to be single. Learn the tasks that men do to assist their sisters or mothers, such as changing tires, repairing the house, unblocking the toilet, applying fertilizer, beekeeping, herding livestock, trimming trees, or using a hammer and chisel.

How you serve your sisters and your mother now is the greatest class in marriage. Your younger siblings will be happy to have an older brother who loves them, and you must love them as well. The way you build good relationships with your sister or mother is the way you will build a good relationship with your wife. Do not be arrogant, so that your sisters fear you and do not open up to you. Be gentle, so that they trust you and share their problems with you. Take on the challenge of solving their issues without boasting or self-praise.

Do you know what they like or dislike? Do you understand their dreams, fears, or concerns? Do they have hopes or expectations for today or tomorrow? If you are harsh and cruel, they will hide from you. If your sister wanted to get a musical instrument to learn, take up the challenge and help her get it. Your sister is your class for teaching you how to provide for your future family.

David’s courage in defeating Goliath did not come that day; he first fought a lion and a bear, then he overcame the fear and faced the giant. Serve your sisters and mothers. Do not mock them, belittle them, or compete with them to prove that you are the strongest. Be a team with them; if there is food, let them have the larger portion, and you take the smaller one. Give them a good place to sit.

Have you thought about reading the Word of God together with your younger sisters or siblings? Do you pray with them? Praise them for doing good, and forgive them when they do wrong, helping them to improve and cover their faults. You have an opportunity to make them beautiful both outwardly and inwardly. One day they will say, “My brother gave me the opportunity to reach my dreams. I love and respect him.”If your younger sibling, sister, or mother is selfish and self-centered, help them. Pray to God to assist you, and your task will be to restore good relationships. Be an example to your younger siblings, your sister, and mother. The Lord has made millions of people who do not love Him, love Him, and you too should do the same. A mature boy does not care about who loves him or not, but he focuses on doing what is right, regardless of how people treat him. Do not think your younger siblings, sister, or mother do not want your help and love. They will often change. Girls can be fickle at times, but you should find ways to please your sisters, even ask your mother; she will help you. It is the work of a boy and a man to make his sisters and, ultimately, his wife happy.

When choosing a wife, give God the chance to choose for you. Pray and wait for the time He will choose for you. A person chooses based on what they see outwardly, but the Lord knows the heart. See if she loves spiritual matters. Avoid engaging in rough games with men. It is forbidden to dance with girls because it stirs up bad desires. Many boarding schools host dances that have led young people into lust and sin. Every day we face battles in our minds, and the kingdom of Satan. Put on the armor of God (Ephesians 6) and do not expose yourself to temptations.

Dancing is a tool of Satan himself. Ask any man if he would allow someone to dance closely with his wife, and he will tell you no! In the colonial era, people were forbidden to dance traditional dances, calling them barbaric, but it is strange that these dances were done at a distance, with the man and woman not close together. Nowadays, sins are done openly, with people embracing and dancing together.

Many are taught about using condoms, but for someone who honors God, sex is only within marriage; outside of that, it is sin or rebellion against God’s laws. However, condoms do not erase sin, do not remove guilt, and do not prevent pregnancy or HIV completely, or bring peace.

A boy must always know that only God is the help to avoid sexual sin. Many men, especially in today’s world of pornography, have fallen into sin due to three things: women, money, and the pride of power. If a boy thinks he cannot fall into this trap, he must be stronger than Samson, wiser than Solomon, and love God even more than David.

“He who finds a wife finds a good thing and receives favor from the Lord.” A boy should distinguish between the woman described in Proverbs 7, a prostitute, and the noble woman of Proverbs 31. Does she have the full qualities of a good girl? Does she understand the role of sex according to God’s Word? Teach her about bodily changes like puberty, and continue to talk to her at every step.

Many parents talk to their children when they are thirteen and then stop; then they are surprised when things go wrong when they are seventeen! They only gave one lesson on sex and left it at that! Sexual temptations reach many, including masturbation; a child should be taught to avoid these regularly. Keep your children from sleeping over at other people's houses or attending nighttime parties (pajama parties or sleepovers), as this should be forbidden.

A boy should keep himself clean in words, thoughts, and body until he is married. Does he plan to approach the girl's father before marriage, rather than living together without plans for marriage (come we stay)? Is he ready to tell when he wants to marry? Is he prepared to remain single if God calls him to be celibate, and not live a double life?

The Bible is not just a book of advice or good opinions, but the thoughts of God Himself, with the ultimate authority in heaven and on earth. God's Word shows us how to relate to and please everyone we meet, whether a friend, sister, brother, parents, employer, girls, the elderly, enemies, or children. It warns us about traps, shows us how to work, invest money, what to eat, when to sleep, and even how to rest. It gives principles for every area of your life. It teaches us how God works and how to hear His voice. It helps us understand life, nature, and even other planets. It explains from Genesis to Revelation how to receive the Lord who gave Himself for us, offering eternal life.

You are not an animal, as the theory of evolution tries to teach; you were created for a special purpose. Every boy should ask himself why he is here, where he came from, and what will happen when he dies. The Word of God explains why there is so much pain. No other book can explain all these things. One hour in another book will never compare to one hour in His Word.

There is no book as exciting as this, and one that changes a person's life. Mathematics or chemistry cannot change your life like this book. But the Bible is not a book to gain information, but to transform your life. If you follow its advice, things will become real, and you will be transformed. Do not waste time reading theoretical stories (novels) or fictions that make you lose interest in the Word of God. Fictional stories make the Bible lose its flavor.

Your mind will expand as you read His Word, and you will even have greater ability in school. Read and explain to your friends what you learned from each chapter. Sometimes, be quiet in peace and look at His glory. Memorize many of its verses, sing songs. Mark 1:35 says, "He went out to a solitary place to pray;" and so should you, rise up and pray.

Listen to the advice of the elders, and you will not be like your peers, but you will have wisdom beyond your years. These pieces of advice from the elders may seem outdated, but you will chew over matters and reflect with wisdom that children of your age do not have. We see that when Solomon died, his son Rehoboam sought advice from young men who led him astray, and he lost his kingdom as a result.

Wise elders do not speak their thoughts quickly; they first weigh things. They know what a boy or child's life will be like, even if they have not gone to school, for the years of experience they have help them. Many have opposed their advice, and this has caused them to become silent, fearing they will incur animosity with the youth. Therefore, it is the responsibility of boys and young people to sit with the elders and ask questions about the good skills or disciplines to study or what are the best investments, etc.

Ask the elder questions like these: What should a person do to have good relationships? What things ruin relationships? How has society changed today? Has it changed for better or worse? What mistakes did you make that caused things to go wrong? In what part of your life did things go very well? What can you teach me about marriage and having children? If you were an employer, what kind of person would you hire for your company? When you were young, did you remember the advice your father gave you? Did you follow it? What is most important in your life now? Are you ready to die at any time? If yes, why? If no, why?

There is a time to kill and a time to heal (Ecclesiastes 3), and this is the challenge of growing up or becoming a man. Many people get confused, killing when they shouldn't and not killing when they should. How will a boy know? A man or a boy is not another animal in God's dominion. He was given authority and dominion. He is to respect living things and be a good steward, not kill creatures or cut down trees without reason, simply because they are in his possession. He should use these things for his needs but not for destruction, and when cutting trees, he should plant new ones. He should not be cruel; he must know how to preserve, and also know what he will preserve.

For example, if mice are in your house eating your maize, should you kill them? Should you kill ants in the wild? Should you kill a cat crossing the road? If you live near a game reserve and are hungry, should you kill a gazelle without permission? Do not ignore the work that God gave you—to preserve and care for creatures. Even animals know who fears the Almighty by the mercy and care that person shows for animals. Do your livestock get enough feed and food, or do you keep a dog without feeding it, so that its ribs show? Remember, Noah was told to bring the animals onto the ark. God could have created others, but He loved those animals. The Bible says, "God remembered Noah and the animals."

For a person to meet the needs of his family, sometimes he must kill, but he should not kill God's creatures out of anger or greed, but for sustenance or protection. When wars occur, we know that many people who love the Almighty have fought wars to bring freedom and protect our countries or communities. Others, because of their conscience and the role God has given them to play, have refused to kill in wars and instead focus on treating the wounded, and this is right because of a person's understanding of certain things. However, all men must know how to protect their families and how to bring home sustenance.

A person has a duty to preserve the resources around him and not to be destructive. Some boys have killed birds with sticks and just laughed, without any meaningful reason. A man needs to take care of what God has entrusted to him, including the environment. We live in a time when people even kill their own children by abortion or other means. People are willing to kill their children but are afraid to kill cockroaches in their cabinets. We must know the value of human life, and at the same time, have the courage to kill things like cockroaches or rats.

Home worship is important. Do not wrinkle your face during prayer or worship. The Israelites took much time for worship and offering sacrifices, but they were also self-centered and greedy. Every day is a day of worship, and the way we live is also a form of worship. It means we might be good singers but our lives might stink. We need our hearts to change, so that we are not heads full of the word of God but hearts full of sin.

If you want to be a true man whom God will use, learn how to worship God as He desires to be worshipped. Worship Him every day in His beauty and holiness. Relationships and communication are important. Learn to write encouraging letters to people. Learn to write simple letters, and as you continue writing, you will become skilled and your letters will be good. Many receive complaint letters, and when they see a letter of thanks, they will be surprised, gain courage, and keep your letter forever.

Where I live, many people are afraid to receive gifts because they feel indebted, prideful, or don't want to be in the "welfare distribution" situation. Others are afraid to write thank-you letters. Giving and receiving gifts builds good relationships. If you refuse to receive gifts, people will think that you believe your things are the only important ones or that you don't want to give, thus closing the door. It is more blessed to give than to receive, so do not make others lose their blessing by refusing their gifts given in good faith.

For our children, we give them the practice of giving when we receive. But write a letter to thank them and specify what you are thankful for, for example: "Thank you for the money, it has helped me a lot this season for the cucumber farming." Many write letters asking for things when they are school students (boarding), but as adults who no longer need anything, they never write—this is wrong. Communication is not just about receiving things but also the service of love.

How do we prepare to be good fathers when we are young? Answer: By doing what we want our children to be! Do not think about how you will raise your children, but think about how God wants you to be like Him. When your children are your age, what kind of character do you want them to have? For your children will want to be like you. Are you faithful? Are you a good worker? Do you like to complain all the time? Know that they will follow your example.

God is merciful, even though you may have ruined things. He does not give us what we deserve (exceptions). Not all of your bad behaviors will be passed down to your children, but "a fruit does not fall far from the tree." Your children will resemble you. Your twelve-year-old son will be like you were at twelve. If you are a grateful and diligent boy, he will be the same, but if you are lazy, he will inherit that bad habit. If you are diligent in practicing a musical instrument, he will grow to be the same. Any subject you dedicate yourself to, he too will dedicate himself to, and whatever you enjoy, they will enjoy. Your example will teach them a lot.

The character you build today will make you the man of tomorrow, and that will affect your children. You may think, "I am just a boy; they don't see me now." God's plan for life is that a good tree bears good fruit, not by accident, but by a heavenly law.

Does a child know what evil is? Does he know the Ten Commandments as a standard of righteousness? Does he understand God's mercy and deal justly with people, or does he show prejudice? For God wants us to act justly, love mercy, and walk humbly. Can he correct his siblings? Does he get angry and hold grudges against his siblings? Does he dislike correction? Should he know how to manage his household well? Children should be given tasks according to their age, such as washing the car, cutting grass, or farming.

Self-denial is important because the garden of Eden was lost by not controlling the desire for food and greed. A child should be taught to avoid this. He should guard his heart and mind by avoiding things that are degrading, like bad TV programs and computer games.

He should avoid getting into debt. Discuss the topic of debt and how to avoid it, especially in these days of credit cards. He should pay it off when possible and learn to give offerings and tithes. He should not be an angry person, "He who rules his spirit is like a city broken down without walls" (Proverbs 25:28). Even a small child should be taught to wait without getting angry when playing with others.

Uncontrolled anger can hurt a wife or children, or even the boy himself. If he struggles with controlling his emotions and has fits of rage, teach him, “Do not be anxious about anything, but in everything, by prayer and petition with thanksgiving, present your requests to God, and the peace of God, which transcends all understanding, will guard your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus.” He should continue to think about whatever is true, noble, right, pure, lovely, admirable, excellent, or praiseworthy, and meditate on such things.

He should learn how to serve his family and be well-mannered, for manners do not come naturally but must be practiced. He should learn to say sorry, excuse me, thank you, please, forgive me, and I ask. He should learn not to mistreat those beneath him, for many children who were mistreated by their parents continue this behavior, but he must go before God to renounce that power, so that the curse does not continue to the third and fourth generations.

Does he have a lot of time to waste watching TV? Is he learning the habits of being a diligent person? Can you rely on him to do a task without his mind drifting to technological devices? Do his close friends love God, or does he prefer to associate with evil people like Delilah? Does he know how to have a normal friendship with girls without getting involved in a bad relationship? What are the behaviors to avoid in friends?

Does he make excuses to skip worship? Does he frequently leave to drink water or go to the bathroom during worship? Does he rely on God or complain when things don’t go well? Can he complete a task you gave him like Noah or Nehemiah? Can he keep his promises like Elkana and his wife? Or does his mind wander all over the place? Does he leave his things everywhere? Even when he takes off his clothes, his pants end up lying on the floor right where he took them off?

Sometimes parents are involved in serving people, and the child gets attention that the parents are unaware of. I learned this from the preacher Billy Graham, who, when he was very famous, his children would stay near the gate of their house, and before visitors came to see the preacher, the children would ask them for money or things. The guests would feel embarrassed because of his father and would give these children things without reporting it to him. This was a behavior of Gehazi, the servant of Elisha! He asked for clothes and silver and was involved in deceit regarding the prophet’s work. This preacher later realized that if you are a famous parent or involved in something where many people come to you, watch how your children interact with people to protect them from certain evils.

Can he be hospitable like Abraham, welcoming strangers and receiving blessings? Read about hospitality and welcoming guests. Does he also know how to show hospitality to his family? Is he afraid to answer the phone, respond to letters, or open the door to visitors? “Behold, I stand at the door and knock. It may be that Jesus is knocking at the door.” These days, we may not have guests at home, but even our phones sometimes receive people who need advice or assistance from us. I have learned many times that it is people who bless me, not me blessing them, just like Abraham, where the guest blessed him, and not Abraham blessing the guest! The child should learn to be a servant, not avoid guests.

Thus, a boy who does not know how to earn a living is worse than one who is an unbeliever. Although women are now earning their own living, this is still the primary responsibility of a man. This requires a man to not be selfish, and parents should help their sons become providers in a lawful manner. Help them support their younger siblings, grandparents, and family projects. Discuss the family budget and how they can earn small jobs.

Can he earn his own dowry? Does he understand the responsibility of caring for aging parents? Does he help with household chores faithfully? Does he have the hospitality to assist those in need and show them how to do it? He should learn to be a good listener and not interrupt other people’s conversations.

Does he remember to pray for others, or does he only bring his own troubles before God (intercession)? Does he know how to confess his sins when he falls short? Does he know how to briefly share the story of salvation, explaining his Bible verses?

What kind of girl does he want to marry? Does he respect girls as future wives and therefore protect them from evil and impurity so that they can remain virgins for their future husbands?

Often, we try our best, then leave it to God, who is the Almighty. We may not know why something has happened to us, but eventually, many events show us their rewards in the end. A boy who lives according to the judgments and laws of God will reap the fruits of children who love God in the future (Proverbs 22:6). So, when you are tempted to do evil or foolish things, like breaking the law, think about your decisions and how they will affect future generations, even up to the third or fourth generation. So, avoid living in a way that harms future generations. You will live without regrets, and it will be a fortress for your children and grandchildren, as God will bless you. Let us remember that God is patient, abundant in mercy, and forgives evil.

Should a boy have any association with alcohol? The answer is: “He should never even try to put a drop of alcohol in his mouth; he should not wear t-shirts with alcohol advertisements or listen to advertisements for alcohol. He should not go to places where alcohol is sold or mock a person who is drunk, because sin is a sorrowful thing.” Reject the excuse that it is necessary to drink, even if you do not plan to, for it is a temptation that can come your way, since many do not think they will fall into alcoholism. Kindly tell your friends that you will not drink because you respect God. Proverbs 23:32 says, “Stay away from it as you would stay away from a snake.”

If you have a dog that bites people, two out of five guests who come to you will continue to own it?

The boy should know why he receives discipline or correction of his behavior so that he can be guided in the right way of wisdom. A child who loves his parents will thank them when they help him. He should avoid being corrupted by peer pressure, which is what led to Samson’s downfall. Loving God, walking in His ways, and serving Him with our hearts, minds, strength, and souls is wisdom. His words should be seasoned with salt so that he knows how to respond to others, for words reflect character and what fills his heart. Purity of thoughts, words, and actions is essential

RAISING A DAUGHTER TO BE A WOMAN OF PROVERBS 31

- Lessons for Mothers and Daughters

David, the writer of Psalms, speaks words of blessing in Psalm 144:11-15: “Our sons will be like plants grown in their youth, and our daughters like corner pillars that are carved and adorned for a palace…”. Indeed, raising our daughters to maturity while pleasing God is a great blessing. Many parents, due to their busy schedules, are tempted to leave their children to grow up on their own. God did not give us children to neglect them. Parenthood is a serious responsibility, more so than many of us think. Mothers, we cannot leave our children, even those in secondary school, alone at home while we are busy or constantly traveling.

Some of us work shifts, others travel here and there, leaving our children alone; this is a mistake. A child’s mind wanders frequently. They may go to the neighbors or watch inappropriate things. They may start doing wrong, but do not let it be because of you. Some have taken young children to the West, leaving them there alone, without being present. Many failed to finish their schooling, but what is even more heartbreaking is that many left their faith. They entered strange marriages to obtain work permits, fought with locals in those countries, and others became poor through hardship. Solomon says that a child has a certain form of foolishness.

University studies or going to the West have become like gods these days. The life of fearing God is a seed. Do not leave your child with someone to look after them unless it is an emergency, for you will blame that person. Children have many things; even if you give them a good person to watch over them, how much pain do they have for your child more than you?

We met an older secondary school girl, raised far from her parents, who did not greet people, thank those who did good for her, nor open her mouth when greeted or asked common questions. We thought she was mute or deaf, but we discovered that it was the behavior she had been raised with, without being taught manners, or it was ignorance. Some said she was a “shy person,” but modesty and lack of manners are different things.

Our daughters need training because in the future they will be teachers of their own children and will need good communication with their husbands and even their in-laws. Can you accidentally step on someone’s foot and not apologize? Yet, anyone who wants to be a citizen of the kingdom must learn to tell people the good news! Will they remain silent, too shy to speak?

Proverbs 31 says a lot about the kind of woman one should be. I think this begins in childhood training, not in adulthood. Many have said that the woman of Proverbs 31 is a combination of many women! We see she has people to help with her tasks, but it is she who organizes the plans for what needs to be done. As parents, especially women, we need to learn more about the woman of Proverbs 31 in detail. These questions and answers are for discussion with our daughters. Let us continue guiding them and evaluating them, and we ourselves will continue to grow on our journey to heaven.

Mama Pam Foster of doorpost.org has discussed this woman in great detail. We have taken her questions, and you should take time every day to discuss them with your daughter, teaching her about these questions from Proverbs 31. It is good to read the entire book of Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and Psalms together. Take time to read the entire Word of God every evening for three years, reading one chapter at a time and reflecting on it, with questions. You will learn many things on how to raise a child with the right character. There is no better book for raising a child than the Word of God.

Does she understand that the creation story in six days, with rest, is a key pillar in the teachings of the Word of God? Nowadays, evolutionary theories have arisen, making our daughters undervalue themselves, as if they were not created by God! The days of creation in Genesis are actual 24-hour days, not millions of days.

The first lesson for our children is obedience. We repeat “Obedience” is the first lesson! Obeying God’s commands and the parents.

Let us remember that these words were spoken by Solomon’s mother, advising her son on how to identify a good woman! The opposite of a good woman is the woman of Proverbs 7, who is a “strange woman.”

We, as women, must be people who pray and stay awake, having complete plans and goals for raising our children, and write them down on paper. If we want our daughters to be like the women of Proverbs 31, we must set examples ourselves. Therefore, let us pray for God to give us strength, tighten our belts, and help each other with our daughters. Daughters should learn obedience, planning, self-denial, skills, cleanliness, and work.

We would all like to have daughters who are mature spiritually, mentally, socially, economically, and physically. This woman is discussed in great detail. We see her preparing food, sewing clothes for herself and her family, doing business, buying land and farming, purchasing houses, planting vineyards, and helping the needy. She is a woman to be admired.

Men would also love to have a sister, mother, daughter, or wife like this. Even if the husband is an unbeliever, he can change because of such a woman. Women have a significant role in upbringing. We see that Timothy, the great preacher, received his faith from his grandmother Lois, and then his mother

Eunice. Let us not grow weary of doing good because we will reap at the right time if we do not lose heart.

Some women have given up due to the hardships of suffering. One said, “I have drunk from the cup.” It is true that some have fallen into difficult situations, but let us not grow weary, even if humanity or our close family members do not appreciate or love us, our calling, by God’s grace, is to live the life of the woman of Proverbs 31.

These things should be done with our growing daughters. Perhaps we should have fewer things to invest in our children, storing up treasures in heaven rather than on earth. Let us not think only about school subjects but also about home matters. It is good to have a syllabus to help children with both character and academics because even the wisdom of the world, which we emphasize so much, may be foolishness to God; 1 Corinthians 3:19. You can bring up topics in prayers, question people, engage in practical activities, discuss, memorize verses related to the topic, ask questions, read other relevant books on character, and in the end, evaluate to help them grow spiritually in the area you want to build.

“Charm is deceptive, and beauty is fleeting, but a woman who fears the Lord is to be praised. A wife of noble character, who can find? She is worth far more than rubies” (Proverbs 31:10). This passage tells us to pray for our daughters to have humble and gentle spirits before God, to be ready to hear and obey His Word. Give them the opportunity to ask their grandmother or mother, who has a passion for loving God, for advice. Give our daughters the chance to talk to their father or uncles and ask what qualities attracted them to marry their wives. Who are such women in the Word of God? Provide examples of stories about women like Deborah, Esther, Huldah, Elizabeth, Job’s wife, Ruth, Lot’s daughters, Tamar, Sapphira, Gomer, Priscilla, Abigail, Jezebel, Bathsheba, Rachel, and Rebekah.

Read Titus 2 and make a list of the characteristics of a woman who fears God. Read 1 Timothy 5:3-10, which addresses how a widow should be valued and helped. Ask yourself questions about your daughter, such as whether she loves God and if her salvation is important to her. Does she love reading the Bible, or does she enjoy listening to it when she’s younger? Does she understand God’s Word? Does she desire to obey God? Does she have a relationship with God? When she sins, does she regret it and ask God and those she wronged for forgiveness? Does she desire to be like the world’s girls in her clothing, sports, and attitude? Does she have certain character weaknesses? What is she doing to overcome those weaknesses? Do the fruits of the Spirit from Galatians 5:22-23 appear in her life? How can you help her grow in these areas? Is she growing according to Proverbs 31 and Titus 2? Does she have goals to glorify God and serve Him and her family, or does she love herself and only seek pleasure for her own benefit?

“Her husband has full confidence in her and lacks nothing of value” (verse 11). Her husband sees that she takes her responsibilities seriously. We must prepare our daughters for this by teaching them (training). Your daughter’s education is important and begins at home. She should know household tasks; take her to a woman who diligently fulfills her duties, and ask her why she does her work with faithfulness. Why should she be faithful in her work? Discuss examples of faithfulness in the Bible, such as Abraham, Joseph, Daniel, the slave girl of Naaman, Delilah, Michal, Potiphar’s wife, Haman’s wife, Herodias, Eve, or Tabitha. The time of initiation rites and puberty ceremonies, where girls were taught these things, is past; today, you and your fellow believers should teach these lessons to your daughters. Don’t say, “Let the aunt teach her this.”

Girls often face temptations to gossip about others and to flatter. As parents, we should avoid adding salt, lying, gossiping, murmuring, jealousy, anger, pride, and hypocrisy in our words, actions, and attitudes. Take her to ask someone at church, “Why do you trust so-and-so and not so-and-so?” Can you trust your daughter if she says something or tells half-truths, giving excuses? Does she lie through her actions and make up stories, or hide the truth? Does she keep her promises? If she lies, does she try to cover it up with another lie? Does she speak ill of people when they are not present? Does she return things she has borrowed? Is she trustworthy in her relationships, goals, or plans, or does she deceive even herself? Does she like to bribe or flatter to get what she wants? Does she say she was “just joking” when caught doing wrong? Does she sometimes speak without thinking and criticize others carelessly or without kindness? Can she freely come to you and talk about matters that are not right, especially sensitive ones?

Discuss with her questions like, “Why is it wrong for a wife to speak badly of her husband, parents, or even peers to others? Why should a student not speak ill of their teacher?” Trustworthiness is important in childhood and adulthood. Discuss the evils of divorce and write an essay on it.

Is she ready to help a friend when they make a mistake with love and humility, not just gossip about them in front of others and leave them to continue in their bad behavior? Does she get angry quickly and cut off friendships easily? Does she want everyone to stop being friends with someone she no longer wants to be friends with? Does she forgive quickly when wronged? Does she value the thoughts of her friends or younger siblings and is she able to offer them good advice? Does she feel jealousy or bitterness when a friend or sibling succeeds? Is she willing for her friends to also be friends with others, or does she want them to be only her friends? Does she like to criticize, belittle, or make fun of others when with her friends? Does she value her parents’ guidance and family goals? Does she lack respect for her parents in front of her friends? Does she remain faithful to her future husband by preserving herself, or does she engage in romantic friendships with boys/men? Does she know that marriage is a lifetime commitment?

As a girl, being attentive is a good quality, even when she gets married. She should be attentive without interrupting, arguing, or speaking out of turn. She must understand that a wife listens to her husband as the leader when he gives instructions or discusses family matters. Her children will also need to be listened to, and this is a skill she should learn to have. Many women need to learn to listen more than speak.

Sins that easily entangle us, like gossiping, criticizing, and nagging, come from talking too much rather than listening. We should teach our daughters to listen. The book of Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, Psalms, and Paul's letters all have much to say about this. Look at people whom you think have wisdom, then observe how they speak to others. How do they talk? How do they listen? How do they ask questions? What can you learn from them? Gossiping and failing to listen well can damage relationships. Why is it important for a wife to listen to her husband or a child to listen before jumping to conclusions? Have her write an essay on listening to her husband or child. Take an advertisement that lies and let her point out the flaws in it.

Questions to ask as a parent: Does she listen to God's voice and obey the Holy Spirit when He speaks to her heart? Does she listen to sermons in church? Can she repeat what was said in church, or does she only say that the sermon was good but can't remember anything? Does she listen to you or her father when you speak to her? Does she show respect when you talk to her? Does she pretend she didn't hear? Does she lose focus when others are talking to her? Does she have a frown when you talk to her and want to continue with her activities, and sometimes walk away while you're still talking? Does she listen carefully to what you say and act accordingly? Does she remember what she was told? Does she like to interrupt conversations and think about what she will say rather than listening? Does she quickly offer her advice while someone is still telling her their problem? Does she like to dominate the conversation?

As a girl, she should possess the quality of love, not be self-centered. Have her memorize 1 Corinthians 13:4-8, and after about two weeks, have her finish memorizing it all. What actions will she take if she loves people? If she loves God and wants to do His will, what actions will be seen in her? How can she show love to her siblings, father and mother, grandparents, uncles, and aunts? How should she treat her "enemies" according to God's Word?

Titus 2 encourages older widows to teach younger women to love their husbands. Love is also taught, and it is essential to teach our daughters, especially in today's world, which is full of selfishness ("me, myself, and I").

Many say, “I’m doing this for myself,” or “I’ve been doing things for others all the time; I’m tired now, I want to do something for myself!” Widows greatly value their husbands, especially when they remember them and say, “If I had known.”

Read and discuss the three types of love (Phileo, which is brotherly love; Agape, which is God’s love; and Eros, which is romantic love between husband and wife). How do these types of love differ? Does she have patience when others make mistakes, or does she get angry quickly? Does she show God’s love to others even if she disagrees with them? Is she willing to forgive small offenses done to her? Does she get along with others and do they enjoy being her friend? Does she love helping the needs of others before her own, or does she always put her own needs first? Does she rush to take the best seat or the biggest portion, so others don’t get it? Does she focus excessively on people’s faults and weaknesses? Does she criticize her friends harshly? Does she like to build others up, or does she like to boast about herself? Does she remember others’ wrongs constantly? Does she laugh and rejoice when others receive punishment? Does she look for opportunities to serve others, or does she want to be served? Does she show love to those who want to hurt or bring her down?

Obedience and respect are very important for a girl. Our daughters must be prepared to obey God. In order to live lives of peace and joy, it is essential to obey their husbands if God has ordained them to marry. Arguments, frowns, murmuring, rejection, and trying to drag others down are not good qualities. All of us have fallen short of the glory of God, but we must return to Him.

Our mother Eve, by disobeying and staying close to her husband, became the first sinner in the world. Often, we think that men commit many wrongdoings, such as murder, robbery, lying, and others; but let us remember that it was a woman who led us to this point by disobedience! Men have been given their part, to love their wives as Christ loved the church and gave Himself for it. This is a huge responsibility, perhaps more than a woman’s, when she carries out her role as expected.

I once heard a mother say that men are more generous than women, and when we raise sons, we should not forget this. Later, I was surprised to realize it’s true because most of the government aid programs, whether for social welfare or other nations, are often led by men! So, mothers, let us teach our daughters generosity and the different roles of the genders, and the lesson will reach even our grandchildren! On the negative side, women often quarrel with people here and there or with neighbors, but men go to war and fight with many others! All these things the Proverbs 31 woman should know in order to help her children. They say Barbara, the wife of President Bush, said this when her son became President of the United States, “I’ve ruled the world twice, first my husband was president, now my son is president!" This mother understood that as a mother, she has a certain position; it's not necessary to hold the same position a man holds, but she has her own role.

In the example God has given us, it is not hard to obey the husband, for it seems he has the bigger responsibility in marriage, and we are the helpers. Obeying the husband is a great joy and a command from God. If you don't believe this, ask a mother whose son is disobedient to her and let her explain how she feels about that government.

A girl should know God's command in Ephesians 6: "Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right." How can a daughter show obedience to her parents? What other authorities, besides parents, should she obey? The church, the government, work, etc. Read about those who obeyed and those who did not, such as Achan, Cain, Noah, or Jacob. Read Deuteronomy 28.

Why can God's name be blasphemed by a child who does not obey their parents or a wife who does not obey her husband? Does she obey without hesitation, arguing, or complaining? Does she do what you say joyfully, or does she sulk? Does her face show a spirit of humility before God and the authority He has placed in her life? Do her actions show obedience? Does she obey the authority given to others like a nanny, aunt, or teacher? Does she understand that God is the ultimate authority? Does she value your decisions, even when they sometimes don't make sense to her? Does she know how to respectfully appeal to you if she wants to be heard again? Does she show respect to the police, teachers, and government authorities? Does she spend time knowing God's Word and obeying it? Does she obey you when you are near or even far away when you cannot see her? Does she obey with joy or with a heavy heart?

Maintaining peace at home is important for a girl. Girlhood is like a laboratory for how she will behave in the world. Good relationships are a gift from God, and maintaining and nurturing them is a responsibility. We must protect our daughters from hatred, seeking revenge on their parents or relatives. Hatred or deceit is not a good thing. We should forgive to bring healing, growth, and even spiritual maturity. Read about reconciliation, quarrels, warnings, and a quarrelsome woman in the book of Proverbs.

How should an enemy be treated? Encourage your daughter to write about forgiving others and being forgiven. Read God's Word and look at examples of forgiveness and being forgiven. We can know God's Word, but if we don't know how to forgive, we will face much pain, broken relationships, and even go to Hell if we're not careful. A girl's early relationships in the family prepare her to have good relationships with her family when she becomes an adult.

Are parents peacemakers? Do they forgive people, or do they love arguments? As a mother, look at where you need to correct. Discuss the quarrelsome woman in the book of Proverbs. Read about the women who quarreled in the Bible, such as Sarah/Hagar, Rachel/Leah/Jacob, Peninnah/Hannah, Michal/David, Miriam/Moses, Job/His wife. What did they quarrel about? What were the results? What can we learn from this?

Read Hebrews 12:15-16 and discuss with your daughter. Discuss anger, revenge, forgiveness, and patience.

Does she get along well with her siblings, or do they always argue, justifying herself by saying she is defending her rights? Does she rush to speak, or does she listen when she is corrected? When she quarrels, does she examine her heart to see if she is at fault? Does she forgive others, knowing she also makes mistakes? Is she willing to go to the one who wronged her and ask for forgiveness? Does she love reconciliation, or does she hold onto resentment? Does she know how to find solutions in a way that does not escalate the conflict? Does she pray first before addressing reconciliation? Is she willing to reconcile, even if it takes more than once with the same person? Does she try to resolve conflicts early, or does she hold on to anger for a long time? Does she believe God will fight for her, or does she prefer to take matters into her own hands and seek revenge? Does she focus on the good in others, or does she only see their flaws? Is she quick to criticize and hold grudges? Does she forgive and move on, or does she keep bringing up past wrongs?

These things are important because, when a girl has her own home, she will be wronged by her husband or children, and she will also wrong them. Therefore, she should start learning how to maintain peace in relationships as she grows up.

She must understand that humility is important. She should humble herself under God's leadership so that every day her selfishness decreases and the Holy Spirit can work in her to help her develop good character. She should be ready to be corrected without arguing. Is she willing to admit where she was wrong without hiding it? Do her words show pride, thinking that she is always right? Does she despair when she sins, or is she ready to ask for forgiveness, not to avoid punishment, but because she loves God? Does she know she cannot do well without God's guidance? Does she know that God is the ruler and has entrusted you, the parent, to help her in her life? Does she know that God's laws are for our good?

Living a pure life is important for a girl and for the community she will be part of when she grows up. Purity of thoughts, words, and actions. Teach her to pray every day so that she can obey God and avoid temptation.

What are temptations? Why do we sin, and what are the consequences of sin? Read together in God's Word about sin and the life of darkness or relationships stained by sin. How many have sinned? What is the wage of sin? Who overcame temptations, and who avoided them? Read Proverbs 7 together and learn how to avoid the behavior of a strange woman. Does she know there is a battle between Satan and God, and that she is involved? Does she know where Satan came from? Does she know that when she faces problems, she should not turn to witches or sorcerers, but to godly people? Does she know why she is on earth? Does she know how she will gain victory? Does she know how to use God's Word to gain victory over temptations? Does she avoid places where temptation is strong, or does she walk right into them? Does she choose friends who love God, or those who lead her into evil? Does she know how to flee from temptation? Does she accept advice regarding bad company? Does she obey in all things, such as the time to come home or tasks to be done?

Does she have a tendency to flirt with boys or say things that raise suspicion of inappropriate behavior? Does she ask God for help in avoiding sin? Does she avoid having male friends or "boyfriends," knowing that the dating plan is not for purity but for courtship? Does she use her time wisely, or does she read inappropriate books or watch harmful images? Does she spend her time daydreaming without purpose? Does she come to you with questions that are sensitive and age-appropriate, or is she hesitant to discuss things with you (such as relationships, bad friends, etc.)?

It is important to teach our daughters patience and heavenly behavior. We should teach them these values when they are young before they mature. They should learn patience in many areas, for example, not starting to have male friends too early, but following the plan of courtship. We don't advise starting courtship until they are mature, usually around the age of 18, but it is better that they become independent so they are not a burden. Regular friends are the ones they will often marry.

She should avoid talking to boys in private, giving them false hopes of unhealthy friendships. It is better for her to be open about what is happening, as parents have much experience, especially in today's life, to help daughters avoid entering marriages filled with sorrow. Mothers should be ready to discuss; your child cannot learn from others the same way they can learn from you. It is better for a mother to help her daughter set standards for the husband she wants to marry, one who is ready to obey and respect her. Look at examples such as Isaac/Rebekah, David/Michal, Esau, Samson, Solomon.

Read books like "I Kissed Dating Goodbye" by Joshua Harris and discuss the dangers of dating (friendships with boys) and the benefits of courtship. Is she willing to listen to your advice on choosing a life partner? Does she believe that God will help her find a spouse, or is she rushing? Is she ready to grow spiritually in order to build a better home, or is she rushing to get married? Does she read love stories that teach many false ideas about love and marriage?

Is she ready to preserve herself by avoiding sexual temptations found in music, books, images, friends, and movies? Has she come to you with questions about God's plan for sex and purity? Does she know God's plan for sexuality? Does she understand maturity as a girl by rejecting falsehood and how to preserve herself? Take time to talk about these things, not just once, but here and there. Is she willing to live alone if that is the calling God has placed on her life?

Self-dedication is crucial for a girl. We see how Ruth dedicated herself to her husband and then to his family, and she was blessed. A girl should respect her parents when she is young at home. She should respect siblings and extended family members, like brothers, sisters, mother, father, grandparents, uncles, and aunts. She should be carefully taught, and then ask yourself these questions: Does she respect her elders? Does she mock or ignore them? Does she expect her grandparents to help her, but she doesn't want to help them? Does she listen respectfully to uncles, younger fathers, or aunts? Does she consult her grandparents for advice? Does she regularly communicate with her grandparents? Parents must show an example of loving and respecting their parents. Does she help elderly people in her village gladly? Does she thank relatives when they help her, or does she think it's her right?

"She seeks wool and flax, and works with her hands in delight" (Proverbs 31:13). We should teach our daughters to have entrepreneurial spirit and diligence in their work. "He who does not work, let him not eat." They should work, whether they feel like it or not! They should learn to work with joy, as work is a command from God, even before the fall of man. Whether a worker is present or absent, the girl should know how to do all types of work and do them.

She should do household chores, school tasks, and we should have a list of daily activities. If it's feeding chickens, making the bed, washing, sweeping, raking, or feeding animals, we learn from bees, ants, and other animals about not being lazy. Take time to observe these insects with your daughter. Watch how you work and let her do the same, paying attention when she learns to do these tasks without laziness. Give her other occasional tasks with small rewards if you can to motivate her. She can even open her own savings account if the family is able to assist, and learn how to manage savings/spend money wisely. Study about the dangers of excessive sleep and its consequences. Reflect on the lives of Joseph, Nehemiah, Daniel, Ruth, or Tabitha. Look at the lives of Rachel and Rebekah as they worked before being courted. Assign her some part of the garden to manage. Look at the lives of athletes, scientists, writers, inventors, and the hours they invested. Observe hardworking women you know—what do they do? What problems arise from laziness?

Ask yourself, is she doing her best? Does she work well when people are watching? Does she complain or show a bad attitude when she expects to be rewarded or paid? Does she wait for others to do the work, grumbling or making excuses? Does she ask questions as if she doesn't know how to do the task you gave her, or is it just an excuse for laziness? Does she complete daily tasks without being reminded? Does she finish tasks, or does she disappear or get distracted? Can you explain how the task should be done, and will she do it? Does she do things halfway? Does she take care of her belongings? Does she return things after using them? Does she check her work before reporting it, or does she rush through it? Does she waste time, or does she say "I'll do it tomorrow"? Does she give up and stop working when the task becomes difficult?

"She is like the ships of the merchant; she brings her food from afar, and rises while it is still night" (Proverbs 31:14). The attitude of productivity, work ethic, and proper management of possessions is very important. A girl should be taught the work ethic of handcrafts, how to manage money, how to budget, how to shop for groceries or other items. If possible, compare prices or different markets before making a purchase. Teach her the dangers of wastefulness and misuse of items. She should know how to buy nutritious food that is also affordable. Teach her the value of bargaining and assessing the worth of things. Does she know how to compare bulk purchases and understand price differences? If she cooks a large amount of food, can she divide it into two servings for the next day, saving money?

Teach her how to make purchases and how to save. She should learn how to garden to reduce the cost of buying everything, especially vegetables. Does she know how to find quality second-hand clothes and make them presentable, either for herself or for her younger siblings? Many families spend a lot on expensive recreation—does she know affordable, worthwhile entertainment options?

I saw in Dar es Salaam, Indian families going to the beach to enjoy the breeze, eating cassava chips or coconuts at a reasonable price. Meanwhile, other families go to expensive places for entertainment, eating fried chicken at large hotels, soda, pizza, ice cream, and other costly and unhealthy foods. These are important lessons to teach our children.

Can she preserve leftover food and turn it into something useful? Leftover vegetables and beans can be used to make soup by adding other ingredients. If unexpected guests arrive, does she know how to stretch her food to serve many? Does she know how to raise chickens for eggs or cows for milk if possible? Teach her how to preserve food for the dry season.

In the past, many tribes would dry leafy vegetables, sweet potatoes, etc. These days, we are less familiar with this. During rainy season, we have plenty of vegetables, but during dry season, we struggle. See if she buys unnecessary things without thinking. Does she fall for commercial ads that encourage impulse buying? Is she willing to buy things that have dropped in price, or does she have the patience to wait? Does she learn how to sew, knit, or develop other skills to reduce expenses? If you send her to the market, can she compare prices and bring back quality, affordable items? If you write her a shopping list, does she follow it, or does she buy things you didn't send her for? When she enters the market, does she know the difference between nutritious food and junk food? Can she stick to a budget and manage it wisely? Does she leave her things lying around without caring if they get damaged?

A girl should be taught how to manage time well. Time is an amazing talent that everyone has been given. A child should be taught how to manage and redeem time so she can help her husband, children, community, and church. Teach her how to plan time for household chores. Give her a project with a deadline. Create a list with her of things that can be completed in five, ten, or fifteen minutes. Time management is highly valuable.

She should walk around with a book while waiting for the bus, knit, or do something productive. Read books that help her life (long life learning). Reflect on how time was important in creation in Genesis 1. Create a daily schedule for her, including waking up, brushing teeth, bathing, and reading the Word of God. Give her time to ask adults what they would do differently if they could go back to their youth.

What regrets does she have for wasting time or not doing something? What shortcuts should be avoided when cooking, cleaning, or sewing? How does she budget her time? How did people like David, Josiah, Christ, Daniel, Miriam, Joseph, and Moses use their time wisely? List activities that happen at certain stages in a girl's life, such as education, having children, marriage, and old age. Ask her if she is doing what is expected at each stage of life.

Buy her a notebook to plan her time and a monthly calendar to review every week. Ask yourself if she is using her time wisely to plan for the future or wasting it on distractions. Does she invest her time in eternal matters by reading the Word of God and praying? Does she have a daily schedule, or does she just daydream? Does she use her free time wisely? Does she waste time on the phone, TV, and computer? When given a task, does she waste time or manage it efficiently? Does she take too much time getting ready? Does she sleep in, or does she follow a routine? Does she arrive on time at church, school, or appointments? Does she often say, "I'll do it tomorrow," or procrastinate until the last minute? Can she multitask or does she sit idly while waiting for food to cook?

As a girl and later as a mother managing a husband and children, she should know how to do laundry, maintain hygiene in all feminine matters, cook, mature, and handle all household tasks. Can she delegate tasks to her younger siblings, and later, even when she has a helper, can she tell them what to do without wasting time? Watch how you do work and delegate it to others to help. Observe the tools you use and teach her. She should begin to purchase her own tools slowly as she gets some money. These tools include items like a sewing machine, needles, hoes, and pots.

Does she know how to use a sewing machine, and can she repair her clothes? Does she know how to use needles to repair clothes, sew on buttons, or make garments? Can she read the pattern for a sweater, weaving fabric, or sewing clothes?

Work on a project together, such as decorating a wedding hall, and write down how you will complete each task step by step.

Look at the lives of Joseph, Deborah, and Daniel. How did God prepare them to be rulers? God prepares our daughters to take on responsibilities such as caring for their families and other tasks. Look at whether He finishes the tasks He gives them. Can He break a large project into small tasks and delegate them to others to help? Is He teaching His younger ones with patience? When He is given a task to assist others, does He want to do it all by Himself? Can He follow instructions when given (directions)? Can He review the work of others who are under Him? Does He lead others with humility or does He oppress them, showing that He is the boss? Does He assist His younger ones in doing work, or does He just watch them? Do others enjoy working with Him, or do they avoid Him?

A woman can cook 1000 meals a year, and many remember their mother's cooking. It is important to teach our children how to cook well. We should even learn recipes from different tribes and plan meals based on what we grow and what is easy for that season. Does He know how much everyone in the family should eat? In these days of globalization, He can find recipes from various places like books, websites, and others. Can you help Him write a simple recipe book to use in your church?

Experts say that any recipe with more than seven ingredients is not healthy. Teach Him to cook, not with many seasonings, but for health first, then taste, and later appearance. Some recipes take a short time to cook, while others are inexpensive. Ask friends, church members, and relatives for new recipes, and write them down. You could volunteer at your church to have a cooking class once a month for about three hours.

What tools are needed for cooking? Can you learn to bake bread, make jam, or peanut butter? Look at recipe magazines. Ask mothers, "Why is mealtime important?" Does He know how to bake? Fry? Boil? Can He use kitchen tools skillfully, safely, and maintain them well? Can He follow a recipe (recipe)? Can He cook for double the number of people (for example, cooking for six people instead of three)? Can He cook on time and set the table? How does

He know when food is cooked? Does He clean up the dishes after cooking?

If a mother gets sick, can she manage everything by herself? Can she make food that is delicious and pleasing? Are the people she cooks for more important than the food she makes? Does she prefer expensive, decorative foods instead of budgeting and cooking nutritious meals? Can she budget the monthly food expenses? Does she collect good recipes and learn what is possible? Does she know how to cook for people with special health needs like diabetes, allergies, heart problems, or high blood pressure? Is she willing to develop her cooking talent and sell food? As a mother, would you help her start a small restaurant business? What is important about food, besides being nutritious and tasty?

Another thing to consider is organizing things. Section 15. Properly organizing a house brings peace and also reflects the nature of God, who is orderly and beautiful (beauty). People we invite will want to come more if our homes are peaceful and well-organized. A girl who learns to organize things as a child will be helpful to her family and even when she works.

Some people are born with the talent of organizing things well, like women from the Far East who arrange flowers beautifully without much effort, but most of us need to be taught and encouraged repeatedly. If you're not a good organizer of things, like me, seek help by reading and from others.

The first law in heaven is order. 1 Corinthians 14:40 says that everything should be done decently and in order. Young girls should return their things after playing. They should learn to make their beds. In the morning, plan your day and even write down what you want to do, otherwise, the day will end without accomplishing much. Learn how to plan your activities in a calendar or notebook. Teach children to organize their books, pictures, dolls, study desks, letters, schoolwork, etc. Teach them to organize long-term and short-term goals.

Organize the kitchen, their cabinets, and bookshelves. Organize together and teach them how to prioritize tasks. If you're planning to go somewhere, such as a trip, organize together what to pack, the map, hotel bookings, necessary phone calls, departure dates, places to visit, and things to do. Plan a schedule for hosting guests or a small party. Set a budget and follow it. Plan for games, decorations, and how to raise funds for the event. If possible, read books by Don Aslett such as "Clutter's Last Stand" or "Clutter Free."

Visit the homes of women who organize things well and with their permission, see how they arrange kitchens, cabinets, or living rooms. Organize home health records, such as vaccinations, first aid, and doctor's appointments. Also, keep certificates like birth certificates, school reports, and store them in a special place.

Take a new file and divide it into sections, writing down phone numbers, addresses, calendar appointments (like sports/events), instructions for the babysitter, children's clothing sizes, etc. Keep this book in an easily accessible place for reference. Look at places in the house where organization is necessary and work together after organizing what to do.

Give the girl a task to arrange photos neatly and label them in a photo album. Organize receipts, insurance papers, or teaching pictures for the church. Help the girl organize her room and decorate it affordably. Read www.Titus2.com where they discuss managing the home. Tell the girl to write an essay on "The Value of an Organized Home."

Does she put everything where it belongs, even when she takes off her clothes at night, without leaving them on the floor? Does she pile things up instead of organizing them? Does her closet, purse, or school bag have order? Can she pack her bags well when going on vacation from school? Does she throw things around everywhere? Does she have trouble finding things like needles, thread, schoolwork, or shoes? Can she organize a messy area? Can she prioritize what to start doing? Does she like collecting things, even if they are insignificant (junk), and refuses to let them go? Can she keep track of appointments, addresses, and phone numbers without losing them? Is she so mentally organized that she gets upset when plans change? Can you leave the house with her for one day? Does she write down her long-term plans?

"She looks at a field and buys it; with the earnings of her hands, she plants a vineyard" - Section 16. This section shows how to organize buying things, arranging seeds, and planning how the field will produce efficiently and yield good results. Even if small, she can do small tasks, such as washing dishes, doing laundry, cleaning the house, caring for younger siblings, going to the market, changing babies' diapers. Doing work will help her organize bigger tasks.

Many focus on school, which is good, but children study to get jobs later. Everything they do is meaningful to the King of heaven for His glory, and also builds character, which is what they will take to heaven. Let us not despise small beginnings, as they help build our children into strong and courageous women. Let her start setting small tasks to do before playing. Assign small jobs for her to do as she grows.

She can start setting goals for small tasks, even in entrepreneurship, if she is over 14 years old. What are her spiritual goals for the future, like showing God's love? A woman's goals must align with her husband, discuss why. Is there something difficult that God wants her to do in her life? Does she want to please God and bring Him glory, with her focus on eternity rather than temporary things? Do her future goals align with God's word, or are they for pleasure? Does she have a daily plan and long-term goals, and does she write them down? Does she agree with your family's goals and support them both physically and financially? Is she willing to sacrifice temporary pleasures for her goals? (For example, studying for exams instead of playing). Is she eager to learn new things and use this talent? Does she know that Jesus is coming, and it is important to prepare for this great event above all others?

We see that a garden is important in a woman's life. It blesses the one who cultivates it and others too. A garden can bring beauty, exercise, and even a place to relax and meditate. A garden does not have to be large; I have seen many city friends who plant flowers or tomatoes in pots and even share them. The joy of planting seeds and seeing them grow is essential. Every girl should learn to plant vegetables and flowers! Get training in gardening for efficiency, as it is a great service for those in need.

Many of us who have gardens have given produce to those in need and been blessed. It is good for a girl to write an essay on the benefits of having a garden. Does she know the difference between weeds and plants? When working in the garden, does she do it with you? Does she know how to prepare the soil for planting and where to find agricultural knowledge? Does she know how to deal with pests that destroy crops? Does she ask for advice from others about farming knowledge? Have you given her a piece of land to garden? Can she plan how to run a garden for a season?

This woman in Proverbs, when she plans to buy and cultivate, becomes an entrepreneur who knows how to manage finances well. Since our daughters will grow up and have responsibilities to manage their own money, their husbands' money, and help children with various plans, teaching them financial planning is essential (financial training). A child should be taught to divide their money when given: giving a tithe, setting aside savings, and leaving some for expenses. It is good to read the story of the Widow's two coins in Mark 12; Matthew 25 for the teachings on talents, and Luke 12 about the rich man with many possessions.

A girl should ask different people, including parents, to tell her the blessings of God for those who return the tithe. Lessons on greed, hoping for wealth, borrowing, and mismanagement of money are important. Teach the child short-term and long-term financial goals. How will she get the money to buy something she wants? Parents should discuss and, if possible, help her start a small business. The child should be taught that giving is better than receiving, and God blesses us when we give without complaining. If possible, open an account for her.

What principles should be followed when borrowing things? Can she compare prices before buying? Look at the examples of Abraham, Job, Solomon, Zacchaeus, Sapphira, and Hezekiah. Keep a household spending record together monthly. Make a clothing budget for the year. Look at good principles for lending money to others. Ask a few women how they manage money or save.

What is the difference between an offering and zakat? Does he give zakat and offerings with humor? How can a wife help her husband by being a good steward of wealth? When creating a household budget, involve him in understanding the monthly household expenses. What are the expenses we consistently have that we can cut or reduce? What are the benefits of a wife staying at home versus having a job outside the home? Does she know that everything she has was given to her by the Heavenly Father? Is she thankful to God who provided it?

Does she know how to save, or does she spend money thoughtlessly? Is she stingy, or is she willing to share with others because God has blessed her? Does she waste money? Does she enjoy borrowing, or does she spend more than she has? Does she prefer spending money on temporary pleasures rather than saving? Can she budget based on the money she has?

“She girds her loins with strength and strengthens her arms.” Verse 17. Just like a soldier goes to war as described in Ephesians 6:17, so should our daughters. In order for our daughters to understand the word properly, we need to teach them systematically and in an organized manner so they understand the key doctrines of the faith.

Each child should have their own Bible, and by the age of seven, they should have their own time for Bible reading, even if it’s just for ten minutes. It might be good for them to start with a Bible in simple language. We have been using the Clear Word Bible or the International Children’s Bible, but we currently do not have children’s Bibles in Swahili. We have started writing children’s Bibles or Bible stories for children; please pray that we can complete this work.

We cannot know or love God without reading His Word. And eternal life is to know God, to depend on Him, to trust Him, and to walk with Him day by day; John 17:3. Prayer is when we speak to God, and reading God’s Word is when God speaks to us.

As a mother, you must be an example. Do your children see you reading God’s Word every day? A child should begin memorizing the 66 books of the Bible in order, perhaps by using a song. They can memorize portions of God’s Word and recite them. Every day, you can read one chapter of Proverbs. Reading God’s Word is a daily activity, just like eating. If we find ourselves too busy, the remedy is not to eat until we have read God’s Word. We will feel hungry and will read. Once the child can read, they should begin reading God's Word.

Have a daily reading chart, perhaps reading one page or one chapter a day. Learn the history of how God's Word reached us and some aspects of the Bible, such as the language used, the books of the Torah, history, poetry, and psalms. It was first printed in 1456 using Gutenberg's printing press, and it has changed the lives of many. It was written over 1,700 years by about 40 people. It has 1,189 chapters and is not just a book of good advice or thoughts but is the voice of God and the final authority on earth and in heaven!

The daughter should read the Bible and put her name, for example, 1 Corinthians 13. Where the word "love" is, she should first put God's name and then read it again, putting her own name. Memorize the key theme in each book of the Bible. Take your daughter to attend Bible study at church. Read Psalm 119 together and discuss it. Explore different ways of reading the Bible and pray for the grace to live according to its teachings. Register your daughter for Bible study by post or online, such as amazingdiscovery.org, amazingfacts.org, secretunsealed, or voiceofprophecy Bible study. When she reads a verse, it is good for her to write the following: What does this verse say? What does it mean? How can it be applied in my life? What should I do with this verse? After a week, let her check if anything has changed in her life because of that verse.

Do they read the Word of God every day without being reminded? Do they have a passion for reading it? Does it change their life and bring meaning? Can they give examples of how the Word of God can be applied in their life? Do they ask questions while reading it? Do they share it with others? Do they seek answers to their questions in the Bible? Can they easily find a verse? Do they know at least a little bit about the history of the Bible? Do they know how to use Bible study tools like a dictionary, concordance, and cross-references?

It is very important to memorize the Word. In times of trial, you will overcome the devil by remembering the promises you've stored up! "It is written." When the Word of God is kept in our hearts, it is a great weapon against evil; Psalm 119:10. The Holy Spirit will remind us of the right verse to use for a certain trial. Start memorizing one verse every week. Young children have a good memory, and since they don't have too much in their heads, it will help. There is no better way to expand the mind and gain knowledge than memorizing the Word of God. Discuss as they continue to memorize to understand the meaning of these verses. Start with passages like Psalm 23, or Psalm 91. 1 Corinthians 13; The Ten Commandments, or even the book of Ephesians on relationships—these are all very good. You can record how they've memorized it. It is good to have a notebook to write down what you read. Can they memorize 20 verses?

Teaching a daughter the habit of praying every day is very important because even when she becomes an adult, she will know to bring her problems to God, and in the challenges she will face with her family, prayer will help her solve them. Always teach those we mentor to bring their problems to God. Pray together in the morning and evening, and pray individually as well. Discuss together the Lord's Prayer in Matthew 6. Every time she is tempted to speak ill of someone, let her pray. She should have a small notebook where she writes down what she is praying for and the dates. This will help her go back and thank God. Let her pray for those in trouble, the government, family, school, the elderly, the church, the discouraged, and the sick. She should learn to pray for those who hurt her. Praise God, confess sins, thank God, and bring your needs as part of every prayer.

Ask people of faith, missionaries, or preachers how prayer has opened doors or how God has answered their prayers. What women went to Christ to ask for something? Write down God's promises and how to pray them (there are more than 3500). Let her start praying for the husband she will marry, even though she is only ten years old.

Let her read stories of faith like that of Hannah, Moses, Solomon, Nehemiah, or David. Read the lives of Augustine, John Newton, and others who give thanks for the prayers of their mothers that made a difference in their lives. Learn the principles of fasting prayer as your daughter grows. Does she close her eyes while praying? Is prayer a real communication with God for her, or is it just tradition? Does she pray for God's guidance before making decisions? Does she think of praying only when facing difficulties? Does she show reverence in prayer, or does she talk carelessly? Does she believe that God answers prayers? Do you share answered prayers with her? Does she give thanks in her prayers, or is she always asking for things?

It is important to teach our daughters to control their emotions. To confront their bodies or feelings. It is very important to deny themselves, go to bed on time, and wake up on time. Read the Word and pray right after waking up. Eat at proper times and learn good principles for taking care of the body (brushing teeth, combing hair, trimming nails, bathing, washing clothes) without being reminded.

She should learn to eat when she is truly hungry, not just because she has nothing else to do, so food does not become a comfort. She should not eat until four or five hours have passed. Laziness, gluttony, wearing immodest clothes, evil lifestyles, and bad friends are things to reject.

What kind of music does she listen to? Ask others to tell her which of her behaviors might be annoying to others, so she can let go of them by the grace of God. Does she know about healthy food and exercise, or does she eat whatever she likes? Does she know what the Word of God says about what we should eat?

Let her read about people who denied themselves to do great things in life, like Daniel, Esther, and Joseph. Write an essay on 'Gluttony.'

Sit in a public place where people pass by and observe them. How do they walk, look, dress, or carry themselves? Does any of that communicate something? Who appears to be self-confident, self-denying, or lazy? How does the Word of God describe our bodies? Read about the consequences of overeating or eating too little. Read about the consequences of eating unhealthy food (junk food) or what God says we should not eat.

There are sins that affect our bodies, such as anger and others. Examine these. Read the health and dietary laws in the Old Testament, like from the time of Noah before the Jews. See if she is making an effort to live a healthy and clean life without being reminded—does she brush her teeth? Does she wash her underwear every day? Does she bathe every day without being reminded? Does she exercise and control her eating habits? Does she know that her body is the temple of the Holy Spirit?

Does her appearance reflect self-denial and self-respect? Does she control her body so that she doesn't annoy others? Does she always seem tired? Is she often sick? Does she behave with decorum? Are there things that could help her be healthy and strong? Does she have nervous habits like biting her nails? Does she care about how she looks to others? Does she worry too much about her appearance?

It is important to teach our daughters to seek appropriate counsel. God is the greatest counselor, but He has also placed people to help us. She can ask godly older women for advice. As she becomes an adult, she will need advice from people. It is better to be humble and ask for advice than to ruin things when we get stuck. The Word of God in James 1 says anyone lacking wisdom should ask, and God will give it. Ask your parents where in your life you sought counsel and succeeded.

The book of Proverbs is great for reading, and it always says, "My son, listen to my instruction…" How will she seek a good advisor for spiritual matters, family matters, social issues, or finances? Titus 2 says older women should be advisors. Read about people who received good or bad advice in the Word of God.

What is wisdom? Read Ephesians 5:22-24 and discuss: What does it mean to submit to a husband in seeking advice from others? What should a wife do when her husband gives unwise counsel, like Abigail did?

I remember the advice my mother gave me before finishing 12th grade when she saw people coming to ask about engagements or relationships. Even when I was studying at the seminary because I was the only girl, and even at university in the chemistry department where I was the only girl, this was the age when people looked for wives. The boys who came, my mother advised me: “You see how many people are coming now, look, don’t give rude or arrogant responses, even though you are studying and don’t want to get married, answer politely and respectfully, even to those you think are not suitable because of their bad behavior. Tell them to give you time to think about it, and after a few days, let them know that you are still at school, or you have things to finish, so they should continue, and it won’t work out.” She said that maybe in a few years, you will have changed your mind, and since you responded kindly, they may come back, and you might find someone good to marry. Even if not them, they will speak well of you, and others will believe that you care about people.

The world is changing; today they want to marry, but you are not ready; tomorrow you may want to marry, and they may not be ready because of arrogance or your responses. Then she said it is not a girl’s job to chase after a man, like Potiphar’s wife. Men should pursue you, and among those who pursue, you choose one of them. It is shameful to chase after a man, even if you love him, let him follow you. Although nowadays, girls are very eager to chase! A man was created to pursue, and he feels good when he finds the one, the girl or makes an effort. Above all, praying for a good husband more than three times a day is important because no one knows who is truly suitable. Those who appeared to be failures have become great husbands, and those who seemed good have become cruel to their wives. The heart is deceitful and has hidden diseases, who can know it except God? So, a girl should know that a good husband is a gift from the Lord, not someone she will find with her own knowledge.

People change, those who married stable people have changed and become bad to their wives, and those we thought married unsuitable people have changed. A spouse can change their behavior by giving them space to grow. Look at how parents gave advice.

Does your daughter follow your advice on ordinary and sensitive matters? Does she accept your counsel about her friends or argue? Does she always think she is right? Does she ask for advice on spiritual matters? Does she seek to know God’s will by reading His Word? Does she enjoy counsel from God and those who love Him, or does she just want her own way?

Since we are in a community of believers, it is good to empower those who share the same faith. Involve your daughters in church and discuss scriptures and the Word of God together. Let your daughters see the value of helping with church activities. They can join others in cleaning the church. They should thank their teachers who teach them in church and the leaders. There are many services in the church to help those in need, and your daughters can join.

Let your daughters learn how to sit quietly in church and honor the Lord's day with the Bible plan that was instructed. Do women in the Old and New Testaments have a role in the church?

Does she complain about going to church and try to avoid it? Does she frequently leave church to go to the restroom or drink water? Does she use what she has been taught in church? Does she only pray for food but not for her life? Are her closest friends from church? Does she enjoy being in the house of the Lord? Can she say what she learned today? Does she serve others with the talents she has been given? Does she listen attentively? Does she pray for the needs of the body of Christ? Does she know her spiritual gifts? Does she admire women in her church or leaders, or does she admire worldly people (celebrities)?

"It is good if her product has value; her light does not go out at night;" verse 18. The woman of this character is patient (perseverance). As parents, we should avoid the temptation of shielding our children from difficulties or challenges. Children should not see from us that God treats them unjustly. Let us help them return to God and His Word. Let us not withhold the opportunity for our children to see God's greatness and faithfulness in their difficulties so they can grow and be purified to become precious gems. Books like Pilgrim's Progress show this well. Ask the elders of faith about God's faithfulness in their lives. Hebrews 11 is a chapter to read and discuss how people solved their problems with God's help. When we go through tough times, what bad things may happen? Who holds the reins of everything? How does obedience and faith help us show others that God is the Almighty?

Read about notable people who did not give up during great trials or failures. Read Psalms and magazines like Voice of the Martyrs on the internet about people who have died for their faith recently. Read Isaiah 53. Who in the Bible endured until the end? How can we thank God for everything? Discuss God's greatness and power together. Why does God allow trials and suffering? (1 Peter). How can a wife be patient and obedient to a husband who is difficult to live with? What does the Bible say about divorce? How are divorce and perseverance related?

Does she give up quickly and not want to try again after failure? Does she complain and pity herself when things don't go as planned or when someone wrongs her? Does she focus only on problems? Can she control her emotions during hardship or while facing challenges without harboring bitterness? Does she make it seem like she is the only one with problems in the world? Does she find comfort in Scripture during trials or hardship? Does she examine her own sins during challenges to see if God is trying to lead her to repentance?

Does she know that God wants her to learn from her struggles? Does she glorify God in the way she handles difficulties? Does she trust in God and see trials as helping her mature?

“She extends her hands to the needy. She reaches out her hands to the poor;” verses 19-20. God has been kind to us and invites us to be kind to those we don’t know, showing love to them. A woman learns kindness when she is young. A home that welcomes those in need of comfort, fellowship, assistance, and love is a model home. A mother will bring joy by participating in helping others. Many are told they have welcomed angels unknowingly (Hebrews 13).

Teach children to be kind by delivering food to the sick, helping those in need, like the elderly and sick, inviting people to our homes. Teach children how to greet a visitor, introduce them, carry their luggage, talk with them, serve them food, and make them feel at ease. Discuss what the host should do. How can one assist a family with an unexpected guest? How can one help the children of a guest who comes to visit with their mother? Think of someone who warmly welcomes you when you visit their home and try to imitate them.

How can visitors to the church be welcomed so they feel loved? Read examples in God’s Word of people who welcomed guests. Who welcomed angels? Look at the examples of Martha and Mary in Luke 10 and John 12. Can she quickly prepare a simple meal for guests? Does she know what food children like? Can she assist with guests who are staying overnight? What is the difference between a wife and a husband when it comes to hosting guests? Does she sit with the guests or keep to herself?

Is she willing to let guests use her things? Does she politely engage in adult conversations? Does she try to initiate a conversation with a guest? Does she try to be kind to guests of all ages? Does she help guests feel at home? When her friends come over, does she take responsibility for welcoming and serving them? Does she show respect when sitting at the table with guests? Does she greet visitors at church and welcome them? Does she resent visitors because she will have a lot of work to do? Does she realize that her hospitality is a way of serving God? Does she see her home as a means of reaching people with the knowledge of God?

On the other hand, does she know how to be a good guest when visiting others? Be cheerful and respectful where she is. Wear clothes respectfully, even when going to bed. How should she respond to others or act wisely? For example, if she hears her hosts arguing, what should she do? What activities can she help with as a guest?

Being a woman of mercy is important. Helping the poor, giving people spiritual and physical hope is essential. “He who is merciful to the poor lends to the Lord, and the Lord will repay him" (Proverbs 19:17). Children of God are not stingy but generous. Teach children to give their toys, clothes, etc.

Plan ways to help widows, the sick, the handicapped, the lonely, or the elderly in your church. Consider how to set aside money to assist those in need, such as prisoners, missionaries, those caring for the sick, pregnant women, people with mental illnesses, those being oppressed, etc. How can you help them? Which Scriptures will be comforting to them? See www.persecution.com.

Read the Gospels and see how Christ helped those in need. How did He help the poor, the sick, widows, or orphans? Read the news or listen to reports about how you can assist those who have suffered a disaster. Can you help your neighbors who are poor but do not want handouts but work instead? What does mercy or compassion mean?

Does she notice when people are suffering or in need? Does she have compassion for their needs? Does she feel sorrow and show mercy to those in need? Does she know how to speak comforting words to those in pain? Does she give her time and resources to love God, or does she give so that people can see her? Does she have a passion for following Christ by serving others? Does she rejoice in serving? Does she dedicate herself to voluntary service?

We must also be involved in helping people's spiritual needs. As women, we are involved in this daily. We are commanded to go into all the world and tell people the good news. It is good to briefly understand how to give a testimony. How was she a Christian? How has God changed her life? She should know the story of the cross, even briefly—that all have sinned and fallen short of the glory of God (Romans 3:23) and 6:23. The wages of sin is death, but we are saved by grace. God gives grace when we believe; we must confess our sins and truly repent, trust in Christ as our Savior, and have assurance of salvation.

Can she explain to a friend what salvation means? Can she pray with someone and help them pray a true prayer of repentance? Can she have a Bible club for the children of the neighbors? People helped with physical needs in order to assist someone spiritually. Can she raise funds for a project to help meet the needs of the church, like construction?

Does she believe that Jesus died and rose again to pay for her sins? Has she accepted Christ as her Savior and Lord? Does she grieve for those who are lost without knowing God? Does she pray for those who do not know God? Does she know Scriptures to guide someone in trusting God? Is she ashamed to confess Christ to others? Does she love obeying God? Does her life align with His Word? Does she pray for those working for God and encourage them? Does she give what she has to support God's work, or does she only think of life here on earth?

Being a righteous person is one of the characteristics of a good woman. She should know about the country's laws. Voting and respecting leaders are important. She should know that leaders are placed by God, and it is crucial for them to act justly. Who should she vote for? There are many agendas that a Christian should consider, such as abortion, euthanasia, capital punishment, homosexuality, pornography, taxation, immorality, or lying. How does a person who loves God engage with these? When voting, should she vote for leaders who support these? Are there leaders who love God and bring blessings to the people? Read about the lives of Daniel, Noah, or Rehoboam.

Does she know her leaders and understand the meaning of authority? Can she express her opinions to local or even national leadership? Does she know how a bill becomes law? Does she understand the issues in the country today? Can she discern the misleading words of "human thoughts" in the media? Does she show the respect due to leaders, even those who are selfish and evil? When she is in a position, does she strive to change bad laws by speaking to local leaders? Does she serve those who have been wronged? Does she know that all authority has been given by God?

"She is not afraid of the snow for her household, for all her household are clothed in scarlet;" verse 21.

A strong woman prepares for the future. It is good for a daughter to know emergency numbers, such as family members to call for help, police, or firefighters. Joseph prepared Egypt for a time of trouble (Genesis 41). We should also teach our children to do the same. Teach them what to do when a fire starts, where to run, and how to help younger siblings. She should know where the flashlight, matches, or candles are.

If you leave her to care for younger children, teach her well how to watch over them and handle potential dangers. Are there poisonous plants or flowers nearby? What should she do if a child drinks kerosene or falls into a river? Ask a mother who has faced household dangers with her children, what did she do? Teach her about the dangers of water, electricity, and gas, and how to turn them off when necessary.

First aid is important; every child should be taught according to their age level. Does a child know what to do if they suddenly fall ill, who to ask for help, and how to take them to the hospital? What hazards exist where you live, and what should you do about them? Can she tell if food has gone bad and what should be discarded to avoid poisoning? Should leftover food be thrown away? How should meat, eggs, or fish be stored?

Does she know which way the pot handle should face when cooking? How should she hold a knife when giving it to someone? Does she know how to safely use a pressure cooker? Teach her how to safely preserve vegetables by drying them or putting them in jars. Learn a few safety precautions for transport tools like bicycles, motorcycles, or cars. Can she change a tire? Does she know how to receive vaccinations without harm? Teach her to conduct thorough research.

Books like “A Place Without a Doctor” are good to have. When is home first aid insufficient, and the person must be taken to the hospital? Learn with your daughter about alternative medicine and growing medicinal herbs like echinacea, ginger, and garlic. Take first aid classes, self-defense classes. Learn home safety regarding weapons, like arrows, clubs, rat traps, or poisons, and firearms.

Does she know when precaution is necessary? Can she swim? Can she anticipate coming dangers? Does she act cautiously to avoid harm or injury to others? For example, leaving water uncovered, throwing objects, etc. If she encounters trouble with transport, can she be of assistance? Does she know how to handle a home emergency? Does she handle food with cleanliness and safety? Does she know what to do if an earthquake or storm occurs? Can she use tools safely? Does she know how to protect herself from illness? Does she know self-defense moves to protect herself from an attacker? Does she trust God as her main protector and provider?

“She has made herself coverings of beauty, her clothes are fine linen and purple;” (Proverbs 31:22).

A woman who fears God also loves beautiful things, and she strives to sew and learn some skills. She makes an effort to dress well even at home, not like the one chasing birds in the field, but one who dresses well when leaving the house. She learns to make her bed and leave her room in a good condition when she wakes up. The room changes completely just by making the bed! She can help weave cloths for chairs and tables. She plants flowers and decorates the home, helping her relatives sew buttons. God has created us to appreciate skill and beauty. Teach her to sew, to repair clothes, and if she can’t, find someone to help her. She should learn how to sew a zipper, make a bag, sew a handkerchief, a child’s clothes, a skirt, or an apron. She can even sew and help those in need. Attending sewing, decorating, or weaving classes will help her gain more knowledge. Women can teach these things to girls in church homes or communities. Books like “Simple Secrets to a Beautiful Home” by Emilie Barnes are good for our girls to read.

Does her room have order? Does she try to make her room clean and tidy? Are her table, chairs, clothes, and bedding in good order? Does she take time to learn how to decorate with flowers and simple items for the room, house, or even work together with others to decorate God’s church? Are her wall decorations of worldly people, celebrities, and magazines of the rich and famous, or are they things that help her?

It appears this woman wears linen and purple, which are royal garments, she is a daughter of the King! I believe that if we have the ability, we should have a few beautiful clothes and also help those in need. Being a child of the King also involves royal behavior. Our daughters should learn royal manners and politeness. Saying thank you, please, sorry, and excuse me are words of gold or royalty. They should know how to be calm in church and elsewhere; not shouting or speaking loudly, or arguing. They should know how to call someone or speak with them. They should understand the rules when visiting other people's homes. Gary and Cathy Maldaner wrote a book "Visiting Other Families in Polite Moments." Try to see what things to teach children when visiting someone (out of town).

What should you do when you go to a hotel or restaurant (polite manners)? How to serve food, how to ask for a menu, use a spoon or fork, or a napkin (paper towel for wiping the mouth)? Write down these rules and learn together. For example, who should start serving food when you are guests somewhere? Books like Manners Made Easy by June Hines Moore are helpful.

How to answer the phone, and introduce yourself when meeting people. How to compliment someone or encourage them (compliment/praise), how to greet a guest at the door, how to thank someone when praised, how to thank when finishing hospitality, how to blow your nose, sneeze, or cough in front of people. How to excuse yourself when going to the bathroom, how to arrange the table and serve people, how to make someone listen to you when they are doing something (interrupting). How to be a good guest when invited somewhere, how not to be selfish or self-centered, or how to write a thank you note after being invited.

How should a girl learn how to do things with grace (a girl's guide to etiquette)? Read the Bible books, what do you learn about Christ as a guest, friend, and teacher? How did he greet people, how did he speak to them, how did he say goodbye? Read how Nabal in 1 Samuel 25 and Hanun in 2 Samuel 10 had poor manners. How does Philippians 2:2-4 help us with relationships with others?

Write a list of things that annoy people (bad manners) or that show poor manners (bad manners). Write how a girl can change these bad behaviors. Write down people you would like to be with, observe their behavior, what are their polite habits? Do they respect others more than themselves, compare with your own behavior. Look at the example of a woman with good manners, ask her how she does these things (graciousness and good manners/etiquette). How does the fruit of the Spirit relate to our behavior in Galatians 5:22-23?

Invite a guest, then let the girl set the table, arrange flowers, cook, and be a gracious hostess. Look in the Word of God at those who showed good manners, what did they do? Where in the Bible are we told to have gentleness and kindness (politeness/kindness); like caring for the elderly or serving others before ourselves? Why is it not good to speak while chewing food?

Does she treat others the way she would like to be treated? Does she have good manners at the table (manners)? Does she speak kindly to people (politely)? Does she know how to excuse herself when needed, does she love people and show good manners (good etiquette) by following the rules with humility and love for others? Do others enjoy talking to her or visiting her? Do you often feel embarrassed when with your guests because of her behavior or how she speaks to people? Does she show respect for the elderly? Does she know how to give thanks, and does she respect other people's things?

It is good to teach children to be moderate. Let us teach them that how they dress or speak can offend others. Tell them their responsibility is to have wisdom in what they wear and how they speak to others. They must know they are children of the King, and be taught from a young age. Let's dress them in appropriate styles from childhood.

Often, young girls are dressed in revealing clothes, like short skirts, and when the child reaches 12, we start telling her that is not appropriate, even though she has worn it from a young age! Young children should be dressed in skirts with dresses, so that when they play, their undergarments (panties) are not visible. A child should not walk around wearing a wrap that exposes the shoulders all day, but should add another one to cover the shoulders/chest.

We should also teach them to be humble and not feel they are more important than others. 1 Timothy 2 describes a woman who loves God. What kind of clothing or fashion is immodest? There must be a dress code. What kind of trousers do they wear? Are they tight in the private areas? Do the clothes reveal the chest and breasts? Is her dress above the knees? Tell the girl to talk to her father about clothes that do not tempt young men or even older men.

Take a catalog of women's clothes with pictures and discuss it. Sit in a place and observe people passing by, and discuss which clothes are modest and which are not. How do you measure these clothes? Write down the dress code for a girl representing God, and how to style her hair, nails, or face to represent God. Does appearance matter, or is it enough for our hearts to be pure? Why did God give us clothes in the Garden of Eden? Why didn't he leave them to walk around in the fig leaves they made themselves, which barely covered them? If God gave us clothes to cover the body and not leaves, what does that mean for us?

Look at the fashion of clothes in different countries, then look at how people dressed 50 or even 100 years ago. Do these fashions represent the morals and culture of those people? Let the girl discuss with her parents what her goal is in her dressing? Is she dressing to please God or people? Does she want people to look at her or bring glory to God?

Many countries nowadays have places where the whole family can go without clothes (nude beaches or recreation); why is this wrong? Why did Noah curse his son who saw his nakedness? When Christ was on earth, how did people dress? What is nudity? Is it being completely without clothes or wearing half clothes with some parts exposed?

The Word of God is clear about which parts of the body should be exposed and which should be covered. Tell the girl to go with her father to buy her clothes, and the father should give his thoughts on the choice, then explain why he has chosen that outfit. Tell her father to also check her clothes in the closet and evaluate them, giving reasons why they are appropriate or inappropriate.

Read about the stranger woman in Proverbs 7. What does she do to attract men? Compare her with the woman of Revelation, one dressed in the sun and moon, and the one who deceived nations. What is the difference between them? What kind of men go after strange women? Ask the father to explain to the daughter how young men view women when they wear tight clothes or expose sensitive parts of the body (flirtatious). Read the book “For Young Women Only” by Shaunti Feldhahn and discuss it at home.

Read Matthew 5:27-28. When the girl dresses, she should think about the men who will look at her and what they will think. Consider a woman with modesty in spirit and dress. Look at her behavior, actions, and how she speaks to men, or how she dresses. Read about women without modesty and how they dressed. What did they do, and what were the results? How can dressing immodestly show a lack of trustworthiness to the one she will marry? How does it affect other young men to lack trust in their future wives? Prepare the girl for courtship when she reaches around 18 years. Discuss how to avoid being legalistic in dressing, while keeping it godly and moderate.

It is said that men are tempted to lust after a woman, and a woman is tempted to make a man lust after her. Discuss this. Does she want to please God with her dressing, or does she seek glory for herself and for others to look at her? Does she receive advice on dressing, or does she dress in whatever pleases her? Does she know how men’s eyes look at her dress and what they think when they see a woman dressed in a certain way? Does she protect men from sinful thoughts with her dressing? Does she wear clothes that cover her or does she enjoy exposing her body?

Does she dress like a girl or prefer to dress like a boy? Does she like to flirt with men through her dressing, behavior, and words? Does she overdo modesty to the point where she appears unflattering and not like a girl? Does she have pride because she dresses modestly and judges everyone else who dresses improperly? Is she becoming legalistic about her dress, focusing on external appearances while her heart harbors rebellion? Does she impose her standards of dressing on others?

“Her husband is known at the gates, when he sits among the elders of the land;” (Proverbs 31:23).

This man who is respected at the gates must also be respected at home. Proverbs 12:4. A wise woman who honors him helps her husband mature and grow in leadership and responsibility.

Honoring her husband starts with a girl honoring her father. Nagging is a behavior to avoid. She must learn to honor and see that her father and mother are authorities placed by God in her life. She should learn to respond politely when called by her father, help him welcome him at the door, take his coat, cook his meal, and set it for him. She should learn to thank her father and understand the things that please him, like a newspaper, music, or books. Write a list of things that annoy or please your father.

Read the book of Proverbs and observe the relationship between parents and children. Also, read Ephesians 5:33.

What shows respect for your father? How does a mother show respect to her husband? Here, as women, we must strive for our children to see this. How do we assist our husbands as helpers? How can a child show respect for their grandfather or uncles? Can you write a list of things that show disrespect? If a daughter has a problem respecting her parents, she should write the reasons for not respecting them and see what the Bible says about those reasons.

Read about Job’s wife, Michal, and Vashti, how they disrespected their husbands. Read about Sarah and Esther and how they respected their husbands. Examine children or women who disrespect their husbands or parents. What example do children get from women who disrespect their husbands? How does the authority of the man appear in this household? How does the authority of God manifest in this household?

A daughter should discuss with her father the importance of respecting her husband. How should a worker, citizen, child, or wife behave if authority is not respected? Is she free to disobey authority, even when it is sinful?

Does she speak to you and her father with respect? Does she speak with respectful words to parents and authority figures? When you speak to her or call her, does she respond and turn her face to listen to you? Does her face and demeanor show that she obeys? (expressions, gestures, and posture). Does she respect you in front of others and even when you are alone together?Does she speak of your weaknesses in front of others? Does she criticize you in front of others? Does she respect elders, police, and government leaders? Does she make an effort to please you? Does she see you as the authority that God has placed in her life? Does she respect your opinions? Does she know how to express herself when she disagrees with you? Does she disrespect you and show that she is ashamed of you being her parent? Does she enjoy mocking or laughing at you in front of others?

Supporting your husband is very important, let's teach our daughters. This helps our husbands perform their leadership role given by God with excellence. A woman is a helper to her husband, she should obey him and use her time and energy to respect him. By doing this well, she can be a crown to her husband. Perhaps she must set aside her desires to serve her husband, and this should be taught when they are young.

Some women may not think about this, because they are married to men who do not fear God, but even they need to be respected; Matthew 20:28. Even the Son of Man came to serve people. Let her learn how to serve her siblings, brothers, or sisters. Let her ask her mother or other mothers, "What are your goals today?" She will see that many mothers' goals are to serve and care for their households.

Let her learn how to please her brothers or sisters for one day. Let her pray for her parents. Discuss ways to support her father in his work. Does she know how to let go of her interests to help others? Let her observe her mother and see how she supports her father. A girl should ask her father how her mother encouraged him in the calling God gave him. How did she help him in his life? Look at how daughters support their fathers. Ask two men how their wives have helped them succeed in life? How have they encouraged them to mature in their leadership roles?

Study the lives of famous people and historical leaders and the role their wives or mothers played in helping them. 1 Timothy 3:1-13.

Does a woman have a responsibility to help her husband in what ways? 1 Timothy 3 and Titus 1 show that a man needs his wife's support in many things. Look at the example of Jesus as a servant, how did He serve people?

Look at women in the Bible like Sarah and Priscilla and how they helped their husbands. Read about the lives of wives like Lot's wife, Haman's wife, Jezebel, or Herodias; how did they help their husbands? Look at families where the wife does not want to support her husband, what are the results? For those wives who want to pursue a career rather than support their husbands, ask yourself how this will help their children or husbands.

How can a family sin as a team? How can a wife help her husband with her words, by praising his good qualities, being humble and respectful, or by praying for him? Write 15 ways to respect your husband. How can your role as a wife be like the church, a helper to Christ for your husband?

Verse 24 shows the entrepreneurial spirit that our daughters should learn. Let's teach our daughters how they can create businesses at home to earn income and skills. A father or mother can start a project to help, perhaps selling small things like water, sewing items, or food items. If there is a job they can do and get paid, let them do it.

Women like those in Acts 16-15 show us that they can sell decorative items. Discuss the benefits of women earning income from home rather than working outside the home. Learn about business licenses and government taxes. Ask women who have their businesses, what do they do? Think of a business that requires little capital and start it. How does a woman use the income she earns from her work?

Does she do her work with excellence? Does she want God to be pleased with her work? Does she improve her craft skills? Does she have the ability to generate income? Do others know she is a good worker? Do people like her products or skills? Does she have entrepreneurial skills? Does she like to work both outside and inside the home? Does she try to solve problems when she sees a need? Does she want to earn money for her personal needs only, or help the family and others as well?

"Strength and dignity are her clothing, and she laughs at the future;" verse 25. This woman knows the life of faith, contentment, and gratitude to God. She knows that God holds the reins of the future. We need to help our daughters be content with what God, and we as parents, have given them. We can discuss and write together what we are thankful for. Does she thank her parents for anything? What is the difference between asking and thanking? Philippians 4:6-7 and 1 Thessalonians 5:16-18. Does she have jealousy, hatred?

Read about those who were discontent in the Bible. Whenever you are tempted to complain, read Philippians 2 and Isaiah 53. Should a king's daughter live a life of discontent? Talk to an older woman about contentment. Discuss the meaning of the word "covet." Write a list of things you are discontented with (discontent); about your appearance, where you live, your family, and then write the root of this discontent in your heart. Then confess it to God. Look at Hebrews 11 and how each person listed was content.

Does she thank God for what He gives her? Does she demand to buy things when you are at the store? Does she care if someone else gets more than her? Does she want to have things that others have? Can she live a simple life and see the lessons God teaches her?

Does she depend on God as the provider? Does she focus on temporary things or eternal things? Is she content with what she has, or does she want more? Does she have a spirit of gratitude for her parents and your love? Does she give thanks for the service or the things she is given? Does she love to complain and whine? Does she struggle with getting what she wants from others? Does she always want to defend her rights? Does she indulge in self-pity? Does she envy the things of others and feel hurt by them?

God provides for our needs now and in the future. Who gave Adam his wife? Does God want us to be the kind of people described in Micah 6:6-8? Look at the women who helped Jesus' work or His needs, how many were unmarried? Know unmarried women in your fellowship and visit them. Can a daughter make her unmarried years meaningful (school, Bible study, service, memorizing verses, skills)? Does she know the sin that came when women married women and men married men? Discuss with her.

The Bible mentions people like Miriam, Rahab, Delilah, Mary, Martha, Esther, Anna, the widow of Zarephath, and the daughters of Zelophehad. How did their singleness help them serve as they did? How did God help them get their provision? What mistakes did they make, and what punishments did they face? 1 Corinthians 7:34-35.

Write how an unmarried woman without the responsibility to please a husband can serve most effectively. Look at how her freedom can help her be of service to God's work. What things can she contribute to the church now that she is unmarried? If called by God to be single, can she trust Him?

Talk to parents about being called to serve God without marrying. Why does God sometimes call people who are unmarried? How do these people support themselves and get provision? If unmarried, will she live in her own city? Where will she seek counsel when she is alone? Read the Bible when it talks about "the calling to live a single life." Read the book "Did I Kiss Marriage Goodbye" by Carolyn McCulley. Can living alone be fulfilling and complete? Discuss loneliness.

Does she trust God for everything and find fulfillment in her relationship with Him? Does she know that the enemy comes in more ways than just through sin? Discouragement, hypocrisy, bad friends, fatigue, etc.? Has she dedicated herself to serving God and using that time to learn to be a wife and mother? Does she trust God to choose a suitable husband for her at the right time, if that is His plan? Does she care about your thoughts regarding the men who come to her? Does she care more about getting married than obeying God? Does she dream about marriage? Does she have inappropriate thoughts about love?

What is more important to her, being a mature God-fearing woman or marrying anyone? Does she envy her peers who get married? Does she fear that she may not get married? Does she know that God may have called her to singleness and service rather than marriage? Does she know that God has specific plans for her, whether married or unmarried? Does she use her unmarried years to prepare for His calling? Does she speak to other unmarried women at church with love and care? Does she have a heart to meet the needs of those who are lonely?

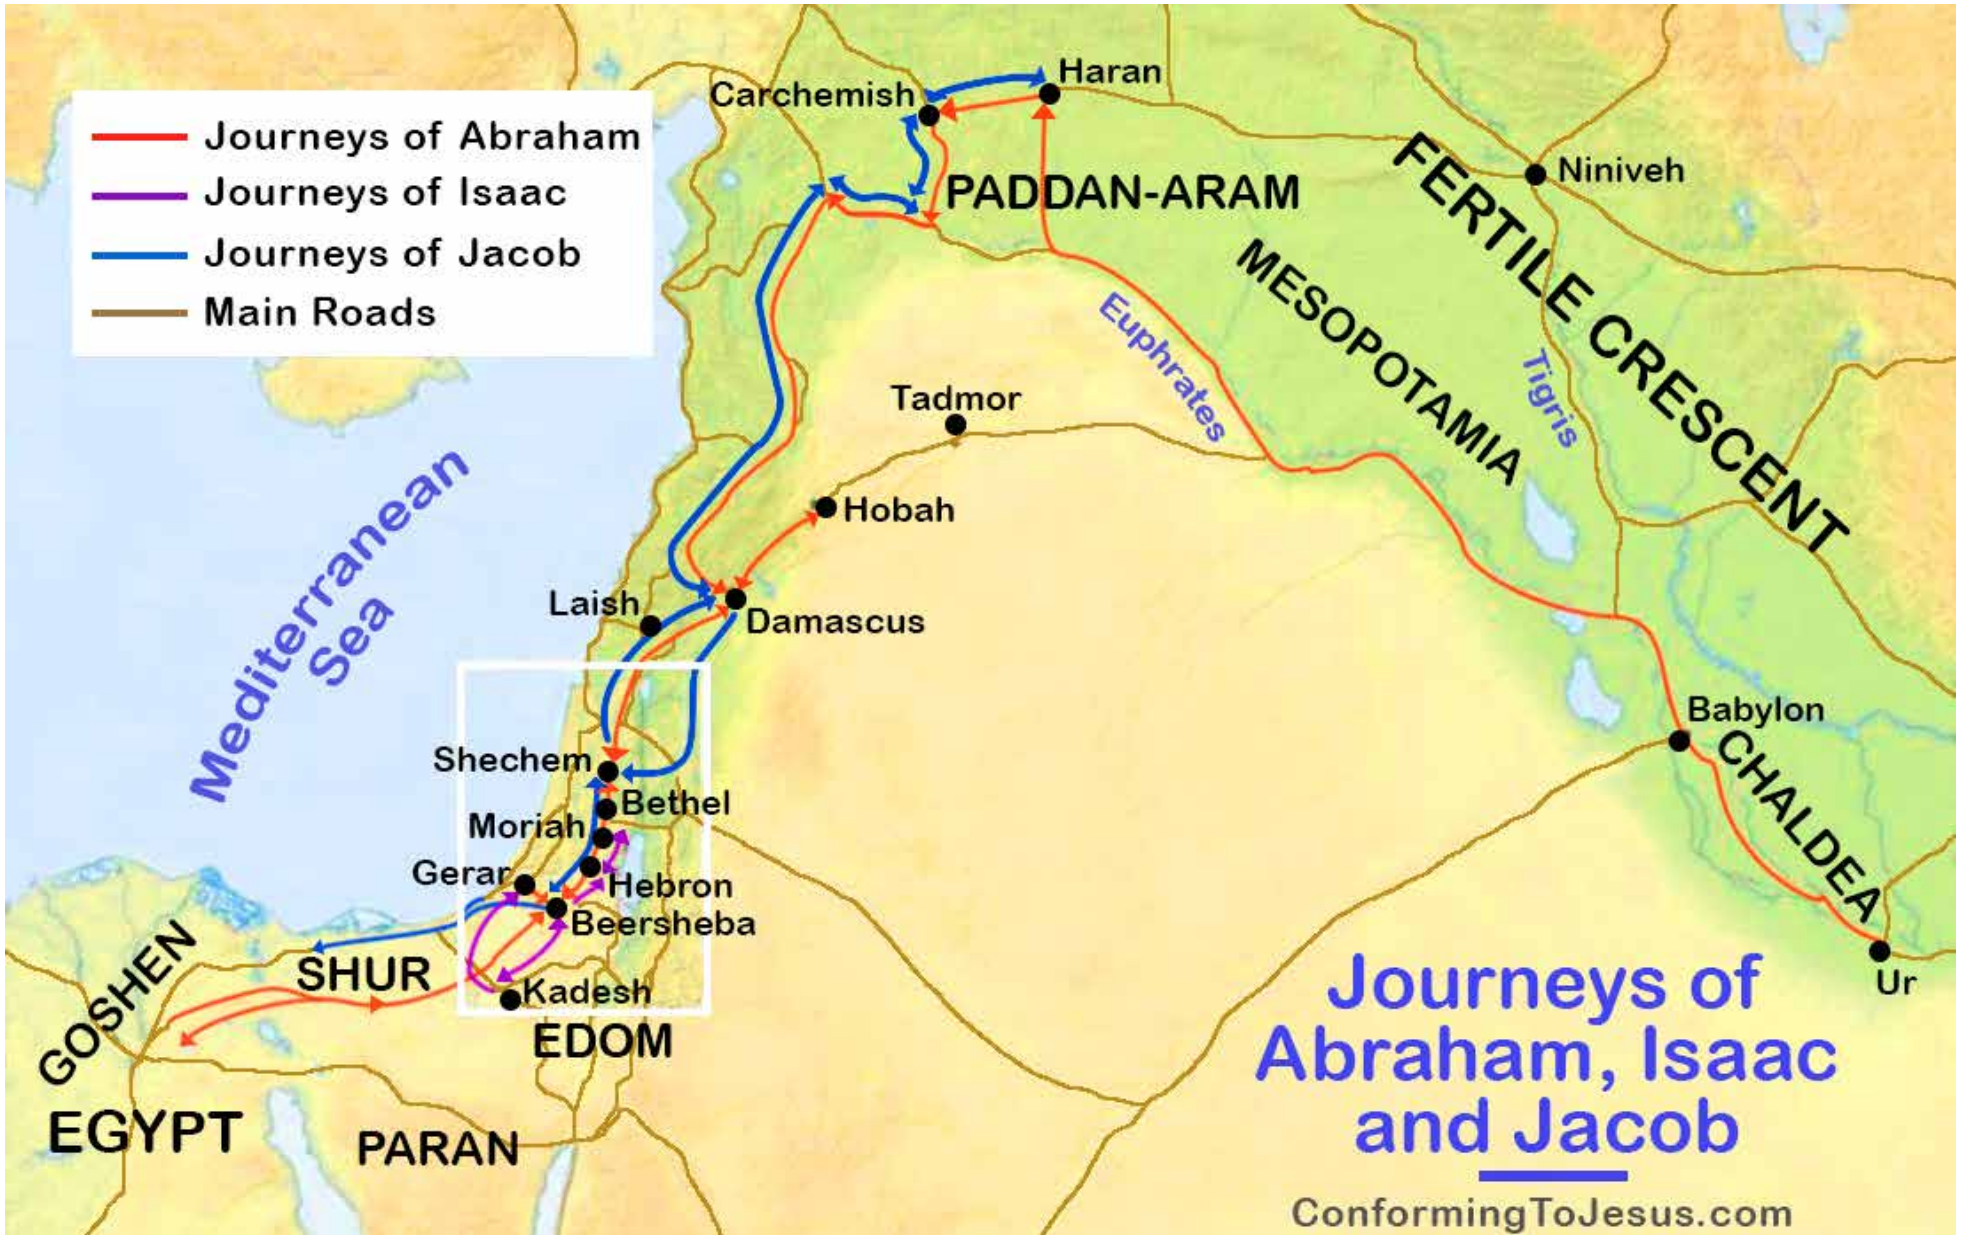
Let's teach our daughters not to live in fear, but with strength and courage. Let them understand that prayer is important. When they get fearful, they should trust in Him. Read about God's promises and protection. Look at how women like Noah's wife, Lot's wife, Sarah, Esther, Jochebed, Deborah, or Ruth trusted God. Choose Psalms to read when you are afraid. Look at the times when the Israelites were afraid in the book of Exodus. How did those in Hebrews 11 show courage?

"Read about the women who were tested to have fear, how they acted when they were afraid, and how they relied on God. Read about Sarah's life, what were her strengths and weaknesses? How did she act when tested? Why is she used as an example for those with faith?

Does she fear trusting God to take care of her? Does she have faith in Romans 8:28? Does she know how to read passages while being fearful? When she is fearful, does she pray? Is she afraid to try anything new? Is she afraid of what people think of her? Does she fear making mistakes? Is she afraid of the future? Can she say 'no' when people ask her to do evil? Does she fear being hurt? Does she fear speaking to people? Does she worry and think that she will fail, only seeing problems?

Does she have the courage to resolve conflicts or disagreements with friends, family, teachers, or parents? Does she have the courage to admit when she is wrong? Is she willing to apologize when she wrongs someone? Does she fear God more than people? Can she tell a friend when they are sinning? Does she lose hope when she sins? Does she receive rebuke and correction positively? Does she fear sharing her thoughts? Does she fear witnessing for Christ in front of others? Does she fear expressing her feelings?



"She opens her mouth with wisdom; and the law of kindness is on her tongue." The tongue cannot be restrained, it is full of restless evil. It is full of deadly poison. As parents, we should help our children 'train' their tongues early so that they may be a blessing to their husbands, children, church, and community. David asks God to put a muzzle on his tongue. It is good to tell our daughters when they speak inappropriately, and their friends can also be their protectors. We should not return evil for evil. How can we do this? Tell your daughter to ask someone to watch over all her idle words (Matthew 12:36-37).

Read James 3 and discuss it. Read about people who have been helped by good words, and those whose lives have been destroyed by bad words. Look at words such as quarrels, complaints, gossip, lies, cursing, false witnessing, and blasphemy. How can a woman control her words? Read the story of Abigail or Pilate's wife. How can a woman have words that encourage or give good advice? How can we control ourselves when we speak? How can we make our conversations a blessing (improving speech)?

Does she like labeling people? Does she speak foolishly, in an irritating tone? Does she mock others? Does she like to complain and grumble? Does she enjoy gossiping about others? Is her voice always loud? Does she yell when arguing with her siblings? Does she like reporting other people's mistakes? Does she use unkind words to her siblings? Does she like provoking others? Does she like criticizing and mocking people (sarcastically)?

Does she like to take God's name in vain? Does she show respect to you and your father with her words? Do her words build others up, or tear them down? Does she say everything that comes to her mind, or does she filter her words? Does she correct someone who is wrong with humility? Does she give good advice to others? Opening the mouth with wisdom is important for a mother or wife. Children need to be taught to obey. She should not be lazy in her work. We should teach our daughters to have inner beauty that surpasses outward beauty."

THE MAIN THING IS TO KEEP THE MAIN THING THE MAIN THING

Grace Momadi Masaka saw a need of books for children online that will be free of charge online. In these times of dotcom life, many youth surf online. We have written and translated about 53 books currently.
The main thing in this life is for the young and the old to live purposeful and meaningful life. There is no Book that bring so much meaning in life as this one.
The world history starts in Mesopotamia, and this book goes parrallel with the World History, infact there is not religious book that goes with world history except this! Read more about this in Daniel two, seven and eight!
What is the main thing? The main thing is to fear God and give Him glory for the hour of His judgement has come, and we need to prepare for this. It is without doubt that we are living at the end of the time, and life has meaning only if we prepare for this.
This is a manual of teaching the young ones Bible, and in a context that is not centered for the Western countries only. it is inclusive of any culture.
This is the First Edition, edited and reviewed. If you have any suggestions, please do not hesitate to share them with us so that we can work together in this mission.

May the Spirit of God help us to consecrate ourselves fully. When we fully dedicate ourselves, we will be able to reach the three billion people who have not yet heard the message of the Remnant—of the living God in heaven. He is our Creator, who died for us on the cross and is coming again to take us to live with Him forever. Life is very short—Scripture says that a thousand years are like a single day to God. This means that Adam, who lived over 900 years, only lived about 20 hours in God's time! Someone who lives 80 years today would only have lived about two hours. This reality compels us to seek the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, keeping His Word before us day and night. The Scriptures reveal God's love and promises, even granting us eternal life.

The Bible contains 66 books—39 in the Old Testament and 27 in the New Testament. It took over 1,700 years to write the Bible. However, all approximately 40 authors maintained a unified message and did not contradict one another because they were inspired by the same God. The Bible has 1,189 chapters. The longest chapter is Psalm 119, and the longest book is Jeremiah, followed by Genesis, Psalms, Ezekiel, and Exodus. The shortest books are 3 John, 2 John, Philemon, Obadiah, and Jude. The shortest chapter is Psalm 117, and the middle chapter of the Bible is Psalm 118.

Before the printing press was invented, over 23,000 manuscript copies of the Bible were found worldwide, and they were remarkably consistent with each other—unlike other ancient writings like those of Plato or Socrates, which only had a few copies, sometimes fewer than ten. This shows that the Bible is not a fabricated book, in fact the Bible is the most authentic ancient literature. The books of Acts and Luke were examined through historical events, cities, and dates, and they were found to be astonishingly accurate.

Character and the people we love are the only things we will take with us to heaven! JESUS is coming soon! The Spirit and the Bride say, "Come!" Let everyone who hears this say, "Come!" Whoever is thirsty, let them come and take the water of life freely. Amen. Come, Lord Jesus! May the grace of the Lord Jesus be with you all. MARANATHA, beloved of the LORD! Amen.
